"RIGHTeous OVERMUCH"—NESS.
Deacon Adams "Reals His Tilt Clear." BY FRANK CLEVE.

Brethren, I used to be as vile A sinner, full of wicked guile, As ever flourished in this part—Before my change of heart.

But since I am regenerate, I try to keep my walk as straight As any walk I know of in This wilderness of sin.

The righteous used to shake their heads At some of my rapacious trades;
But now they say, admiringly, That Heaven prospers me.

And sometimes it does seem to me—I say it with humility And consciousness of little worth—That I'm the salt of the earth.

And yet with jeers I've been saluted, By evil tongues been persecuted;
But, brethren, make no complaint—I'm a long-suffering saint.

Folks hint that I am a deceiver small—But in my way, I'm liberal; I'd share the last coat of my self With—hem—ahem! myself.

My hand, at tale of other's woes, Straightway into my pocket goes:
And while I weep warm tears of charity—I keep it there.

But I've too many righteous quaims To blow my horn when I give alms; My left hand never yet hath known What ails my right hand done.

They say I took thirty per cent.
From Widow Jones, for money lent;
As true as I am going to Heaven, I took exactly seven.

Besides my perquisites, to wit:
Fifteen per cent. for finding it—Discount on note, five more—and three Per cent. gratuity.

Folks ought to stand a little abate From us who toil and pinch and save, And wrestle with the asscher, which is The "primal cause" of riches.

"Who lendeth to the poor," the Word Says—don't it?—"Giveth to the Lord." I've given my all to Him. 'Tis lent At twenty-five per cent.

Still I'm not a perfect man—And, brethren, you may search from Dan To Beersheba without seeing A truly perfect being.

I only claim to be the chief Among ten thousand. 'D as lief Be called a sinner, and have done with it As called a hypocrite.

PHANTOM ARMIES.

On the 29th of January, 1719, a Scottish gentleman, named Alex.
Jaffray, Laird of Kingswells, was riding across a piece of wide and waste moorland, toward the westward of Aberdeen, when, about eight o'clock in the morning, he beheld—to his great alarm and bewilderment, as he states in a letter to his friend, Sir Archibald Grant of Monymusk (printed by the Spalding Club)—a body of about seven thousand soldiers drawn up in front of him, all under arms, with colors unceasing and waving, and the drums slung on the drummers' backs. A clear morning sun was shining, so he saw them distinctly, and also a commander who rode along the line, mounted on a white charger.

Dubious whether to advance or retire, and sorely perplexed as to what mysterious army this was, the worthy Laird of Kingswells and a companion, an old Scottish soldier, who had served in Low Country wars, reined in their horses, and continued to gaze on this unexpected army for nearly two hours; till suddenly the troops broke into marching order, and departed towards Aberdeen, near which, he adds, the hill called the Stockett took them out of sight.

Nothing more was heard or seen of this phantom force until the 21st of October, when, upon the same ground—the then open and desolate White-mires—on a fine clear afternoon, when some hundred persons were returning home from the yearly fair of Old Aberdeen, about two thousand infantry, clad in blue uniforms faced with white, and with all their arms shining in the evening sun, were distinctly visible; and after a space the same commander on the same white charger rode slowly along the shadowy line. Then a long "wreath of smoke appeared, as if they had fired, but no noise" followed.

To add to the marvel of this scene, the spectators, who, we have said, were numerous, saw many of their friends, who were coming from the fair, pass through this line of impalpable shadows, of which they could see nothing until they came to a certain point upon the moor and looked back to the sloping ground. Then, precisely as before, these phantoms in foreign uniform broke into marching order, and moved towards the Bridge of the Deer. They remained visible, however, for three hours, and only seemed to fade out or melt gradually away as the sun set behind the mountains. "This will puzzle the philosophy," said the Laird at the close of his letter to the baronet of Monymusk; "but that need not doubt the certainty of either."

Almost on the same ground where the Laird of Kingswells saw the second army of phantoms, and doubtless resulting from the same natural and atmospheric causes, a similar appearance had been visible on the 12th of February, 1643, when a great body of horse and foot appeared as if under arms on the Brigman Hill.
Accoutred with matchlock, pike and morion, they looked ghost-like and misty as they skinned through the gray vapour about eight o'clock in the morning; but on the sun breaking forth from a bank of cloud, they vanished, and the green hills-slopes were left bare, or occupied by sheep alone. Much about the same time, another army was seen to hover in the air over the Moor of Fafgar.
"Quilkins visions," adds the Commissary Spalding, "the people thought to be prodigious to us; and it fell out ower trow, as may be seen hereafter."

In 1633, fairy drums were heard beating on the hills of Dan Echt, in Aberdeenshire, according to the narrative of the parson of Rothiemay; in 1643, we hear of the noise of drums "and apparitions of armies" at Bankfair in the same county.
"The wrath of General Leslie in his buff-coat and on horseback, carrying his own banner, with its head azure and three buckles or, appeared on the summit of a tower at St. Johnstown.
Science now explains such visions as the aerial Morgana, produced by the reflection of real objects on a peculiar atmospheric arrangement; but then they were a source of unlimited terror." Low, in his Memorials, records that, in 1676, a wonderful star-blazed at noon on the hill of Gargan-nock, and a great army of spectres was seen to glide along the hills near Aberdeen.

During the middle of the last century, a toll-keeper in Perthshire affirmed on oath, before certain justices of the peace, that an entire regiment passed through his toll-gate at midnight; but as no such force had left any town in the neighbourhood, or arrived at any other, or, in fact, were ever seen anywhere but at his particular turnpike, the whole story was naturally treated as a delusion; though the Highlanders sought in some way to connect the vision with the unique spirits of those who fought at Culloden, for there, the peasantry aver, that "in the soft twilight of the summer evening, solitary wayfarers, when passing near the burial mounds, have suddenly found themselves amid the smoke and hurly-burly of a battle, and could recognize the various clans engaged by their tartans and bagges. On those occasions, a certain Laird of Cullodhill was always seen amid the fray on a white horse, and the people believe that once a rain great battle will be fought there by the clans; but with whom, or about what, no seer has ventured to predict."

Like the spells of the Fairy Morgana, which were alleged to create such beautiful effects in the Bay of Reggio, and which Fra Antonio Mansi saw thrice in 1773, and deemed to exceed by far the most beautiful theatrical exhibitions in the world," science has explained away, or fully discovered the true source of all such spectral phenomena. The northern aurora was deemed by the superstitious, from the days of Pin-tarch even to those of the sage Sir Richard Baker, as portentions of dire events; and the fancies of the timid saw only war and battle in the shining streamers; but those supposed spectral armies whose appearance we have noted, were something more, in most instances, than mere deceptio visus, being actually the shadows of realities—the airy reproductions of events, bodily passing in other parts of the country, reflected in the clouds, and imaged again on the mountain slopes or elsewhere, by a peculiar operation of the sun's rays.

[There is a well authenticated instance of a phantom battle seen in Amherst early in the present century.
Late one afternoon was observed in the clouds of the eastern sky a naval battle. The clouds presented the appearance of the sea, with two fleets of men of war under full sail, which gradually approached each other and engaged in battle. Smoke issued from the ports partially enveloping and concealing the ships from view, masts were shot away and were seen falling into the water; sails were riddled with cannon shot, several of the ships were dismasted, the sea was covered with wreck, and men were seen struggling in the waves.
This continued for some time, when the spectacle gradually faded away.
The Hon. James S. Morse is we believe the only person now alive among the many who witnessed it; and it would be well if the exact details and time of so marked and interesting a phenomenon were ascertained and preserved.—E. L. Ch. Post.]

AN EXTRAORDINARY TRAGEDY.

A crime has been very recently committed at the suburb of Stockwell, near London, England, so strange and so heart-rending as to have caused a sensation all over the land. A clergyman, school-master and author, sixty-seven years of age, of spotless reputation, suddenly, and without provocation of which there is so far any knowledge, has murdered his wife. The deed was done with desperate and resolute purpose, for the poor woman's brain was literally beaten out; and the assassin afterward deliberately sat down and wrote the following note: "To the Surgeon: I have killed my wife in a fit of rage. Often and often she has provoked me, and I have endeavored to restrain myself, but rage overcame me, and I struck her. Her body will be found in the little room off the table. I hope she will be buried as becomes a lady of birth and position.
She is an Irish lady, and her name is Anne." Having prepared this confession, and written some other letters, the miserable man took a dose of strychnine. The poison, however, failed to destroy him. The physician who was summoned was enabled to preserve his life, and the Rev.
John Selby Watson has now been put upon trial for murder.

The murder was committed, it would seem, on the night of Sunday, October 8. A servant who went out that night left the husband and wife sitting quietly together. This servant had lived with them for three years and never knew them to quarrel. No one else has hitherto testified differently. To all appearance they lived together in perfect harmony. But, if we are to believe Mr.
Watson's own account, under the influence of a swift impulse of ungov-ernable wrath, this reverend scholar leaped like a wild animal upon his wife, herself sixty-four years of age, and beat out her brains.

A contemporary well observes that this is a class of deed, or which it may fairly be said that the absence of any concealment as to the facts only deepens the mystery. No one has ever accused Rev. Mr. Watson of insanity; on the contrary, there is much to show that he possessed an equable as well as a highly-trained mind. Much of his life has been passed under circumstances demanding even ostentatious self-control.

For twenty-five years he was headmaster of Stockwell school. He was in holy orders, and had officiated in the pulpit. His reputation is high for scholarship and for literary work, the production of which implies patience as well as industry, equani-mity of intellect as well as research.
Mr. Watson was the translator of several of the best known classics of Bohn's Library.

Watson went to a packing case maker and ordered a large chest to be made. He was most particular about the dimensions, and the box was evidently meant to receive the remains of his wife. What he then intended to do with them is not clear.
In any case, he changed his mind and resolved on suicide instead of concealment.

The London Journals teem with comments and suggestions concerning this extraordinary homicide, but no one of the number has even the merit of plausibility. Of insanity there is so far not a tittle of proof.
The burst of fury, with such a deed as its fruit, that would be quite intelligible in the case of Bill Sykes, seems positively incredible in that of Rev. Mr. Watson. A calm, deliberate gentleman in the ordinary dress of a clergyman, placidly drawing on his gloves and occasionally using his eye-glass to look around the court, is an anomaly to the mind's eye not easily to be accounted for. Like that of the alleged poisoner, Christiana Edwards, at Brighton, Watson's crime appears to be totally out of the beaten track as regards the motive or as regards the education and social standing of the perpetrator, and further explanation will be looked for with painful curiosity.

FASHIONS.

Whatever is accepted as fashionable in ladies' dress is always more or less becoming. It matters not how decidedly out of the way 1857 on its first appearance, we are sure to conform to it, and think it just "the thing," and each year seems to increase the variety of novelties. So gradual have been the changes since the advent of short dresses, that it is almost as difficult to realize the present dressy costume as a development of the skimpy garment then worn as that man in all his glorious perfection? is according to the Darwinian theory, a development of the monkey.
We note with pleasure no improvement, that is, in the quality of the dress materials. Nothing can be more becoming than cashmeres, merinos, satens, wool serges and reps, all of which can be purchased better in quality and lower in price than for several years. A simple but stylish suit is described, as made of gray cloth, the skirt is cut round and trimmed, with seven narrow cross-strips, each headed with a thick, red, washed cord; the overskirt is draped and fringed with red, plain, tight waist, with half tight sleeves, collar and cuffs of red edged with black.
A circular lined with red, trimmed with black, completes the costume.

Garibaldi for the house are made of very bright flannel with five box-plaits in the back, each plait extending down with stitching, braiding, velvet or some trim ming. The combination of contrasting colors which have not been worn for years, are this season brought into use, for example, mauve and scarlet, purple and light blue, violet and English pink, tea-rose and light green. This suggests to many a good way to utilize and remodel old dresses.

The fashion for visiting cards is the engraved card, enclosed in a neat and shapely envelope, either plain or illuminated on the front, with monogram coat-of-arms—Darwin would suggest a monkey—or plain single initial. The Chinese visiting card is a huge sheet of scarlet paper, with the name written in large, the bigger the better. There are several variaties, but those which are used on grand occasions have the name written in the right hand corner, to which are added the words: "your stupid younger brother," or "your more than stupid nephew (as the case may be) bows his head and pays his respects."

ON DRAINING.

HOW ARE LANDS BENEFITED BY DRAINING?

It will be found impossible in the space allowable here, more than briefly to give a synopsis of the answer to this most important question.

The first growth of the embryo plant in the soil, requires certain conditions, such as the requisite degree of heat, the presence of atmospheric air, moisture, and the exclusion of light. Wherever a seed is placed in these circumstances, germination will take place. Soil does not of itself act chemically in the process of germination. It is the vehicle by means of which air, moisture and heat can be continually kept up.

It absorbs water from the atmosphere to supply the demands of plants.

It absorbs heat from the sun's rays, to assist in the process of growth.

It admits air to circulate among roots and supply them with a part of their food.

The secret we want to learn is how to obtain and keep up this supply in a manner most favorable to the chemical change which in process of germination takes place in the living seed.

The heat will be proportioned to the completeness by which the water is removed, and by reason of the increased facility by which air and water circulate, heat will be distributed more evenly among all those parts of the soil occupied by roots.

The conditions of soil necessary for the germination of seed, apply to the whole period of the growth of the plant, that is, it needs an uninterrupted circulation of heat, moisture, and air.

Under-draining effects the mechanical changes in the soil, by reason of which moisture, heat and air can circulate freely through it. This is true of the hardest, most obstinate and retentive of clayey soils. It decomposes the mineral matters contained in them; disintegrates the particles and renders them porous. A familiar example will illustrate this.

If we fill a vessel or box having holes at the bottom with any of the most tenacious soils, to the depth of three or four feet, and pour on water, it will soon soak down through the box and escape at the bottom. By a renewal of this process a short time, it will be found that the water will pass freely through the soil, that it will be rendered porous and mellow, and as long as the outlet for the water is kept open there will be no danger of over-brenching the soil in the box. It will receive all the rain water that falls upon it with all its treasures of fertility and be benefited by it.

The "Country Gentleman," of November 18, 1858, contains an interesting statement by John S. Pettibone, Esq., of Manchester, Vt., in reply to an opinion expressed by Mr.
Johnston, the celebrated land drainer that some soils, such as stiff blue clay, could not be drained. Below is the substance of the statement:

Mr. P. took "a specimen of what he thought was stiff blue clay, such as would hold water about as well as iron." The specimen was taken about three feet below the surface on a level with a brook that runs through a clay soil. He filled a hundred pound nail box with this clay and pierced the bottom of the box with holes. He poured water in.
At first it disappeared slowly; but put in water frequently, and the potter he filled it the more readily it passed off. He left more than a week, when a shower came; after the shower he filled it with water and it soon ran off.

The soil in the box represents the condition of a well drained field, having an outlet for the water down three or four feet below the surface of ground. On this field the rain falls, the dew is deposited and finds a ready passage through the soil, rendering it porous and mellow.

Rain water is the rightful property of the soil on which it falls. Rain is not only the chief source of moisture, but also the chief source of fertility. It furnishes the necessary moisture to dissolve the elements of fertility in the soil, and contains in itself, or brings with it from the atmosphere the most fertilizing substances.

COMMUNICATIONS.

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 16, 1871.
To the Editor of the Chiquetto Post.

Sir.—In visiting the various towns and cities in the maritime Provinces, I have nowhere been struck so much with the fertility of the soil, the appearance of solid agricultural wealth and the great advantages for acquiring a competence from the labor of the soil as in Westmorland County, and more particularly around Sackville; but to induce travellers, either for pleasure or business, to remain in a place, a sine qua non is a good hotel, and that institution does not yet figure within ten miles of your magnificent educational institutions. It would strike one forcibly that such an institution would be allowed a comfortable patronage if it existed. Now, Amherst has three as good hotels for a place of its size as one could wish. Good catering, comfortable furnishing, and attentive hosts, are to be found in all of them, but in Sackville, where the country is good, the people apparently wealthy, and travellers pretty numerous, the one hotel we found, appeared to be run on the indiscreet hotel. In fact, it ran itself, and appeared to do it as successfully as any machine run on that principle could be expected to do. We could find no hotel in our wanderings where the policy of assiduous inactivity worked so well. Wake up Sackville! Keep on a good fire in your hotel, complete the new extension, and future guests, that the iron horse brings to your doors, will shower down blessings on your heads.

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN.

"THAT COON."

Mr. Editor.—I notice in your last issue a glowing description of a "Coon Hunt," and your correspondent, from some sufficient reason I fancy, failed to tell the whole story. That cyclopean scene, that page of literary thunder, rolling only on the Devil's half acre, as common sense summoned a jury of her Majesty's true and loyal subjects, and held an inquest over the dead "Coon" in Ralston's Hall. Billy Brilley, the man who greases voters' legs with five dollar bills, was chosen foreman. Dr. Cliff was called upon to hold a post mortem examination on the body. After hearing all the evidence at command, and a short deliberation had the jury returned and the foreman read the following startling verdict: "The deceased 'Coon' was a 'Gentleman Cat,' and came to his death during one of his nocturnal peregrinations by wanton and malicious assault, made with malice aforethought by 'Big' and 'Nap'."

Chiquetto Post.

SACKVILLE, N. B., NOV. 23, 1871.

THE CENSUS.

The returns reveal the fact that the Province of Ontario is entitled to six additional representatives, Nova Scotia two and New Brunswick one. Already the newspapers are discussing the best way of readjusting the representation. The St. John Globe thinks the town of Portland is a place of such importance, and is growing so rapidly in population, that it deserves a distinct representation in the Dominion Parliament. The present arrangement is manifestly unjust to the larger Counties—Westmorland, York, Charlotte, and King's. Why should Restigouche, with scarcely one-fifth, or Sunbury with one-fourth, or Victoria with hardly one-third, or Queen's with one-half of the population of Westmorland have the same representation as Westmorland? Saint John (City and County) with a population lacking 6,000 of being double that of Westmorland, has already double the representation of this County. To amend matters, the Saint John papers propose to give St. John the extra representation on account of its situation, commercial importance, wealth and intelligence. Conventional and other reasons, dictated at the vent of confederation, the policy of each County, large or small, relative to this arrangement is only temporary. No injustice exists for its perpetuation, and such a representation is increased, and so increased, that it will have an influence on the Westmorland, the finest agricultural in the Province, might have some claim to special representation. She has railway communication east and west, and harbors, and water communication north and south, and she looks hopefully forward to the construction of the Bay Verte Canal. She has growing and enterprising villages, young but vigorous industries, large ship-owning interests, and educational institutions second to none in the Province. With these evidences of solid and substantial prosperity, she does not require any special legislative representation, and therefore does not claim it. If population is the basis of representation, we protest against a violation of the principle by which the already overwhelming influence of St. John is to be still further increased, and at the expense of other sections of the Province. So long as the arrangement at present existing is undisturbed, it is not probable complaint would be made, pressing unfairly as it does upon several Counties. But when a readjustment of the representation, and representative districts become necessary, we cannot repress our astonishment at the propositions put forth by the City of St. John press, in asking that the third representation shall be given to St. John when with less than double the population of Westmorland she now has double the representation, and not satisfied with that, seeks with insatiable greed to get the third. It cannot and must not be done; the compact of representation by population must not be destroyed, for if Parliament can disregard this principle, and give St. John the third representation, it can as justly allow St. John to elect the whole sixteen New Brunswick members; and what guarantee, that if St. John sacrifices the rural districts, that she in her turn will not be swallowed up by the larger members of the confederacy. We do not imagine, however, that there is at present any idea among our leading politicians to perpetrate the inquiry thus boldly advocated. We believe it is put forth as a mere feeler, and if it passed without reprehension it would be one step gained towards effecting the design.

ROAD STEAMERS.

Such vehicles have been found to work excellently abroad, and the conditions can hardly be more favorable anywhere than in Westmorland. The Indian Government ordered a number of such carriages some time ago, and one of them was tried the other day, and found to work capitally. This engine, which is called a "road steamer," was built under what is known as Thompson's patent, and has India-rubber tires. It is of 14, nominal, but has worked up to 80, indicated horse power. Her weight is 13 and a half tons, her length 15 feet, and her width 8 and a half feet. Attached is an omnibus with seats, outside and in, for 65 people. On the occasion named the steamer ran from Ipswich to E. Linburgh, 450 miles, in 77 hours. She travelled by the common high road, and had no accidents, and did no damage. The main trouble—an odd one in a wet country—was about water. The performance of the steamer is highly praised by the newspapers, and she is said, among other things, to have drawn forty tons dead weight up an incline of 1 in 17.

The experiment is evidently regarded as conclusive in favor of these novel machines by the skilled engineers, who conducted and watched it. Delays occurred, it is true, but they were for coal and water, provision for which would of course be systematically made on any regular route. Now, we repeat, topographical conditions can hardly be better anywhere than in the eastern part of this County, where their introduction would seem feasible. The long stretch from Au Lac to Cape Turmentine, forty miles of level agricultural country, presents unusually favorable condition for their use, and the importance of enabling that section to enjoy the advantages of the railway, and making it a valuable feeder to that Intercolonial work, renders some such facility necessary. The two main objections to this particular kind of engine have been—first, that from their great weight their wheels would sink far into the ground, and that the consequent friction would render their use impracticable; and, second, that they would be hazardous because of the difficulty in guiding them. But the India-rubber tires, made very wide, of course, overcome the first difficulty, and as to the other, we are assured the new "road steamer" is guided as easily as a "bicycle."

WESTMORLAND COUNTY leads the other Counties in the actual increase of population. In the matter of percentage of increase to population since '61 she leads most of the Counties. The following is the increase: St. John County, 3,381; York, 3,717; Charlotte, 2,219; Kings, 1,310; Queen's, 488; Sunbury, 767; Carleton, 3,565; Victoria, 3,940; Restigouche, 701; Gloucester, 3,731; Northumberland, 1,315; Kent, 3,247; Westmorland, 4,088; Albert, 1,228; St. John City, 1,671; Fredericton, 354.

A SACKVILLE ZEPHYR.—As an example of the malarial instincts of the breezes that visit Sackville from the high-toned town of Amherst and the Tantramar Marshes, we would mention the fact that an elderly gentleman from St. John, a few days ago, while in the act of lifting his hat, in the most approved style, to a lady friend passing by, had his easily wig scalped from his head as clean as a Pi-Ute Indian could do it, by a passing breeze. Moral.—Beware of Pi-Ute breezes. We learn the wig lodged in the neighborhood of Midge.

IN THE RAILWAY TICKET CASE.—Justice Gilbert of Dorchester in favor of the Plaintiff has been advised by Judge Allen, who decided that the works on a family railway ticket. "Members of his family residing with him" are not limited to the wife and children of the person to whom the ticket is issued, but may extend to even lodgers and boarders.

THE REMAINS OF Mr. Chas. Bayard, who has been missing since the 19th inst., and who was supposed to have fallen into the harbor of St. John, were discovered on Tuesday afternoon on a barren near Graham's Lake, on the Bk River Road, about eight miles from St. John, by a Mr. Connors, who, with her two little girls, were out picking cranberries. She thought at once it was Mr. Bayard, and thinking also he was asleep, or feigning to be so, she ran home. Her son Hicks at once went to the city and informed Dr. Bayard, who went out and had the remains removed to the city. The body was lying on its back. There were no signs of decomposition, and death must have taken place a week ago. Two coats partially torn and pants torn, were frozen about his form, and his boots were much worn, as if he had been walking far. In his pockets were $1.36 in silver and cents, five or six handkerchiefs, etc., and his hat and cane only were missing. Mr. Bayard has doubtless died of exhaustion and hunger, and thus, the worst fears of his relatives and friends have been realized. The pauper of hunger which he must have suffered, and the chill grasp of the frosty night which no doubt brought death to his release, cannot be realized and are dreadful to contemplate. His wife died a year or two ago, ever since which his intellect has been affected. He leaves three young orphan children. An inquest was to have been held yesterday.

SEVERAL communications on the Licence question will receive attention next week.

MANY suffer rather than take nauseous medicines. All who suffer from coughs, colds, irritation of the bronchial tubes, or tendency to consumption, will find in Dr. Wm. Wood's Balsam of Wild Cherry a remedy as agreeable to the palate as effectual in removing disease. The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a powerful remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a remedy that cures.

THE CENSUS makes a marked change for Nova Scotia. Her increase of population was 17.21 per cent., and greater than any of the other Provinces. She will gain two additional members to the Commons. Her subsidy will also be increased by $15,515, being eight cents per head on the 56,943 increased population. It is proposed to give Halifax and Pictou Counties the additional members.

THE FINANCIAL aspect of the Census in regard to New Brunswick is not very encouraging. From 1851 to 1861, the increase of our population was 53,427 or 33.05 per cent. If our increase from '61 to '71 had been in the same ratio, we would have had 75,000 increase instead of 33,730. It was expected our increase would be $5,453, instead of which it is only $26,984.

HON. THOM.—A boy, aged 18, named John Ballard, stole a horse from Geo. Trites of Moncton, some time ago, took the horse to Shemogue, and got another in exchange from one Barbe, and travelled up north and exchanged two or three times. He was brought before Justice Barnaby last week and sent to goal.

The population of the Dominion is only 800,000 less than was calculated by the great financial and statistical rights of the Dominion.

On Tuesday night about some one broke into the A. West Boat and Shoe Factory, and helped himself to $86 in cash, $47 of it belonging to Mr. M. D. Prile, the rest to the Company. The money was in two separate cash boxes, both of which were broken open and left behind. The thief entered by a back door, which he fastened again on the inside, and then went out through a window. He seems to have been well acquainted with the premises, but no spicion rests on no one in particular yet.

A WIDOW OF THE 19TH CENTURY!—There lives on Cape Sable Island, Shelburne Co., a lady aged 75 years, who has woven 95 yards of cloth, and spun 120 skeins of yarn since May. She has helped rake 50 tons of hay, raised 4 calves, 17 turkeys and 1 hog. After doing an ordinary quantity of house-work, she walks to Clark's Harbour and back, a distance of 18 miles.—Yarmouth Herald.

A horrible murder was committed near Osage Mission, Kansas, on the night of the 6th inst. The facts elicited at the Coroner's inquest are as follows:—John P. Flanagan, the perpetrator of the crime, having recently suffered pecuniary losses, resolved to despatch himself and family. On the 6th he procured some chloroform. During the night he administered it to his wife and his two little girls aged two months and two years. About four o'clock in the morning Mrs. Flanagan awoke from the stupor produced by the chloroform, and discovered her husband driving temporary nails into the head of one of the children. Flying to the rescue, her husband she found them expiring from the efforts of the blows from the ratchet and nails. She succeeded in disarming her husband and gave the alarm. Flanagan was taken into custody. A letter was found tacked to the wall in the room addressed to some of his relatives, in which he states that in consequence of the losses he had incurred he had determined to kill himself and family, leaving his son Clarence.

An instance of the abuse of our boasted English liberty is to be seen in the family of "North Devon Savages," who live on their own freehold estate of thirty acres in Nymet Rowland, Devon. Their dwelling has no doors or windows in it, and there are several large apertures in the thatched roof, which must cause great discomfort to the occupants, especially to the young children—two babies have been recently born to the daughters of the old man and woman, who are the heads of the family. Ten or fifteen human beings dwell and sleep in this wretched hovel. Their living room—for there is only one in the barn—serves also for a dormitory for the whole. The roof is said to be a pit, covered with straw, and there all sleep.

A family named Parks was found murdered in their house, near Henryville, Indiana, on the 12th inst. The family consisted of Cyrus M. Parks, his wife Isabella, his son John aged ten years, and his daughter Eveline aged seven months, and Ellen aged five years. The heads of all were terribly beaten and crushed by some blunt instrument. The brains of Mrs. Parks and her son were scattered about the room, while their bodies were lying in bed. The daughters were found sitting in the kitchen alive, but delirious and fatally hurt. The neighbors heard shots in the night, but the bodies bear no bullet marks. Mr. Parks was a leading member of a church, and was much esteemed in the community. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

"A Repository of Fashion Pictures and Instruction."

HARPER'S BAZAR.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

It is really the only illustrated chronicle of fashion in the country. Its supplements alone are worth the subscription price of the paper. While fully maintaining its position as a mirror of fashion, it also contains stories, poems, brilliant essays, besides general and personal gossip. - Boston Saturday Evening Post.
There never was any paper published that so delighted the heart of woman, never mind if it does cost you a new bonnet, it will save you ten times the price in household economy it teaches. - Providence Journal.
The young lady who buys a single number of HARPER'S BAZAR is made a subscriber for life. - New York Evening Post.
The Bazar is excellent. Like all the periodicals which the publishers of Harper's publish, it is almost always well edited, and the class of readers for whom it is intended - the mothers and daughters in average families - can not find it so good as any other paper published. We have no doubt, are to-day making very many homes happier than they may have been before the women began taking lessons in personal and household and social management from this good-natured mentor. - The Nation, N. Y.

SUBSCRIPTIONS, -1872.

A dreadful murder has just been committed in the district of Annapolis (Rhode). The bodies of a young woman, aged twenty-four, and of her illegitimate child, three years old, were found in a well in the middle of a field. The body of the mother showed various stabs made with a knife, that of the child having also received several wounds caused by some sharp instrument. A man has been arrested on suspicion.

A Frenchman was killed on the sands of Boulogne-sur-Mer in the presence of many hundred spectators. He was a man of extraordinary strength, named Vigorin, aged forty-five, and was known in most parts of Europe for his feats of strength, and particularly for lifting a cannon weighing six hundred pounds upon his shoulders and firing a full charge of gunpowder. He went through this performance on the sands on Monday afternoon with his usual success, but while in the act of lifting the cannon to lower it he slipped and fell. The whole weight of the cannon fell on the face of the unfortunate man, splitting his skull completely in two. Death, of course, was instantaneous.

There was a very dramatic scene in the New York court room upon the sentence of Rosenzweig, the abortionist, to seven years in the State Prison for causing the death of Miss Bowlsby, whose body was found in the trunk. It seems that the utmost sympathy is felt for the wife and daughter of the criminal, notwithstanding the fact that they are said to have been accomplices in the crime. They were greatly excited when the prisoner was taken out of the dock, the daughter Rosa, a girl about fourteen years of age, with a series of hysterical shrieks, knelt on the matted floor of the prison box and shrieked out, "Oh, may my God curse every one who went against you, father; may their flesh rot from their bones; may their lives wither up; may they die rotten. Oh, father if I die for I'll have all their lives," and then she clasped her arms around Rosenzweig's neck and clung to him as if he were a life-line, but even at this, the most trying scene of all, Rosenzweig did not shed a tear; on the contrary, he looked his lips closely together, and seemed the most unconcerned of any among the spectators.

A PROCLAMATION.

WE have just received a New Reversible Map of the Dominion of CANADA, issued February 25th, 1871. Price $2.50. Size 40x55 inches. We declare that the many changes and improvements that have been made in our Dominion, have rendered the Maps of the late Dominion comparatively useless, and created a general demand for a New Map, that will show our Country as it now appears.

This Map will show all the Cities, Towns and Post Villages in the Dominion, and all the Railways and Canals, &c. The divisions into New Counties, and the New Townships, Free Grant Lands are given on this Map.

On the back of this Map will be shown a Map of British America, United States, Mexico and West Indies.

The Map of British America, will plainly and correctly show the new Province of Manitoba, British Columbia and Vancouver's Island, together with all the British Possessions and Settlements in North America, also the proposed Canada Pacific Railroad to British Columbia. In the United States part of the Map, will be shown all the New Territories of the United States, the Great Pacific Railway to California, and a Table of Distances to all parts of the World, also Ship Routes, &c.

The Map is printed from Steel Plate Engravings, and every letter and line is perfectly distinct. It is beautifully colored and handsomely mounted on rollers.

No School, Office, Library or Hall, is complete without a New Map of the Dominion.

LIVE AGENTS WANTED to sell this Map in every County and Township in the Maritime Provinces, also in P. E. I. Land, to whom will be given exclusive Territory, and the most liberal terms.
