GOD BLESS YOU.

How sweetly falls those simple words,
Upon the human heart,
When friends long bound by strongest ties,
Are doomed by fate to part.
You really press the hand of those
Who thus in love caress you,
And soul responsive beats to soul,
In breathing out, "God bless you."

"God bless you," ah! long months ago
I heard the mournful phrase,
When one whom I in childhood loved
Went from my dreamy gaze.
Now blinding tears fall thick and fast—
I mourn my long lost treasure,
While echoes of the heart bring back
The farewell prayer, "God bless you."

The mother sending forth her boy
To scenes untried and new,
Lips not a studied, stately speech,
Nor murmurs out "Adieu."
She sadly says between her sobs,
"Whene'er misfortunes press you,
Come to your mother, boy, come back,
Then sadly sighs, "God bless you."

"God bless you," more of expressed love
Than volumes without number,
Reveal we thus our trust in Him,
Whose eye-lids never slumber.
I ask in parting no long speech,
Drawled out in studied measure,
I only ask the dear old words,
So sweet—so sad—"God bless you."

PADDY CARROLL, THE PIPER.

BY BRYAN O'HALLORAN.

GENTLE reader have you ever seen an Irish piper? Have you ever heard an Irish piper? Do you know how an Irish piper lives? If you have seen one, he is surely a small, pale faced, half-serious, half-comic looking creature, with fingers like drumsticks, and the pomp of musical destructiveness as big as a potato on each side of his pointed forehead. But how an Irish piper lives in these days of cold water and temperance movements is more, I believe, than the poor fellow tells himself can tell.

Paddy Carroll, the piper, was the plague of my life. During fair-time, at weddings, and now and then at a wake—for Paddy could play elegies better than Ovid wrote them—he was well enough, but when the boys were busy with the turf or potatoes, the girls preparing for station, and the brogues lay shadowed in the corner, never was there a more ghastly victim of blue-devilish than the favorite piper of my mother. Paddy and I were old friends; he knew me, I may almost say, before I knew myself; he played at my christening; his drone lulled me to sleep in my cradle; he danced at my wedding, when that poor girl—but I dare not look that way. So, to be brief, I think I ought to have been kind to my poor piper. Nevertheless, many is the good trick I played him, but all in a playful way. We are full of real jokes in Ireland—a thing scarcely known in this matter-of-fact country. Oh! ye have none of the young life here. I tell you, ye were never young! That rolicking, roaring, heart-bounding joy which makes some days of our existence, like the sun dance of Easter-morning. Surely, when Nature gave her fresh milk of wit to gladden the young world, the overflowing cream was poured alone into the Irish heart. But even a joke may go too far, and tears beamed in mine will, sometimes, find their channel in sorrow.

Well, I believe the Dickens was in me that fifteenth of June. I was wholly absorbed in business, when who should creep in but the piper. I accordingly laid down my pen, heard his petition, granted it, and with the delight of earlier and happier years, listened to his music. But just as he was capering off, for the moment the drop passed Paddy's lips he became Terpsichore—the embodiment of ballet—well then, just as he was wheeling away to the tune of Gerry Owen, a thought entered my head, or rather the old mischief prompter put it there.

Stop, Paddy, stop! said I, I want to speak to you.

The piper playing on reeled back into the office, and by a nod indicated attention.

Cease your noise, man, continued I, and listen to me: I have something to tell you which will gladden the old woman's heart.

He let off the last bar of his melody through the drone, and holding the rail which separated us, by an effort stilled himself.

Well, Master Brine!

Paddy, should you like to be rich?

Oh! 'tis that I would, if I could come by the gold honestly.

And now, what would you do if you had plenty of money?

The devil a dirty heart or wet eye I'd have in all Ireland.

Then 'twill be a merry time with us all; for you are a rich man, Paddy.

Errah, is it me ye mane, sir? Now lave off your jokes, if ye please, Master Brine. Wasn't it enough last week to make me as blind as Bahkks, and send me across the herring pond to England; where, when I opened my eyes, God knows I thought I was dead and my soul in one of the other worlds, and not the best one either? Ah! I know ye, Master Brine! I'm up to yer tricks ye rogue ye!

Well, never mind yer tricks; but walk in here, and attend to what I have to say.

Taking off his crownless hat, he entered; and after see sawing to and fro for full five minutes, was at length prevailed on to sit down.

I think, Patrick—I became deferential—you had a distant relative, a sort of third cousin, in the West Indies.

Yes, I had sir, said Pat, humoring what he thought a joke.

You know, of course, he was very rich?

So I always heard.

His name was Mic Carroll?

At this Paddy started, and turned as pale as a tin-plate on a coffin, and I thought he crossed himself, but soon rallying, he replied,

Yes, sure enough that he, my poor cousin, Mic Carroll, was dead, and I there anything else him? I am quite uneasy! You look so anxious and pious-like, avo ye see!

This he said peering at me with his most roguish grin.

There is nothing the matter with him now, Pat, for he's at rest. He went off last winter when skating in Jamaica; and just before he sank—the ice is rather thin in those parts—he made his last will and testament, bequeathing the whole of his immense property to you.

Oh, did he in earnest, sir? said the poor fellow, half inclined to believe me.

And this hundred pound note—I held up a one-between both hands, and made it crack like a pop-gun—has been assigned to us, as a kind of pocket-money for you till everything is settled.

Give it to me! give it to me! Astore! I'd oul' like immediately to have a mass or two said for the repose of his soul.

Oh! man, leave his soul in peace, and let me be. One of the executors, an agent of ours, instructs us to hand over this trifle to the lawler here, when discovered.

And very decent of the egg-ster. I suppose him as plenty there. May the Lord reward him for his thought for a poor old man!

And then, leaping up in a frenzy of joy, which none but a piper and a poor man made so idly rich could feel, he rushed round and round the room, playing away with the heart thrilling energy of a madman.

Compose yourself, Mr. Carroll, said I, holding up the note again to his dancing eyes.

He eagerly stretched forth his long fingers to receive it.

A second, Pat. You know that I believe you to be Paddy the Piper?

The devil a doubt of it!

And I also think you had a third cousin, called Mic Carroll, in Jamaica?

Had luck to me if I hadn't. There now, thin, will ye give it to me?

A moment. Though confident myself that you are the Patrick Carroll, Requin, referred to, yet the agent, to whom we are accountable for this money, will require positive proof.

That a man's himself! interrupted the piper, chagrined and disappointed. I declare there was no occasion at all to be so mighty nice about the matter; but I suppose Father O'Shay's word will be enough for 'um on that score. But, won't ye give it to me, Master Brine? Errah! do duck, and I'll give ye a handell for yerself!

I dare not at present, Patrick; but go home, and collect all the evidence you can, and then come to me about this time to-morrow.

And so that's it, Master Brine! Well, achra! 'tis a long lane that has no turning; and so good-bye to ye.

Thus saying, he, for the first time I believe in his life, left me dissatisfied, and with a feeling of resentment in his breast.

Well, kind reader, is not that a strange alchemy which turneth all things, even our inmost metaphysical convictions, to gold. Here was a man believing, or resolved to believe—which is much the same thing that a large property existed, of which he was the heir; though, he it said in praise of his aptitude for knowledge, he had never heard a word of either Mic Carroll, the West Indian, or his estate, before that morning from my apocryphal lips; and all this at the sight of a hundred pound note. "Crede frater, pecca fatiter" of a verity, Paddy Carroll, thou didst honor both ways to the national motto; for the firmness of your faith in the gold was only to be measured by the elasticity of your conscience in reaching at it!

Well, on he wended, comforting himself with the reticence and brilliancy of his fortunes; for, though of intellect neither subtle nor profound, Paddy saw no difficulty in proving himself "himself." Not so Jerry O'Hayes, the schoolmaster, whom he met on his road home, and who, being a mathematician, a logician, and every other vicar in the sciences, could not fathom a proposition so abstruse and uncommon.

For, granted you are yourself, said he, reasoning from finger to finger, and that every mother's soul knows you are yourself, yet, as believing and proving are as different as cold water and whiskey, you'll find your demonstration no easy matter, I tell you.

Errah! bad manners to ye! said the courteous piper, can't a man make it plain that he is what he is?

Where are your premises? replied Mr. O'Hayes. My father and mother, of course, said the piper. Prove them, prove them, man! They may be a lie to what we know.

A father and mother a lie, ye son of a—, ye! What d'ye mane?

I mane, Paddy Carl, said the schoolmaster, who was too absorbed in the argument to heed the compliment paid to his mother.—I mane, you can't easily prove you're your father son.

The piper looked posed.

And now, supposing you could,—which I deny, then your father, all your great-grandfathers, and the whole of your paternity, back to Adam, should prove their identity, to uphold the link of the argument, which is no trifler, I assure you.

Bidly Carrol, the piper wife, a common-sense-like woman, with a grain or two of conscience, and a fund religion, was quite taken by surprise to hear for the first time that her husband, whose relations to the ninety-ninth degree backwards, forward, and sideways as poor as porridge, had all of a sudden a third cousin in the "West Indies, as rich as Croesus." Accordingly, her first exclamation was,

The cross of Christ betune us and all harm! I may be that old croony, Deenah Feenan, put her eye on him. Lord save us, Jerry! he looks ery queer!

Mr. O'Hayes was too far gone in abstract cogitation to notice either Bidly or her husband.

Oh! well now, d'ye hear that? said the piper, who would not for the world have a doubt cast on the story of O'Hayes, as if she didn't see me a hundred times over and over again, spaking of a plain Mic of Jamack, and how he ate off of gold plates, and had black servants in a state of nature, saving yer presence, to wait on him.

And so I did, avoynegh! answered the wife in a soothing tone, and yet half swallowing the bait herself.

called, I could perceive he did not come unattended, though he entered the office alone.

I could not help congratulating Paddy on his change of costume. Instead of the crownless hat, the stockingless shoe, and sometimes the no shoe at all, and "the thing of threads and patches," misnamed clothes, which, even would not have remained on his back had they been worth a noggin, he was regularly equipped by his friends, and all in the Irish way too; one giving the "loan" of one article, and another, mother. He had on a damaged spiky looking, white hat, which barely covered the top of the frontal; a pair of yellow buckskin trousers, newly washed, but too short at the knees, and folding over, like the wrinkles of bellows, both before and behind. The coat was an old red sporting jacket, skipping in the sleeves, and studded here and there with odd buttons; while the waist-coat seemed to have been expressly cut out for him, with its great flapping pockets, fit for bag and bellows if occasion required. He wore a pair of Italian boots with one tassel, and a very high mohair stock reaching to his ears, and yet not high enough to cover the enormous shirt collar, which stuck out on both sides over his mouth like the flag of Blocks Clad-on Teira.

The pipes, as might be expected, were left at home; this idle industry was entirely subsisting a gentleman of Paddy's expectations.

Why, you are quite the dandy to day, Paddy.

Now, don't I become 'um, Master Brine? You will take a glass of wine, Mr. Carr, is it? Not a drop, thank ye, sir; there's no sperrit in it. Musha, I'd rather have one thimble of yellow whiskey than all the red leather in France or Portugal ather.

Well, as you like. You seem hot?

As blazes sir. This chin chopping cravat keeps me in a strait jacket. Well, now I declare 'tis purgatory to be gintled; there's no thing like a breech; but this is hanging in chains, a martyr to slavery. To yer health, achree; and God be merciful to them that's gone!

While the piper was draining his noggin, I was planning how I could best back, for the present, the expectations of his hungry count, and at the same time sharpen them to a point of the most exquisite keenness.

You must dine with us to day, Mr. Carroll. Errah, is it me ye mane, sir? Now don't be making game o' me, if ye please, Master Brine.

On my honour, Patrick, I really desire the pleasure of your company, and think a gentleman of your large income should be above vulgar acquaintance.

Ye're right achra, ye're right; and them spalpeens after me! I wish they'd know their place, the fellows. Ye must tache me manners, sir; I've a bould sperrit whin put to it.

I am persuaded you have, said I.

As the carriage that moment drove I up, had the best possible opportunity of giving Paddy's ragged regiment, now in a heap before the door, "a coup de grace." I led the piper off with as much ceremony as if he was an old fortune or a young beauty. My brothers, who were bachelors, soon joined us, and away we drove as fast as good horses, an experienced hand, and a new whip could hurry us to—

Oh! what would give now for the hilarity of that night! We were "mirth mad," indeed, and drew from Paddy every scintillation of drollery in his humorous composition. Of course we had company. To make Paddy merry was no labour against nature; a steam-juggler or two bought him out gloriously. And to tell his blue eyes—how he swallowed with arriackles, scolded his throat with a devil, took blanchings for butter milk, a jolly for freze whiskey, thinking cook, among other wintery miracles of snows and ices had congealed the mountain dew into "a lump of cold water,"—however amusing to us present, who enjoyed his awkwardnesses, is too stale to please your dainty palate, most refined palate, most refined reader! One thing I cannot omit: we avoid making him drunk, aimed only at extracting the rich honey of mirth bubbled through every one of his veins. He danced and played,—we borrowed him a set of pipes,—and he sang, and laughed at his own jests and vagaries, till he actually floated in perspiration and jollity. When fairly jaded with active amusement, at a wink from me, all sat down to enjoy, by way of change the "serious joke."

Well, Pat, and have you the evidence? Enough to satisfy the Pope in council, sir? There is Father Tom O'Shay's sartyr'ut,—he married the father and mother, and christened me; and there's the ould gentleman's sig nature in black and white for it. This is Nelly Malowney's—the craythur; she was the nurse tender, and brought yer humble servant into the world; and here's the blessed cross of salvation for her name. This daisy little bit is from Jimmie Reardon, who stood for me, and is now troubled with the Ellen sickness. God betune us and all harm! And by it ye'll have poor Joan's only child's gone—may the sartyr' give her. (Paddy's dramatic this night! This is—

Oh! that will do, said Eugene Travers; you are strong enough to weigh down the whole bench of judges.

Oh! I go bail for that, with the bishops and their consciences to back them. But now, Master Brine, give us the hundred; ye know my pious intentions, j wel!

I do, Patrick, and should be delighted to aid them by immediately handing over the note. But do you see Travers, turning to Eugene, we must have proof as to the identity of the dead man.

Undoubtedly we must said the lawyer.

Oh! by the Holy! d'ye hear that! roared Paddy, with a spring into the middle of the room, which was large. Errah! had look to ye for chates and vagabones! Do ye want to rob a poor ould man of his own, because the bones and ashes in Jimaky can't spake?

India Rubber Shoes for Horses.

We can describe the invention in no better or concise term than by stating that it is an India rubber overshoe for horses. It is made and lined in precisely similar manner to the articles of a pair worn by the human race, and in fact presents no points of difference save in its shape and its manufacture of the best quality of India rubber.

It is designed as a substitute for the iron shoe and as a means of preventing the many maladies to which horses' feet are subject.—The inventor informs us that horses suffering with cracked or contracted hoofs, and similar painful hurts are quickly cured by the substitution of the rubber shoe for the unyielding metal shoe. The elasticity of the former allows the hoof to remain in its natural shape while protected from abrasion against pavements by the heavy rubber sole beneath.

The device is easily removed from or put on the hoof, and hence, while standing in stall or in mud out to pasture, the horse may be left bare-footed. In winter time the covering serves as a protection against illness due to the common practice of mingling salt with the ice and snow in city streets, while the roughened surface of the rubber beneath serves to give the animal a foothold in slippery weather.

As compared with iron shoes the cost of the rubber one is about one third more, and their weight is some forty per cent. less. Sixteen sizes are manufactured, so that accurate fits may be obtained. With reference to wear, the inventor states, that the durability, owing to the fine quality of rubber employed, is very great. The device has been successfully used for some time past, and, we understand, has received the endorsement of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

For further particulars relative to sale of territory or for purchase of goods, address the inventor, Mr. Amzi J. Dean, No. 266 Nobsitt street, Newark N. J. Patented through the Scientific American Patent Agency, July 14, 1874.

Professor Smith said in a lecture in Philadelphia last week, that "Plintation is sometimes assisted by the use of albumen;" but the compositor got the remark into shape in this ruminous fashion: "Plintation is sometimes arrested by the use of aldermen."

When a Tennessee husband will horsewhip his wife for washing potatoes in his Sunday plug hat, it is time to inquire whether this generation of men isn't getting to be too condescended high toned for the age of the country.

A man advertises in a New York paper for a lun-keeper, "a ho must be recommended by his pastor."

ABANDONED FARMS IN VERMONT.—There are a large number of abandoned farms in Vermont, and they are chiefly confined to counties destitute of railroad accommodations. In Windham county these facts are shown by official statistics:

In Whitingham, during the past five years, thirteen farms have been abandoned, while thirty farm houses are now vacant. Wilington, considered a good town, has twenty five farm houses; Jamaica, twenty three farms abandoned; Halifax, with thirty three farm houses abandoned, and Marlborough with 23 in the same condition; Newfane, the county seat, has sixteen abandoned farms, and Townshend twenty farms and farm houses abandoned and vacant. And so it is with the whole country, excepting only those towns bordering on the railroads.

DIGNITY OF LABOR.—President Smith of Dartmouth College is in the habit of holding informal talks with the students on subjects in which they are specially interested. In a recent conversation he told them that he had at first been in doubt about the use of boating, but when it had been determined upon, he had aided by his words and his purse, on the theory that what was worth doing at all was worth doing well. He alluded to the custom of the students serving as waiters in the hotels during the summer, and added: "When we consider the fact that nearly one third of the students of Dartmouth teach school during the winter, and work at harvesting during the summer, we need have no fears about the dignity of labor becoming an obsolete expression."

A YOUNG GIRL of this city, seventeen years old, used a pistol to good purpose the other night. While sitting at an open window she heard a noise in the parlour below, and quietly opening the shutters she saw that the shutters of the parlour window were open. Instead of screaming as most girls would have done in the situation, she ran to her bureau drawer where she had placed a pistol belonging to one of her cousins and fired it out of the window, and then ran to alarm the other members of the family. On proceeding to the parlour a lot of movables such as burglar could easily carry off were heaped on the floor and outside the window on the ground was a silver watch. The firing of the pistol by the brave girl had so alarmed the burglars, that they fled precipitately.—[Lexington (Ky.) Gazette.]

QUESTIONING A KING.—Bayard Taylor writing of the visit of the King of Denmark to Iceland says:

During the two days of the King's stay; he had been gaining popularity. His frank, handsome face attracts the people here; they find him easily accessible, and the interest he takes in all matters which concern them is evidently not assumed. To day he paid a visit to old Bjarnie Florsteinsson (father of the sheriff), who is ninety-four years old and has been blind for a long time. Entering unannounced, His Majesty greeted the old man, taking his hand. "Who are you?" said the latter. "I don't know you; what is your name?" "I am called Christian the Ninth," said the king. "Well then," Bjarnie remarked "if you take a blind man by surprise, you must expect to hear such questions."

A Judicial Decision, affecting newspaper publishers, and one of considerable public interest, was delivered by Vice Chancellor Little at Liverpool the other day. Mr. John Vaughan, editor of the Liverpool Leader, had been summoned before the Registrar to answer questions as to the sources of his information for articles which appeared in the "Leader" with reference to the Civil Service Association. Mr. Vaughan refused to disclose the source of his information, taking the responsibility upon himself. The Vice Chancellor declared that Mr. Vaughan was not bound to answer the questions.

FREDERICK Y. M. C. ASSOCIATION.—The "Head Quarters" says: At a very enthusiastic meeting of the Association held on Thursday evening, the absolute necessity for a suitable building was expressed by many, and it was resolved at once to enter upon the preliminary steps to secure the desired object. The sum of $2,200 was subscribed at the meeting by members of the Association alone, and proper arrangements made to enlist the sympathy and co-operation of the public. The names of twenty six new members were added to the roll.

SAINT ANDREWS, SEP. 16, 1874.

THE SCHOOL LAW is carried out with great earnestness in this place. The children are regular in their attendance at school, and their progress is noted by the Trustees, who pay frequent visits. The teachers, too, appear to labor diligently to bring forward the pupils, and exercise an influence over scholars which is somewhat remarkable. The Trustees have wisely imposed burdens on the teachers, as has been done in some other districts, where we learn teachers are obliged to visit the parents of the pupils and hold education meetings, taking up the little spare time at their disposal, viz: Saturday. The teachers should know that the Trustees cannot transcend the Law, and have no power to exact from them any such duty. It appears very like a desire to make a great flourish of what they do and are accomplishing, and at the same time doing over the Teachers,—men who are in nine cases out of ten their superiors in education and ability. Such conduct will tend to drive competent men to seek other and more remunerative professions, and is an absolute injury to the educational interests of the Province. For discipline, progress and attendance, the St. Andrews Schools are not surpassed, according to population, by any other place in the Province, and as to carrying out the Education Act, the Trustees of St. Andrews have carried off the palm. They understand their duties and perform them to the satisfaction of the public, and approval of the Board of Education.

The Charlotte County Agricultural Society while encouraging an improved breed of horses, has not descended to the gambling practice of fostering horse racing as some of the Provincial Societies have done. The practice of having horse races and trotting at Agricultural Fairs was adopted in Maine a few years ago, and we regret to observe the pernicious example is fast being copied in this Province. Were the large sums spent in betting on horses expended in importing pure bred stock, or establishing factories, and thereby utilizing the unlimited water power, the people and Province would be benefited; whereas the introduction of horse races, beggars idleness, and encourages gambling and other immorality. Fast horses are like fast people—no benefit to any community.

THE NEW ELECTION LAW is working admirably in Ontario; several members have been unseated, and more are apparently to follow—even Cabinet Ministers are suspected,—one at least has admitted that he promised and gave an office in his Department to an elector who voted for his brother, and other equally disreputable acts have been disclosed during the trials under the controverted Election Act. Bribery has been the rule and not the exception; and men who acquired their predecessors of selling the country and squandering the public money, have been guilty themselves of more grievous offences. Of course there are honorable exceptions, but it is high time that principle, honor and talent, with a knowledge of public affairs, should govern the country. Political influence and money freely expended will elect almost any man, but happily a protest and investigation will also unsettle him.

A BARBER WANTED.—Those who are accustomed to being shaved and having their hair cut often, complain that the Town is sadly in want of a barber. A steady young man who understands cutting hair and shaving, and would be attentive to business, could make a handsome living.

SIGNS.—We have frequently been asked who painted the handsome sign over our office, and as there are others equally well lettered by the same person, we may state that it was Mr. Edward McLaughlin. A specimen of his panel designs may be seen on the front of the counters in J. F. Mulligan's. As a native, and self taught artist, he is entitled to encouragement.

THE VOLUNTEER WATCH continue to patrol the town nightly; and have not only carefully guarded property, but have preserved the peace. In fact the organization has had a good moral effect. As special constables, they possess all the power necessary for the protection and well being of the town.

LARGE STOCK.—In addition to the sixty-seven cases of goods advertised in a previous issue, Messrs. Odell & Turner received this week several packages of rich goods, making a further addition to their Fall supply, which is one of the largest and best ever offered in this market.

THE NEW DOMINION MONTHLY for September has a choice selection of articles, and the original stories and essays are entertaining and instructive.

A transference of troops from one regiment to another does not appear to work well in the British army. When the 42d Highlanders were called to take part in the war at the Gulf Coast, it was found necessary to call for volunteers from the 79th to strengthen the ranks. The "Black Watch" did not like this; the pride of the regiment was touched; the men would prefer to recruit for themselves among their "brother" Scots. A batch of about a hundred men of the 79th, however, did join the 42d; but the animosity against the transfers continued during the whole course of the war. On the conclusion of the fighting, and when the 42d returned home, at the request of the men who had volunteered, and to prevent an open display of ill-feeling, the War Office authorities permitted the men who had been transferred to return to their own regiment, and most of them have already done so.

Charleston, South Carolina, has given an example to other cities in the South which may well be followed. Although the State has had its treasury utterly depleted, and the general maladministration of affairs has called forth indignant protests from all parts of the country, Charleston has flourished. This year the gross value of her trade was between fifteen and twenty million dollars more than last year's returns, while commercial depression prevailed in other centres. Of the entire cotton crop of the United States, she handled at least ten per cent. Other branches of industry are also advancing there briskly. The wharves are a scene of prosperous activity. It is impossible to resist the conclusion that Charleston has struck the right path to success. Instead of seeking relief like too many other Southern cities, through political schemes, she has, boldly baring her arms and mustering all her force, betaken herself to achieve wealth and influence through industry and commerce. She has succeeded marvellously; and she will yet attain to greater eminence. She will shortly be able to command politicians, whom but a few years ago she would have to entreat. Cannot other cities of the South do likewise?

A Woman without Bones.

The social developments across the water show a lamentable state of affairs due apparently to no other cause than a deficiency of backbone in one or two individuals.

When such disastrous consequences proceed from the weakening of a part only of the human framework, we sincerely trust that there may be no spreading of the disease lately developed across the ocean in the person of an Irish woman, who lived to see her entire skeleton waste away until it was but a fourth part as heavy as a new born babe.

The case occurred in Dublin, and may truly be called extraordinary. The victim, forty five years old, was a patient in an insane asylum. For five years she was confined to her bed, complaining of no pain, but gradually becoming weaker, while dwindling in stature until she lost half her height. As the disease progressed, her limbs were coiled up in every possible shape, the bones becoming extremely light, soft, fragile, and atrophied in every respect. At death, all that was left of her skeleton, including the skull, weighed two pounds and a half. The number of fractures was prodigious. The ribs were in a hundred fragments. The head of the humerus was bent; the fibulae were curved; the thigh bones and pelvis were buddled together; the bones of the vertebrae were thinned and worn away across the front of their bodies; the lower jaw was atrophied and broken into three pieces; the base of the skull was crumfold all through. Had she lived a little longer, it was thought that not a vestige of a bone would have been left in her body. What ailed her no one could tell, the disease being almost unheard of and difficult to diagnose, treat, or even name. Professor R. W. Smith, of Dublin University, who brought the case before the Pathological Faculty, looked upon the condition of the bones not as a disease but as a manifestation of a diseased condition as yet unknown, possibly related to rickets.—[Scien. Am.]

BUGS.—It is said that a chemical firm in Indianapolis has recently advertised for 100 lbs. of potato bugs. The insects are stated to possess qualities which render them a good substitute for the Spanish fly. This is interesting, but unfortunately not authenticated. The man, however, who does discover a mode of utilizing the potato bug may rest assured that his fortune is made.

Another "slaky" item which is traveling the rounds of the press is about an insect which eats up iron pillars. This remarkable bug is about the size of a common house fly, and finds no difficulty in boring its way into solid iron, ejecting the chips from the place of its entrance.

Speaking of bugs reminds us of a pleasant little anecdote told of Canon Kingsley, the celebrated English author, who has been lecturing through the country. While at Colorado Springs, in the midst of the delivery of a discourse, a bug, of some species of "coleoptera" new and strange to the speaker, alighted on his manuscript, and at once attracted his attention. Mr. Bug sat still for a moment or two, during which time Canon Kingsley—who is an enthusiastic and very clever naturalist, by the way—quietly proceeded to study its form and structure; but while these investigations were in progress, and his language rolling forth to the delight of his hearers, the insect began to expand its wings as if to fly away. The reverend speaker saw the motion, and deftly caught the bug in his hand. Going right on with his line of argument, he continued his examination for several moments, until, having settled everything to his own satisfaction, he let the insect buzz away about its own business. To any ordinary man the presence of such an insect would have resulted in its being quickly brushed away; but the great English divine, trained to such close habits of observation and thought, could not forego the opportunity, even in the midst of his lecture, to study the points in a new species of bug, his mental discipline enabling him to carry on in his mind two trains of ideas at the same time.

That Bouquet.

For the Standard. MR. EDITOR:—The St. John "Globe" of the 14th inst., contains an editorial acknowledgment of a "Great Bouquet" purporting to have been sent by the INHABITANTS of St. Andrews to one of its editors, Mr. Ellis, as a token of their regard for his "flattering article" upon the town. Unhesitatingly and positively deny that my fellow-townsmen, sent any bouquet to Mr. Ellis. I heard that an individual who felt annoyed at the editors' splanetic sketch of St. Andrews, had sent him, not a bouquet, but a large bunch made up of cabbage leaves, squash vines and flowers, potato tops and sawdust, submitted to an American flag. This was intended as a "cut direct" at Mr. Ellis for his uncalculated and ungentlemanly sarcastic remarks. What had the majority of St. Andrews people to do with his Masonic visit, or the want of a proper reception on the part of his masonic brethren in the place? They know as little of masonic usage as they did of Mr. Ellis. He had some political friends and admirers here, and you sir, only last week, spoke in complimentary terms of the "Globe." I confess that I for one, have over-estimated Mr. Ellis as an editor.—I mean as a man of expansive ideas; his petty and contemptible spite are unworthy of him, and his knowledge of botanical terms is about on a par with the person whose orthography has served a purpose to cast ridicule upon the inhabitants of St. Andrews, who are not associationists, never denied their creed—nor never whined for office or government pay! They may not be rich, but they pay their bills, and do not call in foreign aid to enable them to do so. Like yourself, I admire the general tone of the "Globe's" editorials, but cannot endorse all its political sentiments.

FAIR PLAY. [Our humble opinion is, that there has been too much importance attached to the philippic in the "Globe."—[Ed. Standard.]

SUMMARY.

THE SEPTEMBER SESSIONS were opened on Tuesday. Justice Wm. Whitlock was elected Chairman of the Sessions. To-morrow, Thursday the Justices will take up the general business.

The Local Government, of Nova Scotia is in session, preparing for dissolution of the Legislature.

Johnson, the English champion, won the International swimming match at Long Branch on the 28th ult. The three miles were got over in 1h. 20m. There are four hundred and sixty vessels laid up between Chicago and Kingston. Five large propellers were laid up last week in the former city, rather than lose money at present freight rates.

They have had snow at Omaha, Nrb. They can keep it. We can afford to wait a couple of months.

A Georgia paper makes the proud boast that the "Empire State of the South" has turned out five ministerial troops.

A man named Thomas Paine was mortally stabbed; in the streets of Chatham by George McKillop. Both were sailors.

INCIDENT OF TRAVEL.—Some amusing incidents occur among travellers by rail, and the following we can vouch for: One day last week, a venerable gentleman of this city was riding over an eastern railroad to Boston, when a lady entered one of the stations with a child under one arm and a dog under the other arm. The car being well filled, she made for the seat where the gentleman was sitting alone, and was proceeding to stow herself, child and dog into the vacant seat, when the gentleman who has a great aversion to dogs, blundered remarked to the lady: "Madam! I have no objection to one baby in this seat, but I have most decided objection to twain." It is, perhaps, needless to say that the lady presently moved on to find a seat for herself and dog.—[Concord Monitor.]

The latest advices from China report the Shanghai officials as being unusually anxious about their armaments, and making great exertions to produce shot and shell for some heavy rifled ordnance procured from England.—The expedition to Formosa is stated to have been entirely successful, and a Japanese embassy has been sent to Peking which it was thought, outside of Yokohama and the English press, would succeed in amicably settling the matters in dispute.

A plague has broken in Barbary. Its chief stronghold is the village of Marab, and it is caused by the Arabian habit of digging wells close to the cemeteries, the graves being so lightly covered with earth that the rains wash off their coverings and convey the impure matters beneath to the wells. The animals, also, who had died in the winter in large numbers, had been left unburied, poisoning the air around the village. The plague first appeared in March, and in June Dr. Laval, who has since fallen a victim to it, declared it to be the veritable plague.

San Francisco has an ordinance forbidding the employment of female bar tenders, or the attendance of females in saloons. The arrest of a woman for selling liquor over her own bar has brought up the question.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Thursday night a man named Stevian, trackman on the section of railway between Truro and Valley Station, was killed by being run over by a coal train. It is said he was under the influence of liquor, had sat down, and it is supposed fell asleep.

GIANT POWDER.—Mr. Corbett of Halifax, has introduced in St. John, the article known as dynamite, or giant powder. Its merit was successfully tried in blasting rocks on Prince

Wm. street, the other day; by its use much time is saved, as holes have not to be drilled as deep as for common blasting powder.

While the Prince of Wales and Prince Arthur are members of the Masonic Order, the Duke of Edinburgh feels that it would be hardly desirable for him to join it as in his wife's native land Freemasonry is entirely forbidden.

Railroad cars are henceforth to be supplied with bibles by the American Bible Society. Alceste Lama a distinguished priest at Rome has caused a great commotion in Roman Catholic circles by acknowledging his conversion to Protestantism. He is Doctor of Divinity and Professor of Mathematics at the Vatican Seminary.

On the 15th inst., at Highland Hill Cottage, Saint Andrews, (N.B.) the wife of Edmund A. Meredith, Esq., L. L. D. of the city of Ottawa, Ontario, Deputy of the Minister of the Interior, of a son.

Prospectus for 1874--Seventh Year.

The Aldine, AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY JOURNAL, UNIVERSALLY ADMITTED TO BE THE HANDSOMEST PERIODICAL IN THE WORLD, A REPRESENTATIVE AND CHAMPION OF AMERICAN TASTE.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then there are the Chromos besides!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantage of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view of the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward. The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appear as exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold and peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20th, 1873. Messrs. JAMES SUTTON & Co., Gentlemen.-I am delighted with the proofs in color of your Chromos. They are wonderful for successful representation by mechanical process of original paintings. Very respectfully, THOS. MORAN.

TERMS. $5 per annum in advance, with 100 Chromos free. For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or noticed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in case where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED. Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to JAMES SUTTON & Co., Publishers, 58 Maiden Lane, New York.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.

It is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.

R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and cor. Washington and Charlton Sts., New York. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Gout, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.--Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blisters, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scour, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Femoral Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Jaundice.--In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work. The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use VINEGAR BITTERS.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; please it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and cor. Washington and Charlton Sts., New York. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers. sep 24 1873
