Q. Look at that letter, dated July 6th, 1888, and say whether that was written under your instruction?—A. Yes.

Q. Read it, please?—A. It reads as follows:

(Exhibit "O16.")
No. 7984.

"HOTEL DE VILLE, QUEBEC, 6th July, 1888.

"MESSRS. LARKIN & CONNOLLY,

"DEAR SIRs,—In answer to yours of the 5th instant, re depth required at Ramsay Street level from surface level to crown of invert of sewer, this depth should be if possible at least fifteen feet.

"Yours very truly,

"CHARLES BAILLAIRGÉ,

"City Engineer, per W. D. B.

Q. This letter was written under your instruction and authority?—A. Yes.

Q. You do not recollect who it was who spoke to you about it?—A. No; I do not recollect who. I was under the impression it was Boswell—I do not know Larkin.

Q. You knew the Connollys?—A. I am not sure; I do not think I knew them at the time.

Q. Did you know O. E. Murphy?—A. Not at that time.

By Mr. Geoffrion:

Q. What is the length of that sewer?—A. About 4,000 feet.

By Mr. Fraser:

Q. Were you consulted about this—did the Engineer in Charge consult you about it?—A. About the depth?

Q. Yes.—A. I said I was under the impression that Mr. Boswell did; evidently someone did in order to elicit this answer on my part.

Q. Were you not really employed by him to make this investigation on pay?—
A. I was not employed by anybody nor paid.

Q. Were you not paid for your advice?—A. Perhaps I should have been, but I never made any demand.

Q. You gave all your information for nothing?—A. Yes.

By Mr. German :

Q. Have you measured the sewer to see whether it is 15 feet?—A. No; I do not think I have.

Q. Have you tested it?—A. In a rough way I did, and I made it about 14½ feet. It is too long ago. I just took a cursory view in my mind's eye, and I made it up to about 14½ feet. I think it was about what I required.

Q. That was after it was built?—A. Yes.

Q. 14½ feet was about what you required for 15 feet?—A. Yes.

Q. Would not 6 inches make a difference?—A. Only a little less fall.

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. You said this was more a scheme of the City than the Harbour Works. Was it not the original intention to just build the wall without reference to the sewer?—
A. Yes.

Q. This sewer was put in for the accommodation of the city?—A. I represented to the Harbour Commissioners that they would cut off our sewer.

Q. You were satisfied with the way the sewer was built?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. You say you informed the Harbour Commissioners. Are you sure of that? They do not appear to know anything about it?—A. About what?

Q. The building of the sewer?—A. There is some correspondence between myself as City Engineer and the Harbour Commissioners.

Q. As to the change in the depth of the sewer had you any correspondence with the Commissioners? It is not perhaps important, but they seem to deny it?—A. I had no correspondence with regard to that. It is very possible that since my answer was to Connolly & Co., that Larkin, Connolly & Co. may have addressed me on the subject about the depth. There was no other correspondence than that.

Q. Between you and the Commissioners?—A. Yes, about the depth.

Mr. GEORGE BEAUCAGE SWORN.

By Mr. Fitzpatrick :

Q. You are a public contractor, and you have been carrying on public works in the Province of Quebec for several years?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember having made a tender in connection with the contract, to be awarded by the Harbour Commissioners in 1882, for the closing of the opening in the Louise Embankment, and for some dredging?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. You put in a tender at that time, did you not?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember a tender which you made in 1883 for the Cross-wall?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Referring to that tender for the Cross-wall, will you tell us by whose instructions you came to make it?—A. I saw in the papers that tenders were called for, and I went to see Charles Samson, who was my financial advancer. He told me he would advance me if I would go into the contract, and I saw at the Commissioners' office a schedule of the works, and at that time there was some parts in that schedule I did not much understand. I made myself a great friend with Mr. Robert McGreevy. He never told me he had an interest with the other parties, and he gave me some information I do not think was right. I received a letter from the Department for some change in the schedule. I don't know when it happened, but I went back to see my financier, Mr. Charles Samson, and when I explained to him, he said he would not go security for me.

Q. He would not go on with the contract?—A. No, he would not go security for me.

Q. Did he say why?—A. Because my tender was too low. He said, "You had better see Mr. Robert McGreevy and make a bargain."

Q. And did you go and see Robert McGreevy?—A. Yes.

Q. And did you make a bargain with him?—A. Well, he said he would find some one to buy my contract—to buy my rights.

Q. Did you sign any paper in connection with that?—A. I signed my name on a paper and left it in blank.

Q. From whom did you get the money which was required for the deposit with your tender?—A. Mr. Samson.

Q. Did you pay anything to Mr. Samson for money you got from him?—A. Yes.

Q. How much did you pay him?—A. I don't recollect whether it was from $200 to $300 cash, before he gave the cheque in my hands.

Q. Did you see Mr. Thomas McGreevy, or have any conversation with him, with reference to that deposit?—A. No, sir.

Q. Are you absolutely certain of that?—A. I am certain I never had.

Q. Did you have any conversation whatever with Mr. Thos. McGreevy with reference to the tender you were then putting in?

Q. Did he furnish you with any information, or speak to you about it at all?—A. Not at all.

Q. Is C. Samson still alive?—A. No, sir; he was a kind of broker who lent money on high interest.

Q. Did he tell you how he came to ascertain your tender was too low?—A. It seemed to me he had information from Mr. McGreevy.

Q. Which McGreevy?—A. Robert.

Q. Had you made several tenders previously, in connection with Mr. Robert McGreevy for public works?—A. Had I tendered?

Q. Have you had tenders for public works, in which Mr. Robert McGreevy was interested?—A. No; I made none.

Q. The Grosse Isle wharf for instance?—A. I had a tender for it.

Q. Was Mr. Robert McGreevy interested?—A. He asked me for the privilege to do the work.

Q. And you gave him the privilege?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who had the privilege of drawing the money?—A. I drew the money and gave it to him.

Q. You subsequently sued Mr. Thomas McGreevy for $6,000, did you not?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you took out that suit had you, up to that time, any conversation with Mr. Thomas McGreevy, or any intercourse by letter, or otherwise, upon which you were justified in assuming that he owed you any money?—A. My lawyer sent a letter to Mr. Thomas McGreevy.

Q. But yourself—so far as you were concerned?—A. Myself?

Q. Yes?—A. I don't recollect that I had.

Q. Do you remember having seen Mr. Thomas McGreevy about the matter at all?—A. I met Mr. McGreevy very often.

Q. But about this matter did you ever have any conversation with Thomas McGreevy on the tender for the Cross-wall contract?—A. I think I met him once at the Richelieu office, and he spoke to me about the matter—about what I knew about the matter—If I had any business done with him, if I would depend upon his name. I said I would.

Q. When was this?—A. That was in August or September last year.

Q. Up to that time had you any conversation with Mr. Thomas McGreevy about the Cross-wall?—A. No, sir.

Q. Are you certain of that?—A. Certain I never had.

Q. Any connection whatever?—A. No connection whatever.

Q. Your action was dismissed in the Superior Court?—A. The action was dismissed.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Did you authorize Mr. Archambault to write a letter to me before taking this action?—A. No, when he wrote to you I never authorized him.

Q. Were you aware that he wrote to me?—A. No, sir.

Q. Did he tell you at the time that he had written to me?—A. He told me that he had seen you.

Q. That he had seen me or written to me?—A. That he had seen you, and wanted to see you once more about the matter.

Q. Before taking this action?—A. I don't know; I don't know what time the action was taken.

Q. Did you come to see me at the St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal, with Dr. Rodier?—A. Yes, and I saw you before.

Q. When did you see me before?—A. In the cars in December last, I suppose, when you told me I was robbed and I should get my $5,000.

Q. And I believe you were too, that is my own opinion?—A. I saw you in the St. Lawrence Hall when you offered me $5,000 in presence of Dr. Rodier.

Q. Was it in the month of March?—A. No, sir.

Q. When was it?—A. It was in January.

Q. Before the elections?—A. Yes.

Q. Before this action was taken?—A. The action was taken at that time—I suppose it was—but I don't recollect very well.

Q. Will you look and see if it was taken or not?—A. No, it was not taken.

Q. You swear when you came with Dr. Rodier the action was not taken? I want you to swear this because it is a pretty important fact?—A. I cannot tell.

Q. I will try to make you tell. Is it a fact or not that you came with Dr. Rodier to the St. Lawrence Hall on that occasion?—A. Give me the dates.

Q. Is it a fact, or not, that Dr. Rodier came at the time to ask me what I knew about the matter?—A. Yes.

Q. Is it a fact, or not, that Dr. Rodier told me, in your presence, that there had been an action taken by Archambault; that he said: "Beaucage is a contractor of mine, and I am very much afraid he will get embarrassed?" Is it a fact, or not?—A. It was then you told me you would buy my right.

Q. Is it a fact, or not, that Dr. Rodier spoke that way to me in your presence?—A. Yes.

Q. Then the action was taken?—A. It was taken.

Q. I believe it was about the 8th or 10th of March, after my election, that I came up from Montreal?—A. It was taken.

Mr. AMYOT—The action is from when?

Mr. GEOFFRION—The 2nd of February.

Mr. TARTE—Did you ever tell me that you had seen Mr. Thomas McGreevy when the Cross-wall tenders were advertized for?—A. That I had seen him?

Q. Yes; and spoken to him about the tenders?—A. I told you I had seen him.

Q. You never told me that Mr. McGreevy had helped you in getting money?—A. No.

Q. You never told anything of the kind to Mr. Archambault, your lawyer?—A. No, sir. I got the money from Mr. Samson. I got a cheque from Mr. Samson, which I paid over.

Mr. GEOFFRION—I have the original writ (filed as Exhibit "P16") in this case, and I will ask leave from the Committee to have a copy made by the clerk instead of bringing the clerk of the court at Montreal, here. I will translate it.

According to this document the writ was taken out on February 2nd, 1891, and made returnable on February 16th. It is taken in the name of George Beaucage, contractor of the parish of Deschambault, in the district of Quebec, against Hon. Thos. McGreevy, member of the House of Commons, and contractor, in the city of Quebec, temporarily residing in the city of Montreal, and was served on the 3rd day of February. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant is indebted to him for $6,900 for the reasons set forth; that he is a public contractor; that the plaintiff was one of the tenderers for the Cross-wall as advertised; that amongst the other tenderers for the said works was the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co.; that the contract for the Cross-wall was awarded to the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., above mentioned by the Harbour Commission of Quebec acting for and under the authority of the Dominion Government, and that the said firm has duly carried on the said works. That on or about the date of the granting of said contract for the said Cross-wall to Larkin, Connolly & Co., the defendant in the case (Thomas McGreevy) was one of the members of said Commission and interested in said works. That on or about the signing of the said contract, and previous thereto, viz., since 1882, Robt. H. McGreevy, a brother of the defendant in this case and O. E. Murphy, both contractors, of the city of Quebec, had an interest in various contracts of a public character under the control of the Harbour Commission, of which the defendant was a member, either as a partner or otherwise with the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., and that in effect for the purpose of executing the said Cross-wall works each and all the parties above mentioned, benefited by the granting of the said contract to the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. That the tender of plaintiff in this case for the said Cross-wall work was the lowest tender; that it was just and reasonable and made on good faith by him. That on the instigation of the defendant in this case, in consequence of his false representations and of his fraudulent contrivances, and in concert with the pre-meditated connivance of divers other persons acting for and in the interest of the defendant, notably the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., the other tenderers, the plaintiff was induced on the pretext of errors made in his tender, or of changes in the plans and specifications of the works, and believing that he was acting to the best of his interest in changing the terms in his tender, to amend it with the result that he lost all the advantages and benefits of his being the lowest tenderer. He goes on to say that this was done on the instigation of the defendant, Thomas McGreevy.

By Mr. Tarte:

Q. I want to know from you if you have given to Mr. J. L. Archambault, lawyer of Montreal, and a Q.C., the information on which he based this action?—A. No, sir.

Q. You never did?—A. I never did. He took that action, we may say, without my consent.

Q. Did you give him all the information, or some of the information, on which he based this action?—A. No, sir; never.

Q. You never told him that Mr. Thomas McGreevy had deceived you?—A. I heard it from you. That is the reason I told him that.

Q. Where did you learn that from me?—A. I learned it in the cars, as I told you just now. I do not know what date it was. It was in the St. Lawrence Hotel that you said I had the right to sue Mr. McGreevy. Mr. Archambault told me the suit that is taken against him, you have the right to follow that suit, and that he had got all the information; that the information was given to him by you, Mr. Tarte.

Q. Do you swear to that?—A. I swear he told me that.

Q. Do you swear that Mr. Archambault told you that I gave him that information before the action was taken?—A. Yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, you swear again that you never gave yourself that information to Archambault?—A. No.

Q. The first you knew of that was in March?—A. Yes.

Q. You had seen Mr. Archambault, before?—A. Yes.

Q. You were in the private room in the hotel with him and some one else?—
A. Yes.

Q. Was it not agreed between you three that you should meet him there?—A.
It was never agreed, but that day I saw him.

Q. You called to see him?—A. Yes.

Q. It would be after this when the action was taken?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. What is the first name of Mr. Archambault?—A. Mr. J. L. Archambault.

Q. Do you know that he is a practising lawyer in Montreal?—A. Yes, sir. I knew him long ago.

Q. And you swear that he took the action in your name without your consent and knowledge?—A. My consent was this, that he was nearly every week, every day at the hotel. I have a letter which was written, in which he tried to get my consent to sue Mr. McGreevy at once. I told Mr. Archambault to let the enquiry go on and if it was proved he had my $5,000, it would be returned to me, and he took a law-suit before I intended to take it, and the letter will show that this is so.

Q. Do you produce the letter?—A. Yes. It was at the place where I was boarding, that I received it. I reads as follows :

(Exhibit "Q16")

"MONTRÉAL, 7 janvier 1891.

"M. GEORGE BEAUCAGE,

"J'ai reçu une lettre des avocats de M. McGreevy de Québec, que je désire vous communiquer, si vous venez au bureau ce matin. M. Tarte est à Montréal et je voulais vous voir avant de le rencontrer. En votre absence je vais au St. Lawrence Hall ce soir pour lui parler de l'affaire.

"Votre dévoué,

"J. L. ARCHAMBAULT."

(Translation.)

"MONTREAL, 7th January, 1891.

"MR. GEORGE BEAUCAGE,

"I received a letter from Mr. McGreevy's lawyer which I desire to communicate to you, if you come to my office to-morrow. Mr. Tarte is at Montreal and I want to see you before meeting him. In your absence I will go to the St. Lawrence Hall this evening to speak to him about the affair.

"Yours truly,

"J. L. ARCHAMBAULT."

Q. The action was taken on the 2nd of February?—A. Yes. There is a letter of the 3rd February, 1891, which I produce.

(Exhibit "R16")

"MONTRÉAL, 3 février 1891.

"M. GEORGE BEAUCAGE, en ville.

"J'ai eu tous les renseignements nécessaires au sujet de votre réclamation contre l'honorable monsieur McGreevy et j'ai adopté les procédés contre lui. Ils sont entre les mains du huissier qui lui en fera signification tandis qu'il est à Montréal.

"Votre dévoué,

"J. L. ARCHAMBAULT."

(Translation)

"MONTREAL, 3rd February, 1891.

"MR. GEORGE BEAUCAGE, City.

"I have had all the necessary information in reference to your claim against the Honourable Thomas McGreevy and I have adopted legal proceedings against him. They are now in the hands of the bailiff, who will serve him during the time he is in Montreal.

"Yours truly,

"J. L. ARCHAMBAULT."

Q. Had you the first interview with Mr. Archambault about the lawsuit and about your affairs?—A. It was Mr. Archambault that met me and showed me that I had a right to get $5,000 from Mr. McGreevy. I was not a man of business if I was not going to see him, and try to get it.

Q. It was in Montreal?—A. Yes. In the Banque Nationale.

Q. Do you remember the time?—A. It was last fall sometime.

Q. What did you answer to him?—A. Why I was interested in the $5,000.

Q. That is not exactly my question?—A. Well, I told him if he could get that $5,000, without any trouble to try to get it. That is the reason he wrote to the lawyers of Mr. McGreevy in Quebec.

Q. I suppose you pretended that you had been frustrated in the concern, or otherwise you would have told him at once not to issue any writ?—A. Mr. Archambault was always at me about it. He was coming to my room, we were several times together and spoke about the lawsuit. He came to me with a newspaper and said I should get the money.

Q. Did you pretend that you were not of opinion that you had been wronged in the matter?—A. I shall swear that I was wronged and that I should have had my $5,000.

By Mr. Fitzpatrick :

Q. Where did you expect to get it?—A. From the party from whom Mr. Archambault said I had a right to get it.

Q. What $5,000 do you speak of?—A. There was some money promised me for the contract.

Q. Have you a copy of your tender?—A. Yes. As I said just now, I was not able to proceed with the work even if I had the contract.

Q. That is not my question. Who was the party who had offered you $5,000 to withdraw your tender?—A. There was something done besides. I gave my signature to Mr. Robert McGreevy and if I see the paper I can answer.

Q. That is not my question. You are sworn to tell all the truth and we want it. You are an honest man and must tell it?—A. I did not see what was on that paper.

Q. Leaving that aside, before giving your signature there was a reason for you giving it. You were, is it not true, to get $5,000 if you transferred your interest in your tender?—A. Yes.

Q. From whom? You must say from whom?—A. Mr. Robert McGreevy told me I would get it. He did not tell me if it was him or someone else.

Q. And through him you were going to receive $5,000?—A. Yes; if the contract was mine. I would cancel my contract to him if I got it. There is something written between me and him. I put in my signature and he wrote the rest.

Q. Do you positively swear that an action was taken by Mr. Archambault against the Hon. Thos. McGreevy for this $5,000 without your consent in any way, and that Mr. Archambault has been guilty of that?—A. I have been and seen Mr. Archambault with a witness, and told him not to proceed with that suit, and that I never gave him rights to sue Mr. McGreevy. I went there with Dr. Rodier. I have summoned him and told him I did not give him the power to sue Mr. McGreevy.

Q. Do not avoid my question. My question is: Do you swear that Mr. Archambault when he took out a writ had not in any way your consent to sue Mr. McGreevy for $5,000?—A. I did not know that he took the summons.

Q. Do you swear yes or no, that he took it without your knowledge?—A. He took it without my knowledge. It is after I had that letter that I went with Mr. Rodier and told him that I never gave him power to sue before this enquiry would be finished.

Q. After this enquiry would be finished you would be ready to sue?—A. Then I would be able to know who got the money.

Q. Do you know now?—A. No; I do not yet.

Q. I asked if you knew and if you did consent to the action being taken in any way. I want your answer on your oath. Did you consent to the action being taken?—A. I did not.

Q. You swear that Mr. Archambault took it without your consent?—A. I swear that.

By Mr. Daly :

Q. Was that letter produced here the first intimation of the action being brought?—A. Yes. That was the first information.

Q. Did you give a retainer to Mr. Archambault?—A. I went with Dr. Rodier—

Q. Did you give any money to Mr. Archambeault?—A. He said he did not want any money, and told me before Mr. Rodier that he did not want any money before the suit was finished.

Q. When you got this letter you went with the Dr. to see Mr. Archambault?—A. I went with Dr. Rodier, bringing a witness before him, to tell Mr. Archambault that that suit was taken against my consent. I might sue some day when I knew who got the money, but he was to wait until this enquiry was finished.

Q. You spoke of a conversation a few days ago in the cars with Mr. Tarte. Where was that?—A. Between Quebec and Three Rivers, coming along the road.

Q. What was that conversation and what took place?—A. Mr. Tarte often said to me that I was not a man of business, losing my time and interest with Mr. McGreevy; that I was a fool; that I did not know what kind of business I should do; that I was a good fellow; that Mr. McGreevy was humbugging and cheating me. That excited me a little. It did not last long. We were very close to Three Rivers, and we got off there and got our lunch and it was all done for that day.

Q. Did he say anything about bringing this action against McGreevy?—A. Not then.

Q. Did he urge you to take action against Mr. McGreevy?—A. He did not urge me to take an action, but told me that if it was taken my action was good.

By Sir John Thompson :

Q. This Mr. Archambault did legal business for you generally?—He does some for Montreal. In Quebec I have another lawyer.

Q. He is your regular lawyer in Montreal?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. How long has he been your lawyer?—A. Too long ago.

Q. How long ago?—A. I suppose about fourteen or fifteen years.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You received a letter on the 3rd of February informing you that an action had been taken?—A. Yes.

Q. When did you go to Mr. Archambault with Dr. Rodier to tell him to discontinue the proceedings?—A. It was some days after I got the letter. It was left in the Jacques Cartier Hotel, and sometimes for four, five, six or seven days I do not go there.

Q. It would be within a week?—A. Yes; I suppose so.

Q. The judgment on your action in this case was rendered on the 13th of March, 1891?—A. I do not know. I have no interest in that.

Q. Is it not a fact that an appeal was taken from that judgment to the Court of Queen's Bench?—A. Yes.

Q. And that this appeal must have been taken after the 13th of March, since the judgment was rendered then?—A. Yes.

Q. And you claim that before the 15th February—since it was within a week of the 3rd of February—you notified Mr. Archambault not to proceed?—A. Yes.

Q. You were aware that judgment had been rendered and an appeal taken?—A. After that discussion we had together he told me that the action was dismissed in Montreal, but that I could take it before the Court at Quebec, and he encouraged me by telling me that my action is good for $5,000, and Tarte had told me that the action was good. What he told me gave me courage. I wanted to get my $5,000.

Q. After that appeal was taken you were notified that the Court of Appeal had confirmed the judgment and that your action had been dismissed finally?—A. Yes.

Q. Until then you had taken no proceeding to disavow Mr. Archambault?—A. No.

By Mr. Daly :

Q. Have you paid any costs of action, in this matter, to Mr. Archambault?—A. He has asked money for the appeal.

Q. Did you pay him?—A. No; I would not pay him, because I told him I had no money for that lawsuit. He says: "It is none of your business; if you don't want to move I will proceed with the action?"

Q. Do you know if there is a judgment against you for the costs in this action?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you paid that judgment?—A. I have not paid it yet.

Q. Did you not say a few moments ago that Mr. Tarte offered you $5,000 for your claim?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did he make that offer?—A. In the St. Lawrence Hall.

Q. In Montreal?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. If you had received $5,000 you would believe you were entitled to it?—A. Yes; if he had given it to me.

Q. You say the action taken was against the Hon. Thomas McGreevy?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How is it the action was taken against the Hon. Thomas McGreevy when he never bound himself to pay you any money?—A. That is on account of Mr. Archambault showing me the newspaper, and saying I had the rights for $5,000 from him. He was a lawyer, and knew the rights better than I did.

By Mr. Langelier :

Q. Are you of opinion that the sum of $5,000 was honestly due to you?—A. Yes; I think it is.

Q. By Mr. McGreevy?—A. Mr. Robert McGreevy.

Q. You took out the action because you believed the $5,000 were honestly due to you?—A. I think the action was taken in force, as I said just now.

Council asked that the question be repeated, and the question was read to the witness.

WITNESS.—Because the money was due to me; but the action was taken without my consent at the time.

Q. Well, then, you still believe that the $5,000 in question are honestly due to you by the Hon. Mr. McGreevy?—A. No; I don't know yet. That is the reason I never paid the cost before I know more about it.

Q. You stated a few minutes ago you took the action because you honestly believed then that the $5,000 were due to you?—A. Mr. Archambault told me.

Q. But supposing Mr. Archambault told you to rob $5,000, would you do it?—A. He would not do it; that is not his duty.

Q. Supposing Mr. Archambault told you, would you do it?—A. No, sir.

Q. Do you, or do you not, consider it was a dishonest act to claim $5,000?—A. As I said, the money was there, and as he said, I wanted to get it.

Q. But were you convinced that the money was honestly due to you?—A. It was honestly due to me by somebody.

Q. By whom?—A. Mr. Robert McGreevy promised me the money—no one else.

Q. Do you pretend you believe it to be an honest act to claim $5,000 from the Hon. Thomas McGreevy when, as you say, you were promised $5,000 by Robert McGreevy?—A. In the enquiry last fall it was shown by the evidence that Mr. Robert McGreevy and Mr. Murphy had given the money to Mr. Thomas McGreevy, and it was during that case that Mr. Archambault came to me several times with the newspapers, showing me the money was due to me and was in Mr. Thomas McGreevy's hands—he was often there at night smoking with me—and I should take a lawsuit, and one morning I saw in the papers that he took a lawsuit without my consent.

Q. You were then convinced, at that time, after all those conversations, that the money was honestly due to you by the Hon. Thomas McGreevy?—A. By some one; I don't know who. If Mr. Archambault was right, it was due to me by the advice of a lawyer; it was his advice.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. You told us that I made an offer to you of $5,000?—A. Yes.

Q. Is it not a fact that it was not a positive offer, but something in this way: I told you that knowing what I did, that the $5,000 were due to you, and I would give the $5,000 myself. Was that not what was mentioned in the presence of Dr. Rodier?—A. That was what you said at the beginning, that you would buy my right for $5,000.

Q. Did I not tell you, on the same occasion, or the day following—because I was three days at Montreal at the time—that after having talked it over as a member of the House, that as I had a great many lawsuits with Mr. McGreevy I was wrong in speaking to you about buying that. Did I not tell you that in presence of Dr. Rodier?—A. Two days afterwards, but not at the beginning.

By Mr. German :

Q. Did you fill out the tender for the Cross-wall?—A. Some part of it, sir.

Q. Who filled out the rest?—A. Mr. Robert McGreevy helped me. I thought he was not interested with any one.

Q. After your tender was sent in you received a letter from Mr. Perley?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do with the letter?—A. It was that letter, as I said just now. I went to my financier, Mr. Samson, and he told me he would not back me any more.

Q. What did you do then?—A. I wanted him to back me, but he said: "Go and see Mr. Robert McGreevy."

Q. Did you go and see Mr. Robert McGreevy?—A. Yes.

Q. Then what was done?—A. He told me after a long conversation together: "I know some one who will buy your right."

Q. What was done about the letter?—A. Of Mr. Perley's?

Q. Yes.—A. I answered Mr. Perley.

Q. Did you write the letter?—A. No.

Q. Who did?—A. It was wrote in the office of Mr. Robert McGreevy. It was there he promised me $5,000.

Q. Which office?—A. He had so many, I do not remember.

Q. Which office were you in?—A. He has no office of himself. He has got some everywhere.

Q. Was it not the office of Mr. Thomas McGreevy?—A. No, sir.

Q. Where was it written?—A. It might be at the Commissioners' office.

Q. The Harbour Commissioner's office?—A. The Harbour Commissioners' contractors's office. It might be at the corner of St. Peter and St. Paul street, where the Yacht Club building is.

Q. Did Robert McGreevy write a letter?—A. I cannot tell. If I see the letter I could tell you.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. On the occasion you say you met me in March, in the St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal, did you tell me in the presence of Mr. J. L. Archambault that Mr. Thomas McGreevy was the man who had induced you to make your tender?—A. No.

Q. You did not tell me that?—A. No.

Mr. A. P. BRADLEY re-called.

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. Did you obtain the information you were asked to get about the cheques?
—A. I find there was no money of any description paid during May and June, 1883.

Q. There were no cheques returned?—A. Not during May or June.

Q. Or to Lachance?—A. No.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Did you keep the cheques for the St. Charles Branch here or at Quebec?—A. Sometimes they were kept here and sometimes at Moncton.

Q. Would you have entries of them here?—A. Yes. We would know of them here.

By Mr. Fitzpatrick :

Q. So that neither from here or at Moncton would any cheques go?—A. No.

Mr. CHARLES MCGREEVY re-called.

By Mr. Fitzpatrick :

Q. Will you look at the three documents which were produced here by your father as No. 12 of his productions, and say in whose handwriting they are?—A. This one is in my handwriting; this one is in my handwriting; and this is in my handwriting. (Identifying the three papers). (Documents filed as Exhibits "S16," "T16," and "U16.")

Q. All three are in your handwriting?

Q. When did you give these three documents which are the figures, quantities and items of the Cross-wall work, to your uncle Thomas McGreevy?—A. I do not know that I gave them to him at all.

Q. Try and be positive about it?—A. I am very positive about it.

Q. Are you absolutely certain you never gave Mr. Thomas McGreevy the three documents filed as Exhibits "S16," "T16," and "U16"?—A. I am pretty sure I did not.

Q. Be positive about it?—A. I am positive.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Did you make these three documents at the time you were an employé of the Quebec Harbour Commission?—A. No, sir.

Q. When were they made, then?—A. This one (referring to "U16") was made in 1883.

Q. When were the others made?—A. I could not exactly say.

Q. Before or after Exhibit "U16"?—A. After.

Q. How long after?—A. I could not say.

Q. Where did you get the information contained in them?—A. The information contained in Exhibit "U16" I got from my father.

Q. And where did you get the information contained in "S16" and "T16"?—A. I do not know. I cannot recollect. I must have got it from somewhere.

Q. I should judge so. But where were you likely to get it from?—A. Very likely from my father. I do not see any other source.

A. Do you say that also of Exhibit "S16"?—A. The same thing.

Q. Most likely you got it from your father?—A. Yes.

Q. These documents were prepared, you say, probably on information obtained from your father and before you went on the works as an employé of the Harbour Commission. When were you first engaged for the Harbour Commission?—

A. On the 28th or 29th of January, 1884, and this was done in 1883.

Q. How do you know it was in 1883?—A. Because that was the time the Cross-wall tenders were asked for. If you compare them with the other document already put in, referring to the tenders for the Cross-wall (Exhibit "Z14"), after they were finally completed, you will see it is the same paper. Exhibit "U16" is on the same paper as the one taken before the tenders for the Cross-wall went in. It is a comparative statement of how the tenders stood.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. What is it about?—A. About the Cross-wall tenders.

Q. And how is that document which you refer to marked?—A. (Exhibit "Z14" handed to witness). It is on the same kind of paper as this.

Mr. OSLER—These three papers (Exhibit "S16," "T16" and "U16,") are produced by Mr. Todd as No. 12 of Robert McGreevy's last production.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. You said you intended to make a statement—what was it?—A. These figures on that document, Exhibit "U16," were supplied, or rather, I should say, they were some figures given to me by my father that he said he had obtained from Thomas McGreevy in Montreal.

Q. Have you any further information to give?—A. I have none. He went to meet him there.

The Committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, TUESDAY, 11th August, 1891.

The Committee met at 10.30 a.m.; Mr. Girouard in the Chair.

Investigation into certain circumstances and statements made in connection with the tenders and contracts respecting the Quebec Harbour Works, etc., resumed.

Sir HECTOR L. LANGEVIN—Mr. Chairman, I have seen as many others, the minutes of the proceedings of this Committee, and finding my name was connected with this enquiry I have thought fit to come here of my own accord, and ask to be put upon oath to make a statement to the Committee.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN, having been duly sworn, said:—I regret that in consequence of the manner in which, as respects myself, this enquiry originated, I have been obliged to appear to be passive, while charges of the gravest character have been gradually accumulated against me by the slow and unusual process of adducing evidence upon them, before they had been formulated or communicated to me.

If Mr. Tarte, when he brought his accusations in the House of Commons on the 11th of May, 1891, had made his charges directly against me, I would have at once, pending the enquiry, put my resignation as Minister of Public Works in the hands of the Prime Minister, in accordance with the custom followed in such cases in England. But his statement apparently aimed only at Mr. McGreevy, and the facts with which he subsequently connected my name were not stated at the time as directly implicating me in any improper act or as indicating on my part any guilty object or any intention of failing in my duty, and in so far as they seemed directed towards my conduct, they were vague and indeterminate.

But when the evidence came to be adduced before the Committee it became plain that it was intended to assail me directly, and even then the charges intended to be made against me were not stated at once in full but left to be gradually developed by the evidence. So that it was not until Mr. Tarte's case was completed last week that I became fully aware of the imputations against my official conduct.

From these facts it may be easily understood why I was not represented by counsel at the enquiry, as undoubtedly would have been my course, in justice to myself, if by being informed of the accusations to be levelled at me, I had been given the opportunity of defending myself. Now, however, I know whereof I am accused; I have to answer and to explain. I intend to meet the accusations by the most positive denial. But I feel bound at once to lay my resignation as Minister of Public Works in the hands of the First Minister, so that my colleagues, as well as the Committee and the House of Commons may have the greatest freedom in judging my acts and the value of the accusations brought against me.

To-day I ask to be allowed to make under oath a statement of my conduct in the several matters inquired into. I wish here to meet all the accusations, either direct or indirect, which, according to me, are found in the evidence. I hope none will escape my notice.

I begin by declaring, that, in all Departmental works mentioned before the Committee, I have fulfilled my duty most conscientiously, to the best of my knowledge of matters and of my ability, without ever having allowed anyone to influence me by promises or gifts of any kind whatever, and that my acts have always had public interest as their object; that I never received gifts, loans or values whatever, directly or indirectly, from the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., or from any of its members; that, in truth, Mr. Thomas McGreevy and I have been, for a long time, on friendly terms, and that he has been my guest at Ottawa in the period from 1875 to 1890, whilst I resided here as a Minister, and during which I did not receive from him, and he never offered me, any sum of money, gift or loan; that Mr. Thomas McGreevy has never tried directly, or, to my knowledge, indirectly, to influence me unduly in the execution of my duty, nor to obtain directly, or, to my knowledge, indirectly verbal information or documents that my duty would have required me to hold as private; that I never authorized any one to communicate to him any such information, and he has received none to my knowledge; that I did not know, before Mr. Tarte adduced evidence on the subject that Mr. Robert H. McGreevy was a partner with Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Company or interested in their contract, and that Mr. Thomas McGreevy never gave me reason for suspecting that he was personally interested, directly or indirectly, in their works; that I always had full confidence in the integrity and capacity of the Chief Engineer of Public Works (Mr. Perley), and of the other officers of my Department who had anything to do with the works which have been inquired into; that, up to the time Mr. Perley admitted it, I did not know that he had received any gift from the firm of Larkin, Connolly and Company, or from any of its members; that, therefore, not being myself an engineer, I considered I was justified in accepting and treating as correct the statements of the Chief Engineer and to adopt his advice about works of which, on account of their special nature, I was not competent personally to form an accurate idea.

Having made, as honour and truth required it, this first general denial, I now take up in detail such of my acts as are attacked by the evidence adduced by Mr. Tarte.

These acts have reference:

- 1st. To the contract of 1882 about dredging in the Harbour of Quebec;
- 2nd. To the contract of 1883 about the building of the Cross-wall and locks or gates in said harbour;
- 3rd. To the contract of 1884 in connection with the Lévis Graving Dock, also in said harbour;
- 4th. To the contract of 1887 for the dredging of the Wet Basin in said harbour;
- 5th. To the contract of 1886 for the building of the South-wall in the same harbour;
- 6th. To the contract of 1884 for the building of the Esquimalt Graving Dock, in British Columbia;

7th. To the subsidies granted to the Baie des Chaleurs Railway Company;

8th. To the payments of large sums of money to myself by certain members of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Company.

The first five headings refer to contracts executed under the direction of the Quebec Harbour Commissioners, and not under that of my Department. In order to determine the responsibility of the Minister of Public Works it is necessary to establish the extent of his duties and his precise sphere of action with reference to these contracts. It is to be observed that the Harbour Commissioners of Quebec are a corporation created by Statute (36 Vic., chap. 62), having the control of the Harbour of Quebec (section 15), and the duty of making therein all the improvements which they find necessary (section 17). When Parliament has voted money for these works it has reserved in certain cases to the Government of Canada a restricted control, and in all other cases it has left the entire control to that Corporation. Thus the Act of incorporation authorized the Governor in Council to raise, by an issue of debentures of the Harbour Commission of Quebec, a sum of $1,200,000, a part of which was to be used for redeeming old debentures, the balance to be handed to the Corporation to pay for the improvements to be executed in the harbour. The statute required that the Commissioners would submit the plans of the proposed improvements for the approval of the Government before their execution, and this approval is authorized to be given only on a favourable report of the Ministers of Marine and Fisheries and of Public Works.

In 1875, an Act (38 Vic., chap. 56, sec. 2) authorized the Governor in Council to borrow $500,000 for building a Graving Dock at Quebec. The Act provided that the Finance Minister shall make out of this sum no advance to the Commission before the site and the dimensions of the Dock, the plans and specifications, and the draft of contract for the works of construction have been approved by the Governor in Council on the report and recommendation of the Ministers of Marine and Fisheries and of Public Works. The funds were to be handed to the Corporation as the works progressed, on the report of the Minister of Public Works, showing that the progress was satisfactory.

In 1880, an additional authority was granted by Parliament to the Governor in Council (43 Vic., chap. 17) to obtain, by an issue of debentures, a sum of $250,000, so as to enable the Harbour Commissioners to complete the Tidal Dock, the construction of which they had begun after 1873 on plans approved by the Governor in Council.

In 1882, authority was given to the Governor in Council (43 Vic., chap. 47) to raise $375,000, for the construction of a Cross-wall and Lock. The Act provides that the plans of these works be prepared by the Engineers of the Department of Public Works, that they be submitted to the approval of the Governor in Council, and that tenders be called by him for their execution, and that he gives the contract for the same.

In 1883 (46 Vic., chap. 40), a sum of $100,000 was voted for the Graving Dock, and in 1884 (47 Vic., chap. 10), another sum of $150,000 was voted for the same object.

In 1884 (47 Vic., chap. 9), Parliament authorized an advance of $300,000 to be utilized for the completion of the Tidal Dock. The Act does not contain any provision for any special action by the Government, who is to advance the money from time to time. In 1886 (49 Vic., chap. 19), advance of $750,000, to be made from time to time, as needed, with no special condition.

In 1887 (50-51 Vic., chap. 51), additional and final advances are authorized—one of $160,000, and the other of $1,100,000—to enable the Commission to continue and complete the construction of the Graving Dock, and the works of improvement in the Harbour of Quebec.

In each and every one of the above cases, the Government has fully acted up to the requirements of the Statute.

It is now the time to explain my action with reference to the contracts which were awarded in pursuance of the advances which have just been referred to for the execution of works in the Harbour of Quebec, and to reply to the insinuations as well as to the charges made against my administration.

CONTRACT OF 1882.

Dredging in the Harbour of Quebec.

With reference to this contract, Mr. Tarte insinuates that the Minister of Public Works, having learned from Mr. Thomas McGreevy that his brother, Mr. Robert McGreevy, was to become a member of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., and having approved of such action, unduly favoured that firm with respect to award of contracts for the works, with the intention of also favouring the said firm during the execution of the works, and that for that purpose he took a share in the dismissal of the Engineers employed by the Harbour Commission, Messrs. Kinipple and Morris, and the appointment of Messrs. Perley and Boyd in their place.

These insinuations are unjust and false.

Up to the day that Mr. Tarte made publicly his accusations, I never heard that the Messrs. McGreevy were personally interested in the dredging works. I had no reason to suspect that Mr. Robert McGreevy wished to become a partner with Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., and in no case have I given my assent or consent to such a thing. On his side, Mr. Thomas McGreevy had never said anything to me about it.

On the 27th July, 1882, the Corporation transmitted to the Department the tenders they had received, and informed it that they gave the contract for these works to Messrs. Larkin, Connolly and Company. They requested that the draft contract should be submitted for approval by the Governor in Council; Messrs. Larkin, Connolly and Company's tender was not the lowest, and the Corporation did not explain why they had accepted it. The Department requested them to explain, and on the 8th of August it received the answer, containing their explanations.

The next day the Corporation requested, in writing, to be allowed to sign the contract. On the 18th of August, they gave additional explanations about the reasons which induced them to accept Messrs. Larkin, Connolly and Company's tender. Their letter is attached hereto.

Finally, on the 21st August, the draft contract received the approval of the Governor in Council.

The contract was carried on by the Harbour Commissioners, who wrote to my Department on 29th July, 1885, respecting the continuation of the dredging in the harbour basin which could not be proceeded with by the reason of the moneys voted by Parliament being exhausted. By letter of the 31st July, my Department informed them that it agreed to the resumption of the dredging provided the sum expended did not exceed $50,000 and that contractors would not call for payment until Parliament should have made further advances to the Commission. The Departmental letter was written in pursuance of a report of the Chief Engineer dated, the 30th July, recommending that course.

In this matter, I believe I did all I could reasonably do to master the subject. The explanations given by the Corporation must have appeared to me sufficient to induce me not to delay further the approval of the draft contract. I consulted only public interest.

I have in no way contributed to the dismissal of the Engineers, Messrs. Kinipple and Morris; I had not to give it my assent. On the 7th December, 1882, the Harbour Commissioners wrote to the Minister of Public Works, complaining of those Engineers, who resided in England, and whose absence was the cause of vexatious delays and of considerable increase of expense; and requesting them to be replaced by Canadian Engineers. Here is the original letter:

“ HARBOUR COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE,
“ QUEBEC, 7th December, 1882.

“ THE QUEBEC HARBOUR COMMISSIONERS MOST RESPECTFULLY SHEWETH :

“ That in consequence of certain difficulties, as hereinafter enumerated, with Messrs. Kinipple and Morris, the Engineers, in reference to the execution of their plans and specifications with the Harbour Improvements in the River St. Charles and the Graving Dock at Lévis, the Harbour Commissioners are of opinion that a change is desirable for the satisfactory completion of these important public works.

“ That the Harbour Commissioners beg to suggest that the superintendence for the completion of the Harbour Improvements and the Graving Dock should be intrusted to Engineers residing in the country, and the services of Messrs. Kinipple and Morris should be retained as consulting Engineers only when required.

The reasons the Commissioners produce in support of their request are as follows, viz :

“ 1st. When the majority of the present Commission came into office they found an agreement signed by Messrs. Kinipple and Morris, dated 23rd August, 1875, by which these Engineers agreed to superintend the Harbour Improvements as enumerated in their plan No. 1, section H H H, and the construction of the Graving Dock at 5 per cent. commission— $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. has been paid on the total cost of both these works, and the balance,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. for superintending them, which latter has been unsatisfactorily performed owing to their absence from this country, having their residence in England. Although paid their commission regularly they have visited these works on the following dates :

“ 2nd. To carry out the execution of these plans and specifications they had no responsible Engineers on the works, except those paid by the Harbour Commissioners; many alterations were and are still required, which, through their absence, are a constant cause of delays and extras charged by the contractors, as proved by the disputed accounts produced by Messrs. Peters, Moore & Wright and lately settled by the Government Arbitrators.

“ 3rd. That similar defects in the plans and specifications have been noted by the Harbour Commissioners at the Graving Dock entrance, which have been valued by Messrs. Kinipple and Morris at a cost of $15,000 to $20,000—$20,000 have been actually spent in its foundations, and the total cost will exceed $72,000, as shown by the Government Chief Engineer in his report dated the 11th October, 1882.

“ 4th. The refusal of Messrs. Kinipple and Morris to comply with the Harbour Commissioners' request and to come to Quebec when required, and to arbitrate here in the disputed accounts with the contractors, has been the cause of serious delay and additional expenses both in the construction of part of Section No. 1 in the Harbour Improvements and the Graving Dock.

“ That the Commissioners, with their past experience and absence of the Engineers from the country, added to the difficulties of carrying out the works, and considering the great importance of these public works, the large amount required for dredging the Tidal Basin, the Wet Dock and the building of the Cross-wall, earnestly request your immediate attention to authorize the Commissioners to come to an agreement with the present Engineers, Messrs. Kinipple & Morris.

“Humbly submitted on behalf of the Quebec Harbour Commissioners.

“A. H. VERRET,
“Sec.-Treas.”

After consulting with my colleagues I answered the Corporation that I had not the power to interfere, and that it was for them alone to decide whether their Engineers should be discharged. This is my letter:

“DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS,
“OTTAWA, 22nd May, 1883.

“SIR,—Having reference to the suggestion of your Board, made in their memorial of the 7th December last, that the superintendence of the completion of the Harbour Improvements at Quebec, and of the Graving Dock at Lévis be intrusted to Engineers residing in Canada, and that Messrs. Kinipple and Morris be retained as consulting Engineers only, when their services as such shall be required, I am directed to state that the Hon. the Minister of Public Works, after full consideration of the matter and having consulted with his colleagues, is of opinion that the question is one to be dealt with directly by the Harbour Commissioners.

“I have the honour to be, Sir,
“Your obedient servant,

“F. H. ENNIS,
“Secretary.”

“A. H. VERRET, Esq.,
“Secretary, Harbour Commissioners,
“Quebec.”

On the 19th of June, 1883, the Corporation thought it their duty to inform the Department that they had discharged Messrs. Kinipple and Morris. Here is their letter:

“HARBOUR COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE,
“QUEBEC, 19th June, 1883.

“To the Honourable
“SIR HECTOR L. LANGEVIN, K.C.M.G., C.B.,
“Minister of Public Works, &c., &c.,
“Ottawa.

“SIR,—I have the honour, by direction of the Commissioners, to inform you that the Commission have dispensed with the services of their Engineers in chief, Messrs. Kinipple and Morris, and to most respectfully request you to recommend an Engineer to take charge of the works, now under contract with the Commission, in connection with the Harbour Improvements at the mouth of the River St. Charles.

“I have the honour to be, Sir,
“Your obedient servant,

“A. H. VERRET,
“Sec.-Treas.”

On the same day, they requested me (see letter just read) to recommend them an Engineer to take charge of the works then under contract at the mouth of the River St. Charles.

I spoke to Mr. Perley about it, and following his advice, I gave the name of Mr. J. E. Boyd, who, on the 9th of July following, was selected by the Corporation.

On the 1st September, 1883, the Commissioners requested the Department to send Mr. Perley to visit the works connected with the Graving Dock at Lévis. Mr. Perley went, and on the 11th the Minister received from him the following telegram:

(By Telegram from Quebec.)

“ OTTAWA, 11th Sept., 1883.

“ To Sir HECTOR L. LANGEVIN,
“ Minister of Public Works.

“ Commissioners have transferred Graving Dock to my charge, to appoint my own assistants. Pilkington better, and granted leave of absence. I assume work to-morrow.

“ H. F. PERLEY.”

On the 16th of May, 1884, the Secretary of the Corporation informed Mr. Perley that they had appointed him their Chief Engineer.

That is all the share I have taken in giving the dredging contract and in the discharge of Messrs. Kinipple and Morris. In so far as the works themselves are concerned, I had no control at any period, over their execution. I had nothing to do with them, Parliament having entrusted altogether the Commissioners with that duty. I have had only to recommend the payment of advances, at successive periods, on the receipt of certificates from the Secretary of the Corporation showing what works were executed, those certificates being recommended for payment by the Chief Engineer of my Department. I allowed Mr. Perley to be appointed, because I had the greatest confidence in his character and capacity, and I thought I was thus serving public interest. I was moreover, convinced that I was preserving intact my position towards the Corporation, and that the nature of my duties would never be changed by the consent I had given to Mr. Perley being employed in connection with the Quebec works.

Mr. Tarte gives it to be understood that the Minister of Public Works has caused the contract to be given unduly to Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Company, and that it is after receiving this contract that they subscribed $1,000 to the “ Langevin Testimonial Fund.”

The duty of the Minister, in accordance with the Act 45 Vic., chap. 47, was to cause the plans of the works to be prepared by the Engineers of his Department, to submit them for approval by the Governor in Council, to see that public tenders were called, and to submit the draft contract to the Governor in Council. I have complied with all these conditions in good faith. I have had no knowledge of the manipulations Mr. Tarte complains of in connection with the tenders, nor of information unduly communicated by officers of my Department or others. I never authorized anyone to make any such communications; I was not aware that the Messrs. McGreevy were interested in the contracts for works tendered for. I had in view, under the circumstances, only public interest.

The Governor in Council had approved of the plans on the 6th of April, 1883. The Harbour Commission called for tenders, which were to be addressed to their secretary. They were opened by them at Quebec and transmitted to Ottawa, where the Chief Engineer of the Department of Public Works, who had previously prepared the specifications, classified the tenders in the following order, after making the technical extensions, viz. :

Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	634,340
G. Beaucage.....	640,808
Peters & Moore.....	645,071
J. & H. Samson.....	864,181

Previous to the Chief Engineer making his report, on the 16th May, 1883, Mr. Gallagher wrote to the Department to be allowed to withdraw his tender, and to receive back his security cheque. This request was granted him; according to the custom of the Department, any tenderer who withdraws his tender, before being called to sign the contract, is entitled to have his deposit back ; it is, moreover, in conformity with the conditions of the advertisements calling for tenders ; but should the tenderer, after being called to sign his contract, refuse to do so, he is liable to lose his deposit. Here I produce Mr. Gallagher's letter.

“ MONTREAL, May 16th, 1883.

“ To the Secretary,

“ Department of Public Works.

“ Ottawa.

“ SIR,—Since my proposal for the “Cross-wall,” Quebec, which I learn from the Secretary of the Harbour Works has been sent to your Department, I find, owing to the length of time that has passed since my tender went in and the time it may take to decide, and from the fact of fearing further delay, I have taken another contract and wish to withdraw my tender for the said work on condition of my deposit cheque being returned to me.

Mr. Beaucage had made errors in his tender ; the Chief Engineer informed him accordingly, and asked him whether an error had or had not been made by him in his tender. To which Mr. Beaucage replied that he had made a serious error, which he wished to be corrected, as such error had been caused by an evident misunderstanding of the schedule. This tender reached then the amount already mentioned, thus being higher than that of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Company.

Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Company had also made errors in their tender. They received a letter from the Chief Engineer similar to that sent by him to Mr. Gallagher and to Mr. Beaucage. They admitted having made errors, but they answered that they stood by their tender, and did not ask for any change.

Under these circumstances, I recommended to the Governor in Council, in accordance with my duty, the draft contract in favour of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Company, who were the lowest tenderers. It was approved by the Order in Council of the 29th May, 1883.

I had no reason to doubt the correctness of the calculations of extension of the schedule prices as presented by the Chief Engineer, my adviser in matters of that kind, and I should accept his statement. I acted conscientiously without being under any undue influence, not being aware that there was any understanding between certain tenderers. There had been, to my knowledge, no manipulation of tenders, the changes in Mr. Beaucage's tender as mentioned by the Chief Engineer, being evidently reported by him with the view of showing that even, if allowed, his tender could not be accepted.

With regard to the subscription of $1,000 to the Langevin Testimonial Fund by Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., a few days after the firm received the contract, I declare that I never requested it, and it became known to me only on the day on which the list of subscribers was laid before this Committee, when I learnt also for the first time the names of the other subscribers.

Graving Dock at Lévis.

Mr. Tarte insinuates that the Minister of Public Works has caused this contract to be granted in June, 1884, against public interest, after a promise made by Messrs. Larkin, Connolly and Co. to Mr. Thomas McGreevy to pay him certain sums of money.

According to the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 38 Vic., cap. 67, the Minister of Public Works had to cause to be approved by the Governor in Council a report made by him jointly with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries about the choice of a site and the dimensions of the Dock, the plans and specifications and the draft contract of the work, and to recommend, according to the progress of the work, the payments to be made to the Harbour Commission.

The choice of the site, of the Dock, the first plans, specifications and draft contract having been made and approved under Mr. Mackenzie's administration, I have not to discuss it here.

On the 19th of May, 1884, the Harbour Commissioners informed the Department that they had given to Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. the contract for the works yet to be executed, and sent the draft contract to be submitted to the Governor in Council for his approval. On the 7th June following, the draft contract was approved on the favourable advice of the Chief Engineer of the Department.

The above is all I had to do with this matter, I have acted conscientiously, to the best of my knowledge, not being aware whether Mr. Thomas McGreevy might have an interest in the work tendered for by Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., having been subjected to no undue influence on his part, or on that of any one else, and having myself tried in no way, directly or indirectly, to induce the Harbour Commissioners or any other person to favour the tenderers whom I have just mentioned.

Payments have been regularly made to the Commissioners as works progressed, and on their request, backed by the certificate of the Chief Engineer.

CONTRACT 5—1886-87.

Dredging of the Wet Dock.

Mr. Tarte contends that by the influence which Mr. Thomas McGreevy had in the Department of Public Works the Chief Engineer made a report for the purpose of obtaining for Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. the dredging at exorbitant prices. I had nothing to do with the contract for this work. The Commissioners have themselves given the contract, as the statute authorized to do, without being bound to obtain the approval of the Government to their draft contract or the dredging work. I had no other duty but to recommend the payments, at the request of the Commissioners, backed by the advice of the Chief Engineer of my Department.

I have never attempted to influence in any way the Harbour Commissioners, and I have not been subjected to any undue influence in connection with the payments which I have recommended in their favour.

CONTRACT 5—1886.

The charge made by Mr. Tarte is that Mr. Thomas McGreevy had from certain public officers communication of tenders received, in order that he might inform accordingly Messrs. O. E. Murphy, Connolly and Robert McGreevy.

The contract of 1886 was given by the Harbour Commissioners in the same way as the preceding one. I did not try to influence them, and no employé of my Department has, to my knowledge, given information about the tenders, which, moreover, had not been communicated to the Department. Mr. Perley was acting in this matter as the Chief Engineer of the Harbour Commission, and I did not influence his decision.

CONTRACT 6—1884.

Building of the Graving Dock at Esquimalt, British Columbia.

Mr. Tarte insinuates that the Minister of Public Works, giving way to the influence of Mr. Thomas McGreevy, agent of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly and Co. (Mr. Robert McGreevy having an interest in the work), allowed Mr. Thomas McGreevy to obtain from the Department illicit informations, and modifications of the plans, and changes in the execution of the contract, to the public detriment.

To this insinuation I give the most formal denial. I never knew that Mr. Thomas McGreevy and Mr. Robert McGreevy had an interest in the contract. I never had any conversation with Mr. O. E. Murphy about the Esquimalt Graving Dock.

This work is the only one of all those which came under examination by the Committee which was from its inception to its completion carried on under the direct supervision and responsibility of the Public Works Department. It has been explained above that the details of all the works in Quebec were carried out under the direct responsibility of the Harbour Commissioners.

The construction of this Dock had been undertaken by the Government of British Columbia, under plans prepared by Messrs. Kinipple and Morris. The British Columbia Government had called for tenders for the execution of the work and the contract for the same had been awarded to Messrs. F. B. McNamee & Co. The work appears to have been carried on with varying degrees of success until the 13th July, 1882, when the Hon. Mr. Trutch reported to the Department that the Government of British Columbia had cancelled their contract with Messrs. F. B. McNamee & Co. and intended to carry on the work by days labour.

The works were continued accordingly with more or less vigour, when on the 27th September, 1883, an Order in Council was passed approving of Sir Alexander Campbell's report of his mission to British Columbia, and of the agreement of the 20th August between himself, on behalf of the Dominion Government, and the Local Government in reference among other matters of the taking possession of the Graving Dock at Esquimalt. The agreement in question was authorized by 47 Vic., chap. 6 (1884), which was assented to on the 19th April, 1884. Steps were then taken by this Department to organize the service in connection with the Dock, and on the 24th November, 1883, the Hon. Mr. Trutch was given the supervision of the work, with Mr. Bennett as Resident Engineer, Mr. Bennett having been connected with the work since its inception, he having been sent by Messrs. Kinipple and Morris as their representative Engineer on the Dock.

Tenders were accordingly asked in February, 1884, for the completion of the Graving Dock, and in March following two tenders were received for the work, viz. : that of Messrs. Baskerville, O'Connor, Cassidy & Stewart, and that of Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly, these tenders being in the form of a schedule of rates for the different items of work required to be executed.

The tenders were opened on the 5th March, 1884. On the 19th March, Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly, who had made the lowest tender, wrote to the Department calling attention to several important errors made in said tender, and asked to be allowed to correct said tender or to withdraw it. On the 14th April following Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly wrote another letter stating that they had made so serious an error in their tender that it would be impossible for them to do the work for the price named therein, and again asked to be allowed to correct or withdraw said tender. On the 17th the Chief Engineer reported on the tenders and stated that one of those tenders was much in excess of the actual value of the work, and the other was much too low; and he therefore recommended that none of the tenders be accepted. This course was authorized by an Order in Council of the 10th April, 1884.

In September following, tenders were called a second time for this work, and in reply eight tenders were received, the lowest of which was that of Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly, and the next lowest that of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co.; and I immediately recommended, on the 13th October, 1884, that the tender of Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly be accepted. However, having before me the report of my Chief Engineer that their price was too small, I directed them to be asked on the 7th October to strengthen themselves financially by associating some other contractor with them; but although their price was very low, as they considered it unnecessary to have the assistance of another contractor, I (the Minister) being desirous of giving the contract for the lowest possible price, recommended to Council the acceptance of the said lowest tender, on condition that they would deposit to the credit of the Government an additional sum of $9,500 to complete the amount of 5 per cent. security required, and an Order in Council was passed to that effect on the 16th October, 1884.

However, on the 24th October, Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly wrote stating that they found they had made a mistake in some of the items of their tender, and it would neither be prudent for them nor in the public interest to take the contract, and they asked, therefore, leave to withdraw their tender. The statement being a confirmation of the opinion entertained at the outset by the Chief Engineer, that the price of this firm was too low, that officer reported on the same day (24th October) that, having made a thorough examination of their tender, he found that the prices for masonry and concrete was so low that they barely covered the cost of the stone to be furnished, leaving nothing for cement and labour, for cutting and setting the same in the work, and that it was evident that they had made a serious mistake in the prices given. This report of the Chief Engineer formed the basis of a report to Council of the same date, which quoted the remarks of the Chief Engineer, and accordingly recommended that permission be given to Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly to withdraw their tender, and also to accept the next lowest tender, that of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co.

A year had elapsed since the agreement had been made with the British Columbia Government for the completion of the Dock, and it was imperative that no further delays should occur in the completion of that important work. An Order in Council of the 25th October authorized the acceptance of the tender of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Changes, &c. in Dock at Esquimalt.

The first change in order of date is the dispensing with the second entrance of the Dock, thereby giving the same an additional length of 50 feet. The Dock, as originally intended, was to have been 380 feet long, 65 feet wide on floor and 90 feet at top on ground level, with an entrance 65 feet wide. The original plans for the Dock provided for inverts and a caisson recess at the head of the Dock, in anticipation of the construction at a future time of a second entrance beyond the present one.

Shortly after the award of the contract in 1884, the subject of lengthening the Dock was brought to the notice of the Department more noticeably by a despatch of the British Columbia Government of January, 1885, respecting the advisability of such increase in length.

The Chief Engineer, on the 21st January, 1885, made a report in reference to the proposed additional length, stating that the second entrance, provided for in case of need in the future, was and would be practically useless, merely adding to the cost and reducing the usefulness of the work, while the carrying of the dock bottom to the full length would give an additional useful docking space of 50 feet 6 inches, or a total length of dock of 430 feet, with an additional estimated cost of $35,000.

A Memorandum based on that report was submitted by me to Council, and an Order in Council approving the same was issued on the 3rd February, 1885.

The next change which occurred was the re-coursing of the stones in the walls of the Dock, larger stones being permitted to be used instead of the small sizes specified at first.

It would appear from a memorandum written by the Chief Engineer and printed at page 38 of the Blue Book published in 1890, that at the time the original plans were made it was believed that stone of the thickness then specified was all that could be obtained within a reasonable distance of Esquimalt. However, after the contract was let, in searching for stone, a quarry was found in which stone of a fine quality and great thickness could be obtained; stone large enough to make one course instead of two thin courses was got out and brought to the works. Correspondence ensued between the contractors, the Hon. Mr. Trutch and the Chief Engineer with reference to use of larger stones, and Mr. Trutch was instructed on the 4th May, 1885, to permit contractors to build work with stone of increased size as proposed by themselves, no extra payment to be made to them on account of this change.

In the fall of 1885, the Chief Engineer visited the works, and after his return he, on the 18th January, 1886, made a report to me with reference to his examination of the Dock. He stated in that report that the cost of the works will be increased by $35,000 owing to the change in size of stone, and recommended that the contractors be paid full measurement for all the stone they have placed in the Dock, due care being taken to reduce the quantity of concrete backing. The report was approved by an official letter dated the 28th of January, and payments were made accordingly.

It must be borne in mind that the price given in their tender for the stone was not increased and that no payment over the price mentioned in tender was made to them on account of the change in coursing, but that the additional amount was the result of the difference in the tender price of stone and concrete backing, where the price of one was $1.00 per cubic foot, and that of the latter $8.50 per cubic yard.

The change in the dimension of the stone had been suggested by the contractors themselves. I did not at once see the advantage of the change. I knew, however, that stone of large dimension suited well the work, and for that reason I assented to the change on condition that the prices should not be increased.

Later on, in 1885, Mr. Perley went to British Columbia and visited for the first time the works. When he returned, he explained to me how the change in dimension of the stone was advantageous to the public, because it increased the solidity and the power of resistance of the walls. Being thus convinced, I thought then that I was acting in a proper administrative way as well as in justice in granting to the contractors a compensation for the change that I had assented to. Nobody, I believe, will contend that the public was not benefited by the change, at least in proportion to the additional amount paid to the contractors.

On the 18th January, 1885, the Chief Engineer reported that the caisson recess had been built of stone instead of brick, difference of cost being $6,000, and he recommended payment, and the Minister approved his report on the 28th January. This change not having been criticized I will say nothing more. I refer to the second report of the Engineers appointed by the Committee—which shows that the entire cost of all changes in plans and execution of the work is about $53,000.

When the contract with F. B. McNamee was cancelled and the arrangement was made between the Local and Federal Governments for the assumption and completion by the latter of the Dock works, an inventory and valuation of the plant and materials on the ground was made, and, in the specification drawn up for intending tenderers, it was stipulated that said tenderers would have to take over all plant, buildings, tools, materials, &c., mentioned in the inventory attached to said specification and which was valued at $50,288.69.

On the 16th April, 1885, the Hon. Mr. Trutch informed the Department that the plant and materials had been delivered to the contractors, but that they were unwilling to accept the same at prices named. On 29th April the Chief Engineer reported that the plant, &c., should be accepted by the contractors at prices named in inventory; and, on the 12th May, 1885, Hon. Mr. Trutch was officially informed that there was no option on the part of the contractors to take only part of plant or refuse portion of same, and that they would have to take all that was mentioned in the schedule.

The value of the plant was, therefore, deducted in twelfths from the second estimate to the thirteenth, until the whole amount of $50,288.69 had been deducted. However, upon his return from British Columbia, the Chief Engineer, in his report of the 18th January, 1886, alludes to that plant, and says he found a portion of it old and unserviceable, and that its value might at some future date become a question between this Department and the contractors.

Since that time no mention is made of that plant in the Departmental papers; and when the allowance of $19,000 on account of old and unserviceable plant was made, the action in that matter appears to have been taken by the Chief Engineer personally without reference to the Minister. Mr. Perley has himself made a declaration to that effect before the Committee. (See page 142 of Evidence.)

There is no doubt that my attention should have been called to this allowance of $19,000 in the final estimate; and there is every reason to believe that the Chief Engineer, finding that a large portion of the plant which was supposed to be serviceable was useless and rubbish, thought that the contractors should not pay for material that could not be used and to replace which they would have to pay a second time.

Final estimates are not submitted to me, when there is no reduction made or extras granted. If the Chief Engineer is of opinion that the works are completed, it is for him to see to the issue of the final certificate for the payment of the balance of the price of the contract.

In so important an administration as that of the Public Works, were the correspondence alone in this last year represents nearly thirty thousand official letters besides 8,946 cheques, it is impossible for the Minister to see and know everything. He must necessarily leave to his chief officer that part of the work of the Department which does not require a decision on his part. He must also have confidence enough in them, so long as they have not shown themselves unworthy of it, to rely on their fidelity and depend on their submitting to him all questions which require his interference.

I have only to say a word on the projected substitution of granite for sandstone. When Mr. Perley, who was favourable to that change, consulted me, I was inclined to assent to it. For prudence sake I spoke of it to Council, Council was of opinion not to accept the change, and I informed Mr. Perley accordingly.

I have stated everything that occurred to the best of my recollection. In order to help my memory, I have caused searches in the records of the Department and examinations to be made of the documents which might have reference to the works above referred to. I hope that no important paper shall have escaped notice. In any case, my statement of facts is honestly made.

The Committee will please observe that Mr. Thomas McGreevy, as Member representing Quebec West, was presumed to take a special interest in the works of the Harbour of Quebec.

His position as a Harbour Commissioner gave him the knowledge of the tenders and contracts; and as a Director of the Union Bank of Lower Canada, now Canada, which made advances to Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., he followed with interest the execution of works at Esquimalt.

7th.—Subsidies granted to the Baie des Chaleurs Railway Company.

Mr. Tarte has accused Mr. Robert McGreevy of having received more than $40,000 from these subsidies. Although no mention is made of me, nevertheless in the evidence my name is several times mentioned in connection with these subsidies.

In a letter of the 3rd of March, 1886 (page 22 of the Evidence), Mr. Thomas McGreevy writes:—"Nothing new in the Baie des Chaleurs matter, except Sir Hector wanted me to come to terms and asked me to state the terms."

And in a letter of the 8th of March, 1886, (same page) he says:—"I am told that Isbester will not have anything to do with Baie des Chaleurs contract until they are in a legal position. I have received no proposition from them yet. Sir Hector wants me to make one, or state what I want them to do."

In another letter to Mr. Robert McGreevy, of the 9th March, 1886, (page 23) Mr. Thomas McGreevy says, moreover: "I had a meeting this afternoon with Sir Hector and Sir Adolphe. Sir Hector insisted on an understanding being come to. I refused to do so, and told him at last to let Robitaille make a proposition himself." And further on: "They proposed (not Caron, Sir Hector) to give me control of road to St. Anne's with subsidy of $6,000 per mile, if I would withdraw my opposition to Baie des Chaleurs Railway, and relieve you and me of our stock."

Mr. Riopel, in his evidence, mentions a conversation which he says I had with him about the then existing difficulties between him and the Messrs. McGreevy.

Mr. Thomas McGreevy and Mr. Riopel spoke to me about these difficulties. The only part I had in these matters was that of a friend who wishes to bring friends back together. I have had no interest in the affairs of this Company, and I never proposed to Mr. McGreevy to give him the control of the St. Anne's road, and I never promised or let him understand that I would help in obtaining a subsidy of $6,000 per mile for this last-mentioned Company. The fact is, I was always opposed to have this road subsidized. Mr. McGreevy, therefore, makes a mistake in mentioning me as favourable to such a subsidy.

8th.—Payments of sums of money by the firm of Larkin, Connolly and Company.

I have already sworn that I never received money from this firm or from any of its members.

However, wishing to refer more specially to the charges made against me by certain witnesses, I shall now take them separately:

1st. In answer to the charge made by Mr. O. E. Murphy, that he gave me in my house in Quebec, on two different occasions, the sum of $5,000, making in all $10,000, I have to say that O. E. Murphy was only once in my house, when he came to complain that one of the Assistant Engineers of the Quebec Harbour Commission was too hard with the contractors for the works. My answer was, that those officers not being Government officers, the complaint of the contractors should be made to the Quebec Harbour Board and not to me. I add that Mr. O. E. Murphy did not speak to me about money, gift or loan; that he did not offer, loan or pay me any sum of money; and I swear positively that he never paid me the above-mentioned two sums of five thousand dollars each, and I never asked him for money.

2nd. In answer to the statement made by the said O. E. Murphy, that Nicholas K. Connolly told him that he had given to my son for me and also to me personally each time $5,000, making in all ten thousand dollars. I swear positively that the said Nicholas K. Connolly did not pay me, directly or indirectly, any sum of money, and especially the said above-mentioned two sums of five thousand dollars, and he did not pay to my son any sum of money, as far as my knowledge goes.

3rd. In answer to the statement made by the said O. E. Murphy, that Mr. Thomas McGreevy went to him and told him that, as I was going away that day, I required $5,000, and that on another occasion he gave Mr. Thomas McGreevy $1,000 more for me, I swear positively that the above $5,000 and $1,000 respectively were never paid to me, either as a whole or in two or more payments, nor was any other sum of money paid to me as stated by the said O. E. Murphy, and I never asked the said Thomas McGreevy for any such sum of money.

4th. In answer to the statement made by the said O. E. Murphy, that he came to me and told me that if I allowed him and his associates to have the contract of the Esquimalt Graving Dock at something less than the price of the highest of the two tenders received, they would give an interest of twenty-five per cent. in said contract, I swear positively that he never came to me for any such purpose, and never made me, directly or indirectly, any such proposal or offer; and I may also add that O. E. Murphy never spoke to me on the subject of the contract for the Esquimalt Dock before or after the contract was awarded to Larkin, Connolly & Co.

5th. To the insinuation or charge made in this enquiry, that $5,000 were sent to Three Rivers for election purposes, I swear positively that, before this insinuation or charge was brought before this Committee, I had not heard it made, and I never knew and do not know of any such sum having been sent to Three Rivers, and I add on my oath that said sum never was given or sent me, or to any one else with my knowledge, for such or any other purpose, directly or indirectly.

There are other charges or insinuations in the evidence which have come to my notice. I wish to explain and deny them, viz.:

Mr. P. V. Valin, at page 494, refers to a letter or declaration which he says he signed, being taken by surprise. The circumstances are as follows:

Mr. P. V. Valin intended to be a candidate for the County of Montmorency at the last general election for the House of Commons, and wished through me the influence of the Government of Canada in his canvass. He therefore came to me at Quebec on the 17th of February last, and found himself in my office with two leading electors of Montmorency, viz., Messrs. L. A. Lapointe and Edward Cauchon. I said to Mr. Valin that the Canadien newspaper of that morning had published, over Mr. J. I. Tarte's signature, an open letter addressed to me, and in which Mr. Tarte related a conversation he said he had had on the 16th with Mr. Valin, and during which Mr. Valin was reported to have used my name in a disparaging manner. I added that the first thing I wished to know was whether or not he,

Mr. Valin, had so expressed himself. Mr. Valin protested that he had not. I asked him whether he would state so in writing, in order that my political friends might be so informed. He consented, and as I was reading to him Mr. Tarte's letter, Mr. Valin protested against Mr. Tarte's allegations, and I wrote nearly the exact words of his denial, and at all events the exact meaning, and after the letter was completed, I read it to and invited him to sign the letter in presence of the two electors above-mentioned, who signed with him as witnesses of his signature.

The original letter, and Mr. Tarte's open letter, accompany this statement.

The CHAIRMAN—Have you any objection to read the letter of Mr. Valin?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN—None whatever.

Mr. DAVIES—You say that was drawn by you?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN—It was written by me in his presence. It was read to him and he signed it.

The CHAIRMAN—And you produce it now together with the article from Le Canadien?

Article from Le Canadien filed as Exhibit "V16", and letter of Mr. Valin as Exhibit "W16". (For these Exhibits See Appendices I and J to this Statement, pages 1071 and 1072.)

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN—Yes, I think both should go together, because one explains the other. The other was not asked for by the Committee, but I thought it better to give it.

Mr. Valin states in his evidence that I told him to follow always Mr. Thomas McGreevy at the Quebec Harbour Board, and that he always did so, convinced as he was that it was my wish and desire. This I most positively deny. Mr. Valin evidently is quite mistaken.

Mr. Valin insinuates in his evidence that, though I did not promise him a place of Senator, I told him on the subject that he might take Sir A. P. Caron's word. He says also that Sir A. P. Caron told him on my behalf and on that of Sir John A. Macdonald, that he (Mr. Valin) would be appointed a Senator. To the above statement I answer that I never promised Mr. Valin that we would appoint him Senator. The fact is, he visited me very often, praying to be called to the Senate, and I always told him that I could not promise him anything of the kind, and I never authorized anyone to promise it on my behalf; and I never stated to Mr. Valin to take Sir A. P. Caron's word in that sense, knowing fully that Sir A. P. Caron was not disposed to have him appointed.

In answer to Mr. R. H. McGreevy's statement that Mr. Thomas McGreevy consulted me in 1882 on the question of R. H. McGreevy becoming a partner with Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., I swear positively that Mr. Thomas McGreevy never consulted me on the subject, and I did not know that R. H. McGreevy was or had been a member of the firm until the papers about the case now before this Committee became public and were communicated to me during last Session.

Mr. Noel having been examined about a testimonial that was begun in 1880 and presented to me in 1883, I wish to state that I did not know of the names of the subscribers to that testimonial until they were communicated to this Committee by Mr. Noel, nor the amounts subscribed by them. I may add that I have not received the list of subscribers or statements of receipts.

Mr. Peters states in his evidence that he subscribed for the elections in the month of June, 1882, and handed me for that purpose $400 as his subscription and $600 more that he collected. I do not remember that he did so, and, therefore, shall not deny it. But, supposing it to be a fact, Mr. Peters was not a contractor with the Government. On the 2nd of May, 1877, he, with Messrs. Moore and Wright, signed with the Quebec Harbour Commissioners a contract for the South Tidal Harbour, without the intervention of the Government of Canada, the Commissioners paying those contractors out of the proceeds of their debentures. That contract was practically completed in October, 1881, and Mr. Peters could with all propriety contribute to an election fund in 1882. None of that money, if so contributed, was used for my own election.

In a letter laid before your Committee, it is stated that one Mr. Simard, who is said to be a first cousin of mine, informed Mr. Larkin that if he (Mr. Larkin) wanted anything done by me, to let him know. All I can say is that Mr. Simard never spoke to me about any of the works now being considered by your Committee, never wrote to me about any one of them, and never approached me, directly or indirectly, about them. I say the same about the Welland Canal works mentioned by Mr. Larkin, and all other public works, Mr. Simard never having communicated with me, directly or indirectly, about any of them.

In a letter dated 2nd May, 1885, published at page 15 of the Evidence, allusion is made to Mr. Bennett, the then Engineer in British Columbia. I cannot recollect positively how and by whom my attention was called to that Engineer in the first instance. But I remember that Mr. Perley spoke to me about him, and mentioned that there seemed to be some difficulty or friction between the contractors and the Engineer. We came to the conclusion that most likely it was purely and simply a friction that might not last. However, I said to Mr. Perley that, in order that the post of local Engineer might not become vacant without proper preparation, he would do well to see Mr. Page, of the Department of Railways and Canals, and ascertain what good hydraulic Engineer we might obtain in case of want. I understood that Mr. Perley did so, but matters remained as they were, and no change of Engineer took place.

Mr. Williams says in his evidence that he was offered the position of Engineer in place of Mr. Bennett. If made, that offer was not authorized by me; and if Mr. Williams wrote me a letter on the subject, I could certainly not have consented to his appointment. He was not the Engineer that would have suited for that post. The negotiations between Mr. Perley and Mr. Page, and perhaps Mr. Williams' interview with Mr. Perley as stated by him, may have transpired and thus given the idea that Mr. Perley and I were prepared to change the local Engineer.

I swear positively that Mr. Thomas McGreevy never spoke to me about removing Mr. Bennett, and that I never intended to remove him so as to favour unduly Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co.

At page 21 of the Evidence Mr. Thomas McGreevy says, in a letter dated 13th May, what follows:—"Tell Kerrigan & Co., plumbers, that they have contract for Marine Hospital. They were not the lowest, Vaudry was. I got the Minister to give it to them."

I do not recollect anything about this matter; I have caused searches to be made in the Department, and there are no traces of such tenders. The only thing found is a payment of $150 to these men for plumbers' work.

In the letter of the 26th February, 1886, at page 21 (Exhibit "M2"), it is stated that I would be glad to recommend O. E. Murphy to the Company in England for the building of their Halifax Graving Dock. This must have been only a supposition, inasmuch as I had no influence with that Company in England. Moreover, I hardly knew O. E. Murphy, and I had no opportunity of saying whether I would recommend him or not.

In the account books of Mr. Thomas McGreevy, laid before this Committee, mention is made of certain promissory notes on which my name is. I wish to state in connection with this, that in 1876 and 1877, not being then a member of the Government, I ran twice for Parliamentary elections in the County of Charlevoix. I was elected there in 1876, and the following year also after my first election had been annulled. Both elections were petitioned against and I was put to a large expense, the judgments in the Superior Court being appealed from to the Supreme Court of Canada. One can judge of the expense when I say that in one of these contested elections nearly two hundred witnesses were examined and their time and expenses were taxed by the Court and paid. The printing of the record in the Supreme Court on my side cost one thousand dollars. I had no money, and I had therefore to borrow by having my notes discounted. Mr. Thomas McGreevy knowing the circumstances endorsed my notes, paid out of his own money the interest or discount when due, and told me then that later on he would see the notes redeemed.

I have considered, therefore, that he assumed the notes, and I have been confirmed in that idea by his having met regularly the interest or discount since then, and I have never troubled my mind about the matter.

Mr. Thomas McGreevy in his evidence said that he paid $35,000 to Le Monde out of moneys received for political purposes. I had no personal knowledge of this or these payments. But I understood that Mr. McGreevy had paid some money to that newspaper. I, myself, paid sums of money to the same paper, which are still due to me, and this is the only interest I have in that paper, besides the political interest.

At page 90 of the Evidence, Mr. Baskerville says in a letter to me: "As your Honour remarked to me to have this matter kept quiet; my brother and I did so." I do not recollect this. Mr. Baskerville must have mistaken what I told him. It was not to keep that matter quiet, but I must have told him to keep quiet himself, meaning not to be excited. The fact is the Order in Council refusing to give the contract either to Messrs Baskerville & Co., or to Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly was passed on the 19th April, 1884, and Mr. Baskerville's letter is of the 26th May following.

At page 233 of the Evidence, Mr. O. E. Murphy says that I knew what he had done in New York. I here declare on my oath I did not know it, and heard of it only after Mr. Tarte had published Murphy's statement last year.

At page 296 of the Evidence, Mr. O. E. Murphy says that he met Mr. Thomas McGreevy at my office in Ottawa about a sum of $5,000. I declare on my oath that he never to my knowledge, came to my office either with or without Mr. McGreevy, and therefore his statement about the above-mentioned $5,000 is false.

I end here my statement.

The Committee will understand the difficult and unjust position in which I am. If direct and clearly defined charges had been made against me, I could have prepared a complete defence. But when the charges come up from time to time as the evidence develops itself; when often they are made only in the form of insinuations, and based on the words and writings of third parties, on mere comparisons of dates and other presumptions of similar value, it becomes difficult to ascertain all their bearing, and impossible in many cases to meet these sayings by witnesses or documents. However, I have made this statement in the most straightforward way possible, believing it to be perfectly true, and wishing over and above all to defend and clear my character. Having done so, I leave my case in the hands of this Committee and of the House of Commons.

"MONSIEUR LE MINISTRE,—En réponse à votre lettre du 31 ultimo, j'ai reçu instruction de déclarer respectueusement que les Commissaires considèrent qu'il n'est pas nécessaire qu'ils se défendent du soupçon de la connaissance de leur part de collusion entre les soumissionnaires pour les travaux du havre.

“ Les plus bas soumissionnaires se sont simplement retirés, et, suivant l'ordre naturel, les deux contrats sont échus à Larkin, Connolly et Cie, et l'adjudication leur en a été faite, mais sans faveur aucune de la part des Commissaires.

“ Je vous transmets sous ce pli une copie du rapport de l'ingénieur sur ces soumissions, et les Commissaires osent espérer que vous le trouverez satisfaisant. Ils me prient de vous dire qu'ils ont obtenu pour leur propre gouverne, avant l'adjudication des contrats, toute l'information que ce rapport renferme.

“ SIR,—In reply to your letter of the 31st ultimo, I am instructed respectfully to declare that the Commissioners consider that it is not necessary that they should defend themselves against a suspicion of a knowledge on their part of collusion between the tenderers for the Harbour works.

“ The lowest tenderers simply withdrew. and in the natural course the two contracts fell to Larkin, Connolly & Co., and were awarded to them, but without any favour whatsoever on the part of the Commissioners.

“ I enclose herewith a copy of the report of the Engineer on those tenders, and the Commissioners trust you will find it satisfactory. They ask me to say that they secured for their own guidance, before awarding the contracts, all the information included in this report.

“ SIR,—In compliance with your request that I should report for the information of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works on the tenders received for dredging in connection with the proposed completion of the new Harbour works, and also for the timber work in closing the unfinished opening at the end of the Princess Louise embankment, I have to submit the following remarks and firstly under the head of dredging :—

“ I consider the tender of Mr. Fradet, amounting to $94,950 in all, too low. Looking generally at the work now required in dredging and depositing the material inside the new works, every yard having to be hoisted in and hauled for an average length of bend of 500 feet, that an average of 20 cents for dredging some of which is of unusual depth, and 20 cents for hoisting, hauling and depositing, is the least the work can profitably be done for per yard on the average.

“The value of the plant required for this work would probably amount to from $80,000 to $90,000, and it stands to reason that no contract could be entered into upon a sound basis where the value of the plant required is so nearly equal to the supposed value of the work to be done. I think, therefore, that the rejection of the tender of Mr. Fradet would have followed as a matter of expediency and prudence, apart from the failure on his part to find the needful security.

“With regard to the tenders of Mr. Beaucage and Mr. Askwith it is understood that they have voluntarily requested leave to retire from the competition, not feeling able to carry out the work.

“The tender of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. at $138,845 at rates per yard as proposed, being $79,150 below the next tender in order of succession of Mr. Ed. Moore, which has been guaranteed by a deposit of $10,000, although under the estimate herein given of the value of the work, is made by responsible persons apparently able to meet any loss that may be involved, so that no complete justification for rejecting such an offer could be made, although it is well to observe that the security and certainty of fulfilment of contract offered by the tender of Mr. Ed. Moore in the fact that the plant required is nearly complete, is now on the ground, combined with his great experience in this class of work, would have induced many to have favoured the acceptance of his tender.

“The tender of Messrs. Blake & Co. being informal and outside in price, no further remark is necessary.

TIMBER WORK.

“The tender of Messrs. Poupore & Charlton for $9,000 has been set aside, they having failed to accept the conditions of contract with regard to security—at the same time I may add that the price named is altogether below the fair value of the work required.

“The tender of Messrs. Larkin & Connolly is at fair rates, and the whole of the different items being priced at per foot in the quantities given, no difficulty can arise in the completion of this work or either of the alternative lines suggested by the plans.

“The rest of the tenders are too high, although with regard to the tender of Mr. S. Peters, had he been aware that the work would certainly not have been required to be completed this season, a difference in the amount of his tender would probably have resulted, in any case if it is considerably above the price at which I estimated the work as based on the conditions of the specification.

“SIR,—I have the honour, by direction of the Commissioners, to add the following information to my letter to you of the 27th ultimo, having reference to the tenders that had been received for the dredging and timber work required in connection with the Harbour Works in course of construction, viz. :

“The contract for the timber work was offered to Messrs. Poupore & Charlton on the condition that they would make a cash deposit of $3,000 for the due performance of the work they had tendered for. Their reply was that they would comply with the new conditions on being allowed to amend their tender by correcting an error which had been discovered after the tender had been filled, and which, if corrected, would have added $7,600 to the sum mentioned in same.

“The Commissioners having refused to comply with their request and the next lowest tender, Mr. Beaucage's tender, having been withdrawn, the contract was thereupon awarded to the next lowest, Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co.

“To the Honourable

“Minister of Public Works,

“Ottawa.

“SIR,—I have the honour, by direction of the Commissioners, to most respectfully state that, through lack of sufficient means at their disposal, they have been compelled to suspend the dredging of the Tidal Basin forming part of the Harbour Works under their control; that the suspension in question will have the effect of retarding this year, the completion of the dredging of a sufficient quantity of material from the bank now in existence, which, once removed, would insure the free access to the Louise Embankment of the largest ocean steamers frequenting the harbour and would therefore place them in communication with the North Shore Railway whose line has been lately connected with the two tracks laid on the embankment. The access of ocean steamers to the Tidal Basin would be of a great benefit to the shipping interest not only of Quebec but also to the same interest which is now connected by rail from this city all along the western sections of the Dominion. The completion of the dredging of this portion of the Tidal Basin would have the effect of securing a certain revenue which would greatly help the Commissioners to meet the interest and sinking fund which they are, since their works are under contract, obliged to impute to the capital.

“As this dredging cannot be resumed without the consent of the Government, the Commissioners most respectfully urge you to come to their relief in such a manner as will assure the realization of their project, the sum of about fifty thousand dollars ($50,000), according to the Engineer's estimate, being sufficient to secure the object they have in view.

“CHIEF ENGINEER'S OFFICE,

“OTTAWA, 30th July, 1885.

“SIR,—The Harbour Commissioners of Quebec in their communication of the 29th state that through lack of means they have been compelled to suspend the dredging of the Tidal Basin forming part of the Harbour Works under their control, and that the effect of such suspension will be to retard for this year free access to the Louise Embankment of the largest ocean steamers frequenting the port, and ask that they be permitted to resume such dredging, and to be assisted in such a manner as would enable them to expend a sum of $50,000 beyond the amount at their disposal.

"I am well aware of the nature and extent of the dredging to be done, and also of the desirability which exists that it be continued and completed this year. The object to be attained is a depth of 25 ft. at low water over an area sufficiently large to permit large ocean steamers to enter from the St. Lawrence and turn freely in the Tidal Basin, and thus avail themselves of the advantages afforded by the Louise Embankment.

"I have therefore to recommend that the Harbour Commissioners be authorized to resume the dredging in the Tidal Basin, and to incur a liability not exceeding fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) for that purpose.

No. 34,867.

"CHIEF ENGINEER'S OFFICE,
"OTTAWA, 23rd May, 1883.

"SIR,—I have to report that I have examined the five tenders for Harbour Works at Quebec, forwarded to the Department by the Secretary of the Harbour Commissioners in his letter of the 2nd May, and herewith enclose a schedule shewing the estimated amounts of the different kinds of works to be executed, to which have been applied the prices named in these tenders for the purposes of determining the relative values of the said tenders, which are as follows:—

Larkin, Connolly & Co ....	634,340 00
G. Beaucage.....	640,808 50
Peters & Moore.....	645,071 16
J. & A. Samson. ....	864,181 00

"On examining these tenders it was found that Messrs Larkin, Connolly & Co., Gallagher and Beaucage had made evident errors in the prices they name for sheet piling (see items marked b. c. and d. on sheet herewith), and I drew the attention of these gentlemen to this and asked them if errors had been made, (see copies of my letters attached hereto). I also drew the attention of Mr. Beaucage to the words "labour only" which he had inserted in his tender in connection with his price for pile driving, as the specification for this work included the providing of all machinery, etc.

"The replies to my letter are attached hereto.

"Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. state that, though they had made an error, they would hold themselves ready to enter into a contract at the prices named in their tender. This being the case, those prices must be accepted for the work to be done as specified, and no change has, therefore, been made in the schedule.

"Mr. Gallagher states that he had withdrawn his tender, and reiterates the prices he had given therein. No change was, therefore, made in the schedule.

"Mr. Beaucage in his letter acknowledges the error, and desires his tender to be amended by the insertion of the prices named therein.

"This has been done in red ink on the schedule.

"Mr. Beaucage also withdraws the words "labour only" from his tender, as he finds that they are not compatible with clause 80 of the specification.

“ With further reference to the tender of Mr. John Gallagher I find that, under date 6th May, he has written to the Secretary of the Department (see No. 34,629) to the effect that having taken another contract, he wishes to withdraw his tender for these works, and asks that his deposit security be returned.

“ This withdrawal I beg leave to recommend, because I believe that the amount of his tender is far below that for which the works can be executed.

“ This done leaves the tender of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. next in order, and I have to recommend it for the consideration of the Honourable the Minister.

“ I have the honour to be, Sir,

“ OTTAWA, 17th May, 1883.

“ SIR,—In your tender for the construction of the “ Cross-wall,” Harbour Works, Quebec, there is an evident error in the prices you have given for “ sheet piling,” 8 in., 6 in. and 4 in. thick, white pine, and 6 in. thick, any timber, as per clause 18. If you will examine the form of tender you will note that the prices asked for are for “ per lineal foot in line of work,” which means a measurement along the top of the work after having been done, and not with any reference to the length of the piles to be driven, &c. From the prices you have given it is inferred that you have named a price per lineal foot of pile, instead of per lineal foot of work.

“ I am directed to call your attention to this, and to request an immediate reply whether an error has or has not been made by you, and if so, that you will name a price per lineal foot in line of work, to enable me to compare your tender with others who have given prices as per the requirements of the tender.

“ I have to call your attention to the price you have placed in your tender for “ pile driving to any depth not exceeding 20 ft.” and the note you have placed that this price is for “ labour only.” It is clearly stated in clause 80 of the specification that all prices named in the schedule shall be held to cover, not only the cost of labour, but all the machinery, plant, &c.

“ QUEBEC, 21st May, 1883.

“ HENRY F. PERLEY, Esq.,

“ Chief Engineer, Department of Public Works,
“ Ottawa.

“ SIR,—I have received your letter of 17th inst., No. 6905, relative to items in my tender for “ Cross-wall,” which demands an explanation.

“ Having examined, on receipt of your letter, my memorandum of details of calculations for this work in Harbour of Quebec, I find that my rates or prices, as is evident on the face of it, are based on foot lineal of pile, and the width of these piles are assumed at 9 in. to 10 in. wide each, and I so read those items as meaning foot lineal of pile. This, I must say, is a serious error on my part.

"My rate for this work, as now explained by you, would be nineteen ($19) dollars per foot for sheet piling 8 in. thick, driven from 6 to 8 ft., white pine; do., 6 in. thick, seventeen ($17) dollars; do., 4 in., fifteen ($15) dollars per foot; do., 6 in. thick of any timber, as per clause 18 of specification, fifteen ($15.75) dollars and seventy-five cents, all per lineal foot in line of work, and I desire my tender to be so amended.

"I think, under the circumstances, this addition should be allowed to my tender, seeing it is evidently an error caused by a misunderstanding of the terms of the schedule.

"With regard to the second question in your letter on the item, "pile driving to any depth not exceeding 20 ft." Where you say I have put the words "labour only," this has also been an error, but as the clause 80 of the specification you invoke, is clear on the subject, I would strike out the words "labour only" which I put. Hoping these explanations are clear and satisfactory.

"I remain, your obedient servant,

(Signed) "GEORGE BEAUCAGE."

“MONSIEUR LE MINISTRE,—En passant dans la rue tout-à-l'heure, j'ai vu sortir de votre maison M. P. Valin. Mardi dernier après-midi il était à mon bureau, rue de la Fabrique. Il s'y était rendu pour vous désigner à moi comme le plus coupable de tous les criminels que je me suis fait un devoir de flétrir dans le Canadien. M. Valin m'a assuré qu'il est en mesure d'établir que c'est à votre demande, par votre ordre, que la Commission du Havre de Québec a fait avec MM. Larkin, Connolly & Cie., les contrats sur lesquels M. Thomas McGreevy a perçu depuis 1882 ou 1883 son quart de million. “Vous avez écrit la vérité, m'a-t-il dit, mais vous ne savez pas toute la vérité.”

“Il voulait être le candidat de l'opposition dans le comté de Montmorency, dans le but de dénoncer à l'électorat et au parlement la conduite de M. Thomas McGreevy et la vôtre.

“Dimanche dernier, le huit de ce mois, il est descendu à Ste-Anne, chez M. le capitaine Fortier, maire de la paroisse, et il lui a déclaré qu'il était résolu à vous démasquer, vous, M. le ministre, et M. Thomas McGreevy. Il a tenu le même langage, me dit-on, à des prêtres du comté. A M. Fortier, dont je vous donnerai le témoignage écrit, assermenté si vous voulez, il a ajouté: “Si Sir Hector savait ce que j'ai à dire contre lui, ça ne lui coûterait pas de me donner $10,000 pour me faire faire un voyage aux Etats-Unis.”

“M. Valin a mis son nom au bas de tous les contrats qui ont été la source de tant de vols, de fraudes et de prévarications. Et quand je l'ai vu vous faire porter la responsabilité entière de toutes ces choses ignominieuses, j'ai ouvert les papiers intéressants, les preuves à conviction que je possède, et j'ai constaté que vraiment il n'avait pas eu sa part de l'argent volé au pays. On ne lui a jeté par-ci par-là que des os. Les gros chiens avaient gros appétit.

“WARNING TO SIR HECTOR LANGEVIN.

“QUÉBEC, 16th February, 1891.

“HON. SIR HECTOR LANGEVIN,
“Minister of Public Works,
“Quebec.

“SIR,—Passing along the street just now, I saw Mr. P. V. Valin come out of your house. On Tuesday last, in the afternoon, he was at my office on Fabrique street. He came there to describe you to me as the most culpable of all the criminals whom I deemed it my duty to denounce in Le Canadien. Mr. Valin assured me that he was in a position to prove that it was at your request and by your order, that the Quebec Harbour Commissioners awarded to Larkin, Connolly & Co. the contracts out of which Thomas McGreevy has made, since 1882 or 1883, his quarter of a million. ‘You have written the truth,’ he said to me, ‘but you do not know the whole truth.’

“He wanted to be the Opposition candidate in the County of Montmorency, for the purpose of denouncing before the electors and before Parliament the conduct of Mr. Thomas McGreevy and yours.

“On Sunday last, the 8th of this month, he went down to Ste. Anne and to the house of Captain Fortier, mayor of the parish, to whom he declared that he was determined to expose you, Sir Hector, and Mr. Thomas McGreevy. He said the same thing, I am told, to certain priests of the county. To Mr. Fortier, whose testimony in writing, under oath, I will give you if you wish, he further said: ‘If Sir Hector knew what I have to say against him, he would not hesitate to give me $10,000 to get me to take a trip to the United States.’

“Mr. Valin signed his name at the foot of all the contracts which have been the source of so much robbery, fraud and prevarication. And when I saw him make you bear the whole responsibility for all those shameful acts, I opened up the interesting documents, the evidence in my possession, and I found that in truth he had not received his share of the money stolen from the country. He had been given a mere bone from time to time. The big dogs had been too voracious.

“M. Tarte ne m’a pas compris. Je ne lui ai pas dit que j’avais des choses à lui dire ou à dire contre vous; le fait est que je ne lui ai rien dit contre vous. Dans notre conversation, je lui ai dit quand il m’a parlé de l’affaire McGreevy, que quand cette affaire serait décidée par les tribunaux ou par un comité de la Chambre, je voterais contre M. McGreevy s’il était trouvé coupable.

“Je n’ai pas dit que c’était à votre demande et par votre ordre que la commission du Havre de Québec a fait avec Messieurs Larkin, Connolly & Cie. les contrats en question; mais je lui ai dit que ces contrats avaient été soumis à l’ingénieur en chef à Ottawa, notre ingénieur.

“Je n’ai pas dit que je voulais être le candidat de l’opposition pour vous dénoncer et dénoncer M. McGreevy; mais je lui ai dit que M. Desjardins étant sur les rangs je voulais me venger de M. Desjardins pour ce qu’il m’avait fait dans la dernière élection.

“Je n’ai pas dit à M. Fortier ce qui est dans la lettre de M. Tarte à son sujet. Le fait est que je n’avais et que je n’ai rien à dénoncer contre vous. M. “Mr. Tarte did not understand me. I did not tell him that I had things to say to him or to say against you; the fact is I told him nothing against you. In our conversation, I told him, when he spoke about the McGreevy matter, that when that matter was decided by the courts or by the Committee of the House, I would vote against Mr. McGreevy, if he were found guilty.

I did not say, that it was at your request and by your order, that the Quebec Harbour Board made the contracts in question with Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co.; but I told him that those contracts had been submitted to the Chief Engineer at Ottawa, our engineer.

I did not say that I wanted to be the candidate of the Opposition, in order to denounce you and denounce Mr. McGreevy; but I told him that, Mr. Desjardins being a candidate, I wanted to have revenge on Mr. Desjardins for what he had done to me at the last election.

I did not say to Mr. Fortier what is stated in Mr. Tarte's letter about him. The fact is I had, and I have, nothing to say against you. Mr. Tarte questioned me in order to find out what conversations I had had with you and with Mr. McGreevy. I answered him, that private conversations were not communicated to others.

Q. You have already stated that you were at one time Assistant, subsequently Resident, and now Chief Engineer of the Quebec Harbour Commissioners?—A. Yes.

Q. What position did you occupy at the time the South-wall contract was given?—A. I was Resident Engineer.

Q. Did you, at any time, become aware that it was the wish of the contractors to make a change in the material in which this work was to be built?—A. They submitted a plan showing a change from brick to stone—the contractors did.

Q. Did the carrying out of this plan involve any additional expenditure as submitted by them?—A. As first submitted by them they wanted the contract for materials fixed at a price which would have been $13,000 over and above the contract, but the Chief Engineer would not entertain the proposition unless they agreed to carry out the work at the same price.

Q. Did you communicate the proposal that they made to the Chief Engineer?—A. I did.

Q. Have you a copy of the letter here?—A. I have.

Q. Will you read it?

“HARBOUR ENGINEER'S OFFICE,

QUEBEC, June 8th, 1887.

“HENRY F. PERLEY, Esq.,

Chief Engineer, Dept. of Public Works, Ottawa.

“DEAR SIR,—The contractors for the South-wall have submitted the enclosed letter and accompanying plan for approval as a substitute for the brick and concrete sewer forming part of the projected South-wall. When submitting the above plan, they stated that according to calculations made by them the cost of the proposed plan per lineal foot would be about the same as the cost of the original design. To verify the above statement I made the following approximate estimate of the difference in cost between the two designs:

Masonry, 6,800 cubic yards at $15.....	$102,000
Centre piles, 6,900 cubic feet at 30c .....	207
No. 2 walls, 3,000 do 27c .....	810

Total additions..... $103,017

“ Work Omitted.

Concrete, 8,388 cubic yards at $5.25.....	$ 64,037
Bricks (fire), 147,000 at $32.....	47,004
Bricks (red), 700,000 at $12.....	8,400
Knees, 460 at $1.25.....	570
6-inch sheet piles, 33,584 cubic feet at 28c.....	9,403
Brace piles, 11,500 cubic feet at 25c.....	2,875
	$89,989
Work added.....	$103,017

“ I remain, Dear Sir,

“ ST. GEORGE BOSWELL,

“ Resident Engineer.”

Q. Now, what answer did Mr. Perley make to this report of yours?—A. He answered that he would not entertain the proposition, unless it could be done at the same price as the original design.

Q. Have you got the answer?—A. Yes.

(Exhibit “ X16.”)

“ DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, CHIEF ENGINEER'S OFFICE.

“ OTTAWA, June 13th, 1887.

“ DEAR SIR,—I am in receipt of yours of the 8th with plan relative to a proposal by the contractors for the South-wall to substitute cut stone in lieu of brick and concrete in the sewer. I note you state, that when they submitted their proposal they said the cost of the outward work per lineal foot would be about the same as the cost of the original design. According to the figures submitted by yourself this is not the case, and I am unwilling to increase the cost of the works by $13,000, and I would only agree to the change on the understanding that it did not increase the cost of the work. I note that the contractors state that the joints will be washed out every time. This I doubt, as there will not be any scouring action in the trench. If the contractors will build the work in stone with no increase on the total cost, I have no objection, otherwise I cannot recommend their offer to the Commissioners. I return the contractors' letter for you to place on file in the office, and you might see them relative to what I have written.

“ Yours faithfully,

“ HENRY F. PERLEY,

“ ST. GEORGE BOSWELL, Esq.,

“ Engineer in charge,

“ Harbour Engineer's Office, Quebec.”

Q. Did the contractors agree to this?—A. Yes, they agreed to build the amended design at the same cost as the brick.

Q. I understand that by this change the Commissioners got a sewer of stone in lieu of a sewer of brick and concrete at the same price?—A. Yes.

Q. Was an application made to you to change the level of the sewer in the South-wall at any time by the contractor?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you report to the Chief Engineer?—A. Yes.

Q. Will you please read to the Committee the correspondence on the subject?

By Mr. Davies:

Q. Is that contemporaneous with the other letter you read?—A. No; it is at a later date altogether.

Q. How much later?—A. It was made on the 8th July.

Q. When was the other?—A. The other was in June—June 14th.

Q. That was the change of material?—A. Yes.

Q. And the July one was for the change of level?—A. Yes. It was another year though—the year 1888. The one was the June 14th, 1887.

Q. That was the change of material?—A. Yes.

Q. Was that sanctioned?—A. Yes.

Q. And nothing was said then at all about the levels?—A. No, nothing. The other was July 8th, 1888.

Q. It would be a year and a month afterwards when the application respecting the letter was made?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you got the application for the change of level?—A. No, it was a verbal request.

Q. By whom?—A. It does not say. I will read you all I can tell you on the subject: "In reply to your telegram of even date I have to report that the contractors for the South-wall have lately made a verbal request to have the grade of the sewer raised."

Q. Have you got the telegram referred to there?—A. Yes, I have got it somewhere.

Q. I want to see it to show the whole of the circumstances under which the change of level was made?—A. It was a verbal request.

Q. From whom?—A. I could not tell you now.

Q. You commenced your report in reply to Mr. Perley, and I would like to see Mr. Perley's telegram?—A. I have not got it here, but I will endeavour to find it. This is the report:

"RE SOUTH WALL.

"HENRY F. PERLEY, Esq.,

"Chief Engineer,

"Department of Public Works.

"SIR,—In reply to your telegram of even date, I have to report that the contractors for the South-wall have lately made a verbal request to have the grade of sewer raised from the west end of the wooden out-fall sewer up to the gas house. They wish to raise the sewer between these two points bodily up about two feet. When they first made the proposition to me I told them that, as far as I knew, the late Mr. Boyd, when getting up the South-wall plans, had consulted with the City Engineer, in order to ascertain from him what elevation the South-wall sewer should have at the gas house end, and in order to permit all the city drainage, now discharging into the River St. Charles above the gas house, being eventually drained into the South-wall sewer; that the elevation of the invert of the South-wall sewer at its western end had accordingly been fixed by the late Mr. Boyd with the above object in view, and that for this, if for no other reason, the sewer could not be raised. The contractors have since then interviewed the City Engineer, and now state that he considers the sewer could be raised two feet and still permit all the city drainage now discharging into the St. Charles being intercepted by it. This being the case, I told them that if they got the above statement from the City Engineer in writing, the matter might then be submitted to you.

"Mr. Murphy tells me that it was with the intention of submitting the matter to you that he either wrote or telegraphed. The contractors' object is of course to avoid the difficulties and delay of working so near low water mark, as at present the tides do not go down. If the sewer was raised the two feet they could begin building at once at the upper and lower ends. As far as the work itself is concerned I don't see any objection, and it certainly would be a great help to them. At the gas house end there would still be about six feet of filling on the top of the sewer. The only objection is that at the upper end the bed for the invert stones would be raised eight and a-half feet above the bottom of the clay trench, so that the sewer in the upper portion would have to be built on stub piles. This will, however, I think, have to be done in any case.

"I have the honour to be, Sir,

"Your obedient servant,

"ST. GEORGE BOSWELL,

"Resident Engineer."

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. You have seen the letters from the City Engineer produced and proved by himself. On receipt of them was it forwarded to Mr. Perley?—A. Yes; I forwarded it to Mr. Perley.

Q. Did you receive any answer from Mr. Perley?—A. In answer I received the following telegram dated 9th July, 1888: "Report received. See the City Engineer on the matter of raising the grade of sewer. If he consents I have no objection, as it will greatly facilitate completion of works."

"H. F. PERLEY."

Then the contractors got a letter from the City Engineer defining what the grade of the sewer would be.

Q. Upon receiving that letter did you permit them to build the sewer at a higher level than was originally intended?—A. Yes.

Q. Will you state whether by permitting them so to do the Harbour Commissioners made a loss or gain?—A. They gained in having the sewer completed sooner than it otherwise would have been, and they saved the additional cost of excavation.

Q. How much should that amount to above the contract price?—A. The total saving in excavation was $3,645.

Q. Now, do I understand you to say that this sum was actually saved to the Commissioners, from the fact that the level of the sewer was raised?—A. Certainly it was; they had much less excavation to pay for.

Q. I would ask you whether by the contract the excavation was paid for by the yard or in a block sum?—A. It was paid by actual measurement so much per yard.

Q. Did it hasten the work, and if so, by how much?—A. I could not say any time, but it certainly hastened the work.

Q. As regards this sewer, was it in the interest of the Commissioners that it was done, or is it a fact that the City drains enter into the basin, and the sewer was built for the purpose of intercepting the drains that entered into the Wet dock?—A. It was for the convenience of the City really.

Q. If the City had no drain there would have been no necessity for the sewer?—A. No, certainly not.

Q. Will you state who it was that prepared the progress estimates for the dredging from 1883 to the end of 1886?—A. Mr. Boyd.

Q. How did Mr. Boyd arrive at the quantities?—A. The Inspectors' books were taken and returns made out by the Assistant Engineers and given to Mr. Boyd, and he made out all these quantities.

Q. Were these progress estimates based upon the depth of the dredging or how did he arrive at the depth of the dredging?—A. He did not arrive at it at all. He allowed just what he thought an average price from the progress estimates.

Q. Who made out the final certificate?—A. Mr. Perley.

Q. Do you know how he made it out?—A. I classified the dredging as well as I could and he paid the contract price according to the quantities in each depth.

Q. Was it difficult to work or was it easy to establish the depth of the dredging as it was going on?—A. No; it was not easy because they were constantly digging in different depths.

Q. Was it laborious work in finally establishing the depth of the dredging?—A. Certainly it was.

Q. That was in the winter of 1886?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you state whether the difficulty that was experienced in carrying out the contract of 1882, and the subsequent contracts of 1886, was one of the reasons why it was raised.

•Mr. DAVIES objected.

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. I will change it then. Can you state one of the reasons why it was thought desirable that an average price should be paid for the dredging at any depth without establishing the actual depth of dredging?—A. I think one reason was that Mr. Perley was paying too much for the dredging and that he was going to get it done cheaper. The difficulty of classifying is that it is always a matter of dispute as to how much is being done at different depths. The whole of the first contract we considered to be unsatisfactory.

Q. Do you know whether, in 1886, any additional sum was paid for placing any part of this material anywhere otherwise than dumping it into the river?—A. Yes. There was a large quantity paid for at 30 cents a yard to be placed on the embankment.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. 30 cents a yard additional, do you mean?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. What was the total quantity paid for at 30 cents a yard additional?—A. 29,942 cubic yards was paid for at 30 cents a yard additional to the dredging rice for being placed on the embankment.

Q. In 1886?—A. Yes; in 1886.

Q. Are you aware from personal knowledge whether at any time after the contract of 1882 was terminated or supposed to be terminated, in 1884, orders were given by the Commissioners for the continuance of the dredging?—A. I have no personal knowledge of that. I know now it was done but at the time I did not know of it.

Q. Can you state whether there were greater difficulties in the dredging of 1887 than in the dredging done under the contract of 1882, and, if so, what were they?—A. I should say that the dredging in 1886–87 was pretty much the same, because the coffer dam was built in 1886, and the entrance was closed. Before that, certainly the entrance was a good deal easier, as before 1886 they had an entrance through the entrance of the work. That was closed in 1886 by the coffer dam.

Q. What time in 1886?—A. I could not tell you. I suppose during the whole of 1886. They began the work in the fall of 1885. I may state in answer to Mr. Davies that I have found the telegram which he asked me for. This is the telegram to which my letter of 8th July, 1888, is the reply:

OTTAWA, July, 1888.

“Murphy wires me that important matters connected with the sewer require him seeing me; ask what this means and let me know.

“HENRY F. PERLEY.”

By Mr. Davies :

Q. That does not appear to be the telegram to which the letter you read was a reply?—A. Yes, sir: “In reply to your telegram of even date (this letter is dated 8th July, 1888) I have to report that the contractors for the South-wall have lately made a verbal request to have the grade of the sewer raised from the west end of the wooden outfall sewer up to gas house. Mr. Murphy tells me that it was with the intention of submitting the matter to you that he either wrote or telegraphed.” That is the letter clearly.

By Mr. German :

Q. You have not got the telegram reported to be sent by Murphy?—A. No; he telegraphed direct to Ottawa. That would be in the Department.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell):

Q. You stated, in reply to Mr. Stuart a few moment ago, that 30 cents a yard was paid for putting dredged material on the embankments?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And subsequently 45 cents was paid?—A. No, no. The 45 cents was in the Cross-wall, but this was not in the Cross-wall. This was in the embankment.

Q. Several witnesses have sworn that it is only worth 4 or 5 cents to put the material dredged from the bottom of the harbour upon the embankment. Will you explain to the Committee how it is that so large a sum was paid?—A. I am not expressing an opinion on the case at all. I am merely stating facts after a price was made on an order from the Harbour Commissioners to Mr. Boyd to make some arrangements with the contractors.

By Mr. Geoffrion:

Q. Did Mr. Perley or you consult the Commissioners before making that alteration in the level of the sewer?—A. No, sir.

Q. It was all done between you and Mr. Perley and Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. That is raising the grade of the sewer? Yes; and the City Engineer.

Q. You say that as far as the Harbour Commissioners were concerned they did not require the drain; it was the City?—A. It was the City that required the drain.

Q. But the Commissioners wanted the wall?—A. They wanted the wall.

Q. And the original plans mentioned a certain depth for that wall?—A. The wall was not interfered with at all by the raising of the sewer. The only part that was raised was the sewer. The wall remained of the same depth. It did not alter the wall at all.

Q. You say that the dredging in 1887 was changed to a uniform price, because it was very hard to ascertain the depths for which different prices were charged?—A. I say I think that was one of the reasons that influenced Mr. Perley in cancelling that contract and to make one of a uniform price.

Q. Is it not a fact that all the dredging below 15 feet, or several of the dredges, were paid extra in 1887, 1888 and 1889?—A. In the Tidal Harbour you mean?

Q. Was not that under the same contract?—A. No; that was a separate arrangement.

By Mr. Tarte:

Q. You state in your report that by raising the sewer it would be a great help to Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. Certainly; that it would hasten the completion of the works and assist the contractors.

Q. How many hours a day were they able to work on account of the tides at the depth that was intended?—A. Sometimes not more than three-quarters of an hour or an hour.

Q. And by raising the sewer they were able to work longer?—A. Certainly.

Q. How much longer a day?—A. I could not say how long, but it made quite a difference. I suppose an hour and a half longer; perhaps 2 hours. With the neap tides before the raising took place they could not work at all with the original grade, but after the raising the neap tide would give them a chance to get in there for perhaps half an hour.

Q. I would like to inquire of you if you knew of the communications which took place between Larkin, Connolly & Co., and the City Engineer?—A. I knew of nothing but the letter which they produced from the City Engineer establishing the grade.

Q. You knew nothing else about it?—A. Nothing whatever.

Q. Did you consult Mr. Baillairgé at the time?—A. I did not.

Q. Did he often come to inspect the works?—A. Never; at least I never saw him there.

Q. He consented to a raising of 2 feet?—A. It was over 2 feet at the upper end. The average was about 2 feet.

Q. You suggested the average of 2 feet?—A. Yes.

Q. What was the real raising?—A. At the intersection of Dalhousie street where the stone first began the sewer was raised  $2\frac{1}{2}$  feet, at the upper end at the gas house it was 3 feet 1 inch.

Q. Were you aware at the time the works were progressing that the raising was so big as that?—A. Certainly. The City Engineer said that if the invert of the sewer was placed at 15 feet below the surface of the street, it would meet all the requirements of the city. Then when I gave them the grade I put it down at  $15\frac{1}{2}$  feet, making it half a foot more to be on the right side.

Q. You said at one part it was more than 3 feet and at other parts  $2\frac{1}{2}$  feet. Is it not a fact that rock excavation has been saved to the contractors by that raising?—A. Certainly.

Q. To what extent?—A. 462 yards of rock were saved, but they were not paid for that.

Q. I know that. At any rate it was the contractors themselves who applied to you to have that changed?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was a benefit to them, as you say?—A. Certainly.

Q. It was a very great benefit?—A. It was. It was a benefit to everybody.

Q. But it was a benefit to them?—A. It was.

Q. About the benefit to the city, I would not be prepared to agree with you, but at any rate we have nothing to do with that now. It was a great saving to the contractors?—A. Yes.

Q. How much did they save?—A. That is a matter of judgment. I never inquired into it at all. I did not form an opinion.

Q. Is it not a fact that they saved between thirty and forty thousand dollars by that raising?—A. I could not tell you at all.

Q. At any rate you admit it was a saving and a large saving?—A. I admit it was a benefit to them; they may have been making a profit on their excavation.

Q. By working longer every day it was a saving to them?—A. It was. I consider it a benefit to them.

Q. Is it not a fact also that the change from brick to stone was a saving? Because it is easier to put stone when you have only a little time to work in?—A. I do not think myself that they could have built a brick sewer.

Q. Who made the plan then?—A. Mr. Boyd.

Q. And you believe that the plans were not properly made?—A. They were properly made, but I do not think he counted upon the water getting in in the way it did, and washing everything to pieces.

Q. At any rate it was a saving to have stone instead of brick?—A. I could not say that, because the real cost according to the contract price was $13,000 more.

Q. At that time had they the stone on the spot when they asked for the change from brick?—A. They had some cut stone.

Q. But had they not the stone there?—A. They had cut stone certainly. But the stone for the South-wall was cut, a great part of it.

Q. What was the total width of the entrance they had to pass through in 1887?—A. The total width was about 190 feet, but on the shore side they could only pass at high water because the bank was 2 feet above high water.

Q. Because the Caisson was built?—A. Yes.

Q. You have told us that Mr. Perley found that Mr. Boyd paid too much for the dredging?—A. No. What I said was that I think what influenced him in making the change of contract was the difficulty of classifying this dredging. There was always room for dispute. The contractors might say there was more done at a lower depth.

Q. Do you think Mr. Boyd paid too much?—A. With the twenty-seven cents and the thirty cents that made fifty-seven cents.

Q. Is it within your knowledge that when the materials were dumped in the river Mr. Boyd took off five cents?—A. Yes.

Q. Was it properly done? I mean by that, do you think that it was a proper reduction; or in other words, is it not a fact that a deduction of five cents for dumping into the river is about the difference of price?—A. I should think the difference would be a little greater if anything.

Q. When did you give the order to allow them to raise the sewer?—A. I gave them the order when they produced the letter from the City Engineer and after I had received a telegram from the Chief Engineer.

Q. Immediately after that?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us if there is any more claim about that South-wall contract before the Commission?—A. No.

Q. Everything is paid?—A. As far I know the final estimate is accepted and the whole thing paid.

Q. Are you in a position to tell me what the cost was?—A. The total cost of the work was $259,518.48. That is the final estimate and that was what the Engineer certified to.

Q. At what date?—A. 30th November, 1890.

By Mr. Henry :

Q. You spoke of the difficulty of ascertaining the amount of dredging done under the different heads of the contract?—A. I did.

Q. Did the rise and fall of the tide have anything to do with that difficulty?—A. I do not think so.

Q. Will you state how the dredges were moved from place to place and held in position while at work?—A. They were held in position by what is known as spuds—four long timber sticks at each corner of the dredge which when put down would anchor the dredge there.

Q. They would have to be lifted?—A. No, they raise them.

Q. Were they put down at each place they were working at?—A. Yes.

Q. There was a certain amount of dredging paid for beyond thirty-five cents per cubic yard after the contract of 1887 was made?—A. There was.

Q. That was nearly all in the tidal harbour?—A. Yes; there was a special arrangement made.

Q. Did the contract of 1887 cover dredging in the Tidal harbour?—A. The contract of 1887 was for anything down to 15 feet.

Q. But the dredging which did not extend to a greater depth than 15 feet was all or principally inside the Wet basin; that was the maximum depth of the Wet basin?—A. Yes.

Q. The dredging in the Tidal harbour was deeper?—A. Yes.

Q. It has never been explained why, although it is fairly obvious, the dredging outside the Wet basin was deeper than inside?—A. The reason is, that in the inner basin they relied upon the tide being retained there giving the depth.

Q. State generally the excess of depth of dredging outside the Tidal harbour, and give the depth of the dredging inside?—A. About 10 feet.

Q. The difference being due to the rise and fall of the tide?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. If all the money that has been spent in the Wet basin had been employed to make a proper dredging to 15 feet below low water, do you think the whole work would be completed to-day?—A. Certainly.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. When was the work of putting the earth upon the embankment at 30 cents per cubic yard done?—A. 1886.

Q. By Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. By Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Q. When was that contract let, and by whom?—A. What contract was that?

Q. The contract for putting this earth on the embankment at 30 cents per cubic yard.—A. I am not very clear about that. It is in the records of the Commissioners' books. Mr. Boyd was directed to make some arrangement with the contractors by which that work could be done. They refused to go on and do it on their contract.

Q. Was it done by the Commissioners?—A. Yes.

Q. Without consulting with the Department?—A. Certainly.

Q. Were tenders advertised for?—A. No. The way was this: The contractors were bound by their contract to put a certain number of yards on the embankment. When they had completed that they refused to go on and put any more there.

Q. Then what was done?—A. Then I say the Commissioners authorized Mr. Boyd to make an arrangement with the contractors by which they would put a certain amount of material on the embankment. That arrangement appears to have been 30 cents.

Q. Any report on it?—A. I can only tell by Mr. Boyd's estimates, appearing with that amount and the instructions from the Commissioners to him to make the arrangement.

Q. You were connected with the work at that time?—A. I was.

Q. Were you asked to make a report as to the value of putting that earth on the embankment?—A. No.

Q. Was Mr. Boyd?—A. Mr. Boyd, I know, did value it.

Q. What value did he put upon it?—A. I cannot tell you.

Q. Have you seen his report?—A. I do not know that he ever made a report. I know he calculated, I know he got Mr. McGreevy to keep the time on the embankment, and to ascertain how many men were employed but what the final result was, I do not know.

Q. You do not know how the Commissioners came to make the contract?—A. No. All I know is, that Mr. Boyd was authorized by the Commissioners to make the best arrangements he could with the contractors. There was no actual contract.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. I don't quite understand about that sewer business. I want to ask a question or two about it. If I understand you rightly, the South-wall—we have not got the plan—was built forming one side of the Wet dock?—A. It was.

Q. By the original contract that South-wall went some feet below what the Wet Dock was to be dredged to?—A. The South-wall, but not the sewer.

Q. The South-wall would go some feet below what the Wet dock would be dredged to?—A. No; not at all. The dredging in the Wet dock was to fifteen feet below low water. The South-wall was never contemplated to go down below low water, or one and a-half feet below low water.

Q. Then I was wrong. The South-wall would not go below the depth to which the Wet dock was to be dredged?—A. Certainly not.

Q. The idea was to go below the average depth of the river?—A. The original intention was to get down to hardish ground where Mr. Boyd thought he was to get to clay. Before the plans were made there were borings made along the side of the street, and thus he found the depth to which clay was. He made the bottom of the wall to suit the general formation of the ground. It had no reference to the dredging in the Wet dock at all.

Q. Had it any reference to the water in the river?—A. The only object was to retain the water, and the moment he got down to what he considered firm ground he did not go any lower.

Q. Did that involve digging up any rock?—A. Certainly.

Q. Much?—A. It only involved digging up rock to get the grade of the sewer. The wall could pass over the top of the rock. We did not excavate the rock for the wall at all; but we excavated it for the sewer.

Q. Was the sewer run through that wall?—A. No, sir. The sewer was perfectly separate, on the City side of the wall. The depth of the wall was never changed and the grade of the sewer never changed.

Q. It remained always the same, and was built on the same foundation that Mr. Boyd originally intended?—A. Certainly.

Q. And the sewer ran on which side?—A. The City side.

Q. How deep was that to go with respect to the original wall?—A. I gave you the grades.

Q. With respect to the foundation of the original wall, how near was that to go down to the sewer?—A. They were perfectly independent of each other. The sewer started at one and a-half feet above low water and ran with a grade of one-tenth of a foot in a hundred.

Q. Was it near the foundation of the wall?—A. It would be within two or three feet, and in some places within a foot; but it kept rising whereas the wall kept on the same.

Q. The only thing this change did was to relieve the contractors from excavating rock?—A. I don't know that it relieved them, as they were prepared for it. They were getting $2 a yard for rock, and were certainly making money out of it.

Q. I ask you if it relieved them from excavating the rock; because if it did not I am going to ask you the meaning of certain language in your report?—A. I can answer that they excavated less rock than they would have done if the sewer had not been raised.

Q. I suppose that when you reported to Mr. Perley that the raising of that level two feet and a half or three feet would be of very great benefit to the contractors, that was what you meant?—A. Did I say that?

Q. "It would be a great benefit to them." Do I understand that referred to the contractors?—A. I said "It would be a great help to the contractors."

Q. Read it please.—A. "As far as the work itself is concerned I do not see any objection; but it certainly would be a great help to them."

Q. What did you mean by that?—A. It would relieve the execution of the work.

Q. Mr. Tarte asked you whether it would be a benefit to them of from $30,000 to $40,000, and you said you had not made a calculation. Are you sufficiently acquainted with the facts to say that it would be half that?—A. I could not say.

Q. As an engineer?—A. As an engineer I would not express my opinion.

Q. Why?—A. I would have to go into some figures and go into the matter carefully.

Q. Can't you say roughly?—A. I would not express an opinion roughly.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Is it not more expensive to excavate in deep ground?—A. There is no question that the raising of the sewer was a benefit to the contractors, as excavating at the lower depth could not have been paying them; but what the saving was I would not begin to say. They may have been making a profit on their excavating all through. I am merely stating what my opinion was.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. You gave a lecture before the society in Montreal in which you discussed this subject. Was it printed?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Could copies of it be laid before this Committee?—A. I suppose there could.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Was that sewer built in a wall?—A. No, Sir, it was not. The sewer was built and the wall was upon one side of it.

Q. Can you state whether the stone and the earth filling constituted a wall for the sewer?—A. No. The sewer was built of masonry. It was filled on the top with earth stuff.

Q. There was no wall there forming the side of it?—A. No, it was perfectly independent.

Q. I have been instructed by those who built that sewer that it was built in the wall itself?—A. Well, they instructed you wrongly. The sewer was built of masonry and there was no masonry used that was not necessary for the construction of the sewer.

Q. You are positive that there was not a wall?—A. You can call any sewer a wall with a hole bored in it.

By Sir John Thompson :

Q. It is not the wall of the works ?—A. No, sir. The masonry was only used for the purpose of building the sewer. No wall was put there that was not necessary for this purpose.

Q. Was the raising of the sewer beneficial to the Commissioners ?—A. Yes ; it saved the Commissioners, as I have already stated, $3,645 in obviating the necessity for excavation of rock and earth.

Q. And it answered the purpose of the Harbour Commissioners as well ?—A. Certainly, it had nothing really to do with the Harbour, except to take away the sewer which was running into the Wet dock.

The Committee then adjourned till 4 o'clock p.m.

TUESDAY, 11th August, 4 p.m.

MR. H. J. CHALONER re-called.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Did you prepare the statement from the books which you were required to prepare, to wit: Showing the way in which the $84,000, referred to in your examination-in-chief, were paid out or used by Thomas McGreevy ?—A. Yes, I made the statement.

Q. This is the statement you made out from the books of Thomas McGreevy ?—A. Yes.

Q. It purports to be payments included between the 8th May, 1884 and the 30th June, 1884 ?—A. Yes.

Q. Read it please.—A. It reads as follows :

H. J. CHALONER.

OTTAWA, Aug. 11, '91.

Q. Do you know whether these different cheques were given with the consent or by the order of Thomas McGreevy?—A. Yes; he is satisfied that the amount was spent.

Q. Was he aware of these different payments about the time they were made?—A. Of course.

Q. And he agreed to them?—A. Yes; either he or his brother signed the cheques. The money is gone, at any rate. Proscription is up now any way. They could not call me to account.

Q. Were these chèques signed by Thomas McGreevy or you?—A. Robert, I presume.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. They were paid out by you on Thomas McGreevy's order?—A. No.

Q. They were drawn by Robert McGreevy on money he had in Ottawa?—A. Yes, under instruction from his brother.

Q. And generally the money would be handed to you or cheques to pay the money?—A. Some. I have knowledge that the different payments were made. The other cheques charged in July, I do not know anything about them.

Q. Did you have in your possession at any time the two notes which were discounted by Hon. John Hearn?—A. No.

Q. Never saw them?—A. I do not think I did.

Q. Did you have in your possession the $5,000 note that was discounted by Mr. Thomson?—A. I think I had it in the bank, but I cannot tell who gave it to me. I have been trying to do so all along, but I cannot tell. I got the money from Andrew Thomson.

Q. You cannot remember whether you had the note in your possession?—A. I must have had it to hand it to Andrew Thomson.

Q. From whom did you receive it?—A. That is what I told you I could not remember.

Q. When you went to Mr. Thomson to discount that note, did you go there by order or under instruction from either of the McGreevys?—A. Since coming to Ottawa I read Robert McGreevy's evidence, and if I had not seen it I would not have known as much about it. He tells me that I went there and told him his brother had not spoken about it at all. I know there was some trouble about the note, but I cannot remember. It is quite possible what he says, but I do not remember.

Q. You cannot say upon whose instruction you took the note and went to Mr. Thomson, if you did go?—A. No.

Q. You cannot say what conversation you had with Mr. Thomson when you came with the note?—A. I think he complained about it being late in the month, and I think I kept the money over until the first of the month. I think I marked the receipt the 1st of August, and I had the money on the 30th or 31st. I did not pay the judgment until the 1st.

Q. After the judgment of McCarron and Cameron was paid, did you credit Robert McGreevy with the amount of that payment?—No, sir.

Q. You did not treat this payment as having been made by Robert for his brother?—A. When I acted under instruction, I treated it as Thomas's.

Q. As far as entries made by you are concerned they go to the same effect as if judgment had been paid with Thomas McGreevy's money?—A. Yes, it is simply this, I put the note for my own satisfaction where the money came from.

Q. But as far as the money coming from it is equivalent to a payment made by Thomas McGreevy?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you pay the judgment in one or several instalments?—A. In one instalment.

Q. You are sure it was made in one payment?—A. The receipts are in one payment, sir.

Q. Will not the books show two payments?—A. No. The books will shew one payment. I may tell you that when I paid the judgment I deducted a $1,000 for costs, and then the costs only amounted to $750. I paid the balance afterwards—some $350 to the same people.

Q. The lawyers?—A. I suppose so.

Q. Did you credit R. H. McGreevy with $2,500 that appears to have come from Murphy?—A. No, it is all one account.

By Mr. Kirkpatrick :

Q. Has Mr. McGreevy any knowledge of the entries in the books?—A. No, he never saw my books.

Mr. LOUIS COSTE sworn.

By Mr. Fitzpatrick :

Q. You are in the employ of the Public Works Department at the present time?—A. Yes.

Q. And you have been employed in that Department for many years?—A. Yes : since 1883.

Q. Do you remember in the winter of 1883 that plans were prepared in the Public Works Department for the construction of the Cross-wall at Quebec?—A. Yes. Mr. Boyd prepared those plans.

Q. Have you seen those plans recently?—A. Yes, I saw them the other day.

Q. When did you see them?—A. I saw them on Saturday last.

Q. Those were the plans which you saw on Saturday last, which had been used for the Engineers' Report?—A. I believe so.

Q. And are the official plans used by the Department for the work in connection with the Cross-wall?—A. I should say no, from my knowledge of Departmental matters.

Q. What are your reasons?—A. All plans prepared by the Chief Engineer of Public Works are sent to the Council and generally signed by himself, that is by Mr. Perley.

Q. That is your only reason?—A. Nothing further, generally these plans are sent back to the Department, after having been submitted for the approval of the Privy Council, with the Order in Council to which they refer.

Q. Did you see whether or not these plans to which I have referred, bear the signature of the Chief Engineer or the stamp of the Department?—A. As far as I know they dont bear any stamps or signatures at all.

Q. What did these plans appear to be, as far as your knowledge of them goes?—A. I should say they are Mr. Boyd's working plans.

Q. Will you look at the letter now produced which purports to be written by Mr. Ennis, dated Ottawa 23rd March, 1883, and addressed to A. H. Verret, Secretary to the Harbour Commissioners, Quebec?

(Exhibit "Z16.")

"OTTAWA, 23rd March, 1883.

"SIR,—I am directed by the Honorable the Minister to enclose herewith plans and specifications, etc., for the proposed Cross-wall necessary to render available as a Wet dock, the dock constructed by the Harbour Commissioners at Quebec, at the mouth of the River St. Charles and to ask the expression of the opinion of your Board in the matter.

“ I have the honour to be, Sir

“ Your obedient servant,

“ F. H. ENNIS.

“ Secretary.

“ A. H. VERRET, Esq.,

“ Secretary Board of Harbour Commissioners,

“ Quebec.”

Q. Will you state whether you have any knowledge of the plans referred to in this letter?—A. No, sir, I have no knowledge of these plans.

Q. Can you say whether or not they are the plans which you have referred to—from which quantities were taken by the Engineer, Mr. Jennings—whether they are the same plans that were referred to in that letter?—A. I believe not.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Did you give some orders to Mr. Laforce Langevin to enquire into the conduct of Captain Bernier of Quebec?—A. No, sir.

Q. You never gave any orders?—A. No, I made the enquiry myself.

Q. On whose complaint?—A. I made the enquiry on a complaint made by one of the foremen on the Dock.

Q. Who was the foreman?—A. The foreman's name was Labbé.

Q. Did any correspondence take place about that?—A. Yes, I was told by Mr. Laforce Langevin, who was in charge of the work at Lévis that very crooked things were going on at the Dock. While I was there making an examination of the work, I telegraphed to the Department asking power to investigate, and having received such power, I made my investigation independent altogether of Mr. Laforce Langevin.

Q. From whom did you get your powers?—A. I got powers from the Department.

Q. From whom in the Department?—A. It was a letter addressed to me by the secretary, as far as I remember.

Q. To whom did you telegraph for instruction?—A. Chief Engineer of Public Works.

Q. If I understand you rightly, you have just told us you did ask Laforce Langevin to be employed at the Lévis Graving Dock. Did you say that?—A. I did.

Q. When did you employ him?—A. When the question of having an Engineer in charge of these works was broached by Sir Hector himself. I asked that Mr. Laforce Langevin should be appointed as the Engineer in Charge, because he had perfect knowledge of that work. He was the only one of our Engineers around Quebec who had a knowledge of that work, and I insisted that he was the best man for that place. In doing so I went directly against the wishes of the Minister and of the Deputy Minister; but I carried my point. I think he was the best man. He was the only man who had an intimate knowledge of that Dock.

Q. Did he ever work before on that Dock to your knowledge, and when?—A. I was told he was an assistant.

Q. What you were told is not evidence. Did Mr. Laforce Langevin, to your personal knowledge work on that Dock before?—A. To my personal knowledge, as far as what I heard goes.

Q. Not what you heard. To your own knowledge?—A. I cannot say he did. I never saw him there; but I was told that he worked there as assistant to Mr. Boswell.

Q. You were told by whom?—A. Mr. Perley himself.

Q. When did he work there under Mr. Boswell?—A. I presume during the construction of the Lévis Graving Dock.

Q. You did not know anything about it?—A. No; I was not in the Department at the time.

Q. Of what did you give him charge?—A. Charge of the repairs and construction of a fence.

Q. What repairs were then going on?—A. The question of putting a girder under the main engine, repairs to the roof, construction of a coal shed and various little repairs.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. When was he appointed to this work?—A. I forget exactly the month.

Q. What year?—A. That would be in 1890—during the absence of Mr. Perley in England.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You say you enquired yourself about the charges made against Captain Bernier?—A. Yes.

Q. By whom were you charged to make that enquiry?—A. I was charged to make the enquiry by the order of the Department, on a letter addressed to me by the Secretary of the Department.

Q. Have you that letter with you?—A. No, sir.

Q. Will you produce that letter?—A. I can.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. You say you urged upon somebody the appointment of Mr. Laforce Langevin to this work?—A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Who did you urge his appointment upon?—A. When the question was broached in the Minister's room, the Minister and Deputy Minister were against Laforce Langevin being employed; but I insisted that he should be, because he was the best man and, as I understood, had been employed on that Dock.

Q. It was upon the Minister and Chief Engineer you urged the appointment?—A. I was acting Chief Engineer then.

Q. In the Department?—A. Yes.

Q. Upon whom then did you urge the appointment?—A. Upon the Minister and Deputy Minister.

Q. You did for the reason that you have mentioned?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. That he had a special knowledge of this location?—A. That he was the only man who had ever been engaged upon the Dock that could act for us.

Q. When was he first appointed?—A. On that work?

Q. No, on the Harbour works?—A. I cannot tell.

Q. When was he engaged on this work by which he acquired this special knowledge?—A. I should say, 1884 or 1885.

Q. In what capacity was he employed?—A. As the assistant of Mr. Boswell.

Q. What work was it that Mr. Boswell was engaged in at that time?—A. I think he was Resident Engineer of that Dock.

Q. What was the work that was to be performed that required this previous special preparation?—A. It was specially the building of a fence around the property.

Q. And it required a previous knowledge to supervise the spreading of the earth. Was it that which qualified this man specially?—A. We wanted a man who knew the property.

Q. What do you mean by that?—A. Knowing the bounds of the property.

Q. Were not the bounds of the property known generally? What other property is contiguous to this property?—A. I cannot tell.

Q. Do you know who made a plan of this property and marked the limits on that plan?—A. No; I do not.

Q. Was it Mr. Boswell?—A. I think it was.

Q. Are you sure about that?—A. No; I am not.

Q. Was Mr. Laforce Langevin engaged in that work?—A. I do not think he was.

Q. What was the special knowledge he required?—A. He had been already employed on the Dock and knew every corner of it, I understood.

Q. But you have not told us when he was employed there or for what length of time? A. I have told Mr. Tarte that I thought it was in 1884 or 1885.

Q. At the time when you recommended Mr. Laforce Langevin was he employed there then? A. He was then assistant on the Harbour Works at Quebec.

Q. And did you recommend his removal from that office?—A. No, I did not.

Q. To look after the building of a fence?—A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you think that the work you recommended him to was consistent with the work in which he was engaged?—A. Yes.

Q. And that he could discharge the two duties at the same time?—A. Yes.

Q. Although far apart from each other?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you swear to that?—A. I do indeed.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. What was the extent of the work he had to superintend at Lévis?—A. I suppose that it meant the expenditure of some $4,000 or $5,000, in repairs.

Q. But he was to be superintendent of the fence? That having given the location of the fence, ought he to be there all the time?—A. No; he had to visit every day or several times a day.

Q. It would not take him much out of his work at the Harbour Improvements? A. A few hours would do it. Two or three hours in the morning and two or three at night.

Q. Don't you exaggerate? That is a good deal of time?—A. Not for an engineer.

Q. Then he must have had a good deal to do at the Quebec Harbour Improvements to spare six hours a day. Why did you urge him if you did not know anything about him?—A. I said he was a good man for the purpose.

Q. What purpose?—A. The only other man who could do the work was Mr. Boswell, and I understood he was employed at the Harbour Works; but Mr. Langevin having been on the work before was qualified to take charge of that work then.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. Was there not a plan prepared for that work before the appointment was made at all? Wasn't there a plan showing what the public property was?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Couldn't another engineer follow that plan as well as Mr. Langevin?—A. I suppose for the fence he could. On the other repairs, having been already employed, I thought he was the best man. Moreover, we had no other Engineer we could employ. All our other Engineers at Quebec were employed on the other works.

Q. It was not because he was the best man, but because he was the only available man?—A. I said he was the best man for our purpose.

Q. But when you had simply a plan which any intelligent man could follow?—A. There were a lot of questions of repairs in addition to the fence. Anyone on our staff could have done it.

Q. Could not a foreman who had once been pointed out where the fence was to go, have done it? Did it require an engineer?—A. I believe it required the services of an engineer to give the lines of the fence and to see that the work would be properly carried out.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. What is the length of this fence?—A. It goes all around the property.

Q. Is it a work that any competent man could mark out in half a day?—A. Yes, or less.

Q. And yet you testified that it required this man for a whole summer for several hours morning and evening?—A. I do not recollect how long he was employed, but he was employed as long as the work lasted to see that it was done properly. It has always been the practice of the Department of Public Works to appoint engineers to look after the works.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. How long has Labbé been employed there?—A. I do not know when he was appointed. I think he must have been appointed at the beginning of the work.

Q. Did he remain there until the end of the work?—A. I do not know.

Q. Have you got a copy of the enquiry or rather of the evidence taken in the enquiry in Captain Bernier's case?—A. No evidence was taken.

Q. Nor any notes made of it?—A. No. No evidence was taken by myself in writing.

Q. There was no written evidence you say.—A. No it was all verbal.

Q. How long did the enquiry last?—A. Seven or eight days.

Q. If there was no written evidence was there a written report?—A. Yes, I made the report.

Q. You did not take any evidence in writing and yet the man was dismissed?—A. No, the man resigned his position.

Q. Did you not ask him to resign?—A. I pointed out to him that certain things were going against him. Mr. Bernier himself made admissions to me which left me no other course than to report him to the Department.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You say that from what you saw of the plans they are not the original ones and you give us as your reason the fact that they do not bear the stamp of the Department, but are you aware that Mr. Perley was not acting as Chief Engineer to the Public Works Department, but as Chief Engineer to the Harbour Commissioners.

Counsel objected.

Q. Are you aware of that?—A. No; I am not aware of it. I was not aware of that fact at all.

Q. Are you aware that Mr. Perley at that date had two capacities in which he acted—that of Chief Engineer to the Public Works Department, and of Chief Engineer to the Quebec Harbour Commissioners?—A. I do not know anything at all about it.

Counsel objected.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Do you know whether these plans formed part of the work of the Public Works Department or of the Harbour Commissioners' office at Quebec?—A. I was under the impression they belonged to the Harbour Commissioners; they were made in the Harbour Commissioners' office by Mr. Boyd.

Q. Would not they fall under the rule of the plans of the Public Works Department, which required to be certified and approved of by the Chief Engineer of that Department?—A. If they had been approved by the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department they would bear his signature.

Q. I want to know whether these plans, if prepared in the Department of Public Works, would be filed in the Department or in the Harbour Commissioners' works?—A. I do not quite understand your question.

Q. Would these plans, forming part of the documents produced, be found in the Public Works Department here or among the papers and documents filed with the Harbour Commissioners at Quebec?—A. The work as I understand it was carried out by the Harbour Works Commissioners, and therefore those plans would be sent by the Department of Public Works to the Harbour Commissioners at Quebec, after they had been approved even if made in the Department of Public Works. The reason I stated why in my belief these plans, on which the Engineers have calculated their quantities, are not the original plans is that in November or December, 1883, I saw Mr. Boyd then completing the very plans that I saw here the other day. They were in pencil and I concluded that the originals must have been tracings made from these plans. I took a special interest in them because they were the most important works being done when I joined the department.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Have you any other plans than those produced here?—A. No, sir.

Q. If there are any, where could they be?—A. I do not know.

Q. Are you quite sure that in the Public Works Department there are no other plans for the Cross-wall than those we have here?—A. I have made a special search to find what I thought would be the original plans. We found no other plans relating to the Cross-wall.

Q. Did you see all the plans made by the Department of Public Works?—A. I have seen them now.

Q. Do you swear that all of them are approved by Council?—A. I have stated that all plans submitted to Council bear the stamp. That is what I stated.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. Did you ever see any other plans than those for the Cross-wall which you have here?—A. I have seen tracings made by Mr. Boyd.

Q. Of other plans?—A. Of these same plans.

Q. Did you ever see any plans that may be regarded as the original plans and finished in the way you speak of?—No, sir, never.

Q. And you found no others in the Department?—A. No, sir.

The Committee then adjourned.

---

HOUSE OF COMMONS,

WEDNESDAY, 12th August, 1891.

The Committee met at 10.30 a.m. ; Mr. Girouard in the Chair.

Investigation into certain circumstances and statements made in connection with the tenders and contracts respecting the Quebec Harbour Works, &c., resumed.

THE CHAIRMAN stated that in accordance with the Resolution adopted at yesterday's sitting, he had, in company with Mr. Tarte and Messrs. Stuart and Geoffrion, gone to Hon. Mr. Robitaille's room in the Senate and taken his evidence under oath. The evidence is as follows :

HON. THEODORE ROBITAILLE SWORN.

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. Did you at any time see Mr. Robert McGreevy on the subject of a statement that was afterwards published in Le Canadien ; if so, can you state when and what was the purport of the conversation that passed between you?—A. Mr. Robert McGreevy came to see me in my room here. It was at the beginning of last session a year ago last winter, I think. After a good deal of casual conversation he brought up the object of his visit. He told me that he had had some difficulties with his brother, and that amongst them was a lawsuit which was still going on, and that he had in his possession documents which he was anxious to communicate to the Government. He asked me—may be it was before this time that he asked me—if I was on good terms with the Government? I told him I thought I was as usual, and he asked me if I was also on good terms with Sir Hector Langevin? I told him I was as usual—as far as I knew, I was. He said he had documents in his possession which he wanted to communicate to them, and he asked me if I would take the matter in hand and bring it before them. I told him the first thing would be to know what the documents were, and so he took out of his pocket several sheets of paper, type-written. He read a portion of it and then gave me the papers to read. I first of all asked him if he had given the matter every consideration; that he must see himself it was a very serious thing he was bringing on; that he was the father of a large family, especially of boys, who had, of course, to look for a living and that it was a serious thing for him to undertake. He replied that he had thought the matter over very seriously and that he had determined the thing should go on; that he and Murphy had made up their minds that the thing would go on. Then I said, "have you any other documents to establish the facts which you assert in this declaration?" He said "Oh yes, we have got other documents to prove everything there." Well, I said, if you are anxious for it, I have no objections to take these papers and to communicate them, "but first of all" I remarked, "do you desire me to communicate these papers to your brother Thomas?" He said "no, it is perfectly useless; he wont listen to anybody. The only thing is to have them before the Government." Then, I said, the only member of the Government I would feel disposed to put them before, is Sir Hector Langevin, as his name is mentioned there. He said, "that is what I wish you to do." There was something more in the conversation, but I forget what it was just now. I remember I said to him, "What is it that you want? Do you desire that the lawsuit on the part of your brother should be abandoned?" He said "no, I do not care anything about that." Then I asked him again, "what is it that you want; is it money you want?"—"No, it is not money I want." "Well, what is it?" He said, "we want him to resign his seat in the House of Commons, and his seat at the Board of the Quebec Harbour Commissioners; that is what we want him to do." I asked "what is your object in that?" "Our object in that," he replied, "is that so long as he is there we will never be able to get a contract from the Government, and he must go out of that." "Well," I said, "supposing it is in this way, you are asking a thing from the Government which they have no power to do. It may be that the Government has the power to put him off the Board of Harbour Commissioners; but, supposing that was done, the next thing is as to his seat in the House of Commons. Even if the Government persuaded him to resign his seat in the House, and he did resign, there is nothing to prevent him the next moment from presenting himself in the same constituency, and he would be returned." Robert McGreevy thereupon said, "no; he would not be returned. We would check him there and prevent him being returned." After our conversation I said to him, "well, if you are perfectly determined, I have no objection to do that which you ask me." I thereupon took the papers and communicated them to Sir Hector Langevin, to Mr. Thomas McGreevy and to Sir John Macdonald. That is all I remember just now.

Q. Did you have a subsequent interview with him when you returned him these papers?—A. Yes. He came for the papers.

Q. Do you remember how long after?—A. I cannot say exactly. Perhaps a fortnight after.

Q. Do you recollect the purport of the conversation that occurred then?—A. There was nothing very particular, only that I could not give him the answer he would have liked. He would have liked the answer to be that the Government would take the matter in hand and do what he wanted should be done. The answer I had to give him was simply that his brother had foreseen these things and had expressed himself in such a way to the members of the Government that, as I have clearly seen, they were not prepared to take the matter in hand. That is the purport of it.

Q. Do you recollect whether at the time of the first conversation, which you have just related, Robert McGreevy expressed any wish that he himself should be named in place of his brother as Harbour Commissioner?—A. No, sir.

Q. You have no recollection, or he did not so express himself?—A. No, sir; he did not.

Q. Did he express any intention of being himself a candidate for the seat in the House of Commons, which he proposed his brother should vacate?—A. No, sir. He said they could check-mate him, however, and prevent him from being elected. He was quite full of that, but I thought it was quite the other way.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. I want to know from you whether you have any recollection when a certain agreement between Armstrong, contractor for the Baie des Chaleurs Railway, and Robert McGreevy, in which agreement I believe you, as President of the Company, were a party, was signed here in these buildings?—A. First of all, if you will permit me, you assert a thing in your question, which, if you will allow me to say so, is not correct.

Q. I speak from the evidence which has been given?—A. I do not know what evidence has been given, but I never signed that document. First of all, there was such a document I understand between Armstrong and Robert McGreevy by which McGreevy was to transfer to Armstrong his shares and interest in the Baie des Chaleurs Railway for the sum of $50,000 in cash, and $25,000 in bonds, payable by instalment. This agreement between them took place apart from me altogether. I was no party to it, and the company was not a party to it. I have been thinking the matter over seriously for some time past, and now that you put the question to me I am not positive that I have signed that document. I could not swear that I did sign it, and I would not like to swear I did not sign it. However, there is one thing very certain that I never did sign the document as President of the Company; that if I did sign it, it must have been only as a witness and nothing else.

Q. You are satisfied that the company represented by you and Mr. Riopel were not parties to this agreement for the purpose of carrying it out, or assuming any obligations?—A. I am satisfied of this, that I felt at the time the agreement took place, that it was our duty to see that the agreement was carried out, and that it was in the interest of everybody to see it carried out, as we were bound to protect the contractor in every shape that was reasonable for us to do.

Q. Were you present when the document was signed?—A. I do not remember to have seen the document. I know there was such a document but I am not positive that I ever saw it. I saw in the evidence the other day that Robert McGreevy stated his recollection was that the document was to be left in the hands of Mr. Riopel or into my hands. It was never in my hands in the world.

Q. He said it was either with Mr. Riopel or Mr. L. A. Robitaille?—A. It was never left with the company; I am positive.

Q. He thinks also you were there and signed it?—A. It may be. I have been thinking the matter over, and after Mr. Riopel had given his evidence before the Committee, he came down to see me and mentioned something of the kind. I said to him: "Riopel, I cannot remember having seen that document.

Q. You do not know where the document is?—A. I never knew.

Q. First of all you never knew where it was, then, and have never seen it since?—A. No; I never heard what became of it. Naturally, as it was a document that concerned Robert McGreevy particularly, more so than it did Armstrong, I certainly thought that Robert McGreevy would keep the document.

Q. I thought it was filed with the Secretary of the company?—A. Never. The company was not a party to the transaction. We never recognized it in any way except to see that things were getting on smoothly, and that Armstrong was protected.

Q. I will tell you how the company might have been a party to it. It is stated, and I believe it is now in evidence, that Thomas McGreevy not only transferred the shares that were in his name, but that he also transferred his claims against the company for work done on the railway?—A. But it was Robert McGreevy that did the work.

Q. It seems to me, however, that as there were claims against the company outstanding, the company should have secured a copy?—A. The contractor, Armstrong, was taking a contract from this company for a certain sum of money to be paid in certain ways as the contract established. We did not refer in the contract with Armstrong to the work that was done on the road, nor to McGreevy's work, nor to anybody else's work. We gave it to him as it stood, and if there had been $50,000 worth of work on the road, he had the right to be paid, and it was for him to buy that $50,000 worth for what sum he chose.

Q. But he bought Robert McGreevy's claim against the company, as the company was a debtor of Robert McGreevy, surely the company was entitled to have a copy of the agreement?—A. I am quite certain the company never got it. I might explain to you that this thing was done very rapidly.

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. Does your memory permit you to say whether Thomas McGreevy was a party to the agreement, or Robert McGreevy only?—A. I could not say.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. How is it that if you had no interest in that agreement you have been able to give orders for payments?—A. That does look strange I must say, but at the same time if you look at the agreement that took place between the contractors and Mr. Burland, and which I think has been published, I think you will find there how the thing occurred. There seemed to have been some understanding between them that certain moneys were to be paid to Robert McGreevy on instructions being given to the bank by Mr. Robitaille, the President of the Company. But that did not bind me in any way.

Q. By whom then were you asked to give these orders for payments to be made?—A. By Robert McGreevy himself. He came to me and said: "Mr. Noel of the Quebec Bank, wishes, in order that I may get my $8,000, to have a letter from you ordering him to pay it." I said I have no objection to that, but I said I did not know what sort of letter he wanted. I do not know very much of affairs of this kind, perhaps he had better write it down himself or dictate it to you. So the letter was written; it was brought to me and I signed it.

Q. But there were payments direct to the Hon. Thomas McGreevy himself by Mr. Noel?—A. Not to my knowledge. Not by my instructions.

Q. Did you have any conversation or discussion with the Hon. Thomas McGreevy about the Baie des Chaleurs Railway during the years 1885-86?—A. About the present point?

Q. Did you have some difficulty or difference of opinion with the Hon. Thomas McGreevy on the Baie des Chaleurs matter?—A. Oh, yes; there was a rumpus about it.

Q. As a matter of fact was there not a pretty big row?—A. Oh, yes; pretty big.

Q. What is the cause of that difficulty between you?—A. It is very plain. We had come to the point of giving out the contract. I need not tell you that we had worked pretty hard up to that time. I had done all I could to persuade Thomas McGreevy to take the matter in hand; in fact I wanted him to help us, not with this money but with his brains, with his ability, with his knowledge and experience in all these things. That is why I wanted him to help us along. Finally we got in the different tenders, and there was a meeting held for the purpose of awarding the tenders. Robert McGreevy put in a tender which was so exorbitant that it was quite impossible for us, or any other company, to have accepted it, and there and then I made up my mind that no such tender would be accepted because if we did accept, I saw very well we would never be able to build the road. That was quite clear. It was from that the trouble arose.

Q. Then Thomas McGreevy wanted his brother Robert's tender accepted?—A. He never spoke to me about that.

Q. What was the cause of the difficulty then?—A. No doubt it was that; there was nothing else in the world.

Q. We have got in evidence that there was difficulty between the company and him. As a matter of fact you know it was because you would not accept Robert McGreevy's tender that the difficulty occurred between you?—A. There is no doubt about that.

Q. Did Thomas McGreevy mention any sum of money that he wanted to come out of the company?—A. He never spoke to me about getting it. I do not suppose I saw him after that. The only thing I saw after that was a man from Quebec there—a notary that came to me named Austin.

Q. The only thing that you know is that Thomas McGreevy wanted Robert McGreevy's tender accepted, and you could not accept it?—A. We could not accept it; that is certain.

Q. Do you remember what were the conditions laid down by Robert McGreevy in his tender?—A. I will tell you plainly what they meant. They meant this—transfer everything over to us, take up your hats and clear out. It vexes me; it was a most exacting document.

Q. You would not agree to that proposal?—A. I did not. Indeed I would rather have seen the whole thing go to the dogs before letting it go in that way.

By the Chairman :

Q. Why did you not consent to it?—A. I considered that the proposition was not a reasonable one. It was most unreasonable in every way. I was not prepared to submit to it.

Q. Was not the construction of the road to be secured in that way?—A. No, you could not have built the road, because one of the conditions, after getting the subsidies, the power to bond the road, right of way that we had secured from municipalities, every power that we had, in fact our whole charter, was that he should receive so much per mile.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Did he want the bonds too?—A. Yes, he wanted the bonds.

By the Chairman :

Q. And you considered the construction of the road was not sure?—A. No. One of the conditions which he asked for, was in these words: "that ample time should be given to him for building the road."

Q. There was to be no limitation as to time?—A. No, and in the meantime we were to remain as a company and he was to be entitled to get all the subsidies we were to receive from the different Governments. He wanted to keep us as a company in name, but he wanted to suck every subsidy we had. It was practically taking up our hats and clearing out.

Q. You had no interest in the matter except to secure the construction of the road?—A. My interest from the start was a feeling of gratitude which I owed to the people of the counties of Bonaventure and Gaspé.

Q. Which you had represented for a long time?—A. Yes. I went down to Baie des Chaleurs in 1857—in the spring of that year. I was ordered to go down there by Dr. Landry, of Quebec, who was my professor at Laval University. I was very sick at the time, in fact completely used up by overwork from studying medicine, dissecting, &c., during the preceding winter. My studies were nearly over, and the doctor said to me that I had better go down to Baie des Chaleurs and recruit. Accordingly I went down in a sailing vessel in the spring of 1857. It took us eight days to go there. I had a good time there as they are a fine, hospitable people. I stayed there. In 1861, the general election took place and I was induced to present myself as a candidate and was elected by over 300 majority. The first session that I came up to Quebec, I had to travel in the winter time—drive along the whole of the north of New Brunswick as far as Shediac, from there to go by rail to St. John, then on sleighs from St. John to Fredericton, from Fredericton to Grand Falls and from Grand Falls to Témiscouata and Rivière du Loup, where I got the Grand Trunk Railway. It was a most fatiguing journey in every way. That was in the winter of 1861-62. Well, the next winter, 1862-63, I thought to myself, I will take a shorter drive, and I took the Metapedia road; a road which had just been built at the foot of the mountains for horses. I had 100 miles to walk on snowshoes, but I thought I would try it. I walked those 100 miles in three days. The mail in those days was then carried by dogs on sleighs and a man on snowshoes, once a week. That is the way we had to travel thirty years ago. The year following, in 1863, we had an election under Sandfield Macdonald. I was elected again by the same people. In 1867, the general elections came on and I was elected for this House. In 1871, I came out for the Local Legislature and was elected. In 1872, I ran for the Federal Parliament and was elected. In 1873, I was elected unanimously as Receiver General of the Dominion, and I think it was in 1874, when Mr. Mackenzie had his election, that I was elected again, and in 1873 I was re-elected. I mention these things to show what my motives were in moving in this Baie des Chaleurs railway matter. Well, after going through such an amount of misery and knowing the people as I knew them I made up my mind that this people should be disinherited no longer if I could help it. Accordingly in 1872, I asked for a charter for a railway. I was at the time, the laughing stock not only of the members of the House, but of the members of the Government themselves—Hon. Mr. Chauveau was at the head of the Government at that time. Even a good number in my own county, laughed at the idea of a railway. After the charter had been obtained I asked for a subsidy and it was said, "oh, give it to him; it will never be required. That is the way in which the subsidy was started in Quebec." I went on, however, and did all I could, but I could not get people to join me; they were afraid to assume any liabilities and that is the reason why finally I had to get some members of my family to join me. A good deal has been said about that, but the reason is plain. No one else would join me. No one was prepared to assist me in carrying the undertaking out, or incur any liabilities. Of course every body in the county was in favor of the road, but in any question that you may bring up there are always two parties and in this question it was not the political parties which were the obstacles as much as the interested parties. I did everything I could to get people to join me but without success and finally I was compelled to associate members of my family with me. We had surveys made over 180 miles of road; in fact we had three surveys made, some of them 5 or 6 times in different localities where it was very difficult. These things of course were very expensive to me personally and to those who were associated with me in the matter. The winter of 1874-75 I spent in Montreal, and I opened an office there on the corner of St. James Street and Place d'Armes hill, on the second floor of the building. I rented the second floor and had engineers working there all winter making plans and preparing things. Well, we had meetings and I persuaded amongst others, my friend, Alex. Ogilvie, as good hearted a soul as ever walked, to become one of the directors of the company, and he did. We had several meetings and at the last meeting every expenditure and account there was against the company was brought there and audited and after it had been audited it was accepted and passed by the Board.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. How did Mr. Thomas McGreevy come into the company with you?—A. What I have been speaking of was done under the charter of 1871. Well, that charter lapsed. We could not raise the funds. People had not heard of the Baie des Chaleurs Railway long enough yet, and you could not talk to anyone about it. In 1882, we got another charter, but I do not think I was amongst the incorporators as I was Lieutenant Governor at the time. It was then that Thomas McGreevy joined the company.

Q. Did Mr. McGreevy ever tell you, or anybody else to your knowledge, that he wanted to be relieved of his shares without receiving anything for them?—A. I do not remember that. I do not think such a thing took place.

By the Chairman :

Q. Do you know whether that agreement which you refer to, whereby Robert McGreevy was to receive $50,000 in cash, was ever carried out?—A. Oh, yes; he got $10,000 cash at first, I understand, and then four payments of $8,000 each.

Q. Do you know from whom that money came?—A. Armstrong was the man who provided the money.

Q. Do you know where Armstrong got the money?—A. I cannot tell you that

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Can you give us the date that Mr. Thomas McGreevy transferred his shares to his brother Robert?—A. I do not know anything about that.

This concluded Mr. Robitaille's examination.

MR. STUART.—Mr. Chairman, I beg leave to file the following letters, and request that they be printed, viz. :

“ ENGINEER'S OFFICE,
“ QUEBEC, 29th June, 1886.

(Exhibit “ A17.”)
“ A. H. VERRET, Esq.,
“ Secretary-Treasurer, Harbour Commissioners,
“ Quebec.

“ SIR,—As the season is fast passing away and there is a great deal of dredging to be done in the part of the Basin west of the Cross-wall, I beg to suggest for the consideration of the Commissioners whether it would not be advisable to make arrangements with the contractors to go on with part of it at once.

“ No matter which of the schemes proposed for the closing of the south side is adopted, a sufficient space to enable a steamer to turn inside the Cross-wall will be needed. This will necessitate the removal of some 250,000 cubic yards of material, which, at the average rate of 45,000 cubic yards per month, will be more than can be taken out by both dredges between this time and the end of the season.

“ If Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. are willing to go on at their present prices, a good deal of valuable time will be saved by allowing them to do so.

“ While on this subject, I may perhaps be permitted to say also that it appears to me most desirable that some decision should be come to as soon as possible respecting the works necessary for the completion of the dock.

“ Were either scheme 2 or scheme 3 adopted, and the dredging for the wall begun without delay, a large portion of the foundation trench might be completed before the end of the season.

“ By putting on a large force of men, and under favourable circumstances, a great part or possibly the whole of the foundation cribs might be sunk and concreted by the end of 1887.

“ It will then take the whole of 1888 to build the masonry and complete details.

“ If the scheme No. 1 is adopted, it will take about the same time.

“ If much more of this season is lost it will throw the completion of the Wet Dock into 1889, or possibly 1890.

“ In the meantime, the C. P. R. Co. are about erecting a second large grain elevator in Montreal. The Lachine Bridge will be completed this year. Even the deal trade is being diverted to other points, and the prospects of future traffic are surely, and not very slowly, slipping away from the Quebec docks.

“ Your obedient servant,

“ JOHN EDWARD BOYD,

“EXTRACT from the Minutes of the Quebec Harbour Commissioners of date of 5th October, 1886.

“Before reading the Minutes the Chairman states that the Engineer in charge of the Harbour Works, Mr. Boyd, who is in attendance, desires to consult the Board with a view of obtaining their decision in relation to matter at issue between the contract and himself, with reference to the payment for the handling and levelling of the dredged material after its dumping in the Louise Embankment. He then quotes the letter addressed to him the 8th July last, in which he is informed: ‘That the handling and levelling of the dredged material after its dumping on the Louise Embankment shall be paid extra, and that the price for performing this work will be arranged by him.’ He also quotes the letter addressed to him the 13th of same month, in which he is directed to proceed with the dredging inside the Cross-wall without any mention of extra payment for the handling and levelling of the material, and states that the contractors have repeatedly declared that they were entitled to extra payment for the handling and levelling the material in this last case as well as in the other, and that, unless they were paid for same, they would be compelled to cease dredging inside the Cross-wall for the reason they would be working there at a loss. After a few questions put to him to which he answers, he, Mr. Boyd, is thereupon directed to apply the same treatment in both cases toward the handling and levelling of the dredged material, and consequently to follow the instructions conveyed to him in the letter of the 8th July.”

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN:—Before the cross-examination begins I wish to make an addition to the part of my statement of yesterday relative to the testimonial of 1883. On page 1062, 2nd paragraph from the bottom, after the words “amounts subscribed by them,” I wish to add the following:

“Except one whose name became known to me as such in 1887, I mean Mr. John Rochester. He told me then that he had subscribed $500 to the testimonial, that he had paid $200 in the hands of the Treasurer, and he paid me the balance in two instalments of $150 each.”

Cross-examination of Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Since how long did you live with, or was Mr. McGreevy a guest in your house here at Ottawa?—A. Since 1878. That is after I became Minister for the second time.

Q. Was he your guest only during the session, or did he keep his apartments in your house and stay at your house when he came to Ottawa during recess?—A. Sometimes he did. He came for a day or half a day, and that is all.

Q. He had his apartments set aside for him in your house?—A. Well, yes; I told him previous to 1878, when we were boarding out, that when I took a house “you may rely upon my always having a room for you.”

Q. Had he his desk with keys in your house?—A. He had what was required for the room. He had a bureau, and the keys were there.

Q. But had he a writing desk?—A. Yes; he had a writing desk.

Q. And he had the keys of the desk?—A. The keys were there in the room; he did not bring them with him.

Q. During the same period, since 1878, and even before, were you in the habit of corresponding with Mr. Thomas McGreevy?—A. Seldom.

Q. Was he writing to you frequently?—A. No; not frequently.

Q. Anyhow, you have received letters from him?—A. I did.

Q. Did you keep those letters?—A. No.

Q. You have none of his letters?—A. None.

Q. You say that he came to your house as a guest in 1878 and that you never received anything from him except delicacies or small contributions to the house?—A. Yes.

Q. Was it not about that time that he discounted for you, or endorsed and had discounted for you, at the bank, the notes which you referred to in your declaration yesterday, amounting in round figures to $10,000?—A. These notes, as I stated yesterday, were in connection with my elections of 1876-77. As I stated then, I had no money and I required money to pay the expenses of the elections and of the contestations—two of them. They were expensive, and Mr. McGreevy, who has been my friend for over 25 years, I applied to him and asked him whether I could count upon him. He said: “Yes, I will have the money for you.” I gave him my notes and he endorsed them, and he told me then: “I have no money now. Later on I will see that these notes are paid.” He paid the interest all the time and I never troubled myself further about them.

Q. What I want to know is, was it not about the same date that these notes originated?—A. No, before that I think. It must have been in 1876-77. Some may have gone in to 1878, but I am not sure of that.

Q. The first entries we find in Mr. Thomas McGreevy's books are on the 12th of March, 1878?—A. That may be; I do not remember that. I have not seen those books to refresh my memory out of them.

Q. You must have paid those election expenses a long time before the 12th of March, 1878?—A. Some of them, but I have no doubt it was on notes that they were paid and new notes given.

Q. You said you never cared about these notes any more. Is it because Mr. McGreevy told you he would make them his own private personal affair?—A. That is what I understood from him at the time. The interest on these has been paid by him all the time.

Q. But you are still the maker of the notes?—A. Yes.

Q. You understood you were only giving your name to Mr. McGreevy to accommodate him, it being now his personal affair?—A. That is what I understood.

Q. You know the notes are generally renewed every four months?—A. I think it is so.

Q. Who attends to the renewal?—A. Mr. McGreevy.

Q. He asks for your signature and sees to the rest?—A. Yes.

Q. These notes have been continued and renewed since that date?—A. Yes.

Q. They are not paid?—A. They are not paid—at all events, they were not paid the last time I heard of them.

Q. Your name is still indicated on them, I suppose? When did you hear of them the last time—within four months?—A. Within four months.

Q. What knowledge had you of the purchase of Le Monde newspaper?—A. I heard of it, but I cannot say that I knew it personally, except by parties saying so. I knew the negotiations were going on and that the paper was to be purchased, but did not do it myself.

Q. That is what I want to know. But no doubt you did. You did not attend to it yourself, but it was attended to by some one else. Have you any knowledge who was interested in the purchase?—A. I think it was Mr. Lessard, Mr. Vanasse and some others.

Q. Are you not aware, Sir Hector, that those gentlemen had not the necessary funds to pay for the paper, and that they negotiated for the benefit of some other people who were to furnish the funds?—A. I think so.

Q. Are you aware to whom they appealed for funds?—A. To Mr. Thomas McGreevy, I think. I do not know whether they applied to others.

Q. They formed a joint stock company?—A. Yes.

Q. You don't know the stockholders?—A. No; I did not follow that.

Q. And you don't know what is the amount of stock subscribed?—A. I may have known, but I cannot say now.

Q. Had you any conversations with Mr. McGreevy about the parties who took over Le Monde and the money that they had advanced for the purchase?—A. I have no doubt I spoke to Mr. McGreevy about the purchase of the paper. I have no doubt about that. He has been for the last 25 years a contributor to the funds for elections—for political purposes—and of course he was certainly one of the men to whom I would have spoken in a case of this kind.

Q. In the course of this conversation did he inform you how much he paid for that paper?—A. No; not that I can recollect now.

Q. Could you recollect in round figures the amount he might have paid?—A. I do not think so.

Q. Was it not notorious the price of the paper?—A. I think at the time the amount mentioned was $27,000 or $28,000.

Q. And did Mr. McGreevy tell you that he had advanced the amount?—A. I do not think he told me that. I think he said he had contributed, or something to that effect, but he did not state the sum of money he had given or was to give.

Q. You are not aware whether Mr. McGreevy told you how much he had advanced for the purchase of Le Monde?—A. I do not think he did.

Q. Did Mr. McGreevy tell you where the money that he paid for Le Monde came from?—A. No.

Q. Did he tell you that it was from his own personal funds?—A. He did not, but if I had been asked the source this money came from, I would have thought it came from himself.

Q. You say that you yourself paid money to Le Monde. That was from your personal funds?—A. Yes.

Q. Your private funds?—A. Yes.

Q. You were under the impression then that the payment or subscription made by Mr. McGreevy for Le Monde was from his own private funds?—A. Yes; that was my impression.

Q. I won't follow you exactly in the order of your statement of yesterday, but will take up my own notes. In your declaration you mentioned you made several advances to Le Monde?—A. Yes.

Q. Were they at different times?—A. Yes; they were at different times.

Q. You cannot give us the dates or the amounts?—A. No; I kept no account.

Q. When did you make the advances?—A. Oh, I have been making them for several years.

Q. When would be the last advance?—A. Well, I have nothing to go upon to state the exact date, but perhaps it would be a year or 18 months ago.

Q. Did you keep any account of them? Is it not a fact that you did not consider them advances, but actually gifts, without hope of return?—A. No; they were not gifts in one sense. I wanted to contribute to the paper in order—not to have money from it, because I never thought of that—but for the purpose of having political control over the paper if it were required at any time.

Q. Do you remember when Le Monde was purchased?—A. I think it was some time in the year 1884 or in the end of 1883—1884, perhaps; but it is difficult to give you the exact date.

Q. I find on page 1061 of the Evidence, in your statement in the paragraph numbered "3rd," you referred to a statement made by Mr. O. E. Murphy that Mr. Thos. McGreevy went to him and told him that as you were going that day you required $5,000, and that on another occasion he gave Mr. Thomas McGreevy a thousand more for you. I would like to call your attention to the fact that this is not what was proven. The evidence adduced is to the effect that on that date, when he asked for $5,000, he gave $1,000, and that at a later date the balance of $4,000 was given to Mr. Thomas McGreevy?—A. But at another place he speaks of another $1,000 paid to Mr. McGreevy for me, and that is the reason why that was put first. He said I had got $1,000 and $4,000, and then he speaks of another thousand elsewhere, and that is the reason why I put them in that note.

Q. Do you remember, in the course of the summer of 1887—to wit: in July and August—you passed through Quebec going en route for a tour in the Gulf which you made that year?—A. Every year I take a tour somewhere; but I do not remember that.

Q. Do you remember on the 21st July, 1887, you were in Quebec en route for the Lower Provinces?—A. I do not remember.

Q. About the reduction of $19,000, which was made on the $50,000 included in the contract as the price of the plant at Esquimalt, do I understand you to say that you had no knowledge whatever of that reduction, or was it submitted to you in any way and approved of by you?—A. There was a report from Mr. Perley, the Chief Engineer, on his return, I think, from British Columbia, and at the end of that report he mentions the plant and material that was taken, or was to be taken by the contractors of the Esquimalt Graving Dock, and he says in that report that at a future period there may be some discussion or arrangement, or something of that kind, between the contractors and the Engineer or the Department.

Q. This report came to your official knowledge?—It came to the Department, as all these reports come. The only time after that that the matter came—not to my knowledge, but came to the Department—was when the final estimate was made by Mr. Perley, as he was bound to do. There he added—he did not deduct—the $19,000 that had been deducted with some other sums, making up the $50,000 that had been taken from the monthly payments made to the contractors. This $19,000, however, did not come to my notice, and the Chief Engineer did not speak to me about it. He admits that himself, and says he is responsible for that, that he is the only man responsible for that, and that he did not communicate with me. That is perfectly true. That is the reason why I stated yesterday that there is no doubt that my attention should have been called to this allowance of $19,000 in the estimates. It is so. These final estimates—which I had better explain now—are the balances that come and are admitted by the Chief Engineer as due to the contractors after their work is completed. Sometimes that final estimate leaves only a very small sum to be paid to the contractors. Sometimes it is a larger sum, but it is in accordance with what has been decided by the contract, or by the Order in Council, or additions that have been made during the existence of the contract. And therefore these final estimates did not come under my supervision or under my notice, because it was a matter of form. But in this case, when a sum of $19,000 was to be added in this way, certainly Mr. Perley should have called my attention to it, and if he did not it was an oversight on his part I suppose.

Q. You refer in your declaration to page 142 of the Evidence, where Mr. Perley takes the responsibility of that reduction, or addition—that is, returning the money. I will read to you part of his evidence at page 143: “Q. As a rule, he generally discusses them with you—I mean, reports of all works done?—A. Will you allow me to inform you—Q. I want all the information possible?—A. Will you allow me to inform you and the Committee that I generally have from a hundred to two hundred and fifty works under my charge every year, and it is simply impossible for me to remember every little detail that happens with regard to those works. I did not charge my memory, and no man’s memory can carry the little incidentals that happen to cause you to recollect, possibly, this conversation or that conversation respecting it. I am willing to state to the Committee exactly what happened within the limits of my recollection. Q. That is, Mr. Perley, just exactly what I thought. You have no reason to state there was an exception to the rule made in this case more than another?—A. None. Q. Am I to understand from you that the rule is, when the report is important, that it is discussed with the Minister?—A. Yes. Q. And if you have no recollection, it is not because you are ready to swear there was no such discussion, but because of the large number of reports you have to make?—A. That is true.” Q. Can you recollect whether such a discussion took place?—A. Could you indicate to me in this book the report in question?

Q. The report is the latter part of page 139 (Exhibit “S 6”)?—A. I see that report, it is not a report that would have called my special attention or would have been discussed, for the reason that the portion you have just referred to in the evidence of Mr. Perley is only to this effect. He says: “Whilst at Esquimalt I made a careful examination of the plant, materials, etc., mentioned in the schedule attached to the contract to be taken over by the contractors, and with reference thereto I can only state that it is to be regretted that a very large portion of it was accepted at any price from the Provincial Government. It is old, unserviceable, of no use, and of but very little value, and in my opinion the prices which were affixed to many of the articles are very much in excess of their value; but could they have been made use of they might have proved of benefit, instead of being not of any service. I presume the value of these articles will become a question at a future date between the Department and the contractors.” Therefore, that report would not call my attention, because it was a question to be decided not then, but a question that would come up at a future date between the Department and the contractors.

Q. Will you read the letter that was written by your then Secretary, Mr. Gobeil, to Mr. Trutch, at page 100 (Exhibit “X 4”), and say whether having written such a letter in May, 1885, you would not be struck by the report of your Chief Engineer to that effect. I specially refer you to this part of your letter: “I am directed by the Hon. the Minister of Public Works to state that the specification is very clear, and that there is no option on the part of the contractors to take what plant, &c., they please and to refuse what they do not want; and that they will have to take over all that is named in the schedule. The Honourable the Minister agrees, however, that the first deduction on account of the plant shall be made only on the second progress estimate?”—A. That was perfectly true.

Q. The letter is perfectly clear?—A. What is your question?

Q. Having authorized such a letter in May, 1885, did you not see that it was necessary to discuss with, or send for, your Engineer when he put in that report of January, 1886, to the contrary, to wit, going contrary to your letter and stating that reductions had to be made when 8 or 9 months before you had given him a final decision?—A. He says, "I presume the value of these articles will become a question at a future date between the Department and the contractors." If you had been in my position, not only to look after all the works of the Chief Engineer, who complains that he himself had so much work that he could not remember details, but having also all the works of the Architect's branch and the other works of the Department to look after, with daily visits of members of Parliament and others, with my Council duties, and my Parliamentary duties, all the work of a Minister of the Crown that I had, beside my private correspondence, which is something, perhaps you would understand that I could not take every report my officers would make and discuss it with them. There are only 24 hours in the day, and I had to work 16, 17 and even 18 hours a day, and in this case I would certainly not have discussed this report printed at page 139 (Exhibit "S 6".) I would certainly not have discussed that report, because there was no need of discussing a thing which might afterwards become a question between the Department and the contractors.

Q. Will you explain to the Committee the meaning of the entry printed at page 142, as being the endorsement on the document marked exhibit "U6." It says, "21st February, 1888. Public Works, Sub. No. 15, Graving Dock, Esquimalt, British Columbia—Chief Engineer of Public Works, encloses an amended final estimate &c." Will you explain what this means?—A. I do not know what this is meant for, and I do not recollect that I said anything of the kind to Mr. Perley about this. It may mean this, without reference specially to this account, that when a final estimate was made in certain cases, in any branch of the Department, and the contractors would object and say, "No; you do not give me what is due to me; there is still a sum of $1,000 or $10,000 or $15,000 due; I will sign this as a receipt, but I will not sign it as a final receipt." I think I am correct in saying that Sir John Macdonald, acting as First Minister, and having the advice of the Department of Justice, or when he was there himself as acting for the Minister of Justice, told me and told others, that we were not bound to call upon contractors to give a final receipt, because if they were compelled to give a final receipt that they could still claim a sum by saying, "You compelled me to give a receipt; I required the money and I told you at the time I did not accept it as final." Therefore, having that difficulty before our eyes, I may have said generally that in the case of additional claims by a contractor or contractors, as the case might be, they might not insist upon a final receipt.

Q. That is to say, you have no special recollection of this case?—A. No; but I tell you how it might have happened. Mr. Perley might have known that on other matters, and said, that is the Minister's opinion or decision.

Q. Will you look at pages 797-8-9, which contain the deposition of Patrick Larkin, and say whether you had the conversation referred to by him there?—A. I do not remember that, but I am sure that I made no promise about any change.

Q. It is not a change that is referred to. It is in reference to a reduction on the amount of $50,000, at which the old plant had been valued?—A. Mr. Larkin says this: "The following morning I went to Sir Hector Langevin's office. I drew his attention to the amount of material that we were called on to take over and pay $50,000 for. I told him that one-half of that stuff was no use to us. In reading it over, any man accustomed to contracts could see at a glance that the stuff represented there was good for nothing at all. There were derricks, and those sort of things which are never used with us. When I mentioned the matter to him, Sir Hector sent for Mr. Perley and Mr. Perley came in. We had some sharp words over the thing. I wanted a clause added to the contract that we should only pay for what material we could use. Mr. Perley would not consent to putting any such clause in. On that we got very warm over it, the pair of us. Q. Sir Hector was present then?—A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, 'We will look into the matter.' We looked over the items and I pointed out the items which were no good to us. There was one item of stone, for instance, which I said was of no use. Q. Did he say he would make a reduction?—A. He said he would have the thing looked into, that is all." You will see from that that I did not promise to make any change or any reduction, but I did what I always did when cases of this kind would come before me, and I said "We will look into the matter." I had all the greater reason in this particular case, when Mr. Perley was quarrelling with him, as he says.

Q. You said you would look into the matter?—A. Yes; but that is no promise, and if Mr. Larkin took it as a promise he did not know the usages of the Department.

Q. Had he understood it so, and seeing that the thing has been done, would it be right?—A. I am sorry to say that this is a correction that, if it has been done, has been done without my knowledge.

Q. After this conversation, did it seem fair to the other tenderers that you should have even agreed to look into the matter, as the tenders had been put in with the public notice that they must take the plant at $50,000—did you?—A. I never refused to consider a matter brought before me.

Q. Would not a consideration of the matter induce you to make a decision to call for new tenders rather than to make a reduction of $20,000?—A. The answer I give to this is the same answer I have just given. The reduction was not made with my consent.

Q. Mr. Larkin has filed this morning—has placed in the hands of the Clerk of this Committee a letter which purports to be written to him by Nicholas K. Conolly on the 29th October, 1884. Will you read it?

(Exhibit "G16.")

"(Private and confidential.)

"POINT LEVIS, 29th October, 1884.

"DEAR SIR,—You will see by the enclosed message that we are offered the Esquimalt Graving Dock. I cared nothing about tendering for the dock and scarcely expected to get it, but now that we are offered it, and under the circumstances I think it would be best to accept it, with the proviso that the changes we suggest are made and have been partially agreed between parties. Then they say there will be no security (cash) required by us. Our friends propose to arrange this; moreover, there is no money paid for securing contract. The works here are in this shape: we to-day have an estimate to clear our entire bank indebtedness, and at end of season will have at least $25,000 cash on deposit. Mr. Boyd, in granting our estimate yesterday on the dock, retains $85,000 for completion of same, and in his opinion $35,000 will complete the work. After one month from date there will be nothing to do here, and I can go to British Columbia, and be absent from here until the first of May, during which time nothing will suffer here—at least, not the dock, at which time I can return and finish the dock here, which will not occupy more than two months of next season. With regard to finances, which is an important factor, I think there will be no difficulty about it. There is no doubt but that ere long we shall receive our money from section "I", and in case your funds are not accessible I will see that your interest does not suffer so long as I have a dollar, and as it will require but $20,000 there will be no trouble about your share. Since writing the above I have seen some of our friends who were anxious we should sell out and intimated that $20,000 could be obtained in cash or its equivalent. I object strongly to selling out. If the Government wish us to withdraw in favour of other parties, I am willing to do so without recompense other than the return of our deposit cheque. I don't want to be a party to any job of that kind; besides I think it is a good piece of work. The climate is favourable and party in power both here and out there are friendly and anxious we should have the work. I think what we could do this winter and next would complete it. Mr. Hume or myself will go to Ottawa on Saturday or Monday, at which time I want you to be there. Should I not be able to go I will send you a power of attorney by Mr. Hume to act for me. Regarding section 'I' when Mr. Hume will be at Ottawa it would be well to have Mr. Cameron there as I understand he as well as Mr. Page wishes to see Mr. Hume before the final is decided. In case we do not wish to take the British Columbia Dock ourselves I would prefer to contract for it, and afterwards sublet it to some good party, as no doubt there is money in it, although personally I care but little about it, any more than what is becoming to the concern.

“ Yours very truly,

“ N. K. CONNOLLY.

Q. Would this letter have any connection with the conversation which Mr. Larkin said he had with you subsequently, and where you asked him to take the contract?—A. I do not think so. I would say about the dates that I am not in a position to look over the date of the conversation you speak of. There is nothing to give me a date, and of course, about the writings of these gentlemen among themselves I must decline all responsibility.

Q. I asked you only if it helped your memory and had any connection with the sworn testimony given by Mr. Larkin?—A. I understand he says that it was offered on the understanding that they were the lowest, and that an Order in Council was passed. Of course, I do not know, as I have no dates, and then they say they were offered the work. That is the way it has always been done.

Q. It seems strange, does it not, that they should say that they were offered the work if they had tendered for it?—A. Yes; but you will understand that if a man tenders and his tender is too high he is not, although he has tendered, offered the work. It is offered to him only who has tendered lowest or whose tender for some other reason is considered most acceptable. It is offered to him if his tender is accepted by the Council, otherwise it is not offered.

Q. Was the tender accepted on the 8th November?—A. I cannot say without reference to the documents. I find it was on the 8th November. I cannot give these dates from my memory. I find it is impossible. If I had only one contact to deal with I would remember, as it is otherwise, I cannot.

Q. Now, in connection with your statement contradicting to a certain extent Mr. Valin's deposition, you filed a letter signed by him. Do you remember whether he was requested to give a sworn declaration instead of a letter?—A. That is later on—the day after I think. He came to my office in Quebec when there was a large number of the electors of Montmorency there. When I say a large number my two small rooms were filled with them. I suppose there must have been 50 or 60 of them, and they had come with the idea of supporting his candidature of Montmorency, and asked me to support him. When they got there they enquired, a number of them, about this letter that he had received, and which was known, I have no doubt, that the gentlemen that were there before and perhaps myself had spoken about it. At all events, it was known. I perhaps might have communicated it to some friends who came to see me at the same time. They said to Mr. Valin. “It is all very good if you had to deal with an ordinary member of Parliament or a private citizen, but you are reported in this open letter of Mr. Tarte to have stated things disparaging to the Minister. Under these circumstances, as the Minister is our chief, we must insist upon you signing the declaration and this statement. We ask you to do that.” However, Mr. Valin wanted to know from Mr. Charlebois, who was in the company present, the object of the declaration, Mr. Charlebois being a lawyer. He wanted to know whether his making that affirmation would make him subject to any penalty or trouble afterwards. He used the word trouble. Mr. Charlebois explained it to him, and said: “If you put your name under that affirmation, and the paper contains the truth, and nothing but the truth, nobody will trouble you, and you won't be subject to any difficulty; but if you put your name to the document, and it is not true, or any portion of it is not true, in that case you may be subject to difficulties afterwards and be sued for it." Mr. Valin wanted to look at the paper again. He read the paper, and he said: "I must go and consult my lawyer;" and they told him that his lawyer would not know whether it was true or not true what he had said. It was for him to say so and not the lawyer, and they also said: "We cannot be waiting here; you must give your decision." From one thing to another, he was there hesitating, and the men pressing him, and finally he said no; he could not do it without consulting his lawyer, and that he would give them an answer next day. On that the men said they would not consent, and they said: "In that case we will drop you, Mr. Valin, and we will take another candidate." The other candidate was moved at once by one of them and seconded by another, and they agreed. First, however, they moved that another candidate be chosen. They agreed to that. Afterward they moved that Mr. A. Turcotte, a merchant in Quebec, should be the candidate; and that was adopted by them. I said: "I think, gentlemen, I have had quite enough of a seance for three or four hours; you will be kind enough to go away to some place where you may consult among yourselves and decide what you have to do, because I have other work to do, and cannot continue." They thanked me for my patience with them and went away. That is the answer.

Q. In connection with the Cross-wall, you were made aware that your Chief Engineer, Mr. Perley, had found clerical errors in some of the tenders and had written to the tenderers, were you?—A. I am not sure that Mr. Perley spoke to me about that, but he may have done so. If he says so there, I have no doubt it was so. He may have told me: "Mr. Boyd had made his extension of the schedule prices, and he reports that in three of these lower tenders there are errors, and I must ascertain how it is." That would not have been a new thing, because that was done several times in the Department, when it was apparent that a contractor had made errors or blunders, and some of them having been written to—not in this case, but in other cases—have written back and thanked the Engineer or the Architect, as the case might be, for having called their attention to it, because they said it would have been ruin to them. They would say: "Evidently, we have made a great mistake." I cannot remember the name, but I remember this: That in one case a man had put in his tender $2 in the schedule, and when we wrote to him it was $12. It was a large item, and he would have been ruined by it. In this case, Mr. Perley wrote to these men, as you see, and obtained the result as stated there.

Q. I am quite willing to admit that if an error is discovered that the party should be allowed to withdraw his tender; but do I understand from you, Mr. Minister, that a party will be allowed to amend his tender after all the other tenders have been opened?—A. No.

Q. He would be allowed to withdraw, so as not to be ruined?—A. Yes; but in this case, Mr. Beaucage—you see what he says:

"SIR,—I have received your letter of 17th inst., No. 6905, relative to items in my tender for 'Cross-wall,' which demands an explanation.

"Having examined, on receipt of your letter, my memorandum of details of calculations for this work in Harbour of Quebec, I find that my rates or prices, as is evident on the face of it, are based on foot lineal of pile, and the width of these piles are assumed at 9 in. to 10 in. wide each, and I so read those items as meaning foot lineal of pile. This, I must say, is a serious error on my part.

"My rate for this work, as now explained by you, would be nineteen ($19) dollars per foot for sheet piling 8 in. thick, driven from 6 to 8 ft., white pine; do., 6 in. thick, seventeen ($17) dollars; do., 4 in., fifteen ($15) dollars per foot; do., 6 in. thick of any timber, as per clause 18 of specification, fifteen ($15.75) dollars and seventy-five cents, all per lineal foot in line of work, and I desire my tender to be so amended.

"I think, under the circumstances, this addition should be allowed to my tender, seeing it is evidently an error caused by a misunderstanding of the terms of the schedule.

“With regard to the second question in your letter, on the item, ‘pile driving to any depth not exceeding 20 ft.’ Where you say I have put the words ‘labour only,’ this has also been an error, but as the clause 80 of the specification you invoke, is clear on the subject, I would strike out the words ‘labour only,’ which I put. Hoping these explanations are clear and satisfactory.”

By this it is apparent that Mr. Beaucage wanted his tender to be amended accordingly, or he could not take the work at that price. Therefore, Mr. Perley seeing that, added to the tender of Mr. Beaucage the additions that he wanted to put there, and he saw that his tender was $640,000.

Q. It shows what was customary was not followed: that instead of allowing the tenderer to withdraw he was allowed to amend his tender?—A. No; that was done for the Department not him. It was to bring the matter before the Minister and Council.

Q. His tender was taken into consideration, although amended after having been opened?—A. It is not so. By his letter of the 21st May he says that he has made a serious error, and asks that to be corrected. Another mistake was about labour, and he wants that to be put out of his tender, or to be amended. That being done, it brought his tender to a higher figure than the others.

Q. Let us go back to that matter. His letter showed that he was invited to make an amendment if he chose?—A. Mr. Perley might have done that.

Q. But at the beginning of the letter he says: “I have received your letter of the 17th inst., No. 6905, relative to items in my tender for Cross-wall, which demands an explanation.” He sent the new figures upon which his items were extended?—A. Yes.

Q. And the result was, that he was brought up higher than Larkin, Connolly & Co. Are you aware also that two other tenderers were invited to amend their tenders after being opened?—A. Three—Gallagher, Beaucage, and Larkin, Connolly & Co.—the three firms. The first, John Gallagher, did not receive evidently the letter from Mr. Perley before he (John Gallagher) wrote the letter that I put in here, and which is dated 16th May, from Montreal; whilst the letter of Mr. Perley, if I am not wrong, is of the 17th. So Gallagher sent in that, saying that he had taken another contract in the meantime, and he wished to withdraw.

Q. I would like to know whether there is a single instance to your knowledge where this has been done previously—that is to say, to allow parties to amend their tenders and then take them into consideration, after having been opened and so amended?—A. In this case this has been done by the Chief Engineer on the letters he had received from these men, but that was not the action of the Department. The Chief Engineer reported what I have already stated at page 1055, but the action of the Department was purely and simply this, that we did not take up Beaucage's tender as low as he had put it at first, because by his own letter, he asked it to be amended, on the ground that he had made a serious error. That being so, he could not have the contract, in the first instance, because he had made a grave error and wanted it to be amended, and, secondly, because the amendment would have changed the position of his tender as regards the other tenders, and therefore we could not admit it. That is the view that Council has taken on the report which was made, after which the Order in Council was based on it.

Q. You do not appear to have understood my question. I want to know whether you are aware of a single instance, as a similar precedent, to wit, that tenders once opened were submitted again to the tenderers, asking them whether they were disposed to amend their tenders, and that then the amended tenders should be taken into consideration by the Council?—A. I do not know that, but I know what I said just now, that errors having been discovered—

By Mr. Mulock:

Q. In this case?—A. No; in other cases. Errors having been discovered in the tenders of tenderers, for example what I told you just now, a man having put $2, say for masonry, which properly should cost $10, $12 or $15. On seeing that it was put at $2, and was evidently an error, the attention of the tenderer has been called by the officer, either the Architect or the Chief Engineer, and the tenderer would say: "Yes, I have made a grave error, it should be $12, instead of $2, and if I can amend my tender accordingly, well and good, but if not, I wish to withdraw it."

Q. Exactly, it comes to this, that the Department would not hold a party to a tender where an evident error had been made, and his deposit would not be confiscated by the Department if the Department was shown there was an error?—A. Yes.

Q. But once again I ask you, is there a case of this kind?—A. I told you I did not know that. If I had known that that question was going to be put I might have looked up the records of the Department, but really I do not remember.

Q. You were made aware of these letters written by Mr. Perley to the tenderers, inviting them to say if they had made errors?—A. I knew that Mr. Perley was in communication with them, to see whether they had made errors or not. I did not see the letter written by Mr. Perley.

Q. Will you refer to page 33, of the Blue-book (Exhibit "N 5,") where you will see the Order in Council on the matter, dated the 28th May, 1883, and say if you are quite satisfied that you were made aware of all these letters, &c.?—A. I said not.

Q. It says here: "The Minister observes that on examining the tenders it was found that Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., Gallagher, and Beaucage, had made evident errors in their prices for 'sheet piling'—and in Mr. Beaucage's case for 'pile driving.' That Mr. Gallagher adheres to the prices mentioned in his offer, but desires to withdraw it, he having taken another contract—and he requests that his security deposit be returned. That Mr. Beaucage acknowledged the error, and asked that his tender be amended. This was done by the insertion of the increased prices stated in Mr. Beaucage's letter. That Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. stated that though they had made an error they would hold themselves ready to enter into contract at the prices in their offer."—A. All these things were not to my personal knowledge. They were brought to me on the report of the Chief Engineer, and therefore as usual. It is always on the report of the Chief Engineer or Chief Architect, as the case may be, that my report is made to Council, because I know nothing of these matters personally.

Q. The Order in Council says you had been informed by the Chief Engineer. What I want to know is, had he so informed you?—A. Of course. I could not go to Council without that. It is necessary to the routine of the Department. Tenders are called for; they are received in the Department, and they are then opened by the Deputy of the Department and the Chief of the Branch. These gentlemen make a proper statement in regard to the tenders, endorsing the tenders and making a list of the tenderers, their prices and the amount of their security. They both sign that, and then bring it to me, and say, here is the result of the tenders. Then, seeing no difficulty, the tender being all right, the deposit being all right, the amount of the tender being the lowest, I would say: "Let that be done." If, however, it were a large contract, I would go to Council and say to Council: "Here is the tender; this man is the lowest; nevertheless, I bring it to Council." But when it was a small amount I would order it myself, in accordance with the law.

Q. Is it not a fact that the following year another firm wanted to amend their tender, and were not allowed to do so, viz., Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly?—A. Yes; that proves the rule, that we did not allow them to amend their tender, and that in this case Mr. Perley put that there in order to show that Beaucage, who had made blunders in his tender, if he were allowed to change his tender even then would be higher than the others, and his tender could not be accepted.

Q. Is it not a fact, Sir Hector, that it was because he became the lowest he was allowed to amend, and if he had not done so he would have been the lowest?—A. Yes; but he says himself that he made such a serious error that he wanted to have it amended, and the result of his amending his tender was, that he would not stick to it.

Q. Once again, in the case of the Cross-wall, the exception was made the rule. Tenderers were allowed to amend their tenders, when in other cases the rule would not have allowed them to do so?—A. Mr. Perley may have done so, but the Council did not do it. I did not do it. I reported to the Council.

Q. Was not the Council or the Minister informed of it, as is stated. The minute shows in page 33 of the Blue Book (Exhibit "N 5") "That Mr. Beaucage acknowledged the error and asked that his tender be amended." This was done by the inserting of the increased prices stated in Mr. Beaucage's letter. Messrs. Larkin & Connolly have stated that though they were in error they would hold themselves ready to contract at the prices in their offer?—A. Mr. Beaucage must have seen that his error was such that he did not want to take the tender at that low price.

Q. I do not look to the result of this. I look to the fact whether the exception was not made the rule in that case?—A. No.

Q. You will find at page 35 of the Blue Book that it is there stated by Mr. Perley "and as they have asked to amend their tender, which is a course not usually pursued, I would recommend that neither tender be accepted, and that the cheques be returned to the several parties?"—A. Yes; that is what he said.

Q. Does he state the rule well?—A. He might have said this "which course is not pursued."

Q. Will you look at the foot of the page, and say whether you have not reported in the same terms "the Minister referred the matter for report to the Chief Engineer of the Department. I am of the opinion that tender 'A' is greatly in excess of the actual value of work to be done, while tender 'B' is much too low, and that the persons who have submitted the last tender 'B' cannot possibly execute the work for the prices named, and as they have asked to amend the tender, which is a course not usually pursued, I would recommend that neither tender be accepted, and that the cheques be returned to the several parties."—A. Of course, I do not know that I could say whether every word of his report was exactly in accordance with previous reports. I put the whole thing together, which was, that he recommended that inasmuch as the lowest tenderer, Starrs & O'Hanly, was too low—much too low—and that of Baskerville & O'Connor much too high, neither the highest nor lowest would be accepted. That was the object of his report and that he recommended to the Council and the Council agreed to it.

Q. Now, about the testimonial which was presented to you, Sir Hector, Mr. Noel, at page 409 of the Evidence, does not make a positive statement, but states that he must have given the list of subscribers to Mr. Carrière or yourself?—A. I stated I had not received it.

Q. You are positive that you have not received it?—A. Yes.

Q. He is wrong in that?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see Mr. Carrière who is called the secretary of the testimonial fund?—A. I have no doubt I did.

Q. Did he have any communication with you in connection with the testimonials—did he write you any letters?—A. I do not think so.

Q. Did he give you any information as to the amount subscribed or as to the progress of the subscriptions?—A. No; the only thing that I heard was that there was a testimonial going on, and that the moneys, as far as I could recollect, were being deposited in the hands of Mr. Noel.

Q. After a certain time, were you informed that the testimonial subscription was closed?—A. I would know of it when Mr. Noel came to inform me.

Q. And when it was understood between you and him what the rate of interest would be if the fund remained in the bank?—A. Yes; he asked me that, and I told him.

Q. Did neither the Treasurer nor the Secretary of the fund, after the fund was closed, inform you who were the donors?—A. No; I did not want to know. If they had come to me to tell me I would have refused to know.

Q. Would you have refused to know who gave you the testimonial?—A. Yes; certainly.

Q. Now, as to the Baie des Chaleurs Railway Company. You say that you acted only as a friend between Mr. Thomas McGreevy and Mr. Robitaille, the President of the Company?—A. Yes; I did.

Q. Did you intervene also in difficulties between other parties connected with that railway?—A. I do not know that; give me names; perhaps I might then know better what you mean.

Q. Did you intervene between Mr. Robert McGreevy and Mr. Armstrong?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Are you not aware whether they had some difficulties together about the payment of subsidy or the share that Robert McGreevy was to receive?—A. No; I knew generally as I have said here. I knew generally that the two Messrs. McGreevy and the other portion of the Board or the Board itself were not in harmony and I tried to have them come to terms amongst themselves. I told them not to quarrel, but to try to come to terms.

Q. You cannot remember, Sir Hector, whether you were in Quebec on the 21st July, 1887?—A. No. I see you with those newspapers. I may tell you that my experience in that way is this: That very often they announce my arrival in Quebec the day I am going there, and so on. I do not say that that applies to all newspapers, but I have found it often so. Hearing in Ottawa that I had gone on, it would be announced a day or two before my arrival; but at other times I have been in town for three days and it was not announced. I may say that I did it purposely, because I wanted to have two or three days at my business before visitors would come and ask to have interviews.

Q. I do not want to make evidence from the papers. Do you remember having left for the Gulf, about the 18th of July, and of having returned by the Intercolonial with Sir Adolphe Caron, on the 21st July, and having spent the evening in Quebec?—A. What year was that?

Q. 1887.—A. Returning from where?

Q. The paper does not say more than returning to Quebec. It appears you left Quebec on the 18th, and returned with Sir Adolphe on the 20th July, in the evening, by the Intercolonial?—A. I do not remember that.

Q. Do you remember that on the 3rd of August following you left Quebec for Rimouski and spent a few days there?—A. I cannot remember those dates at all.

Q. Do you remember that you returned to Quebec on the 8th, left on the 9th and arrived at Ottawa on the 9th, in the month of August?—A. No. The fact is, there is nothing—no event—to connect these dates.

Q. Except the visit to your brother at Rimouski?—A. I am in the habit of going every year, sometimes twice, to see my brother.

Q. You do not keep diaries?—A. No, never; and I do not intend to.

Q. Do you remember, on the 21st July, having met Mr. Thomas McGreevy, and to have stated to him that you wanted $5,000?—A. No. Not only I do not remember, but I did not say so—at any period.

Q. Did not Mr. McGreevy come back after a certain time, and in the evening bring only $1,000?—A. No; not $1, $1,000 or any amount.

Q. On the 8th of August following, did you not return to Quebec from Rimouski, and did not Mr. Thomas McGreevy pay to you or hand to you an additional amount of $4,000?—A. No; it is not so. I stated so in my examination-in-chief, or my statement.

Q. If Mr. Thomas McGreevy made such a request, either to Murphy or to Nicholas Connolly, was he authorized to do so?—A. No.

Q. Was Thomas McGreevy ever authorized at any time to ask money on your behalf of Larkin, Connolly & Co., or any member of that firm?—A. No.

Q. I have asked the question generally; now I will make a distinction. Did you authorize him to ask for anything for political purposes?—A. No.

Q. You never instructed Thomas McGreevy to request or ask any money from Larkin, Connolly & Co. or any member or members of the firm?—A. Certainly I have not.

Q. Had you any conversation with Mr. Thomas McGreevy about a subscription he expected or did obtain from Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. No.

Q. Did he ever tell you or inform you in any way that he had received money from them for political purposes?—A. No.

Q. You stated yesterday that the interest which Mr. Thomas McGreevy appeared to take in the contracts going on at Quebec, and even at Esquimalt, might be explained by the fact that he was a member of Parliament, a member of the Harbour Commissioners of Quebec, and also a director of the Union Bank. Do you know personally whether Larkin, Connolly & Co. were indebted in any way to the Union Bank?—A. I do not remember about my saying exactly what you have just stated, but I have no objection to that being stated in that way. As a member of Parliament, I would not have been surprised that he might have enquired about these works, the same as any other member of Parliament that would have come to me and enquired about the progress of these works. Being members of Parliament, they would have had that right to enquire how the great works of the country were going on. But as a Harbour Commissioner of Quebec, I could not be surprised that Mr. McGreevy would take an interest in those works and see that they were progressing rapidly, and that they were being built properly; and that the works altogether would be executed in a workmanlike manner. Then another thing: being a director of the Union Bank of Canada—then of Lower Canada and now of Canada—I knew he took an interest in the works in this way: The Union Bank was advancing large sums of money to these contractors to execute the work at Quebec and the works at Esquimalt, and the bank was anxious that the certificates of moneys due to these men and coming from the Harbour Commissioners at Quebec, and the certificates that were coming from our officers at Esquimalt, should not be delayed, but should be attended to as they came into the Department of Public Works, in order that the moneys due for the Quebec Works should be sent to the Harbour Commissioners, so that they could pay their contractors and the contractors to recoup the Union Bank for so much money advanced by the bank. The same from Esquimalt: when the certificate from the Engineers there should be examined and accepted or approved by the Chief Engineer at Ottawa, and that the necessary remittances might be made at Esquimalt, so that the moneys might be paid to the bank. I am under the impression that there were powers of attorney given to the bank to receive the money in Quebec and in Ottawa for these works, and therefore, Mr. McGreevy being a director of that bank, it was quite proper that he would take an interest. I know, moreover, that the president of the bank, Mr. Thomson, spoke to me once or twice, or wrote to me, asking that the moneys might not be delayed, but that they might be paid in due time.

Q. This does not cover exactly my question. Are you aware, personally, that Larkin, Connolly & Co. were indebted in any amount to the Union Bank?—A. I have just stated it by the fact that the president of the bank communicated to me in that direction.

Q. I understood you to say that it was because the Harbour Commissioners were drawing money from the Union Bank?—A. No.

Q. You meant Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. Yes. It is not the Quebec Harbour Commissioners who were drawing the money, but the contractors who were executing the works had to be paid by the Harbour Commissioners; and therefore, we in Ottawa had to send down to Quebec to remit the amount coming to them. Then the Harbour Commissioners had to pay the contractors. I suppose the contractors had given a power of attorney, or signified to the Harbour Commissioners that the moneys coming to them should be paid to them through the bank.

Q. But you were never told what was the amount of their indebtedness?—A. No.

Q. When was this application made to you by the president of the bank?—A. I cannot say that.

Q. Is it not a fact that it took place in 1883 or 1884, at the beginning of the works?—A. No; because I know they were very anxious to be paid at different periods.

Q. Did Mr. Thomson apply to you by letter or verbally?—A. I saw him in Quebec, and I think I saw him also in Ottawa. He came to see me.

Q. Is it not a fact that in 1884 or 1885, Larkin, Connolly & Co. were so financially strong that they did not require a single dollar of discount?—A. I do not know that. I never knew the amount of money they had, or how financially strong they were.

Q. Therefore, the only information you have was on account of the application from the president of the bank?—A. And I told you from Mr. McGreevy. As a director of the bank he was taking a great interest in the matter. I think he told me that, coming to Parliament as a member, he was entrusted by them, or commissioned by the bank to inquire about it.

Q. You cannot precise, more particularly, the date of the conversation with Mr. McGreevy, and as to the different conversations with Mr. Thomson?—A. I cannot.

Q. I would like very much if you could give the year, on account of the books showing how the account of Larkin, Connolly & Co. stood with the bank, and these conversations may have taken place at the beginning of the works.—A. These conversations could not strike my mind at all.

Q. You cannot locate them?—A. Oh, no. Having so much to do every day, these things would go out of mind the next day.

Q. Were you aware that, notwithstanding the fact he was asking this information for the benefit of the Union Bank, that Mr. Thomas McGreevy was continually writing to his brother and giving him this information?—A. I never knew of any letters passing between the two brothers, and I never saw any letters until I saw them here in print.

Q. Were you not well aware that Thomas and Robert McGreevy were not only brothers, but they were on terms of the utmost intimacy together, on account of business, confidential and otherwise, that was entrusted by Thomas to Robert?—A. Not in that way at all. All that I knew was, they seemed to be on a very good footing.

Q. Did not Robert McGreevy frequently come and see his brother Thomas in Ottawa?—A. I do not know whether he came to see him, but I know he was in Ottawa sometimes. If I am not mistaken, I think Robert had some of his children at the College or at the convent here.

Q. Had Robert not several interviews with your head officers or yourself in connection with the Quebec Harbour works?—A. No.

Q. You never saw him in company with Mr. Perley, or Mr. Boyd, or Mr. Ennis, the Secretary of your Department?—A. No. I will tell you he came to Mr. Perley on one occasion. This is one example I want to give you. He came to Mr. Perley—it was not in connection with these works—and told him that he wanted to have the amount of a certificate for another work that one Lortie, of Quebec, had, and he said, "I am his partner, and I want to have that money." Mr. Perley told him: "No; I cannot do that. Of course, you will go and see the Minister, and if he gives the order in writing I will attend to it."

Q. That is the only question you can remember?—A. Will you allow me to finish, please. Mr. McGreevy then came to me and told me just what he had stated to Mr. Perley. Well, I said, Mr. McGreevy, the contractor for the work is Mr. Lortie; I do not know you in the matter. He said, "Here," and he took from his pocket a paper showing he was a partner with Lortie. I said: "That may be, but any business that I transact in this matter must be with Lortie, not with you. If he comes himself he will be paid, or if he gives you a proper power of attorney it will be all right, but as it is I cannot pay you." He went away much displeased, but I think I was right in doing that.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Can you remember the cause of the trouble between Hon. Thomas McGreevy and Mr. Robitaille, or the Baie des Chaleurs Railway Company?—A. I know they had some difficulty, but I do not remember the reason of it. I was not a director; I had nothing to do with the company.

Q. You were never made aware of the cause of the trouble?—A. I do not remember it now at all events, if I was.

Q. In some of Mr. McGreevy's letters that have been put before us there are references to the Baie des Chaleurs matter. On page 22, for instance, there is a letter from Mr. Thomas McGreevy to his brother Robert, under date March 3rd (Exhibit "N 2.") in which he says: "Nothing new in the Baie des Chaleurs matter, except that Sir Hector wanted me to come to terms, and asked me to state the terms." Do you remember to what terms you wanted him to come?—A. No; I wanted peace and happiness and harmony between them. That is all.

Q. In a letter of the 9th of March, 1886 (Exhibit "P 2") published at page 23 of the Evidence, Mr. Thomas McGreevy says: "Sir Hector insisted on the understanding being come to. I refused to do so, and told him at last to let Robitaille make a proposition himself." Mr. McGreevy swore here the other day that he had such a conversation with you at the time, and that you offered him that very condition that I now call your attention to. Is that true?—A. I answered that yesterday.

Q. I want to call your attention to it again.—A. I say this about the conversation: While, of course, it might be said that he might have understood that he refused to come to an understanding, that is quite possible; but the fact is, that when they did come to an understanding, and I told him that Mr. Robitaille would make a proposition himself, he might have said this: "I was not going to make brains for him forever."

Q. Then he says: "They proposed to give me control of the road to Ste. Anne's, with a subsidy of $6,000 per mile, if I would withdraw my opposition to the Baie des Chaleurs Railway and relieve me and you of our stock?"—A. Well, I stated yesterday that I had no interest in the affairs of this company. I never proposed to give him the control of the road to St. Anne's or elsewhere. I never promised to give a subsidy of $6,000 per mile for the last-mentioned company. I always thought that the road did not require it. I never proposed to give Mr. McGreevy the control of the Ste. Anne's road. He might have spoken of the Ste. Anne's road to someone, who may have said that if they could arrange amongst themselves they could have one road or another, with a subsidy of $6,000. Mr. McGreevy makes a mistake in mentioning me there. Others may have done so; I did not.

Q. You said later on that there was an understanding. Did you take any part in assisting them to arrive at that understanding?—A. No; I do not know what the understanding was. I did not take any share in it.

Q. You took no share in it?—A. No; I was glad to hear of it, to know that they were not fighting.

Q. Well, Sir Hector, I shall call your attention to a letter that you wrote on this very Baie des Chaleurs Railway—a letter that I want you to read now.

(Exhibit "H17.")

"OTTAWA, 1st October, 1887.

"(Private.)

"DEAR MR. MCGREEVY,—You remember having deposited in my hands a large envelope, and Mr. C. N. Armstrong also put in my hands one later on. I wish to know now what is to be done with those two papers. I have written to Mr. Armstrong to the same effect. If your answers are the same, I will act accordingly.

"Yours truly,

"ROBERT MCGREEVY, Esq.,

"HECTOR L. LANGEVIN.

"Quebec."

Q. Is this your handwriting?—A. This is my handwriting and this is my signature.

Q. Did you get an answer to this letter either from Mr. Armstrong or Mr. McGreevy?—A. I do not know. All I know is that these papers were handed back some one or two years ago to Mr. Armstrong, and I never knew what those envelopes contained

Q. Do you remember what were the demands of Mr. Thomas McGreevy at the time?—A. No; I do not remember. I might have tried to make peace between them; I have no recollection.

Q. I find, on looking at page 33 of the Blue-Book (Exhibit "N 5"), that you made a report to Council about the Cross-wall tender, and that Mr. John Gallagher was declared by you to be the lowest tenderer?—A. Yes. I will give the list; it is here.

Q. I want you to inform me of the fact whether he was the lowest tenderer?—A. Yes; he was the lowest tenderer.

Q. Did you ever ask Mr. John Gallagher to come to Ottawa and sign that contract?—A. No; of course not.

Q. Was there any reason?—A. The reason why he was not called is given in the letter on page 1055 of the Evidence, dated the 16th of May.

Q. Before the 16th of May, did you ever ask Mr. John Gallagher to go to Ottawa to sign the contract?—A. Of course not; on the 16th of May he wrote me this letter, and it was only on the 17th May—the next day—that Mr. Perley wrote Mr. Gallagher, Mr. Beaucage and Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. the letter in which he called upon them to say whether they had made errors, and so on; and later on, when Mr. Perley made his report, an Order in Council was passed. Therefore, we could not call upon Mr. Gallagher previous to the 16th May to do this, for this reason, in the first place, that the Engineer wrote to him on the 17th, asking him whether he had made errors; secondly, I would point out that the report of the Chief Engineer was made to me later on as seen by the Order in Council in which the work was granted to Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Q. You said that you never got these figures and tenders before you before the 17th May?—A. No.

Q. Were these tenders opened during the first days of the month—the 1st or 2nd of May, 1883?—A. That I cannot say, because, as far as I can recollect—and I think I am not mistaken—these tenders were received and opened in Quebec by the Harbour Commissioners.

Q. What I mean to ask is this: Is it not a fact that these tenders were sent off to Ottawa on the 1st or 2nd of May, 1883?—A. That I do not know.

Q. And then examined by you and your officers?—A. No.

Q. Is it a fact or not that these tenders were sent up to Ottawa during the first days of May—that is to say, the 1st or 2nd of May?—A. That I cannot say, because I have no data before me to show it.

Q. Assuming that they have been sent on the 1st or 2nd of May, did you see these tenders before 17th of May?—A. No.

Q. You are quite sure about that?—A. I am quite sure about it. The only thing that was put before me was a verbal statement, as I stated just now, by Mr. Perley.

Q. I would call your attention to the letter on page 417, (Exhibit "H 11.") :

" OTTAWA, 16th May, 1883.

" DEAR SIR,—I duly received your letter of the 5th instant on the subject of the tender submitted by you for the construction of the proposed Cross-wall in connection with the Quebec Harbour works—and have communicated it to the Chief Engineer of the Department, Mr. Perley.

" The schedule of tenders has been handed to the Honourable the Minister.

" I am, Dear Sir, yours very truly,

" SIMON PETERS, Esq.,

" G. F. BAILLAIRGÉ.

" Quebec."

A. Mr. Bailliaré put that there without warrant. It was not so, because these tenders were in the hands of the Chief Engineer, as I have stated just now.

Q. I would again call your attention to page 156, and read what follows :
" The tenders were forwarded to the Department of Public Works at Ottawa and received there. Why these tenders were placed in my hands, as they were schedules of prices and tenders to which quantities had to be applied—whether they were placed in my hands for that purpose or not I do not remember. The plans were prepared by the late Mr. Boyd, an assistant of the Department, who took out all the quantities required for the preparation of the schedule. I am aware that those tenders were placed in his hands, that he prepared the schedule, and he discovered the errors in three of the tenders, marking those errors on the margin of the schedule sheet. I believe it is in evidence; he called my attention thereto, and as it was my duty to do so, I laid that schedule sheet before the Minister of Public Works and discussed with him the errors that had been detected, and that unless those errors were cleared up in some way it was impossible to make a comparison between the three tenders which were incomplete and the two tenders that were complete." After having discussed, as he says, these schedules with you, he wrote his letter of the 17th of May, did he not?—A. The first thing is this ———

Q. That is a pretty fair question. I believe you had those figures before you on the 17th of May?—A. That is a discussion and not a question. There was an argument afterwards that made me forget your question. To that I say this: That Mr. Perley put before me the schedule sheet—that is to say, the names of the contractors, and then all the different columns containing the prices for each item, and the extension of them. That, I have no doubt, he brought before me.

Q. Before the 17th of May?—A. I have no doubt he brought that before me, most likely on the 17th or the 16th. I have no doubt about that; but I would not go into that. I knew nothing about these figures, and all that. That was a technical thing that I had nothing to do with. I have no doubt he called my attention to what he says there, that he had discovered, or that Mr. Boyd had, the errors, and marked them on the edge of the receipt; and upon that he went away. As he says: "At that discussion I have no doubt no direction was required, but as it is the course I have always pursued in cases of tenders, I have no doubt that was done."

Q. Having this schedule and figures before you, you could clearly see that Gallagher's tender was the lowest?—A. If the additions had all been made, perhaps I might.

Q. Were they not made as Mr. Perley says?—A. I do not know.

Q. Is it possible that what Mr. Perley says is true or not?—A. What portion of it?

Q. All that I have read. (Reads again.)—A. Therefore, he had not made the additions and did not show me which was the lowest of these three.

Q. Do you swear that when these schedules and tenders were shown to you, on the 16th of May or before, that the additions were not made?—A. I do not remember that they were made. You must see that Mr. Perley said further down, on page 157: "Q. All this is not evidence, Mr. Perley?—A. I know that, but I am speaking a little in justification of myself, because I have been attacked in this matter pretty plainly. These letters, with my copies, went in to the Minister, and I altered in 'red,' on the schedule sheet, the Beaucage tender. All the columns were added up, because the addition is in my handwriting, but the body of the schedule is in the handwriting of Mr. Boyd. It was then sent forward to the Minister with these schedules." This would show that I was right when I said I did not remember that they were added.

By Mr. Davies:

Q. It shows they were added?—A. They were added afterwards. He says he sends the letters written on the 17th, and the answers came later on, showing they were added afterwards.

By Mr. Tarte:

Q. Is it not the fact that after Mr. Perley received answers from Gallagher, Beaucage, and Larkin, Connolly & Co., that new additions or alterations to suit the case were made to that very schedule of rates?—A. He says himself he made the alterations in "red." "These letters, with my copies, went in to the Minister, and I altered in red on the schedule sheet the Beaucage tender." That came afterwards.

Q. That is to say, when he got the answer from Beaucage amending his first tender Mr. Perley himself amended the schedule of rates that had been prepared before the 16th. Is it so or not?—A. Yes; Beaucage's letter is dated the 21st of May.

Q. Do you not see, Sir Hector, on that schedule of rates (Exhibit "X3.") See Schedule A, Appendix No. 2 to the Evidence, being figures written with red ink in this way, "$19, $17, $15.75," and are not those figures just the same as you find in Mr. Beaucage's answer, dated the 21st of May, 1883?—A. Yes.

Q. Was not your attention called to those tenders in a special way? On the 7th of May did you not receive a letter from Mr. Peters, which reads as follows: "MY DEAR SIR HECTOR,—I am this moment in receipt of yours of the 7th instant; I will have to do as you say, run my chance.

"I would now ask your favourable consideration of my tender for Cross-wall; we are the only parties having all the plant required for immediate carrying out of this work. The experience acquired in constructing the Louise Embankment fits us in a special manner for the successful performance of this contract; besides, Colonel Moore, with whom I am associated, has had much experience in the building of cofferdams, which would be of great advantage in the present work.

"Trusting that it will be in your power to award me the above contract, as being a continuation of the work I commenced, including the ballast wharf in 1864." Was not such a letter of a nature to call your attention to these tenders in a special way?—A. I caused a search to be made for this letter in the Department, and it is not there.

Q. Have you got any doubt that you ever received such a letter?—A. I do not know whether I received it or not; but, nevertheless, I will answer your question. This letter of Mr. Peters is similar to those which I have been in the habit of receiving every time there is a big contract to be awarded. Contractors would write, asking that their tender should be specially looked into, and they would get their friends, influential men, to write, recommending them as good contractors, and so on. But these were letters of a confidential character, which would not be filed in the Department, but be referred to only if the tender was found to be a proper one.

Q. On the same page I find a letter written by you on the 7th May, 1883, to Mr. Peters, in which you say: "Your letter of the 26th reached me some days ago, but it was impossible for me to answer you before to-day. I cannot fix a day to have an interview with you. If you want to see me during the session you must run your chance, inasmuch as I cannot foresee from day to day whether I shall be free the following day or not."

Was there not a letter dated Quebec, 9th May, received by you in answer to this, your letter of the 7th May?—A. It seems to be so, but that letter of mine would not be an official letter or it would be in the Department.

Q. I think the Department sent down the cheques deposited on the Cross-wall tenders on the 30th of May, 1883. On page 86 of the Evidence I think you will find that?—A. Yes.

Q. In a letter dated Ottawa, 30th May, 1883, you will find this: "I return herewith the tenders forwarded with your letter of the 2nd instant, and the cheques enclosed with those offers, with the exception of that submitted by Mr. Gallagher, which is retained, pending the taking of the necessary steps for its proper disposal." Can you tell us the reason why all the cheques were not sent down—why the Secretary was instructed to retain the cheque of Mr. Gallagher?—A. I know nothing about that.

Q. That cheque was sent on the 9th of June, 1883. At page 85 it appears that on that very same day Mr. Ennis sent the cheque down to Quebec. The letter states: "An Order in Council having issued to allow Mr. John Gallagher to withdraw his tender for the construction of the proposed Cross-wall, Quebec Harbor works, and return him the bank cheque for $7,500 submitted with his offer, I am directed to enclose herewith the cheque in question, to be transmitted by you to Mr. Gallagher." Can you explain how it is that the cheque from Gallagher has been kept longer than the other cheques in the Public Works Department at the time?—A. No; I do not know.

Q. You stated yesterday that you had no knowledge whatever that Larkin, Connolly & Co., Beaucage and Gallagher were, as a matter of fact, the same tenderers?—A. No. As to the cheque, as matter of fact, I do not know why the cheque was delayed; I do not know whether the Order in Council said whether the deposit should be returned.

Q. At any rate, there is no difficulty about this fact, that you saw the schedule of rates when it was added up, as Mr. Perley states?—A. No; that is not it. He says that he put a schedule of prices of rates before me when he came about these errors in the three tenders; the schedule of prices, of course, would teach me nothing.

Q. My question is this: When Beaucage had amended his tender were those figures so that the schedule of rates would appear before you, as Mr. Perley says? Mr. Perley stated here that it was forwarded to the Minister?—A. He might have done so; it did not strike me at all. I would take his report of these tenders as I would take it in the case of all tenders.

Q. Is it the Chief Engineer himself, or the Minister himself, after a report is made, who decides upon the contract?—A. That is, after the tenders are opened?

Q. When the Chief Engineer had made his report to you, are you the party who decides the question between the different tenderers?—A. When the Chief Engineer makes his report he states the case, and recommends that such a tender be accepted or be rejected. If it is only to accept the lowest tender, then it goes in a report to the Council. On the other hand, if he says we should pass over one tender or two tenders, I report that to the Council, and I leave the Council to decide whether it is to be so or not.

Q. In this case you had ascertained yourself that so-called errors had been made?—A. I was well aware of the errors.

Q. You knew about the Gallagher tender?—A. Gallagher had withdrawn his tender before he was called upon to correct it.

Q. You see that on the 17th May Mr. Perley wrote to Gallagher, Beaucage, and Larkin, Connolly & Co., informing them of the errors?—A. Yes.

Q. Then after the answers came you surely looked over the answers?—A. Well, I did not read the answers. Mr. Perley having received the answers, told me what the answers were. First, Gallagher had sent a letter before receiving his own letter. Then Beaucage sent a letter in which he wanted the changes made. These changes were so-and-so, and they would bring up his tender to so-and-so; and then after that Larkin, Connolly & Co. answered that they had made errors, but that they would not change their tender.

Q. Then you state that Mr. Perley told you that Beaucage's figures were so-and-so? By looking at the schedules of the rates, does it not strike you at first sight that Mr. Beaucage's figures are fictitious figures?—A. I do not know that.

Q. He put $19 for work that other contractors would put at $9 or $10?—A. I did not compare these things. I never looked at these calculations; it was not my business; it was the business of the Chief Engineer. I am a layman in matters of this kind, and he was a scientific man.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that in Mr. Perley's letter and in his report he says these people have made evident errors that made it impossible to compare their tenders with other people's tenders that had properly tendered. I ask you if you have any recollection of having seen these figures?—A. No; they might have been put before me. I did not test them, but to say that I went through the figures and compared, I never did that in my life.

The Committee then adjourned till 3.30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, 12th August, 3.30 p.m.

SIR HECTOR LANGEVIN'S cross-examination resumed.

WITNESS.—This morning there was a letter that Mr. Tarte put in my hands—that private letter which I wrote to Mr. Robert McGreevy. I wish to add to what I said then, that I did not know what was in those two envelopes that were in my hands. They were sealed. They had been put in my hands for safe-keeping, and by the outside appearance of them evidently they must have been papers, and not bank notes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Were those envelopes opened before you?—A. No. I thought you had an idea of that kind, and as I wanted to dispel every bad idea from your mind I made that explanation now.

Q. At page 17 of the Evidence, in a letter from Mr. Thomas McGreevy, dated 17th May, 1883 (Exhibit "D2,") he says: "As I told you yesterday to try and get a good plan, and as quick as possible, in answer to the letter that Gallagher and Beaucage will receive about their tenders to bring them over L. & C., so as their tender will be the lowest." Are you in a position to tell us from what source Mr. McGreevy could know that a letter was going to be sent to Gallagher and Beaucage?—A. No; I cannot—except this, that it did not come from me.

Q. By looking at page 39 of the Evidence you find that on that very same day, the 17th of May, 1883 (Exhibit "T2"), the letter that Mr. McGreevy knows about is addressed to Beaucage, Larkin, Connolly & Co., and Gallagher. Again, could you not, by looking into that fact, tell us from what source Mr. Thomas McGreevy could know such a letter was going to be sent?—A. No; I see the two letters are of the same date, that is all.

Q. At that date the schedule, according to Mr. Baillairgé's letters and Mr. Perley's evidence, was in your hands. It was read this morning.—A. I have stated already that it was not so. I stated so this morning.

Q. Then these two men are wrong?—A. In so far as Mr. Baillairgé is concerned, who was my officer, when he stated that the schedule of tenders has been handed to the hon. the Minister, the schedule of tenders was not in my hands.

Q. As a matter of fact, who else than Mr. Perley and yourself could give information about such a fact?—A. Mr. Boyd might. Then, any clerk that had to do with the writing of the letter.

Q. Who were the clerks that had to do with the writing of the letters?—A. That I do not know.

Q. You do not remember?—A. I do not know.

Q. We have the originals of the letters, and they are in Mr. Perley's handwriting.—A. That might be.

Q. Who else, then, than Mr. Perley? I do not say you did.—A. No; because I say I did not.

Q. And we are bound to accept your evidence. Who else than you?—A. I stated Mr. Boyd might.

Q. Mr. Boyd did not write the letters, and he is a dead man.—A. Nevertheless, if you allow me; Mr. Boyd may have done it in this way: When he spoke to the Engineer, because Mr. Perley says so, he called the attention of the Engineer-in-Chief to the fact that these three tenders of Gallagher, Beaucage, and Larkin, Connolly & Co., were faulty; that there were errors, and that he should call their attention to them. That being so, Mr. Boyd may have stated to Mr. McGreevy, who was one of the Harbour Commissioners, and evidently saw Mr. Boyd more than once, that he had called the attention of the Chief Engineer to the three lowest tenders, and he has to write to them. But, of course, I do not know.

Q. You do not know anything about it?—A. No.

Q. You did not know, of course, that the letter of the 17th of May was ever written until you saw it published?—A. Of course not. I never heard of it.

Q. At page 20 of the Blue-Book (Exhibit "N 5"), I see that Mr. Perley in a memorandum to you says: "I called on the 17th May, 1883, the attention of the parties herein named to the error, and asked them to state whether an error had or had not been made, and if so, to name a price per lineal foot in the line of the work to enable me to compare their tender with others who had given prices in accordance with the requirements of the tender." What I mean to ask is this: There were three tenderers who were not in accordance with the requirements of the tender itself, as he says. That is to say, Larkin, Connolly & Co.'s tender, Beaucage's tender, and Gallagher's tender?—A. Yes.

Q. What I mean to ask you is this, you stated this morning and the public documents state that Larkin, Connolly & Co. did not amend their tender?—A. Yes, that is the answer I gave.

Q. You said that you found yourself able to grant the tender, to award the contract to people who did not tender in accordance with the specifications?—A. Well, they had tendered, but they had mistaken the meaning of that clause or that portion of the clause. Nevertheless when their attention was called to it they said: "Notwithstanding the error we will stand by our figures."

Q. Very well, Mr. Minister, is it not a fact that you allowed Mr. Perley to write a letter on the 7th May, just because the tenders were not properly drawn up?—A. The understanding was that he should write as he has written many times to tenderers calling their attention to those errors that he thought existed there, and asking them what they had to say. That is all. He went no further than that in the matter, but that is his action, not mine.

Q. You have no other explanation than that?—A. No. I may say this, that more than once you will find in tenders a tenderer who believes that there will be only a small quantity of a certain article or a certain work in a building or in an undertaking, and he puts a very low, a ridiculously low price on it, because he does not want that to be counted against him.

Q. Is it not a fact that in this case these were evident errors, as Mr. Perley says?—A. In view of Mr. Perley they were so.

Q. By your own view in a report to the Privy Council adopted in May, 1883, you said that it was an evident error?—A. Perhaps so.

Q. I want you to see the Order in Council at page 33 of the Blue-Book (Exhibit "N 5") and say whether it is not stated that the Minister observes on examining the tenders it was found that Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., Gallagher, and Beaucage, had made evident errors in their prices for sheet piling?—A. Yes, it is there.

Q. Is it the Minister who decides the acceptance or rejection of tenders as a rule?—A. No, the Minister has only to report to the Council, it is Council that accepts or rejects.

Q. Very well, is it not a fact that the Minister makes a report to the Council?—A. Yes.

Q. And the Council then decides?—A. Yes.

Q. He approves and reports to the Council?—A. Yes; and when he disapproves.

Q. When he disapproves I don't believe that he makes a report to the Council?—A. Yes, in certain cases.

Q. In this case did you approve or disapprove?—A. I took the report of Mr. Perley and recommended accordingly.

Q. In Mr. Perley's evidence at page 157, I find that he says: "I must state I have nothing to do with the accepting or rejecting of a tender." Is that true or not?—A. Yes, he is right there. If a tenderer wishes to withdraw his tender the matter is brought before the Minister if he asks at the proper time, and not at the time that he is called upon to sign the contract but, before that time, the tenderer is allowed to withdraw his tender.

Q. I see in Mr. Perley's evidence, at page 157, he says: "These letters with my copies went in to the Minister, and I altered in red on the schedule sheet the Beaucage tender." I want to call your attention again to this fact, because this morning we could not understand each other well. Do you think that Mr. Perley is right or not?—A. What is your question?

Q. What I want to know is whether you had been aware at the time Mr. Perley called attention to the alterations in the figures in red as he said, and whether you saw those figures. He said they were sent to you; did you see them or not?—A. I don't remember that I saw them. I know that he told me that he had received them.

Q. You don't remember if, as he says, he sent them forward to you?—A. No; I see he says these letters went in to the Minister; he might have brought them himself.

Q. He says: "These letters with my copy went in to the Minister, and I altered in red on the schedule sheet the Beaucage tender. All the columns were added up, because the addition is in my handwriting, but the body of the schedule is in the handwriting of Mr. Boyd. It was then sent forward to the Minister. That is my connection with these schedules?"—A. I have no doubt he did that; he probably sent them in.

Q. You made your report without having received that schedule sheet?—A. I made my report on his report.

Q. But after having seen that schedule sheet?—A. I suppose I did.

Q. There is a point that is not very clear in my mind. It is this—your memorandum of the 26th of May, 1883, has the following: "The Minister observes that on examining the tenders, it is found that Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., Gallagher and Beaucage had made evident errors in their prices for 'sheet piling'—and in Mr. Beaucage's case for 'pile driving.' That Mr. Gallagher adheres to the prices mentioned in his offer, but desires to withdraw it, he having taken another contract." What I want to know is how before that date, Gallagher, who was so far the lowest tenderer, was not called upon to sign the contract with you?—A. The thing is this. When these tenders came up from Quebec, from the Harbour Commissioners (they had been opened there by the Commissioners,) they were received by the Chief Engineer here, and Mr. Boyd went on to extend them. When he had done that, the schedule of tenders, as extended, was handed to the Chief Engineer, and his attention was called to the errors in these three tenders—the first three. Then Mr. Perley, the Chief Engineer, wrote to these men to know how it was—whether they had made these errors and so on. Then the answer came, and it was after that that the Chief Engineer reported to me how things were situated—the status of each of these tenderers and making his recommendation. On that I reported to Council, and after the Council had passed the Order in Council, then the time came to make an offer to the tenderer whose tender had been accepted by the Council. The Order in Council was dated the 28th of May, 1883, but long before that—12 days before that—Mr. Gallagher, on the 16th, had already withdrawn his tender, because he had taken some other contract. Therefore no offer could be made to Gallagher to take a contract which he had already refused.

Q. You say Mr. Gallagher had withdrawn his tender; it was on the 16th of May he wrote that letter?—A. Yes, his letter is that date.

Q. Why did not you answer him immediately that you were prepared to accept that withdrawal?—A. That went to Mr. Perley; not to me.

Q. You had nothing to do with that?—A. No.

Q. Then when Mr. Perley says all the answers he received were sent forward to you, he is mistaken?—A. He must have been that later on.

Q. You have no other explanation to give?—A. What can I?

Q. As you have already stated, Mr. Baillargé was wrong too, when he said you had the tenders before you on the 16th of May?—A. I stated at the time what I stated. It could not be. Mr. Baillargé was in error, evidently, because his letter is dated the 16th of May, and Gallagher wrote on the 16th from Quebec. Besides that, on the 17th of May—the next day—Mr. Perley, who had the schedule in his hands, and who was trying to find out whether there were errors, was writing these letters below. Therefore, he had all the documents in his hands.

Q. Do you swear that on the 17th May that you saw Gallagher's letter, which was written in Montreal on the 16th?—A. I do not swear anything of the kind because I think that letter only came to me when the answers from Beaucage and Larkin, Connolly & Co. had come back and Mr. Perley had had time to mark that in the schedule. Therefore I cannot swear what you ask me. Mr. Baillaigé must be perfectly wrong in this.

Q. I do not see any answer in any public document, between the 16th and 28th of May, to Gallagher's letter?—A. That may be.

Q. Are you in a position to give us any answer that might have been sent to Mr. Gallagher from the Department?—A. I say this—Mr. Gallagher answered on the 16th of May, therefore I could not have seen that letter on the 17th myself because it was not written to me. It was written to Mr. Perley and the reason why there is no answer from the Department is because it was not written to the Department. It was written to the Chief Engineer himself.

Q. You do not consider, then, that Mr. Perley, although the Chief Engineer, belongs to your Department?—A. Certainly, he belongs to my Department. I stated yesterday in my statement, that in the Department of Public Works last year we received about 30,000 letters, or sent them. The Departmental correspondence—the letters that we sent last year, was 7,286; the Chief Engineer's correspondence—what Mr. Perley sent, 4,045, and the Chief Architect's 7,751, showing that these letters of the Chief Engineer and the Chief Architect are letters of their own as heads of branches for the works under their control, and, therefore, this letter that the Chief Engineer sent to Gallagher was a letter that was sent from the Chief Engineer's branch, and the answer that he received was to himself, and not to the Department.

Q. Then you say you did not see these letters?—A. I did not see them then—no.

Q. Then you had only to base your opinion on the report and the opinion of Mr. Perley himself? Is that what you want to convey?—A. I say this—when Mr. Perley made his report he told me all about those letters; what he had done; what was their result, and he put that in writing and that was his report.

Q. When Mr. Perley says that these letters "with my copies" (meaning his copie.) were sent officially to you, does he say the truth or not?—A. It depends altogether on the date.

Q. My question is there.—A. I say it depends altogether on the date.

Q. Look at page 157 and you will see there to whom I allude.—A. He does not say there that these letters were sent at a certain period. He explains: "I know that, but I am speaking a little in justification of myself, because I have been attacked in this matter pretty plainly. These letters, with my copies," that is, copies of letters to them, "went in to the Minister, and I altered in red, on the schedule sheet the Beaucage tender." By that it is evident that Mr. Perley had already sent his letters to these tenderers and he had already received their answers. Then what did he do? "All the columns were added up, because the addition is in my handwriting, but the body of the schedule is in the handwriting of Mr. Boyd. It was then sent forward to the Minister. That is my connection with these schedules." I have no doubt that is correct.

Q. Can you tell us when the first tenders were asked for the British Columbia Dock?—A. I will have to refer to the Blue-Book (Exhibit "N 5.")

Q. Was it not in 1882 or 1884?—A. The memorandum of Mr. Perley is this: "On a memorandum dated 17th April, 1884, from the Minister of Public Works, submitting that in answer to public advertisements two tenders have been received for the completion of the Graving Dock at Esquimalt, B.C."

Q. On these tenders it was decided that one was too high and the other was too low?—A. Yes, and an Order in Council was passed to that effect.

Q. If I am not mistaken, the tender that was too high was Messrs. Baskerville & Co.'s?—A. Yes.

Q. And that tender was for $465,309?—A. Yes.

Q. And that of Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly was for $315,240?—A. Yes.

Q. I think from a memorandum from you, dated 17th April, 1884, these two tenders were decided one to be too low in your estimation and the other too high?
—A. Yes. On my memorandum the Order-in-Council was passed.

Q. Is it not a fact that Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly asked at the time to amend their tender?—A. I think so.

Q. Is it not a fact that they asked at the time to increase their tender by about $25,000?—A. I see that by letters of theirs here.

Q. Look at Mr. Perley's report, at page 35 of the Blue-Book (Exhibit "N 5")?—A. I read: "With reference to this last tender it may be stated that on the 19th March last Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly write that on looking over the duplicate of their tender they had discovered clerical errors which amount to about $25,000, and they ask to be permitted to amend and thus increase their tender by that amount, and if not permitted to do so they desire to withdraw their tender and have their cheque returned." That is so.

Q. It was decided by you that the tender was too low and could not be adopted?—A. It was reported by Mr. Perley that it was so, and I made a report to that effect to Council, and Council concurred in that report.

Q. Can you tell us what is the final estimate, or final cost, that has been paid for that work to Larkin, Connolly & Co.? To expedite matters, I will refer you to page 142 of the Evidence. You will find there a letter from Mr. Perley as follows: "Herewith I enclose for payment an amended final estimate, amounting to $581,727.80 gross, for work done and material supplied by Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., for the construction of the Graving Dock at Esquimalt, B.C., up to 31st December, 1887?"—A. I read that there.

Q. Do you know what the profits of Larkin, Connolly & Co. have been on that British Columbia work?—A. No.

Q. We have got in evidence here that those profits for the five partners have been for each of them $48,195.81. That is to say, for the five partners, $240,979.05, besides $41,750.48, making in all, $282,729.53?—A. I know nothing about that.

Q. Assuming that it is the fact, how could Mr. Perley in 1883 say that such a tender as Messrs. Starrs and O'Hanly's was too low?—A. I do not know what calculations he made.

Q. On Mr. Perley's report, new tenders were called for?—A. Yes, new tenders were called for.

Q. Who were the new tenderers?
Mr. DALY objected.

A. Well, Mr. Tarte, you ask if I can give the names of the tenderers for the second lot of tenders called; if you look at page 36 of the Blue-Book, (Exhibit "N 5"), there they are. Starrs & O'Hanly were amongst the tenderers, Larkin, Connolly & Co. were amongst the tenderers. Starrs & O'Hanly, in both columns, were the lowest; then Larkin, Connolly & Co. came next; they were the next lowest in both columns.

Q. Did you have any communication with Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly about these tenders?—A. I do not think I saw them personally, I do not think so. But there were some letters that passed, one or two, I think, before the tender was accepted by Council. I think there were one or two tenders.

Q. Did you see Mr. P. Baskerville, who was a member of the Ontario Legislature at the time?—A. I think he came once to see me.

Q. About the second tenders?—A. No; I think it was about the first batch of tenders.

Q. Do you remember sending telegrams to Messrs. Baker and Shakespeare, who were members of the House for Victoria, B.C., I think?—A. I do not remember that. Unless it would be the ordinary business of the Department, I do not know. There would be the telegrams there if they related to the ordinary business.

Q. I must ask if you have got these telegrams?—A. If you want telegrams from me, you will have to wait a long time for them, because I never keep private telegrams; any others would be in the Department.

Q. Would telegrams sent to Messrs. Baker and Shakespeare about the B.C. Dock relate to the business of the Department?—A. It would depend altogether on the matter.

Q. You have no recollection of these telegrams?—A. No.

Q. What was the reason for asking for new tenders at the time?—A. The reason was this: that we had made an arrangement when Sir Alexander Campbell came back from British Columbia. He reported to Council what he had done and the Order in Council sanctioned his report, and by that he had made arrangements with the British Columbia Government to take over the Dock.

Q. If you will allow me, we are wasting time, I think. My question is this, what was the reason for the second tenders being asked?—A. The reason was, that the first tenders were to be set aside, and that we were bound by the arrangements with British Columbia, to call for a new tender to go on with the work.

Q. Did you not give as the reason that you wanted rubble backing to be substituted for concrete backing? Is not this the reason why the second tenders were asked for?—A. No, the fact that we had to put aside the first tender might have given an opportunity for doing that, but that was not the reason. If the first tenders had been high enough and not too high, we would have accepted one of them, no doubt.

Q. Did you authorize the report from Mr. Perley dated 9th May, which appears on page 89 of the Evidence?—A. No, I did not.

Q. You have just stated that the reason that you called for new tenders was not the fact that you wanted to substitute rubble backing for concrete backing?—A. No.

Q. You are quite sure of it?—A. I say this: That was not the reason. The reason was that the first tender being too high or too low, we had to call for new tenders according to our arrangement with British Columbia, and the Chief Engineer might have taken this opportunity of changing his specifications.

Q. You have just stated that you never authorized the Chief Engineer to make a report on the Baskerville tender?—A. I am not aware that this was authorized by me. Mr. Perley, if you will allow me, makes his reports as he thinks they should be made. I do not control Mr. Perley in his reports. He made his reports as he found the case to be. If the opinion of the Minister or the opinion of the Council was different, the reports were not accepted and he did something else.

Q. Did you authorize that letter from Mr. Perley to Mr. Trutch of the 26th of May, 1884 (Exhibit "A 7") which appears at page 153 of the Evidence?—A. I have no doubt the instructions given there by Mr. Perley to Mr. Trutch were the result of a conference between Mr. Perley and myself.

Q. In that letter you say that rubble backing would be substituted for concrete backing, and it is the reason why you are just asking for new tenders?—A. No. As I have told you already, the Chief Engineer took that opportunity to change the specification and the plan of the Dock in order to make it more to his taste, believing it to be better for the work.

Q. Do you know if that rubble backing has been kept or if some change has been made about it?—A. I do not know that. I did not attend to these details; they were under the direction of the Chief Engineer.

Q. You do not know at all if the backing of the Dock at Esquimalt is concrete or rubble backing, or anything else?—A. It must be what the Chief Engineer ordered it to be.

Q. But, personally, you do not know what it is?—A. Personally, I cannot tell you that any more than I could tell you that for all the other works in the Dominion.

Q. You do not remember having given any orders about that yourself?—A. Seeing this letter of Mr. Perley (Exhibit "A 7"), and the way it has come, I have no doubt the conversation I had with him was in that direction.

Q. Did you give any orders later on with reference to any change?—A. I do not remember that.

Q. You do not remember, either, I suppose, what took place about the reduction on the plant; do you remember any particulars about that?—A. I have stated already what I have stated about that. I stated it twice.

Q. I want only to add one question on this point. Will you refer to page 193, and say if, when Mr. Perley made that reduction to Larkin, Connolly & Co., you were made aware of it at the time? Were you made aware of the fact that Mr. Perley had deducted in round figures $20,000 for the plant?—A. No. I have stated that already.

Q. When did you know that first?—A. I do not think my attention was called to the matter at all until these proceedings of yours were taken, because that was in the final estimate, and he added the $19,000 to the price to be paid to these men.

Q. Do you know if before that final estimate was made, the monthly deduction that was agreed upon had been kept going on?—A. Yes.

Q. All the time?—A. All the time with the exception of the first payment, because at that time the contractors asked as they had a large amount to meet—a large outlay—that the deduction should be from only the second estimate and so on until the 13th pay-list.

Q. You remember that all the $50,000 was paid?—A. They were deducted from the monthly estimates.

Q. And Mr. Perley took it upon himself to deduct that amount later on?—A. Yes, on the final estimate.

Q. And you were never told anything about it until you heard it from him as you say?—A. Yes. You have in these books the report of Mr. Perley, for the month of January—I do not remember the date exactly—in which he mentions that later on there might be some negotiations between the contractors and the Government or the Department, but he did not mention the $19,000 there.

Q. And he did not mention that to you?—A. No.

Q. Then he is the only party responsible for the deduction?—A. Yes, he says so himself.

By Mr. German :

Q. He does not say so here?—A. He said so himself and his evidence is here.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Who was your Engineer on that Dock in British Columbia?—A. Mr. Trutch was our Agent, being an engineer himself, and Mr. Bennett was there receiving his instructions from Mr. Trutch, who in turn received such instructions as were required from Mr. Perley in Ottawa.

Q. Then you were communicating with Mr. Trutch only, not with Mr. Bennett?—A. We communicated with Mr. Trutch.

Q. Have you got any recollection of complaints that may have been made against Mr. Bennett by Mr. Thomas McGreevy on the 2nd May, 1885?—A. There may have been; I do not remember them. I stated yesterday that I could not remember how in the first instance this matter was brought to me, but I said that Mr. Perley spoke to me about it and we had the conversation that I put in my statement.

Q. What I want to ask is this: Did Mr. Thomas McGreevy at the beginning of May, 1885, make complaints to you against Mr. Bennett?—A. That I do not remember at all.

Q. Were there on the 1st May, 1885, any other complaints with you against Mr. Bennett?—A. I am not aware of that. As far as I can recollect the complaint came once, and then Mr. Perley spoke to me about it and I told him what I stated yesterday.

Q. From whom did that complaint come?—A. I tried to remember it when I was making my statement, but I could not remember who it came from.

Q. On the 1st May, 1885, were there any estimates behind in connection with that British Columbia Dock?—A. I cannot say that at all.

Q. When you have stated this morning that Mr. McGreevy was acting for the Union Bank, did you mean to say that when he made a complaint on the 2nd May, 1885, that he was acting for the bank?—A. As I do not know that he made a complaint on the 2nd May, I cannot say that.

Q. You have no recollection whatever about that?—A. No. Of course, I do not say he has not, because I have no recollection of it.

Q. Was there ever any complaint made against Mr. Bennett by any other party than Mr. McGreevy, that you can remember?—A. I told you that I did not remember that Mr. McGreevy made any complaint. I can answer that in that way, but I am not aware that anyone else came to me but Mr. Perley.

Q. In his letter of the 2nd May Mr. McGreevy says: "He asked if I could recommend one. Could you think of one that would suit, and I would have the Minister appoint him." Do you remember having had any conversation with Mr. McGreevy about that matter to this effect?—A. No. I stated yesterday everything I remembered about that—my conversation with Mr. Perley and his going to Mr. Page, talking to him about it, and Mr. Page not recommending anyone; and from that moment the thing dropped.

Q. Do you say you had no conversation with Mr. Williams about that affair?—A. I do not remember Mr. Williams speaking to me.

Q. You do not remember him at all?—A. Yes; he was employed at that time as an extra clerk by Parliament here, and he was put there on my recommendation. I knew the man was in great want and I thought he could do that work here; but I would not have recommended him to be the Engineer in British Columbia for this work.

Q. Did you give him any other employment?—A. Later on he was employed in the North-West.

Q. Was he employed by your Department?—A. Yes, by my Department.

Q. How long was he employed by you?—A. He must have been employed for perhaps three months—perhaps more.

Q. In what capacity?—A. As an Engineer. Mr. Williams was, I think, a graduate at West Point.

Q. You have stated yesterday that the only changes that took place in that Dock amounted to $53,000?—A. That is the report of the experts appointed by the Committee.

Q. Do you know that the contract was given for that Dock for $374,000?—A. I think those are the figures.

Q. I have just put before you the final estimate amounting to $581,000. How can you account for that big margin?—A. By the different work that was ordered.

Q. What were those works?—A. I cannot say that. I asked the other day one of the Engineers of my Department to give me a statement of the difference between the two. The estimated amount of tender was $374,000—

Q. Will you kindly tell us who that Engineer was?—A. Mr. Coste.

Q. Was he there on the works?—A. I think he went there; but he had the data under his hand and made this report.

Q. Are you yourself in a position to give us an account of those works?—A. I asked Mr. Coste—

Mr. DAVIES objected.

The CHAIRMAN—I will allow the answer for this reason: We have had so much hearsay evidence admitted here—statements not under oath—that I feel inclined to allow this answer.

A. (After having question read.) Some time ago I saw the difference stated between the tender as accepted and the amount of the final estimate, and on that I asked my officer to give me a statement of the whole. I wished to be au fait of the reason why there was a difference of $206,000 between these two amounts, and I told him to give me a statement to that effect. That is exactly the thing that as head of the Department I had a right to ask from my officer, that I should obtain from him and thus inform myself. Thus, I may say, that having confidence in my officer I have no reason to believe that the figures he gave me were incorrect. On the contrary, I believe them to be correct. That being so, I will give to the Committee his statement, as I cannot really keep in my mind the figures and some technical words. Therefore, I say this, that the estimated amount of the tender, as Mr. Tarte said, is $374,559.33. The amount of the final estimate was $581,527.80. The difference between the final estimate and the amount of the tender is $206,968.47. Now, to make this difference of $206,968.47 between the final estimate and the amount tendered there are these figures:

Extra work not in tender.....	$ 47,584 95
Keel blocks, special agreement.....	2,469 00
Then the allowance on plant.....	19,927 13

These three items form a sum of $69,981.08, reducing the difference to $136,987.39. This extra amount is made up as follows:

Extra earth and rock excavation.....	$ 44,400 00
Recoursing of stone.....	41,200 00
Substitute of stone for brick.....	5,800 00

That is the sum that was mentioned as being six thousand dollars.

Extra due to circular head. That was when the second entrance was removed and we finished it in a circular head, as the other docks in the country are, $31,500.

Extra due to augmentation in other quantities, $14,087.39, making a total of these five items of $136,987.39; so it covers the whole ground.

Q. I see, Sir Director, that amongst these figures is a sum of $41,000 for recursing?

—A. Yes.

Q. Will you kindly refer to page 694 of the Evidence to a letter written by Mr. Perley on the 24th February, 1885 (Exhibit "Y 13"); "I am directed by the Honourable the Minister to inform you that the question of substituting granite for sandstone in portions of the Graving Dock at Esquimalt has been considered by the Privy Council, and that a decision adverse to your recommendation has been given.

"I am also to say that the Minister approves of the suggestion that the masonry in this dock be built in heavier courses than called for by the specifications, and you are authorized to permit the contractors to recourse the work provided it will not entail any extra expense on the Crown." Was Mr. Perley authorized to write the letter by you?—A. I suppose he was authorized at the time, but I explained this in my statement yesterday.

Q. Now you have just stated that the recursing that you authorized by this letter, this very letter, has cost $41,000?—A. Yes.

Q. Were you warned at the time by Mr. Trutch that if you did not take measures of precaution the recursing would cost more to the country.—A. More than what?

Q. More than the contract price?—A. The contract prices were the schedule prices; of course this was measured according to the schedule prices.

Q. Did you get any communication from Mr. Trutch about that recursing?—A. I think Mr. Trutch wrote, but I do not find his letter here.

Q. Can you tell us by whom that recursing was suggested at the time?—A. I think it was suggested by the contractors to Mr. Trutch, if I am not mistaken.

Q. By the contractors?—A. Yes, I think so; I am not sure.

Q. At any rate, you don't remember now if you received a communication from Mr. Trutch warning you about the change on account of the cost?—A. No, I cannot remember that. I have to give my recollection to so many objects that I cannot tell.

Q. Did you obtain from Mr. Perley or any other officers a report on which you based the allowance of $41,000?—A. It was not $41,000, it was $35,000, I think.

Q. I understand from the figures you have read that it was $41,000; I want to ask you if you have based your allowance of $41,000 for recursing on any engineer's report?—A. The report I had stated that it would cost $35,000, and it appears in the measurements there was more stone and it cost $6,000 more.

Q. Have you got the report?—A. It is in these books.

Q. We do not find it?—A. It is there. If you have not the report you have the letter from Mr. Perley.

Q. There is no letter and no report about that?—A. Did not Mr. Perley say so in his evidence?

Q. I have just quoted a letter that Mr. Perley wrote. Look again at page 694. He said that the question of substituting granite for sandstone in portion of the Dock at Esquimalt had been considered by the Privy Council. That is the first information that we have in the books here?—A. Well, it was brought to me by the Chief Engineer, I am sure, wherever it is.

Q. Will you kindly find the report which you think exists, because we have not the report here? I would call your attention to page 127. The first news we have got about that is this, in the telegram from Mr. Perley to Mr. Trutch. He says, "Minister directs contractors shall be paid for full quantity of stone in dock and caisson recess and full measurement on all stones. Letter by mail"—A. There is something in these documents, I cannot say exactly where it is, showing that in the first instance when the contract was being made, or previous to that, when we were calling for tenders, we knew only of one quarry of small stone, and that some months after that a beautiful quarry was found of stones of much larger dimensions. That is stated in these documents somewhere. Then authority was given by the Department to those men to use larger stones instead of smaller ones.

Q. If you can give us some documents we will be glad to have them. You have just read a letter in which you allow Larkin, Connolly & Co. to use heavier courses provided that it will not cost one cent more?—A. Yes.

Q. You made that condition, but subsequently you allowed for the heavier courses?—A. I explained that yesterday, but I will explain it again. Mr. Perley went to British Columbia to examine the works there and when he came back he stated that the adoption of these larger stones was a great benefit to the work, but that inasmuch as it was costing a good deal more money to the contractors than by putting in the smaller ones, it was only just and proper, in his opinion, that they should be paid the difference according to the schedule of prices on their contract. That I agreed to. I thought it just not only to the contractors, but to the Government and to the public, because we were obtaining larger stones. Instead of having a stone, say, of 15 inches in height, with a foot and a half or so, in depth, you obtained by those large courses, of say three feet in height, with a large backing, so that when a vessel would come on the side of the Dock, these stones could not be moved. They were all of large dimensions and much heavier, and therefore we would have more than the value of our money because these stones instead of lasting 15 years or so, would last 10 or 15 or 20 years more.

Q. I do not want to go over all the evidence, but I would ask you if it is not a fact that not only yourself, but Mr. Perley, Mr. Trutch and Mr. Bennett have reported that the contractors had applied for the recouring for their own advantage, and that you allowed it only on the condition that it entailed no extra expense to the Government?—A. Yes; because at that time I thought it was so, but when Mr. Perley reported, after his trip to British Columbia, that it was as I stated just now, I thought it only a just thing that we should pay for what we were obtaining.

Q. As a matter of fact you stated you acted under Mr. Perley's advice again?—A. Yes.

Q. You acted under Mr. Perley's advice on that occasion, and Mr. Perley acted alone in reference to the reduction to $19,000 on the plant. Is this the fact?—A. He has admitted it himself.

Q. In a letter of Mr. Perley's to Mr. Trutch, dated the 24th of February, 1885, and printed at page 694 of the evidence, I read this: "I am directed by the Honourable the Minister to inform you that the question of substituting granite for sandstone in portions of the Graving Dock at Esquimalt has been considered by the Privy Council, and that a decision adverse to your recommendation has been given." Are you in a position to give us some information about that?—A. I will give you what I can. Of course I am on oath as a Privy Councillor. This question of putting in granite instead of sandstone came up. It was recommended, I think, by Mr. Truten, and then it was recommended by Mr. Perley. On that I submitted it, with my recommendation, to Council, because that is the only way I could reach Council—by recommending it. I recommended it to Council, and the result of the deliberations of Council was that I brought back the report and stated to Mr. Perley that Council would not consent to the change.

Q. Did you recommend it to Council at the time with a view to having the substitution adopted?—A. No. I had no particular view about it. The only thing I wanted was to have the Privy Council say what view they took of it; to get their advice.

Q. Then you did not recommend that change for adoption; you only spoke about it?—A. I said I recommended the matter. This is done constantly. A recommendation is brought to Council and then Council discusses the matter. If because a Minister simply recommends a thing it were to pass whether the Council likes it or not, then we would not require a Privy Council at all. But we did that constantly. We recommend a thing to Council in order to bring it there, and then Council decides whether they wish it or not. If they say no it is referred back.

Q. And the Council decided against your recommendation?—A. Yes; against my recommendation. Because it is done every day. It is only to submit the question to Council, and then Council decides. That is the way it is done.

Q. Did you recommend the change yourself to Council? I would like you to answer me if there is no secret about it?—A. There is no secret about that, because it was decided by the Council. I put down my recommendation on the foot of the report, on a special report to Council, and the Council, after considering the matter, referred it back to me at my request.

Q. Council referred it back to you?—A. Yes. That is the ordinary way with all reports. When a Minister makes a report and it is not accepted by Council, the President of the Privy Council, seeing the opinion of the Ministers, puts on the back or side of the report "Referred back to the Minister of Public Works (for example) at his request." Then it comes to me, and that is the end of it.

By Mr. Tupper :

Q. Whenever it is not adopted it is referred back?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Without going over all the letters of Mr. McGreevy—you have gone over them yourself, I am sure—will you tell us from what source Mr. McGreevy was able to obtain the information he obtained?—A. No. If I had known that any of my officers had communicated to Mr. McGreevy, or anyone else, matters that should not be communicated, certainly that officer would not have remained in the office ten minutes.

Q. You did not know anything about it, until this enquiry came on?—A. No.

Q. And to-day you are not in a position to tell us from what source that information came?—A. No. I tried to ascertain or inform myself about it, to see if any officer had given any information that he ought not to have given, and I could not find out.

Q. For instance, I see a letter of the 2nd May, 1885 (Exhibit "G 2"), on page 18: "As I telegraphed you this morning about estimate for Graving Dock at B.C., Perley has telegraphed Trutch," and so on. From whom was Mr. McGreevy able to obtain that information?—A. I do not know.

Q. You have no idea?—A. I do not know at all.

Q. Look at the letter dated 4th May, (Exhibit "H 2") on page 19: "Perley went to see Page this morning to try and get another engineer to send out at once and dismiss Bennett. He that goes out will get his instructions before going out." Again, from whom could he get that information?—A. I do not know from whom. I know he had no such information, neither in that letter nor this below, from me.

Q. Not on that account?—A. No; nor on any other account.

Q. The moment you say you never gave him yourself information, there is no use asking you any more questions on that?—A. No, because you will have the same answer to the end of the chapter.

Q. You never knew that Perley received any gift?—A. I knew it only on the day that the matter was mentioned here by Mr. Murphy. Mr. Perley came to my house, about half-an-hour afterward, and told me that, and I told him he would have to go before the Committee. He was very sorry about it.

Q. I feel bound to ask you a few questions about the statement you made yesterday, as far as I am concerned myself?—A. I mentioned your name because you brought the accusation in the House, and I had to mention someone as the plaintiff.

Q. You said this much: "In consequence of the manner in which, as respects myself, this enquiry originated, I have been obliged to appear to be passive, while charges of the gravest character have been gradually accumulated against me by the slow and unusual process of adducing evidence upon them, before they had been formulated or communicated to me." Is it not a fact, that when I made my statement you were in your seat in the House?—A. The statement printed here?

Q. Yes.—A. I was.

Q. Is it not a fact, that at the time you arose from your seat and answered me?—A. The answer I gave there, I will be ready to give to-day.

Q. You said it was not fair—that you had not been treated fairly by me. I feel bound to ask you to state if you were not in your seat when these accusations were made?—A. All the accusations there were against Mr. McGreevy, except the last three or four lines, where you stated that I was accused of having received large sums of money from the contractors. Beyond that, I do not remember anything brought against me personally. Therefore, I could not know what was coming on. I thought of it and said to myself: When a man is brought before a court of justice and he is accused of murder, or any other crime, he knows always what he is accused of. He has time to prepare, and he prepares. The charges are brought then and he defends himself. He knows what the charge is; but in this case it was not so. You brought only one, and an indefinite one, without giving names or dates and so on, and therefore, I could not know what was coming on. That is the reason I stated I was not represented by Counsel. I had to be passive until we could see what was coming on. It was only the week before last, I think,—on Saturday or Monday of last week—that the charges were brought, and I had all the time to see what the charges were in order to prepare my defence. I have prepared it and made it the best I could under oath, giving all I thought I knew and what I believed was the truth. That is the reason why I came here yesterday without being asked by any Counsel or the Committee to appear here. I did it, because I thought I should come direct and stand here and give my statement and then submit to this cross-questioning.

Q. Did you authorize Mr. Henry to appear here in your name at the beginning of this enquiry?—A. No; that was a mistake at the time. Mr. Henry was to appear here for the Department, not for me.

Q. Is it to your knowledge that he stated that he was appearing for you?—A. He may have stated so, because I was the head of the Department. He may have said: "If I represent the Department I must represent the head of the Department."

By Mr. Davies:

Q. Will you look at the 19th paragraph of Mr. Tarte's charges. I will read it to you: "That in consequence of the said arrangement and manipulations wherein the said Thomas McGreevy directly participated, the contract for the Cross-wall and lock in connection with the Quebec Harbour Works was awarded to Larkin, Connolly & Co., on a Report to Council made by the Hon. Minister of Public Works, under date 26th May, 1883." Did you understand when that was read, it could have any connection with the manipulation previously referred to and that it made a charge against you?—A. No; I did not understand it was any charge against me, but a charge against Mr. McGreevy.

Q. You did not understand that it was charged against you?—A. No.

Q. Will you look at the 33rd section; "That in consideration of the sums of money so received by him and of the promises to him made, the said Thomas McGreevy furnished to Larkin, Connolly & Co. a great deal of information, strove to procure, and did procure, to be made by the Department and the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, in the plans of the Graving Dock and the execution of the work, alterations which have cost large sums of money to the public treasury." Did you understand that you were embraced in the charge made there?—A. I did not know that any sums of money had been received by Mr. McGreevy and promises made by him. I did not know that.

Q. Then, that he furnished a great deal of information to Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. I knew nothing about that.

Q. Then that in consideration of these sums of money he strove to procure and did procure alterations to be made in the plans which have cost large sums of money?—A. Well, I cannot say I see anything wrong; I was ready to wait the proof that might be adduced.

Q. You understand from that that the charges were made against you?—A. No.

Q. Therefore; when a charge is made that a member of Parliament procures from the Minister of Public Works, alterations in a contract which cost large sums of money, do you understand the Minister of Public Works to be charged?—A. I had nothing to do with this and don't know anything about it at all.

Q. Then you say that this charge, that the said Thomas McGreevy furnished Larkin, Connolly & Co. a great deal of information, strove to procure and did procure to be made by the Department and the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, in the plans of the Graving Dock and the execution of the work, alterations which have cost large sums of money, is not a charge against you?—A. That would not be bad in itself.

Q. It would not be bad in itself when a member of Parliament is trying to get the Department and the Minister of Public Works to make changes in a contract that will cost more money?—A. If they were required, and if they were good and useful in the interests of the country, there would be nothing wrong.

Q. Then you wish to give in the evidence here, your statement under oath that these charges don't mean anything against you?—A. I understand it so.

Q. Nor against anybody else in the Department?—A. Not that I am aware of, unless proof could be made that it was an improper thing.

Q. I am speaking of the charge, not of the proof?—A. Then I don't consider it so.

Q. Then, when a member of Parliament charges in the House another member, as being corrupt in consideration of moneys paid to him, with corruptly procuring changes in plans by the Department and Minister of Public Works—

Mr. Daly objected.

Q. The words in the charge are:—"That in consideration of the sums of money so received by him the said Thomas McGreevy strove to procure, and did procure to be made by the Department and the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, alterations which have cost large sums of money." Was not the money that he is charged with receiving a corrupt payment, or alleged to be so, whether he received it or not.

Mr. Daly objected.

Q. I will ask the witness, does he understand that the 33rd paragraph charges Mr. Thomas McGreevy of doing these things corruptly?

Mr. Kirkpatrick objected.

Q. Do you understand or do you not that there was a corrupt charge made against Thomas McGreevy? I will put it again: Do you understand or do you not that Thomas McGreevy was charged with corruptly using his influence to do certain things?—A. I must say I did not consider these three lines more than I did the other charges against Mr. McGreevy; I did not give any particular attention to this. I knew from the beginning that there were charges against him. I never considered these three lines before that you call my attention to now.

Q. The 32nd paragraph states "That during the execution of the works large sums were paid by Larkin, Connolly & Co. to Thomas McGreevy for his services in dealing with the Minister of Public Works, with the officers of the Department, and generally for his influence as a member of the Parliament of Canada." Do you state, Mr. Minister, that you have any doubt whether that was so or not, that the charge against Thomas McGreevy there made is that of corruptly receiving money?—A. It was charged against him.

Q. That he received money for corrupt purposes?—A. Yes.

Q. Then, after that, the 33rd section charges him that in consideration of the sums of money so received by him he procured alterations which have cost large sums of money to the treasury. You admit receiving for corrupt purposes; did you or did you not understand that this was making a charge of corruption against him?—A. Against him, not against me. Mr. McGreevy might have received a million or two or three million dollars for all these purposes; that would not make me guilty per se of a corrupt thing. He might have procured to be made by the Department and the Minister of Public Works upon the Graving Dock alterations which cost large sums without the thing being bad in itself.

Q. Do you now understand that that imputes or charges anything against you?—A. No.

Q. You did not?—A. I did not take it so, and I do not take it so now.

Q. Now we will take up the last charge, No. 63, "that certain members of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. paid and caused to be paid large sums of money to the Honourable Minister of Public Works out of the proceeds of the said contracts, and that entries of the said sums were made in the books of that firm." Do I understand you, Sir Hector, that you did not consider that to be a direct positive charge made against you?—A. It was a charge in four lines, there made against me, but as I knew in my conscience that nothing of the kind had been done, I did not take heed of that or mind it more than if it had been blank paper.

Q. But you must remember the gravity of the charge does not depend on the number of lines?—A. No; but I give the lines because they are there.

Q. Your innocence or guilt is a different thing altogether. Does it or does it not make a clear, positive and distinct charge against you with having corruptly received money from this firm?—A. It makes a general charge against me.

Q. Is it not a specific charge?—A. No.

Q. Well, I will read it again (charge 63 read again). The charge there is specifically that money was paid to you. I am not saying it is true?—A. Though you may say that, it would not be true, nevertheless.

Q. I am only asking you whether the charge was made or not?—A. It is there.

Q. Is it not clear and distinct?—A. It is.

Q. If it were true, you would not continue to hold office?—A. No.

Q. If you had understood it to be made, you would have resigned your office at the time?—A. No doubt.

Q. Then why did you not do it?—A. Because it was not true.

Q. The charge was definite and distinct and you did not resign because it was not true; not because the charge was not made? In your sworn statement yesterday, you say, "I have been obliged to appear to be passive, while charges of the gravest character have been gradually accumulated against me by the slow and unusual process of adducing evidence upon them, before they had been formulated and communicated to me."

"If Mr. Tarte, when he brought his accusations in the House of Commons on the 11th of May, 1891, had made his charges directly against me, I would have at once, pending the enquiry, put my resignation as Minister of Public Works in the hands of the Prime Minister, in accordance with the custom followed in such cases in England. But his statement apparently aimed only at Mr. McGreevy, and the facts with which he subsequently connected my name were not stated at the time as directly implicating me in any improper act or as indicating on my part any guilty object or any intention of failing in my duty, and in so far as they seemed directed towards my conduct, they were vague and indeterminate." I will ask you, in the light of charge 63 and your own explanation, how are you going to reconcile your oath of yesterday?—A. Well, I would take my oath again for what you have read there.

Q. You now say there was a distinct positive charge of corruption and you would have resigned if you had known at the time that that charge was intended against you?—A. It was vague and indeterminate and therefore I did not consider I should resign.

Q. Wherein did the vagueness consist? Was not the name of the party given, was not the source from which the money was corruptly obtained given; was not the name of the person stated to whom large sums of money had been given? Where was it vague and indeterminate?—A. It was not stated when the charges were made what the amount was; it was not stated, only generally, that the firm had done it, the name of a single member of the firm was not given and therefore the charge was vague and indeterminate. I considered it so. You may differ from me, but that is how I considered it.

Q. Then you consider that a charge made against the Minister of the Crown, that he had received from a firm of contractors large sums of money, and corruptly received them, is an indefinite and indeterminate charge and not worthy of notice?

Several MEMBERS—The charge does not say corruptly.

A. When it is made in the way it is there, it is vague and indeterminate. I did not resign, on that account.

Q. Do you understand that if a man charges in this way, that certain members of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. paid and caused to be paid, large sums of money to the Minister of Public Works out of the proceeds of their contracts; do you or do you not consider that a charge of corrupt payment of moneys?—A. I took the charge as it was.

Q. Did you understand it to be a corrupt charge? Can you conceive of a Minister being paid by members of a contracting firm large sums of money out of their contracts and that not be a corrupt act?—A. I considered that this charge was made with the intention of attacking me, but it was vague and indeterminate and therefore I said, I cannot accept that. Evidently it has been put there at the last moment after all the charges against Mr. McGreevy were drawn up.

Q. And you do not admit that it charged you with corruptly receiving any money?—A. It charges me with what is stated there.

Q. I put the question directly to you. Did you understand that it charged you with corruptly receiving money?—A. I did not consider it in that way. It was vague and indeterminate.

Q. Do you consider that that charged you with receiving the money? Do you mean there is any doubt at all about it?—A. If Mr. Tarte could have proved that I received that money from one of the firm, or the firm itself, on such a date, at such a place, and it had been a clear and definite and determinate thing, then I would have considered that it was a charge that should have been met at once.

Q. So that if he had proved the charge you would have considered your taking the money a corrupt act?—A. I might have had the evidence to show it was not so.

Q. Is that your answer; is that which you desire to say?—A. Yes.

Q. If this is the fact, that certain members of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. paid and caused to be paid to you large sums of money out of the proceeds of those contracts would you doubt that that was proving corrupt conduct on your part?—A. It would be a very improper thing on my part and it might be considered a corrupt act, but—

Mr. DAVIES—And you—

Several MEMBERS—Let the witness proceed with the answer.

WITNESS—You are not acting fairly towards me. You take advantage of your position, but I am sure that in this room there are many fair-minded men, who will not allow you to act in this way. You put questions to me, will you be kind enough to let me answer them? As soon as I begin to give my answer, because my answer is not quite what you want, then you interrupt me.

Q. I only want to know how you look at these charges?—A. I have tried three times to answer this question.

But when the charge was made it was vague and indeterminate, as I stated. There was nothing to show me that the charge was really backed by proper evidence, and under those circumstances I did not consider that I should take up that charge as one that was to call upon me to have Counsel here and to follow the enquiry.

Q. Now, to see if I understood you so correctly, you do not deny that if the charge was proved to be true it would imply corrupt conduct; but you say it was vague and indeterminate and not backed by proper evidence, and therefore you did not take the course you otherwise would?—A. I said that.

Q. I think we agree that there was a charge of corrupt conduct if it is proved?—A. My answer is there.

The Committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, 13th August, 1891.

The Committee met at 10.30 a.m.; Mr. Girouard in the Chair.

Investigation into certain circumstances and statements in connection with the tenders and contracts respecting the Quebec Harbour Works, &c., resumed.

Mr. TARTE said: The statement I intended to make yesterday was this. This Committee were discussing the charge contained in these four lines: "That certain members of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. had paid, or caused to be paid, large sums of money to the Honourable Minister of Public Works, out of the proceeds of the said contracts, and that entries of the said sums were made in the books of the firm." What I was going to say is this, When Mr. Murphy came to me—not the first time, but later on when he gave the name of Sir Hector Langevin—he stated that he never corrupted Sir Hector Langevin; that he never intended to corrupt him, that Sir Hector Langevin never asked him for any sum of money, but believing that Sir Hector Langevin was not a wealthy man, and had political needs, that he left two envelopes with money, without telling Sir Hector what was in the envelope, or something like that; and it is the reason I did not put the word "Corrupt." At the same time, he told me that Nicholas Connolly had made entries in the books about the other $10,000 that were heard of here. That is the only statement that I have to make.

Cross-examination of Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN resumed.

By Mr. Davies:

Q. I would like to ask Sir Hector with reference to a man named Peters, who gave evidence here. You asked him for some contribution to political elections once?—A. I saw that letter was produced here.

Q. It is correct, I suppose?—A. I never saw it since it was put in here. I suppose it is.

Q. It is in your handwriting?—A. You know.

Q. If you have any doubt about it I will show it to you?—A. I take it for granted you know, but I did not see it.

Q. Here is the letter will you kindly look at it?—A. Yes, that is my handwriting.

Q. I understood you to say in your explanation, in reference to that letter and the subsequent payment made by Mr. Peters of $1,000, that Peters was not at that time a contractor?—A. It is so.

Q. You were at that time Minister of Public Works?—A. I was.

Q. Are you aware that he had at that time, and has still pending, a claim against the Department, arising out of his previous contract?—A. I understood, and I understand, that the tender that was made by Peters, Moore & Wright was one for which each of them had a speciality, and that each had been settled with for his portion of the work by the Harbour Commissioners.

Q. He states that of the contribution of a $1000, $400 were given in money by himself, and $600 by his partner?—A. So he said.

Several MEMBERS—He did not say his partners but his associates.

Q. What I want to know is did you know that either Peters, or Peters, Moore & Wright, had an unsettled claim at that time against the Department; is it not a fact?—A. I think so.

Q. You think so?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you state the amount of the claim?—A. No.

Q. Would it be as much as $50,000 or $60,000?—A. I cannot say. I think it was a large sum but it was against the Harbour Commissioners.

By the Chairman :

Q. Not against the Department?—A. The Department had nothing to do with it.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. You understood there was a claim against the Harbour Commissioners?—A. Yes, who had given them the contract.

Q. I understood you to say that with reference to the testimonial fund subscribed for your benefit, that you did not know until the schedule was produced here, who the subscribers were?—A. Yes, with the exception I mentioned.

Q. Was there another case, Goodwin's, where a personal payment was made to you besides Rochester's?—A. I do not remember.

Q. I mean a personal payment, the same as Rochester— a payment made to you personally?—A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. Then as a matter of fact you say, that outside that one payment of Rochester's, made to you direct, you did not know, until the list was produced, who the subscribers were?—A. Yes.

Q. Will you go further and say you are anxious not to know?—A. I have no doubt of it, and I would have been much more pleased if I did not know now the names of the subscribers.

Q. You stated you were particularly anxious not to know?—A. Yes.

Q. And you would much rather never have known now?—A. Yes.

Q. You think it would not be right for you to know?—A. No; that was not the reason.

Q. Well, why did you not want to know?—A. Because subscribers subscribing to a fund of that kind do not expect that the party for whom they are subscribing will know it; that it will be only the testimonial itself as a whole, and nothing else, because some friends might say: "If I had known that my name would be mentioned, and the amount, I would have given more than I have given," and soon; and therefore I did not wish to know the names.

Q. You did not wish to know the names?—A. Nor the amounts.

Q. And in your position as Minister of Public Works, I suppose, you believed it would have been wrong for you to have known the name?—A. No; I did not know who were subscribing, and therefore I did not care who were subscribing.

Q. Exactly. You did not know, but would you have thought it right for you to have known as Minister of Public Works?—A. That did not occur to me, because it was a testimonial that was raised openly amongst my friends, I suppose, in the different cities—not only in Ottawa, but all through the Dominion—and therefore it did not strike me at all that I could be embarrassed by knowing these things, except as I stated.

Q. Except you were anxious not to know. Will you repeat again your reason?—A. I did not want to know because I thought, amongst other things that some of those who had subscribed, some of my friends who wished to subscribe and had certain means to do so, would perhaps have subscribed more if they had thought I would know the amounts they were subscribing, and therefore as it was a contribution made voluntarily by my friends, I did not wish that they should be embarrassed by my knowing the amount they were giving.

Q. That was your main reason: that some of your friends might have subscribed more if they had thought you knew they were going to subscribe?—A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Thomas McGreevy, who was examined here at great length, was treasurer to the political fund in Quebec, was he not?—A. I think he has been at different periods.

Q. Is it not a fact?—A. He has been at different periods.

Q. All along?—A. I don't think he has.

Q. I want to know particularly how long he has been treasurer. It is very important in view of some of the statements made here in the Committee.—A. I cannot say how long.

Q. You were the recognised leader of the party in Quebec, and do you state you do not recollect who the treasurer was—there must have been a treasurer?—A. I know that Mr. McGreevy acted as such at several elections, but I cannot say how long.

Q. Did he not act as treasurer of the fund at every election since 1882—is that not known to you? There was an election in 1882 and one in 1887, was there not?—A. I think so.

Q. Is it not a fact that during these three elections you must have received large sums of money?—A. I?

Q. Yes.—A. No.

Q. Recollect I don't say you received the moneys for yourself, but is it not a fact you must have received large sums for political purposes?—A. I? No I did not.

Q. Then you state you never received anything from the fund?—A. Myself? No.

Q. I do not mean for yourself?—A. No money passed through my hands of that money you speak of.

Q. Was any money paid for your benefit politically?—A. For my own benefit? For my own political purposes? No. If you say for the political purposes of my friends, most likely.

Q. For your own election was there never any money distributed from the party funds?—A. I am not aware of any.

Q. To whom would it be paid if for your benefit?—A. I do not know. I take care when an election comes on to know nothing of the kind.

Q. It seems to me, that as political leader of the party, you must have been aware of large sums of money paid to others for political purposes?—A. Mr. McGreevy never told me those things and I never asked him.

Q. Are you aware that Mr. McGreevy paid, as Treasurer of the political fund, large sums of money for political purposes in Quebec?—A. I do not know. He may have done so, but I do not know.

Q. Your answer is that you do not know that he paid any personally. You may have your presumption but you do not know?—A. I say that I do not know personally that he has done so. I believe that he contributed to these elections, but I have no knowledge about my own elections.

Q. Or other elections?—A. If I were asked how much Mr. McGreevy has contributed to this election or that, I do not know.

Q. It is not the contributions of Mr. McGreevy, but the contributions from the fund that he was Treasurer of?—A. That is what I mean.

Q. You never applied to him for money for political purposes during these elections?—A. I do not know that. I might tell him that there were wants in a certain county or another county. I may have told him that.

Q. Did you specify approximately the amounts that would be required?—A. I do not think so.

Q. You would leave it entirely to Mr. McGreevy to say what amount would be given to each district?—A. Yes.

Q. I do not want names. I want generally the amount?—A. I cannot give you that information.

Q. You swear you cannot give any information on that point?—A. I never knew what amount he might have for election purposes in his hands as treasurer or organizer.

Q. Did you apply to him for political purposes to be paid in any part of Quebec?—A. No.

Q. And you are not aware that he paid any?—A. No. I believe he has, but I do not know.

Q. Did you direct anybody to do that?—A. Do what?

Q. To go to Mr. McGreevy and see that moneys were paid for political purposes?—A. I might have referred parties who came to me: "You must go and see Mr. McGreevy; I have nothing to do with that." If you ask me to name any person, I could not do it.

Q. I want to know amounts?—A. That I cannot give.

Q. You knew, as a matter of fact, that Mr. McGreevy had political funds of which he was the treasurer?—A. Yes. I knew he had funds, but these funds were contributed as all these things are by friends who have the means.

Q. You would consider that the contribution he made to "Le Monde" newspaper would be a fair political contribution?—A. Yes.

Q. And I do not think you would be wrong in that. Are you aware that Mr. McGreevy would contribute to that paper?—A. I said so yesterday.

Q. Are you aware that Mr. McGreevy contributed as much in one case as $25,000?—A. I cannot say positively, but I think he contributed that.

Q. At that time had you a controlling interest in the newspaper?—A. No.

Q. Have you ever had a controlling interest?—A. No, I never had.

Q. What interest had you or ever had?—A. I stated yesterday that I had contributed myself, from my own funds, to the paper, and that was the only interest I had in the paper, except the political interest.

Q. To what amount? I want to know what shares you had?—A. I had no shares.

Q. What amount did you contribute?—A. I do not know that you can ask me that. That is my own money. I do not think you have a right to ask me what I did with my own money.

Q. You contributed very large amounts towards "Le Monde"?—A. I contributed, I say, to "Le Monde."

Q. You did not understand it to be a present, but to give you an interest so you could have control?—A. The object I had in view was not shares, but I wanted to have a claim against the paper in case the paper might, as some other papers have done, change its coat.

Q. It was given in that way so that you might have made it a debt against the Company, and give you control if the proper time arrived. I want to ask you if at the time the $25,000 was contributed by Mr. McGreevy the notes for $10,000 which he had discounted for you—or other notes for which he had given you $10,000—were still running?—A. Yes. You see by the books that it appears.

Q. And those notes had been renewed every four months up to the time that the $25,000 was paid?—A. Yes.

Q. And the interest paid every four months?—A. I have no doubt.

Q. Did it strike you as strange that Mr. McGreevy could contribute $25,000 while not being able to pay the $10,000?—A. That is his business.

Q. As a matter of fact, he has renewed them again during the last four months?
—A. Yes.

Q. And you are liable for them to the person who holds them?—A. No doubt; but he has told me that he would see them paid.

Q. All these years then, this was in fact a contribution or present he made you?
—A. It was a political contribution at the time for the election of '76-77, and contestations before the courts.

Q. Which has been kept alive by the renewal of the notes?—A. Yes.

Q. With reference to the Baie des Chaleurs Railway I have one question to ask. It is at page 23 of the statement made by Mr. McGreevy. In a letter he read of the 9th March 1886 (Exhibit "P 2") he refers to your trying to arrange with him about the Baie des Chaleurs Railway. "They proposed (not Caron, Sir Hector) to give me control of road to St. Anne's with subsidy of $6,000 per mile, if I would withdraw my opposition to Baie des Chaleurs Railway and relieve you and me of our stock." I want to ask you, did Thomas McGreevy write the truth when he wrote that statement?—A. I stated this: That I did not do that, because I remember that I always was opposed to a subsidy to that Railway. I did not think it was required at the time and always refused it; and I could not offer control of a road that I had not a share in or with which I had nothing to do.

Q. I simply repeated the question as a fact, and you say it is not correct?—
A. No.

Q. At page 992 Mr. McGreevy is asked about it and he repeats the statement and insists that it is true. You and he differ about that, I will ask you if that road has been subsidized since?—A. I think the road was subsidized two years ago.

Q. How much per mile?—A. I do not remember. I think it is the ordinary $3,200.

Q. This road was subsidized two years ago while you were a member of the Government?—Yes.

Q. I want to ask one or two questions about Mr. Boyd's schedule for the Cross-wall?—A. I have just been talking to one of my colleagues as to whether my oath as a member of the Privy Council would prevent me saying something else that arose in connection with this matter. It is about that subsidy to the St. Anne's Road. I have always been opposed to granting subsidies to that road, and that was the reason why I gave the answer that I gave yesterday. I may tell you that I was away from the Privy Council for some days when this matter was settled. I do not mean that my colleagues would do it behind my back, but members cannot be always there, and the business of the country must go on. That was settled when I was not there, and I found it disposed of when I came back. It was a question with me whether I would consider it a sufficient reason to resign and quarrel with my colleagues.

Q. You did not oppose the subsidy any further?—A. It was done. I opposed it certainly.

Q. You did not make a very vigorous opposition?—A. Well, it was done.

Q. Did you file the protest?—A. You want to know that, but it is not exactly the thing I want to tell you.

Q. You don't wish us to understand that you really took any active steps to prevent the subsidy being proposed to the House?—A. That is another thing I want to tell you.

Q. When the subsidy was proposed to the House did you support it or not? Did you offer any opposition to it?—A. Of course, being a member of the Government I had to support the measures brought before the House just as you would have to support the measures brought forward on your side of the House.

Q. Will you turn to pages 156 and 157 of the Evidence? Where Mr. Perley states that the plans were prepared by the late Mr. Boyd, an Assistant of the Department, who took out all the quantities of the Cross-wall required for the preparation of the schedule; that he was aware that those tenders were placed in his hands, that he prepared the schedule; that he called his (Mr. Perley's) attention thereto, and that he put the schedule sheet before the Minister of Public Works and discussed with him the errors. I want to ask you, Sir Hector, whether Mr. Perley is right about this, and that this schedule prepared by Mr. Boyd of the extension of the tenders for the Cross-wall, which was in Mr. Boyd's handwriting, and about which there is no doubt—I did not understand, from your examination yesterday, whether you admitted that this statement had been submitted to you before the 17th or not?—A. You mean the schedule?

Q. Yes?—A. Well, he might have spoken to me about the schedule. My recollection is this, that when I saw that schedule here the other day, I had not seen it before except that Mr. Perley might have had it with his reports when he said: "Here is my report about these tenders."

Q. I will show you that, in addition to Mr. Perley's statement, we have a letter from Mr. Baillairgé in which he says that the schedule of the tenders was handed to the Minister?—A. I understood that it was not.

Q. Your recollection will enable you to state that you think this is a mistake?—A. Yes.

Q. Although the ordinary course of business is, if I understand Mr. Perley's statement right, that the schedules are extended, and then they are taken to you with the tender?—A. Well, if they are they are not shown to me. They would show me only the tabular statement which contains the names of the tenders marked a, b, c and d, and the amounts found by the extension of the schedule prices.

Q. Exactly, that is what is on the schedule?—A. I beg your pardon; all the figures were there.

Q. Listen to me. Mr. Perley says in his evidence, page 161, giving the ordinary course of business, and not any unusual practice: "So all tenders are opened in that way and scheduled; then when tender 'A' has been opened, I am speaking now of a bulk sum—it is folded and on the back is put the letter 'a' and I write as well on the back of it 'opened by Deputy Minister and H. F. Perley, and date it.' After the schedule has been prepared the Deputy takes the schedule, and I take the tender and read them and check the schedule to see if any errors have been made. The Deputy then makes his mark across the back of the tender, and they are taken then by the Deputy to the Minister." That is the ordinary course of business?—A. That may be.

Q. Is not that a fairly correct statement of the ordinary course of business?—A. Yes. That is correct, for the bulk sum.

Q. Now would the statement made by Mr. Perley as to the ordinary course of business be a correct statement here?—A. No.

Q. Now, I find on page 417 of the Evidence Mr. G. F. Baillairgé says under date 16th May, 1883 (Exhibit "H 11"): "I duly received your letter of the 5th inst., on the subject of the tender submitted by you for the construction of the proposed Cross-wall in connection with the Quebec Harbour Works, and have communicated it to the Chief Engineer of the Department, Mr. Perley. The schedule of tenders has been handed to the Honourable the Minister." Now, if the ordinary practice had been followed in this particular case Mr. Baillairgé would be right in saying that he handed it to you?—A. Yes; I suppose so.

Q. You still think that you have not seen the schedule of these tenders?—A. Well, I repeat that this cannot be; for the reason that at this time Mr. Perley had all these papers in his own hands. The schedule would be made by Mr. Boyd, and the reason for me saying so is this. That the letter of Mr. Baillairgé is dated the 16th May whilst Mr. Perley wrote those letters to Messrs. Gallagher, Baillairgé and Larkin, Connolly and Company on the 17th May. He had all these things in his hands at the time. They were not in my hands.

Q. That is your recollection?—A. Yes. I think if you will turn to page 156 you will see that Mr. Perley states: "The plans were prepared by the late Mr. Boyd, an assistant of the Department, who took out all the quantities required for the preparation of the schedule. I am aware that those tenders were placed in his hands, that he prepared the schedule, and he discovered the errors in three of the tenders marking those errors under the margin of the schedule sheet. I believe it is in evidence he called my attention thereto, and as it was my duty to do so, I laid that sheet before the Minister of Public Works and discussed with him the errors that had been detected, and unless those errors were cleared up in some way, it was impossible to make a comparison between the three tenders that were incomplete, and the two tenders that were complete. At that discussion I have no doubt no direction was required, but as it is the course I have always pursued, and as I have done in many instances since, I want to say that by direction of the Minister, but with the knowledge of the Minister, I wrote the three letters to the parties, that is Larkin, Connolly & Co., George Beaucage and John Gallagher." Now he swears there that Mr. Boyd having put on the margin of the memorandum what errors he alluded to, the schedule was put before you, that you discussed the errors, and that with your knowledge he wrote the letters to the three parties.

Q. Excuse me, you are putting a wrong construction there. Mr. Baillairgé says that on the 16th the schedule was laid before you; and Mr. Perley says, before writing on the 17th those letters to the three parties, he laid the schedule of tenders before you and discussed them with you and then wrote to the three tenderers. Is it not within your recollection that the schedule of tenders was submitted to you and was discussed between you and Mr. Perley before Mr. Perley wrote the three letters to the parties?—A. No doubt he—

Q. It must be so.—A. Will you allow me to give my answer? No doubt Mr. Perley came to me with that schedule and discussed that matter with me. If that was on the 16th, as you want it to be, Mr. Perley at all events wrote on the 17th, to those men, and he had that schedule sheet in his hands—he did not leave it with me. Mr. Baillairgé says that on the 16th the schedule of tenders (not the schedule sheet as Mr. Boyd had extended it, but the schedule of tenders) has been handed to the Minister—that the schedule of tenders had been put in my hands. There is a difference between the two.

Q. Mr. Baillairgé says the schedule of tenders was submitted to you?—A. No, no; do not change the words. He said, "The schedule of tenders has been handed to the Minister." "Submitted" means that it was sent to me—that I had it in my hands. He says the schedule had been handed to the Minister. That means that I had them at the time; but he was wrong.

Q. We both agree that the schedule of tenders prepared by Boyd and added up by Perley were submitted by Perley to you, and the errors which Mr. Boyd had marked in the margin were discussed between you and Mr. Perley, and that then Mr. Perley wrote the letters to the three tenderers? There is no doubt about that?—A. He came with the schedule sheet, discussed the matter with me and then went away.

Q. Will you undertake to say at that time whether the schedule sheet was or was not added up?—A. I cannot recollect; but Mr. Perley must have added them up afterwards.

Q. I differ with you; but that is a matter of construction. As a matter of fact, after he wrote the letters did he not again submit to the Department the schedule with the corrections made. He says: "I then wrote a letter to the Department submitting the schedule with the corrections made;" so that the schedule was before you before he wrote the letters. It was submitted to you finally after he wrote the letters and received the replies, and then the report to Council was based upon it?—A. I may say that.

Q. So that we come back to this point, that the report to Council on these tenders for the Cross-wall was made after you had twice seen and, at least, once discussed with your Engineer the tenders and the alleged mistakes?—A. About that I say this: That when Mr. Perley came and laid the schedule before me and discussed with me the errors that had been detected, as he says, unless these errors were cleared up in some way it was impossible to make a comparison between the three tenders that were incomplete and the two complete ones, and then he wrote those letters to the three tenderers. When he had received the answers—the withdrawal of Gallagher and the replies of Beauceage and Larkin, Connolly & Co.—then he put the red figures on the sheet and made ready his report to me, stating to what decision he had come and recommending that course. On that I reported to Council and the Council agreed with me.

Q. Before you reported to Council, Mr. Perley says, “all the columns were added up because the addition is in my handwriting, but the body of the schedule is in the handwriting of Mr. Boyd. It was then sent forward to the Minister.” So that the columns were added up before the schedule came to you and before you made your report?—A. No doubt, it must have been. He would not bring any document to me half made.

Q. I have one or two questions to put in reference to the British Columbia Dock. I understand two tenders were received in the first place from Messrs. Starrs and O’Hanly and Baskerville & Co. The Order-in-Council directing that the contract should be re-advertised and new tenders called for was dated the 19th of April?—A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Perley on the 9th of May, three weeks afterwards, makes an official report to the Department with reference to this very subject; with reference to these two tenders of Baskerville & Co., and Starrs and O’Hanly. You will find it at page 89 of the printed Evidence (Exhibit “I4”). I want to ask you what possible explanation can be made of this, that three weeks after the Order-in-Council calling for new tenders had been passed, Mr. Perley reports the whole of the facts officially. I would call your attention particularly to the last two paragraphs:

“Having submitted to Messrs. Baskerville & Co. a proposition to amend their offer by the substitution of rubble backing in lieu of concrete backing, brickwork, &c., they now offer to build the masonry for the sum of $16 per yard, which would have the effect of reducing the net bulk sum of their offer to (say) $362,000, which in view of the high cost of labour and materials in British Columbia may be accepted as a fair value of the work to be done to complete this dock. As Messrs. Baskerville & Co. have executed for the Department of Railways and Canals, the new works on the Ottawa at Ste. Anne’s, and as contractors possess experience and means for carrying out large works, I beg leave to submit for consideration by the Honourable Minister the desirability of arranging with that firm for the works at Esquimalt under the terms of their tender as amended by them, and the alteration and the plans whereby rubble backing shall be used instead of concrete backing, and that such other changes be made as will dispense with the use of brick work in connection with the walls.” How was it Mr. Perley came to make that report three weeks after the passage of the Order-in-Council calling for new tenders?—A. I do not understand it, otherwise than this, that Mr. Perley seeing that these tenders had been set aside—“The Minister represents that Messrs. Starrs and O’Hanly state that on looking over the duplicate of their tender they have discovered clerical errors which amount to about $25,000, and they ask to be permitted to amend and increase their offer by that amount, or if not permitted to do so, to be allowed to withdraw their tender and to have their cheque returned. The Minister referred the matter for report to the Chief Engineer of his Department, who reports—

“I am of opinion that tender ‘A’ is greatly in excess of the actual value of the work to be done, whilst tender ‘B’ is as much too low, and that the persons who have submitted the last tender, viz., tender ‘B’ cannot possibly execute the work for the prices named, and as they have asked to amend their tender, which is a course not usually pursued, I would recommend that neither tender be accepted, and that the cheques be returned to the several parties. The Minister recommends that authority be granted in accordance with the report of his Chief Engineer. The Committee advise that the requisite authority be granted accordingly.”

A. That is the Order in Council.

Q. That Order in Council was made on the 19th of April, 1884, and on the recommendation of Mr. Perley printed on the same page of the Blue-Book (Exhibit

"N 5") recommending that neither tender be accepted, and that the cheque be returned to the several parties, you reported in favour of that course being adopted?—A. Yes.

Q. And the Council endorsed the report?—A. They endorsed the report.

Q. And three weeks afterwards Mr. Perley comes in with a recommendation that their tender be allowed to be amended and accepted?—A. I do not know how Mr. Perley did that, why he did it, and under what circumstances. But I say this, that, on page 91, you find at the top of the page: "Q. There is something written by the Minister on the letter; please read it?—A. Memo.—Inform Mr. Baskerville (who had written on the 26th of May) that new plans and specifications had been ordered, and that new tenders will be called for.—H. L. L." The delay evidently was this. New plans and new specifications had been ordered, and the order for new tenders had not yet been given; but that was my order and it was so given. Most likely Mr. Perley wanted to see if, out of these two tenders, one could not be accepted, with modifications. That was without my knowledge.

Q. But, on the 9th of May, Mr. Perley reports to you that these men have amended their tender and offered to do the work for $360,000; and you do not accept that, but call for new tenders, and afterwards let the work for a larger sum, over $400,000.

Mr. HENRY—It is not let for over $400,000.

Mr. DAVIES—At any rate it is a larger sum. That is the only explanation you can give, that it was done without your knowledge?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, with reference to this sum of $19,873, which was paid to these people. You have always had the reputation of attending very closely to the affairs of your Department. Do you think you deserved it?—A. I think I did.

Q. And as far as we can judge from what we have seen in the House, you did. You kept yourself au fait with the Department?—A. As far as I could, but there were a great many things I could not see to.

Q. Necessarily, but when contracts amounting to nearly half a million dollars were being let I suppose they had your personal attention?—A. No doubt, as far as I could give it.

Q. And payments of large sums of money could only be made with your authority in closing up a contract?—A. No. I stated that repeatedly, that for the final estimate it would not come to me unless there was something very special, such as in that case, when the matter might come to me and be submitted to me. But for the final estimates for the different works which the Chief Engineer or the Chief Architect, as the case might be, had under his control, he would make the final estimate and it would be paid.

Q. Would you permit the Chief Engineer or any subordinate to pay $20,000 more than the contract justified without your authority?—A. If I had known it, I would not.

Q. Is it your belief that the practice in vogue in your Department permitted such a thing to be done?—A. Not to my knowledge. I do not think it was done in any other case than this one.

Q. You think this is the only case then?—A. That I know of.

Q. And you are inclined to wash your hands of any responsibility for this payment?—A. Mr. Perley has stated so himself.

Q. We differ on that. If you turn to the next page you will see he qualifies his statement. Is it on Mr. Perley's statement that you entirely rely, or on your own recollection?—A. On my own recollection.

Q. Is it not true that when Captain Larkin was going to sign that contract, he discussed that very matter of the plant with you, and you stated you would look into it. He objected to paying the $50,000 for the plant, did he not?—A. He made objection.

Q. And you said to him you would consider the matter, or look into it?—A. I have no doubt I did so. Whenever a party comes to me in the Department and complains—no matter what it is for—if I do not see my way clear to do it, if I do not see that it is the proper thing to do, if I do not see that it can be done just then, I would say: "Well, I will look into the matter." I always did that.

Q. Before this contract was signed did not Captain Larkin object to that provision which required them to accept the plant at $50,000, and did not he object to Perley's per cent., and was not the matter discussed and did not you say you would look into it?—A. Yes, but that was no promise to comply with his request.

Q. You had the matter brought to your attention in that way. Referring to (Exhibit "T 6,") page 141, I will ask you is it not a fact that application was made by these people to have that $50,000, or a large part of it, remitted to them, and Mr. Perley reported against it in the following words:

"It is clearly stated in the specification for this work that the contractors would have to take over and pay for all the plant, etc., mentioned in an inventory attached to the specification, and at the prices named therein—subject, however, to a deduction for any articles that might not be forthcoming at the time the contractors took delivery.

"It now appears from Mr. Trutch's letter that the contractors desire to accept plant, etc., to the value of $38,000 only, and do not wish to pay for the balance, amounting to $12,400, because they say they have no use for it.

"The specification is very clear on this point, and there is no option on the part of the contractors to take what they please and to refuse what they do not want." Was that matter so reported on, clearly refusing their application? Is that correct?—A. That was done.

Q. Is it not true that Mr. Trutch reported on this distinctly, that they would not be allowed that $50,000?—A. I think it is proved there.

Q. Perley reported against it and in May you approved of that letter. Look at (Exhibit "X 4,") page 100 and in a letter from your Secretary you will read "Having reference to your letter of the 16th ult., stating that the contractors for the completion of the Esquimalt Graving Dock are unwilling to accept certain plant to the value of $12,403.09, included in the inventory attached to the contract, and which, by the terms of such contract, they agreed to take over at the prices stated in that inventory, and that they request no deduction to be made on account of plant, from the first progress estimate in their favour; I am directed by the Hon. the Minister of Public Works to state that the specification is very clear, and that there is no option on the part of the contractors to take what plant, etc., they please and to refuse what they do not want; and that they will have to take over all that is named in the schedule."—A. That is so.

Q. The matter was brought to your attention on their claim and reported on adversely, and the report was adopted by you?—A. I stood by that report.

Q. Do you mean to say that Mr. Perley in the face of that could pay $20,000 without your sanction or knowledge?—A. He did it.

Q. He must have been enabled to do it by the machinery of the Department?—A. He made his final estimate, and he added to that final estimate the $19,000; and that did not come before me.

Q. When the final estimate was prepared, paying the last sum, would it not be submitted to the Minister?—A. It was so. I say that Mr. Perley did allow this $19,000 without my knowledge.

By Mr. Amyot:

Q. In spite of his previous report?—A. In spite of his previous report. You must remember that he had made that report in January, after his return from British Columbia, stating that there was a difference between the contractors and the Government, and that most likely this would come up later on.

By Mr. Davies:

Q. So you had it again brought to your notice?—A. That was stated yesterday.

Q. When had you knowledge of that payment being made for the first time?—A. Really, I do not know.

Q. Do you remember when the payment itself was made?—A. No.

Q. This is a very large amount of money?—A. I did not know the amount of money.

Q. Is it not true, that in your own report of 1886-87 you mention that?—A. Perhaps I do.

Q. If you did, you would know it then. Is there any document you can produce to show that you reprov'd or reprimanded or condemned your subordinates for having made this improper payment against your knowledge or report?—A. I do not remember that. I do not remember my attention being called specially to this payment.

Q. You do not remember whether at any time you ever rebuked or reprov'd or said a word about the payment of this money?—A. I do not remember that the thing was brought specially to my knowledge.

Q. Surely the Department would not be managed by its subordinates?—A. No; but that may have escaped. We had this year nearly nine thousand cheques issued. You could not imagine that I could see all those cheques. It is an impossibility.

Q. In your report for the year 1888, which has been put in evidence already—it is found at page 101—under the head of "Esquimalt Graving Dock" it is reported: "Plant taken by contractors, $50,288.67; less rendered useless, $19,873.18." That is your own report made to Parliament. Did you reprove Mr. Perley or approve of his conduct?—A. If you look at my report you will see that there is a report from the Minister of Public Works and then you have the appendices to that.

Q. Let me call your attention to one more thing before I finish: The extras in British Columbia were $206,968. You gave that yesterday. I want to ask you about the changes in the stone, by which $41,200 were paid extra to the contractors. Is it not a fact that these contractors applied themselves to have that change made?—A. They applied at British Columbia, to Mr. Trutch, and Mr. Bennett.

Q. And that application was forwarded to the Department here?—A. Yes, with the reports; but I do not remember.

Q. Is it not a fact that they applied at Ottawa as well as to Bennett and Trutch in British Columbia?—A. I think so.

Q. Is it not a fact that they were told they could make the change, but not at the public expense?—A. The papers say so.

Q. Do not the papers speak the truth?—A. They are official. I explained that later on, Mr. Perley went to British Columbia. I explained that yesterday.

Q. Mr. Trutch says; "The Minister had decided that such permission should be given on the distinct condition that no extra payment will be made to you on account of the changes to be affected by the adoption of these plans, and especially that no extra payment shall be made to you on account of the increased sizes of stone proposed by you to be used in the work, as this is to be done at your own request and for your own proper advantage, as you think, and not by order of the Department, and I am authorized and requested to convey to you such permission." Was that correct? I ask you to refer to page 65 of Appendix No. 3, being the Engineer's Second Report, at which Mr. Perley's letter is given. On the 4th of May, the official authority was given to them to make the change?—A. Yes.

Q. But that official authority authorizing the change expressly says; they are not to be paid any extra payment on account?—A. Yes, that is so.

Q. They made the change with that clear understanding?—A. Yes.

Q. And subsequently Bennett and Trutch tried to prevent them getting the pay in accordance with your orders, and you telegraphed them to be paid in full?—A. That is after Mr. Perley returned from British Columbia and called my attention to the fact that that stone was much more valuable for the Government than the other stone; that it would be more durable, and that it would not be fair that these men should go the expense of $35,000, without being paid for it.

Q. Can you produce any report or letter or writing of any kind or description from Mr. Perley in justification of that statement?—A. Mr. Perley has stated so himself.

Q. Was that report to the Department about it?—A. Mr. Perley himself spoke to me about it.

Q. Have you it in writing?—A. I haven't it here.

Q. Can you produce any writing or authority recommending a change from the determination the Department has come to, that the contractors should not be paid that $42,000?—A. On my oath I say he did say so on his return from British Columbia.

Q. Here is his telegram: "Minister directs contractors shall be paid for full quantity of stone in dock and caisson chamber, and full measurement on all stone." Now, sir, I will ask you this: can you produce any document, and if so, I ask you to produce it. Who were the parties who applied informally to you at Ottawa to have that change made?—A. I think the contractors applied to me directly, but the Engineer brought the matter before me. In Ottawa it was Mr. Perley. They might perfectly well come to me and ask me for any change. Being contractors they had a perfect right to do so; but they did not do so. They applied to the Engineers and put their case before them, and then Mr. Perley came to me and stated what we see there by his own letter to Mr. Trutch.

Q. I am not questioning their right to do it at all. I am asking who it was who came to you?—A. I think it was only the Engineer that came to me—Mr. Perley.

Q. You think so. Have you a clear recollection that would enable you to swear that it was?—A. If I had not a clear recollection on the other side I would not swear so.

Q. You have no clear recollection?—A. I have a clear recollection that it was Mr. Perley.

Q. And have you a clear recollection that nobody else applied to you?—A. I do not remember that anyone else came to me.

By Sir John Thompson:

Q. I direct your attention to the point in reference to Mr. Peters' claim?—A. Yes.

Q. You were asked whether there was a claim against the Department for a large sum of money at the time, and you have already explained that that claim was against the Harbour Commissioners, and not against the Department of Public Works. I want to ask you whether that claim has ever been allowed by your Department?—A. I don't think it has.

Q. Have not Mr. Peters and his partners brought an action against the Harbour Commissioners?—A. Yes; Mr. Peters and his partners—the firm of Peters, Moore & Wright, brought an action as far as I can recollect against the Harbour Commissioners at Quebec.

Q. That action is still pending?—A. That action is still pending in the Supreme Court.

Q. Then, in relation to that claim, or any other, did Mr. Peters ever get favourable treatment from you, or from the Department of Public Works, on account of his subscription or any other reason?—A. No; none whatever. Mr. Peters, not later than four weeks ago, when he was in town was complaining bitterly that I did not use my influence with the Harbour Commissioners at Quebec, in order that he might receive so much money on account of the claim they were making, and which is now pending in the Supreme Court.

By Mr. German:

Q. You say in a memorandum on the back of a letter of Mr. Baskerville's of the 26th May, 1884, that plans and specifications had been ordered. Were new plans and specifications ordered and made?—A. They must have been ordered then, and made. When you see that I signed that that ought to tell you. As to whether the plans were new plans altogether, I don't think so. I think they were only plans that had been made by Kinipple and Morris, with some modification.

Q. Was there any change in the plans and specifications, excepting the change that was made after Larkin, Connolly & Co. had taken their contract?—A. I think there were changes made before that; I think it is so stated in some of the documents produced.

Q. You say there were changes made before that?—A. Yes.

Q. I have not seen there were any?—A. Yes; I think so. Of course these plans and specifications I would not see, because I could not give the time necessary to look over them. That was a matter for the Engineers.

Q. I have been requested to ask this: You say that the Honourable Thomas McGreevy has given you no money. I would like to enquire if, since 1879, he has given you any other accommodation notes than those shown by his books?—A. The other day the question was put to me, I think, by Mr. Tarte, about whether I had not given some notes to be endorsed by Mr. Thomas McGreevy. When he stated that, I did not recollect anything of the kind, but I am under the impression that Le Canadien newspaper—I cannot say exactly the period of the year—required some help, as generally newspapers require, and that I would have given my note to help the paper, provided some one else would endorse it, perhaps Mr. McGreevy or Sir Narcisse Belleau, but I have only a faint recollection of it.

Q. If that occurred, did you pay the notes or Mr. McGreevy?—A. I remember that one note, I don't know for whom it was given, but I know that one note I paid, and I think Sir Narcisse Belleau. We paid half of it each, having endorsed it, but I don't know for whom it was paid.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. What was the amount, Sir Hector?—A. I don't remember, but observe this, Mr. Tarte, I don't say that note was for Le Canadien. I don't know what it was, but I know that it was for political purposes.

By Mr. German :

Q. I am not speaking about any payments to a newspaper—that was not my object—but without reference to any political questions at all, or any newspaper questions, has the Honourable Thomas McGreevy given you any accommodation notes for your own benefit?—A. Not that I am aware of, no.

Q. Not since 1879?—A. No.

By Mr. Ouimet :

Q. Was it to your knowledge that Mr. Thomas McGreevy got any money from Larkin, Connolly & Co. or from any other Government contractors?—A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. Not to your knowledge?—A. No.

Q. Was he authorized by you to try and get subscriptions from those people or from any other people?—A. No.

Q. That political fund which he had, did you know who subscribed for that, or was it his own money?—A. I never knew from what source it came, but for years I always thought that the money he was expending for political purposes for elections was his own money. Even before that he might have been considered as a treasurer of the fund.

Q. He never admitted to you that he had received that money from anybody else, so that you had no reason to believe that it was not his own money?—A. I had no reason to believe it was not his own money.

Q. That fund, then, he distributed according to his own sweet will?—A. Well, yes and no. When parties would come at election times they would be referred to Mr. McGreevy, in case he might have some funds that he could give to help in an election, but when any special—

Q. He gave the money according as he thought it to be useful?—A. Or according to the amount of money he thought he had or he would have.

Q. As a matter of fact, he had the entire control of that money?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you know that he was supporting the Local Government for the last four or five years?—A. No; I never heard that.

Q. Did it come to your knowledge in some way or other?—A. No; I know some parties that might not have been very well pleased with him said he supported the Local Government, but I never knew of it.

Q. You never knew anything of it personally yourself?—A. No.

Q. It never came to your ears that he was supporting the Mercier Government?—A. No; I may say that there were people who would say so.

Q. Did any party come to you and tell you that Mr. McGreevy was working with his money and otherwise in favour of Mr. Mercier?—A. I think so.

Q. Do you know if he subscribed money for this purpose?—A. No; you mean for the Mercier Government?

Q. Yes?—A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know if he assisted Mr. Mercier in some particular county—Megantic, in the election?—A. No; it may have been so, but I never heard of it, and I would have been much surprised if it had been so.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. You said, I think, that you knew Mr. McGreevy for 25 years?—A. Yes; I think I knew him several years previous to Confederation.

Q. Before he became a public contractor?—A. Oh, yes.

Q. What was his occupation or trade generally?—A. I think he must have been a contractor at that time; I think he built the Quebec Custom House.

Q. I mean before that?—A. Before that I did not know him.

Q. Was he a stonecutter?—A. I think most likely.

By Mr. Mills (Bothwell) :

Q. I see at page 91 of the Evidence you make a memorandum upon a letter of Mr. Baskerville's in which you say: "Inform Mr. Baskerville, that new plans and specifications have been ordered, and that new tenders will be called for." Were new plans and specifications prepared before you let the contract?—A. Yes; I have no doubt there were.

Q. Will you state in what respect they differed from the older plans?—A. I think those new plans were Kinipple & Morris' plans on which Baskerville and Starrs & O'Hanly had tendered before the plans were modified and the specifications altered.

Q. Were these modifications calculated to increase or diminish the cost of construction?—A. That I cannot say.

Q. Were those plans and specifications adhered to?—A. Well, they have been adhered to as stated there. The conditions that have been made were as stated in this statement, put before you by the experts showing what were new works and so on—for example, the change from the double entrance, that is one of them, and other things of that kind.

Q. Well, as I remember the double entrance was some time subsequent to the letting of the contract. When the decision as to the circular head was arrived at?—A. Yes.

Q. That was not one of the changes referred to here?—A. No, it came later on.

Q. Were those changes that were modifications in the original plans adhered to by the contractors or did the contractors return to them?—A. I did not understand that.

Q. On which plans was the work carried on?—A. On the new plans.

By Mr. Lavergne :

Q. In your statement of yesterday you say:—"Mr. Valin states in his evidence that I told him to follow always Mr. Thomas McGreevy at the Quebec Harbour Board, and that he always did so, convinced as he was that it was my wish and desire; this I most positively deny, Mr. Valin is evidently mistaken." I understand that you have read the whole of the evidence of Mr. Valin?—A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Valin says at page 492 :—"I told the Minister that the names of Gallagher and Murphy might cause trouble with the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., because he was one of its members and that it did not from that seem to me to be a different firm, and that it might cause trouble. He said I have spoken to Mr. McGreevy about that, both vote for and follow Mr. McGreevy and I tell you everything will be all right. You know we meet frequently and that we consult together." Will you undertake to swear that this is false ?—A. Mr. Valin is quite mistaken about this; I did not do that.

Q. Will you undertake to swear that he is swearing falsely ?—A. Well, a man might be quite mistaken; you must have seen in my statement that I have avoided anything of this kind, because I would be the last to suppose that a man like Mr. Valin would come here and state a deliberate falsehood under oath.

Q. That is not true, then, You say that no such conversation took place as mentioned there ?—A. No; it is not true.

Q. Then it is false ?—A. I gave you my answer.

Q. If this statement was only one of its kind, it might be all right, but if you look at page 493 you will find :—"Q. This was after the conversations that you had ?—A. It was very nearly always the same thing repeated. I had several conversations with the Minister; every time anything important came up I consulted him and had always very nearly the same answer." Do you suppose that Mr. Valin would make the same mistake so many times ?—A. Mr. Valin came, as I have stated before, repeatedly to my house; I would say he came too often. At all events he came very often, and the object that he had constantly in view was to remind me that he wished to be a Senator and that I should have him appointed as a Senator. That was his hope all the time. Now he would speak about what passed in the Harbour Board, and he would say : "Well, what can I do " and " what shall I do." I would say to him to hear the discussion that was going on and give it the same amount of attention as others did, and if you are different from the others you cannot help that. You are there on the Board, a number of friends together whom you can consult. You have Mr. Hamel, Mr. McGreevy, Mr. Giroux and others, and you must just do the best that you can. Mr. Valin had this difficulty that he was very deaf and he could not follow all the discussions that were going on there, and at times he would be in this position: that another subject would come up and he would not see very well what they were deciding about or the manner in which the first subject had been dealt with or decided, being a little deaf he would not hear that. He spoke to me about this once or twice. He said : "I cannot hear them." I said : " Why don't you ask your neighbours. If Mr. McGreevy is near you ask him. If not, ask some other member." I never told him to be there and be like a piece of wood and not use his own intellect, and go according to the will of another man.

Q. Is it not as he says that you have several times told him this ?—A. It is just as I have stated. I did not tell him to be the tool of Mr. McGreevy or follow him implicitly or anything of the kind.

Q. You see that he said so several times ?—A. Yes; and I state the contrary to that.

Q. At page 498 I read this : " Q. Now, when you were appointed Chairman of the Harbour Commission, were you put there as a safeguard to the interest of the Commission or to do as Mr. McGreevy would tell you to do ?—A. That is what I told at my examination in chief. When I saw that Mr. McGreevy wanted to take the control, then I asked the Minister whether I did well in following his advice or not. Q. Then when Mr. McGreevy proposed anything before the Commission, you considered that you had nothing to do except accepting his propositions ?—A. Not always, since on various occasions I consulted the Minister of Public Works. If you want to know a little more, Mr. Fitzpatrick, I will tell you. On one occasion, Mr. Langevin said to me : If the Commission does not act properly I shall dissolve it."

Q. Is that statement true ?—A. I do not say that.

Q. You deny that ?—A. I deny that. I read that before, and it is not so.

Q. How can you say that these are simply mistakes—that they cannot be anything else but mistakes?—A. Well, I am sorry to say that Mr. Valin did not always understand well what we told him.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. Did you approve of the appointment of Mr. Perley as Chief Engineer of the Quebec Harbour Works?—A. I agreed to it.

Q. Did you sanction it before he was appointed?—A. I think not, no.

Q. You did not give your consent before he received the appointment?—A. No.

Q. Had you any conversation with Mr. Perley in regard to his being appointed?—A. Well, he telegraphed me from Lévis, saying that the Harbour Commissioners had put the Dock under his control, and so on. Then, two or three days afterwards, I do not remember exactly how long, the ratification came either through him saying that he had been appointed Chief Engineer there, and I agreed to it.

Q. Do you not think you must have intimated before hand that you would agree to the appointment?—A. Some of them may have spoken to me whether I would consent to it. That is quite possible.

Q. From the telegram which you have quoted in your statement, page 1054, it would appear he had your authority beforehand?—A. No, he went down there at the request of the Harbour Commissioners.

Q. Yes, but the telegram you read said he entered upon his duties the next day?—A. That may be, I do not know.

Q. He could hardly enter upon his duties as Engineer with the Harbour Commissioners, without your consent?—A. Well, he may have had my consent by telegraph. He may have asked it.

Q. Did he?—A. I do not know.

Q. Had you a conversation with him, about his being appointed Chief Engineer to the Harbour Commissioners before he was appointed?—A. I do not recollect that.

Q. This telegram to you from Mr. Perley at page 1054, reads: "Commissioners have transferred Graving Dock to my charge, to appoint my own assistants. Pilkington better, and granted leave of absence. I assume work to-morrow." From that you will observe that he was going on to assume control the next day. Could he do that without your permission as head of the Department of Public Works?—A. He might do it, and he could do it, relying on my sanctioning it, when he was telegraphing me at once. You see that in the next two lines, it says, "on the 16th of May, 1884, the Secretary of the Corporation informed Mr. Perley that they appointed him their Chief Engineer." That is a little over—

Q. Five days?—A. Oh no, it was not May then, it was September. It was in the following year, seven or eight months after, that he got formal notice of his appointment.

Q. But Mr. Perley having told you he was going to enter upon his duties next day, must have had your previous authority to accept the appointment?—A. That may be; the Commissioners may have asked it.

Q. Then there may have been some conversation or communication between you and Mr. Perley and others in regard to his accepting the proposed appointment?—A. That may be. I did not compare the dates there when the Engineers in Chief of these works, Messrs. Kinipple & Morris, had their services dispensed with. It was necessary then the Commissioners should have some officer in charge.

Q. Mr. Perley could not have assumed the work without your permission?—A. He may have done this because he telegraphed me at once.

Q. As Engineer of the Public Works Department, I presume the Public Works had the right to his services exclusively? Was not that the nature of his engagement?—A. Yes, it was; but I would not have considered his taking this position would be beyond his duties, provided I assented to it.

Q. You consider if you assented to this, he was discharging a public service by being Chief Engineer for the Harbour Commissioners?—A. Under those circumstances.

Q. In that case he must have had authority expressed or implied that you sanctioned this appointment before he telegraphed you?—A. If you look at the preceding four lines on page 1054, you will find this: "On the 1st September, 1883, the Commissioners requested the Department to send Mr. Perley to visit the works connected with the Graving Dock at Lévis. Mr. Perley went, and on the 11th the Minister received from him the telegram," so that he had my permission to go down at the request of the Commissioners, and as soon as he was there and this occurred, he telegraphed to me and says: "The Commissioners have transferred Graving Dock to my charge, to appoint my own assistants." Evidently he wanted my consent. He must have obtained it. At all events I never complained about it.

Q. Early in September, 1883, Mr. Perley went to visit the Quebec Harbour Works?—A. Yes.

Q. You consented to that?—A. Yes.

Q. But to visit the works and to stay as Chief Engineer are two different things. All I want to know is whether there was any arrangement by which you sanctioned his appointment?—A. Before that I do not remember, but evidently I consented to it afterwards.

Q. In regard to the voting of money for the Commission—to what extent did you look into the schemes and proposals before making recommendations to Parliament?—A. About what schemes?

Q. Any works of the Harbour Commission?—A. The money was voted specially for certain works.

Q. I will take one in particular—I will take the contract for dredging in the Wet basin in 1887. What did you know about that before applying to Parliament for money?—A. That was out of the general vote for these works.

Q. But in Parliament it was stated, part of the money was to go to dredging. To what extent did you investigate the dredging scheme before asking Parliament to vote the money?—A. Not more than this: That the Chief Engineer would report to me that these works required to be prosecuted, and that under these circumstances so much more money would be required, and that was done.

Q. Is there a report from the Chief Engineer to you on the subject?—A. I do not think there would be.

Q. Was it that more money for dredging in the Wet basin was necessary?—A. I do not think there was anything else than the discussion when the estimates were being prepared to see what amount was required.

Q. When were the estimates prepared on which you asked Parliament to vote money for dredging in 1887?—A. I cannot say that.

Q. When was it first brought to your notice that money would be required for dredging in the Wet basin in 1887?—A. I cannot remember that, either. These things would be part of the estimates for the year.

Q. Is it a fact that the Engineer would only speak to you verbally in regard to a transaction involving asking Parliament for $100,000?—A. No doubt he would discuss the the matter. I would send for him and say: "Now the time has come for these works. How are they progressing, and what amount of money should be asked." He would say: "If we had $200,000 more we could pay these works for the year; or perhaps it would be better to have $350,000, because we could continue them next year until new funds would be given for the full year."

Q. I am not asking the general rule; I am asking what occurred in regard to the application to Parliament for this loan?—A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. You recommended to Parliament the making of a loan on which the dredging contract of 1887 could be carried out. You recommended that loan; or the grant of the money?—A. Yes.

Q. I want to know why you recommended Parliament to loan $100,000 to the Quebec Harbour Commissioners in 1887 for dredging in the Wet basin?—A. Because my Chief Engineer must have told me it was required for that purpose.

Q. Did he tell you in writing? If you remember, did he do so verbally?—A. It must have been verbally.

Q. Would you accept a mere verbal statement of the Engineer as to a public vote to the extent of $100,000, and with no other record make your statement in Parliament?—A. You say that in 1887 I asked $100,000 for that purpose. In 1887 additional and final advances are authorized—one of $160,000 and another of $1,100,000. There was nothing special for this. It was for the whole.

Q. You refer to the dredging and the contract entered into by the Harbour Commissioners for dredging to the extent of $100,000. I am assuming that you had some data to go on when you asked Parliament for that sum?—A. The Chief Engineer had his data.

Q. Where is the statement?—A. He stated so to me.

Q. Do you mean to say Parliament was asked to grant that loan in 1887 of $1,100,000, and that the information you had on which you asked Parliament to grant that $1,100,000 was simply a verbal communication?—A. He did not make a special report for me, but I would say: "How far have the works gone, and what are the payments to be made, and is there any additional work required?" He would have his books and say what was the amount required. On that we would call for so much more money from Parliament.

Q. Am I to understand that it is a practice in your Department for the head of the Department, having a matter to move in Parliament for large sums of money, to have nothing on record from your officials showing why you make these requests?—A. I do not say that.

Q. Is that what occurred in this particular case?—A. No; I do not say so. The Engineer was there with his books and statements showing that the work had been done and had cost so much; that we had expended so much and that there was so much more for the works of the year, and to complete these works it would require for this and that so much more money. That was the way it would be done.

Q. In this case you have no doubt that the Engineer, Mr. Perley, brought to you books or memoranda and showed you from these books or memoranda why you should ask Parliament for this grant?—A. There must have been given me data for the vote I was asking Parliament.

Q. Are they anywhere on record? You say they must have been taken from books. If so, why should not the books be produced before this Committee?—A. Everything the Committee wanted has been brought down.

Q. I think these should be brought down, and I do not wish to complete this examination until they are produced. I desire to ascertain when you first learned that this money was required or was first brought to your notice?—A. That was not a work of my Department, but of the Harbour Commissioners altogether.

Q. But you were asking Parliament to have it carried out. I want to know when it first came officially to your notice?—A. That I cannot say.

Q. Then the records of the Engineer would refresh your memory?—A. All the books and papers of the Engineer have been sent down here. I enquired about that sometime ago, and they said: "We have taken down everything we have."

Q. And there is no such entry in any book?—A. I do not know. I have not looked over them. You must see this; you cannot imagine that from 1887 I can keep all these things in my memory. At that time the matter of the Harbour Commissioners of Quebec was before the House, and I answered this:

"They simply ask that the money be advanced to them in the same way as it was advanced in previous years to complete this work. There is the report of the Chief Engineer showing the amount of money that was required and for what purpose. There was a statement made last year which showed that there would be required nearly $1,000,000 at that time to complete the Dock, and the plan laid before the House showed three schemes. There were three lines to be followed from the gas works at the upper end of the Docks down to the River St. Lawrence. One of these plans was to build a wharf from the gas works inside the dock, leaving south of it the wharves that are there alongside of St. Paul street and the other street in the lower town. It was found that that scheme would entail a large expenditure for damages and for purchasing piers and wharves, and it was abandoned. It was afterward thought that another line further north would meet the difficulty by clearing the wharves and leaving a further entrance for them, but it was found that proprietors of these wharves would complain or claim damages for being deprived of a portion of their franchises on these wharves. Finally, it was decided that the third scheme, for a wharf coming from the gas works down to and through St. Andrew's street, would be the best and would not require a large purchase of property to come down to what is called the cross wharf between the Tidal basin and the Wet basin. That plan was adopted last year. That work was put under contract, and the other works were also under contract. That is to say, the cross-wall and dredging. The amount of money which the Government asked last year to borrow will cover all the expenses that will be incurred this year and next year, and will be the last amount to be contributed by us to these docks. The same condition is to be imposed on these as on the other, with reference to the sinking fund."

Q. I want to know from Sir Hector when it was first brought to his notice there was to be a request to Parliament for the money to do the dredging for the Wet basin in 1887, and Sir Hector is unable to say from memory, when that matter was first brought to his attention?—A. It must have been, by what I see there, in 1886, because I was asking money for 1887.

Q. Very well. Whenever it was from what you consider to be the practice of your Department there would be some record even if it is only a memorandum in the books of the Engineers showing that?—A. The report of the Engineer is published every year.

Q. That is not the report of the Engineer of the Department. I want to know when it was brought before you officially, as head of the Department of Public Works, that there was going to be a contract let for dredging, or that there had been a contract let for dredging in the Wet basin, and upon which information you took the responsibility of asking a vote from Parliament. You say that there must have been a memorandum, and that the Engineer would point out to you from entries in his books the particular matter in question?—A. You see that it must have been in 1886.

Q. I wish, then, Mr. Chairman, that the proper officer be requested to attend here and point out if there are any such books or records, in order that I might bring them to the notice of the Minister?—A. It was a portion of the works, it was nothing special. The basins had to be made, they were made, and they were dredging them and they came—

Q. If you will excuse me, I desire to know when it came to your notice officially?—A. I say 1886.

Q. You say it was 1886?—A. Yes; it must have been 1886.

Q. It must have been in 1886 you first learned that the money would be required for dredging the Wet basin in 1887?—A. Yes; I think so.

Q. Can you say when in 1886?—A. It must have been at the end of 1886, because I was making estimates for the following year.

Q. I would like Mr. Gobeil to make a search. If he does not succeed in finding anything I shall not trouble Sir Hector again?—A. I want to give every evidence that I can to the Committee, but I would not like to be in the position of Mr. Perley. I am not in good health just now.

Q. Would you tell me in what form you secured the money you advanced to the Le Monde?—A. That was my own money.

Q. But what form did it take? You mentioned you desired to retain control of the paper?—A. I said that it was a loan I gave to them, but I received no interest and I did not expect any.

Q. It was for political advantage?—A. For political advantage and nothing else. I might say, Mr. Chairman, my attention has been called to a letter filed here as Exhibit "C16," which is a letter addressed by me to the Honourable Thomas McGreevy. I did not see the letter after it was written in 1886 until I saw it in the paper the other day. The letter says: "My Dear Mr. McGreevy,—The contractors for the Lévis Graving Dock should ask a settlement of their accounts from the Harbour Commissioners, who then will most likely consult with their Engineer. For the Esquimalt Graving Dock it is different, because the work there is altogether under my control." Well, about this letter, I must say that evidently it is an answer to Mr. McGreevy, who called my attention to the matter, and probably said: "Cannot these contractors have their money paid for the Graving Dock at Quebec, and the works at Esquimalt?" Well, on that, I answered him: "The contractors for the Lévis Graving Dock should apply to the Harbour Commissioners, who will then most likely consult with their Engineer, because those works are under their control." The word "Engineer" is underlined here. If it has been underlined by me I must say it had no significance whatever. It is the last word on the page, and it is underlined. It had no significance whatever, because it was quite natural that the Harbour Commissioners would consult with their Engineer. As to the Esquimalt contract, I was in a different position for the reason that that work was under my control altogether, and if something had to be paid it had to be by the Department, or the officers in my Department.

By Sir John Thompson :

Q. The letter is your Secretary's handwriting, I think?—A. It is in my Secretary's handwriting and the signature is my own.

Mr. JOSEPH LOUIS ARCHAMBAULT sworn.

By Mr. Ouimet :

Q. You are practising law as a barrister in Montreal?—A. Yes, for the past 20 years.

Q. Do you know Mr. George Beaucage, the witness who gave evidence here last week?—A. Yes; he is one of my clients.

Q. How long has he been your client?—A. For about 15 years I suppose.

Q. Are you aware that an action was taken in his name against the Hon. Thomas McGreevy on the 22nd February last?—A. Yes; I have taken that action.

Q. You have taken that action as his solicitor?—A. Yes.

Q. From whom did you receive instructions to take that action?—A. Mr. Beaucage himself.

Q. How long before this action was taken did you receive these instructions?—A. He spoke to me about it, I suppose, two or three months before, in Montreal. He was then living in Montreal and is still living there. I don't know if he has his actual residence there, but he has got contracts in Montreal.

Q. Did he see you several times before the action was taken?—A. Yes; many times.

Q. In fact he gave you instructions to take action?—A. Yes; in the ordinary way.

Q. Did you inform him when you had taken action?—A. Certainly.

Q. Did you speak to him, after the action was taken?—A. I spoke to him, after it was taken and before. I read to him the bill of particulars to know whether the instructions were correctly given.

Q. You read to him what we call in our courts a declaration?—A. Yes; a statement of facts.

Q. When the action was taken was it not mentioned in the newspapers in Montreal?—A. Yes.

Q. When did it come to the knowledge of the public?—A. Well, the action was taken and the reporters of the Press went to the Court House and they saw that there was a very important action being taken in the matter and asked the Honourable Mr. McGreevy himself to publish a letter in the Gazette to that effect.

Q. Did you publish another letter in answer to that letter?—A. Yes, I answered the letter of the Honourable Thomas McGreevy, because there was something said in that against my client or myself, so I wanted to put the matter properly before the public.

Q. Was Mr. Beaucage living in Montreal at the time?—A. Yes.

Q. Doing the work of a contractor?—A. Yes. He had two contracts in Montreal.

Q. Did he ever protest against you taking this action?—A. Never.

Q. What was the result of the action in the Courts, in the first instance?—A. He succeeded in the Superior Court.

Q. The demurrer was dismissed?—A. Yes, the action was brought, there was a preliminary plea and I argued the case before Judge Davidson.

Q. It was dismissed?—A. Yes.

Q. So you won the first judgment in his favour?—A. Yes; and I wrote a letter to my client to that effect. He came to my office and was very pleased with the judgment, but afterwards the defendant in the case, Mr. McGreevy, took a writ of appeal and the judgment was reversed. I want to correct a statement that has been made. It has been said that I have taken out the appeal. It was not so.

Q. Now while the appeal was pending, did you see Mr. Beaucage?—A. Yes; I wrote him day by day, as far as the case went.

Q. Did he ever request you to discontinue the action?—A. Never. The only thing I can remember—if I had my letter book here I might refer to my letters, but I took a memorandum of some of the letters—

Q. You wrote him during that time?—A. Yes; I wrote him a letter, apart from the letters which he gave in his evidence. I wrote him a letter on the 14th of March, the very next day after the judgment had been given in the Superior Court, and then I sent another letter on the 23rd April, giving notice to him that I had been served with a writ of appeal by Mr. McGreevy. These entries are taken from my book. On the 13th May I sent him a letter stating that the case was fixed in the Court of Appeal and was to be argued on the 15th.

Q. Did you see him several times at your office, while the appeal was pending?—A. Yes.

Q. Did he request you to discontinue the action?—A. No, never.

Q. Did he go to your office with Dr. Rodier with a request to discontinue the action?—A. No. I remember he came once to my office after the action was taken. He wanted an enquiry; I understood that they had some business together.

Q. What we want to know is whether he wanted you to discontinue the action?—A. I shall explain the facts of the case to you.

Q. Did Mr. Beaucage make any request to you about the appeal?—A. No. Well, he made this request: that if it were possible to suspend for a certain while the appeal he would be glad, because I heard he had some offer to settle the matter.

Q. He wanted you if possible to suspend the appeal?—A. Yes, and I told him "no." I could refresh my memory by looking at the letter book if it were here. What I told him in this letter was that I could not suspend the appeal myself without a proper arrangement with the solicitors of Mr. McGreevy, because it was they who were forcing the appeal upon us and I could not suspend it of my own free will. I wrote to him to that effect—that it was impossible for me to suspend it. If it had been possible for me to do so I would have done it. The reason that he wanted me to suspend the appeal was that he had received an offer—

Q. Did he mention the offer at the time?—A. He did.

Q. Did he say anything about the offer for settlement?—A. He told me that he had an offer of $2,500.

Q. From whom?—A. Well, I do not know if it is a privileged communication at this time.

Mr. Amyot objected.

Q. Have you any correct recollection of the name?—A. As far as I can remember, he came to my office and we were speaking about the matter there and I told him that I could not suspend the action. He said he had had an offer and I asked him from whom and I think the name he gave was Mr. Cameron or McCarron.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. You are at present practising in Montreal?—A. Yes.

Q. What is the name of your firm?—A. I am alone now.

Q. Were you alone then?—A. Yes.

Q. But you have been in partnership?—A. Yes, I have been in partnership since the last fifteen years.

Q. Who were your partners?—A. Mr. Bergeron, Mr. Mignault and Mr. Mousseau have been my partners.

Q. Now, from the evidence given by Mr. Beaucage we were given to infer that you had been soliciting him to give you a case. Was it so?—A. No.

Q. Did he offer you the case without solicitation?—A. Yes. I never solicited a case of that importance, especially. I was at the time the solicitor of Mr. Beaucage. I have had many other cases of his. There is one still pending in the Court of Review. I wish to state this, that I was his regular solicitor.

Q. I desire to draw your attention to this particular point. Mr. Beaucage insinuated that you had solicited, had seen him frequently, and insisted upon being entrusted with the case. Is it true?—A. I never solicited the case. The case was given to me by Mr. Beaucage. I waited two months before taking the case, because he was at the time a little fond of litigation. I had two other cases in which I had to represent him.

Q. I ask the question, did you solicit him for the case; yes or no?—A. No.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Did you consult me before taking that action?—A. No.

Q. Did you write me a letter and if so, about what?—A. I wrote you a letter in the month of December, I think.

Q. At any rate did you consult me about that?—A. No. The first intimation I had was two or three days after the action was taken in Montreal—seven or eight days after.

Q. You are a Queen's Counsel?—A. Yes.

Q. For how many years have you been a Queen's Counsel?—A. Four years.

Q. You were made Q. C. by the Dominion Government?—A. By the Dominion Government.

Q. I think you are well known in Montreal. Have you been President of the Club Cartier for several years?—A. Yes, in 1876-77, and after the Kiel matter I was appointed President of that club again.

Q. You have been President, how long?—A. Three times.

Q. And the Club Cartier is a Conservative Association in Montreal?—A. Well, the Conservative Association is a different association.

Q. But the Club Cartier is a Conservative Association in Montreal?—A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at the letter of the 7th January, 1891 (Exhibit "Q 16"), which is proved to be in your handwriting, that part in which you say you wish to meet Mr. Tarte and explain why you wanted to meet him?—A. Is that the letter which has been produced by Mr. Beaucage?

Q. Yes?—A. At that time Mr. Beaucage wanted to get from me the full particulars of his claim against Mr. McGreevy. He told me that he had details of the information about his claims against Mr. McGreevy, by what would appear in the inquiry—the charges brought before Parliament last session, and as Mr. Tarte was connected with the matter, he wanted me to write to Mr. Tarte or to see him about it. I wrote, as I have just stated, to Mr. Tarte asking no explanations, but asking him if he had in pamphlet form all the articles which he had published in his paper Le Canadien and asking him also to send me a copy. It was only three lines. That was during the month of December. Some time before sending that letter I tried to meet him in Montreal at the St. Lawrence Hall ; I saw his name in the paper one morning as being there. I wrote to that effect to Mr. Beaucage, but I did not see Mr. Tarte at that time. My recollection, however, is this, that I wanted this paper and when I had received a letter from Mr. Tarte, I had my late partner Mr. Bergeron immediately get a copy of the "Hansard" to have all the particulars of the claim of my client. I got it, too.

Q. In that letter (Exhibit "Q16") you say you have received a letter from Mr. McGreevy's lawyers?—A. Yes ; I received an answer.

Q. An answer to a communication demanding payment of $5,000 by Thomas McGreevy?—A. Yes. I wrote according to the statement of my client.

Q. And the answer from Mr. McGreevy's lawyers asked particulars of the claim against Mr. McGreevy?—A. Yes.

Q. You never furnished those particulars did you?—A. I wrote the answer.

Q. I should judge, however, from that letter that you were not in a position to furnish the particulars?—A. Yes, I had the particulars.

Q. In this letter you say you wanted to see Mr. Tarte to get the particulars?—A. Yes, but the action was taken about a month afterwards—the 3rd of February. Q. But at the time you received the letter from Mr. McGreevy's lawyers you had no particulars to give them?—A. I said I had none to give.

Q. Did you know them then?—A. I did.

Q. If you had the particulars why did you want to see Mr. Tarte from whom you said you desired to get them?—A. I wanted to know from him this only—whether the letters and documents brought before Parliament and since published in his paper were genuine documents. That is the only thing I wanted to know, and I told my client Mr. Beaucage that all my information was correct ; I need not get any other information. Mr. Tarte told me after the action was taken, "you may feel confident."

Q. How long after the letter of the 7th January did you see Mr. Tarte?—A. I saw Mr. Tarte, I suppose, 7 or 8 days after the action was taken.

Q. On the 3rd of February (Exhibit "R16") you tell Mr. Beaucage you had just got the information, so that apparently on the 7th of January you did not have the information?—A. That is not the meaning to be put on my letter. The accurate translation of the meaning of the letter is this: At the time I had the full documents and everything connected with the case. I read to Mr. Beaucage, as I just stated, the bill of particulars, the declaration. I wanted to have him aware of what I was doing at the time.

Q. This is a copy of the writ and declaration served on Mr. McGreevy? (document shown to witness)—A. This is my signature attached.

Q. When this preliminary exception was filed I think the Judge of the Superior Court expressed the opinion that Mr. McGreevy's lawyers ought to have proceeded by motion for further particulars?—A. The judgment is there.

Q. Where did you see Mr. Beaucage on the subject of this claim for the first time?—A. In my office.

Q. Are you sure of that?—A. I am quite sure of that.

Q. Did you go to Mr. Beaucage's hotel to speak to him on the subject?—A. No, not directly. I went two or three times to his hotel about a case now pending before the Court of Review.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Is it not a fact that Mr. Beaucage told you he had seen Thomas McGreevy in connection with the Cross-wall tender?—A. Yes, he told me in your presence in St. Lawrence Hall. I am glad to be called here to vindicate my character as a professional man. I am very glad, indeed, and my statement is sustained by Mr. Tarte himself that I have been authorized by Beaucage to enter the suit. Beaucage told me I had been authorized, after the action was taken.

By Mr. Ouimet :

Q. Who was to pay the costs of that suit against Mr. Thomas McGreevy?—
A. Beaucage himself.

Dr. J. A. RODIER sworn.

By Mr. Ouimet :

Q. Did you go to Mr. Archambault's office with George Beaucage?—A. Yes.

Q. How many times did you go to the office of Mr. Archambault with George Beaucage?—A. Only once, that I remember.

Q. Was it about the case Mr. Beaucage had against the Hon. Thomas McGreevy?—
A. Yes.

Q. In your presence did Mr. Beaucage state anything to Mr. Archambault to request him to stop the action, or to tell him that the action had been taken without his instructions?—A. On that question, I remember very well that they had a few hot words together, but I do not remember really what was the sense of those words. They quarrelled.

Q. Do you remember anything that Mr. Beaucage may have said conveying the idea that Mr. Archambault had taken that action against his instructions?—A. They spoke about the fees. Mr. Beaucage told Mr. Archambault that he thought he would incur the risk, and Mr. Archambault answered no. That was four or five months ago and I cannot remember more of what took place. I know neither Mr. McGreevy or Connolly or any of these people.

By Mr. Stuart :

Q. The general impression of the conversation is that Mr. Beaucage was finding fault?—A. Yes; they were not agreeing on a certain subject, but I cannot tell on what subject.

The Committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, FRIDAY, 14th August, 1891.

The Committee met at 10.30 a.m.; Mr. Girouard in the Chair.

Q. You understood the direction given by the Committee yesterday for you to make search for certain memorandum papers?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you made such a search?—A. I have, sir.

Q. What is the result of your search?—A. I found these papers you see now before you.

Q. The papers you produce, in all probability, contain the information asked for?—A. I think so, sir.

Q. If these do not, you do not know of any other papers?—A. I do not, sir.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. At the beginning of this enquiry I asked you, I think, to look for an estimate made by Mr. Trutch, No. 43,615, on the cost of the British Columbia Dock. I wish

Q. Will you look carefully into the papers produced before this Committee?—
A. It must be here.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. What is your business?—A. I am a Contractor.

Q. Were you a member of the firm of Starrs & O'Hanly?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember seeing an advertisement inviting tenders for building the Graving Dock at Esquimalt?—A. Yes.

Q. Did your firm tender for that work?—A. We did.

Q. Who prepared the tender?—A. Mr. O'Hanly and myself.

Q. Did anyone assist you?—A. No.

Q. It was a tender on your own account for your own firm?—A. Yes.

Q. For your own benefit?—A. Yes.

Q. You remember sending in the tender to the Department?—Yes.

Q. Do you remember when you sent it?—A. Which tender do you speak of; the first or second?

Q. I am now speaking of the first tender. Do you remember the date of the first tender?—A. Not exactly. It would be the spring of 1884, if I remember well.

Q. What is the date of the second tender?—A. It would be the fall of the same year.

Q. You mean by the second tender the tender that was put in afterwards when new tenders were invited?—A. Yes.

Q. I am speaking now of the tender that was put in in answer to the first advertisement. You remember sending in your tender for that work?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember the amount of your tender?—A. I do not remember the amount exactly. It was something over $300,000.

Q. Well that is not material. It was $315,000—odd. You say Mr. O'Hanly and yourself prepared the tender?—A. Yes.

Q. What was the first you heard in regard to the fate of your tender?—A. I know very little about it. I do not remember.

Q. What was the first communication, verbally or otherwise that you had from the Department or any person in connection with the Department in regard to your tender?—A. I do not recollect that there was anything special said about it. The first tender was ignored; it was not considered as far as I can remember.

Q. Tell me what you can remember about your first tender?—A. I remember that we heard that our tender was low.

Q. Did you hear that from the Departments?—A. No. I cannot say that it came direct from the Departments.

Q. Did you receive a communication from the Department in regard to your tender at all?—A. No.

Q. Did you receive any communication from any person in the Department in regard to your tender?—A. The first tender? No.

Q. Did you ever send any communication in regard to your first tender?—A. I think not.

Q. Did you ever send any notification that you had made some errors in your tender?—A. That may have been the case.

Q. Are you not aware that you communicated with the Department to the effect that you had made some errors?—A. About the tender being too low?

Q. I do not say what the complaint was.—A. I do not recollect. It may have been the case, but I do not recollect that.

Q. Well, did you stand by your tender?—A. There is scarcely anything that I can recollect at all about the first tender. There were only two tenders put in the first time, and there was no communication that I can remember between the Department and the contractors in reference to the first tender.

Q. Do you remember writing to the Department asking to be at liberty to withdraw your tender?—A. I do not remember, but it may be the case.

Q. Do you remember asking the Departments to return your cheque which you had put in as a deposit with your tender?—A. That would likely follow.

Q. Do you not remember having had verbal communication with the Department in regard to the return of your cheque?—A. No.

Q. You do not?—A. I do not remember. It may have been so.

Q. Who on behalf of your firm attended to the business in connection with the tender? Who conducted the correspondence or verbal communication of the Department?—A. The correspondence was by my partner Mr. O'Hanly. But the verbal communication was done with myself.

Q. Do you remember asking to have your cheque returned?—A. I do not remember. It is very likely that I did, though.

Q. Do you remember asking to have your tender cancelled?—A. Very likely.

Q. What was the reason for that?—A. We thought we were rather low. Our tender was rather low, I suppose.

Q. Was that the reason?—A. It must have been.

Q. Was it the reason?—A. I think so.

Q. Did you have any communication—did any person suggest to you that you should withdraw your tender?—No answer.

Q. Where are your books of account in regard to this matter?—A. We have no books.

Q. No entries?—A. No.

Mr. DAVIES—Let him answer your previous question.

Q. Did any person suggest to you that you should withdraw your tender?—A. I have no recollection of the first tender at all. There was so little talk about the first tenders that went in, I have no recollection of that particular tender at all. There was scarcely anything said about it either in the Department or outside.

Q. Well then the second tender? Do you remember whether anybody suggested that you should withdraw your second tender or any tender?—A. Yes. It was suggested that I should withdraw the second tender.

Q. Who made that suggestion to you?—A. Am I bound to answer that question?

The CHAIRMAN—Yes, sir.

WITNESS—Well, Sir Hector.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. Tell me the circumstances under which that suggestion was made?—A. There was considerable circumstances in connection with that. Sir Hector sent for me and I went up and seen him. He told me, of course, my tender was too low and he called in Mr. Perley and talked the matter over. He discussed the question and suggested that I was entirely too low.

By the Chairman :

Q. He sent for Mr. Perley, you say?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. Where did this conversation take place?—A. In Sir Hector's office.

Q. Do you remember what Sir Hector said to you or have you told us all you remember?—A. He told me several things in connection with it. I do not think it is necessary for me to—

The CHAIRMAN (Interrupting)—You had better say everything you know in connection with the matter. You are bound to do so.

WITNESS.—He went on to tell me that I knew myself there was a certain amount to be paid for plant and it was necessary to pay that $50,000, and that there was no getting out of it. He also told me that I could not expect any extras, that it was straight sailing, and so and so; that the work had to be done, and taking the $50,000 that was to be paid for plant out of our total, there would not be enough left to complete the work. That is about the sum and substance of the conversation.

Q. Had you any influence as a contractor?—A. A little.

Q. Were you prepared to carry out your contract?—A. I was.

Q. Were you able to carry it out?—A. I think we could have had means to carry it out with friends to assist us.

Q. Had you any means of your own?—A. If we had not—

Q. Did you put up your deposit?—A. Yes; we did. If we had not means we could not have put up the deposit.

Q. What deposit did you put up with the tender?—A. I think it was $7,500 that the tender called for.

Q. Did you comply with Sir Hector's request?—A. I did at last.

Q. What do you mean by "at last"?—A. At the wind up.

Q. At that interview?—A. He gave me three or four days to consider it, and I took up the balance of the deposit, amounting to $9,000 more, which made the total sum of $17,000.

Q. You brought that at the time? Was it in money?—A. It was an accepted cheque.

Q. Which with the original deposit of $7,500 would have made $17,000?—A. Yes.

Q. What did you do with that when you brought it to the Department?—A. The first cheque went in with the tender and the next I handed to Sir Hector himself.

Q. Why did you hand that second cheque to Sir Hector?—A. Because we had the conversation, and he gave me, as I have already stated, three or four days to consider. I was not anxious to take the work but my partner was and some friends, and as I told you before it was I who did the business with Sir Hector and I took the cheque up with me and handed it to him.

Q. The answer you gave was that you wished to withdraw?—A. Yes.

Q. Was there any inducement held out to you by any person?—A. None whatever.

Q. Sir Hector assured you that if you got the contract the $50,000 for the plant would have to be paid and there would be no extras?—A. That is right.

Q. And that it was all plain sailing?—A. Yes.

Q. That you need not look for anything above contract prices?—A. I told Sir Hector I thought from the tone of his discussion he did not want me to take the work, and said: "Sir Hector, I believe our figures are enough to do the work, but I see that you do not feel inclined to give me the work and consequently I will withdraw."

By Sir John Thompson :

Q. Were you ever in British Columbia?—A. No.

Q. Nor your partner?—A. No.

Q. And you never had built a work like that Dock?—A. No.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. Did you feel capable of going on with the contract, and had you engineers at your disposal to go on with?—A. It was not necessary. The Government supplied engineers.

Mr. STUART—Our case is closed.

Mr. GEOFFRION—I wish to call a witness or two in rebuttal.

ROBERT H. MCGREEVY re-called.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Foley—Martin Foley?—A. I do.

Q. Had you occasion to see him in the course of the elections of 1887?—A. I had.

Q. You have already stated you took part in that election?—A. A very active part.

Q. Namely, in the election of your brother Thomas?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether Foley took a part in that election also?—A. Yes, a very active part.

Q. Are you aware whether he had the handling of any money?—A. I do not know as a fact, except from a circumstance between himself and me, and as to what took place between us.

Q. Did Foley come to you during that election?—A. He did.

Q. In connection with election matters?—A. He did.

Q. What did he state to you?—A. He stated to me the amount of money he required for the district he controlled, and he stated the sum to be $1150 or thereabouts.

Q. What did you answer him?—A. I answered him to go to Mr. Murphy and possibly he would get what he required.

Q. That was the nature of your conversation with him on this question?—A. On that question, yes.

Q. You did not accompany him to see Mr. Murphy?—A. No.

Q. Did you see him again during the election about some matters of this kind?—A. I saw him every day and evening.

Q. Did you see him after this afternoon?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you see him in charge of a district?—A. Yes.

Q. What district?—A. It comprised the Finlay Market, and Little Champlain Street, and Sous Le Fort street.

Q. That is the district he is supposed to control?—A. Yes.

Q. When Mr. Valin went to you had you reason to believe that he thought you had the management of part of the funds of the election?—A. Well, he knew I had control.

Q. Will you explain to the Committee how you came in possession of certain letters which were filed by you in this Committee?—A. Any letters I filed here belonging to Thomas McGreevy were those he handed to me to carry out the object mentioned in the letters and no other, and no other letters did I ever see or get possession of, or did I handle or have at any time.

Q. There was a letter written and signed by your brother Thomas addressed to Mr. Perley which is not filed but to which an answer by Mr. Perley is filed in this case. Have you any knowledge of the writing of a letter to Mr. Perley?—A. Some time previous to the tenders being put in for the Esquimalt Dock, British Columbia, I asked Thomas McGreevy if he could get me any further information than is contained in the specifications submitted and he said no doubt he could from Mr. Perley. Says he "Write down what you want me to ask him and I will sign the letter." I got the letter written and he signed it; after that a reply came from Mr. Perley, and he handed to me the letter and says he "there is more information than you wanted." There is a photograph of some of the work.

Q. Mr. Thomas McGreevy has stated that he received from you, in the fall of 1884, $10,000. Will you state whether you made such a payment at that date?

Counsel objected. Objection sustained.

By Mr. Ouimet :

Q. You said that you had that letter written to Mr. Thomas McGreevy stating what information you wanted?—A. Yes.

Q. Who wrote that letter?—A. I either wrote it myself or got one of my sons to write it.

Q. You do not remember?—A. No; I dictated the letter no doubt.

By Sir John Thompson :

Q. You say you saw your brother sign it?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Ouimet :

Q. You do not remember who wrote it, whether it was yourself or your son?—A. It was either myself or one of my sons.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. I want to ask you a question with respect to that $10,000 ?

Objection was raised, but after some discussion the question was allowed to be put.

Q. You have heard the statement made by your brother that he did not receive $22,000 from you at the time you stated, but that he received $10,000 afterwards in the fall. Have you any statement to make with respect to that $10,000. I do not want you to repeat what you have already said, but simply to make your statement with reference to the $10,000 he alleges he received from you in the fall?—A. I gave him no $10,000 in the fall; I gave him no sum in the fall except as already stated in my evidence.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. When I was questioning you about the manner in which you came into possession of certain letters, I forgot to ask you also whether you had any explanation to give in connection with a statement made by your brother, that he believes you must have taken the letters written by you to him. What statement have you to make?—A. I have never seen the letters I wrote to him after I sent them to him.

Q. And they are not in your possession?—A. They are not, and never have been; and I further state that I never had the key of the Post Office box; I never used it. My son has discovered this blotter, and I want to produce it. This is the missing blotter covering the period from 1883 to 1886.

The CHAIRMAN—It is too late. This book should have been in the possession of the Accountants.

The WITNESS—Mr. Chairman, I promised to get this book when my son came from the bush, and after he came he found it. It was my son found it, not me.

Q. Since when have you had it in your possession?—A. Since he came from the bush; he found it.

Q. When?—A. About a week ago. He got summoned here as a witness, when he found it.

Sir JOHN THOMPSON—This is all the witness was required by Mr. Thomas McGreevy's Counsel to produce. He has now brought it, and Counsel have an opportunity to use it if they please.

Mr. STUART—I decline to cross-examine the witness.

Sir JOHN THOMPSON—Counsel for the defence are offered an inspection of the book which is now produced, and if they decline to do it I think Mr. McGreevy should take it back.

Mr. FITZPATRICK—We do not decline to take it. Mr. Stuart declines to cross-examine the witness.

The WITNESS—There was a question here the other day about $6,050 for North-West lands, and it was sought to be made out that $1,000 of this was what I gave to Thomas McGreevy for Ottawa. I have a paper here (Exhibit "J17") showing that it had no connection with the $6,050. That was for North-West lands only.

By the Chairman :

Q. Where did you get that statement?—A. I got it in 1887.

Q. When did you find it?—A. I only found it since I went down the last time.

By Mr. Ouimet.

Q. At what date, Mr. McGreevy, was that transaction which is mentioned in that paper (Exhibit "J17.")?—A. May 1889.

Q. With what is it connected?—A. It was sought to establish here that that $1,000 given for Ottawa, in 1884-5, was part of this $6,050 for North-West lands. Those were lands which I had purchased from Thomas McGreevy. We had them on shares and I bought him out after our quarrel, and gave Mr. Chaloner a cheque for $6,050. It has been sought to be established the last time I was here as a witness that the $1,000 I gave Thomas McGreevy for Ottawa was part of this money, whereas the transaction took place three years before.

Mr. ROBERT MCGREEVY, Jr., sworn.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Do you know Mr. Herbert Carbray, of Quebec?—A. I do, sir.

Q. Were you in Quebec during the general elections of 1887?—A. I was.

Q. Did you see Mr. Carbray during that election?—A. I did.

Q. Will you state to the Committee under what circumstances?

Objection was taken that the evidence was not material, and Mr. Geoffrion thereupon withdrew his question and the witness was discharged.

Mr. J. ISRAEL TARTE, M.P. sworn.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. I want to know if these papers connected with the case were given to you by Mr. Murphy or Robert McGreevy for any other purpose than that of showing them to the Ministers and trying to come to a settlement between the parties interested?—A. If you allude to the first papers, I will answer that they were given to me to be shown to Sir John Macdonald.

Q. For no other purpose than that?—A. No.

Mr. TARTE.—Mr. Chairman, I ask that the following letters and papers, produced this morning by Mr. Woods, be marked as Exhibits and printed with the Evidence, viz.:

(Exhibit "K17.")

"HARBOUR ENGINEER'S OFFICE,

"QUEBEC, 23rd December, 1886.

"SIR,—Owing to the death of Mr. John Edward Boyd, Engineer in charge, it has become necessary for the future conduct and management of the works in progress, and about to be undertaken in connection with the Harbour Improvements, to effect changes in the Engineering staff.

"After due consideration, I have concluded that it is not desirable that a successor should be appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the demise of the late Mr. Boyd, as I believe the present staff is sufficiently large and the members capable of conducting the works in a satisfactory manner.

"I have, therefore, to recommend the following as my staff for the future, or until a necessity arises for increasing or reducing their number, or of dispensing with their services entirely.

"Mr. St. George Boswell to be Resident Engineer, at a salary of $2,500 per annum.

" Mr. C. McGreevy to be Assistant Engineer, Cross-wall Contract and Walls in connection therewith, at a salary of $1,800 per annum.

" Mr. H. Laforce Langevin to be Assistant Engineer, South-wall Contract, at a salary of $1,800 per annum.

" All appointments and salaries to date from the 1st January, 1887.

" Your obedient servant,

" HENRY F. PERLEY,

" QUEBEC HARBOUR IMPROVEMENTS.

" QUEBEC, 8th Feb., 1887.

" The Honourable Board of Harbour Commissioners,

" Quebec.

" GENTLEMEN,—We would respectfully call your attention to the final estimate on dredging, and would beg leave to state that we cannot accept the same as final as, according to our accounts, we are entitled to over $13,000.00 more than has been allowed, and would kindly ask you to authorize your Engineer to check over the accounts together with our Engineer, so as the error may be corrected.

" We are, most respectfully yours,

" 22ND FEBRUARY, 1887.

" GENTLEMEN,—Your letter of the 8th to the Commissioners in re the quantity of dredging done by you has been sent to me. I have requested Mr. Boswell to go over the quantity with your Engineer, and if any error be found I will be ready to correct it.

" I may tell you that when going over this matter, I found that Mr. Boyd had made an error whereby you were over-paid some $13,000.00, and this may account for the smallness of the amount found to be due to you.

" Yours obediently,

(Exhibit "N17.")

" HARBOUR ENGINEER'S OFFICE,

" QUEBEC, 14th March, 1887.

" A. H. VERRET, Esq.,

" Secretary-Treasurer,

" Harbour Commissioners.

" SIR,—Under date 22nd January last, I transmitted estimate 26 and final for dredging, &c., done by Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., under a contract dated 25th September, 1882, and under subsequent arrangements, in connection with the harbour works, and according to that paper then forwarded I stated that the sum of $674.87 was due.

" On the 12th February, you transmitted to me a copy of a letter from Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., in which they stated they could not accept my estimate as final, as according to their accounts they were entitled to receive a much larger amount, and they asked that the account be checked by their Engineer, and an Engineer on behalf of the Commissioners.

"This has been done, and though no error was found in the quantity of work done, yet errors were found in the prices affixed to sundry items of work, whereby the sum of five cents per cubic yard had been deducted and retained from the prices mentioned in the contract of September, 1882, which prices were to apply to all work done over and beyond the amount stipulated in said contract, and also in classifying the quantities of work done at different depths.

"In making up my estimate of January last, I adopted these reduced prices, because I found that the late Mr. Boyd had used them in the progress estimates he had given from time to time, and was not aware that there was any dispute as to correctness.

"On enquiry I find that the late Mr. Boyd retained 'five cents per cubic yard' from all materials dumped into the river, doing so with the hope that the contractors would place a greater quantity in the embankment at the larger price, where a benefit would be derived.

"As I am of the opinion that the contractors are entitled to be paid this 'five cents per cubic yard,' I enclose herewith an amended final estimate showing that the sum of $17,056.27 is due; and I may here state that this sum is arrived at as follows:

" Amount paid on contract work.....		$138,846 00
do do extra.....	$176,681 31
do do balance due.....	17,056 27	193,737 58
Total .....		$332,583 58

"Again this balance of $17,056.27 is made up as follows:

322,140 c. y. deposited in river at 5c.....	$16,107 00
Due to recasting quantity at different depths .....	274 40
Balance due as per estimate, January, 1887.....	674 87

"Total ..... $17,056 27

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

"HENRY F. PERLEY,

"Chief Engineer."

(Exhibit "O17.")

"OTTAWA, 14th September, 1887.

"SIR,—In my letter of the 24th January last, accompanying the final estimate in favour of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., for the construction of the Graving Dock at Lévis, I stated that I had not included an item of $110,000 claimed by the contractors for damages sustained for 'detention, salaries, maintenance of organization at Lévis and at the quarries,' for the reason that it was one I did not feel competent to allow or reject, in whole or in part, and asked to have it considered by the Board as an independent item, separate and distinct from the other items to which I had referred.

"Since the date of the letter above referred to, I have had meetings with the contractors relative to this claim, and have received from them the following statement:

"Our claim is made up as follows:—Four years' detention on account of the Engineers, Messrs. Kinipple and Morris, having assured the existence of clay in the foundations of the wing walls and the coffer dam, and so distinctly shown and stated on both plan and specification furnished by them, whereas a fine sand existed, and we were misled. Had the foundation been as described, there is no reasonable doubt but we would have completed the works within the time specified, or in other words, we were four years longer constructing the work owing to their error and stubbornness in not adapting themselves to the circumstances when made acquainted by personal observation and our written protest. Our claim is made up as follows:

To salary of Mr. N. K. Connolly, one year... ..	$ 2,000 00
do O. E. Murphy do .....	1,200 00
do M. Connolly do .....	1,200 00
do P. Hume do .....	1,800 00
do Book-keeper do .....	800 00
do T. H. Gallagher.....	1,200 00
do Time-keeper .....	350 00
do Stable boys.....	600 00
do Watchmen (2).....	700 00
Interest on $90,000 at 7 per cent.....	6,300 00
Cost of maintenance of organization at Lévis and at the quarries, consisting of machinery, derricks, horses, waggons, carts, sleighs, &c., and for loss sustained in not being able to realize from the plant.....	11,350 00
	One year..... 27,500 00
	Or four years.....$ 110,000 00

“It will be noted that the reason given for making this claim is the delay in the completion of the work caused by non-existence of clay and the presence of fine sand.

“Relative to this I have alluded in my letter of the 24th January last, and therein stated that the adherence by the Engineers to their original idea has been the cause of greatly increasing the cost of the docks, but it should be borne in mind that the contractors undertook the work in good faith and a reliance on the plans and specifications, and the delay which has occurred, and the increased cost of the work are not chargeable to them, for they have carried on and finished the work in the face of every difficulty.

“It is true they have been paid for all they have done, but these payments represent in the main the expenditures they have incurred, without in any way including their personal services, the services of their staff and organization, etc.”

“Having considered this claim, I am of the opinion it should not be allowed as a whole, but in part, as follows:

3 years interest on $90,000 at 7 per cent.....	$18,900 00
3 years maintenance at $4,000.00.....	12,000 00

“I have reduced the time from four years to three, because of the existence of the supplementary contract of 4th June, 1884, by which the contractors agreed to finish and complete the dock for a certain fixed and stipulated amount, and therefore any claim they may have had for detention could only date up to that time. I have estimated all charges he made for salaries, for the reason that during the period of detention allowed the contractors were paid at their contract prices for all labour supplied; that on materials furnished they were paid 20 per cent. as profit, etc., and for all the machinery used they were paid high rates, which fully covered the cost of their maintenance, profits, etc., and I have placed the sum of $4,000 per year as being ample and sufficient to cover the cost of maintenance, etc., of unused plant at the dock and the quarries, and of such part or portion of their organization which was not available, by reason of the alleged delay,

“With reference to this claim I desire to state that when I took charge of the dock in September, 1883, it was not presented to me, although I had asked that every claim the contractors might have be submitted, so that I could investigate them and see to what extent the Commissioners were indebted. Only one claim to my knowledge, that of the extra foot in depth in the dock, was withheld, because there was not at the time any certainty as to the correctness of the bend marks and tide-gauge on which the matter depended, and its investigation was therefore deferred; and at the time of preparing the supplementary contract of June, 1884, I was under the impression that the clause inserted therein, admitting the right of the contractors to submit further claims for the extra foot; and I desire to have this statement made of record.

"In settlement of the item of claim under investigation, I have to recommend the payment to Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. of the sum of $30,900, as the statement enclosed herewith.

"I am, Sir,

"Your obedient servant,

"HENRY F. PERLEY,

"Chief Engineer."

"A. H. VERRET, Esq.,

"DEAR SIR,—We have taken communication of the report of Henry F. Perley, Esq., your Engineer, dated September 14 last; we that he deals with one item only, that of damages and delays of our claim beyond what he dealt with in his report of January 24th last. After a very careful perusal of both reports and an analysis of his figures and comparison with our diary and expenditure, we have come to the conclusion that it is impossible for us to accept the sum offered by you, viz., $30,900 as a full settlement. While declining to accept we must confess that Mr. Perley has given the claim time and study to arrive at a solution of its merits, but his unacquaintance with the early construction of this work, and not being clothed with power sufficient to elicit reliable information by the summoning of those who took part in the work will account to some extent for the result. It is for these and other reasons we would respectfully solicit some way of a settlement of our claim by which we will be enabled to prove beyond doubt, our claim, or the greater part of it, and that a long and tedious work caused mostly by incapable Engineers has taken out of our pockets well earned money and that we are worse off to-day from this work than when we began. We therefore suggest an arbitration as the most amicable means of settlement, composed of three arbitrators, one named by your Commission, one by us, and the third either by you with our approval or by the other two; this would be speedier and less costly than a court of justice. We trust, therefore, you will accede to our request.

Graving Dock.

" SIR,—In reply to yours of the 25th April, asking for an opinion on an offer by Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. to accept the sum of $35,000 with interest in addition to the sum of $30,900 offered by the Board in full settlement of their claim in connection with the Graving Dock at Lévis, I have to state that, in view of the assumption of the Dock by the Dominion Government, and the relief thus to be afforded to the Board from all future liability and responsibility in connection therewith, I am of the opinion that it is desirable the Dock should be handed over free and unencumbered, and to do so it is advisable that the contractors be offered the sum of thirty-five thousand dollars (35,000) without interest in addition to the amount, viz., $30,900, in settlement in full of all claims and demands.

HENRY F. PERLEY,

(24th January, 1887.)

NOTE IN RED INK.

"A certificate for that amount was granted the 5th April, 1887, to Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the 24th January last, payable out of the first monies which will be voted by Parliament in connection with the Graving Dock.

"Paid with interest the 16th September, 1887, to Bank of British North America."

MR. TARTE.—The following is a synopsis of the remainder of the letters and papers filed by Mr. Woods this morning. In my opinion it is not necessary that they should be printed, viz.:

Letter dated 26th September 1883, from Larkin, Connolly & Co. to Quebec Harbour Commissioners requesting to be allowed to construct a store house on the Louise Embankment under certain conditions mentioned therein, (Exhibit "G18."); Notarial protest dated 6th December, 1884, Quebec Harbour Commissioners vs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., (Exhibit "H18."); Letter dated 9th December, 1884, from Larkin, Connolly & Co. to Quebec Harbour Commissioners in reply to foregoing, (Exhibit "I18."); Joint report dated 27th February, 1886, of Messrs. H. F. Perley and Sandford Fleming on their examination of the Harbour Works at Quebec, (Exhibit "J18."); Report (copy) dated 18th August, 1886, of H. F. Perley in reference to the works proposed for the completion of the Quebec Harbour works, (Exhibit "K18."); Letter dated 25th August, 1886, from Secretary Department Public Works to Secretary Harbour Commission, transmitting copy of a report and plan made by the Chief Engineer of the Department with reference to the various proposals made for the completion of the Quebec Harbour Works, (Exhibit "L18."); Letter dated 24th September 1886, from Henry F. Perley to Quebec Harbour Commissioners, stating that the Graving Dock being practically finished the necessity for maintaining an Engineering staff in connection therewith has ceased and requests therefore that Mr. L. Langevin be transferred to the Harbour Works and that the services of Inspectors be dispensed with. (Exhibit "M18."); Engineer's certificates from No. 1 to 39 inclusive in connection with Lévis Graving Dock, (Exhibit "N18."); Letter dated 8th February, 1887, from Laforce Langevin to Secretary Harbour Commission, calling his attention to the way Canadian Pacific Railway Authorities act towards the Commissioners, regarding the Louise Embankment during the present winter, (Exhibit "O18."); Report dated 18th August, 1887, of H. F. Perley, on what is required to make the Graving Dock a complete Docking Establishment, (Exhibit "P18."); Letter dated 10th September, 1887, from St. George Boswell to Larkin, Connolly & Co., calling their attention to his letter of the 31st August last in reference to the dumping of dredged material in the River, (Exhibit "Q18."); Letter dated 27th August, 1888, from Larkin, Connolly & Co. to Secretary Harbour Commission, in reply to foregoing, (Exhibit "R18."); Letter dated 27th August, 1888, from Larkin, Connolly & Co., to Secretary Harbour Commission, stating the contract for dredging has been violated by Commissioners when they prevent them from dumping in the River, (Exhibit "S18."); Letter dated 14th October, 1889, from Laforce Langevin to Secretary Harbour Commission, calling attention to the want of protection against fire on the Louise Embankment, (Exhibit "T18."); Sundry accounts of Larkin, Connolly & Co., for work performed by them in connection with the Harbour Improvements, (Exhibit "U18."); Letter dated 19th July, 1890, from U. Binet to Secretary Harbour Commission, explaining loss of $25.00 stolen from his desk, (Exhibit "V18.).

The Committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, WEDNESDAY, August 19th, 1891.

The Committee met at 10.30 a.m., Mr. Girouard in the Chair.

Investigation into certain circumstances and statements made in connection with the tenders and contracts respecting the Quebec Harbour Works, etc., resumed.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN made the following statement :

Mr. Chairman; I saw in the papers that Mr. Starrs has been brought as a witness and has made a statement and has been cross-examined upon it, and I thought that under the circumstances the committee would give me leave to say something about that under oath, as I did the other day. Mr. Starrs has stated in his evidence, on Friday last, that he had interviews with me about the Esquimalt Graving Dock tenders. I wish to rectify some of his statements in so far as they relate to me.

1st. About the first set of tenders, which were called for in February, 1884, and opened on the 5th of March, Mr. Starrs seems to have forgotten nearly every thing about his tender. He says it was ignored, it was not considered as far as he can remember, he has no recollection of it; there was, he says, so little talk, about the first tenders, he has no recollection of that particular tender at all.

Nevertheless on the 19th of March, 1884, his firm wrote to the Secretary of the Department of Public Works a letter (page 34 of Blue Book) that they had made mistakes which they detail, and they wish them corrected, or desire to withdraw their tender and have their cheque returned to them. On the 14th of April (same page) they write another letter in the same sense; and on the 17th of April Mr. Perley reports accordingly (pages 34 and 35) recommending that neither of the two tenders be accepted, and that the cheque be returned to the several parties. And on the 19th (page 35), an Order in Council is passed, and on that day the cheques were returned.

2nd. About his second tender, Mr. Starrs says that I suggested to him that he should withdraw his tender;—that I sent for him; that he came, and saw me;—that I told him his tender was too low, and that I called in Mr. Perley and talked the matter over; that I discussed the question and suggested that he was entirely too low; that I told him there was a certain amount to be paid for plant, it was necessary to pay that $50,000, and there was no getting out of it;—that I also told him that he could not expect any extra, that it was straight sailing; that the work had to be done, and that taking the $50,000, that were to be paid for plant out of the total, there would not be enough to complete the work;—that at that interview I gave him three or four days to consider my request, and that he took up the balance of the deposit, amounting to $9,000 more, which made the total sum of $17,000;—that the first cheque went in with the tender, and he adds “The next I handed to Sir Hector himself, because we had the conversation, and he gave me three or four days to consider. I told Sir Hector I thought from the tone of his discussion he did not want me to take the work, and said: Sir Hector, I believe our figures are enough to do the work, but I see that you do not feel inclined to give me the work, and consequently I will withdraw.”

Mr. Starrs is quite mistaken in the inference he draws from his interviews with me.

I never tried to prevent him taking the contract, and I never intended to do so. I never suggested that he should withdraw his tender.

When I sent for him, I did not tell him that his tender was too low or entirely too low. But in presence of Mr. Perley, I read to him Mr. Perley's report about his tender and if the $50,000 were mentioned, it was in Mr. Perley's report. I told him also, as I always do in such cases, that the intended contractor must not expect extras, as my experience is that low contracts are their ruin and also a cause of great difficulty and trouble to the Department.

This interview was the result of Mr. Perley's above mentioned report by which he declared that Messrs. Starrs and O'Hanly's tender was too low.

I was not, however, disposed to pass over their tender, and I therefore sent for Mr. Starrs.

The interview ended there, and Mr. Starrs left to consider the matter with Mr. O'Hanly, his partner.

Mr. Starrs has mixed what occurred at the interview with the letter of the 7th October, which he received from the Department (Page 91 of the Evidence). At the interview there was no mention of a delay of three or four days, and Mr. Starrs could not therefore have stated to me what he says at the end of his statement. He never said so, and his memory which is so defective about his first tender is evidently at fault in the other direction about his second tender.

3rd. Some days having passed without my having heard from Messrs. Starrs and O'Hanly, and as I wished to make my report to Council, I directed the secretary of the Department to write to them on the 7th October a letter (page 91), giving them until the Saturday, 11th of October, to strengthen themselves financially and to inform me if they would then be prepared to sign the contract for the execution of the work.

On the 10th they wrote an answer (page 91) saying in substance that they did not require to strengthen themselves financially and that they had the necessary means to perform the contract, they added that they would be ready to sign the contract on Monday (13th) and make the necessary deposit, which evidently they had not then made.

On the Monday, 13th of October, I recommended to Council (pages 92 and 93) to accept Messrs. Starrs and O'Hanly's tender provided they made the necessary deposit of $9,500 to be added to that of $7,500 already made as mentioned in their letter of the 10th. I thus showed my desire that they should have the contract.

• On the 16th an Order in Council was passed accordingly.

On the 21st, Mr. Starrs not having appeared from the day he and his partner had written their letter of the 10th, and as I wished to have the contract signed, the Secretary of the Department wrote to Mr. Starrs (page 91 of the Evidence), asking him to be good enough to call at the Department at once re Esquimalt Graving Dock.

Mr. Starrs came to the Department, and if he is not mistaken about the cheque he speaks of, he evidently carried it back with him as he did not leave it with me and he was not ready to sign the contract, and did not sign it.

The fact is, on the 24th, a letter was received from Messrs. Starrs and O'Hanly (page 37 of the Blue Book, (Exhibit "N 5") in which they say they find they had made a mistake in some of the items in their tender and find their prices generally too low. They consider it therefore not prudent to take the contract, and that it would not be in the public interest if they were to do so. They therefore beg to withdraw their tender and request to have their deposit cheque returned.

Their cheque was accordingly returned to them on the 27th.

If the contract did not go to Messrs Starrs and O'Hanly, it is evidently due to their not wishing to have it, they having, as they say, made mistakes in their tender and finding their prices generally too low.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. The second tender, you reported to Council in favour of it?—A. In favour of Starrs & O'Hanly.

Q. After you reported to Council did you send for Mr. Starrs?—A. Yes.

Q. By letter?—A. By letter.

Q. From the Secretary of the Department?—A. Yes.

Q. That was on the 21st October?—A. The 21st, I think.

Q. And Mr. Starrs came to your office in pursuance of that letter?—A. Yes.

Q. Was that on the 24th?—A. It was between the 21st and the 24th, I think. He must have come either that day or the next day.

Q. I see the letter in which he withdraws his tender and asked for the return of the deposit cheque on the 24th is addressed to you. I understand he sent the letter withdrawing on the day he had the interview with you?—A. I cannot say.

Q. Is it true that he withdrew on the same day that he had the interview with you?—A. I cannot say whether it was the 24th, 23rd or 22nd.

Q. You are not clear whether that letter withdrawing the second tender was written on the day he had the interview with you or not?—A. No. It may be so. When I received the letter of the 24th I was quite surprised that he had sent it, because I expected him to come himself.

Q. Do I understand you to swear that you did not suggest to him to withdraw?—A. I did not. On the contrary I was desirous of him taking the contract.

Q. His statement in that respect then is untrue?—A. He must be mistaken.

Q. It is untrue at any rate?—A. He is not correct.

Q. Is his statement true that when he went to see you at that time you told him his tender was too low and you called in Mr. Perley to talk the matter over?—A. It is not so. When he came—

Q. I am asking categorically in regard to certain specific statements.

SIR JOHN THOMPSON.—I would suggest that Mr. Davies allow Sir Hector to finish his answer; when he desires to make an explanation, permit him to do so.

WITNESS.—My answer is this; when Mr. Starrs came in I rang my bell to have Mr. Perley come. Either he brought with him his report, or I told the messenger to tell him to bring it in. He brought it in and then I read to Mr. Starrs that portion of the report of Mr. Perley that related to his tender. In that report Mr. Perley stated—I am not giving the exact words—but in effect that the tender was too low and I think, that they could hardly do the work for the money.

Q. So you sent for Mr. Perley, you got him there, and read to Mr. Starrs Mr. Perley's report that the tender was too low and that Starrs could not do the work for the money?—A. There is no doubt about it, I read him that.

Q. Mr. Starrs in his evidence says (page 1159) "Sir Hector sent for me and I went up and seen him. He told me of course that my tender was too low." Is that correct?—A. No.

Q. This interview took place in your office?—A. In my office—Yes. There may have been a discussion but I did not tell him he was too low because of course I knew nothing about that.

Q. You have sworn that you read to him the report of your Engineer that the tender was too low?—A. Yes, but I could not tell him that, because I did not know it myself.

Q. Starrs goes on to say, "He went on to tell me that I knew myself there was a certain amount to be paid for plant and it was necessary to pay that $50,000, and that there was no getting out of it." Did you tell him that?—A. No. The $50,000 was mentioned in Mr. Perley's report and that was read to him.

Q. I did not ask you about the report?—A. I am telling you what was done.

Q. You are swearing directly opposite to a witness and I want you to answer—yes or no. I ask you did you tell Starrs, as he swears, that there was no getting out of the payment of this $50,000?—A. I did not.

Q. So that he is wrong in that?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you also tell him that he could not expect any extras?—A. I have already stated in my statement that I said extras would not be given in that case more than in any other case.

Q. Will you swear that you put in the words, "more than in any other case"?
A. Well no, I would not say that. I was stating that as showing my habit of—

Q. I want to draw the distinction between what your habit was and what you told him. Did you tell him that he could not expect any extras? He says: "He also told me that I could not expect any extras, that it was straight sailing." Is that statement correct?—A. I told him that he could not expect any extras on that contract.

Q. You told him it was straight sailing?—A. No.

Q. Did you tell him, "that the work had to be done and taking the $50,000 that was to be paid for plant out of the total, there would not be enough left to complete the work?"—A. No. That was read from the report of Mr. Perley. I was reading to him the report of Mr. Perley so that he might understand what the Chief Engineer had put there about his tender.

Q. Must he not have understood from you that you approved of that report?—A. I do not know that.

Q. Did you give him to understand that you had any difference of opinion with your Chief Engineer?—A. I gave him to understand nothing beyond reading to him what the Chief Engineer said.

Q. What was the request you made to him then?—A. I made no request as stated by him.

Q. What was your object—what were you driving at in reading him this report and telling him there would be no extras?—A. I wanted him to understand in what position the tender was, and if nevertheless he wanted the contract he would have it.

Q. And you deemed it necessary to tell him all this in order that he might take the contract?—A. That is what I generally did. When a contractor put in a low tender—he was warned because it was in the interest of the Department and of the Government that a contract should not be taken at a ruinous price.

Q. Do the circumstances which have transpired since show it was at a ruinous price?—A. That I do not know.

Q. Are you not aware that the tender which he put in is for a sum of money many thousands of dollars higher than the cost of the work shown to have been done by Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. That I did not examine.

Q. That you do not know?—A. I do not know. I know it was so stated but I do not know personally.

Q. You know it was so stated by the Engineers?—A. It was so stated here, but I do not know it myself.

Q. Did you give him three or four days to consider it? As he says: "He gave me three or four days to consider it, and I took up the balance of the deposit, amounting to $9,000 more, which made the total sum of $17,000?"—A. No.

Q. Did he bring you $9,000?—A. If he says so, I do not remember it; I did not receive it.

Q. Are you in a position to deny it?—A. I am in a position to say I did not receive it.

Q. Are you in a position to deny that he took it there?—A. I do not know. I do not remember that at all.

Q. It may be so?—A. He may have had it in his pocket; he may have said: "I have it here."

Q. He was asked: "What did you do with that" (the accepted cheque) "when you brought it to the Department?—A. The first cheque went in with the tender, and the next I handed to Sir Hector himself." Is it true he handed you that cheque?—A. No.

Q. He says in answer to the question: "Why did you hand that second cheque to Sir Hector?—A. Because we had a conversation and he gave me, as I have already stated, three or four days to consider?"—A. About that he is entirely mistaken. He has mixed the interview with the letter that he received some days afterwards. The letter told him that the Minister gave him until the eleventh to decide, and to strengthen himself financially, and to state whether he was ready to sign the contract. I never stated that in the interview with him.

Q. That is your version?—A. Yes.

Q. Starrs further says: "I told Sir Hector I thought from the tone of his discussion that he did not want me to take the contract." Did he tell you that?—A. I do not remember that at all, if he did tell me that. I was quite surprised afterwards when he sent me a letter stating he would give up the contract.

Q. Never mind saying what you were surprised at. Can you or can you not swear he made that statement to you: "I told Sir Hector I thought from the tone of his discussion that he did not want me to take the contract?"—A. No.

Q. What do you mean—that you deny you do not recollect?—A. I do not recollect his having said so.

Q. You are not so strong in your memory that you are prepared to deny his statement?—A. I do not believe it.

Q. I am simply asking you, is your memory so clear that you are prepared to deny his statement on oath?—A. I cannot say every word of a conversation that took place seven or eight years ago—I cannot say that. He seems to be very clear about that but he was not so clear about the other matter. I see that he remembered nothing at all.

Q. I am asking you, are you in a position to contradict him from your memory?—A. Yes; I will say why—because he cannot remember it in that way. He has mixed the conversation with the letter about the three or four days, and therefore I must recollect it in that way. That is what I say.

Q. Then you have not got a clear recollection about it, but by reasoning it out you think it could not have been so?—A. Yes.

Q. But you have no clear recollection yourself?—A. That is as far as I say.

Q. Then he goes on to say further that he told you: "Sir Hector, I believe our figures are enough to do the work, but I see that you do not feel inclined to give me the work, and consequently I will withdraw."—A. I have just answered that.

Q. No, you have not answered that.—A. I answer it in the same way.

Q. Are you in a position to swear that statement is incorrect—that he did not make that statement to you?—A. Yes.

Q. You contradict him flatly on that?—A. Yes; he did not tell me that.

Q. Or anything in substance equivalent to that?—A. No.

Q. You categorically deny he used these words, do you?—A. Yes.

Q. You won't deny the substance of it?—A. If he says that, he is mistaken.

Q. You categorically deny that he used these words. I ask you if you are prepared to deny he used words equivalent to them, the substance of them?—A. I do not think he did.

Q. You won't go further than that? At that time who drew up the letter?—A. What letter?

Q. The letter which he signed?—A. Mr. Starrs and O'Hanly signed it.

Q. He signed it, did he?—A. I believe so, Starrs and O'Hanly.

Q. Do you remember the drafting of the letter?—A. No.

Q. Are you in a position to swear, Sir Hector Langevin, that letter was not drawn up in your Department at the time?—A. It may have been drawn in the Department but I knew nothing about it.

Q. Will you swear that letter was not drawn up in your office at the time this conversation took place?—A. At the time? No.

Q. What do you mean by "no" that you do not recollect, or that you are in a position to swear it did not take place?—A. It was not written in my office.

Q. You swear that positively?—A. Positively.

Q. Was it written in the Department?—A. That I do not know.

Q. I judge from your statement you are prepared to swear you had no part or lot in the drawing up of that letter?—A. No.

Q. That you did not in any sense or way ask him to write it?—A. No.

Q. You swear you did not ask him to write any such letter?—A. No, he must have written it himself, because, as I stated just now, when his letter came I was quite astonished to see it.

Q. That is not an answer to my question Sir Hector?—A. I answered it.

Q. I ask you are you in a position to swear you did not suggest to him to write that letter?—A. I did not.

Q. And if he wrote the letter it was after that suggestion from you?—A. Yes.

Q. You did not attempt to tell him what to put in the letter?—A. No.

Q. You swear that you did not know what he was to put in the letter?—A. I do.

Q. So far as you are concerned this letter was written without your knowledge, without in any sense your suggesting that it should be written and without your suggesting its contents?—A. It was.

Q. You swear that positively?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you see any other parties supposed to be in the interest of Starrs & O'Hanly, with reference to this contract for which tender?—A. I do not remember.

Q. I will give you a name—Manning—Do you remember Manning?—A. Manning of where?

Q. Manning of Toronto, contractor?—A. I do not remember.

Q. Purcell—Patrick Purcell?—A. No, I do not remember.

Q. John Shields?—A. No, I do not think so.

Q. Were you to see any of these parties or were their names suggested to you by either Mr. Starrs or Mr. O'Hanly as men who would back them up, that is Manning, Shields or Patrick Purcell? Were either of those three names suggested to you by Starrs & O'Hanly or either of them as men who were prepared to back them up in the proposed contract?—A. I do not remember anything about them.

Q. Did you see Senator Clemow on the subject?—A. I do not remember that.

Q. Do you not remember that at all?—A. No.

Q. You give us to understand that your mind is a perfect blank as regards the financial means or as regards the names, and you cannot say whether any names were suggested to you by Starrs & O'Hanly as men who would back them up?—A. No, I remember nothing about it whatever.

Q. You had no conversation with any of them to your knowledge?—A. Not that I can recollect.

Q. There was some conversation as to the demand made by the Department, that the firm should financially strengthen themselves?—A. Yes.

Q. You had some personal conversation with Mr. Starrs in addition to the letter suggesting that they should strengthen themselves?—A. Perhaps there was. But I was under the impression that the tenderers were not men of financial strength and that was the reason they wrote the letter.

Q. Exactly. You think that the chances are you might have suggested—do you recollect that you did suggest to them the desirability of strengthening themselves by associating with them some financial man that was strong? A. That may be, I do not say no.

Q. I understand you to say that you swear distinctly you have no recollection of any conversation with Manning, Patrick Purcell or John Shields; that you had no conversation with them or any of them respecting this tender of Messrs. Starrs and O'Hanly, as to backing up the tender of that firm?—A. I do not remember anything about it whatever.

Q. I am only asking from a memorandum of instructions that I received upon this point, that you did see these gentlemen, and you swear that you do not recollect seeing them, after you read the report of the Engineer in Chief?—A. I cannot remember that.

Q. Your mind is a perfect blank on the subject?—A. I do not remember.

Q. You do not deny that you may have seen them?—A. I do not deny because I do not remember anything about it. I saw so many people who used to come to the Department about different matters.

Q. But this is a very special matter?—A. Oh yes, but, you see, so many things would pass through my mind; I cannot remember these things.

By Mr. Curran :

Q. Had Mr. Starrs ever done anything for the Department before that?—A. Yes, I think he did some work under another contract; I think it was a bridge on the Ottawa—the upper Ottawa.

Q. Was it long previously?—A. I cannot say—it may have been since.

Q. You do not remember about the time?—A. I remember it was a bridge.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. I see on page 36 of the Blue Book (Exhibit "N 5") a copy of a report of the Privy Council on the subject of the acceptance of Starrs and O'Hanly's tender, and that in your memorandum you mention that the Chief Engineer expresses his opinion that the amount is too small for the completion of the work in a satisfactory manner, and there is mentioned in this Report: "The Minister, in view of all the circumstances and considering the large amount of $17,000, which will be held by the Government as security for the fulfilment of the contract, does not consider that the lowest figure shall be passed over, and recommends that upon Messrs. Starrs and O'Hanly depositing to the credit of the Hon. the Receiver General the sum of $9,500 required to complete the security for the amount of their tender, the contract for the completion of the Dock be awarded to them." Now, Sir Hector, that was approved, and your memorandum was dated the 13th of October. The Privy Council meeting took place on the 16th of October, and you told the Committee, I think, just now that you were anxious that they should have the tender?—A. Yes.

Q. Very well. On the 21st you wrote to Mr. Starrs asking him to call for the purpose of encouraging him, and you read him Mr. Perley's Report?—A. It was not then; it was previous to the passing of the Order in Council that the interview took place.

Q. Are you sure about that?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, you know the Order in Council I am referring to?—A. Yes.

Q. The Order in Council awarding the contract to Starrs and O'Hanly?—A. Yes; I do not know whether you have there my letter upon which he came—it was the 7th October.

Q. No; it was the 21st of October?—A. There was a letter of the 7th of October which brought him to this interview, at which I read him the report of Mr. Perley.

Q. Here is a letter dated, Public Works Department, Ottawa, 21st October, 1884—that is after the Order in Council was passed—"Michael Starrs, Clarence Street, Ottawa. Will you be good enough to call at this Department at once re Esquimalt Graving Dock. (Sgd) F. H. Ennis." You know about that letter?—A. Yes.

Q. What happened about this?—A. He came and saw me.

Q. Did you encourage him then?—A. I encouraged him then. The Order in Council was passed and I was waiting for him to go on with the contract.

Q. Did you send for Mr. Perley?—A. No; I do not think so—it was not necessary, the Order in Council was passed.

Q. What did you do?—A. At the interview?—I cannot say the exact words. My object was to have him there and see whether during the last 11 days—that is the 11 days following the date of his letter in answer to the letter of the 7th; he had been 11 days without giving any reply—so I wished to know whether he was ready to sign the contract for which I had obtained the Order in Council. Well he was not ready, and a few days afterwards, on the 24th, he wrote this letter saying that the price was too low and he could not take it.

Q. Was the conversation which you mentioned a while ago, on this occasion—was that after the Order in Council?—A. No.

Q. You are quite sure it was before?—A. Yes; I am quite sure.

Q. Well, now, this letter of Starrs and O'Hanly was dated on the 24th of October?—A. Yes.

Q. That is the letter in which they state they wish to withdraw their tender—do you know whether it was received on the day that it is dated—it was addressed to yourself?—A. I think it was received that day.

Q. Were you very anxious to have it disposed of—to have their withdrawal accepted, as soon as they had withdrawn, after the time had elapsed since the negotiations were begun?—A. I thought it was time that we should close the matter, and there was a report made to Council, I think, on the same day, I think by me, stating the circumstances, and recommending that the next lowest tenderer should have it.

Q. On the same day that you received the withdrawal from Starrs and O'Hanly you made a report to Council?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you refer the letter to Mr. Perley?—A. No; I do not think so.

Q. It must have been so because on the 24th of October there is a letter—a report from Mr. Perley to Mr. Ennis on the subject of this letter?—A. What is the date of the Report.

Q. The 24th of October, you must have referred it at once?—A. It may have been referred to him.

Q. You must have got from Mr. Perley a report on the same day?—A. Yes.

Q. And your memorandum to Council is dated on the same day?—A. Yes.

Q. So there was not much time lost?—A. No.

Q. The memorandum dated the 24th October, 1884, the Order-in-Council dated the 25th, so that all these things occurred on one day?—A. Yes.

Q. No delay about this?—A. No.

Q. No anxiety to get the lowest tenderer?—A. Well he had refused, I had communicated with him repeatedly. He said it was not prudent for him to accept it.

Q. We have got the explanation both from him and from you? He refused?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. The object of the deposit asked for is to be certain that the tenderers are serious?—A. Yes. But in this case the object was this—we accepted from all the tenderers a deposit of $7,500 for the reason that after they had signed the contract we would get the additional amount that we asked for in accordance with the specification—the tenderers were bound to deposit in the hands of the Government equal to 5 per cent of the amount of the contract.

Q. Would you consider that the first amount of $7,500 with the balance after the tender was accepted which would make up a deposit of 5 per cent—would you consider that a sufficient guarantee for the department?—A. Yes; it has been so for a long time.

Q. It is a fair rule, too?—A. Yes.

Q. You add ten per cent., which you keep off the works?—A. As a drawback.

Q. When a tenderer is in bad faith and does not sign the contract at the request of the Department, you are at liberty to confiscate his first deposit?—A. That depends on circumstances. If a man, for example, has met with an accident and really cannot do the work the Government will not insist.

Q. In this case, the declaration was offered by the tenderers that they had committed errors?—A. Yes, and that they wished to withdraw.

Q. Did they ever give you any detail about these errors, as to what items they were?—A. Yes. I do not think there is in that case. I think it was only for the first tender.

Q. On the second tender there were no details?—A. Just general.

Q. Upon that you did not confiscate their amount of $7,500, but you gave it back?—A. Yes.

Q. You cannot swear, Sir Hector, that at the interview after the letter of the 21st October, Mr. Starrs had not with him an accepted cheque from a bank in Ottawa?—A. I did not say "no" to that. He may have had it, but he did not leave it with me.

Q. You have stated that the letter you wrote to Starrs & O'Hanly asking them if they could strengthen themselves financially was written on the 7th of October?—A. Yes.

Q. You have stated that you had an interview with Starrs in which you showed him Mr. Perley's report on the eight tenders in at that time?—A. Yes.

Q. When did that interview take place in relation to the letter of the 7th October?—A. The letter of the 7th was the letter in which I gave him three or four days. The interview took place with him before that.

Q. Do you remember the date of Mr. Perley's report on these tenders?—A. 29th of September.

Q. The interview in which you state you showed the report to Mr. Starrs took place between the 29th of September and the 7th of October?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever have any interview with Mr. Starrs at which you showed him Mr. Perley's report except between these dates?—A. No.

Q. Then your evidence in which you referred to the interview with Starrs is that the discussion of the value of his tender took place afterward?—A. Afterward.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. I was under the impression that you had admitted having an interview with Mr. Starrs after you wrote him to come and see you?—A. That is another interview, but the interview at which I showed him the report and read him the report, and at which Mr. Perley was present, took place between the 29th of September and the 7th of October.

Q. Then, I want to come right down to the point. Mr. Starrs swears that after he put in the second tender: "Sir Hector sent for me and I went up to see him." That is on the 21st. Did you or did you not send for Mr. Starrs after the second tender came in?—A. Yes.

Q. There is a letter here, put in evidence at page 91, written by your Secretary and dated 21st October, asking him to come and see you?—A. Yes, to come to the Department.

Q. Did he come to see you after that letter was sent?—A. He came.

Q. That would be between the 21st and 24th that he came to see you?—A. I stated that before. That is the second interview.

Q. I only examined you with respect to that interview. Mr. Starrs says "Sir Hector sent for me and I went up to see him." That is with reference to the withdrawal of the second tender?—A. Not withdrawal. He had made his tender, Mr. Perley had reported on that tender that he thought it was too low and he wished it to be put aside. You can read his report. I was not of that opinion and I thought I should not pass over that tender.

Q. Did you see him after the letter of the 21st of October?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you then and there tell him what he swears to in the evidence. Did that conversation take place?—A. No.

Q. Did you tell him he could not expect any extras?—A. No.

Q. That the work had to be done, and taking the $50,000 out of the total, there would not be enough to complete the work?—A. No.

Q. What did you tell him when he came in compliance with the letter?—A. I asked him if he was ready to sign the contract or not. I had made my report to Council and Council had agreed to it. I had waited for eleven days to see him, and seeing he did not come I caused that letter of the 21st to be written to him to tell him to come. I had been waiting and I wanted to know if he would take the contract or not, and on the 24th he wrote me the letter in question.

Q. You are wrong in that case. It was not until the 16th of October that the report from Council was made recommending that Starrs' tender should be accepted. On the 21st you wrote the letter, so there was only five days?—A. You are mistaken.

Q. Excuse me. I will show you that you are mistaken. Here is the report to Council?—A. My report is mentioned there as of the 13th.

Q. But it was not adopted by Council until the 16th?—A. That is giving just two days for Council to consider it.

Q. It appears that the time between Council adopting the report and your writing to Starrs & O'Hanly was five days. Did he bring a certified cheque for $9,000, at that time?—A. I cannot say. But he did not leave the cheque with me.

Q. Did you on that occasion read any part of Perley's report to him?—A. No.

Q. Did you advise him in any way against taking the contract?—A. No.

Q. Did you tell him that the $50,000 would be exacted?—A. No. All that relates to the first interview.

Q. You deny that any portion of it relates to the interview of the 21st?—A. Yes.

Q. Then tell us what took place?—A. I sent for him in order to see—

Q. Tell me what took place?—A. I have stated already that Mr. Starrs talked of his first interview and the letter that was sent to him on the 7th, and he has mixed them up. But I do not say that he did that wilfully. Did you ask me there whether when I sent for him by the letter of the Department of the 21st the interview took place between that and the 24th and what was said there? I was asked if all that took place and I have already said no to that. That was all over. Anything about that took place at the first interview.

Q. What did take place?—A. It was this: That an Order in Council having been passed we were ready to sign the contract with him. He had not come to see us for eleven days and we wanted to know what he was disposed to do. The result was he wrote this letter of the 24th.

Q. I have asked you what took place?—A. I have just told you.

Q. What did you say to him?—A. That an Order in Council had been passed, that the contract was awarded to him and that I was ready to sign the contract with him.

Q. And he said nothing?—A. The result was that he went away and on the 24th he wrote that letter.

Q. Did he say anything?—A. I do not remember what he said.

Q. He did not say anything?—A. He must have spoken, of course.

Q. Do you remember what he said?—A. I remain under the impression that when I would receive a letter from him he would say, yes.

Q. So that there may be no mistake about the time I am speaking about, you made no suggestion to him about that letter or its contents?—A. Not at the interview at all. All that was done in the first interview.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. With regard to the first tender put in in March, I observe that Starrs and O'Hanly made a deposit of $7,500. I observe that the Engineer reported adversely to the tenders put in in March and therefore there was no further deposit put in above that $7,500?—A. No; because he made a report saying that one was too high and the other too low. That report went to Council and Council agreed to it.

Q. Then Starrs & O'Hanly's deposit was returned to them?—A. Yes.

Q. When Mr. Starrs in his evidence referred to what occurred and there being in your hands a certain sum of money, and his having brought up $9,500, that must refer to the second tender? That could not have occurred in regard to the first?—A. No.

Q. That tender never went further than to be reported upon and rejected?—A. They wrote letters saying they were too low.

Q. The Department never went so far as to accept it?—A. No.

Q. It is quite clear, then, that when Starrs speaks of having come up to you with the additional sum—A. That must relate to the second tender.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. It must have been after the Order in Council, because he would not have had to make up the balance?—A. You saw that by the figures I gave you.

Q. It happens sometimes that you accept tenders at lower prices than estimated by the engineers?—A. Sometimes.

Q. That has been done in the Kingston Dock?—A. I do not remember the figures.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Did you on that occasion, after the letter of the 21st was written, give him to understand that the $50,000 for the plant would have to be paid down?—A. There was no reference to those matters at that time.

Q. You deny categorically that you said the $50,000 had to be paid down?—A. The only thing about the $50,000 was in the first interview, when I read him the report of the Chief Engineer, who spoke of that.

Q. Do you say that after the interview there was no reference to that $50,000 and you did not say that it would have to be paid down before the work was undertaken?—A. No.

Section 23.—Dredging of small shoals, sand, gravel and boulders, 22 to 28 feet depth, very strong current and frequent stoppages for vessels, 2,565 cubic yards, costing 71 cents per yard."

Mr. ROBERT H. MCGREEVY, Sen., re-called.

The CHAIRMAN—I understand you desire to make certain corrections in your evidence.

WITNESS—Yes, sir.

Page 602, near the bottom, after the answer, "I had the rates on which Peters put in his tender," I desire to add, "and the rates of all the tenders as the document he showed me was quantities."

Page 604, ninth line from the bottom, after the words "$10 per foot," I desire to add the words, "or more." I said that at the time.

Page 605, the fourth answer, instead of the word "yes," I desire this to be substituted. "I did not know whether it was the lowest or not. He became the contractor as I understood."

Page 613, the sixth answer from the top, I desire that it should read "the quantity required to be dredged," instead of "supposed to be dredged."

Page 615, the thirteenth question and answer should read "I suppose about not one-fourth," instead of saying "I suppose about one-fourth." At the bottom of the same page I ask for a correction in the same way. It should be "not one-fourth of the material was dumped in the embankment."

Page 618, at the top of the page, the first answer should read, "I became aware of it late in the season of 1887. When I first saw it, it was in small amounts and I did not say much, not knowing at the time what it was for; but as the sum became large in 1888," that is adding the words, "in 1888."

Page 641, fourth question and answer from the bottom, should read "about the year 1886 or 1887," instead of "about the year 1887."

Page 657, second question and answer. The answer should read "Thomas McGreevy did not fulfil his part," instead of "fulfil his offer."

Page 659, near the bottom of the page, speaking of the elections of 1873 or 1874. It should be 1872. That was my mistake. As a matter of fact the elections took place in 1872. On the next page also I ask that a similar correction be made.

Page 717, fourth answer from the bottom, should read "I always obtained money from the cashier of the railway," not "he always obtained." I was speaking of myself at the time. The very last line of that same page the sentence should read "and that I was a thief," instead of "the thief."

Page 717, to the very last answer, "I cannot recollect any reason," I desire to add, "more than the retraction of the calumny set out against me."

Page 724, the ninth question and answer, instead of "it was a week or ten days," it should be "a week or ten days after."

Page 725, near the bottom, the answer, "I think I assisted him in 1880," should be "1889."

Page 727, after the question "what is your reason?" the answer should be: "Because I did not wish, owing to the position Thomas McGreevy occupied on the Harbour Commission and in Parliament, that it should be known," that is omitting the word "not."

Page 729, about the middle of the page, the answer should read: "No interest in any of them. I loaned money and I promised my interest."

Page 733, ninth answer from the bottom, it should read "30th April, or the 1st or 2nd of May," instead of "13th of April, or the 1st or 2nd of May."

Page 734, the answer to the question, "and when?" should be "about the 1st of May," instead of "1st of April."

The CHAIRMAN—You had the 1st of May in your mind at the time?

WITNESS—Yes; and that is what I said.

Page 735, the tenth answer from the bottom should read: "I only ascertained that notes were to be given when Thomas McGreevy sent for them."

Page 740, in the ninth answer from the top, it should read: "Thomas McGreevy told him that he had seen Thompson," instead of "sent Thompson."

Page 741, sixth answer from the bottom, I said the total was "about $8,947." On the same page the second answer from the bottom should commence, "if the Committee want," instead of "let."

Page 744, near the bottom, the printed answer is, "I would not like to be sure." I would like it changed to, "I would not like to be positive."

Page 749, the fourth answer should be, after the words "March, 1888," "I saw no statement or audits after that."

Page 750 should read "350,000 cubic yards," instead of "335."

Page 752, on the second line it should read "except from the office of the contractors."

Page 757, the ninth question and answer, the answer should read, "I did not belong to that syndicate."

The Committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, 20th August, 1891.

The Committee met at 11 a.m.; Mr. Girouard in the Chair.

Investigation into certain circumstances and statements made in connection with the tenders and contracts respecting the Quebec Harbour Works, &c., resumed.

Mr. EDGAR—Mr. Chairman, in accordance with the Resolution adopted by the Committee yesterday, I made a search of the letter books of the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department and have selected the following letters for printing; they have also been inspected by Mr. Henry.

Mr. HENRY—I have inspected the letters, and see no objection to their being printed.

" SIR,—With reference to the request made by the Harbour Commissioners of Quebec that an Engineer be recommended to take charge of the works in connection with the Harbour Improvements, I have to suggest the appointment of Mr. J. E. Boyd of this Department to the position. I need hardly say that Mr. Boyd is eminently qualified to perform all the duties of the office.

" As these duties are such as will not demand the whole of Mr. Boyd's time and attention, and as his services can be utilized in connection with Departmental works in Quebec, I have to suggest that the acceptance of Mr. Boyd's nomination by the Commissioners be on the understanding that he shall be free to act for this department on works in and below Quebec—and that Mr. Boyd's salary and expenses shall be defrayed jointly by the Harbour Commissioners and the Department.

"Engineer in Chief, Harbour Works,

Mr. MONTAGUE ANDERSON sworn.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. You are Manager of the Union Bank of Canada here?—A. Yes; but before going any further I would like to state that I was unable to bring any books with me. The summons was rather vague, and I do not know exactly what information is wanted.

Mr. MULOCK—Well, then we will call Mr. O'Hanly first and you can probably hear what is wanted by his evidence.

Mr. J. L. P. O'HANLY sworn.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. You are a member of the firm of Starrs & O'Hanly?—A. Yes.

Q. That put in a tender in September, 1884, for the construction of the Esquimalt Graving Dock?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your occupation?—A. A Civil Engineer.

Q. And you are the partner of Mr. Starrs the contractor?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember making a deposit with the tender?—A. Yes.

Q. What amount?—A. A cheque marked good by the Union Bank for $7,500, drawn in favour of the Minister of Public Works and signed by Starrs & O'Hanly. I made out the cheque myself. It accompanied the tender to the Department of Public Works.

Q. We are now speaking of the second tender, namely, the tender dated 20th September, 1884?—A. There was none of that date.

Q. I mean in the fall of 1884, not the one of the spring?—A. I am talking of that. Yes; it was put in on the 20th September, 1884.

Q. Did you get any further marked cheque from any bank in connection with this tender?—A. On the 23rd October, I got an additional cheque for $9,450 at the Union Bank, which was accepted, and the purpose was to complete the five per cent. on the amount of the tender.

Q. That was payable to whose order?—A. The Minister of Public Works.

Q. What did you do with that cheque?—A. I gave it to Mr. Starrs on the forenoon of the 24th when he was going up with the intention of depositing it.

Mr. MONTAGUE ANDERSON re-called.

Q. Were you Manager at that time?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you any recollection of it?—A. Not of that transaction. It is seven years ago and we have so many contractor's cheques.

Q. I would like the date to be put beyond doubt. Perhaps you would go down to your bank and examine the books?—A. Yes. Now that I know the transaction I can go down and look it up exactly.

Mr. MICHAEL STARRS recalled.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. Did you receive the cheque in question from your partner?—A. Yes.

Q. You have heard him mention that he handed it to you on the 24th October?

—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember what you did with it?—A. I do.

Q. What?—A. I handed it into Sir Hector Langevin's hands.

Q. Where?—A. In his own office.

Q. In the Department of Public Works?—A. Yes.

Q. At what date?—A. I think that would be the 24th of October.

Q. Was it the same day that Mr. O'Hanly handed it to you?—A. The same day.

Q. What did you say to Sir Hector when you handed it to him?

Sir JOHN THOMPSON objected on the ground that the witness had already testified of these facts.

Q. Sir Hector suggested that perhaps your account of this interview might be confused with some prior interview?—A. It could not possibly be.

Q. It has no reference to the first tender, for example?—A. None, whatever.

Q. Sir Hector, the other day, mentioned that you had sent that letter to the Department, dated 24th October?—A. Yes.

Q. In whose handwriting is that?—A. Mr. O'Hanly's.

Q. In your first evidence you said, if I remember it correctly, that you had been induced by Sir Hector to withdraw your tender?—A. Yes.

Q. How did you come to write that letter?—A. I think I have stated in my first examination that Sir Hector suggested the withdrawal of that tender. I say so still.

Q. Were there any reasons in regard to the price of the contract to induce you to withdraw the tender. You say: "We find we have made a mistake in some of the items in our tender for the Esquimalt Graving Dock, B. C." Is that correct. Had you made any mistakes?—A. I will explain. No; I did not make any mistakes.

Mr. ADAMS objected to this form of examination.

Q. You say: "We find our prices are generally too low?"—A. No; it is there, and I did not object to it being there, but I want to give my reasons why this was worded that way.

Q. Go on. Will you tell the Committee please why you made these statements in this letter?—A. For the very reasons I gave at the last meeting: That Sir Hector threw so many obstacles in the way, and then, of course, we had a deposit of $7,500 up that went in with the first tender, and, of course, there is always supposed to be a risk about getting that back—if the tender is awarded to you and not complied with. So that Sir Hector threw so many obstacles in the way, showing me the lowness of our tender, and the difficulties that we had to contend with—no extras and $50,000 to be paid for plant—I asked Sir Hector: "Well, then, what am I to do to get our cheque back?" He suggested "write a letter to the Department, officially to me, and I will get you your cheque returned." I said: "what will we say?" Sir Hector himself, I swear positively that he is the man who suggested to write it in the tone in which that letter is written now.

Q. Did he then make a suggestion on which you made this statement?—A. He said: "you can write a letter representing that you made a mistake," and so on.

Q. Then you say now, on your oath, that this statement—that this letter wherein you say you had made a mistake—in your tender and that your tender was too low, was not your suggestion, but was suggested by Sir Hector?—A. Oh, certainly. It was suggested by him in his own office in the Public Works Department.

Q. Was that the reason and the only reason you wrote him the letter and made the statement?—A. That was the reason—to get back the other cheque for $7,500. Of course the $9,400 cheque when I handed it to Sir Hector, he took it and looked at it and said: "I see you are determined to take this work," I said: "Sir Hector, I have not been very anxious for it," and then after the conversation, the letter was written by my partner.

Q. You handed your cheque to Sir Hector? Did he see the cheque?—A. Yes, he looked at it and examined it.

Q. And afterwards he returned it?—A. He returned it to me before I left the room.

Q. Did he make any observation when he returned it?—A. The last words he said in connection with it was: "Thank God, you have relieved yourself of a great burden."

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. Did you communicate that last conversation to Mr. O'Hanly, your partner?—A. I did, sir.

Q. Did you tell him the whole?—A. Yes.

Q. Immediately on your return? You told him the conversation?—A. Yes.

Q. You told him you had agreed to abandon the tender and give up the work?—A. Yes.

Q. And your firm wrote the letter in conformity with that decision?—Yes.

By Sir John Thompson :

Q. Where was the letter written?—A. I wish to remark that I am not clear of being present when Mr. O'Hanly wrote the letter. Of course it was understood that he was going to write it.

Q. Who did write it?—A. It was Mr. O'Hanly who wrote it.

Q. On that very same day?—A. Yes; I think on the 24th October.

Q. When you had this conversation with Sir Hector Mr. Perley's report was read over to you?—No; I did not hear it.

Q. Did you never see his report stating that your tender was too low and that you could not do the work?—A. I do not recollect reading it.

Q. Did you see that it was in writing?—A. I do not recollect.

Q. Do you say that it was not read?—A. I do not remember.

Q. I repeat do you say that it was not read?—A. I do not recollect.

Q. You do not recollect whether Sir Hector read it or not?—A. Mr. Perley was there, he was in only a few minutes. He went over the same ground that Sir Hector had been going over previous to his coming in.

Q. And confirmed what you understood from him?—A. Yes.

Q. Did he tell you what he had reported on your tender?—A. Sir Hector told me.

Q. Did Mr. Perley tell you what he had reported?—A. Sir Hector told me what Mr. Perley had reported to him, but I do not remember that Mr. Perley did. I perfectly understood from both Sir Hector and Mr. Perley, when they were in the office that they both considered my tender too low.

Q. You do not know whether Mr. Perley told you?—A. No.

Q. Nor what report he made?—A. I have no recollection.

Q. Nor whether the report was read to you?—A. I have no recollection.

Q. You had one other contract with the Government it was stated yesterday?—A. Yes.

Q. In relation to a bridge on the Ottawa?—A. Yes.

Q. Was that before or after this?—A. That was before this.

Q. It was before this?—A. Well, it was going on at the same time.

Q. It was not completed when you made this tender?—A. No.

Q. Had you any other contract with the Government?—A. Not with this Government.

Q. With the Government of Canada, I mean?—A. No; I had no contract with the Dominion Government. There was some other work.

Q. What work did you do for the Dominion Government?—A. The work that you have just referred to.

Q. Besides that?—A. Well, that is all of any importance.

Q. What unimportant work have you done?—A. I have done some work in connection with the canal.

Q. With the Rideau Canal?—A. Yes.

Q. That was previous to this?—A. Yes.

Q. How long?—A. Two or three years.

Q. Any other work?—A. That is all I remember.

Q. What was the extent of the contract about the bridge?—A. Do you ask me the original tender?

Q. Yes, about?—A. $25,000.

Q. You have tendered for many other works?—A. Yes; for several other works.

Q. You live in Ottawa?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Do I understand that when you had communicated with your partner the result of the interview with Sir Hector, it was he who wrote the letter?—A. Yes. Everytime I had an interview with Sir Hector, I told my partner about it.

Q. Did you communicate to Mr. O'Hanly the result of your interview before he wrote the letter on the 24th of October?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Henry :

Q. You wrote a letter to the Department of Public Works on the 19th of March, 1884—do you remember the contents of that letter?—A. I do; but as I stated here in my last examination, I knew very little about the first tender called for the Dock.

Q. Had you very little to do with it at the time?—A. I had.

Q. Had you not as much to do with it as you had with the last tender?—A. I had the same to do with it so far as the firm was concerned; but I did not take the same part in it at all, because I was seldom here.

Q. You had the same to do with it as you had with the last tender?—A. As far as the partnership was concerned.

Q. But you had not so much to do with it otherwise?—A. No.

Q. Who wrote the letter of the 19th March?—A. I cannot tell. I know that I did not write it.

Q. Were you in Ottawa at the time it was written?—No; I do not know.

Q. You know it was an important letter?—A. Yes.

Q. You knew it was being written?—A. Yes.

Q. You knew it was being written, and it was written with your approval?—A. Yes.

Q. And after consultation with him?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the purport of it?—A. It was to withdraw the tender.

Q. The tender of that period?—A. Yes.

Q. For this same work—the spring tender?—A. Yes.

Q. It dealt with items in respect of which the letter said you had made mistakes?—A. If I remember well, there were mistakes made.

Q. Mistakes were made at that time?—A. Yes; I think there were mistakes made then.

Q. And you asked to have those mistakes corrected?—A. Yes; if I remember well.

Q. Do you know whether you did or not, or did you ask to have your tender withdrawn?—A. We asked to have it corrected.

Q. Afterward what was done?—A. We withdrew.

Q. Now, then, the statements in the letter of the 19th March you say are true, every one of them?—A. As far as I can remember.

Q. But similar statements in the letter of the 24th of October following were not true. Were they false?—A. Do you refer to the letter of October, 1884? I say that it was uncalled for, as far as—

Q. Do you say that the statements in the letter of 24th October were false—the statement as to your having made mistakes in your tender?—A. That was false.

Q. And the statement in that letter, that the prices mentioned are too low, was also false?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you know it was false when you wrote it?—A. I did not write it.

Q. But you knew they were false when they were written?—A. Yes.

SIR JOHN THOMPSON asked that the following letters be read and put in evidence: (Exhibit "F19.")

"OTTAWA, 19th March, 1884.

"F. H. ENNIS, Esq.,

"Secretary Department of Public Works,
"Ottawa.

"SIR,—In looking over the duplicate of our tender for the Esquimalt Graving Dock we have discovered the following mistakes:

"Clerical Errors.—Item 4: the price per cubic yard set down in the tender is 33 cents. This was intended to be $1.33. Item 6: the price per cubic yard inserted in the tender is $4.50. This was intended to be $14.50. Item 302: the sum for which set down in the tender is $2,500. This was intended to be $25,000.

The prices set down in the tender for items 191, 192, 193 and 258, respectively, are the rates per unit; and the price for item 287 is the price per pound of the iron.

"We would therefore respectfully request to be permitted to amend our tender by inserting these corrections, and if not, we desire to withdraw our tender and have our cheque returned us,

"We have the honour to be, Sir,

"Your obedient servants,

"STARRS & O'HANLY."

(Exhibit "G19.")

"OTTAWA, April 14, 1884.

"Hon. Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN,

"Minister of Public Works, Ottawa, Ont.

"SIR,—In compliance with an advertisement asking for tenders for the construction of the Graving Dock in British Columbia, we had the honour to submit a tender for that work.

"We find that in making our estimate a very serious error was made, in fact so serious that it would be impossible to do the work for our tender as it now stands. Under these circumstances, we would respectfully urge that the opportunity be afforded us of correcting our tender, or failing that, of withdrawing it.

"We have the honour to be, Sir,

"Your obedient servants,

"STARRS & O'HANLY."

(Exhibit "H19.")

"OTTAWA, 24th October, 1884.

"The Honourable Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN, K.C.M.G.,

"Minister of Public Works,
Ottawa.

"HONOURABLE SIR,—We find that we have made a mistake in some of the items in our tender for the Esquimalt Graving Dock, B.C., and find that our prices are generally too low.

"We consider it therefore not prudent to take the contract, and that it would not be in the public interest if we were to do so.

"We therefore beg to withdraw our tender and respectfully request that you may be pleased to return our deposit cheque.

"We have the honour to be, Sir,

"Your most obedient servants,

"STARRS & O'HANLY."

By Mr. Kirkpatrick :

Q. Were the tenders in the spring and autumn the same?—A. I think there were some slight changes.

Q. What was the tender for in the spring?—A. $315,000.

Q. And the second?—A. About $339,000.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. The three letters have been read, and in order that there may be no mistake I ask you if the letter of the 24th October was the one written at the instance of Sir Hector?—A. Yes, that is the one.

By Mr. Amyot :

Q. You did not commit in the second tender the mistake you had committed in the first?—A. No.

---

Mr. J. L. P. O'HANLY re-called.

By Mr. Mulock :

Q. In whose handwriting is that letter?—A. Mine.

Q. The body of it?—A. Yes; the whole of it.

Q. You signed the firm's name?—A. I did.

Q. Is it true that you had made a mistake in the items of your tender?—A. The tender to which that refers? No; there was no mistake.

Q. When did you write that letter?—A. I wrote that letter immediately after Mr. Starrs returned from an interview with Sir Hector Langevin, at the Department of Public Works.

Q. On the day that the letter appears dated?—A. On the 24th of October, 1884.

Q. Where did you write it?—A. In Mr. O'Gara's office, on our return. It was written in consequence of what Mr. Starrs told me. I was in the corridor when he came out of Sir Hector Langevin's office.

Q. Having told you something, did you go with Mr. Starrs to Mr. O'Gara?—A. Yes; he and I walked straight to Mr. O'Gara and it was reported that Mr. Starrs had agreed with Sir Hector to withdraw, and that the letter was to be written in that way in order that there would be no trouble in getting the cheque.

Q. You wrote the letter?—A. Yes; I wrote it.

Q. When?—A. Immediately after Mr. Starrs came out of the Department.

Q. It was at Mr. O'Gara's you wrote the letter?—A. Yes.

Q. I asked you, if the first part was true—the part in which you make the statement that there was a mistake?—A. It is not true.

Q. And the second statement that the tender was too low?—A. That was not true.

Q. These were not the reasons for your having withdrawn the tender?—A. No; they were not the reasons.

Q. Do you know yourself why these statements were put into the letter, except from being told by Mr. Starrs that it would be better to do this?—A. I do not know of any other reason.

Q. What was done with the letter as soon as it was handed to Mr. Starrs?—A. Well, he went up and gave it to the Minister.

By Sir John Thompson :

Q. I see on the back of the letter signed by Mr. Perley, dated the 24th of October, that a letter was written by him on that date and I would like to have that letter read. It is a letter from him to the Secretary of the Department.

(Exhibit "I19.")

"CHIEF ENGINEER'S OFFICE,
"OTTAWA, 24th October, 1884.

"SIR,—With reference to the letter of to-day's date from Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly, stating that they have made mistakes in some of the items of their tender for the Esquimalt Graving Dock, and asking to be allowed to withdraw their tender for that work, I have to state that I have always maintained the opinion that this tender was too low and the work of completing the dock could not be done for the prices named by Messrs. Starrs & O'Hanly, and having made a thorough examination of the tender I find that the prices named for the masonry and the concrete are so low that they barely cover the cost of the stone to be furnished, leaving nothing for cement and labour, for cutting and setting the same in the work, and it is evident as stated by that firm, that they have made a serious mistake in the prices given with these items of work which form the bulk of the work to be done.

"I have the honour to be, Sir,
"Your obedient servant,

"HENRY F. PERLEY,
"Chief Engineer.

"F. H. ENNIS, Esq.,
"Secretary Public Works Department."

Mr. MONTAGUE ANDERSON re-called.

By the Chairman:

Q. What is the date of the cheque?—A. There was a cheque for $9,450 made by Starrs & O'Hanly, accepted against their account on the 24th October, 1884. It was returned to the Bank on the 25th October.

The Committee then adjourned.

NINTH REPORT.

TUESDAY, 1st September, 1891.

The Sub-Committee of the Select Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections, &c., to which was referred, for the purposes of examination, the books of account handed in by Mr. Michael Connolly in obedience to the order of the House, beg leave to present the following as their Ninth Report:

Your Sub-Committee have examined the account of F. R. Marceau, amounting to $33.60, for reporting the evidence (French) of Mr. Valin, and recommend that the same be paid.

In the matter of the claim of Mr. St. George Boswell for extra payment for services rendered, your Sub-Committee beg to report that they referred the said claim to Mr. Jennings, the expert Engineer, recently employed by your Committee, who reported that Mr. Boswell had assisted him in the preparation of work which should have been in the hands of the Chief Engineer of the Department before the final estimate was passed. Mr. Jennings further reported that Mr. Boswell did other work, but your Sub-Committee do not consider, under the circumstances and in view of Mr. Boswell's position as Engineer of the Quebec Harbour Works, that extra payment should be allowed for this work.

As regards the claim of Mr. James Woods, your Sub-Committee do not consider that any extra payment should be made to him, inasmuch as he is one of the officers of the Quebec Harbour Commission, and the work performed by him related entirely to his official duties and the imparting of information under his control as such office.

Your Sub-Committee have also considered the application of Mr. N. K. Connolly, for the return to him of certain private letters and papers contained in a small wooden-box, and the letter of Mr. Cross, one of the Accountants, in reference thereto, referred to the Sub-Committee on the 8th August, and as they find that the said letters and papers are of a purely private character and have no reference whatever to the enquiry now pending before the Committee they recommend that they be returned forthwith.

Your Sub-Committee have also to report that Mr. H. J. Chaloner has declined to accept the sum of $10 awarded him by the Committee as remuneration for services rendered, and has returned the cheque sent him for that amount, they therefore recommend that the said cheque be returned to the Accountant of the House.

All which is respectfully submitted.

D. GIROUARD,
Chairman.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE THE SUB-COMMITTEE.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, SATURDAY, 20th June, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met with closed doors. Present: Mr. Girouard in the chair, Messieurs Adams, Baker and Davies, members of the Sub-Committee; and Messieurs Tarte, Henry, Ferguson, Stuart, Fitzpatick, M. Connolly, John Hyde and Martin P. Connolly; two stenographers and two clerks.

Mr. MARTIN P. CONNOLLY sworn.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. There was an entry made, I think in April, 1885, for an amount of $25,000 ?—
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you show us that entry in the books of Larkin, Connolly & Co., giving the name of the book and the page where the entry appears?—A. It is in Exhibit "N 3," page 9, Journal of the late firm of Larkin Connolly & Co., Quebec Harbour Improvements.

Mr. DAVIES—Counsel should say now whether there is anything on that page which is objectionable.

WITNESS—I should say the first entry is objectionable to anybody outside the members of the firm.

By the Chairman :

Q. The first entry on the top of the page ?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Was it made by you ?—A. Yes, sir ; by me.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Is this next entry posted from any other book ?—A. No ; it was explained to me in this way—

Q. Never mind how it was explained to you. Is it posted from any other book ?—A. It is posted from no other book that I know of.

Q. At whose suggestion or request was it entered ?—A. As I understand it, it was entered at the suggestion of Mr. O. E. Murphy.

Q. This is the original entry ?—A. As far as I know, it is the original entry.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. You made the entry yourself ?—A. I did.

By the Chairman :

Q. Read it, please ?

" LEVIS, 30th April, 1885.

" Expense—

" To Graving Dock, $25,000, for incidental notes paid for Q. H. I."

Q. What does Q. H. I. mean ?—A. Quebec Harbor Improvements.

Q. Who wrote that entry in the books ?—A. I did.

Q. At whose request did you write it ?—A. To the best of my knowledge, it was at Mr. O. E. Murphy's request.

Q. You got instructions from him?—A. I did.

Q. Was it written according to the instructions you received?—A. Yes; at that time.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Had you any personal knowledge enabling you to write it?—A. Certainly, I must have had it; otherwise it would have been impossible for me to have entered it.

By the Chairman :

Q. But did you know of yourself?—A. No, except in this way. Mr. O. E. Murphy came to me and told me to charge up $25,000.

Q. He dictated the entry to you?—A. Yes; I was to charge up for incidental notes $25,000. I made it up for incidental notes, according to the contract.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Will you be particular as to what Mr. Murphy said to you?—A. To the best of my knowledge he told me to charge up $25,000 to Quebec Harbour Improvements for incidental notes.

Q. And you made the entry accordingly?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Will you look at the next entry on the same page? It is for $15,000. Was that entry made by you?—A. It was.

Q. Was it done on the same day?—A. It is impossible for me to say that.

Q. Is there no date?—A. Yes; it is the same date. The entry reads as follows :

“Cash	To N. K. Connolly... ..	$15,000
	The next entry also refers to the above $25,000. It reads as follows :
“Cash	To O. E. Murphy.....	10,000
	For two $5,000 notes charged to incidental expenses from above.....	25,000 ”

Q. There appears on the page across the second entry, as a memorandum the word “Nix” in blue pencil? By whom was that written?—A. It was written by Mr. Peter Hume, the Engineer for Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Q. Was it written in your presence?—A. Yes.

By the Chairman :

Q. What does it mean?—A. I suppose it means that the entry was wrong.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. In Hume’s opinion?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. When was this word “Nix” written there?—A. Some time after the entry was made; I do not remember when.

By the Chairman :

Q. Is it more than a year ago?—A. Oh, yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. How many years ago?—A. I could not tell you. Judging—it must have been shortly after the entry was made.

Q. Judging by what?—A. Nothing in particular, except my own knowledge.

Q. Was the memorandum "Nix" made in your presence? Do you swear?—
A. To the best of my knowledge it was.

Q. When was it made, then?—A. A short time after the entry was made.

Q. What do you mean by a short time?—A. I do not remember exactly how long.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. At the time you made the first entry of $25,000 you say it was done by the direction of Mr. O. E. Murphy? Was he the business manager of the firm at that time?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he the cashier of the firm?—A. I believe he was.

Q. Have you any doubt that he was the cashier?—A. I have not the least doubt that he was the cashier.

Q. And the business manager of the firm?—A. And the business manager.

Q. And it was by his direction that the entry of $25,000 was made?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say that the word "Nix" was written by Hume in your presence, a short time after the original entry was made. Can you swear to it inside of a year?—A. To the best of my knowledge it was within a year.

Q. Have you any doubt about it yourself?—A. I do not remember exactly when it was.

Q. Are you quite certain it was within a year?—A. I am almost certain it was inside of the year.

Q. Was it within two, three or six months?—A. The original entry was made in 1885; to the best of my recollection the memo. was put there when Mr. Hume was examining the books in the following winter. Mr. Kimmitt and Mr. Hume were the auditors, and it must have been made at the time they were examining the books.

Q. That would have been about a year, then?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Will you kindly look at the entry, 1885, $22,000?—A. It appears in the Journal, Exhibit "F3," page 290, the first entry.

"LEVIS, 30th April, 1885.

"Expense—

" Dr. $22,000.

To Cash.....$22,000.
For incidental expenses paid for notes."

Q. Can you find somewhere else in your books any other entries incidental to this item of $22,000, or connected with it?—A. On page 9 of the Journal, Exhibit "N3," there are two entries. The first one reads as follows :

"Graving Dock—

"To M. Connolly..... $2,000

"For one $2,000-note charged to incidental expenses, from $22,000 charged to Dock."

The next entry, same date, 30th April, 1885.

"Cash

To P. Larkin..... $8,000

For $8,000, in notes charged to incidental expenses from $22,000, charged to Dock."

Q. Are there any other entries in the books connected with this item of $22,000?—A. Not that I know of; I would have to look up my ledger; (after searching) I find in ledger, Exhibit "M3," at page 104, the following entry :

"O. E. Murphy, 30th September, 1884, note No. (page 69, cash book).....$5,000

By Mr. Baker :

Q. To what does that entry refer?—A. I cannot find that it refers to anything else but the entry of $22,000.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. How did you come to that conclusion?—A. On account of the fact of having done the work—that is, helping the auditors that year to audit the books for the year previous.

Q. From the information and knowledge gained by you as book-keeper and assisting the auditors that year, do you come to the conclusion that that $5,000 relates to and forms part of the $22,000?—A. Yes, sir.

By the Chairman :

Q. In whose handwriting is the entry of that $5,000?—A. To the best of my knowledge it is in Mr. Shea's handwriting.

Q. Who is Mr. Shea?—A. He was the former book-keeper.

Q. Where is he to be found to-day?—A. I believe he lives in St. Catharines.

Q. And the other two entries in the journal, in whose handwriting are they?—A. They are in mine, I believe.

Q. All these entries in the journal were made under the instructions of O. E. Murphy?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Will you take communication of two entries on page 69 of the cash book, Exhibit "K3,"

"30th September, 1884—O. E. Murphy, Note No. 2, $5,000.

do M. K. Connolly, Note No. 3, $5,000."

Do you know anything about those items?—A. Not any more than I do about the others. I have no knowledge of them.

By the Chairman :

Q. Is the second note a portion of the $22,000 item?—A. No; it is not.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Do you swear positively that it has no reference to the $22,000?—A. I cannot swear positively, because it was not made by me or in my time.

Q. Did you make this entry yourself?—A. I did not.

Q. And you understand as much about the first note of $5,000 as you know of the last one?—A. I understand it in that way.

Q. When you were assisting the auditors to audit the books were you informed about the second $5,000 as you were informed about the first $5,000?—A. I do not know that I was informed about the first $5,000 note at all. I may have come to a conclusion myself.

Q. Were you informed in some way for the two notes?—A. I do not remember, I do not remember getting any information about them.

Q. Will you kindly look again to see if you have any other entries connected with the item of $22,000 in April, 1885?—A. I have no other entries.

Q. I find an entry on page 299 of Exhibit "F 3." Has it any reference to the $22,000 or the $25,000 transaction?—A. It is impossible for me to say. These are the credits charged to the account of each of the members of the firm.

By the Chairman :

Q. Read the entry?—A. The entry is as follows :

" April 30, 1885—Cash, Dr. to sundries .....	$38,000
To N. K. Connolly .....	$15,000
P. Larkin .....	8,000
M. Connolly .....	5,000
O. E. Murphy .....	10,000

For incidental notes charged to their accounts now credited back.

Q. Will you tell us if the items just read refer in any way to the $25,000 notes or the $22,000 notes that we have spoken of?—A. I do not know whether they do or not.

Q. Will you tell me if the entry in your journal of 1885 (Exhibit "N 3," page 9), of $15,000, has reference to, or is connected in any way with, this item of $15,000, made in the journal (Exhibit "F 3," at page 299)?—A. I believe it is the same.

Q. Have you any doubt about it?—A. I cannot say that I have.

Q. Did you make the two entries yourself?—A. Yes; the $8,000 to P. Larkin and the $10,000 to O. E. Murphy, as far as I know, refer to the same entries.

Q. Will you kindly tell us if the $5,000 to M. Connolly, entered at page 299 of Exhibit "F 3," has any connection with the items of $25,000 or $22,000 that we have spoken of?—A. I cannot say positively.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. What is your opinion?—A. I believe it has.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Have you any entries in your books about this same item of $25,000?—A. No not that I am aware of, except that they are in the books prior to my time.

Q. Will you kindly tell us if there is an entry in any of your books for a sum of $27,000 dated the 28th March, 1887?—A. There is no entry for any such amount.

Q. Will you tell me if this entry for $25,000 in the journal (Exhibit "N 3") page 282, has any connection with the entry made by you in the paper filed before this Committee as Exhibit "B 5"?—A. Yes; it has.

Q. Read the entry?

"SUSPENSE—DR.

"To ESQUIMALT DOCK, $25,000.

"For error in charging B.C. with the following cheques :

do 28 do do 272.....	5,000 "

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Will you turn up the different folios referred to in this entry and show the committee what the entries are?—A. Folio 268 of the same book, has the following :

"Esquimalt Dock..... $10,000

To CASH.

Union Bank cheque No. 156, and B.N.A. Bank cheque No. 86157, disbursed."

Q. That is relative to the same thing?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now page 269?—A. The entry is

"Esquimalt Dock

To cash..... $5,000

For British North America Bank cheque disbursed on account of division."

Q. Now page 270?—A. "Esquimalt Dock—$5,000.

Cheque to O. E. M., B. C. division."

Q. Now page 272?—A. "Esquimalt Dock—$5,000.

Cheques drawn by O. E. M. on account B. C. division."

Q. That makes the whole sum of $25,000?—A. Yes.

Q. Where did you get the other $2,000 from?—A. It is found on page 272 of the same book, dated 28th February, 1887, as follows :

"Suspense Dr.

"Cheques drawn by O. E. M. in excess of B. C. division of $25,000."

By Mr. Adams :

Q. I hold in my hand Exhibit " B 5 " in your handwriting, dated 28th March, 1887, in which the sum of $27,000 appears—that is not for Esquimalt Graving Dock, is it, but was charged against the Quebec Harbour Improvements?—A. It is charged against the Quebec Harbour Improvements.

Q. In your ordinary day-book and ledger?—A. The journal entry was first charged to the Esquimalt Dock, and another entry was made correcting it.

Q. You charged it where it ought to be—to Quebec Harbour Improvements?—A. I do not know if it ought to be there.

Q. Who told you to put that item of $27,000 in this statement? Who gave you instructions?—A. Mr. O. E. Murphy.

Q. Did anyone else give you instructions?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Who directed you to add the $25,000 and the $2,000 together?—A. It was Mr. O. E. Murphy.

Q. You mean Mr. O. E. Murphy told you not to keep the two sums separate, but to put them in one lump?—A. He told me that.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Did not O. E. Murphy at the time he told you to make out a statement tell you to put down the $27,000 in a lump sum, and not put down the items comprising it?—A. He told me that prior to the time I made out the statement. He asked me for the statement, and I gave it to him.

Q. This statement was made as Mr. Murphy directed you, in a lump sum?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Mr. Connolly, will you state when Mr. Murphy asked you to make such a statement? When did he call on you to get that statement?—A. He called on me some time prior to the date on that statement.

Q. What did he ask you?—A. He asked me to give him a statement of moneys that had been expended, from the books, for which I had no vouchers.

Q. He did not tell you to put $25,000 or $20,000, or anything of the kind—he simply asked you to make a statement of money spent from the books?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. For which there were no vouchers?—A. Yes.

Q. Will you kindly refer to the entry of the 31st December, 1888: "$3,000 per N.K.C."?—A. I find in Exhibit " L3," page 507, under the date of the 31st December, 1888, the entry :

" Suspense, donations..... $3,000 "

By Mr. Davies :

Q. That is the original entry, is it not?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Made by you?—A. Yes, made by me.

Q. In what book?—A. The cash book.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Is there any other original entry in any other book at all? Did you understand that Mr. Davies' question referred to this being the entry?—A. Of course it is journalized and posted in the usual way.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. This is the first entry made of it?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what portion of the books shall we find the entry " per N.K.C."?—A. I may explain that the reason why I marked " per N.K.C." was because the cheque was drawn to the order of N. K. Connolly. I am pretty positive that is it. The journal in which the entry is posted is not here.

Q. The journal you refer to is only for the year 1888, is it not?—A. The journal I spoke of began in October and goes right along.

Q. I want you to find the entry of 30th September, 1886, of $5,000?—A. I find that entry in the journal, Exhibit "N3," page 206.

Q. Read it?

"September 30th, 1886

"Suspense, Dr.

To expense.....$5,000
 For an amount charged to expense account in error, as cannot say at present which is the proper account this item is to be charged to."

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Have you any other entries of that $5,000 in any of the other books?—A. Yes, on page 204 of the same book. There is an item under the date of 30th September :

"Sundries Dr.

To cash—Expenses, donation.....$5,000 "

Q. That is the same item?—A. It is the same item as far as I know.

Q. Would you look at the entry for 13th October, 1886, of $3,000.—A. This is the same book, Exhibit "N3," page 213, 13th October :

"Suspense, Dr.

To cash—donation..... $3,000
 As yet cannot say which is proper account to charge this to."

Q. Is there any other entry in this book or any other book relating to that $3,000?—A. No; it is posted into the ledger.

Q. I see in the statement, Exhibit "B5," an entry: P. Valin, $150, and immediately after $3,000 ditto?—A. Oh, yes; but that ditto is not seen on my statement. The $3,000 of my statement is dated October, 1886, and is $3,000 nothing more or less. The dittos are not mine.

Q. Will you look at the entry of 3rd August, 1887, and read it, please?—A. This is Exhibit "N3," folio 348, 3rd August, 1887. The entry is :

"Suspense, Dr.

To cash—Union Bank Cheque, No. 290... $1,000 "

Q. Now will you look at the entry on the 8th August, 1887, of $4,000?—A. It is in the same book, page 351, on 8th August, 1881 :

"Suspense, Dr.

To cash—Cheque No. 305 to order of N. K. C..... $4,000 00 "

Q. What do you mean by N. K. C.?—A. N. K. Connolly, I believe.

By the Chairman :

Q. Have you any doubt?—A. No; the cheque was to the order of N. K. Connolly.

Q. Will you kindly look at the entry in August, 1885, of $4,000?—A. In Exhibit "R3," page 62, I find the following entry :

"Expenses ..... $4,000
 N. K. C. draft, 3rd June ..... 1,000
     do       do ..... 2,000
     do       do ..... 1,000 "

Q. Do you know in whose hand writing that is in?—A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. It is a British Columbia matter?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Will you kindly look at the entry of the 8th February, 1886, of $3,000 ?—A. I do not see any entry of February, 1886, of $3,000.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Can you get any items to go to make up the sum of $3,000 ?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you find them ?—A. It would take me some little time.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Now, then, turn up the entries of April, 1886, of $1,000 ?—A. I will require a little time to look that up.

Q. Well, please look at the entry on March, 1887, of $17,000 for the Esquimalt Dock ?—A. I find that on page 282, of Exhibit " N3."

" Esquimalt Dock Dr. To Sundries.

Total to be divided .....	$72,000
Less disbursed.....	17,000"

Q. Where did you get that statement from of $72,000 less $17,000 ?—A. From Mr. O. E. Murphy. He made this up himself. He had a sum of $71,800, and he said, " We will take $200 and add that to it." I do not know how he made it up, but he said it would be divided up amongst the members.

Q. Have you any books showing how these disbursements are made up ? The Esquimalt books do not show these $17,000 of disbursements ?—A. I. will look that up. I do not remember exactly.

The Sub-Committee then adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, 24th June, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 2 p.m., with closed doors.

Present :—Mr. Girouard, in the Chair, and Messieurs Adams, Davies and Edgar ; also, Messieurs Tarte, Geoffrion, Stuart, Henry, Ferguson, Hyde, Kimmitt, Michael Connolly, Martin P. Connolly, two stenographers and two clerks.

Mr. MARTIN P. CONNOLLY, re-called and further examined.

By the Chairman :

Q. You were requested, I believe, on Saturday to prepare certain information. Have you that information with you ?—A. I have, sir.

Q. Well, please give it ?

MR. DAVIES.—Not in that way. Produce the book, if you please, from which you took those entries you have got in that paper.

WITNESS—Let me explain for a moment. I think the Chairman asked me to copy the entry on page 9, Exhibit—

THE CHAIRMAN—Produce the books. As you are requested to compare the entries you will be able to do so.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Where do you find that $17,000, regarding which you were asked at the last meeting to obtain information ?—A. That $17,000 consists in part of an entry dated 31st January, 1887, page 266 of this book, Exhibit " N3," reading as follows:

"Graving Dock, Dr .....

.....	$5,000
To Cash.
Union Bank cheque, No. 148, dated 3rd January, to be charged to Graving Dock as agreed."

Also at page 264 there is this entry :

“QUEBEC, 24th January, 1887.

Sundries Dr. to cash.....	$3,000
Graving Dock.....	1,000
Esquimalt Dock.....	1,000”

This makes $2,000 of the above $3,000 included in the $17,000. On page 281 I find the entry reading :

“QUEBEC, 28th March, 1887.

Esquimalt Dock.....	$5,000”

“This item of $5,000 is now charged to B. C. It was for a cheque dated 20th March, 1886, and was then charged to expense Q. H. I, Journal folio 117, and Ledger folio 176. It has now to be charged to B. C., as instructed by the mem. of firm.”

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Do those letters “mem.” mean members of the firm?—A. Yes. The other $5,000 I take to be part of an entry credited to N. K. Connolly of $6,640.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Is there anything on those books that would enable an expert or yourself to say that that constituted the $17,000, or is it from personal recollection or from anything you were told by any other party?—A. It is from personal recollection.

Q. Of the facts?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Is there anything particular about it, that you should have a personal recollection that it meant anything like that?—A. No.

Q. Did you audit the accounts?—A. Yes; but not at that time.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Will you look at page 282, and read the entire entry?

“QUEBEC, 28th March, 1887.

Esquimalt Dock Dr. to Sundries, $20,560.00 :

To R. H. McGreevy.....	$ 3,000 00
N. K. Connolly.....	6,640 00
P. Larkin.....	1,640 00
O. E. Murphy.....	1,640 00
Michael Connolly.....	1,640 00
Graving Dock.....	6,000 00”

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Can you tell us what that was for—that cheque 148 that you charged up in that way—$5,000?—A. No, sir; I do not know of my own knowledge what it was for.

Q. Where did you get it from to make that entry?—A. I was told by some of the members of the firm to charge that to the Graving Dock at the time, and then they contradicted that, and had it charged to the Esquimalt Dock.

Q. Have you the cheque?—A. I have not.

Q. Will you tell us all you know about that matter now?—A. I know nothing further than that the cheque was written out as cheques ordinarily are and filled in for $5,000.

Q. Who wrote it out?—A. I cannot say until I see the cheque.

Q. Who signed the cheque?—A. To the best of my recollection, I probably filled it in, because I was the clerk.

Q. Who signed it?—A. I do not remember.

Q. In whose favour or to whose order was it drawn?—A. I cannot say.

Q. When you made that entry had you not seen the cheque?—A. Certainly.

Q. Did you not see to whose order it was payable?—A. Certainly.

Q. Did that not guide you in charging it?—A. No.

Q. Was it payable to the order of anybody? What was it influenced you in charging it up?—A. I do not know now.

Q. The cheques have not been produced?

Mr. MICHAEL CONNOLLY—I sent a despatch down for the vouchers and letter-books, but we have not the keys of the boxes. We have telegraphed for the keys, and expect them here in a few days. Our cheque books will be there too.

Q. When you get the cheques back from the bank at the end of the month, or at any other time you get them back, did you gum them on to the stubs?—A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. What did you do with them?—A. I bound each month together with a brad.

Q. Were the cheques of the firm in relation to all their works issued out of one cheque book; or was there a separate cheque book for each contract?—A. The cheques in relation to all the works at Quebec were issued from the one book.

Q. On what bank was that?—A. We had for a portion of the time two—the Bank of British North America and the Union Bank.

Q. The Esquimalt business—what bank was that account kept in?—A. I do not know.

Q. Was that business transacted in Quebec? Was it looked after in the Quebec office?—A. All we did with reference to the British Columbia work was to audit the books twice.

Q. All the cheques then, as far as you know, have been preserved?—A. As far as I know, they have.

Q. They were under your charge until now?—A. They were in my charge, until some time in May.

Q. Where?—A. At Quebec.

Q. And as far as you know they were all there then?—A. As far as I know they were all there.

By Mr. Tarte:

Q. The notes were there, too—the promissory notes that were paid?—A. Yes; as far as I know.

Q. Then, among the documents that we hope will be produced when the keys arrive there are also the notes of the firm that have been taken up. While you were the book-keeper of the firm were the notes of the firm which were taken up and retired kept?—A. They were.

Q. You had charge of them until May last?—A. Yes.

Q. Notes and renewals, and all?—A. Yes.

Q. Had you any book showing bills payable by the firm?—A. We had.

Q. Is that produced?—A. I do not know.

Q. Was it a large book?—A. No; it would be an ordinary bill-book, with very few entries.

Q. When did you see the bills-payable book last?—A. I cannot exactly remember.

Q. Have you seen it since you examined the books up here?—A. No.

Q. Did you see it in May?—A. We did not have occasion to use a bill-book, and probably there were not more than three or four entries in it.

Q. When did you last see it—that is the question?—A. I do not remember.

Q. Did you see it in May?—A. I do not remember whether I did or not.

Q. Where did you last see it?—A. In the safe in the office.

Q. Were the entries in it all made by you?—A. I think they were.

By Mr. Davies:

Q. Before we leave this entry, will you turn me up ledger, Esquimalt Dock, expense account, showing you have posted that $17,000 to the debit of that account?

—A. Esquimalt Dock. I find it on page 171 of the ledger, marked Exhibit "M3" in the following entries :—" 24th January, 1887, Esquimalt Dock was debited to cash, 264 page of journal, $1,000."

Q. I want to see where the $17,000 was charged?—A. That is $1,000. Then on 28th March, " To expense, $5,000." That makes $6,000. And in an entry, same page, " To sundries $20,560"—the $5,000 is included.

Q. In this memorandum to which you called our attention, page 282 of the journal, Exhibit " N3," you say that N. K. Connolly should receive from the $17,000, for sum of disbursement to private fund, $5,000. Did he receive that?—A. Yes.

Q. Show me the entry?—A. It is there in the $6,640.

Q. That was posted to his credit?—A. Yes; posted to his credit.

Q. For sum disbursed to private funds. Do you know what were the private funds? What is the meaning of that?—A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know at any time?—A. I may have, but I do not remember now exactly.

Q. Can you state now that you did not know? Did you know at the time of making the entry, or any other time, what the meaning of that phrase was?—A. I understood that it meant—because it is in my own handwriting—$5,000 that Mr. Connolly had disbursed from his private fund.

Q. For what object?—A. I do not know; it is impossible for me to say.

Q. Did you ever know?—A. No, sir; I did not.

By the Chairman :

Q. Do you know it now?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Did you know anything about $5,000 disbursed by Mr. Connolly from private funds for any purposes, whether this $5,000, or any other $5,000?—A. I understand from the fact of that entry that that $5,000 was disbursed from Mr. Connolly's private fund. What the purpose was I do not know.

Q. As to the proportion of Mr. Connolly's $5,000 from private fund for any specific object?—A. No, sir.

Q. From a document I hold in my hand there appears to be an entry, March, 1883, $5,000; opposite it, in your handwriting, the words, "Three Rivers." Can you turn to any entry in the book from which you abstracted that?—A. I cannot.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Why can't you produce that?—A. Because the statement I made out at that time was wrong.

Q. Did you copy the $5,000 on this piece of paper on which appears the words "Three Rivers" out of any book? Did you put it there of your own accord or at any one's authority? How did you come to mark "Three Rivers" in front of the account you made out?—A. I do not remember.

Q. Was it a mistake?—A. The words "Three Rivers" must have been a mistake.

Q. Was it in the book from which you made a copy of the account?—A. It was not.

Q. How did you put it there, then?—A. To the best of my recollection, I put it from a conversation I overheard.

Q. At the time you were here the other day you told me that Mr. O. E. Murphy was the gentleman who asked you to make out a copy of that account?—Yes, sir. †

Q. Have you any knowledge that you can give to the Committee as to who authorized you to put the words "Three Rivers" there?—A. No, sir; I cannot.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. You stated that you put that in from a conversation you overheard between parties. What parties?—A. Members of the firm in the office.

Q. Do you remember what members of the firm?—A. No. There were so many $5,000 and I could get so little information, I tried to take up all the little knowledge I could gather.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Will you tell me whether anything happened between members of the firm with reference to this $5,000 that caused you to have that opinion. Were there any disputes about the charging of the items in the books?—A. I do not remember any to-day; I do not remember any disputes.

By the Chairman :

Q. How was it you undertook to make an entry in the books so that it bore the words "Three Rivers," without any actual knowledge?—A. This was a copy I was giving to Mr. Murphy for his information.

Q. Where did you get the "Three Rivers"? Why did you put those words there?—A. I understood that $5,000 had been expended for Three Rivers.

Q. Did you understand that prior to making out the account?—A. Prior.

Q. How was it spent in Three Rivers?—A. I do not know; I do not know that it was spent in Three Rivers.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Can you show us in any of your books any entry for $5,000 or $10,000 which had been charged, first to the Graving Dock at Lévis or to the Quebec Harbour works, and transferred to the Esquimalt Graving Dock account?—A. Yes; on page 266 there is an entry of $5,000, which was charged to the Quebec Dock and afterward charged to the Esquimalt Graving Dock.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. About the $2,000, the second item which you explained to us—the two items of $1,000 each, making $2,000 in that $17,000—can you tell us all you know about those disbursements?—A. All the explanation I can make is written here in the journal. It is "For cheque drawn by O.E.M. and charged one-third Graving Dock, one-third B.C. and one-third to O.E.M." I understand that was a cheque for $3,000 drawn by O. E. Murphy, from whom I received instructions to charge it up in that way.

Q. Do you know what it was for?—A. I do not.

Q. Did you at any time?—A. I never did.

Q. Who was present when you were told?—A. I do not know. We might have been alone; there might have been others there.

Q. You do not know whether other members of the firm were there?—A. I do not.

Q. Do you know when you were given information which led you to make that charge?—A. It must have been some time in January, 1887. It is entered up 24th January, but I would not swear that that was the date I received the information.

Q. There was a cheque for $3,000?—A. Yes.

Q. Made by the firm?—A. Yes, sir; it must have been made by the firm.

Q. To Mr. Murphy?—A. The way I understood it, Mr. Murphy signed the cheque "Larkin, Connolly & Co." himself.

Q. And made it payable to his own order?—A. I do not know whether it was or not.

Q. You do not know whose order it was made payable to?—A. No, sir; I do not.

Q. What about the next sum of $5,000, on page 281?—A. I explained that the journal entry reads "This item of $5,000 is now charged to B.C. It is for cheque charged 20th March 1886, and was then charged to expense Q.H.L., journal folio 117, and ledger folio 176. It is now to be charged to B.C., as instructed by mem. of firm."

Q. Is that the same item Mr. Tarte asked you a question about a few minutes ago.—A. That is the same item that was put in that photograph document, with the words "Three Rivers" opposite.

Q. The next item of $5,000—part of $6,000, and odd—how did you come to charge that there? What was the disbursement there?—A. I do not know. I must have been told by some member of the firm, I do not know who, to credit Mr. Connolly with $5,000 and charge it up to the Esquimault Dock; but when Mr. Murphy asked me for a statement I included it in the $17,000.

Q. Had you no particular discussion with the members of the firm as to what it was for?—A. No, sir; I had not.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. You now think the $5,000 contained in the photograph copy of the account, or memorandum certified by you as correct, and opposite which is marked "Three Rivers," forms a part of the $17,000?—I think so now, and thought so for some time back.

Q. When you gave that certified account did you think so?—A. I did not.

Q. How did you make up the $17,000 of which you gave a certified account?—A. I do not remember exactly how I did it at the time. I must have taken $17,000 and charged up $5,000.

Q. You see you have entered $17,000 by itself, and in addition to it and immediately under it you have put this other $5,000, opposite which you have put "Three Rivers." At that time you evidently thought they were separate and different amounts?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you made it up from the books. Show me how you made it up?—A. I cannot show you.

A. If the $17,000 did not consist of the items you have marked and shown to us to-day, what did they consist of?—A. I do not remember. I may have written them in a hurry and taken this $17,000 in a lump sum, and taken this $5,000 afterwards. I kept trace of that, and after they were published I went carefully over it and found out I had made a mistake. I am very sorry for it.

Q. When was that you spoke of their being published?—A. It was in May, 1889.

Q. Was it this certified account?—A. No; but I know exactly what it was. Here is my impress copy of it.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Are you satisfied now you did make a mistake?—A. I am.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. This $35,000, according to your opinion, should be $5,000 less?—A. Yes—making it $30,000.

Q. There is another item of March, 1888, of $2,000. That is all right, is it?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Then the $5,000 marked "Three Rivers" should not be there, but forms a part of the $17,000?—A. It should not be there in addition to the $17,000. I do not know what $5,000 should be marked "Three Rivers."

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Now look into your account to see the item of $2,000, which follows?—A. Here is where I got the $2,000 entered Esquimault Dock account, page 172 ledger, Exhibit: "M3;" "31st January, expense, 458 folio, $2,000." The entry is in journal as follows: "Quebec, January 31st, 1888. Esquimault Dock to expense, $2,000, for entry on journal folio 454 in error. This sum of $2,000 should be charged to British Columbia dock, as it was originally."

Q. Look at entry 454?—A. January 31st, 1888: "Expense Dr. to Esquimalt Dock, $2,000. For error in amount transferred to British Columbia Dock, March, 1887, now credited back to British Columbia."

Q. The books do not state for what purpose this $2,000 was appropriated?—A. That $2,000, as I understand it and as it struck me, and from looking at the entries posted in March, 1887, I find no other $2,000, except what I have explained in the $17,000.

By Mr. Adams:

Q. Is that $2,000 wrong, too?—A. Yes.

Q. Did I hear you aright in saying that $71,000 was the balance of Esquimalt Graving Dock?—A. No, sir; you did not. I said, "This entry was made to square the division of $71,800 received on account of final B. C."

By the Chairman:

Q. Is that all the evidence you have collected at the command of the Committee since last Saturday?—A. No, sir; I think I have collected everything I was asked for. There was an item of $1,000 that wanted explanation. The entry for same is to be found in Exhibit "N3," folio 130, dated Quebec, 1st April, 1886. I find at folio 130, Exhibit "N3," an entry: "Quebec, 1st April, 1886—Esquimalt Dock Dr. O. E. M., $1,000, for amount omitted to be credited to O. E. M. and charged to B. C., being portion of $10,000, and so far can show up but $9,000."

By Mr. Davies:

Q. Did you find the information about the $3,000, of February, 1886, which the Chairman asked you for on Saturday last. What are the items?—A. I have found that in Exhibit "R3," page 98: "Esquimalt Dock, B. C., December, 1885—Expense account Dr. to M. Connolly, $3,000, from Q. H. I."

By the Chairman:

Q. How can that refer to the 8th February, 1886?—A. That was the one you were discussing for February, 1886.

A. Have you any other explanation to give which you were requested to get?—A. I do not remember that there is anything else.

The Committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, 25th June, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 2 p.m. with closed doors. Present: Messieurs Girouard (in the Chair), Adams and Edgar, also Messieurs Tarte, Geoffrion, Henry, Stuart, Ferguson, Michael Connolly, Martin P. Connolly, John Hyde, Richard Kimmitt, one stenographer and two clerks.

MR. MARTIN P. CONNOLLY recalled.

By Mr. Geoffrion:

Now that Connolly's boxes are open will you look into them and see whether you can put your hand on all past due promissory notes, cheques, stubs of cheques, and bills payable books, of Larkin, Connolly & Co., which you mentioned as having been among the papers of Larkin, Connolly & Co. when you last saw them in May.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. First of all let me ask you—did you pack those boxes?—A. I did not, Sir. After examining the papers in the three boxes produced I cannot find the cheques, promissory notes, bill book or stubs.

Q. Are there none at all—no cheques whatever?—A. No, sir; no cheques whatever.

Q. No notes, no stubs, and no bills whatever?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Are these three boxes the only ones containing the vouchers accompanying the papers of Larkin, Connolly & Co. filed before the Committee?—A. They are the only ones produced, so far as I know.

Q. Had you anything to do with packing these books?—A. Not when they were shipped from Quebec here; but I packed them originally some years ago, when each year's work was finished.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. And were the cheques, and the stubs, and the notes, and the bill books, all in these boxes?—A. No, sir; they were not.

Q. And where were they?—A. I generally put them in the safe.

Q. So they were not in these boxes, and you never saw them or put them into the boxes yourself?—A. No, sir.

Q. Not at any time?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Did you go back to Quebec and pack them?—A. I did not, sir.

Q. Do you know whether what was in the safe was put into the boxes that reached here and the contents of which were filed?—A. I don't know, sir.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Do you know anything about it?—A. No, sir; I do not.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Have you seen that safe lately?—A. Yes.

Q. When did you last have access to the inside of the safe?—A. In the latter end of the month of May.

Q. Of this year?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you see the cheque-books, the stubs, the bill-book or any of them there then?—A. Yes; I think they were there. The old cheques were in the safe, and the cheque-book with the stubs, I kept that in a kind of a bureau at the back of my desk.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. And the notes were there too?—A. The notes, as far as I know, were in the safe.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. And the last time you examined the safe did you find the cheques returned from the bank? Did you notice the cheques?—A. I did not notice what was in the safe, but as far as I could see the cheques were just the same as they had been from day to day. I did not see any change.

Q. And the bill-book?—A. It was a very small book in the corner, and I might not have seen it.

Q. Have you any knowledge about the stubs of cheques you say were in the drawer in the bureau? Did you notice them during your visit at the end of May?—A. They had been using the cheque-book right along. I suppose they may have been there.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. When did you see it last used?—A. I used it myself on the 20th May.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Who would be in charge of these papers since you left Quebec?—A. Mr. Kelly was there as time-keeper.

By the Chairman :

Q. What is his name?—A. Patrick Kelly.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Where does he live?—A. 66 St. Louis Street.

Q. With whom?—A. Mr. Connolly.

Q. What Connolly?—A. N. K. Connolly.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. And when did you leave Quebec?—A. I think it was 20th May this year.

Q. Have you been back since then?—A. Yes.

Q. You did not go back to the office of the firm?—A. I did.

Q. In what capacity?—A. In no capacity, except as a visitor.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. You did not do anything for the firm?—A. Notwithstanding the statement of Le Canadien to the contrary, I did not.

Q. You did not do anything for the firm?—A. Not a thing, good, bad, or indifferent.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You were constantly around the office, Mr. Connolly, what did you see?—A. I saw the desk most the same as usual.

Q. What day would that be about?—A. I went in there three or four times I guess.

Q. But what days?—A. I was at the office on the 6th June.

Q. That was one day ; now the next?—A. I was there on the 8th.

Q. Any other day?—A. I could not tell you whether I was there on the 9th or not, but I think I was.

By the Chairman :

Q. Was the safe in the same condition as it was in on your last visit?—A. It was, on the outside.

Q. You did not examine it carefully?—A. No, I did not go near it.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You did not see the inside of it on any of those days?—A. I may have seen it, I made no examination of the safe, I may have seen it open. I saw it from a distance of 10 or 12 feet away.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. When you left Quebec upon a telegram from Mr. Connolly did you leave the safe open?—A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. With whom did you leave the key?—A. There was no key for the safe, it is a combination.

Q. You know what I mean?—A. I repeat it does not open with a key it is a combination.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. With whom did you leave the combination?—A. Mr. Kelly knew the combination.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Did any other party know that combination ?—A. I cannot say that anybody else knew the combination of that safe.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Except Kelly ?—A. Yes.

Q. Or the different members of the firm ?—A. They may not have known.

Q. You are not aware they knew it ?—A. No.

Q. You never saw them open it, did you ?—A. I would like to explain that both the Messrs. Connolly never went to open the safe whilst I was in their employ and they never interfered with the safe.

Q. Did they interfere with the books ?—A. No; except to look over them occasionally.

Q. When you were in the office on these three occasions, who was in charge of the office and the safe ?—A. Mr. Kelly may have been on those three occasions.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. I would like to ask how you understood when you left Quebec, that all those notes and cheques were still in the safe ? Did any one ask you for the notes paid and for the cheques ?—A. I knew they were all there with the exception of some that had been handed to Mr. Fitzpatrick some time during the previous summer, with reference to the case Mr. Connolly had against Messrs. McGreevy and Murphy as to the lawsuit over the $400,000 note case.

Q. Can you tell us what notes and cheques were then given to Mr. Fitzpatrick ?—A. No, sir.

Q. Were those notes and cheques asked from you ?—A. No, sir, they were not.

Q. Then you do not know from whom they were asked ?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Who selected them ?—A. I think it was Mr. Hyde, the accountant.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Did you keep the numbers of those notes or cheques given away at that time ?—A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. You did not select them yourself ?—A. No, sir.

Q. Were you there when they were selected ?—A. Yes, sir, I was there.

Q. You said on two or three different occasions that you left the Quebec notes and the cheques connected with this inquiry in the safe ? Did you not say that ?—A. Yes, I understood so.

Q. Then those cheques and notes were not those given to Mr. Hyde ?—A. I did not see what Mr. Hyde took exactly. He may have taken some that had a bearing on the case. It is impossible for me to say.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. In the usual course of business besides the notes which were handed to Mr. Hyde, at the request of Mr. Fitzpatrick, all other notes, I suppose, and cheques and stubs would be in the safe ?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. At what time did Mr. Hyde get these notes ?—A. I think, speaking from memory, either in September or October last year.

Q. Did Mr. Hyde go down to Quebec more than once to your office ?—A. Yes, sir, he came to our office more than once.

Q. Did he go to Quebec after that date of September or October mentioned by you ?—A. Yes, I saw him in Quebec in April last year.

Q. Did you say in April ?—A. I think so, sir.

Q. Did he go for papers in your office then?—A. I do not remember, he may have done so.

Q. But he may have?—A. Yes; I remember him coming to the office, but whether he got any papers I cannot say.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Do you know whether he has been to Quebec since the meeting of this House?—A. Yes; I believe he did.

Q. Were you there in the office when he went down to Quebec the last time, or since the House met?—A. Yes; I saw him in the office.

Q. But to your knowledge did he look into the papers?—A. To my knowledge he examined some papers, but not those in the safe. They were locked in a box, behind the desk.

Q. What was in that box?—A. Some papers.

Q. All papers?—A. I could not say.

Q. The cheques were not there?—A. I do not know.

Q. Did you put the cheques there yourself? A. No, sir.

Q. Nor notes?—A. No, sir.

Q. Was the firm in the habit of giving many notes?—A. Well, they gave some, I could not tell you how many?

Q. Is it not a fact they were making their financial business by over-drawing their accounts in the banks?—A. At times an account was overdrawn.

Q. But as a matter of fact is it not true that for their business they did not make any discount?—A. No; it is not a matter of fact.

Q. Can you swear they discounted notes overdrawn in business?—A. Yes.

Q. Where is the book where these notes given are entered?—A. They will be in the bill-book, probably.

Q. Have you that bill-book here?—No, sir; I was looking for it, but cannot find it.

Q. It is not here?—A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you look into all the papers that were brought up?—A. All the papers I was told to bring up.

Q. Told by whom?—A. Told by this Committee.

Q. Did you look into all the boxes and books that you were to bring up?—A. Yes.

Q. Then you don't find in any of these books or boxes that were brought up either the notes paid or the cheques returned from the bank, or the bill-books?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Mr. Connolly, have you any reason to know where these are now, or where they have been since you saw them last?—A. No, sir; I have not.

Q. No reason whatever?—A. Not the slightest.

By the Chairman :

Q. When did you see Mr. Hyde in Quebec? Since this enquiry has been commenced?—A. On the 6th June I saw him.

Q. On the 6th June you saw Mr. Hyde in the office in Quebec?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you say whether he looked into these cheques, cheque-books and papers?—A. No, sir; I cannot.

Q. If you went down to Quebec do you think you would be able to find more papers if they are not here?—A. I think I would be able to find them without the slightest trouble.

Q. Can you pick or select any paper having reference to the books, either in the shape of vouchers or otherwise?—A. As far as I know, there is nothing in these books having any reference to the subject of investigation, they are papers and vouchers.

By M. Tarte:

Q. How then can you know?—A. Because I packed those boxes with the vouchers myself, and as far as I can see they have not been disturbed.

Mr. JOHN HYDE sworn.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. You have heard the witness speak about notes, cheques, stubs and bill-books of the firm—have you seen those at any time?—A. Yes.

Q. When did you see them last?—A. I saw them last April, I think it was—at the time of the criminal court in Quebec.

Q. Where did you see them?—A. I saw them in the office of Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Q. What was it you saw there?—A. I saw a large number of cheques, stubs, cheque books, and a number of notes.

Q. How—were you examining them?—A. I was examining them in my professional capacity, to assist in connection with the prosecution of the criminal trial.

At this point Mr. O. E. Murphy entered the room, at the request of Mr. Tarte and his counsel, when Mr. Stuart and Mr. Ferguson made objection.

Mr. FERGUSON.—I object on the ground that Mr. Murphy has no right to be present and should not be allowed to be present.

Mr. STUART.—As counsel for Mr. Thomas McGreevy, I desire to state that I consider that Mr. Murphy's presence here is calculated to do injustice to the persons under trial, as giving him information which he would not have if he were, under ordinary circumstances, a witness before a court of justice.

It being after 3 o'clock, and the House sitting, the objection of Counsel was reserved for the decision of the Standing Committee, to be reported at its next sitting (Mr. Murphy in the meantime retiring from the room).

Examination of MARTIN P. CONNOLLY resumed:

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. There were certain cheques and notes taken by you in connection with the prosecution of the criminal suit, were there not?—A. No, sir.

Q. By whom?—A. Counsel in the case.

Q. Was it Mr. Fitzpatrick?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. What became of the rest?—A. As far as I know, they were left in the office.

Q. Have you not seen any of them since?—A. I have not seen them since.

Q. Not at all?—A. Not at all.

Q. None that were left or none that were taken away?—A. No.

Q. Have you any knowledge of where they are?—A. I do not know where they are.

Q. Have you had any reason or any information from anyone which leads you to suspect or believe where they are?—A. I am not prepared to say what I suspect or believe.

Q. We want the information here?—A. Well, I do not know where they are.

Q. Has anyone spoken to you about them since?—A. Yes; they have been spoken about.

Q. Who has spoken?—A. Several parties.

Q. Who are they? Name them?—A. I have spoken to the Connollys about them, and asked them if they had them, and also to the Counsel in the case.

Q. And have you heard from them where they are?

Counsel objected.

The CHAIRMAN.—We do not admit the privilege of the profession here. The question must be put.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. Have you heard from anyone where those papers are, or have been since this enquiry has been going on?—A. I have had no direct information as to where they are or anything else.

Q. Have you had any indirect information where they are, or where they have been?—A. I understood they were in Kingston.

By the Chairman :

Q. How did you understand that?—A. I understood from information and conversation with parties that they were in Kingston.

Q. Conversation with whom?—A. Conversation with Mr. Connolly.

Q. What did he tell you?—A. He did not admit they were there, and he did not deny they were there.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. But you believed they were?—A. I assumed they were there.

By the Chairman :

Q. Do you know who brought them to Kingston?—A. No, sir.

Q. He did not tell you?—A. No, he did not admit that they were got to Kingston.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. But you believed from his conversation they were?—A. I thought they would be in Kingston.

Q. When?—A. Since I have been up here this last ten days.

Q. Do you believe they are there now?—A. They may be, for anything I know to the contrary.

Q. They are not in Ottawa?—A. I do not know.

Q. And you have no reason to suppose they are?—A. They may be, for all I know. I have no reason to believe they are here. I do not know where they are at all. All that I know is any suspicion I may have.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. On the 6th June you were in the office of Larkin, Connolly & Co. at Quebec, were you not?—A. I was.

Q. You heard young Martin Connolly give his evidence?—A. Yes.

Q. You have heard him swear he saw you examining some papers in a box in the office?—A. Yes.

Q. Were the papers you examined in the office that day connected in any way with this inquiry?—A. I went down there for the purpose of seeing whether there were any papers in connection with the inquiry which had not been sent up and there was one book containing departmental officers' letters, which was put to one side.

Q. Did you examine the book on the 6th June?—A. I did not.

Q. Did you examine the book between the time you handled the cheque and the 6th June?—A. Not at all.

By the Chairman :

Q. What kind of book was it you saw?—A. It was one of those scrap-books in which you simply put letters.

Q. Letters received from the Department?—A. Yes; sent or received from the Department. It was a scrap-book.

Q. Have you seen that book here?—A. I have not seen it.

Q. Not before the Committee?—A. Not yet.

Q. Did you see it in Ottawa here?—A. No.

Q. Who took charge of that book in Quebec when you saw it last?—A. I left it there.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Who sent you there?—A. I went down there with the Counsel in the case.

Q. Was the Counsel with you when you were examining it?—A. No.

By the Chairman :

Q. What is the name of the Counsel?—A. I went down with Mr. Fitzpatrick.

Q. And who else?—A. Mr. Martin P. Connolly. He went down the same night.

Q. Now, after the examination of papers you found this book? Who was in the office when you found it?—A. Mr. Martin P. Connolly was there, and I think Mr. Nicholas Connolly and Mr. Kelly.

Q. When you found the book what did you do with it?—A. I put it by and said, "You want it sent up to Ottawa; it is wanted in connection with the inquiry."

Q. Will you please tell me how you came to speak to Mr. Connolly about these notes?—A. Because I thought the notes should be produced.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. As an accountant?—A. As an accountant.

Q. When did you speak to him—after the examination of papers on the 6th June or prior?—A. I spoke to him, I think before the 6th June, and since.

Q. Well, did he give you an intimation before the 6th June where they were?—A. No he did not.

Q. Did you ask Martin P. Connolly for the combination of the safe? To see if you could not examine the safe?—A. No Sir, I had no right to examine it.

Q. How did you have a right to examine papers?—A. By Nicholas Connolly's consent I examined the papers to see if there was anything there that could be got.

Q. Have you ascertained the notes were not there?—A. I asked about the notes and they were not there.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You mention a book wherein letters were posted, &c. Do you know whether the book is here?—A. I have not seen the book. I may say the letters were not posted in but put between the leaves. It is not here.

Q. As far as you have verified it it is not?—A. No, Sir, it is not.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. To whom did you say the order was sent to produce the books and papers?—A. Mr. Nicholas Connolly and Mr. Michael Connolly instructed Mr. Kelly to send on anything that was wanted. The only thing I could find was that letter book that had no reference to it. It was a scrap-book with letters between the leaves.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Can you point out to us, what papers you selected for the counsel in the criminal case when you were in Quebec?—A. If they were here I could say what they were, but I cannot recall them.

Q. Did you pick up notes and cheques?—A. There were certain notes and certain cheques.

Q. You do not remember what they were at all?—A. I do not remember what they were, but I remember some of them. There would be in the neighbourhood of 10 notes and probably 20 or 25 cheques.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Would the notes relate to any of the charges?—A. Some of them would and some would not.

Q. Which of the charges would they relate to?

The Chairman :

Q. Was there one relating to the $25,000 matter?—A. There were some relating to the $25,000 matter.

Q. Given to the counsel?—A. Those notes were in possession of counsel.

Q. You do not know whether they have been returned by counsel or not?—

A. I did not know anything about them.

Q. What was the nature of the criminal trial?—A. It was a trial against Mr. Tarte for libel and a trial against Mr. O. E. Murphy and Mr. Robert H. McGreevy for conspiracy with the $400,000 note.

Q. Some of the notes, I believe referred to the $25,000 charge, and there were some notes, I think, in connection with the $22,000.

Q. But about the cheques? Some of them, I believe, referred to the donations?

A. Some, I believe, referred to the donations.

Mr. MICHAEL CONNOLLY examined:

By the Chairman:

Q. Mr. Connolly, you have heard the evidence given a moment ago by Mr. Hyde and Mr. Martin P. Connolly. Do you know where are to-day the notes, cheques, bill books, stubs of cheques and letter book referred to by those two witnesses?—A. I know nothing, further than I sent a telegram when directed to produce the books here before the Committee, to our agent in Quebec, asking him to send all letters, letter books and vouchers to Ottawa at once and in reply to that telegram I got these books.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. Do you think by the telegram sent to your agent, he would take it to include the cheques and bill book?—A. I would think so, as I call a cheque a voucher. It is a bank voucher. I will get a copy of the telegram I sent if you wish. I believed up to the time these boxes were opened, we had all these things here. I wish to state here we have no desire to protract this investigation one moment.

By Mr. Adams:

Q. Inasmuch as you have heard these things are not here now go to work this evening and get them here by to-morrow morning?—A. I will take means to get them here to-morrow morning if they are in our possession.

Q. Is Mr. Kelly there at Quebec?—A. He is. He has the key of the office and the combination of the safe.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. Mr. Hyde, thinks they are probably in Kingston?—A. A man can think what he pleases.

Q. You do not think the same?—A. No I do not.

By the Chairman:

Q. Mr. Hyde says he thinks Mr. Nicholas Connolly told him they had gone to Kingston?—A. I heard Mr. Hyde say he instructed a party to send them up here.

Ordered,—That Mr. M. Connolly do obtain from his counsel, Mr. Fitzpatrick, all notes, cheques and other papers which were given to him for the purposes of the criminal trial against O. E. Murphy and R. H. McGreevy.

MR. MARTIN P. CONNOLLY—On again searching this box, I find a bundle of cheques for the year 1887.

The sub-committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, 2nd July, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 2.30 p.m.

Present: Messieurs Girouard (Chairman), Adams and Edgar; also, Messieurs Tarte, Geoffrion, Ferguson, Henry, Stuart, Fitzpatrick, Michael Connolly, N. K. Connolly, Martin P. Connolly, Hyde, Kimmitt, Kelly, three stenographers and two clerks.

Mr. MARTIN P. CONNOLLY recalled.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Will you look at a note for $5,000, dated Quebec, 1st May, 1883:—On demand we promise to pay to order of ourselves at the office, Graving Dock Lévis, $5,000, signed Larkin, Connolly & Co. per O. E. M., and endorsed, Larkin, Connolly & Co. per O. E. M., and tell us if you find trace of such a note in your books?—A. I find no reference to any such note. There is no entry in the cash book referring to a note of $5,000 in May, 1883.

Q. You found the other day for sub-committee entries for 5 notes of $5,000 each. Find them again please.—A. The only entry I found the other day was one in Exhibit "N 3," 30th April, 1885, "expenses to Graving Dock, $25,000."

Q. You cannot find any other entry than this one?—A. There is none that I know of that has any relation to the note except one following immediately.

Q. Will you look at the first note signed by Larkin, Connolly & Co. per O. E. M., and endorsed Larkin, Connolly & Co. per O. E. M., and say if it went through the bank?—A. Not apparently.

Q. I am asking you if it did.—A. It did not.

Q. Look at page 33 of the cash book, Exhibit "E 3" and give us the date of that entry.—A. May 31st, Michael Connolly, cheque May 14th; No. 1, $5,000.

Q. Is it that note?—A. It may refer to that note.

Q. But you do not know whether the entry refers to that note or not.—A. No, Sir, I do not.

Q. You have no knowledge of it at all?—A. I have no knowledge of anything prior to April, 1885.

Q. You have no knowledge of anything that occurred before April, 1885, when you became book-keeper for the firm?—A. No.

Q. Does the entry of $5,000 that you made apply to those five notes of 1883 mentioned by Mr. Tarte?—A. They may or they may not.

Q. I do not want that answer. Answer the question.—A. I do not know.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Look at the entries following and say if they refer to the notes of $5,000 each.—A. Whether the entries refer to these particular notes or not it is impossible for me to answer; the date is April 30th, 1885.

Q. Will you look for a note of $3,000. "Quebec, 28th November, 1884. Six months after date for value received we promise to pay Michael Connolly or order, at the Union Bank, Quebec, the sum of $3,000. No. 1652. Signed, Larkin, Connolly & Co. per O. E. M. and endorsed Michael Connolly, R. H. McGreevy, pro Jas. Ross & Co., Jas. Geggie"?—A. There is no entry during the month of November, 1884.

Q. No, but can you find some trace of this note in those books? The entries were always made later on.—A. There would be no other entry except the one in regard to the other amount which has any relation to it.

Q. There was no round entry, if I may so express it, for the $22,000?—A. None except that, that I know of.

Q. Will you look at the entry for the $22,000 again?—A. I find in Exhibit "F 3," at page 290, the following:—Levis, 30th April, 1885, expenses to cash, $22,000.

Q. But there are some entries about notes in reference to the way the $22,000 is divided?—A. The only details I have of that entry are those same details you have seen already in Exhibit "N 3," page 9.

Q. And there is nothing else that you can find?—A. No.

Q. When you gave a cheque what kind of an entry did you make?—A. We made an entry in the cash book.

By the Chairman :

Q. Did not you make an entry on the stubs in the cheque book?—A. Certainly.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Will you look for a cheque dated 14th May, 1883, "Pay M. Connolly or order $5,000," signed by Larkin, Connolly & Co., per O. E. M., and endorsed by Michael Connolly?—A. I find an entry in Exhibit "E 3," page 22, dated 14th May, 1883, "Union Bank Cheque to M. Connolly, $5,000."

Q. Will you look for a cheque dated 4th December, 1883: "Paid Quebec Bank for note $5,000."?—A. I find in Exhibit "E 3," page 150, 4th December, 1883, cheque, Quebec Bank, 5,000.

Q. For a note?—A. No. It does not say in the cash book what it is for.

Q. Then 4th February, 1884, $5,000, "to pay note"?—A. I find an entry in Exhibit "E 3," 4th February, 1884, "Union Bank cheque to retire note $5,000."

Q. Can you tell us what note was due on that day?—A. No, sir, I cannot.

Q. You cannot by referring to the books?—A. No, sir, I cannot.

Q. Will you look, if you please for a cheque dated Quebec, 25th January 1887, on the Bank of British North America, "Pay N. K. Connolly, $10,000," signed Larkin Connolly, & Co., and endorsed N. K. Connolly?—A. There is no entry in the cash book.

Q. But is there in any other book?—A. I find an entry in Exhibit "N 3," page 265, of the journal, "Quebec 25th January, 1887; Esquimalt Dock to Bank of British North America, $10,000, for cheque No. 86151 paid on account of division of British Columbia surplus."

Q. Now, Quebec, 3rd January, 1887; Union Bank of Canada, N. K. Connolly or order, $5,000; signed Larkin, Connolly & Co. It is endorsed, "N. K. Connolly, per O.E.M." These words have been erased and the words N. K. Connolly substituted, with an illegible name following, Taylor or Naylor?—A. I find an entry in Exhibit "L 3," in page 126, dated 3rd January, 1887, Union Bank cheque, order of N. K. C., to be charged to dock, $5,000.

Q. Now, then, 24th January, 1887, O. E. Murphy or order, $3,000; signed Larkin, Connolly & Co. and endorsed O. E. Murphy?—A. I find in Exhibit "L 3," at page 126, 24th January, "Union Bank cheque to order of O. E. M., $3,000."

Q. Now, 4th February, 1887, pay N. K. Connolly or order, $5,000; signed Larkin, Connolly & Co. and endorsed N. K. Connolly?—A. I find an entry, Exhibit "L 3," page 132, dated 4th February, 1887, $5,000, cheque to order of N. K. Connolly, B.C. div.: This entry forms part of the $27,000, as far as I know. The $10,000 mentioned by me a little while ago "as B.C. div.," does not, to the best of my knowledge, refer to the item of $27,000.

Q. You are ready to swear that to the best of your knowledge the $10,000 does not refer to this entry?—A. Yes; to the best of my knowledge.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. You have been ordered to make the entry, and you made the entry?—A. As far as I know this entry referred to the $27,000.

Q. In the statement which you gave under your signature to Mr. Murphy in connection with the Graving Dock at Lévis, you have entered under date November, 1887, $10,000. Will you refer to the books and see how you explain that charge?

—A. I find an entry in Exhibit "F 3," page 334 reading:

"Quebec, 30th November 1887. Expense, cash, $10,032.89.
"Cheque to order of N. K. C., 2nd, $5,000. do do 21st, $5,000."

By Mr. Tarte:

Q. Is that all there is about that entry there?—A. Yes.

Q. Where are those two cheques of $5,000 to the order of N. K. Connolly?—A. I now file a cheque upon the Union Bank dated, 2nd November, 1887, No. 406, drawn on Larkin, Connolly & Co., to the order of N. K. Connolly, which appears to have been paid by the Union Bank on the same date, and endorsed by N. K. Connolly.

Q. Will you look for the other cheque?—A. I also find amongst a bundle of British North America Bank cheques, one dated Quebec, 21st November, 1887, to the order of N. K. Connolly for $5,000, No. 86,230, signed Larkin, Connolly & Co., and endorsed N. K. Connolly.

Q. Will you explain the meaning of the following pencil figures at the back of the cheque, viz.: "10 x 100 extended 1,000; 6 x 500, extended 3,000; 1 x 1,000; total 5,000"?—A. It is the way the money was drawn.

By Mr. Adams:

Q. By whom would the money be drawn from the appearance of that cheque? Who would get the money?—A. Myself, probably.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. Did you endorse it?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Geoffrion:

Q. If you received the money you handed it to some of the partners?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. Do you know whom you handed it to?—A. I do not remember but when any cheques, which were included in the sums I have given in the statement to Mr. Murphy, would be drawn to the order of N. K. Connolly, and endorsed by him, I generally went to the bank myself, got the money and handed it over to Mr. Murphy or Mr. Robert McGreevy.

By Mr. Adams:

Q. In the case of that cheque who would get the money?—A. Mr. Owen Murphy or Robert McGreevy.

Q. You got the money. Have you any recollection of what was done with it?—A. To the best of my knowledge I gave it back to O. E. Murphy or Robert Henry McGreevy, or to both.

Q. Will you explain from the book an entry in Exhibit "B 5," dated 8th August 1887, $4,000?—A. I find an entry in Exhibit "N. 3," Quebec, 8th August, 1887. Suspense, cash, $4,000, cheque No. 305, to order of N. K. Connolly.

Q. Do you find the cheque?—A. I find a cheque upon the Union Bank of Canada, dated Quebec, 8th August, 1887, to the order of N. K. Connolly for $4,000, signed Larkin, Connolly & Co., and endorsed by N. K. Connolly.

By Mr. Tarte:

Q. There is a word in pencil on the body of the cheque?—A. That word is "Suspense."

By the Chairman :

Q. What is the meaning of that word?—A. It means that cheque was to be charged up to the suspense account.

Q. Who told you to write that?—A. I do not remember.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. And it was charged in the suspense account?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Who had control of the cash and the books in August, 1887?—A. In the month of August Mr. Nicholas Connolly had the management of the cash and books.

Q. Since you left?—A. Since the previous audit in August 1887.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Who kept the books before the audit you mentioned just now?—A. I kept the books all along, but Mr. Murphy had the handling of the cash.

Q. How came it to be changed from Mr. Murphy to Mr. N. K. Connolly? What was the reason of that?—A. I don't know positively the particulars. They could not agree Mr. Murphy should handle the cash any longer.

By the Chairman :

Q. Had they agreed that Mr. Murphy should not handle the cash any longer? Do you know anything about it personally?—A. I know that Mr. Connolly took charge of the cash by whatever authority he had to do it.

By Mr. Ferguson :

Q. Do you know why he did it?—A. No; I do not.

By the Chairman :

Q. Did he tell you why?—A. I don't remember now.

By Mr. Ferguson :

Q. You spoke of managing, that would give the idea that Nicholas Connolly kept the books.

Mr. EDGAR—He said they were the cashiers. Is that what you meant, Mr. Connolly?—A. Yes; he was the cashier.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. He directed the entries as far as the cash was concerned?—A. No; he may not have directed the entries.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Did he sign the cheques?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Is this cheque signed by him?—A. Yes; it is.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. The name of the firm is signed by him?—A. The words Larkin, Connolly & Co. are in his handwriting.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. And endorsed by him?—A. Yes; endorsed by him.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Whilst you are at the book what about the little entry of $1,000?—A. I find an entry, Exhibit “N 3,” page 348 :

“QUEBEC, 3rd August, 1887.

“Suspense—cash, $1,000—Union Bank, cheque No. 290.”

Q. Will you find the cheque?—A. Here it is.

Q. This cheque also bears the name of the firm, signed and endorsed by Nicholas Connolly?—A. Yes.

Q. Will you also say in whose handwriting is the signature of the firm at the foot of the cheque, dated 21st November, 1887, upon the British North America Bank?—A. The handwriting is that of Mr. Nicholas Connolly.

Q. And it is filled in in your handwriting?—A. In my handwriting; yes, sir.

Q. Please refer to the cheque dated 2nd November, 1887, and say in whose handwriting is the signature of the firm?—A. In Mr. Nicholas K. Connolly's.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. The two cheques you mention for $5,000 each, one on the B.N.A. Bank, and the other on the Union Bank—are these the two cheques that Mr. Murphy swore about the other day?—A. To the best of my knowledge they are the two cheques I put in the statement.

Q. You now exhibit the cheque which was drawn covering 20th March, 1886?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. The cheque for $5,000 is dated the same day, and the name of the firm is in whose handwriting?—A. O. E. Murphy.

Q. And the body of the cheque?—A. In the same handwriting.

Q. And the cheque was made payable to the order of the firm?—A. Yes sir.

Q. And the name of the firm is also endorsed in the handwriting of Mr. Murphy?—A. Yes, sir, Mr. Murphy.

Q. Now look at the cheque dated 30th September, 1886.—A. I don't find the Quebec cheque for 1886.

Q. You cannot find the cheque dated 30th September, 1886?—A. No.

Q. Will you look in the books of that date?

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Look at the stub.—A. I don't see the stub for that year.

By the Chairman :

Q. Well, look at the books as Mr. Geoffrion suggests.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Take the 20th March, 1886.—A. I find an entry in Exhibit “K 3,” dated 20th March, 1886.

“Union Bank cheque to ourselves, $5,000.”

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. That is under cash is it?—A. Yes, sir, under cash.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Ourselves, what does it mean?—A. To the firm.

Q. The cheque, what does it say?—A. “Pay to the order of ourselves.”

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. That was merely your account of cash with the Bank, was it? A. Yes.

- Q. What account was it carried into?—A. Charged to the expense account.
 Q. It remained there in the expense account, or was it carried anywhere else?
 —A. It may have been carried somewhere else.
 Q. Do you know whether it was transferred?—A. I think it was.
 Q. To what?—A. I will see. It was transferred from expense account to Esquimalt Dock.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Now make the same verification for 30th September, 1886, to see what entries you have. The amount is $5,000.—A. I find an entry, but no cheque. In Exhibit "L 3" I find: "30th September, expense, donation, $5,000."

By Mr. Adams :

Q. See to whom it was payable?—A. It is not in the book 30th September. It must be a mistake.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You find a donation, 30th September, $5,000, but no cheque?—A. No.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Have you anything in your book by which you can show the Committee that that $5,000 entry was paid by cheque? How did you come to make that entry?—A. From some writing or something I was told about. Here is the entry: "Expense, donation, $5,000."

Q. Let me see that book. Turn now to the 1st of October and see if you find anything for that $5,000?—A. That (pointing to an item) may be the same.

Q. Read it.—A. In Exhibit "L 3," "October 1st, Union Bank, O. E. M., being cheque to donation $5,000."

Q. Is that the item Mr. Geoffrion is asking you about?—A. I think it is.

Q. Are you satisfied about it?—A. Yes; I am satisfied.

Q. Can you find the cheque?—A. No. It is included in the 1886 cheque.

Q. Did you look beyond September?—A. I cannot find any for the whole year, except those few that Mr. Fitzpatrick had.

Q. The cheque dated 20th March, 1886, is drawn by Murphy—is in Murphy's handwriting. See if it is not.—A. It is signed Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Q. Whose handwriting is that?—A. O. E. Murphy.

Q. Is it paid to Nicholas K. Connolly?—A. No.

Q. Is it endorsed by Nicholas K. Connolly?—A. No.

By the Chairman :

Q. By whom?—A. It is endorsed by Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Q. And written by whom?—A. O. E. Murphy.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Have you anything about that cheque of 30th September, 1886?—A. No, sir.

Q. Have you any means of informing the Committee by reference to your books as to that item of 30th September, 1886, $5,000, by the entry of the cheque and to whom it was payable?—A. On 1st October, the entry in the cash book reads: "Cheque to order, O. E. M."

Q. Are there two of $5,000 each in 1887, written by Nicholas K. Connolly in his own handwriting and payable to his order?—A. Yes.

Q. Therefore, there is only one cheque out of the whole $20,000, that is payable to O. E. Murphy?—A. Yes; as far as the number we have gone through.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. 31st December, 1888, $3,000, in Exhibit " B 5 "—explain that entry.—A. That $3,000, I find to be $3,050, on page 498 of Exhibit " L 3 "—" Cheque to order N. K. C., office use, $3,050."

Q. Is there any other entry?—A. It is journalized.

Q. What is the meaning of " office use " there?—A. Use for the general office, as far as I understand.

Q. Look further to see if you can find an exact entry tallying with this $3,000.—A. I think we found that before in these other books.

Q. Have you got the cheque of 31st December, 1888?—A. It is not in either December or January among the cheques. Here it is: " Quebec, 30th December, 1888. Union Bank cheque to order Nicholas K. Connolly, signed Larkin, Connolly & Co. for $3,050."

Q. Are you satisfied that this justifies the entry you have made in Exhibit " B 5 " of 31st December, 1888, of $3,000, in expense?—A. To the best of my knowledge it is.

Q. How can you explain the fact that you entered it in expense when it was office use?—A. I must have been told to charge it up to office account.

Q. In 1888? Who would have told you that?—A. Mr. Connolly.

Q. To charge it to the expense account you must have been told by Nicholas Connolly in the usual routine?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the name of the firm signed in his handwriting?—A. Yes; it is signed Larkin, Connolly & Co., in the handwriting of Mr. Nicholas Connolly.

Q. And endorsed by him?—A. Yes.

Q. You have also mentioned in Exhibit " B 5 " certain amounts under the names of Pelletier, Germain and Brunel. By whose order did you make those entries and charges in the books?—A. I do not remember now.

Q. Who ought to have given you those orders in 1887 or 1888?—A. Mr. Hume, I think.

Q. Had he any control over you, or would he not report to Mr. Nicholas Connolly before you made any entries in the books?—A. I do not know, but I do not think so. Any orders I took from Mr. Hume I considered him the same as a member of the firm.

Q. But you are not positive it was Mr. Hume's order?—A. No; I can't say.

The Sub-committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, FRIDAY, 3rd July, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 2.30 p.m. with closed doors.

PRESENT: Messieurs Girouard (in the Chair) Adams, Baker, and Edgar; also Messieurs Tarte, Geoffrion, Stuart, Fitzpatrick, Henry, Ferguson, N. K. Connolly, M. Connolly, M. P. Connolly, Hyde, Kimmitz, O. E. Murphy, two stenographers and two clerks.

MR. MARTIN P. CONNOLLY recalled.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Mr. Connolly, amongst those books of the firm are there any accounts in the ledger showing the bank business in connection with the British North America Bank—that is showing all the debits and credits?—A. We have, sir.

Q. Will you get it for us, please?—A. I find the Bank of British North America Account in Exhibit "M 3," on page 178.

Q. Where does it begin?—A. There is a deposit in April, 1885.

Q. Can you, by referring to the cash book, Exhibit "K 3," and referring to the ledger accounts with the British North America Bank in this book, pick out the items which represent cheques paid out by the firm or money paid out by the firm in which you have charged, or were directed to charge, against either the expense or suspense account?—A. I think I can.

Q. Well, begin in January, 1886, with the Bank of British North America.—A. I find on the 30th January an entry "Five hundred dollars cheque, to William Sharples." I also find on March the 20th, 1886, an entry: "Five thousand dollars, cheque to ourselves, Union Bank."

By Mr. Adams :

Q. What do you say that five thousand dollars is for?—A. I do not know.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Go on please.—A. I find an entry dated June the 6th of a cheque on the Union Bank, O.E.M. Private use, $5,100.

Q. Is that the one you had charged to expense account?—A. It was lent to Mr. Murphy for his private use.

On page 68, Exhibit "L 3," I find an entry 1st October, 1886. Union Bank cheque; cheque to O.E.M. charge to "expense," $5,000, being donation.

At page 70 of the same book, under date 9th October, there is an entry, cheque to O.E.M. for private use, $5,000.

At page 70, there are two cheques, both dated 13th October; cheque to O.E.M. $1,000, ditto $2,000.

At page 90, under date 11th November, 1886, cheque O.E.M., $5,100.

3rd January, 1887, page 126, Union Bank cheque to order of N. K. Connolly to be charged to Dock, $5,000.

1st April, 1887, page 148, cheque to order of O. E.M. for Q.H.I. Division, E.W., $7,000.

On the same date, there is also a cheque to N.K.C. for $1,000.
The blank is there, because I did not have any explanation for what the money was for.

8th August, page 222, cheque to N. K. Connolly for $4,000.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You had no explanation as to that entry either?—A. No, sir.

By the Chairman :

Q. Can you say whether any of the above entries which you have given just now has any reference to the matters under investigation before the Committee?—
A. I cannot.

By Mr. Tarte :

Q. Will you kindly look in the books for the item March, '88, $2,000?—A. There is no cheque for $2,000 in March.

Q. Is there an entry in the books?—A. There is an entry in the books.

Q. Read it, please?—A. Exhibit "L 3," page 346; 8th March, 1888, N. K.
Connolly for amount of his private cheque for donation re B. C. as agreed, $2,000.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Is that a cheque?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. How did you pay him?—A. I did not pay him.

Q. Who told you to make the entry?—A. It was agreed by the members of the firm that Mr. Connolly should get $2,000, which I suppose he had expended.

Q. You do not know whether he paid it or not? You were simply ordered to make the entry in the books?—A. Yes.

Q. Without any knowledge on your part as to whether he got a cheque from the firm or not?—A. The fact of crediting Mr. Connolly with $2,000 is sufficient evidence for me that he got it. Whether he paid it or not, I do not know.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. What book does that appear in?—A. The cash book.

Q. Is that the first book it was in?—A. Yes; this was the first book.

Q. Did you carry it forward?—A. Yes; into the journal and ledger.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Would it not be a cash payment? You say, "paid to N. K. Connolly?"—
A. This entry does not show it.

Q. Was it by cheque, then?—A. I do not know. I only placed it to his account.

The sub-committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, WEDNESDAY, July 15th, 1891

The Sub-Committee met at 3 p.m.

Present: Messrs. Girouard, (Chairman), Adams, Baker, Davies and Edgar.

Mr. Thomas McGreevy, M.P., was called.

Mr. Stuart, stated that Mr. McGreevy was ill in bed, and added: I have not got his papers, but I have telegraphed him to Quebec, that if he is not able to come here, to send them to me.

MR. GEOFFRION.—Meanwhile you are without instructions?

MR. STUART.—I am, except that Mr. McGreevy told me he is having all his papers prepared and would bring them up with him. Since he has been taken ill, I have telegraphed him to send them direct to me.

MR. EDGAR.—I would ask for the production, from the Union Bank, of Thomas McGreevy's bank account. Are there not other banks he has dealings with?

MR. STUART.—Not that I am aware of during that time. Mr. McGreevy told me that from the period in question the Union Bank was the only bank he dealt with. He had, however, other accounts while he was carrying on the North Shore work. So far as I know the Union Bank is the only one with which he dealt during the period.

MR. ROBERT H. MCGREEVY SWORN.

By Mr Osler:

Q. You know the order that the Committee has made with reference to the production of your papers—"Ordered that you, amongst others, forthwith produce on oath before the Sub-Committee all your books of account, bank books, cheque stubs, notes, drafts and all other documents and papers bearing upon the question under inquiry, and that when so produced, the same shall be placed at the disposal of the said accountants for the purposes aforesaid." What books of account do you produce under this order, Mr. McGreevy?—A. Not any.

Q. Do you produce any bank books?—A. No.

Q. Do you produce any cheques?—A. No.

Q. Do you produce any cheque stubs?—A. No.

Q. Do you produce any notes?—A. No.

Q. Do you produce any drafts?—A. No.

Q. Do you produce any other documents or papers?—A. No.

Q. Will you kindly tell us why not?—A. Because I do not think that as a witness I have any right to divulge my private affairs before this Committee, or any Committee of the House. I am called in this investigation as a witness and not as an accused, and, therefore, my business and bank books covering various other transactions, and very little of these, I refuse to produce them.

Q. You have considered the matter of the order?—A. Yes. That was my decision up to, I may say to-day, when I will relax one of them, and that is with reference to the bank books and accounts in connection with the bank which I will produce when the others do it.

Q. You put the conditions that the others must produce theirs simultaneously with yours?—A. Yes, at the same time.

Q. Then you decline to obey the orders of the committee, for the reasons you have given. And you do that advisedly, presuming it is within your right.—A. Yes.

Q. Seeing you do not produce them I desire to ask you what books of account you have, covering the period in question and bearing on this inquiry?—A. I have nothing but the bank books and the cheques.

Q. That is not what I mean. Under the head of books of account, whether nominally or not referring to this transaction, had you in use a bank book ledger and cash book? A. My books of account have nothing in them at all concerning—

Q. I would ask you have you books of account?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you during the period in question keep a cash book?—A. No.

Q. Did you keep a journal?—A. Yes.

Q. And a ledger?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you make the entries yourself or the book-keeper?—A. I mostly made the entries in the blotter.

Q. And the book-keeper?—A. The book-keeper carried them forward.

Q. Carried them forward from the blotter to the journal?—A. Yes.

Q. So that you have not only had the journal, but the blotter as your original book of entry?—A. Yes.

Q. Your habit is to keep a blotter always?—A. Yes.

Q. And during the period covered by this inquiry have you more than one blotter, can you say how many you have?—A. I do not think I have more than one or two perhaps.

Q. Then with regard to bank books, what have you?—A. I have nothing but the Quebec Bank book.

Q. Was that the only bank with which you dealt during the period in question?—A. Yes. I had however, some little transactions in the Caisse d'Economie, but in trust.

Q. Were you concerned with others in trust?—A. No, in trust for my children only.

Q. In the Caisse d'Economie?—A. Yes.

Q. Moneys in trust for your children originating with yourself?—A. Yes.

Q. Gifts made by yourself and which you put in trust for them?—A. Yes.

Q. You have the bank book?—A. Yes.

Q. As well as the bank book in the bank you have named?—A. I have the bank book of the Caisse d'Economie with me.

Q. And you have the Quebec bank book?—A. Yes.

Q. And on the conditions named you are willing to produce it to the Committee?—A. Yes.

Q. Are you also willing that that which is probably a transfer of it from the books of the bank—the paper produced by Mr. Brown—should be considered as your production, and put in the hands of the accountant in lieu of the bank book?—A. No, I would give them the bank book that they held with my account. I do not know the production here.

Q. The bank produces, and it is here, a transcript of your account with them?—A. They said it was wrong from them under a threat from this Committee.

Q. And it is under the protection of this sub-committee now?—A. The bank told me they had a threat to produce it.

Q. It would remove any difficulty in the matter, presuming that paper to be a mere transcript from the bank book, if it could be put in the hands of the accountants?—A. If I am ordered to do it I will produce what I have.

By the Chairman:

Q. About everything?—A. About the bank book and the cheques.

By Mr. Davies:

Q. You prefer your own bank book rather than this transcript?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Osler:

Q. Have you any objection to our opening the parcel and just seeing whether it is a transcript or not?—A. I have all the objections in the world.

- Q. Then what cheques do I understand that last remark of yours to apply to?—
 Q. You are willing to make any productions ordered of you, or only with reference to the bank account?—A. Only with reference to the bank account.
- Q. What cheques have you?—A. 1883, 84, 85, 86, 87.
 Q. Returned banker's cheques?—A. Yes.
 Q. You have them here?—A. Yes.
 Q. Do you object to produce them?—A. Yes.
 Q. For the reasons you have already given?—A. Yes; concurrent with the rest, I will produce them.
 Q. That is, conditional on all the others producing theirs?—A. Yes.
 Q. What cheque stubs have you?—A. None.
 Q. Did you keep stubs of cheques?—A. Very seldom.
 Q. What has become of the stubs?—A. There are two of them in Quebec, but out of every ten there would be eight blanks.
 Q. But you have stubs?—A. Yes.
 Q. And your answer to the call to produce those is the same as regards the cheques, I presume?—A. I have no answer about that, because I felt they were of no use.
- Q. That will be for the Committee to judge. Then notes and drafts, have you none of those?—A. None at all.
 Q. No retired notes?—A. No.
 Q. No retired drafts?—A. No.
 Q. Have you searched for them?—A. Yes.
 Q. What has become of them?—A. I do not know, I am sure.
 Q. You have not destroyed them?—A. I have not.
 Q. What you say is: they are lost?—A. I think so.
 Q. Have you satisfied yourself as to that?—A. Not completely; I could not say. I would not undertake to say they are lost.
 Q. You have not made a careful search?—A. I have not.
 Q. And the papers coming into your possession—you have not found any?—A. No.
 Q. They ought to be in existence?—A. Yes.
 Q. And you ought to be able to find them?—A. Yes.
 Q. Now, as to other documents and papers, what have you?—A. What do you ask for?
 Q. Any of the documents you may have—letters from any of your partners, letters from Mr. Murphy, letters from Mr. Tarte, letters from Mr. Thomas McGreevy, letters from Mr. Charles McGreevy, letters from either of the Connollys, or copies of letters you may have written to any of these parties. Have you got such letters?—A. I have, but I did not bring them here.
 Q. Did you keep a letter, in which you took impression copies?—A. Yes, I did.
 Q. Of important letters?—A. Yes.
 Q. And you have the file in which you keep your letters?—A. Yes.

MR. NICHOLAS K. CONNOLLY SWORN.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. The experts have reported informally—they have not reported to the Committee, but have mentioned it to me and members of the Committee—that there are some of the firm's books of account missing. I will have one of them brought in to describe it.

MR. CROSS.—There is cash book "E" of the Q.H.I. set. It begins in 1889. And there is a journal which commenced a little earlier, the 30th of September, 1888. There is no letter to that book. Then for the Esquimalt books—there lacks the cash book; and there also lacks the cash book proper of the original set—the set called "Graving Dock, Levis." Then with regard to the Quebec Harbour Improvement set of books, in the bank book there is a hiatus of a few months in 1889, beginning, I think from January and ending in May. There are four months of a break without a bank book. The bank book before that is converted into a memorandum book and commences to be a correct account at the end of May.

Question continued: You have heard the description by Mr. Cross, which I adopt as part of my question. What account have you to give or explanation as to where those books are?—A. I cannot tell you anything about them. Mr. Martin, P. Connolly had the books in charge I suppose. I supposed they were all brought here. There have been trips enough made for them, and I am very sorry that they are not here.

Q. Can you give any explanation as to this break in the bank book?—A. I cannot.

Q. Did you leave your regular bank for a time like that and deal with another bank?—A. I think we did at one time, but I do not know whether that is the time or not. That may have caused the break.

Q. If that is the occasion of the break, what bank did you go to?—A. The Bank of British North America. Those are the only two banks we have done business with.

Q. That break may be accounted for by the fact that you know you did drop one bank and go to another? If that is the break we would find the information in the Bank of British North America.

MR. CROSS—This bank book is a regular bank book, commencing 31st May, 1889. What appears to be a previous pass book is a very irregular document with the words in red ink scrawled across it "New book", showing there was a new book.

Q. You are called upon to produce before this sub-Committee—I am speaking of your personal matters not your firm matters—your books of account, bank books, cheques, stubs, notes, drafts and all other papers and documents bearing on the question under enquiry. What private books of account have you?—A. None here.

Q. Have you any anywhere?—A. I think I have some in Quebec. I may say that on Saturday I asked the Committee to let me go down and get them.

Q. We want first to get at what you have in Quebec?—A. I must have cheques and bank books.

Q. What books of account have you of your own private books?—A. I do not know. Mr. Connolly kept my private account.

Q. You have some private books of account?—A. Yes.

Q. Martin P. Connolly kept them for you?—A. Yes, and I was going to ask the Committee to let him go with me so as to make but one trip of it.

Q. Have you any private bank account?—A. Yes, in Quebec.

Q. During the currency of this enquiry how many banks did you deal with? —
A. I think I only had one private bank.

Q. What bank was that?—A. The bank of British North America. I may have had a transaction or two with the other.

Q. Where is your bank book?—A. It must be in Quebec.

Q. Have you returned cheques from that Bank?—A. Yes.

Q. Where are they?—A. In Quebec too.

Q. Have you stubs?—A. I think I have.

Q. Have you any notes or drafts?—A. I think all my papers are there.

Q. Have you any other documents or letters—letters between partners?—A. I may have some.

Q. Then your attention is now directed to this order, which is personal and not relating to the firm?—A. I understand that.

Q. Do you say you cannot obey it without any opportunity of going to Quebec? —A. That is my only reason for not obeying it.

Q. Do you require Mr. Martin Connolly to go with you?—A. Yes, in order that we may be sure to get all. My reason is that I might overlook some and I do not want to come before the Committee and say that I have neglected to produce anything.

Q. Have you a letter book?—A. I think I had for part of the time.

Q. Is that also in Quebec?—A. I think so.

Q. Will you undertake as soon as you are relieved from attendance at this Committee to go down with Mr. Martin P. Connolly and make a thorough search and produce everything before this Committee?—A. Everything I have bearing on this case.

Q. Have you had any document of the nature I have been describing which you have not now—which you have parted with or given to anybody else?—A. I do not remember giving anything to anybody.

Q. Where is Michael Connolly?—A. He is in Kingston on the works.

Q. Do you know where he kept his personal account?—A. My opinion is he had no personal or bank account.

Q. Did you ever know of him issuing cheques?—A. I never knew him to issue any cheques.

Q. Did Martin Connolly do his business for him?—A. If he had any it is probable he did.

Q. When will Michael Connolly be here?—A. In the morning or probably to-night.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You are aware that Martin P. Connolly left for Quebec on Friday or Saturday evening?—A. Yes.

Q. You say you cannot get this book unless Martin is there?—A. I might, but in order to get them all I want him with me.

Q. Cannot Martin P. Connolly pick them up just as well as you?—A. I think he could.

Q. Does he not know more about these books than you?—A. I think he does.

Q. The Order of the Committee was dated the 10th and he left on the 11th. Did you instruct him, in obedience to the orders of the Committee, to bring here yesterday or to-day any books belonging to you answering to the Order?—A. No, I expected to go myself.

Q. Why didn't you go yourself?—A. I went to Kingston and I hunted in Kingston for some private accounts there, but found none.

Q. Seeing you could not be in two places together, why did you not instruct Martin P. Connolly to bring here from Quebec all papers that would answer to the order given?—A. I did not think of that. I might have instructed him, but I did not know he was going down.

Q. When did Martin P. Connolly come back from Quebec?—A. I do not know.

Q. When did you meet him?—A. Yesterday.

Q. Did he tell you that he had arrived in Ottawa from Quebec?—A. No.

Q. When did you yourself arrive in Ottawa?—A. Last night.

Q. When did you leave Kingston?—A. Yesterday afternoon or at noon.

Q. You never telegraphed or wrote any instructions to Quebec about those papers?—A. No.

Q. You cannot undertake to produce those papers unless you are let free with Martin P. Connolly to search for them?—A. If you are satisfied about Martin P. Connolly to go there alone, let him go, but I do not want you to say, after he comes back, if he has not brought everything that it is my fault that he has not brought everything.

Q. It never occurred to you to instruct Martin P. Connolly to bring all the books he could find?—A. I never thought of it.

Q. Are you satisfied to instruct him to go and bring all he can find?—A. Yes; but I do not want you to be dissatisfied afterwards.

MR. PATRICK LARKIN SWORN.

By Mr Osler :

Q. There is an order made upon you to produce your books of account, bank books, cheques, cheque books, stubs, notes, drafts or any other documents or papers bearing upon the question under enquiry. First tell me if you have any such papers and where they are and what they are?—A. I have got my ledger here with the account I had against Larkin, Connolly & Co. That is all I have got. I looked over the letter book yesterday afternoon and I could not find anything bearing upon this case at all.

Q. You have a letter book?—A. Yes.

Q. You have gone over it and found nothing?—A. Yes.

Q. You have a bank book?—A. I have, but I did not think it was necessary to bring them down, because I have all the accounts I have had with the company in that ledger.

Q. Have you any cheques?—A. I have all my cheques year after year.

Q. Where did you keep your own bank account?—A. The Bank of Toronto in St. Catharines.

Q. You kept no bank account east. You always banked with the Bank of Toronto in St. Catharines and you did all through these years?—A. Yes.

Q. The business you have been carrying on has not been confined to these Harbour Works?—A. That was a very small portion of it.

Q. You kept a general bank account?—A. Yes.

Q. Not opening a separate bank account for your dealing with the Quebec Harbour or Esquimalt Works?—A. No.

Q. Have you gone through your cheques and stubs and retired notes and drafts to select those that bear upon this enquiry?—A. Well, I did not. I looked over the ledger and I saw all there was there. There had been no cheques. There was simply entries for what I had paid out or sent to them.

Q. You have that ledger?—A. Yes, it is here.

Q. Does it show all your transactions with this business?—A. Yes.

Q. Who kept it?—A. One of our experts here—Mr. Kimmitt.

Q. He was your book-keeper?—A. Yes, he was my book-keeper.

Q. During all that time?—A. Yes.

Q. Can your bank-book or cheques give any information we cannot get in the ledger?—A. No, sir; they will not.

Q. What letters have you from your partners that will bear upon this subject?—A. I have some letters. I mentioned the other day that I was in the habit of destroying my letters year after year; but I have some letters with me.

Q. Are you willing to produce those you have together with the ledger?—A. Yes. I can, moreover, telegraph to the bank to send a transcript of my account since 1883.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Did you not keep an account with the Imperial Bank too?—A. I did, some years ago.

Q. In 1883, had you an account in the Imperial Bank?—A. I had an account in both banks but it seems to me I left the Imperial before 1883.

Q. Did Gallagher keep an account in the Imperial Bank to your knowledge?—A. I do not know.

Q. I find a cheque drawn on the Imperial Bank for $7,500 in 1883. Would that have any connection with your account there?—A. Yes.

Q. If a cheque of Gallagher's for $7,500 was accepted by the Imperial Bank in 1883, would it help you to remember whether you had an account there?—A. I would not know anything about that.

Q. As this Committee is investigating the facts, I want to know if the fact of Gallagher having a cheque accepted in 1883 in connection with this tender for the cross-wall, would it help you to remember whether you had at the same time an account with the Imperial Bank?—A. I took a cheque myself down to Quebec, or sent it down, I do not remember which.

Q. You procured the cheque yourself from the Imperial Bank?—A. Yes.

Q. Would it not be because you had an account there?—A. Yes; but the principal part of my account was kept in the Bank of Toronto.

Q. It is only to elicit the fact?—A. I was in the habit of putting in cheques. I furnished nine-tenths of the cheques put in in tendering with other parties.

Q. Mr. Kimmitt was your book-keeper, and was also employed to work on the audit of these books of Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. Yes.

Q. Did he not bring to you at St. Catherine's, and hand to you certain notes of memoranda in connection with what he had found in the books at Quebec?—A. I do not think he did.

Q. Is there not a bundle of such papers, either endorsed as belonging to Kimmett, or were put in your safe by Kimmitt?—A. There is nothing in my safe, but I have a vault in my office as well.

Q. Are there any such papers?—A. I do not know whether there is. If there is anything of that sort which was brought there I have nothing to do with it.

Q. Would you have any objection to delivering any such papers to him?—A. No, not the slightest. He came to my office yesterday and I told him to go to the vault and look for what he wanted and I also told him to go to the safe.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Were there no trial balances?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you produce them here?—A. No, I haven't got them. I have no trial balance that I know of.

Q. I thought I saw some in your hand?—A. No, I had none here. During late years I threw them away because I could refer to the books in Quebec at any time.

Q. You kept the trial balance?—A. No. There might be one but I cannot be certain.

Q. Have you any letters received from Murphy?—A. Yes, I have some.

Q. Where are they? A.—Down at the hotel.

Q. Will you produce those?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you any letters received from any other members of the firm?—A. Yes, I received some letters from Michael Connolly and Hume.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Are the letters not here?—A. They are down at the hotel.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Will you hand them with your book to Mr. Panet?—A. Yes.

Mr. MARTIN P. CONNOLLY re-called.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You were in the room and heard Mr. Cross speak about those books?—A. Yes.

Q. What about them?—A. The first time I examined the books here before the sub-committee I found that journal missing and stated so at the time, and afterward when I was sent down to Quebec I made all possible search but I could not find it from that day to this.

Q. When did you see it last?—A. I must have seen it in May. I do not remember seeing it identically at the time, but I must have seen it during May.

Q. What period did it cover?—A. I think the old journal closed on the 30th September, 1888, and the new journal that is missing began on the 1st of October. It ran on.

Q. One ended in September 1888, and the other began in October 1888?—A. The other journal began in the month of October.

Q. How long did it run?—A. I do not know. It ran on for probably a year or so.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Have you any idea where it is?—A. I stated before this sub-committee on the very first day I was examined that it was missing. I went down to Quebec and they said every book was produced. I could not find it.

Q. Have you any idea at all where it is? Have you heard anything about it?—A. Not the slightest idea.

Q. Did you enquire?—A. I made particular enquiries of Mr. Kelly and he said he had sent all the books that were not here up. I know it is not there in any of the examinations I made.

Q. The journal was not the only book missing then?—A. Yes, I think so.

Q. What about cash book "E"?—A. I think it is at Quebec. I do not know about it.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Why do you think so?—A. I thought I saw it but I remember now I did not see it. It struck me that I had seen it. It covers a very late period, I guess 1890 or 1891 this last summer.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Do you remember a period in which the bank account was changed for for some months?—A. Yes.

Q. And you went to the Bank of British North America?—Yes.

Q. They say that bank book is not produced. Did you enquire from the Bank of British North America for it?—A. I think the account was changed in the Union Bank.

Q. There was a period for which there is no bank account here. Now what have you to say about that?—A. I think it is the same period that the account in the Union Bank was changed from the name of Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Q. To whose name?—A. To Mr. Connolly's.

Q. Which Connolly?—A. I do not remember whether it was Mr. Nicholas Connolly or not.

Q. Then there was a time when the bank account ceased to be carried on in the name of Larkin, Connolly & Co. and was carried on in the name of one of the Connolly's?—A. I think so.

Q. What year would that be?—A. That would be during the missing period That is probably the time the bank account began to be in the new name.

Q. Here we have 3rd January to 31st January 1889, and after the 31st January it was carried on in the name of N. K. Connolly. Here we have up to the 22nd of January as far as deposits were concerned, the name of Larkin, Connolly & Co. Then we have the 23rd of January the account changed to N. K. Connolly., and the book is not produced. This book carries us down to the 31st of January 1889, but the next book produced commences on the 21st of May in the name of Larkin, Connolly & Co. Where is the intervening account and cheques?—A. I think the cheques are here. The stubs are here.

Q. But the bank book?—A. I thought the bank book was here. I do not know where it is.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Is it not a fact that there is a bank book from April 1886, to April 1887, missing?—A. No. It was here all the time and it was found.

Q. Is there not one pass book missing on the Union Bank?—A. No, sir.

Q. For the first part of the year 1887?—A. No, sir, it was here all the time.

Q. Is it not a fact that all the cheques from April, 1886, to April, 1887, on the Union Bank are missing?—A. There is one bundle missing. I only found it was missing when I examined them here.

Q. We searched here and found that all the cheques for one year—April, 1886 to April 1887—were missing?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Is that the bank book you supposed to be missing all the time?—A. No.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Would not that little hiatus in the book correspond with the period that N. K. Connolly obtained a contract for the gates in his name and without the knowledge of Mr. Larkin?—A. I think not. The gates were made in the summer of 1887.

After certain specific orders were given to Mr. Martin P. Connolly,

The Sub-Committee then adjourned.

---

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, 16th July, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 3 o'clock with closed doors. Present: Messieurs Girouard (in the Chair), Adams, Davies and Edgar; and also Messieurs Osler, Geoffrion and Henry, H. F. Perley, Boswell, Verret, a stenographer and two clerks.

Mr. H. F. PERLEY sworn.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. I have just been looking through the Minute book of the Quebec Harbour Commissioners just prior to the letting of the Cross-wall contract, and I find on the 9th of April, 1883, according to an entry, that a letter had been received from Mr. Ennis stating that plans and specifications have been submitted for his approval. He was then the secretary, was he not, of the Public Works Department?—A. Yes.

Q. Then I find on 21st April the entry of a letter being received from Mr. Ennis, with a copy of an Order in Council approving the plans and specifications of the Cross-wall, together with a copy of the plan as approved. Are these the plans (indicating them) that have been signed by the Harbour Commissioners, or were they the other plans?—A. Might I say to the Sub-Committee that I had nothing to do with the preparation of the plans, but they were prepared entirely by Mr. Boyd. He prepared a plan and specifications, and everything else. The specification was signed by me as the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department. I believe these to be the original plans prepared by Mr. Boyd. I believe them to be, because I often discussed points with Mr. Boyd relative to the plans to make watertight work.

Q. You have seen these plans?—A. Yes. No. 1 was a plan that was prepared to close the entrance either of the caisson or gates. This shows what would have to be done if we put in a caisson; but it was never acted upon.

Q. It was one of the original plans prepared, but not acted upon?—A. But not acted upon.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. It does not form part of the enquiry at all?—A. No. No. 2 was the general plan showing the general mode of construction—how the work was to be constructed and how built.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. This is one of the original plans?—A. Yes; it is one of the original plans. No. 3 is also a plan of details and one of the originals. No. 4 the other alternative plan for the gates.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. And this is one upon which the work was acted upon?—A. Yes; this is one upon which the work was acted upon.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. This original No. 4 is one upon which tenders were asked?—A. Yes; that would be a wooden platform with wooden sill, which was afterwards turned into stone.

Q. The sill was afterwards turned into stone?—A. Yes; but otherwise the plan was acted upon. No. 5 is a plan showing the sluices. The contractors did not have to build the sluices, and this merely shows what we purposed as regards their work.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. It did not form part of the contract?—A. No; except in so far as the stone had to be made of the dimensions stated, to allow us to put the sluices in.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Not the sluices; only the stone work?—A. Only the stone surroundings. The sluices did not form part of the contract. No. 6 is the plan of the gates.

Q. Was that the original plan?—A. I don't think it is. I would not like to say that. I don't think we prepared any plan of the gates, although it may have been copied afterwards.

Q. It may have been one of the working plans?—A. Yes.

Q. The gates—were these built separately?—A. Yes; separately.

Q. No. 6 was not in the contract?—A. No. The one marked No. 8 is a subsequent plan, showing the wooden mitre sill. That was abandoned whereby a stone sill was put instead.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. These look like a series of plans?—A. I see Mr. Boswell here; his evidence might be taken with regard to those plans.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. We are asking what you know about them?—A. They are the only plans I know of.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Did you sign any of the plans, Mr. Perley?—A. No.

Q. You do not identify any of the plans?—A. No.

Q. And they are Mr. Boyd's work?—A. Yes.

Q. Wherein did they differ from the Kinipple & Morris plans?—A. I don't know anything about the Kinipple & Morris plans.

Q. You never saw them?—A. Well, I saw them, but never had occasion to study them.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Well, was the work substantially carried out in accordance with these plans that you saw?—A. So far as I am aware, the work was carried out in accordance with these plans.

Q. Except in the item you mentioned?—A. Except in the substitution of the stone mitre sill for the wooden mitre sill.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. What was done to your knowledge, apart from that which would be within Mr. Boyd's knowledge, as to estimating the quantities which these plans and specifications would take, having regard to your letter to Ennis of the 23rd of May, 1882, in which you say: "I have to report that I have examined the three tenders for Harbour Works at Quebec, forwarded to the Department by the Secretary of the Harbour Commissioners in his letter of the 2nd of May, and hereinwith enclose schedule showing the estimated amounts of the different kinds of work executed, to which have been applied the prices named in these tenders, for the purpose of determining the relative value of the said tenders, which are as follows." Now, can you tell me who prepared the estimated amounts of the different kinds of work to be executed?—A. Mr. Boyd.

Q. Was that prepared under your supervision? Did you have a personal knowledge?—A. I took no personal knowledge of the plan; everything was left in his hands.

Q. And you could not say whether those quantities were correct or not from anything that you did?—A. I could not say.

Q. You were writing here as Chief Engineer? You know the letter, of course?—A. I know the letter.

Q. And what you say is that the schedule which you then had in your office as Chief Engineer, was entirely prepared by Mr. Boyd?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is probably, I suppose, the schedule you have now before us—a schedule moneying out the tenders.

Mr. EDGAR—I was told that was Mr. Boyd's handwriting?—A. Yes, the whole schedule is in Mr. Boyd's handwriting.

Q. Quantities and all?—A. Yes, all that is not printed, and all except a few red figures. Those are mine.

Q. Those were the changes by Beaucage?—A. Yes, by Beaucage. There are other figures of mine; the additions are my figures.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. The addition of the columns?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You made the additions and checked them?—A. I made the additions and checked them; I did it in pencil.

Q. How did you arrive at the quantities in the first column?—A. The quantities of work to be done? I did not arrive at them at all; they were done by Mr. Boyd.

Q. You took them individually from Mr. Boyd?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you cause no measurements to be made or estimates?—A. None.

Q. Did he submit to you any detailed statement of the estimate of quantities?—A. None; I never saw them.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Do you know how the quantities of earth-filling would be so largely increased—the difference between the amount that we find in the schedule working out the tenders, I think some 80,000 yards, and the amount we find under the final estimate, which is 191,000 yards? Did it come to your knowledge at all, or how can you give the Committee any idea how that large increase came about?—A. I cannot; I might state to the Committee that I never had anything to do with the Cross-wall at all in any way than as the Chief Engineer of the works. I was merely, perhaps a few times during the year in Quebec, perhaps once a month, taking a general look at it and knowing the work that was going on. As to the amount of work that was being done I knew nothing, and I never asked.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. I think you signed the estimates?—A. The estimates came to me; I don't know whether I signed them during Mr. Boyd's lifetime or not.

Q. The final estimates?—A. The final estimate is signed by myself; the progress estimates were prepared by the Resident Engineer in charge, and I was simply handed the certificate sheet on which my name appeared; but how the details of that certificate were made up, were not sent up to me at the time.

Q. You assumed the measurements to be correct?—A. I assumed the measurements were correct.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. It is no part of a Chief Engineer's business to keep measurements unless he has reason to suspect there is something wrong?—A. No, sir, it was not my business to have done it.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You did not notice the discrepancy between the amount and the final estimate?—A. I would never notice, and never saw the final estimate or the total quantities, to my knowledge. I would have had to carry in my memory all the quantities used in moneying out the schedule. That I don't know we ever had.

Q. You noticed the total, which was all you had to certify to. How is it you do not recollect the original amount? Did you not recollect what the original amounts were—did you not notice it was nearly $200,000 higher at the end?—A. No; for I had no knowledge of what it would money out to.

Q. You told us just now, I think, that you added up those figures?—A. That I did in 1883, and I had forgotten that in 1889, when the final estimate was given.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. And you could not suggest at all how we come to have more than double the amount on concrete—the difference between the schedule tender and the final estimate?—A. I never knew that that existed until I read the papers. That is the first intimation I had of it.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Do you mean the newspapers?—A. Yes; the newspapers. I might state that the plan shows the concrete resting exactly on the bottom; but if I mistake not a very large amount of concrete had to be placed under the cribs, owing to the currents created, and the sand being washed out. I know that we put a great deal of concrete under the cribs, a great deal of which had to be bagged.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. From the nature of the soil, and the currents discovered during the progress of the work?—A. Yes; during the progress of the work.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Are you speaking from actual knowledge of your own?—A. I know these bags were put down, and they were put down by a diver. I speak of the bags being put down, from seeing them put down and knowing that a diver was at work.

Q. You speak from what you were told by whom?—A. By Mr. Boyd and Mr. Boswell.

Q. Have you any personal knowledge yourself?—A. No man, unless he was a diver, and had a personal inspection or overseeing, could speak as to the nature of the quantities that were put down. It may have been that when the bags were being put down there was a gap beneath, and a solid wall had to be made, so that when the concrete was down we would not lose it.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Do you know of any circumstances which would materially alter the quantity of crib work?—A. I don't know of any.

Q. Do you think there were any?—A. I don't know of any.

MR. ST. GEORGE BOSWELL SWORN.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. What was your position with regard to these Quebec Harbor Works?—A. I was assistant engineer for a great part of the time.

Q. Commencing when?—A. In 1877, until Mr. Boyd's death.

Q. Commencing in 1877 and continuing as assistant engineer until Mr. Boyd's death?—A. Yes.

Q. When?—A. I was appointed Resident Engineer.

Q. When you succeeded Mr. Boyd?—A. Yes.

Q. So that you have been in a professional capacity connected with these works from the beginning?—A. Yes.

Q. When did Mr. Boyd die?—A. In 1886 I think.

Q. Did he continue in charge of the work until he died, or was there an interval of sickness?—A. No, he continued until two or three days before his death.

Q. He died suddenly?—A. Yes, he died suddenly.

Q. Speaking of the Cross-wall, we want to get at the contract plans which were exhibited to the tenderers, and on which the contract was made?—A. I knew nothing at all about the contract until it was signed and everything settled and Mr. Boyd came to the office with the plans. These are the only plans I ever saw until we prepared others in the office—working plans.

Q. Of course there would be detail plans from time to time?—A. Yes, certainly.

Q. Were the plans marked No. 1 to 6, the plans on which the work was executed?—A. Yes, that was the general design.

Q. These (indicating them) were the foundation plans?—A. Yes.

Q. Then from time to time you would work out the details, perhaps with some little alterations. Where would those plans be?—A. They would be here somewhere: I sent them up.

Q. All the plans shewing the details and alterations were sent up by you?—A. They were, sir. There were a few little details about the iron work about the gates, which I did not send.

Q. You were the officer sending the plans to the Committee?—A. I was, sir.

Q. Then we have here, in the possession of the Committee, these six sheets, and any variations that had been made?—A. You have all the plans that were used in the execution of the work.

Q. Do you know of the preparation of a schedule of quantities prior to the tenders being called for?—A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you know of Mr. Boyd's making out schedules of quantities and working out and comparing the tenders?—A. No.

Q. You did not aid him in that work?—A. It was all done when he was up here.

Q. He came up here and that was done here?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you know of the existence of any estimated quantities prior to Mr. Boyd's coming up to Ottawa to work out the tenders?—A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of their being in existence?—A. Never.

Q. Then did you afterwards know that Mr. Boyd had made a schedule of quantities, in comparing the tenders?—A. No, I did not. I knew somebody had.

Q. Did you see the document?—A. No, I never did.

Q. Then you do not know what quantities there were?—A. No.

Q. Was there any document in the Engineer's office at Quebec, showing the quantities, or the supposed quantities?—A. Yes. There have been estimates made from time to time, by showing what the probable cost of the work would be.

Q. Where are those estimates?—A. They are in Mr. Boyd's letter book.

Q. Where is that?—A. I could not tell you, sir.

Q. Did he take his letter book away?—A. No; I sent it up here.

Q. Those estimates are in Mr. Boyd's letter book, which was amongst the other papers sent up here, and those letters of his would contain the estimates of the quantities. Are they the only documents?—A. They would be his views of the quantities at particular times.

Q. Did you help prepare them at all?—A. No, sir.

Q. Were there any sketch plans before the contracts were made, on which these quantities got up by Mr. Boyd would be based?—A. I saw a rough book of calculations amongst his papers, but whether they were the ones used in making up the schedule I cannot say.

Q. Can you point out that book here?—A. It is in Quebec. I telegraphed for it but I cannot say what is in it. I have not looked into it; but there are calculations made by him.

Q. That will be here, perhaps, to-morrow.—A. It ought to be here to-morrow.

Q. What changes were made in the carrying on of the work, by which the work executed differed from the work appearing in the plan?—A. Well, the only essential change was in the entrances to the work. They were increased in depth from I think, 15 to 18 feet below low water, and stone mitre sills were put in instead of timber ones, and the bottom was paved with masonry.

Q. What change would there be, if any, that doubled the amount of concrete to be found in a final estimate as compared with the schedule on which the tenders were worked out?—A. I don't think there would be any change that would have doubled the quantity.

Q. Well, was there any change which would increase the quantity?—A. Yes; as I say, there was a change from 15 to 18 feet which would most decidedly increase the quantity.

Q. To what extent would that increase it?—A. Well, that I never calculated.

Q. Was there any other change? Is it suggested by Mr. Perley there had to be an excavation below the line originally intended—that is at the bottom of the line of the contract there had to be an excavation and a greater depth of concrete placed?—A. No; as a matter of fact there was a little more concrete because the dredging could not be done so correctly as to fit the bottom of the crib, but that was only a matter of a couple of feet or so which was filled up, as Mr. Perley said, by bags of concrete.

Q. That would be simply irregularities in the excavation?—A. That was all it was not a contemplated change.

Q. Did the irregularities in the excavation occasion the use of more concrete than the straight line of the plan would show?—A. Certainly.

Q. That is all you think?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Materially large?—A. Well, as I say I have never calculated. Nothing that would double the quantities.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Give us some approximation?—A. I could not tell without calculation.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Is there anything else? You have suggested two methods by which the concrete would be increased, and as to which you cannot give me any estimate of the extent of the increase at present?—A. No; I cannot.

Q. Was there anything else that would increase the volume of concrete?—A. No; I don't know of anything else.

Q. What other changes were made? The mitre sill of the entrance as suggested additional concrete?—A. That is what I say.

Q. Now, give me any other changes that were made?—A. There were no other material changes made that I can think of.

Q. No changes in cribbing?—A. I cannot say there were no changes because there were no plans of the work. You see when there is no plan amongst these of the stone wall, and I don't know what the stone wall figured in the original schedule.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. That is masonry?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. There is no section plan shewing the thickness of the wall?—A. No.

Q. But the specifications will shew that?—A. They may.

Q. Are there any working plans that would shew it?—A. Yes, but they were made after this schedule was got up.

Q. So far as a section of the wall was concerned we will have to depend upon the description in the specification and if not there it was supplied by working drawings afterwards?—A. Yes.

Q. Well what material would there be, from which Mr. Boyd could figure the quantities?—A. Well I did not notice in the book I sent for. He has some outline sketches, or something. I don't know what he based his calculations upon.

Q. Were you the engineer to measure the quantities?—A. Yes, as the work was done.

Q. And were the progress estimates founded on your measurements?—A. To a certain extent, Mr. Boyd made calculations of his own, and I handed him what I considered to be the correct quantities which he used.

Q. He used your estimates?—A. He used his own estimates, or mine, whatever he seemed to think correct.

Q. You were then in charge?—A. Yes.

Q. And the final estimate was from your own estimates?—A. Yes, except as far as it was a repetition of what Mr. Boyd already allowed. I did not alter anything he had allowed; I just carried on from where he left, that is all. I did not re-traverse any work he had done.

Q. Yes, but ordinarily speaking—perhaps not in this work—we find the final estimate is not at all based or may not be based upon the progress estimates that have gone before but is on a review of the whole work?—A. Certainly.

Q. Was there a review and measurement of the whole work?—A. No. I was satisfied that the measurements were correct enough, but where there were any little discrepancies, or where he had made certain allowances I left it alone.

Q. Have you details of the way in which you got at the final estimate?—A. Yes.

Q. Where are they?—A. They are here.

Q. What shape are they in, have you got them in a book or are they papers?—
A. They are in a book.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Was there anything you know that would materially increase the crib work—the quantities of the crib work—from what is shewn in these plans?—A. No, they increased the depth to a slight extent, but only very slight.

Q. It was a partial increase of crib work?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you know anything that would materially increase the earth filling from what is shown there?—A. It is not shown here at all. I could not calculate from that.

Q. The crib work could be calculated from it?—A. Approximately.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Can you explain how we find in Mr. Boyd's schedule 80,000 yards, and in your estimate of final quantities 191,000 yards of earth filling?—A. No; I cannot explain it.

Q. Have you got anything else in that book of Mr. Boyd's which shows how he got at that 80,000 yards?—A. No; because he had allowed, I think, 90,000 when the work was half done, in his estimate.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. As still to be done?—A. No; he allowed 90,000 when the work was not more than half done.

By the Chairman :

Q. It was not more than half done, you say?—A. It was not much more than half done, when he allowed, I think, 90,000 yards.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Was that when you took it up?—A. Yes; when I took it up.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Have you any suggestion as to how that could have occurred?—A. None whatever.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. When Mr. Osler put a question to you a moment ago, you said that in making up your final estimate, you did not re-traverse any of the work of Mr. Boyd's. How in the world did you make up your final estimate if you did not do that?—A. I accepted what he had done and went on; I had no right to alter anything. I am merely stating what I did as a matter of fact.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. When re-measuring the whole of the yardage, or units, he had already certified to other progress estimates. He took these progress estimates as final in the amounts, and added to that what had been performed from the last progress estimate?—A. As to the filling, I did go over it from the very beginning. I re-traversed the filling and went over the whole thing myself.

Q. And you knew what?—A. I know the exact quantity that actually went in is what I allowed there.

By the Chairman :

Q. Did you find your figures did not agree with the last estimate of Mr. Boyd?—A. I cannot tell you exactly.

Q. Did you not find any difference between your findings and his findings?—A. I could not tell that. I could not tell at what condition the filling was when he allowed these 90,000 yards, but I started from the beginning and went right on to the end.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. This is an exception to the general statement?—A. It is an exception to the general statement, because I could not arrive at it in any other way.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You were his assistant all this time?—A. I was one of his assistants.

Q. Have you any reason to suppose that during the time he was alive and acted as Resident Engineer fresh bills of quantities were put in these?—A. No; I am certain there were not.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Who were the other assistants to Mr. Boswell?—A. There were Mr. McGreevy and Mr. Langevin.

Q. Were their figures taken at all?—A. I don't think so.

Q. Are you above them?—A. I was, yes.

Q. You were over them?—A. Yes.

Q. What details did they work at?—A. Mr. McGreevy used to take the returns of dredging, and then I took them and checked them.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. And Mr. Langevin, what is his duty?—A. He was employed on the South-wall.

Q. Not on this?—A. No.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. And had you inspectors on this Cross-wall?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how far did you rely upon their reports to you of work, or were they merely inspecting, and seeing the details of your instructions were carried out?—A. They made returns as to the number of barrels of cement used, of the number of boxes of concrete put down, and the estimates were based largely on these returns, which were checked, for the actual quantity in the crib.

Q. Then you had to depend upon the inspectors to a great extent for the concrete?—A. On the inspectors' return, yes.

Q. Did you yourself check the quantities in the crib?—A. Mr. Boyd allowed the accounts; it was done in this time.

Q. How far would the engineer depend upon the inspector's return as to the quantities of concrete?—A. I think as long as there was no discrepancy between the calculated quantity and the returned quantity, he took what was returned.

Q. Then there would be a calculation of quantity before the engineer?—A. Certainly. He knew what he had to go on.

Q. Well, where would we get the details of that?—A. You will have them in Mr. Boyd's book of calculations. I think there are some in this book here, and I calculated myself.

Q. That is what you took, the new area of the space to be filled and the inspector's return, and having those, you took the inspector's return. If there was a discrepancy what did you do?—A. They went for the inspector.

Q. Did you pay the contractor?—A. As a matter of fact the concrete was paid for by Mr. Boyd, who made an average of what he thought a barrel of cement should make, the number of yards it ought to make—814, I think, to a yard of concrete—and these barrels were all counted and the returns made, and then he simply multiplied the number of barrels by the constant, and so obtained the number of cubic yards of concrete.

Q. You measured the concrete by counting the number of empty barrels?—A. By counting the full ones. We would count the full ones in the morning and the full ones at night, and the difference between them was amount used.

Q. Then your yardage of concrete was really a matter of calculation based upon the cement used? That was then for your progress purposes?—A. That was used throughout.

Q. And it was on that your final estimate was based?—A. Yes.

Q. Your final estimate is not then based on the measurement of concrete, but the barrels of cement used?—A. Yes.

Q. Who counted the barrels?—A. The inspectors.

Q. What were their names?—A. One was named Mr. John Dick, one E. J. Milne, I think, another Joseph Lachance, and Richard.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Here is a copy of the contract for this work, and the printed specifications annexed to it?—A. I think that comes from our office.

Q. From these specifications, together with these plans, could you not form a pretty good estimate of most of the quantities?—A. Yes, a good many of them.

Q. Tell us what ones you know?—A. It is so long since I inspected it, that I don't know really what is in it.

Q. Does this show the filling in?—A. No, sir; you have not the original surface of the ground. The cribs were 150 feet below, with long spaces between. One crib stood here, another there; the spaces between them was not filled.

Q. Would not the distance between the cribs be there exactly?—A. Yes, but we don't know the surface of the ground.

Q. That is, assuming the bottom was varied there might be a difficulty, but assuming there was no difficulty at the bottom, that it was an ordinary even bottom, there would be no difficulty?—A. If it was.

Q. Well, on the assumption that the bottom was even, the quantity of filling could be approximately calculated?—A. The masonry would be the most difficult.

Q. I want you to tell me the larger quantities?—A. Masonry is one of them. I do not see any dimensions here for the wall, and without them it would be impossible to calculate the quantities.

Q. Is the masonry there referred to not sufficient data?—A. It does not give, as far as I can see, the size of the wall at all.

Q. Then as to concrete, looking at the plans and specifications?—A. I could calculate the quantities, unless there were changes. That is approximately.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. The only thing you cannot calculate would be the filling in?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Henry :

Q. Do you remember how far apart the inner sides of the cribs were? What was the breadth of earth-filling to be performed?—A. I can tell you that exactly, I think. Ninety-five feet—that is between the backs of the cribs.

Q. Would that be ninety-five feet of earth-filling?—A. It would be more than that.

Q. I am asking you from the inner sides?—A. There is ninety-five feet from the back of the cribs of the wet dock and the back of the cribs in the Tidal harbour. The cribs themselves would have to be filled as well.

Q. There were trenches dredged for the cribs to rest in?—A. Yes.

Q. Was it not assumed that there would be a hill or ridge above the level of the bottom of the cribs of the original earth remaining?—A. Between the two trenches? There might be.

Q. Would it not be natural to assume it?—A. You might assume it. Theoretically, it would remain there. As a matter of fact, in practice it did not.

Q. As a matter of fact, it did not remain there at all?—A. No.

Q. So the earth filling was extended right down to the bottom of the cribs. Can you tell us whether, in making an estimate of the amount of earth filling, it would not be assumed that what you have just stated would be the case?—A. That would depend upon the man who made the estimate.

Q. If the material were clay, for instance, probably there would be less filling to be accomplished than if it were sand?—A. I do not know.

Q. It would not be so easily affected by the currents?—A. Some clay would be worse than sand.

Q. It would depend on the nature of the material?—A. Altogether on the nature of the material.

Q. Good solid material would dispense with a large amount of earth filling?—A. Certainly.

Q. As to the quality of the material and its liability of washing away or remaining, there would be room for a great deal of speculation on the part of the engineer making the estimate, as to the amount of earth filling to be performed?—A. Yes; if he was unfamiliar with the character of the material.

Q. As a matter of fact the earth filling had to be carried down to the bottom of the cribs?—A. As a matter of fact it was.

Q. You do not know whether it was estimated to that point?—A. Judging from the quantity I should certainly say it was not.

Q. It was not anticipated that the filling would extend to that depth?—A. No.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. You have the measurement of the sections there?—A. I have, showing the exact quantities of the whole thing.

Q. Take the excavating for the cribs in the material you had there, would that excavation in the ground occupied by the cribs structure require more filling than the cribs structure and its contents would show? Have you, in other words, to allow for the slope of the bank externally?—A. That is, for the dredging? Certainly.

Q. Has that to be filled?—A. It has to be refilled.

Q. So if you take the area of the crib as the area to be filled that would be erroneous?—A. Certainly.

Q. You have to provide for the slope which might be in that water as two is to one?—A. Two to one would be a fair allowance.

Q. You have the whole area, which would be shown by a slope of two to one externally, to be refilled?—A. Yes, certainly, under the best possible circumstances. But as a matter of fact that ridge you are making there was taken away and refilled—taken away during the dredging and had to be refilled.

Q. That would not only refer to the area between the cribs but to the whole surrounding?—A. Yes.

Q. You excavate your hole for the use of the crib and in excavating you have a slope of two to one all around?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. From the way you speak it is evident these facts were common knowledge to all engineers before the crib excavations were made and the cribs put down. You knew the crib had to be put down in that way?—A. Certainly.

Q. And any man would make allowance in making an estimate?—A. That would depend on the man.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Taking these figures as they are here in the specification, in making a calculation of the earth filling, would you yourself make allowance for these slopes that you talk of outside of the mere filling?—A. Certainly.

Q. Mr. Boyd had experience enough to know that?—A. He was an intelligent man and I have no doubt he based his estimate on what he thought was necessary.

Q. But you would make that allowance?—A. Certainly.

Q. From these figures you could arrive at a fair approximate estimate?—A. I see these figures were not as the actual work was done.

Q. I do not refer to the work as it was done. If you were estimating for this earth-filling to be done, could you, by making an allowance, such as you have spoken of—could you, with these facts given you, make an approximate estimate of the quantity of earth?—A. Not without knowing to a certain extent the original surface of the ground.

Q. With a knowledge of the surface of the ground you could make a fair approximation?—A. A very fair approximate.

Q. It was not a serious matter to take levels there?—A. No. Mr. Boyd might have known the surface or he might not.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Were there special inequalities in the soil?—A. I merely say I do not know whether Mr. Boyd really knew the surface or not. If he did not, he could not have fairly arrived at the quantities.

By Mr. Henry :

Q. You remember how the dredging was provided for in making room for these cribs in this contract?—A. That was another contract—a separate contract.

Q. Not in the same?—A. No; separate altogether.

Q. Which contract was it done under?—A. The dredging contract. You must have a copy of it here.

Mr. MICHAEL CONNOLLY, re-called.

By Mr. Oster :

Q. On the 10th of July it was ordered that you forthwith produce and lay before the sub-Committee your personal books of account, distinguished from that of the firm—bank books, cheques, stubs, notes, drafts and all other documents and papers bearing on the question under inquiry. What have you got to produce?—A. I never had any personal books; never kept any.

Q. Did you keep a separate bank account?—A. I had a bank account in Quebec for a time, but I had no bank book.

Q. What bank was it?—A. The Bank of British North America.

Q. You had a deposit account?—A. Just a deposit account. I never had any cheque-book or bank-book.

Q. You got your cheques back?—A. I think I did

Q. What year was that in?—A. I think that was in 1887 or 1888—a portion of 1888.

Q. Do you produce those cheques?—A. I did not know that I was asked to produce them until to-day, and when Martin Connolly was leaving for Quebec I asked him to go to the bank and get a copy of the account.

Q. You instructed Martin Connolly to bring that account with him. Have you any other papers—any papers or diaries or memorandum books?—A. There must have been some office diaries. I do not know whether they came up from Quebec or not.

Q. I am speaking of your personal matters?—A. I have none.

Q. What about drafts or notes?—A. I have drafts and notes, but none pertaining to this enquiry.

Q. Any drafts or notes between the parties named or who have been named in evidence?—A. Not that I remember of.

Q. Any pocket diaries showing transactions?—A. No.

Q. Have you none of those?—A. There may be some pocket diaries, but there are no entries in them relating to this matter.

Q. Where are they?—A. I do not know. When I was in British Columbia I think I kept a little memorandum book; that is all.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You say you have memorandum books but the entries do not relate to this investigation?—A. I say I had office diaries when I was in British Columbia, and when we were in Quebec I kept an office diary.

Q. Are they still in existence?—A. I do not know. I did not destroy them.

Q. You do not know where they are?—A. I do not.

Q. Aside from the office diaries, have you personal diaries. Where did you leave them?—A. They must have been left in the office.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Where are they?—A. I left them there.

Q. You have none at your private house?—A. I do not think I have.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Have you in your office your private place in the vault or otherwise?—A. I think not.

Q. Even your private memorandum books would be amongst the books of the firm?—A. In fact all my accounts and whatever I wanted in money was drawn from the general fund of the firm.

Q. Your own personal account would be kept by the book-keeper of the firm?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. What did you do with the money you drew out of the firm for your partnership. Where was it deposited?—A. Some in this bank.

Q. Where was the rest?—A. In the Union Bank.

Q. You had an account there too?—A. Never any running account, just a deposit account.

Q. Did you leave it there or take it out?—A. It is all there. There was some drawn out for one little transaction in stock. I paid Murphy for 250 shares of stock I bought from him.

Q. The money that you drew from the firm for any purpose whatever, what did you do with it?—A. All the money that I drew was deposited in each of these banks.

Q. For yourself?—A. Yes, either in the Union Bank or Bank of British North America.

Q. Are you getting copies of those accounts?—A. There is nothing to be brought from the Union Bank except a certificate of deposit.

Q. You only deposited there once?—A. My brother deposited several times in my absence, and he came to the relief of the Company in my absence. He deposited it in my name when the Company paid it.

Q. All the rest of the money except what was in the Union Bank that you got from the firm, you deposited where?—A. The Bank of British North America.

Q. Where is your bank book?—A. Never had any.

Q. Have you ordered any, or shall we have to bring up the account?—A. I instructed Martin P. Connolly to call at the bank and get a copy of the bank account.

By the Chairman :

A. Did you tell him to go to the Union Bank?—A. I have certificate of deposit there with me. Whatever money my brother drew out was for the business of the firm during my absence.

Q. Give instruction to Martin P. Connolly to get a copy of the account with the Union Bank—your private account.—A. All right.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Did you have any private account here in Ottawa?—A. No.

Q. In British Columbia?—A. No private account, only the firm had an account there. I think the account in British Columbia was opened in my brother's name.

Q. Did you keep any pocket memoranda?—A. Yes, I used to keep my incidental expenses. I would not be certain, but I think it must be at Kingston. The others must be here.

Q. Will you look here?—A. Yes.

Q. I suppose you never kept copies of letters you wrote?—A. No, except official letters.

Q. Have you any letters sent to you by your partners?—A. I had letters.

Q. Have you them now?—A. No.

Q. Where are they?—A. Destroyed.

Q. When?—A. Very soon after I received them. I never kept those things. I never cared to bother myself with those things. Those letters that came from Murphy I generally burned them.

Mr. A. H. VERRET re-called.

WITNESS—I believe I made a mistake in my evidence this morning. I made a statement that I thought there had been a plan signed with that contract. I would like to see the contract now to see if there was a plan or drawing with it. There is none, it seems. Then I made a mistake. There were so many contracts.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. You were under the impression that you had signed the plans, and now you think, on seeing them, you did not sign them?—A. I believe there was no plan attached to the contract.

The Sub-Committee then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, 23rd July, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 3.30 p.m., with closed doors. Present: Messieurs Girouard (in the Chair), Davies and Edgar, also Messrs. Geoffrion, Henry, Stuart, Hyde, M. Connolly, Cross, Laing, one stenographer and two clerks.

Mr. W. H. CROSS sworn.

By the Chairman :

Q. You are one of the Accountants engaged in the work of inspecting the books of Larkin, Connolly & Co?—A. Yes.

Q. These books have been placed at your disposal?—A. Yes.

Q. Without sealing any of the pages?—A. All pages open.

Q. How much more time will you require at these books before making your report?—A. For the purpose of the books alone a very short time.

Q. What do you call a short time?—A. A few days.

Q. You will then be through them?—A. I think so.

Q. Suppose any member of the Standing Committee wished to look into these books now, could it be done without interfering with your work?—A. It would interfere with the work we are doing just now.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. But after this week it would not?—A. No.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Is there anything in these books which relates to any other business except the matters that are being enquired into by the Standing Committee?—A. I think so.

Q. Business of the firm which has to do with their works other than those being enquired into?—A. I think so. The books presented to us are an adjustment since the 1st of April, 1889. Perhaps it is the 31st of January. It is one or the other—I think, perhaps, it is the 31st of January. Then looking at the minutes received from the Harbour Commissioners, we find that further work was done during 1889, and the works for the Harbour Commission closed in 1889. These books which we have before us carry on their operations in 1890; but we have only one book which relates to these works.

Q. What works?—A. Other works.

Q. They are accounts of other works?—A. Entered in one book only—one of the four books which is called Q.H.I. It is the ledger.

By Mr. DAVIES.—We propose that since Mr. Cross cannot allow Martin P. Connolly to have access to these books, that Martin P. Connolly should go through them and select certain pages which he thinks ought to be closed, and then have these pages submitted to us.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Would it materially interfere with your work within this week if Martin Connolly looked over the books for that purpose?—A. I would rather Martin Connolly finish with us the work we are doing. We are going through the books with him for the purpose of obtaining information. He is interpreting certain marks which appear in the books and which we do not know anything about.

The Sub-committee then adjourned.

---

HOUSE OF COMMONS, FRIDAY, 24th July, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met with closed doors at 2.30 p.m. Present: Messieurs Girouard (in the Chair) Adams, Davies and Edgar also Messrs. R. McGreevy sen, McGreevy jun., and Michael Connolly.

MR. MICHAEL CONNOLLY re-called.

By the Chairman :

Q. Have you any more papers to produce before the Sub-Committee?—A. I have one. I now produce a copy of my bank account with the Bank of British North America at Quebec.

Q. Have you anything else to produce?—A. Nothing else.

Q. All your papers have been produced?—A. So far as I know, all the papers have been produced before the committee or the accountants.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Did you have any private diaries? A. If I had they were produced. My diaries were field books in British Columbia—they are all here.

---

MR. ROBERT H. MCGREEVY re-called.

By the Chairman :

Q. Have you anything to produce, Mr. McGreevy?—A. I produce the diaries referred to in my examination this morning before the General Committee. They are five in number—1883-84-85-86-87.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. I am told in the litigation now pending, in one of these suits, which one I do not know, that you gave evidence that you had two diaries for each year. I do not know anything of this of my own knowledge but this statement of yours is said to be on record. I have not verified it at all. Do you remember the occasion of your being asked that question; do you remember if it is so?—A. If I said so, it must refer to those diaries as my private diaries and the blotters as the other diaries. I do not think I made any statement, to my knowledge, that I had two sets of diaries, taken in the sense of diaries.

Q. A business diary and a private diary I am told appears in your evidence. I am only drawing your attention to what I have been informed?—A. I had not two sets of diaries and do not recollect replying in that sense which you might perhaps take it or the others. I have this set of diaries which I call private diaries—pocket diaries. The other—if I referred to any—must have been my blotter.

Q. You had some papers in your satchel—a variety of papers that Mr. Geoffrion did not call for? What are those papers?—A. They are all private memoranda pertaining to works connected with the South-wall.

Q. And other works?—A. Yes.

Q. Memoranda made at the time, or compiled recently to refresh your memory?—A. Made at the time.

Q. Those would be important?—A. If there is anything important in them I will give them.

By the Chairman :

Q. I think you had better produce them.—A. It may help you if I state that I have here an extract from the diaries of what relates to the subject under investigation.

Q. In other words the diaries have been gone through and for these years these are the references which bear upon this inquiry?—A. Yes.

Q. Who has checked this over; is it your work, Mr. McGreevy?—A. Yes. Here are the papers just asked for by Mr. Osler. I have no objections to the committee seeing all the diaries. All that I want is to keep them from the Counsel who have anything to do in connection with the suits now pending in Quebec.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. You have gone through all these diaries and made this abstract from them?—A. Yes.

The Sub-Committee then adjourned.

---

HOUSE OF COMMONS, WEDNESDAY, July 29th, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 10 a.m., with closed doors. Present: Messieurs Girouard (in the chair), Adams and Edgar; also Messieurs Stuart, Fitzpatrick, Osler, Geoffrion and Henry, one clerk and one stenographer.

Mr. STUART, Q.C., produced the following books belonging to the Hon. Thomas McGreevy, viz.: One bill book, one cash book, three blotter cash books, four bank books and one bank statement.

Ordered,—That the books now produced be placed in the custody of the Clerk, and be at the disposal of the members of the Sub-Committee, Counsel and the Accountants, Messrs. Cross and Laing.

The Sub-Committee then adjourned.

---

HOUSE OF COMMONS, July 30th, 1891.

The Sub-Committee met at 10 a.m., with closed doors. Present: Messieurs Girouard (in the chair), Adams, Baker, Davies and Edgar; also Messrs. Stuart, Fitzpatrick and Geoffrion.

Hon. THOMAS MCGREEVY sworn.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. You have been ordered to file, besides the books, all the letters which you have received from Larkin, Connolly & Co. or any member of the firm, covered by the charges, reading as follows :

“ That the Hon. Thomas McGreevy be requested to lay before the Committee all his bank books, letters received by him from Robert H. McGreevy, Larkin, Connolly & Co., or any members of said firm, and Henry F. Perley, between 1883 and 1890 ; also the correspondence and vouchers between him and Julien Chabot, of Levis, in connection with the steamer “ Admiral ” ; in obedience to that order have you produced all the letters that you have received from your brother Robert?—A. I have no other letters, but the one I gave my Counsel, in reference to this case. I had no other. The letters have all disappeared out of my drawer ; I had lot of letters. I had a number of letters up here at Ottawa, but they have all disappeared and I have not got one of them left. I would be very glad if I had them, but they are all gone. I just discovered a letter—the only one that had any reference to this case—I gave it to Mr. Stuart.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. Did you find any letters from Michael Connolly?—A. I have no recollection of having any letters.

Q. Did you find any letters from Patrick Larkin?—A. No ; I have no recollection of having any letters.

Q. Then you have none?—A. I certainly have none in my possession, and have no recollection of having any.

Q. Have you any letters from O. E. Murphy?—A. No.

Q. About the books that you have filed, are they all the books that were in your possession?—A. No, sir ; there was some I asked for yesterday. I told Mr. Hyde to telegraph for some that were not here—two ledgers—I think all the others came, but the cheques I had are in the bank. I told Mr. Chaloner to go to the bank to send them up. Mr. Chaloner has charge of my office.

Q. Can you explain why those two most important books—the ledgers—were not sent off?—A. I understand Mr. Hyde was down and I went then over all the books. These were never brought up ; he did not think they were important I suppose.

Q. Did you instruct Mr. Hyde to bring all the books?—A. I instructed every thing to be sent up bearing on the case. Everything is brought up here but the other two were telegraphed for to be here to day and I also told them to get the cheques if the bank had them. I never took them out of the bank myself. They will be here ; Mr. Chaloner will send them up because they have been telegraphed for.

MR. FITZPATRICK.—Mr. Hyde went down with Mr. McGreevy to pick out the books. They were left out to be sent up, but through some misunderstanding, Mr. Chaloner did not send them up.

By Mr. Osler :

Q. Who knows the most about your books?—A. Mr. Chaloner ; I have had no business for the last ten years.

Q. There are breaks in the journal. There are periods of times for which apparently the entries are carried into some other book. Were there any entries ; who would know about them?—A. Mr. Chaloner made all these entries ; he was not in my employ some times ; he was only occasionally in my employ.

Q. How long has he been in your employ?—A. He is not in my employ ; he only comes when I want him.

Q. Where are your books kept?—A. In the office in Quebec.

Q. In Mr. Chaloner's office?—A. In my own office.

Q. And when you want the services of an accountant you send for Mr. Chaloner?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you keep any pocket diaries?—A. I never kept any.

Q. Or office diaries?—A. No.

Q. Or bill book or note book?—A. Well, the bill book you mean is here.

Q. In what banks did you keep your account?—A. I had an account in the Bank of Montreal, and I had chiefly in the Union Bank. I have not been doing much business, just winding up my old business.

Q. Have you any letter books?—A. Not since the North Shore Railway; since 1881.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Have you any letters from Sir Hector Langevin covering the period of this enquiry?—A. I destroyed letters every year. I never kept letters from any public man that I did not destroy every year; that is the fact of the case.

Q. You have none as a matter of fact?—A. I have not one at present; I have had no correspondence with him lately.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Where did the correspondence disappear; in Ottawa?—A. I had a drawer here. Sir Hector used to permit me to go to his office, that he occupied during the afternoon of the session, and I used to go in the morning and I used to write there and do my correspondence with the clerk. I had a lot of letters in this drawer and I think they disappeared out of it.

Q. That is out of the drawer in Sir Hector's room?—A. Yes.

Q. Had you a key to that drawer?—A. I had a key.

Q. Was it locked?—A. Some disappeared during the summer down at my own place.

Q. Was it locked?—A. Oh, it was locked—yes.

Q. So that the person who took the papers must have broken into the box?—A. No it was a drawer.

Q. Then they had another key?—A. They may have had it.

Q. Well, if you had locked it, and the papers disappeared, somebody must have got in by another key or some mysterious way?—A. Certain letters disappeared from there that I should have.

Q. From this room?—A. From that room, No. 19.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Can you fix the date when they disappeared?—A. I think it must be two or three years ago. I was sick for three weeks one Session.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Were there many letters?—A. There was a number of letters. I don't know particularly what they had reference to. Some of them must have been correspondence from my brother; he was corresponding with me at that time.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Had they any reference to these matters?—A. Some of them had—they were letters from my brother—but I cannot find one of them.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Any other correspondence you received you placed them in that drawer?—A. I had them nicely filed.

Q. Then, this must have been deliberate?—A. Private letters I put into my pocket, but never in the drawer.

Q. This disappearance must have been a deliberate act?—A. I only found it out some time afterwards. It is only since this case commenced I made search for those letters and never could find them.

Q. When did you make search?—A. As soon as this case commenced.

Q. You don't know when they disappeared?—A. No.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. Had you a private secretary?—A. He was only a sessional one.

Q. It was only during the Session you required him?—A. It was only during the Session.

Q. Did you leave them there during the recess?—A. I left them there during the recess; I don't think they were taken out designedly.

Q. Who was your private secretary?—A. I think the last one I had up here was a young man by the name of Bogue.

Q. Was he your private secretary?—A. He was acting I think for one Session.

Q. But during the time you lost sight of those letters?—A. He was with me during the time these letters were all filed; and the letters I got from my brother I missed most.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. That young Bogue was clerk on board the "Admiral"?—A. He is purser of the "Admiral" still.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Did you bring any paper along with you when you came up?—A. I have been looking for the letters.

Q. When you came up to Parliament, did this drawer contain other letters you brought with you?—A. Yes, written to me during the recess.

Q. So, it was not only letters you received during the Session of Parliament, but other letters you had brought with you from Quebec?—A. Some of them, but the chief letters I missed was the correspondence with my brother.

Q. But did you bring with you letters received during the recess, and letters received at home?—A. Yes, and during the session also.

Q. And filed and brought up with you?—A. Yes.

Q. So there would be quite a mass of papers?—A. I don't say the mass of papers disappeared, but these particular letters, correspondence with my brother disappeared.

Q. So that the drawer was left intact with a large number of papers in it, but certain papers you expected to find had been taken away?—A. Yes.

Q. What letters were taken away?—I don't know whether they were taken out of that drawer, but when the letters were returned to me in Quebec—a box of letters sent down after the session—I could not find these letters amongst the others.

Q. So the letters you left in the drawer were returned to you in a box to Quebec?—A. Yes.

Q. Who returned these letters?—A. I think it was either myself, at the end of the session, or Bogue. I put them into a box and sent them down.

Q. Who was it, yourself or your private secretary?—A. I think it was myself.

Q. Well, if it was yourself, you would not disturb the letters?—A. No.

Q. So that if it was Bogue he must have taken them?—A. I don't think it.

Q. Well, if you or Bogue put them in a box, and you did not extract them, the inevitable conclusion must be that it was Bogue?—A. This was two or three years ago.

Q. Might they not disappear at your house?—A. They may have. I cannot say when they disappeared from amongst those letters.

Q. Where did you place them?—A. In my house at Quebec.

Q. Were they on file?—A. In my drawer, put away and backed.

Q. So that it was in Quebec you missed them?—A. They were brought down to my home, but I never remember missing them till I hunted for them in Quebec.

Q. When were they brought down to your home?—A. Each year.

Q. And it is only lately that you missed these papers?—A. During the last year.

Q. Where would they be put away when they were so brought down to your house?—A. They were there in a box in my desk.

Q. Who has access there; has your clerk or secretary, or persons about you?—A. My brother had access to the whole thing up to the time we quarrelled. He would come there and go to my drawer and take the documents and papers away just the same as myself.

Q. Who else?—A. No body else.

Q. You have had no other person about you at all?—A. No other person went to my drawer about anything except him.

By Mr. Geoffrion:

Q. Chaloner, I believe?—A. He never looked at my papers.

By Mr. Davies:

Q. Had he access to them?—A. Only when I was there myself, because he was in other employment and it was only when I sent for him that he would come.

By Mr. Edgar:

Q. A little while ago I understood from you those papers had been in an office up here?—A. Yes; but I brought them down at the end of each session.

Q. They did not disappear from here?—A. The papers were sent down at the end of each session. All my letters and correspondence during the session, they were put into a box either by myself or whoever was acting for me, and sent down to Quebec at the end of each session.

Q. They may have disappeared from here or from your house?—A. I don't think they disappeared from here.

By Mr. Fitzpatrick:

Q. The letters you speak of consisted chiefly of letters received from your brother?—A. Yes, and the ones I alluded to had reference to this case.

Q. Had you received at any time since 1880, or since the Connollys have been contracting in Quebec, any letters either from Michael Connolly, or Larkin, or Nicholas Connolly, or O. E. Murphy?—A. I have no recollection of ever having written to Michael or any member of the firm, or receiving letters from them.

Q. Therefore the letters that you speak of as having disappeared, are letters written to you by your brother?—A. Exactly.

Q. You say about these letters they would have come during the recess, or during the session of Parliament?—A. Chiefly recess.

Q. During each session you had those papers here with you?—A. I think in the session.

Q. You put them in the drawer you have spoken of?—A. During the session.

Q. Then at the end of each session you would send the papers down to Quebec?—A. Yes.

Q. Whether those letters disappeared here or at Quebec, you cannot say?—A. No, I cannot; most likely it was in Quebec.

Q. Are you willing to say, so far as you are concerned, that you discovered that these letters had disappeared quite recently?—A. Only during the last year.

Q. That is to say when they disappeared you cannot say, but you ascertained the fact of their disappearance within the last year?—A. I ascertained it since this case came up. I began to look for my letters, and I hunted high and low for the correspondence I had.

Q. Since those letters appeared in Le Canadien you have undertaken to search for your letters believing they would be required, and you could not find them?—
A. Exactly.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Did you keep any memorandum or book to show what letters you had?—
A. No.

Q. You have nothing to show what you had or had not?—A. No.

Q. As a matter of fact you do not appear to have destroyed all the letters you had?—A. Do you mean private letters?

Q. The subject on which your brother and you were writing about were essentially private letters?—A. I may have destroyed some of them; I would not say I did not.

Q. So that you do not, as a matter of fact, know whether you lost or destroyed them?—A. I am sure some of them were not destroyed. They have disappeared.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You think you destroyed all Sir Hector Langevin's letters and not your brother's?—A. Every year. I have kept no letters from any public man.

Q. Beyond a doubt you destroyed Sir Hector's?—A. Beyond a doubt, every year.

Q. You would not file those away at all?—A. I always put my private letters I received into my pocket.

Q. Did you ever make any files of Sir Hector's letters?—A. Never.

Q. You always destroyed them immediately on receipt or—A. When the business referred to in them was done.

Q. Meantime you kept them in your pocket?—A. Yes; I never left them exposed to anyone. Anything if it is of a private nature I always attended to.

Q. All this correspondence, of course, would be of a private character?—A. Not always.

Q. The correspondence that was not private with Sir Hector—where is that?—
A. I destroyed them all the same.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. I understand you to say you had very little private correspondence?—
A. Very little.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You saw him very often?—A. Oh, yes; very often.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. I want to ask you further about the letters received from Sir Hector Langevin, which were not private. You did not destroy his official letters? Where are they?—A. I did destroy them every year.

Q. Everything that came from Sir Hector?—Everything every year that was on business which was concluded I destroyed them.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. Not only from Sir Hector Langevin, but anyone else, particularly private letters?—A. Yes; particularly private letters.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. So that you have not a scrap of a line from Sir Hector now?—A. Not at all.

By Mr. Adams :

Q. There was no distinction made in the correspondence which you destroyed?—
A. Not at all.

By Mr. Geoffrion :

Q. I see that Michael Connolly on the 28th May, 1885 (Page 209 of the Evidence) writes a letter to Murphy in which he says, "I wrote a letter to Mr. McGreevy a few days ago telling him about Trutch." If you received such a letter would you have destroyed it?—A. I have no recollection of it at all—no recollection whatever.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. Did you keep any press letter copy book?—A. I have had none since I left the North Shore Railway; I have had no business since that time, speaking in that sense.

Q. And you kept no press copies of your letters?—A. I kept no press copies of any letters.

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. You said the files of the letters were kept in boxes in your house?—A. Yes.

Q. And do you mean to say those files have all gone?—A. There is only one here and there. I could not find any of those written by my brother. There would be a pile of letters that high (indicating with his hands).

Q. Have you gone through all those?—A. I have gone through every letter. I have tried to discover where the letters were. I have discovered letters of 30 years ago.

Q. Have you found no letter when you looked among all your correspondence from any member of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co.?—A. I never found one letter from them.

Q. From nobody at all?—A. Not one. I have no recollection of having written to one of them.

Q. The question is not whether you wrote but whether you received?—A. No, I have not received one of them. I did not discover one of them or have no recollection of any.

By Mr. Adams :

You have no recollection of getting any from Murphy, or Larkin & Connolly, or the Connolly's?—A. No.

By Mr. Davies :

Q. You have got files as far back as 30 years ago?—A. Not files, but stray letters.

Q. I want to know about what quantity of files you would have to go through to make the examination?—A. A lot have been torn.

Q. Would you have a dozen boxes?—A. Oh, no. There are not a dozen boxes in the house, but in connection with the North Shore, there are two dozen boxes; outside the North Shore there is not a box.

Q. Are they large boxes?—A. No; small boxes.

Q. How long did it take you to go through them?—A. I have been at them all last year, day after day, and I have gone through them all.

Q. Will you swear you did not discover any from Sir Hector Langevin during all that time?—A. Oh, that may be. There may have been some letters.

Q. Will you swear that during this investigation lasting over a year you did not discover a letter from Sir Hector Langevin?—A. I would not like to swear if I did or did not. For the moment, I have no recollection of having discovered any.

Q. How are we to know whether we can get at them?—A. I have not destroyed any letters of Sir Hector within the last year.

By the Chairman :

Q. Did you get any letters within the last 10 years from Sir Hector Langevin?—A. Oh, yes; lots of them.

Q. Did you keep any?—A. Oh, no; I destroyed them all every year. I cannot now recollect whether I discovered any. If I did they had no reference to this case.

---

By Mr. Edgar :

Q. What did you do with them?—A. I do not remember having discovered any at all. I do not think I have, because I had destroyed them regularly every year.

By Mr. Fitzpatrick :

Q. You have not done any business since the North Shore contract?—A. Not since I finished the North Shore in 1881.

Q. And you have kept no books personally?—A. No.

Q. And if there are any books for the last ten years they have been kept by Mr. Chaloner?—A. Yes.

Q. So that if any person knows anything of the books he is the man?—A. Yes.

Q. That is Henry John Chaloner, who is subpoenaed here as a witness?—A. I was not aware of it.

Q. However, he is the only Chaloner in Quebec?—A. He was in the Crown Timber Office, and he used to come in the evenings after hours and do any business I had.

The Sub-Committee then adjourned.

| “ K ”— | do | do | do | Working Accounts at Esquimalt, and notes thereon. |
- “L”—Note as to expenditure of $25,000 in 1883 and $22,000 in 1884.
- “M”—Note as to expenditure of $27,000 in March, 1887.
- “N”—Notes as to expenditures charged in bulk on firm's books with details shown in diaries of O. E. Murphy.

The first payment made by the Quebec Harbour Board to the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., was on the 31st October, 1878, the last was on the 5th February, 1891. The firm consisted of five partners, so far as the heaviest and most lucrative operations were concerned. One member only, Mr. N. K. Connolly, was interested throughout in every contract. That for the South Wall was let to Gallagher & Murphy. The work thereon during 1887–88 was separately carried on and the sum of $115,898.67 was received therefor. A profit of exactly $10,000 was equally divided among four persons, viz., O. E. Murphy, Michael Connolly, Nicholas K. Connolly and Robert H. McGreevy. The two first named also received $2,000 each as salary. This South Wall contract was completed by the Quebec firm, and the result was merged in the working accounts at that point. A like sum ($10,000) was divided as profit equally among the said four partners in the “Entrance Gates” contract.

The books of the firm seem to have been carefully adjusted as on the 31st January, 1889, and the profits struck as between the above-named four partners, the senior member, P. Larkin, having retired as on the 31st March, 1888. Two partners, O. E. Murphy and R. H. McGreevy, sell out their interest to the brothers, N. K. and M. Connolly, as on the 31st January, 1889, receiving for their two shares notes amounting to $70,000. No part of this sale appears to have represented Capital, and it has therefore been, in Schedule “C,” treated as profits.

No valuation of plant or other assets at any period has been submitted, nor has there been produced any balance sheet since 31st March, 1888. Moreover, two principal books of account are missing. We are, therefore, unable to supply any information as to the result of operations later than 31st January, 1889.

The books have not been uniformly kept, and at several points during the thirteen years under review, the record has been broken in various ways. Then the persons who have kept the books, from time to time, have insufficiently understood the transactions they have recorded. Many transfer entries have been made and it is not always that amounts transferred from one set of books can be certainly recognized in the other set. We have endeavoured to avoid duplication of items and to avoid the treatment of legitimate outlays as Trading Profits. Fuller light may show that our work needs amendment in many particulars. The various schedules now presented, though to be regarded as only provisionally correct, may be found useful at this stage of the proceedings.

ESQUIMALT BOOKS.

EXPENSE ACCOUNT.

This account amounts to $89,946.29 divisible into three parts, viz. :—

Business expenses.....	$6,665 48
Payment to R. H. McGreevy of a one-fifth interest in the profits, treated in the balance sheet as.....	48,195 81
Donations and extraordinary payments.....	35,085 00

The name of R. H. McGreevy, the partner, does not appear in these books, but to certain payments in Expense account the letters E. W. are appended, understood to apply to him. By a comparison of the entries in these books with the record at Quebec, where almost all the payments of the two last-named portions were actually made, we find as follows:

PAYMENTS TO R. H. MCGREEVY.

1887.		Amount.
Jan. 22	Cheque on U. B. No. 150 in favor of O. E. Murphy.	$ 3,000 00

Jan. 31	Plant and stone at B.C. sold E. W. as per entry folio 70, exhibit T3.	2,000 00
		53,195 81

The total makes $5,000 more than a fifth share of profits divided. To enable the Committee to follow this it seems necessary to add the account of R. H. McGreevy in the Quebec Books.

The books produced by R. H. McGreevy show none of these moneys received from this firm save the payment for the pine sold early in 1883. Neither does the bank account produced show the receipts from the firm as deposited.

The donations and other extraordinary payments appearing in the Esquimalt Expense Account are as follows :

		27,085 00

Construction Account in Esquimalt in April, 1886, at folio 27 of Exhibit "R3," is charged with amount disbursed, $1,000.

This comes from Quebec and under date of 23th April, 1885, at folio 157, Exhibit "K3," the entry there runs:

"B. C. Graving Dock, used for use of construction Dock," $1,000.

An entry in the Diary of O. E. Murphy for 1885 (Exhibit "Q9") under date of June 3 appears:

1,000	2 mos.	N. K. C.
1,000	3 mos.	"
2,000	4 mos.	"

Evidently referring to the item of $4,000 of August 1885.

L.

NOTE.

$25,000.—Transaction of 1st May, 1883, re Quebec Harbour.

The book record of the payment and subsequent treatment of the notes alleged to have been given for these transactions is as follows:

M. Connolly, Cheque 14th May, 1883, for Note No. 1 (fo. 33, Exhibit E3)...	$5,000
N. K. Connolly, C'k 1st June, for Note No. 2 (fo. 34 of E3).....	5,000
P. Larkin, C'k 6th Nov. '83, Note No. 3 (fo. 147 of E3).....	5,000
O. E. Murphy, C'k 4th Dec., '83, Note No. 4 (fo. 164 of E3).....	5,000
N. K. Connolly, C'k 4th Feb., 1884, Note No. 5 (fo. 181 of E3).....	5,000
M. Connolly, C'k No. 645, 4th Aug., '84, Note No. 1 (fo. 37 of K3).....	2,000
O. E. Murphy, C'k No. 666, 4th Sept., '84, Note No. 2 (fo. 69 of K3).....	5,000
N. K. Connolly, C'k 24 Sept., '84, Note No. 3 (fo. 69 of K3).....	5,000
C'k 5 Nov. '84, favour M. Connolly.....	4,000

This entry at folio 109 of K3 is not posted to any account the effect being that Cash etc would then be wrong to that extent.

P. Larkin, C'k Dec. '84, paid on etc Note (fo. 109 of K3).....	2,000
P. Larkin, 26 Jan. 1885, paid on etc Note (fo. 129 of K3).....	500
P. Larkin, 28th Jan. 1885 " " " ".....	500

In all..... $44,000

So far $44,000 has been paid and all, save one amount of $4,000, which has not yet found its way into the ledger, appears to be personal payments made on behalf of members of the firm. Their accounts, however, are discharged by the following entries, which show the true character of the outlay:—

30th April, 1885 (Folio 299 of F3).

For incidental notes charged to their accounts, now credited back:

Cash Dr. to Sundries.....	$38,000
N. K. Connolly.....	$15,000
P. Larkin.....	8,000
M. Connolly.....	5,000
O. E. Murphy.....	10,000

30th April, 1885 (Folio 9 of Exhibit "N3").

Graving Dock Dr. to M. Connolly

For $2,000-note O. E. M., charged to incidental expenses. $ 2,000

As these two amounts, $40,000 in all, were charged to Lévis Cash that account has appropriated to it $44,000—in this way.

Then, on 30th April, 1885, the transactions assume the final form as cash payments on that day, the entries being (Folio 9, Exhibit "N3") in Quebec books.

 Expenses Dr. to Graving Dock (Cash account)
 For incidental notes paid for Q. H. I..... $25,000
 (Folio 290, Exhibit "F3") Lévis Books.
 Expenses Dr. to Cash
 For incidental expenses paid for notes..... 22,000

Thus $3,000 is charged to Expense account as having been paid, whereas there is no trace to this date of any such payment. On 30th May, 1885, two payments of $3,000 are entered.

(Folio 173, Exhibit "K3.")

30th May, 1885, Esquimalt Dock.

6 mos. draft favour of M. C. dated 28th Nov. '84, payable at Union Bank..... $3,000

(Folio 177, Exhibit "K3.")

Esquimalt Dock cheque of B.N.A. Bank to pay draft..... 3,000

The latter cheque to the order of the firm is credited to the Bank on 1st May, 1885, the former payment is credited to the Bank as cheque to the Quebec Bank to retire note for B.C..... 3,000

The evidence is that a $6,000 note was settled by a cash payment of $2,000, and by two notes, each for same amount. Diary of O. E. Murphy for 1884 Exhibit ("P 9") shows cash payment as made 1st December, 1884 2,000

That for 1885 (Exhibit "Q 9") shows two further payments on 27th and 31st Jan., 1885, each for $500, the other moiety is evidently represented by the above-named note at 6 mos. from 28th Nov., '84, which, strange to say, is charged to Esquimalt, and thus $3,000 is charged twice.

The obvious conclusion is that all other entries for the two years prior to 30th April, 1885, being correct, the shortage during two years in cash of $391.79 charged on folio 159, Exhibit "K3" to O. E. Murphy should have been $3,391.79. The earliest reference to the $22,000 transaction is found in note book of O. E. Murphy for 1884 (Exhibit "P9").

Notes given 2nd June, 1884.

- 1 of $2,000, two months for M. C.
- 1 of $5,000, three months for O. E. M.
- 1 of $5,000, for four months for N. C.
- 1 of $4,000, five months for M. C.
- 1 of $6,000, for six months for P. L.

$22,000

So far as the $6,000 entry is concerned there has been an erasure where the figure 6 now appears.

N.

O. E. MURPHY.

The personal diary for 1881 (Exhibit "M9") throws some light upon the item of $1,576, charged to expenses on 31st Dec., 1881. Near the end of the book, isolated from other matter, the following list appeared :

DONATIONS.

A total of $1,576. This is evidently a summary, the details of which might be looked for among the payments made from day to day kept at the beginning of this book (Exhibit "M9.") Such payments as there recorded are :

2 July, 1881, R. R. C., donation.....	$ 25 00

Election Sherlow .....	25 00

A total of $280.50. This is $1,295.50 less than the amount charged to the firm's expense account. If the summary be correct, then the cash account proper which does not contain the details is obviously defective. On 2nd July, for instance, the $25 entered should have been $100, and so on.

The book for 1882 (Exhibit "N9") also contains a double record, but in this case the list near the end of the book is not a summary but a statement of dates and to whom the money was paid ; it reads :

A total of $1,449—amount of the Lévis expense entry of 31st December, 1882. The above recurring fortnightly, payments resemble the payments to inspectors and others appearing in the firm's books in later years. A further entry of $2,472 is made as on the same day, in the same books, charged to the same account for a similar purpose.

It would seem to have been the practice of the firm to balance the cash account once a year. In this instance, it would seem that the cash was not balanced during a longer period and that this entry applies to the 31st December, 1883, for near the end of the diary of O. E. Murphy for 1883 (Exhibit "O9") appears the following list headed :

	15	“ Richard.....	43 00

A total of $2,147.25. This is $324.25 less than the entry in the firm's books, against this there are items in the continuous list at the beginning of the book as follows:

Feb. 15, 1883, H. Donation .....$ 300 00

Evidently the disbursement by Hume appearing in the books and separately listed, also

June 22, 1883, Monthly donation, Charles Lavelle.....$ 15 00

Nov. 16, Election Committee..... 50 00

Dec. 15, Harbour Commissioner..... 50 00

The diaries in subsequent years contain the original memorandum from which entries are made, at dates usually some days later, into the firm's books, and the yearly lump sum items cease.

The books of account, seven in number as above, cover a period of 18 years and have been kept by the same person throughout. The keeper of them has regarded himself as an agent and Thomas McGreevy is treated as a third person, no distinction between ‘Capital,’ ‘Profit and Loss,’ ‘Expenses’ business or personal, is made, but an account in the Ledgers, ‘Thomas McGreevy,’ embraces receipts and expenditures which are usually found separately accounted for.

From 1st January, 1885, only a scroll cash book is kept and the particulars given therein are very bald; they deal with the discount transactions with the various banks. The actual cash shown as received appears in a single entry each month and Thomas McGreevy appears as the source from which the money comes. Sometimes a second line with the word ‘interest’ before the amount appears; occasionally, a third with ‘Insurance’ similarly written. At no period do the entries sufficiently describe the transactions recorded, but from 1st January, 1885, the information given is so defective as to render it quite valueless for the purpose of this enquiry. At one point an exception must be made.

Folio 170 of Cash Blotter.

July 23, 1883.—To R. H. McGreevy th <sub>l</sub> (this date).....	$ 445 00
July 23, 1883.—To Thos. McGreevy, Clk. Jno. Hearn.....	9,441 36
July 27, 1883.—To do A. Thomson, proceeds $5,000	4,903 15
July 28, 1883.—To R. H. McGreevy, per O. E. Murphy.....	2,500 00
	$17,289 51

The contra entries connected with the above read :

July 30, 1883.—By N. S. R. Road, McCarron & Cameron, on account.....	16,541 59
Aug. 10, 1883.—By N. S. R. Road, McCarron & Cameron, their judgment paid	270 29

R. H. McGreevy's account begins in 1873, with a balance brought from some previous ledger, and continues a very active one. After the ledger record ceases, transactions recur throughout the scroll cash book. The result of these is nowhere shown.

At the close of 1884 four accounts appear open in the ledger, viz. :

Folio 102.—R. H. McGreevy, debit balance.....	$105,240 11
do 107.— do P. acct., debit balance.....	3,382 47
do 108.— do B. R. acct., " .....	42,848 54
do 140.— do Special acct., credit balance.....	3,664 49

The balance at folio 102 includes an interest entry of $88,154.85 and a subsequent entry, as of 1st January, 1889, is made charging a further item of interest $65,190.34 when the debit balance becomes $170,430.45. To the account at folio 140 an item of cash, $1,072.87, is charged, reducing the balance to $2,591.62; otherwise no regard is had to the many transactions since 1st January, 1885.

These books show direct dealings with Sir Hector L. Langevin, notes amounting to $10,100 having been current from early in 1879 to June, 1891. The notes, $3,000, $3,300 and $3,800, have recurred each four months as Bills Receivable, unchanged as to amount, through these twelve years. The account "H. L. Langevin" begins on 12th March, 1878, as a note account. The transactions can be traced back to 21st June, 1874, when a note of $1,500, is charged to the account of Tarte & Desjardins. Later, between 8th July and 7th September, 1874, fourteen cash payments, amounting in all to $2,000, are charged to the same firm's account and are offset by a note H. L. L. for $2,000, due 2nd Nov., 1874. On 9th June, 1877, the advances to Tarte and Desjardins amount to $8,534.98, and are carried to an account at folio 129, headed: "Stock, Newspaper Canadien," in which account other items and "H. L. L." notes appear and the account remains unchanged at $15,072.47, since 30th Dec., 1879.

Bank Accounts.

The accounts with the three banks named above, show a large volume of business, reaching a maximum of over a million and a-half dollars of discounts and deposits during 1883. The cancelled cheques produced for four years with one bank, deal with only a fraction of this volume of business. Four cheques made to the order of O. E. Murphy, and endorsed by him, may have some direct bearing upon the Enquiry, the dates of these cheques are from 30th October, 1888, to 8th June, 1889.

Letter Book (Press copies), 2nd Nov., 1885, to 16th June, 1891.
Diaries for six years, 1883–87 and 1889.

The books produced, as detailed above, do not account for the transactions shown in the copy of the Quebec Bank account. The diaries contain a very large number of entries, unaccounted for in the books. On the other hand, the books show transactions unnamed in the diaries and not to be recognized in the bank account.

Assuming that he received one-half of the $70,000 paid for the joint interest in the firm of himself and O. E. Murphy, the books of Larkin, Connolly & Co. show the receipt by R. H. McGreevy as profits of $187,800.42. (See Schedule C, 1st Report.) We have since been informed that his share of the $70,000, was $40,000, in which case his receipts under this head would be $192,800.42, the payment to O. E. Murphy being reduced by this difference of $5,000.

The books of account show the receipt of no part of this money.

Besides these defects, the books as books of account are absurd, inasmuch as they show the payment of large sums of money without adequate contra-receipts from any source.

Entries appear in the Ledger not posted from the Journal or Blotters and entries appear in the Journal without being carried into the Ledger. Entries posted into the Ledger are ruled out and there are entries interlined, the whole account at folio 7S is cancelled, being scored over with a pen. Figures are erased with a knife and others written over the erasures. In a similar manner, erasures have been made and nothing substituted. Pages in several places have been cut or torn out.

If these books are to be seriously regarded it would appear from them, that save one sale of red pine in 1883, and a trifling sale to the firm since, R. H. McGreevy has had no dealings with Larkin, Connolly & Co., for the past eight years. Several accounts with banks appear in the Ledger, but none with the Quebec Bank, with which institution his deposits and discounts together amounted to $304,453.28, during the five years ending 31st December, 1887.

Diaries.

The diaries, although largely occupied with trivial matters, throw light upon the firm's affairs from time to time.

The following entries appear during these five years:

1884.

May 12—Gave T. McG., $15,000 on account of indebtedness, to be applied on note at Bank.

Aug. 27.—$2,500 from O. E. M., $2,000 pd. to T. McG.

Oct. 1.—$5,000 from O. E. M. for election.

Oct. 30.—$10 to Lepine, T. McG. election.

1887.

March 20.—Received $13,000. (¼ of $71,800 less $1,200=$13,160.) The $5,000 for which I gave receipt and is deposited with the others of the firm, in the $5,000 I got and gave T. McG.

April 12.—Gave T. McG. $2,000—borrowed from O. E. Murphy.

Nov. 9.—$5,000 to T. McGreevy from L., C. & Co., on my account.

Memo. Dredging, 1886:

Offered and paid $25,000 to parties to have balance of Dredging, 35c., not less than 800,000 yards.

Memo.	$25,000.
	14,000.
B. C.	20,000.
Feb., '87.	42,000.
Oct. 8.	8,000.	$25,000 out of profits.
	          
	$109,000.

1889.

Jan. 26.—“Received $10,000 from L., C. & Co., gave it to O. E. Murphy to give T. McG.; $5,000 and $500 for note due Montreal Bank on 27th February.”

Feb. 14.—“Note $18,000 O. E. M., Caisse d'Economie due, $9,000 of it is mine.”

These are all the entries explaining the payments by the firm to R. H. McGreevy, and they obviously fall far short as an explanation of his drawings of profits, or perhaps of those for extraordinary purposes.

The first $15,000, although not said to have been received from the firm, may have reference to part of the payments described in Schedule L of first report.

The series of entries beginning on 5th December, 1884, certainly deal with the $6,000 note named in said Schedule L, and go to confirm the conclusion arrived at, from the firm's books, that the $3,000 charged to Esquimalt Expense Account was not paid to any one other than members of the firm.

The three notes entered on 3rd June, 1885, are clearly those entered in the diary of O. E. Murphy (Exhibit “Q9”), making together the $4,000, charged Esquimalt Expense Account in August, 1885.

The $5,000 entry of 9th November, 1887, would seem to be the N. K. C. payment of 2nd November, 1887, charged to Lévis Graving Dock, as to which evidence has been given.

(Exhibit “V13.”)—Ledger.

The account of Thomas McGreevy begins on 1st June, 1883, with a balance due by him to R. H. McGreevy of $3,174.44.

The account runs through six folios to 26th January, 1889, but is not added up, and no balance or final result is shown. If the entries made were added, there would appear a balance of nearly $60,000 against Thomas McGreevy.

The cancelled cheques produced for the six years (1883-88) seem fairly complete. As a rule they are made payable to Bearer. Among the exceptions are six payable to the order of O. E. Murphy, none of which are explained or entered in the books of account.

The name of no other person connected with this enquiry appears on any of the cheques, except on one cheque, 17th October, 1884, for $9,817, in favour of Thomas McGreevy or Bearer, and this bears no endorsement, and the books afford no information regarding it.

THIRD REPORT OF THE ACCOUNTANTS.

OTTAWA, 8th August, 1891.

To the Select Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections:

We have the honour to report that the books of account, cancelled cheques and memoranda submitted to us, other than those referred to in Schedules "A" to "P," of our First Report do not contain information of a character likely to prove useful to the Committee. We hoped to have been able to show the extent to which the various productions by individual members of the firm and by Thomas McGreevy, M.P., could be reconciled with each other and with the five sets of books of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co.

Apart from the subsequent mutilations, at various places, we should believe the firm's books to be honest and straightforward statements of the transactions they purport to record, if those who kept them were in all cases really, as alleged, ignorant of the details of the extraordinary payments there recorded. We have found nothing in the productions by other witnesses that discredits anything appearing in the said firm's books.

The productions of Messrs. Thomas and R. H. McGreevy hopelessly disagree with each other, and we are without the means of determining, as between such differences, the extent to which either are right or wrong. The productions of other members of the firm, viz.: Patrick Larkin, Nicholas K. Connolly, Michael Connolly and O.E. Murphy, are even less complete. They do not disagree with the firm's books in any material point, and on the other hand they add nothing of importance to the information afforded thereby.

FIRST REPORT OF THE ENGINEERS

(CROSS-WALL IN THE HARBOUR OF QUEBEC.)

---

HOUSE OF COMMONS, August 4th, 1891.

TO THE CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE SELECT STANDING COMMITTEE ON PRIVILEGES AND ELECTIONS :

SIRS,—In compliance with instructions contained in the under-noted Resolution of your Committee, we beg respectfully to submit the following statement setting forth the result of our examination into the matters therein referred to.

The Cross-wall, Quebec Harbour Improvements.

At the suggestion of Mr. Osler, Q.C., it was resolved:—That two Engineers be appointed by the Committee, whose duties shall be :

1st. To examine and report upon—The Tenders, Contracts and Final Estimates for the work known as the Cross-wall, the subject of the contract of June 6th, 1883.

2nd. Therein to compare the quantities shown by the plans and profiles with the quantities applied to the several tenders for the works.

3rd. To show all changes made in the execution of the work and the reduction, or increase of quantities thereby occasioned.

4th. To compare the quantities shown in the final estimate with the quantities shown in the plans and profiles, with the result in money.

5th. To examine and report on such further matters as may be referred to them by the committee from time to time.

---

We find the authority for the construction of a "Cross-wall" and lock necessary to render available, as a wet dock, the dock constructed by them (the Harbour Commissioners) at the mouth of the River St. Charles, &c., &c.—contained in 45 Victoria, chap. 47 (1882).

In conformity with further provisions of said Act, the plans and a specification for the work were under directions from the Honourable Minister of Public Works, prepared by his Chief Engineer and "such plans, &c., were laid before the Harbour Commissioners (P. W. letter dated 23rd March, 1883) and that certain slight modifications (27th March, 1883—as to depth of Wet dock, 26 feet instead of 25 feet as shewn and suggested by that Board,") having been made, the Honourable Minister of Public Works thereupon submitted the said plans and specification for the approval of His Excellency the Governor General whose assent thereto was obtained on 6th April, 1883.

By Resolution of the Harbour Board dated Quebec, 9th April, 1883, tenders for this work were invited by the following notice inserted in the undermentioned papers:—The Morning Chronicle, The Daily Telegraph, Le Canadien, Le Courrier du Canada, of Quebec; Le Quotidien, of Lévis; and The Gazette, The Herald, The Shareholder, La Minerve and L'Etendard, of Montreal.

“NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

“Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed “Tenders for Quebec Harbour Works,” will be received at this office, until 2nd May next, at 3 o'clock p.m., inclusive, for the construction of Quay-wall, and entrance works to the Wet dock and other works in connection therewith, according to a plan and specification to be seen at this office, where printed forms of tender can be obtained.

“Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, with all blanks and prices properly filled in, and signed with their actual signatures.

“Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted bank cheque for $7,500, made payable to the Honourable the Minister of Public Works of Canada, and the party to whom the contract is awarded must be prepared to deposit as security with the Honourable the Minister, a sum, of which the $7,500 will form part, equal to five per cent of the amount of the contract, which sum will be forfeited if the contractor fails to complete the work. If any party tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, the cheque accompanying his tender will be forfeited; if the tender is not accepted the cheque will be returned.

“The Commissioners do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.

“A. H. VERRET,
“Secretary.”

“Harbour Commissioners Office,
“Quebec, 16th April, 1883.”

“Envelopes containing tenders are to be endorsed, “Tender for Quebec Harbour Works,” and addressed to the Secretary of the Harbour Commissioners, Quebec, P.Q.

“Note.—The signatures of persons tendering must be in their respective handwriting.”

On the 2nd of May, 1883, “The tenders received for the construction of the Cross-wall were placed before the Harbour Commissioners by the Secretary and opened, the said tenders being signed by the following named parties, respectively,” viz :

1st Larkin, Connolly & Murphy.....	Levis.
2nd J. Samson and A. Samson.....	Quebec.
3rd John Gallagher.....	Montreal.
4th George Beaucage.....	Quebec.
5th Simon Peters & Edward Moore .....	Quebec.

the same having been examined separately and found in order the Secretary was thereupon directed to forward them together with their accompanying cheques by mail to the Honourable the Minister of Public Works at Ottawa.

It then appears that on examining the tenders at Ottawa, between date of receipt and the 17th of May, 1883, the Chief Engineer discovered apparent errors (as to prices of sheet-piling) in those from Larkin & Connolly, Beaucage and Gallagher with whom he communicated as follows :

“OTTAWA, 17th May, 1883.

“GENTLEMEN,—In your tenders for the construction of the “Cross-wall” Harbour Works, Quebec, there is an evident error in the prices you have given for Sheet-Piling 8, 6 and 4 ins. thick, white pine, and 6 ins. thick any timber—as per clause 18. If you will examine the form of tender you will note that the prices asked for are for “per lineal foot in line of works” which means a measurement along the top of the work after having been done, and not with any reference to the length of piles to be driven, &c. From the prices you have given it is inferred that you have named a price per lineal foot of pile instead of per lineal foot of work.

"I am directed to call your attention to this and to request an immediate reply whether an error has or has not been made by you—and if so, that you will name a price per lineal foot in line of work, to enable me to compare your tender with others who have given prices as per the requirements of the tender.

"I am, gentlemen,

"Your obedient Servant,

"HENRY F. PERLEY,

"Messrs. LARKIN, CONNOLLY & Co.,

"Chief Engineer.

"Contractors,

"Quebec."

Similar letters were sent the same day to Mr. John Gallagher, Contractor, Quebec, and to George Beaucage, Quebec, but in the communication to the latter, the following clause was added—"I have to call your attention to the price you have placed in your tender for 'Pile driving to any depth not exceeding 20 feet' and 'the note you have placed thereon that this price is for 'labour only'."

"It is clearly stated in clause 80 of the specification that all prices named in the schedule shall be held to cover not only the cost of labour, but of all machinery, plant, &c."

On the 19th May, 1883, Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. wrote the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department in reply to the foregoing, intimating that they had misinterpreted the items referred to but notwithstanding would hold themselves ready to enter into a contract at the prices submitted in their tender, provided the work is awarded them. On same date, Mr. J. Gallagher replied to the same inquiry from the Chief Engineer to the effect that his prices were 25 cents, 20 cents, 15 cents and 18 cents per ft. B.M. respectively for the four items—in the meantime, however, Mr Gallagher had written the Department withdrawing his tender as per his letter of 16th of May, as follows :

"MONTREAL, 16th May, 1883.

"To the Secretary,
"Department of Public Works,
"Ottawa."

"SIR,—Since my proposal for the Cross-wall, Quebec, which I learn from the Secretary of the Harbour Works has been sent to your Department, I find owing to the length of time that has passed since my tender went in and the time it may take to decide and from the fact of fearing further delay, I have taken another contract and wish to withdraw my tender for the said work on condition of my deposit cheque being returned to me.

"Very respectfully, &c.,

"JOHN GALLAGHER."

On May 23rd, 1883, George Beaucage wrote from Quebec, in response to the Chief Engineer's inquiry, before referred to, and intimated that he had misunderstood the items, and wished to be allowed to amend his prices in this respect, as follows :

8-inch sheet piling,	$19	per lineal foot,	in line of work.
6 do do	$17	do do	do
4 do do	$15	do do	do
6 do do	any timber as per clause 18—$15.75 per lineal foot, in line of work.

Concerning the item "Pile driving to any depth not exceeding 20 feet," for which he gave a price for "Labour only," he admits his error, and asks that these words be struck out of his tender.

On the 23rd of May, 1883, the Chief Engineer reported as follows to the Secretary of the Department of Public Works, and to which the Honourable Minister added a foot note, dated 26th May, directing that a report to Council be made "recommending acceptance of second lowest tender for reasons herein mentioned."

" CHIEF ENGINEER'S OFFICE,
" OTTAWA, 23rd May, 1883.

" SIR,—I have to report that I have examined the five tenders for harbour works at Quebec, forwarded to the Department by the Secretary of the Harbour Commissioners in his letter of the 2nd May, and herewith enclose a schedule showing the estimated amounts of the different kinds of work to be executed, to which have been applied the prices named in these tenders for the purpose of determining the relative values of the said tenders, which are as follows:

John Gallagher.....	$552,255 00
Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	634,340 00
G. Beaucage.....	640,808 50
Peters & Moore.....	643,071 16
J. & A. Samson.....	864,181 00

" On examining these tenders it was found that Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., Gallagher and Beaucage had made evident errors in the prices they named for Sheet piling (see items marked " b " " c " and " d " on sheet herewith) and I drew the attention of these gentlemen to this, and asked them if errors had been made (see copies of my letters attached hereto). I also drew the attention of Mr. Beaucage to the words " Labour only " which he had inserted in his tender in connection with his price for pile driving, as the specification for this work included the providing of all machinery, &c.

" The replies to my letter are attached hereto.

" Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. state that, though they had made an error, they would hold themselves ready to enter into a contract at the prices named in their tender; this being the case, those prices must be accepted for the work to be done as specified and no change has therefore been made in the schedule.

" Mr. Gallagher states that he had withdrawn his tender and reiterates the prices he had given therein. No change was therefore made in the schedule.

" Mr. Beaucage in his letter acknowledged the error and desired his tender to be amended by the insertion of the prices named therein. This has been done in red ink on the schedule.

" Mr. Beaucage also withdraws the words " labour only " from his tender as he finds they are not compatible with the clause 80 of the specification.

" With further reference to the tender of Mr. John Gallagher, I find that, under date 16th May, he has written to the Secretary of the Department (see No. 34629) to the effect that having taken another contract, he wishes to withdraw his tender for these works, and asks that his deposit security be returned.

" This withdrawal I beg leave to recommend, because I believe that the amount of his tender is far below that for which the works can be executed.

" This done leaves the tender of Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. next in order and I have to recommend it for the consideration of the honourable the Minister.

" I have the honour to be, Sir,

" Your obedient servant,

" HENRY F. PERLEY,

" Chief Engineer."

" Prepare Report to Council recommending acceptance of second lowest tender for the reasons herein mentioned.

" HECTOR LANGEVIN."

(26th May, 1883.)

We would here point out that the Chief Engineer has overlooked the purport of Mr. Gallagher's letter of 19th May in reply to his inquiry of the 17th regarding price of Sheet piling, and to state that had the Chief Engineer applied the prices therein quoted, as he has done in the case of Beaucage, the Larkin-Connolly tender would have appeared lowest by say $24,890, inasmuch as Gallagher explained that his prices for sheet piling were intended to be applied at so much per foot, board measurement, thus adding $106,975 to amount of his tender, as moneyed out by Mr. Perley.

On the 30th May the honourable Minister submitted to the Privy Council the following memorandum recommending that the tender of J. Gallagher be withdrawn and his cheque returned "for the reasons assigned" therein:

"On a memorandum dated 30th May, 1883, from the Minister of Public Works, stating that of the tenders received by the Harbour Commissioners of Quebec, and forwarded to his Department, for the construction of the proposed Cross-wall in connection with the works of Harbour Improvements at the mouth of the River St. Charles, the lowest was that of Mr. John Gallagher.

"The Minister represented that an evident error was made in such tender, and Mr. Gallagher was communicated with, and that he adhered to his prices; but having in the meantime taken another contract, he desired to be allowed to withdraw his offer, and requested the return of the accepted cheque enclosed therewith.

"The Minister recommends that authority be given to allow Mr. Gallagher to withdraw his tender, and return to him the cheque.

"The Committee submit the above recommendation for Your Excellency's approval.

"(Signed) JOHN J. MCGEE."

On the 26th of May a Report from the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council recommending that Larkin and Connolly's tender be accepted was approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council as shown in copy of Order hereunder:

"Certified Copy of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 26th May, 1883."

"On a Memo. dated 26th May, 1883, from the Minister of Public Works, submitting that the Harbour Commissioners of Quebec have forwarded to his Department the tenders received by them for the construction of the proposed "Cross-wall" in connection with the works of improvement at the mouth of the River St. Charles, and that these tenders are made at schedule rates, and with such rates applied to estimated quantities, are as follows, viz:

John Gallagher.....	$552,255 00
Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	634,340 00
G. Beaucage.....	640,808 50
Peters & Moore.....	643,071 16
J. & A. Samson.....	864,181 00

"The Minister observes in examining the tenders, it was found that Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., Gallagher and Beaucage had made evident errors in their prices for 'Sheet piling' and in Mr. Beaucage's case for 'Pile driving.'

"That Mr. Gallagher adheres to the prices mentioned in his offer, but desires to withdraw it, he having taken another contract, and he requests that his security deposit be returned.

"That Mr. Beaucage acknowledged the error, and asked that his tender be amended; this was done by the insertion of the increased prices stated in Mr. Beaucage's letter.

"That Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co. stated that though they had made an error, they would hold themselves ready to enter into contract at the prices named in their offer.

"The Minister recommends that the second lowest tender, viz. : That of Larkin, Connolly & Co. amounting to $634,340.00 be accepted.

"The Committee submit the above recommendation for Your Excellency's approval.

" (Signed) JOHN J. MCGEE."

This action was communicated to the Harbour Commissioners in meeting at Quebec on June 4th—on the same date the Harbour Board passed a resolution, authorizing the Chairman and Secretary to sign the contract in conformity with directions from the Privy Council, as cited.

On June 6th the contract for the "Cross-wall" was executed at Quebec, and on the 9th of the same month the Secretary of the Public Works Department wrote the Secretary of the Harbour Board intimating that an Order in Council had been passed permitting John Gallagher to withdraw his tender and enclosing the cheque which accompanied the same for return to Mr. Gallagher. In compliance with the above order the Secretary returned the said cheque on the 11th June, 1883.

Having set forth the leading features in connection with this subject, from its inception to the letting of the contract for the construction of the work, we will now draw your attention to the schedule "A," attached hereto containing the form of tender with schedule of items and the specification setting forth the description of work required, and would specially point out that in clause 3, it is stated that the drawings exhibited to contractors are of a general character and only intended to show the class and nature of the work required—Sec. 21 points out that the cribs are to be sunk and allowed to settle into their beds before any concrete is deposited in them.

Sections 75 and 76 refer to the proposed method of closing the entrance, from which it would appear that this subject had not been finally determined at the time the contract was let.

No mention is made as to the earth work required, or how it is to be executed, other than in the schedule of items, and the foot note stating that "materials are to be measured in place."

The plans laid before us and said to be the originals examined by intending contractors when preparing to tender (and from which we, with the aid of the specifications and the use of a scale, were enabled to obtain approximately the quantities of crib work, sheet piling, concrete, stone filling and earth work, as originally intended), are, we regret to say, not such a complete exhibit as one should expect to find in connection with the "letting" of this important undertaking, and may now be enumerated and referred to as follows:

Sheet No. 1.—Is a block plan showing location and dimensions of cribs forming the foundations for the north and south Quay-walls, the entrance and caisson chamber.

Sheet No. 2.—Is a plan, elevation and section, shewing dimensions and manner of construction of crib work in Quay-walls. This plan has been changed in dimensions and design, thus making it impossible to discern what was originally intended, other than by reference to the specification and the use of a scale. The cribs are shewn as resting on piles also with sheet piled facing at base, neither of which are referred to in the specification.

Sheet No. 3.—Is a plan of entrance cribs, and an elevation of caisson chamber cribs; it also shows alterations in dimensions and design, as instance, in the first clause of specifications, under heading of "crib work," it is specified that the top of the cribwork is to be placed 6 inches below low water or datum, whereas it is shown on plan as being over one foot above that level, or subject to exposure during low spring tides.

The remaining plans (some of which were referred to by witnesses as originals) laid before us are evidently of a subsequent date, as they set forth the design finally adopted for closing the entrance, also sluices, gates and ironwork.

It seems incredible that the three plans above referred to compose the whole of the original set, as one would naturally expect to find a general plan of the site of the work and immediate surroundings, also one showing longitudinal and cross sections through the Quay-wall to explain the mode of construction of the various features of masonry, concrete, crib and earthwork, and it is to be regretted that the plans referred to as having been approved by the Governor General in Council in connection with this work are not forthcoming, as they would, in all probability throw additional light on the subject, and we venture the opinion that had the late engineer, Mr. Boyd, lived to see the completion of his work, matters not now clear, and especially relating to the original schedule of quantities as applied by him to the prices submitted by tenderers, would have been made plain.

It appears that five tenders were received by the Harbour Board which were opened, found to be in form and sent on to Ottawa on or after the 2nd of May, where they seem to have remained without any recorded advancement on the part of the Department until the 17th, when the Chief Engineer on examination discovered apparent errors in prices for "sheet piling" in the tenders of Larkin & Connolly, Beaucage and Gallagher, to each of whom he wrote for explanations. In the meantime the value of each tender appears to have been arrived at by the Chief Engineer by applying thereto a schedule of quantities (Exhibit "X3")* sworn to as being in the handwriting of the late Mr. Boyd, C.E., with the following result:

J. Gallagher .....	$552,255 00
G. Beaucage.....	593,463 50
Larkin, Connolly & Co .....	634,340 00
Peters & Moore.....	643,071 16
Samson & Samson.....	864,181 00

On receipt of replies from the above-named firms the schedule rates for sheet piling were amended in the case of the Beaucage tender, but not in that from Gallagher, thus changing the position of the tenders to the following order:

J. Gallagher.....	$552,255 00
Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	634,340 00
G. Beaucage.....	640,808 50
S. Peters & Moore.....	643,071 16
Samson & Samson.....	864,181 00

By amending the Gallagher tender as per terms of his letter of May 19th, and thus placing all on the same plane, the result would be as follows:

Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	$634,340 00
G. Beaucage.....	640,808 50
S. Peters & Moore.....	643,071 16
J. Gallagher.....	659,230 00
Samson & Samson.....	864,181 00

By a further comparison based on quantities of cribwork, concrete, stoneballast, sheet piling and earth filling, taken by us from the said original plans and specifications, we find the following result in these items alone:

S. Peters & Moore.....	$281,009 00
Larkin, Connolly & Co .....	369,971 70
G. Beaucage.....	389,871 00
J. Gallagher.....	405,346 32
Samson & Samson.....	552,812 00

And this comparison carried out by the addition thereto of the items in schedule of quantities used in above comparisons, and not obtainable from plans and specifications, we find the position of the tenders to be:

S. Peters & Moore.....	$736,243 50
Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	753,371 70
J. Gallagher.....	762,378 32
G. Beaucage.....	765,510 50
Samson & Samson.....	1,032,011 20

* For Exhibit "X3," see page 24 of this Appendix (Schedule A 1.)

A further comparison based on quantities, in cribwork, masonry, concrete, stoneballast, piledriving to any depth, &c., sheetpiling, and timber in piles, all as taken from the late Mr. Boyd's "estimate book," and evidently made up prior to changed form of entrance, and before cribs were built, or any considerable amount of work had been done (say in the spring of 1884) shows the following :

	S. Peters & Moore.. .. .	$586,436 63
See details	Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	620,733 10
on sheet	G. Beaucage.....	629,635 25
"D."	J. Gallagher.....	658,930 46
	Samson & Samson. ....	877,990 50

Yet another comparison based on the quantities found in "Estimate Book" before referred to, with the other items to complete as taken from the original schedule sheet (Exhibit "X3")* gives the following results :

	S. Peters & Moore.....	$734,846 13
See details	G. Beaucage.....	755,484 75
on sheets	Larkin, Connolly & Co. . . . .	763,023 10
marked	J. Gallagher.....	774,082 46
"E."	Samson & Samson.....	1,077,444 50

In conformity with clause 3 of instructions we submit the following statement compiled from information obtained by us from the plans and specification and from schedule used in the original comparison of tenders (Exhibit "X3")* by the Chief Engineer of the Department, as compared with quantities returned in final estimate made by Mr. Boswell, and for this purpose assumed to be correct, but not including items for "special" and "day-labour work" which have been treated as common to both :

	Increase due to changes.....	$139,613 31
	Decrease do .....	99,801 37
	Total increase.....	$ 39,811 94
	To which add day labour account.....	$ 5,021 28
	do special items.....	34,240 96
		39,262 24
	Total.....	$ 79,074 18

The above estimate must not be confounded with the one made between Boyd's original and Boswell's final estimates.

The "days' labour" and material item of $5,021.28 was apparently incurred for work of a general character, which could not be scheduled in the tender other than has been done in "labour rates," as shown in attached comparative statement.

The "special item" account contained a large number of items, especially of timber and iron, which should have been provided for in the schedule—again, it embraces work not included in the contract, such as the construction of the valve-house, clay-filling, &c., as will be seen by reference to the details. The totals, moneyed out at the various rates submitted by the tenders, do not vary to an appreciable extent, and in both items Larkin & Co. are the lowest.

A second comparison, showing the increase in final estimate as compared with the late Mr. Boyd's Progress Return No. 13. of Nov. 30th, 1885, including his estimate of quantities to complete, as set forth in his letter-book, folio 276, about date January, February, 1886.

made up largely of items omitted by Mr. Boyd in his "estimate of costs to complete" above referred to. To this sum must be added the "special" $22,436.36 and "days labour" items $4,476.78, making in all a total

Increase of.....	$ 89,050 53
Amount of Progress Estimate No. 13.....	295,506 30
Boyd's "estimate to complete".....	447,891 61
<hr/>
Total .....	$832,448 44
Boswell's Final Estimate.....	832,448 44

In compliance with the clause 4 of instructions we submit a comparative table, based on quantities taken by us as far as possible from plans, including balance from "original" schedule, as compared with Boswell's Final Estimate No. 37 and resulting as follows:

	Final Returns	vs.	Estimate from Plan.
S. Peters & Moore.....	$ 762,587 48		$ 736,243 50
J. Gallagher .....	776,811 09		762,378 32
G. Beaucage.....	793,268 49		765,510 50
Larkin & Connolly.....	832,448 44		753,371 70
Samson & Samson.....	1,088,191 71		1,032,011 20

The following comparative estimate setting forth the cost of the work is based on the final quantities as returned by Mr. Boswell, C.E., in his estimate, No. 37, dated 30th December, 1889—to which have been applied the prices submitted by tenderers, with amended rates for sheet-piling, &c., quoted by Gallagher & Beaucage.

Peters & Moore.....	$ 762,587 48
J. Gallagher.....	776,811 09
G. Beaucage.....	793,268 49
Larkin, Connolly & Co.....	832,448 44
Samson & Samson .....	1,088,191 77

The final estimate and plans not having been made out in detail, we are consequently unable at present to complete a check of the measurements recorded, and, as a large amount of the Cross-wall work lies under water level, and beneath the masonry and earth wall, it is impracticable to carry this feature of the investigation to a satisfactory conclusion other than by the expenditure of a considerable sum of money, and after the lapse of a longer time than we fear can now be allowed; however, we may be permitted to explain that we learn from Mr. Boswell, C. E., (who was on the work from beginning to end, and who succeeded the late Mr. Boyd, the Resident Engineer, at the time of his death in November, 1886), that the original design of the "Cross-wall" was changed, and that other circumstances occurred during the process of the work whereby the original quantities were largely increased in the following important items:

The cribs forming the substructure on the Wet dock side of the Quay-wall were carried down 6 feet below the specified level and those on the Tidal-basin side 1 foot and both lines of cribs were completed  $1\frac{1}{2}$  feet above the level as originally intended. These additions entailed a proportionate increase in concrete which was added to by being carried 6 inches above the top of the timber work and by being used for filling up irregularities in the bottom of the trenches for the cribs, which appear to have been excavated to a greater depth than specified or required; an increased amount of concrete was also used under the side walls and floor of the entrance.

The amount of earth filling was largely increased owing to the changes made in the dimensions of the cribs and by its substitution for stone ballast.

The stone ballast was decreased in execution as only a sufficient quantity was used to sink and retain the cribs in position and the remaining voids were filled with sand.

The amount of masonry in the Quay-walls was reduced by the superelevation of the cribs as before referred to, and by the changed mode of closing the entrance chamber.

The item of "Piling" was increased some $5,800, owing to the introduction of supporting piles (under the cribs)—which were not originally contemplated but evidently became necessary owing to the before mentioned irregularities in the bottom of the trenches.

Should your Committee deem it advisable that we continue our examination of the measurements, &c., returned in the "final estimate" the matters above referred to can then be reported upon more fully.

We remain, Sirs,

Your obedient servants.

SPECIFICATION FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF A QUAY WALL AND ENTRANCE FOR THE WET DOCK AND OTHER WORKS IN CONNECTION THEREWITH AT QUEBEC, P.Q.

1. The works to be done under the present contract consist in the construction of:

- 1st. A quay wall for the wet dock about 880 feet in length.
- 2nd. A quay wall for the tidal harbour about 850 feet in length.
- 3rd. A facing to the present wharves about 500 feet in length between the southern end of the quay wall and the northern line of Leadenhall Street.
- 4th. An entrance to the wet dock of the width shown on the plan and with a depth on the sill of 15 feet below datum.
- 5th. Two cofferdams and other works in connection therewith, as hereinafter specified.

2. The datum to which all heights and depths are referred is the level of low-water spring tides, which level will be defined and marked by the Chief Engineer of Public Works before operations are commenced.

3. The Drawings exhibited are intended to show only the class and nature of the work required. Detailed drawings giving dimensions, &c., of the different parts, will be furnished during the progress of the works.

4. The Commissioners reserve to themselves the right to change the mode of closing the entrance to the wet dock from that by a caisson to that by gates, and to make any alterations in the width of the entrance or the shape of the side walls which such a change might render necessary.

5. The Commissioners shall have power at any time to make changes in the position or dimensions of any of the works or to substitute one kind of work or materials for another in any part or in the whole of the works, and the contractor will be required to make such changes when ordered and to do the work for his schedule price without any claim for damages or loss of profit on the class of work or materials which may be abandoned; provided only that if the change is ordered after any work is executed the contractor shall be paid at his schedule price for the work removed and the cost of removal as well as for the work substituted.

6. The price affixed to each item in the schedule shall be considered a full compensation for the actual quantity, whether it be large or small, of that kind of work done or materials or labour furnished, without any reference whatever to the prices attached to other items.

7. In measuring any class of work the quantity paid for will include only the actual net cubic, superficial or lineal measurements or weight as the case may be, of executed and finished work, without any allowance for waste in cutting off the heads of piles or for ends of timber, laps or scarfs, or loss in cutting stone or for shrinkage or settlement of concretes or earthwork, or any other contingency whatsoever connected directly or indirectly with such works.

8. The whole of the works are to be executed strictly in accordance with this specification and such drawings and instructions as may be furnished by the Engineer from time to time during the progress of the works. Wherever dimensions are marked on the drawings or described in the specification they are to be considered correct, although not corresponding with the measurements taken by scale, which are to be used only when the dimensions are not so marked or described; and drawings to larger scales and those showing any particular parts of the work are to be taken as more correct than those to a smaller scale which are for more general purposes.

Cribwork.

9. The parts of the quay walls below the level of six inches below datum will be formed of cribwork, the front chambers of which are to be filled with concrete and the back chambers with stone ballast.

10. The cribwork for the quay wall of the wet dock will be founded in a trench dredged to 15 feet below datum and that for the wall of the tidal harbour in a trench dredged to 26 feet below datum.

11. The face timbers are to be 12 inches square, in lengths of not less than 20 feet and laid so that the ends shall overlap the dovetails at least  $2\frac{1}{2}$  feet. The joints are to be formed as shown and are to lap past each other at least 10 feet. The outer corners of the sticks must be worked to proud edges and the beds hewn true and parallel so as to make perfectly close work. Notches to receive the ends of the cross-ties are to be cut at such distances as are shown in the drawings. They are to be  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches deep by 9 inches wide at the back of the stick and to splay 1 inch on each side. The face timbers are to be fastened every 10 feet with bolts 24 inches long and 1 inch square, each butt being fastened in addition with a bolt  $\frac{3}{4}$  inch square and 24 inches long. The corners are to be framed as shown, the projecting ends being protected by fenders of birch or elm four inches thick, treenailed to the face timbers.

12. The cross ties are to be placed 10 feet apart, centre to centre, except where otherwise shown in the drawings. They are to be so placed in alternate courses that the ties in one course will be midway between those in the next. They are to be 11 inches thick, and flatted to faces of not less than 14 inches, and of sufficient length to extend from front to back of the cribs. On the ends which pass through the face timbering, dovetails 9 inches square at the throat, and splaying 1 in 12 on each side are to be worked. The shoulders are to be cut square, and are to butt close up against the back of the face timbers. Care must be taken that the corners of the dovetails are worked sharp and square throughout, and that they fit accurately into the notches cut in the face timbers. The ends are to be sawn off 2 inches outside the face. Where the cross ties intersect the longitudinals they are to be notched on to them, and fastened with bolts 24 inches long and  $\frac{7}{8}$  inch square.

13. The longitudinals are to be 12 inches square. They will require to be in lengths of  $17\frac{1}{2}$ , 22,  $22\frac{1}{2}$  and  $27\frac{1}{2}$  feet, except where lengths of 8, 11 and  $12\frac{1}{2}$  feet are required at the counterforts. They are to be laid as shown in the drawings, and are to be joined with scarfs 2 feet long resting on the cross-ties, breaking joints in alternate courses and rows. Where they intersect the cross-ties they are to be fastened with bolts 24 inches long and  $\frac{7}{8}$  inch square. Where the ends pass through the ends of the cribs they are to be dovetailed in the same way as the cross-ties.

14. A ballast floor formed of straight poles flatted to not less than 6 inches in thickness is to be laid in the back chambers of the crib-work. The poles are to be in lengths of not less than 20 feet, laid butts and points, and breaking joints on the cross ties.

15. The upper part of the face of the crib-work for a height of 3 feet 4 inches is to be sheath with birch or elm planking 4 inches thick, fastened at  $2\frac{1}{2}$  feet intervals with  $1\frac{1}{4}$  inch turned locust treenails driven through and wedged at both ends. The planks are to be not less than 8 inches or more than 10 inches wide, in lengths of not less than 25 feet breaking joints not less than 10 feet, and double fastened at the butts.

16. The crib-work will be built in lengths of from 100 to 150 feet, as may be ordered. The ends of the cribs are to be close timbered in the same way as the face; notches being cut where required to receive the dovetailed ends of the longitudinals.

17. Sheet piling 6 inches thick and of any widths not less than 8 inches, is to be driven at the back of the concrete chambers as shown in the drawings. It is to be driven at least 6 feet into the ground, and the top is to be sawn off 6 inches above datum.

18. The timber used in the crib-work and sheet piling may be either white, red or yellow pine, spruce, hemlock, tamarac, black or yellow birch, or rock elm or rock maple. It must be green, sound, straight, and free from shakes and rotten knots; and in the event of any sticks being condemned as unfit for the work, they must at once be removed from the premises. Should the contractor fail to do this when ordered, it will be done by the Engineer at the contractor's expense.

19. The iron is to be English or Canadian refined iron subject to approval. The bolts must be of the full specified sizes and lengths and well pointed, with heads upset out of the solid to one and a half times the size of the bolt. The holes must be bored with an auger equal in diameter to the size of the bolt to be driven in them, and the depth of the hole must not exceed two-thirds of the length of the bolt.

20. The weight of all bolts is to be ascertained by weighing any number the Engineer may direct, and taking the average.

21. The cribs are to be sunk and allowed to settle into their beds before any concrete is deposited in them, and no concrete is to be placed or masonry begun until the Engineer has given permission in writing.

22. The cribs are not on any account to be sunk until the Engineer has examined the foundation and given his permission. Great care must be taken in sinking the cribs that they are kept perfectly in line with the ends close together: any space between them is to be filled with piling of any thickness necessary, the cost of which must be borne by the contractor, and will be considered as included in schedule price of the cribwork.

23. A toeing of heavy stone equal to one-third of a cubic yard per foot run of the wall is to be placed at the foot of the cribwork in the tidal harbour if ordered.

Masonry.

24. The masonry is to be in regular courses laid in Portland cement mortar. The beds and vertical joints are to be dressed so as to form quarter-inch joints, the vertical joints being dressed back square at least 12 inches. The beds are to be perfectly parallel throughout. The face is to be dressed in the same way as that of the "Princess Louise Embankment." The vertical joints are to overlap those in the course below at least 10 inches.

25. The first course of masonry is to be 3 feet in height, and up to the level of 16 feet above datum the remaining courses are not to be less than 2 feet in height: above that level they are not to be less than 1 foot 6 inches in height. The courses are to be arranged so as to decrease in height gradually upwards.

26. Stretchers are not to be less than 4 feet or more than 6 feet in length, and in courses which are 2 feet or more in height, they are to have beds of at least once and a-half their rise. In courses less than 2 feet in height they are to have beds of not less than 3 feet.

27. Headers are to have a face in the line of the wall at least equal to their height and are to run back two and a-half times their rise, except that in courses over 2 feet 6 inches in height they need not exceed but must not be less than  $6\frac{1}{2}$  feet in length and that in courses under 2 feet they are not to be less than 5 feet in length. In all cases they must hold their width so as to be at least 18 inches wide at the tail.

28. The concrete laid in the cribs is to be carried up to the level of 6 inches above datum, and beds for the face stones of the bottom course of masonry are to be cut in it.

29. The coping is to be 6 feet wide and 18 inches thick, the stones being 3 feet by 6 feet on the beds, and laid alternately as headers and stretchers, as shown on the drawing to be furnished the outer arris being rounded off to a radius of 3 inches. The whole of the exposed faces are to be dressed equal to rough bouchard work. The backs of the copings are to be rough punched and the stones must hold to the full scantlings throughout. V grooves are to be cut in the vertical points for 9 inches up from the beds to form cement joggles 3 inches square and small holes are to be cut in the joints over the joggles for grouting in neat Portland cement. The joints are to be "lipped" for 4 inches in from all exposed faces with one to one cement mortar pointed and key-drawn while green.

30. The backing of the quay walls will consist either of ordinary masonry or Portland cement concrete as the Commissioners may hereafter decide.

31. If of masonry, the backing is to consist of large, well-shaped stones not less than 9 inches in thickness, and not more than two courses of backing will be allowed to each course of face work. The beds and joints must be rough dressed so as to form joints not exceeding 1 inch. No pinning will be allowed which will raise a stone from its bed. Headers are not to be more than 6 feet apart or less than 5 feet in length, and care must be taken that they are so laid as to form perfect bond of at least 9 inches throughout the thickness of the wall.

32. The walls of the entrance channel and caisson chamber will be wholly of masonry from the foundations. The masonry will correspond in all respects as to dressing &c., to that specified for the quay walls. Below datum level courses of not less than 2 feet will be allowed in the channel walls, but above datum they must correspond in thickness with the courses in the quay walls. The courses in the walls of the caisson chamber for its whole height may be of any thickness not less than 18 inches.

33. In the inverts each stone must be of the exact shape and dimensions shown in the drawings to be furnished hereafter. All the stones are to be jointed in for at least 12 inches in depth from both the exposed faces, and all such joints are to be full, square, and finally dressed throughout the entire inverts, so as to ensure the whole being perfectly water-tight. All joint faces, before being brought together, are to have a wash of Portland cement, and the joints for 3 inches in all round are to be jointed with neat cement grout and rammed hard until quite solid: small grooves are to be cut in the tops of the joint faces to facilitate grouting and ramming up, and the whole of the face joints are to be neatly pointed up while green. All the invert stones of the entrance are to be from 3 to 4 feet in height on their vertical, and from 3 to 4 feet in width on their horizontal faces with the joints radiated to break joint with the concrete and with each other at least 12 inches. The face of the entrance invert is to be worked to a curve of 150 feet radius, and that of the caisson chamber invert to a curve 28 feet radius.

34. The projecting faces of the invert and caisson stop quoins of the entrance against which the caisson will slide and abut is to project  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an inch for a full width of 12 inches all round the quoins. The projecting faces are to be set to a true plane and will afterwards be fine axed, rubbed down and polished by men in the employ and at the cost of the Commissioners under the direction of the Engineer.

35. All exposed faces of invert stones, copings and quoins are to be dressed off equal to rough bouchard work having arrises of all copings rounded and fine axed to a radius of 3 inches and invert stones to a radius of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inch.

36. All the quoins of the caisson stops are to be jointed in square to the face lines and are to be dressed, bedded, jointed, pointed up and finished off as specified for the invert stones.

37. The top or finishing quoins forming part of the copings at the entrance and caisson stops are to be extra sized of the various forms shown, accurately fitted and firmly bedded in place, jointed, pointed, run up solid and finished off as specified, for the other copings.

38. There are to be six regulating culverts extending through the embankment. The heads are to be formed as shown in the drawing. The walls are to be of first-class masonry, similar to that specified for the quay walls except that the courses may be 12 inches in thickness. The beds of the stones in the division walls are to be of the full thickness of the wall. The side walls will be 3 feet thick and the headers must extend through from front to back. The covering stones are not to be less than 18 inches in thickness.

39. The corbels supporting the chain paths are to be 2 feet 6 inches in length by 1 foot in width and 1 foot 6 inches in depth, built 1 foot 6 inches into the upper side walls of the caisson chamber, and projecting 1 foot beyond the face line and having the arrises on their under sides rounded off to a radius of 6 inches.

40. The stones forming the chain paths are to be 4 feet 6 inches in length by 2 feet in width and 1 ft. in thickness, tailed 6 inches into the masonry of the side walls and jointed over centres of corbels. V grooves 6 inches in depth are to be cut in the joints of the stones to form holes 3 inches square, and dowels run up solid with neat Portland cement.

41. The wall stones to which the chain rollers are to be attached are each to be 4 feet by 2 feet by 2 feet, and holes are to be sunk through the same for six 1-inch diameter bolts. All the stones are to be built into the side walls.

42. The bed stones for the girders over the caisson chamber are to be 6 feet in length, 18 inches in breadth and 14 inches in depth, firmly laid.

43. The stone used in all parts of the work (except the quoins of the caisson berth and the inner quoins of the inverts or the quoins and hollow quoins for gates, which are to be granite) will be limestone from St. Vincent de Paul, Terrebonne, Radnor Forges, St. Maurice, or other quarries approved by the Engineer. The stones are to be sound and free from all powder shakes, vents, faults, and imperfections of every kind, and in all cases they are to be laid on their natural beds.

44. Every stone is to be laid in a full bed of mortar and beaten solid with a wooden beetle weighing not less than 50 lbs. The face joints are to have a 4-inch lipping of 1 to 1 cement mortar and are to be key-drawn and flushed up while green. The vertical joints are to be flushed up solid and every course must be perfectly level throughout and thoroughly grouted. In dry weather the wall must be kept wet.

45. No masonry is to be laid, or concrete put in, between 1st of November and 1st of May without special permission from the Engineer, which may be again withdrawn at five hours' notice.

46. Fenders 12 inches square, chamfered on the outer corners, are to be placed on the face of the masonry of the quay walls and entrance channel and secured to it by foxtailed screw bolts of galvanized iron 1 inch in diameter drilled into the masonry. The fenders are to be 26 feet long and are to have six bolts in each. The nuts and washers are to be countersunk and plugged.

47. There are to be also four rows of chocks 9 inches by 10 inches, chamfered on the outer corners. They are to be fitted tightly between the fenders and secured with similar bolts  $\frac{7}{8}$  inch in the diameter, three in each chock. The timber in the fenders and chocks is to be white pine.

Concrete and Mortar.

48. Concrete is to be composed of six parts by measure of sand and stone in the proportion of one of the former to five of the latter, and one part of Portland cement, but the proportions of sand to stone may be altered from time to time at the discretion of the Engineer without extra cost.

49. The concrete is to be mixed by hand on a platform of three inch deals tongued and grooved, laid close and made water tight. The materials are to be turned over twice dry, and water is then to be gradually added through a fine rose-headed nozzle until the concrete is of a proper consistency. The concrete is to be turned over twice during the process of watering. It is then to be immediately wheeled into the works and rammed solidly against and round all timber work or masonry, and flushed up with thick grout whenever it may be found necessary, to ensure water-tight work. All unfinished surfaces of concrete during progress are to be left rough and are to receive a spread of grout as each layer of concrete is added, and all cavities are to be filled up solid with grout. The moulds are to be kept at least 12 inches higher than the concrete as the work proceeds.

50. The price per cubic yard of concrete is to include the cost of providing, fixing and removing all the necessary moulds, screens, planking, &c., the whole of which are to be completed, screwed up and adjusted before commencing the concrete work, and care must be taken to preserve accurately all lines and batters.

51. If the Engineer shall so direct all concretes laid under water are to be partially set before being put in place in order to prevent the cement being washed out. It is to be lowered in skips or boxes, or in such other way as the Engineer may direct, and carefully filled in close to the piles and planking and round the intersecting timbers of the crib-work, so as to make perfectly solid work, free from all cavities and defects.

52. Mortar is to be composed of two parts by measure of clean, sharp, moderately coarse sand to one part of Portland cement, with the exception of that for lipping the face joints, which is to be made of one part of sand to one of cement.

53. Grout will be made by adding water to well-tempered mortar until it is of a consistency to run freely.

54. The cement to be used throughout the works is to be Portland, of the best quality, finely ground, and must pass through a sieve of 2,500 meshes to the square inch, without leaving more than 20 per cent. of its bulk as residue, or through a sieve of 1,600 meshes to the square inch without leaving more than 10 per cent. of its bulk as residue, and must weight not less than 112 lbs. to the Imperial struck bushel, or 87½ lbs. per cubic foot. It shall be deposited upon the works at least one month before it is required for use, and at least two tests shall be made, one at the time of delivery of the cement and another on the tenth day after delivery, or at such other times as the Engineer may direct. The tests are to be made from samples taken from every twenty-fifth bushel. After having been mixed and cast in moulds, as directed, they shall remain in the open air for twelve hours and then be immersed in water for seven days at the end of which time if every five samples do not bear an average tensile strain of 600 lbs. avoirdupois (the minimum being 450 lbs.) to a section  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inch by  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inch, the cement will be condemned and must be removed from the works and premises of the Commissioners by and at the cost of the contractor.

55. The ballast for the concretes is to be clean broken stone, free from all impurities and of a quality to be approved by the Engineer. The stone must be broken into sharp angular fragments not larger than will pass freely through a 2-inch ring.

56. The sand for the concrete and mortar is to be perfectly clean, sharp and moderately coarse, washed free from all impurities.

57. All concretes and other mixtures will be rejected unless deposited and used in the works immediately after they are made, or within a reasonable time in the opinion of the Engineer. Before the concrete is laid in the trenches or over the area of any foundations on dry ground or below water, all mud, slush, soft ground, &c., must be removed down to the solid surface. The sides of excavations are to be carefully protected, so as to prevent loose earth or other materials from falling into and injuring the concrete, and if, owing to the presence of springs, &c., it shall appear to the Engineer to be necessary, the foundation shall be covered with canvas, tarred or plain, before the concrete is laid.

58. All the foregoing compounds are to be mixed under strict inspection, and the contractor or his foreman is to give notice to the Engineer of his intention to begin such work, in default of which the Engineer or Inspector will reject any concretes or mortars mixed without inspection, and the contractor must remove the same from the premises.

59. The contractor shall at any time mix for the inspection of the Engineer any concretes or mortars which he may require, and in such quantities as he may order, and shall subject the same to any tests the Engineer may consider necessary to determine their quality; and shall provide at his own cost all the labor, tools, materials, moulds, boxes and other appliances required for making such tests.

60. When masonry or concrete is laid by "tide work," operations are to be suspended at such a time before the water reaches the work as the Engineer may think is necessary to allow the cement to set properly.

61. The sheds for storing cement are to be wind and water tight, with shingle roofs and dry, elevated floors. They are to be of sufficient capacity to store enough cement for two months' work and to place it under cover immediately on its arrival at the works.

Facing of Wharves.

62. The facing of the present wharves will be formed of either two rows of sheet piling or of one row of sheet piling and a casing of 3-inch deals spiked to the wharf, as may be found necessary.

63. The space between the outer and inner rows of sheet piling or between the former and the wharf is to be dredged by bag or spoon to the depth of 18 feet below datum, and filled with concrete and clay puddle as the Engineer shall direct.

64. Where necessary sheeting will be driven to the depth of 20 feet below datum along the face of the wharves to prevent undermining.

65. The gauge piles in the front row are to be 12 inches square, in two lengths of 18 and 35 feet, joined by a scarf 5 feet long bolted as shown, and driven to 25 feet below datum; and the sheeting 8 inches thick, not less than 8 inches wide and driven to a depth of  $22\frac{1}{2}$  feet below datum. The sheeting will be in lengths of 19, 21, 24 and 26 feet. The gauge piles in the back row are to be 10 inches square and 42 feet long; the sheeting is to be 6 inches thick, not less than 7 inches wide, and driven to 18 feet below datum.

66. The walings are to be 6 inches by 12 inches in length, of not less than 23 feet, breaking joints and joined by scarfs 3 feet long fastened with two  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch screw bolts. The walings are to be let on to the gauge piles 2 inches and are to be fastened to them with 1 inch screw bolts.

67. Any piles not properly driven or twisted or split in driving are to be drawn out and others driven in their places.

68. The caps are to be 12 inches square and secured to the piles by tenons, bolts or in any other way the Engineer may direct.

69. All timber in the gauge piles, sheeting piles, caps, braces, walings or other part of the work, the whole or any part of which is above datum, is to be white pine, perfectly sound, straight and free from all defects; and all butts, scarfs, crossings and intersections are to have a coat of Stockholm tar before being put together.

70. The iron in the screw bolts and tie rods is to be best English or Canadian refined. The screw bolts must be  $2\frac{1}{2}$  inches longer than the wood length measured from the inside of the head. The screw is to be equal in diameter at the bottom of the threads to the diameter of the bolt on which it is cut. The head and nut must be equal in thickness to  $1\frac{1}{2}$  diameter of the bolt and in width to  $1\frac{3}{4}$  diameter. The washers are to be equal in diameter to four diameters of the bolt, and in thickness to half a diameter. The holes must not be bored with an auger larger than the bolt.

71. All castings are to be of tough grey metal, and free from sand, honeycomb, or porous places, air holes and other defects, and delivered on the works without being painted, stopped or plugged in any part, otherwise they will be condemned.

72. All ironwork after being examined and passed is immediately to receive one coat of red lead and oil, and two additional coats on all exposed parts when fixed.

73. The mooring posts, if of timber, are to be white pine, 18 inches square and 12 feet long; above the level of the Quay they are to be worked to an octagonal shape and faced with moulded cheeks of tamarac. The tops are to be neatly rounded off and covered with cast iron caps. They are to be inserted and wedged up in sockets of 3 inch pine or cedar planking built into the quay wall, and are to have 4 inch triangular fillets round them at the level of the coping.

74. If the Engineer shall so direct cast iron mooring posts of the same pattern as those in the "Graving Dock, Lévis," are to be substituted for those of timber.

75. Should the method of closing the entrance by caisson be adhered to, the completed caisson berth will be handed over by the Engineer whenever he may deem fit to the contractors for the caisson or any parties whom the Commissioner may employ to construct or erect the caisson. This portion of the work is to be kept free from all obstructions and is to be in readiness for handing over to the caisson contractors at the end of the second year from the date of the contract, and the contractor is bound to keep the site entirely free from water during the time the caisson is in hand. Every care will be taken by the Engineers to ensure the fitting of the caisson against the meeting faces at its first flotation and trial, and at its second flotation and trial against the inner stop face, but should a fit not be made in two trials, the contractors for the main work will be bound to clear the whole of the entrance works of water, and keep them clear as many times as may be found necessary. For this pumping he will be paid by the hour at the price named in the schedule.

76. Should the method of closing the entrance by gates be adopted, the conditions in the above clause are to be binding so far as they are applicable to the altered construction.

77. The contractor is to provide, set up, fix, work and keep in repair all hand, steam or any other power or appliances for pumping, baling or raising the water, and keeping the entrance works perfectly free and clear of water, whether the same be caused by ordinary rainfall, snow, ice, high tides, floods, springs, fissures, soaks, percolations, leaks or otherwise, or by the bursting in of the coffer-dams, or any other dams, or by any other contingency whatsoever, and he will be held responsible for all damages arising from such causes. He is to lay down pumping power to the extent of 50 per cent. more than may be found absolutely necessary for keeping the entrance works dry, and he is to provide all enginemen, drivers, stokers, fuel, oil, waste and other labor, stores and materials requisite for the proper working of the machinery.

78. The whole of the surface of the quay is to be laid to such levels, inclinations and falls as may be directed by the Engineer, and is to be coated with metalling consisting of 8 inches of large sized broken stone of approved quality, finished off with 4 inches of small stone, gravel or other approved material.

79. Any roads, streets or pathways leading to the works are, if cut up or damaged by the contractor, to be repaired and kept in repair by him and delivered up at the completion of the works in as good condition as he found them, the Engineer being the judge.

80. The rates and prices named in the schedule will be held to be rigidly inclusive of the providing of all service grounds, and free access thereto, together with the entire cost of all labor, materials, tools, vessels, plant and machinery, and every other contingency connected with the work.

81. Before erecting coffer-dams, moulds for concrete, or any other important temporary work, the contractor shall submit plans thereof for the approval of the Engineer, or the Engineer may furnish plans for such works, but such approval or furnishing of plans shall not in any way relieve the contractor from his responsibility for the efficiency and maintenance of such works.

82. No work of any kind is to be commenced until the foundations have been examined and approved by the Engineer and permission given to begin work.

83. The work must be executed throughout in a substantial and workmanlike manner, strictly in accordance with the specification and such drawings and instructions as may be furnished by the Engineer during the progress of the works and to his full satisfaction, and no alterations in or deviations from any drawings or specifications are to be made without his written authority.

84. The contractor is to assume and make good at his own cost any damage that may happen to the works either from gales, storms, scour, settlement, fire, ice, or any other cause whatsoever up to their final completion and acceptance by the Engineer.

85. No tender will be considered unless made on the printed forms, with the blanks in the tender and schedule properly filled up.

86. Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted bank cheque for $7,500 made payable to the Hon. the Minister of Public Works of Canada, and the party to whom the contract is awarded must be prepared to deposit as security with the Hon. the Minister a sum of which the $7,500 will form part equal to 5 per cent. of the estimated amount of the contract, which sum will be forfeited if the contractor fails to complete the work. If any party tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so the cheque accompanying his tender will be forfeited: if the tender is not accepted the cheque will be returned.

87. Ninety per cent. only of the progress estimates will be paid until the final completion and acceptance of the works, and no part will be finally accepted or taken off the contractor's hands until the whole is completed to the satisfaction of the Engineer.

88. The works are to be commenced as soon as the person or persons whose tender is accepted shall have entered into a contract for their execution, and must be proceeded with in such a manner as will ensure their completion within three years from the date of the contract.

SECOND REPORT OF THE ENGINEERS.

(ESQUIMALT GRAVING DOCK.)

HOUSE OF COMMONS, OTTAWA, 7th August, 1891.

To the Chairman and Members of the Select Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections.

GENTLEMEN,—In compliance with instructions contained in the undernoted Resolutions of your Committee, we beg respectfully to submit the following statement setting forth the result of our examination into the matters therein referred to.

ESQUIMALT GRAVING DOCK CONTRACT.

At the suggestion of Mr. Osler, Q.C., it was resolved :

That it be referred to the Engineers to ascertain and report on the Esquimalt Graving Dock, as follows :

1. As to the changes made in the plans for the said works.
2. As to the changes made in the execution of the works ; and
3. As to the cost of the several changes made.

The contract for the completion of the Graving Dock at Esquimalt was awarded to Messrs. Larkin, Connolly and Company, and a contract was duly executed between them and the Honourable the Minister of Public Works on the 8th November, 1884.

The dock was designed and the contract provides for the construction of invert and a caisson berth at the head of the dock, in anticipation at some future date of an extension of the dock. Representations having been made, that owing to the increasing size of vessels trading on the adjacent waters, as well as the size of the newer ships of war of Her Majesty's Navy, the new dock would soon be found inefficient—a Memorandum dated the 21st January, 1885, was submitted to the Honourable Minister of Public Works by the Chief Engineer relating to the size of steamers plying on the Atlantic Ocean, and some of the ships of the Royal Navy. In this Memorandum the Chief Engineer recommends the removal of the projected works for a second entrance, and the extension of the dock, as follows:—"As before stated, the works for a second entrance at the head of the dock are, and will remain, useless, and if the dock bottom were carried out, and these works abolished, a further length of 50 feet would be obtained within the limits of the present contract at an additional expense of, say—$35,000, or a total of $410,000."

This recommendation was adopted by Order in Council dated 3rd February, 1885 (Exhibit "R4.")

The works at the head of the dock were thus altered by the substitution of a circular head (having a radius of 26 feet), in lieu of the invert and caisson berth originally designed, thereby lengthening the side walls and increasing the length of the dock 50 feet, and making the total length 430 feet. The plans for this alteration were sent to the Dominion Government Agent, the Honourable J. W. Trutch, by the Chief Engineer on the 4th May, 1885, letter No. 13538 (Exhibit .)

Shortly after the commencement of the work, the contractors submitted to the Honourable J. W. Trutch, a plan showing a proposed alteration at the head of the dock, along with three other plans, showing (1) proposed change in drip of dock floor from 1 in 370 to 1 in 400; (2) in masonry of outer invert; (3) in details of ashlar in main culvert in dock floor; all of which were submitted to the Chief Engineer. The alterations proposed by the three last named plans, were approved of and ordered by the Chief Engineer, in his letter to Honourable J. W. Trutch, dated 16th April, 1885, No. 13416 (Exhibit "Q5"). The plans for the re-coursing of the ashlar, were approved of and ordered on the 4th May, 1885, by letter No. 13537 (Exhibit "Z5"). In permitting the change to be made, the Chief Engineer wrote as follows:

"DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS,
"OTTAWA, 4th May, 1885.

"SIR,—I write in confirmation of the following message sent to you to-day. 'Telegram received; Minister authorizes you to permit contractors to build work with stone of increased sizes as proposed by themselves, they to be made aware that this permission is merely acceding to their request and not ordering them to make the change.'

"Your long message of the 2nd, I laid before Sir Hector, together with my telegrams of the 16th and 20th April, and letters in confirmation of same, and the above telegram was sent to you at his request.

"I am of the opinion that the contractors should have preferred their request in writing before being permitted to change the courses, but as they have not done so, but have informally applied here for permission to do so, it has been granted to them, and I will inform them here of this decision of the Minister, and that no extra payment will be made to them on account of this change.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"HENRY F. PERLEY.
"Chief Engineer."

"Hon. J. W. TRUTCH, C.M.G.,
"Dominion Agent, Victoria, B.C."

The contractors were duly informed of these changes and served with copies of the plans, and notified that no extra payment would be allowed for the increased size of stones or their substitution for concrete (See Exhibit "A6," Hon. J. W. Trutch to Chief Engineer).

In September, 1885, the contractors made a claim for extra payment for the extra size of the stone used in the re-coursing of the dock, which was referred to the Honourable Minister of Public Works, and assented to by him as per telegram of Chief Engineer to Hon. J. W. Trutch, dated 25th January, 1886, No. 19710 (Exhibit "C 6") confirmatory letter of same date (Exhibit "D 6").

"28th January, 1886.

"SIR,—I write in confirmation of the following telegram, sent you to-day:—'Minister directs contractors shall be paid for full quantity of stone in dock, of caisson recess and full measurement on all stones. Letter by mail.'

"I have to inform you that the Minister has directed that the contractors, Messrs. Larkin, Connolly & Co., shall be paid full measurement for all stone they have placed in the dock at Esquimalt, these directions specially applying to the increase in the sizes of the stone needed by the contractors and rendered necessary by the change made in re-coursing the work, and they will also apply to the full size of altar coping as it exists in the work. All special stones are to be measured fairly and liberally, and their sizes are not to be affected by an arris, a nosing, a check or groove, &c.

"I have also to inform you that the substitution of stone in lieu of brick in the caisson recess has been approved, and the contractors are to be paid their masonry prices therefor. This will also apply to the masonry about the pump-wells.

"Of course, this increase in the measurement of the stone will decrease the quantity of concrete.

"Yours obediently,

"HENRY F. PERLEY,

"Chief Engineer.

"Hon. J. W. TRUTCH, C.M.G.

"Dominion Government Agent,
"Victoria, B.C."

1st. The changes made in the plans of works consist of:

1. Abolition of the inverts and caisson berth and other works as shown on contract plan, and the substitution therefor, of a circular masonry and concrete wall at the head of the dock.

2. Alteration in the dimensions of the stones used for the altars and walls of the dock.

3. Alteration in the drip of the floor of the dock.

4. Alteration of details at mouth of main culvert in dock floor; and masonry of outer invert.

2nd. The changes made in the execution of the works consist of:

1. Construction of a circular head to the dock.

2. Increase in dimensions of stones of altars and walls.

3. Alteration in the drip line of the dock floor.

4. In details of the mouth of the main culvert in the floor.

5. Radiated work at outer end of outer invert.

6. The construction of the caisson chamber in masonry instead of brickwork.

In evidence, Mr. Perley refers to the extra work incurred in construction of the engine house chimney and the readjustment of the centre line of the dock, entailing the removal of work already executed, and thereby adding considerably to the cost. A very considerable increase was also caused by the quantity of rock taken out in dock berth, and which was not anticipated at the time the contract was let; of this we are unable to make an estimate of the increased cost, as the necessary information therefor is not in our possession.

Concerning the change above referred to, we find, by reference to original and final estimates, the approximate cost to be as under:

The cost of the circular head, as measured from the plans, amounts to.....	39,532

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE THE SELECT STANDING COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC ACCOUNTS, RESPECTING THE PAYMENTS MADE BY THE DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR FOR EXTRA SERVICES.

COMMITTEE ROOM, WEDNESDAY, 8th July, 1891.

Committee met, Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

M. J. LORN McDOUGALL, Auditor General, called and examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

1. Do you know a person by the name of Low in the Department of the Interior?—I know one person by that name.

2. A. P. Low?—Yes.

3. Was he promoted recently?—He was appointed recently to the permanent staff.

4. Was there not some trouble about his appointment?—Well, yes; there was some delay about it.

5. What caused the delay?—He had been paid out of the outside vote—the vote to which those cheques are charged for which you asked—and my view of the law was, at the time, that the clause in the Civil Service Act under which an extra clerk could be appointed to the permanent staff at his average salary for the last two years did not apply to persons employed as Mr. Low was, and I objected to his being placed on the permanent staff. I may say this, that there was an appeal from my decision to the Treasury Board, as in all such cases, and I was over ruled. I may say also that my opinion, after thinking over the matter, is that the view I first took is wrong. My view at first was that the only persons entitled to the privilege of being appointed to the permanent staff were the extra clerks paid out of the Civil Service contingencies.

By Mr. Foster :

6. As being in the service before 1882?—Yes; this matter is perhaps a little complicated to people giving it attention for the first time. The Civil Service Act says that any person who is in the service before July, 1882, would be exempt from examination, and could be appointed at the average salary for the last two years, that is, appointed to a permanent position—I took it that this clause did not apply to persons not paid out of Civil Government Contingencies. The Treasury Board overruled my view, and in that I believe now the Treasury Board were right. Under the view that I took at first those persons who are employed and paid out of this vote were not subject to any of the restrictions of the Civil Service Act—that is to say, they could be paid any salary the Government choose to pay, provided there was the appropriation. You are aware that the persons paid out of Civil Government Contingencies cannot be paid, except for special service, more than $400 a year, but I think that Parliament, in making a special vote to pay for extra clerks outside gave to the Government the right to pay to such persons any remuneration that the Government pleased, and to keep them as long as they desired. It was in that way that I objected to Mr. Low being made a permanent clerk, as I did not think the clause in the Civil Service Act applied to such cases as his.

By Mr. Somerville :

7. Mr. Low occupies the position to which he was appointed?—He does now

By Mr. Bowell :

8. You state, Mr. McDougall, that the Treasury Board's action was based on the opinion of the Minister of Justice?—That is always so; that is part of the law. The Minister of Justice always gives an opinion before the Treasury Board can overrule the decision of the Auditor.

9. The Civil Service Act also provides, does it not, that a person continuously in the employ of the Government since 1882 can be placed on the permanent list under that decision at the salary he was receiving at the time?—Yes; his average salary for the last two years.

10. And not the minimum salary, $400?—No; of course, under that decision of the Treasury Board every extra clerk, as long as he is paid as an extra clerk, must be paid equal to $400, unless he came in before 1882.

Mr. J. A. PINARD called and examined :

By Mr. Somerville :

11. What position do you occupy in the Department of the Interior?—Accountant.

12. You have the attendance books in connection with your Department, have you not?—Yes, sir.

13. This is it, is it not? (Identifying book.)—This is the one in connection with my branch—the Accountant's staff.

14. Are those all the employes you have under you whose names appear here?—Yes; all that were on the pay-list; those who are receiving monthly salaries.

15. And the outside vote?—Yes, sir; they are included—the extra clerks as well as the permanent officers.

16. And they all sign this book?—Certainly—that is, the clerks, any of those you have in this list. Some get monthly salaries and others get pay for work which is done outside.

17. Those that get pay for work done outside are not in your charge?—They do not sign the books.

18. Do they sign any books?—I am not aware that they sign any books.

19. Who keeps account of their work?—That is done in other offices of the Department; not in my office.

20. Do you know in what office the account is kept?—The accounts, as far as the moneys which are paid out, are kept with me.

21. No; I mean the work?—It depends on the nature of the work that is done.

22. Copying work?—Most of the copying is done under Mrs. Lee.

23. It is sometimes done by the hour?—That is extra work. Extra work is given to officers who are paid monthly; of course, where extra work is mentioned the names should appear in some of the books as extra work. It is given to officers who are working under salary; but there is also extra work, such as copying, given to people entirely outside of the staff.

24. Then the man who does extra work ought to have his name in some of the attendance books?—I should think so. Extra work is given, in addition to the ordinary salary received, for work performed after hours.

25. Do you know a man in the Department named Joseph Wright?—I do not know Joseph Wright.

26. Do you see his name here? "Extra work, 475 hours, at 50 cents." That is at page 34-B of the Auditor General's Report. Do you not know Joseph Wright?—No; I do not know Joseph Wright.

27. You ought to know who are in the employ of the Department in that branch?—I must say that some of them I have never spoken to. I have seen the name on the list, but I do not know all the officers. I know my own staff, of course. That is a case out of the regular routine.

28. It is extra work, is it not?—That is true.

29. You do not know this man at all, Mr. Pinard?—No, sir.

30. Have you never heard of him?—Certainly I have heard of him this way, the accounts come through my office.

31. Who certifies to the work that he does, or his attendance in the Department, extra work, at so much per hour?—The accounts would come to me in the usual way. After I receive the account a cheque is issued from my office after the account is approved.

32. It is difficult for me to know how these things are done, and I am somewhat in the dark. I must depend on you to enlighten me?—I will explain to you how the accounts are paid, and then you can deduce from that, so as to arrive at a conclusion. That account will be paid through the Accountant's office, as all the accounts are paid. The account is filed in the Department, certified and approved. That is the rule for all accounts. They are certified outside of my office entirely.

33. Certified by whom?—All accounts that are paid are supposed to be certified by the party who knows the work to have been done; they are then approved by the Deputy.

34. Who signs the cheque then?—I sign the cheque after the account comes to me. You will find all the cheques there have been signed by me, unless some of them have been signed in my absence by the Assistant Accountant.

35. Here is a cheque made to the order of Joseph Wright?—That is signed by me and Mr. Hall. I would presume that in that special case the account has been approved by Mr. Hall, as he signed the cheque. It may have been approved by Mr. Burgess. There is a standing rule in my office; of course there may be exceptions, and there were some years ago; but within the last year or so all the accounts that have been paid have been certified and approved. I do not go any further than that in paying accounts.

36. It is not your business to examine the account?—Not at all. The moment I get an account certified and approved it is my duty to issue the cheque.

37. Of course you could not identify this as Joseph Wright's signature, because you do not know the man?—Not at all.

38. Do you know a Miss Nellie Myers in the Department?—I know there is a young lady of that name.

39. She is credited with having worked 240 days at $1.50 a day, and received $363. Do you know her?—Miss Nellie Myers, as far as my memory tells me—in the statement I made a few minutes ago—this name brings a matter up in connection with it. There may be some accounts, and I think this is one of them, where clerical work is done by persons who do not sign the book, but who render their monthly accounts.

40. Who do not sign the attendance book?—Yes; and who render monthly accounts. In that case the account would come in in the same way as the others, certified and approved.

41. Would that work be done in the offices of the Department?—I could not say that.

42. Where would Miss Nellie Myers be working during that time? Would she not be required to be in the office?—That I do not know; I never saw her.

43. Do you know a Miss Jane Hay?—No; I do not.

44. Do you know a Miss A. Duhamel?—No; I do not. I may have seen Miss Duhamel; I think I did see her in the Department.

By Mr. Bowell :

45. Do I understand you to say that the parties that are on the regular staff sign the book if they do extra work at night?—I did not mean that; I did not intend that my expression should give you that understanding. There were a few cases like that of Miss Myers', who did not sign the attendance book.

46. I am not speaking of that point at all. You stated that there were parties on the permanent staff who did extra work by the hour, and their names should be in the book?—We have two classes of employés, the permanent officials, who are paid out of Civil Government, and those who are paid out of Dominion Lands Income. These are the extra clerks.

47. What I want the Committee to understand is this: is it necessary in the case of a permanent clerk doing extra work after hours, and who is paid extra for it that he should sign the attendance book at any other time than in the morning when he comes?—All that I know is that all the clerks sign the attendance book.

48. But if a man ends his employment of the regular day's work at 4 o'clock, and after dinner, say, he is engaged for three hours, does he sign the book in the evening?—He only signs the attendance book in the morning.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

49. What hours do they sign the attendance book?—Generally half-past nine. That is the hour it should be signed.

50. How long does it remain open for signature?—Until ten o'clock.

51. At ten o'clock what do you do with it?—The book is put away.

By Mr. Somerville :

52. They are all apparently very regular in their attendance.—The book speaks for itself. I am as careful as possible in seeing the attendance is kept up.

53. You do not know Mr. Wright?—No.

Mr. A. M. BURGESS called and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

54. Do you know why Mr. Wright is not here, Mr. Burgess?—Yes; I can tell you. I am glad to have the opportunity to tell the Committee just exactly what there is in this Wright matter, because I can clearly see for one thing that Mr. Pinard did not quite understand some of the questions put to him. He was asked, for instance, whether all these people signed the attendance book, and he replied that they did. I ought to state to the Committee that for a number of years past a large number of people have been working for the Department, particularly in 1885, 1886 and 1887, for whom I could not find any accommodation in the Government building. As it stands at present, one-half of the staff is at present located over the Bank of Ottawa—the technical branch—and nearly all the extra work done in the Department has been done outside. It has been taken by people to their own homes, and the work counted by Mrs. Lee or the officer under whose superintendence it is performed, and certified to by the officers who examine it. It is paid for sometimes at so much per hour, sometimes per folio, dependant on the nature of the work to be done. If it was copying at so much per folio; the person who gave it out would see that the work was properly done and certify to it; if at so much per hour, the chief clerk or other responsible officer under whom the work was done would also certify the account after which I would approve, as the Accountant has explained. It is then sent to the Accountant who would draw the cheque, which would be signed by himself and by me, or in my absence by the Acting Deputy.

By Mr. Foster :

55. When you pay at so much per hour how do you count the hour?—That must be done under supervision in a private room. The history of the Joseph Wright case in this: In 1883, when I became Deputy Minister of the Interior, I found that no account had been kept of the scrip, military bounty and mounted police warrants issued from time to time, nor had any account been kept of these warrants and scrip which had been paid into the Department in payment for land. I called the attention of the Accountant, Mr. Pinard, who received his appointment at the same time as myself, to this state of matters, and said to him I thought that we should open a book of accounts in regard to scrip and warrants, exactly the same as if they were cash. He concurred in this view, and immediately opened such a book, or rather, set of books. I told him at the same time that I thought the whole of the work of the past in regard to this particular matter should be examined and the accounts brought up to date. Several years elapsed when Mr. Pinard reported to me that he had not sufficient staff to overtake this work, which was naturally very onerous, from the beginning up to the 1st of July, 1883. The Honourable Thomas White was then Minister of Interior. I discussed the subject with him, and suggested that one of two things should be done: either that an expert accountant should be employed from outside to go into the work from the beginning, or that some one in the employ of the Department, competent to do the work, should be given it as a special job. He asked which I thought would be the most satisfactory, and at the same time the most economical, mode of doing the work; to which I replied that in my opinion some clerk in the Accountant's office, or in the office of the Chief Clerk of Patents where the information was to be found, should be appointed to do the work as either of them would know the routine of the Department better than an outsider. He asked me whom I thought would be the best person to employ, and told me to look and see and select the man whom in my judgment was best fitted for the work. After a time we decided that H. H. Turner, a third-class clerk in the Accountant's office, and a man getting a small salary, would be the best man for the work. I told Mr. White that I thought it would take some years to do this work, and meantime it was necessary to arrive at some understanding as to how the man should be paid. Fifty cents an hour was what was allowed for extra work, and Mr. White and myself agreed that Turner could not in any case earn more than the maximum salary of the class to which he belonged. The question arose as to how he was to be paid, and I mentioned that in the Post Office Department and the Finance Department at the end of the year certain permanent clerks are allowed the opportunity to earn something extra by making computations and other work necessary to the speedy closing of the accounts, and I said I would find out how these were paid. I do not remember whether I did or not, but the conclusion we arrived at was, that in reference to this work, especially that which he could do at his own house, Turner would need assistance. The idea was that he would take his facts and figures out of the books in rough form, and then get them out at his own house. His wife was a clever woman; she had been a school teacher in Ontario. I do not know whether the suggestion came from Mr. White or not, but for a number of years it was going on with the consent of Mr. White, or the chief clerk of the Department, that this money was to be for Mr. Turner's benefit, because he was the one who did the work. Turner had the misfortune to lose his wife, and then the account was put in the name of a friend. I did not know of that change for a considerable time after it took place, but I did know in course of time that it was done.

By Mr. Foster :

56. It was in the name of his wife while she lived?—Yes.

By Mr. Somerville :

57. What was her name?—I do not know.

58. How long is it since she died?—I do not know really what was the wife's name. She had a sister here; it may have been in her's.

59. How long is it since his wife died?—Four or five years. It must be subsequent to 1884 since this commenced.

60. How did you come to adopt the name of Joseph Wright?—I did not adopt it; he adopted it himself, I understand.

61. Who is Joseph Wright?—I understand he is a friend of Mr. Turner's. I may say to the Committee that it is only within the last few days that my attention was called to this. All I know is, that the work was done and the Auditor was furnished with the results of this man's labour.

62. How could the work be given out to a man who apparently had no existence?—Of course the man has existence.

By Mr. Sproule:

63. Might it not have been given to Turner, who employed Wright?—I suppose it was. I spoke to Turner about it yesterday and I asked him about it. I can only say that I was anxious about the work. I know from time to time that it was going on as I could see the results of it.

By Mr. Somerville:

64. That system of doing business might lead to a great deal of trouble?—I quite agree with you. There is no doubt about it that the regular mode would have been to come down to Parliament and ask Parliament to vote this additional remuneration.

65. Why was that not done?—For the simple reason that a portion of the work had to be done with assistance.

66. What salary did Turner get?—I think $600 at that time.

67. I see that last year he got $862.50?—Probably he would be only getting $500 at that time.

By Mr. Sproule:

68. He would be getting steady increases since?—Yes.

By Mr. Somerville:

69. As far as you know, there is no Mr. Joseph Wright?—As far as I know, except for Turner's putting the account in his name; that is all I know.

70. You know it would be contrary to the Civil Service Act to allow Turner to draw this money?—I do not think it occurred to me before that this was the case.

71. You know no permanent clerk is allowed to draw anything beyond his salary, except on Order in Council or through the Supplementary Estimates?—That is quite true.

Mr. BOWELL—Not even by Order in Council.

By Mr. Foster:

72. Are you satisfied that the extra work was done?—I know it was.

73. How do you know?—I could show you from the records of the Department. Anyone can understand it when he comes to know what work this man was doing. He had to enter up all the scrip that had been issued and all the warrants, and it was a very laborious task, as millions of dollars had been paid in in this way.

74. Since when?—From the beginning. I suppose the first scrip was issued in 1883.

By Mr. Somerville:

75. I cannot understand why, when a man was giving good service for the work he was performing that any back-door method of payment should have to be adopted?—I frankly state that I do not think it is a very defensible thing myself. I say to the Committee that I took full responsibility; but there is no secret about it—everybody in the Department knew it was being done and who was doing it.

76. And all this time H. H. Turner was pocketing this money?—I cannot say he was pocketing it; he really earned it.

By Mr. Denison :

77. Could he only have done this work after hours?—He could only do it after hours, because the books in the possession of the Department were in use during the day. If an expert accountant had been brought in he could only have worked after hours, because the books were in constant use during the day.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

78. This money credited to Joseph Wright was paid to H. H. Turner?—I so understood.

By Mr. Foster :

79. For working after hours?—Yes; and for assistance.

By Mr. Somerville :

80. Are you aware whether he got assistance or not?—I certainly understood that he did. Of course, I did not go to his house to see.

81. But you did not know whether his wife did any?—Truly, truly; but I knew the work was done.

By Mr. Corby :

82. And it cost you less than if you had employed an expert?—It did not cost us one-half what it would have cost the other way.

By Mr. Somerville :

83. Why did you not have the work done according to the requirements of the Civil Service Act, and save this enquiry? There must have been some reason for it?—No reason in the world, except my anxiety to get the work done. It was in the middle of the season, and I could not have got a cent for it until the meeting of Parliament.

84. Could not the Minister have employed another man?—He could have employed an outsider, but as Turner was able to do the work better than any other outsider I preferred he should get it. I have no hesitation in saying that if I had to begin again this would not be done.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

85. The law had been deliberately violated and with the consent of his chief?—Certainly I never paid a cent without the concurrence of the Department.

By Mr. Bowell :

86. What I understand the position to be is this: During the life of Mrs. Turner the account was paid to her. After her death the work was continued to be done at Mr. Turner's house?—Partly at the house and partly at the office, just as before.

87. And after his wife's death Mr. Turner put in the accounts in the name of Mr. Wright? Did you know whether Mr. Turner, in order to evade the provisions of the Civil Service Act substituted another name for the work done by himself, and then took the money?—I must say I never asked him that.

88. Or whether Mr. Wright really did the work under the superintendence of Mr. Turner and then Mr. Turner put in the account in the name of Mr. Wright, or whether did he do it to evade the law?—I did not think of it.

By Mr. Somerville :

89. If Mr. Turner did the work himself, the theory Mr. Bowell sets up may be accepted somewhat; but if Turner gave the work to this man Joseph Wright, then it was not because Mr. Turner was eminently fitted to do the work that it was given to him?—It was because he was fitted for the work that it was given to him. First of all, the facts and figures had to be extracted from the books, which only an officer of the Department or an expert accountant could have done. Turner is a good accountant; his wife, I understand, was to do the tabulation, which was to be written out at his own house.

90. Sir Richard Cartwright stated that this had been done with the consent and approbation of the chief of the Department?—Yes; when it was in Turner's wife's name.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

91. Who certified to Joseph Wright's account?—I think the chief clerk of the Patent Branch.

By Mr. Somerville:

92. Here are Mr. Turner's cheques (producing cheques). Do you know his handwriting?—I do.

93. Is that anything like it (handing cheque to witness)?—That is not like it.

94. Because this man Joseph Wright has no existence; some one has written his name on the cheque?—All that I can say is, that after I issued the cheque I had no more responsibility.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

95. Whom were Joseph Wright's cheques given to?—They were given to Turner. I do not want the Committee to be under any misapprehension; I knew perfectly that Turner was getting paid for this work. I do not say that I knew of this at the time Wright's name was first used that Joseph Wright represented this particular work, but it was to pay for the work.

96. Did you know that Joseph Wright was a real person or a fictitious person?—To this moment I did not know; I never knew about it.

97. Why should he use Joseph Wright's name?—There is no earthly reason for it, except that it was a well-understood rule that he could not get extra pay in his own name, unless it were voted by Parliament.

By Mr. Foster:

98. He could not get the cheque for himself?—No; for the very good reason that the Auditor-General would not pass it.

By Sir Richard Cartwright:

99. He was violating the law, and has been doing it for years?—There is no doubt that there has been a technical violation of the law.

By Mr. Somerville:

100. I think there was a gross violation?—I do not think it was a violation when the work was actually done.

101. Can we see this work that was done?—Certainly.

102. Well I will ask you to bring it for the next meeting. Now there are some other persons whom I have been informed—I am only acting on information from other persons, and I have to substantiate it by the evidence I have to bring forward—Do you know a Miss Agnes Duhamel?—I do; well.

103. Is she in the employ of the Department now?—Not now.

104. When did she cease to be in the employ of the Department?—I do not remember, but the last time that payment was made to her would be shown in the Public Accounts.

105. I see in the attendance book there is the signature Agnes Duhamel, under date 20th April, 1889?—That is her name.

106. She signed this attendance book all through—this book commencing the 1st March, 1889, up to—

Mr. CHAIRMAN—31st August, 1889.

Mr. SOMERVILLE—But she ceased to sign the book before that. Now if you look at this signature (pointing to book) Agnes Duhamel, and compare it with her signature in another place, Agnes Duhamel, they are not in the same handwriting?—I think they are. I assure you she was working in the Department up to August 1889.

107. This second signature does not look like the lady's handwriting at all. She was in the Department employed up to August you say?—Up to that time. I may say to you that Miss Agnes Duhamel is a niece of the Archbishop of Ottawa.

108. We don't care anything about that?—Except that it will be a test of her respectability.

109. I am not talking about her respectability?—I thought that you were doubting the signature.

By Mr. Bowell :

110. Has Miss Duhamel received any pay since she left in August, 1889?—No, sir; she has not.

By Mr. Somerville.:

111. My information is that Miss Duhamel has not been in the Department for over two years—that she has been in Paris, France, studying music?—If the man who says that professes to say that of his own knowledge he deliberately lies.

By Mr. Denison :

112. Has she been drawing pay since August, 1889?—She has not.

By Mr. McMullen :

113. What particular work was she doing?—She was copying in Mrs. Lee's office—copying letters for signature.

By Mr. Somerville :

114. Here is one of Miss Duhamel's cheques. You will see that it is endorsed Agnes Duhamel. Will you say whether the same party who wrote the endorsement on the cheque is the same one who wrote the signature in the time-book? Do you think the person who signed the cheque signed the attendance book?—I could not say as to that. All I know is, that Miss Duhamel was actually working in the Department of the Interior up to the time she ceased to be paid, and that the cheques were issued in her name. This lady actually worked the same as the rest of the ladies did from day to day in Mrs. Lee's office.

By Mr. McMullen :

115. She may have done so; but submit the two signatures to an expert, and he would not say they were the same?—Well, I know this, that Miss Duhamel came to the office every day and at the time she is marked for. I saw her from day to day.

H. H. TURNER called and examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

116. What is your position in the Interior Department?—I keep the ledgers, sir.

117. There appears in the Auditor-General's Report an amount paid to Joseph Wright for extra work, $237.50, and I understand from Mr. Burgess, the Deputy Minister, that you are the party that has got this money?—Yes; I got that money.

118. How did it come that you entered it in Joseph Wright's name?—In the first place, before my wife died—

119. Just a moment. When did your wife die?—Unfortunately, I have lost both. It was my first wife who did the work, and after she died the name of Joseph Wright was substituted for hers. He went to the old country, and I believe is since dead.

120. When did she die?—About five years ago. I married again and lost my second wife.

121. It was after your first wife died that you substituted Joseph Wright's name for that of your first wife?—Just that.

122. How long has Joseph Wright been dead?—I said I believed he is dead.

123. How long is it since he went to the old country?—About a year, I think.

124. What was he employed at in the city while here?—He was not employed at anything.

125. Did he live with you?—He did not live with me.

126. Was he a man of means?—Well, no; not a man of any great means.

127. He must have had some way of living?—Yes; I suppose he had. I only saw him occasionally.

128. How often did you used to see him?—Not every often.

129. Did he ever do any of this work?—Certainly not. He is a connection of my first wife's. He never did any of the work; that is what suggested it to me.

130. Who suggested it to you to put it in the name of some other person?—I do not know.

131. It must have been somebody?—I think the suggestion came from Mr. Douglas.

132. What Mr. Douglas?—He was at that time the Assistant Secretary of the Department. I think the suggestion came from him.

133. Did you submit Mr. Douglas' suggestion to anybody?—No, sir.

124. Then you adopted that name from that out?—Yes.

135. Here are Joseph Wright's cheques. Who signed the name on the backs of the cheques?—I did.

136. You put Joseph Wright's name there?—I did.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

137. Have you a power of attorney from Joseph Wright?—No.

By Mr. Bowell:

138. Had you any authority from Joseph Wright to do that?—Oh, yes.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

139. Do you not think that was rather a queer way of doing business?—I suppose it was like this. There was the work, the work was done, nobody can dispute that; it was work done until 12 o'clock at night and often until 2 o'clock in the morning.

By Mr. Somerville:

140. Would it not have been better for you and for the Department, and better for the public interest, if the Department had raised your salary and then given you this work to do?—I understood that that would be done. The way in which I took the matter is this: I was doing a whole lot of work, very arduous itself, and there was a great deal of it. The whole of the North-West scrip issued since we commenced to issue scrip—nine-tenths of that has been drawn with my pen, and that in addition to my own work. Moreover, I have some knowledge of French and as a good many of these names were in French I had a good deal of writing and work to do in that direction. The fact of the matter is that the money that was paid in the name of Joseph Wright has been earned twice over.

141. We are not disputing that at all, Mr. Turner. I do not wish to put you in any false position or do you any injury, I am simply making enquiries in the public interest. There is no desire to hurt your feelings. Can you remember whether you ever consulted your superior officers with regard to using the name of Joseph Wright?—At that time the gentleman whose name I mentioned, Mr. Douglas, certified my accounts.

142. Who certifies your accounts now?—Since the scrip ceased, there have been none. I have received none of this extra work for the past 15 or 13 months. I have never received a dollar extra since then.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

143. You endorsed Joseph Wright's name after his death?—No, sir; I do not know that he is dead.

144. You said he was?—I said I believed he was; I had heard a report that he was dead.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

145. Do I understand you to say that this Joseph Wright had no existence at all?—Oh yes; at one time. I believe he may have now.

146. What relationship did he bear to you?—He was a distant connection of my wife's.

147. Did he do this work for you and you receive the money?—I did the work, and I received the money.

148. And used his name?—And used his name.

149. And subsequently after he left this country, you signed the name of Joseph Wright?—Oh yes, but I think only once.

150. You say he left this country about a year and a half ago?—About 15 months ago. I won't say exactly.

151. But Joseph Wright did not do any of this work?—Not any.

152. And the work was done by yourself?—I won't say that.

153. Who did the balance?—The late balance.

154. During the last five years?—I did it myself.

By the Chairman :

155. Did your second wife do any work?—She did some checking. After I had done the work she read it over with me for the purpose of checking.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

156. But practically speaking Mr. Joseph Wright, as a person doing this work had no existence at all. You used his name?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster :

157. Did you sign Joseph Wright's name to these cheques?—Certainly.

158. And with his consent?—And with his consent.

159. Although you have no written power of attorney?—No.

By Mr. Hyman :

160. How did you come to get that consent?—He simply gave it to me.

161. But you had no power of attorney from him?—No.

By Mr. Somerville :

162. When he went to the old country, did he give you permission to use his name?—Not particularly.

163. But you used his name?—Certainly.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

164. Who was Joseph Wright; what was his business or calling?—He was a school teacher, over in the States.

165. Was he not residing here?—No. He came to see us once or twice.

By Mr. Hyman :

166. What suggested to you to use Joseph Wright's name?—My first wife died. She had been a school teacher and was doing practically the most of this work.

By Mr. McMullen :

167. Was her name Wright before she was married?—No.

168. Did you use her name in putting in her accounts?—I did.

169. In what year?—At the very beginning. You will see her name probably in the Auditor General's Report—Mrs. Emma Turner.

170. That would be 1884 or 1885?—Yes; about then.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

171. During the whole of this five years you say Wright visited you only two or three times?—Yes.

172. And during the whole of this time, Wright's name has figured on the backs of these cheques?—No.; because there have been no cheques issued for the last fifteen months. You have to take that period off.

173. You commenced using Joseph Wright's name about five years ago?—Yes. I was told it was used for five years, but it is not over four; it is only three years and a-half.

By Mr. Wood (Westmoreland) :

175. What bank are those cheques drawn on?—The Bank of Montreal.

175. To bearer or order?—To order.

176. Did you draw this money personally?—I drew it personally.

177. Did the bank know you?—I do not know. They always paid the cheques; they always paid my salary cheque too.

178. Will the bank pay cheques here that any person presents?—I do not know. The cheques may not have been given me at the same time.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

179. Could you give us Mr. Joseph Wright's present address?—I think so.

180. What is it?—3 Victoria Terrace, Lightcliff, near Halifax, Yorkshire, England.

By Mr. Somerville :

181. I understood you to say he was dead?—I said he might be. If he is not you will hear from him at that address.

(At this point Mr. Burgess pointed out to the Committee an entry in the Auditor General's Report of payment made to Mrs. Emma Turner for extra work.)

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

182. (To witness) Are you aware of any other parties in the Department who have been drawing money in the same way in other people's names?—Not that I know of, sir. Not that I know of of my own knowledge. I do not think there are any.

By Mr. McMullen :

183. You say that your chief in the Department suggested to you the way, or at least acquiesced or was cognizant of the fact that you were drawing money in this way?—Not my chief; it was Mr. Douglas.

184. What was his suggestion?—As I said my wife died. At that time I was in a great deal of trouble. I had done the work, and I wanted the money. My wife was dead and this name was taken.

185. Who suggested the name?—Mr. Douglas.

186. But he did not suggest this particular name?—He said some name must be taken.

By Mr. Somerville:

187. Who certified to the work after it was done?—Mr. Douglas.

188. But since Mr. Douglas' death?—Different parties.

189. Who were they?—The accounts themselves will show.

Mr. BURGESS—(interposing) It would principally be the Chief Clerk in the Patent Office.

WITNESS—They were certified by different clerks who were in a position to know that the work had been done.

By Mr. Somerville:

190. Who has charge of these accounts that were certified?—The Auditor General.

191. Has he the accounts?—Why, certainly.

By Mr. McMullen:

192. Was any other person cognizant of the payments being made to you in addition to Mr. Douglas in the Department?—I am not sure. I do not know. I am perfectly certain I never told anybody. If they were aware they got to know in some other way.

By Mr. Somerville:

193. Did Mr. Burgess know?

Mr. BURGESS—Not at the time.

194. Mr. SOMERVILLE—How long is it since you found this out?

Mr. BURGESS—I could not definitely say. It is not more than 3 or 4 months ago; comparatively recently at any rate.

By Mr. McMullen:

195. Were you aware of it before the service closed in the name of Wright?

Mr. BURGESS—No. At least I do not think I was.

196. Mr. McMULLEN—The person who certified to the accounts must have been aware of it?

Mr. BURGESS—I could not say that. That would not follow. There was a great deal of our work being done outside the office.

197. Mr. McMULLEN—But the man certifying to the correctness of an account in the name of Mr. Wright must have been cognizant when certifying to that account—must have known who did the work?

Mr. BURGESS—I do not think he would know it. He had simply to compare the account with the work done; that was all.

By Mr. Bowell (to Mr. Turner):

198. Did Mr. Douglas give you any reason for the course that he suggested when you substituted the name of Wright for that of your wife? I understand that your wife did the work, and in that case it was quite proper that the account should go in her name?—My wife died.

199. Did Mr. Douglas give you any reason why you should substitute somebody else's name instead of hers? Did he say to you that you could not draw the money in your own name under the Civil Service Act, and consequently it is necessary to substitute some other name, or did you not think anything of it?—Really, to tell you the truth, I did not think much about it. I had not been at that time very long in the Department, and I thought it was to obviate jealous feelings in a great measure—that if people saw I was getting more pay than they were—people who had been in the Department for a longer time than I had—it would cause jealousy.

200. Did you know it was contrary to the Statute to draw extra pay in this way over and above your salary?—No; I thought it was in this way: Here was certain special work to be done—

201. That is not what I want to know. Did you know personally whether it was contrary to the provisions of the Civil Service Act to draw money other than your salary for extra work?—I did not know that.

By Mr. McMullen :

202. It was during the lifetime of your first wife that this business commenced?—Yes.

203. How long were you married the second time?—About a year elapsed after the death of my first wife. I had little children and I married again.

204. After you got married again you still continued to draw the extra pay in the name of Wright?—Certainly.

205. Why did you not adopt the principle of drawing the money in your second wife's name? She would be there then to sign the cheques?—That is true, but still it would make a great deal of bother in changing the accounts. The reason I did not do it was to avoid trouble. The fact of the matter is, I never troubled my mind about it.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

206. Why did you cease drawing it in the name of your wife?—My wife died.

207. But apparently, after you supposed this man Joseph Wright had died, you went on to use his name?—I said I heard that he was dead; I do not know that he is dead.

By the Chairman :

208. What time did you understand that this Mr. Wright died?—I think it is about a year ago, or something like that, that I heard he was dead. I am not certain that I received any cheque at all after I heard he was dead. If I did, it was only one.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

209. Did you get your cheques cashed at the same bank—your own salary cheque and the one in Wright's name?—Yes, sir; both.

210. Did they make any inquiry when you drew the money for Wright?—No; certainly not.

211. Though they knew you to be Mr. Turner, they never made any inquiry about Mr. Wright?—Certainly not. It is in this way: On a departmental pay-day—anyone can substantiate what I am going to say who knows anything of the way the Departments are run, on a departmental pay-day it is like a pay-day at any large establishment. You have to go to the teller's wicket at the bank in single file. The teller pays out the money as fast as he can pay it. Among the hundreds, I might say the thousands that are there I do not think he would take much notice as to who the man was who presented the cheque, provided the cheque was properly signed.

By Mr. McGregor :

212. But your cheques were not issued on the same day?—No; but if they had been I would have presented them on the same day. It would not have made any matter.

By Mr. McMullen :

213. Who is Secretary of the Interior Department?—Mr. J. R. Hall.

214. Was he aware of the cheques passing in this way?—I do not know, sir.

215. You do not know whether Mr. Hall was aware of the fact that the money was drawn in Wright's name or not?—I do not know anything about that. When the work was done it would be checked and passed and, the account certified by somebody, and then the account would be sent down for approval to the Deputy Minister or Secretary, as the case might be. When it came back to the Accountant he would look at it, and if he saw that it had been certified by a permanent officer, and approved of by Mr. Burgess, or Mr. Hall, or the acting Deputy, whoever he might be, then he would issue a cheque for the amount.

By Mr. Taylor :

216. In addition to the payments of your wife and those in Wright's name, did I understand you to say that you had rendered more service than the value you received?—You understood me to say that in addition to that for which I was paid I put in 210 nights of work, for which I have never received a cent yet.

By Mr. McMullen :

217. Have you pocketed all the money you received for extra work?

Mr. TAYLOR.—I do not think the word pocketing is the correct word to use.

218. Mr. McMULLEN.—(To witness)—Well, did you receive all the money credited in these names for extra work?—I received the whole of it; indeed I earned it.

By Mr. Taylor :

219. You say you have done 210 nights of extra work, for which you have not received pay?—I do.

220. For what reason have you not received pay for that?—In this way:—I had to get the books out. It was regular office work and I did it out of love for my office and in order to get the work completed. If anybody knew how Mr. Beddoe and I were rushed in doing the work they would say we ought to be paid for it.

By Mr. Somerville :

221. When did you do this extra work of 210 nights?—When I first came into the Department.

222. When was that?—In 1883.

223. How many hours do you say?—About 210 nights.

224. You worked 210 nights extra in 1883?—I think so—in 1883 and 1884. Altogether there were 210 nights that I came back again and worked.

225. You worked in 1883 and 1884?—Yes and since;

226. Have you a book with the names of the days marked down?—I have.

227. Have you kept track of them?—I have.

228. Did you state to your superior officer that you thought you should be paid for this extra work?—I did in this way: I mentioned that I had done a good deal of extra work, and I thought I might reasonably expect promotion. I thought it would be a good backing.

229. What circumstance stood in the way of your promotion?—I was not at the head of my class.

230. What salary do you receive now?—$950.

By the Chairman :

231. What salary did you receive in 1883?—$600. I passed the examination with four optionals, and so started at $600, instead of $400.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

232. You did not make this change of name without conference, without the knowledge, consent and approval of your superior officer—it was known to him? It was known to Mr. Douglas that I used the name of Wright.

233. He was your superior officer?—My wife died, and I had to use some name because I wanted the money.

234. Mr. Douglas certified the account?—Yes.

235. Did any one else know?—Not to my knowledge.

By Mr. McMullen :

236. Were you ever questioned by any other person in regard to using the name of Wright?—I was about four or five months ago. I was going along the corridor, when a gentleman in the Audit Office met me with one of these accounts in his hands. He asked me: "Who is Joseph Wright?" I said: "I suppose the man who signed the cheque." That is all I said; I then walked on to my office.

237. Who was this officer whom you met in the corridor?—Mr. Macdonald.

238. Who is he?—He is a clerk in the Audit Office.

By Mr. Hyman :

239. Is that the first time you were spoken to?—He is the first and only man.

240. How long is that ago?—A few months ago.

Mrs. LEE called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

241. What position do you hold in the Interior Department Mrs. Lee?—I am chief in charge of the ladies branch of copyists.

242. What are your duties?—To superintend the attendance book and the general work in the office; to see that each lady performs the work given to her in the best possible manner.

243. You give the work out?—Sometimes, but I am speaking now of the ladies in the office. I superintend their work in every particular.

244. When the work is sent in to you, you receive the work that is required to be done?—Yes; I receive it.

246. And you allot it to the different clerks under you?—Yes.

247. And keep a record of the amount of work they do?—In one way I keep a record of all the work done, but not of each individual lady. That is not necessary.

248. Do you not have a file of the work each employé does?—No; not in regard to that. Each employé is supposed to be at work the day long. A record of the work that has gone through my office is kept and in that way we have a record of the work done.

249. Do you know Miss E. Bell—is she in your Department?—No. The ladies employed under me are in this book.

250. Do they all work by the day?—All those whose names are in the attendance book.

251. Have you in charge any of those whose names are not in the attendance book?—We used to give a good deal of work outside, particularly two or three years ago. Those that were employed outside, those who are not regularly employed, are not recorded in the attendance book.

252. But when they were employed outside you kept a record of the folios?—Certainly. We kept a record of the files that passed through the office.

253. How long is it since you ceased to give work out?—Since the 1st of July last.

254. There was some work done previous to June, 1890, under that head?—Yes.

255. You have the superintendence of this attendance book?—Yes.

256. You witnessed the signatures?—I initialled the book each day, showing that it is a correct list.

257. Have you had a Miss Agnes Duhamel in your branch?—Yes; I have had her for some years.

258. How long is it since she ceased to work for you?—Since August. I think she left in August or September, the year before last, but the book will show.

259. Do you know Miss Duhamel's signature?—Certainly.

260. Did you see her write her name here?—Certainly.

261. Is that Miss Duhamel's signature (pointing to book)?—That is her signature.

262. You are positive?—Perfectly positive.

263. Is that Miss Duhamel's signature (pointing to book)?—That is her signature, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

264. The second signature is not like the first one I showed you?—I could not say. A good deal depends on the pen. Is that a cheque you have there?

265. Yes?—I do not see them sign the cheques. I should say this is her signature, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

266. But you are positive that Miss Duhamel was performing work in your Department up to the date the book shows?—Up to the date the book shows.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

267. The lady said August last, a year ago?—I am not positive, but the book will show.

By Mr. Somerville:

268. I see by reference to the attendance book that the 2nd of August, 1889, seems to be the last occasion on which she has signed?—I am perfectly positive, as I told you, about her signature.

269. My information is not correct then, that Miss Duhamel has not been at the Department?—I should say so.

270. I have been informed that she is in Paris, France?—So she is. I have had letters from her.

271. When had you letters from her last?—About six months ago.

272. When did she go to Paris?—I understood she was going to Paris when she left here.

273. Do you know Mrs. Forrest?—I know Mrs. Forrest.

274. Is she one of the staff?—She was one of the outside staff.

275. Had you the superintending of her work?—Certainly.

276. She does not sign any book?—No.

277. She does extra work, that is, work given out and paid by the folio?—She is paid by the day. She works outside, but is paid by the day.

278. How do you know she works?—Because she returns the work to me. She is under my supervision, or was up to the 1st July. She received the work from me and returned it to me.

279. How did you keep track of the work she did?—By keeping the record.

280. Do you know by the amount of work she does?—Certainly I did.

281. I would ask you to send over to the Department for Mrs. Forrest's work?—I do not know how you can get that. I can only give you the number of files that she did.

282. You say she has been working steadily?—No. There are some days she did not work, because we had not anything for her.

283. How much did she work?—The average amount.

284. She worked regularly last year?—I do not say that. She did not work every day, but on the average.

285. I see that she was paid for 365 days?—That is the way, I suppose, they are all paid.

286. You are perfectly positive she has worked?—I am perfectly positive she has worked.

By Mr. Sproule :

287. Does the Department pay for the working hours in the day or only the 24 hours?—Really I do not know. The regular hours in the office are from half-past 9 until 4.

By Mr. Bowell :

288. You would consider that a regular day's work?—Certainly. I would count a day from half-past 9 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon of the same day.

By Mr. Sproule :

289. If a person did twice as much work in a day as they were ordinarily required to do, by putting in more time, would you count that as so much more work?—She would get what she considered a day's work—sometimes more, sometimes less.

290. But if she put in 365 days—that would be including the Sundays, and she is not supposed to work on Sundays?—No.

291. But might she not put in the ordinary office hours, from 9.30 to 4—that is six and a half hours—and then put in more by extra work in the 24 hours?—I suppose she might, but she never got any extra work.

By Mr. Bowell :

292. That principle of allowing clerks to put in two days within the 24 hours has never been recognized?—No.

By Mr. Sproule :

293. Do you pay for Sundays?—Certainly.

By Mr. Somerville :

294. When you get a piece of copying to do, and hand it out to a certain lady, do you not keep a record of that?—Certainly, of the file, but not of the number of the page.

295. Well, could you not give us Miss Duhamel's work?—It is impossible for me to give you the work of any particular lady in the office. I divide the work out amongst them, but I do not keep any record of that which they write in the office, because they work each day, and they are working all the time. It would take a great deal of time to hunt up each file each lady has done.

296. You have a means of ascertaining?—Of course, I know myself whether a lady has done her proper day's work.

297. Do you not keep a record of the work done, say by Miss Jones or Miss Smith?—When I receive papers to be copied I divide these out amongst the ladies in my office to the best of my judgment, and when the work is done I have a record as to where it was sent to be compared, but not the work each individual lady has done in the office.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

298. I understand you give out a certain amount of work to the ladies, and do not take any account of it, beyond this, that you are satisfied in your own mind that they have each done a fair day's work; but in a large amount of copying you keep a record of that?—Decidedly.

299. Did Mrs. Forrest work inside or outside?—She worked inside for some time, but her health would not permit her to continue. She got a doctor's certificate, and therefore she was given work outside.

By Mr. Somerville :

300. When Mrs. Forrest got the work, did she go for it herself to the Department or send for it?—She usually sent for it; sometimes she came.

301. You checked the work?—Certainly.

302. You know the number of folios?—Not the folios; the number of the files.

303. I want to get the number of files handed out to Mrs. Forrest during the last year?—That would not show the amount of her work, but it might give a fair idea. Of course, there might be a great many enclosures.

304. Do you know a Miss Jane Hay?—No.

305. Is she in your branch at all?—No.

306. You do not know her at all?—No.

307. Do you know her, Mr. Burgess?—Mr. BURGESS.—Oh, yes.

308. Mr. SOMERVILLE.—What is she doing?—Mr. BURGESS.—She is doing general copying for the Department.

309. Under whose supervision?—She is outside the service. She is like a great many more who have been employed outside.

310. (To Mrs. Lee)—Did you ever have a cheque made out in your name for which you did not get the money yourself?—Not that I know of. I always get my own cheque and receive the money.

311. Do you remember having a cheque made out in your name for services rendered, the amount of which you did not receive yourself?—I do not.

312. You do not remember?—I do not remember anything of the kind.

313. Did not you get an extra allowance last year?—That was for working on returns. I got the cheque for that, and the money, too.

314. I see, according to the Auditor General's Report, that you were paid 184 days at $2 per day, and 181 days at $2.50?—That was calculated at so much per hour. It was considered extra work beyond my regular duties.

315. When was that work performed?—Before and after hours.

By Mr. McMullen :

316. How long have you been in the service, Mrs. Lee?—More than nine years.

317. And you have been continuously in the service since you commenced?—Yes.

K. J. HENRY called, sworn and examined.—

By Mr. Somerville :

318. What branch of the public service are you in?—I am in the Secretary's Branch of the Interior Department.

319. What is the nature of your duties?—I am styled the Registrar of correspondence—that is, I open all the letters coming to the Department, all telegrams, and see that they are recorded and indexed, and sent round to the different branches for action. On their return, after action has been taken on them, I see that they are filed away properly.

320. You have something to do with the certifying of accounts?—I have, sir; quite a few.

321. To whose accounts do you certify?—To those in my sub-branch.

322. You do not certify to any accounts in the copyists staff, do you?—Oh, no.

323. What branch do you certify the accounts in?—Registration—the sub-branch.

324. Do you know a man named James A. Hickey?—I do, sir. I do not know whether his name is James or John, but I think it is John.

325. Did you ever certify to any accounts for Mr. Hickey?—I think I did.

326. I see that last year he was paid for 276 hours at 50 cents an hour, amounting to $138. Do you remember certifying to those cheques?—I cannot say that I remember. I certified to accounts, but whether to that amount in his name I do not know.

327. Do you remember certifying to any accounts for extra work?—Oh, yes, I certified to accounts all along.

328. For Mr. Hickey?—Yes, for Mr. Hickey. I won't swear that I did, but the accounts will show. That is my recollection.

329. Did you ever certify an account in the name of an extra clerk, and was it within your knowledge that that extra clerk did not draw the whole amount of the money?—I did, sir.

330. Who for?—Mr. Humphreys.

331. Where is he now?—In Winnipeg.

332. In the service of the Department?—He is in the office of the Commissioner of Dominion Lands.

333. When was he sent out there?—Quite recently; since this trouble of the Lowe matter.

334. What was the amount of the cheque you certified?—$200.

335. To Mr. Humphreys?—Yes.

336. For extra work?—Yes.

337. How much did he get?—$100.

338. Where did the other go?—I understood it went to Mr. Chisholm.

339. How did he come to get it?—He got it as he stated for Mr. Burgess. At that time he was private secretary to Mr. Burgess.

340. When you certified to this account, did you know that the services had been performed?—It was in this way. I was coming in from luncheon about 2 o'clock that afternoon, and I knew that Mr. Humphreys had been wanting to get an additional cheque as a sort of remuneration. He was getting $1.50 per day, and the deputy had allowed him to get an extra 50 cents a day or something like that. He was to get it in this way about every five or six months to prevent others in the Department being dissatisfied. I looked upon Humphreys as being a better man than many in the Department who, if they knew, he was getting this additional sum would probably bring political influence in order that they might also get it. I had no hesitation in doing it, although I said at the time I did not think it was right. But I was anxious that he should get some additional remuneration. I was coming into the office about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when I met Mr. Burgess. I think it was in 1887. He was leaving for the North-West the next day and he said to me—he met me on the top of the stairs—"Henry, if you make out that cheque in favour of Mr. Humphreys and add an additional $100, I will approve of it." I had issued one or two before that for Humphreys for the same sum, although I think on every occasion I said it would be much better to give him an additional 50 cents a day and I would bear the brunt of it rather than to do this. Mr. Burgess was in a hurry, and, of course, I did not want to stop him, knowing he was anxious to get away to the North-West. I did as I was requested, but it occurred to me at the time—who is this additional hundred dollars for? I thought I had a perfect right to know this. I had every confidence in Mr. Burgess and no doubt he will tell me. Mr. Burgess, however, went away to the North-West the next day, and I did not see him for a long time afterwards. The next day, Mr. Chisholm, his private secretary, came to me and said: Have you not got $100 for the deputy? No, I said. He said, You must have. Humphreys has the $100, and you had better see him. Humphreys had not got the cheque at that time, and I think the next day, when he had got the cheque and Chisholm had been to him two or three times for it. At all events he could not get it. Chisholm thereupon wrote Humphreys a note. This is what made me feel anxious, and I have felt ever since that the only wrong thing I ever did. I cannot remember the words of Chisholm's note to Humphreys, but I saw it, and it ran something like this—My dear Humphreys—You have got a cheque for $200, the other hundred is for the Deputy Minister. I want it to pay his debts.

341. Who wrote this, do you say?—Mr. Chisholm. He was then Mr. Burgess' Private Secretary.

By Mr. Foster :

342. Whose debts was it to pay?—Mr. Burgess'. I said to Humphreys : this is a queer thing, what are we to do about it? He said, I will hold the note, and I told him he had better do so. When Mr. Burgess returns from the North-West, doubtless he will be able to explain it.

343. Well, Mr. Burgess returned in due course, but he was very sick at the time and was laid up weeks afterwards, if I remember rightly.

Mr. BURGESS—You are mistaken.

Mr. HENRY—I cannot say positively, but I think that was it. At any rate I felt I was in an awkward position, and I felt, moreover, that I should have an explanation. Possibly I would have had that explanation sooner, if it had not been for my friend Mr. Goodeve—I suppose you will be having him here—

344. Who is Mr. Goodeve?—He is Chief Clerk of the Patents Branch?

345. What is his first name?—W. M. Mr. Goodeve is a friend of mine; we have known each other since 1872, and we have been together almost daily in the office and out of the office. I confided the matter to him and I said such and such a thing has happened. He said "Oh by-the-bye I heard of it before you spoke to me," and I said I did not know it was common talk in the Department. He told me I had better hold on, but after awhile I felt it was my duty to see Mr. Burgess and to have an explanation. I saw Mr. Burgess, told him my case and stated what had happened. Mr. Burgess then gave me the explanation. At first we were alone, but I said to him that I would like Mr. Humphreys and Mr. Chisholm to be present to hear what he had to say. He thereupon sent for Mr. Chisholm, Mr. Humphreys and Mr. Hall was brought in to listen.

346. What is Mr. Hall's name?—John R. Hall. He is secretary of the Department. He was brought in to hear what Mr. Burgess had to say. Mr. Burgess' explanation, so far as I can remember, was that this $100 that he got was for his late father-in-law for work that he did, I think, in connection with the report of the Forestry Commission, Mr. J. M. Morgan. It was particular work and his late father-in-law, Mr. Anderson, read the proofs, I think that was it, he compared and read the proofs, and he, Mr. Burgess, thought Mr. Anderson was entitled to this sum of money, and that he hesitated about saying anything to the Minister or putting in an account for it, Mr. Anderson being his father-in-law, that he took this method of paying him. He said he had advanced his father-in-law the money out of his own pocket, whether by cheque or bills I do not now remember, and this is the way he took to get it back again.

347. When was this work performed?—I think before Mr. White's death.

By the Chairman :

348. Who were present when the explanation was made?—Mr. Hall, Mr. Humphreys, Mr. Chisholm, and Mr. Goodeve.

349. Did Mr. Humphreys give Mr. Chisholm this $100?—I understood so, but I did not see him.

By Mr. Somerville :

350. You say this was done back of 1887?—Do you mean comparing the Forestry Report?

351. Yes? I really cannot tell you. You have that report here in the House. It was printed in the Departmental Report.

352. You felt you had done something wrong?—I did, and I feel it to-day. I feel I ought to be censured; I have always felt that.

353. Do you know of any other cheques having been issued on that account?—No, sir, that is the only one.

354. Are you aware of any cheques having been paid to permanent clerks in the names of extra clerks?—Yes, there have been moneys paid to permanent men on my own staff.

355. To whom?—They were all working together and the cheque would be drawn in the name of the extra men.

356. And the extra men did not get the money?—They divided up the money. If an extra man and a permanent man worked together, they divided up the money.

357. Supposing Smith and Jones were working together, Smith was the permanent man and Jones were the extra man, Jones would have the cheque made out in his name?—Yes.

358. Well, did he do the work?—Both would do the work; the extra clerk and the permanent one.

359. And the cheque would be drawn in the extra clerk's name?—Yes.

360. And he would divide with the other man?—Yes.

361. Why was it done?—Because the work had to be done.

362. How long has this practice been going on?—It was going on in Mr. White's time; in 1885 and 1886.

363. Is it a common practice?—Certainly; I do not think it is going on now. It was stopped last spring.

364. How do they get the extra money now?—I do not know.

365. You do not know of any other plan having been adopted?—Not that I know of.

By Mr. Foster :

366. You say this has been done in several cases?—As regards my own branch, I will give you the names of my staff, every man of whom, with the exception of myself, having participated in this.

367. Give us the names?—J. A. Coté.

368. He is a permanent clerk?—Yes.

369. Who was his partner?—The accounts will show that.

By the Chairman :

370. How will the accounts show that, when the names do not appear in the account?—That is true; I had not thought of that. I had a little time-book that I kept.

By Mr. Foster :

371. Was it a private book?—No. The clerks got about $9 a week each, that is, two would go on this week, two the next, and so on through the batch. It would be seven or eight weeks before the first two came on again, unless in the meantime someone got sick and his place had to be filled by another.

By Mr. Hyman :

372. Do you know of any instances in which permanent clerks have done extra work during office hours, and received extra pay for it?—I cannot say that I do.

373. It has always been done after hours?—To my knowledge. Of course there may be cases, but I do not know of any.

By Mr. Somerville :

374. I suppose everybody in the Department knows the law?—I do not plead ignorance of it.

375. You knew that the way these men were being paid was illegal?—I did, and I said so time and again to Mr. Hall and Mr. Burgess.

376. What did they say?—What could you say? Here they were getting extra pay all through the Department. A clerk would come to me and say: "I am a married man on only $500 or $550, with a family to support, and I do not see why I should not get extra pay as well as other permanent officials." I had no hesitation, however, in telling them it was wrong.

377. You knew the work was being done?—Yes, I knew it.

378. When you certified to the accounts, you certified to it in the name of the man who did the work?—In the name of one of the men.

379. And he shared it up?—Yes.

380. Do you know James A. Hickey?—I know John A. Hickey.

381. I see he is down for 376 hours overtime and got $735.50 altogether? Did you certify to his accounts?—I dare say I did, but the accounts themselves will show that.

382. Do you know if he got the whole of that?—Sometimes the extra men would apparently have too much for one month, and it might therefore be run over into the next month.

383. You did not want him to get more than $9 per week?—I wanted to restrict them to $9 per week.

384. And this extra besides?—And this extra besides. Hickey would put in an account in his name for that.

By Mr. Foster :

385. You knew that?—I knew that.

By Mr. Somerville :

386. Did your superior officers know about this?—I think not.

By Mr. Hyman :

387. Did you not have conversations with them?—No.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

388. Were the salaries of these clerks only $9 per week?—Oh, no. They had $1.50 a day or $45 per month.

389. That was the regular salary?—Yes. And in addition I did not want the men to go beyond $9 per week for extra work to give each man a chance. There were 18 men altogether, and if you did not restrict them, some of them would get more than their share.

By Mr. Somerville :

390. What is your salary?—$1,800.

391. Did you get any of this extra money?—I never took any.

392. And you knew all the time you were doing this you were doing what was wrong?—I did, Sir.

393. How many years has this been going on?—A good many years.

394. Under whose administration was it started?—I think in Sir David Macpherson's time.

By Mr. Foster :

395. Have you any special reason for saying it was in Sir David Macpherson's time?—I have not; it may have been in Mr. Mackenzie's time.

By Mr. Taylor :

396. The money was well earned in every case?—Oh, yes.

397. And if it had not been paid in that way, you would have had to employ extra clerks?—I cannot say that. We were engaged on an index, condensing three years into one, in order to enable us to get at the papers readily. You, gentlemen, would come over to the department every day and want papers, and if they were not obtained within three or four minutes there was a row. I wanted a system established in order that we might get the papers readily.

By Mr. Foster :

398. It was necessary work?—Certainly. It was a valuable index and is not even finished to this day.

By Mr. Taylor :

399. The Department got full value for the money ?—Yes, full value.

400. And if these clerks had not been employed you would have had to employ experts ?—You would have had to wait.

By Mr. Somerville :

401. Could not this index have been prepared in office hours ?—No, I do not think it could, because the books are almost in constant use.

By Mr. Taylor :

402. And the regular staff were the best men to do it ?—Certainly.

By Mr. Somerville :

403. Did Humphreys get his money in the regular way ?—Oh, yes, with the exception of that which I have spoken of.

404. What about that cheque for $200 ?—That was independent of extra work.

405. How did he come to get that ?—Because as I tell you, the deputy wanted to give him an additional 50 cents a day.

406. And if he had given him an additional 50 cents a day it would have been recorded in the Auditor General's Report ?—Yes, and he did not want to do that.

By Mr. Corby :

407. How is that $200 entered ?—I suppose it is entered to B. H. Humphreys for extra work,

By the Chairman :

408. You stated this was done about 1887 ?—I think that was it, but the accounts will show.

By Mr. Taylor :

409. How long have you been in the service ?—Since the 24th May, 1871.

By Mr. Foster :

410. In this position ?—In pretty much the same position.

411. And why do you not know if this has been going on since 1871 up to the present time ?—You have me on my oath ; I cannot swear positively.

412. You say it has been going on during Mr. White's time, probably in Sir David Macpherson's time and it may have been going on in Mr. Mackenzie's time ?—It may have been.

413. Having been there all that time, cannot you say when it first came to your knowledge ?—I cannot exactly tell you that ; I cannot say when.

414. You could not come near the time ?—I am pretty sure it was going on as far back as Sir David Macpherson's time, and it may have been going on in Mr. Mackenzie's time.

By Mr. Somerville :

415. Can you state positively when this was commenced ? Was it in force last year ?—Oh, yes.

416. That was in 1890, well, was it in force in 1889 ?—I think so.

417. And in 1888 ?—I am only speaking about my own work. Sometimes the index would stop for a few months.

418. But during the year 1888 ?—I think so.

419. Was it in operation in 1887 ?—I think so.

420. In 1886 ?—I think so.

421. You knew it, you say ?—I think so.

422. Well was it in operation in 1885 ?—I would not say whether it was or was not in 1885.

423. You would not go back of that?—I would not.

By Mr. Foster :

424. But you have no reason to think it was not?—It is very difficult for me to say.

By Mr. Somerville :

425. I understand the witness is positive as far as 1885?—No, I am not positive.

By Mr. Taylor :

426. By looking over the accounts for moneys paid, can you ascertain exactly when this practice was first in operation, whether in 1871 when you commenced, or what year after that. Have you any way of reaching that?—I got work in that way in the Finance Department in 1872.

By Mr. Foster :

427. For what work?—Counting notes.

428. That is the practice to-day? When did you go into the Interior Department?—In 1873.

429. Did you get any extra work in that Department?—I did; prior to the Civil Service Act going into effect.

By Mr. Somerville :

430. It would not be contrary to law before that Act passed?—No.

By Mr. Taylor :

431. Did you get any extra work in 1874?—I do not know that I did.

432. In 1875?—I cannot say.

433. You have no reason to believe you did not, over and above your salary?—I have no reason for believing, but I do not know that I did. In fact, I am almost certain I did not get anything.

434. Did any of the other clerks?—I do not know; I cannot speak for them.

435. You do not know whether they did or did not?—They may have done so.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

436. Would it be contrary to law previous to 1882?—I do not think so.

437. But after that it was irregular?—Irregular and illegal.

Mr. BURGESS re-called, and further examined:—

By Mr. Sproule :

438. We have heard about information having been given, and rumours in circulation with reference to your Department. Do you know of any parties who gave any information, or whether these reports come from reliable sources or otherwise?

THE CHAIRMAN.—I think Mr. Burgess had better be sworn, seeing that we have adopted the principle of swearing witnesses since Mr. Burgess was first examined this morning.

MR. BURGESS.—I am ready to take the oath and to swear to everything that I have said in my previous examination.

THE CHAIRMAN then administered the oath to the witness.

MR. SPROULE repeated his question.

I do not know positively who gave the information. I may say, however, that about a month ago I received a message through the assistant secretary of the Department, from a Mr. Harry Palmer, who was an extra clerk in the Department of the Interior, to the effect that unless by the 20th June—this must have been before that, but I do not remember the date—unless by the 20th June I found a permanent situation for him in the public service, or employment for his daughter in the Department of Indian Affairs, he (Palmer) was going to make disclosures concerning me.

By Mr. Somerville :

439. Was it a letter?—No; it was a verbal message. This was communicated to me by the assistant secretary of the Department. I told him I wanted him to put the message in writing, and he did so. It was to the effect that I have stated, that unless by the time mentioned this was done, he (Palmer) was going to make disclosures which would make it hot for me.

By Mr. McMullen :

440. Who was this man?—His name is Harry A. Palmer. He was taken into the Department several years ago, but being over 35 years of age, and not having passed the Civil Service Examination, under the decision of the Treasury Board, to which reference has been made this morning, he, along with others, had to leave the service.

By Mr. Hyman :

441. Where is he now?—That I do not know.

By Mr. Sproule :

442. How long is it since he left the Department?—He left it immediately after I got that message.

By Mr. Daly :

443. He was fired?—Yes; he left immediately I got that message.

By Mr. Foster :

444. Will you give an explanation of the circumstances connected with the $200 cheque drawn up in favour of Mr. Humphreys?—In the first place, permit me to say that I never drew a dollar or a cent of money myself from the Government by way of extra remuneration from the day I entered the service up to the present moment, directly or indirectly. I remember the particular occasion mentioned by Mr. Henry. I was about to leave, as he says, for the North-West. The circumstances are pretty much as he has stated them, except that he has omitted to give the explanation I made to him when the cheque was drawn. The claim that was made on account of Mr. Humphreys I always understood to be for the reason that he worked after 4 o'clock.

445. The claim had been standing?—It had been standing, and, as Mr. Henry says, it had been arranged that he should be paid for that work.

By Mr. Somerville :

446. By whom had it been arranged?—With myself and the Minister of the Interior.

447. With Mr. Dewdney?—No; with Mr. White. He was an extra clerk and could have been paid any amount of money we choose to give out of the outside vote, but I did not want to break down the rule in the Department of paying more than $1.50 a day. I quite agree with Mr. Henry that this man was entitled to additional remuneration; but I did not want to break down the rule of $1.50 per day.

By the Chairman :

448. He was superior to the clerks in the Department?—He was. The day before I left for the North-West I said to Mr. Henry that I would let Humphreys account pass for $200; but it is also true, which Mr. Henry appears to have forgotten, that I explained to him what I intended to do with $100 of it.

By Mr. Foster :

449. What was Humphreys' claim for $100 or $200?—It was really, I understand, for more than $100. But if he had been given more than that he would have exceeded the 50 cents a day extra which it was proposed to give him in this way. I told Mr. Henry then, as I told him subsequently, but evidently he has forgotten it, that I intended this extra $100 for Mr. Anderson. I do not see why Mr. Henry should have laid such stress on the fact that Mr. Anderson was my father-in-law. He was an old and accomplished journalist, and when the report was made on Forestry by Mr. J. M. Morgan, of Amherstburg, after reading it over I considered it was not in good literary form, and had to be revised by somebody. I therefore gave it to this old gentleman, who carefully went over it from beginning to end. He re-wrote the whole of it, and afterwards revised the proofs. I thought he was entitled to something, but I had some delicacy about giving it to him directly, as Mr. Henry says, because he was my own father-in-law. That being the day before I was leaving for the North-West, and Mr. Anderson being in the act of changing his residence, it being the first of May, I put my hand in my own pocket and gave him $100, and I said, that when Mr. Humphreys handed over the extra $100 out of the $200 to Mr. Chisholm, he could give it to me. I considered that I had a perfect right to recoup myself for that amount.

By Mr. Hyman :

450. You knew that in doing this you were doing something that was illegal?—No; I do not know that. Mr. Henry excuses himself for receiving money up to 1882, but in this case the work was performed, not by Mr. Humphreys, but by another man.

451. Would not the better way have been to have put Mr. Anderson's name in the ordinary way?—Doubtless.

452. You must have acknowledged that you were doing what was wrong?—I did not think it was wrong.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

453. Did Mr. Henry see you subsequently to this interview?—No; I went off immediately to the North-West.

454. I do not mean then, but at any subsequent time?—Yes; a few months ago.

455. He wanted to ascertain the reason then, for the payment?—Yes. He had some cause then. I had had occasion to take objection to the size of his staff and the way he was running it, and the suggestion was made that if he were only to see the size of the staff in the Land Commissioner's Office at Winnipeg he would notice the difference. I may say, also, that some years ago I refused to recommend Mr. Henry's promotion.

By Mr. Hyman :

456. Was this previous to the receipt of the $100?—I never received it. To Mr. Anderson, as I said.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

457. At this interview at which the others were not present, did you tell Mr. Henry what was to be done with the money when you asked him to draw the cheque?—I think I did; I think that question was discussed then. Mr. Henry's impression was that I had not told him, and my impression is that I did.

458. So that the only discrepancy between you is that Mr. Henry states that you did not tell him at the time, while you think you did?—That is so.

By Mr. Corby :

459. If Mr. Henry did not think it was right, why did he not speak to you about it for such a long period afterwards?—That I do not know.

By Mr. Taylor :

460. When did you enter the service, Mr. Burgess?—In 1876.

461. Was it the practice in that year to pay the permanent staff to do extra work?—I so understand.

462. In 1876?—Yes.

463. And the practice has been continued more or less ever since?—Yes.

464. Where there was extra work to be done by the permanent staff?—Oh, no; I never understood that Mr. Henry's permanent clerks were getting any of this extra money. He did come to me and object to certain office accounts, but I never understood that was his objection.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

465. What was his objection?—That was the end of it, as far as I know. He says every clerk in the office got some share of this extra money. If they did, I did not know it.

466. You knew the system was being carried on?—I knew the extra men were being paid.

467. And the system of sharing up with the permanent staff—you knew it?—I did not; positively I did not.

By Mr. Taylor :

468. But in 1876 permanent clerks were occasionally employed over-time and paid for it?—I know that some of the clerks of the Interior Department were employed over-time in the Finance Department.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

469. But anything before 1882 would not be irregular, so far as those payments were concerned?—I suppose not; on the mere ground of the law, there was no irregularity in paying those extra clerks.

By Mr. Foster :

470. What I understand you to say is, that you knew permanent men in your Department were receiving extra pay?—I did not. I thought that only the temporary men in the Department were receiving extra remuneration.

471. You knew the temporary men were receiving extra pay?—Yes.

472. And you did not know your permanent men were in partnership with the extra men, and were getting part of what these extra men were drawing?—I did not.

By Mr. Somerville :

473. Was Mr. Humphreys a permanent clerk?—No; he was an extra man. He is in Winnipeg now. If you were to call him here he could not tell you more than I have told you at the present moment. The reason he went to Winnipeg is this: The late Mr. White had arranged that he should be appointed permanently, but being a young-looking man, unfortunately I allowed him to attain his 35th year before the appointment was made. In fact, up to that time a vacancy had not presented itself. I represented his case, as I am doing now, to Mr. Dewdney, with a view to securing him a permanency, but meanwhile he is engaged in the Land Commissioner's Office at Winnipeg.

By Mr. Foster :

474. When did Mr. Anderson do the work you have mentioned?—In the fall of 1886 or the other part of 1887.

475. Did you arrange for him to be paid for it?—I did not make any arrangement with him.

By the Chairman :

476. What is your value of the work?—Certainly more than $100.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

477. Why should there have been any delicacy about it?—I see now there should have been none. I suppose it was mistaken delicacy. He was the only relative I had in the country, and as something had been said in the newspapers about his getting employment in the Department, perhaps it was on that account.

By Mr. Hyman:

478. You paid the money out of your own pocket?—I paid him the morning I was going to the North-West.

479. And you got it back again?—My private secretary got it.

480. How long was it after the work was done in 1887?—It was immediately after the work was completed. It was work that took a considerable time; it was in the winter of 1886-87.

By Mr. McMullen:

481. The Minister knew the work was being done?—He did.

482. He was cognizant of the fact?—He was, but not of my giving the money to Mr. Anderson.

483. Practically, there is no certificate in the Department that he did the work?—Oh, yes. There is the pamphlet; it speaks for itself.

484. You made the Minister aware of the fact that Mr. Anderson did the work?—Most decidedly. I may say that the Minister was being pressed to publish this Forestry pamphlet.

485. And the Department received full value for this $100?—It received much more than value.

486. Then the only thing about this transaction is the simple irregularity in reference to the way it was being paid.

By Mr. Hyman:

487. Did the Minister know the money was being paid?—I arranged with the Minister that it should be paid, but he did not know the way it was paid.

By Mr. Bowell:

488. I understand you to say that to your knowledge no permanent clerk in your Department has received extra pay?—I say, with the exception of Mr. Turner who was here this morning, there has not.

By the Chairman:

489. You speak of the whole Department?—I do.

490. You do not know of any other?—No.

The Committee then adjourned.

---

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 14th July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

FRANCIS McCABE called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville:

491. In what part of the public service are you employed now?—I am at present employed on the Census staff of the Department of Agriculture.

492. At one time you had a position in the Interior Department?—Yes; I was employed there as temporary clerk in that Department for some time.

493. What was the nature of your duties; what work were you employed at?—I was part of the time comparing letters that were sent into the Department with the original drafts ; part of the time I was précis-writing, and I was for a time assisting in settling up the claims of the volunteers who served in the North-West Rebellion of 1885. I was some time at that. I was for quite a while employed in comparing official documents in the Department.

494. That was your particular duty ?—For a part of the time ; not all the time.

495. I see, according to the Auditor General's Report, page 33-B, you were paid for 365 days at $1.50 a day, and extra work 102 hours, at 50 cents. That would be $51 you got for extra work. Do you remember that ?—Which year, please ?

496. The fiscal year ending 30th June, 1890 ?—I remember doing extra work ; I do not remember just now what it was.

497. Here is one of your accounts. Will you take a look at it. Is that your writing ?—Yes.

498. Here is another account—is that your writing ?—Yes.

499. The whole of it ? Yes.

500. Is the bottom line yours, too ?—Yes.

501. And the whole account is in your handwriting ?—Yes.

502. What is the date of the first one ?—27th January, 1890.

503. What is the date of the next one ?—27th February, 1890.

504. And you identify these two accounts as having been made out by you ?—I identify the handwriting in the body of the account, but I notice a certain correction made in the date which I do not remember having made myself.

505. Were you instructed to make that account out yourself, or did you do it of your own option ?—Will you permit me to give an explanation ?

506. Certainly, we want to get at the truth, and you can make whatever explanation you please.

507. Who certified to those two accounts as being correct ?—Mr. F. Nelson.

508. Who is he ?—He is a clerk in the Department of the Interior.

509. Is he one of the principal clerks ?—He is a second-class clerk.

510. Can you explain about this account ?—About this date—27th January, 1890—as well as I remember, I was employed in the Department working under Mr. J. S. Brough. I was, I think, as well as I can remember, allowed some extra work at that time. I know I was allowed extra work.

511. I want you to be particular about that, and to be specific as to what you were allowed ?—At that date or during this winter—the winter of 1890—and for sometime previous, to the best of my knowledge, I was drawing some extra pay. I was a temporary clerk in the Department, and I am willing to refer the case to my chief as to whether I earned that money or not.

512. That is not the question ?—I think I earned whatever money I drew for myself as an extra clerk.

By the Chairman :

513. What was the work you were doing ?—At that time, as far as I can remember, I was doing précis-writing.

By Mr. Somerville :

514. What I want to get at is, what were the services rendered for that account ?—So far as I remember about the account certified to by Mr. Nelson, he at that time, to the best of my knowledge, was away from his regular work engaged in preparing, or assisting to prepare, the annual report of the Department. That is what I think, and he had helping him at that time, to some extent, Mr. Palmer. Either he or Mr. Palmer, I cannot just remember which, came to me and said they had a great deal of extra work to put in in connection with that report ; that they worked after hours and they were entitled to extra pay for it ; and they asked me—

515. Who asked you ?—One of them ; I don't remember which.

516. Try and remember ?—I cannot distinctly remember.

517. Can you not come to a conclusion as to who it was ?—To the best of my recollection I think it was Mr. Palmer. I am not quite certain.

518. What occurred then?—It was stated to me on that occasion that this extra work had been done—

519. By Palmer and Nelson?—Yes; and that it was felt that extra pay was merited. I was then asked to allow my name to be used in that connection, without any consideration at all—that I was not to receive any part of the money.

520. You were not to receive any of the money?—No; not any part of it, but to oblige them by letting them use my name in the matter. After considering the matter, and enquiring into the amount of work done and the character of the work, I concluded to give them the use of my name. I did not wish to get any of the money myself. It was not given with that intention. It was merely an accommodation.

521. This Nelson is a permanent clerk?—Yes.

522. About the other account, was it got up in the same way—the account dated 27th February in the same year?—I only have to tell you that I do not remember of Mr. Kinloch ever having certified to an account of mine. I do not remember ever having asked that gentleman to certify to an account for me.

523. When you say that, do you imply that some other officer took it there?—I do not know.

524. This first account was made out by you at the dictation of Palmer or Nelson. You would not know what they were entitled to?—After telling their case to me I enquired into the amount of work and the character of the work and I thought at that time that whatever money they would get would be got honestly—that they were honestly entitled to. As a matter of accommodation I allowed my name to be used.

525. You could not know what amount of work they had done?—I enquired.

526. From them?—Yes; as far as I remember.

527. It was by the information you received from them, and at their dictation, you made up this account?—If I remember correctly, they showed me the work they had.

528. It was at their dictation you made the account?—I do not remember the details at all. I know this much: the account would never have been made out unless they had asked me to do so.

529. Is the other account in the same position?—I do not remember to this moment Mr. Kinloch ever certifying to an account for me.

530. Was it under similar circumstances? Who requested you to make out that second account?—I do not remember.

531. Did you do any work for that account, or was it done by Palmer and Nelson?—I do not know.

532. Did you do it?—All I wish to state is this, that at this time of the year I was working after hours in the Department. It was decided I should receive extra pay for the extra work that I did.

By Mr. Hyman :

533. Who decided?—I was told by Mr. Hall, Secretary of the Department, some time previous to this date. During this time I was receiving extra pay.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

534. Do you not remember whether in that month you received a sum of money equivalent to that account?—I do not remember the amount I received each month.

By Mr. Somerville :

535. It is a simple matter to say if you remember distinctly how you came to make that out. Did you do the work for that account?—If you will allow me, I will continue my statement, which is all I have to say to you.

536. I am asking you with regard to this account, and not with regard to your extra pay in the Department. What I want to get at is this first: Was that account made out for work done by yourself, or work done by other men, or by another man?—I was about to tell you that I do not remember this particular account. The work which I was doing at this time, with the exception of this first account, was, as well as I can remember, certified to by Mr. Brough, and this is the first intimation I have received of Mr. Kinloch's name being put to an account of mine.

537. The certificate has nothing to do with the work. You certainly remember if you did the work?—I was telling you that at this time I was offered extra work. When I was doing this work I handed every account to Mr. Brough, to the best of my knowledge. This first account is one that I told you was certified to by Mr. Nelson, but all the rest, with the exception of the one I thought was certified to by Mr. Nelson, was certified to by Mr. Brough. I was working under Mr. Brough at that time. I did not expect to meet this kind of certificate by Mr. Kinloch.

538. Here is the cheque for the first account—$24.50. You got that cheque, I suppose?—I see it is made out in my name. Yes; I endorsed that.

539. Do you remember drawing that money out of the bank?—I do not remember having drawn it.

540. Did you get that money?—That is the one certified to by Mr. Nelson. I gave the money to Mr. Nelson or Mr. Palmer. I gave it to both of them.

541. Did you get any portion of it?—Not that I remember, not from Mr. Nelson.

542. Did you get any portion of that money?—Not of the account I put in. I do not think, as far as the account I put in.

543. Who did you hand the cheque to after it was given to you?—I do not remember; I cannot remember just now.

544. Do you remember that after the cheque was made out you handed it to a certain man in the Department, and he took it to the bank and got it cashed?—I do not remember at all. I do not remember whether I got it cashed or he.

545. Did you not get $5 out of that amount?—Of which amount?

546. That first cheque.—To the one certified to by Mr. Nelson?

547. Yes.—I do not remember having got it. I remember getting $5 at that time from Mr. Palmer. I always thought in consideration of extra work that I did for him. I think that was the intention; I do not know what his intention was—but I took it as that.

548. That he paid you for work you had done for him?—He was aware that I did the work, and I took it as the regard for that. I did not take it as an incitement to preparing the account.

549. Was there any remark made when Mr. Palmer paid you that?—No; I do not remember any.

550. What portion of the second cheque did you get?—The one certified to by Mr. Kinloch?

551. Yes.—I do not remember that account at all.

552. Did you get any portion of that?—No, sir; I am sure I did not, because I do not remember the account.

553. Did you not get $4 for it?—I do not remember it.

554. Do you remember getting a cheque in the previous year, or cheques, for $254 for work done?—Excuse me. About that $5, I remember some money being given me. I know it was a small amount, and I think it was $5. But this $4 I do not remember anything about at all.

555. You remember you said you were working in connection with Mr. Brough. You remember getting a cheque for extra work in 1888-89, and how much of that did you hand over to Mr. Brough as his share?—What month?

556. I cannot tell the month. You remember getting a cheque that year for extra work?—Yes; I remember that. I remember doing extra work and getting extra pay.

557. Did you share your extra pay with Mr. Brough?—Part of the time I did.

558. How much did you give him of the amount? I am informed you got $254 for extra work in 1889 and shared it with Mr. Brough.—Yes.

559. How much did you give of it to Mr. Brough?—I do not remember, but I would like to explain the matter briefly.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

560. Can't you tell us generally? Did you give him half?—While we worked together I did, I think. I was working with Mr. Brough before his name was mentioned in this connection of extra pay, and I felt I worked very well for it and received it honestly and legally. Some time during that winter Mr. Brough came to me and stated that I was to work with him. There was then, I think, returns for the House of Commons being prepared, which was in addition to the usual work I was doing. I continued to do this extra work which I had been previously doing, and joined in with Mr. Brough in doing this other work. Mr. Brough and I worked together after hours, sometimes in the morning, as far as I can remember, before nine o'clock. We worked very hard, and the account we made out in my name because I was an extra clerk; but I divided the money with Mr. Brough.

561. Because you were an extra clerk?—Mr. Brough was a permanent clerk and I was an extra, and they were made out in my name.

562. You knew Mr. Brough was not entitled to receive any?—I felt he was honestly entitled to receive it.

563. Did you not know it was contrary to the Civil Service Act?—I felt it was not strictly in accordance with the Act.

By Mr. Somerville :

564. Who instructed you to do this?—Mr. Brough himself.

565. Did you receive instructions from anybody else?—Not directly.

566. Had you any instructions indirectly?—No. Mr. Brough told me he was to work with me.

567. You, to the best of your recollection, gave Mr. Brough about half the amount you received for extra work in 1889?—Yes; I do not remember whether we exactly divided, but whatever Mr. Brough and I got I felt we were very honestly entitled to it.

568. Was Mr. Brough the party who certified to the account?—I handed the accounts to Mr. Brough because I was working under him; but I do not remember whether he certified to them or not.

By Mr. Hyman :

569. Who was the person who should have certified to the account?—Mr. Brough.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

570. I understood you to say in your previous evidence that Mr. Brough had certified to your accounts?—Before Mr. Brough came into the matter at all he certified.

571. Did he certify to this particular account that you divided with him?—I handed them to him; but I do not remember seeing his initials or certificate attached. I suppose the account will show.

572. It was his custom to certify?—Yes.

By Mr. Somerville :

573. You came to this understanding to share up this extra money because it was the usual practice in the Department. You knew it was in practice there by other clerks. It was a common practice there?—I was informed it was.

574. Who informed you?—I remember having heard it stated. I do not know whether the practice prevailed to any great extent, but I understood it did. Mr. Brough spoke to me about working with him.

575. Can you give me some information about this account of 27th February, 1890? Because, I may tell you that I have another witness who knows all about that account, and you might just as well tell about it now?—I assure you I am trying to cloak nothing. If I cannot answer this question to your satisfaction it is because

I do not know it. May be if my memory is refreshed I may get along better. I am sure you cannot show I did anything wrongly.

576. But you did not get this money at all?—The only way in which I can remember Mr. Kinloch's name being mentioned is that Mr. Palmer told me that an account I put in in connection with work done by Mr. Nelson was taken in to Mr. Hall by Mr. Nelson and Mr. Kinloch. I see that these dates do not correspond—that is, the date certified to by Mr. Nelson and by Mr. Kinloch. One is the 27th of January and the other is the 27th of February.

577. Can you recollect how that came about?—Really I cannot. I do not remember Mr. Kinloch ever having certified to an account, and I don't remember ever having asked him to do it.

578. Do you remember in 1886 giving a clerk in the Departments the use of your name for an account amounting to $73.50 under similar circumstances to these?—If you will excuse me for a moment, I would say that as far as this account of Mr. Kinloch's is concerned I should be glad if any explanation could be given that would refresh my memory upon the subject. If this could be done I would be quite willing and happy. I don't remember at this moment that Mr. Kinloch ever certified to that account.

579. Well, in 1886 do you remember allowing your name to be used for an account amounting to $73.50?—Can you tell me the month, please?

580. I cannot. I have not the papers here; we have only the papers for last year?—I remember allowing my name to be used for some account. I think it was $73.50.

581. I asked you if you allowed the use of your name for that account?—Well, at that time I was working—

582. Now, this is a simple question; answer it directly. Who asked you for the use of your name?—I think it was Mr. Nelson.

583. The same man who asked you for the use of your name in the other case?—I don't say whether in that other case it was Mr. Nelson or Mr. Palmer.

584. He asked you for the use of your name for this $73 account in 1886 and you gave it to him?—He drew my attention to the fact that there was a certain amount of extra pay for work done partly by me and partly by himself. He said "that extra pay was deserved for the work that was done," and that he knew the amount of extra hours charged for were put in, and I was asked to allow my name to be entered as extra clerk. I never received a dollar of that money. I did it because I felt the money was honestly earned—probably not legally earned—but I felt the money was earned, because I understood Mr. Nelson had put in extra time. I put in extra time myself, but I did not keep an account because I was not looking for extra work.

585. How much of that $73 did you get?—I don't remember ever getting any of it.

586. Then it all went to Nelson?—To the best of my recollection it did. I was not looking for any, and don't remember ever having got any. I felt when I allowed the amount to go in my name that the money was well earned. It was for extra hours put in partly by Mr. Nelson and partly by myself. I don't know how many I put in. I put in some, and he put in a great many, or at least I understood so.

By Mr. Foster :

587. Did you say you did part of the work?—I worked extra time, but I was not looking for extra pay.

588. You did not get extra pay?—No more than the use of my name. I did not get any.

By Mr. Somerville :

589. You said Mr. Nelson kept the whole of this $73.50?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister :

590. How long has this sort of thing been going on, in so far as you were concerned—for how many years past?—The extra pay, you mean?

591. Yes; the permanent clerks being paid in this way for extra work?—Of course, I am only aware of those two gentlemen I spoke of.

592. I am only asking you to speak so far as your knowledge extends?—This case—

593. Never mind this case. How long has this been going on? You have only given two or three cases.—This case was the first I had anything to do with.

594. That was in 1886?—Yes.

595. But you had something in 1887?—For whom?

596. I don't care for whom—for Palmer or Nelson?—Yes; for Mr. Nelson in 1887, I think it was. I remember working on an index of Orders in Council relating to the Department of the Interior. I put in extra time at it, and I felt whatever money we got was well earned.

597. I am not doubting that?—We got money, and I think to the best of my recollection it was given in my name.

598. How much was that?—I do not remember; it was not a very large amount. I think I received about $10.

599. How much did Mr. Nelson receive?—I don't know. It was probably a little more. My account was very small.

600. That was in 1887?—Yes; I think it was. That is the only instance in 1887 that I think of now.

601. You swear it is the only one?—To the best of my recollection, it was the only one.

602. In 1888 the same thing took place. An account was made to you and a cheque was made to you?—I don't remember, sir.

603. Do you swear you don't remember whether in 1888 extra work was paid for in that way?—I never knew that I would have to give this evidence until lately.

604. That is only two years ago?—Yes; I think I commenced to get extra pay in 1888.

605. Who was the gentleman over you—Mr. Nelson?—I think in 1888 I was working for Mr. Brough.

606. Did you "divvy" up with him?—In this particular case I spoke of I have already said he and I worked together.

607. That was in 1889?—I don't remember if I "divvied up" in 1888.

608. Just try and put your thinking-cap on and refresh your memory?—Of course, I am free to admit what "divvying" I did with Mr. Brough; it was in 1889.

609. You say he did work for you, and you did work too, and you divided upon the cheque?—Yes.

610. Did you do that in 1888?—I don't remember whether it was in 1888 or 1889.

611. But you had extra work every year, had you not, since 1886?—I only got extra work myself, I think, in 1888 and in 1889.

612. But your chief, Mr. Nelson, did extra work every year, did he not?—Mr. Nelson did work in 1886 and 1887. We did a little extra work on the index of Orders in Council.

613. Well, in 1888 then, I understand you to say, you cannot swear whether there was any money paid, in the way of a cheque being given to you for extra work done by Mr. Nelson?—I don't remember, sir.

614. You do remember in 1889, and you do remember in 1890?—Which instance is that, sir?

615. Well, did you have extra work in 1889?—I remember doing work in 1889. I was working under Mr. Brough.

616. And you and he were working together?—Part of the time.

617. And the cheque was made out in your name?—Yes.

618. And you gave him a share of the money?—Part of the time I did.

619. What portion of the year would that be?—I think it was during the session.

620. During the time Mr. Brough and you were working together, doing extra work, cheques were made out in your own name?—Yes.

621. And the cheques were divided?—Yes.

622. He getting a portion and you a portion?—Yes.

623. Who got the lion's share?—I think it was equally divided.

624. Did not Mr. Brough get the most of it?—I think it was pretty well divided.

625. What is your judgment? Did Brough get the most of it, or did you get the most?—On the whole, I don't think I got the most.

626. Who was your immediate chief in 1889—Mr. Brough?—Yes.

627. Then there was an arrangement made between you and Mr. Brough that Mr. Brough should have extra work, and you should have extra work, and that the cheques should be made out to you. That was the agreement, was it not?—That is what I understood it to be.

628. Was there not an expressed agreement?—I don't remember. I have an impression the cheques were made out in my own name.

629. You want the committee to understand there was no conversation?—I don't remember any conversation. Brough told me we were to work together, and I understood the cheques were to be made out in my name. I was the extra clerk and he was not.

630. He was your chief?—Yes.

631. You have told us you enquired into this extra work considerably to satisfy yourself that Mr. Brough had done his share of the work?—No; with Mr. Nelson, I knew what Brough was doing.

632. You enquired into Nelson's case, to see he was not getting more than he was entitled to?—I enquired into the amount of work done.

633. Who did you speak to about that?—I think to him and to Mr. Palmer.

634. Did you speak to Palmer?—I don't remember more than I had a conversation with Mr. Nelson upon the subject, and I asked about the amount of work and the kind of work that was done.

635. You said you enquired into the work, and considered it was fair to allow the use of your name to Palmer and Nelson?—I considered the work was well earned.

636. You investigated the work that was done?—Yes; I enquired about it.

637. Who did you enquire from?—I think I went up to the room and asked.

638. Asked whom?—I think I spoke to Mr. Nelson and to Mr. Palmer.

639. You thought it was your duty to investigate what your superiors had done, and to see whether they were doing too much or too little?—They were not my immediate superiors in that case.

640. Well, they were your co-conspirators?—I don't think I was a conspirator, Mr. Lister.

641. Well, put it as you like. You thought it was necessary to investigate the work they did?—I don't know that I thought it necessary. I enquired into it.

642. And from the enquiries you made, you satisfied yourself that the charges that they were making were right?—The charges for money, you mean?

643. For extra work?—Yes; I considered at the time.

644. Who investigated your account, because you had a share? You put in for work, too?—When?

645. Did you or did you not get a share, or did this money go to them? Did all that money go to them?—In that connection?

646. There was a cheque made out, we will say, for $800, half to go to you and half to the chief, Palmer or Nelson or Mr. Brough. Now, your work had to be supervised by some body; who did that for you?—I was working under Mr. Brough. Mr. Brough supervised it.

647. Mr. Brough supervised your work and you supervised Mr. Brough's work?—I think so.

648. Of course he was over you?—He is my chief—yes.

649. He certified to the work you did and you investigated the work he did?—We worked together.

650. You told us you investigated?—You are mixing the two names together.

651. Well, we will call it Nelson. Did Nelson certify to your work?—Which work—the work done by me when I was under Mr. Brough?

652. When you were under Mr. Nelson. Were you ever under Mr. Nelson?—I was under Mr. Nelson, when I left the Department last fall.

653. And you and Mr. Nelson had a little charge of this kind, and Mr. Nelson certified to your work. Yes or no?—I understood he did.

654. You know he did. And did you investigate Mr. Nelson's work?—I was not called upon.

655. You told me for the purpose of satisfying yourself the money was fairly earned you made enquiries?—That is the time Mr. Nelson and Mr. Palmer drew extra money. I enquired into the amount of work they did.

656. You had nothing to do with Palmer and Nelson. They came to you as a stranger?—Not as a stranger. I was very well acquainted with them.

657. And asked you to allow them to use your name?—Yes.

658. You were working under Mr. Nelson on 27th January, 1890, were you not?—I think I was working under Mr. Brough then.

659. And that account for Mr. Nelson, was it not in January, 1889, for $24.50?—I think so.

660. Is that your handwriting?—Yes.

661. Well that work was for Mr. Nelson?—That was the account.

662. And you made out the account in your own name and Mr. Nelson certified it as correct?—It appears so.

663. That is so, is it not?—It appears so.

664. Well, was there any part of that for Mr. Nelson's services or was it all for his services?—I don't remember having done any work of that character.

665. That was all for Nelson. He got the $24.50?—Yes.

By Mr. Devlin :

666. Did you not do a great deal of that work for which pay has been given?—Which work, sir?

667. The extra work?—I have done a great deal of extra work in the Department.

668. With regard to those cheques, do you think that Mr. Nelson or Mr. Palmer would have complained had you kept the full amount of the money, or would they have been satisfied that you had done the work meriting those cheques?—I don't remember, Mr. Devlin, more than that I was working after four and after six in the evening, but I don't remember the circumstances of the case at all.

669. And when you allowed your name to be used by Mr. Nelson you did not think you were doing anything wrong?—No; I did not think I was doing a dishonest thing, by any means. I enquired into the work they did and found they did enough work to merit the money.

670. You were induced to do that by Mr. Nelson?—Either he or Mr. Palmer spoke to me. I had a conversation with both before it went through.

671. If you had kept the money for which the cheques were made your conscience would not have reproved you—you would have felt satisfied you had done the work?—I felt satisfied I was doing enough extra work at the time.

By Mr. Somerville :

672. You have already stated in your evidence that you did not work for this, you just allowed the use of your name to Mr. Nelson for that amount?—Yes.

673. You did not do any work for this?—It was extra work under another chief.

674. You did not do any extra work for this amount; it was Mr. Nelson?—My recollection is, I simply lent my name.

675. You simply lent your name to Mr. Nelson?—To either him or Mr. Palmer,

By Mr. McMullen:

676. When did you enter the service?—In 1885.

677. As temporary clerk?—Yes.

678. Who obtained the position for you?—I got the position through Mr. Macmaster, who was then member of Parliament for Glengarry.

679. And you have been in the service since 1885?—I think my appointment that year was only for the session; I left when the session was over, and shortly I was reinstated in the Department, and remained there until last autumn, when I resigned and went to Toronto to study medicine.

680. When did you return?—I returned this spring, and received employment on the Census staff.

By Mr. Denison:

681. You are an extra clerk now then?—Yes. If the Committee wish any more evidence from me I shall be most willing to give it. I would like to say this before leaving: Any money I received from the Department of the Interior I felt that I honestly earned it, and I think the gentlemen who were my chiefs will swear to that—that I legally and honestly earned it.

By Mr. Lister:

682. Were you receiving any money while you were studying in Toronto?—Any pay while I was there?

683. Yes?—When I left the Department, as far as I can remember, I had not taken my regular holidays. I applied for my holidays just when I was leaving, because I had not taken my holidays during the year, which was customary for the clerks to take, and for the first month I received a cheque.

684. That was all?—Yes.

HARRY PALMER called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville:

685. How long have you been working in the Interior Department?—Seven years next November. I was doing outside work for about six months before I went into the inside service.

686. What branch were you in?—First of all I was in charge of 30 or 35 women—outside copyists; I counted all their work, and made out their accounts on the 15th of every month. The accounts then went to Mr. Hall, the Secretary of the Department, when I had initialled them and certified to them.

687. To come down to business, look at this account, dated January 27th, 1890. Did you ever see that account before?—Yes, sir.

688. Where did you see it?—Mr. Nelson had charge of getting up the Annual Report for the Interior Department, and he called upon me to assist him. I had been on that work for three or four years previous. Mr. Parsons and I one year got it up together, but I received no extra pay for it. When Mr. Nelson and Mr. Parsons had charge of the work they got $100 for it; Mr. Parsons got $50 and Mr. Nelson got $50.

689. How did the parties get that money?—Mr. Nelson did not do any of the work; he simply had the supervising of it. I did the work after my usual day's work. I would often commence work again after supper, at half-past six or seven, and work until eleven or half-past. At the end of the month Nelson came to me and said, "I guess you are entitled to extra pay for this work." I said to him, "All right, how much am I entitled to?" and he said, "$24 or $25." I thought half a loaf was better than none at all and I said, "I have got a family to support and I would sooner take half of it than nothing at all." I said I had put in a great many more hours than what he proposed to pay me for, and he said to me, "Yes, I know you have."

690. You were not a permanent clerk?—No, sir; an extra clerk.

691. And you were, therefore, entitled to draw pay for extra services?—Yes. After I made up the account he certified to it and he said, "I would like to get some too; do you think you could fix it with McCabe." I said, "McCabe is a pretty good fellow, and I think he would have no objection." He said, "I done it some years ago, and I do not see why he should not do it." I may say that McCabe is one of the most faithful and hard-working officers we had in the Department.

692. I notice that you certify to each other's character?

WITNESS.—No, not particularly; but I will say this: he was a hard-working man and never left the office at four o'clock as the others did. Well, I saw McCabe and at first he refused to do what Nelson wanted. He said, "I am damned if I will do it." He said, "Nelson did not treat me right when I came downstairs." I said, "If you don't do it I will lose my share;" and then he said, "If it is to help you I will do it; if you are going to lose yours I will do it;" so he done it. I accordingly brought up the account and Mr. Nelson certified to it.

693. Were you present when this account was made out?—Yes; he made it out in my presence and I took the account to Nelson. I was there while he made it out.

694. What was the understanding, that it was for services rendered by McCabe or Nelson?—By Nelson.

By Mr. Foster:

695. And yourself?—No, sir. My own account ought to be there also for $24.50. We got even amounts. Well, I brought the account up to Mr. Nelson and he took it to Mr. Burgess and it was certified to by Mr. Burgess. When Mr. Nelson came upstairs again he stated to me, "I did not like to approach Mr. Burgess in this matter with this account, but I told him you had refused to accept any money because it is I who got it." I said, "You told him a damned lie, Mr. Nelson."

696. Did Nelson do any of this work?—Yes; some of it. I went to his house and worked for four hours on two consecutive Sabbaths. That is all the work Nelson did.

697. That is how that account originated?—Mr. Nelson took the account in to Mr. Beddoe and then got the cheque. I presume Mr. Beddoe sent the cheque to Mr. Burgess and it was signed by him. Mr. Nelson handed me the cheque and told me to go to the bank and draw the money. I thereupon took the cheque to McCabe and he endorsed it. When I came up again I said that McCabe had to get something out of this, for the use of his name, and I got $5 out of the account and handed it to McCabe.

698. Who told you to hand that to McCabe?—Mr. Nelson; it was for the use of his name.

699. Now about the next account, dated February 27th, 1890. Did you see that made out?—I did.

700. Tell us the circumstances.—Mr. Nelson said: "I do not want to present this account to Mr. Burgess on account of getting the other one." He said: "Could not you fix it and get Mr. Hall to certify it?" I said: "No, I won't go near Mr. Hall, nor ask him for any such thing." He said I was a great personal friend of Mr. Kinloch, "Could you not get Mr. Kinloch to present it to Mr. Hall. If he does it is all right." Mr. Kinloch refused point-blank at first to do it. However, he reconsidered the matter and said, "I will take it in to Mr. Hall." He did, and Mr. Hall certified to it, and that is the end of that. When he got that cheque Mr. Nelson told me to get it cashed, and I got that cheque cashed also.

By Sir Richard Cartwright:

701. Read that (pointing to the account).

"Certified correct.—H. KINLOCH.

"Approved.—J. R. H."

702. I thought you said that Kinloch refused to certify to it?—He did at first, but he afterwards reconsidered his decision. Well, I got the cheque cashed and came back, and Nelson said, "I suppose $4 will be enough for McCabe for this account." I said, "I do not know about that; this is your generosity; you can do as you like." Well, he gave me the money and I handed Mr. McCabe the $4.

703. What did you say to McCabe when you gave him the $4?—I said: "Mr. Nelson sends you this——"

704. What for? For the use of his name?—Yes; the same as he got $5 for the first one

Mr. McCABE (interrupting)—I do not remember that.

Mr. PALMER—Your memory is pretty short. You remembered it well enough a few days ago.

By Colonel Denison :

705. Are you in the Department now?—No, sir.

By Mr. Foster :

706. Will you explain clearly why this second account was not taken to Mr. Burgess?—I do not know, except that Mr. Nelson did not want it to go to Mr. Burgess.

707. He gave you no reason?—No, sir.

By Mr. Bowell :

708. But surely he must have assigned some reason. Was it in his own name that it was presented to Mr. Burgess?—He gave me no more particular reason than this. He said: "I do not want to trouble him with a second account." He was working on the annual report with Mr. Ogden, ex-M.P. There was a second cheque for $95 of which he was to receive half for that, and so he was really paid twice over. If he received $47.50 from Mr. Ogden, he would get this other for doing nothing.

By Mr. Somerville :

709. And this work if it was done, was done during office hours?—My work was done after hours, and he supervised it in office hours.

710. And he did not do any work for this?—Except on the two Sabbaths, when we worked four or five hours each.

By Mr. Lister :

711. Will you make this Ogden matter clear?—Well, the men who get up the annual report are always entitled to $100 for the work.

712. And you say that for this amount nothing was done?—No, I say that I worked at this altogether with Nelson. Ogden was sick at the time, and when he got better the report was nearly all done.

By Mr. Somerville :

713. You state that this man Nelson did no work for this first account dated January 27th, 1890, except in office hours?—Yes, with the exception of the two Sabbaths in which I went to his house. We worked for about four or five hours. I took the galieys.

714. Oh, you were reading proof. Who held the copy?—I held the copy.

715. And you worked four hours each Sunday?—It might be four, five or six. We started at ten in the morning and I did not come away until half-past three or four in the afternoon.

716. You were kept continuously at work?—Oh, yes.

717. But there was no work done for this at all?—Except during office hours.

By Mr. Adams :

718. When did you leave the Department?—On the 8th June.

719. What was the reason you left the Department?—That would be a long story.

720. Give it shortly.—It is a long story.

721. Can you tell why you left the Department on the 8th of June?—On the 6th of June I met Mr. Pereira, the Assistant Secretary, at about a quarter to six, at the corner of the Union House. I was going down to my tea. I asked Mr. Pereira for an interview and when he could give me one. He said: "With pleasure." I said: "Where will I meet you; will you come to my house or come to the hotel and meet me at the Russell?" He said: "Anywhere you say," and he asked at what time. I said: "Any time this evening," and he said he would meet me at the summer house. I met him at half-past seven and then commenced to tell him about the ugly rumours that were being circulated about our Department. I told him about this case of Joseph Wright, Mr. A. Berry and numerous other cases which I presume will come up afterwards. He stayed with me until about ten minutes before the death of Sir John. I asked him to lay these facts before Mr. Burgess and to tell him that the dismissal of twelve or fourteen of us extra clerks would have an ugly effect.

By Mr. Foster :

722. On whom?—On our party.

723. Which party?—The Conservative party.

724. Do you belong to that party?—Yes, sir, I do. I never became a renegade for any office. I never put pen to paper—

By Mr. Somerville :

725. Go ahead with your story.—I laid all these facts before him and I said: "You know what I am." I told Mr. Pereira: "Now," I said, "you know very well that I had a partial promise to have my daughter put in the Indian Department. To prove that I am disinterested, you promise that you will do all you can—she is a first-class typewriter, as the Messrs. Holland Brothers will certify—if you will do that, and it is done by the 20th, I will step down and look for a job somewhere else. If you will do that, I will step down and out of the Department; but I would like to have sufficient bread and butter, as I might not be able to get a job in Ottawa and leave my family here." I supposed we could get along on that for a year, with what my wife has. We have a couple of Senators with us during the Session. I merely stated I would step down and out of the Department if he would do that, and I would like an answer by the 20th. Whatever facts he laid before Mr. Burgess, I do not know. Would you like me to read Mr. Burgess' letter of dismissal?

By the Chairman :

726. When did this conversation take place with Mr. Pereira?—6th of June. This is the letter I received from Mr. Burgess:—

"OTTAWA, 8th June, 1891.

"SIR,—Mr. L. C. Pereira has conveyed to me your message to the effect that unless by the 20th instant provision is made for continuing you in the employment of the Government, or a situation be found for your daughter in one of the public Departments, you propose to make some disclosures which, in your opinion, will reflect upon me and other officers of this Department in connection with its administration. I have now to inform you that your services as a clerk in the Department of the Interior are dispensed with from this date.

"I am, Sir,

"Your obedient servant,

"A. M. BURGESS,

"Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

"Mr. H. A. PALMER,
"Department of the Interior,
"Ottawa."

When I received this letter I went to Mr. Pereira and asked him if he would give me an interview with Mr. Burgess. He said: "It is no use; you had better see your friends." I said: "I will not beg; I will not ask my friends for nothing." However, Mr. Birkett volunteered, and said: "I will take Mr. John Graham up with me." They went up and asked Mr. Burgess if he would see me, and he said no, he did not want anything to do with me.

By Mr. Somerville:

727. Why did you want to leave the Department?—Because I thought if they provided for my daughter it would be sufficient.

728. I thought you said you were disgusted with the proceedings. Why were you so disgusted?—This thing has been hanging over our heads for the last two years.

729. What thing?—Our dismissal. Every three months or so we were told we would have to go. Two years ago, I think about April or June, they made up a list and it was approved by Mr. Dewdney, and there were thirty-two of the extra clerks on this list. I was told by a gentleman who saw the list.

By Mr. Montague:

730. Were not all the extra clerks on it?—All in our Department.

731. There was no discrimination?—I cannot speak about Mr. Deville's branch.

By the Chairman:

732. Have you passed the Civil Service examination?—No; I was over age.

By Mr. Montague:

733. You were not threatened with any dismissal except what the law provided?—No; but we did not want it applied to one Department. We were told every month or so: "You must go next June." That time would be tided over and then we were told "You will have to go in September." Then, we did not hear anything more about it until the 1st of January. "On the 1st of January you must go sure;" but we never received any notice at that time. It was just a dog's life. Every man will tell you the same as I have told you, that it was a constant irritation. Every month or we were told we would be fired. I got so disheartened that I said: "I will get out." I thought I was entitled to a position for my daughter. I think Mr. Mackintosh will bear me out that when he could not raise a corporal's guard for Sir John Macdonald that I marched at the head of seventy-five men and gave Sir John a reception.

By Mr. Adams:

734. Did you tell anyone but Mr. Pereira?—No; because I had the interests of the Department and the party at heart.

735. After you got this letter from the Deputy Minister on the 8th of June, did you then tell anyone about this?—No, sir; I did not. I never mentioned it to any person but Mr. Pereira up to the present time.

By Mr. Montague :

736. You say you wrote to somebody?—I enclosed a letter to the Minister of the Interior, enclosing a copy of Mr. Burgess' letter, which I have here.

By Mr. Adams :

737. Did you tell any person since receiving the letter of the 8th of June?—I have not, although Mr. Burgess accused me of being the man who gave this information. I have not.

By Mr. Somerville :

738. You spoke to Mr. Graham?—I never gave Mr. Graham any secrets.

739. But you told him about your being discharged—Yes.

By Mr. Adams :

740. Did you inform any person outside of Mr. Pereira as to the matters testified to here to-day?—No, sir, because I was well treated in the Department, both by Mr. Burgess and all the officials.

741. You say that Mr. Burgess wrongfully accused you?—Yes; it came out in the public evidence in the papers. It would not take a very small mind to know who accused me. Mr. Burgess had not the slightest occasion for that accusation.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

742. You had told no one until you read that evidence?—No, sir; and then my hands were untied, and I did not hesitate. When Mr. Burgess accuses me I have a right to protect myself and family, and I will endeavour to do it.

By Mr. Bowell :

743. Were you not aware that the Auditor General had taken the position that those who had not passed the Civil Service examination could not remain on the pay-list?—We were told so, but I was informed the Auditor General denied that.

744. Who informed you?—It was spoken of around the Department. I cannot name them now, as it is a long time ago.

By the Chairman :

745. Did you receive a notice from the Interior Department some time ago that your services would be dispensed with?—Yes; along with fourteen or fifteen others. Here is the letter:—

(EXHIBIT No. 2.)

“ DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,

“ OTTAWA, 28th April, 1891.

“ DEAR MR. PALMER,—I regret very much to be obliged to inform you that, under the provisions of the Civil Service Act, it will not be possible to retain you in this Department after the 30th day of June next.

“ Yours faithfully,

“ JOHN R. HALL,

“ Secretary.

“ HENRY PALMER,

“ Department of the Interior,

“ Ottawa.”

By Mr. Somerville :

746. You were dismissed then at that time with fifteen others?—No; I was dismissed on the 8th of June, because of this conversation which I held with Mr. Pereira.

747. Did any others go out at the same time?—No, sir.

748. Have any others gone out since?—I think two or three are out.

749. Are there any more than three out, then?—All were taken back. They went back on the following day, except Mr. Hickey, who remained out one day.

750. Is he back?—I may say that I simply expostulated.

By Mr. Taylor :

751. How do you know about Mr. Hickey?—I know he is back, and he was out for one day.

By Mr. Lister :

752. There is only one of the fifteen struck off?—There was Col. Bethune, Mr. York and I think a Miss Slater—beside myself. Mr. Pereira's brother drew up a list, and I suggested drawing up a memorial to Mr. Burgess.

By Mr. Montague :

753. When was that—previous to the time you had made the threat?—This was in May.

By Mr. Somerville :

754. The witness denied that he made a threat?—I said they would have to make up their minds. I said there was no use for a man who threatened to write the whole Department up.

By the Chairman :

755. Will you explain how the giving your daughter a position would prevent these disclosures?—I had nothing to do with that. They were made afterward. I never threatened to make any disclosures, and if Mr. Burgess says so he says what is false.

756. Why did you want your daughter to get employment?—Because I had worked hard for the party.

757. You said you would step down and out if your daughter got a position. That has, to my mind, rather a peculiar meaning under the circumstances?—I would not state it was those exact words; but I think I used these words.

758. But the Government were employing you?—That was a matter with Mr. Burgess. If he decided to retain me I did not want a position for my daughter.

759. Why was your daughter connected with it?—She has passed her examination and was promised a position in the Indian Department.

760. And if your daughter had got the position you would not be here to-day giving evidence?—I do not know whether I would or not.

761. What do you think?—I think possibly I would be here; because I find out that other men had made up their mind to make these disclosures.

By Mr. Denison :

762. What was the name of this old newspaper man?—The old newspaper man—I think he was—was Mr. Hickey.

763. He said he would show up the Department?—Yes; he said he would show them all up.

By Mr. Daly :

764. How do you know he was taken back?—Because I was told by half a dozen men. There is the gentleman himself over there in the corner.

FRANK NELSON called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

765. You are an officer in the Interior Department?—I am

766. What position do you hold?—There is no official title to my position. I am a second-class clerk in the Secretary's branch of the Department.

767. What salary do you receive?—$1,250 at present. I received $700 when I entered first.

768. How long have you been in the Department?—Nearly nine years.

769. What business were you at before you went into the Department?—I was in a railway office in Chicago before I entered the Interior Department.

770. You are a man who received a very good education?—Yes; I am a B.A. from Toronto University. I had a pretty high standing there, too—a B.A. with honours.

771. You are conversant with the Civil Service Act?—I have seen the Civil Service Act, but I never studied it out. I do not suppose one in fifty has done so. I do not know that it is the business of an ordinary clerk to do so.

771a. You are sufficiently conversant with the Civil Service Act to know how you should conduct yourself in your own Department?—Yes.

772. You have read the Act, and know that no permanent clerk can receive pay unless it is voted by Parliament?—Yes.

773. When you entered the service of the Government—when you were appointed to office—you took an oath?—Not at first; but I think I did take the oath of office in the office of the Clerk of the Privy Council. I did not remember that. It was some time after entering the service. That is on record.

774. Would it be five years ago?—About that.

775. Just read that, and put in your name where the blanks are.

“I, Frank Nelson, solemnly and sincerely swear that I will faithfully and honestly fulfil the duties which devolve upon me as a clerk of the Interior Department, and that I will not ask or receive any sum of money, services, recompense or matter or thing whatsoever, directly or indirectly, in return for what I have done or may do in discharge of any of the duties of my said office, except my salary or what may be allowed me by law or by an order of the Governor in Council; so help me God.”

776. Well, that is the oath you took?—Yes.

777. You have been in the room, have you not, while the other witnesses were being examined?—I have been here some little time. Mr. McCabe was on the stand when I came in.

778. We will just refer you back to this account. Do you see this account here?—I see it is an account for 49 hours' extra work.

779. Well, give the date of it?—27th January, 1890, and certified to by F. Nelson. That is my signature.

780. That is for $24.50?—Yes.

781. You heard the evidence given by Mr. McCabe with regard to that account?—I don't know that I did.

782. You heard the evidence given by Mr. Palmer?—Yes; and to say the least of it, I was greatly surprised indeed. I must say I am prepared to contradict Mr. Palmer on nearly every point with regard to this account.

783. Did you ask Mr. McCabe for the use of his name when that account was made out?—I did not speak to Mr. McCabe at all about it before that account was made out.

784. Who did you speak to about it?—I did not speak to any body about it.

785. How did it come to be made out?—At this time the ‘grippe,’ I think, was prevalent, and the clerks of the Department were depleted; several in my office were away. There were several jobs on hand—the annual report, and I do not know whether it is confidential to say the North-West Territories Act,—and a large amount of work in connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway. Judge Clark was here, I think, about that time.

786. A member: Selecting lands?—Yes; a large amount of work had to be done in connection with that matter. Mr. Burgess was short of hands—at least, he asked me if I could assist him in any way. I told Mr. Burgess I was short, and that I was working night and day with what I had on hand. I said with regard to this: “There is Mr. Palmer; he is not sick; I see him around; I will get him, and he will help me out of the work." It was a work Mr. Palmer was conversant with. Mr. Palmer and I did considerable work. He says he was at my home two Sundays in succession. Perhaps that was true. I do not remember. I know that when I was engaged on the work I was stricken with "grippe" too, and Dr. H. B. Small ordered me to go home and go to bed for three days, or I would be very ill. I went home and went to bed. Dr. Small called to see me and I was sitting up in my bedroom in a dressing gown and working. He said this would not do, that I would have to go to bed and remain in bed. Mr. Palmer called shortly afterwards and we worked together. Most of that time we were working at my home I was in bed. I think Mr. Palmer will admit that when we got done with this work Mr. Palmer said to me: "Nelson, I will put in my account now." I had kept pretty faithful track of Mr. Palmer's work, and Mr. Palmer, if I rightly remember, wanted more than I would certify to. He said: "Nelson—"

787. I only want to know about this account ?

Several MEMBERS.—He is leading up to it.

Mr. Palmer said: "See here, I want to put in more than my own account." I said: "I know what you want to do, but I won't have anything to do with it." He said then something about speaking to Mr. McCabe. What it was I do not know, or what he intended to say. When Mr. Palmer laid his account before me this of Mr. McCabe's was with it. I said: "What is this?" He said: "Mac has been working over time, g— d— it, until 6 o'clock at night, and he has done that work." Well, I took the account along with Mr. Palmer's and put it into my pocket. I saw Mr. McCabe shortly afterwards, and I said: "Mr. McCabe, that matter of Palmer's is all right, is it not? You did the work?" He said something about working overtime, and working at night, and something or other about 49 hours' extra work. In this case I was led to ask, because the work is not specified here and I had not supervised it. I assured myself from enquiries of Mr. Palmer that the work was done and of Mr. McCabe, I spoke to him afterwards. He said he was working overtime, and I knew Mr. McCabe would not make an account out unless he thought he was justified. In matters of this kind, sometimes we have largely to depend upon the honour of the man who makes the account out. I cannot keep an account of work done when a man works at his own home, but I was always scrupulously careful to either inspect the work myself, or by carefully examining and carefully questioning to elicit from them information which satisfied me the work was done. I was satisfied Mr. McCabe did his work. Mr. Palmer said he handed me a cheque and I handed it to him. I never saw the cheque.

788. If Mr. McCabe stated he never did any of the work he is not telling the truth?—I—

789. Answer the question. If Mr. McCabe says he did not do any of the work he is not telling the truth?—For that particular account Mr. McCabe told me he worked overtime?

790. I want you to answer the question, sir. If Mr. McCabe swears he rendered no service for that account—that he did not work for it—you say then that he is not speaking the truth?—I did not say Mr. McCabe is not speaking the truth. I say Mr. McCabe told me at the time he was working overtime. I tell you, Mr. Somerville, we are not used to being pulled before a tribunal like this, as Mr. Palmer.

MR. PALMER.—You're a liar, sir, I never was before any tribunal.

Messrs. McCabe and Palmer were then ordered to leave the room.

By Mr. Somerville :

791. What I want is an answer to my question. I do not want to get you into any trouble, but I want to ask you this question: Mr. McCabe swears that he rendered no service for that account, that it was made out to accommodate you and at your request?—If he says at my request—

792. Wait a moment. He says that he rendered no service for that account, but that it was made out for the purpose of helping you?—At my request, you say? It was not at my request.

793. He did it either at the request of Mr. Palmer or Mr. Nelson?—Mr. McCabe said that? I did not speak to McCabe at all about this thing. The account is made out in a very unusual way. It says: “49 hours’ extra work.” I know Mr. Burgess enquired the date of the work, and what work was done. When I presented the account Mr. Burgess said: “What is this? I replied: “I enquired about the work, Mr. Burgess, and I am satisfied it is done,” and he then approved of it.

794. What was the nature of the work?—It was writing actions on the back of files, assisting in preparing correspondence, and indexing books. It was more than the work of one man, and Mr. McCabe did that work under Mr. Brough and myself.

795. We have already in evidence Mr. McCabe’s testimony to the effect that he did not do any work for that account?—I don’t know that. Mr. McCabe satisfied me at the time that he did. His extra work I don’t know, but he satisfied me at the time. I was scrupulously careful in certifying to any of their accounts. There is my certificate that the work was done. I was scrupulously careful to enquire and satisfy myself that the work was done before I put my name to.

A MEMBER.—Then you must have been satisfied by McCabe?—I was, and by Mr. Palmer. He said: “G—— d—— it, McCabe has worked until six o’clock every night, and he ought to get pay for it.”

By Mr. Somerville:

796. For extra work on the 28th of January, 1890, there is a cheque for $24.50, representing that account endorsed by McCabe?—Yes.

797. Did you ever have that cheque in your possession?—I never saw it before, unless amongst a bulk of papers. I never saw that cheque before.

798. Did you ever hand a cheque to Mr. Palmer to go to the bank to cash?—Never, unless one of my own salary cheques, and I always cashed them at the bank myself. I never handed a cheque to Mr. Palmer to go to the bank and cash. What connection would I have with it? How would that cheque come into my hands when the Accountant signs the cheque to the man himself?

799. You were in the room when Mr. Palmer gave his evidence?—I was in.

800. And you heard him swear that when this account was certified by you you gave him this cheque to go to the bank?—Yes; I heard him say so, and I did not give him that cheque. I never saw that cheque or Mr. Palmer’s letter.

801. Did you not give Mr. Palmer $5 to hand to Mr. McCabe for the use of his name?—I did not give Mr. Palmer $5 to give to Mr. McCabe; that is a matter that I will swear that I have nothing to do with whatever.

802. Do you say on your oath that you never received any portion of the money from this cheque?—I will explain now.

803. I want you to answer that question?—I cannot say what money was drawn on that cheque.

804. There was $24.50 drawn on it?—You asked me if I received any portion of it, and I was going to explain what did happen. You will notice another account here of Mr. Palmer’s about the same time for almost the same amount. I think I would not certify to Mr. Palmer’s account for $40 as he wanted me to.

By Mr. Montague:

805. He asked for $40?—Yes; for the time he was working for me I kept a record; I knew the work, and that was not work that he was calling for. He said there were some big errors for which he was entitled, and I replied: “I don’t know anything of that; I will certify to the work you had with me.” A few days after these accounts were made I found—I won’t be sure of the sums—$20 on my table and I surmised at once it had been placed there by Mr. Palmer. When I spoke to Mr. Palmer about it I said: “Here, did you do this?” He said: “Don’t ask anything about it.” I said: “See here, you know this won’t do.” I don’t remember exactly the words that passed between us, but I said: “See here, this won’t do; I have a regular salary as permanent clerk.” Well, he said: “When a man works at home on Sunday in bed sick, if he is not entitled to a little extra money I don’t know who is." I said: "That is not the point at all," but I acknowledge that I received the money.

806. How much money?—I received about $20. I am not sure whether it is that account, whether Mr. McCabe and Mr. Palmer took the two accounts and put them both together and divided them up. I don't know what they did; I only received the sum I mentioned.

By Mr. Somerville:

806a. My recollection of what Mr. McCabe said is that he never received any money at all?—He said he received $50, I think, for Mr. Palmer. Whether that was the amount or not I don't know. Mr. Palmer did the financial part of the work. That money, Mr. Somerville, was forced upon me; it was laid on my desk. I know that I should not have taken it, but it was left there and it was forced upon me.

807. What portion of this account did you get—(account produced)?—"Certified correct"—I knew nothing about that account.

808. Did you get any portion of that?—I never remember of receiving anything. That is the account I think Mr. McCabe said he knew nothing about to Mr. Kinloch and Mr. Hall.

809. Well, then, you say distinctly that the statements made by Mr. Palmer and Mr. McCabe with reference to more accounts are not here?—I don't say that. I know some of these settlements made by Mr. Palmer are certainly not here; and I must state to you I have heard before I was brought up to be examined that somebody had a particular spite against me in this matter, and they were going to roast me; and it did not take very long when Mr. Palmer came up here to see the source of it. With regard to this account, I don't know. You are asking me now about an account that Mr. Kinloch certified to, and of which I know nothing.

810. Did you send Mr. Palmer to Mr. Kinloch to certify to that account?—I did not send Mr. Palmer to Mr. Kinloch; I knew nothing of it.

811. You knew nothing of it at all?—I knew nothing of that account.

812. Do you know this: Mr. Kinloch took that account to Mr. Hall. Is it not Mr. Hall's signature to it?—Yes.

813. After Mr. Kinloch took that account to Mr. Hall, and got it certified to, did you not go into Mr. Hall's office the next day, a short time afterwards, and meet Mr. Hall, and thank him for certifying that self-same account?—I don't remember having done so.

814. Well, now, try and remember that?—I don't remember.

815. Well, now, try and remember; because I am in possession of information that you did that in regard to the second account?—With regard to the second account, I have no recollection of that.

816. You swear you do not remember thanking Mr. Hall for his kindness in certifying to that account?—I don't remember.

By Mr. McMullen:

817. Will you swear you did not?—I may have done so; I am speaking now to the best of my recollection.

818. I am asking you will you swear you did not?—I will not swear I did not. A great many things pass through my hands, and Mr. Hall and the officers of the Department walk about a great many things that one time and another. All I can say is this account is entirely new to me, Mr. Hall may have spoken to me about this but I have no recollection.

By Mr. Somerville:

819. Why would Mr. Hall speak to you if your name is signed there?—I don't remember Mr. Hall having spoken to me about it.

820. And you don't remember having spoken to him?—No; I won't swear to the honourable gentleman that I did not; absolutely I swear that I have no recollection of speaking to Mr. Hall.

By Mr. Lister :

821. If such a thing did happen, why would you thank him?—I don't know.

822. You have no interest at all in the cheque or the money, and you have no knowledge of whether you thanked Mr. Hall?—I don't know.

By Mr. Somerville :

823. You know something about the system which has been prevailing in that Department for some time—that is, for extra clerks to do work and share up the money with permanent clerks?—Yes, you are right; I have known that system; at least, I have known it to prevail more or less.

824. For how long a time?—For four or five years, perhaps.

825. As far back as 1885?—No; I would not be sure. I cannot be sure as to dates, but I know the system has prevailed.

826. Regularly?—Not regularly, as far as I know. It was in cases of a special rush, such as the North-West Rebellion, and cases where the work necessitated the clerks remaining over time. Sometimes nearly every night the staff was doubled up and made to work. I know cases of that kind necessitated the increasing of the staff, and adding to the expense. The clerks of the Department work overtime, and I know it was the custom, at least, so far as I was concerned, to allow the clerks to work overtime.

827. I would like you to say how long this has been the custom?—Well, it has been the custom perhaps since 1884 or 1885; it may be further.

828. What year did you go into the service?—In 1882.

829. You commenced drawing it about 1884?—Yes; I was an extra clerk at that time.

830. When were you made a permanent clerk?—In 1885 or 1886.

831. You are speaking from your own recollection. What year did you commence to draw extra pay?—At the time of the North-West Rebellion.

832. And who was working with you then? As I understand it, you worked two together?—All the clerks of the Department were working overtime then.

833. You worked in couples, did you not? And the extra man was paid by the service?—Not necessarily that we worked in couples; the North-West Rebellion gave rise to a great deal of extra work.

834. Yes; we all know that, but in 1885, you say you were appointed a permanent clerk?—Yes.

835. At that time you commenced to get extra pay?—No; it was not in that year. It was in the year following, I think in 1886.

836. Well, in 1886 you commenced to get extra pay?—Not for work I did myself, understand that.

837. Well, who did you get it for?—Mr. McCabe mentioned here the case of an account that went through. Mr. McCabe had been working overtime amongst a large number of others, and I had been busy at that time, as Mr. Burgess can tell you; I worked so hard that it brought on a fit of nervous prostration, and Dr. Wright attended me. He told me I would have to give up that kind of work and bothering so much about it.

838. What year was this?—In February, 1886. I spoke to Mr. Burgess and said: "I have been working as you know, and I am going to ask for a bonus of $500 to be put in the Estimates." There were others who had been working too, and I thought that $500 was about a fair return for the work that had been done. Mr. Burgess told me: "No; it would take a good deal of trouble to get that; I will perhaps promote you." That was all the conversation that passed between Mr. Burgess and myself, and Mr. Burgess gave me to understand this would count in my getting promotion. Then I let the bonus go. I spoke to Mr. McCabe about the matter. He was an extra clerk. I said: "We cannot get the bonus through; you are an extra clerk, you had better get it in the extra way."

839. Was that for Mr. McCabe? - Mr. McCabe did the work; I only received the money. Mr. McCabe did the work. He did work enough to cover the account, and a great deal more.

840. In 1886?—Yes.

841. How much did you get?—I do not remember the exact amount.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

842. About $73, it is stated?—That is about it.

843. How much did you get of that?—Mr. McCabe says he handed me the whole of it, and I do not deny getting it.

844. If McCabe did the work, how did you come to get the money?—He gave it to me. I considered it was McCabe's, legally and honestly.

By Mr. Somerville :

845. McCabe must be a very generous man?—I suppose he is.

846. Did you get the whole of that $73?—I do not recollect the exact amount, but he says he handed the whole of it to me.

847. When you took the whole of that, you knew you were contravening the Civil Service Act?—No. The money was legally McCabe's; it was properly his, and if he chose to hand me that money it was his affair. I may state that shortly before this there was a charge made against him that he had made a serious mistake in a letter, by leaving out the word "not" where it should have been, and as a consequence he was threatened with dismissal. I looked the case up; I knew him to be a man honourable and big-hearted. I examined the thing, and found he was not responsible. I pointed it out to Mr. Douglas, the then Assistant Secretary, and I said it was too bad to dismiss McCabe for this when it was not his fault. The result was, that McCabe was not dismissed, and he has always regarded me since, I think he will tell you so if you ask him, as a true friend of his. I do not say it was on this account that he handed me the money, but it may have been.

848. He did the work, and handed you the money?—Yes; and it is a matter of his own account.

849. Did you certify to this account?—I think that I did.

850-1. When you certified to that account, did you have any expectation of getting the money from him?—I left that to Mr. McCabe.

852. You had an idea, then?—I had an idea I would get something.

853. Was it left on your desk?—No; it was handed to me by Mr. McCabe.

By Mr. Watson :

854. Was it forced on you?—No; I think it was handed to me on the street.

855. That transpired in 1887?—I do not remember; have you got the accounts?

By Mr. Lister :

856. Did you get money in 1887?—I do not remember.

By Mr. Hyman :

857. Will you swear you did not?—I won't swear I did not. Excuse me, sir, what is your name?

MR. HYMAN.—Hyman is my name.

By Mr. Somerville :

658. Do you know Mr. Ogden?—I know Alfred Ogden.

859. He used to be a member of Parliament?—He was member for Guysboro'; I believe.

860. Is he in the Department now?—No; he is away in Nova Scotia now.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

861. What is he doing?—I think he is superintendent of fisheries.

By Mr. Somerville :

862. How long has he had that appointment?—I think since the first of July.

863. He was a candidate down there at the general elections?—Yes; I think against Mr. Fraser.

863a. Was he in the service of the Department up to the time he entered the campaign?—No; the date of his resignation is there, and the date of the campaign you know. I think it was the 1st of February when he resigned. There were rumours of the election coming on, as you know, and it was some time just before that he resigned his appointment, as he was an expectant candidate.

864. Did you ever certify to an account for Mr. Ogden?—I did.

865. Do you remember a particular account for $95 that you certified to for Mr. Ogden?—No; but I certified accounts for Mr. Ogden. I acknowledge that.

866. Did you ever get any share of the accounts you certified for Mr. Ogden?—I do not know that I did, but I will explain my relation to Mr. Ogden. When he first came into the Department of the Interior he was, to use a very familiar expression, very hard up.

867. Sick, did you mean?—Financially straitened. His family were in Halifax, and he was here with no money, and Mr. Allison, another ex-M.P., from Nova Scotia—

868. Was he hard-up, too?—I do not know, but he was getting a salary. Well, when Mr. Allison was going to the North-West he came to me and said: "Ogden is going into the Interior Department," he was trying to get Ogden into his place: "he is very hard up; will you sign with me and another gentleman a note for $100, to relieve him"? I said "I do not know Mr. Ogden, except to see him, and he has no claim on me, but if he is in such desperate straits as you say I will sign the note."

869. You signed with whom?—With Mr. Allison and Mr. Douglas Stewart, of the Department of Justice. Mr. Ogden got the money and paid off the note occasionally, $10 or $5 at a time.

870. To whom?—To the gentlemen who advanced the money and who held the note. I myself at the end paid $20 on that note, and Mr. Ogden at various times handed me back sums of money on this account. Whether these were from extra money he received or from his salary as an extra clerk I did not inquire, but he paid it to me as a legitimate debt on the note as it became due.

871. Did you ever share in pay with Ogden?—Except in that way. I may say, also, that when he went down to Nova Scotia, at one time I loaned him $100. He was going down into business when the Short Line opened to St. John. He explained to me that he had got freight rates from the Canadian Pacific Railway, and told me the prices he would pay in St. John and what he would receive in Montreal, and what a grand chance it was. I said: "Here is the chance of a lifetime, and I will give it you if you cannot get it anywhere else." He could not get it anywhere else, and so I gave him the money.

872. You swear you did not get any money for extra work done by Mr. Ogden?—Unless Mr. Ogden paid it to me as a legitimate debt. That is the only answer I can give.

By Mr. Lister :

873. Did you certify to any of his accounts?—Yes; because I knew the work was done.

874. With the understanding that you were to be paid?—No. If the Committee wishes, I can not only procure a statement of his work, but the actual pages he did.

By Mr. Montague :

875. Was he a permanent clerk?—No; an extra clerk.

By Mr. Somerville :

876. Referring to the work of the clerks, did you examine it before certifying to the accounts?—I said that on all possible occasions I examined the work. Where I could not examine, we had to trust to the honour of the clerk making the account.

877. In 1888-89 did you get anything from Mr. Ogden?—Nothing, except in payment of legitimate debts.

878. Did he not present you with a watch at one time for allowing him to get a cheque?—Mr. Ogden offered me a silver watch. He wanted me at one time to share an account with him. He said I am indebted to you for a great many favours, Mr. Nelson.

879. For what—sharing?—No for speaking to Mr. Hall and Mr. Burgess on his behalf and for loaning him money. When he got a cheque he said: "It is not fair to take the whole of this myself," and I said: "You know I cannot touch it, Ogden." He had a silver watch which he wanted to sell, and I said I will trade you my watch for yours, and I gave him my silver watch for his silver watch.

By Mr. Hyman :

880. Which was the more valuable?—Well, I thought Ogden's was the more valuable.

881. You knew you were getting the better watch?—Yes. This is one of the instances which shows the animus against me.

By Mr. Lister :

882. What do you mean by "animus"?—This is one of the smallest instances I have ever heard of. I heard it was to be brought up against me.

By Mr. Somerville :

883. Do I understand that you received the watch as payment of your part of the cheque that you were sharing with Mr. Ogden?—No. Mr. Ogden wanted me to take money, and I said: You know I cannot take it, and, another thing, do not try and force it on me.

884. I want to know what you mean by this "animus"?—I have heard—one of my friends told me that they were after me particularly.

885. Who were after you?—I do not know whom.

886. Where?—I do not know where.

By Mr. Lister :

887. You refused absolutely to take Mr. Ogden's earnings?—Yes.

888. And whatever you received was paid in satisfaction of a debt due you?—Yes.

888a. Did he apply all the moneys he received as extra pay for these debts?—He only paid the debts when they became due; I do not know where he got the money, whether it was from his salary cheque or from extra pay.

888b. You certified his accounts?—Yes; and I knew what money he was drawing. I have the actual work.

888c. You knew how much he was drawing as extra pay?—Yes.

888d. And he suggested sharing this with you?—Yes.

888e. And you refused?—Yes; I refused to have anything to do with it.

889. It is a pity you did not do so all along?—It is a pity.

890. When did he make these offers to you?—I do not remember when it was.

891. As late as 1890?—Some time then.

892. And you got the $20 in 1890?—Yes.

893. Was it before that that Ogden offered you a share?—I am not sure; I could not answer that. I do not remember the date at all.

894. Do you know how much Ogden paid you altogether?—No; I do not remember how much he paid me altogether.

895. You have no account of it at all?—No; I did not keep any account.

896. How long was Ogden in the Department?—About 18 months.

897. And you have no idea at all how much he paid you?—No.

898. His last cheque was $100?—I do not know; I loaned him $100.

899. Was that paid back in a bulk sum?—I do not remember; I also loaned Mr. Ogden $20.

By Mr. Hyman :

900. As a matter of fact, you do not know whether he has paid the money back that you loaned him or not. He may have paid you more or less?—He may have paid me more or less. I was under the impression that he owed me a little when he left the Department.

901. Did you speak to him about it?—I spoke to him about it, and we were satisfied to call quits.

902. Let us understand about the watch question. Do I understand you that Ogden approached you to join with him in getting money which was not his due?—No; Ogden earned the money legitimately, according to law. I certified to his accounts; he drew the money, and he thought I was entitled to a share of it.

903. Why should he offer the watch, then, if he had earned it legitimately?—He wanted me to share the money with him, and then he offered me the watch. I said, "This won't do; it is contrary to the Civil Service Act;" and I said: "You know that, Ogden." He said: "All right. I wish you would take something for your kindness," and he kept on at me.

904. What do you mean when you say it was contrary to the Act?—It was contrary to the Civil Service Act for a permanent official to take money for extra work. I told Ogden so, and then we changed watches. His was a silver watch with a silver case. I afterwards exchanged the case with McMillan, the jeweller, on Rideau street. It was a good time-keeper. I said to him: I will make a trade with you in watches; but I do not suppose there was $5 difference between them. We made a trade of watches, which is all there is in it.

905. You told Ogden it was contrary to the Act to take this money, or was it contrary to the Act always?—I do not know that it is contrary to the Act to take money from a man who owes it to you. I said to him, however, I could not take any money on account of extra work. He got a regular salary of $2 per day, and once in a while extra money, and with this money he paid his legitimate debts with both accounts. I do not know whether it was from his salary or his extra money.

By Mr. Somerville :

906. The fact is, that this system which prevailed throughout the Department you knew to be a case of sharing with permanent clerks?—I knew it in my own case.

907. You actually received money from these extra clerks and shared with them?—I have acknowledged receiving this money—this money that was earned by Mr. McCabe.

907a. You say you did not receive any money from Mr. Ogden, except such as he owed you?—Except what paid his legitimate debts.

By Mr. Lister :

908. Do you remember the amount he wanted to share with you?—I do not remember the month, and I do not know if I could specify the account.

909. Was he owing you?—Yes. The note we signed, that we were liable for, was all he owed me for.

910. It would have been so much on it. How much was that debt?—I did not take the money from Mr. Ogden then.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

911. I do not know whether you were in during the whole of the time, but another witness who was under examination and under oath stated that he had received the sum of $95 or $100 for preparing the report of the Department, in which you had assisted him. Do you recollect that?—I do not recollect that particular transaction. I know Mr. Ogden assisted me, and I know he got paid for it.

912. Did he receive extra pay?—Perhaps there was extra pay. I cannot state the exact amount.

913-8. You do not recollect anything about that?—I recollect Mr. Ogden doing the report with me, and I recollect him getting paid for it, and I recollect going over the account for it; but the exact amount I do not remember.

By the Chairman :

919. Did you prepare the the whole of that report?—It was done under my supervision, with Mr. Ogden's assistance.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

920. That particular sum which was paid to Mr. Ogden for preparing this report under your supervision, did you receive any portion of it?—I have to state again that I have no recollection of that specific amount, and my recollection tells me there was no such large amount—no more than $40 or $50. That we could easily ascertain from the accounts.

921. That was the statement made?—If that witness could produce the account it would speak for itself. If there was any such account I could not have received any part of it.

922. The statement made by the witness was that you and Mr. Ogden generally prepared the report?—That is correct.

923. But that sum was divided between you. You say that is not the case?—That is not the case; I received no part of it.

924. I have nothing to say with regard to Mr. Ogden, but if there was extra work you received no part of that?—No.

By Mr. Daly :

925. Do I understand you to say you did not receive from Mr. Ogden any money out of the extra pay he received, except to repay you the legitimate debts he owed you?—Only legitimate debts. I do not know whether he paid me one dollar of that extra money or whether it was his regular salary.

926. You do not know whether there was any understanding about it?—No.

927. Was there any understanding between you and Mr. McCabe?—I did not speak to Mr. McCabe.

928. Was there any understanding with Palmer? Was there any understanding between you and Palmer by which you were to share this extra pay?—No. There may have been that understanding between Mr. Palmer and McCabe; but between myself and McCabe there had been no conversation about it.

By Mr. Bowell :

929. You have stated that you certified to the account of Mr. Ogden. Did you ever certify to any account for Mr. Ogden for which work had not been performed?—No; I am sure of that.

930. Mr. Palmer stated here that you said when asked to present an account—you told him—you did not like to take it to Mr. Burgess?—I do not know anything about the second; but the first I told him I did not like to take to Mr. Burgess until I had an explanation. I am satisfied Mr. McCabe did the work. He worked a great deal overtime and he always had a legitimate claim for overwork.

931. Was that because you could not tell Mr. Burgess about the work?—I enquired first if the work was done. Then I told Mr. Burgess that the work was done.

932. Mr. Burgess was particular?—Yes.

By Mr. Montague :

933. Do you know of any accounts having been certified to for which work was not done?—No.

By Mr. Foster :

934. This system of sharing with permanent clerks—was that undertaken to provide for press of work?—For unusual press of work. I do not know what Mr. Burgess' views were, but mine are that to increase the staff to meet the demands of that work would entail ten times or a hundred times the expense on the Government; because, when a man comes into the Department it is hard to get rid of him. Mr. Burgess is a man of hard-working habits himself, and it was his idea that clerks should do the same. So, instead of engaging outside clerks to come in, thereby increasing the staff, we doubled up the staff we had, in order to meet the emergency.

935. So that, although we agreed to it having been irregular, the work was more economically done than it would have been done under other circumstances?—As far as my knowledge goes, I am satisfied the work was done, and I am also satisfied that under this system tens of thousands of dollars have been saved to the Treasury.

By Mr. Somerville :

936. With reference to this first cheque which Palmer says Nelson asked him to share with McCabe, what do you say?—I deny that point-blank.

937. And that you gave him $5 for McCabe's share?—I deny that.

938. And that you refused to take the second account to Burgess?—The second account I know nothing of.

By Mr. Taylor :

939. You did not give $4 to Palmer to take to McCabe on the second cheque?—No; nor $5 on the other.

By Mr. Hyman :

940. What do you mean by "system"?—You cannot hair-split on my words. I know it was a system that prevailed.

941. That permanent clerks should get work as extra clerks?—I say I do not know of any instances except my own. I have heard rumours.

By Mr. Montague :

942. Have you had any conversation with Palmer since he was dismissed?—No; I have met him a number of times on the street, but have not had any conversation with him.

By Mr. Somerville :

943. You say this system which has been established in the Department has saved tens of thousands of dollars to the Government?—Yes.

944. Then it must have been a system?—If I used the word "system" I should have said practice.

945. You said this practice has saved the Government tens of thousand of dollars. Do you mean annually?—No; not annually. I think it would take ten or twenty clerks at times.

946. It was with the full knowledge of the heads of the Department that this practice was established?—I know nothing about that. You will have to ask the heads of the Department.

947. Did Mr. Burgess know anything about this?—I told Mr. Burgess this work had been done by Mr. McCabe.

948. You knew this practice was prevailing in this Department for years?—I did not know it.

949. Why did you say it saved ten thousand dollars a year?—By making clerks work over time.

950. You said, the practice of doing this work with extra clerks and sharing with them?—I did not say sharing. I mean the practice of making clerks come back and do the work, whether they got paid or not. I did not say anything about extra pay.

951. You know, as a matter of fact, that work has been done by permanent clerks and they have been paid for it?—I have heard it rumoured.

952. Did you ever hear of the Joseph Wright case?—No; until the thing came up here.

953. There were general rumours to that effect?—I have heard them.

954. Mr. Burgess never knew you shared this money?—What money?

955. With McCabe.—No.

Mr. Bowell asked at the last meeting of the Committee during the examination of Mr. Burgess:—

“488. I understand you to say no permanent clerk in your Department has received any extra pay”? and he replied: “Only Mr. Turner.”

956. You do not know of any?—No; I can only speak from my own experience. I know Mr. Burgess was not aware any of this money was given to me. I suppose it is a revelation to him now.

By Mr. Bowell :

957. Who suggested this mode of evading the law?—I do not know. I suppose each man did it for himself.

By Mr. Bergeron :

958. With how many clerks could you, if you had wanted, shared in the Department?—I have no idea.

959. How many accounts could you have certified to there? You have mentioned Mr. Ogden, Mr. McCabe and Mr. Palmer.—There were a large number of extra clerks in the Department.

960. How many are there beside these three?—I do not know how many extra clerks there are in the Department.

961. How many could you have certified for?—I do not know.

962. I want an answer.—I do not know.

963. How many clerks have you under you?—I have one extra clerk under my charge. A little while ago I had three under my charge, and at another time I had two.

By the Chairman :

964. How many permanent clerks?—A short time ago I had two permanents and now I have one. Sometimes the clerks were not under my charge, although they were in the same office.

By Mr. Bowell :

965. The Deputy Minister had no other way of finding out how many hours these men had work but by you?—He had to take my word for it.

By Mr. Hyman :

966. I see your name appears for $1,200 in June, 1890. Did you receive any other moneys except those you have told us about?—No. The accounts will be here.

967. I am speaking of the accounts in your name?—No.

968. Did you receive any other moneys, except what appears in your name?

Mr. A. M. BURGESS.—Might I be allowed to make a statement. I simply beg to state that in the excitement of the moment at the last meeting, in answer to a question by Mr. Somerville, as quoted to-day, I stated what I would very seriously modify to-day—that is, that I knew of no cases in the Department. I thought it was Mr. Foster who asked me the question, and I understood it to refer to the preparation of the Burr Index: “Did I know whether any permanent clerks had shared in the money paid for extra work?” That is what I understand the question to be. If I had understood it to be otherwise I should have answered it otherwise. I did know of a practice prevailing in the Department in several instances, of which I am quite prepared to give a list to the Committee at the next meeting. That is why I would prefer to keep my statement until the next meeting, so that I may accompany it with a list of those cases in which this practice has prevailed.

By the Chairman :

969. Your answer had reference to the Burr Index?—Yes; when occasional extra work was given to other clerks, or their female relatives, for the express object of making up their salary.

By Mr. Foster :

970. Permanent clerks?—Yes.

971. In those cases, did you know that full work was given?—I say so positively. I took the greatest pains in those cases.

By Mr. Bowell :

972. Could you tell us—because there may be some misapprehension about this—if you know of any cases in which permanent clerks received money for work done by friends of theirs and for which they themselves did no work?—I know of no cases of that kind. I did know of cases in which the relatives of permanent clerks were paid for the work which the permanent clerks did themselves.

By Mr. Foster :

972a. Your answer the other day was under a misapprehension?—Yes; under a misapprehension. I take the opportunity of saying so now.

By Mr. Montague :

973. I understand you to say you did not know that certain permanent clerks were doing extra work and getting extra money in this irregular way?—Yes; I did.

By Mr. Somerville :

974. You say the relatives of these permanent clerks were drawing pay as for extra service?—Well, I understand they were relatives.

975. The wives of these men?—In some cases the wives.

976. Do you know the name of Miss Lizzie Evans?—I cannot say; I thought I knew who she was.

977. Do you know Miss Lucy Evans?—I think I know both of them.

978. Miss Lizzie Evans got $231.60 in 1886 and $280.80 in 1887. You don't know who she is? She would be the wife of some clerk?—I don't think she was the wife; she was a cousin, I think, of the wife of Mr. Pereira, the Assistant Secretary.

979. She was the cousin of the wife?—Yes; she was living at Pereira's house, so I understand. I profess no personal knowledge of that.

980. Do you know Miss Lucy Evans?—I understood she was the sister of Miss Lizzie, but of my own personal knowledge I don't know. In 1886, and these days when there was an enormous quantity of work being done by the Department, I don't pretend to know one-half of those who were at work.

By Mr. Montague:

981. So this practice allowed, was the means of avoiding the Civil Service Act for the purpose of fraudulently giving money to these clerks, was allowed by you as a matter of economy?—It was allowed by me as a matter of economy.

982. There was no intention of defrauding the public?—No; and I have no reason to suppose any fraud was ever committed; I took the strictest pains to assure myself on that point.

By Mr. Bergeron:

983. You heard a witness state a moment ago that he certified to accounts. You had confidence in him that he would not deceive you?—Unless they were officers of that kind about me my position would be intolerable.

By Mr. Montague:

984. You believe every dollar paid there, was for work done?—I will go further than that, and say there were many thousand dollars of extra work if you count everything, even the official day.

By Mr. Somerville:

985. When this work was being done, in that way you knew there were permanent men who, were receiving a share of the money for the work done by the extra clerks, had read the Civil Service Act, did you not?—I thought so.

986. Well, you knew that more men were required to take the oath?—Yes.

987. You knew the nature of that oath?—I would not like to say that was present to my mind at any time while this arrangement was in force.

988. You knew of the oath?—I always knew of it, because I took it myself; it was not present to my mind. Moreover, I would not have allowed it.

989. But you remember the oath?—I must have known it; I would be very poorly fitted for the office which I fill if I did know that. I had no idea whatever I was doing the injury. The injury it appears I was doing, I am sure I had no intention of it.

By Mr. Montague:

990. I understood you to say that if you had employed outside clerks the sum spent would be much larger than under the present system?—Yes; I would go further, and say a good deal of the work could not have been done by people outside. It had to be done by people who knew the Department.

By Mr. Somerville:

991. Do you know anything about the account (produced)?—No; I know nothing about it. Mr. Nelson reminds me I had made some objection about it, but I don't remember.

MR. NELSON.—I remember you enquiring, "What is McCabe doing?"

MR. BURGESS.—It is very likely.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM,
THURSDAY, 16th July, 1891.

Committee met; Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. FOSTER presented a statement in reply to an allegation of Mr. Palmer that of the 15 clerks who had been dismissed from the Interior Department on the 30th June, all had been re-instated except two or three, which statement was filed as Exhibit No. 3, and is as follows:—

Mr. BURGESS read the following statement, which was filed as Exhibit No. 4, and is as follows:—

(EXHIBIT No. 4.)

OTTAWA, 15th July, 1891.

Mr. CHAIRMAN—I crave the permission of the Committee to submit a written statement in explanation of the extra payments which have been made to permanent clerks in the Department of the Interior and the circumstances which led to these payments being made.

I was secretary to the Deputy Minister of the Interior in 1881 when the contract was entered into between the Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. At that time the staff of the Department was quite equal to the work to be done, but on account of the enormous expansion of the Departmental business which followed upon the completion of the contract and the commencement of work on the road, Colonel Dennis, then Deputy Minister, became incapacitated from overwork and retired from the service at the end of the year. After the 1st January, 1882, a reorganization of the Department took place, which it was hoped would increase its efficiency so that the work might be overtaken. Mr. Lindsay Russell, Surveyor General, was appointed Deputy Minister, and a new branch was created to conduct the correspondence, with myself at the head of it as Secretary. However, the work grew out of all proportion to the machinery in existence for its conduct, and early in 1883 Mr. Russell was compelled to give up work, and has been incapacitated from business ever since. I was then charged with the duties of Deputy Minister, and on the 1st July, 1883, was confirmed in the position. About that time the Government made every effort to strengthen the working power of the staff. Mr. Hall, the present Secretary, was transferred from the Department of Justice to succeed me in that office; Mr. Joseph Pope, now the Prime Minister's Private Secretary, and Mr. Arthur Chisholm, now Private Secretary to the Minister of the Interior, were transferred from the Department of Marine; and about this time, also, Mr. T. G. Rothwell, a solicitor in active practice in Ottawa, Mr. G. U. Ryley, a Dominion Land Surveyor, now in charge of the Timber and Mines Branch, and Mr. L. C. Pereira, now Assistant Secretary, were brought into the Department. With these and other subsequent additions to the staff, the business was systematized, and had been brought into a state of efficiency when, in the spring of 1885, the North-West Half-breed Commission was appointed. All the labour attendant upon the organization of the Commission and the preparation of the instructions fell to the share of the Minister and myself, but when the Commission got to work in the North-West and began to send in batches of claims which they had investigated and approved, it was found that there was no provision in the organization of the Department for doing special work, such as the issue of scrip for these claims. I regarded it as important that the issue of this scrip should be surrounded by the same safeguards as the payment of money, and it was arranged that no scrip should be drawn except upon requisitions signed by myself and countersigned by the Chief Clerk of Patents, in whose branch the recommendations of the Commissioners were examined and classified. The requisitions were then transmitted to the Accountant, in whose office the scrip notes were prepared for signature, the same as ordinary cheques.

During the session of 1885, also, there was an unusual demand from Parliament for information respecting the Department of the Interior; and the Rebellion also added enormously to the work, both directly and indirectly. The volunteers who took part in its suppression were granted by the Military Bounty Act the choice of 320 acres of land on homestead conditions, or land scrip for $80. It was necessary to communicate with each volunteer to ascertain his option, and as in many cases the volunteer disposed of his right, powers of attorney had to be filed in the Department to enable the purchasers to receive the scrip or warrant, as the case might be. As there were over 6,000 of these cases, the correspondence of the Department was greatly augmented.

All this additional business was thrown on the staff almost simultaneously, and as there was no provision in the organization of the Department for conducting it very great pressure of work existed in the offices of the Secretary and the Accountant. It became a question whether an effort should be made to overtake the work by the ordinary staff or whether the Government should be asked to devise some special means of meeting the exigency. The officers, especially the Accountant and his assistant, protested strongly at various times that the pressure upon them was too great, to which my invariable answer was, that the work must be done and that I would endeavour to find some means of remunerating the staff for their extra labour. This class of business was spread over the years 1885, 1886, 1887, and part of 1888-89, and in these years there was also added the office business connected with the Civil Rebellion losses claims. These claims were investigated on the ground by a Commission, but the necessary steps to make payment for the losses fell to the share of the Department of Interior.

In 1886 the Department commenced to wind up the business between the various colonization societies and the Government, and this work has been spread over the intervening years. The following summary of scrip notes of various kinds which have been drawn in the Accountant's office and issued by the Department in those years will give some idea of the extent of this special class of work :—

Manitoba Supplementary Half-breed scrip.....	1,717
North-West Half-breed scrip .....	5,790
Scrip in commutation of the right of hay and common on the Red and Assiniboine Rivers.....	235
Old white settlers' scrip.....	96
Military Bounty scrip and land warrants.....	6,106
Colonization societies' scrip.....	3,896
Total .....	17,837

All this work was intermittent in its character, and had to be performed in addition to the regular duties of the persons to whom it was entrusted. It would have been difficult to obtain outside assistance whenever and only for such periods as might be necessary, and, even if obtainable, such assistance would be of little value without previous experience of the business methods of the Department.

The annual report of the Department is brought down, in so far as the various agencies in Manitoba, the North-West and British Columbia are concerned, to the 31st October each year, and in fact a statement of all the business of importance down to the close of the calendar year is included. The surveyors employed by the Department usually do not return from the field until November, and between the end of the year and soon after the opening of the session of Parliament their reports upon the season's operations, as well as the reports of the Crown Lands and Crown Timber Agents from Lake Superior to the Pacific Coast, have to be collected, carefully revised, the proofs read, and the whole summarized, indexed and printed. This means that a very large amount of work is crowded into a short time. It can only be done, or at all events be done far better, by regular employes.

At the end of the financial year, too, there is, in so large a Department, necessarily a great amount of extra labour in closing up and balancing the appropriation accounts of the Department, the accounts of the North-West Government and of the Government of the District of Keewatin, and the accounts connected with the Torrens system of registration.

The selection of the material required for returns to Parliament, the distribution of the files among the sessional writers who copy them, and the examination and certification of the copies composing the return, has for many years made very large demands upon the time of the regular employes in addition to their everyday duties. I find on examination that the cost of copying, at a given rate per folio, the returns called for since 1884, has been as follows :—

1885-86 .....	2,912 00
1886-87 .....	1,100 00
1887-88.....	952 05
1888-89.....	780 00
1889-90.....	700 00
Total.....	$12,813 55

In addition to the mere copying, however, it is necessary for some officer to select the material to be copied, and subsequently care has to be taken that the proper documents have been copied and that they are correct copies. Of course, such information as can be extracted from the records of the Department is furnished, as in the case of all other Departments, without involving extra expenses.

With a correspondence averaging, for the past five years, over 47,500 letters received per annum, not perhaps all of very great importance, but all requiring to be attended to and answered (involving, in most instances, also, a reference to the land registrars or survey records of the Department), and requiring to be carefully indexed, registered and filed, so as to be easily found when required, it is necessary that the officers and clerks of the Department generally should not adhere to the office hours of 9.30 to 4 o'clock, and I think it will be seen by the Committee that additional demands of the nature I have been describing (the list of which could be greatly amplified if necessary), upon the time of the regular employés, must mean great pressure of work and the devotion to their duties of a large amount of extra time.

I desire here to state most emphatically that no payment was ever authorized by me except for work which was certified by the proper officer to have been performed or where I had personal knowledge of the fact myself. It was as a rule work of an important and pressing nature, which could not have been performed within official hours, nor to the best of my judgment and belief by others than the permanent employees of the Department. This is not stated by way of defence, but to show that the Government received actual value for every dollar that was expended in this way. In every instance, so far as I can remember, this work was done and the payments made in pursuance of a previous arrangement with the clerks, and none of the payments were in any sense a gratuity.

The payment made to the late Mr. Anderson was irregular, but this was not a payment made to a permanent official. Except in this instance, none of the employés who have benefited by these irregular payments are connected with me in any way, directly or indirectly. None of them, so far as I know, regard the office hours as the necessary limit of their labours; but, on the contrary, it must be within the personal knowledge of a very large number of the Committee that they do not as a rule leave their offices until between 5 or 6 o'clock each day; and they are always ready to return if necessary. Nor would I have the Committee to understand that any attempt has been made to make even the appearance of compensation to the permanent employés in question for all the extra labour they perform.

I have gone carefully through that portion of the Auditor General's Reports having reference to the accounts of this Department for the years 1885-86 to 1889-90, inclusive, with a view to discovering how much, to my personal knowledge, has been paid to permanent officers, exclusive of what Mr. Turner got. The amount is so small that I hesitate about submitting it to the Committee, being only $1,818.45, or about $360 per annum. As to the payments made indirectly to permanent clerks, of which I have no knowledge, it is impossible for me at the present time to ascertain the exact amounts, but I believe them to be inconsiderable.

In addition to the statement which I made to the Committee at its last meeting in relation to the Burr Index of correspondence, I may say that when, in the first instance, Mr. Henry stated that permanent clerks had been employed on the making of this index I felt sure that I had no knowledge of this, and, as already explained, that was what I intended to say to the Committee. I have taken every means in my power to refresh my memory on this point, and I am of the same belief still. I, of course, have had no communication with Mr. Henry, but I have no recollection of any conversation with him, either before the work was commenced or while it was going on which would indicate that permanent men were to be so employed. He stated to the Committee that what he did in this relation was authorized by his superior officer. I presume he refers to Mr. Hall, the Secretary of the Department. I do not recollect whether Mr. Hall ever told me that any permanent clerks were assisting in the making of the index and sharing the proceeds with the temporary clerks so employed. The question of the index, however, was frequently discussed between us, and in order that this matter may be cleared up beyond doubt I have telegraphed to Mr. Hall, who is absent in Boston on his holidays, to return here. If, when Mr. Hall comes before the Committee, he will say that he informed me that permanent men were so employed I have no doubt that such was the fact, since I well know of the existence of the practice in the Department, and had authorized it in other specific cases. Whether I knew of it in this instance or not is not of much importance. It is an undoubted fact, I believe, that the junior clerks in Mr. Henry's office were so employed, and that they were paid in the manner indicated. I remember that the work upon the index was stopped some time during 1890, on a representation made by Mr. Hall, the nature of which I cannot recall, and it has made no progress since. It is a large index of a series of smaller indices, and its usefulness as a work of reference is chiefly in relation to the earlier papers composing the Departmental records, particularly title papers, and even what has already been done—it is almost complete from 1870 down to the close of 1882—has expedited the work of the Department very greatly. I agree with the opinion expressed by Mr. Henry, that it would be a tedious, and I am afraid an impossible task, to bring it up to date by any system of working which could be applied to it during office hours.

I would also state that upon further examination I find that the extra time for which Mr. Turner was paid, as explained at the last meeting of the Committee, was spent to a much greater extent in examining Half-breed scrip files and preparing the scrip notes for signature, examining, classifying and scheduling Rebellion losses claims, and in writing up the Establishment Ledgers of the Department, than in the work of checking and making a regular account of scrip and warrants of all kinds issued prior to 1883.

I am reported as saying that Jane Hay, one of the persons mentioned in the letter of the Clerk of the Committee to the Secretary of the Department, whose presence here for the purpose of giving evidence was desired, has been employed in the Technical Branch of the Department. What I thought I said, and what I had intended to say was that I was, informed and believe that Jane Hay is a real and not a fictitious person, and that she has been paid for work performed in one of the branches of the Department. I understand that she is a relative of a third-class clerk in the Department, who, at the time of his appointment, was a Public school teacher in Ottawa, at a salary, I am informed, of over $600 per annum. He was selected for appointment during the year 1887 because he was a good stenographer and typewriter, and assistance of that kind was and is indispensable in conducting the large correspondence of the Department. I understood at the time that he was promised a salary of $600 per annum to commence with, on the presumption, no doubt, that he had passed in a sufficient number of optional subjects to entitle him to that amount. It transpired, however, that he had not passed in any optionals, although fairly well qualified in the two mentioned; and he could only be appointed at $400 per annum. There is no doubt that the object of giving the extra writing was to make up the deficiency. Since the close of the financial year ending on the 30th June, 1890, the payment in question has been discontinued.

I have seen in one newspaper a suggestion that in May, 1887, when I paid Mr. Thomas Anderson $100, that gentleman was dead. I beg to state that Mr. Anderson died on the 23rd January, 1888, having been in his ordinary health up to the previous day, and that when the transaction referred to took place he was a temporary clerk in the Department of the Interior. The same newspaper represents me to have said that the $100 was never repaid to me. I never intended to make any such statement. Although I did not personally receive this repayment, Mr. Chisholm did so for me.

I have already frankly admitted that the payments complained of have been made in contravention of the provisions of the Civil Service Act, but I repeat that they have invariably been made, so far as I know, for substantial service really rendered and actually necessary in the interest of the business of the Department. I desire to escape no portion of the responsibility which attaches to me in this relation. There is no doubt that the proper way to have obtained for the men who did the work the remuneration to which they were honestly entitled would have been to get a specific appropriation for that purpose. That method is adopted in the Post Office and Finance Departments, and I greatly regret that it was not adopted in the Interior Department. I would point out, however, that the work so provided for in both the Departments mentioned occurs with perfect regularity at a fixed period of the year that the cost can be very closely calculated in advance and the sanction of Parliament obtained so that the payments can be made when the service is rendered. The amounts paid out irregularly in the Department of the Interior have been mainly for work that could not have been anticipated, but of course the payments might and ought to have been delayed until Parliamentary authority was obtained. I respectfully submit that the irregularity is one which does not involve my honour or my honesty.

I would also take leave to say, Mr. Chairman, in relation to the evidence given by Mr. Henry, that I regret very much that in a moment of anger I should have said anything that would reflect upon him. I prefer to believe and do believe, from what I have known of Mr. Henry during the last 16 years, that he made the statement he did and gave the evidence in the way he did from conscientious motives, and believing that it was his duty to do so.

By Mr. Somerville :

992. You said, in giving evidence here at the previous meeting, that this system of paying temporary clerks for work which was afterwards shared with permanent clerks was commenced in 1885, after the Hon. Thomas White was appointed, and that you had a consultation with Mr. White in regard to the method you would adopt in order to pay for that work, and that either you or he suggested that this method should be adopted?—I think I stated that in regard to the case of Mr. Turner only.

993-4. Can you say when the Hon. Thomas White was appointed to office?—I cannot say definitely, but I think it was August, 1885.

995. The 5th August, 1885?—Some time in August, 1885; I do not remember the date.

996. Mr. Turner, then, did not receive any money for extra work previous to that. In fact, in your statement to-day you say that this class of work commenced in 1885?—Yes; this class of work.

997. In your opinion Mr. Turner did not receive any money for extra services previous to 5th August, 1885?—I could not say that. I have no recollection of payments to Turner in this manner before 1886 myself.

998. Your conversation with Mr. White occurred after his appointment?—It must have been after his appointment, of course.

999. And this extra work not having started until after Mr. White's appointment, you must be positive that no money was paid to Turner for work of this character before that?—I could not be positive. I may say that I made no inquiry with a view to ascertaining that; it did not occur to me. I only say that, to my own knowledge, nothing was paid before 1886.

1000. What was the name of the party used by Mr. Turner before Joseph Wright's name?—I do not know. I never knew of any party other than his wife, myself personally.

1001. Do you know what his wife's name was?—I do not.

H. H. TURNER recalled and further examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

1002. In what name did you receive extra pay previous to receiving it in the name of Joseph Wright?—I received it in the name of my wife altogether.

1003. What was her name?—Emma M. Turner.

1004. Did you receive any in the name of M. E. Slighter?—That is my wife's maiden name.

1005. How did you come to use your wife's maiden name?—I think that was a suggestion of the late Mr. Douglas. As I stated to the Committee before, he said to me that there were certain jealous ones in the Department, and that as I was getting pay for extra work and others had been there longer than I had, they thought they were entitled to it, but could not do the work. The suggestion therefore came from him that I should take my wife's maiden name. I only received but three or four payments that way. I could give you my diary, if you like, showing when I received the money.

1006. The first payment you got, was it in your wife's name or M. E. Slighter's?—It was changed, I think, after the 1st of July, after I had received four or five payments—not a large amount, perhaps $70 or $80.

1007. On what date?—1884–85, I think.

1008. At what date in those years?—That is more than I can tell you. My written record shows that I only began on the 1st of January, 1885, and then I have an unbroken record for two years or over.

1009. Before that?—No. I did not receive anything before that. I only came into the Department in the fall of 1883. I had been a temporary clerk for some time before I got my permanent appointment.

1010. What is the date of the first payment in your wife's name?—I could not tell you that unless I had the ledgers.

1011. I would like to know who suggested you should use the name of Miss M. E. Slighter?—Mr. Douglas.

1012. Mr. Douglas?—Yes; he suggested I should change the name to my wife's maiden name, because of jealousy.

1013. You were drawing in your wife's name before you changed?—Yes; I drew three or four amounts, not very large, in all perhaps some $70 or $80, but not more than that.

1014. According to my information, which has been taken from the Auditor-General's Report, and which I have not had an opportunity of verifying myself, you received something like $2,291.80?—I daresay. It would average about $300 a year.

1015. Sometimes it was $500 or $520?—That depended upon the pressure of work.

1016. You did all that work yourself?—I did all the work myself—every bit of it.

1017. I want to know if you shared that work with anybody else?—No; not a bit of it. It was money of my own which was earned by myself, and I used it myself.

1018. Nobody ever got a portion?—Nobody ever got one cent of it.

1019. Here is an account to Miss Slighter, $251.30. (To the Auditor General): you have not the vouchers for 1884 and 1885, or any record in the books showing when this payment was made.

The AUDITOR GENERAL.—Not in our books; we keep the vouchers every year to be examined by Parliament. Then we send them back to the Department. It happens in this particular case we have not the vouchers. We have the monthly sums in the ledgers, but not all the details.

By Mr. Bowell:

1020. Can you ascertain by the books when this payment was made, Mr. Turner?—I know very well about it myself.

By Mr. Lister:

1021. What is your recollection about that?—I was appointed a permanent clerk some time, I think, in February, 1884. I did not do any extra work for a few months after that time; I should say perhaps it was about the end of 1884 or the beginning of 1885 that I first received any extra pay in this way.

By Mr. Denison:

1022. That was, in your wife's name?—Yes; or in any other name.

By Mr. Lister :

1023. According to your recollection, it would be previous to the time of the appointment of Mr. White, if he was appointed the 5th August, 1885, that you had been receiving money?—I may have received a little money—not very much.

By the Chairman :

1024. You say that the payments were first made in the name of your wife, Mrs. Emma Turner?—Exactly.

1025. And afterwards it was in the name of M. E. Slighter?—Exactly; that is my wife's name, too.

1026. How do you account for the payments in 1884 and 1885, "M. E. Slighter, copying, 10 cents a folio, $251.30." Was there a payment made in your wife's name before that year?—No.

1027. Well, then, the payments commenced with your wife's maiden name, according to this report, in 1884 and 1885?—I don't think it did. There were only two payments made under the name of Turner. The name Turner was drawing attention to me, and it was causing jealousy in the Department, too.

By Mr. Hyman :

1028. Were you drawing payments at one and the same time under your wife's maiden name and under the name of Mrs. Turner?—I think not.

1029. You won't swear you were not?—I could tell if I looked at the books.

By Mr. Lister :

1030. I think what Mr. Hyman means is, that you were drawing an amount of say $100 in your wife's maiden name, and a sum of $100 in your own name?—Oh, no; certainly not.

By Mr. Chrysler :

1031. I would like to put one question on behalf of Mr. Burgess. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Burgess on the subject, or had you any means of knowing that he was aware of what took place?—I don't know about that, sir. The work was given to me to do under Mr. Douglas' direction by Mr. Howe, Mr. Rothwell and other parties. I had no dealing with any person except Mr. Douglas. Mr. Douglas was at that time Assistant Secretary of the Department. It was under his order that I did this outside work, and I did the work, and I received the pay, as I have said.

1032. What is your answer to the question as to Mr. Burgess' knowledge, so far as you know, of the payments that you were receiving in 1884 and 1885? Do you know anything about it?—I don't know anything about it.

H. A. PALMER made the following statement to the Committee:—

I wish to apologise for the intemperate language I used the other day, but I don't mean in that apology to include Mr. Nelson. I regret very much in your presence, sir, and the honourable gentlemen, that I made use of that language. I would like also to modify the statement which I made with regard to some one asking me if I had made any statement to any person with regard to the Department. After we got our notices of discharge on the 28th April many of the men who were in the same boat as myself used to come to my room and discuss the thing, and of course I may have said something, just the same as they. They discussed the thing with me and I discussed it with them, but no word was said about giving anything away, except on one or two occasions, and not by me. I suggested a respectful memorial to Mr. Burgess asking him to lay the case before the Honourable Mr. Dewdney, the Minister, asking that he should get an amendment to the Act covering our cases. I have also a recollection of, I think, four or five of us, in company with Mr. Satchell, meeting Mr. Charles Mackintosh. I said: "You are just the gentleman we are looking for." I showed him the notices, I think, which we had received, and asked him as a personal favour if he would interview the Minister or take some action on our behalf, and I stated to Mr. Mackintosh that it would be much better; that there were a great many rumours going around, and a great many threats had been made with regard to showing it up, and I stated if it was shown up the Rykert scandal would be a small matter compared with it, because it was a petty thing, and it would reflect on the Department and the officers of the Department. He said: "Harry, I will see you again," but I never had any communication with Mr. Mackintosh afterwards, with the exception of going down to his house with this petition, asking him to lay it before Mr. Dewdney. That is all the recollection, as far as I know, of any conversation with any outside gentleman outside the Department.

By Mr. Foster :

1033. That is, you only spoke with Mr. Pereira, the men who wanted the same object as yourself, and Mr. Mackintosh?—And the men clerks in the Department, sir, and I think I have had two or three conversations with Mr. Rothwell.

1034. With whom?—Mr. Rothwell. I had nothing of any moment, that is all. We spoke about the Department; that is all, to the best of my recollection. I have heard no threats of any outside party giving anything away, good, bad or indifferent.

By Mr. Montague :

1035. Perhaps you will tell us who did make the threats to Mr. Mackintosh? You say you were justified in making those statements to Mr. Mackintosh. You must have a meaning? You say you spoke to a Liberal member?—I don't say I spoke to a Liberal member; I did not speak to anybody. They came into my room.

1036. Who were they?—Mr. Hickey, Mr. Bethune and Mr. Mongovan.

1037. Who made threats?—I think to the best of my knowledge during one morning—I think Mr. Satchell was present when we were discussing the thing—Mr. Hickey stated if we were discharged "I will write the thing up." That is all; that is the only recollection. I have heard other remarks outside that the thing would be shown up, not by parties connected with the office. That is to the best of my recollection. I made also certain statements to Mr. Hickey with regard to what was going on in the Department. I was entitled, and so was Mr. Hickey, to every dollar we earned, because the law allowed extra clerks to receive full pay for extra service.

By Mr. Foster :

1038. You said threats were being made to Mr. Mackintosh, and the only person you ever heard making threats of showing up the Department was Mr. Hickey?—There were others.

1039. What others?—I could not say exactly, now, sir.

1040. Cannot you remember anyone?—I think there were several who spoke in a general way—if they had to go "We would do so-and-so."

1041. You cannot remember any of their names?—Only with the exception of Mr. Hickey.

By Mr. Bowell :

1042. Did Mr. Satchell?—No; Mr. Satchell did not make any threats.

By Mr. Montague :

1043. Were you among the number?—No; I was not. The Minister was always very good to me. In conversation, I said I was treated with kindness by Mr. White and Mr. Burgess both. I have no complaints, except I thought it was unjust, and I asked Mr. Pereira if Mr. Burgess would grant me an interview.

1044. Then, when they made threats, you disputed with them?—No; I walked out of the Department. I was trying to get a position not in the service at all.

With regard to the reinstatement of these men, I was credibly informed that Mr. Hickey returned to work on the following morning. I saw Mr. Hickey on Saturday morning, and he told me he was offered extra work. He said we could all get extra work, and asked if he should intercede with Mr. Henry to make up what I was getting as a salary. I said: "No, sir; I do not want any favours, good, bad or indifferent in that way." There is a statement made that no person has been returned to the pay-list.

J. L. McDOUGALL called and further examined:—

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

1045. You have been here, and heard the evidence as to the manner in which some permanent clerks have made use of some extra clerks for the purpose of receiving additions to their salary. You are yourself the head of the Department?—Yes.

1046. Is it within your knowledge that such a thing has occurred in your Department?—I am sure it never did.

THOMAS G. ROTHWELL called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

1047. What branch are you employed in?—I am not employed in any branch; I am law clerk of the Department. It is a departmental title. I do not think it is recognized by the Department of Justice, but I am addressed that way officially by the Department.

1048. Are you the solicitor of the Department?—I look after legal matters. In matters of legal moment my opinion is asked, and if Mr. Burgess is satisfied with it he uses it, and if not he refers it to the Department of Justice; or very often, when opinions are given by the Department of Justice, they are sent to me to look over before Mr. Burgess deals with them.

1049. You have been a long time in the service?—Not very long.

1050. How long?—Eight or nine years.

1051. You, of course, understand the nature of this enquiry. Can you give us any information with regard to certifying to accounts and these irregular payments that have been made?—I am very glad to be able to do so, because I think the matter has not been put fairly before this Committee. The general statement has been made that it is a general practice in the Department for permanent officials and extra clerks to divide payments. That is not true. Certain permanent clerks in the Department of Interior I know have done so. As far as my knowledge is concerned, it is that Mr. Burgess was pressed from time to time by permanent officials, whom I may call juniors, to advance them; and these juniors along with extra clerks have to my knowledge been getting extra pay. Of course, I have heard the evidence here, and it has been brought out that other people got extra pay. I had heard that, too, but not in any way that I care to say anything about.

1052. About what?—That I heard that persons calling themselves officials of our Department were certifying to accounts and taking part of the money themselves.

1053. You heard that?—Yes; certainly.

1054. It is within your knowledge as to who really were engaged in that?—I know from Mr. Nelson's sworn evidence that he did so. I have heard that others did so, but I do not know of it.

1055. Do not know what?—That they certified to accounts themselves and got the money; but I know that they got money from cheques certified to by others.

1056. And shared with others?—I think the work was done by members of the family or something of the kind. I would like to say a little more about the pracvice of the Department as I know it. When I went in there in 1883 and 1884 that practice was in existence. I did not think much about it then, but I have a great deal since.

By Mr. Foster :

1057. At that time, when you went in, such a practice was in vogue?—I understand it was in vogue for years, and it is in vogue all through the Departments of the Civil Service in the way I speak of—that is, permanent clerks earning small salaries were receiving extra payments.

By Mr. Somerville :

1058. In contravention of the Statute?—That depends upon the construction put upon it. There has been a very strict construction put upon that clause of the Civil Service Act.

By Mr. Sproule :

1059. The Civil Service Act was only passed in 1882?—A. That was the practice, as far as I know. I have heard talk, but I do not know. There is another point: that extra work has not been distinguished before this Committee. It consisted of two kinds—first, copies of papers, such as returns to Parliament, and other purposes. For instance, when we have papers to send to the Commissioner we send mere copies, and we furnish copies for many other purposes. A good deal of that, however, has been done away with of late. The next class is that spoken of as having been done in the Department by permanents and the cheques being made out in the name of other people for that work. So, there are two classes of work. The class of work that was sworn to here the other day, for which permanent officials were in the habit of certifying to their own accounts and dividing the cheques with unfortunate extra clerks, is something I had only heard of, but did not know until I heard it acknowledged here.

By Mr. Somerville :

1060. You say, then, it was a common practice, according to your explanation, in all the Departments?—I have heard so; but I do not know it.

1061. Heard so from parties in the other Departments?—Just general talk.

1062. You know of no special cases?—I have been told that there were special cases in the different Departments, if I would look in the Auditor-General's books; but I did not wish to become a detective in this business, just because our own Department had got into trouble.

1063. Did you certify to accounts?—I certified to a great many accounts for copies of papers, of returns to Parliament and copies of files that are sent to Commissioners, and copies of papers for other purposes. I have also certified to one account—that is, the account of Jane Hay.

1064. Who is she?—The mother of a junior official in the Department, H. H. Rowatt.

1065. Who did the work?—Rowatt. I will tell you all I know about it. Mr. Rowatt came to me after the death of the late Mr. Douglas, the Assistant Secretary. He told me that he had been receiving sufficient extra work to make his salary up to a stated figure, I think $600 or $700. His statement was that he had resigned his position in the Public school, where he was receiving $600 or $650; that he had been promised an equal position in the Department of the Interior; that after getting into the Department, and on account of a rule in the Treasury Board, he could only receive $400; that the difference had been made up to him by extra work done by himself and the cheques issued in the maiden name of his mother. He told me that Mr. Douglas had done that for him, and he said that he had been sent to me to continue the practice.

1066. Who did he say sent him to you?—I knew that the practice was wrong, and I refused to have anything to do with it; but having found that his story was correct, I did it, and continued doing it. I continued doing it for three or four months, and then I told him this matter must be fixed, and that I would have nothing more to do with it. Finally, I called him into my room and told him that if he had not political friends to make this matter right I had, and I would see them. He asked me to speak to them, and I spoke to one of them, and he was voted his salary in Parliament.

1067. Who spoke to you?—I knew it was wrong—that it was wrong with the strict construction placed upon the Act, and I accept the full blame.

1068. When you refused to do this, and wanted authority, whom did you get authority from?—I spoke both to Mr. Burgess and to Mr. Hall about the matter. They said it was all right, and what I understand was this: that any payments allowed by either Mr. Hall or Mr. Burgess were as salary. I think myself it was salary. That is my own opinion, that it is not fixed what the working day is—that it is not fixed when a man shall be brought back and when not. I may say, as a permanent official of that Department, I have come back myself for five or six years, and I have worked in that Department for between eight hundred and a thousand nights. I have left Mr. Burgess working there occasionally until twelve and one o'clock; I have seen him working there with Mr. Chisholm, and I have seen Mr. Chisholm ill over it. We used to bring back juniors and extra clerks. Who told them to come back I do not know. These extra clerks we could allow 50 cents an hour, but the junior clerks we could not allow one cent. The result was that they continually worried Mr. Hall and the Deputy of the Department for extra pay, and in a moment of weakness he allowed it. This is all there is in this thing, except the acknowledgment that certain permanent officials, getting good salaries—more than twice as much as some of us, who are working our ears off—and sharing the extra payments of these unfortunate men, who are telling all they know. I know one man who came to me and spoke to me nearly out of his mind. He was dismissed once on my recommendation, because I thought he was a poor clerk. He came back afterwards on the influence of Mr. McMaster, and he came to me at the first meeting in this room. I refused to listen to his case. I said: "Tell the whole truth; tell all you know; what makes you ask?" He told me that Frank Nelson did not want him to tell the truth.

1069. Did he say that he had been approached by Frank Nelson?—He said that Frank Nelson told him to say that he had spent the money for hotel bills. I do not know if that is true. I stopped him.

1070. What kind of a man is this McCabe? Is he reliable?—I cannot tell you that. He knew I had recommended his dismissal to the Deputy, and afterwards I spoke to him about it, and said that since I knew he was doing better work I was sorry I had put him under that reflection.

1071. You know nothing against the man's character?—I know nothing whatever against McCabe, except that he is uncertain.

1072. Uncertain in his work?—I know nothing about his work.

1073. Uncertain in what?—He has been worried about men coming to him to cover up things that there was no necessity to cover up.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

1074. Do you consider there is nothing at all to cover up in the practice of entering in the Public Accounts statements of account and moneys paid to people who have not done the work?—Certainly, or I would not have refused continuing to certify their accounts; but as far as I know, every dollar's worth of work certified in that Department has been done.

By Mr. Somerville :

1075. Some of the witnesses who have been here say differently. Mr. McCabe swore, that account's had been certified for work which had never been performed?—I am speaking of my own knowledge; I know nothing about that class of work, except what I have heard.

1076. Do you know Mrs. E. Shore?—I do not know her.

1077. Did you ever certify to any accounts in her name?—I cannot tell until I have seen them. Hundreds of accounts were brought to me to certify, and I paid no attention to the name, provided the files were all right.

1078. You would not remember Miss E. Berry?—No; I do not know what that name is. I may say that possibly I know only a few of those accounts, because you must understand that permanent officials came to me, knowing I had control of the returns to Parliament, and if they presented their accounts I simply saw that the work was done and certified the account.

By Mr. Devlin:

1079. How long is it since you recommended the dismissal of McCabe?—He had been in the Department for about a year; I suppose it is five or six years ago.

1080. Since then you have known nothing against him?—No. I may say, however, that with the exception of nodding to him and saying I was sorry I was so harsh to him, I have not spoken to him since. He might speak to me out in the corridor or on the street, and that's all.

1081. He is an able and reliable man?—Yes.

1082. Are you aware that he was highly recommended to the Department?—By yourself?

1083. Oh, no. I do not even know him?—I was told he was highly recommended to the Department.

By Mr. Somerville:

1084. Do you remember Turner presenting his account and your refusing to certify it?—I do. I certified some accounts in the name of Slichter. Very often I gave him special work in connection with returns to Parliament. I had an extra clerk named Deacon, and when a certain return was required by Parliament involving carefully prepared statements I gave a portion to Deacon by Mr. Burgess' direction, and the other portion to Turner. I first went to Mr. Turner, as he was working very hard, and asked him how much he could do. He took the half of it, and I gave him some more sheets and the balance to Deacon. Afterwards Mr. Douglas told me that Mr. Turner was dissatisfied, and I then discovered that Mr. Turner was getting extra pay in the name of Mrs. Turner?

1085. At the same time?—I could not tell you if it was the same time. I may have certified to some further accounts after that, but after this came to my knowledge I refused to certify any more.

1086. Were you instructed by any officer in the Department to continue to certify accounts?—No; it is just the general way of doing the work.

By Mr. Foster:

1087. You spoke about a view you had about that section of the Civil Service Act. Will you explain what it is?—Certainly. There is nothing to show what the working out of the Civil Service Act is. There is an Order in Council in existence, and I believe a ruling of the Treasury Board, which authorizes a Deputy Minister to bring back any official he likes. As far as my memory goes, I do not think it says he shall pay them or shall not. I want to say something else, if you will permit me. Mr. Nelson, the other day, when before the Committee, stated in his evidence that he had heard that somebody had said he was going for him. I do not say I go for anybody without cause. I was the man who said that. When I heard him sneering at Mr. Henry for giving away this thing, as they stated, and acting like that, I did say things about him and another that were perhaps hasty, but there was some justification for it. These men had been behind the Deputy Minister; they had been fed by him, he had given them lots of work, while other men doing more responsible work were getting nothing, except in the proper way, and I felt very much hurt that this reflection should have been brought on the whole Department by a few; because I will say this, that there are in that Department 50 or 60 gentlemen with whom am proud to work. I therefore said I would give it to Nelson if I got the chance. I wish my statement to be scattered as broadcast as his was scattered. The man who will come here and deliberately say that he is getting extra work, that he is a prominent officer of the Department, and mixes himself up with men in the Department who are doing work with which his cannot be compared, who admits that he has taken advantage of his Deputy Minister, and that he has taken money from an unfortunate Civil Service employé, who is getting only $400 or $500 a year, deserves all I said of him, and I would like to say more and do more. I would rather be Mr. Harry Palmer, or any other man who started this thing, than Mr. Frank Nelson, to day.

Mr. PALMER.—I beg your pardon ; I did not start this thing.

Mr. ROTHWELL—I did not say you did, but you have been blackened and made a scapegoat in connection with this matter.

By Mr. Taylor :

1088. You state that an Order in Council exists by which the Deputy Minister can call back any official of the Department?—He can call back any official in the Department, high or low. Some of the Civil Servants do as they are told; others, perhaps, do not do everything; and if I have done anything wrong I take the responsibilities on my own shoulders.

1089. Does the Civil Service Act make provision, in case a Deputy Minister orders back a permanent clerk to do work, by which he can be paid?—That depends altogether upon the construction of the Act. I will not undertake to interpret it; others can do with that.

By Mr. Lister :

1090. I understood you to say you never received any extra pay yourself?—Not one dollar. That brings a matter to my mind which I will frankly state to the Committee. It is one of the things which has perhaps made me feel indignant at somebody who said I was as bad a man as any of the rest of them. There is a small account in the Auditor General's Report which gives the whole thing away. That account is in the name of Mrs. T. M. Rothwell; that is the name of my wife. I have the good fortune or the bad fortune to have a wife who has a better head than myself. Mr. Burgess, in 1890, told me to go to Banff on important business. My salary is $1,450 a year, and although I have not a very large family I hesitated, and he asked me "what was the matter." I said "I do not want to go without my wife," and he said, "Take her along." I said, "I cannot on the pittance allowed by the Civil Service Act, $3.50 a day. I would have to stop at the Canadian Pacific Railway hotel, and the fare is considerable." I afterwards said to Mr. Burgess. "Supposing Mrs. Rothwell does some extra work," and he kindly gave me $100 worth of work for her. I took the work and she did some 40 odd dollars worth herself. She did it herself; the cheque was made out in her own name and she got the money. When I came back: as the money did not come up to the $100, I paid back the difference. I paid over $60 on account of personal expenses.

JOHN A. HICKEY called, sworn and examined:—

By the Chairman :

1091. Your name is John A. Hickey?—Yes, sir; Mr. Palmer stated here now in his evidence that I had used threats when we were notified to leave the Department. I would explain how the matter occurred.

Mr. LISTER.—I think Mr. Somerville had better go on with the examination, and let any explanations you have to make come after the evidence.

WITNESS.—I thought you would be kind enough to allow it, as Mr. Palmer was granted the privilege. The occasion I refer to was after being notified by the Department our services were dispensed with on the 30th of June. Well, a few of us met together, and we were discussing the matter. Of course, most of those present felt naturally annoyed, I thought, on being dismissed so summarily, and I said if I was not satisfied that there was absolute necessity for being dismissed at the time I might be inclined to go for the Department, or to give them a raking through the press on account of it; but being afterwards satisfied, I took no action and done nothing. On the contrary, when Mr. Palmer was dismissed I endeavoured to keep him as quiet as possible; and Mr. Henry is here, he can testify to that. I went on two occasions in order to intercede with the Deputy Minister to get him back, because I apprehended trouble, as he had threatened trouble if he was not taken back, and Mr. Henry seemed inclined to act; but on further consideration he declined. He said he did not like to interfere in the matter, so Mr. Palmer then stated to me he was prepared to give any explanation or any denial, or sign any document, provided he would be taken back. Now, that is true, gentlemen, with regard to the whole matter. Instead of encouraging him to go on, I done all I could to dissuade him.

By Mr. Somerville:

1092. Why did you dissuade him to go on?—Because I did not consider it would do any good, but only give a lot of trouble.

1093. To whom?—To everyone of the Departments and everyone concerned.

1094. How many in the Department did you consider were concerned?—The whole Department.

1095. The whole house? But whom do you consider was implicated? Was the Minister implicated?—No; I don't say anyone was implicated, but I say all this confusion has been made by his dismissal, as far as I know.

1096. What position did you hold in the Department? Are you there now?—I am not.

1097. How long had you been in the service?—Over seven years.

1098. And when were you dismissed?—I was dismissed on the 30th June.

1099. You were an extra clerk?—Yes.

1100. I see in the Auditor General's Report for last year that you were paid for 365 days at $1.50 a day, and that for extra work you are down for 376 hours at 50 cents an hour,—that would be $188.00 Did you get all that money?—No.

1101. You did not?—The gentleman who was working with me.

1102. Who was the gentleman working with you?—It was not always the same party. Sometimes it would be a different clerk. I was acting under the instructions of Mr. Henry.

1103. How much of the $188 did you get for yourself?—As far as I remember I don't think I got more than half that amount.

1104. About $74?—Yes.

1105. But cannot you be positive?—As far as I remember. It is sometime since, you know.

1106. Did you get the cheque signed?—The cheque came out in my name; I gave half the amount to the party who was working with me.

1107. Did you draw the money yourself?—I did.

1108. Who did you give the money to?—I gave it to the party who had the cheque.

1109. Who was the party?—There was Mr. Connolly, I worked most of the time with. I worked also with others.

1110. What is he?—He is a permanent clerk. I don't know whether he was a permanent clerk myself at that time.

1111. How much did you give to Mr. Connolly?—Well I don't remember precisely.

1112. Who else did you divide with?—I don't well remember, there were so many of us.

1113. This one single transaction?—The reason I remember is, I was more with him than any one else.

1114. This is a single transaction. Surely you can remember whom you shared the money with?—I don't think it was the same person. They were all charged to me.

1115. But when you drew your money out of the bank you knew how much you put in your own cheque, did you not?—I did.

1116. And you knew who you gave the rest to?—As far as I know, Mr. Connolly is the only person I gave to.

1117. You shared with Mr. Connolly the whole of the $185—he got the rest of it?—I would not say he got the whole of it.

1118. The whole of the rest?—I would not say he got the whole of the rest, but I know he got the greatest portion of it.

By the Chairman :

1119. You say you divided the money with some other clerks. Surely you can give us their names?—I don't remember any other person but Mr. Connolly, he was the one I worked principally with.

By Mr. Somerville :

1120. What others did you work with?—I remember I worked with Mr. Curley; he was an extra clerk.

1121. And he would not get any of it?—Of course; he would get half.

1122. Not with your cheque; he had a cheque of his own?—Yes.

1123. Who did you work with besides Mr. Connolly?—Well, I didn't pay particular attention at the time.

1124. You must remember who you worked with?—Well, Mr. Connolly was the principal person; of course, I worked with Mr. Curley, now I remember. Those are the only two I remember.

1125. Was Mr. Curley a permanent clerk?—No; he is an extra clerk.

1126. You did not share with Mr. Curley? What permanent clerk did you work with?—I happened this way: That Mr. Curley was away, and when he returned we worked together.

1127. I am not speaking of extra clerks, I am speaking of permanent clerks. What other permanent clerks did you work with?—I don't remember any other.

1128. At all events, you only got $74 of this amount?—Yes.

1129. How long have you been in the Department?—Over seven years.

1130. And you have been in the habit of earning this money in this way previously?—I never received a cent of extra money in that seven years only this, and I would not have received it only for a friend of mine who is down stairs in Mr. Henry's office. It appears Mr. Henry always considered the work would be better done by permanent clerks. It was a particular kind of work, and could only be done by experts, who were familiar with the work. It was most intricate and particular work; and I may say here that this work, although done by permanent clerks, if extra had been called in it would have involved three times the expense, and it would have taken a certain time to train them.

1131. That is your opinion. Are you a competent judge?—Mr. Henry is here, he can testify to that. It would cost the Department three times the amount.

By Mr. Lister :

1132. You had made up your mind at this little meeting, you and a few of your friends, to invoke the power of the press against this?—No; I said if I was not satisfied that it was necessary to dismiss us I might be inclined to do so. Being afterwards satisfied it was, we did not do so. The Deputy Minister afterwards explained at a meeting downstairs, and fully satisfied me we had no reason to do so, and therefore I would not take any action. Or I never wrote a scroll.

1133. Then it was on account of finding out there was no substantial reason that you changed your mind from resenting it?—I merely felt annoyed at the time, as any one would under the circumstances.

1134. And you were going into the press?—I would afterwards, if I had been treated unjustly.

1135. You found out afterwards that you had been treated justly?—I did.

1136. Did you communicate that to the Minister?—I had no communication with the Deputy, or any other person whatever.

1137. It was a fearful threat to make. How many were you?—I think there were fourteen or fifteen of us.

1138. You were to do the writing, were you?—I would have done the writing myself. I considered I would be justified in doing it.

1139. What were you going to write about?—I thought it was a piece of unnecessary tyranny to send so many men adrift, and these men, a great many of them, were unfitted for other callings, and I thought it was very hard to be summarily dismissed.

1140. You considered it was a fearful piece of tyranny?—I considered if it was unnecessary it would be tyranny.

1141. You were going to abandon the Government for doing it?—I don't know it would affect the stability of the Government, but at all events it would have satisfied my feeling?

1142. You were going to abandon the Government, eh?—I don't know that it would seriously affect the Government, but it would have relieved my feelings, any way.

1143. Well, now, you were going to attack them, I suppose?—Well I would consider I would have perfect right; this is a free country.

1144. Were you going to attack them on the ground of this distribution of extra pay?—No; not on that account.

1145. You swear that was not in your mind?—No.

1146. It was not to show the Department up?—No; nothing whatever of that kind.

1147. Nothing more than they were acting tyrannically with a few of your own friends?—I thought they were acting summarily in dismissing us.

1148. You had no intention whatever of showing improper practices prevailing in the Department? You would not do it?—I would not, and I done all I could to restrain Palmer from doing it.

By Mr. Somerville:

1149. Why have you changed your mind?—Because, as I said before, I was satisfied with a proper dismissal.

By Mr. Lister:

1150. Now, have you seen your friends—the gentlemen who met in that room?—I meet them occasionally.

1151. Every day?—Not every day.

1152. Are you going back?—I don't know that. Mr. Palmer drew up a petition, but I wanted to do it in a legal and constitutional way and I drew up a petition myself, and we decided to give it to Mr. Pereira to put it into typewriting.

1153. You drafted it?—I drafted it.

1154. You were afraid Palmer's constitutional knowledge was not sufficient to undertake that part of the work?—Well, yes.

1155. Was Palmer present when you drafted it?—He was.

1156. It was a joint work?—I done the principal portion of it myself. There may have been some alterations made in it. I just done it hastily, in a few minutes.

1157. You have been there for seven years, and you swear that only on one occasion was there a cheque made out to you, the proceeds of which were divided with a permanent clerk?—As far as I remember.

1158. Do you swear that?—I do swear that, as far as I remember.

1159. Only on one occasion?—There may have been more; but I said before that there may have been more.

1160. Do you undertake now to swear that there were no more cases?—I will not; I will not swear to anything but what I know to be true.

1161. And you do not know that?—I do not.

1162. Who did you divide up with?—with Connolly?—Connolly and Curley.

1163. Why did you divide with Curley?—He worked with me.

1164. He was an extra clerk?—As I said before, we should have worked, I think, together. That was how the matter occurred. I remember we worked together, but I forget the details.

By Mr. Bowell :

1165. I understood you to say that you divided with Mr. Curley because you worked on a certain piece of work together and put in one account, which you divided?—Mr. Curley put in a cheque at one time for me and then I put in a cheque for him.

1166. You were both extra clerks?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister :

1167. Why should he put in an account for you?—Because at the time it was put in it was arranged that we took work alternately, week about. That is, when we extra employés worked. We averaged about twenty hours a week.

1168. Then you would have two weeks in one cheque?—No. The amount of his week's work of ten hours at 50 cents would be $5, and my work at $5 would be $10. We would make the cheque out for two weeks.

1169. You could have put your own account in?—Yes.

1170. And he could have put his in?—Yes; but it would only be a small matter of a few dollars. I am prepared to say the work was faithfully and honestly done.

1171. Mr. Connolly was a permanent clerk?—He was latterly.

1172. And he was at the time the cheque was made out to you?—He was part of the time, but I do not think he was a permanent clerk for the whole of the time.

1173. Was he a permanent clerk at the time the services were rendered for which you got a cheque?—As I said, he was for the most of the time; but I think there was a portion of the time he was not.

1174. Was there any portion of it earned while he was a permanent clerk?—There was.

1175. Was he the only permanent clerk you divided with?—There may have been others, but he is the principal one I recollect.

1176. Was that last year?—Last year.

1177. You swear that you have no recollection of dividing up with permanent clerks previous to last year?—No.

1178. And that you never earned any extra pay yourself?—No; only on that occasion.

1179. Did you ever act as a convenience for some permanent clerk who had done work—to have a cheque made out in your name and go and draw the money and give it to him, you doing none of the work yourself?—I may have done it, but I do not remember.

1180. Do you swear you do not remember?—I do not remember. I remember one occasion I was approached to do it, but I did not.

1181. Was that lately?—It was about the last time we went to work there.

1182. Do you tell the Committee here that you never allowed your name to be used for the purpose of drawing money for permanent clerks?—As far as my memory goes, I do not remember it. I remember distinctly that I refused when asked, although I was conscious he did the work, and that it would be certified to by Mr. Henry.

1183. Did you, during the time this conspiracy was hatched up?—There was no conspiracy.

1184. Conference would be the better word. Did you tell your friends, at the time you held the conference, that you had received cheques for permanent clerks?—I do not remember.

1185. Will you swear you did not?—I may have said something of the kind, but I do not remember it.

1186. What is your present employment,—in the Civil Service?—Not at present.

1187. Do you expect to receive employment?—No; not from any Government sources. I had been acting as insurance agent, and I have been a notary by profession.

1188. In Quebec?—Yes.

1189. You have been in expectation of receiving employment again?—There has been no promise made to me.

1190. Did you ask?—No; but when I was dismissed I applied to some of my friends—it is not necessary to mention the gentleman's names. I certainly tried to get back again, but I found it was useless.

By Mr. Taylor :

1191. You made the statement here a few moments ago that all the employes drew money in this way. What did you refer to,—all the employes in your room or in the whole Department?—I did not say that.

1192. That was the interpretation I put upon it, that all the employes of the Department earned it in this way?—I did not say it. In fact, I got no extra work there myself except that year, although I had been seven years there. On one occasion when I had been burned out here I applied for extra work and could not get it. The Deputy told me that this extra work was only given to orphans and widows, and persons in very distressed circumstances.

By Mr. Lister :

1193. You do not recollect being offered money for your name?—No. If it had been offered I would not have taken it.

By the Chairman :

1194. This work was faithfully performed that you spoke about as having been done by Mr. Connolly?—It was earned faithfully.

By Mr. Denison :

1195. How many years were you engaged on the press?—It was up the country. It was not a journal of great importance. It was a paper conducted by Dr. Shannon. It was the Eganville Enterprise.

---

Mr. T. G. ROTHWELL recalled and further examined:—

By Mr. Taylor :

1196. I wish to ask if all the accounts you certified to were for work actually done and the money earned?—Yes. I forgot to say that in the case I mentioned of Mr. Rowatt I told him he would have to do the work again before I would certify it, and he actually worked two hours for every one he was paid.

---

L. C. PEREIRA called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

1197. What position do you occupy in the Department?—Assistant Secretary of the Department.

1198. How long have you been in the Department?—Since the 1st of January, 1883.

1199. What salary do you get?—$1,800.

1200. Is that the whole salary you get?—That is the whole salary I am drawing to-day.

1201. How is that money paid?—That is my permanent salary.

1202. You are acting as Private Secretary?—I was.

1203. But not now?—No.

1204. When did that salary cease?—30th June last.

1205. Who is Private Secretary now?—I do not know.

1206. How long did you occupy the position of Private Secretary?—I have been Private Secretary under different Ministers.

1207. Can you remember when you were appointed?—I came up first as Private Secretary to Sir David Macpherson.

1208. Were you filling another appointment in the service?—I was a second class clerk in the service.

1209. I am informed that you have been in the habit of drawing money other than your salary from the Department. Is that the case?—I have.

1210. In your name, or in what other names have you drawn money?—In the name of Lizzie Evans.

1211. Any others?—Ellen Berry.

1212. Any others?—No.

1213. Just those two?—Yes.

1214. You know Lucy Evans?—No.

1215. Did you ever draw any money in the name of Lucy Evans?—No.

1216. Where does Lizzie Evans live?—She is my wife.

1217. Who is Miss Berry. Not your wife, too?—That is an assumed name.

1218. There is no such person?—No.

1219. How did you come to make out an account in Ellen Berry's name?—I would like to make some statement to the Committee.

1220. Answer the question first and make some statement afterwards. Very well, then you may make your statement?—After the session, at the time of the North-West Rebellion, the two private secretaries of the Minister of Militia had a grant of $500 each for extra work, which was entailed upon them by the occurrence of the North-West Rebellion. The late Minister of the Interior, the Hon. Thomas White—who was subsequently made Minister—was asked on my behalf if a similar compensation would be made to me, because it was represented to him that I had certainly done as much work as either of these two other secretaries, if not more. My Minister said at the time, that he did not care to ask anything for his own private secretary, as it would seem too much like a personal favour. He subsequently, as I was informed by my Deputy Minister, authorized that a certain amount of work should be given to my wife in compensation for the extra services I had rendered, instead of asking for a grant for me. This extra work the Deputy Minister allowed my wife to do from time to time as it could be found, and there was an amount paid up to about $280 in that name.

1221. In which name?—Lizzie Evans. I may explain to the Committee, that Evans is my wife's maiden name. The work up to about $280, I think—

1222. What year was that in?—That was up to the year ending 30th June, 1887.

1223. How much did you get that year under the name of Lizzie Evans?—$280. In the spring of last year, 1890, I was very much pressed with work, and I had made application to the Deputy Minister for some sort of assistance, and I reminded him that my wife had not got the benefit of the whole of what the late Minister had sanctioned to be given to her on my behalf, and he authorized me to allow her to help me in my work to the extent of a further amount which would about cover what the late Minister had sanctioned.

1224. How much did he sanction?—He sanctioned at least $400, I know.

1225. A year?—No, for the whole thing; and I am not sure that he did not say that it might be extended to $600; but I have nothing to show for that and I am not certain.

1226. Have you anything to show for the $400?—The work that was done in the spring of 1890, was done during April and May, and the account for it would have been made out in my wife's maiden name in the same manner.

1227. Ellen Berry?—No; Lizzie Evans. I had incidentally heard some talk about extra work, and had heard it mentioned in a peculiar way: "We know who this man is and that man, and we know who Lizzie Evans is." I took upon myself the responsibility, of which this Committee will be the judge, of not allowing my wife's name to appear any longer in the matter, and the account I made out myself in Ellen Berry's name. When the cheque was made out, I endorsed that cheque. There is no such person as Ellen Berry. The work was done by my wife and I took the responsibility of making the account out and the cheque in that other name for the reason which I have explained.

By Mr. Lister:

1228. You state that the Minister authorized you to do the extra work?—Yes.

1229. That was for the balance between the $280 and the $400?—No. The Deputy Minister authorized the balance of the work on the authority which he had previously received from the late Minister. I would like to add to my statement that with regard to the sanction given by the late Minister for the work to be given to my wife, I have the authority of the member for Cardwell, for making that statement to the Committee.

By Mr. Somerville:

1230. When you had this work given to your wife, why did you call her "Miss Lizzie Evans?" What was that done for?—I did not think it was desirable to make it public in any way that my wife was getting the work.

1231. For what reason did you not, if it was honestly earned? Why did you object?—For one reason I suppose that if it were known, very likely a number of other permanent clerks might ask for the same thing.

1232. You state that the late Minister authorized you to get up to $400?—Yes, up to $400; but I am not certain that he did not say it might go up to $600. I may state that, because I have a note with me as to that.

1233. Whom did you get the information from that you were to be allowed to go up to $600?—The Deputy Minister said that he thought that that authority had been given. He was not quite positive on the point, but he was certainly positive about the amount of $400.

1234. How did you come to draw more than $400?—I did it under the authority of the Deputy Minister, because he was under the impression, and I have no doubt he had good grounds for having that impression, that the Minister had said it might go up to $600.

1235. You were more interested in this than the Deputy Minister, but your impression was that it was $400?—No, Sir; what I said was that I knew that I had something to show it was up to $400, but beyond that I had nothing except the impression, but what I received from the Deputy Minister.

1236. Who was present beside the Minister and yourself when this understanding was come to?—Nobody else was present.

1237. Was the Deputy Minister not present?—I presume the Deputy Minister had an interview with the Minister because he conveyed the information to me.

1238. After you had had a consultation with the Minister?—I had had several consultations with the Minister about it.

By Mr. Haggart:

1239. I understood you to say that you had something to show that that arrangement was made. What do you mean by that. Have you anything in writing respecting that $400?—I have shown the member for Cardwell confidential correspondence with the late Minister's brother which I think will satisfy him that it bears out my statement.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT—I think that correspondence should be produced, Mr. Chairman.

WITNESS—If the member for Cardwell has no objections I have no objections. It was a letter written by the late Minister to his brother at the time the arrangement was made. He was helping me financially and the money was paid to him out of this extra money.

By Mr. Somerville :

1240. Repaid to whom?—To Mr. Richard White, of Montreal.

1241. Then you were in financial difficulties?—I had borrowed some money from him.

By the Chairman :

1242. Is this letter in your possession now?—The correspondence is in the possession of the Deputy Minister. It is a letter in his private letter book. I have a copy of it.

MR. R. S. WHITE, M.P.—Perhaps I may be allowed to say that I knew nothing of the existence of this letter until yesterday, when in the course of conversation with me, Mr. Pereira showed me this letter written by Mr. Burgess to Mr. Richard White of Montreal. Of the statements in that letter, I have no doubt as to their truth, but I never saw the letter or knew it was in existence until yesterday. I am not in a position to authorize Mr. Pereira to produce it, but I am satisfied Mr. Burgess' statements contained in it are correct.

1243. MR. SOMERVILLE (to witness). You have a copy of that letter in your possession?—Yes.

1244. You have it with you?—Yes.

MR. SOMERVILLE.—I think we ought to have the copy of that letter produced.

After some discussion upon the point the Chairman ruled that the Committee had no authority to compel the witness to produce this copy of the letter, but that Mr. Burgess could produce it if he cared to do so.

WITNESS—If the Committee will allow me I might say that the letter contains other personal matters which have no bearing whatever on the subject-matter of the conversation.

By Mr. Somerville :

1245. When did you first commence drawing any extra money in your wife's name or in anyone else's name?—I had drawn money in her name for work that she had done previously to this.

1246. What time did you commence to draw that?—I have no note of that. I have no doubt the Auditor General's Report will show.

1247. Did you draw any in 1883-84?—I cannot say. I have not made an examination of the Auditor's Report to see.

1248. But you certainly could remember the year in which you commenced to draw this extra money?—I cannot say without referring to the Auditor's Report.

1249. But you did draw moneys before the arrangement was made with the late Minister which you have spoken of?—Yes, there have been amounts drawn.

1250. In the name of your wife?—Yes.

1251. And in the name of anyone else?—In the name of Ellen Berry, as I stated. In the spring of 1890.

By Mr. Lister :

1252. Is that the first time Ellen Berry's name appeared in 1890?—Yes.

1253. Previously to that time, in whose name were the cheques made?—In Lizzie Evans' name.

1254-5. And only in her name?—Yes.

1256. For what services were the payments previous to the arrangement made by the late Minister?—They were all made for extra work.

By Mr. Somerville :

1257. According to the Auditor General's Report for 1883-84, I see, "Miss Lizzie Evans, $120.20." You got that money?—No doubt I did.

1258. By whose authority did you get that work?—Of course, I got it by the authority of the Deputy Minister.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

1259. Were you not aware that it was contrary to the Civil Service Act to receive pay for work done in that way?—I do not know that I was. I do not think that I had ever looked at the Civil Service Act at that time.

1260. You took an oath when you entered the Service?—I did not take an oath when I entered the Service, and I do not think I did until quite recently.

1261. This was merely a subterfuge on your part?—I want the Committee to understand that my wife did that work; and as to what the late Minister authorized, he authorized it as compensation for the extra labour performed during the session when the work of the Rebellion was on the Department, and that the work had actually to be done over twice so that it might be really her own.

1262. But with respect to the previous payments?—That was for extra work done by my wife.

By Mr. Chapleau :

1263. You were compensated for extra work you had done?—Yes.

1264. And to compensate you for the extra work you had done your wife had to do that extra work?—Quite so.

1265. You certified to your wife's accounts?—I did in one case—certainly.

1266. When she did the work?—In the case of Ellen Berry I did.

By Mr. Hyman :

1267. Did Ellen Berry do the work?—No; the work was done by my wife. Ellen Berry represented my wife.

By Mr. Somerville :

1268. What I understand you is, that this work done in the name of Ellen Berry, was done by your wife?—Yes.

1269. And when she did the work you certified the account was correct?—I did in the case of Ellen Berry.

1270. In every instance?—No; in no other instance.

1271. Only the payments to Ellen Berry?—Yes; just the two.

1272. Who had the checking of the work?—I checked the work myself, because I was the only person who knew what had been done.

1273. Did not you submit that to your superior?—As a matter of fact there was nobody to submit work of that kind to.

1274. Who knew in the Department that you were certifying to your wife's work?—I did not know if the Deputy Minister knew I certified these particular accounts.

1275. Who sent the work to your wife?—I took the work to my wife myself. I may say to the Committee that there is not one night in the month for all the years I have worked here—and I was appointed in 1883—that I have not taken work home myself, altogether irrespective of that which my wife did.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1276. Did you select the work, or did your superior officer select it?—I selected the work.

By Mr. Somerville :

1277. You selected the work, took it home, and afterwards when it was done, you certified to the account in this fictitious name?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster :

1278. For all that work, whether before this arrangement with the Minister, or after, which has been done, and paid for, either in the name of Lizzie Evans or Ellen Berry, the actual work was done by your wife?—The actual work was done in every case.

1279. And certified to by you?—Certified by me in some cases.

1280. And in other cases?—In other cases the work was done.

1281. It was work necessary for the Department?—Yes; it helped me and saved me a good deal of my time. It would have necessitated employing an assistant for me if it had not been given to my wife in that way.

By Mr. Foster :

1282. So in no case did you use your wife's name—Ellen Berry's name—as a mere convenience to draw sums for yourself?—No—never.

By Mr. Chapleau :

1283. There was no fictitious account?—There were no fictitious accounts.

By Mr. Lister :

1284. You said you took work home and your wife and yourself did it?—Yes.

1285. That is so, is it?—Yes.

1286. I don't care how much your wife and you did, but the work was done between you?—The work was done.

1287. The account was made out in her name and certified to by you?—In some cases.

1288. In the two cases to Ellen Berry?—Yes.

1289. Part of that money was for work that had been done by you?—The whole of it was work done by my wife.

1290. You say you took work home and your wife and you did it?—I always took work home.

1291. Did you do any part of it?—My wife did it.

By Mr. Bowell :

1292. What we want to know is did you do any of the work for which you received money under your wife's name?—What I wish the Committee to understand is this—whatever work was charged for was amply covered by the work done by my wife.

By Mr. Lister :

1293. Supposing you took $100 worth of work home, did you and your wife work on that together?—Whatever she would have done would have amounted to the value of $100.

1294. And it was for that account only?—For that account only.

1295. And there was no part of your work included in the accounts of Ellen Berry?—Not at all.

1296. You did none of that work yourself?—None. That was all work she did for me.

1297. Then I understand you did none of the work at all?—No.

1298. And the bills made out to Ellen Berry were for work done by your wife?—Yes.

1299. None of which you did?—None of which I did.

1300. Who certified to the accounts made in the name of Lizzie Evans?—I cannot tell, unless I see the accounts. I may have certified to some of them.

Mr. SOMERVILLE.—These accounts are not here.

By Mr. Lister :

1301. You cannot tell. They were certified to, at all events?—Yes.

1302. You may have certified you say to some of them?—I may have done so, but I cannot recollect.

1303. If you did not certify who did?—Some officer in the Department.

By Mr. Bowell :

1304. I understood you to say you take work to do at home for which you make no extra charge?—I have done that until perhaps the beginning of this year every night of my life since I have been here.

By Mr. Somerville :

1305. How many years?—Since 1st January, 1883.

1306. Since 1st January, 1883, up to when?—Up to till towards the spring of this year.

1307. You were so busy in performing departmental work you had to take it home every night?—I would like to say that, perhaps a night or two during the month I might not do so.

1308. What kind of work would this be?—Private secretary's work and departmental work.

1309. That is what I want to get at. I thought if you were so busy doing departmental work at that time you could not do much work as private secretary?—I filled the two positions together. I may say, during the time I was working as private secretary my Minister's system was to take the information from the papers himself in a great measure; and that necessitated his going through all the papers. In almost every case he had to deal with he preferred to do that, and to answer the letters fully himself, according to the facts as they appeared in the correspondence, rather than simply to send an acknowledgment and have the bulk of the work done as a departmental matter.

By the Chairman :

1310. That was Mr. White?—Yes, Mr. White, and the previous Minister.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1311. When did you get that sum of $400 that has been paid away back in 1882 or 1883?—That sum of $400 was paid after the North-West Rebellion.

1312. Because some clerks in the Militia Department had got it, you thought you were entitled to it?—Two private secretaries in the Militia Department got $500 each.

1313. It was thought you should have the same?—My Minister thought I should have got compensation.

1314. What year was that in?—It must have been in 1886.

1315. Was that certified to as work already done, or was there work given?—It was the late Minister who authorized the Deputy Minister to give extra work to my wife as compensation to me for his not being able to ask for a grant for me. The work was all done over again, and, as a matter of fact, in that way the money was really earned twice.

1316. Thus you thought if you were entitled to the first grant it was really imposing upon you to require you to do extra work in order to make payment possible?—I did not think I was imposed upon.

1317. But you thought you were not dealt with as justly as the others?—I thought I was as much entitled to it as the other secretaries were.

1318. And the Minister agreed to that?—Yes; he agreed, and stipulated I should do the work over again, and he explained his reasons for not asking for a grant, which was it was like asking a personal favour for himself if he asked it for his private secretary.

By Mr. Foster :

1319. So your compensation was really a privilege to your wife to earn $400, which she did?—Yes.

By Mr. Hyman :

1320. You had taken that privilege before this. What was the object in asking the Minister to do it again?—No; I was never in a position to give out work myself.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1321. Who selected the work that your wife did for the $400, did you select that yourself?—Yes.

1322. Did any other officer know the amount she was doing?—They may have, some of them.

1323. But it was under your charge?—Yes, under my charge.

By Mr. Lister :

1324. The first work done in 1883 was done by your wife?—Yes.

1325. And it was selected by you?—It may have been selected by me.

1326. What about that cheque in 1883, that was to Lizzie Evans?—Yes.

By Mr. Somerville :

1327. You thought you were insufficiently paid, Mr. Pereira?—I thought I had done a great deal of extra work which my salary did not cover, during the two sessions of the Rebellion, and in view of the grant that had been made to the two private secretaries of one single Minister I thought, and I had every reason to suppose, my Minister concurred in my view of the case.

By Mr. Lister :

1328. All this money I think you said went to Mr. Richard White?—No, sir, not all of it.

1329. The greater part of it, then? I cannot tell you for a moment how much of it; but when he knew this arrangement had been made, he was kind enough to help me through by an advance, and it was paid by cash.

1330. When he knew you had made this arrangement with the Minister he advanced you money, and he was repaid out of the proceeds of this work done?—Mr. Richard White did. He was in constant communication with his brother and would not have made the advance to me if the arrangement had not been made. I don't know if I did before, but I would like to make it quite plain, that the Deputy Minister although he had authorised the work in the spring of 1890, that my wife should get the work, he did not know—and I don't know that he knows until I appeared before the Committee this morning—that the account was made out in any different name than my wife's. I took the full responsibility of doing that, and he did not know that I had used any other name than my wife's maiden name.

By Mr. Somerville :

1331. Did you ever receive any portion of the cheque made payable to Mr. Humphreys?—Never.

1332. Are you sure of that?—I am quite sure. As Mr. Humphreys name has been mentioned I certified to an account for Humphreys, I may say for extra work and the reason why I did so was because he informed me Mr. Henry had refused to certify to it. He did not give me any other reason. He simply asked me if I would certify to it, and I asked him the whole of the circumstances, and reasons why he was getting this work, because it was the first time I knew he was getting it, and I made him explain fully to me what he was doing, and I was aware—as I never left the Department before six o'clock every evening—he was constantly engaged there doing work after hours, and I satisfied myself he was doing this work, else I should not have certified to the account, but I know I have never received a cent of it and know nothing about it.

1333. That would be this account of Humphreys in 1889-90 for 776 hours at 50 cents would it?—I don't know, I fancy the Committee are under perhaps, a misapprehension about these accounts. Probably that would be made in monthly payments.

1334. Did you ever receive a consideration from a man named Walter Hatch for recommending his annual increase?—No.

1335. You never received any consideration?—No; Mr. Hatch came to me—he had been able to do some departmental work which I had been able to find for him—and he came to me and said that he had not been getting his increase for some years, and asked me if I would recommend him.

By Mr. Foster:

1336. Was he a permanent clerk?—He was a permanent clerk. He had not been doing a very great deal of work in the Department, I thought simply, perhaps, through want of qualification for it to some extent, but I found that I could give him work which he could make himself useful at, and after he had been at it for some time he asked me if, in view of his being able to do some work, I was not able to recommend his application for his ordinary statutory increase. I said if he would put in an application to the Secretary I would state to the Secretary exactly what he was doing. That is what I did.

1337. He had not been receiving his statutory increase for some time?—He had not been receiving his statutory increase for some time.

1338. He has received his statutory increase since he spoke to you?—Yes, all I did was to hand his application over to the Secretary, and I simply stated what I knew to be just to the man, because I knew he was trying to do what he could in his work. I could not do anything else than hand his application over to the Secretary.

1339. Why was he not getting his statutory increase the same as other clerks?—That is not a matter I had anything to do with.

1340. What kind of work does this man Hatch do?—What I give over to Mr. Hatch, as I can find it, is correspondence. If it is not worrying the Committee, I would like to say what I do is this; to take a fyle and write a letter for him in shorthand. I write it in shorthand myself and send it up to him and he can type-write it from that.

1341. From the shorthand?—Yes. The reason for my work being somewhat lighter now is that I have taught three or four of my shorthand writers to do that, and I can do a great deal of work at night in that way. I write the letters in shorthand and they can read it.

1342. Is that the principal work this man has to do?—That is the principal work he has to do.

1343. What is his grade?—Third class clerk.

1344. Is he employed pretty steadily in doing this work for you?—Yes.

1345. How many hours does he work?—He is there during official hours.

1346. I have been informed he does not do an hour's work a day?—He is not in my room and I am not the head of the Secretary's branch, but as far as I am able I have kept him employed.

1347. Was it your duty to keep him employed?—Yes, as far as I am able.

1348. Was he under you?—He was more immediately under the Secretary of the Department.

1349. If you did not find work for him, was it anybody else's duty to find work for him?—I do not know. That is a matter for the head of the Department to say.

1350. He was supposed to work under your instruction?—Under the instruction of the Secretary. I am only the Assistant Secretary of the Department.

1351. Did the Secretary instruct you that you were to have the services of this man Hatch under your command?—He never instructed me, but looked to me to try and utilize everybody in the Department.

1352. Is it then a fact, that this man Hatch was working under you principally?—Not under me principally.

1353. How much work does Mr. Hatch do for you daily?—I cannot say that.

By Mr. Bowell :

1354. Did you recommend Mr. Hatch's statutory increase to be paid?—When Mr. Hatch put in his application he asked me if I would hand it to the Secretary of the Department, to whom it was addressed, and if I could do so to recommend it.

1355. Did you?—I said I would state exactly what the facts of the case were. I did recommend it.

1356. Did you do that in consideration of being paid by Hatch?—No, sir, I did not.

1357. You did not get anything for that?—No, sir, nothing whatever. I did it simply as a matter of justice to the man.

By Mr. Somerville :

1358. No consideration from the man at all?—No.

By Mr. Bowell :

1359. You borrowed no money from him?—No; I have borrowed no money from Mr. Hatch.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

1360. What rule prevails in the Department about certifying to accounts? How many are allowed to certify to accounts?—I do not know that I am quite competent to answer that question.

1361. I understood you to state that Mr. Henry had declined to certify to an account of Mr. Humphreys. Did you say that?—Yes; that was what Mr. Humphreys told me

1362. But it was Mr. Henry's place to certify to that particular account?—I do not know that it was his place. What I understood was that Mr. Henry, would not certify because some of the other men wanted to be paid.

1363. It seems to me a strange thing that he should go to Mr. Henry unless Mr. Henry was the right man to certify. Does the rule of the Department allow that if a superior officer does not certify to an account the clerk may go to some other person and have him certify, and his account will be paid on that certificate?—I think if a permanent clerk in any position in the Department was satisfied that the work he was asked to certify to was done—as in this case I satisfied myself it was—he would have the power to do so.

1364. Any permanent clerk?—I am not in a position to say that.

1365. Is it your belief that any permanent clerk would have the power to certify to an account?—I am not sure about that.

1366. I am only trying to find out the rule of the Department. To this work which Mr. Humphreys brought to you, Mr. Henry had been asked to certify. Why did he go to Mr. Henry first? Did Mr. Henry give out that work to him?—It was extra work on the books.

1367. Who should assist Mr. Humphreys on that?—Mr. Henry, I presume.

1368. Then Mr. Henry surely should have certified to that account that he had authorized. I want to know what rule of the Department permitted him to go to you and how your certificate passed muster. Is every officer who knows nothing about anything to have the power to pass what an officer who does know refuses?—In that case it was the fact. But it was not because I knew nothing about it. I satisfied myself first.

1369. If you had not satisfied yourself, or if it had happened to be somebody else they might have done it too?—I cannot say how other clerks would have acted.

1370. In that case this man was working under Mr. Henry and Mr. Henry declined to certify?—Not because the work was not done.

1371. But he declined to certify?—Yes.

1372. And you knowing nothing of the matter yourself, except when the matter was brought to you, certified?—I think I have stated that from the fact of my being just across the passage—

1373. But your work was entirely different?—Yes.

1374. He came to you with this account, and said: "Mr. Henry will not certify to it." I am not finding fault with you. I want to find out if it was the rule of the Department. You certified to it, first satisfying yourself that the work had been done. Is there any supervision over and above this certificate of permanent clerks as to how this is done, and whether it is to be done under certain jurisdiction. The mere fact of any officer's name being on the account, does that pass muster in the highest quarter? Can any one of you in command supersede any official, although you have not given the work yourselves?—I think they were satisfied the work had been done, and it was not for that reason that the person who gave the work out would not certify. It was simply because Mr. Henry declined to certify, because others would want the same thing.

By Mr. Hyman :

1375. Did you take occasion to ascertain from Mr. Henry why he refused to certify Humphreys' account?—I took Humphreys' word for it.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1376. When this work was certified to whom did your certificate pass? What official does it then go to?—To the Accountant.

1377. Was it any part of the Accountant's duty to go beyond any officer of the Department in regard to the certifying of accounts, or is that a sufficient authority for him?—I do not know what instructions the Accountant may have.

1378. But in that case there was no inquiry made by the accountant?—No.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

1379. I understood you to say that you did not go to Mr. Henry, who is an officer of considerable rank in your Department, and ask him why he refused to certify the account. You had no communication with Mr. Henry?—No, sir; partly because I knew this man was working from day to day.

1380. Mr. Humphreys was a temporary clerk?—Yes.

1381. And from what you tell us, it appears the practice of the Department is this—that a temporary clerk comes to you after his superior, Mr. Henry, declines to certify the account and you certify to it?—I certified to it.

1382. Mr. Henry is an independent officer, as far as you are concerned?—Yes.

1383. And you, the Assistant Secretary of the Department, third in command, do not deem it necessary to hold any communication with Mr. Henry as to the reasons for his declining to certify to Humphreys' account?—I did not think it was necessary, because I knew this extra work was being done. I had the evidence of it myself.

1384. As a matter of discipline in the Department, do not you think an officer in your position, when he finds for any reason that an officer of high grade, if not of co-ordinate degree, declines to certify to an account, as a matter of business, that you should have had some communication with Henry about it?—As a matter of business and courtesy, I admit perhaps that I should have done so.

1385. You have already told us you believe Mr. Humphreys?—I knew Humphreys was working there. I think I may say that the Registry branch is in a measure just as much under the control of the Secretary's branch, because the Secretary has really charge of all the correspondence, and must necessarily, therefore, have charge of all the files—must have access to them, in order to get information.

1386. It might be a different thing if you had consulted with Mr. Henry, and then in the exercise of your discretion, after hearing his decision, you had chosen to over-rule it. That is a thing which may or may not have been done with propriety under a sense of your responsibility. I am putting the question to you, however, whether you, as one of the principal officers of the Department, should not in such circumstances have communicated to Mr. Henry, who was the officer who gave the work to Humphreys?—I have stated already that as a matter of business and courtesy it would have been better, but in this particular case Mr. Humphreys stated the reason why Mr. Henry declined to certify to the account.

1387. You have stated a dozen times that Humphreys gave the reasons, but I do not care a straw for that. The question I put is: whether or not the rules of your Department are so loose and so lax that when an officer of that Department, having given work to a clerk, declines to certify the account, and you certify to it without the common courtesy and business precaution of communicating with the chief who gave the work out?—I think I admitted that I recognized that.

1388. That you had done wrong?—No; not that I had done wrong; but that, as a matter of business courtesy, it would have been better to have asked Mr. Henry about it. I would have done so in any ordinary case, but in this case I knew the work was done.

By Mr. Foster :

1389. Did you do that more than once?—I do not think that I did.

1390. Then, from this one transaction it would not be fair to deduce that this was the general practice in the Department?—Not so far as my experience goes.

By Mr. Lister :

1391. As I understand it, you have permanent clerks and extra clerks in the Department?—Yes.

1392. And the extra clerks are doing work under some of the permanent clerks?—Not necessarily; they are doing work generally.

1393. Supposing you have someone in your office doing work under you, you, as a permanent clerk, would certify to that work?—Certainly.

1394. Does that prevail all through the Department?—I do not know; I am not in a position to know.

1395. Then, what right had you to certify to that account at all?—Because I knew the work had been done.

1396. But not under your instructions?—I knew it was done.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1397. Are you the superior officer of Mr. Henry?—I do not know; I could not say; but I did not mean, by my certifying to that account, to challenge Mr. Henry's authority in any way.

1398. By your rank, could you over-rule Mr. Henry in any way?—I do not know about that.

By the Chairman :

1399. About this matter of Walter Hatch: there were two statements made by Mr. Somerville. One was that you took money from Hatch to get him an increase in salary. That you have denied upon oath. The second statement is, that Hatch did not do an hour's work every day, and you say you recommended him for a statutory increase. Did you know what work he did, or had you a general idea?—Certainly I did.

1400. Did he do more than an hour's work every day?—Yes.

1401. Two hours?—Yes.

1402. Four hours—did he do a pretty good day's work every day?—I think he did a fair day's work for his ability.

By Mr. Somerville :

1403. For his ability?—Every body has not got the same ability.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

1404. What time did Mr. Hatch enter the service?—I do not know, sir; he has been there a long time.

1405. Longer than yourself?—I cannot say.

By Mr. Somerville :

1406. You say in your evidence that you used to take work home to your house to do in the evenings, and also work for your wife?—Yes.

1407. You state that you did that nearly every evening?—I said I did my own work myself.

1408. And you worked every evening?—Yes.

1409. Would that be all the year round?—Pretty nearly all year round.

1410. Previous to 1890 were you working at home nearly all the year round?—Yes, except that there might be a few nights that I have not worked at home.

1411. You say you were at home nearly every night in the year, with one or two exceptions?—Yes.

1412. This man Humphreys put in 776 hours at 50 cents an hour. Now, if he was paid for doing work 776 hours at 50 cents, and you were working extra hours at home, how could you be cognizant of the fact that he was working extra hours?—Perhaps you do not remember that the office hours are from 10 to 4. Mr. Humphreys, I know that, for the account I certified was working between 4 and 6.

1413. And you were still in the Department then?—Yes.

1414. Are you aware that in the evidence given by the Deputy Minister before this Committee, Mr. Burgess explained that this man Humphreys was paid this 50 cents as a consideration for his excellent qualities as a clerk, and not for extra work at all?—I know that Mr. Humphreys was an exceedingly good man, and that he was working over hours. I do not know the reasons that may have been given for his getting the extra 50 cents.

MR. BURGESS—The fact is, that in 1887 Mr. Humphreys was paid an extra 50 cents a day because he was a superior clerk to those who were getting $1.50 a day.

By Mr. Chapleau :

1415. You have mentioned your work outside of this Department. You were a Departmental clerk at the same time that you were Private Secretary?—Yes.

1416. And for the work you did, at home did you receive any consideration?—None at all.

1417. What were your ordinary office hours in the Department?—The official hours were from 10 to 4.

1418. But you were in the Department up to what time?—I never left the Department before 6 and sometimes even 7 o'clock.

1419. Did you receive any remuneration?—Nothing, except this favour I have spoken of.

By Mr. White (Cardwell) :

1420. I desire to understand a little more clearly this arrangement which you say was made with the late Minister. It was for an allowance of $400?—That was the amount in the aggregate.

1421. And the work was to be performed by Mrs. Pereria, and was to be done over again to be earned?—Yes.

1422. And it was earned over again—every dollar of it?—Yes.

1423. If Mrs. Pereira had not been employed, would some one else have been engaged?—Certainly; a second-class clerk would have been necessary to do the work, and that would have involved an expense of $1,000 a year.

1424. There was no loss to the Treasury in consequence of this arrangement? Was that arrangement in contravention of the Civil Service Act?—I cannot say that; I am not clever enough to interpret the Civil Service Act.

1425. You say the cheque was made out in the name of Lizzie Evans?—Yes; it was my wife's maiden name.

1426. Had the cheques passed under the notice of the late Minister?—No; I don't think so. After he had given his consent to the arrangement he had nothing further to do with it afterwards.

1427. I understand you said that most of this money, which amounted in the aggregate to $280—that was the amount earned—and that the whole of this $280 earned was subsequently paid to Mr. Richard White, of Montreal?—I cannot say how much.

1428. Was the late Minister a party to the arrangement?—Not that I know of at all. It is quite possible he was not. It was an arrangement between myself and Mr. Richard White.

1429. And it was made subsequent to the arrangement that the Minister should give compensation for Mrs. Pereira's work?—It was after Mr. Richard White had given his authority to it.

1430. And who gave the information to Mr. Richard White?—The Deputy Minister did.

1431. Not Mr. Thomas White himself?—No.

By Mr. Hyman :

1432. In regard to that—Humphreys' account of $200, you spoke of certifying to it?—I did not speak of certifying to it.

1433. What was the amount?—It was probably only a small amount.

1434. What reason did Mr. Humphreys give to you for Mr. Henry not certifying to it?—As far as I recollect, the reason he gave was that Mr. Henry thought if he got extra work or extra pay that others in his room should get it too. Well, I knew of course that was a matter for the Deputy Minister or the Minister. That was nothing to Mr. Henry or myself, and I knew this work was being done by Mr. Humphreys.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1435. Mr. Henry thought there were others in the room entitled to this work as well as Mr. Humphreys?—That was the reason Mr. Henry gave me.

By Mr. Lister :

1436. You certified to the 766 hours for Mr. Humphreys account?—I don't know that I certified to it. That is an account for the whole year.

1437. This is the aggregate?—Yes; but what I certified to might be only for 50 or 60 hours.

Mr. BURGESS recalled.

By Mr. Foster :

1438. There were some questions as to what was the practice of the Department in this matter of certifying. One case was proved, in which Mr. Pereira certified to an account. In view of that special case, the rule might be deduced from it of considerable looseness. Would you state what is the practice in your Department in reference to certifying and paying accounts?—Only the clerk who is in charge of the room in which the work is performed certifies. Take Mr. Henry, for example:

he is a first-class clerk, drawing the same pay as Mr. Pereira. A certificate from him to me that the work had been performed in his room would be a satisfactory certificate.

By Mr. Hyman :

1439. Can you tell me if this account Mr. Pereira speaks of passed through by this rule?—If it was certified to by Mr. Pereira I would be perfectly satisfied. He is an officer of that standing. His certificate would have to be taken, or the Department could not be run.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1440. There is no supervision?—Certainly there is a supervision.

1441. Well, why was this rule not adopted?

Mr. FOSTER.—There was no reason to adopt it.

Mr. LISTER.—He said he had the right to certify to it.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1442. Had he the right to certify to an account with which he had nothing to do?—Both of these gentlemen are in the same branch of the Department. The room in which the one man works is right opposite the other man's room.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.—Yes; but that would not enable a man to see through the wall, or whether the work was done?

The WITNESS.—They are engaged in exactly the same class of work. If Mr. Pereira wanted any papers he either goes or sends into Mr. Henry's room for them, which, as I have said, is opposite, and any explanations he might want of Humphreys' account could be obtained there.

By Mr. Lister :

1443. This man was working in Mr. Henry's room, and the work was given by Mr. Henry?—He is in charge of more than one room.

1444. But the work was given by Mr. Henry?—So it appears.

1445. Well, was not Mr. Henry the proper person to certify to that account?—Certainly; there is no doubt about that.

By Mr. Somerville :

1446. In the course of evidence here Mr. Pereira said he had accounts made out in the names of Ellen Berry and Lizzie Evans, and he kept the proceeds. You don't know anything about that?—No; I only know now for the first time, although I had heard since these things have come to be talked about it has been stated to me, but not as a matter of personal knowledge.

1447. When were you appointed Deputy Minister?—In 1884.

1448. And you were not aware Mr. Pereira was drawing money in the name of Miss Lizzie Evans and Mrs. Ellen Berry all these years?—It was paid in 1885, I think

By the Chairman :

1449. It was stated by Mr. Pereira that you were aware of that fact, that the late Hon. Thomas White had authorised $400 worth of work to be done by his wife. Were you aware of that?—I have served under six Ministers, Mr. Chairman, three of them living and three of them dead, but I do not feel at liberty to indicate what any of them may have said to me in the course of confidential communications.

By Mr. Somerville :

1450. It was stated, Mr. Burgess, you received permission from the Minister?—Certainly, that is quite correct, I have myself said to Mr. White, when I heard supplementary payments were to be made to the Private Secretaries in the Militia Department, that Mr. Pereira had worked for Sir David Macpherson night and day, and I thought that during the period preceding and succeeding the Rebellion he had probably not more than two hours sleep at night, as nearly as I could judge. Since the others were being dealt with in that way, I thought he should be dealt with in a similar fashion. Mr. White then made confidential communications to me of the reasons why he would not recommend a grant to Mr. Pereira. They were not personal to Mr. Pereira in any way, but he suggested to me, instead, that I might find means of giving him something. He said his wife was a clever woman, to his knowledge, and could write a clever hand. There was no reason she should not get some of the very large amount of extra work in the Department. I might say, until I looked at the letter which Mr. Pereira referred to the other day, if I had been asked what my recollection was of the amount I would have said $600. On referring to my note to Mr. Richard White I find the amount stated at $400.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

1451. How many officials of the Department of the Interior are authorised to certify to accounts?—There would be the Surveyor General, or the officer acting for him, the Secretary, the Assistant Secretary, Mr. Henry; or if Mr. Henry were absent then the officer acting for him, would be entitled to certify in the same way with Mr. Pereira.

1452. That would be all?—That would not be all.

By Mr. Lister:

1453. Mr. Nelson?—Yes; Mr. Nelson.

1454. I suppose every permanent clerk who has any one extra working with him?—No one certainly, below an ordinary second-class clerk.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

1455. Does he certify to it, and does it pass supervision in that way?—No, it comes to me for approval.

1456. I don't see how you account for it?—Well, I do manage to keep track of it.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM,

THURSDAY, 23rd July, 1891.

Committee met.—Mr. SPROULE in the Chair.

Mr. BURGESS recalled and further examined :—

By Mr. Somerville:

1457. I would like to ask a few questions with regard to the payment of money by Mr. Pereira to Mr. Richard White, of Montreal, to be taken out of extra work which was to be furnished by you under an understanding with the late Minister. You have in your possession a letter instructing Mr. Richard White that the payment should be made?—Informing him, yes.

1458. Well, I would like to have that letter?—I have not got a copy of the original letter.

1459. If you have a copy of the letter I think we ought to have it, because it is important for us to know that an arrangement of that kind was made?—I tell you an arrangement of that kind was made.

1460. Mr. Pereira got $400 worth of extra work, and the amount he received for the work was to repay a loan by Mr. Richard White?—That is not the way.

1461. That shows the necessity of having that letter; we want the facts of the case?—I can tell you the facts of the case.

1462. Well, then, you say this arrangement was made with the then Minister of the Interior, that Mr. Pereira was to get this extra work?—That Mr. Pereira was to get this extra work.

1463. For what?—In consideration of the fact that the Minister had not found it possible to obtain the same consideration for Mr. Pereira that was given to the private secretaries in the Militia Department for the same class of service.

1464. How did it come that Mr. Richard White's name was mixed up with the transaction?—Mr. Pereira would be better able to explain that than I; but my recollection is this, that Mr. Pereira, these arrangements having been made, wrote to Mr. Richard White, who was an old friend of his, asking him to advance him some money on the faith of this arrangement, and Mr. Richard White expressed his readiness to do so, providing I would write him a letter telling him the arrangement, and undertaking to see that the money was sent to him from time to time as it was earned.

By Mr. Adams:

1465. He was to get extra work?—Mrs. Pereira was to get the extra work.

By Mr. Somerville:

1466. You became responsible to Mr. Richard White for the payment of this money, out of the earnings of Mrs. Pereira?—Yes.

1467. Was that all there was in this letter?—That was all there was in the letter as far as I recollect.

1468. Did the Minister know anything about this arrangement?—Which arrangement do you mean?

1469. That Mr. Richard White was to be paid this money?—I could not say that.

1470. Had you any conversation with him about it?—No, I had not. That took place subsequent to the conversation I had with the Minister about Mr. Pereira and the extra work.

1471. Well, you said, in the course of your examination at one of the previous meetings, that the payments that were made to Mr. Turner were commenced after Mr. White was appointed Minister of the Interior?—That was my recollection.

1472. It was for special work?—Yes, that was my recollection, and is my recollection still.

1473. Are you not aware that the practice was in vogue before that time, and that Mr. Turner was drawing money in the name of Joseph Wright, and in the name of his wife before that?—No.

1474. You were not aware of that?—No.

1475. You were not aware of it at the time?—I have no recollection of it.

1476. Could he draw that money in that way without your knowledge?—I think very likely he could. As I explained before, a great many extra clerks were employed, whose names I did not know, and whose personality I was not acquainted with.

1477. Then you are positive you have no knowledge of this money being paid in that way, before the arrangement was made with Mr. White?—I am as positive as I can be about a thing that took place so long ago; I have no recollection of it.

1478. You went out to the North-West some time ago and got sick. What date was that?—I have been taken sick twice in the North-West.

1479. Well, about 1888 you were away for about six months?—More than six months.

1480. Do you remember the dates?—I could not say the date of my leaving here exactly; it was some time either in the latter part of June or the early part of July.

1481. In 1888?—Yes.

1482. And when did you get back?—I got back to my office on 1st January, 1889.

1483. Indexing the Dominion Lands Act would be special work entrusted to the regular officers of the Department, would it not?—It would greatly depend on the condition of the work in the Department at the time.

1484. It is not work likely to be entrusted to outsiders?—It might be.

1485. Is it possible that you would give it to men not working in the building at all?—It might be.

By Mr. Bowell:

1486. It is just the kind of work to be given to an outsider?—I have no particular recollection of the indexing of the Act, but I should think that work might be done outside.

H. KINLOCH called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville:

1487. What position do you hold in the Interior Department?—First-class clerk.

1488. How long have you been in that position?—As first-class clerk, six or seven years. I have been in the Service about 15 years.

1489. What is your salary now?—$1650, I think.

1490. Are you aware of any irregular payments having been made to permanent clerks in the Interior Department contrary to the provisions of the Civil Service Act?—No, sir.

1491. You are not aware of any irregularities of that character?—No, sir.

1492. You are not aware that work was given to extra clerks, and after the work had been certified to and payments ordered that the money was afterwards divided with permanent clerks?—I know more about that since I have heard of this investigation than I did before. I did not know it.

1493. You were not aware of that?—No, sir.

1494. Did you never share any of that money yourself?—No, sir.
1495. You are positive as to that?—Yes, sir.
1496. Do you know a man named William McMahon?—Yes.
1497. Where is he engaged just now?—Just now he is assistant superintendent of the Printing Bureau.
1498. Are you aware that Mr. McMahon has done some work for the Department of the Interior?—No.
1499. You are not aware of it?—No.
1500. Here is an account, "Department of the Interior to William McMahon Dr.; to copying 152 folios, $15.20?—Yes.
1501. You see who witnessed the payment of that?—Yes.
1502. Is not that your name attached?—Yes.
1503. Does not that account bring it to your recollection?—To the best of my recollection that work was done by a lady who did not wish her name to appear. The account was made out in Mr. McMahon's name and he signed the receipt. Mr. McMahon got not one cent of that, neither did I.
1504. Who got it?—A lady.
1505. Who was the lady?—Miss Armstrong.
1506. Miss E. M. Armstrong?—No.
1507. What is her name?—I am not sure of the initials. I know the first one is "C," but I do not know the second one.
1508. How did it come that the work was done in that roundabout way?—It was a time when we were very much pressed in the Department. We were sending a great deal of copying out of the Department, in fact we were pushed for copyists. That lady was a friend of mine who was glad to receive copying and I had this done for her as she did not wish her name to appear. Mr. McMahon was a friend of mine and he allowed the use of his name as far as signing the receipt and endorsing the cheque, but as far as receiving any part of the money he had no more to do with than I had.
1509. You swear you did not get anything of the proceeds of the work?—Not one nickel.
1510. Here is another account from Mr. McMahon?—The same thing. (Exhibits Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8 filed).
1511. You see that account (Exhibit No. 8) is for work in indexing Dominion Lands Act?—Yes, sir.
1512. Work of that character is done in the Department is it not?—Work of that character very seldom turned up.
1513. How is that?—Well, indexing of that Act needed somebody specially qualified from his intimacy with the Act and with a legal knowledge to do it properly, that could not have been done by an outsider as well as it could have been done by those familiar with the Act.
1514. You say that this required special knowledge, the preparing of this index?—I do not mean to say that exactly. What I mean to say is, it would be very much better done by somebody who is familiar with the Act, and having some legal knowledge.
1515. According to that statement, it would not be likely that that work would be given to a lady?—Certainly not.
1516. Was this work given to this same lady?—No.
1517. Who was it given to?—It was given to Mr. Rothwell and myself.
1518. You did this work?—We did it together.
1519. And you got Mr. McMahon to allow you to use his name?—Yes.
1520. Why did you do that?—Because it could not be given to permanent clerks. We did this work night after night, Sunday after Sunday. It was worth $100 if it was worth a cent.
1521. When you did this work you knew you were contravening the Civil Service Act and the oath you took when you entered the service?—I knew I had done the work for this.

1522. Read over that oath.—(Reads the oath previously given in the proceedings.)

1523. You were aware this could not be allowed to you by law?—No; it could be allowed by law.

1524. If voted by Parliament, but in no other way.—The oath reads: “In the discharge of the duties of my office”?—That was not a matter that came within the duties of my office.

1525. If it is a straightforward transaction, why did you need to get the use of Mr. McMahon’s name?—That is a matter for the interior economy of the Department.

1526. When you did this were you aware that it was being practised by other permanent clerks of the Department, and that this system was in operation there?—I was not aware of anything at all there, except that I was told to do this work in my extra hours, and I did it with the assistance of Mr. Rothwell. I worked for more than twice that amount.

1527. You do not mean to say that you invented this system of getting money?—Oh, no.

1528. You knew it had been invented before?—I did not know; I know I earned the money and got it.

1529. There is a memorandum put on this amount: “Who is he?” Who put that there?—I do not know.

1530. You have no idea who put that there?—No.

The AUDITOR GENERAL.—It is written by a clerk in the Audit Office.

1531. Here is another amount, $13.20 (Exhibit No. 9), in the name of Mr. William McMahon for copying in 1884. Who did this work?—The same lady I mentioned before.

1532. Whose writing is that in the account?—Mine.

1533. “Copying a portion of Moose Jaw squatters file, 132 folios.” Who has charge of this?—The Registrar of the Department.

1534. Who is the Registrar?—Mr. Henry was, but he is suspended at present.

1535. Here is another account of Mr. McMahon’s. What is that? Is that your writing: “For copying M. A. files 1693” (Exhibit No. 10)? What does that refer to?—The Manitoba Act files.

1536. Who did this work?—The same lady.

1537. When these cheques were drawn in favour of W. McMahon, who were they sent to?—To him for endorsement.

1538. Is it not necessary that all receipts shall be witnessed?—It is customary.

1539. You see that receipt?—Yes.

1540. Mr. McMahon’s name is there, and there is no witness to it?—That is for the Auditor General and the Finance Department to deal with.

1541. Who approved of that account?—Mr. Douglas.

1542. How did you come to think of getting Mr. McMahon to let you use his name for this purpose?—He is a very intimate friend of mine, and it was as I told you before. The lady did not wish to have her name mentioned, and it answered all practical and honest purposes that somebody else should have got it. There was no concealment in the matter.

1543. That will do, as far as the lady is concerned, but in the other case where you did the work, why did you then get Mr. McMahon to allow you the use of his name?—For the same reason as Mr. Pereira says, that permanent clerks are not given that sort of work when others are anxious to get it.

1544. You swear positively, Mr. Kinloch, you did not receive a portion of this money yourself. I may as well tell you that I have information which is to the effect that you received the whole of it?—Your information is absolutely incorrect. I deny that most flatly.

1545. You got the portion that was for indexing the Dominion Lands Act?—I got half.

1546. Who got the other half?—Mr. Rothwell.

1547. Was any other officer of the Department aware that this—I might call it crooked transaction—was being done?—I cannot answer a question that you infer. Why don't you say it was a crooked transaction? I don't think it was.

Mr. T. G. ROTHWELL recalled, and further examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

1548. You wish to make a statement?—The payment that was stated to have been made to me—I don't know what the amount is, for I have never seen the cheque—was for work done by myself and Mr. Kinloch, when I was an extra clerk in the Department. My appointment as a permanent clerk took place almost two or three days after the work was completed, and I remember thinking that the money would be lost, and mentioning it to Mr. Kinloch, who said it would be all right. Afterwards, I think, he gave me $30. What I said here the other day was that I had not been paid one cent for any extra clerk's work I had done as a permanent clerk in the Department. I was considerably excited over it.

1549. You got $30?—$30 from Mr. Kinloch. I think that is the amount; I don't remember whether it was $25 or $30.

By Mr. Foster :

1550. For work done when you were an extra clerk?—When I was an extra clerk. It was a few days before I was permanently appointed. I had helped Mr. Kinloch at his own house to do the work; after I left here the other day I thought of the matter.

By Mr. Barron :

1551. Was Mr. Kinloch a permanent clerk?—Yes; at that time. I asked Mr. Beddoe, Assistant Accountant, to find out, if he could, what was paid. He described the cheque to me particularly, and told me that on it was marked in my own handwriting "Received."

1552. You got $30 of this amount?—$25 or $30. I don't remember if Mr. Burgess paid me when I was an extra clerk. Since I have been a permanent clerk of the Department I never received one six-pence, and the newspaper accounts of the evidence given here are not very correct. I have seen it stated that the $100 worth of work given to Mrs. Rothwell to do—of which she only did a portion, and the balance was never done—is credited with having been given by the Minister. If I said that, it was not correct; it was Mr. Burgess.

Mr. J. R. HALL called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

1553. What office do you hold in the Interior Department?—Secretary.

1554. What is your salary?—$2,800.

1555. You sometimes certify to cheques, do you not?—Yes; if I know that the work is done, but it is not my practice to certify. I require some permanent officer to certify. I approve and pass the account for payment. I don't certify unless I know, to my own knowledge, that the work has been done.

1556. When "Approved" is written on an account what does it signify?—It is an authority to the Accountant to pay the amount. The Accountant won't pay unless the Deputy or myself authorizes him to pay. The approval is the authority for the Accountant to pay that account.

1557. And in order that you may approve of an account, the account must be certified to by some competent authority in the Department as being correct?—Yes, by a permanent officer always—the head of the room in which the work is done.

1558.—Is it not a fact, that at times the accounts are certified to by not only first but by second and third class clerks?—Yes.

1559. Is there any rule as to who should certify to accounts?—The rule is, that the man in charge of the work should certify. There might be a third-class clerk, who would have work given out to several of these ladies outside to copy, and he would have to count it when it came in. In that case I would take a certificate.

1560. Have you no written or printed instructions from the Finance Department, regulating the payment of money in your Department?—Not that I know of, except the Civil Service Act.

1561. Have you no general rules for your guidance?—Only the Civil Service Act.

1562. I was given to understand there were some printed instructions issued by the Finance Department, or the Treasury Board?—There was a Treasury Board minute, I think, somewhere about July, 1882, after the Act of 1882 went into force, laying down regulations, but that was about the attendance book, and about going out to lunch, and I think also there was a paragraph in that about the payment of extra clerks, but I cannot remember.

1563. Is that still in force, then?—That is still in force.

1564. Have you a copy of it in the Department?—Yes.

1565. I would like you to send me one over. You heard the evidence given with regard to those McMahan accounts and cheques?—Yes.

1566. I see you approved of some of those accounts. I think that is your signature on Exhibit 8?—Yes; that is my signature; that is for indexing the Dominion Lands Act.

1567. You approved of that?—I authorized the work, and I approved the account.

1068. You authorized the work?—Yes; I told Rothwell and Kinloch to do that indexing.

1569. You knew that Kinloch was not entitled to do that work, yet you allowed him to do it?—Yes; but Rothwell was an extra clerk at the time. He was entitled to do it.

1570. Why did you tell Kinloch?—He got Kinloch to help him.

1571. Why did you tell Kinloch?—It was to help Kinloch.

1572. In what way?—Financially, unquestionably.

1573. You are aware this system has been carried on in your Department for some years, of giving extra work or extra clerks work, with the understanding that they were to share the proceeds with permanent clerks?—Yes.

1574. You know that has been done?—Yes.

1575. It has been the practice?—Yes.

1576. Since when?—I could not tell when it began. I came into the Department in 1883. It may have been done before my time.

1577. But has it been done continuously since your time?—I think so.

1578. You think it has?—On special occasions—that is, special work; but it is not an everyday occurrence.

1579. It was usual, when an officer of the Department became “hard up,” or got into financial difficulties, that you would throw a little of this extra work in his way, would you not?—If I could.

1580. That was the practice?—Yes; I have had to go down to the court house and take a man “out of bond,” because I wanted him to come to work for me. I cannot do that out of my own pocket.

By Mr. Barron :

1581. You were anxious to have the work done?—Yes.

By Mr. Somerville:

1582. Did you ever have any conversation with an extra clerk named McCabe about dividing the proceeds that he used to get for some work that he did?—No; never. I never told extra clerks to divide up with permanent clerks; that was an arrangement entirely between themselves. It was a matter of honour. If an extra clerk got a permanent clerk to help him, and divided up, it was a matter of honour. I never got any extra clerk to share up with a permanent clerk.

1583. Do you remember having a conversation with a permanent clerk named Brough?—I have had a great many conversations with Brough. He was in the Department before I entered the Interior Department.

1584. He is a favourite of yours, is he not?—Not particularly.

1585. Do you remember the time Mr. Brough was about to be married?—Yes.

1586. Did not you ask an extra clerk in the Department to whom extra work was given to divide up with Mr. Brough, because you wanted to assist him a little now that he was going to be married?—I do not recollect it. Who was the extra clerk?

1587. McCabe?—I never asked McCabe to share with Brough. I once allowed Brough to do a little extra work after his marriage. It amounted to $12. He got it in his wife's name. You will see it in the Auditor General's Report, "Mary Brough." It is the only account of the kind that I remember.

1588. You will understand that I am working somewhat in the dark; sometimes I may not be on the right track?—I will give you all the information in my power.

1589. You remember the case of Joseph Wright. You have seen that reported?—Yes; that is Turner's case.

1590. You know there was no such man as Joseph Wright ever employed about the Department?—Yes.

1591. Do you know that Mr. Turner drew the money?—Yes; and did the work.

1592. I see that your name is attached to this account in Joseph Wright's name?—Yes, "Certified correct, P. B. Douglas." "Approved" by me July 1887. I was probably Acting Deputy at the time. Generally the Deputy would go to the North-West in summer time.

1593. You were acting Deputy then?—Yes; I signed the cheque as acting Deputy.

1594. Here is your signature again—July, 1887?—Yes.

1595. Here is another signature of yours—August, 1887?—Yes.

1596. You were aware at the time you signed these cheques and approved the accounts that no such man as Joseph Wright existed?—Not that there was no such man as Joseph Wright, but that Turner was doing the work and getting the money. Turner says there is such a man—a friend of his.

1597. You are aware that this system is being carried on in the Department from the time you entered the service of the Government?—Of the Interior Department. I have been 23 years in the service of the Government.

1598. This practice was contrary to law?—Certainly. The Civil Service Act was being broken.

By Mr. Taylor:

1599. In all these payments that have been made to your knowledge, has the work been done in every case and a saving to the Government been effected, rather than by giving it to outsiders?—Unquestionably.

1600. In every case?—Yes.

1601. In any case has a payment been made unless the work has been actually performed and the money earned?—The work was always done, and well done, by the permanent men. Wherever a permanent man got money beyond his salary, he rendered full value for it.

1602. Is it not a fact that you, Mr. Kinloch and Mr. McMahon are very great friends?—That is putting it too strong. I have a great many friends.

1603. Is it not a fact that you are pretty thick, as they say?—No. Kinloch was a clerk in the Department of Justice when I was there, and we were intimate there. Since I have come to the Interior Department I have taken a higher position there. He got married and we drifted apart.

1604. How about McMahan, have you drifted apart from him?—I do not see him once in three or four months, except just to say how do you do.

1605. That is since he has been at the Printing Bureau?—He was clerk with McLean, Roger & Co.

1606. Were you not intimate with him then?—No; I have only been in his house once. I may state, however, that I am not ashamed of my friendship for Willie McMahan. I think he is a fine fellow.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

1607. You stated just now that the practice in your Department as to the certification of work was that the head of the room in which the work was done should certify to it, or, in other cases, that the officer in charge should certify to it?—Yes, sir.

1608. That is, I suppose, the invariable rule of the Department, that the party who gives out the work, whoever he may be, to the permanent or extra clerk who does it, is the one to see that the work was done?—Certainly; not merely that he gives out the work, but sees it when it comes back, and counts it.

1609. Have you read the evidence given by Mr. Pereira, the Assistant Secretary of the Department, at the previous meeting?—I have not got the evidence at all; I was not present at the early meetings.

1610. I want to ascertain the point distinctly, because it bears very materially on the discipline of the Department. Mr. Pereira stated that a certain officer of the name of Humphreys, whether a permanent or extra clerk I do not now remember?—Extra.

1611. That this officer had received certain work from Mr. Henry. What is Mr. Henry?—He is in charge of the registration of the correspondence.

1612. That Humphreys had received certain work from Mr. Henry, and that when he took this work to Mr. Henry and asked for a certificate Mr. Henry refused to give it, for some reason or other. I think he said that the other men in the room were as well entitled to extra remuneration as Humphreys. Thereupon Humphreys went to Pereira and told him that Mr. Henry had refused to certify to the work, for the reason which I have stated, and that Mr. Pereira thereupon took upon himself, although I understood he did not give out the work, and although this work had been done under Mr. Henry's supervision, to certify to it—

Mr. CHAPLEAU.—Because he knew the work was done.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.—He said he knew it had been done, but I was not at all satisfied with his statement. (To witness): Well, Mr. Pereira undertook, according to his sworn evidence, to certify to this work, and undertook to do it without any communication with Mr. Henry, who had given out the work, and who, I understood you to say, was the person who ought to have certified to it?—Yes; Mr. Henry should have certified to it. I ought to state, however, that it was not work given out; it was overtime work done by Humphreys.

1613. But Henry was the proper person to certify to it?—Certainly.

1614. It was done in Henry's room?—Yes.

1615. And having been done in his room, it was not possible for Pereira of his own personal knowledge to have known whether Mr. Humphreys had done the work properly or not?—He may have known, because Pereira's room was just across the passage, and he may have seen Humphreys working.

1616. But Pereira could not tell that Humphreys was working in the other room when he was not present?—Undoubtedly, Mr. Henry should have certified to it.

1617. Well, under such circumstances, I want to know whether it was not the bounden duty of your Assistant Secretary to communicate with Mr. Henry, after having been told that Henry had refused to certify to the work, and ascertain what his reasons were for so refusing, and not simply to have taken Humphreys' statement?—I think it was.

1618. Otherwise, you will see that no discipline can exist in the Department?—I do not quite understand the statement that Henry refused to certify to Humphreys' work, because Henry repeatedly pressed on me to do something for Humphreys—that he was one of his best men.

1619. I would ask you whether, in your experience and knowledge of the Department, that was not a gross breach of discipline, as well as a want of business courtesy, for one officer to take the thing out of the hands of another?—Mr. Pereira was Henry's immediate superior, and I presume he had the knowledge at the time that Humphreys had done the work.

1620. Pereira did not claim to be Henry's superior?—He is his next immediate superior. He is the Assistant Secretary.

1621. If he chooses to take the responsibility, it would no doubt alter matters to some extent; but the statement made by Mr. Pereira when I cross-examined him was not to that effect?—If you will allow me to explain: I always understood that Mr. Henry contended that there were other men that were entitled to be paid for overtime as well as Humphreys, and that is the reason why he refused to certify for Humphreys and not because Humphreys had not done the work. There was a certain hardship in Humphreys' case. He had passed Civil Service examination, and we had recommended the Department to appoint him as a clerk; but while his application was before the Treasury Board he passed his 35th birthday, and the Board refused to allow his appointment.

1622. The reason is this: It is quite obvious that if one officer undertakes to certify for work which another officer refuses to certify to, according to every business rule which I have ever heard of and the practice of the Departments which I know anything of, it was the bounden duty of the officer who chose to do so to have communicated with the other officer?—Certainly.

By Mr. Somerville:

1623. You say that this man Humphreys, you thought, was harshly used?—It was a rather rough deal on Humphreys that he was not appointed before he passed his 35th birthday. He had qualified himself, and came into the Department at 33. He was a good clerk, and when we found he was nearly 35 we hurried off a report to Council, which report went before the Treasury Board, and lay there until he had passed his 35th birthday.

1624. He was an extra clerk all along in this Department?—Yes.

1625. I see in 1888, 1889 and 1890 he was paid for 365 days at $2 a day, making $730; and he was paid for extra work during the same time, 776 hours, at 50 cents, $388, making altogether $1,118 in one year. That was more than an ordinary third-class clerk would get?—Yes; the maximum of the third class is $1,000.

1626. What about the second class?—They commence at $1,100 and go up to $1,400.

1627. He was ranking better than a third-class clerk?—He did very well that year.

1628. The next year he got $876, and the year previous, 1887-88, he got $824.50—551 hours, at 50 cents, in addition to working 366 days. You must have been working this man to death?—He certainly worked overtime from four to six, and came back, I understand from Mr. Henry, to work at night.

1629. In 1886-87 he got $732.50, and so on all the years through. Now, was it usual to give any one extra work or so much extra employment as this?—No; he was looked upon as a particularly good man.

1630. Where is he now?—Winnipeg—in our service.

1631. Do you know what salary he is getting?—I think $730—$2 a day. I would not be positive.

1632. He got an Irish hoist out of the Department?—We could not keep him here, and we did not want to turn him off. We sent him up to Winnipeg, where there happened to be a vacancy, and put him in the Commissioner's office.

1633. Are you aware that Mr. Humphreys divided these moneys he earned with some permanent clerks?—I do not think he did. I think he got it all himself. I cannot say positively, but from what I know of Humphreys I think he knew he was entitled to it and kept it himself. He did the work.

1634. He must have been an exception to the general rule?—We have got good and bad there.

1635. I mean to the general rule of dividing up. He must have been a favourite in not being asked to divide up with the permanent men?—As I said before, I never asked an extra clerk to divide up with permanent men.

1636. You must admit that this man must have been a favourite when he was allowed to keep it himself?—He was a good clerk, and all good clerks are favourites.

1637. Do you know Miss H. M. Mosden?—No.

1638. Do you know whether she ever did work for the Department?—I do not recollect her at all.

1639. Do you know Miss E. M. McRae?—No.

1640. Never heard of her?—I may have seen the account, but never saw her in flesh—so to speak.

1641. Do you know A. Dubuque?—No; his name is not familiar in connection with any extra work in the Department.

1642. Do you know N. S. Dubuque?—No.

1643. Do you know Miss E. N. Charbonneau?—Yes; she represents Mr. Loyer, of the Crown Timber Office. He got about $15 per month in her name.

1644. What is his first name?—François.

1645. He draws in the name of Miss Charbonneau?—In the name of Miss Charbonneau.

1646. This Miss Charbonneau is a fictitious person?—No; she is some relation of Loyer's.

1647. Does she live in the city?—I think so.

By Mr. Bowell :

1648. Is Loyer a permanent clerk?—Yes.

By Mr. Somerville :

1649. How long has Loyer been getting this money?—Since 1887. There was an old man named Gormully, who came from Cobourg, who was employed at $45 a month to assist Loyer. Loyer is a very excellent clerk and has a lot of work to do. Gormully died about 1887, and Mr. Ryley, who is in charge of the Timber and Mines Branch, consulted with Mr. Burgess and myself as to who should take Gormully's place. Our policy was not to increase the staff, and the suggestion was made by Mr. Ryley that Loyer should come back and work at night. He was a married man, and a very hard worker, and was getting a salary of $600 or $700 a year. He was asked to come back to do the work at $15 a month for which Gormully had got $45. Neither Burgess nor I saw there was any harm in this, and we allowed it to be done. It was an infraction of the Civil Service Act, but we were saving $30 per month. Mr. Loyer, being a permanent clerk, could not draw this money in his own name, and, therefore, drew it in the name of a female relative—Miss Charbonneau.

1650. You see this letter on page D-157 of the Auditor General's Report for 1890 (letter filed as Exhibit No. 11 and read):—

“ AUDIT OFFICE, OTTAWA, March 14, 1890.

“ SIR,—During the fiscal year 1888-89, and also during the first six months of the current fiscal year, Miss E. Charbonneau has been paid out of the vote for Dominion Lands $15 a month for copying 300 folios each month, 5 cents a folio. The small chances of a round sum for one month, and of an equality of work for two months, both become impossibilities when the time extends over eighteen months. Please have the vouchers amended if the arrangement is for $15 a month.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

" J. L. McDOUGALL, A.G.

"The Dy. Minister of Interior."

Yes; the Auditor General thought there was something irregular.

1651. You did not reply until 20th May, when the Assistant Secretary replied as follows:—

" DEPT. OF INTERIOR, OTTAWA, May 20, 1890.

"SIR,—In reply to your letter of the 14th March last, in relation to the payments made to Miss E. Charbonneau for copying, I am directed to explain to you that the account is made out for 300 folios each month, as that is the outside limit that this Department will pay in one month, in this case, for copying. The Deputy Minister, it may be added, takes care to assure himself each time that the work done is not less than that limit.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

" LYNWODE PEREIRA,

"The Auditor General."

" Asst. Secy."

1652. Do you know Miss Florence K. Campbell?—No; the name is strange to me in the Interior.

1653. Do you know any other mysterious strangers whose names appear in the Auditor General's Report and whose names are used by permanent clerks in the Department. Tell me all you know?—There are the three regular ones: Joseph Wright for Turner, Jane Hay for Rowatt and Miss Charbonneau for Loyer. These were three good men, working hard, and got this extra remuneration in this round-about and irregular way.

1654. Do you know a man named C. Gordon?—No; there is a McDonald Gordon, who is our Inspector of Agencies; but I do not know C. Gordon.

1655. You do not know him at all?—No.

1656. Do you know a man named C. C. Rogers?—Yes; he is a second-class clerk.

1657. In the Department?—Yes. His principal duty is looking after Orders in Council. We print a whole volume of them every year affecting the Department.

By Mr. Cameron (Inverness):

1658. Did Mr. Brough ever get money under another name?—Not that I know.

1659. Do you know that F. McCabe got money and shared with Brough?—If McCabe shared up with Brough I could not possibly know, but I say distinctly I never told McCabe to share with Brough or with anybody. I never told any extra clerk he must share with a permanent clerk.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

1660. With reference to the matter Sir Richard Cartwright was speaking of, I would like to find out the rules of the Department. I understand the rules of the Department are that whoever gives out work is authorized so to do, and is the one who has to certify to the account?—Not only does he give it out, but he sees it when it comes back and counts it before he certifies. The work that is given out is paid for at so much a folio, at 5 cents a hundred words. Some permanent clerk must actually count that work, and certify that the account is a correct one.

1661. That is where I am a little confused. You say some permanent clerk does that. Can any permanent clerk certify?—No; it must be the permanent clerk who has charge, but we prefer the head of the room. If three or four men are working in a room the senior clerk should certify.

1662. But if he did not, do I understand you to say that any permanent clerk can?—Yes. The head of the room may be absent on leave or ill, and a permanent clerk, but no extra clerk, can certify to an account. There is some rule, I think. The Auditor General knows the rule, and the Audit Office would not take a certificate unless it was from a proper person.

1663. In the case of a person doing this extra work, could any of the permanent clerks certify to that without first speaking to the head of the Department, so to speak?—Yes.

1664. Well, then, really, the certificate of any permanent clerk is accepted, and the account passed on it. Is that the rule of the Department?—Yes; that is the rule. We assume that all the permanent clerks are reliable and honourable men, who would not certify to anything that is not true.

1665. How many permanent clerks would there be in the Department?—I guess some 50 or 60 permanent clerks.

1666. Would you consider it a regular transaction—that of Mr. Pereira, referred to by Sir Richard Cartwright—when the immediate officer over Mr. Humphreys gave him the work, and having been asked to certify to the account declined to do so—that it was proper for him then to go to Mr. Pereira, and Mr. Pereira to certify to it, without consulting the person who had given out the work? Is that quite proper?—That was irregular, but I would point out Mr. Pereira occupied a little different position, as Assistant Secretary, to the ordinary run of permanent clerks. He might assume a little more executive authority than the ordinary second or third-class clerks.

1667. But if any permanent clerk certifies to an account you don't go beyond that?—Not unless I suspect there is something wrong.

By Mr. Foster :

1668. Suppose A and B are permanent clerks, and that A gives out a lot of work to some person, can the person who does the work take that to B, who did not give it out, and did not know of its being given out, and get it certified and passed?—No; I would never take a certificate from a man who did not know positively that the work had been done.

1669. What I want to get at is this : Must it be the person who gives out the work, or with his supervision? I can quite see how any person can count the work and judge that the work tallied with that given out, but should he not then go to the person who gave out the work in order to get it certified?—No; because I might myself, as Secretary, give out a whole bundle of papers to somebody to copy. Well, I cannot count that when it comes in; somebody else will count it.

1670. But you would certify to it?—I would approve it for payment on the certificate of the person who had counted it.

1671. That would be something you yourself knew about?—I would know that it had been given out, but not that it had been properly counted. I would take the certificate of the officer counting it that it had been properly counted.

1672. But suppose some other officer, who knew nothing about the transaction, did what you suggest?—I don't quite catch the question.

1673. Supposing Mr. Henry gave it out?—He never gave out any work. Mr. Henry's work is registration work.

By Mr. Taylor :

1674. As I understand it, the permanent clerk certifies to the work being done. Then a clerk goes to either you or Mr. Burgess to approve the account, and then you or Mr. Burgess will not approve of it until you question the certifying clerk, and are satisfied that the work has been performed?—Yes; excepting that it is not necessary the certifying clerk should bring the account to me. The person in whose favour the account is made might bring it to me and ask me to pass it, or bring it to the accountant, and the Accountant might collect those accounts and bring them in a batch to me.

1675. And you do not pass them until you make enquiries that everything has been done, and you are satisfied by the certifying clerks that the work has been done, before you approve?—Certainly; I never passed any bogus account. I satisfied myself always the value was received for the money to be paid.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant):

1676. You mean by that you are satisfied it is not bogus, because the name of the person authorised to sign is attached to it, and that makes it genuine?—Well, a fictitious name might be attached, but I mean I would be satisfied that the work was done.

1677. That was an irregular thing that Mr. Pereira did?—Yes.

1678. Well, was there any means by which you might be able to detect that irregularity?—I had to accept a certificate from the Assistant Secretary, a man holding a position next to myself in the Department, without any question.

1679. And he could have done it many times, if he had chosen to do so, and there would be no way of checking the irregularity?—I would not question a certificate.

1680. If it was some one lower than Mr. Pereira in position—would you question it in the case of the certificate of any permanent clerk?—If I did not know what it was for I would question it. I would send for the parties and ask: "What was this work; what did you do; where did you do it," and find out all about it.

1681. But as a matter of fact, it is largely, if not wholly, a matter of honour for these permanent clerks. You have to trust almost entirely to their honour?—I must do so with a large staff like that.

By Mr. Denison:

1682. How long have you been in the service?—I was in the Finance Department from 1867 to 1871; then I resigned and went into the Department of Justice, where I remained from 1873 to 1882, when I entered the Interior Department.

1683. Were payments ever made, before the Civil Service Act was passed, to permanent clerks?—In the Department of Justice?

1684. Anywhere?—No. I was nine years in the Department of Justice, working nights and Sundays, and never got a cent of extra pay.

1685. In any case, do you know if it was ever done?—I don't know. I worked in the Finance Department and the Department of Justice, and I only got about $20 extra work in the six years I was in the former Department. That is the only extra work I have had since I entered the service.

1686. I want to get at whether it was done at all?—I don't know; I cannot speak of other Departments.

By Sir Richard Cartwright:

1687. Not to your knowledge?—No.

By the Chairman:

1688. You would accept Mr. Pereira's certificate that the work was performed unhesitatingly?—Most unquestionably.

1689. Was Mr. Pereira, in certifying to work, not aware he was acting in an irregular matter?—I cannot assume that Mr. Pereira did not know it.

By Mr. Taylor:

1690. I would ask the witness if this work that was given to Mr. Turner and the other permanent clerks was absolutely in the interests of the Department?—Certainly.

1691. If it had not been performed by these clerks you would have had to call in other experts or else outside assistance?—Yes; we would have had to get a good man to do Mr. Turner's work. He is an excellent clerk.

1692. And the other permanent clerks referred to as doing extra work?—Yes.

1693. Had you not given it to permanent clerks it would have cost more money and would not have been as well done?—Yes; we could not have got a man for it; we could not get a man, without much difficulty, to do the work Loyer was doing on these works. I might remark here that all this extra work has been stopped, and will never be resumed again in the Department.

By Mr. Somerville :

1694. Since when?—Since last June. It occurred in this way: There was a minute of the Treasury Board over-ruling a decision of the Auditor General. The Auditor General had always taken the ground that the Dominion Lands Income vote, out of which the extra clerks were paid, was not subject to the provisions of the Civil Service Act. The Auditor General had always held that view, and the Department was justified, therefore, in paying extra clerks more than if they had been paid out of Civil Government Contingencies, which, under the Civil Service Act, would only be the minimum of the salary of a third-class clerk, $400. The Department did not pay them out of Civil Government contingencies, but out of the Dominion Lands Income vote at the head office at Ottawa, and the Department always felt we could do pretty much as we pleased, and pay for the extra work out of that vote. The Minister of Justice, however, decided otherwise. Mr. McDougall said he was very glad to be over-ruled; he still held to his opinion, but in the interest of the Civil Service he was glad to have his objection over-ruled; and accordingly, in the case of a clerk named Philip Low, there was a minute of the Treasury Board over-ruling Low and placing him on the permanent list. In future anything paid in the Department must be in accordance with the Civil Service Act.

Mr. BOWELL.—Or by vote of Parliament.

By Mr. Bowell :

1695. Or special vote of Parliament?—Yes; as in the case of Mr. Rowatt.

By Mr. Chrysler :

1696. Will you say whether, in your view of the Civil Service Act, you thought that these payments were outside of that Act?—I always thought so.

1697. And that was the view entertained by the Auditor General as well as by yourself?—Yes.

1698. Until the decision you speak of?—Yes.

1699. That decision was given—when?—In June last. It was given verbally some time ago by Sir John Thompson. He had told us nearly 18 months ago that this Dominion Lands income money should be subject to the provisions of the Civil Service Act. He had not done that officially, but at that time Mr. Burgess warned all these temporary clerks that they would have to pass the Civil Service Act and come down from $500 a year to $400, and that if they did not pass the examinations they would have to get out. It was not until the Treasury Board passed the minute that decisive action was taken.

1700. That was the view entertained up to that time?—Yes.

By Mr. McGregor :

1701. Do you know of any case, outside of that of Pereira's, where a man gives out the work to himself and certified to his own account?—No.

By Mr. Chapleau :

1702. Are you aware that that work given by Pereira to be done by his wife, was with the consent of the authorities of his Department?—I take it that he had the authority of the Deputy Minister.

1703. You did not know it yourself?—No.

1704. You did not know that it was a kind of compensation to him for extra work done during the time of North-West insurrection, and which was to be paid by some extra work done by his wife?—I know that now.

WILLIAM McMAHON called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

1705. What position do you occupy in the service of the Government?—At present I am the Assistant Superintendent of Printing.

1706. How long have you occupied that position?—About two years. I was appointed to the Civil Service about July, 1890.

1707. Previous to that, what was your engagement?—I was employed with the Government contractors for printing.

1708. McLean, Roger & Co. ?—Yes.

1709. Had you ever been in the Civil Service previous to the appointment you now hold?—Never.

1710. You were not in the Civil Service in 1884?—Never previous to the date I have just now given.

1711. You are aware that a number of accounts were passed through the Interior Department for payment for work said to have been done by you. Here is one of them (referring to Exhibit No. 10) ?—That is a cheque made payable to me.

1712. Is that your signature?—That is my signature on the back.

1713. Did you ever do any of the work in the Department?—Never.

1714. Not for the Department at all?—Never.

1715. You never performed any services for these sums at all?—Never; nor ever received any money.

1716. How did you come to lend your name to the officers of the Department?—It was asked for as an accommodation. Seeing that the cheque was an official one, that it was countenanced by the Department, I did not think it anything out of the way to endorse the cheque. The cheque was made out in my name; I saw it was an official one. The work was supposed to be done, or was done, and consequently as it was an accommodation I signed the cheque.

1717. You say you did not do any work?—Yes.

1718. Did you make the accounts yourself?—I did not.

1719. Who brought the account to you?—Mr. Kinloch brought the cheque to me.

1720. You did not know anything about the account?—No; the cheque was brought to me.

1721. You never saw anything but the cheque?—I never saw anything but the cheque; I never saw the money.

1722. You did not know what was in the account?—The cheque was presented to me; I endorsed the cheque and handed it back.

1723. Did you know what the cheque was for?—I supposed it was for extra work, but I did not know.

1724. You did not do any extra work?—No; but as the gentleman who presented it to me must have done the extra work, I took it for granted it was so when he received the cheque from the officers of the Department.

1725. Did you ask any explanation why the cheques were submitted to you?—I asked what they were for, and he said extra work.

1726. And you allowed your name to be used?—That is all; as an accommodation. If the officers of the Department permitted him to do extra work it was all right. I knew him to be able to do it quicker than the ordinary extra clerk could do it.

1727. You did not think it was any of your business to inquire anything about it?—So long as the cheque was made out by the officers of the Department in which that gentleman was employed I saw no reason for inquiring.

C. C. ROGERS called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville:

1728. What position do you hold in the Interior Department?—The position of a second-class clerk.

1729. What is your salary?—$1,400 a year, the same as it has been for seven years.

1730. They have not been using you right?—I have been in the same position for seven years.

1731. You ought to have been advanced?—I have not said so.

By Mr. Bowell:

1732. You have been a second-class clerk for seven years?—I have been receiving the salary of a senior second-class clerk for seven years.

By Mr. Somerville:

1733. Did you ever get any money for extra work performed?—Where? I received extra money in the Department during twenty-one years.

1734. There is an account here in the name of C. Gordon. (Exhibit No. 12.)—That was not received by me.

1735. Do you know Gordon?—Yes.

1736. Who is he?—It isn't a he at all; it is a she.

1737. Who is she?—I suppose you all know that my brother was shot in the North-West Territories in 1885, and he has never received anything—or, rather, his people—from the Government. I have been at several times straitened in circumstances, and that lady is my sister-in-law, whom I have kept for twenty years, and she has helped me on a great many occasions when I have taken work home; and I have asked Mr. Burgess to give her some small assistance in the way of giving us some extra work. That work has been done faithfully and thoroughly. I have seen to it myself. I have been doing night work for the Government all my life.

1738. Your sister-in-law did this work?—Yes. She has not been employed by anybody. I have had to keep her.

1739. She is not your brother's wife—No; he was single. To show you how I was straitened, you see here (showing some letters) that Sir David Macpherson recommended me for promotion and a bonus of $100 for long and hard work; but I never got it. You will also see Mr. Lindsay Russell's testimonial.

1740. Here is an account, certified to by whom?—Mr. Côté. It was work done for his branch. It was copying files with regard to the Half-breeds. There was a great deal of work of that kind in 1886.

1741. Did Mr. Côté know about this?—Yes; he knew it was a lady. I did not tell him who it was. I told him it was done by a lady, because I had had to certify to the account before.

1742. Did this lady do the work, or you?—She did it, but I helped her a good deal. Some of it had to be compared, and I had to show her how to do it. She is a lady who is capable of doing work.

1743. You did some of it?—I have no doubt I did a great deal of it. I have had to read all those things.

1744. Here is another account in the name of C. Gordon (Exhibit No. 13)?—It is stated there "Half-breed."

1745. It is 77 hours at 50 cents. Would that be hours you worked or the lady worked?—There was a time they paid them by the hour, and sometimes by the folio. It was sometimes one and sometimes the other. I have seen some Departments pay by the folio and some by the hour. There was no regular rule of pay, either by the hour or by the folio.

1746. Look at this account. It is for 77 hours at 50 cents. Was that work done at your house?—Every bit of the work of that sort was done at my house.

1747. There was no check on these hours, except your own?—I was the one who had to tell Mr. Côté that it was honestly and faithfully done.

1748. Suppose you did half of it yourself. What check was there on you?—I always try to speak the truth.

1749. What check was there on you? Did this C. Gordon check you?—No. For instance, if she was going to work she would sit down at a certain time and her work would be regular. The clock was there, and I was always around the house. I am always at home at night with my children.

1750. You would sit down and work, too?—I had in a great many cases to do that work, because it was all kinds of handwriting and difficult to read.

1751. You kept account of the number of hours?—A. Certainly.

1752. You could not make any mistake about it?—No.

1753. But you could make a mistake if you chose?—Yes; she might have got $50 as well as $38, if there had been an intentional mistake.

1754. There was no check on Miss C. Gordon or you?—None more than giving the Deputy my word of honour.

1755. You took the work and checked the time, and informed your superior officer that it was done?—Yes; of course.

1756. And got the money?—Yes; she always went and got the money herself.

1757. Here is another account for $36.25, 5th May, 1886: "To services preparing index Half-breed scrip claims, heads." (Exhibit No. 14.) What the meaning of that?—That index was work that had to be done for Mr. Côté at the time they went to settle up matters with the half-breeds—some time after the Rebellion. I do not see any date on it, but it is all 1886. That was index work that was done for Mr. Côté.

1758. Who is Mr. Côté?—He is a first-class clerk in charge of all the Half-breed work—scrip work.

1759. Is he your superior officer?—I forget whether he is a first-class clerk or not. Yes, he is. He is in Mr. Goodeve's Patent Branch. In this case I merely asked Miss Gordon to let me use her name. This work had to be done in the office at night I think there was myself and another man who were specially qualified to make indexes, and we were told we would be compensated if we came back at night.

1760. You got that money?—In that case, certainly. That index work is not done outside of the building.

1761. 72½ hours' work at 50 cents. (Exhibit No. 14)?—The books are over there, and I should like the Committee to send over and see them. I am not ashamed of my work.

1762. You knew you were not complying with the Civil Service Act?—I was not aware. It was work that did not appertain to my duties.

1763. You did it in your office?—Not in my office. I did it in Mr. Côté's own office. It was not work that either the Deputy or Minister could say: "You must go and do this work by compulsion." I had no acquaintance with it in the day time. It was not a case in which I might do the work through the day.

1764. Why did you not use your own name?—Because it was the custom for permanent men not to get paid for extra work.

1765. The custom must have had some sanction?—In the time of Mr. David Mills I did a good deal of extra work.

1766. But the Civil Service Act was passed in 1882?—Custom grows, however, and custom becomes second nature.

By Mr. Denison:

1767. Was it done in other names, then?—It was the custom for permanent men to get extra pay.

1768. The money would not be paid in his own name?—No; the money was not paid in his own name.

By Mr. Somerville:

1769. But it was not contrary to the law?—If it was not contrary to the law why did they do it? It was the custom. I say that if a man did any extra work and the Minister wanted it done he was compensated in the name of some relative.

1770. That was the understanding with the Minister?—At that time I think it was. I think the Minister knew as much of what went on as anybody else.

1771. Was that prior to 1878?—Yes; I did work for the Privy Council then many times. I mean to say, that the thing grew out of a regular practice.

By Mr. Barron:

1772. You forget that the Statute came in between and prohibited it?—No; I speak as a man of some education. If I am employed, say in the Finance Department, to do a certain work in the day time and another work at night, that does not appertain to my office duties. It is special work, which does not attach to my office. I have been doing extra work for years and getting nothing for it.

By Mr. Chrysler:

1773. Is that oath taken by all the extra clerks, as well as the permanents?—I believe it is.

1774. That oath is taken by everybody who works there, and is not intended to be the same in extent as the Act itself?—No.

Mr. SOMERVILLE.—Mr. Burgess, do extra clerks take that oath?

Mr. Burgess.—Yes.

By Mr. Chapleau:

1775. You state that at times extra work was paid by the hour and at other times by the folio?—Yes.

1776. You said there was a period at which it was paid both ways. What do you mean by that?—I mean in the period away back. In the time of Mr. Hims-worth, of the Privy Council, he gave me some work in preparing indexes for his Department. He paid me by the hour, as there were thousands of figures in the index and the work had to be done with perfect accuracy. If you give a person clear printed work, for example, it is easy to count it.

1777. You did not mean to say that it was paid both by the folio and by the hour?—There were not two payments.

1778. How long have you been in the service?—Since 1870. I became an extra clerk in 1870, and a year after that I was made permanent by Sir John Macdonald, who put me in the Ordnance Office. It was the Queen's Printer's Office.

1779. Since how long have you been a second-class clerk?—I was promoted to a second-class clerkship in 1878. I was at the maximum in 1884, and have not received any increase since.

1780. The custom which you spoke of, and which, in your opinion, was second nature, as you put it, was it prevailing in the Department since 1870?—Of giving extra work to permanent men?

1781. Yes.—They used to do it. I used to get extra work in the time of Sir Richard Cartwright, when he was Minister of Finance. There were men who were first-class clerks engaged then in destroying notes. It was confidential work. They would come on at 7 o'clock in the evening and work until 11 or 12.

By Mr. Taylor:

1782. Did they draw the money in their own name?—Their own.

By Mr. Somerville:

1783. There was no necessity for their trying to evade the law?—No; because it was not considered wrong. It was considered right for a man to improve his time, just as men in the Civil Service use their time for literary work.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

1784. Was the account made out in your own name or anybody else's in the time of Sir Richard Cartwright?—There was just a pay-sheet.

1785. Was the pay sheet signed in your name, or was it signed in the name of some person else?—I do not think so.

1786. Do you believe that prior to the passing of the Civil Service Act any extra work you did was paid for in the name of any other person?—It may have been. I did not get any in my Department since. It was only subsequent to the death of my brother in the North-West.

1787. Why did you say this custom grew out of a custom which had prevailed in the Department prior to the passing of the Act?—I think I stated what was quite right—that in the time of Mr. Mills I did one or two little jobs and got paid for them, but not in my own name.

1788. You did work in the time of Mr. Mills and were paid, not in your own name?—Yes; I was paid in the name of my sister-in-law. She was helping me.

By Mr. Barron :

1789. In the case of Mr. Mills she did extra work?—Yes; we both did the work.

1790. And it was in her name the account was put?—Yes; it was work for the Ordnance Lands Office.

1791. At that time there was no law against that sort of thing?—I never followed that sort of thing.

1792. When you say the custom was kept up, the same custom as formerly, that is not exactly the case?—I think you misunderstood me. I said there was not a custom at all allowing permanent clerks to get extra work. Of course, there might be a number of cases, but I could not answer for them.

1793. When permanent clerks got extra work they got paid for it in their own names in Mr. Mills' time?—Yes.

1794. Not in anybody else's name?—No.

1795. Did you never see the statute upon this?—I read it; but it did not interest me very much.

1796. I want to point out to you what the statute says. It says: "No extra salary or additional remuneration of any kind whatsoever shall be paid to any Deputy Head, officer or employé in the Civil Service of Canada, unless the same has been placed for that purpose, in each case, in the Estimates submitted to and voted by Parliament." You see that statute is somewhat different from the oath, and prevents you from even doing extra work when it is in another Department?—I don't know, sir; I might argue that point—I think it is possible to do it. A certain sum of money is voted indirectly to cover extra work; I think this covers the case.

By Mr. Taylor :

1797. I understood you, whether correctly or incorrectly, to say that during the time of Mr. Mills you had done some work in which your sister-in-law assisted you?—And got paid—yes.

1798. In whose name was it paid?—I got the pay in her own name, as well as my memory serves me.

By the Chairman :

1799. I understood you to say that the work was done jointly by you two, but it was paid in the name of your sister-in-law?—We both did the work and it was pay for her for work we did.

By Mr. McGregor :

1800. She got the money, did she not?—Yes.

---

By Mr. Bowell :

1801. You got the work for your sister-in-law, you assisted her in doing it, she drew the money for the work which the two of you did in your own house?—Certainly.

By Mr. Chapleau :

1802. The work was for her?—Yes.

1803. And you said that in a certain manner the extras were to compensate you for your brother being killed in the North-West?—We had a great deal of trouble and loss and expense. I acknowledge that I merely used my sister-in-law's name because, according to custom, I could not get it otherwise; but I did the work, and I would have made it out in my own name, but it was not the custom, and probably the Auditor General would not have allowed it to pass.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, WEDNESDAY, 29th July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. SPROULE in the Chair.

A. P. SHERWOOD called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

1804. You are chief of Dominion Police ?—Yes.

1805. You have certain duties to perform with regard to the keeping of the time of the men going in and out of the Departments ?—Going in and out of the buildings. Anybody going in after hours, before 7 in the morning or after 6 in the evening, has his time taken, and unless he is on the pass list of the Department he is not allowed in.

1806. What do you mean by pass list ?—An order from the Deputy Head to go in.

1807. Can you turn up your books and tell me whether Mr. B. H. Humphreys had an order of that kind from the 15th December, 1888, to the 1st of May, 1891 ?—I cannot go back to 1888, as the information I was asked to give was from the 1st of July, 1889, to the 30th June, 1890. I have brought my books with me.

The examination of Mr. Sherwood was suspended, to enable him to procure the information asked for by Mr. Somerville.

H. E. HUME called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

1808. What position do you occupy in the Interior Department ?—I am a second class clerk ?

1809. What is your salary ?—$1,100.

1810. You are private secretary to Mr. Burgess, are you not ?—I attend to his personal correspondence ?

1811. What does that mean ?—I wrote his letters.

1812. You were called private secretary, were you not ?—No, sir ; there is no office of that name.

1813. But you discharged the duties of that position ?—I was Mr. Burgess' correspondence clerk.

1814. Did you ever receive any extra pay for services in the Department ?—I have received extra pay.

1815. When ?—In the spring of 1887 I received a payment.

1816. Of how much ?—$50.

1817. From whom ?—I received it through a clerk named Hastings.

1818. Do you see that account, Mr. Hume (producing account). Is that the money you got ?—Yes, sir ; I received part of this account.

1819. How much of that did you receive ?—$50.

1820. By whom is that account made out ?—I wrote the account myself at Mr. Hastings' request.

1821. And you certified it as correct ?—I certified that it was correct.

1822. You got the money ?—I received a part of the money.

1823. Who instructed you to do this ?—I received instructions to do it, but I do not think it is quite fair to say right out who told me.

Mr. SOMERVILLE.—I think it is right that you should tell every thing you know. You cannot inquire of anybody here. You are sworn, and you must give the evidence.

Mr. FOSTER.—You must answer.

By Mr. Somerville :

1824. Who instructed you to do it ?—The Deputy Minister instructed me.

1825. How did he come to instruct you ; how did he come to tell you to make it out ?—He said to me one day that I might have extra pay for certain special services I rendered.

1826. That you had rendered ?—Yes.

1827. What were these special services ?—In the first place, I wrote out for him his evidence concerning a certain case in which he was examined—a certain land case. A commission was issued to take his evidence, and I wrote some of his evidence for him. There was also work in connection with the preparation of the annual report, which I did over and above my ordinary duties.

1828. When did you do this ?—Which do you mean ?

1829. This extra work ?—At different times previous to this account.

1830. Did not Mr. Hastings do any work ?—He did work I think to the value of $8.

1831. In that account ?—Yes.

1832. The account is for $58. (Exhibit 15). I see it is extra work since the 15th December, 1886, 85 hours at 50 cents, and then extra work on the annual report, 31 hours at 50 cents. Who did the first part of this work, you or Hastings ?—I think that includes the $8 worth of work which Mr. Hastings did—that first item. The second item is for work which I performed.

1833. Were you doing right when you certified to that account for yourself ?—I certified that the work had been performed. I knew that it had been performed. The Deputy Minister was satisfied with my certificate that the work had been performed.

1834. Did he instruct you to make out an account in that way ?—Yes, sir.

1835. Here is another account (Exhibit 16) of the same character. Do you know anything of that ?—Yes, sir ; I think I remember about this account.

1836. What do you remember about it ?—I received the proceeds of that account.

1837. Made out in the name of S. J. Hastings ?—Yes, sir.

1838. What circumstances led up to your receiving this ?—The circumstances were, as far as I can remember, exactly the same as in the other case.

1839. Who has certified to that ? That is not a certificate at all, is it ?—That is an endorsement in the Accountant's office.

1840. Is that account certified to ?—It is not certified.

1841. Not by anybody ?—No, sir ; it is approved by the Deputy Minister and not certified.

1842. Is it not necessary to have an account certified ? Is that not a rule of the Department ?—I am not in a position to say whether it is a rule of the Department or not. Accounts are usually certified. I have no doubt it was an oversight that it was not certified.

1843. At all events, you received the money ?—I received the money.

1844. Here is another account (Exhibit 17). What about that ?—This account is dated the 1st August, 1886. I remember about that to a certain extent.

1845. What about the circumstances connected with it ?—I remember simply that I did not receive any part of that account ; that it was paid to Mr. Hastings for work done by him. That is so far as my recollection goes.

1846. You certified to that ?—Yes, sir ; I certified.

1847. But in that case you say Mr. Hastings did the work ?—My recollection is that that account was put in by Mr. Hastings for work he did himself, and he received the proceeds of the cheque.

1848. You are positive about it ?—That is my recollection.

1849. You are positive you did not get that account or any portion of it ?—It is so long ago I cannot be positive ; but I can swear that to my recollection I received no part of that $10.

1850. $58 was the first account. You received all of that?—No, sir; I received $50 of that.

1851. The second account was $15 and this is $10. You say you are a second-class clerk?—I was at that time a third-class clerk.

1852. You are a second-class now?—I am now.

1853. Did you ever read the Civil Service Act?—Yes, sir.

1854. Read that clause.—(Reads the clause in relation to extra salary or remuneration).

1855. Don't you think that is pretty plain? Is that not very plain?—My idea always was that the Civil Service Act was intended to prevent civil servants from receiving pay from outside persons. It is possible that a man might be offered money by an outsider for having attended to business for him. I understood the Civil Service Act to apply to payments of that kind.

By Mr. Foster :

1856. For work done in or out of hours?—I understood it to be for work properly belonging to the office; that any person offering pay to a clerk other than his salary, the clerk should not receive it.

By Mr. Somerville :

1857. Did you ever certify to any other accounts for other extra men?—I have certified to an account of Miss Armstrong's—Miss E. M. Armstrong. She did some typewriting work for the Department and I certified to it.

1858. There was another Miss Armstrong—a Miss C. Armstrong?—I do not know her.

1859. Do you know Miss C. Armstrong?—I do not know her.

By Mr. Taylor :

1860. For these three accounts—$58, $15 and $10—that were received by Mr. Hastings and of which you received a part, there was work actually performed and services rendered to the value of these amounts for the Government?—Yes, sir; I performed the work to the extent to which I received payment.

By Mr. Foster :

1861. Is Hastings an extra clerk?—Mr. Hastings was an extra clerk.

By Mr. Chrysler :

1862. When did you become the secretary or clerk of Mr. Burgess. How long have you been acting in that capacity?—Since October, 1886; that is to say, I have been working for him since that date, but I took the place of his clerk in 1889.

1863. Whom did you replace as his clerk?—Mr. Chisholm.

1864. At what date in 1889?—About the 1st May.

1865. Take this first account of the 12th August, 1886, of $10. Were you Mr. Burgess' clerk at the time that work was done?—I received no part of this account.

1866. On the 30th June, 1886, were you his clerk at that time?—I was doing work for him.

1867. But you were not his clerk?—No, sir.

1868. And the work that is referred to there is it in the case of Mercier vs. Fonseca?—Yes.

1869. Do you know whether that was gone into—he was called as a witness in his official capacity?—I don't know whether he was called in his official capacity or not, but I presume that the work was such as would come within his office.

1870. All these accounts, then, were anterior to the time that you became his special clerk?—Yes, sir.

JOHN MASON called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

1871. What position do you occupy in the Interior Department ?—I am employed in the storeroom.

1872. Were you the carpenter ?—I am a carpenter by trade.

1873. You had carpentering work there ?—I did carpentering work there in my spare time, when I am not employed in the stores.

1874. Are you employed steadily in the Department all the year round ?—Yes, sir.

1875. What was your salary last year ?—$730.

1876. What are your hours supposed to be ?—From 8 to 5.

1877. Are you constantly employed in the Department ?—Constantly.

1878. You have work there all the time ?—All the time.

1879. Do you ever do any outside work for outside parties ?—Sometimes.

1880. Have you done any lately ?—Not lately.

1881. When did you do the last ?—I suppose about three months ago.

1882. Whom did you work for then ?—Mr. Dewdney ; I did some extra work for the Minister.

1883. Where did you do it ?—I did it in the building.

1884. What kind of work was it ?—Screens for mosquito blinds.

1885. How many screens did you make ?—Altogether, I think about eight.

1886. Eight mosquito screens ?—That is two years ago.

1887. Where did you get the material for that ?—I bought it.

1888. What other work have you done ?—I put up a shelf or two.

1889. You put up some shelves—when ?—A couple of years ago.

1890. When did you do this work ?—I did it in my own time.

1891. After hours ?—Yes.

1892. You entered the building after hours ?—I was there in the building late at nights and early in the morning, and I had my son helping me. He is a carpenter, and I had him to help me.

1893. Where did you get the lumber ?—Bought it.

1894. You carried it to the Department ?—I brought it into the Department. made a wardrobe and bought all the stuff.

1895. Have you the bills for that stuff ?—I have the bills for the cedar.

1896. You have the bills ?—Certainly, the bills that I paid. Whatever I bought I paid for, and Mr. Dewdney paid me.

1898. Have you got any pay from Mr. Dewdney since ?—Not one cent.

1899. You had leave of absence, had you not, in 1890 ?—I had, sir.

1900. How long ?—I think it was six or ten days, I forgot which—six days I think.

1901. Not longer ?—It may have been ten.

1902. Was it no longer than ten ?—No.

1903. Are you sure ?—Certain.

1904. It was not five weeks ?—Five weeks—no.

1905. You are positive ?—Positive ; can swear to it upon my oath. I swear positively.

1906. How did you put in your time during your leave of absence ?—Working for Mr. Dewdney ; six days would finish all the work that was done there.

1907. You spent your leave of absence working in Mr. Dewdney's house ?—I was working at my own place, not Mr. Dewdney's. My son was in the buildings. If there was rush at the stores my son was in the place during my leave of absence.

1908. Then your son had a salary ?—No, sir ; not but what I paid him.

1909. It was not leave of absence at all, then?—Mr. Hall told me I would have to attend to the stores; that I would have to see to the boxes to go away, and I had to see to that, and if I was away my son was there doing this work.

By Mr. Foster :

1910. Your son is a carpenter?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Somerville :

1911. Now, did you ever make any meat safes in the Department for Mr. Dewdney?—I made a meat safe.

1912. When did you do that?—I did it in my own time; it took me perhaps, to make that meat safe, over six weeks. I entered the building at 6 o'clock in the morning and I had two hours then. I have never received a cent in my life since I have been engaged with the Government, and I have been engaged since 1858.

1913. You never received a cent for what?—Over and above my pay.

By the Chairman :

1914. It is desired to know whether you used in doing any of this work the time you ought to be at Government work?—I may have; I won't swear; I may have taken an hour or so. There was one time I could not help it. My son was working with me there at the time and I think I took an hour for the purpose of gluing on some cedar.

By Mr. Foster :

1915. Your son was working for you at this time?—Yes; he was backwards and forwards all the time, so that it would not interfere with my own work.

By Mr. Somerville :

1916. Is it not a fact that you had not a great deal of work in the Department, that you had lots of idle time?—I might say as a general rule I have so much to do I do not know what to take up first. I have always jobs on hand that I can take up.

1917. Did you do any work for Mr. Dewdney this spring?—I did.

1918. What did you do?—This spring I made a couple of boxes and a mosquito frame?

1919. How many frames?—One.

1920. In whose time did you do that?—In my own time.

1921. You are positive about that?—Yes.

1922. This did not need any special gluing, and you did it in your own time?—I did.

1923. Do you know a man named George V. Yorke?—I do.

1924. Where is he now?—I am sure I cannot tell you. In the States—at least, in Toronto.

1925. Do you know a man named Donovan?—Yes; that is the man I got to take the things to the Minister's house when I had made them. I paid him for doing that.

1926. When was the last payment the Minister made to you?—On the 1st of January.

1927. Did he not send you a cheque about the 1st of May last?—That was the last.

1928. I thought you said the 1st of January?—It was the 1st of January, I think.

1929. Did he not send you a cheque in May this year?—I think not.

1930. Are you sure?—I do not recollect it. The last cheque sent to me I think was in January.

By Mr. Mulock :

1931. What was the first job you did for Mr. Dewdney?—I could hardly tell you. I think it was putting up a little shelving.

1932. Where?—At his house, when he first went there.

1933. By whose orders did you do that?—Mr. White asked me if I could do a little extra work in my own time for the Minister, and I said I did not know. I said: I cannot see my way clear at present, but will see you again. I concluded that I could manage to do this little job, with the assistance of my son.

1934. How long is that ago?—About three years ago.

1935. The first job was putting up shelving in Mr. Dewdney's house?—A little shelving.

1936. How much did he pay you for doing that?—I could not say. I have not got the bill here. It is a very small account.

1937. When did he pay you for that?—I suppose about 6 or 8 months after.

1938. How did it come to run so long?—Because I never put it in.

1939. When did you put in the account?—I have not the date with me.

1940. You did put it in, did you?—I did.

1941. Seven or eight months after the work was done?—Yes; to the best of my recollection, but I do not remember the amounts.

1942. You do remember that you were paid?—Yes.

1943. By Mr. Dewdney?—Yes.

1944. Personally?—Yes.

1945. Where?—It was a cheque on the bank.

1946. Did that cheque include other work?—I think he gave me two or three cheques together.

1947. First of all, he gave you one for the shelves?—Yes; and perhaps for some other little work.

1948. What else would it include, if it included more than the shelves?—I made a table.

1949. That was the next work for him?—I would not say it was the next.

1950. What kind of a table was it?—A table for the kitchen.

1951. Was that the next work you did?—Yes.

1952. How long was it after you had made the shelving that you made the table?—It was soon after.

1953. A week, or two or three weeks?—It might have been a fortnight after.

1954. Within a fortnight, or soon after you put up the shelving you made a kitchen table?—Yes.

1955. Where did you make the table?—In the building.

1956. In your shop?—Yes.

1957. Where did you get the material from which you made the table?—Where did I get the material? I brought it from home.

1958. You remember that well?—Yes.

1959. You had the exact timber required?—Yes; I have lots of timber at home; I brought it down.

1960. I suppose there were other things required. Where did you get the nails?—I bought the nails.

1961. And the tools?—They were my own tools.

1962. You have a complete set of tools apart from the Government's?—The Government has no tools.

1963. When did you get paid for the table?—I could not say the date.

1964. How long was it after the table was made?—I could not say that; some months after.

1965. Was the price of the table included in the cheque for the shelving?—Yes.

1966. Did that cheque cover just those two items?—It covered other things.

1967. What else did you do for Mr. Dewdney?—There was a plate rack.

1968. You made that in the buildings, too?—Yes.
1969. What was the price of the plate rack?—I could not say.
1970. What was the price of the table?—I could not tell you that even.
1971. Have you no idea?—I have not.
1972. Have you no idea of the price of the plate rack?—It is on the bill I gave to Mr. Dewdney.
1973. Was that included in the first cheque he gave you?—I think it was. Those are about the first items I did.
1974. What was the next item you did?—The next was this wardrobe I spoke about.
1975. That is the work that took six weeks to do?—Yes.
1976. What was the price of the wardrobe?—I forget that.
1977. Have you no idea?—I forget.
1978. You have no idea of the price of the wardrobe?—No.
1979. You have not the faintest idea?—Not just now.
1980. $50?—No.
1981. $10?—About $30 or $35, I should say.
1982. So you have an idea. Did that go into the first cheque?—Really I could not tell you.
1983. Now the second cheque was not included in that?—I think I had only three cheques altogether.
1984. What was the next work you did for Mr. Dewdney?—I do not know; that very near finished it.
1985. Oh, no. We have the mosquito nets. What was the next in order of time? You have to go over two other cheques yet. He would not give you other cheques for nothing. I suppose it simply means this: that you were doing little chores for Mr. Dewdney?—I kept no regular account.
1986. And you cannot now with accuracy give us details of the account?—No. I did not keep an account.
1987. It simply means that from the time of Mr. Dewdney being Minister of the Interior until now you have been doing work off and on for him in the way you have mentioned?—Yes; but I have not done anything for him for the last three months.
1988. And you have been paid out three cheques?—I think it is about that.
1989. During all this time you have been in the public service?—Yes.
1990. Drawing pay at what rate?—$2 a day.
1991. For how many days in the year?—365.
1992. You have been paid for 365 days in each year since Mr. Dewdney became Minister?—Yes.
1993. And occasionally you got leave of absence from Mr. Dewdney?—Not occasionally; never but once in my life.
1994. Mr. Dewdney gave you leave of absence once?—Mr. Dewdney did not. I asked Mr. Hall. I said I had a little private work to do and I would like leave of absence. He said: "I do not see how we can spare you; the goods must go away." I said: "I will attend to that; if I am not there my son will be there and see that everything is all right."
1995. You got leave of absence from Mr. Hall to do private work?—Yes.
1996. What private work?—Mr. Dewdney's work.
1997. You did it for Mr. Dewdney?—Yes.
1998. And delivered it to him?—Yes.
1999. He knew you were doing it?—Yes.
2000. During the time you were off duty you got your son to take your place and drew pay from the Government?—Yes.
2001. Your son does extra work?—He does not.
2002. What is your son's name?—John.
2003. And your name is John?—Yes.
2004. I see there is a payment here to S. J. Mason. Is he not your son?—No.

2005. Your name is John Mason, "packer, 365 days, at $2 a day, $730." That is what you have received?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster :

2006. During the last three years, which have been in question, you have had leave of absence for how long?—I think it was 6 or 10 days.

2007. Is that all?—That is all I have had since I have been in the employ of the Government.

2008. Why did you get this leave of absence?—I had this little private work to do, and I did not see my way clear to do it; but I thought if I could get leave for a few days, then I could do it.

2009. Whom did you ask?—Mr. Hall.

2010. What did he say?—He told me, he says: "I will give you leave, John, but I do not see how we are going to do without you; goods are going away every day." I said I would see there would be no delays, as my son would be there in case I could not be.

2011. You got your 6 or 10 days' leave?—Yes.

2012. And during that time your son was engaged in your place?—Not all the time; every time there was work to be done he was there.

2013. That work that you would have done was done by him?—Yes.

2014. Did he receive pay for it?—I paid him.

2015. I mean from the Department?—No; not at all.

2016. He received no pay from the Department during the time he was at work while you had received leave of absence?—Not one cent.

2017. Did you do this work for Mr. Dewdney in office hours or out?—I may have used a few hours in office hours.

2018. How many?—Not a day altogether.

2019. All the rest was done outside of time?—Yes.

2020. And for everything you did Mr. Dewdney paid you?—Yes; as I sent in my bill. I paid for everything I used.

2021. The material you used for these articles you bought and paid for yourself out of your own money?—Yes.

By Mr. Somerville :

2022. You wanted this special leave of absence at this time to do work for Mr. Dewdney?—Yes.

2023. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Dewdney about it?—I did not.

2024. Mr. Dewdney asked you to do the work?—No, sir; Mr. Fred. White came to me and asked me if I thought I could do this work for Mr. Dewdney. He wanted this work done.

2025. Who is Mr. White?—Comptroller of the Mounted Police.

2026. Is he your superior officer?—No, sir.

2027. He said Mr. Dewdney wanted this work done?—Yes; Mr. Dewdney asked if he could recommend him some one.

2028. When was this?—This was when the Minister first came.

2029. But I mean with reference to your leave of absence?—That is the time I had my leave of absence—the first of the year 1890.

2030. Previous to that, according to your own statement, you had been doing work for Mr. Dewdney?—Not at all. This was the first commencement.

2031. Had you not done any work for Mr. Dewdney before these holidays commenced?—No.

2032. You got these special holidays of six to ten days in order that you might do work for Mr. Dewdney by instruction from Mr. Fred. White?—No instruction. He came and asked me if I could do it. I told him, I did not see my way clear at present, but would let him know again; and I thought that if he was not in a hurry, and it did not matter how long I took over it, I would do it in my spare time. My son would help me, and I could manage it.

2033. You did this work right along when you got your holidays?—Not at all.

2034. I mean this special work?—I did the bulk of it.

2035. What were you doing during these holidays?—I was working at Mr. Dewdney's house and in the buildings in my own shop.

2036. Hadn't you your son at work in the buildings?—Sometimes I would come there when I was using glue, and so on. I had not that at home.

2037. You were working at Mr. Dewdney's house, and came back when you wanted to use the glue?—I was not at Mr. Dewdney's house when I was using the glue at the buildings.

2038. Certainly not. This holiday was specially to work at Mr. Dewdney's?—Yes.

By the Chairman :

2039. Is it customary for clerks working on the same lines of work as you to get holidays some time in the year?—Yes.

2040. Does their pay go on during their absence?—Yes. The Board of Works gives their men holidays.

2041. Is it customary to get holidays to do work for a particular Minister?—No

By Mr. Taylor :

2042. How long have you been working for the Government?—More or less since 1859.

2043. And these are the first holidays you ever had?—Yes.

WILLIAM PEART called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

2044. How long have you been in the service of the Government?—Since the 1st of June 1880.

2045. Where did you reside previous to that?—I was engaged in the Government service on the 1st of June 1880 in Winnipeg.

2046. What were your duties in Winnipeg?—Messenger of the Department.

2047. Of what Department?—The Indian Department.

2048. Who appointed you to that position?—I was living in Winnipeg and I saw an advertisement in the paper for a messenger and I applied and got it.

2049. Whom did you apply to?—The head person.

2050. You were in the service of the Government in Winnipeg from 1880?—Yes.

2051. Until when?—The present time.

2053. Were you transferred from Winnipeg to the service in Ottawa?—I was.

2054. How did that come about?—I was transferred by the order of the Minister. When Mr. Dewdney was made Minister I was his messenger in the North-West. Therefore, he had me transferred from Regina to Ottawa.

2055. You were his special messenger out there?—I was.

2056. You went there in 1882, when Mr. Dewdney came?—I did not.

2057. When?—I left Winnipeg in 1882 and went with the Department when it removed to Regina.

2058. How did you come to get to Ottawa?—On the train, I suppose. I went to Regina in July, 1882, and remained there until the 1st November, 1888, and was transferred from there to here.

2059. What did you do at Regina?—I was messenger to Mr. Dewdney, as he was Indian Commissioner and Lieutenant-Governor.

2060. What were your duties as messenger?—Anything I was asked to do.

2061. What character of duties had you to do?—The duties of a messenger.

2062. In the morning what did you do?—I went to the office and cleaned it out and looked after it. I went to the post office and got the mail and distributed it to the clerks. I worked in the office all day long and put letters on the files and put the files away and copied letters and stayed there until the work was finished.

2063. You had no duties outside of the office?—No; I had not.

2064. You did not do any work outside of the office?—I went up and down with telegrams and posted the letters.

2065. But you did not do any work outside of office duties?—What kind of work?

2066. That is what I want you to tell me?—If you ask I will probably give you the information.

2067. You were transferred to Ottawa in 1888?—I was.

2068. Mr. Dewdney was then Minister of the Interior?—Yes.

2069. Where do you live?—With Mr. Dewdney.

2070. What time do you come to the office here?—On an average at half-past nine.

2071. What time do you leave?—When the Minister leaves.

2072. When does he leave?—Some times four o'clock, sometimes half-past four; sometimes it is five o'clock; but mostly it is half-past six. It is oftener seven o'clock than four.

2073. You are a kind of body servant to Mr. Dewdney?—I am his special messenger. That is what I go by.

2074. You do work down at his house?—I do, certainly. I live there. That is my home. I do no work there except when I am through with the office, before I go to the office and after. That is my home.

2075. If any of the other parties in the Interior Department were to give evidence to show that you were not in the Department more than from one to one and a-half hours per day what would you say?—That it is not so.

2076. Don't you act as general chore man or boy around the residence of the Minister?—I do, but that has nothing to do with the Government whatever.

2077. You wait on the table?—I do.

2078. You black the boots?—I do all sorts of work around the house.

2079. You black the boots? There is no disgrace about that, because I do it myself?—Yes.

2080. You clean the windows?—Yes.

2081. You are general butler or body servant to Mr. Dewdney?—I am, out of office hours; not in office hours.

2082. Will you swear that you attend the office during office hours constantly; do you swear that?—I do, for the most of it, with the exception that when Mr. Dewdney is at the house working I remain at the house as his messenger. Sometimes he is laid up sick and not able to be at the office, and I am his special messenger, and live at the house, and run up and down from the house to the office, and bring his letters and all sorts of documents to be signed, and bring them back to Mr. Hall or Mr. Burgess, or whoever is acting Secretary.

2083. What do you do in the Department?—I am Mr. Dewdney's messenger.

2084. You really work for Mr. Dewdney?—I suppose so. I am Mr. Dewdney's special messenger in the Department.

2085. When Mr. Dewdney travels, do you go with him?—I do.

2086. When he goes to the North-West?—Yes.

2087. What are your duties then?—I am his messenger.

2088. When he gets out on the prairie, what work have you to do there?—There is lots of work. Telegrams and letters have to be sent.

2089. What kind of work do you do when you are travelling with Mr. Dewdney? Tell us without hesitation?—I would rather be asked particularly.

By Mr. Somerville :

2090. When you were travelling with Mr. Dewdney what did you do?—I go out with telegrams to the stations and get letters when there is need of it, and so on.

2091. Does he have with him a Secretary, too?—Certainly.

2092. Who is his Secretary?—Last time Mr. Dewdney went up Mr. McGirr went up, I believe.

2093. And do you get travelling expenses?—Yes.

2094. You get travelling expenses when you are travelling with Mr. Dewdney?—Yes.

2095. How much allowance do you get besides your pay?—I get $1.50.

2096. When Mr. Dewdney goes into the North-West or into any part of the country do you always attend him?—Well, I have done so, but I have only gone out twice.

2097. Have you ever been in any other part with him?—No.

2098. Were you ever down to the sea coast?—No.

2099. They do not give you such nice trips as that? You draw your salary of $395 right along, I suppose?—Well, I have done so until the 30th June.

2100. And you get this extra pay likewise when you are off on these trips besides?—I have done so.

2101. Who do you get it from?—From the Department.

2102. Under what name did you get it?—In my own name.

2103. Are you sure of that?—Positive.

By Mr. Mulock :

2104. You are serving two masters?—How do you make that out?

2105. Are you serving two masters?—Well, I am working for Mr. Dewdney and Mr. Dewdney's house is my home, and I am at liberty to do whatever I wish before office hours or after office hours.

2106. Are you serving two masters?—I don't know how you get at that.

2107. Are you serving the Minister of the Interior in his official capacity?—Yes.

2108. You are a servant with the Minister of the Interior in his official capacity, and you are a servant of Mr. Dewdney in his private capacity?—I am.

2109. Then you are serving two masters, are you not?—I suppose so, if you like to make it out that way.

2110. Have you any regular hours of duty to the Government master—the Minister of the Interior?—I generally come down.

2111. I am asking you if you have regular hours for appearing on duty on the Department of the Interior?—Well, the office hours are from 10, I believe to 4; sometimes I am there from 9.30.

2112. Answer my question, sir?—Have you any regular hour for appearing on duty at the Department?—Well, on the average at 9.30.

2113. You say the average is 9.30?—Sometimes before, sometimes after.

2114. Do you sign the roll?—I do.

2115. The roll will show how far you have kept up to that average?—Yes.

2116. You sign it every morning when you are there?—Yes.

2117. It sets forth the hour of your arrival?—Yes; it does.

2119. I am asking you a perfectly fair question?—That is not a fair question.

2120. I want to know whether you would obey the Minister or Mr. Dewdney?—

THE CHAIRMAN.—I would like as the Chairman to give him an explanation of it. The witness may not understand, when an order is given by Mr. Dewdney, whether he is acting as Minister of the Interior or as a private individual.

MR. MULOCK.—If he will accept that, I will accept his answer. Is that the case?—Yes.

2121. You don't know whether you obey the Minister or Mr. Dewdney in his private capacity?—Yes.

2122. You told us you drew pay from two sources. Do not you draw pay from Mr. Dewdney for the service you rendered him?—That is private.

2123. Did you or did you not?—I do.

2124. Then you are drawing pay from three sources and you have to render value to Mr. Dewdney in his private capacity for the pay he gives you, do you not?—I do.

2125. You have to give value to him for what he pays you privately for wages?—Yes.

2126. And you try to render value, I presume, to the Government for the pay they give you?—I do.

By Mr. Somerville :

2127. How much did Mr. Dewdney pay you privately?—I am not at liberty—

2128. You are at liberty to tell all you know?—I am not at liberty to give my private affairs in this way.

2129. Who told you that?—I know that—

MR. FOSTER objected to the question being put concerning a matter of a private character.

2130. I want you to tell me who told you you were not to tell?—My private affairs belong to myself.

2131. Who told you not to tell that here?

J. R. HALL re-called and further examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

2132. You stated I think—I have not got the printed evidence here—that Humphreys got extra work in the Department?—Yes.

2133. And were you aware he had performed extra work?—I was aware, as certified to by Mr. Henry who gave him the work.

2134. Did you certify to this account of Mr. Humphreys'?—Not beyond December, 1888. If you will allow me to explain the matter I think it may probably save time. Humphreys came into the Department in 1883 at $1.50 a day. Some time in 1885 he commenced doing extra work, for which he was allowed to make about 50 cents a day, to make his pay up to $2 a day. It was in the month of December, 1888—I was acting Deputy at the time—that Mr. Henry, who had been certifying to this account, said: "Would it not be better to give him 50 cents a day more and put him on the pay list at that rate?" I said, yes. He had been given this for several years and I thought it would be better to put it straight on the pay list and I authorized that and he was paid it. I said to Mr. Henry: "This is to end any extra work for Humphreys. Whether he does it or not, he must be satisfied with the $2 a day." And since December, 1888, I have not certified to or approved of any payment to Mr. Humphreys. I am told he did extra work on indexing at night and did other work between four and six. That is the principal time he did the over-time. But since the time that I took the stand that he should be satisfied at $2 a day I have not passed any accounts.

2135. What was there special about this man Humphreys that he should get so much extra pay?—I do not think his salary in any one year exceeded $1,100, and some years it did not reach that. He was a good all-around man and a good worker.

2136. He seems to have got a good deal more than any other man in respect to extra work. You see, in 1888-89 he was paid for the full year, 153 and 212 days—making up the full year—and then, he was paid for 445 hours at 50 cents an hour, making $222.50. In the previous year, or rather 1889-90, he worked 365 days, at $2 a day, making $730, and he was allowed 776 hours at 50 cents, $388, making $1,118. Could that man do this extra work for 776 hours and do justice to the Department by working full time for every day in the year?—He could put in a good deal of time between four and six o'clock. He was an extra clerk, and for extra clerks, between four and six was looked upon as extra time.

2137. You say, this work was done?—It was certified to by Mr. Henry up to the end of 1888.

2138. I am asking what you know about it?—I was not present in the room while he did the work. I accepted the certificate of his superior officer.

2139. You believe, he did this work?—Yes.

2140. Beside having worked 365 days in one year, he worked 776 hours?—I think, that would not be more than two or two and a half hours a day.

2141. And you think, he did that?—I believe, he did. If he did not, I have been deceived, and I am very sorry to hear it.

2142. Who told you that he did this work?—Mr. Henry.

2143. Who else?—Mr. Pereira.

2144. Anybody else?—Not that I know of.

2145. That statement seems to be rather strange in the face of the fact that we have the Deputy Minister's statement, I think, to the effect that this 50 cents an hour, was not for extra work at all, but was given to make up his salary?—I have not read Mr. Burgess's statement.

2146. Was that not your statement, Mr. Burgess?—Mr. Burgess—I do not remember.

2147. Do you know Mrs. E. J. Orde?—Yes.

2148. Who is Mrs. Orde?—She was my sister. She died in the month of June, 1887.

2149. Your salary is $2,800 a year?—Yes.

2150. Looking through a number of accounts here I see that Mrs. Orde received $235.60 in 1885?—The total she got was about $480, extending over thirteen months—the year 1885 and January, 1886. Will you allow me to explain about it?

2151. Certainly.—Before giving that work to my sister I asked permission from Mr. Burgess to do so. There were about twenty-five women in Ottawa getting extra work from the Department at that time. A great many returns were being asked for by the House of Commons, and there was a great deal of copying to be done. This work was copied at so much per folio. The work was done by my sister, or by her eldest boy, a school boy of 15, who wrote a good hand. The money was drawn by her in her own name. I never touched one cent of it in any way. The work was counted up every month by Mr. Wm. Howe, who is since dead. I told him to be careful and count the work fairly, as Mrs. Orde was my sister; he was to be particular to see that it was counted right. One month Mr. F. C. Capreol counted it, Mr. Howe likely having been away. In 1886 the question arose in the Department as to whether we could give out copying to anyone who had not passed the Civil Service examination. Immediately that question was raised I stopped my sister from getting any more work, though dozens of others, who had not passed the examinations, continued to get the work. However, I wanted to make sure that there was nothing irregular, as far as my sister was concerned. For every dollar paid to her the work was honestly done, it was properly counted, and I did not touch one cent of the money in any shape or form. My sister lived at my house; she had five young children, and she did not even pay her board out of that money, in any way. I never touched or received anything out of that money.

By Mr. Taylor :

2152. I want to ask you a question in reference to the work given to Mr. Anderson. I think the impression was left on the minds of the Committee, when Mr.

Burgess was under examination, that he gave out that work. Will you please make a statement of what you know of it?—My recollection of it was that Mr. Burgess came to me one day in my office with the Forestry Report. He said to me: This report is written in such bad English, it is so ungrammatical that we cannot publish it in the Blue Book in its present shape. Whom can I give it to in the Department to revise. I have not time to take it home and do it myself. I at once thought of old Mr. Anderson, a man who had been editor of a newspaper in Scotland for many years, and one thoroughly competent to do the work. He was at that time getting $1.50 a day in the Department—not very extravagant pay for an ex-editor. I thought that if a little could be thrown in his way no harm would be done. Mr. Anderson took the work home; he did it after hours. It took him five or six weeks to do it. That was in the year 1886. The result of that was published in a pamphlet—not in the report of the Department, but in a separate pamphlet, which was laid before Parliament. In reference to paying him for the work, had old Mr. Anderson come to me direct I would have paid him straight. Unfortunately, however, Mr. Burgess took a round-about way to pay him, and no one regrets it now more than Mr. Burgess himself. There was nothing wrong or crooked about the matter that I can see. Mr. Anderson was an extra clerk at $1.50 a day. He did the work at night; he did it well, and got $100 for it. That is all I know about it.

2153. Who is Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson?—I do not know, unless she is Mr. Anderson's wife.

2154. I see that in 1887-88 she was paid $75. The account is certified to by Mr. Chisholm and approved by Mr. Burgess?—I think after Mr. Anderson's death his widow decided to return to Scotland, and some copying was given to her to help her towards that end. I have no doubt that she did the work. If I am not right in my supposition, probably Mr. Burgess can correct me.

MR. BURGESS—That is correct.

By Mr. Somerville :

2155. Do you know anything about Miss Duhamel's case?—Yes.

2156. There seems to be some mystery about that. I would like to get to the bottom of it?—About two years ago Miss Duhamel, who, I believe, is one of the coming prima donnas, decided to go to Paris to finish her musical studies, and her mother asked that we should not give her a year's leave of absence, but if possible to hold the appointment open for her, if the work could be done in her absence, so that if she failed in Paris she could come back into the Department. That arrangement was allowed on the understanding that it was to be for one year. It drifted on, however, into two years, and all the time, during her absence, the work of an extra clerk, the average day's copying of a lady copyist—I think more than the average—was done for and on behalf of Miss Duhamel. If the parties sent the money to Paris that is a private matter. All that we saw was that the work was done. It was done in a very good hand. The work I have since been informed was done by her sister, but the account has been put in the name of Miss Nellie Myers. Miss Duhamel's sister has passed the Civil Service examination and is entitled to do extra work. I was always under the impression that Miss Nellie Myers actually did the work until yesterday, when Mrs. Duhamel came to my office and admitted that her daughter did the work and that Miss Nelly Myers did not. However, the work was done. It stopped at the end of June, like all those other extra clerks.

By Mr. Barron :

2157. The lady who did the work was the sister of Miss Duhamel who went to Paris?—A. Yes.

2158. In the Department?—No; at home at night time. Those two books which I gave to Mr. Somerville will give an idea of the number of files got in the name of Miss Nellie Myers from day to day. Mrs. Lee happened to have those two, but she generally throws them in the waste paper basket. They are just rough memoranda.

By Mr. Somerville :

2159. The accounts were certified, Miss Nellie Myers signed the cheques, and they were witnessed by some person of the name of Duhamel?—That was probably the sister, Miss Agnes Duhamel—the one who is here in Ottawa.

2160. She is employed in one of the Departments?—I believe so.

2162. She would be receiving a salary in the Post Office Department?—Yes.

2163. Did you have any consultation with Mr. Dewdney about this matter?—Oh, no; I have not spoken to Mr. Dewdney about it. I think the arrangement was made with Mr. Burgess to oblige the Duhamel family.

2165. She did not do this work at all?—She says now she did not. I always understood she did.

2166. What object was there in putting the account in a fictitious name?—Because the other Miss Duhamel being already employed in the Civil Service could not be drawing other pay, I suppose.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

2167. Is she a permanent official?—I do not know. I dare say she could have done it.

By Mr. Somerville :

2168. I understand from the Auditor-General that she is not a permanent clerk?—I cannot speak positively about that.

2169. Do you know why the account was put in Miss Nellie Myers' name?—That is a matter between the Duhamel family and Miss Nellie Myers. I know nothing of the arrangement. I was only concerned to see the work was well done.

2170. Did you examine the work?—I have seen specimens of it; it is in an excellent handwriting.

2171. I asked Mrs. Lee to furnish a statement to show the work she did. Mrs. Lee gives out the files every day?—A portion of them.

2172. She ought to know what amount of work is done for this money by the files?—Yes.

2173. She is in a position to furnish to the Committee the amount of work done by Miss Nellie Myers?—Yes. Mrs. Lee has assured me that Miss Nellie Myers, or whoever did the work for Miss Duhamel, did as much or more than the average lady copyist.

2174. I would like to have that evidence here?—You have the primary evidence here already, if you run through those little books which I gave you.

2175. What do the figures represent?—The number of the official files. It may mean that the whole file has to be copied or only one or two papers from it.

2176. Can you give any reason why this other person should be substituted for the real person doing the work?—I know of no reason except that the other Miss Duhamel was employed in another Department.

2177. But that would not be sufficient reason? She is not a permanent clerk?—I do not know whether she is permanent or not.

MR. SOMERVILLE.—The Auditor-General says she is not.

THE AUDITOR-GENERAL.—I am not positive on the point; I am only speaking from memory.

By Mr. Somerville :

2178. The payment of this money has been stopped?—At the end of June. That was the period up to which, by a mutual arrangement with the Auditor-General and the Treasury Board, we were allowed to continue. We gave them all notice in the month of May that those who had not passed the Civil Service Examination must go at the end of June. That was the outcome of the minute of the Treasury Board on the subject of this extra work.

By Mr. Taylor :

2179. Can you give us a statement as to whether the expenses in connection with the Department of the Interior have been increasing or decreasing for the last two years?—Yes.

2180. Will you please do so?—Yes. I took the trouble to look into that and see whether we have been extravagant, so that I find there has been a steady decrease for the last two years, and a contemplated greater decrease. In civil government here at Ottawa we have made a cut of nearly $5,000 in the last two years. We estimate between six and seven thousand this coming year, and it will thus be in three years eleven thousand. In 1889-90 we saved $13,000. We made a reduction of $13,000 in the outside service, and in 1890-91 we made a reduction of $11,000; that is $24,000 in the outside service, besides $11,000 at the Head Office; and we will make a still further cut. Under Mr. Dewdney's administration of three years we will have effected a saving of fully $40,000 between the Inside and the Outside Service. But I would like to say right here, and I think it is due to the memory of the late Mr. White, that at the time of his death he had fully made up his mind to make the very same reductions. He spoke to Mr. Burgess and myself about it repeatedly, and would have carried out those reductions had he lived.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

2181. You are making comparison with what year—1885, 1886 and 1887 were extraordinary years?—Yes; those were extraordinary years.

2182. Well, is it a comparison with them?—I said with 1889 or 1890. My first reduction is in 1889-90, the second 1890-91, and I am now entering upon 1891-92, in which we are still going on with this reduction.

2183. Well, in the ordinary course of affairs the expenditure of that Department would be less now than in 1886, shortly after the Rebellion, when there was so much work connected with it?—Oh, yes; for several causes we have been able to effect these reductions; for instance, when the colonization companies were wound up we disposed of Mr. Rufus Stephenson's services at $3,000 and $1,000. In the same way we disposed of the Forestry Commission, with $2,600 salary and $1,000 expense attached.

By Mr. Somerville :

2184. Was Mr. Stephenson's salary not $5,000?—$3,000 salary and $1,000 expenses. In these two matters we have saved $7,000, and wherever we have a vacancy in the Crown Timber Office in the North-West, either by resignation or by death, we have amalgamated the Crown Timber Offices and the Dominion Lands Offices. We have done that at Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Prince Albert, and the salary of a Crown Timber Agent was $1,200 with contingencies, so there was a considerable saving there. We disposed of the Land Guide service, and in the year 1886 two commissions went out to settle Half-breed claims, and there were expenses in connection with it. All these things are now settled up, and about the year 1887, before Mr. White's death, he began to see his way clear to make these very large reductions which Mr. Dewdney has since carried out.

2185. Reductions have been made because the work was not there to do. That is the reason of the expenses being cut down?—Yes; but if the Government wishes simply to make places for men they could have filled all the vacancies in the Crown Timber Office without any question being raised. They preferred, however, to cut down these expenses if possible, and united the Dominion Lands and Crown Timber Offices.

2186. It is because there was not enough for them both to do, I suppose?—Oh, there may have been an excuse for having two there. It is easy to find something to do for a Government Official.

2186a. Is that your experience?—I have always found plenty to do.

2187. It has been suggested to me that there are many men in the Department who don't faithfully discharge their duties?—There, at the Head Office?

2188. Yes, that there are some men?—Not a great many.

2190. There are some men who do not render much service; would not the Government be doing its duty to get rid of those men who don't give much value?—Here at Ottawa?

2191. Yes?—I know some of them who I think in very few years will have to be superannuated; they are getting on towards that. There would be a still further reduction in our staff at Ottawa.

2192. The other day in giving your evidence you said you sometimes had to go down to the jail to get some of these men out—did you not?—I did.

2193. How did they get in there?—Debt—Division Court.

2194. Division Court debts?—Yes.

2195. And would you go down and get them out.

Mr. FOSTER objected to this question.

J. A. CORÉ called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville:

2196. What position do you hold in the Department?—I am a third class clerk.

2197. When were you advanced to that position?—Since the 1st January, 1887.

2198. You were an extra clerk before you were advanced to the position of permanent clerk, and you were in habit of doing a lot of extra work, were you not?—I did some but not very considerable and I did some sometimes.

2199. Well I see in 1883-84 your salary was $547.40 and you get $417.15 extra work?—Yes.

2200. Well the next year your salary was $547.50 and you got extra work amounting to $450.50?—Yes.

2201.—That was 1884-85. Well then in 1885-86 your salary was $547.50 and you got only $109.25 worth of extra work?—Yes.

2202. How do you account for such a drop as that; you got $417 one year, and $440 another year, and then it dropped down to $109?—Well during the years of 1884-85 the extra work that was put down as having been performed by me, was not in reality performed by myself.

2203. Who was it performed by?—It was performed by a brother of mine who was engaged in compiling an index for the Department and who was working after hours. He adopted this means of getting the pay because I was an extra clerk, and he could not very well draw the money himself because he was prevented, being a permanent clerk.

2204. It was merely a matter of accommodation for your brother?—Exactly, yes.

2205. He got the money in fact?—He got the money every cent of it.

2206. Did he not give you a little share of it?—Not a cent; it was no trouble for me to do that.

2207. You just let him have the use of your name?—Exactly. The thing was customary, at least I had heard in the Department. I did not know there was anything dishonest about it. The work was done and well done.

2208. How do you know it was well done?—The work is there yet, and if you go over the work you will see it is well done.

2209. There seems to be a difficulty in getting a sight of the work?—I would be very glad to see the work brought here and examined by the honourable members of the Committee.

2210. You did not make out the account then?—I cannot recollect.

2211. Here are some of those accounts. Did you make that out (Exhibit No. 18)?—Yes; I made that out. I might have made out the account and drawn the money and given him the money.

2212. Here is another one certified to and approved by Douglas? Is that your writing (Exhibit No. 19)?—My writing, yes.

2213. And you got no money for that; how much is it?—It amounts to $42.

2214. How much was the first?—$51.

2215. Here is another one; how about that (Exhibit No. 20)?—That is one of the same sort I suppose.

2216. Did you make that out?—I did not make this out; it is in the hand writing of my brother.

2218. Well then this account for extra work which was done in 1883, 1884, of $417.50, you say, all went to your brother?—Every cent of extra work in 1884 and 1885.

2219. And you just allowed him to use your name?—Yes. Of course, I myself performed a little extra work in those days. I may have put in an account, but there is nothing to distinguish now between the accounts filed for my brother as accommodation, and probably a little extra work I did in my own name.

2220. I am speaking of these accounts—you got none of this?—I got none of the money that I received from the accounts that were filled in for my brother's accommodation.

2221. And the total amount was for his accommodation? In these years as I understand you?—Yes.

2222. You knew at the time that you were doing wrong?—I did not. I did not think then I was doing anything dishonest, there may have been something irregular, but I did not think there was anything dishonest or that would in any way arouse any suspicion.

2223. Do you know anything about when your brother did this extra work?—After hours.

2224. Did he do it in the building?—Exactly, in the building and I am very sure he was there every night for over two years. He was working on this index which should be examined.

By Mr. Chrysler :

2225. The work that your brother was doing was the work he could not take home?—No. Not easily.

2226. What was it?—It was a compilation of three different indices into one under the Burr system of indices. It was the indices for different years from 1874 to 1879. They were all made according to the old system of indexing under the first letter, and as the work was increasing considerably in the Department it was very difficult to get at any of the previous correspondence so they thought it a desirable time to complete those indices under the Burr system. The work was long and tedious and required long experience.

2227. As I understand they were the indices to a large number of books?—Yes.

2228. Which could not be conveniently removed from the Department?—Not very conveniently.

2229. Were those books in use during office hours?—They were constantly.

2230. And for that reason the work would have to be done when the clerks in the office were not using them?—Yes.

NARCISSE COTÉ called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

2231. What is your position?—I am first assistant in the Patent Branch of the Interior Department.

2232. What is your salary?—$1,400.

2233. How long have you been getting that?—Only since last January.

2234. What did you get before?—I have been increasing $50 a year since I was a second class clerk.

2235. You have heard the evidence given by your brother, is that correct?—Perfectly.

2237. In 1883, 1884 what was your salary?—In 1885 I was made a second class clerk—on the 1st of January with a salary of $800 or $900.

2238. It would be the same in 1884?—No, I was a third class clerk then, getting a statutory increase of $50 a year, so in 1884 I was getting $50 less than in 1885.

2240. How long did you continue in this work?—I was engaged in that work all the time I had this extra work.

2241. Two years?—Yes two, or three years. It was in the fall of 1882 that I commenced the work and it was, as has been explained, upon indices covering the years 1874 to 1879, inclusive, and these books could not possibly be taken out of the office or used during the day, because we were constantly referring to them during the office hours and in connection with the correspondence. It was an index of the correspondence received through the Department during those years.

2242. Why don't you insist upon having it done in a square way—having the vote for this extra work put in the estimates?—It never struck me that there was anything out of the way in it.

2243. You knew about the Civil Service Act?—I do not know whether I did. I suppose I did. I did not think there was anything really wrong about it. I was not ashamed to tell those who were entitled to know about it that I was doing it. They knew that I was quite willing to put in a good deal of extra time without extra pay, as I have done since; but they knew that I was not doing all that work night after night from zeal.

2244. Did you know anything of this provision in the law?—I know all about it now, but I do not know whether I did then. Even in the face of that I do not know whether it would have been an objection as I look at it.

2245. Was it not your duty to look at the Civil Service Act?—I think it was just in the fall of 1882 that the Act came into force.

2246. Since that time you have been travelling in the North West?—Yes, sir.

2247. What special business were you on there?—I was Secretary of the North West Half-breed Commission, but in 1887 I was made a member of that Commission.

2248. Did you draw pay as a departmental officer and as a Commissioner too?—No, no. I drew just the pay of the Department and the ordinary living allowance of $3.50 a day. At first I drew $5 a day because that was the rate allowed to employees travelling in the North West; but later on that was reduced to $3.50. I started when the living allowance was $5, and a special Order in Council was passed allowing me to draw the $5, as the arrangement was that I was to draw $5 when I started out.

2249. Did you draw anything else than your living allowance for that service?—In 1887, after I had performed the service, a vote of $500 was passed by Parliament to me for my services. That appears in the Estimates.

By Mr. Denison :

2250. Did you draw extra pay before the Civil Service Act was passed?—I commenced doing extra work in the fall of 1882. I do not believe I did any before that. The Civil Service Act came into force about that time.

By Mr. Taylor :

2251. How long have you been in the service?—Since 1878.

2252. For this work that the accounts were put in in your brother's name, you rendered all the services?—I did the extra work. During the day, of course; but I did not do any of that kind of work for which I was paid afterward.

2253. I mean for this index that you did and for which the account was put in in your brother's name?—I did, and I would not do that same work again for twice the money.

2254. The Government got full value?—I would not, if allowed by this Committee, do that work again for twice the money.

By Mr. Coatsworth :

2255. Did you enter the service in 1878?—Yes.

2256. What part of 1878?—I first commenced doing work as an extra clerk, I think it was March 1878. Before that time I had done some work in the Public Works Department. I would like to say that that work could not possibly have been done outside of the Department, and I think I was the only one then in the Department qualified to do the work. I was then assisting Mr. Henry, and I do not think any one but a man familiar with all the correspondence could do it.

By Mr. Mulock :

2257. Were you ordered to do it?—I asked to do it. I represented the necessity for these works, and now these books are being used every day in the Department. We have now to go through these books to see if there was any previous correspondence. The Deputy Minister knew it and the work was certified to by the person in charge of that office.

A. P. SHERWOOD called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Somerville :

2258. You have examined the books with regard to the attendance of Mr. Humphreys between certain dates?—The 15th of December, 1888, and 1st May, 1891.

2259. You have ascertained that this statement (Exhibit 21) as prepared is correct from the books?—Yes.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, THURSDAY, 6th August, 1891.

Committee met;—Mr. Wallace in the Chair.

K. J. HENRY re-called and further examined:—

THE CHAIRMAN—Mr. Henry, I understand, desires to make some corrections in his evidence, and also to make a further statement.

MR. HENRY—Question 336, on page 20 of the printed evidence, I should have said that the account was put in under the heading of extra work. It was a difference in Salary on extra work. Question 340—In the sentence, "Henry, if you make out that cheque in favour of Mr. Humphreys, and add an additional hundred dollars, I will approve of it," the "cheque" should be "account." The words "one or two before, for the same sum," should be for two sums, being difference in pay for one year between $1.50 per day and $2. Question No. 351—I believe now I should have said that the Forestry Report was a separate report and not part of the annual report. Question 371—I find that in some cases the clerks exceeded the sum of $9 per week, and I account for it in this way: at the end of the week the work was not in a fit shape to hand over to the next two clerks, consequently they did in many cases exceed the above sum. Question 381—Mr. Hickey may have had his name used by more than one permanent clerk, which will account, I think, for the larger amount which he appears to have drawn; a comparison of dates of cheques and accounts with time-book will no doubt clear this up. Questions 384, 386 and 387—I cannot for the life of me understand why I gave such answers. I must have been rattled, as I often spoke to Mr. Hall, and I also think to Mr. Burgess, that I tried to restrict the clerks to $9 per week, and that all the staff were on the work excepting Mr. Bell, whom I thought was getting a salary sufficiently large without it, and I may also say that he never appeared anxious or asked for the work. In question 389, where I say 18 men altogether, I find I exceeded the number. I once had that many in my office, but I find that the time-book does not give so many; it should be 16.

STATEMENT respecting payments made to Mr. Humphreys—Difference in salary during years 1887 and up to 1889.

Mr. Pereira and Mr. Hall have both stated in their evidence that I gave Mr. Humphrey extra work and when same was done refused to certify. This is not correct, as any extra work done by him under my instructions was always certified to by me, or in my absence, by my first assistant, Mr. Geo. Bell. The whole amount earned by Humphreys on the Burr Index was between $80 and $100, as the time-book, which I now submit, and which turned up since I gave my evidence, shows. The accounts which I refused and which were afterwards certified to by Messrs. Pereira and Bell, were after the $200 account, and, as I understood it, and firmly believe, were for difference in salary, not for work actually done, but an allowance granted by the Deputy Minister as difference in pay between $1.50 and $2 per diem. Each time these accounts were presented to me for certificate I refused, because I thought he, Humphreys, should be paid in the regular way. I also thought, and no doubt said, that if he was paid in that way—the irregular way I mean—there were other clerks in my office who should receive similar treatment, not that I would have certified in their case either, as after certifying to the $200 account I had made up my mind that accounts of that description would never again be certified to by me. The fourth account was also presented to me by Mr. Hall, and again refused, and I again urged him, particularly as he was then acting Deputy Minister, to get the sanction of the Minister to increase the salary from $1.50 to $2 and thus put an end to an irregular and unpleasant matter. This was done, and Humphreys was paid at the latter rate. I desire further to explain the statement made by Mr. Burgess in his evidence, in which he alleges as a reason for my “supposed” animus towards him, was because he had declined to recommend me for a chief clerkship. Notwithstanding his apology, the statement has gone throughout the public press, and many believe it to be true. Mr. Burgess did promise to recommend me for a chief clerkship, and also informed me what he intended to do for some others in same class; but further said that as Mr. Hall was only getting $2,400 per year, and to place others who were in same branch in same class, although at the minimum salary, he did not think would be fair, but so soon as Mr. Hall got his pay increased to $2,800 that my promotion would follow. This was done, and I am still a first class clerk. The late Mr. White, when Minister of the Interior, also promised and assured me that what I was applying for should be given and even when I questioned him closely and said I would need to refresh my memory or in other words, prepare for the examination, his answer was, to do so, as he fully intended to promote the late Mr. Douglas, who was then Assistant Secretary, and myself, to the rank and pay of a chief clerk. I mention this to the Committee to show that I have had reasons for feeling disappointed, but as to having any animus to Mr. Burgess, or having tried to injure him, such is not the case—I feel now, in the interest of myself and family, that I must clear my character from wrong doing. If I have done wrong it is in carrying out the instructions of my superior officers. Some of those who may have “sneered at me as they say, for giving this irregular business away” may live to find out that it is false, and that, perhaps, the chief information which led to its publicity, was worked up by others, who did not have as good a reason for feeling disappointed as myself. Further, I deny in toto having had anything to do towards bringing about this enquiry, except by answering truthfully the questions put to me by the various members of this Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

K. J. HENRY.

The Chairman read from the printed minutes of evidence that portion of Mr. Burgess's statement, submitted to the Committee on 16th July, 1891, which referred to Mr. Henry's evidence, as follows:—

“I would also take leave to say, Mr. Chairman, in relation to the evidence given by Mr. Henry, that I regret very much that in a moment of anger I should have said anything that would reflect upon him. I prefer to believe and do believe, from what I have known of Mr. Henry during the last 16 years, that he made the statement he did and gave the evidence in the way he did from conscientious motives, and believing that it was his duty to do so.”

By Mr. Somerville:

2260. When was it you had an understanding with Mr. Burgess that you were to be promoted? How long ago?—Prior to 1887.

2261. That has been hanging over ever since?—Yes.

2262. You say that Mr. Hickey's name was used by more than one permanent clerk?—The time book there will explain everything. For instance, there might be two permanent men working on this work, and, of course, the permanent men could not get the pay; but they might use Mr. Hickey's name to get the pay. The work was done in every case, as I have sworn.

2263. I have been trying for some time to get at the bottom of this Humphreys' matter. Can you say who Mr. Humphreys shared with. He got, according to the Auditor General's Report, a large amount of money for extra work—very much more than any of the others—and it was stated that on account of his excellent qualities as a clerk he was paid this extra amount of money. I see he has been sent to Winnipeg and gets $2 a day?—That was what he was getting in the Department. I do not know what he is getting now.

2264. Do you know whether Mr. Humphreys shares this extra money with anybody?—I cannot say that. For any extra work that he got, and I certified to, I do not know that he shared it with anybody.

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 25th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

JAMES S. BROUGH called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

2265. What is your position in the Department of the Interior ?—I am a second class clerk in the Department of the Interior.

2266. How long have you occupied that position ?—About two years.

2267. What is your salary ?—$1,200. Since the 1st of July it has been that.

2268. 1st of July of this year ?—Yes ; of this year.

2269. You have been on the permanent staff in the Interior Department, since when ?—Since 1882, I think.

2270. Before that you were on the staff but were not permanent ?—Before that I was in the Department of Inland Revenue. I had charge of a subdivision at Elora, near Guelph.

2271. You have heard or read the evidence that has been taken in regard to this investigation into the management of the Interior Department ?—Yes.

2272. You understand the run of it ?—I do. I cannot say that I have read the evidence through very carefully.

2273. Are you aware, of your own knowledge, of irregularities occurring in the Interior Department—that is extra clerks sharing up with the permanent men ?—Yes.

2274. You know that has been done ?—Yes.

2275. Has it ever been done in your own case ?—Well, yes.

2276. Extra men have shared their money with you ?—Certainly. It was a general practice in the Department.

2277. Will you name the parties ?—Mr. McCabe was one that I did some work with in connection with returns for the House of Commons. The account was of course put through in his name.

2278. You remember the date of it ?—It was during the session of 1889. There were, I think, but two cases ; it was extra work in connection with returns for the House of Commons which Mr. McCabe had to do. As it was work which required two men to do he asked me to assist him and I did so. The work was done after hours—late at night and early in the morning. We were at work by 7 o'clock in the morning, working up to 11 o'clock at night.

2279. Would it be usual for an extra clerk to ask a permanent clerk to assist him ? Would not the practice be the reverse of that ?—That I could not say. This work, however, required two men to do it.

2280. One reason why I called you as a witness was in consequence of a letter which was published in the Citizen some time ago ?—Yes ; I contradicted in the Citizen a report which had appeared in the evening papers with reference to myself, which was to effect that I got the greater part of $254, which was a lie. It was not the case at all.

2281. Will you read your contradiction which appeared in the Citizen ?—

“ INTERIOR DEPARTMENT INVESTIGATION.

“ Editor of The Citizen.

“ SIR,—In the evidence given by Mr. Francis McCabe yesterday before the Public Accounts Committee, as reported by the Evening Journal, the following statements appear :

“ In 1889 he (McCabe) got $254 for extra work. He (McCabe) gave Brough about half the money.”

“ ‘ On the whole, he thought Mr. Brough got the most of the money.’ ”

“ Permit me to say that the above evidence, in so far as it applies to me, is wholly false, as I am prepared to testify under oath when called upon to do so.

“ I am afraid the whole of this wretched business is little else than a contemptible conspiracy against those who really honestly tried to do their duty, and have in consequence incurred the ill-feeling and spite of some dangerous and cowardly characters. A few irregularities, caused by an imperfect Civil Service Act, set up in a broad framing of lies, has been presented to the public and has been mistaken for corruption in the Department.

“ Yours truly,

“ J. S. BROUGH.”

“ OTTAWA, July 14th.”

2282. You say now it is not wholly false. You say you did share some of the money?—Certainly.

2283. You swear you did share with McCabe?—In this letter I contradict the statement which appeared in the evening papers. That statement is false. It is a statement that I got half the money or most of the money which was charged against McCabe in 1889. That statement, I say, is wholly untrue.

2284. But still you did get some of the money?—I got in one case about $16, and on another occasion about $5 or $6.

2285. Is that the whole you got?—That is the whole I got.

2286. About $22?—About $22. I cannot swear to the exact figures.

2287. Well, I have the accounts here, and they will show?—I suppose so. I can probably help you to get at the figure, to a certain extent. Mr. McCabe was allowed for overtime. He was paid for overtime. He was not able to complete his work within the regular hours, and he was therefore paid for overtime in connection with that work. His account generally ran $20 or $22, or somewhere about that every month.

By Mr. McMullen :

2288. For extra time?—For extra time. In the two cases I refer to, where I assisted him, the amounts were entered in the regular monthly account for overtime.

By Mr. Somerville :

2289. Your time was entered there?—Not exactly my time, but it was mentioned in the account that there was an item for extra work in connection with the House of Commons in the two cases. If you hunt up the accounts you will find that that is the case. If you take the total of those accounts and deduct McCabe's average therefrom, which is somewhere about $20 a month, and divide the remainder by two, you will find what we got in connection with the House of Commons return. I think in one case it will come to somewhere about $16, and in another case about $5 or $6.

By the Chairman :

2290. Were these the only payments you got that year?—These are the only payments; I have never had any others.

By Mr. Somerville :

2291. Here is one of the accounts?—Yes. 1st February, 1889, “ to extra work during the month of January last, entering up action on files and comparing returns called for by the House of Commons—66 hours, at 50 cents, equal $33.” If you deduct $20 from that, McCabe's average, it will leave you $13. Divide that by two it leaves $6.50. That is one of the accounts I had reference to. (Account filed as Exhibit No. 22.)

2292. You say you only got $6.50 of that account?—I say I did not get any more; I probably got less. Here is the other account: “ March 1st, 1889: To extra work during the month of February last, entering up action on files and comparing returns for the House of Commons and documents for the Commissioner's office at Winnipeg—102 hours, at 50 cents, equals $51." If you deduct from that amount $20, McCabe's average, it will leave $31; divide that $31 by two you get $15.50, which was about the amount I received. (Account filed as Exhibit No. 23.)

2293. How much did you get from Mr. McCabe altogether—$22, according to your statement?—About that. I cannot swear exactly to a dollar, but these are the two accounts, and I am trying to help you to get at the actual facts of the case.

2294. I do not think that is in accordance with the official report of the evidence as given by Mr. McCabe?—Perhaps not.

2295. You say you only received $22 from Mr. McCabe?—I did not say that; I said that was about it.

2296. Did you share with anybody else, or did anybody else ever share with you?—No; he was the only man.

F. McCABE re-called, again sworn and further examined:—

By Mr. Somerville:

2297. Mr. McCabe, you gave evidence before this Committee some time ago with regard to certain matters?—Yes.

2298. You worked with Mr. Brough, did you not, in the Interior Department—in connection with the work of the Interior Department?—Yes; I worked with him some time.

2299. And you shared the money with Mr. Brough after you earned it?—I did for a time.

2300. Here is an account. Look at that account (filed as Exhibit No. 24.) What is the date of it?—This is the 3rd of January, 1889.

2301. And the amount of the account?—The account was for $37.

2302. How much of that money did you pay Mr. Brough?—I paid half of it, to the best of my recollection.

2303. I want you to recollect it distinctly? You say you paid half of the $37?—Yes.

2304. Here is another account (Exhibit No. 22.) What is the date of that account?—The 1st of February, 1889.

2305. What is the amount?—That is for $33. I shared half of that with him, too.

2306. You paid half of that to Mr. Brough?—Yes.

By the Chairman:

2307. The statement by Mr. Brough was that you deducted $20 for your own over-time? and after that divided it?—There was no such arrangement at all.

By Mr. Somerville:

2308. Now, there is another account, (filed as Exhibit No. 23.) What is the amount of that account?—$51.

2309. What is the date?—The 1st of March, 1889.

2310. How much of that did you pay Mr. Brough?—Half of it.

2311. Are you sure?—I am satisfied I paid half.

2312. You are positive of that?—Yes.

2313. Now there is another one (filed as Exhibit No. 25)?—I would not swear that he got any part of that. I think I got all that myself.

2314. Are there any other accounts that you shared with him before that date?—No, none that I will swear to.

2315. Now Mr. McCabe from whom did you get instructions that you were to share this money?—From Mr. Brough himself.

2316. How did he come to tell you that you were to share it with him?—Mr. Brough stated to me that he was going to work with me and that we were to divide the pay, later on he told me that. I remember he told me that we were to work together and that the pay was to be divided afterwards. It was understood at the time I did the work with him, that he was to get an equal part of the pay.

2317. Did he say who it was understood with?—He told me that it was an arrangement with Mr. Hall.

2318. That you were to work with him and share the money with him?—Yes.

2319. It was generally understood in the Department, was it, that this system was being carried on?—Yes, I think so, as far as I can understand it.

By Mr. Foster :

2320. Do you know Mr. Nelson?—Yes.

2321. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Nelson before you gave your evidence in this room with reference to the subject of this inquiry?—Yes, I had.

2322. Of what nature was it—touching your own evidence?—Well, yes ; it would be to a certain extent.

2323. You and Mr. Nelson had a conversation about what you were going to testify?—Yes.

2324. What did Mr. Nelson say to you?—Well, he at first, so far as I remember, said that he felt that the extra pay was going for extra work and the accounts were made out in the extra clerk's name, and the money given to him and it ended there. He thought the extra pay was given to the extra clerk, and there the matter rested. If I understood him correctly, he said that the Committee had not the power to make him, the extra clerk, tell what he did with the money.

2325. The impression that he left upon your mind was what?—The impression was—well, I did not agree with him, I felt that the Committee had power to make me tell.

2326. Was that all the conversation that took place about this?—I think some time about a week before I gave evidence here, Mr. Nelson came to me, over in the Department of Agriculture, in which I was then working, and talked over the matter again just about what I say. He thought as he thought before, and said, just as he said before, that he did not think that we should tell what we did with the money, and he stated that if we were pressed to tell, if we had to tell what we did with the money, we could say how the money was got.

2327. That is the money you yourself got?—I never distinguished between that money and that which my partner got. The account was for the whole money and we sent it in the general way. I will say this, that he came to me the last time of all and said, so far as he and I were connected in our dealings, that he felt that any work that I did that was in the account—that was put in my name as earned by me, and that if I shared up the money afterwards it was nobody's business. He took pains he said to know that my name did not go down for any other money than the money earned by myself, and if I shared it up afterwards it did not matter.

2328. So that he had two conversations with you?—He had two or three, I think.

2329. Did he ever say to you that you should not tell this Committee that you shared the money with him?—I do not think that he put it in that way.

2330. Did he leave you with an impression as to what he would have liked you to do before the Committee?—Yes.

2331. That you should not tell the Committee that you had shared the money with him on the grounds that it was a private matter?

Mr. BARRON objected.

2332. Did he tell you or did he not?—Tell me what?

2333. Tell you that in giving evidence before the Committee you should not state the fact that you shared the money with him?—No ; he did not say that.

2334. Did he leave that impression on your mind?—Well, the impression that I had was that Mr. Nelson probably thought it would be better I should not tell, but he did not tell me not to tell, more than what I said, that the money I spent, I might say, I spent it in the way young men generally spent money, but I did not just at the time know whether he meant the whole of the money I got or the part I got for myself, and I did not ask him.

By Mr. Taylor :

2335. These accounts are made out for extra work and returns for the House of Commons, are they?—Which accounts, sir?

2336. These accounts which have just been referred to?—These with which Mr. Brough was connected? Two of them are.

2337. Then you and Mr. Brough jointly prepared the returns asked for by the House of Commons?—Yes.

2338. The work was actually done by Mr. Brough and yourself for these amounts?—Yes.

By Mr. Landerkin :

2339. Who is Mr. Nelson—a clerk in the Department?—Yes.

2340. Is he there now?—I don't think so; I think he has been suspended. I might say in relation to that letter of Mr. Brough's, at least the statement that he contradicts in the Evening Journal, that that was not my evidence. I did not say I shared $254 with Mr. Brough, that was wrongly reported, but so far as deducting a portion of those accounts—so far as my getting my usual amount of those accounts, and then sharing half of the remainder with Mr. Brough, that is an arrangement I swear, is not so.

By Mr. Somerville :

2341. Did you give him half in every one of these cases?—Yes.

By Mr. McMullen :

2342. What is your salary in the Department—what do you get?—I am out of the Department now.

2343. What did you get when you were there?—When I was in the Interior Department?

2344. Yes.—$1.50 per day.

2345. Who got you the appointment?—I got it in the first place from Mr. MacMaster.

2346. Were you promised any extra amount, over $1.50 per day, for extra work, when you were appointed?—Not when I was appointed.

2347. You had no understanding?—No.

By Mr. Taylor :

2348. You were merely an extra clerk?—Yes.

2349. Mr. Brough was a permanent clerk?—Yes.

2350. And that, as you understand it, Brough's work was done, and the work went in your name as the extra clerk?—Yes.

2351. That is the way it was done. You were extra and he was a permanent clerk, and the account was made out in your name, you having done the work jointly?—We did it together.

By Mr. McMullen :

2352. What was the nature of the work you did with Mr. Brough?—It was comparing official documents in the Department.

2453. Did Mr. Brough do exactly one-half and you the other, or did you do most of the work?—We both worked together.

2354. But the work for which you drew extra pay, did you each do a half of it?—My recollection is this; that I did the regular work that I had been doing, and that Mr. Brough did that during the day, and sometimes after four o'clock in the evening, and we joined in the evenings comparing, and at nights, and after four o'clock in the evening very often.

2355. Comparing the work you did during the day?—Oh, no, comparing other work.

2356. What other work?—Copies of returns for the House of Commons, and copies of files sent to the Commissioner's office in Winnipeg; and then the accounts were made out in my name, and we shared them up. I want to make an explanation with regard to my evidence. I was asked at question 493: "What was the nature of your duties? What work were you employed at?—I was part of the time comparing letters that were sent into the Department with the original drafts." I meant to say letters sent out of the Department, in that case. I might say too, that it has been stated to me by some that I endeavoured to save certain members of the Department, that I tried to save the Department, and it has been stated by others that I was too severe on the Department.

The CHAIRMAN—Never mind that, just refer to your evidence.

WITNESS—The only thing that embarrassed me upon that occasion was the account placed before me certified by Mr. Kinloch. That was something I did not know until that day. I thought on that occasion it would be certified to by Mr. Nelson. I did not know that Mr. Kinloch certified to an account. That was an arrangement done without my knowledge, after the accounts were made out, and I felt it would appear there was some such deal between Mr. Kinloch and myself, which there never was, and I was trying to think what it could possibly be; but afterwards I found Mr. Kinloch certified to one account which was given, but not by myself. I may say further, that if there is any question which any member of the Committee wishes to put to me in regard to anything I did wrong in the Department, other than to allow my name to go in for permanent clerks for extra pay, I would be most happy to give an explanation. When I allowed my name to go in for permanent clerks I did it under the direction of my superior officers, and I never went to a permanent clerk in my life and asked him to share with me. On each occasion I was directed by my superior officer, and I never allowed my name to go in on any of those accounts without the knowledge and direction of my superior officers.

2357. Who were your superior officers?—Mr. Hall is one.—He is the Secretary of the Department.

2358. Who do you mean when you say that you were directed by your superior officers?—When Mr. Brough told me to divide with him, he said it was at the direction of Mr. Hall. When these accounts went through connected with the name of Mr. Palmer and Mr. Henry, I gave it to be understood that I wanted Mr. Hall to know that they were not for me, and when that account went in for $73.50 for Mr. Nelson, he told me that it was understood that the Deputy Minister had arranged it.

2359. He said the Deputy Minister arranged it?—Yes; he said that he had seen the Deputy Minister and he had decided to allow it.

By Mr. McMullen:

2360. Did you say you did not expect extra pay?—Not at the time the $73.50 was put it.

2361. Who suggested it to you?—Mr. Nelson.

2362. He suggested that you should ask for extra pay?—No; that I should put in an account for $73.50.

2363. Who did you share with?—That is the account he shared in.

By Mr. Landerkin:

2364. Have you any knowledge of any other irregularities in the Department? There is one place here in the evidence, No. 511, where I was asked: "I want you to be particular about it and specific as to what you were allowed?—At that time to the best of my knowledge I was drawing extra pay." I thought at the time I was. I was thinking of the previous year. I did not say so for a fact, but I thought I knew it. I say that that winter I was doing a good deal of extra work, and I had expected extra pay for it. I had worked all that summer and all that spring, before I resigned from the Department, and Mr. Nelson was willing to certify to the account for me; but when he spoke to the Deputy Minister about it, it was decided that I should not get extra pay. I spoke to Mr. Hall some time before about getting extra pay or an increase of salary. I said my expenses would be heavy, that I was going away, and that I was taking private lessons, and he said he could not give me any extra salary : but he said to keep account of the work I was doing and he would see if I could get extra pay. However, I did not get any extra pay.

A. M. BURGESS re-called and further examined :—

By Mr. Somerville :

2365. You were in the room when Mr. Pereira gave evidence as to the extra work he did?—I think so.

2366. That extra work was arranged for by you with the late Minister of the Interior, the Hon. Thomas White?—Up to $400.

2367. Did you see that the work was given to Mr. Pereira?—I cannot say that I saw the whole of it was given, but I know I saw that a great deal of it was.

2368. In his evidence he swears that he selected the work and took it home, and afterwards when it was done he brought it back and certified to it himself?—He may have certified to it, but I know that a great deal of it was shown to me. What I mean is, that his certifying to it would not prevent me from seeing it.

2369. Would it not be a very unusual thing for a man to perform work and certify that the work was done himself? You would think that a very irregular way of doing business?—Seeing that I was a party to the arrangement, I cannot say that.

2370. Would you not feel bound to see that you got value for the money?—I would and I did.

2371. Did he certify to the account?—He may have done that, but it was always within my power to see the work myself.

2372. Did you in this case see that the work was done?—I did.

2373. In every instance?—It is so long ago that I could not swear that I did in every case, but I know that in many instances I did.

2374. There is an account in the name of Lizzie Evans. That was the name of who?—I said before who I understood that was ; but Mr. Pereira has since testified that Lizzie Evans was his own wife.

2375. There is the cheque for that account (filed as Exhibit No. 26). Look at that. The amount is $49.20. Look at the endorsement on that cheque. How did your name come to be there?—I do not remember. I see that it is paid at the Bank of Montreal, and I must have got the money for it, and sent the money to Richard White in accordance with the arrangement in that letter.

2376. Did you?—I cannot say.

2377. We want positive evidence?—At this date I cannot remember this particular sum being sent, but I know I had to send these sums from time to time as they were earned.

2378. Would it not be a usual thing to sent the cheque to Mr. White?—I cannot really at this time say which I did. I could by looking at my letter books, and by seeing the letter with which the money was enclosed.

2379. There is another account for $97.30 (filed as Exhibit No. 27). It is dated the 15th September, 1886. Look at that cheque to correspond?—I do not remember it.

2380. Your name is on the back of that?—Yes.

By Mr. Hyman :

2381. Did you get the money?—No ; not in the sense of it being for myself.

2382. What is your name on the cheque for?—I have no doubt that Mr. Pereira asked me to put my name on it. I remember having done that for extra clerks who were not known at the bank.

2383. Is your name there simply as to identity?—That only.

2384. Why did you not mark on it "identified"?—I know it was for that purpose alone.

By Mr. Somerville :

2385. And you got the money too?—Yes; it was probably sent to me. Do you mean to me personally? No, no. I do not think so.

2386. The amount is marked paid?—Yes; it was paid to the messenger.

2387. And it was paid to you by him?—Either to me or to Mr. Pereira. This was long ago, and I cannot remember. Generally speaking, I did that for a great many others besides him.

2388. I have looked over most of the accounts since 1884, and I never saw it in another instance?—It is so, nevertheless.

2389. There is another account (filed as Exhibit No. 28) of the 3rd of July, 1886. What is the amount of that?—$47.

2390. Your name is on the back of that cheque, too?—Yes.

2391. Here is another one. What is the date of that?—9th December, 1886.

2392. How much is the amount?—$87.30. (Account filed as Exhibit No. 29).

2393. Who certifies to that account for the work?—Mr. Chisholm.

2394. Would Mr. Chisholm have anything to do with the giving of the work out?—Very likely. Seeing he was my Secretary at the time, I might have asked him to look over the work when it came back, to satisfy himself that it had been done.

2395. Can you tell us whether you did receive this money?—If I did receive it, I sent it to Mr. Richard White.

By Mr. Hyman :

2396. Well, did you receive it? If you received it, why do you not say so?—I am trying to be as candid with the Committee as I can. I could not certify to each particular account, but, generally speaking, I undertook to send the money to Mr. Richard White, in accordance with the letter which Mr. Somerville has seen, and I did so. Seeing I endorsed these cheques, I must have got the money.

2397. As a matter of fact, then, you got the money and did send it to Mr. White?—So it appears now. But if I had been asked before whether I got cheques or the money I could not have said.

By Mr. Somerville :

2398. You know positively you did send the money to Mr. Richard White?—Oh, yes. I received acknowledgements from him from time to time.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE.

COMMITTEE ROOM, MONDAY, 22nd June, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. THOMAS FULLER called and examined :—

By Mr. Mulock :

1. What position do you occupy with the Government ?—I am Chief Architect.
2. In what Department ?—The Department of Public Works.
3. How long have you filled that position ?—Nearly ten years.
4. At all events, at least nine years ?—Yes, Sir.
5. What official duties have you to discharge in connection with the construction of what is known in Ottawa as the “Langevin Block” ?—Preparing the plans and superintending the construction.
6. And the specifications ?—Yes.
7. And the conditions ?—Yes. The contract was prepared by the Department.
8. But the conditions generally ?—Yes ; the general conditions.
9. You had to do with preparing the plans, the specifications for the contractors and afterwards superintending the work ?—Yes.
10. Did you superintend the work ?—Yes.
11. From the issuing of the first contract to the present time ?—Yes.
12. You have been the architect in charge of the work on behalf of the Government ?—Yes.
13. To whom was the first contract let in connection with the work ?—Mr. Charlebois.
14. The contract is here, but perhaps you could tell the Committee briefly the work Mr. Charlebois undertook by this first contract ?—He undertook to build all the walls and the brick work, prepared it for the roof ; the whole of it.
15. Anything else ?—Of course all the woodwork in connection with it ; everything with the exception of the iron.
16. Then, your original specifications showed a complete building ?—Yes, with the exception of the roof and the iron joists.
17. So that his original contract embraced everything for a complete building, except the roof and iron joists ?—Yes, and the heating apparatus.
18. Those are the only exceptions ?—Those are the only exceptions.

By Mr. Bowell :

19. The contract did not include the roof ?—No, sir, it did not.

By Mr. Mulock :

20. What was the amount of his contract ?—$295,000.
21. Do you happen to remember the date of his contract ?—Yes, it was signed 20th September, 1883.
22. Do you happen to remember when his work was to be completed ?—Yes, 1st of May, 1886.
23. I believe it was originally intended before the tenders were let that the contract should be completed by the 1st September, 1885 ?—The contract shows that the work was to be completed by the 1st of May, 1886. I do not remember anything about an earlier date.

24. When was the next contract issued?—That was for the iron; it was the 8th September, 1885.

25. Was that let after advertisement for public tenders?—Yes.

26. Who was the lowest tender for that?—Carrier, Lainé & Co.

27. Was a contract made for the iron joists with Carrier, Lainé & Company?—Yes.

28. Did they fully complete their contract?—They completed it with the exception of putting them in place.

29. Was there no other exception?—Not that I remember.

30. Were they not required by their contract to supply the material and put them in place?—Yes, sir.

31. Would not that involve bringing them from the station to the building?—Oh, yes.

32. Did they bring them from the station to the premises?—I really forget.

33. Perhaps it will refresh your memory if you peruse the papers relating to their contract. As near as I can discover when the supplies were at the Canada Atlantic Station, in the City of Ottawa, the Government undertook the expense of carting?—I think I can explain that. The walls were not ready for the joists when they first came, and they were deposited on the Government ground of the Canada Atlantic station.

34. When did the next advertisement issue for other tenders?—The iron roof contract was signed the 1st September, 1886.

35. As the result of public competition?—Yes.

36. Who obtained that contract?—Charlebois.

37. What was the next advertisement issued?—For the heating.

38. When was it issued?—On the 16th August, 1888.

39. The tenders were issued?—The contract was signed.

40. As a result of public tender for heating, a contract was signed?—Yes.

41. Now the next tender?—The iron staircases; that I should have spoken of in connection with the iron work.

42. That was also let by public tender?—Yes, on the 7th September, 1888.

43. What other contract was let by public tender?—The elevators. That was on the 10th October, 1888.

44. What else?—Nothing else.

45. You have enumerated then all the works that were let by public tender?—Yes.

46. Namely, the original work covered by Charlebois' contract?—Yes.

47. Next the iron girders?—The joists; yes.

48. Next the heating?—No; the roof next.

49. The next?—The heating.

50. And last the staircases?—And the elevators.

51. Have you brought a statement showing certain figures that I asked you for?—Yes; of all the claims paid and unpaid.

52. We will first take up Mr. Charlebois' claim. How much has been paid to Mr. Charlebois for his main contract of $295,000?—The whole of that sum has been paid to him, except that there are some deductions from the original contract.

53. How much has been paid to him for extras on the original contract?—The total amount paid on the contract and extras to the 16th January, this year, was $490,084.

54. You are speaking now of the original contract?—The original contract is paid, and this amount is for all extra work and the contract.

55. Has anything been paid since on that account?—Not that I am aware of.

56. So that the total of $490,084 shows the payments made to Mr. Charlebois on the contract of the 20th September, 1883, which was originally for $295,000?—That includes all the iron roofing and everything of that kind.

By the Chairman:

57. Does that include all the other contracts?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Mulock :

58. That is not my question. First of all I would ask, has that $295,000, the amount of the original contract been paid?—The whole amount has been paid of course.

By Mr. Adams :

59. Did you say there were some deductions?—I deducted from that amount for work not done, $22,113.64.

By Mr. Mulock :

60. How much has been paid to Mr. Charlebois on the main contract?—That amount.

61. The face amount of the contract, less $22,000?—Yes, sir.

62. How much has been paid to Mr. Charlebois for extras outside of the other works that were let by contract; that is, for extras on the main contract. By the the main contract, I mean the first contract let to him on the 20th September, 1883. Do not your books show on what account payments were made by the Department?—We have statements of everything pertaining to the contracts, but I have not got it separate here.

63. But the information in the Department would show on what account payments were made?—Yes.

64. I would ask you to prepare a statement of these amounts for presentation at the next meeting of the Committee?—I think I understand you.

65. I want a statement showing on what accounts you made various payments. For example the contracts which you have referred to were let?—Yes.

66. If the amounts specified in the contracts were earned by the contractor and paid, I would like your statement to show that?—Yes.

67. If they were not earned in all, and deductions were made, I would like that also to be shown?—Yes.

68. And in regard to the other payments that have been made, I would like you to bring a statement showing why they were paid, that is on what account. Do you understand?—Yes, Sir. I have a statement here but it does not cover every item that you asked for.

69. I am about to read from a paper that has been produced here by the Department. It is inside of a backing No. 106,322. Inside of this is a letter from Mr. Charlebois directed to Mr. A. Gobeil, Secretary of the Public Works Department, Ottawa. It is dated 28th February, 1890, and reads as follows—"Sir, I have the honor to enclose herewith a recapitulation of all the different claims filed and the amounts received on same. (Signed) A. Charlebois." (Exhibit 1, filed.)

70. You recognize that as in Mr. Charlebois' handwriting, I presume?—Yes, Sir.

71. That letter is in his handwriting?—I think so. That is, not the letter but the signature.

72. You observe the stamp of the Department upon it?—Yes.

73. Did you ever see this statement before?—Yes. (Exhibit No. 2, filed.)

74. Where did you see the statement, marked Exhibit No. 2, before?—In our own Department. It was referred to me.

75. It came to the Department in the regular course?—Yes, Sir.

76. On the first page of Exhibit 2, which is Charlebois' account against the Department, is the following entry:—

To amount of contract dated 20th September, 1883. ....	$295,000 00
To amount of extra claims on above contract as per details filed, 21st February, 1891.....	213,858 22

Total amount of contract and claims.....	$508,858 22
--	---------------------

Cr.
By cash, received on account of contract.....	$246,591 95
By cash, received on drawback.....	166,000 00
By cash, received on claims.....	47,593 37
	<hr/>
Making a total of credits.....	310,785 32
	<hr/>
Balance claimed.....	$198,072 90
	<hr/>

Is that statement correct?—I do not know about the payments at all. This is not his final claim.

77. Where is the final claim?—It must be in the Department.

78. It is not produced amongst the papers? I do not find any later statement than this?—If it is not produced here, I think it must be in the office.

79. You say, this account has been changed since February, 1890?—I do not know that it has been changed, but this is not his whole claim. That one is dated February, and I do not think we got the final claim until November.

80. You think it is superseded by one of November, 1890?—I think it is, but I will not be sure.

81. What was the value of all deductions from the main contract with Charlebois?—Deduct for work included in contract, 20th September, 1883, but not executed, $22,113.64.

82. The next contract that was let, as you have mentioned, was that for the iron joists with Carrier, Lainé & Co.?—Yes.

83. Do you remember the amounts of the various tenders offered for that work?—I did not bring the statement with me.

84. The lowest tender was that of Carrier, Lainé & Co.?—Yes.

85. Speaking from memory, do you remember accurately what Carrier, Lainé & Co. were to do for the sum of $15,241.12?—They had to put the joists in.

86. They had to supply the joists, deliver them on the ground, and put them in position in the building?—Yes, sir.

87. That was the original contract?—Yes.

88. Did they put them in position in the building?—No.

89. Did the Government relieve them of that portion of their work?—Yes.

90. Where is the correspondence showing what passed between Carrier, Lainé & Co. and the Department on that point?—I suppose it is with the secretary of the Department.

91. Who is the secretary?—Mr. Roy, but the present Deputy Minister, Mr. Gobeil, was secretary at that time.

92. Why is that correspondence not produced here?—I do not know.

93. You are aware that there is some correspondence?—I think there was, I do not remember.

94. There are a few fragmentary letters here, but there is not the completed correspondence. All the letters have not been produced?—I do not know whether there was any official correspondence.

95. Will you make a search and produce all the correspondence between the Department and Carrier, Lainé & Co. in regard to their contract with the Government?—Yes.

96. I might state again that there are here a few letters between the Government and Carrier, Lainé & Co., but the correspondence breaks off abruptly, and we do not know from the correspondence how their negotiations to be relieved of part of the work turned out. What portion of the contract were they relieved from?—Placing them in position. I am not sure about the cartage.

97. Do you know what deduction was made from the amount to be paid for the portion of the contract the Government relieved them of?—I do not remember the exact amount.

98. Will you, at the next meeting, bring a statement showing exactly what portion of their contract they were relieved of, and what deduction was made from the contract by reason of being so relieved?—Yes, sir.

99. You are not able to tell me whether the Government gave the whole work that they were relieved of to anyone else or not?—Yes, they gave it to Mr. Charlebois.

100. Mr. Charlebois obtained a contract for completing all the unfinished part of their work?—No, no; simply placing the joists in position.

101. I think you are in error on one point. I cannot expect you to remember the details accurately, but from the perusal of these papers which I have made, I think that Charlebois contract to finish Carrier, Lainé & Co.'s, did not include hauling and cartage?—I do not remember; I do not think it did.

102. Then it is necessary for you to tell us about that?—I have already taken a memorandum to that effect.

103. So that perhaps you were a little in error when you said Charlebois undertook to complete all the unfinished work?—I did not say that; I said to place them in position.

104. Then can you tell me from memory, or from anything you have in your possession, what amount was paid to Charlebois & Co. for completing whatever they had to complete of the original contract of Carrier, Lainé & Co.?—I have not got the amount here, but I can give it to you later.

105. You are not able to say then whether this statement of Charlebois' is correct? Wherein he credits you with a payment on that account of $6,080?—I do not remember; I will bring you all that information.

106. Do you happen to know what was the reason that Carrier, Lainé & Co. did not complete their contract, that is, putting the joists in position?—I believe they could not make any arrangements with Charlebois for implements for placing the joists in position. I suppose that was it.

By Mr. Adams :

107. What do you know of yourself?—I have no personal knowledge of what transpired between Charlebois and them.

By Mr. Mulock :

108. There is a correspondence here, which explains why they did not complete the work. I presume a perusal of it would enable you to speak positively on that point?—Yes.

109. There was a written contract, I believe, entered into with Charlebois for the completion of Carrier, Lainé & Co.'s contract?—There was an agreement made; I do not believe it was a contract. It amounts to the same thing.

110. I put in the original contract (Exhibit 3, fyled)?—This is a copy; it is "signed." It is not Carrier, Lainé & Co.'s signature I think.

111. Where would the original be?—In the Department.

112. Will you bring the original?—It is not in my possession. It is in the hands of the Record Room.

113. Can you tell me from memory the date of the agreement mentioned by you as having been made with Charlebois, whereby he agreed to do part of Carrier, Lainé & Co.'s contract?—I do not remember the date.

114. I have the document here. Do you recognize the signature to that document, "A. Charlebois"?—Yes, sir.

115. Do you recognize the document as a whole?—Yes, sir.

116. What is that document?—It is the agreement with Charlebois to place the joists in position.

117. And dated 22nd April, 1886?—Yes.

118. That is the agreement you have referred to?—Yes (Exhibit 4 fyled).

By Mr. Adams :

119. What is the amount of the contract?—He was to put them up at so much per pound.

By Mr. Mulock :

120. This is the agreement with Charlebois, who had part of the contract of Carrier, Lainé & Co.?—Yes.

121. I presume you have made an estimate of the amount earned under Exhibit 4?—Yes; I will bring it at the next meeting.

122. Are you aware of any difficulties which prevented Carrier, Lainé & Co. from performing their contract?—I believe they had no machinery for hoisting.

123. Do you not remember this, Mr. Fuller—I have got my information from an examination of these papers, and I find from the papers, as near as I can remember it,—I may be in error—that when Carrier, Lainé & Co. had part of their material, perhaps all of it, at the station at Ottawa,—I do not know when—but, at all events, whenever they had it, they were refused access to the building by Charlebois & Co.?—I believe that is correct.

124. And they were also refused permission to use any of his plant to complete their works?—I believe so.

125. And thus they were unable to complete their contract?—They did not complete it.

126. Do you know why they did not?—On that account, I suppose.

127. Were they then, in consequence of that difficulty, relieved of that part of their contract?—It appears so. I think you asked that question before, and I told you I would look up the correspondence.

128. Part of the correspondence is here; only a small portion, but enough to tell us that there is a much larger quantity not here. It may be necessary for you to read what is here as a beginning?—Very well.

129. Can you tell us how the Government settled with Carrier, Lainé & Co.; on what basis they settle?—Carrier, Lainé & Co. offered to make a deduction. I do not remember the amount.

130. How much did you pay Carrier, Lainé & Co.?—I do not remember.

131. That would involve a knowledge of the amount of the deduction?—Yes.

132. Did they make any claim afterwards for damages?—I do not remember to the best of my recollection.

133. I would like you to refresh your memory on that point too. Can you say what it cost the Government to have the joists and the girders and all the works originally mentioned in Carrier, Lainé & Co's contract performed.—I can tell you sir, but I have not got it in detail.

134. Was there any intention at first including the iron roofing in the original contract? (Mr. Adams objected to the question being put, and the objection was sustained).—It was never included in the contract.

135. Do you recollect whether in the original instructions, to prepare specifications you were directed in the beginning to omit the iron roof from the contract?—I did so.

136. Your instructions were to that effect?—I did so on my own responsibility.

137. As an expert?—As an expert.

138. It was not intended to be included in the first contract?—No sir, nor the joists.—You see what a time elapsed from the signing of the contract to the roof being required.

139. When the Government were about to advertise for tenders for the iron roof, do you remember the correspondence passing between Charlebois and the Department?—I remember there was some correspondence.

140. Is the whole of that correspondence produced?—I do not know sir.

141. Do you happen to remember his asking that there should be a condition inserted requiring tenderers to make arrangements with him first for access to the building and the premises.—I do not remember that, but I remember we did so.

142. You did that?—We made it a condition in the specifications that any person tendering was to make all arrangements with Mr. Charlebois for placing the roof in position.

143. I will ask you to produce the advertisement and condition showing that. I hand you a letter dated the 23rd June 1886, from A. Charlebois to Sir Hector Langevin. Did you ever see that letter before?—It is in French, I think.

144. Do you recognize the signature?—Yes, it is Mr. Charlebois' signature.

145. What official stamp is there on that letter?—The stamp of the Department of Public Works.

146. What is the date?—25th June, 1886.

147. What does that stamp indicate?—That it was received by the Department on that date.

148. I will read it to you. It is in French, but of course if the Committee are not satisfied with my translation, we can get some one else to translate it.

“HONOURABLE SIR,—As you have had the kindness to tell me some days ago, that you were satisfied with the execution of the works, that I have undertaken for the Government and that you would be satisfied if I could say at the conclusion of the works that the whole of it had been completed, even to the iron work, roofing, &c., which ought to be given after tender had been made by me. I believe that considering that I have been obliged to make arrangements with the corporation for the use of the street, &c., and to incur other expenses for tools, and besides that under my contract I am responsible for all damage to the building until the date of delivery and that you have not inserted a clause permitting others except officers of the Department to have the right of admission on the works while under my control, the Government might avoid all misunderstanding and protect me by inserting a clause requiring tenderers before sending in their tenders to make arrangement with the contractor for the use of his land and scaffold and plant, tools, &c., which might be necessary to put the roof in position.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

(Sgd.) A. CHARLEBOIS.

I file this letter (Exhibit 5, filed).

148a. Do you remember seeing that letter?—Yes.

149. What action was taken by the Department in consequence of that letter?—It was not so much in consequence of that letter as trouble we have had previously.

150. What about the suggestion? Did you think it was a good one?—I thought it was a good one.

151. Did you act on it?—I acted on it.

152. That is in advertising for tenders for the roof?—Yes.

153. What tenders came in for the roof?—I remember there were three.

154. There were three tenders put in for the iron roof? Can you tell me the amounts of those tenders?—I do not remember the amount of them.

155. Do you remember the names?—Yes, there was the Hamilton Bridge Co.

156. But which was the lowest?—Rousseau & Mather of Montreal.

157. Do you remember the amount of their tender?—I do not remember exactly, but it was under $41,000.

158. Do you recognize the document which I now hand to you?—Yes, it is my report on the tenders.

159. The document produced is the report of Mr. Fuller, dated 20th of August, 1886, upon the various tenders for the iron roof. (Exhibit 6, filed).—Yes.

160. Have you the original tender of Rousseau, Mather & Co.?—No, it is not in my possession?

161. Where is it?—It is in the Department. There is an Order in Council also respecting it.

162. I think I can find it here. Is this the tender of Rousseau & Mather for the iron roof?—(Having examined document) Yes, sir.

163. And annexed to it is what?—Nothing more than the outside of the envelope. (Exhibit 7 filed.)

164. I now put in the tender of the Hamilton Bridge Company as exhibit No. 8. You remember that?—Yes, sir.

165. And this document which will be exhibit No. 9?—That is Charlebois' tender.

166. Were these all the tenders received in answer to the advertisement?—I believe so.

167. That is for the iron roofing?—Yes.

168. They were then, Rousseau & Mather, $42,975; Hamilton Bridge Co., $46,000; A. Charlebois, $77,500. Do you remember those figures?—Yes.

169. And the tender was awarded to Rousseau & Mather?—It was not awarded, it was offered.

170. Was it let to Rousseau & Mather?—No.

171. Why not?

Mr. Adams objected to the question being answered as the reasons had been reduced to writing by Mr. Fuller, and were already filed as exhibit No. 6. Objection sustained.

172. When the contract was awarded to Rousseau & Mather did you notify them?—It is not my duty to notify them.

173. Was a notification sent to them?—They were offered the contract.

By Mr. Adams:

174. It was not awarded to them?—No; it was simply offered.

By Mr. Mulock:

175. Do you remember a telegram of August 14th, the year is not mentioned, but suppose it is 1886, being received at the Department from Rousseau & Mather?—Yes; I remember it.

176. This is the telegram (Exhibit No. 10 filed):

“MONTREAL, August 14.

“We are prepared to sign contract. Give orders to send us blue prints. Wire us acceptance so we may cable to England to fill order. No time to lose.

“(Signed) ROUSSEAU & MATHER.”

Do you remember a letter dated 12th August from Rousseau & Mather?—Yes, sir.

177. I will read it.

“MONTREAL, August 12, 1886.

“A. GOBEL, Esq.,

“Secretary of the Public Works Department,

“Ottawa.

“DEAR SIR,—We beg to inform you that if the Government favour us with the contract for Departmental Buildings roof, we are prepared to carry out the conditions of our tender and deliver works on November 1st, as called for. As the time presses we would feel obliged to you for an early answer.

“Yours truly,

“ROUSSEAU & MATHER,

(Exhibit No. 11 filed.)

“Per A. Rousseau, A. A. Mather.”

178. What answer did you send to that letter?—It is not addressed to me.

179. What answer was sent?—I do not know.

180. I would like copies of the answers produced at the next meeting. I want you to produce all the correspondence with Rousseau & Mather touching their tender and any settlements made with them except, of course, such documents as we have here. For your information, Mr. Fuller, I may state that you will find a list of the documents that apparently bear upon this question in No. 75193, which is a synopsis of correspondence re Rousseau & Mather's claim in connection with the Departmental buildings, Ottawa.—Does that include all the documents here?

181. Some are here and some are not. The contract then, was not let to Rousseau & Mather?—No.

182. Does the memorandum signed by you, of the 20th September 1886, show how the tenders were adjudicated upon?—Yes.

183. And the reasons for the lowest tender not having been accepted?—Yes.

184. Who did get the contract for the roof?—Charlebois.

185. At what price?—$60,000.

186. After the contract was let to Charlebois, did you receive any letter from Rousseau & Mather upon the subject?—This is a letter to the Secretary of the Department, not to me.

187. What is the date of that letter?—13th October, 1886.

188. Will you read it please?

“ MONTREAL, October 13th 1886.

“ A. Gobeil, Esq.,

“ Dear Sir,

“ Please find enclosed our account for expense and damages in re roof tender, Departmental Building, which we hope will be looked upon favorably. We need not tell you that, if the Government had not the right of way, it has not the right to call for tenders to put on roof.

“ Not wishing to be exacting, we charge only half the profit we would have realized. This claim is a just one, when we consider that the Government is paying $17,000 to Mr. Charlebois over and above our tender, and for that reason, we feel very sore about this, and we will maintain our claim.

“ Yours truly,

“ (Signed),

ROUSSEAU & MATHER

“ Per G. B.”

189. What is the amount of the claim?—$3,898.50 (Exhibit 12 filed.)

190. I see according to the statement of claim they put down “ half of profit,” that would be realized had the contract been awarded to us as we were entitled to $3,500?—Yes.

191. You remember having a conversation with Mr. Charlebois in regard to his tendering for the roof?—I had several conversations with him.

192. But before you adjudicated upon Rousseau and Mather's tender?—I am not aware.

193. You do not remember?—No.

194. When did you decide to report in favor of Charlebois second tender of $60,000 for the roof?—About the date of the Report.

195. Then prior to making the Report of 20th September 1886, you had the three original tenders I have spoken of and also the subsequent tender from Charlebois?—No, the subsequent tender was dated 19th August, 1886. (Exhibit 13 filed.)

By Mr. Adams :

196. What is the amount of that tender?—$60,000. The tender is as follows:—

OTTAWA, 19th August, 1886.

SIR,—I will be prepared to undertake the construction and erection of the iron work of the roof of the new Departmental building, Wellington street, according to the terms and specifications for the sum of $60,000.

Having the certainty that the main walls of the building will be completed for the first November, it is of the greatest interest to me that the work on the roof should be enough advanced during this present season, so as to enable me to proceed with my other works in the interior of the building during the coming winter. Hoping to receive a favourable answer at an as early a date as possible.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Yours obedient servant,

(Signed) A. CHARLEBOIS.

THOS. FULLER, Esq.,

Chief Architect, Public Works, Ottawa.

Mr. ADAMS.—I think we should now have Mr. Fuller's report read.

The CHAIRMAN (reading exhibit No. 6).

Memorandum.

Re Tenders for iron roofs, New Department Buildings, Ottawa.

TENDERS :

Rousseau & Mather .....	$42,975
Hamilton Bridge Works.....	46,000
A. Charlebois.....	77,500
Estimate by Department. ....	$58,800

The tender of Messrs Rousseau & Mather being so much under what was considered by the Department to be the fair value of the work, there appeared to have been some mistake or omission. Therefore, by direction of the Honorable the Minister, Messrs. Rousseau & Mather were telegraphed on the 31st ultimo to come to Ottawa, in order that explanations might be obtained as to what arrangements they had made to execute the works if the contract were awarded them.

Messrs. Rousseau & Mather arrived here on the 2nd instant, and stated that they had not made any arrangements with the contractor for the building, either as regards the hoisting and erection of the roofs, or for providing a "piling ground" for the delivery of all material ready for placing in position, all of which were required by the conditions of the specifications. Before deciding to accept the contract they asked to be allowed a short time in order to see what arrangements they could make. This was granted. At this interview, Messrs. Rousseau and Mather stated that there was a mistake of several thousands of dollars in their tender; but, of course, they did not expect that to be allowed then.

On the 12th instant, they wrote (No. 69833) that they were not able to make satisfactory arrangements, and preferred, under the circumstances, to withdraw their tender and accepted cheque.

The second tender, that of the Hamilton Bridge Company, was informal, as it contained conditions not called for by the specifications and which would materially alter the amount of the tender. The third tender, that of A. Charlebois, was considered unreasonably in excess of what the Department estimated a fair value of the work. To call for new tenders would have caused great delay, and have given the contractor for the building a claim for damages, as he had notified the Department that the walls would be sufficiently advanced, by the 1st November next, to allow the erection of the iron roof to be commenced. It was considered advisable to ascertain from the second tenderer if any terms could be made, by which the work might be progressed without delay. The manager of the Hamilton Bridge Company was, therefore, summoned here by telegraph and arrived here on the 13th instant.

In the meantime, Messrs. Rousseau & Mather wrote (No. 69879) that they had had another interview with Mr. Charlebois, and asked to be allowed two or three days before giving a definite answer. This was granted. On the 14th instant they wired (No. 69914) that they were prepared to sign the contract and asked that acceptance be at once telegraphed them so that they might cable England to fill the order for iron. The reply telegraphed was that no authority could be given until the contract was signed, and that it would be ready for signature on or before noon the 17th instant.

On the 16th instant, Messrs. Rousseau and Mather wrote (No. 69928) in confirmation of their telegram of the 14th.

Owing to pressure of business the contract was not ready for signature until the 18th instant, after perusing it, Messrs. Rousseau & Mather objected to the clause making them responsible for the arrangements to be made with the contractor for the building, so that there might be no disputes or delays hereafter in the prosecution of the work of hoisting and erecting in place the various portions of the iron roof, and asked that the clause be expunged. This could not be allowed, as the clause was necessary, and also covered the purpose for which the application of Messrs. Rousseau & Mather for the re-consideration of the withdrawal of their tender was granted, and, when the matter was submitted to the Honourable the Minister they positively declined the contract. At the interview of the 14th instant with the manager of the Hamilton Bridge Company, he stated that, in making up their tender, no arrangements had been made with the contractor for the building for hoisting or erecting the iron work of the roof, nor had any provision been made for a "piling ground," that the tender submitted was made low under the supposition that an extension of time for the delivery of the material until April 1st as stipulated by the Company would be granted; that under ordinary circumstances, all the work might be delivered by the 1st of November, as called for by the conditions and specifications, but that they could not undertake it without a considerable addition to their tender owing to the large amount of work they had on hand, though he was not then prepared to state the terms upon which the Company could be induced to assume the work.

As the prosecution of the work is very urgent, and, as before stated, to call for new tenders would entail delay of probably at least one year in the completion of the building, it was considered advisable to ascertain what terms could be made with Mr. Charlebois so that he should assume all responsibility of every description and guarantee that the work would proceed without delay.

After a full explanation and discussion of the whole matter, Mr. Charlebois stated that the delay which had been granted Messrs. Rousseau & Mather would oblige him to pay an increased amount to induce reliable parties to undertake to deliver the work on time, still, as it was of great importance to him as well as to the Government that the building should be completed as speedily as possible, he would undertake the whole work, assuming the entire responsibility, for the sum of $60,000, and guaranteed to have sufficient portions of the iron principals erected in position to enable him to have the whole covered in so as to form a thorough protection and thereby enable him to proceed with interior work during the winter, which would materially hasten the completion of the building.

Unless arrangements could have been made between the respective contractors it is believed that both parties would have caused endless disputes, involving delays, and thereby claims for heavy damages, which would have entailed large legal and other expenses, besides a delay of probably another year in the completion of the building.

Therefore, under all the circumstances, and with the view to as early occupation of the building as possible, I consider it would be in the public interest to accept the offer of Mr. Charlebois to undertake the whole of the work and assume all the responsibility for the sum of $60,000, which amount is only $2,000 in excess of the departmental estimate.

I would further recommend that the cheques of the other tenderers be returned.

(Signed)

THOMAS FULLER,

Chief Architect.

By Mr. Mulock :

197. Did that report, as far as you know, go before the Council?—I believe so.
198. What action did they take on it?—They accepted Mr. Charlebois' offer.
199. They acted on the Report?—Yes.
200. Is that the Order in Council?—Yes. (Exhibit 14 filed.)
201. You recollect that Report of Council allowing the contract to Charlebois for $60,000?—Yes, Sir.
202. Had you a tender from Charlebois for $50,000 at the time you made a report?—I believe so.
203. Exhibit No. 13, is Charlebois' amended tender?—Yes.
204. How did Charlebois know that none of the original tenders were accepted?—I do not know exactly how he came to know it. The cheques were returned of course.
205. The tenders sent in had all been rejected?—Yes.
206. Prior to the 19th August?—Yes.
207. Who had rejected them?—The Department of Public Works.
208. By what form, or in what way, did they show they had rejected the three tenders?—There was no action upon them that I know of. Rousseau and Mather had withdrawn their tender, the Hamilton Bridge Co., declined to take the work, and Charlebois' tender was considered too high.
209. Do you say that Rousseau and Mather withdrew their tender?—Yes.
210. Did they not find it impossible to get the consent of Charlebois?—I do not know how that was, but they withdrew their tender.
211. You inserted a condition that they were to make terms with Charlebois to gain access to the building?—Yes.
212. Are you aware it caused difficulties to Rousseau & Mather?—I believed it did.
213. And compel them to withdraw their tender?—In conversation with them they said they had been unable to make any arrangement with the contractor whatever.
214. Which rendered it impossible for them to do the work?—That was after their tender was in.
215. So that they could not get on the premises to fill the contract?—Yes.
216. By reason of not having made arrangements with Charlebois?—Yes.
217. And in that way, they were unable to satisfy you that they could carry out the contract?—They declined to carry it out.
218. What reason did they give for declining?—They said they could not carry it out.
219. For what reason?—Because they could not make any arrangement with Charlebois.
220. For what purpose?—For getting into the building.
221. When did Charlebois learn that the tenders that had been put in had been rejected?—Just before he put in his second tender.
222. From whom did he learn that?—I do not know whether he learned it from the Secretary of the Department or not. I remember I spoke to him about it.
223. You spoke to Charlebois?—Yes.
224. Where?—In my office.
225. When?—I do not know the time, but it was after the rejection of all the tenders.
226. I want you to produce at the next meeting whatever memo. or minute there is in the Department referring to the rejection of the tenders?—I do not think there is any; they would be in the Secretary's charge if there were any.
227. You believe all the tenders were rejected on or before a certain date?—The only one that was rejected was Charlebois'; the others were withdrawn.
228. Whatever you have to say on the subject, I want the record produced here on which you base that statement. Does the report on which the Order in Council was based set forth truly the circumstances under which those various tenders were disposed of?—Yes.

229. When you say they were rejected or withdrawn, or how dealt with, all you say then is to be controlled by the report that you made to the Department?—That is all I have to say.

230. That memorandum sets forth the fate of those various tenders?—Yes; it sets forth everything.

231. How did you come to have a conversation with Charlebois, one of the tenderers?—He was contractor for the building, and it was only natural that I should tell him about the tenders.

232. Did you ask him to tender?—No.

233. Did he offer to tender?—He offered to tender.

234. Did you tell him the amount for which the others had tendered?—No.

235. Did he have access to those tenders?—I cannot tell you; they were not in my possession.

236. Who had possession of them?—The Secretary, Mr. Gobeil.

237. Was this tender of his of the 19th August, 1886, delivered to you or to the Secretary of the Department?—It was delivered to me. It is directed to me.

238. At the Department?—Yes.

239. In whose handwriting is the body of the tender?—I do not know. The signature is Charlebois'. The body of the tender is probably his clerk's.

240. The contract was let to Charlebois, I believe?—Yes.

241. Is this the contract?—Yes.

(Exhibit 15 filed.)

242. What is the date of it?—3rd of September, 1886.

243. I believe in your report you mention that Charlebois will be ready with the walls to receive the principals of the roof by the 1st November, 1886?—I say that he said so.

244. Did you believe him?—I do not know. I do not think he was quite ready, but he was very nearly ready.

245. Were the principals erected in 1886?—I think not.

246. When were they erected?—I forget, sir.

247. In that winter?—No; I think not.

248. When was it? How soon after?—It was early in the following spring.

249. When was the building roofed over, either temporarily or otherwise?—There was a temporary roof put on for the winter.

250. In what year?—In 1886.

251. When was it put on?—In the fall.

252. You had contemplated in September that Charlebois would have made sufficient advance to enable the roof to be put on?—A portion of it, with a temporary covering over it. I thought the principals would be in place to enable the temporary roof to go on.

253. What do you mean by "principals"?—The main trestles.

254. In August, 1886, you thought if you let the contract for the roof to Charlebois that the walls would be sufficiently advanced to enable him to have the main trestles in permanent position in the fall, so as to admit of a temporary roof being erected over the building for the winter?—Yes.

255. You were disappointed in that, I understand?—I was.

256. As it turned out, the walls were not in position?—Not in some places.

257. So that the principals or trestles were not put on until the spring?—No.

258. At the time you made the report you were very anxious to get the work completed?—I was anxious, but at the same time I desired to avoid any claim he might have against the Government if he had been ready.

259. At all events, you were influenced by his undertaking that he would have it ready by the time specified?—By his official notice that he would be ready.

260. Did Charlebois erect the roof according to contract?—I believe so.

261. I think the contract called for an iron roof?—It does. Are you speaking of the covering now?

262. Yes?—The covering was changed from iron to copper.

263. How was it that you changed from iron to copper?—Because copper was better.

264. Why did you not indicate that in your specification?—Because at that time iron was cheaper.

265. Are you able to tell me now how much has been paid to Charlebois on his roofing contract?—I can tell you what the amount was that he claimed and what we allowed him.

266. Have you adjudicated upon his claim for the roof?—Yes.

267. Finally?—Yes.

268. In your capacity as architect?—Yes.

269. What have you awarded him?—I can tell you what we awarded him above his contract. It was $3,857.85—in all, $63,857.85.

270. That is for all the changes to the roof?—Exclusive of the copper.

By Mr. Adams :

271. What is this $3,857.85 for? Was it for changing from iron to copper?—No; it is for additional work.

By Mr. Skinner :

272. Was the cover included in the $60,000 contract as iron or not?—The iron covering was included in the first contract of $295,000.

By Mr. Mulock :

273. The iron cover for what?—For the roof.

274. The tender for that says "iron work excepted"?—Yes; but that refers to the iron joists.

275. So that the original contract of $295,000 included the iron roof?—No; the covering for the roof.

276. So that, when we are talking about the contract for the roof we are speaking merely of the framework?—Yes.

277. Not the covering?—Not the covering.

278. So that the $60,000 contract to Charlebois was for the roof, with the exception of the covering?—Everything, except the covering.

279. That he was obliged to do under his original contract?—Yes; in galvanized iron. I say he was bound to do it, but he says not. That is a disputed point between us.

280. You say it was included in the original contract. Has it been adjudicated upon?—So far as I am concerned, it has.

281. Have you made a report upon it?—No; I have merely made out the final estimate.

282. But you are the arbiter?—That is my award.

283. And whatever is necessary to be done as arbiter, you have done?—Yes, except what I have stated. It is now a question of law as to whether the contract includes the covering of the roof.

284. You say there is still a dispute between Charlebois and the Government?—He has not accepted the award.

285. But you, as arbiter, say it is included in the contract of $295,000?—Yes.

286. That is your opinion as arbiter?—Yes.

By Mr. Davies :

287. Charlebois contends to the contrary?—Yes.

By Mr. Mulock :

288. How was it that you changed from iron to copper?—I thought it was better.

289. Who was it made the suggestion?—I did.
 290. It originated with you?—Yes.
 291. Then all the changes in the covering from iron to copper were extras—in the main contract that were in your subsequent figures?—Yes; but the amount for iron was deducted.
 292. What was the cost to the Government of changing from iron to copper?—I do not remember the exact amount—about $7,000. No, that is not correct. I will have to give you the amount later.
 293. You recognize that paper, perhaps?—Yes.
 294. This paper, I understand, is the report of some of the officers as to the three tenders for the roof?—Yes. This is the report of Mr. Baillaigé and myself. The tenders were opened by us.
 295. And the schedules are annexed. This is Mr. Baillaigé's analysis?—Yes.

(Exhibit 16 filed.)

296. I want you to tell me all the departures from the main contract at the next meeting?—What do you mean by departures?
 297. Changes in the specifications?—There was a copper roof.
 298. You changed from galvanized iron to copper?—Yes.
 299. What did that cost?—I cannot answer that now.
 300. What other changes were there?—The stone staircase from the ground to the first floor was put in in iron and slate.
 301. What cost did that change involve?—I can give that information to you afterwards. I cannot give it now.
 The Committee then adjourned.

MONDAY, 6th July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. Wallace in the Chair.

Mr. THOMAS FULLER recalled and further examined:—

By Mr. Mulock:

302. Do you produce any papers, Mr. Fuller?—Yes.
 303. What have you with you?—This is a statement of the claims of the contractor and the amount allowed. It is a full statement of account.
 304. In connection with the Langevin Block?—Yes. (Exhibit 17 filed).
 305. What other papers have you?—This is the abstract of additional work in connection with main contract allowed, and the reasons for allowing it. (Exhibit 18 filed). This one is the abstract of additional work not immediately connected with the main contract, but allowed. (Exhibit 19 filed). This is an abstract of claims for iron roof, showing the amount claimed and what was allowed, and the reasons therefor. (Exhibit 20 filed.) This is an abstract of claims in connection with the contract for iron staircases, showing the amount claimed, the amount allowed, and reasons therefor. (Exhibit 21 filed). This is an abstract showing the amounts deducted, and the amounts allowed where changes in the work have been made. (Exhibit 22 filed). This is an abstract, final estimate for heating. (Exhibit 23 filed). This is an abstract for final estimate for the elevators. (Exhibit 24 filed). This is an abstract, final estimate for iron joists and girders. (Exhibit 25 filed).
 306. Are those all the papers you produce to-day?—Yes.
 307. Speaking of the iron joists, Mr. Fuller, I asked you on the last occasion who paid for the cost of the hauling the iron joists from the station to the building?—The Department.
 308. What was the amount of that cost?—I will give it to you—$207.50.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 21st July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. JOHN FENSOM called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Mulock :

309. You live in Toronto, I believe?—Yes.
310. What is your business?—Elevator builder.
311. Did you see the advertisement for tenders for supplying elevators for the Langevin Block?—I did.
312. The block on Wellington street erected two or three years ago?—Yes.
313. Did you take any steps to tender for the elevators?—Yes.
314. You came to Ottawa in connection with that?—I came to Ottawa.
315. Did you visit the premises?—Yes.
316. Did you prepare a tender?—I prepared a tender.
317. What was the amount of your tender?—My tender was $39,800 and something. I do not remember the figures exactly.
318. Some $39,000?—Yes.
319. Did you see Mr. Charlebois, or any person on his behalf, when you were making up the tender?—I saw Mr. Charlebois at his office when I came down here.
320. How did you come to go to see him?—His office was in the building.
321. You went in the building?—Yes.
322. For what purpose did you go to his office?—Mr. Charlebois asked me into his office. I met him on the building; I had done work for him before.
323. Did he consent to your going on with the work there without any consideration to himself, if you should get the contract?—No; he did not. There was to be a consideration.
324. What was to be the amount of the consideration?—The consideration was to be 25 per cent.
325. Of what?—Of the contract. At first I thought it was on the gross amount, but it was the 25 per cent, added to the amount of my contract.
326. Will you explain that, please; I do not quite understand it?—Should my contract be $32,000, there was $8,000 to be added, making $40,000. It was made $8,000 in the way I speak of. In the first place, I thought it was on the gross amount, and my tender was put in rather higher; when I found it was 25 per cent on the net amount of my contract then my tender was made lower, just about in proportion.
327. Do I understand you to say that your tender would have been about $32,000 but for work you had to pay Mr. Charlebois?—I put in two prices. The first price under that consideration was something over $40,000.
328. That is, including the amount to be paid to Mr. Charlebois?—Including the amount to Mr. Charlebois.
329. Without that what was it?—Without that it would be about $32,000 or $33,000. I could not tell the figures exactly.
330. That was the principle?—That was the principle.
331. Do I understand you to say if you had not had to pay Mr. Charlebois anything your tender would have been $32,000, whereas it was $40,000 under the circumstances?—No, that would not have been the difference, because you see there were all the appliances in the building—everything in the building and the building taken charge of. He explained to me that he had the responsibility of the whole building. He had to keep a watchman, there were insurances of all sorts, all the tackle and plant. That is all I know. He told me he had charge of the building, the responsibility of the insurance, and keeping a watchman, and he made the arrangements with these people to supply planking and tackle, and things of that kind. It is stated, as far as the appliances are concerned, in the agreement that I had with him, that he is to fit me up a shoproom and allow me the use of all tackle and material not otherwise in use.

332. Were all these services rendered to you in this way worth $8,000?—I do not think so.

333. Did you see any notice in the building in regard to any such demand being made on the contractors?—There was a notice in Mr. Charlebois, office, but I do not remember the wording of it exactly, but it was to the effect that contractors would have to pay him 25 per cent. on the amount of their contracts.

334. For what purpose?—He did not state the purpose, I believe. Anyway, I do not remember.

335. But there was a notice in his office that contractors on the building would have to pay to him 25 per cent on what?—On the amount of their contract. That is what it turned out to be.

336. Was it in compliance with that notice that you paid the $8,000?—Yes.

337. After securing your permission to go into the building to perform your contract and the use of his appliances that were there?—Yes.

338. Can you give the Committee any idea as to the rent you would have been willing to pay for the services he rendered you?—It would be very hard to say how much they were worth. There was so much to consider. If he had the right to charge at all it must be worth a good deal—perhaps $2,000 or $3,000.

339. These things that he supplied you, were they there to begin with or had they to be put in?—Most of them were there, but some had to be brought.

340. Most of them were there in connection with his own work, were they?—Yes.

341. Such as what?—Such as planking, and light tackle, heavy tackle, and heavy planking.

342. Did you tell Mr. Fuller that Mr. Charlebois was wishing to charge you this sum of money for permission to go on with this work?—There was a clause in the specification stating that each contractor had to make a satisfactory arrangement with Mr. Charlebois. I saw Mr. Charlebois, as I stated and learned it was 25 per cent. I asked Mr. Fuller what that clause meant. He said I should not come there with any complaints, but that I had better see Mr. Charlebois and make arrangements with him.

By Mr. Foster :

343. He told you what?—He told me it was necessary for me to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois, so as to avoid any trouble with him after my contract-commenced. I did not know that he knew what the amount was. I could not say when I went to see him, but he said he did not want to know.

By Mr. Mulock :

344. Did not want to know what?—This 25 per cent.

345. He told you he did not wish to know?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster :

346. Where did you see the specifications for that work first?—I saw it in the architect's office.

347. Where?—At the West Block.

348. You came to Ottawa in answer to an advertisement, did you?—Yes.

349. The specification was not in Toronto?—No; there were no specifications in Toronto.

350. You came and saw the specification, and then did you put in the tender?—Yes.

351. Before you had seen Mr. Charlebois?—No; not before I had seen Mr. Charlebois.

352. Why did you not?—Well, because of this notice.

353. Which notice?—The notice in the room and the clause in the specification.

354. When you got the specification did you find a clause in it which stated in reality that an arrangement had to be made with Mr. Charlebois, or what did you understand by that?—Well, I understood that I had to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois.

355. What reason would suggest itself to you why you should make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois?—Well, it is very hard to say, because I heard around that he had the privilege of charging 25 per cent. It was talked around then, and you know it was known all over. I could not say exactly how it came, but Mr. Charlebois told me at any rate that I had to pay 25 per cent to him.

356. And he gave what reason for that?—I just want to bring that out clearly?—He told me several things. He told me, for instance, that he had a contract for that building, for the whole of the building, and certain portions were taken out, leaving him the part of the building with the least profit and taking away his percentage on the sub-contracts, and for that reason he was losing on his own work, and thought he was entitled to have a percentage on those of the sub-contractors. He stated also that I should have the right of entrance to the building and the use of all those appliances and conveniences. That was what was explained to me.

357. So the idea, I suppose, from that was, that he must have that percentage for the use of the appliances, shop-room, tackle, and so forth?—Yes.

358. And the right to work in the building, insurance, and every thing of that kind?—Yes.

359. The 25 per cent was a consideration to be paid to him in view of those conveniences, appliances, and the like, that he had?—Yes.

360. But was it made plain to you that over and above the cost of those conveniences Mr. Charlebois wanted something to make up for his loss of profits on the main building?—That was what Mr. Charlebois explained to me.

361. He told you that, did he?—Yes; he told me that.

362. He did not put it simply on the ground of those conveniences?—No; it was put almost entirely on the other ground.

363. That he lost on the main contract; and was bound to make it up on those others?—Yes; that is what he told me.

364. After you had seen Mr. Charlebois, you put in your tender did you?—Yes.

365. That was your first tender, was it?—Yes.

366. What was the amount of it?—Something about $41,000, I think.

367. You put in your tender, supposing you had not been charged anything by Mr. Charlebois, at about what?—Thirty-two or thirty-three thousand. I am speaking from memory now.

368. And the nine thousand was to make up?—Yes; the 25 per cent. of the gross amount, as I understood them.

369. Then you put in a second tender, did you?—Yes.

370. In the same name?—Yes; in the same name.

371. You put in two tenders, did you, with your first?—My first tender was withdrawn. I found that the percentage was on the net amount—the amount of my contract.

372. You found that out from Mr. Charlebois?—Yes.

373. You had not understood it at first?—No; I thought it was on the gross amount.

374-5 Then you withdrew your $41,000 tender and put in a tender for——in which you calculated that the cost to you and your profits would be about $32,000?—Yes; somewhere about that. In the statement between Mr. Charlebois and myself it was put in as a square eight thousand. I wanted to be comfortable with him during the time.

376. Were there any other tenderers besides yourself, do you know?—Yes; I think there were two other tenderers; I know there was one.

377. You got it as the lowest tenderer, did you?—Yes; I suppose so.

By Mr. Adams:

378. You were the lowest tenderer?—I think so; I don't know.

By Mr. Foster:

379. You know you got the contract?—Certainly.

380. And you know there were other tenderers?—I know there was one other tenderer, and I think there were two.

381. Those must have made similar arrangements with Mr. Charlebois?—Yes; I know one did.

382. If they had not, they would have under-cut you, I suppose?—Yes.

By Mr. Mills (Annapolis):

383. I would like you to re-state why it was Mr. Charlebois would lose on the general contract?—The way he explained it to me was, that he had the whole contract—the roofing, and stairs, and elevators, and all the other parts were in his contract—and they were taken out. He had made his tender up with his profits in for those portions of the sub-contracts and they were taken out.

384. They were taken out of his original contract?—Taken out of his original contract. He explained that to me; so he would lose all the profits he would make on these sub-contracts.

By Mr. Foster:

385. How long were you at work putting in your own elevators?—Four or five months.

386. During that time was Mr. Charlebois' work proceeding on the main building?—Yes; they were working.

387. Can you give me any idea of the cost that your operations, if carried on in conjunction with this work, would put him to, that is, in the way of retarding his work?—Well, we did interfere with one another a good deal in that work. There were two or three contractors working on the stairways at the same time.

388. You were there about four months?—Yes.

389. That would necessarily retard Mr. Charlebois' work?—Yes; it would necessarily.

390. When you spoke about the two or three thousand dollars that the privilege was worth, did you take into consideration the amount of cost to him from the retardation of his work?—No; I did not.

391. What you meant by the two or three thousand dollars was, that if you had to provide your own room, put on your own insurance, get your own tackle, and the like of that, you would have had to put in a tender two or three thousand dollars higher in order to recoup yourself?—Some amount higher.

392. That did not at all include the cost Mr. Charlebois would be put to by the retardation of his work through your operations?—No.

393. How much would you calculate that would be—have you any idea?—I could not say. It is a large building, and there was so much going on that I do not know that I could.

394. Only you know, as you say, your workmen being there at the same time, would retard his work?—It would retard each other.

395. Considerably?—Yes; considerably. It was very troublesome, so many working at the same time.

By Mr. Mulock :

396. I think you mentioned that one of your tenders was some $32,000?—Yes ; it was $32,000 or $33,000. It was $41,000, or somewhere about that, with a 25 per cent.

397. Had you prepared a tender before you saw Mr. Charlebois at all?—No ; only I figured on it.

398. You figured on it?—Yes.

399. Had you figured on it before you saw Mr. Charlebois?—Well, no because I figured it up there. I was in and out some days, you know, figuring at this work there.

400. And the $8,000 that you gave him was intended to be 25 per cent of what otherwise would have been your contract?—Yes ; except some addition for the want of these conveniences.

By Mr. Somerville :

401. That surely could not have been worth two or three thousand dollars for the use of all these appliances?—I don't know. You have to consider that all over the walls and all around there was this planking. There was temporary stairs put up, which we had to use, and tackling all over. I don't know it would be possible for anyone to estimate it unless they went into detail and made it up. I have had great experience in the work, and I could not tell within 50 per cent now of what it would cost. I would not like to do it.

By Mr. Bowell :

402. Had you been in Mr. Charlebois place, would you have allowed every contractor to come in and do the work without a consideration?—I would not ; not for the way he had control of the building. I certainly think Mr. Charlebois was right in charging some percentage on the contract.

By Mr. McGregor :

403. It is not usual for contractors to have control of a building, as in this case?—Well, it does occur, but I don't think it is usual. I think there is some provision made in the beginning.

404. And you don't usually pay 25 per cent to ordinary contractors when you go into the building?—No ; I have never done that before. I only came across one case, and then I tendered to the architect, but not to the contractor, the same as I did here.

405. I suppose if Mr. Charlebois had not been there contracting, your tender would not have been more than a thousand or two thousand more, would it?—No. Then I would look more closely into it, just the same as an original contractor would.

By Mr. McMullen :

406. Could Mr. Charlebois have done the work for $32,000?—I do not think he could.

407. What additional amount to your contract would have enabled him to perform the work you did?—He could have done it for the same amount if he had a mind to do it without profit.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

408. You would have had some profit on your work?—Yes, I had ; but not so much as I expected.

By Mr. Bowell :

409. This business with you is a specialty?—Yes ; it is my particular business.

410. And a man who is not in the business, as you are, would not be likely to do it as cheap as you could?—I do not think he could.

Mr. THOMAS FULLER recalled, sworn and further examined:—

By Mr. Bowell :

411. Mr. Fensom, the contractor for the placing of the elevators in what is termed the Langevin Block, has just given evidence, in which he says he put in his tender for elevators at $39,800 and something, included in which was $8,000 to be paid to Mr. Charlebois, the contractor for the building. Could you give us any reasons why that amount should be paid to Mr. Charlebois?—No; I know nothing of what was paid.

412. Do you know of any reason why Mr. Charlebois should make a charge of that kind?—It is not customary. I do not know any case where it has occurred any more.

413. Are you aware of any inconvenience to which Mr. Charlebois would have been put by allowing the contractors to go into the building to place the elevators in position?—Of course it would take up his room in which he was working himself.

414. To what extent would he be inconvenienced?—I have no idea; I cannot give you any idea of that.

415. How you tell the Committee why there was not a provision in the contract which, I suppose, was prepared by yourself, for permitting persons who would have to take sub-contracts to enable them to enter on the work?—I never knew a contractor to make any objection of this kind before.

By Mr. Foster :

416. Was there not a clause in the specifications which stated that the tenderer for the elevators, for instance, would have to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois, and generally, in fact, that every tenderer for the elevators must first see Mr. Charlebois to find out how much they would have to pay him?—They had to make terms with him.

417. What terms?—I do not know.

418. What was considered the terms when such a clause was put in the specification?—That the Department should not have any trouble at all. Looking at the previous contracts, we had so much trouble that we desired to prevent it in future.

419. You guaranteed no right of way?—No.

420. And that had to be arranged with Mr. Charlebois?—Yes.

By Mr. Bowell :

421. Why were the contracts given out separately?—It was usual for us to do so.

422. Is it not usual, when they were given out separately, that there should be a proviso to permit the sub-contractors on the building to do the work?—As I said before, I never knew one, before this contract, where they had been refused access to the building.

423. In the specification or contract I think you told us the last time you were here, that the parties who had to put the roof on the building also had to make arrangements with the contractor?—I will show you what the clause in my specification is: "Each party or firm must furnish with tender a guarantee to have the contract completed within a specific period, after it is awarded him or them; and that he or they will make arrangement with the contractor for the building for space required for workshops, storage and material, &c., and will hold himself or themselves responsible for any damage that may occur to any portion of the building during the progress and up to the completion of his or their contract." That is the reading of the contract.

By the Chairman :

424. Is that the specification or the contract?—The specification and the contract.

By Mr. Mulock :

425. The general conditions under which they tendered?—Yes. The clause in the heating contract read : “Contractors for heating apparatus must make arrangements with the contractor for the building for space required for workshops, storage of material, &c., and will be held responsible for any damage that may occur to any portion of the building during the progress and up to the entire completion of the work appertaining to heating apparatus.”

By Mr. Bowell :

426. Why was that clause placed in the specifications and not in the others? Because we had so much trouble.

427. With Charlebois?—Between Charlebois and Carrier & Lainé, and Rousseau & Mather.

428. And it was to relieve the Department of further responsibility?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster :

429. In how many sub-contracts did this clause appear?—Just the two—the elevator and heating. There was a clause in the specification for the iron roof that the contractor must find his own piling ground and be responsible for any damage that might occur.

430. How many sub-contractors were there in that building?—There was one for the iron joists, one for the roof, one for the elevators, and one for the heating.

431. Four?—Four, and one for the stairway; but that was not a sub-contract; it was a separate contract.

By the Chairman :

432. Were the conditions in the original contract with Charlebois for the construction of the main building the same in the specifications as is usual in your several contracts for public buildings?—They were exactly the same, but since this difficulty has occurred we have always put it in the contracts that they are to allow people to go in.

By Mr. Mulock :

433. You have added a clause to the specification?—Yes.

434. The contract with Charlebois was for the completion of the building, with the exception of the iron work?—Yes.

435. And that first contract to Charlebois is referred to as the main contract?—The main contract.

436. Then, the next contract that was entered into was with Carrier & Lainé, for the supply of iron joists, and putting them in position?—Yes; and putting them in position.

437. And about the time they were ready to put them into position the Department learned there was a dispute between Carrier & Lainé, and Charlebois?—Yes.

438. Charlebois contending they were not entitled to enter the building without his permission?—Yes.

439. And that dispute ended in the Department relieving Carrier & Lainé of that portion of their contract which required them to put the joists into position? When that objection was made by Charlebois the matter was referred to the Department of Justice, and they stated that it was within his rights to refuse.

440. And the Department of Public Works, acting upon that advice, relieved Carrier & Lainé?—Not at that time.

441. At some time afterwards?—Yes.

442. Did you wish to add anything to the report of the Department of Justice?—The report of the Department of Justice was to the effect that they had a right to enter, but they were liable for all damages.

443. Well, the result of whatever advice you had was that you relieved Carrière & Lainé of that part of their contract which required them to put up joists in the building?—Yes.

444. And you gave that part of the contract to Charlebois, of course?—Yes.

445. And subsequently, about the time you were going to advertise for tenders for the roof, Charlebois wrote the Department a letter advising the Department that in regard to further contracts, for instance the roofing, to avoid any further misunderstanding you should put in a condition in which the tenderer was required to show that he had made his arrangements with Charlebois?—Yes.

446. He must show you he had got Charlebois' consent to tender for the roof?—He had to find his own piling ground.

447. And to get Charlebois' consent?—No.

448. You swore so the last time, I think?—If I did I made a mistake then.

449. Then you next advertised for tenders for the iron stairway?—The iron stairway, I think.

450. And what did you put in the conditions about the iron stairway?—Something of the same idea.

451. Let us hear what it was: "The contractors will be responsible for any damage to the building consequent upon the erection of staircases, and will have to make good such damage to the satisfaction of the Department of Public Works."

By the Chairman :

452. That is a copy of the specifications that were issued in asking for tenders?—In asking for tenders,—yes.

By Mr. Mulock :

453. And the next contract was with whom?—Garth Company, of Montreal, I think.

454. Did Garth Company have to pay Charlebois any money?—Yes; they notified the Department they had to do so.

455. You did not know yourself?—I remember hearing it from them.

456. And the last contract was with John Fensom?—Yes; with John Fensom.

457. These represent the contracts?—Yes.

By Mr. Gordon :

458. Do you recollect the legitimate amount of the various contracts?—I don't remember them now, sir, but I gave them to you the other day.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, FRIDAY, July 24th, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. HENRY GARTH, of Montreal, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Mulock :

459. I believe you had a contract for performing certain work in what is known as the Langevin Block in Ottawa?—Yes.

460. What part of the work did you perform?—Heating apparatus.

461. Did you yourself prepare a tender?—Yes, sir.

462. Did you come to Ottawa in regard to it?—No; I made it down in Montreal.
 463. Were you in Ottawa before you prepared it?—No, sir.
 464. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Charlebois in regard to your work before you put in your tender?—No, sir.
 465. Did anyone for you?—No, sir.
 466. I understand that you had to pay him a sum of money?—Yes, sir.
 467. What was that for?—For permission to get into the building.
 468. How much was that?—$3,750 I think it was.
 469. To do your work?—For permission to get into the building to do the work.
 470. And you paid that amount to Charlebois?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Foster :

471. What was the amount of your contract?—$15,500.

By Mr. Mulock :

472. That would be 25 per cent which you had to pay him, then?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster :

473. Did you use any of Charlebois' appliances?—I got the use of his different things to enable me to go on with my work.

474. Then this $3,750, which you paid as a consideration, was for something more than the mere permission to enter the building?—Oh, yes.

475. Please state what it was. You say you paid $3,750. That was not simply to let your body into the building?—Oh, no; it was to cover insurance;—different things, night watchman, appliances, use of room, &c.

476. Insurance, watchman and appliances?—Yes.

477. What appliances would they be?—Blocks, tackle and different things. Lots of things which I could not mention.

478. Suppose you had not paid this money to Mr. Charlebois and got the use of his room, insurance, watchman, appliances, and the like of that, how much would they have cost you?—That is pretty hard to tell.

479. It would have cost you considerable?—Yes; it would. I guess it would have come pretty near to what I paid him.

By Mr. Mulock :

480. Then you were quite satisfied to make the payment?—Yes, sir.

481. Quite satisfied?—Quite satisfied.

482. Did you get it paid back?—No, sir.

483. Did you consider it in your tender?—No, sir.

484. It was an unexpected payment?—It was a payment I did not expect to make at all, because I had not come to see about it.

485. You did not expect it beforehand?—No, sir.

486. To that extent it reduced your profits?—Yes.

487. And although it reduced your profits you were not surprised?—Surprised at what?

488. At having to make this payment of 25 per cent.?—I was a little surprised.

489. Why?—Because I did not think when I made out the estimate that I would have to pay this money.

490. Why did you not expect this?—Because it is not a thing I had ever done before. I have never had to ask permission before to get into a building.

By Mr. McMullen :

491. You admit you got ample value for it?—Yes.

492. And then you had nothing to complain of?—Not in that sense of the word.

493. Why did not you anticipate something of that kind? You surely expected to supply the necessary plant and appliances for doing the work?—If he had not done it, I would have had to do it.

494. To that extent?—Yes, sir.

495. What amount of profit did you anticipate on your tender when you put it in?—That is pretty hard to tell.

496. You surely formed some idea?—I wanted to get the job, and I took it low enough.

497. How do you explain you did it low enough, when you were called upon to pay 25 per cent which you never anticipated to pay at all, and afterwards finished the work and made money out of it?—No, sir; I lost money out of it.

498. You made no objections to paying the 25 per cent?—I did at the time.

By Mr. Mulock:

499. You say, in a sense you were not surprised. Had you had any such payments to make before?—No, sir.

500. And in that sense you were surprised?—Yes.

501. Then you were, in a sense, surprised at the payment?—Yes, sir.

502. Why?—As I told you, I had never had to do this before, and I did not come up to Ottawa to see about it.

503. You have been in that line of business for some years?—Yes sir.

504. You are doing a large business, I presume?—Yes.

505. Putting in heating apparatus in public buildings?—Yes.

506. What is the usual provision for enabling your line of trade to get into a building?—We never had anything to do but to walk into the building and do the work.

507. When did you commence to do your work there?—I cannot say, sir. I have not got the dates with me.

508. How long were you there?—In the building?

509. Yes.—About nine months altogether.

510. Had you made a business examination to see that this was a reasonable charge?—Yes; I think so.

511. Have you got it here?—No, sir. I just looked over the building to see what I was paying. I have no particular details.

512. I am speaking of the $3,750?—Yes.

512a. You have made no business examination of the services rendered you for that?—No, sir.

513. So it is a mere guess as to whether or not you got value for this payment?—Pretty well so.

514. You could not therefore apportion the expenditure to the different services rendered?—No, sir.

515. You could not say how much would be for the night-watchman?—No, sir.

516. Nor for insurance?—No, sir.

517. Nor for the use of the tackle?—No, sir.

518. Nor for his room?—No.

519. You simply guessed that you got service for the money?—Yes.

520. Did not you have some little difficulty with Charlebois about paying it?—No, sir.

521. Had you no word with him about paying it?—No, sir. At the beginning I told him,—I spoke plainly to him—that I did not think that I should pay it. When he explained the causes and reasons I could not help myself.

522. What causes and reasons?—That we had a right to pay the different expenses incurred by him, such as insurance, risk of fire, watchmen—all those things I have mentioned.

523. Did he tell you he expected to have 25 per cent on all the contracts?—No, sir. He told me that was what I would have to pay him.

524. 25 per cent on the amount of your contract?—Yes.

525. The amount you paid him was based on the amount of your contract?—Yes, sir.

526. Not on the service to be rendered to you?—No.

By Mr. Somerville :

527. When Mr. Charlebois made this demand on you did you go and see the Minister of Public Works, or any officer of the Government, as regards your liability to pay the money?—No, sir.

528. You did not consult anyone?—No, sir.

529. You took it for granted you had to do it?—I took it for granted I had to do it when I saw other contractors doing it.

530. You made the contract with the Government?—Yes.

531. Why did you not go to the Government and ascertain why this demand was made on you?—I think I did notify the Government that it was a proceeding that I never had to do before. I wrote a letter stating that I expected to be refunded the amount.

532. Did you get any answer?—I do not think so.

533. Did not you go to the Department to remonstrate?—No, sir.

By Mr. Barron :

534. When you put in your tender did you include insurance?—No, sir.

535. Did you include watchmen?—I did not include anything.

536. Nor anything in regard to tackle, &c.?—No, sir.

By Mr. Lister :

537. I suppose that is not usual?—No, sir; it is never done.

By Mr. McMullen :

538. Did you put in a bill of extras on your contract?—Yes, sir; there are extras on the contract.

539. How much was it?—I think it was $9,000, if I remember right.

540. You got $9,000 more than your tender, for performing the work?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Foster :

541. What is that—$9,000 for extra work?—For extra work in connection with the contract.

By Mr. Somerville :

542. How was the price regulated for that extra work?—It was the usual price that I charged for extra work.

543. There was no schedule of prices arranged?—No, sir.

544. And you got $9,000 for extra work?—Yes.

545. In connection with the same contract for which you got $15,000, and got $9,000 for extras?—Yes.

By the Chairman :

546. But you performed work for that $9,000, in addition to the $15,000?—

By Mr. Foster :

547. It was work not included in the contract?—It was work not included.

By Mr. Lister :

548. And you just charged your ordinary prices?—Yes.

By the Chairman :

549. What was the nature of the work?—It was a change in the rooms. The rooms were divided, and we had to put different apparatus in those rooms, after they were divided, taking down and lifting up again all through the building.

By Mr. Lister :

550. You did not lose on the extra work, of course?—Not on the extra work, but on anything else I did not get.

By Mr. Mulock :

551. But the extra work helped to make up the loss on the original contract?—I suppose it did.

By Mr. Scriver :

552. Do I understand you to say you had the insurance included?—No, sir; I had no insurance.

553. I understand that, but you were protected by insurance?—Yes.

554. Was there any distinct understanding between you and him as to the amount of that insurance?—No, sir.

555. Well, did you consider the property you had there wholly covered by that insurance?—I considered it covered everything in his insurance.

By Mr. McGregor :

556. Did you consider that if your apparatus had been burned down you would have received compensation from Charlebois for the loss?—I think I would.

557. In other contracts that you had, were payments asked by the contractor?—There may be one or two cases in which we have to do it, but taking the general run I never did it before.

558. Do I understand you never did it before?—Not in Government contracts.

559. Well, did you ever pay the contractor that had charge of the main building anything for insurance before?—No, sir.

560. Or for apparatus?—No, sir.

561. Well, did you not consider it very strange you had this $3,700 to pay when here?—At first I did; when I got explanations I was satisfied.

562. Did you not consider $3,700 was an overcharge, for the convenience you received at the hands of the contractor?—No.

By Mr. McMullen :

563. About this matter of extras. You handed in your bill for extras when you were through the work?—Yes.

564. Who received it from you?—The Department.

565. Was there any reduction made upon the extras you charged?—The account was sent back to look over again, and some alterations were made.

566. I asked you if there was any reduction made?—There was.

567. What was your entire bill of extras in the first place?—I cannot tell you that, because I have got no bill that would show it.

568. What percentage of extras was struck?—I suppose about 10 per cent.

569. You got the balance?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister :

570. You have been doing this kind of work for some years past?—Yes.

571. You say in your experience in Government work you have never been subjected to a charge of this kind before?—Never before.

572. You say that in your tenders you never contemplated any such charge?—No.

573. And that the first intimation you had that such a charge was to be made was after your tender had been accepted?—Yes.

574. And you had commenced to do the work—Yes.

575. In your private contracts have you ever been subjected to such a charge?—Never, sir, with the exception of one case of insurance only.

576. Then, so far as the insurances are concerned, you understood from Mr. Charlebois that the building had been insured by himself?—Yes, sir.

577. For his own protection?—Yes.

578. Was there any arrangement, reduced to writing, between you, whereby, if a loss occurred, you would be entitled to receive any amount of the insurance?—There was not, sir.

579. There was nothing of the kind?—No, sir.

580. Was it necessary that watchmen should be employed continually?—Yes.

581. There were watchmen before you came?—Yes.

582. There were watchmen when you were there?—Yes.

583. They would have been there under any circumstances?—Yes, sir; I suppose so.

584. Has it, or has it not, been customary for a contractor, such as you were, to use the appliances of the main contractor for the purposes of going on with the work, if it were necessary?—Well, no matter what work I got, I would go to the contractor and get permission to use his material.

585. Has it been granted to you?—Yes, sir.

586. Free of charge?—Free of charge in other contracts, yes, sir.

587. So that, as a matter of fact, and this I repeat again, this is the only contract in which you have been compelled to pay a percentage to the principal contractor?

By Mr. Haggart :

588. Was there any notice given in your tender, or by the Department, that you would have to arrange with the contractor?—Well, it was in the specification, sir.

By Mr. Lister :

589. Now, let us understand that. Your contract was to be commenced at a certain period of the other work?—Yes, sir.

590. And is it not usual in all contracts that the principal contractor shall allow the other contractor in when he is ready for them?—Yes, sir.

591. You cannot go in before the work has proceeded a certain distance?—Certainly not.

592. Is that what you understood from the specification?—Which specification?

593. That Mr. Haggart has asked you?—I did not pay any attention to the clause in the specification at all. It was only when I came to Ottawa that I noticed the clause.

594-5. Then had you, or had you not, any paper indicating to you that you must first get permission from the contractor before you tendered?—Only the specification.

596. Did you see it in the specification?—I paid no attention to it.

By Mr. Foster :

597. You were there nine months?—About that, sir.

598. And your work went on at the same time the contractor's work was going on?—Yes, sir.

599. Did your operations impede or retard him to any extent?—We always do our best to keep it so that there will be no trouble between the contractors.

600. Was there any retardation caused by your work?—No, sir.

601. You think it would not incommode him?—Yes, sir.

602. Have you seen Mr. Fuller since?—Yes.

603. Talked this matter over with him?—I never spoke a word to him about this matter.

ALEXANDER MATHER called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Mulock :

604. You are a member of the firm of Rousseau & Mather?—Yes, sir.

605. What is the business of your firm?—Bridge-building.

606. Carrying on business in Montreal?—Yes, sir.

607. I believe your firm put in a tender for the construction and erection of the iron roof of the Langevin Block?—Yes, sir, the Departmental building.

608. Do you remember the amount of your tender—was it $42,975?—I think that is correct.

609. The tender, I see, is dated 29th July, 1886?—Yes, sir.

610. After the tender was sent to Ottawa did you get a communication from the Department?—Yes, sir; some time afterwards.

611. I have a report here which mentions that they sent you a telegram to come to Ottawa?—Yes, sir.

612. You got that telegram, I suppose, and came to Ottawa?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Chapleau :

613. Telegram from whom?—From the Department.

By Mr. Mulock :

614. You came to Ottawa?—Yes, sir.

615. And saw, I suppose, Mr. Fuller?—Saw Mr. Fuller and saw Sir Hector Langevin.

616. What did they tell you?—Well, we were told that we had to make arrangements, I think, with Mr. Charlebois.

617. What arrangements did they say you would have to make with Mr. Charlebois?—Well, I understood we were to get permission to get on to the building, and get on the grounds—that he had full control of the grounds, and would not allow any other one to go on there without his consent.

618. Did you make that arrangement with Mr. Charlebois?—We tried to, but could not come to any settlement.

619. It is stated in a report or memorandum of Mr. Fuller's, marked Exhibit "6," "That Messrs. Rousseau & Mather arrived here"—that is Ottawa, "2nd instant"—that would be the 2nd of August, as this is dated 20th August, "and stated that they had not made any arrangement with the contractor for the building, neither as regards the hoisting and erection of the roof or by providing piling grounds for delivery," and so on. That was correct—you had not made arrangements?—We had not made arrangements.

620. I believe that at a certain stage in the negotiations you withdrew your tender?—Yes.

621. Why was that?—Because we could not come to any arrangement with Mr. Charlebois.

622. You say that at a certain stage you withdrew. Did you afterward get your withdrawal withdrawn and get your tender again under the consideration of the Department?—What does that mean?

623. You observe that your tender was dated July, and at some stage you withdrew it. I find a letter from you dated the 12th of August. Is that your letter?—That is in my handwriting.

624. Whose signature is that?—Mr. Rousseau's.

625. The letter reads as follows:—

(EXHIBIT No. 11.)

"MONTREAL, 12th August, 1886.

"A. GOBEIL, Esq.,
"Secretary of P.W.,
"Ottawa.

"DEAR SIR,—We beg to inform you that if the Government favours us with contract of Departmental Building's roof at Ottawa that we are prepared to carry out the conditions of our tender and deliver the works on November the 1st, as called for. As the time presses, we would feel obliged to you for an early answer.

“ Yours truly,

“ ROUSSEAU & MATHER,

“ Per A. ROUSSEAU,

“ A. C. MATHER.”

You recognize that letter as one from your firm?—Yes.

626. I believe you had anticipated that letter or sent a telegram of the same character. I find a telegram of August 14th as follows:—

(EXHIBIT No. 10.)

“ MONTREAL, August 14th, 1886.

“ To Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN,

“ Ottawa.

“ We are prepared to sign contract. Give orders to send us blue prints. Wire us acceptance, so we may cable to England to fill order. No time to lose.

(Sgd.)

“ ROUSSEAU & MATHER.”

Is that before this letter?

627. It is dated the 14th?—Was that not in answer to the first telegram received?

628. No; the first telegram received was asking you to come to Ottawa. I will read you this report (Exhibit No. 6), which will bring it to your memory better. Do you remember that?—Yes.

629. Would you look at that letter and tell me what it is?—I cannot read it; it is in French.

630. Do you know whose signature that is?—Yes; it is Mr. Rousseau's (Exhibit No. 26).

631. Do you know if two or three days time was given?—Yes.

632. The report goes on to say: “ On the 14th inst. they ” that is your firm “ telegraphed that they were prepared to sign the contract.” Do you remember sending that telegram?—Yes.

633. Did you get an answer to that telegram?—I do not remember.

634. We have your withdrawal that you have referred to already. Do you recognize this paper?—Yes.

635. In whose handwriting is it?—Mine.

636. Signed by whom?—Me, in the name of the firm.

637. You wrote it from Ottawa?—Yes.

637a. During the negotiations with Charlebois?—Yes.

638. And having failed to negotiate you wrote this letter?—Yes.

639. The letter, filed as Exhibit No. 27, reads as follows:—

(EXHIBIT No. 27.)

“ OTTAWA, 11th August, 1886.

“ A. GOBEIL, Esq.,

“ Secretary of Public Works.

“ SIR,—By reference to the specification, and after seeing Mr. Charlebois, the contractor for the new Departmental Building, we have come to the conclusion that we cannot execute the work tendered for by us without interference with Mr. Charlebois, and that we should have to pay such a remuneration as would prevent us from fulfilling satisfactorily the contract; and under these circumstances we prefer, before any decision is arrived at by the Government, to beg leave to withdraw our tender and the accepted cheque accompanying the same.

“ Your obedient servants,

“ ROUSSEAU & MATHER.”

Are those the reasons for your withdrawal?—Our reasons were that we could not make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois. That letter was written in the presence of Mr. Charlebois, and it was through Mr. Charlebois' agent that that letter was written. It was in trying to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois that that letter was written.

640. Who was his agent?—He had a notary or somebody along with him at the time, and the notary wrote out that letter and got me to copy it. We were trying to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois, and it was a condition that if we withdrew our tender, Mr. Charlebois made promises in another letter that he gave to me, that he would give us the contract under him.

641. He induced you to withdraw?—To get the contract themselves, and he would give us the contract at our own price.

642. Did you get the contract under him?—We did not.

643. Were you able to make any arrangement to enable you to carry it on yourselves with Charlebois?—No.

644. Then, are the statements in that letter correct?—Yes.

645. Then you remember that you had again opened negotiations with the Department. Mr. Fuller goes on to say in this report: "In the meantime, Messrs. Rousseau & Mather wrote that they had had another interview with Mr. Charlebois, and asked to be allowed two or three days before giving a definite answer. This was granted"—Yes.

646. So you had another chance to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois?—Yes.

647. On the 14th you appeared to be willing to risk it, having sent that telegram?—Yes.

648. Mr. Fuller says that: "the reply telegraphed by the Department was that no authority could be given until the contract was signed, and it would be ready for signature on or before the 17th inst." Did you ever receive a telegram to that effect?—I do not remember.

649. On the 16th inst. you are said to have written a letter to the Department confirming your telegram. Do you remember coming to Ottawa to sign the contract?—I think we were only once in Ottawa in connection with that.

650. The letter I refer to (Exhibit No. 28) is as follows:—

"624 CRAIG STREET, MONTREAL, 16th August, 1886.

"A. GOBEIL, Esq.

"SIR,—We telegraphed on Saturday about 10 a.m. to Sir Hector that we are ready to sign the contract for the roof of the public building at Ottawa, and asking a reply and the blue prints. We to-day confirm our telegram.

"Yours truly,

"ROUSSEAU & MATHER,

"Per A. R."

Whose handwriting is that?—Mr. Rousseau's.

651. Mr. Fuller says that owing to the pressure of business the contract was not ready for signature until the 18th inst. Was it you or Mr. Rousseau that came up to see the contract?—I think we were both here.

652. Was the contract prepared for signature?—The contract was prepared, as far as I remember.

652a. Where was the draft contract submitted to you for signature?—In one of the Parliament buildings.

653. Who were present?—I cannot tell. As far as I remember, there was some clause in it which we objected to. I think it is clause 7, if I remember aright.

654. What was the point that you objected to in that clause?—It was about making arrangements with the present contractor, Charlebois.

655. Why did you object to that clause?—Because we did not think it was necessary for us to make any arrangement with any contractor—that the Government was entitled to give us free access to the building.

656. Did you appeal to the Minister or to anyone?—We appealed to the Minister.
 657. Who did? You or Mr. Rousseau?—Both together. Mr. Rousseau was twice in the presence of Sir Hector Langevin. I was with him one time.
 658. Did you ask him to relieve you from that clause? What occurred between you and the Minister?—I forget what was said in the presence of the Minister at the time.
 659. Do you remember what he said?—He said we were required to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois. As far as I remember, that was the sum and substance of it.
 660. What Minister was that?—Sir Hector Langevin.
 661. Did you succeed in making arrangements with Mr. Charlebois?—No; we failed to make arrangements with Mr. Charlebois.
 662. Was that the reason, then, you refused to sign the contract?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister:

663. On 11th August you signed this letter?—In reference to the withdrawal from the contract? Yes.
 664. Did you know at the time that you signed this withdrawal that Charlebois himself had a tender in for the work?—Yes.
 665. Who told you so?—I could not tell you.
 666. You knew it, at all events?—We knew it.
 667. Do you remember whether Charlebois' tender was higher than yours, or lower?—We understood it was higher—very much.
 668. Can you, speaking from recollection, say how much higher it was?—Somewhere about $20,000. I could not say exactly.
 669. You are speaking of the tender then in?—The original tenders.
 670. Your recollection of it is that his tender was $20,000, at least, higher than yours?—Yes.
 671. You said this letter was written in Charlebois' office?—Yes.
 672. In the building?—Not in the building; in the office opposite the building.
 673. But in his office, at all events?—Yes.
 674. In whose handwriting was it?—It is my handwriting.
 675. Who dictated the letter?—I cannot tell. There was a notary along with Mr. Charlebois—a notary or a lawyer in the office at the time.
 676. Was it the notary or lawyer who dictated the letter to you?—He wrote out the letter and I copied it, but whether in the office or at the hotel I could not say.
 677. This is a copy of the letter written by the notary?—Yes; written by the notary.
 678. You knew at that time that Charlebois had a tender in for this same work?—Yes.
 679. You were a rival tenderer?—Yes.
 680. How was it, and why was it, that this withdrawal came to take place in the way that you speak of? Who suggested that you should withdraw?—It was Mr. Charlebois, as far as I remember, who suggested that we should withdraw our tender.
 681-2. He suggested you should withdraw your tender and ——?—And that if he got the contract he would give the work to us at the price we had quoted.
 683. The price at which you had tendered?—Yes; the price at which we had tendered.
 684. Was Charlebois' tender next to yours?—I could not say.
 685. Did he give you any assurance at all that he would receive the contract?—No; he did not give us any assurance that he would receive the contract.
 686. Did he say there was a probability of him getting the contract?—He said he was most likely to receive the contract.
 687. And if he did receive the contract, then you were to do the work at the prices mentioned in your tender?—I think, that was it.
 688. That satisfied you?—That satisfied us.

689. Then, the letter was written and sent in to the Department?—The letter was written and sent in to the Department.

690. As I understand you, after this letter was written you had communication with the Department, whereby you evinced a willingness to go on with your contract?—Yes.

691. And that was a few days after you had sent this letter?—It was the following day.

692. How did you come to send it—had you got a letter from Charlebois?—I had a letter from Charlebois, containing the agreement between him and I, that if he did not receive the contract we would get the contract.

693. That is, if he did not receive the contract you would get the work?—Yes.

694. Well now, the next day you appear to have been willing to carry out your contract with the Department?—Yes.

695. Had anything taken place between you and Charlebois in the meantime, because you seem to have had a regular agreement?—The first day I came up here I was alone, and made this arrangement with Mr. Charlebois through some mistake with my partner. My partner appeared on the scene that night or early next morning. He was against this, and he cancelled it with my consent, and the further agreement was made with the Government.

696. Then, your partner objected to the arrangement you had made, and in consequence of his objection you withdrew from your arrangements with Mr. Charlebois?—Yes.

697. And you announced to the Government you were willing to carry out the tender you had sent in to them?—Yes.

698. Before this took place at all, what communication had taken place between you and Charlebois as to going upon the premises?—Before the writing of that letter?

699. Yes.—None whatever.

700. Then, Charlebois said nothing to you about commission previous to the writing of this letter?—Not that I know of.

701. You have no recollection?—Not to me, at all events.

702. Was your partner here with you?—Not when I wrote that letter.

703. But was he here before?—No; I don't think he was.

704. Then, any communication would be between you and Charlebois?—Yes.

705. And you say Charlebois never intimated to you his intention to charge commission if you got the contract?—Not that I remember.

706. Did you let Charlebois know afterwards that you repudiated the arrangement that had been entered into with him?—Yes.

707. Before writing the letter to the Department expressing your willingness to go on?—Yes; I think so.

708. Did Charlebois say anything to you about commission then?—Not that I remember.

709. Well, was there any conversation between you and Charlebois about commission?—None.

710. Or about charging you for going on the works?—When that letter was written I understood we had to make an arrangement with him for getting on the premises, but as for the conversation I don't remember.

711. Who did you understand that from?—I could not say.

712. Was it Charlebois?—Mr. Charlebois said in his contract that he had the absolute control of the grounds, and no one could go on the grounds, or bring in plant or anything there, without his consent.

713. Was that conversation before you saw the contract in the Department containing the objectionable clause?—Yes.

714. Then Charlebois had told you that under his contract nobody could go on to the work without his consent?—Yes.

715. How did you regard that, because you appeared to have gone and telegraphed to the Department?—This letter was written after that.

716. Well, then you went and saw Sir Hector Langevin?—We saw Sir Hector Langevin.

717. And you objected to the clause in the contract?—We objected to the clause in the contract.

718. And you refused to sign the contract unless that was eliminated?—Yes.

719. And did he say anything about it—did he give you any time to arrange with Charlebois?—Yes; he gave us time to arrange with Charlebois.

720. How much time?—I cannot tell; there were two or three weeks passed.

721. Did you ever try to arrange with Charlebois?—I think Mr. Rousseau did, but he did not come to any settlement. I was not present.

722. Well, as a matter of fact, Mr. Charlebois got the contract?—He did.

723. It would have been better, apparently, for you to have stuck to the agreement?—Yes; I think so.

724. You have been for a good many years in this business of roofing?—Yes, sir.

725. Had you ever any contract in which you have been called upon to pay anything to the principal contractor for allowing you to go on and do your work?—We never paid anything to contractors for insurance or anything else.

726. Did you include anything of that kind in your own tender.—No.

727. You mentioned that you thought that the Government had allowed you two or three weeks to negotiate with Charlebois. I have in my hand a report to the Government of the 20th August, by Mr. Fuller, recommending the acceptance of Mr. Charlebois' tender. (To Mr. Fuller): What is the date of Charlebois' tender that you accepted.

Mr. FULLER—The second offer?

Yes.—I don't remember, sir.

728. You have not got it here?—No.

729. (To witness). At all events, this report alleges that on the 18th of August, you and Mr. Rousseau were in Ottawa, and that the contract was submitted to you, and you objected to it on account of certain of the provisions, and on the 20th we have the report of Mr. Fuller reporting against your tender and in favour of the second tender of Mr. Charlebois. So that on the 20th of August you were out of the field—you never had any further negotiations with him?—I could not say.

By Mr. Lister:

730. Can you tell me how much Charlebois' original tender was?—I could not say. I understood it was a good deal higher than ours, at any rate.

731. I see from Exhibit No. 16 that the tenders were The Hamilton Bridge Company, $46,000; Rousseau & Mather, $42,975; and A. Charlebois, $77,500, and that Charlebois got the contract?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Barron:

732. And you did work under him?—No; we did not, we withdrew.

By the Chairman:

733. Did Charlebois get the contract for $77,500?—That I cannot say.

By Mr. Haggart:

734. What reason did the Minister assign for you to go to Mr. Charlebois and make an arrangement?—That was a clause in the contract giving to him full control of the ground on which the building was placed, and that he would not allow any one to go on it without coming to some agreement with him.

735. He said that Mr. Charlebois would not?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster:

736. What did you understand by ground?—The plot on which the building was situated.

By Mr. Chapleau :

737. Did the Minister speak to you about the specification—you had read the specification for your tender?—Yes.

738. You know there was a clause in that specification which said an arrangement had to be made with the main contractor?—Yes.

739. And did the Minister tell you it was in your specification, and you were obliged to do it?—Yes.

740. That is what he said?—Yes.

741. When you made arrangements with Mr. Charlebois, were you to be returned your cheque that you had deposited with your tender?—Yes; I think he said he would see our cheque would be returned.

742. You agreed to that?—Yes.

743. And you withdrew your tender on that condition?—Yes.

744. And you would have had the Government pay more than your contract besides?—Yes.

745. And your partner would not do that?—He refused to do it.

By Mr. Mulock :

746. Charlebois promised to return the cheque, did he not?—So far as I remember.

747. What did he say about getting the cheque back?—He would use his influence to get our cheque returned.

By Mr. Taylor :

748. What were the conditions on which you tendered for this work? Was there a clause that the parties tendering would have to arrange with the contractor for the use of appliances and permission to occupy the ground?—None that I remember of; there was no clause to that effect that I remember of.

749. In the specification calling for the work to be done?—In the specification.

750. You say there was a clause in the contract?—Yes.

751. Then you went to see Mr. Charlebois?—Yes.

752. Had you plant of your own for hoisting, or did you expect to use Mr. Charlebois' plant?—We had appliances of our own for hoisting, and if Mr. Charlebois charged too high we intended to use our own. If his charge was a reasonable one we would use his.

753. Did you expect, when you tendered, to use his?—If we had got it at a reasonable figure; but we would have used our own if we could not have used his.

754. Had you been to him to see what arrangement you could make with him before tendering?—No.

755. You did not think you were obliged to go to him?—No.

By the Chairman :

756. Did you read the specification stating that an arrangement had to be made with the contractor?—There was no such clause in the specification.

By Mr. Taylor :

757. Will you look at the specification marked "Exhibit No. 29," and see if it was the one you tendered on, and then read the third clause from the bottom?—There is a clause to the following effect: "The contractor shall find at his own expense the piling ground which may be required for storing the roofing materials, from their delivery until such time as he will be notified to begin the work of erection, and during the progress of the contract." We understood that all right.

By Mr. Lister :

758. And that is the clause they pretended to act under?—I don't know.

By Mr. Taylor :

759. There is another clause here : "Great care must be taken in placing the iron work in position. The contractor will be held responsible, &c." These are the same specifications on which you tendered ?—I understand they are.

760. Then previous to your putting in your tender you did not go to consult with Mr. Charlebois at all ?—No.

761. You took it for granted you had the right of way without consulting with him ?—Yes.

762. That is as you looked upon it ?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister :

763.—You have seen this specification ?—Yes.

764. Under this specification had you or had you not the right to go on that property ?—We understood we had the right.

By Mr. Mulock :

765. You found in the contract offered to you for signature a condition that was not in the original specification ?—Yes.

766. And in that way you were jockeyed out of the contract ?—Yes.

By Mr. Taylor :

767. Did you make any arrangement for a piling ground ?—We had not made any arrangement. There was piling ground there. We tried to make arrangements, but we required to do it outside of the ground on which the building was placed.

768. With whom did you try to arrange ?—With some wood merchant down here.

By Mr. Lister :

769. You would have had to get a piling ground outside ?—Yes; outside altogether.

770. There is nothing in this specification that you should pay Mr. Charlebois a royalty or a commission ?—No.

771. And you are unwilling to do it ?—Yes.

ANTOINE ROUSSEAU, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Mulock :

772. You are a member of the firm of Rousseau & Mather ?—Yes.

773. You have heard his evidence ?—Part of it. I only came in here at twenty-five minutes to eleven.

774. Did you hear me questioning him in regard to your tender ?—I heard part of it.

775. Did you and your partner jointly arrange the sending of letters and making of tenders and negotiations for this contract ?—We did.

776. You remember then the putting in of a tender to do the work ?—I do.

777. For what amount ?—$42,975.

778. You did not get the contract ?—We did not.

779. Your partner, Mr. Mather, produced a letter, or identified a letter, written by him in the name of the firm to the Department, setting forth the reasons for your having withdrawn your tender. Did you hear my examination of him on that point ?—Yes.

780. You heard everything from that time forward ?—Yes.

781. Did you hear his answers ?—I heard his answers.

782. Do you confirm his answer ?—He has made some slight mistake from lack of memory. I was in Chateauguay finishing a bridge, and sent a telegram to Mr.

Mather to close with the Government. I took the night train on the Canadian Pacific Railway and arrived here at midnight. I went to Mr. Mather's room at the Windsor Hotel and knocked at his door. I was admitted, and asked him if he had closed with the Government. He looked discouraged. I said: "What is the matter?" He said: "I think I have done wrong." I said: "What have you done?" He said: "I have cancelled our tender." I said: "What was that for?" From one word to another he gave me to understand that Mr. Charlebois took him to his office with Mr. Duval, Clerk of the Supreme Court, and, as we say, "scared him out of his pants," and that he made him write a letter. He told me: "I saw from his talk that we would have a lot of trouble and I thought it better to cancel the contract." I said: "Mr. Mather, you had no right to cancel the contract." I says: "You have not the right, and it is not valid until it has my signature." I went with Mr. Mather in the morning to see Sir Hector Langevin, and I told him that the letter was not valid. He said: "You come in the right time, because I was going to grant the contract to Mr. Charlebois." So I said to him there and then that we were ready to sign the contract.

783. Were you allowed to sign it?—No; we were not.

784. Why?—There is, if I remember right, two drafts of the contract made. The first was, as we say in French, a brouillon, that was presented to me by an Englishman there who has large whiskers, and he showed me that by clause 7 the right of way was not inserted. The second draft, which took some two or three days, had clause 7 inserted. I went to Sir Hector Langevin, and I said: "It is not according to specification. We are not prepared to buy the right of way from Mr. Charlebois."

By Mr. Foster :

785. You mean clause 7 of the contract?—Yes; which reads that way: "The contractors will agree to bind themselves to buy the right of way from the contractor, Mr. Charlebois."

By Mr. Chapleau :

786. Those are not the words?—I am positive in these things, and I told you about it before, you remember. I was here two or three days, and I went to Sir Hector and said: "We did not provide for this clause. We put in our tender," says I, "that we were going to tender like anybody else, and that we would have the privilege of putting on the roof, as anybody else; but that we would not put on the roof until after the masonry work was done. We were not going to interfere with Mr. Charlebois." I said: "If the building belongs to you, you had the right to call for tenders. If it does not belong to you, you had no right to call for tenders."

By Mr. Lister :

787. What did he say?—I saw that Sir Hector was held by the throat by Mr. Charlebois.

By Mr. Mulock :

788. On the second occasion you went to see the contract you found it had in it a clause that was not in the first?—It had a clause that was not in the first.

789. Was that the reason you did not execute it?—Of course; I could not consent to purchase the right of way.

790. Did you ask Sir Hector to give you further time to negotiate with Mr. Charlebois?—He told me to ascertain how much it would cost from Charlebois.

791. How much did he say?—I think I went to Charlebois, and he said it would cost $10,000. I asked Sir Hector to raise my tender by so much, as we had not provided for that. He said he had nothing to do with that.

792. On the second occasion you went there you saw the contract engrossed, as we call it in English—ready to be signed—and you found this strange condition in it—clause 7. You then objected to sign it with that condition in it. Did you ask Sir Hector to give you further time to try and arrange with Mr. Charlebois?—No. I tell you candidly I did not want to have anything to do with Charlebois. I told Sir Hector: “There is that one clause. If you are owner of this building you had the right to call for tenders; but if the building belongs to Charlebois you had no right to call for tenders.” Charlebois had scared my partner at first.

793. Do you know Exhibit No. 26?—That is my writing.

794. Will you read that letter?—(Reads the letter in French.) That is: “After an interview with Mr. Charlebois we have decided to go down and consult on this subject, and we beg you to please wait two or three days for a definite answer.” That is what I wrote.

795. That is dated at Ottawa?—Yes.

796. Where were you when you wrote that?—In one of the Public Works Departments.

787. Was this the occasion you saw Sir Hector and asked him to allow you to countermand the withdrawal your partner had made, on the ground that it was not legal?—I cannot say.

798. You remember that you met your partner at the hotel?—Yes.

799. He had withdrawn your tender on the 12th inst. Mr. Fuller, in the report says: “On the 12th inst., they, Rousseau & Mather, wrote.” You recognize the handwriting there (Exhibit No. 27)?—Yes. That is the handwriting of Mr. Mather.

800. That is the letter of withdrawal that your partner referred to?—Yes.

801. I see the departmental stamp is on it “August 11th, 1886.” How long was it after that letter before you came down on your partner and had that interview with him?—I understand that letter was written in the afternoon, about four o’clock, and I arrived here at the Windsor hotel by the midnight train. I met my partner there and the next morning the first thing I was on hand to meet Sir Hector and tell him that this letter was of no value.

802. You called next morning?—Yes, sir.

803. On the 12th of August you were in Ottawa?—Yes, sir.

804. You wrote to Sir Hector then, asking for two or three days?—Yes.

805. I presume this letter followed the interview with Sir Hector? During the interview he probably asked you to put it in writing?—I wrote that letter after Sir Hector told me to see Charlebois and try to come to arrangements with him.

806. It was then he said you had just come in time to cancel the withdrawal?—Yes.

807. That he was just about to let the contract to Mr. Charlebois for the roof?—Yes.

808. I understand he gave you very few minutes to complete the arrangements with Charlebois?—Fifteen minutes.

By Mr. Lister :

809. He gave you fifteen minutes to complete the arrangement with Charlebois?—That was in the presence of Mr. Gobeil and Mr. Fuller. It was fifteen minutes to decide. I said: “This is not treating us fairly. If you are the owner of the building you had the right to call for tenders.” I told him what I repeated a short time ago. He said in French: “I will give you fifteen minutes to decide.”

By Mr. Foster :

810. To decide what?—To decide whether we would take the contract or not. We went into the corridor to consider the matter.

By Mr. Lister :

811. To make up your mind?—Yes: whether we would sign the contract or not.

812. You felt a little injured?—I felt so a little.

813. And you saw Mr. Chapleau about it?—Yes.

814. Was it long afterwards?—About a year afterwards in the St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal.

815. You complained to him?—I complained to the Department a good many times. They had got letters from me.

816. Mr. Chapleau told you that you were badly used?—He told me that the Minister of Justice said they had no right to put in such a clause.

817. The Minister of Justice was right. That is the specification, is it not, for this work?—Yes.

817a. “The contractor shall find, at his own expense, the piling ground which may be required for storing the roof materials from their delivery until such time as he will be notified to begin the work of erection and during the progress of the work.” You understood what that meant?—Oh, yes; we understood what that meant perfectly well. We went to look for piling ground elsewhere, as there was no room there.

818. You understood you had to obtain a piling ground elsewhere?—Well, we could not hold it in the air; it must be placed somewhere.

819. And there was nothing in the specifications requiring you to pay anything to Mr. Charlebois?—Nothing at all. That is why I did not want to have anything to do with Mr. Charlebois. I said he is not mentioned in the specifications.

820. You have been in business a good many years, I suppose?—Well, I am a man of fifty-six years of age; I have been in business since I was eighteen.

821. Did you ever, in all your experience in public or private contracts—in all those years in any contract you have had—have to pay the principal contractor for the right to go on the premises and do your work?—Never.

822. You never heard of such a clause as this before?—I never heard of such a clause until that day.

823. To buy your right to go in?—Yes.

By Mr. Sproule :

824. What construction do you put on this clause: “The contractor will be required to sign a contract containing the usual and ordinary conditions as now issued by the Department of Public Works.” Was that one of the conditions then issued?—We were perfectly ready to sign the usual conditions about such contracts.

825. And that was a condition?—That was not a usual condition, to buy the right of way.

By Mr. Lister :

826. You say that in the draft contract there was no clause requiring you to arrange with Charlebois?—There were two drafts prepared. In the first draft there was no such clause, but in the second draft there was. When the second one was presented to me I made the remark: “You did not insert that clause in the first draft; who has put that in?” I made that remark at the time.

827. To whom?—To the gentleman who brought me the papers. I do not know his name. He is a man with big whiskers—an Englishman. I would know him if he was here.

828. Was it Mr. Ewart?—No.

829. And you say there was no such clause in the first contract?—No.

830. What did he say to you?—Well, I got no satisfaction from him.

By Mr. Mulock :

831. I believe you have put in a claim for damages?—I have.

832. What do you consider your profits would have been if you had got the contract?—We calculated on from $8,000 to $9,000 profit.

833. On a contract for $42,975?—Yes.

By Mr. Haggart :

834. Did the Minister assign any reason for the change in the specifications?—No. I asked him why the clause was inserted. He said: "You have to sign the contract in the present shape or else your deposit will be forfeited."

835. He never assigned the reason at all?—No. He gave me to understand that, when I found the clause which required me to make arrangements with Charlebois was there, somehow he looked embarrassed. When we were out in the corridor my partner said to me: "I think we had better give it up. They will make it so hot for us we will not make anything out of it." I considered the position of Sir Hector; I did not tell him at the time, but I thought I would render him a service. As a matter of fact, I thought Charlebois held Sir Hector by the throat. That is the reason I was induced to withdraw—to get him out of difficulties.

By Mr. Lister :

836. You are his friend?—I am his friend yet.

837. And you thought Charlebois had him by the throat?—Oh, yes; I think he had.

838. You did not think you could get him by the throat?—No; it is not my habit to get hold of anybody by the throat.

839. I wish we had a few more contractors like you?—Well, perhaps, it would be several thousand dollars saved to the Government.

By Mr. Mulock :

840. What do you mean when you say that he had Sir Hector by the throat?—I mean that there was a certain clause in this contract by which he could compel the Government to do just as he pleased. Mr. Fuller gave me to understand that they had had a good deal of bother with Charlebois, and that that was the reason why they put the clause in.

By Mr. Chapleau :

841. You understood by the conversation you had in the Department that Mr. Charlebois pretended he had full control of the building—that he could impose any conditions on the sub-contractors?—He gave me to understand that I could not go on the building, and he said I would lose money on my contract. I said: "Mr. Charlebois, if I sign the contract I will go on the building." He said: "There will be a row." I said: "Let there be a row; I will go on the building." That is what I told him at the time, but he over-reached me.

By Mr. Lister :

842. You did not go on the building?—No; except as a visitor.

The further examination in this matter was then postponed until another meeting.

COMMITTEE ROOM, FRIDAY, 31st July, 1891.

Committee met at 10 a.m.; Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. D. O'CONNOR called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Mulock:

843. You are a member of the legal profession?—Yes.

844. Practising law in Ottawa?—Yes.

845. You have been practising here for a great many years?—Yes; a great many years.

846. You have been engaged professionally for the Government for a great many years?—Yes.

847. How many years?—Since 1879.

848. Every year having professional duties in connection with the Government?—Yes.

849. In various Departments?—In the various Departments.

850. Including the Department of Public Works?—Yes.

850a. Had you any professional duties in connection with what is known as the Langevin Block?—I had in the purchase of the property.

851. You acted for the Government in that matter?—I did not act for the Department. I was instructed by the Hon. Mr. Pope.

852. Was he the head of the Department?—No; he was not the head of the Department.

853. How did you come to get instructions from the Minister of one Department to attend to work belonging to another Department?—It arose in this way: I met Mr. Pope one day in 1882 as he was going into the Eastern Block; he was then going to Council. He spoke to me, and said he wished to see me and asked me to call at his office. The next day I went to see him, and he said the Government desired to put up a new building for departmental service, and they wanted to secure a site. He said there was a considerable difference of opinion as to where the site should be selected. Some spoke of Major's Hill Park, others spoke of Cartier Square and Nepean Point, but he said as far as he was concerned he was strongly of the opinion that all the buildings should be together, and he had made up his mind that the Government should acquire the property between Elgin and Metcalfe streets, as it would be a great convenience to have the buildings together. He then instructed me to make a proper search and find out who owned the property, and give him an idea what it would cost.

854. At all events you have been professionally engaged with the Government and the various departments, including the Department of Public Works, for many years?—Yes, sir.

855. Were you present in the Langevin Block on the presentation of a testimonial of plate to Sir Hector Langevin?—I was, sir.

856. What year was that?—That was the year the building was completed. I think it was about two and a half years ago.

857. Will you state what plate was presented to Sir Hector Langevin on that occasion?—There was a very fine box of silver spoons, cutlery and all that kind of thing. Then there were some sterling side dishes, vegetable dishes and things of that kind. There were just two packages, one a fine large box containing silver ware and the other was silver plated dishes.

858. What was the total cost?—I can give it accurately. The box of silver ware I spoke of, cost in New York $732, and there was duty paid on it $174.10. The other silver cost $776, and $155.20 duty, the whole amounting to $1,837. I got copies of the entries.

859. Have you got the list of subscribers to that fund?

Mr. Foster objected to the question.

Objection sustained.

860. Did any of the contractors for building the Langevin Block contribute to the Langevin Testimonial Fund?

Mr. DENISON objected.

The CHAIRMAN—I have already ruled on that question, that the witness is not bound to answer that question. If you wish to know whether Mr. Charlebois contributed, it would be better to ask him to attend before the committee.

By Mr. Mulock :

861. You took some interest in getting up the Testimonial?—I was one of the gentlemen who took some interest.

862. You made the selection, didn't you? Were you one of the contributors to the fund?

Mr. WOOD (Brockville) objected.

The CHAIRMAN—I have already ruled upon that point: That we are travelling outside the reference on that question. The question, generally, of the Langevin Testimonial Fund has not been referred to this Committee, and therefore we should not take it up.

Mr. MULOCK—All questions applicable to that you rule out.

The CHAIRMAN—Yes.

COMMITTEE ROOM, THURSDAY, 13th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. THOS. FULLER re-called and further examined :—

By Mr. Bowell :

863. I believe you desire to make some slight corrections in the evidence as printed; but before referring to the different items, will you kindly read the different tenders for the Langevin Block.—The schedule of tenders is as follows: A. Charlebois, $295,000; John Askwith and J. Kavanagh, $389,000; W. Davis & Son, $413,000; J. B. St. Louis & Bro., $444,000; J. P. Whelan, $474,000; John Stewart, $525,000; Alex. Manning, $575,000; W. J. Baskerville, Jas. O'Connor and P. Cassidy, $597,000.

864. To whom was the contract awarded?—To A. Charlebois.

865. Now, will you kindly read the tenders for iron joists?—The schedule of tenders is as follows: John McDougal, $16,546.72 (cheque not an accepted one, as called for); Carrière, Lainé & Co., $16,627.13; William James Campbell, $16,660.89; Dominion Bridge Co. (Limited), Belgian makers, $17,624; Steel or German ditto, $19,311, add $3,500 for hoisting, &c.; Robert Weddill, $19,254; A. Charlebois, $20,595; the Hamilton Bridge and Tool Co., $23,668; E. Chanteloup, $23,300; Stewart & Fleck, $24,975.

866. I see that the Dominion Bridge Company added to their tender of $19,311 the sum of $3,500 for hoisting?—Yes, sir.

867. That would increase it to $22,000?—Yes, sir.

868. To whom was the contract given?—To Carrière, Lainé & Co.

869. Now, would you kindly read the tenders for the iron roofs?—My object in doing this is to have them put in succinctly.—The schedule of tenders is as follows: Rousseau & Mather, $42,975; the Hamilton Bridge and Tool Company, $46,000; A. Charlebois, $77,500.

870. To whom was that contract given?—It was given to Charlebois on an amended tender of $60,000.

By Mr. Chapleau :

871. Upon whose report?—My report.

872. Has it been filed here?—Yes, sir.

873. That amended tender has been filed with the other papers?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Mulock :

874. Do you remember the date that Charlebois' amended tender was put in?—My report was on the 20th, and it was put in on the 19th, I think.

By Mr. Bowell :

875. Will you now kindly read the tenders for the heating apparatus?—The schedule of tenders is as follows: Messrs. Garth & Co., $15,500; E. Chanteloup, $22,000; Messrs. Andrews Bros., $37,500; Messrs. Robert Mitchell & Co., $39,792.50.

876. And to whom was the contract given?—Garth & Co.

877. Now, will you kindly read the schedule of tenders for the elevators?—They are as follows: John Fensom, $39,877; Hale Elevator Co., $39,877; Crane Elevator Co., $46,543.

878. I believe that tender was given to Fensom & Co. by Order in Council?—By Order in Council—yes, sir.

879. Have you got that Order in Council?—I have it here.

880. Will you kindly read it, please?—It is as follows:—

“Certified copy of a report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 25th September, 1888.

“On a memorandum dated 25th September, 1888, from the Minister of Public Works, submitting, in answer to public advertisement, three tenders which were received on the 17th September instant, for the construction of elevators in the new Departmental Building, Ottawa.

“The Minister represents that the tender of the Crane Elevator Co., of Chicago, amounting to $46,543, was not accompanied by the necessary security cheque, and was therefore informal.

“That the tender of the Hale Elevator Company, of Chicago, U. S., a foreign firm, amounted to $39,877.

“That the tender of John Fensom, Toronto, was for $41,972, and was accompanied by a cheque for it, five per cent. security.

“That Mr. Fensom was since offered to execute all the works require in the construction of the elevators, according to the terms of the specification, for the sum of $39,877.

“The Minister recommends that the tender of John Fensom, amounting to $39,877 for all construction of elevators in the new Departmental Building be accepted. The committee submit the same for Your Excellency’s approval.

“(Sgd.) JOHN J. MCGEE,
C. P. C.”

“To the Honorable

“The Minister of Public Works.”

881. Now, would you refer to question 54. Have you any explanation to make in regard to it?—The word “additional” should be added to the word extra, making it read “extra and additional.”

By Mr. Mulock:

882. What does question 54 refer to?—Payments on the original contract.

883. You are speaking now of the original contract—the original contract as paid—and this amount is for extra work on the contract?—And “additional” has to be inserted.

884. Now, look at 141 and 142. Will you give your explanation with regard to that?—There was no mention made in the specification concerning access to the building.

885. Then there are questions 151 and 152. What change do you desire to make there?—The answer should be, that I acted on it so far as stated in the above clauses.

886. But the clauses to which you refer are not in?—The contract is in.

887. How do you wish that to read?—As far as the following clauses in the specification are concerned:

“The contractor shall find, at his own expense, the piling ground which may be required for storing the roof materials, from their delivery until such time as he will be notified to begin the work of erection and during the progress of the work.

“The contractor must have all the work herein specified ready to be placed in position on the building on or before the 1st November, 1886, and will begin the work of erection upon such portions of the walls of the building as may be ready to receive the iron roofs, upon receipt from the chief architect of a notice that the same are sufficiently completed to admit of the work being proceeded with, and will complete all the work herein specified with _____ months from the receipt of such notice.

“As regards the delivery and placing in position of all the iron and other work, scaffolding, &c., any damage that may occur thereby and also any damage from whatever cause during the progress of the erection to any portions of the brickwork, cut stone or masonry, or other work, or any material that may be on the site, must be made good at the expense of the contractor to the satisfaction of the Minister of Public Works or any person delegated by him.

“Great care must be taken in placing the iron work in position, as the contractor will be held responsible for any damage whatsoever or interference with other contractors consequent upon its erection, and will have to make good all damage to the satisfaction of the Minister of Public Works or any person delegated by him.”

888. The next is 152, with relation to the advertisement?—The same answer applies.

889. Do you want to put that advertisement in?—Yes. (Exhibit No. 30.)

890. Then the next is question 211, with respect to inserting a condition that the contractors for the iron roof were to make terms with Charlebois?—My former answer was not correct. There is no clause in that specification calling upon the parties to make terms for access to the building with the contractors; but it was proper for me to ascertain from the parties whose tenders were under consideration what provision had been made for a piling ground, for hoisting, scaffolding, steam-power, &c. Rousseau & Mather stated they had made no arrangements, and could not give any intelligible explanation as to how they would proceed with the placing of the roof in position.

891. Would you look at 215, and say what answer you desired to make?—I am referring to those clauses again.

892. Put your answer in such a way that the explanation will be intelligible to the readers?—I want that “yes” to be taken out, and I want substituted those clauses where there is no mention made about access.

893. With relation to question 307, with respect to the hauling of iron joists from the station, what explanation do you desire to give?—I think, in my previous evidence, I said something about the Canada Atlantic station.

894. That was in reference to piling ground?—No; hauling. The joists were to be hauled to the Government ground, on Nepean Point, and carried from that point by the Government.

895. Did the contract provide for the delivery of the joists by the contractor?—Yes.

896. Why did you take them to Nepean Point?—When it was decided to take the placing of them out of Carrier’s hands, it was necessary, before the men could be paid, that the joists should be delivered on Government ground, and, therefore, he hauled them to Nepean Point instead of to the building. That was a longer distance than to the building and the Government paid for their delivery.

897. Did you pay the contractors anything extra for taking them from Nepean Point to the building?—No.

898. Why did you send them to Nepean Point instead of the building here?—There was no room here.

899. Was the building ready for them when they were delivered?—No.

900. Consequently, you had to send them to some other place in the building?—Certainly.

901. And the Government paid afterwards for hauling from Nepean Point to the building?—Yes.

By Mr. Foster :

902. But nothing for hauling from the station to Nepean Point?—No.

By Mr. Bowell :

903. Now, with reference to question 356. Mr. Fensom’s statement was that Charlebois told him he had to contract for the whole of the building and certain portions were taken out, leaving him (Charlebois) the part of the building with the least profit and taking away the percentage on the sub-contracts?—Mr. Charlebois had no right to say such a thing, because it was never the intention to include in the main contract the iron joists, iron roof, iron stairs, elevators and heating apparatus.

904. Then, with reference to questions 369, 370 and 371?—They have reference to the Order in Council which has been read. (See question 880.)

905. Turn now to question 412?—Mr. Fuller is asked if he knows of any reason why Mr. Fensom had to include $8,000 in the amount of his tender to be paid to Mr. Charlebois. I want to say that I merely referred to access to the building. I considered Charlebois would have the right to charge for the use of his engines, derricks, tackle, scaffolding and other appliances which he might furnish to the contractor.

906. Turn now to question 419?—There was no need to guarantee right of way, as Charlebois, under his contract, had no power to prevent access.

907. Question 420 is put to show that he had to arrange with Charlebois?—That only applies to carrying on the work, and not to access.

908. With respect to question 432, were the conditions in the original contract with Charlebois the same as the usual specification?—I want to add to that some instances. In 1870 the finishing of the Parliamentary Library was by separate contracts under precisely the same conditions. The contract for the masonry, iron roof and putting on the roof were separate. The Western Block extension in 1875, the contract for the foundation was let to one person, the masonry and brickwork to another, the carpenter and joinerwork to another, and the iron joists and iron roof to another. The Hamilton Post Office, in 1882, is another instance. The contracts for the main building, heating and elevators were all separate. We had no trouble of any kind whatever. In 1883, the contract for the Montreal Drill Hall included separate contracts for the masonry and iron roof, and there was no trouble of any kind. These were all under the same conditions. In 1885, there were the Montreal armouries. The contracts for the masonry, iron girders and the iron roof were separate. The iron roof was put on by Rousseau & Mather under the same conditions precisely. The sub-contractors were always allowed access.

909. From which we learn, that although the contracts in the past, from 1870 to the present time, until you had this difficulty, have never had a provision in the contract to compel the contractor for the masonry work to permit access, there has been no trouble?—We always took it for granted that they had the right.

910. And that was subsequently decided by the Minister of Justice?—Yes.

911. Turn now to question 445?—The same answer as previously, with respect to the specification.

912. Then turn to questions 615, 616 and 617?—The same answer again.

913. Then with respect to 698, 699, 700 and 701, and also all questions to 710?—By their letter of the 11th of August, they withdrew their tender. They had from the 2nd of August to the 11th to make their arrangements for hoisting, but they said they had made no arrangement whatever.

914. Then look at questions 782 to 807?—Rousseau states that Sir Hector told him: "You have come in the right time, because I was going to give the contract to Charlebois." This must have been on the 12th of August, as the letter of withdrawal was dated the 11th, and Rousseau states he arrived in Ottawa at midnight on that date and waited on the Minister next morning. This remark could hardly have been made at that time, because the next tender was from the Hamilton Bridge Company and they had not then been asked if they were prepared to enter into the contract.

915. Then with respect to question 832?—I refer to my memorandum, where at page 10 I state that at an interview Messrs. Rousseau & Mather said there was a mistake of several thousand dollars in their tender, but of course they did not expect that to be allowed them.

916. Can you state the price paid for the iron—the rate per pound as compared with those used in other roofs of a similar character?—This was  $6\frac{3}{4}$  cents per pound.

917. We have had this before, but it is not what I mean. Can you tell us the rate per pound as compared with other roofs? Was it dearer or cheaper—about the average, or what?—It was rather higher; but I do not know. I have no doubt Mr. Ewart can state that.

918. Can you give me any idea as to the price of the heating apparatus?—No; Mr. Ewart will be able to tell you that.

By Mr Mulock:

919. You appear to have a more intimate acquaintance with the legal effects of these specifications than formerly?—No; I do not think there was anything wrong in the form.

920. When you were examined before you placed an erroneous construction on some of the conditions?—Yes.

921. You have been studying them up since?—Yes; I have read them over.

922. To really discover their true meaning?—Yes.

923. You have reason to think that your former opinion was erroneous?—Yes; so far as some of the things went.

924. And the result of your general deliberation is that you were in error before?—Yes.

925. I observe that you gave verbal instructions to Charlebois from time to time. By what authority did you give them?—I was obliged to do it, because he claimed everything as extras.

926. I observe that many extras performed by him were done on verbal instructions from you. Had you authority to give those verbal directions?—Nothing further than matters of privilege in little things like.

927. Little things, you say?—Anything in reason.

928. Are you aware that Mr. Charlebois had any instructions to act on verbal instructions from you?—No.

929. Do you know whether or not he had?—I do not think that he had.

930. I observe that you have give verbal orders for changes, for additions and extras, and they were acted upon by Mr. Charlebois?—Yes.

931. Did you adjust any accounts with him? Did he recognize the verbal instructions given by you?—Yes.

932. Did the Department recognize verbal instructions given by you?—I suppose so.

933. Have you disallowed any extras claimed by Mr. Charlebois on the ground that they were not covered by the original contract which was under seal?—Yes.

934. Did you disallow any before because they only rested on your verbal authority?—No.

935. Did you consider that your verbal instructions were the same as if they were embodied in the conditions under seal?—Yes.

936. Did the Department so regard them?—They must have done so.

937. They never did repudiate any of your verbal instructions?—No.

938. Did you keep a memorandum of them?—I gave them to the clerk of the works.

939. You gave them instructions, verbally, regarding the change, and a note was made of them?—Yes.

940. Did he do it?—Generally speaking, he did.

941. But not always?—No; not always.

942. Did you have any dealing with Mr. Charlebois personally, being in communication with him, except in connection with this building?—No.

943. There was no work performed by him for you?—No.

944. You have not received any brass dogs, or any testimonials, or anything of that kind?—No.

By Mr. Bergeron:

945. Were you not rather quarrelling with him?—Sometimes we had some angry words.

By Mr. Bowell:

946. Was Mr. Charlebois paid all the extras he demanded?—No.

947. Can you tell how much he claimed in extras?—It is already in the evidence.

DAVID EWART, called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Bowell :

948. Can you state how the price of the iron roof compared with that of other roofs of a similar character?—Yes; we considered it a fair rate— $6\frac{3}{4}$  cents.

949. Is that about the general thing?—The general thing for that class of work is from 6 to 7 cents.

950. Can you give us an idea of the price of the heating apparatus compared with the price paid in other cases?—As regards heating apparatus, the general rule is this: We rate them so much a cubic foot for the extent of the building. Quite a number have been put in recently at  $1\frac{1}{4}$ ; I think they nearly always cost 2. In the North West we have paid more than that.

951. Of course it would be scarcely fair between the Langevin Block and the North-West?—No.

952. You are an architect, Mr. Ewart, are you not?—Yes.

953. And generally make estimates of the cost of public buildings?—Yes; as a general rule.

954. You are accustomed to making calculations?—Yes. When any buildings are complete we take out the cubic contents.

955. Can you inform the Committee how the cost of the Langevin Block would compare with other public buildings—such, for instance, as the Western Block?—The Western Block cost 32 cents per cubic foot, and some buildings cost a great deal more than that. The Langevin Block cost  $26\frac{1}{2}$  cents, as against 32 cents for the Western Block. Of course, it depends a great deal upon the building. The Hamilton Post Office, for instance, cost 24 cents per cubic foot. A plain brick building generally runs from 13 to 16 cents; stone and brick from 16 to 20. Buildings all stone generally run from 20 to 24.

956. The Langevin Block you consider as cheap as any of the public buildings that you have referred to?—I consider it the cheapest building that has been erected since I was in the Department, over twenty years ago.

By Mr. Mulock :

957. Can you or Mr. Fuller tell me the number of cubic feet in the Langevin Block?

MR. FULLER—I think it was 125,000.

958. What is the proportion of the value of the cost of the labour on the stone?—It depends a great deal on how you do it—whether it is moulding work or plain work or what class of work it is. The Credit Valley stone cost 75 per cent less than the Ohio stone.

Re LANGEVIN BLOCK.

In reply to Mr. Mulock's question, No. 957, as to the quantity in cubic feet of sandstone in the building, I find on reference to the quantities taken out after the contract was let that there would be required 130,000 cubic feet.

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency, the Administrator in Council, on the 24th August, 1886.

On a memo. dated 20th August, 1886, from the Minister of Public Works, representing that in answer to public advertisement three tenders were received for the construction and placing in position of the iron roof for the new Departmental Building, Wellington street, Ottawa, at prices ranging from $42,975 to $75,500, the lowest tender being that of Messrs. Rousseau & Mather, of Montreal, which was so much below the estimate made by the Chief Architect, ($58,800), that it was apparent they had made some mistake or omission: Messrs. Rousseau & Mather were telegraphed to come to Ottawa, and on their doing so explained that in their tender they had not made any provision for making arrangements with the present contractor for the stone work of the building, either as regards hoisting and erection of the roof or for providing a "piling ground" for the delivery of all material ready for placing in position, all of which were required by the specification, and asked to be allowed a few days to consider what arrangements could be made. This was granted, but on the 12th inst. they wrote that they had been unable to make satisfactory arrangements, and asked leave to withdraw their tender and have their security cheque returned to them. Subsequently, Messrs. Rousseau & Mather asked leave to reconsider this determination, and after consultation with Mr. Charlebois, the contractor for the stone work, expressed their willingness to sign the contract, but on its being submitted to them, they objected to the clause making them responsible for all arrangements with the present contractor, and as this clause was considered essential, and could not be expunged, they declined to sign the contract and renew their application to be allowed to withdraw their tender.

Meanwhile the second lowest tenderers—the Hamilton Bridge Company—at $46,000, were communicated with. This tender was informal, as it contained conditions not called for by the specifications, and which would materially alter the amount of the tender. The manager of the company visited Ottawa and stated that in making up his tender no provision had been made for arrangements with the present contractor for hoisting or erecting the iron-work of the roof, nor for a piling ground, and that the tender was made low under the impression that there would be no difficulty about getting the time for delivery extended to 1st April, as stipulated in the tender. He stated that under ordinary circumstances his company might deliver the roof by the 1st November, but they had so much work on hand at present that they could not undertake to do so, except at a very considerable increase on the price named in their tender, and what that increase would be he was not prepared to state.

The third tender, that of Mr. A. Charlebois, $75,500, was considered altogether too high, but as the prosecution of the work is urgent and, calling for new tenders would cause great delay and throw back the completion of the building at least one year, Mr. Charlebois was asked on what terms he would assume all responsibility of every description and guarantee that the work should proceed without delay. After full discussion, Mr. Charlebois offered to undertake the whole work, assume the entire responsibility and guarantee to have sufficient portions of the iron principals erected in position to enable him to have the whole covered in, to enable him to proceed with the interior work during the winter, for the sum of $60,000. The Chief Architect reports that unless amicable arrangements could have been made between the different contractors disputes would have arisen, which would not only have given rise to claims for heavy damages and involved large legal expenses, but have delayed for another year the completion of the building. He therefore suggests that as the offer now made by Mr. Charlebois is only $1,200 in excess of the Departmental estimate, it be accepted, and that the cheques of the other tenderers be returned.

The Minister agreeing with his Chief Architect, recommends that the offer of Mr. A. Charlebois to assume all responsibility and erect the roof for $60,000 be accepted, and that the cheques of the other tenderers be returned to them.

The Committee submit the above for Your Excellency's approval.

JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk Privy Council.

Specification for Iron Roofs, &c. of New Departmental Building, Ottawa.

Works to be executed in a workmanlike manner, with the best materials of their several kinds, in accordance with the drawings, specifications and instructions given from time to time, and said works to be carried out and completed under inspection of the Architect, or Clerk of Works, to the full and entire satisfaction of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, or any person delegated by him.

No deviations to be made from the drawings and specifications without written authority from the Minister of Public Works, and should any part of the work be altered without this authority, or executed in a slight and unsatisfactory manner, the same shall be made good at the expense of the contractor.

Should anything be shown upon the drawings, but not mentioned in the specification or vice versa, but nevertheless necessary for the due performance of the work, the same to be considered and included in the contract price as if it had been especially set forth and shown on both.

No defective, unsound or improper materials, worked or otherwise, shall be brought to the premises or used in the building; and should the contractor, in case such materials are brought, refuse to remove and replace the same with fit and proper materials, then the Minister of Public Works may cause the same to be removed and replaced at the cost and charge of the contractor, and deduct the expense from the amount due or accruing due on the contract sum.

Contractor will be required to sign a contract containing the usual and ordinary conditions, as now issued by the Department of Public Works.

The contractor shall furnish and erect in place, all the iron trusses, purlins, hip and valley rafters, ceiling beams, diagonal bracing, dormer window frames, lanterns, bed plates, anchor bolts, lattice angles to support wire netting, &c., in number and position as shown on the plans herewith or required, and also all purlins, boarding, &c., which are shown and specified to be of wood.

The contractor for the ironwork and woodwork, &c., connected therewith, must, on completion of the same, remove, as directed, all scaffolding erected by him, and also all useless or waste material or rubbish which may have accumulated in the building or upon its site, owing to the execution of his portion of the work.

The contractor, before commencing the construction of any part of the work, must take accurate measurements from the building, as he will be held responsible and have to make good, at his own expense, any parts of the work which on delivery may be found not to accurately fit their positions.

The contractor shall find, at his own expense, the piling ground which may be required for storing the roof materials, from their delivery until such time as he will be notified to begin the work of erection and during the progress of the work.

The contractor must have all the work herein specified ready to be placed in position on the building on or before the 1st November, 1886, and will complete all the work herein specified on or before the first day of the month of June, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

As regards the delivery and placing in position all the iron and other work, scaffolding &c., any damage that may occur thereby and also any damage from whatever cause during the progress of the erection to any portions of the brickwork, cut stone or masonry, or other work, or any material that may be on the site, must be made good at the expense of the Contractor to the satisfaction of the Minister of Public Works or any person delegated by him.

Great care must be taken in placing the iron work in position, as the contractor will be held responsible for any damage whatsoever or interference with other contractors consequent upon its erection, and will have to make good all damage to the satisfaction of the Minister of Public Works or any person delegated by him.

DETAILS OF CONSTRUCTION.

All parts of the roof structure shall be of wrought iron, except the columns, plates and window frames in the skylights over trusses "A," which shall be of best soft grey cast iron, and also all purlins, boarding, &c., which are shown and specified to be of wood.

All details must be accessible for inspection, cleaning and painting.

All members must be free from twists or bends, and all portions exposed to view must be neatly finished. The footings of posts shall be accurately fitted and all abutting surfaces carefully planed.

The connecting surfaces between the posts and horizontal members shall be planed to the proper angle, to insure a true bearing throughout the entire width of the member.

No inaccuracy in fitting the connections will be permitted.

All abutting joints shall be spliced by plates of the same sectional area as that of the members they serve to unite, and be secured by a sufficient number of rivets to transmit the entire strain, without relying upon the abutting surfaces.

All trusses shall be secured at one end to the masonry, and at the other end shall be free to move upon planed surfaces

All shoe plates or bed plates for truss posts, jack rafters, hip and valley rafters, must be of wrought iron, and of such a size that the pressure from the structure and its maximum load shall not exceed 250 lbs. per square inch on the masonry; sheet lead shall be placed between the bottom of the bed plates and the masonry, and the bed plates shall be securely anchored to the masonry by Lewis bolts.

All bed plates and shoe plates of the trusses must be planed smooth.

In punching plates and other iron the diameter of the die shall in no case exceed the diameter of the punch by more than one-sixteenth ( $\frac{1}{16}$ ) of an inch, and all holes must be clean cuts, without torn or ragged edges.

The open sides of all compression members shall be stayed by tie plates at the ends and diagonal lattice work at intermediate points. The tie plates shall be placed as near the ends as practicable, and the size of the lattice bars shall be duly proportioned to the size of the member. All pin holes shall be reinforced by additional material, so as not to exceed the allowed pressure on pins. These reinforced plates must contain enough rivets to transfer the proportion of pressure which comes upon them.

Pin holes shall be bored exactly perpendicular to a vertical plane passing through the centre line of each member when placed in a position similar to that it is to occupy in the finished structure.

All eye bars must be free from flaws and of full thickness in the necks. They shall be perfectly straight before boring. The holes shall be in the centre of the head and on the centre line of the bar. The bars must be of exact lengths, and the pin hole  $\frac{1}{30}$  inch larger than the diameter of the pin. The pins shall be turned straight and smooth, and shall fit pin holes within  $\frac{1}{30}$  of an inch.

The several members attaching to the pin shall be so packed as to produce the least bending moment upon the pin.

The counters of trusses "A" shall be formed of square bar iron with loop eye and sleeve nut adjustment; the loops must fit perfectly around the pin throughout their semi-circumference, and the screw ends must be upset so that the effective area at the bottom of the threads shall exceed the area of the bar by at least fifteen per cent. In riveted work surfaces coming in contact shall be painted before being riveted together with one good coat of pure oxide of iron paint and boiled linseed oil.

Bed plates, the inside of closed sections, and all parts of the work which will not be accessible for painting after erection shall have two coats of paint.

The maximum shearing strain on all pins, rivets and bolts shall not exceed 7,500 lbs. per square inch, nor the pressure upon the bearing surface exceed 12,500 lbs. per square inch of the projected semi-intrados (diameter by thickness of piece) of the pin, rivet or bolt. Rivets must be so spaced that the shearing strain per square inch shall not exceed the above allowance, and no account shall be taken of the friction between the riveted plates. For members in compression the distance between centres of rivets in the line of strain shall not exceed sixteen times the thickness of the plate. No shearing strain shall be allowed in the direction parallel to the fibres, nor any compressive strain perpendicular to the fibres.

Rivet work shall be done with great care and in the most substantial manner.

Rivet holes must be accurately punched and truly spaced so that when the various parts are assembled a rivet one-sixteenth less in diameter than the rivet holes can be entered hot without the use of drifts.

All rivets must completely fill the holes and when possible should be riveted by machinery.

The heads of rivets must be hemispherical and of uniform size for the different kinds of rivets.

All rivets found loose or with heads cocked off the centre of the shank shall be cut out and replaced with new ones.

The pitch of rivets shall never exceed six inches nor sixteen times the thinnest outside plate nor be less than three diameters of the rivet.

The distance from edge of any plate or flange to the centre of the rivet hole shall not be less than  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches; in all cases where the width of plates or flanges admit it, when practicable it shall be at least 2 diameters of the rivet.

The pitch of rivets in compression members shall not be over four times the diameter of the rivet at the ends of the members for a length equal to one and one-half diameters of the members. All sizes of material and particularly the weight per foot shall be strictly in accordance with those given on the drawings.

All wrought iron used must be tough, fibrous and uniform in character. It must have a limit of elasticity of not less than 26,000 lbs. per square inch, and have an ultimate strength of not less than 50,000 lbs. per square inch.

The elongation of the bar before rupture shall not be less than 15 per cent in 12 diameters, and the reduction of area at the breaking point shall not be less than 20 per cent of the original section. Specimens of one square inch area shall bend through 90 degrees around a cylinder  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches in diameter without shewing signs of fracture.

All rolled iron shall be thoroughly welded during the rolling, and must be straight, of full section at all points, free from injurious and unsightly seams blisters, buckles, slivers, cinder spots and imperfect or crooked edges.

All facilities for inspection of iron and workmanship shall be furnished by the contractor. He shall furnish free of charge such specimens of the several kinds of iron to be used as may be required to determine their character.

Full sized parts of the structure may be tested at the option of the Chief Architect, but if tested to destruction, such material shall be paid for at cost, less its scrap value to the contractor, if it proves satisfactory. If it does not stand the specified tests it will be considered rejected material, and be solely at the cost of the contractor.

All workmanship must be strictly first class. Finished pieces shall be true to size, section and line, straight and out of wind at all points, and all machine, rivet or smith work, shall be of the best character.

After the whole structure is erected, all the iron work shall be thoroughly and evenly painted with two coats of pure oxide of iron paint ground in pure linseed oil.

WOODWORK.

The Contractor to provide all plant, derricks, tackle and scaffolding required.

Purlins, hips and valley pieces to be provided for all decks, slopes, dormer window roofs and saddles. Those for decks to be 3 in. by 4 in. and for slopes 6 in. by 6 in. in long lengths, all placed and secured as shown on the drawings.

Roof throughout including all skylights, dormer windows, saddles, &c., to be covered with 2-in. grooved and tongued flooring, not more than 6 inches in width, nailed with 4-in. nails to every purlin. Boarding to conform to all curved surfaces, &c., and have tilting pieces, &c., where required. All lumber throughout to be worked and applied in the best manner, to be best quality, kiln dried, well seasoned, white pine, free from sap, shakes, and large, loose or unsound knots.

All dimensions specified herein or figured on drawings to hold full size when finished. Moulded portion of cornice of skylight to be of 18 gauge galvanized iron, top of cornice being 18 gauge iron, rivetted and soldered, and supported upon strong iron brackets placed at 3 feet centres, properly secured to skylight. Rivets to be at  $1\frac{1}{4}$  in. centres.

Flat, sloping and curved ceilings throughout to be covered with corrugated wire lathing, No. 18 gauge and  $\frac{3}{8}$ -in. mesh, which is to be firmly and rigidly secured to angle irons with malleable iron wire or other suitable material.

THIS INDENTURE made in duplicate on the third day of September in the year of Our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

Between Alphonse Charlebois, Contractor, of the City of Ottawa, and in the Province of Ontario, hereinafter throughout designated as "the Contractor," of the first part; and Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, represented by the Honourable the Minister of Public Works of Canada, hereinafter throughout designated as "the Minister," of the second part:

Witnesseth that for and in consideration of the sum of sixty thousand dollars of lawful money of Canada, to be paid to the Contractor or to his executors, administrators or assigns, by Her Majesty, Her heirs and successors, in manner hereinafter mentioned, the Contractor does hereby for himself his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, covenant, promise and agree to and with Her Majesty, the Queen, Her heirs and successors, in the manner following, that is to say :—

1. In this contract the word “work” or “works” shall, unless the context require a different meaning, mean the whole of the work and materials, matters and things required to be done, furnished and performed by the Contractor under this contract. The word “Architect” shall mean the Chief Architect for the time being having control over the work, and shall extend to and include any of his assistants acting under his instructions, and all instructions or directions or certificates given, or decisions made by any one acting for the Chief Architect, shall be subject to his approval, and may be cancelled, altered, modified and changed, as to him may seem fit.

2. That the contractor shall furnish and provide all such machinery, apparatus, tools, plant, materials, effects and things requisite and necessary as are mentioned or intended so to be in the annexed specification, marked A, and shall well, truly and faithfully build, erect, construct, perform, complete, fit up and finish in the best and most workmanlike manner in every respect, and of the best materials of their several kinds, and to the satisfaction of the Minister, and in accordance with the true intent and meaning of the said annexed specification, and agreeably to the plans remaining deposited of record in the Department of Public Works of Canada, (which plans and specification are to be construed and read as part hereof, and as embodied herein and forming part of this contract), that is to say :

All the works mentioned and contemplated in the said specification or shown on the said plans which are requisite and necessary in, about and for the purpose of supplying all the materials required and doing all that work necessary for placing in position in the manner specified, the iron roofs, &c., on the new Departmental Buildings on Wellington street, in the city of Ottawa, in the County of Carleton, Province of Ontario.

3. That all such materials of the said work are to be unexceptionable in quality, and any rejected by the Architect, or the officer in charge shall not be used in the works, and if not removed by the contractor when directed by the Architect or officer in charge, as aforesaid, then the same shall be removed by the Architect or officer in charge, as aforesaid, to such place as he may deem proper, at the cost and charge and risk of the contractor; but any inspections, and any approval of materials shall not in anywise subject, or make liable, Her Majesty to pay the contractor for the said materials so approved, or any portion thereof, or prevent the rejection afterwards of any portion thereof, which may prove or turn out at any time before the final completion of this contract, to be unsound or unfit or improper, to be or to have been used in the work, nor shall such inspection be considered as a waiver of objection to the work, or any part thereof, on the account of unsoundness or imperfection of the material used.

4. The contractor shall and will perform and execute the said work under the superintendence of the Architect or officer in charge, and to the satisfaction of the Minister, as set forth in the said specification, and the contractor shall commence and proceed with the same in such order and with such rate of progress, from time to time, as the Minister or the Architect or officer in charge may direct. 7. The contractor, before commencing the construction of any part of the work, must take accurate measurements from the building, as he will be held responsible and have to make good, at his own expense, any parts of the work which, on delivery, may be found not to accurately fit their positions.

8. The contractor shall find, at his own expense, the piling ground which may be required for storing the roof materials from their delivery until such time as he will be notified to begin the work of erection and during the progress of the work.

9. The care of the works, included under this contract, together with whatever material appertains or belongs thereto, shall be entirely at the charge and risk of the contractor, who shall be liable and responsible for any and all loss, damage, detriment and injury that may arise, or be sustained both on this contract and the other contracts respectively, in so far as they may be affected by the execution of this contract during the progress of the works, and until the same shall be completed and certified as such by the Architect or officer in charge, and be received and taken by the Minister as complete; and the contractor shall also repair, replace and amend any work or materials, whether under this contract or the other contracts, and that all percentage, drawbacks, reserves, deductions or other funds retained by the Minister on behalf of Her Majesty, shall, in the event of any such loss, damage, detriment or injury, be applied by the Minister so far as may be necessary for the reconstruction, amendment, restoration and repairs of the work, materials or machinery.

10. It is hereby agreed that in addition to the liquidated damages to be recovered by Her Majesty as provided for in the fourth clause hereof, on the failure of the contractor to complete the work herein contracted for, at the period of time hereinbefore mentioned, the contractor shall be liable for and shall pay or cause to be paid to Her Majesty all percentage, salaries and wages which shall be or become due to the Architect or officer in charge, or subordinate person, or persons superintending the work on behalf of the Minister from the period so hereinbefore named for the completion of the works, up to and until the said works shall actually, be completed and received, and the Minister may deduct and retain in his hands out of the percentage herein-after mentioned, or out of any moneys which may otherwise at any time become or fall due to the contractor all such sum and sums of money as shall have been so incurred, defrayed or expended by the Minister for such purpose, or the Minister may recover the same from the contractor in an action in the name of Her Majesty as moneys paid for and on account of the contractor.

11. If it shall at any time appear to the Minister that the establishment or the rate of progress at, in and upon the said work embraced in this contract, or of any part thereof, or of any work or matter incident to the same, or in any way connected therewith, are not satisfactory (having due reference to the sufficiently advanced state of the works under other contractors to enable the contractor to proceed with his work), or such as to ensure the completion of the same within the time hereinbefore mentioned, or on failure or breach by the contractor of any matter or thing herein contained, on the part of the contractor to be done or performed, or if the contractor shall at any time or times neglect or refuse to carry on this contract, or any part of it, or to supply requisite or proper tools, implements or plant and materials, or be unable to carry on the same, then, and in any of such cases, the Minister may forthwith, after having given six days' notice to the contractor of his intention to do so, and without any process or suit at law, or other legal proceeding of any kind whatever, or without its being necessary to place the contractor en demeure, either absolutely take the work, or any part thereof, out of the hands of the contractor and re-let the same without the necessity of previous advertisement, or employ additional workmen and provide materials, tools, implements and all other things requisite for the completion and performance of the contract at the expense of the contractor, and the contractor shall, in either case, be liable for all damages and extra costs and expenditure which may be incurred by reason thereof, and if such damages, extra costs and expenditure exceed in the whole the sum of sixty thousand dollars, then Her Majesty may recover of and from the contractor the balance or excess over and beyond the last mentioned sum, provided the contractor herein shall have the right to carry on the work of the contract at all times and periods, so that the same does not interfere with or impede the contractor or his officers, workmen or servants under contracts for other portions of work in the premises.

12. If any overseer, mechanic or workman employed on or about the work, or any portion thereof, be incompetent to perform the work or duties required of him, or give just cause of complaint, the contractor shall immediately, upon the application of the Architect or officer in charge, dismiss such person or persons forthwith from the works, and he shall not again be employed thereon without the written consent of the Architect or officer in charge, and should the contractor continue to employ such overseer, mechanic or workman, the contractor shall pay to Her Majesty, Her heirs and successors, the sum of twenty dollars as liquidated damages, and not of fine or penalty, for each and every day during which such overseer, mechanic or workman shall be employed on the works, after such application for his dismissal as aforesaid, and the Minister shall have the same power of retaining such sums as may become due to Her Majesty under this clause, or of enforcing payment thereof, as are given and expressed in the eleventh clause of this contract.

13. Whenever and wherever it shall be deemed necessary by the Minister the contractor shall give, at any time during working hours, to the Architect or officer in charge, or person designated by the Minister, free access to the workshop or factory, or grounds wherein the work herein contracted for is to be manufactured, fitted and placed together before being put in position on the building.

14. That the contractor shall not in any way, directly or indirectly, sell, dispose of or re-let, assign, transfer or sub-let to any person or persons whomsoever, either entirely or partially and jointly with them, or in any other manner or way howsoever, this contract or any part thereof, or any portion of the work embraced herein or to be performed hereunder, or which without being distinctly and specially mentioned herein, may yet be rendered necessary for the full and proper completion of the contract.

15. In all cases of defective description or delineation in either the drawings hereinbefore referred to, or the specification hereunto annexed, the explanation and interpretation given by the Minister shall be received and shall be final, binding and conclusive upon the contractor, and wherever neither the drawings, plans or specifications contain any notice of minor parts, the intention to include which is nevertheless clearly to be inferred, and which minor and detail parts are common, usual and proper in workmanship of this character, and which are obviously necessary to the due completion or stability of the work, all such works are to be found provided and fixed by the contractor at his own expense and cost, and are to be considered to be included in the contract, it being the intention of this contract that all such work of every kind as may be necessary for completely finishing the work proposed, in the best and most workmanlike manner, and for the rectification of any failure from whatever cause arising, and the well maintaining, sustaining and supporting the whole of the works, as well as any and whatever change, alteration and addition that may be made thereon, so that the whole may remain sound and firm, and that all such minor parts and details are implied in the plans, drawings and specifications and in this contract, although the same are not therein and herein specifically expressed.

16. That if any change, alteration or addition, either in the position of details of the works embraced in this contract, or in any of the materials therefor, shall be required by the Minister, other than those mentioned in the specification, the contractor will make such change, alteration or addition; and if such change, alteration or addition shall entail extra expense on the contractor, either in labour or materials, the same shall be allowed to the contractor; or should it be a saving to the contractor in either labour or materials, the same shall be deducted from the amount of this contract, and in either case the amount is to be determined by the estimate made by the Minister, his Architect or officer in charge, but no such change or alteration, whatever may be the extent or quality thereof, or at whatever time the same may be required to be made pending this contract, shall in any wise have the effect of suspending, superseding, annulling or rescinding this contract, which shall continue to subsist, notwithstanding any such change, alteration or addition, and that every such change, alteration or addition shall be performed and made by the contractor under and subject to the conditions, stipulations and covenants herein expressed, as if such change, alteration or addition had been expressed and specified in the terms of this contract; and should the contractor be required by the Minister to do any work or furnish any materials for which there is not any price specified in this contract, the same shall be paid for at the estimated value thereof of the Minister, but no change, alteration or addition as aforesaid, whatever, and no extra work whatever, shall be done without written authority given prior to the execution of the work, nor will any allowance or payment whatever be made for the same in case it should be done without authority.

17. That any notice, or other paper connected with this contract, which may be required or desirable on the part of Her Majesty, may be served on the contractor either at his usual domicile, or at his usual place of business, by being left at the post office there, and any notice or other paper so addressed and left at such post office shall, to all intents and purposes, be considered legally served.

18. If any difference of opinion between the Contractor and the Architect or officer in charge, arise as to the construction to be put upon any part of the specifications or plans, the same shall be determined by the Minister alone, and such determination shall be final and conclusive, and binding upon the contractor.

19. In the event of any difference or dispute between the contractor and the Architect or Officer in charge, in respect to the performance by the contractor of the duties required by this contract, or connected therewith, the same shall be referred to the Minister of Public Works, Canada, for final arbitration and award, subject, however, to the approval thereof of the Minister.

20. If the contractor fails at any time in paying the salaries or wages of any person employed by him upon or in respect of said works, or any of them, and any part of such salary be one month in arrear, or if there be due to any such person one month's wages or salary, the architect may notify the contractor to pay such salary or wages, and if two days elapse and the same be not paid in full up to the date of payment or to such other date as may be in accordance with the terms of employment of such person, then Her Majesty may pay to such person such salary or wages from any date to any date and to any amount which may be payable, and may charge the same to the contractor, and the contractor covenants with Her Majesty to re-pay at once any and every sum so paid.

And the contractor and Her Majesty the Queen do, and each of them both hereby further mutually covenant, promise and agree the one with the other, the contractor for himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, and Her Majesty for Herself, Her heirs and successors, in manner following, that is to say :—

1. Payment of any sums of money which may be made to the contractor by Her Majesty under this contract, will be so made according to the provisions of the Statutes of Canada, thirty-first Victoria, chapter twelve, and within ten days after an estimate of the architect, or officer in charge, shall have been received by the Minister, specifying the amount of work done during the month or period then ending; but nevertheless the Minister, on behalf of Her Majesty, may withhold and retain from the contractor ten per cent, out of the estimates, until the perfect completion of the work, and the acceptance of the same by the Minister; provided that the Minister may at any time, and from time to time, advance and pay to the contractor any portion of the percentage hereinbefore mentioned.

2. That the Minister on behalf of Her Majesty may make payments or advances on materials, procured for the works or used, or intended to be used about the same, in such cases and upon such terms and conditions as to the Minister may seem proper, and that whenever any advance or payment shall be made to the contractor upon any tools, implements or materials of any description, the same, or such as upon which such advance or payment shall be made, shall thenceforward be vested in and held as collateral security by Her Majesty, Her heirs and successors, for the due fulfilment by the contractor of this contract, it being, however, well understood, that all such materials of any kind are to remain at the risk of the contractor who shall be responsible for the same, unless and until the same are, upon the completion of the contract, finally accepted as part of the work, by the Minister, but the contractor shall not exercise any act of ownership, or control whatever, over any materials, upon which any advance or payment has been so made, without the permission in writing of the Minister.

3. That in case the amount heretofore voted by the Parliament of Canada, for the construction of the work be at any time expended, previously to the completion of the work embraced in this contract, the contractor may or may not, at his option, on receipt of a notice in writing from the Minister of such expenditure having occurred, stop the work; but in such case, the contractor shall not be entitled to any further payment for work done, or materials supplied after the service of such notice, unless and until the necessary funds shall be voted by Parliament, nor shall the contractor have any claim for compensation or damages, for the suspension of work accruing on such notice aforesaid, or suspension of payment.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the said contractor has hereunto set his hand and affixed his seal, and the Minister of Public Works of the Dominion of Canada, acting herein on behalf of Her Majesty, has set his hand and seal the day and year first above written.

ABSTRACT of Additional Work in connection with Main Contract Allowed.

	$	cts.
G Additional depth of building.....	4,130	75	The contractor claimed the sum of $37,000, for the additional depth of building. According to the specification the contractor had to pay all corporation fees, licenses and permits, and furnish all street lines and levels, the latter to be obtained from the city surveyor, and to conform to city by-law, as also "the setting out of all work shall rest solely with the contractor, who shall be responsible for the same and if any discrepancies should be found he will have to alter and make good the same." By the plan of the site at the time the contract drawings were prepared the rear line of the property was shown to be parallel to the line of Wellington street, but according to the lines as set out and built by the contractor the Elgin street wing is 2' 9" deeper than shown on the contract drawings. As the Government has got the benefit of the additional size of the building an allowance of $4,130.75 has been made the contractor, this sum being fair value for the additional work done. The attention of the Department was not called to the additional size of the building until the walls were ready to receive the first floor joists.
Q Copper roofing as per tender.....	19,814	00	According to contract the flat part of the roofs was to be covered with Sparham cement and the sloping parts with galvanized iron. The amount of $4,731.45 is deducted from the final estimate for Sparham cement and galvanized iron work included in the contract.
Q1 Copper moulding band around the lower part of mansard roof, covering parapet walls with copper, and 3 additional skylights (for further detail see Q1 final estimate).....	3,323	02	Work not included in contract but considered necessary to increase the drip at the eaves and also to greatly improve the appearance. When the roofs were partially covered it was found that additional light was required, therefore the skylights were constructed.
Q2 Flashing around skylights.....	506	40	Allowed skylights required to be flashed.
Q3 Copper balls at dormer windows in lieu of stone as called for by contract	497	28	According to contract balls were to be of stone, but as the sandstone absorbs water and was to be placed in a very exposed position it was decided advisable to construct them of copper, and the amount of $225 has been deducted from the final estimate for stone balls.
Q4 Extra copper roofing over rear wall of building, owing to change of stone cornice.....	680	00	A deduction of $274 is made from final estimate for stone work.
T Granolithic steps at entrance, and granolithic floors in corridors in lieu of tiles	3,941	12	A deduction of $4,929.75 is made for the tiles which were omitted in corridors, &c., granolithic being used instead.
T Granolithic outside areas. Basement floor, corridor, boiler house and yard in rear (for detail see T final estimate)	4,831	20	Not included in contract. Wood block paving of yard was deducted.
T Finishing hardwood with the finest quality of hardwood oil finish, as per verbal agreement.....	1,750	00	According to contract the hardwood finish was to be two coats of oil stopped with patent wood filler and finished with white wax. In lieu of the white wax finish the woodwork was finished with hard oil finish and rubbed down with pumice.

Your Committee have had under consideration certain items affecting John R. Arnoldi and charged under the heading "Dredging—Details of Expenditure" in the Report of the Auditor-General on Appropriation Accounts for the year ended 30th June, 1889-90 ; and in connection therewith have examined witnesses under oath, and for the information of the House report herewith the evidence given by such witnesses.

All which is respectfully submitted.

N. CLARKE WALLACE,

Chairman.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE.

COMMITTEE ROOM, Friday, 24th July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. Wallace in the Chair.

Mr. F. MERRITT, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

1. Where do you live?—I stay in Aylmer.
2. Do you live in Aylmer now?—Yes.
3. What is your occupation?—I am a clerk in the Bank of Montreal.
4. How long have you been in that position?—About four years, I think, or a little over.
5. Are you any relation to Mr. John R. Arnoldi?—I am.
6. What connection?—A nephew.
7. How long did you say you had been living in Aylmer?—Since the 8th of May last, coming in in the morning and going out in the evening. It is a summer residence.
8. You spend your evenings there and your days here?—Yes.
9. You are employed in the city?—Yes.
10. In a bank in the city?—Yes.
11. What bank?—The Bank of Montreal.
12. And you have been so employed for how long?—In the Bank of Montreal for a little over four years, but not in this branch.
13. Do you know anything about a lot on Vittoria street—you know where Mr. Arnoldi's stable is?—I do.
14. You know the lot?—Yes.
15. Do you own that lot?—No.
16. Did you ever own it?—No.
17. Did you ever have any claim to it?—No.
18. Nothing to do with it?—No.
19. Look at this account, dated 1st May, 1890—it reads thus: "Dredge vessels, repairs, Dr., F. Merritt; P.O. address, Ottawa, 117 Vittoria street"—Do you live there?—I did at that time.
20. Did you?—I boarded.
21. Who with?—I am not very sure. I boarded, but I do not know what number it is on Vittoria Street, opposite Mr. Arnoldi's house. I do not remember what date it was.
22. Mr. Arnoldi's house is 117 Vittoria Street?—I am not sure.
23. Then you were living near Mr. Arnoldi at that time?—I was.
24. This is an account to the Public Works Department: "Dredge vessels repairs, Dr.—F. Merritt, Post Office address 117 Vittoria street, May 1st, to six months rent of shed for storage, &c." It is certified: "Services performed, prices fair and just—J. R. Arnoldi.” Is that in your handwriting?—No, it is not.

25. Whose writing is it in?—I do not know.

26. Did you ever authorize anybody to make out such an account—on your oath?—No, I did not.

27. You swear you cannot tell whose hand that writing is?—I cannot.

28. Whose handwriting is this in, the words “Services performed, prices fair and just”?—Mr. Arnoldi.

29. On that account is “Received payment—F. Merritt.” Whose writing is that?—That is mine.

30. How were you paid? Did you ever get the money?—Is that for the one receipt? I got a cheque for that receipt, but the money ultimately went to Mr. Arnoldi.

31. How long did you keep the cheque?—I cannot really say.

32. A minute—long enough to put your name on the back of it?—Oh yes; long enough to put my name on it.

33. That is all the possession you had of it?—I cannot say.

34. Come now, brush up. It is only a year ago. Who took it to you?—Mr. Arnoldi.

35. Where did you sign it?—I cannot say for sure where I endorsed it, in his house or in the bank.

36. Was it payable to you?—It was.

37. And it was endorsed by you?—It was.

38. Mr. Arnoldi took it to you and you put your name on the back of it?—Yes.

39. You never got any of the money?—No.

40. You never saw the money?—I saw the money for one receipt. I do not know which one it was. It was for $40.

41. Here is another account dated November 1st, 1889?—Which is the one you have been talking about?

42. The last one. That is the last one for the fiscal year 1889-90. I do not know what there is since. Have you signed it for this year too?—Not that I know of.

43. This is a receipt dated May 1st, 1890?—Yes.

44. And then there is this one dated November 1st, 1889. That would be six months before the other. Look at that, it is an account for “six months rent of shed, storage of dredging plant—$40.” Look at that and say in whose handwriting is the body of the account?—I do not know.

45. Don't you know Mr. Arnoldi's writing?—I know Mr. Arnoldi's writing there (the signature) but I do not know whose handwriting is the body of the account.

46. In that is “services performed, prices fair and just.” Whose signature is that?—Mr. Arnoldi's.

47. After that is “Received payment—F. Merritt.” In whose handwriting is that?—Mine.

48. Then there is a little memorandum in red ink: “H. F. Perley” and something else. What is that?—I do not know.

49. How were you paid that money?—I did not see the money for it. I endorsed the cheque when Mr. Arnoldi gave it to me and I gave it back to him.

50. You knew nothing about the account being made out. He did not ask your permission?—He called me into his office and said he had made out an account in my name for the sum of the rent for the shed; that he did not want to be recognized as the owner of the property, as the settlement was not quite completed as to the purchase of the property. I thought there was no harm at all.

51. Was the stable built on it at that time?—I do not remember whether it was built when the first receipt was made out.

52. You do not remember whether that stable has been there for three or four years?—I do not know.

53. He said he did not want to be identified with it on account of some difficulty about the property?—Yes.

54. That was in 1889—the first one?—Yes.

55. Was that year paid by cheque in your favour?—It was.

56. You must have been mistaken about the account for May 1st, 1890, because I understood you to say you did see the money for one of them?—Yes, the last one. I mean the last receipt made out there—May 1st.

57. Tell us about that. How did you see the money? You were not paid by cheque for that?—Mr. Arnoldi gave me a cheque for $40—a Government cheque. I took it to the bank and got the money for it and brought it back and gave it to Mr. Arnoldi.

58. Where did he give you that cheque?—I would not like to say for sure, but I think it was in his house.

59. When was it you had it cashed? Right away?—No, I think it was either the day after or the same day.

60. You cashed that cheque and gave him the money?—Yes.

61. You never had any claim to that $80.?—None whatever.

62. You were merely used for the purpose of having the account made out in your name?—Yes.

JAMES R. WILSON, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

63. Will you tell the Committée where you live and what your business is?—I live in Montreal and I am in the metal trade.

64. Hardware?—Heavy hardware.

65. Who are you in partnership with?—With my father John Wilson, Member of Parliament for Glasgow.

66. Member of Parliament here?—No, the House of Commons in the old country.

67. You are in partnership with your father and with Thomas Robertson?—No.

68. Were you ever?—The firm is Thomas Robertson and Co.

69. And the members of that firm consist of whom?—John Wilson of Glasgow, and James R. Wilson, the present individual here now.

70. May I ask you how long you have been in that business?—Twenty years.

71. At one time with Thomas Robertson?—For about ten years after I entered the firm he was a member of it, but he ceased to be about ten years ago.

72. You have been about twenty years in business altogether?—Yes.
73. And have been living in Montreal for all that time?—Nearly always.
74. You know Mr. Arnoldi of the City here?—I have known Mr. Arnoldi intimately for a great many years.
75. Your acquaintance has been intimate?—Yes, he has always been an intimate friend of mine.
76. Stays at your house when he goes down?—Yes.
77. And you stay at his house when you come up?—Yes.
78. You are intimate friends?—Intimate social friends.
79. You were the owner, I believe, of the steamer “Joe”?—No, sir.
80. No?—No, sir.
81. You are not the owner of the survey steamer “Joe”?—No.
82. Did you ever own her?—No, sir.
83. She does not stand in your name?—No.
84. Never did?—Never did; but she is registered in my name.
85. There is an account here dated July 31st, 1889: “J. R. Wilson, Post Office address, Montreal, July 31st, To services of survey steamer ‘Joe,’ during the month of July, 1889, $100.” Will you look at that account and tell me if it is in your handwriting?—No, sir.
86. In whose handwriting is it?—I cannot say.
87. Look at the signature “J. R. Arnoldi,” and tell me if you recognize that signature?—I recognize that signature.
88. There is on this: “Services performed, prices fair and just.” Did you get that money?—Yes, by cheque.
89. Cheque payable to you?—To my order.
90. And what did you do with the cheque?—I endorsed it and handed it back to Mr. Arnoldi.
91. Then you did not see the money?—No, sir.
92. The money was never handed to you?—No, sir.
93. Where was it you got that cheque?—That I cannot positively say. As a matter of course, I should say in my office in Montreal.
94. On some occasion that Mr. Arnoldi would be down there?—Most likely.
95. Did you ever get cheques from him by mail to endorse?—I might have. I would not state positively.
96. Speaking from recollection, you would say that you endorsed them at his request, either here or in Montreal?—In his presence. As I have stated, Mr. Arnoldi was an intimate friend of mine; and some years ago he asked me if I had any objection to allow the steamer “Joe” to be registered in my name as nominal owner. I said, none whatever, provided the steamer was running for the service for which she was chartered by the Government. Mr. Arnoldi told me that she was never in connection with the dredging plant. I saw she was useful in that capacity and capable of earning $100 a month during the dredging season. I considered there was no harm in doing it in that way. I was quite willing to have the boat registered in my name, and have the transaction go through in my name. I received the cheques for the “Joe” during the dredging season, at the rate of $100 a month, and endorsed them and handed them over to Mr. Arnoldi.

By Mr. Bowell:

97. Did Mr. Arnoldi give any reason why he desired you to take the course?—I cannot really answer that question. I do not recollect whether he did or did not, but I rather think he probably gave me some reason at the time.

By Mr. Foster :

98. Did you know at the time that Mr. Arnoldi as owner of the "Joe," could not have her do service for the Government and receive pay therefor?—I think I was probably under that impression.

By Mr. Lister :

99. There are a number of accounts here for this service 1889-90?—I identify those signatures as mine.

100. You signed the receipt and endorsed the cheque?—Yes.

101. And the money, whatever it was, went to Mr. Arnoldi?—Yes.

102. You do not know anything about the purchase of supplies, wages, &c., on the boat?—Nothing whatever.

103. You do not know anything whatever about the running of the boat?—No.

104. How many years is it since the "Joe" was put in your name?—Speaking from recollection I should imagine it is about four years ago.

105. And you do not remember what was said to you at the time by Mr. Arnoldi?—I do not, but as I stated previously most likely I thought it would be a matter of advantage to Mr. Arnoldi to have it in my name.

106. During all these years, and particularly last year, did you furnish supplies to the Government?—We have always furnished supplies to the Government, more or less.

107. More or less?—Yes.

108. Sometimes a good deal more and sometimes a good deal less—thousands of dollars a year?—Sometimes it will amount to that; sometimes not so much.

109. Five or six thousand dollars?—No; I do not think as much as that. I really cannot tell you from memory, how much, but I should say about $3,000 or $4,000 a year probably.

110. Mr. Arnoldi has been dealing with your firm for twenty years?—I cannot say as to that exactly. I think he has been dealing with the firm for a long time.

111. Do you furnish the supplies by tender, or does Mr. Arnoldi just order them?—As a general thing they are ordered specially by a letter.

112. You get a letter stating what is wanted?—Yes, and just ship the goods.

113. You do not get a letter in the first place asking you to quote prices?—Mr. Arnoldi often asks what our prices for goods are.

114. But the practice is for you to get a letter from Mr. Arnoldi telling you to send them?—Yes; we generally get telegrams, because any goods that we ship are usually required in a hurry.

115. The business is carried on in the name of Thomas Robertson & Co.?—Yes.

116. You say the practice is to order the goods without asking quotations and then for you to ship them forward to Ottawa?—That is the usual way we do business.

117. And when Mr. Arnoldi happened to be in Montreal he would just order the goods?—As a general rule.

118. During these years have you made Mr. Arnoldi or any member of his family presents of value?—No, I have not; with the exception, I think of two pictures, which, on one occasion I sent to Mrs. Arnoldi.

119. Is that all?—That is all I know of.

120. You swear that is all?—I swear that is all.

121. These are the only presents?—These are the only presents that I recollect.

122. Good, bad or indifferent, that you have any recollection of?—Yes; that I have any recollection of.

123. You swear you never purchased any diamonds for any member of Mr. Arnoldi's family?—Yes

124. You swear it positively?—I swear it positively. To the best of my recollection I do not remember having bought jewellery for anyone.

125. To the best of your recollection?—Yes.

126. And with the exception of two pictures you never made to Mr. Arnoldi, or any member of his family a present during those years of dealing with you?—Yes.

127. You swear that positively?—I swear that positively.

128. Did you ever cause that to be done by others?—No, sir.

129. You never did?—No sir.

130. Do you know Henry Birks, the jeweller of Montreal?—I do.

131. Did you buy any jewellery there last winter?—I did sir.

132. Diamonds?—Yes, I did.

133. For?—For my wife. She wears them too.

134. For nobody else?—For nobody else. I think Mr. Chairman I am being questioned about matters which are beyond the scope of this inquiry.

By Mr. Lister :

134*a*. I beg your pardon. I withdraw the question. Have you been negotiating at all for the sale of the steamer "Joe"?—No sir, I have not.

135. Has young Mr. Arnoldi?—Not that I am aware of.

136. Young Mr. Arnoldi was in your employ, was he not?—Yes. He has not been there however, for the last 6 or 8 months. At one time he travelled for the firm.

By Mr. White (Cardwell):

137. You are in a somewhat extensive business in Montreal?—Some people would say so.

138. You are in the habit of selling to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company?—We sell to all the large railway companies.

139. You also sell to the Grand Trunk Railway Company?—Yes.

140. Do you sell to them by tender as a rule?—These large corporations make yearly contracts with us? In the case of the Grand Trunk it is so.

141. Are you often asked for quotations on your goods?—If you take the ordinary rule of trade, say we receive 70 or 80 orders in the morning's mail, I do not suppose there is 10 per cent that we have quoted for. They simply send us the orders to fill for the goods we have to the best of our ability.

142. The prices which you charge the Government for goods purchased from you, how would they compare with the prices you charge to the Canadian Pacific Railway or the Grand Trunk?—We charge the Government a fair and reasonable price.

143. You charge the current market price, the same as to these large corporations?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister :

144. You make a contract with the Grand Trunk Railway Company at the beginning of the year?—Yes.

145. And whether the market goes up or down you have to keep to the contract?—Yes.

146. I see according to the Auditor General's Report that one year you filled orders to the amount of $5,716?—I said three or four thousand dollars. Of course, I am speaking from memory.

147. That account is for gas, steam and water fittings?—That is in the line of our business.

148. Would those supplies be for the new building?—I do not know where they went. We supply general fittings.

149. They were furnished, how?—The orders were sent to us and the goods were shipped in the usual way.

150. Just an order from Mr. Arnoldi?—I suppose so.

151. And you sent them?—The firm did.

152. Is there any discount allowed on your bills?—The trade discounts are taken off on bills sent in.

153. What would that bill be (pointing to account in Auditor General's Report) $4,348.99. Would that be the balance after deducting the trade discount?—I suppose that is the net amount payable to us.

154. How much discount do you allow?—In some cases it varies from 10 per cent to as high as 40 per cent.

By Mr. Mulock :

155. Who would get the discounts on what you supply the Government?—The Government. Any other discount went into my pocket.

156. Not the firm's?—It went into the firm's and I got my share.

By Mr. Lister :

157. There was no dividing?—I do not divide with anybody.

By Mr. Somerville :

158. If you do not divide up, it is evident you have not been in the Government's service?—I am not aware that there has been any dividing.

By Mr. Mulock :

159. You never allow any commission to any person in the employ of the Government?—No, sir.

By Mr. Bowell :

160. I see, according to the Auditor General's Report, an account which says, "Injector, $25.33" "Sheet packing, 17 lbs, at $1." You would never think of tendering for those?—Not as a general rule; they are small amounts.

161. Then there is another one, "Thomas Robertson & Co., iron plate and gauge glasses, injector, $25.33; sheet packing, 17 lbs., at $1, $41.33." These are orders, I suppose?—These are ordinary orders I get in our business.

By Mr. McMullen :

162. Do you send travellers to take orders?—Yes.

163. All over the country?—We keep two travellers in our business.

164. In sending out these travellers you give them the general line of goods you have, and the prices you quote?—Yes.

165. Was it the same prices you charged the Government that you instructed your travellers to take from those they went to sell goods to?—Certainly.

166. It costs you something to send travellers out to receive those orders?—Yes.

167. Did you not allow any person any commission upon the orders that are sent in, thus saving you travellers' expenses?—No, sir; we never allowed any commission at all.

Mr. JOHN KENNEDY called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Taylor :

168. Are you acquainted with the steamer "Joe"?—Yes.

169. You know the steamer?—I do.

170. Do you know her to have been employed on dredging in connection with the Harbour works, or dredging by the Government?—I have understood so.

171. You don't know that she has been?—I hardly know of my own knowledge. I know the boat has been up and down river, and I have always understood that is her service.

By the Chairman :

172. You know that such services are required?—I do

By Mr. Taylor :

173. You know the necessity to have a steamer engaged in that kind of work?—Yes.

174. Do you know what would be the price of a steamer engaged in such work as you know her to have been engaged in?—Tugs, of about the same value as that boat, are ordinarily chartered for about from $8 to $10 a day. I never chartered a boat of precisely that character, but tugs of the same value.

175. Then a charge of $100 a month would not be considered extravagant, but a reasonable sum?—What does that include?

176. It includes the hire of the steamer herself.

By Mr. Bowell :

177. What do I understand when you say $8 to $10 a day?—Nothing but the privilege of using the boat.

178. That would be $300 a month?—Yes; ordinarily, Sundays are included in the charter. I think a $100 a month would be a reasonable price for that boat.

By the Chairman :

179. You have had experience in this business of employing boats?—Yes.

By Mr. Taylor :

180. You are Chief Engineer of the Harbour Commission in Montreal, I understand?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister :

181. You have no personal knowledge at all as to the necessity of this boat?—I understand that the Government has some half a dozen dredges scattered over the waters, from Lake Huron to down about Lake St. Peter, and that Mr. Arnoldi has charge of those boats. If that is a fact, and I understand that is so, then I think, such a boat would be needed.

182. Well, Mr. Arnoldi, by his bills put in here, shows that it is principally by railway he gets to the different points. How long would it take to go up to Lake Huron, for example, from Ottawa—the dredging would be at Kincardine, Goderich, Point Edward, and at different points that can be got at by rail? Do you say, as an engineer, it would be the proper thing to hire a boat and paddle round the lakes all summer?—You cannot survey a lake by train.

183. There is no surveying done here. You are taking it for granted he is surveying?—I understood so.

184. That is not the case, sir; he merely has to look at the condition of the dredging, and so on. If Mr. Arnoldi's duty is simply to take charge of the dredges, to see that they are kept in repair, that they are properly manned, or that they are being worked to advantage, do you wish this Committee to understand a vessel of that kind is necessary?—Including the keeping in repair and the plant?

185. Yes.—I think so.

186. What would she be used for?—Going out examining and getting to them, and taking away broken pieces, and sending back other spare parts.

187. If all these dredges are at ports, such as Kincardine, Goderich, and other places, would you say it is necessary to take a boat like that from Ottawa up there for the purpose of doing what you say has to be done?—I don't think it would be necessary to take a tug from here to Lake Huron to do that.

188. I see in the accounts that have been put in that these places where the tugs are working have been visited by Mr. Arnoldi on railway trains. Have you ever seen the boat in operation at all?—I cannot remember; I have seen the boat going up and down the river from Montreal, and see her about the lakes.

Mr. SOMERVILLE.—I object to Mr. Arnoldi standing by the witness.

Mr. ARNOLDI.—I am not prompting.

Mr. SOMERVILLE.—You were speaking to him just now.

By Mr. Lister :

189. Don't you know this boat is used as a pleasure yacht by Mr. Arnoldi and his friends?—I don't know that.

190. You live in Montreal and would not know?—I do.

The further examination into this matter was then postponed until the next meeting.

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 28th July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

J. R. ARNOLDI, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

191. What is your position in the Public Service?—My official position is Chief Mechanical Engineer of the Department of Public Works.

192. How long have you occupied that position?—I was mechanical superintendent from 1873 to, I forget the exact date, when I was then made mechanical engineer, and in order to distinguish me from my subordinates, who were nearly all mechanical engineers, the title of “chief” was added to my office—I forget exactly when, probably three, four or five years ago; I cannot state to a certainty. The office was the same exactly, only that the term “chief” was put on to distinguish me from my subordinates.

193. Your duties have always been the same?—Always.

194. Then you have been in the service of the Department or the Government, either as mechanical superintendent, or engineer-in-chief since 1873?—Yes; I have been in the service of the Government, however, since 1859 in various positions.

195. But either as mechanical superintendent or engineer-in-chief since 1873?—Yes; practically so. In 1871 I was mechanical superintendent of the North-West route.

196. What are your particular duties?—That is a very long story.

197. Well, tell it as briefly as you can. You have control of the dredges belonging to the Government, the superintendence of the Parliament Building, &c.?—I have control of all the public buildings of the city or Ottawa—of the mechanical staff, which means charge of ninety men in the winter time. Then I have charge of the dredges, with 50 or 60 or 100 men; last year I had practically charge of the ship channel, between Hochelaga and Quebec, which gave me seven more dredges to look after. For particular reasons the Department made me responsible for them.

198. Then you are in charge of the Government dredges and the public buildings at Ottawa. Anything else?—Practically not; I have the ventilation to look after, and so forth.

199. I suppose you have to look after anything that requires to be done in the way of heating, lighting, or repairing the public buildings?—Yes, sir; and any other matter which my Minister or the Department thinks my services can be made available for. I am sent without hesitation or a moment's delay. For instance a boiler explosion took place in Montreal last year by which two men were killed, and I had to attend to that.

200. Not to look after the two men who were killed, but to repair the building?—No; to investigate the matter.

201. What is your official salary?—I am on my oath now and I cannot tell you exactly. My cheque is $191.91 per month, but I do not know what they take off for superannuation.

202. Well, that would be about $2,400 a year?—I suppose so; I could not swear to $100 myself.

203. Who is your Minister?—Sir Hector Langevin.

204. I observe in the Public Accounts, that J. R. Wilson has sent in an account for $500, for the months of July, August, September, October and May, 1889-90, at $100 per month, for the services of the survey steamer "Joe." I suppose you know that that account has been sent in?—Yes, sir, it was made in my office under my directions by one of my clerks.

205. And a cheque I suppose was issued for it?—To the best of my recollection a cheque was sometimes issued; sometimes it was a cash payment by the paymaster if I remember aright.

206. Mr. Wilson does not say that?—I heard him give his evidence, but he is in error in that respect. Probably it escaped his memory. The monthly pay list for each dredge which includes coal, oil and other materials, may be made out in favor of the paymaster in one cheque and he may cash the whole cheque.

207. You have no personal recollection as to how that money was paid?—Well, I have seen it paid in cash. I have seen the paymaster get his cheque cashed in Ottawa.

208. He has received the pay in Ottawa?—The paymaster receives the cheque and he may cash his cheque in Ottawa before he leaves to visit the different dredges. The monthly pay list is made out for each dredge and after it has been properly certified to, the Department makes out a cheque for the amount of such pay-list. The paymaster may cash that cheque either in Montreal or here, and in regard to the payments for the services of the "Joe" he may have paid the money to Mr. Wilson, or the Department have issued a cheque for $100 and forwarded it to him. I have myself paid the pay-list of the various dredges to save the journey and expenses of the paymaster going there.

209. I suppose then the cheque was made out to you?—Yes.

210. And you got the money?—Yes.

211. Have you ever done this in connection with the survey steamer "Joe"?—I dare say I have.

212. Have you any recollection of having done so?—I have not.

213. You cannot say how the payments were made; whether they were made in cash by you or a cheque issued by the paymaster?—I cannot swear positively to it, except that I am under the impression that I may have done the duty of the paymaster this way, by having taken the money and handed it to Mr. Wilson.

214. And at the time you handed the cash to Mr. Wilson you would get the receipt?—He would hand me the account and I would receipt it.

215. I see there is an account here?—Well, if my name is on it I have signed it.

216. After you had given him the money, how long would it be before he handed it back to you?—Immediately, or he may have done it next day.

217. Are you sure you always paid him the cash? Did you always go through the form of either paying him the cash or giving him a cheque?—If I handed him the cash I certainly went through the form.

218. Well, why did you do that?—I did it purposely so that I could answer any question and state that Mr. Wilson received the money.

219. So that in view of the answer which you might have to give at some time or other, you went through the form of giving him the cash and signing the receipt?—I did so.

220. Always?—Yes.
221. What did you do with the cash after you got it?—Probably spent it.
222. Then the cash was yours?—The cash was mine.
223. You are, I suppose in fact the owner of the steamer “Joe”?—I am.
224. May I ask how long you have been the owner of the “Joe”?—Some years.
225. Be a little more definite than that if you please?—Well, I should think about six or seven years.
226. And during those six or seven years, you had her in the first place put in the name of Mr. Wilson; registered in his name at the Custom House?—No, sir, she was registered in the name of W. A. Allan, in the first place.
227. When she was brought here, was the original certificate taken out in Mr. Allan’s name?—May I be permitted to give a short explanation? This boat was built for an American gentleman. I saw her building and I said she would be a very suitable boat for the service of the Government of Canada. This gentleman shortly afterwards changed his residence from New York to Nebraska. He has never resided east since. I got the boat brought over to this side and had her registered in Mr. Allan’s name, for reasons which I will explain later on, and afterwards transferred to Mr. Wilson, she is registered in the Ottawa Custom House, and the proper amount of duty was paid on her when she was entered at the port of Ottawa.
228. The duties were paid on her when she was entered here?—Yes, by Mr. Allan. It was my money, but paid by Mr. Allan.
229. Was the vessel imported in Mr. Allan’s name?—The boat came into Canada through the Welland Canal. I brought her there through from the State of New York, and I said to the Customs officers that it was the usual thing in cases of this sort that she should be entered and registered at the place where she would make her headquarters which was the port of Ottawa.
230. And she was?—She was.
231. And the duties were paid?—Yes.
232. Who paid the duties?—Mr. Allan, to the best of my knowledge. I gave the money to him.
233. Mr. Allan was with you?—Yes, sir.
234. He went through the form of paying the duty at the Custom House?—Yes.
235. Mr. Allan is off to the States, is he not?—No, sir, he is in this room now.
236. I thought you said he went to Nebraska?—No, that was the gentleman from whom I got the boat.
237. What is his name?—His name is Meddie.
238. And you brought the boat here?—I brought her here.
239. You did not require a pilot then?—Yes, I did and paid for him out of my own pocket. She was not in the service of the Government at that time.
240. You bought the boat from Meddie, brought her through the Welland Canal to Ottawa, gave the money to Mr. Allan, and he paid the duties on her, and she was registered in his name at Ottawa?—Yes.
241. The certificate was issued simply upon the payment of the duties?—Yes.

242. Well, it is not legal. May I ask you how much the duties were?—Speaking from memory, between $650 and $750. I am not sure to $100.

243. Have you ever seen Mr. Meddie since?—Yes, sir.

244. Where?—In Nebraska.

245. What is his address?—Omaha.

246. And where was Mr. Meddie living at the time you purchased this boat from him?—Living in New York State.

247. Was that where you saw him and negotiated with him?—He is a friend of mine, sir.

248. Of course; I am not questioning that. I merely want to know if that was where you negotiated the purchase of this boat?—I don't remember; it may have been by correspondence.

249. You have not any recollection at all?—I cannot say exactly whether it was by conversation or by correspondence.

250. That is not the question. Where did this negotiation take place?—If it would be by conversation, probably in the the State of New York.

251. Where did you first see the boat?—I saw her about three miles from Lockport.

252. She was down at Lockport?—Yes.

253. That is in the State of New York?—Yes, sir.

254. In what condition was she when you first saw her?—There was just the frame.

255. What business was Mr. Meddie in?—I think he was in a large grain-forwarding business.

256. Had he anything to do with the shipyard at Lockport?—No, sir.

257. Had he nothing to do with the shipyard at all?—No, sir.

258. Had you any dealings with him at all?—With whom, sir?

259. Mr. Meddie, besides the boat deal?—No, sir; none that I know of.

260. No dealings with him?—Not that I know of.

261. And the boat was being built at Lockport?—Mr. Meddie is my brother-in-law, if I did not mention it to you before.

262. And a great friend of yours?—Of course he is a great friend.

263. And he was having this boat built?—The boat was built for him, sir.

264. And she was completely finished for him?—No, sir.

265. And what state was she in when you made the purchase?—Just in a fit state to navigate.

266. Machinery all in?—Yes, sir.

267. Everything ready to navigate?—Yes, sir.

268. And how much did you pay for her?—He and I had other transactions; it was a nominal transaction.

269. It was a nominal transaction, because you and he had other transactions together. I asked you a moment ago if you had other transactions and you seemed to be uncertain?—I have had many transactions, because I have known him for many years.

270. The boat was worth how much money?—Probably about $6,000 or $7,000 in the condition in which she was then.

271. Of course, she was then fit to navigate?—She was fit to navigate; she was bare, the same as you go into the house without any furniture; she was without her fittings.

272. But still you know the great value in a boat is the machinery, the hull and upper works?—I have built about 24 of them, and I find that the fitting out is a very heavy item.

273. It depends upon how you fit; I know the “Joe” is very well fitted up?—I beg your pardon; she is very plain.

274. She is a comfortable boat?—I will be very glad to take you out in it.

275. I will be very glad to attend one of your parties?—We will get at the party business later on.

276. You have not told me how much you gave for this boat?—I said, nominally, about $6,000.

277. That answer requires some explanation. When you say nominally about $6,000, what do you mean?—I say that Mr. Meddie and I have had a great many transactions together; sometimes we invest money for each other. If I wanted any money I would ask Mr. Meddie for it, and if he wanted any money he would ask me for it.

278. You don't mean to tell us that he gave you the boat?—Practically, he may have done.

279. Did he?—Practically, I said he did.

280. You said practically he did make you a present of his own boat?—In consideration of other private matters, I say he practically made me a present of the boat.

281. He practically made you a present of the boat in consideration of other private matters?—Yes, sir.

282. Well, now, that is——?—It is indefinite.

283. It is indefinite. There is no doubt about it?—But it is true all the same.

284. I would like you to make it a little more definite?—I cannot do it.

285. Well, you and Mr. Meddie had a large number of transactions, involving, I suppose, large amounts of money, and the upshot of the whole thing was that he made you a present of the boat?—Practically.

286. So that you did not buy the boat at all, except in that way?—Except in that way.

287. And then you brought to boat the Ottawa. Now, at the time that this purchase, we will call it, was made, were you, for the Government, having dredges constructed at Lockport?—Yes, sir; I was.

288. And were those dredges being built at the same shipyard that this steamer “Joe” was being built at?—No, sir.

289. At all?—No, sir.

290. But they were being built in Lockport?—Some of the machinery was being got in Lockport, and the two dredges were built at Tonawanda.

291. Then the machinery for the dredges was being made at Lockport, and the dredges themselves were being built at Tonawanda?—As near as I can recollect, at Tonawanda.

292. What are the names of those dredges?—One is the “Ontario,” and the other is the “Mr. John R. Arnoldi.” I built a dredge and scows for Mr. Allan.

293. Then you were building a dredge for Mr. Allan?—Yes.

294. And scows for that dredge?—Yes.

295. And the Government had nothing to do with it?—No, sir. I was superintending the Government dredges right alongside, and the other dredges were being built right alongside, and involved no extra charge or expense.

296. Mr. Allan was having a dredge built under your superintendence, and the Government was having another—that is to say, the machinery was being built at Lockport, and the wooden portions at Tonawanda?—Excuse me; I built one in frame near Lockport, which was taken to Manitoba, called the “Winnipeg.”

297. Is Lockport far from Tonawanda?—I think it must be perhaps some 12 to 17 miles. Tonawanda is on the Niagara River.

298. The machinery for these dredges, I assume, is the principal portion of the cost?—No, sir.

299. What proportion of the cost does it bear?—A dredge hull is worth about $8,000, and the machinery is worth about probably $7,000.

300. Did you often see Mr. Meddie down there at Lockport?—I was never there with him.

301. You never saw him at all?—I was not at Lockport with him.

302. Nor at Tonawanda?—I have never been with him at either of those places.

303. What interest had Mr. Meddie in the machine shops?—What machine shops?

304. That the machinery was being built in?—He had no interest in it.

305. What! In whose shipyard was this being built in?—A man named Sutton—he is dead now.

306. Sutton is it?—Yes.

307. And Sutton was building her for Mr. Meddie?—Yes, sir.

308. And Mr. Meddie gave her to you?—Yes.

309. Mr. Meddie was not a go-between?—How do you mean, sir?

310. Between you and the shipyard company, or the machinery company?—No, sir.

311. He was having her honestly built for himself?—Yes; he was very fond of yachting.

312. Well, you saw this boat down at Lockport, and you thought she would be a serviceable, good boat for the service?—Yes, sir; for the reason I had been using a smaller boat and had never been able to go out in the least puff of wind or rough weather.

313. Did you go back and consult with Sir Hector or the Deputy Minister as to the propriety of purchasing this boat?—She was never purchased by the Department.

314. She was purchased?—Not by the Department, sir; therefore I could not consult with them.

315. Did you consult with them as to the propriety of having a boat like that put into service?—Ah, that is another question. I will tell you how I did it. In a building I am head of my branch; in dredging I have acted nominally as assistant engineer to Mr. Perley. Mr. Perley himself has been on that smaller boat that we referred to just now, and in speaking of it he says: “Arnoldi this is too small a boat for this kind of work; you have got to lose too much time pottering about in it. If you ever tackle another boat get a decent-sized boat”

316. Did you tell Mr. Perley you were the owner of her?—I don't think I ever did.

317. He never asked if you owned her?—I don't think he ever did. I answered Mr. Perley, if he did ever ask me, as I answered you, Mr. Lister, when you asked me who was the owner of the boat.

318. No?—I think somebody did; perhaps Mr. Somerville.
319. You never told Mr. Somerville you were the owner of a boat?—Not to my knowledge; I think they all knew it pretty well.
320. You never told any departmental officer that you were the owner of the boat?—Not to my knowledge.
321. Then the Department supposed that Mr. Wilson was the owner of the boat?—They had a right to suppose so.
322. Did you never inform them at all?—No, sir; for one simple reason—that is, that I wished to avoid newspaper notoriety, that is all.
323. There was nothing wrong?—That was my only reason for taking any man's name; the papers have been very attentive towards me since 1874.
324. You said a moment ago that the departmental people all knew you owned the boat?—I said they practically may have assumed so. Sir Hector, I may say, certainly never did, because he asked me within the last week about it. I must exonerate my Minister, and my Deputy too, most thoroughly of any knowledge or cognizance of the boat.
325. Then none of these people knew you owned the boat?—Practically they did not know; they may have assumed it.
326. How did other people assume it, and why should they assume it?—You are asking me a very hard question to answer, there.
327. That should be easy to answer; I want to know why it is?—Seeing I was on the boat and used her myself.
328. For what?—For purely Government work nothing else.
329. That would not show it?—They never saw anybody else using the boat. She was called Arnoldi's boat, therefore they might assume it was my boat.
330. That is the only reason?—That is the only reason I can give you.
331. When you got her from Mr. Wilson, did you tell him that you did not want to make it public?—I told him that I wished to avoid newspaper notoriety.
332. You brought her to Ottawa and fitted her out?—I did. I put in some of her fittings in the west—that is to say, I took the cushions of the old boat and put them into her, and the plate and the knives and forks from my own house.
333. Have you fitted her and repaired her from time to time with Government supplies?—No, sir; the Government have kept her painted, there is very little repair done to her. I think they had a perfect right to do so, just the same as any tug we would hire and use for our own use.
334. The Government has kept her painted?—Yes, sir; every spring.
335. Has her machinery been kept in repair by Government employes?—There have been no repairs that I know of.
336. Any other repairs made to her?—I made an alteration to her this spring. I experiment with my own property for the Government benefit. You may doubt that, but it is a fact. We have to work sometimes in very low water. For instance, at Trenton working over a shoal it does not allow more than 5 feet of water, and a large tug, which draws  $8\frac{1}{2}$ , breaks her wheel and gets into trouble. The "Joe" has got a certain speed, and I made experiments, I might say, to see whether a given-sized wheel would produce as good results in towing as a larger sized wheel; for this purpose I took the wheel and made the necessary alterations for the purpose, but I found it would not work, so I took it back again and put it into store.

337. Was that taken out of store?—It was paid for by the Department of Public Works and belongs to them now.

338. Why was it bought?—It was a wheel that was bought for the “Sensation;” either of our tugs use the same sized wheel; and it was charged against the “Sensation.”

339. You took the old wheel off and put the new wheel on?—For the purpose of experimenting with it.

340. Only just experimenting with it?—To find out whether the old wheel was as good as one of a larger diameter.

341. You found it was not, and you took it back and put it amongst the stores again?—It can be used on the “Sensation” if she breaks her wheel.

342. If it answered all right would you have left it there?—Yes, sir; left it there for the other boat—for the “Davis.”

343. This boat of yours, I see that the charges are for five months at $100 a month; then you charge Ottawa to Kingston, Kingston to Brighton and back to Kingston, and then to Chateauguay, and Kingston to Valleyfield. That was in 1890?—Can't you give the month, sir?

344. I cannot. Ottawa to Brighton and back to Kingston. Tell me, are there any dredges on the Ottawa River?—You must specify dates, sir.

345. I have it just as you have given it?—Give me the date and I will tell you. I have so many. I had twelve last year. Probably that was last year, sir.

346. Yes?—This is a copy of my voucher (producing pass book). It must have been in 1889, sir.

347. It would be for July, August, September, October and November in 1889, and May in 1890?—I will give it to you in a few moments. The total is $45.

348. I do not know whether that is the Auditor General's report of that account or not.

349. Did you go to Brighton?—Why, certainly, sir.

350. And back to Kingston?—I have the minute now, sir. Here is my travelling expenses. I left Ottawa on the 12th, and I charged 75 cents for a cab to take down the instruments. Cab at Kingston, 75 cents. On the 14th of October there is a telegram, 45 cents; and on the 15th, telegram, 45 cents; on the 17th there is a cab, 25 cents; on the 25th, railway $1, Lachine to Montreal and back, 50 cents; 21st there is a cab to Ottawa, 75 cents. Then there is hotel expenses, my allowance for twelve days is $42, making an account of $47.

351. But you were on the boat all the time?—I was on the railway, Montreal to Lachine.

352. There is a charge for your board?—When I am absent on duty there is an allowance for every day at $3.50.

353. And there is a charge for meals?—I furnish meals on the boat.

354. You charge the Government $3.50 a day and charge for furnishing meals?—No, sir. I furnished the crew with meals at 25 cents a meal, sir.

355. You furnished no food for yourself?—Yes, sir; and my wife, and daughter and servant.

356. You bought what you required for yourselves and did not charge that to the Government?—Certainly not.

357. But you buy and charge to the Government whatever the hands and the engineer and the captain use?—I will put it in another way: Mrs. Arnoldi buys the provisions required for the boat, and there might be a dozen of beer in it; I do not know. It would be such things as meat and bread and butter. We live as at home. When we leave the table the men come in and take their meals there and then; at the end of the month they are charged for. You take this October account, 9th October to 31st, you will find a hundred and two meals for the engineer and assistants.

357. You bought all the supplies necessary?—Certainly.

358. And you charged the Government for the meals?—Twenty-five cents a meal.

359. While you got $3.50 a day for yourself?—Yes; that is exactly the state of the case. I might mention that that trip might appear a little long. If there was a little more detail it would be better. That boat at that time towed two scows from Kingston up to the Murray Canal for the dredge on Lake Huron. Her trip was longer than usual.

360. You went from Ottawa to Brighton?—Yes, sir.

361. You went from Ottawa to Kingston first?—Yes, by canal, because the scows were going up the canal ahead of me.

362. You went to Brighton and back to Kingston?—Yes.

363. And then from Kingston to Chateauguay? And then down the St. Lawrence from Kingston to Valleyfield?—You have to go that way to get to Chateauguay.

364. These were all the trips?—This is one trip you are speaking about just now.

365. I am speaking of the year's tripping?—That is only one of the trips I made.

366. That is all there was?—No, there were more than that. The Auditor General's report is wrong if it says that. There were more trips than that sir. I can show you them, sir. If you had all my accounts it would show them.

367. They are all here?—I beg your pardon, sir. There is another book about the winter accounts.

368. There is John O. Smith, eight and a half months caretaker of dredge. That is charged to the dredge "Priestman."—That is not my charge.

369. These are the only items under your charge to the steamer "Joe"?—But there is a mistake in that book. The Auditor General is wrong.

370. Did you get more than $646 for the steamer "Joe"?—Anything over that amount is charged against my travelling expenses.

371. There is nothing charged here against you for travelling expenses?—I call my trip travelling expenses.

372. But I mean your three items of what you paid out for the boat?—I can give you that, sir.

373. What I want to get at is this.....?—The expenses for the steamer "Joe," $500 rent, is correct.

374. And $100 for food?—Meals and pilotage.

375. Not pilotage.—You will find it is charged.

376. Meals for engineer, assistant and pilots, four hundred and four at twenty-five cents—$101?—I beg your pardon sir. Oh, that is perhaps correct. That is all right. That has been consolidated.

377. Ottawa to Brighton and back, &c., and pilotage—$45, in all, and making $646 altogether. That does not mean your expenses. It means meals furnished your assistant and pilots. What I want to know is, does that represent all for these five months of 1889 and 1890; that is, your charges for meals to engineers, assistants and pilots, $101?—Without going into all my vouchers and putting them all out, I could not answer that question.

378. You have rendered an account to the Auditor General and there is your account with the vouchers for meals and pilotage. Look at that account?—I never saw that piece of paper before.

379. No; it is taken from the data furnished?—I would have to look at all my figures. I would not swear to his figures. Perhaps it is consolidated, Sir. I could not say without going into it, Sir.

380. $45 for pilotage, is that right?—Probably it is, Sir. Here are seventy-nine meals in May, 1889, amounting to $19.75.

381. It is not May, 1889. It is May, 1890?—I beg your pardon, Sir. I may have a bill in my own travelling account, for all I know. Here is July, 1889, one hundred and seventeen meals, $29.25; August 1st to the 22nd, $18.75, August to September, $14. The account altogether is $146.

382. The Auditor General makes it $101?—That includes pilotage.

383. Now how many men have you on that boat?—One man as engineer is the crew of that boat. In this I have another, because I had an extra amount of work to do. I took another man along if I required his services on the dredge or in the general service.

384. Is that the crew of the boat?—Unless the dredge foreman accompanies me.

385. Is your engineer employed all the year round?—He has a multitude of duties as myself. He is the man who attends to the electric bells here. He is a fireman and an engineer. When he is away he is on the boat. When he is not away he is working here.

386. He is working on the boat or the buildings all the year round?—Yes.

387. And when you wanted an extra man you took a dredge man?—I took the dredge foreman or a man off the dredges.

388. That is the crew of the boat?—I am the rest of the crew.

389. You do the rest of the work yourself?—Yes. She is not a man-of-war.

390. She is a very comfortable little yacht?—Very nice, sir.

391. During 1889–90—from July 1889 to June 1890—you were paid for meals $101 altogether?—And pilotage.

392. $146 for pilotage included?—There may have been some other small incidental contingencies paid out of my own pocket.

393. How many dredges did you visit that year?—I would have to study that out.

394. You went to Brighton and then you want to Kingston?—You have to go to Kingston to get to Brighton.

395. You had no business at Kingston to take you there?—Sometimes a man likes to take a rest after working until twelve or one o'clock at night. On that occasion I had to stop at Kingston because I had to get another little tug to help me to tow past the Cape.

396. You went back to Kingston from Brighton?—I must have.

397. I see the next charge is Kingston to Chateauguay. Did you go there?—Yes.

398. You went to Brighton, returned to Kingston and then to Chateauguay?—Yes, sir.

399. Then you were on the St. Lawrence between Kingston and Valleyfield and it was necessary to have a pilot go down there?—Certainly.

400. Are those the only places you went to that year?—Heavens above, no.

401. That is all I see charged for. Tell me where else you were on that boat. I only see $101 meals charged for in that year?—I beg your pardon $101 for meals.

402. Well that would be four hundred meals?—Yes. I was at Chateauguay wharf on the 1st July, 1889.

403. Where were you on the — July?—I was in Ottawa attending to my monthly payments and estimates.

404. Where did you leave the boat?—At Coteau wharf.

405. At Montreal?—No, Lake St. Francis, 87 miles from here.

406. You came back by rail?—Yes sir.

407. When did you go back to Coteau?—On the 4th, I may have left the “Joe” at Valleyfield instead of Coteau, because Valleyfield is just across the river and more sheltered.

408. You went back again?—On the 4th I went to Valleyfield, paying accounts there by the look of my books. On the 5th I left Beauharnois Canal at 9.20 in the morning, and was at the foot of the Canal at 11.53, Lachine Wharf, 1.05, left wharf 1.20 and arrived at the Wellington basin at 2.30.

409. You had dredged at Valleyfield?—I don't remember.

410. Read this account for travelling expenses?—“Travelling expenses between Ottawa, Valleyfield, Montreal, Charlemagne, St. Placide, Ottawa, Valleyfield, River St. Louis, Montreal and back to Ottawa.” Wherever there is a repetition here I have been there twice.

411. During the month of July you were at those several places and could get to all of them by rail?—No you could not get to Charlemagne by rail. It is round by Point Aux Trembles and you had to go by water.

412. From where?—From Montreal; possibly I could have hired a horse and driven.

413. In the month of July, in which you charged for the services of the “Joe”, you had to be at these places, and you went by rail?—I beg your pardon. When it is charged by boat I went by boat.

414. I see that you charge for cab Ottawa, railway to Valleyfield, horse hire to River St. Louis, cab Montreal, railway to Ottawa, expenses eight days, so that in that month I ask you again if the visits you made to those several places were not made by railway?—I have to speak by facts, I am on my oath just now. The 30th of June is the end of the fiscal year, and that account has probably been subdivided to go into the fiscal year. The boat left before that. I went back at the end of the fiscal year to bring my accounts. On the 4th July my account began as you have it there. I left Ottawa by rail to Valleyfield, I drove to Charlemagne from Montreal and did not lose any time by taking the boat. That was on the 6th July, 1889.

415. Where did you go by the boat?—To Wellington Basin, Montreal, to get coal probably.

416. Again, in the month of July, commencing on the 12th, did you visit Port Hope, Toronto, Kincardine, Windsor and back. You did not go in the ‘Joe’, there? The “Joe” would not go over Lake Huron?—I do not know about that.

417. Did you go to Port Hope, Toronto, Kincardine and back?—(Referring to diary). Between the 12th and 18th July; yes.

418. And you went there by rail?—I will tell you in a minute. I went from Ottawa to Port Hope by rail, Port Hope to Toronto by rail, Toronto to Kincardine by rail. Then I went by rail to Windsor and from Windsor to Ottawa by rail.

419. So that from the 4th to the 18th of July, with the exception of going to Montreal in your boat, you visited all these places by rail? You had dredges at Port Hope, Toronto, Kincardine, Windsor and Point Edward?—No, sir; none in Toronto. At Port Hope and Kincardine I had.

420. None at Windsor?—No, sir. Let me explain the item of that account. When you see an account in reference to places visited where there are no dredges I have had to go to those places on account of the Public Buildings.

421. I see another account here dated July 22nd, "Ottawa to Montreal, Valleyfield, Chateauguay, Montreal, Point aux Anglais and Montreal." You went to those places by rail?—By boat.

422. The boat was at Montreal all this time?—No.

423. Did you bring her again to Ottawa?—I will be able to tell you by my book. Trip No. 4 left Ottawa July 22nd, 10.42.

424. Whom had you with you on that occasion—a little party?—There never was a little pleasure party on that boat. That boat never turned her wheel up except on the Government service.

425. Could you not have found those places,—Montreal, Chateauguay, Valleyfield and Point aux Anglais,—by rail?—I might have, if I had carried a skiff along and had my instruments with me.

426. What instruments?—Measuring line, pickets, sounding rods, to enable me to take my measurements and soundings by.

427. How did you do in Lake Huron?—It is a different service there. Both at Goderich and Kincardine the work lies between two piers. If you had to attempt an experience of that kind you would find it would take you half a day to get a skiff and another half day to get a sounding pole, and mark her off into feet and inches.

428. Well you left Ottawa on the 22nd July and got back, when?—I got back on the 29th at 5 p. m.

429. In September you appear to have travelled by rail to Brockville, Bowmanville, Toronto, Brockville and back?—Yes, sir.

430. Then I see August 31st, Ottawa to Hudson, Chateauguay, Montreal, Chateauguay, Montebello, Montreal and back. Did you do that by rail?—August 13th I commenced the western trip.

431. Where to?—Brockville, Bowmanville, Toronto and elsewhere.

432. I want the 31st not the 13th?—From the 13th to the 22nd I travelled by boat.

433. What you say is that in your judgment it was necessary to have a boat, or else to carry the scows along with you?—To carry my tools in a boat; you cannot get a carpenter to work without tools.

434. What are your tools?—A measuring line, compass, sounding rod, pickets, and buoys sometimes to put down.

435. You carried all these down to Chateauguay?—Carried them on the boat all the time; they were always necessary.

436. Always on the boat?—Yes.

437. And did you require them for the upper lakes?—No, sir; because it is a different service altogether.

438. You only require them, where?—Where you have got a long channel. At Kincardine, Goderich, or any of those places, as I told you, the work is confined to 100 yards square. There is a shoal I am working now, and the surveying steamer has been there three times this week; that is a mile long.

439. Where is that?—It is 55 miles down the Ottawa. I could not walk down the river. There is a gap in the river, too, besides having all my buoys.

440. How was it you came to get Mr. Allan to allow this boat to go in his own name?—He was a friend of mine as well as Mr. Wilson.

441. You had extensive dealings with Mr. Allan?—Well, we had transactions of a private nature. I don't think it would be justice to Mr. Allan—

442. I am not asking whether it is private, but whether your dealings were extensive?—They have been very extensive. I suppose one way or another I have acted for Mr. Allan and Mr. Allan for me to the extent of $50,000 or $60,000.

443. You don't say so?—Oh, yes.

444. You were dealing pretty largely?—I am in bigger business than you have any imagination of.

445. I have no doubt it is private business, too?—After office hours, sir.

446. Oh, certainly; after office hours. But private business?—Yes; private business.

447. Mr. Meddie's was also private business, after office hours?—Yes, sir.

448. And $50,000 or $60,000 worth of business was done?—No, sir; I don't say that.

449. Mr. Allan being a particular and a private friend, you concluded you would place the boat in his name. Did Mr. Allan go over with you when you got the boat?—No, sir.

450. Did he ever see the boat before you got her to Ottawa?—I could not say.

451. Did you ever see him at Lockport or Tonawanda?—I have seen him at Lockport.

452. What was he doing?—He went with me on my Government business to superintend the construction of the "Ontario." Mr. Allan undertook a contract on the St. Lawrence for certain dredging. He was a new hand at dredging, and came and consulted me about it. He was going to buy a second-hand plant. I said: "Don't touch it; get the very best thing you can." It might be four or five weeks after Mr. Allan came to me and said he could not get such a thing in time to commence work. I said: "There is no trouble about it; don't throw your money away on poor stuff. Mr. Allan, I am building one now to put out for exactly the work you require to do. Put on your hat; I am going up by train to-night to Buffalo and Lockport." He came down with me, and I asked Mr. Allan: "Do you intend to do business or do you not?" He said: "Yes; I am going to do business." That is the way I do my business. I said: "Do you intend to do the talking, or may I?" He said: "You do the talking."

453. So you did the talking?—I did the talking. I telegraphed the man to meet me at Lockport; at the hotel that night we met Mr. Sutton, and I said: "Now, what are you going to charge this gentleman for a dredge the same as the Ontario?" Well, he said: "You know what the Government is paying me; so we cannot do it for a cent less."

454. The Government was getting the cheapest price?—Some of the contractors up there have found that out.

455. Go ahead?—Ultimately I would not talk about those figures. I said, "If you want to do business you must come down to hard pan. He is a private gentleman, and even if you do charge the Government more you must not charge him. I am giving you a certain job, and you have got your patterns and every thing right in the place; it's a job that should be done for less money." They came down I think $500, and I said: "Go ahead and do the work." That is the way I did my business with Mr. Allan.

456. Was there any contract made?—Not that I recollect—yes, there was a contract made.

457. Did you sign it?—No, sir; Mr. Allan, he was present during this conversation.

458. And did he see this boat at that time?—I presume he did.

459. Did you ever have any talk with him about it?—I may have had a talk.

460. That is the boat you were speaking about at the time you were over to the States?—I presume I did.

461. Did you show the boat to him?—It was two miles from the works and whether at the time of Mr. Allan's visit he stayed long enough to go down to the works I don't know.

462. The first time you spoke of taking the boat in his name was in Ottawa?—It was in Ottawa.

463. Now, Mr. Allan, I see by the Public Accounts, has received money for dredging since this time?—Probably he has.

464. You know it, don't you?—I know it from seeing it in the papers, but I have no connection with the dredging of Mr. Allan. That is what is called contractors' dredging. I only superintended the Government's own dredging. I cannot communicate with Mr. Allan and I gave no work.

465. This business between you and Mr. Allan, what form did it take—was it contracting?—Mr. Allan—I don't want to evade your question—

466. I don't want you to, either?—Not in the slightest degree.

466a. Was it contracting?—Excuse me, I want to put it straight. There was a question asked Mr. Wilson the other day which was retracted, and to pursue this question about Mr. Allan may have the same results. It is a matter entirely and purely private, and away from the Government in any possible form or connection.

467. I want to know was your business with Mr. Allan speculating or contracting?—The building of this dredge for him; I superintended the construction of it.

468. That formed no part of this $50,000?—There were other transactions besides.

469. I want to know if it was in the contracting line?—No, sir, the others were not; the mining line and many other lines too, Mr. Allan being an intimate friend of mine, if he got in trouble would come to me and say "Jack what do you think about this?" I would say "Don't do it".

470. That did not involve money?—That might have involved five or six thousand dollars more or less.

471. Is that what you mean—he simply spoke of taking your advice?—No, I said I had engaged in different transactions with Mr. Allan which might involve fifty or sixty thousand dollars.

472. That was money invested in some way; it was not your advice by which he saved it?—Do you think, that if I got a dredge built for him perhaps thirty or forty thousand dollars in the construction of that dredge, I was in connection with him?

473. When you talk about connection with him in business you mean mutual risks?—I beg your pardon, I did not state any such thing at all.

474. What did you state?—That I had transactions with Mr. Allan that involved that amount. It may have been in advice, it may have been in other ways.

475. It was not in cash?—No, sir, not all in cash; partly in cash, sir. I am supposed to be not exactly a beggar on the street. I may have a little fund of my own that I may wish to invest. Mr. Allan might want a loan of five or ten thousand dollars, and I might want a loan.

476. Nobody says you are a beggar. I know on the contrary you are not; you live in one of the finest mansions in the city?—I am very proud of it.

477. Mr. Allan never paid you anything for helping him did he?—He did pay me.

478. How much?—When Mr. Allan's dredge was successfully worked, he presented me with a cheque, and said "I am very much obliged for your valuable service."

479. What was the amount of the cheque?—Am I obliged to answer that question?

480. Yes, it is a proper question?—Have I to answer that question or not?

481. Just as the Committee like?—The only thing, Mr. Lister, is this; it is bringing my private affairs before the Committee.

482. There is nothing private you know?—I beg your pardon, I have nothing to be ashamed of.

Mr. BOWELL objected to the question being put, if it concerned the witness' private affairs.

Mr. LISTER—He is in the employ of the Government, he was engaged with a man who was building dredges for the Government and engaged with a man who was going to or had received contracts from the Government.

Mr. CHAPLEAU—With which he had nothing to do.

WITNESS—No, sir, nor the Department of Public Works either; it was a Railway Department contract, I will tell you the amount privately, across the table, Mr. Lister, but I don't care to expose it to the whole Committee.

By Mr. Mulock:

483. Either you have a right to tell the whole Committee or not?—I will tell him if he wants to know.

By Mr. Lister:

484. It's a proper question for you to answer, but if you don't want to answer it I don't want to press it.—I don't think it is necessary to divulge Mr. Allan's private affairs; for my own I don't care one cent.

By Mr. Mulock:

485. Had you not to do with Mr. Allan as a Government contractor?—No, sir.

By Mr. Lister :

486. Mr. Allan was a Government contractor?—Under another Department. Mr. Allan has asked me to get him work several times, and I have answered “I cannot give you assistance in any shape or form.”

487. You say that some of the public money is expended by you directly, that is, you say you get a cheque from the Paymaster, and you pay a portion of the expense, and cheques are issued to others for the accountants?—Well, you have the question rather mixed.

488. Well, tell me what have you paid?—I will tell you exactly how it is. In the fall of the year, towards the close of navigation, it is very uncertain how long I will keep a dredge continually at work, and if a pay-list was made out in blank it would not be known how much to charge to the men. I have said to the Department: “Give me a cheque and I will send you in a pay-list. I have cashed that cheque, paid the men, brought in the balance, and saved the dredge waiting there several days. I understand that has been stopped, and I think very rightly too. I don’t think any officer who certified to an account should pay the money.

489. In paying for goods in Montreal and other places, did you pay these people directly?—No, sir.

490. You gave an order?—That is it, sir.

491. They send in their account, and the money is sent by cheque?—Yes, sir, it goes through the Audit Office from our Department.

492. You were examined last year, I think?—Yes, sir.

493. You were not on oath then?—I don’t think so, sir.

494. But you said then that you had not then or never had any interest in the “Joe”?—Mr. Lister, if my memory serves me right, and I tried this morning to see if there was evidence to try and refresh my memory, and I never, to the best of my recollection, said I had no interest in her. You asked me—

495. I did not ask you, I was not there?—Whoever it was—Mr. Davies I think who did so. Who she belonged to I think that was the question, and I evaded it by saying she was registered in the name of Mr. J. R. Wilson, of Montreal.

496. Did you not say you did not have, and never had any interest in her?—I deny that, to the best of my recollection.

497. You swear you did not make the statement?—I think I can swear I did not make that statement. I won’t be positive. My answer was on enquiry she would be found to be registered under the name “J. R. Wilson,” Montreal. I evaded the question in that way, for the same reason as I said before—that of newspaper notoriety.

498. And that is your answer to that question?—That is my answer to that question.

499. If Mr. Davies says you did deny it, owning the boat or having any interest in her?—Well, if Mr. Davies will make an affidavit that I denied it, I will have to believe him; if he won’t do that, I won’t believe him.

500-1. You have no recollection?—No, sir, I have a recollection of being asked who owned the “Joe”? I think that was the question that was put to me; and that I evaded the question by saying if enquiry was made it would be found she was registered on the Customs’ register under the name of J. R. Wilson.

502. You have accounts here for six months' rent for a shed, storage of dredging plant, 1st May, 1890, and 1st November, 1889?—Yes, sir.

503. Is this the only year that you have such a charge?—No, sir. It is charged this year.

504. 1890-91?—Yes, sir; I will show you the voucher in a minute.

505. 1889-90 was the first year you made such a charge?—I cannot remember the first date.

506. Look at the account?—That account is correct. I admit all that is on the face of that piece of paper. Anything that has my name to it, I admit.

507. But if it has not you would not admit it?—No, sir.

508. That account is made out to F. Merrett?—Yes.

509. F. Merrett is your nephew?—Yes, sir.

510. He never owned this lot?—Never in the world.

511. And he never expects to?—I do not think he will ever have money enough, poor boy. Bank clerks don't generally get a great deal.

512. There are two accounts here for $40 each; that is $80 a year. You have two accounts for the past year?—I have them in my pocket.

513. Let me see them?—We will delay that for a moment.

514. How long have you been the owner of this lot?—I think I would have to consult the record to find that. I will tell you the whole story if you like.

515. Never mind that. How long have you owned it?—About two and a-half years.

516. You have built a stable on it?—Yes, and a shed and a storehouse and two or three other sheds—quite a little village.

517. You charge the Government in the name of F. Merrett for storing dredging plant on that lot?—Yes, sir.

518. Why did you make out the account in the name of F. Merrett?—That is what I was going to explain to you, sir.

519. It requires some little explanation?—This lot at one time belonged to a gentleman named Mr. McGillivray. It was sold by tax sale and it was bought by Senator Clemow. Senator Clemow, speaking to me one day, said: "Don't you want to buy that lot?" (Witness drew a diagram of the location of the lot.) I was afraid someone might buy that lot and put a livery stable on it. I said to Mr. Clemow that I would take it, if he would make the figure all right. He is a generous man and wanted to get all he could. I beat him a $100 or $200 and got the lot. You know about tax sales better than I do, Mr. Lister, and you know that within a year or so the previous owner can get it back. He said: "You had better say nothing about it." When I became the possessor of the lot I found there was some $300 or $400 unpaid taxes upon it. About that time Mr. Perley was chief engineer and I was acting as assistant to him. We had two sheds on the Canal basin which had neither roof nor floor in them, and we had to repair them.

By Mr. Bowell:

520. All Mr. Lister wants to know is whether you own the property and rented it to the Government in another man's name?—It was to avoid my identification as the owner of the lot that it was put in Mr. Merrett's name; but as soon as I had my purchase complete I put the account in my own name, sir. (Producing account.)

By Mr. Lister :

521. This is 1st May, 1891. There was a little fuss about this before 1st May, 1891?—I did not know anything about it.

522. It was known there would be a fuss about it?—I did not know anything about that.

523. Up to November, 1890, the account was put in the name of Mr. Merrett?—Yes.

524. When did you get your deed for the lot?—I cannot tell you without looking it up.

525. It was two and a-half years ago you said?—Some of them can find it, but I can't find the date.

526. Why don't you put it in Mr. Merrett's name still?—I got my taxes all settled.

527. Taxes wouldn't amount to anything to you?—I am trying to get a deed of the rest of the lot—the east half of the lot.

528. You had the original deed?—Yes, I have it. There was some litigation about it.

529. Yes, with the old woman there. You fired her with the hose?—Yes, the first wash she had for some time.

530. That did not effect the title to the lot?—No; the title for that lot is secure.

531. Is it because you had no title to the lot that you put the account in the name of Mr. Merrett?—It was because my titles were not all complete or I was not in a position to know where I stood. I think I only paid my taxes last November or December.

532. Did you get a deed for the lot?—I have the tax sale deed.

533. You got it from Mr. Clemow?—Through the Mayor.

534. You got that two and a half years ago?—Probably about that.

535. And you did put in an account this May in your own name after you knew the Auditor General's accounts would show that you have been charging in Merrett's name while the account really ought to have gone in your own name?—Just for the reasons I have stated.

536. Did you give orders to Chanteloup & Co., of Montreal?—Yes, sir.

537. Do you deal with them?—Yes, sir.

538. Have you dealt with them for many years?—Yes; probably at the time Mr. Mackenzie was in power we began to deal with them.

539. You have been dealing for many years with these people?—Yes.

540. Sending down your orders and they sending up the goods?—Ordering by telegraph and by telephone and in many ways.

541. The account amounting to many thousands of dollars?—I cannot say.

542. Do you know Mr. Hurtubise?—Yes.

543. Was he a partner in the concern?—No.

544. Who carries on the business now?—Mr. Chanteloup's neice. Mr. Hurtubise is Manager.

545. Has he been in the business for many years?—He was book-keeper for many years.

546. During all these years did you get any present from any members of the firm?—I have had a lot of presents.

547. From Chanteloup?—Yes.

548. Lots of presents?—Yes; I got a pipe in my pocket he gave me.
549. Is that all?—I have had more than that.
550. Have you ever had any valuable presents?—My daughter got a brooch worth $3.
551. Is that all?—No; I had a dining table sent me this winter.
552. From whom?—Mr. Hurtubise; but I expect to have to pay for it yet.
553. Then it is not a present?—I didn't say it was a present. I said I had a table sent me.
554. He is not dealing in tables?—No.
555. Did he send you an account for the dining table? Not yet.
556. He is a hardware man?—Everything in the world.
557. Did you order the table to be sent?—I selected the table and I asked them to have it packed up and sent to me.
558. And they packed it up and sent it to you?—Yes; and I expect to pay for it—that is more.
559. When was it sent to you?—Somewhere in the winter.
560. You have been dealing with that firm for seventeen or eighteen years?—Probably.
561. During the time that Mr. Chanteloup was living did you, or did you not, receive either for yourself or any members of your family from him, or anybody for him, valuable presents?—There is a chain I have. Mr. Chanteloup gave me that one day. He took off the chain that I had on and he gave me that one.
562. Did you ever get any diamonds?—Not that I know of.
563. Do you swear that Mrs. Arnoldi did not get diamonds?—Not that I know of from Mr. Chanteloup.
564. Or anybody for him?—I am not sure. Couldn't swear that she did. Mrs. Arnoldi has jewellery of her own and I can buy her any jewellery she requires.
565. Do you swear you do not know that members of your family have received diamonds either from or through some person from Mr. Chanteloup?—I swear that I do not know if Mr. Chanteloup ever sent Mrs. Arnoldi or members of my family diamonds.
566. Did he never tell you so?—No; he never told me so.
567. None of your family ever told you so?—No, sir.
568. And you do not know?—I do not know for a certainty if Mr. Chanteloup or anybody else ever sent anything to my family, except as I told you, a small brooch. My son's wife when she was a child was staying at my house.
569. Were you at the time, or any portion of the time, you were dealing with this firm of Chanteloup & Co. allowed anything on purchases?—No, sir.
570. Or were any payments ever made to you?—No, sir.
571. They were not?—No, sir.
572. Do you swear that the only presents you received were the chain and pipe?—No; I told you that my son's wife, when she was a child, had received presents when she was sick in bed.
573. But yourself?—I cannot call anything else to mind. I would be glad to tell you if I could think of it.
574. Do you know Samuel Ennis, a hotel-keeper at Lacolle?—Yes.
575. About two years ago did you get a horse from him?—Yes, sir.

576. Did you buy that horse yourself?—I bought the horse. Mr. Wilson paid for it and I owe Mr. Wilson that money yet.

577. Two years ago, was it?—Yes.

578. You bought the horse yourself?—Yes, and fixed the price. I examined the horse with a lantern in the stable.

579. Was Mr. Wilson present?—Yes, and several others.

580. You bought the horse?—Yes, sir.

581. And Mr. Wilson paid for it?—Yes, sir; and I owe him the money yet.

582. This was two years ago?—I think it was. Two years or two and a-half; something like that.

583. Did Mr. Wilson take your promissory note at that time?—No, sir; his word is good to me and mine is to him.

584. It was a case of mutual confidence?—Yes.

585. This is the same Mr. Wilson who is furnishing supplies to the Department?—Yes, sir.

586. You liked the horse?—Yes, sir; I have him yet.

587. You have two or three other good drivers have you not?—They are considered pretty good.

588. Who delivered the horse to you that you got at Lacolle?—Mr. Ennis himself, I paid his expenses here. It cost me $20 to get the horse here.

589. He says $10 only?—I think Mr. Ennis' is mistaken. The railway fare from Lacolle here and back again would probably be $5 or $6. The horse came up in a box car.

590. Did not you pay the freight at the railway station?—Upon my word I could not tell you.

591. Ennis says you made him a present of a $10 note?—I am under the impression that when Ennis arrived here it was 15 or 20 below zero. I brought him to my house and asked him what I owed him. He said he did not know, and I said call it twenty, and he said it would be all right.

592. All these years you have been getting a cheque from Wilson every time your season's pay fell due and he endorsed it to you?—Or gave me cash.

593. Did not you think it was strange that he did not keep out of those accounts the amount he paid for the horse?—We have a great many transactions of a speculative nature together.

594. He never said anything about the horse?—Yes, he has.

595. Did he when here the other day?—He said that he wished that he had kept the horse himself.

596. You never gave him a due bill?—No.

597. Nor a note?—No.

598. You have not paid any interest?—No; I have not paid any interest. If I wanted $5,000 and asked Mr. Wilson for it it would be up here this afternoon.

599. Why should you want $5,000? You have lots of money?—I never said so. I said, I am not a beggar.

600. You have lots of money?—You say so.

601. Well, have you?—Have I? You will get me into a pickle if I tell you that. I will have all the charitable societies after me.

602. When do you expect to pay Wilson for the horse?—Probably this summer.

603. You buy from New York people?—New York is a pretty big place.

604. Do you know Robert Mitchell connected with the Edison Electric Light Company in Montreal?—I should think I do.

605. You gave them a pretty big job?—The Minister of Public Works did.

606. You were the means of getting them the contract for electric lighting in the public buildings?—The Department of Public Works took in tenders for the lighting of this building. The United States Electric Light Company was the lowest tenderer. Their light, in my opinion, is not as good as the Edison's, and I persuaded the Minister to have a competitive test between the two lights. I still stick to it that the Edison's is the best light in existence.

607. Do you know Mitchell, Vance & Co., New York?—Yes.

608. Were you ever in their place?—Yes, often.

609. Do you know them well?—I do not think they know me.

610. Have you about your place a pair of bronze dogs?—I have.

611. Where did you get them?—They were sent to me.

612. I know they were. By whom were they sent?—I will give you the name of the gentleman in a minute.

613. Did Mitchell, Vance & Co. send the bronze dogs to you?—They did not certainly.

614. Do you say they did not?—I swear it.

615. Who sent them to you?—They may have come from their store, but I say they did not send them.

616. Who was it sent them to you?—Charles —— I will give you the name in a moment.

By the Chairman :

617. Where does he live?—In Detroit.

By Mr. Lister :

618. Do you know what they are worth?—$100, I suppose.

619. $500 they cost?—I am very glad to hear it. I am richer than I thought I was.

620. They were worth $100 in your judgment?—$100 or $200.

621. Will you swear they are not worth $200?—I won't swear anything of the sort, but I am very glad to know it.

622. Who sent them to you?—I cannot remember his name just now, I will remember it in a moment.

623. Were they a present?—I presume they were.

624. Had you been very intimate with this gentleman?—Yes; we have slept in the same bed frequently.

625. And you do not remember his name?—I will give you his name in a minute.

626. Was he in business?—He was the Agent in New York State for the Edison Company.

627. Was he not in Mitchell, Vance & Co.'s place when you went there?—Not that I remember. I know the store very well, and do not remember his being there with me.

628. Will you swear he was not with you?—I am on my oath now; I made the statement.

629. You say you don't remember?—I don't remember that he was.

630. Will you get stronger and swear he was not there with you?—I do not remember.

631. You swear you don't remember his being there with you?—I have said so.

632. Did you intimate to him you would like a present of a pair of bronze dogs?—No, sir

633. You saw those bronze dogs in Mitchell, Vance & Co.'s store?—Yes.

634. They took your eye?—Yes.

635. And you thought that you would like to have them?—I had seen them a good many times and would have liked them to follow me home.

636. You did not feel you were able to buy them?—Well, I offered him $100 for them and they tried to kick me out of the place.

637. Who was with you when this deed of violence took place?—No one.

638. What was the name of this agent for the Edison Electric Light Company?—I am trying to think of it. I will give it to you in a minute.

639. You recommended the adoption of the Edison Electric Light in this building because you considered it better than the other?—Yes.

640. You had put in the other?—We had both in.

641. And you took out the United States Company's light?—We did.

642. Were those bronze dogs for the house, or the lawn or the steps?—Anywhere where you like.

643. Where did you put them?—In the house.

644. They have been very much admired, I believe?—Yes; a man tried to steal them once.

645. When did you see Charlie — last?—I have not seen him I think for two years. I may have, but I am not sure.

646. How much was that contract for the Electric Light Company, in dollars?—In this building here? It was about $500 less than they tendered for.

647. What was their tender? Was it $10,000?—No, sir.

648. You have been using the one light right along?—Yes.

649. And buying supplies?—We buy them from Barr, of Toronto. The company has been transferred; there is now a general Canadian agency.

650. Can you tell me how much the Government paid to that company for the Edison electric light?—I think the United States Company's offer was $3,900 and the Edison Company's $4,200. I had to make three trips to New York before I could get them to come here into competition with the other company.

651. So they knocked off $500?—No. Sir Hector said "I cannot advance a price, and we cannot give them the tender unless they come down the $500." I went down to New York and bluffed them into taking it. I told the Edison people that they were afraid to come into competition with the United States Company. The Secretary-Treasurer said to me "If you talk that way to us we will come in", and that is the way they came in.

652. Was that the time you thought you would have liked the pair of dogs?—No, sir; I do not think I had seen the dogs then.

653. When was it—after they had put the lights in?—Two or three years after.

654. In addition to the original plant, did you not buy a large amount necessary for the purpose of carrying on the work of lighting up the Departments and the House of Commons?—Yes.

655. A considerable amount?—I could not say how much.
 656. $4,000 or $5,000 worth?—More than that.
 657. How much more?—I would have to refer to the documents.
 658. Would it be $10,000?—It might be.
 659. It might be more?—I think it is about that, approximately.
 660. Did you get the bronze dogs before the subsequent expenditure of $10,000?—Upon my word I could not tell you. I never thought anything about the dogs.
 661. But the man was mad enough to kick you out when you offered him $100 for them?—Jokingly, I meant. I never thought anything about the dogs. I took them as a personal favour from Charles Benton; that is his name.
 662. Is he still in the employ of the Edison Light Company?—No, sir.
 663. Where is he?—In Detroit.
 664. You never intended to pay for them?—No, sir, never the slightest intention.
 665. Did you write to him thanking him?—I thanked him personally.
 666. Did you have any correspondence with him?—No correspondence on the subject.

By the Chairman :

667. How long have you known Mr. Benton?—Since I first knew the Edison Company; that is the time we made tenders for lighting this building; when I first went down to New York.

By Mr. Lister :

668. Have you only had the electric light in this building about four years?—More than that, sir. The first acquaintance I made with them was after they got lighted in the United States, I went into the office of the Edison Company, a total stranger, to have half a dozen lamps to experiment with. I was told: "We cannot do that; it would invalidate our patent, taking our lamps into Canada." That probably was a couple of years before it was brought in here.

669. What the United States Company states, is, their contract was less, but you threw all sorts of obstruction in the way; that a comparison of the two lights will show theirs is the best, but you got theirs out?—Gentlemen that is an assertion.....

670. Of course that is an assertion made and proved?—That is an assertion that cannot be proved, because you have only got to send for the official report on file in the Public Works Department, of disinterested experts; professor Baker Edwards, of Montreal, the great analyst; Mr. Robb, I think it is, chief engineer of the Boiler Inspection Insurance Association, and there is a third party, I think. I threw the whole the whole thing into their hands, and their report is an unbiassed report, and you can have it any time you like.

By the Chairman :

671. What does that report say?—The reverse exactly of what Mr. Lister says.

By Mr. Lister :

672. Had you anything to do with letting the contracts for wood and coal in the city?—Yes, Sir.

673. Are they let by you?—No, Sir; I write the specifications.

674. And recommend the tender?—No, Sir; Sir Hector always takes the lowest tender.

675. Mr. Heney tenders for the wood here?—Yes, Sir.

676. Do you get any consideration at all from him?—A good deal of trouble instead of consideration.

677. You get the consideration?—Not in any shape or form.

678. No way at all?—No, Sir; I would not buy a stick of kindling from Mr. Heney.

679. He makes you no presents?—No, Sir.

680. Never has?—Never did.

By Mr. Foster :

681. What about that report. How came you to ask for a report from these experts?—When we got the experiments into the building here and got into operation I told Sir Hector Langevin there was a good deal of antagonism between the two companies.

682. What two companies?—The United States Electric Company, or the Westinghouse Electric Light Company, as it is called, and the Edison Electric Light Company. There was a good deal of antagonism; I am glad of the opportunity to make this explanation, I said: "I will not undertake to make a report on the result of this trial because I said every word would be impugned. That must be done by outside men, I would like to get one from Philadelphia, the most scientific expert I can possibly get. He says "You have got to get Canadians, we are not going to go outside the country for any experts." I went down to Montreal, and arranged with Baker Edwards, and Mr. Robb of the Boiler's Association, to make the needed test, and I had one of my own clerks taking the closest possible minutiae for a report in order that it might be fair and far reaching. I would not have been so particular in measuring, and making the calculations had it not been for a gentleman whose name I did not intend to mention, but whom I will now mention, I refer to Mr. Chanteloup who is a sincere friend of mine. I went into his place one day, he called me by name and he says "Jack, you look out for yourself" I said "Yes what's the matter?" He says: "Well, a gentleman was in here asking what kind of a man you were?" I said: "Yes; what did you tell him; who was he?" "Well," he says "never mind." I said: "I want to know who he is? What would he want?" He said: "He wanted to know how much it would take to fix you." I said then: "Who was he?" He says: "It's Mr. Woods of the United States Electric Light Company." "Well," I said: "Neither Mr. Woods nor his company, have got money enough to buy me." Shortly after this Mr. Woods—he did not know I knew this—came into my office in the West Block and sat down. He was a very gentlemanly fellow, with a bald head like my own, and is still I suppose the lobbyist of the United States Electric Light Company, although he doesn't know any more about electric light than that hat, but he does all the boodling business, and tried to see how far he could reach me. He came into my office and sat down there, he said to me: "Arnoldi we have got the contract." I said: "I believe you have." He said: "I suppose you know the Edison Company is to come in, in the competitive test." I did not mention the Edison Company, but I said: "Yes are you coming in?" He said: "Of course. Mr. Arnoldi, I have a great deal to do in public buildings, and a great deal to do in working these things."

I said : "There is a great deal of difficulty in working these things. You mean me to infer your experience has been, you have got to pay your own way into the front door, and out at the back, is not that it?" He said : "That is about the size of it." "Well," I said : "If you can show me any person on my staff, who would accommodate you in that way, I will have the pleasure of kicking him out of the building in front of you." Afterwards when the experiments were on here, the United States Company tried to burn the Edison company's machine, here in the basement of this building, because it was done in their interest; nobody else had any interest in destroying the machine. That is the reason, you see, no one is allowed in the dynamo rooms; they burned out that machine, and put out the light for one night. So there is the position of the United States Company. I signed the report of the experts, giving the details of the experiment; and I want the committee to understand, that notwithstanding Mr. Wood's kind remarks and kind intentions towards me, that report can be verified right down to every line that is in it, and every figure; and the proof of this is, that neither Mr. Wood nor the United States company never, from that day to this, tried to see a copy of it, nor asked for a copy of it. It contains too many facts and figures for them.

683. Will you see that the report is sent for?—I will, sir.

By Mr. Lister :

684. What did Mr. Chanteloup say to you?—He said, to the best of my recollection : "Jack, there was a gentleman in here to-day making enquiries about you." I said : "What did he say? who was he?" He laughed—he was a very practical old man—and said "He wanted to know what kind of a fellow you were, and how was the best way to get at you."

685. Yes?—"I think," he says, "if I remember right it is some works." He laughed, and said : "You had better let him alone."

686. He put you on your guard anyway?—He did, sir.

687. You were armed for this fellow when he turned up?—You bet; I was "loaded for bear."

688. You were loaded right up. You told him to get out of there, if he offered anything of that kind to you?—Yes, sir.

688a. Did the old gentleman say to you, he thought better to tell you to put you on your guard?—Well, he did not say he thought anything of the kind, he was just in the same position as you would be, if any intimate friend you had a respect for. I happened one day to go into another man's place in Montreal. I saw something that was very suspicious. I saw Mr. Chanteloup, and I told him.

689. You felt very indignant that any member of your Department should be open to approach in that way, or you yourself?—Certainly.

690. And you told him at once if he made any such offer, you would throw him out?—I did not say that. I said his custom was to buy his way into the front of a building and out at the back.

691. He said they had to buy their way right through?—Yes, sir; that was his experience.

692. Did you get angry?—No; what was the use of getting angry; I thought it best to keep in a good humour.

693. Did you find out how much of this business he had been doing?—My business was public works; his was in the United States.

694. You never found out how far he went?—I am satisfied he had a good time.

695. Did you have the dogs at that time?—I think I can swear positively to that.

696. Have you got a bill of the dogs?—No, sir; they were sent to me personally by Charles Benton.

697. Did they come by express?—Faith, and I cannot tell you how they came.

698. Who paid the duty?—Faith, and I cannot tell you that either.

699. Did he pay duty?—I think he bought them himself.

700. You don't know whether they ever paid duty?—Faith, and I cannot tell you.

701. Never gave you any information at all?—No, sir; no information, because I knew more about it than he did.

702. But it was you who expressed the wish for these bronze dogs, and they were sent on?—I did not say so. I never made that statement. I said I admired those dogs very much, and I said: "Charlie, if you know any way of stealing those dogs, just steal them for me and drop them into my yard," and they were dropped in.

703. That was in New York?—Yes. It might have been at Greenwich. We often went down there and spent Sunday.

704. Did Charlie see the dogs, or was he with you?—I do not remember him being with me.

705. You just told him where you saw them?—He had seen them, I think; I am not sure.

706. I want to ask you a question more about Mr. Meddie. You told us before that he made you a present of that boat?—Yes, sir.

707. He was not in business?—I did not say that.

708. In what business was he in?—In a large grain-dealing concern.

709. What were your dealings with him?—He was my brother-in-law.

710. And simply on that account you induced him to make you a present of the boat?—There were some domestic affairs. I was executor of the estate and did several little matters for him.

By Mr. Mulock :

711. Did you hear Mr. Merrett's evidence the other day?—Yes, sir.

712. Was it correct?—Yes, sir.

713. In every particular?—Yes, sir. I took the trouble to go down to Montreal on Saturday and explain to the bank the young man's position.

714. Did you hear Mr. Wilson's evidence?—Yes, sir.

715. Was it correct?—Yes; in every particular.

716. So then it is the case that the boat was registered in another name than your own, and you were certifying to its earnings, and were drawing from the Government the pay which was supposed to be going to other parties?—Yes, sir.

717. And this money came through other parties to you?—Yes, sir.

718. And the same may be said about the account for the stable used by the Government for storage?—Yes, sir. In one of these cases, as I briefly explained just now, the object was on account of not having completed all my payments of the taxes and the ownership of the lot. The other cases was to avoid the newspaper notoriety that they devoted to me. I have a precedent for these cases, which I think is applicable in my case. I positively state now that I did not know, nor I do not remember ever having known what the sections of the Civil Service Act are. I did not know that I had ever signed it until I went yesterday and looked up the book and saw that I had signed it in 1868. I do not know whether I have signed it since. I mean the register of affirmations in the Privy Council. My precedent is that moneys have been paid to parties—to third parties—on more than one occasion before, and nothing has been said about it; and I consider that this was no different from that case. I did not see that I was committing any venal wrong. I refer in one case to Robert Steed, now of the town of Sarnia, being sent to make a joint report on a dredge at Kincardine, after being given the contract for rebuilding her entirely, and the money was paid to Robert Steed through the name of John King, of the Sarnia Ship-building Company. Mr. Robert Steed is the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie's brother-in-law. That was in 1874, within three weeks of the accession to power of Mr. Mackenzie. It was on the 25th November he was awarded the contract.

719. Was that in the time of the Civil Service Act?—I do not know that it was.

720. Go on, then?—Another instance of money being paid in the same way was thousands of dollars paid to Charles Mackenzie through the name of Cooper, Fairman & Co.

721. Who was Charles Mackenzie?—Brother of the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie.

By Mr. Landerkin :

722. Was he a member of the Civil Service?—I think he would have liked to have been.

723. Who asked you to look up precedents?—My conscience, sir.

By Mr. Lister :

724. Charles Mackenzie was a partner in Cooper, Fairman & Co.?—No.

By Mr. Mulock :

725. In regard to receiving presents of jewellery, have you any precedent for that?—No; and I would accept it to-morrow from any gentleman who held the relation Mr. Chanteloup did to me.

726. Had you any precedent for the dogs?—No more than I would accept another pair to-morrow, and still hold my position.

727. What about the acceptance of furniture?—I do not know that is a present. I have not had any account for it yet.

728. Was there any precedent for accepting a horse?—That I have to pay for yet.

729. Was there any precedent for your accepting presents of jewellery for your family?—I have explained that already.

By Mr. Landerkin :

730. How do you reconcile your conscience to the accepting of bronze dogs without the duty being paid on them?—I did not know that the duty was not paid.

By Mr. Barron :

731. All this time you were in the Civil Service?—Yes.

732. Was Mr. Steed a Civil Servant also?—No.

733. Nor Mr. Charles Mackenzie?—No.

By Mr. Lister :

734. Cooper, Fairman & Co. were hardware merchants in Montreal?—Yes.

735. And goods were sold to Mackenzie?—Yes.

736. And receipts were given to the Government by Cooper, Fairman & Co.?—I do not know.

737. Did you take the trouble to look that up?—No ; Mr. Mackenzie acknowledged to having received that money.

738. Mr. Charles Mackenzie was a member of the firm of Cooper, Fairman & Co.?—To obtain this money.

739. What money?—This money referred to.

740. Was it for goods supplied by Cooper, Fairman & Co.?—Goods supplied in the name of that firm.

741. Was it wrong to pay them for goods?—If Mr. Mackenzie received money as I did, it was just as wrong in his case as mine ; and I believe he did.

742. Believe what?—I believed that he received money under similar circumstances to what I did.

743. That Cooper, Fairman & Co. entered into a contract to draw money from Mackenzie?—I swear that is my belief.

By the Chairman :

744. You have had a pretty intimate knowledge of transactions in that period?—I saw it from the public records and prints. If I am not mistaken, Mr. Mackenzie acknowledged that this money was paid to the firm that he might receive it.

By Mr. Lister :

745. And you were following that precedent?—I think it was a very good precedent.

746. Was there anything wrong about Cooper, Fairman & Co. being paid for goods supplied to the Government and the Government getting value?—So they did in this case.

747. They got value for all they paid?—So they did here.

748. Cooper, Fairman & Co. signed the receipts?—Yes ; and so did Mr. Wilson.

749. You say that they were merely cloaks for the purpose of getting money for Charles Mackenzie?—If my case is called so, theirs was too.

750. Is that your story : That the name of Cooper, Fairman & Co. was merely used for the purpose of a cloak to enable Charles Mackenzie to get money?—I did not say that. I say the money was paid to Charles Mackenzie through Cooper, Fairman & Co., and I believe that he owned up that the money had come to him.

751. Were you suspended when the Government went out in 1878 — No, sir.

752. You swear you have not been suspended?—By Mr. Mackenzie, no. In 1874 I was favoured with something similar to this you are trying to bring up now, and I proved in the end that the load was on the other horse. I do not remember being suspended. I remember being suspended by Mr. Langevin once.

753. Were you not suspended in 1874?—I think not. I would have to refresh my memory.

754. Let us understand a little more about Mr. Steed. Mr. Steed made what?—He rebuilt a dredge and two scows.

755. What was wrong about that?—One tender I received and gave to Mr. Mackenzie, which was Steed's tender. Mr. Mackenzie asked me whether he could get another tender. I told him that there was a firm in Chatham, Simpson & Jetsom, or something like that. I got a telegram dated the 20th November, 1873: "We are sending tender direct to Minister of Public Works." I did not see it afterwards until I was in Ottawa, and the contract was let to Steed.

756. Steed got the contract?—Yes.

757. And did the work?—Yes.

758. Well?—Pretty well.

759. And he got paid?—Yes.

760. What was wrong?—It was paid in Mr. King's name. Nobody ever heard of the Sarnia Shipbuilding Company.

761. Didn't you know that the Sarnia Shipbuilding Company, was a well known company?—I did not know that.

762. What is wrong about it?—I say Mr. Robert Steed built the dredge and was paid in Mr. King's name.

763. And he was the head of the Sarnia Shipbuilding Company?—That is news to me.

MR. LISTER—He built the Grand Trunk Railway boats and a great many other vessels, and would no more take money from the Government or anybody else than chop off his hand.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, THURSDAY, 6th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. Wallace in the Chair.

ALEXANDER BOWIE called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Denison :

764. What is your occupation?—Captain of the steamer “Empress.”

765. You are on the route between the city of Ottawa and the head of the Grenville Canal, and are in the daytime, at any rate, liable to see any boats passing on the river?—Yes.

766. Did you ever see the steamer “Joe” do any towing in connection with the dredges belonging to the Department of Public Works?—Yes, towing the dredges between Ottawa and Grenville.

767. Did you ever see the “Joe” lying idle at any wharf or locality on the route or under any circumstances by which you could conclude she was used for purposes of pleasure?—Not that I am aware of.

By Mr. Lister :

768. You often saw her hauling the dredges?—I saw her several times, during different seasons.

GEORGE G. ROE called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

769. I believe you are an iron founder and doing business in the city of Ottawa?—I happen to be one of the senior partners in the firm of the Baldwin Iron Works in this city.

770. Can you inform the Committee if at any time you made a wheel for the steamer “Joe”?—No, sir; we made no wheel for the steamer “Joe”.

771. Did you do anything connected with her?—I am not exactly sure about this business, because our foundry was let out to a party who furnished us with castings by the ton. There was a wheel made, but it was not in connection with the steamer “Joe” whatever.

772. There was a wheel made?—I understand that. Under oath I cannot say whether it was for the steamer “Joe” or not.

773. Can you tell me how long ago it was?—It was last fall, I think, or in December. Somewhere thereabouts.

774. On whose order was it made?—I cannot say. We only furnished the propeller wheel on instruction; but the order was given by the gentleman who had rented our foundry to furnish us with castings.

775. Who was that party?—Thomas Lawson.

776. Where is he?—He resides in Ottawa. I cannot give you the street.

777. Did you make out the account?—No, sir.

778. Did your business firm make out the account?—No, sir. Mr. Lawson was paid in connection with the work. It was settled by contra account.

779. Then you had no dealing with Mr. Arnoldi?—None whatever.
 780. Your whole dealing in connection with that wheel was in connection with Mr. Thomas Lawson?—Yes, sir.
 781. The account was made out to Mr. Thomas Lawson?—Yes, and paid by him.

COMMITTEE ROOM, FRIDAY, 7th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. Wallace in the Chair.

J. R. ARNOLDI re-called, and further examined:—

By Mr. Lister :

782. On your examination before you spoke about a wheel which you had had made for the "Joe." You stated that you had got a wheel made and had taken a wheel off the boat and had put in store?—Yes, sir.
 783. Had the Government any use for a propeller wheel?—Yes, sir.
 784. They kept them in store?—Yes, sir.
 785. How many of them?—We generally have two or three for each boat, because you do not know what minute you may require them.
 786. By whom was this particular wheel made?—Thomas Lawson.
 787. How much did it cost?—It did not cost the Government anything at all, except for the boring of it.
 788. How was that?—Mr. Lawson could explain that better than I could. He is a great man at making wheels and says he can make them against any other man. We have frequently got our wheels from Kingston, but when I spoke to him about making a new wheel of 12 inches increased diameter for experimenting on the "Joe," he asked me to let him make it as he wanted to prove that he could make as good a wheel as at Kingston or anywhere else. He said, if you will let me make the wheel I will sweep it out in loam, if you will furnish me with the scrap. You send your broken wheel up and I will cast it for you without any charge to the Government. I want to show you that I can complete as good a wheel as they can in Kingston.
 789. Lawson was a founder?—Yes.
 790. Do you know a man named Roe?—Yes, sir.
 791. What did he do?—He bored the hole.
 792. He says he charged the account to Lawson?—He charged the amount of the work of boring to Lawson.
 793. How much was that?—12 or 13 hours.
 794. How much was the amount of the bill?—I do not know.
 795. He charged this time to Lawson?—Yes.
 796. And Lawson let you have it for nothing?—I believe he did.
 797. Will you swear that?—I am on my oath now.
 798. Was an account made out for this wheel to the Government?—No, sir. There was no account made out to the Government for this wheel. I think I have got a memorandum here. In running the accounts for the Government vessels, particularly referring to the dredges and works under my charge I should tell you that there are different appropriations. I would like to explain.

799. Never mind that. All I want to know is was there a bill made out to the Government for that wheel?—I said there was not.

800. Did Mr. Lawson pay Mr. Roe for that wheel?—That is a matter entirely between Lawson and Roe.

801. Roe says Lawson did pay him?—Well, then, that must be true.

802. Then Lawson did it for you for nothing?—He did it for the Government; not for me.

803. There was no charge for iron?—No. We furnished him with the material to make the wheel.

804. You furnished him with the iron?—Yes.

805. Then all the work done was done by Mr. Roe?—I beg your pardon.

806. Well, what did Mr. Lawson do?—Lawson cast the wheel in sand.

807. Roe says he did all the work?—As compared with his, Lawson's work was 99 per cent.

808. How much did Roe charge him?—I have no idea. That is a matter between them.

809. Roe did the boring, Lawson paid for it, Lawson also cast the wheel and he charged nobody for it?—Nobody that I know of.

810. How much is a propeller wheel of that size worth?—I have the account here, "to one propeller wheel 555½ lbs., swept in loam, at 4½ cents per lb., $25; time boring and facing the above, 13 hours at 35 cents an hour, $4.55.

811. That is the whole thing?—Yes.

812. And do you say that neither Mr. Lawson nor Mr. Roe made out an account for this particular wheel to the Government?—Not to my knowledge.

813. Did not Roe or Lawson make out an account for the wheel for the "Joe" and bring it to you and you had it charged to the Government in connection with other wheels?—No, sir. Here are copies of two accounts in connection with other wheels.

814. Who made these accounts out?—These are pencil copies of mine.

815. Where are the originals?—In the invoice book, in the Department.

816. Can you produce the book?—I am suspended from the Department just now.

817. In whose handwriting are the originals?—They were written in my office by one of my clerks. It is a common thing to do that.

818. One of your clerks made out an account to the Government for this wheel, $33.63?—I say no, sir. We did not make out an account for that wheel for the "Joe" at all.

819. Why do you produce these accounts, then?—These are for other wheels.

820. Let us hear your explanation now?—In connection with our public buildings and dredges we have different appropriations. First of all we have "maintenance and repairs, public buildings;" then "heating public buildings;" "general running expenses, dredging, Ontario and Quebec;" then "dredging vessels, repairs;" and finally "new dredging plant." Supposing a man like Mr. Lawson has an account against the Government running over a month or two, he sends it into the office, and there the different items are extracted and charged to their proper appropriations. That is done every day in the office and has to be done, because no accounts can be properly paid unless they are charged to their proper appropriations.

By the Chairman :

821. As I understand you, you sub-divide the accounts, but it does not change the amount?—No, sir.

822. And you say this particular wheel was not paid for by the Government?—No, sir.

823. When was it made?—This past spring.

824. These two accounts are for other wheels?—Yes; for two propeller wheels “swept in loam.” I observe that one of them is charged to the propeller “Queen.”

825. What I want to get at is, there was a wheel manufactured for your boat last winter or last spring?—Yes.

826. By Lawson?—Yes.

827. And what you say is that neither the Government nor you were called upon to pay anything for that wheel except the boring?—I do not know whether Mr. Lawson paid that out of his pocket or not.

828. The Government did not pay it?—Not to my knowledge.

829. You did not?—I did not.

830. Here is a wheel charged for on March 20th : “Propeller wheel, swept in loam, &c.” Do you swear that that is not the wheel that is in your propeller?—I swear it is not, to the best of my knowledge.

831. Was it ever on her?—Never on her yet.

832. Was that the wheel you had manufactured to put on?—No, sir.

833. How many wheels have you in store?—I may have—

834. No “may have.”—I do not carry everything in my mind. My work is pretty extensive.

835. How many wheels have you in store?—I cannot tell.

836. Have you more than one?—Yes.

837. Had you three?—Yes, I think I had. Perhaps four.

838. Will you say you had more?—I cannot tell without referring to my papers, and I cannot get at my papers. I tell you no wheel came down from Kingston to the city.

839. We are talking about this wheel. You say there is one on March 20th that was swept in loam?—Yes.

840. “Time boring and facing 26 hours at thirty-five cents, $9.10; two chain sheaves and one small stand 22 pounds at 4 cents, 88 cents, and some other items making altogether, $74.38.” Then he gives you credit for 9,000 pounds of old scrap at sixty cents per hundred?—Yes.

841. Is that the scrap you furnished him?—No, sir.

842. That was not arranged last year?—I know what you are talking about. That is scrap taken up from around the buildings, Rideau Hall and back of the buildings.

843. Did you furnish him in March last or since with more than 9,000 pounds of scrap?—I would have to refer to my books. I am on my oath, and as far as my memory serves me the scrap furnished for the casting of that wheel was over and above that. If there was scrap taken for that wheel it was deducted from that.

844. Mr. Lawson was willing to throw in all his work and charge the Government nothing?—There are plenty of tradesmen who would be willing to do the same thing.

845. These two accounts are dated March 20th of the present year?—I presume they are.

846. Do you undertake to say to the Committee that you had more than three wheels manufactured in this way during last March?—I say without having access to my papers and books that I believe there were four wheels came this spring.

847. Will your books show that?—I cannot tell whether they show that or not until I look at them myself. I saw Mr. Lawson frequently coming in about the office and he heard me talking about this wheel and making calculations on a new sized wheel and said "Let me cast that wheel for you."

848. Were you to see Mr. Roe?—I do not know that I ever saw Mr. Roe until I saw him yesterday.

849. Were you to see Mr. Lawson about this matter?—I saw him last evening, to ask him what was the matter with it.

850. There is one thing more: You told us the other day that you got a couple of bronze dogs from New York?—Yes.

851. How did they come to Canada?—That is what I don't know.

852. Where did you see them first after you saw them in New York?—I cannot tell.

853. Cannot swear?—Cannot swear. I think I saw them in my own house first.

854. How did they come to get there?—That is just the question.

855. You never enquired how they came there?—I receive a great many presents from a great many people, irrespective of the Government, and I want you to understand that any gentleman in the United States sending a present to Canada generally prepays the express on it.

856. Did these dogs come by express?—I do not know.

857. Never enquired?—No, sir.

858. No member of your family ever told you how they got to your house?—No.

859. And you never asked?—No.

860. You see it is a magnificent piece of furniture?—I do not know that they are magnificent.

861. $100 you said they were worth?—Probably.

862. You never enquired?—It is an old saying that you should never look a gift horse in the mouth.

863. You knew it was a gift horse?—Certainly.

864. Didn't these dogs come along with the electric plant?—Mr. Lister and gentlemen of the Committee—I will swear on all the bibles you could put up that they never came with the electric plant.

865. Were they not put up in some of the boxes?—I say positively and swear solemnly that they were not.

866. How do you know that?—Excuse me. I have passed a great many entries in connection with my position—customs entries—and there has never been so much as a hairpin or a jack-knife come in one of the boxes of Government material. So much so that I pass the entry and one of my clerks goes down and gets the goods through the warehouse. I do not even unpack them.

867. Your electric plant was all done up in boxes?—I looked up that point, as I thought you might make some enquiries. I find the first installation was put in in the fall of 1884, the next plant was in 1886 and the dogs came in 1885. Therefore there was no shipment from New York at all that year.

868. How, then, in the name of common sense, did they get here; they didn't walk?—It is very funny.

869. Did you ever see your friend afterwards, who was there and gave you them?—Yes.

870. Did you say anything to him about it?—I asked him if he sent them and he said he would be hanged if he could remember.

871. He couldn't remember? How long was it after you got the dogs that you saw this friend?—I cannot tell you.

872. Was it a year?—It might be a couple of years. It was more like a couple of years.

873. You can't remember how he sent them?—No.

874. Did you ever enquire at the Express Office to see if they came that way?—No.

875. But you knew they came from the States?—I had naturally a reason for thinking so. They may have been brought into Canada and sold to somebody in Canada and sent on to me.

876. It was not some other friend, because it was the electric man—the Agent of the Electric Company?—The New York State Agent had no connection with the Canadian work at all.

By Mr. Chapleau :

877. You say he was the New York State Agent and not the Canadian Agent. Could he have any interest in selling in Canada?—He was the Agent for the State of New York solely. He would have no influence or a word to say about the Canadian work sold by the Edison Company.

By Mr. Lister :

878. The New York Company you bought from manufactured in New York?—They manufactured all over—down in Connecticut and different places.

879. Might they not have come over here with the electric light machinery which came from the States?—I cannot say about that. It did not. To protect the Canadian patent, the lamps had to be made in Canada. They are made in Hamilton. The last dynamos, to my knowledge, were made by Mr. Chanteloup in Montreal. The other dynamo was made in Sherbrooke.

880. Did not a part of this machinery come from New York?—I cannot answer that question.

881. You told us a few moments ago you were looking this up?—I was looking up the Customs entries. The time in which we got our installation, I said certain things came from the States.

882. And they came from New York State?—I do not know that, sir.

883. Where were they bought?—One of their Engineers came on here.

884. Where from?—New York. The Head Office is at New York. He laid out all his work and planned all his wires, and I approved of his plan; but where he got the stuff I do not know. I did not go down and buy them. They made their plans and estimates and made up their list of so many hundred feet of wire and so many insulators and lamps. I do not know whether they were made at Bergman's or not.

885. You saw the dogs in Mitchell, Vance & Co.'s?—I had seen them there.

886. You cannot tell whether this stuff came from Mitchell, Vance & Co., or not?—I do not know.

887. Did you pay duty on these dogs?—I paid interim duty. I went to the Customs people and said: "There is a matter of two dogs before the public. Come down and appraise them. I don't know whether they paid duty or not. Come down and appraise them, and I will pay the duty whatever it is." I have done so. Allow me to say one word to you in regard to Mitchell, Vance & Co., while I am speaking; I do not know where they came from, but I think I can positively say that none of the electric stock in the public buildings here ever came from Mitchell, Vance & Co.

888. Where did they come from?—I said they have a factory in Connecticut, and they have a factory in New York. I rather think that Mitchell, Vance & Co. are competitors with the Edison Co.

889. What were the dogs appraised at?—$100.

890. You have paid the interim duty?—I paid my duty as a final entry.

891. Your friend told you he did not know how they came into the country, and you did not know; but you did know they came from New York, didn't you?—Yes, sir.

892. You never enquired whether the duty was paid or not?—I received a great many presents and I would not enquire whether the duty was paid or not.

893. Have you not at different times taken the men belonging to the Government and employed them at your own house?—Sometimes I have sent a man down when I have been too busy; when I have been very busy and stayed at my office until six or seven o'clock. I have sent men down to do what I should have done myself; but I do not think it was unusual. It was done at Mr. Alexander Mackenzie's house. Mr. Alexander Mackenzie had men working from the public buildings at his house. I did not think it was any more wrong for me than the Premier.

894. Did you build a new house lately?—I built a house in 1885.

895. Did you have the men from the public service working at that house?—Yes; with the permission of the Deputy Minister. I paid them their wages and deducted it from the pay-list for every hour they worked; and the reason I had them, and the reason I got permission was, that my duties called me away from town so much that I was not at home for four weeks during the whole summer, while my house was in course of construction, and I represented that by having my own men they would watch my interest and make a better job for me.

896. Did you put gas fittings and water pipes in your house?—Yes, sir; and paid for them.

897. Where did you buy those?—I bought the fittings and iron work and things of that sort from Thomas Robertson, of Montreal. I hold their receipted bills paid for, in hard cash.

898. You paid them for those things?—Yes.

899. But the horse still stands?—I rather think that the other day—as you might imagine an unfortunate modest man standing before such a large crowd—that I was rattled. I am not sure that I have not paid for that horse. I said the other day, to be on the safe side, when I was on my oath, that I believed I had not. I am not sure that I have not now.

900. You are not sure but you may have paid for that horse?—I am not sure.

901. I asked you the other day, and I ask you again, whether Mr. Chanteloup ever presented any member or members of your family with a pair of diamond solitaire ear-rings, a gold pen case, pen and pencil, set with catseyes. I ask you again if any members of your family received them from Mr. Chanteloup or anybody for him?—I repeat my evidence of the other day. I deny the diamond ear-rings. Did you name two other presents there?

902. Two.—The pen case I never thought of until you mention it now. I think that Mr. Chanteloup did give that to my wife about four years ago, and I think she gave it to her sister. I never remembered it at all. It was worth about $3.

903. Well, now, you were examined about the diamond ear-rings the other day; have you spoken to your family since about them?—Have I spoken to them since?

904. Yes, about that particular matter?—Certainly I have.

905. Now, you know that there is a pair of diamond ear-rings?—Now, are the contents of my house, of my wife's boudoir, to be brought before the public?

Question over-ruled.

906. Did any man who furnished supplies to the Government of this country make a present to you or any member of your family, of diamond ear-rings?—No, sir.

907. You say that on your oath?—Yes, sir.

908. Now, how much did those dredges cost that you had from Lockport?—I should have to refer to my books to look up the matter before I can answer.

909. Cannot you give us any idea?—The Public Accounts show.

910. I know the Public Accounts show, but I want you to state to me as near as you can recollect, did they cost $40,000, or $50,000, or $55,000, or more?—They cost $40,000.

911. Did you ask anybody in Canada to tender for dredges?—Yes; there were Cantin, of Montreal; Calvin & Breck, of Kingston; Davis, of Kingston; Schickluna, St. Catharines; and somebody from Port Dalhousie; Muir, I think, from Port Dalhousie. Mr. Cantin was sorry he could not tender. Mr. Muir, of Port Dalhousie, said he had all the work he could do for the winter without manufacturing the dredges.

912. Who built the dredges?—The Pond Manufacturing Co.

913. Who made the machinery?—Morgan & Sutton, I believe.

914. The men who built the yacht?—Yes.

915. Do you know that the Pond Manufacturing Co. paid for the yacht?—No; I do not know.

916. Do you know anything about who paid for it?—No; I cannot say, particularly, who paid for it.

917. That yacht was brought to Canada along with the dredges?—Yes.

918. At the same time?—Yes.

919. Is this the "Joe"?—Yes.

920. Will you undertake to swear that the Pond Manufacturing Co. did not pay for the yacht?—I won't undertake to swear who paid for the yacht.

921. The Pond Manufacturing Co. built the dredges at all events?—Yes.

922. Do you know G. W. McCullough, who used to be a coal merchant here?—Yes.

923. Did he sell coal to the Government?—Yes. I do not know whether he should be considered fortunate or not, but he has had the contract for 12 or 14 years.

924. Has he got it now?—No.

925. Did you ever get anything from Mr. McCullough?—Specify your charge.

926. While he was a contractor did you receive a present of value from him?—No, sir.

927. Did you ever receive a present from him?—I never received a present from Mr. McCullough.

928. Nor any other person for him?—No.

929. Nor did you get anything from him?—Yes; I have a tandem set of harness, but not a present.

930. What is it?—It is a loan; I will tell you how it happened.

931. When did you borrow it?—A year ago last winter. I had a conversation with Mr. McCullough, we were talking about horses, and after we had been discussing the matter for some time I suggested whether it was possible to get up a driving club in Ottawa; in recent years I had not had much time for driving, I had to take Sundays, it was the only day I had got, but I have horses that I would like to make tandem. He said: "I have got a tandem set that I have no use for, if it is of any use to you, you are perfectly welcome to have the use of it." It is there.

932. And you have had it ever since?—Yes; any person who knows anything about harness will tell you that they will be willing to lend harness to any person who will use it, because it saves the harness.

933. Mr. McCullough just said to you that he would lend it to you?—Yes.

934. Did he not say this: "I have no time to go into that matter"? Did he not say that he knew nothing about a driving club, but he had a set of tandem harness that he would give you?—I don't remember that; I remember just what I have stated.

935. He sent them over?—Yes.

936. That was a year ago last winter?—Yes.

937. Did he ever speak to you about them since?—Yes, he spoke to me about them yesterday.

938. Did he want them back again?—I said: "McCullough, whenever you want them I will send them right back to you."

939. I ask you again, sir, whether McCullough did not make you a present of that harness?—No, sir.

940. Did he not say: "I will give you that harness"?—I don't remember him saying that; I remember distinctly just what I have said as to the use of the harness, and I saw him yesterday and told him he could have them back whenever he wanted them.

By Mr. Daly:

941. Who owns the harness?—Mr. McCullough.

942. You could not dispose of them?—No, I could not dispose of them without Mr. McCullough's consent, and without giving him what I got for them.

943. How much is the harness worth?—I could not tell.

944. $100?—They are second hand harness.

945. Are they worth $100?—They are worth from $80 to $100.

By Mr. Barron :

946. How did you offer to return them yesterday?—I do not know. Gentlemen do not usually watch each other like that, you know. I maintain, Mr. Lister, that it is quite within your province to bring all these charges against me. I don't deny anything that I know of; but you must know that when Mr. Buckingham was private secretary to Mr. Mackenzie, he received a gold watch, and the Premier knew of it, yet it was not printed or published in the newspapers. When Mr. Kingsford, Mr. Perley's predecessor, received a presentation from the people of Lake Huron, he was not hounded to earth, he was not stiled a blackguard for doing it. Mr. Mackenzie was present in both cases.

By Mr. Daly :

947. Have you had any communication with the Edison Electric Light Company?—Yes, sir, I have.

948. Will you produce the letter and just read it?

Letter produced, and marked Exhibit No. 1, was read as follows:

EXHIBIT No. 1.

“ EDISON ELECTRIC LIGHT CO., 44, WALL STREET,

“ NEW YORK, 4th August, 1891.

“ JOHN R. ARNOLDI, Esq.,

“ Department of Public Works.

“ Ottawa, Ont.

“ MY DEAR SIR,—I learn from you that a rumour has gained some currency in Ottawa, or elsewhere in Canada, affecting the integrity of your relations to this company, or some of its affiliated connections, and that, at least the suggestion, and perhaps charge, has been made in some quarters, that in consideration of your installing an Edison plant in the Dominion building at Ottawa some consideration was made to you personally for your action in this matter. In bringing the subject to the attention of this company, you have made the inquiry as to what the exact facts are in respect to the same, and have asked me to state, in writing, whether there is any fact within the knowledge of the persons managing this company and its properties which tends in the slightest degree to give colour to such a rumour or suggestion.

“ It gives me pleasure to respond promptly to your inquiry, and to say that there is no fact within my possession, nor, so far as I can learn, within the possession of any other person connected with our business, which in the least degree bears out the promoters of this accusation. The contract for supplying the Dominion Buildings with an electric plant was awarded to the Edison Company after a competitive test, in which the United States Electric Lighting Company participated. The results of that test were plainly sufficient, in themselves, to justify your action in awarding the contract to the Edison Company. I have not seen the report which you made, as the result of the tests which were submitted to you, but I have no doubt that your finding upon all substantial points was strictly consonant with the facts proved. It would certainly be a surprise to any one familiar with the merits of the two competitors to learn that any different conclusion was ever meditated by you for a moment.

“ In the preliminary negotiation leading up to your decision I was personally in communication with you, and had conferences and correspondence with you. The negotiation was under my charge; no one else representing this company actively participated in it. It was doubtless my purpose throughout to produce as favourable an impression upon your mind as I could do, both socially and in a business way. I certainly made it a point to be agreeable, rather than to be disagreeable to you, and to acquire your good opinion of my affability and of my qualities as a social companion. But beyond the efforts which I made in this direction, together with those which I made to convince you of the truth of the proposition which I was asserting as to the value and quality of the wares which I had to sell, I brought to bear no inducement whatever upon you which might in the slightest degree be of personal advantage or benefit to yourself. I never paid, nor promised to pay, to you or to any other Government official, either directly or indirectly, one penny as an inducement to, or which might even tend to induce, a decision on your part in favour of the Edison Company; nor have I ever learned of a single penny being paid or promised by any person connected with any of our companies, to you or any other Government official in Canada, for the purpose aforesaid, or for any purpose whatever; nor have I ever paid or promised to pay to you anything of value, of any description whatsoever, for the purpose of influencing your decision in this or in any other matter.

“ I have tried in this letter to make a comprehensive statement upon this subject. If it is possible for you, or any one else, to frame a communication in which the denials of any corrupt influence can be made more explicit and convincing, I stand equally ready to attach my name, and the name of this company, to it, and to forward it to you.

“ Yours very truly,

“ F. J. HASTINGS,
“ Treasurer.”

By Mr. Lister :

949. When you were here the other day, Mr. Arnoldi, you stated that Mr. Robert Steed, of Sarnia, brother-in-law of the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, had made a contract with the Government and that the money had been paid to James King for the purpose of covering it up?—You had better read my evidence.

950. I have read it, I see that you say Mr. Robert Steed built the dredge and he was paid by the Sarnia Shipbuilding Co.; is this the contract?—Yes, Sir; I presume it is.

Contract produced and the following section read :

“ Articles of Agreement entered into on the sixteenth day of December, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and made in duplicate between ‘The Sarnia Shipbuilding Company,’ hereinafter throughout called the ‘parties of the first part,’ hereto represented and acting by James King, Esquire, of the Town of Sarnia, in the County of Lambton, in the Province of Ontario, President of the said Company, of the first part, and Her Majesty Queen Victoria, represented herein by the Minister of Public Works of the Dominion of Canada, of the second part: Witness that the parties of the first part hereby bind and oblige themselves to and in favour of Her said Majesty, Her heirs and successors, for and in consideration of the covenants, conditions and agreements hereinafter mentioned, to find all necessary tools, implements and materials whatsoever, and to perform, construct, complete and finish, in every respect, to the satisfaction of the said Minister, in a good, substantial and workman-like manner, agreeably to the true intent and meaning of the specification hereunto annexed, a new hull for the Dominion steam-dredge now lying at Sarnia, in the County of Lambton and Province of Ontario, said hull to be complete, with new crane, &c., as specified, to transfer to the said new hull the old engine bed, boiler, machinery, bedding, &c., as specified, and to build and complete for the same two dumping-scows complete, and a new dipper or scoop as specified."

951. The contract is with the Sarnia Shipbuilding Co. is it not?—Yes.

952. And signed by Mr. King as president of the Company?—Yes; but Mr. Steed's tender was sent to Mr. Mackenzie, and I have no doubt it was the lowest.

953. Is it the contract you had reference to?—Yes.

954. So you see that the Sarnia Shipbuilding Company had the contract and the money was paid to them?—Mr. Steed did all the work.

955. The money was paid to them?—Yes.

By Mr. Daly :

956. Mr. Charles Mackenzie is a nephew of Mr. Steed?—Yes; I did not know anybody else belonging to the company.

By Mr. Lister :

957. It was known as the Sarnia Shipbuilding Co.?—Yes; but Mr. Steed was the only man I ever saw.

958. He was a man who used to do work in the yard?—Yes; he was the lock, stock and barrel of the concern.

959. Don't be so flippant, sir?—I am not flippant.

960. Mr. Steed was a hired workman?—He was managing the concern.

961. He was a practical shipbuilder?—I presume he was.

By Mr. Daly :

962. Had you occasion to go to Sarnia when the Mackenzie Government was in power, in connection with the shipbuilding yard?—Not in connection with the shipbuilding. I had occasion to go there and report upon some dredging plant. There was a report presented to the Department that the plant was in danger of being wrecked; I went up there and found the tug stuck up on the wharf, she was resting on her side, not under water, she was in danger.

By Mr. Paterson (Brant) :

963. At the last investigation you said you did not know whether the duty on the dogs was paid; is it paid now?—Yes.

964. How did you come to pay it?—Because I went straight to the Department and said: “I don’t know that the duty was ever paid on the dogs and I would like to pay it.

965. Did they take the duty without examining the books?—They came down one day about the dogs and I paid the money.

966. Did they examine the books to see whether you had paid the duty?—I cannot say.

967. Did they examine, in the office, to find out whether it was paid?—I believe they did.

968. You paid it?—Yes.

969. When the officers of the Department found that there was smuggled goods in your possession why did not they seize them?—That is in the administration of the Customs Department. I cannot answer that question.

970. That is the rule, is it not?—I do not know, I never asked; it is foreign to my business.

971. Did they not speak to you about that?—No; I immediately took steps to have the duty paid.

972. Are they at liberty to allow any man in that way to make an entry in a proper sheet regarding property that has been brought into the country in this manner?—Now, you are asking me a technical question concerning the laws of the Custom house. I cannot answer that.

973. I want to ascertain whether the Customs Department acted in the same way with you as it did with other persons, you say these dogs were brought in—literally smuggled—and the officer found that there was no entry of these dogs?—It is possible they may have been entered at Sarnia, or Montreal, or anywhere else.

974. Then you need not have paid the duty?—I did not know that the duty was ever paid. I simply said, you must have the dogs appraised. I want no favours and no friendship. I said to the appraiser, Mr. Paterson, come down and appraise these dogs, and Mr. Paterson is the last man that will give any favour to anybody.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 11th AUGUST, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the chair.

THOMAS LAWSON, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

975. I believe, Mr. Lawson, you are a founder in this city?—Yes, sir.

976. Were you in business in March of this year?—Yes, sir.

977. What are the relations between you and Mr. Roe?—I had Mr. Roe's moulding department leased.

978. You did the casting for Mr. Roe, being lessee?—Yes.

979. Will you tell the committee whether in the month of March last you did any work in the way of casting a propeller for Mr. Arnoldi?—I cast several wheels for nearly all the offices.

980. Have you cast any wheel for Mr. Arnoldi's yacht?—Yes, sir.

981. How many did you cast?—I cast one wheel particularly for the yacht.

982. Who did the rest of the work—the sweeping it is called I think—the boring?—I did the sweeping.

983. Is that the casting?—That is the casting.

984. Who did the boring?—Mr. Roe.

985. Who paid Mr. Roe for his work?—I did.

986. You did?—Yes.

987. Where did you get the iron used in the wheel?—It was sent to me.

988. By whom?—I do not know by whom.

989. It was sent to you to make the wheel?—Yes.

990. And you don't know who sent it?—No.

991. Were you never told?—No.

992. Did Mr. Arnoldi have any conversation with you about it?—No further than one day I met him and he asked me to make a particular wheel, and he furnished me with stuff to make it.

993. Did he furnish the stuff?—Yes, I suppose he did.

994. Who took the stuff to you?—I cannot tell. Mr. Arnoldi, I suppose sent it.

995. How many thousand pounds of iron did the wheel contain?—About 350 pounds.

996. How much iron did you get altogether from him?—I bought iron from him.

997. How much did you buy from him?—I cannot exactly remember the amount. I bought a lot of iron and paid for it for the wheels I had been making.

998. You paid for iron for other wheels that you bought from Mr. Arnoldi?—Yes.

999. Can you not tell how much you bought?—About 9,000 pounds I suppose.

1000. What is the value of it, according to this bill it would be $54?—Somewhere about that.

1001. That iron was credited to your charge for making the wheels?—
Yes, sir.

1002. You say you cast one wheel for the steam yacht "Joe" last spring and that Mr. Roe bored it out while you did the casting?—Yes.

1003. And you paid Mr. Roe?—Yes.

1004. How much did you pay him?—It might be $4 or $5.

1005. Did you charge for making the casting of the wheel?—No.

1006. It was to be a present?—No, it was not a present, I had been in the habit always of having wheels made from patterns. These patterns would not suit the "Joe" and I said to Mr. Arnoldi that I thought I understood what he wanted but I was afraid, in fact I did not think that he would be pleased after having examined it, but I wanted to show him what we could do here. There was none could do it in Ottawa and I had seen examples of the kind which is technically known as Liberty and as I have said I wanted to show him I could do it in Ottawa as well as it could be done in other places.

1007. You never made any charge for it?—No.

1008. And you never intend to make any charge?—No.

1009. What became of the wheel?—It is in the "Joe", I guess.

1010. It is in the "Joe" now?—I guess so.

1011. Are these your accounts?—Yes.

1012. Now, tell me how many wheels you made in March last altogether?—I think, about three wheels, about that time.

1013. Including that one?—No, I did not charge for that one at all.

1014. So that you would have made two besides that?—No, I made three besides that.

1015. Will you swear to that?—I think so.

1016. You have never made any charge for this wheel?—No.

1017. And you still say you never intend to make any?—No, sir.

WILLIAM SMITH called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Taylor :

1018. What is your occupation?—I am foreman of the shipyard and dredges.

1019. Have you ever made any trips on the steamer "Joe"?—I have occasionally, when necessary for me to go.

1020. When?—When Mr. Arnoldi would take me with him.

1021. When were you with him?—I have been with him several times.

1022. Last year or the year before?—Last year and the year before; this year.

1023. You made trips this year, last year and the year before?—Yes, sir, and before that too.

1024. In your opinion, knowing the work that Mr. Arnoldi had to do, was it necessary for him to have the steamer "Joe" or some other steamer in order to do his work as advantageously as he has done it?—It would in different cases. The way the dredges are situated, sometimes, renders it very necessary to have some vessel, the more so because some of the tugs are very small and hardly able to tow the dredges. In a case of that kind we would join in and give her a hand coming up the current.

1025. With the steamer "Joe"?—Yes. We would generally give a hand up the current and in places where we thought it was necessary.

1026. Has Mr. Arnoldi a set of implements that he requires to carry with him in looking after the work of surveying and dredging?—Yes, I believe he has pickets, sounding rods and such like as that, to lay out the work for the dredges.

1027. And you required to have all these on the steamer?—Yes, sir.

1028. So that you think it is necessary to enable the work to be properly performed, to have the "Joe" or some other steamer?—In my opinion it is.

1029. Did you ever know Mr. Arnoldi to make pleasure trips with the "Joe," that is, with excursion parties?—Not to my knowledge. I never got excursions on her. While I was on her, I always got lots of work to do.

1030. You say that she has been used frequently assisting to tow the dredges?—Yes, sir, and attending to them. The more so when we were from home. She would take a good many things to the dredges sometimes. If we had not, it would have been difficult to have got them to the dredges.

1031. That is articles required on the dredges?—Yes.

1032. And the only way to get them to the dredges was either by the "Joe" or some other steamer?—Yes; either the "Joe" or some other steamer to take them there.

1033. Do you consider the charge of $100 a month for the steamer "Joe" a moderate or an extravagant charge?—I would consider it a very moderate charge, considering the size of the boat and the way she is built.

By Mr. Lister:

1034. You say you are foreman of the shipyard?—Yes.

1035. For how long?—About three years.

1036. You say that you were on the boat this year, last year and the year before?—Yes, sir.

1037. In what capacity?—In every way that was necessary.

1038. As the engineer or captain?—Captain, pilot or anything else.

1039. Where has the boat gone to this year on business?—This year we started from here in the spring. We went down to Yamaska where the dredge "Queen" was working at the time. Our next trip was to help the dredge "St. Louis" from here to Kingston. From there we went up to Brighton, Bowmanville, Newcastle and Port Hope and sounded the harbour there. From there we went to Toronto.

1040. That was this summer?—This spring. In June, I guess.

1041. Did you do anything in the month of May?—We went down to Yamaska in the month of May.

1042. How long were you there?—We were not there over two days.

1043. And how long in the month of June were you at Toronto, Port Hope, Newcastle, and the other places you spoke of?—About four weeks we were away to the best of my knowledge.

1044. What is the capacity of this tug; how many horse-power?—I do not know exactly her horse-power. I never figured it out.

1045. Have you any idea?—She has 12 squares. You can judge by that what she can do.

1046. How many men had she on board?—There was the engineer, myself and Mr. Arnoldi.

1047. Three of you?—Yes.

1048. Had the dredges tugs of their own?—They had.
1049. These tugs I understand are used for the purpose of towing out the scows and dumping the dirt?—Yes.
1050. Are they not powerful?—No.
1051. Do you know what capacity they are?—One is nine squares and another I think is 10 squares.
1052. Do you know what horse-power they are?—No, I never figured it up.
1053. You have been in the shipyard you say?—Yes, sir.
1054. Do you know anything about a couple of scows built there two years ago?—I do.
1055. What has become of them? Where are they?—They are at Meaford at the present time.
1056. At what work are they engaged?—They are with the dredge “Challenge” up there.
1057. Do you know of two other scows built, say a year ago?—There was one a year ago.
1058. Do you know whether one was sold to the Lachine Yacht Club?—I do not know I am sure.
1059. Do you know of any scow being sold at all?—I know the old “St. Louis” and the boarding house was sold. To whom I do not know.
1060. Do you know how much you got for it?—I do not.
1061. Do you know what she was valued at?—No.
1062. Or who valued it?—I do not know.
1063. You refer to certain instruments which the “Joe” carried. What instruments are those?—Sounding rods, pickets, &c.
1064. How many sounding rods d'd she carry?—Two.
1065. And how many pickets?—Six or eight.
1066. What else?—Then there is a sounding apparatus with a pipe having an indicator on it.
1067. These are all the implements?—Except the measuring lines and things like that.

By Mr. McMullen :

1068. Do you say he was the only person but yourself and the Engineer on that boat?—Only Mr. Thompson, myself and Mr. Arnoldi.
1069. You have mentioned three. Now do you swear that there were none but these three on any occasion on that boat?—I mean in the capacity of handling the boat.
1070. We want you to state how many were on that boat on any occasion?—Mr. Arnoldi, and probably his wife and sister-in-law and daughter, may be, occasionally.
1071. And who else?—Sometimes there might be an odd gentleman come down with us as far as Montreal. That is all I know.
1072. In the first place, you swore she was not used as a pleasure boat?—I do not know that that was for pleasure.
1073. Were these people engaged in the service?—They got on board and went down to Montreal. That is all I know.
1074. Did they have anything to do with the boat?—I cannot say.

1075. It is quite customary to take a friend whenever he got one?—As a general rule, if he caught one along the road he generally asked him to go on to where he was going.

1076. Have you been out with her on the different occasions when she was out this spring?—Yes.

1077. All the time?—All the time that she was out this spring.

1078. Has she made any other tour this spring?—Not to my recollection.

1079. Are you prepared to swear she did not?—No pleasure trips that I know of.

WILLIAM THOMPSON called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Taylor :

1080. What is your occupation?—Bell-hanger.

1081. Have you been employed on the steamer “Joe” more or less during the last two or three years?—Yes; I have been on her six years.

1082. For the last two or three years you have been employed more or less on the steamer “Joe”?—Yes.

1083. Have you been out on her all the trips she has been out on surveys?—Everyone.

1084. Did you know her ever to be used as an excursion or pleasure yacht?—Never.

1085. Always been used in the employ of the survey and attending the dredges?—Always.

By Mr. Lister :

1086. You are under Mr. Arnoldi?—Yes.

By Mr. Taylor :

1087. What are the running powers of the steamer?—Very variable. I have run twenty-two hours at a stretch, towing.

1088. Did Mr. Arnoldi carry a set of instruments necessary for doing the survey, on board the steamer?—Yes; buoys, pickets, sounding rods and measuring lines.

1089. Was it necessary to have these on board in order to do the work?—Could not do without them.

1090. The other witness did not say anything with reference to the buoys. What are they?—Little sticks of wood, about 4 by 4 and 4 feet long—to attach the weights used in putting down the lines.

1091. Was the steamer all the time she was away with yourself and Captain Smith kept busily employed in the Government work?—Too much so.

1092. Was any time wasted?—Hardly time to sleep.

1093. Was it necessary to have a steamer of this kind to do the work that Mr. Arnoldi was doing?—I should think so. Of course, I am not positive. There was no spare time on her.

1094. Do you know that the steamer “Joe” was used in towing the dredges?—Almost every trip we did some towing. The tugs were small—too small. Very often we couldn't get a tug to go a distance like from Montreal to the head of Grenville. There are no tugs passing there to help you along.

1095. You consider it necessary to have this boat, or some other boat, to do the work efficiently?—Yes.

By Mr. McMullen :

1096. What is the largest number you have had on board the "Joe" at any one time?—Mr. Arnoldi's family, himself and Captain Smith and I and a man to attend the lines when towing. That would be four men and three ladies.

1097. Have you never had more than that?—There has been occasionally a man carried as Captain Smith has said.

1098. Have you had nine on board?—I do not know.

1099. Have you had ten?—I would not swear to it. I could not swear positively.

1100. Have you had any but Mr. Arnoldi and his family and those in his employ?—Yes.

1101. How many?—Only one at a time.

1102. Never more?—Never more than one at a time.

1103. Besides Mr. Arnoldi's family and those in charge of the boat?—Besides those in charge of the boat.

1104. You have been with her all the time?—Yes, all the time except during the time I am employed here during the session.

1105. And you swear that there were not on the boat more than nine?—I could not confine myself to an exact number.

By Mr. Taylor :

1106. I presume you have often seen Mr. Arnoldi surveying and laying out the work for the dredges to do?—Yes, and helping too.

1107. You have assisted him in doing it?—Yes.

1108. And that had to be done with this steamer or some other steamer?—Yes; it was done with a skiff—the one on top.

By Mr. Lister :

1109. How is it done?—With a skiff generally, unless going through the cut.

1110. You got into the skiff when you got to your destination, put your tools into it and did your measuring?—Yes. That is in shallow water, where the tug could not go.

W. A. ALLAN called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

1111. You reside in Ottawa, I believe?—Yes, sir.

1112. And you are acquainted with Mr. Arnoldi?—Yes.

1113. You were present the other day when Mr. Arnoldi was giving his evidence?—The first day—yes.

1114. You heard him state that you and he were very intimate friends, that you had had business transactions to the extent of $50,000 or $60,000?—Yes.

1115. Is there any truth in that?—I think he was rather drawing upon his imagination. I have endeavoured to tax my memory with reference to any transactions between Mr. Arnoldi and myself in years gone by, and after hunting the thing up, I find that about 10 years ago there was a transaction of a private character, which I have no objection to state, but it is quite private, amounting to $6,000. From that day to this I have never had any transaction with Mr. Arnoldi that I am aware of, with the exception he referred to, namely, the building of my dredging plant.

1116. Was not his yacht "Joe" entered in your name?—I did that from friendship to him at the time. He asked me if I would have her entered at the Customs in my name. I asked his reason for that and he told me it was to avoid notoriety or something of the kind, but soon after that I asked to be relieved, when he told me it would be transferred to Mr. Wilson.

1117. You saw the boat building at Lockport?—I saw the boat being built when I went up there, to visit the works where they were building my dredge.

1118. Was it in a shipyard?—No, not in a shipyard.

1119. Pond & Co., were the ones who were building it?—I do not know who were building it. I remember seeing the boat on the stocks, I think about 2 miles out from Lockport.

1120. Do you know if that was the boat that came up with the dredges?—I do not. I took no interest in it at all.

1121. Did you come up with the dredges from Lockport?—No, sir. My dredge was delivered to me at Port Dalhousie.

By Mr. Daly :

1122. Do you know why Mr. Arnoldi should say that you had had transactions together amounting to fifty thousand or sixty thousand dollars?—I cannot conceive why Mr. Arnoldi made such a statement. We have not had any transaction in any shape or form with the exception of the money he gave me to enter the "Joe," and also this other transaction amounting to six or seven thousand dollars.

1123. Have you been on speaking terms with Mr. Arnoldi of late years?—Yes.

1124. Was there not difficulty between you in reference to a boundary between your houses?—We had a lawsuit six or seven years ago.

1125. Have you been on as friendly terms since?—We have not been on the same terms of intimacy since.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, THURSDAY, 13th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN—I have received from the Minister of Justice the following letter :—

127 STEWART ST., OTTAWA, 8th August, 1891.

SIR,—I beg leave to address you as Minister of Justice, owing to the paragraph in last night's Free Press (Friday, 7th of August, vol. XXII., No. 6616) which reports that Mr. J. R. Arnoldi, of the Public Works, during his examination made the following statement :—

"Mr. Kingsford, Mr. Perley's predecessor, also received numbers of presents, but was not hounded to earth for it!"

Mr. Arnoldi never knew anything of my private affairs ; for the last seventeen years, including the time I was in the department, I never spoke or even looked at him. The statement attributed to Mr. Arnoldi that I received presents from contractors I declare to be a disregard of all truth ; moreover that there is not the slightest ground for the supposition.

I beg leave to request that this letter be read to the Committee and my demand be submitted that I be examined upon oath regarding this impertinent and calumnious assertion.

I am, Sir, your very obedient servant,

WILLIAM KINGSFORD.

M. S. C. E. (Can.)

Hon. Sir JOHN THOMPSON,
Minister of Justice.

Mr. Kingsford is here, and wishes to make a statement.

WILLIAM KINGSFORD called and sworn.—I will make, sir and gentlemen, a very brief statement. The assertion, I suppose I must call it so, made by Mr. Arnoldi is utterly untrue. I beg further to add that there is not the slightest ground for its being made. I never gave, as a disciplined engineer, any order to any contractor except through an assistant. That expression would seem to convey that I was seeking to rid myself of blame for work improperly performed and putting it on my assistant. I refer to the documents before you and it will be seen that in regard to dredging a statement is given setting forth the dredging done every day in every spot on any particular work and under what circumstances, and if anything extraordinary. This can be referred to. As to myself I can refer you to my immediate superior, Mr. Trudeau, a man without taint or blot in his professional or private life ; I can refer to my old chief, Mr. Mackenzie, and previous to my dismissal, to Sir Hector Langevin. I can also refer to the members of my staff whose names can be got by reference to the Department. I feel it my duty to myself to make this statement in reference to Mr. Arnoldi's charge. I wish to add that this charge is impudent in the extreme, and I do not know the slightest occurrence which warrants it being made. I never heard of such a thing, and I think any member of my staff would come forward and say that they never did hear of such a thing. That is all I wish to say, and I am open to be examined as to that statement.

Mr. FOSTER—The letter produced is yours?—The letter I produce I wrote to the Minister of Justice, for I suppose he occupies a position not merely in name. He was courteous enough to answer me that he was not a member of the Committee, but in his official capacity he enclosed it to the Chairman of the Committee. I respectfully addressed a letter to the Chairman, which he did not think was necessary to read, asking that I might occupy this position and here I am. I thank you for allowing me to make my statement. Every man of the world knows "littera scripta manet ;" you put on record when you are attacked by a blackguard.

WILLIAM KING, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

1126. Do you occupy any position in the public service ?—Yes.

1127. What position do you occupy?—I am a draughtsman on the mechanical engineer's staff.

1128. You are under Mr. Arnoldi?—Yes.

1129. In his office?—Yes.

1130. How long have you been there?—Since the beginning of 1879.

1131. Do you know that Mr. Arnoldi is the owner of the survey steamer "Joe"?—There is such a boat.

1132. Do you know that he has such a boat?—I know that he uses such a boat.

1133. You are a draughtsman, you say?—Yes.

1134. Did you draught the plan of that boat?—I drew the lines. I took the lines off a model on paper.

1135. For that boat?—Well, I think so.

1136. When was that?—I think it was about five years ago.

1137. Do you know where it was built?—No.

1138. Did Mr. Arnoldi tell you?—No.

1139. Did he tell you he was going to have one built?—I do not know that he directly told me he was going to have one built. But of course having taken the lines of this model I supposed there might be some boat fitted out.

1140. A yacht?—Yes, a yacht or tug.

1141. Was it built on the lines you took from the model?—I do not know.

1142. Did you ever see it?—I have seen the steamer "Joe."

1143. Well what is your judgment as to her being built from the model?—Well, I cannot say.

1144. How long was it before the boat appeared here after you drew those lines?—I do not know.

1145. You remember the dredges coming up?—Yes.

1146. Did the yacht come along with the dredges?—I do not know, I am sure.

1147. How long was it before the dredges came here after you took those lines? Any time speaking generally, you need not be particular as to a month or two? Would it be about a year or so?—I could not say, I don't remember.

1148. Now do you say, Mr. King, that Mr. Arnoldi when you took the lines off the model did not tell you anything about what he wanted it for?—No. He did not tell me.

1149. Nothing about having a boat built?—No. You see I have taken lines off other models for the Government.

1150. For boats?—For tugs.

1151. I suppose he would tell you if it were for a tug?—Yes.

1152. Did he say anything about a steamer for survey purposes being built?—No, not so far as I remember.

1153. Did he say anything about the necessity for getting such a boat?—I don't remember his saying anything.

1154. Did he not tell you he was going to have one built?—I cannot remember.

1155. You cannot remember anything about that?—No.

1156. But you do know that you drew the lines from a model?—I took the lines from a model.

1157. What model?—A model that was there.

1158. Who brought it there?—Mr. Arnoldi.
 1159. Where did he got that model?—I don't know.
 1160. Didn't he say?—I suppose he made it himself, he is accustomed to that sort of thing.
 1161. Now, you tell me that you have seen the steamer "Joe," will you undertake to swear that the lines that you drew were not used for that boat?—I could not do so.
 1162. Does it generally appear to be according to the model?—Well, the general appearance might be about the same.
 1163. Is it or is it not?—The general appearance is about the same.

WILLIAM WATERS called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

1164. Have you been working for the Government in any capacity?—Yes, sir.
 1165. What?—I was foreman there for my father.

 1167. Where is that?—Down in the canal basin.
 1168. Is your father's name P. G. Waters?—Yes, sir.
 1169. Do you remember a couple of scows that were there within the last two years and that were sold?—What do you mean, that were being built?
 1170. No, that had been built and sold to the Lachine Boat Club?—No. I know of scows being there, but so far as the transaction of selling goes I do not know anything about it.
 1171. Do you know what became of them?—No, I do not know where they went, nobody told me anything about them.
 1172. Is your father here?—No.
 1173. Where is he?—He is over in Hull.
 1174. Was he not ordered to be here?—Yes.
 1175. Why is he not here?—He was here, but he was turned out of the room here this morning. He has gone to Hull now to get his dinner. But he was here all the forenoon and they put him outside and he went away saying he would be not here again.
 1176. Do you know anything of a yacht built in Mr. Arnoldi's yard, anything about the building of a yacht?—It was my father that was the builder. I worked at it.
 1177. How long is it since it was built?—Two or three years ago.
 1178. Where was it built?—It was built in the lot opposite his residence.
 1179. What size of a yacht was it?—I think as near as I can remember the measurement of the yacht was about 45 feet long.
 1180. Was she a steam yacht?—I could not tell you.
 1181. Was she a steamer or was she intended for that?—I cannot say.
 1182. What beam had she?—Seven feet.
 1183. Was she intended to have machinery put into her?—I think so.
 1184. How many men were working at it?—There were two men besides my father and myself.
 1185. How long were you working on her?—About two weeks myself. we finished her up, my brother—not my brother but my uncle.

1186. Then there were two men besides you?—Yes.
1187. Was your father working on her?—Yes, some time.
1188. Your father worked occasionally?—Yes.
1189. Then you say you finished her up?—Me and my uncle.
1190. Were you in the public service at that time?—Yes.
1191. Getting your pay from the Government?—No, sir, we got our pay from P. G. Waters.
1192. Where did he get it?—
1193. Were you in the Government employ at the time?—We were working at the yacht.
1194. Were you not in the Government employ?—We could not be at the time.
1195. Had you been dismissed?—Our work was done for the Government at the time.
1196. Where did the material come from?—I do not know.
1197. You do not know much about it?—I will tell you so far as I know, but what I don't know I cannot tell you. There was a lot of material brought there, I cannot tell from where. There was a quantity of logs brought up, in fact it was planks that we could not do anything with, other than put with the rubbish down in the yard.
1198. Who brought it to Mr. Arnoldi's yard?—I could not say who brought it except a carter. I was not there when the stuff was brought.
1199. Your father, you say, paid you your wages?—Always.
1200. When you were working for the Government?—When we were working for the Government. Whether I was working for the Government or for himself, he paid me just the same.
1201. Did your father pay you when you were not working for the Government?—Yes, sir.
1202. He was the head of the shipyard?—Yes, sir, on this side.
1203. And he paid all the men working in the shipyard?—Yes, sir.
1204. And when you were changed to Arnoldi's yard he paid you in the same way?—Yes.
1205. You say that the material for the boat came from the Government shipyard?—No, I did not say that. I said the planking in his own yard was not fit for fencing, but I said the oak that was used for ribs, a very small quantity for a yacht of that kind, was taken out of the cuttings in the yard.
1206. Where was the rest of the material got?—As far as the construction of the yacht was concerned, if you do not know, I shall tell you, there is only pine and oak used in a small yacht like that. He had the pine in his own yard and the oak came out of the lower yard.
1207. What yard is that?—The Government yard.
1208. Do you know where the nails and hardware came from?—I could not tell you that. When I wanted anything, all I had to do was to ask for it, and he sent an order down with his man to get it.
1209. Where to?—I could not say. I do not like to pry into a man's business so close as that; it would not be becoming.
1210. When you wanted anything, he gave the order?—Yes.
1211. You did not ask where the supplies came from?—No.
1212. You did not care about it?—No, sir.

By Mr. Bergeron :

1213. You are not a policeman?—No, sir, I never hope to be.

By Mr. Lister :

1214. What became of the yacht?—I do not know.

1215. Was there a name to her?—Oh, no.

1216. Mr FOSTER—Is this the “Joe” you are referring to?—

Mr. LISTER—No, this is another yacht.

By Mr. Daly :

1217. He did not build it with Government labour?—No, because the contractor paid for the labour himself.

1218. You were not working for the Government at the time?—No, sir ; I was working for my father.

1219. Your father was not working for the Government at the time?—No, sir ; he had no Government contracts at that time.

By Mr. Denison :

1220. Had Mr. Arnoldi two yachts, the “Joe” and another?—He has a small yacht on the top of his big one.

1221. Had he the “Joe” in addition to the one you built?—Yes.

By Mr. Cochrane :

1222. Is it in the yard yet?—I do not know that.

By Mr. Bowell :

1223. Was the yacht on which you worked ever launched?—Not that I am aware of ; she was not launched when I left her.

1224. How long is that ago?—This was about two or three years ago.

1225. She is not on the ways now?—No, sir. You see these small vessels, we built them generally as dry as we could, in order to preserve them ; you can keep them two or three years without any trouble, provided you give them a coat of paint inside and out every year.

By Mr Lister :

1226. You say you were not working for the Government?—No, sir.

1227. But you had been?—Yes.

1228. You had been working under your father for the Government?—Yes.

1229. You worked on this small yacht, and your father continued to pay you as he had always done?—Yes.

1230. You do not know what his agreement with Mr. Arnoldi was?—I cannot say.

By Mr. Coatsworth :

1231. You did not explain you were working on Government work at that time?—I knew I was not working on Government work.

1232. Nor your father either?—Nor my father either. This job we knew about, and we could not touch it until we were through with the Government work.

By Mr. Landerkin :

1233. How many years were you working for the Government?—Four or five years.

1234. By contract?—No, by the job.

1235. Is your father a permanent employee?—No, a contractor.

1236. With the Government?—With anybody in fact.

By Mr. Bowell :

1237. Do you know a yacht called the “Joe” belonging to Mr. Arnoldi?—I have seen her.

1238. Is that the yacht, or have you any reasons for believing that is the yacht, you built?—No.

By Mr. Coatsworth :

1239. Do you know whether your father had a contract with Mr. Arnoldi to build this yacht?—He told me that he had a small yacht to build for Mr. Arnoldi and that he had to fix up his stables.

By Mr. Denison :

1240. Was all the work you did under contract for the Government?—Yes. You could not get much of a job out of the Government without contract.

By Mr. McMullen :

1241. Did your father ever do anything for the Government by day work?—Yes; and was paid for it.

1242. But he did nothing by the day during the last year?—Not to my recollection.

1243. Did he do anything the year before?—I think two years ago he did a couple of days work or something like that.

1244. Are you quite certain you are fully cognizant of the days work he did for the Government?—No.

1245. He might be working for the Government by the day and you receiving your pay and you not be aware of it?—Not at all, my friend. I will explain that in two words: When a man takes a contract for the construction of a new vessel and there is a job on an old vessel, you know perfectly well that when you are working on the old vessel you are not working at the new; and when you are working on the new that is contract work, and on the old that is day work. That is the best difference I can give you.

By Mr. Landerkin :

1246. What year was this?—About three years ago.

1247. What year would that be?—1889, I think.

1248. What month in the year?—I cannot tell you; I am a man who works only by the day's work, and I do not carry my book. I get my day's work the same as any other labouring man.

By Mr. Lister :

1249. Your father was foreman of the Government Ship yard?—He was the contractor; I was foreman under him.

1250. Is there a Government Ship yard?—There is.

1251. Is that the place where you work? That is where the construction is done, except one steamer under the bridge.

COMMITTEE ROOM, FRIDAY, 14th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. Wallace in the chair.

Mr. P. G. WATERS called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Lister :

1252. What is your business?—I am a shipbuilder by trade.

1253. Have you ever built scows for the Government?—Yes, sir.

1254. Under contract or otherwise?—Under contract.

1255. Always?—Always.

1256. Have you ever worked for the Government as foreman?—Never, sir, although I have looked after work for the Government, but I was under contract at the same time ; but I have looked after work being done to see that it was done in a proper way.

1257. That is to say, you inspected work being done for the Government, while, at the same time, you had a contract with the Government to do it?—Yes, sir.

1258. And for this additional work or inspection were you paid by the Government?—I was.

1259. By the day?—By the day.

1260. May I ask how much per day?—Well, I could not tell you now ; it is only a minor matter.

1261. It is a small matter?—A small matter.

1262. Probably $2 or $3?—About $3.50 a day.

1263. Do you remember two years ago building a couple of scows for the Government?—I do, sir.

1264. Were those scows built under contract?—They were.

1265. May I enquire what was the price?—$700 each.

1266. So that the contract would be for $1400?—$1400.

1267. Where were those scows built?—They were built down in the Government shipyard.

1268. With Government material, or with Government material provided by you?—Government material.

1269. So that when you took a contract for the construction of those dredges from the Government you received a sum for the work?—For the work.

1270. The material all being furnished by the Government?—The material all being furnished by the Government.

1271. Were you the inspector of that work?—Well, I was the builder and inspector as far as that is concerned. But then there were others that inspected after me, subject to their approval.

1272. May I ask you how you were paid for that work?—I was paid by cheque on the Montreal Bank.

1273. At a fixed price?—At a fixed price.

1274. With a per day allowance?—With a per day allowance.

1275. Who paid the men that were working on it?—I did.

1276. With money paid to you by the Government?—Yes, sir.

1277. Do you remember, this spring, having valued those two scows at the request of Mr. Arnoldi, or anybody else?—I recollect there was something said about the scows, but now I could not bring it to mind.

1278. Before going on with that part of the question, I will ask you to say what, in your judgment, was the value of the scows. You were to get $1400, the material was to be furnished by the Government, and when completed what were the scows worth?—The material that they were built of was extra material and those scows would be worth from $2100 to $2200 a piece.

1279. When completed?—Yes, sir.

1280. They were built two years ago?—Yes, sir.

1281. At what season of the year?—They were built between May and July.

1282. So that it would be two years last July since they were finished?—Yes, sir. I think it was about the month of July we finished them, but I won't be certain.

1283. Do you know where the scows are now?—No, sir.

1284. Do you know they were taken away from Ottawa and sold?—No, sir, I don't know anything about that. I know the scows were taken away from Ottawa, but I could not say where they went to.

1285. I asked you to bring your memory to bear, and to say whether, during the past spring, you were not called upon to go and look at the scows and say what, in your opinion, they were worth?—Not in relation to those scows, sir.

1286. What scows then?—The scows I was asked to pass my opinion as to their value, one had been a dredge at one time, and the other one had been what they call a board vessel, to board hands.

1287. Did you value those this spring?—I was asked something about it.

1288. Who asked you?—I think it was Mr. Arnoldi; I won't be certain.

1289. And what value did you put on them?—I don't recollect now; I recollect I made an offer for one of them.

1290. Do you remember what value you put on them; was it not $50 a piece?—I know I offered $50 for one of them, I could not say whether I offered for the two of them or not.

1291. You don't remember whether you offered for the two of them or not?—I could not say now.

1292. You told me you thought Mr. Arnoldi was the person who told you to go and look at them?—Yes, sir.

1293. Do you know those two scows were taken away?—Well, I know they were away before I got through the work there this spring.

1294. Do you know they were taken down to Lachine?—I could not say where they were taken to.

1295. At what time was it you were being paid $3.50 a day by the Government?—I have done a little work like that on two or three occasions, but I do not remember the times.

1296. Do you remember building a yacht for Mr. Arnoldi?—Yes, sir.

1297. I believe it was built in his own yard?—Yes, sir.

1298. What was the dimensions of the yacht, her length and breadth of beam?—Well, I would have to refer to my memorandum.

1299. Your son said 45 feet?—It was thereabouts, somewhere between 6½ and 7 feet beam.

1300. It was intended for a steam yacht?—Yes, sir.

1301. Will you tell the Committee when it was that you built that boat?—It would be, I think, two years since I built that boat.

1302. That would be then about the time you were building the scows?—Well, I did not do anything to that yacht not until after the scows were completed, or nearly completed.

1303. After the scows were completed, or nearly completed, you commenced work on the yacht?—Yes, sir.

1304. You told me the material put into the scows was material of extra quality?—Yes, sir.

1305. Really very good material?—Yes, sir.

1306. Then after you got through with the scows you commenced building the yacht?—About that time.

1307. And that would be about the month of July, you think?—It would be about the month of August or pretty near that—it was into July pretty well, I think, when I launched those two scows.

1308. Then in your judgment it would be in the month of August that you commenced work on the yacht?—About that.

1309. How long did you continue working on her?—That yacht?

1310. Yes?—Oh, I could not tell without referring to the time-book.

1311. Give us a rough guess?—Somewhere about four weeks.

1312. And you think you commenced work on her in the month of August?—Yes.

1313. The latter part of July or the beginning of August?—Exactly.

1314. Your recollection is you worked about four weeks on the scows?—Yes, sir.

1315. How many men were working on her?—Sometimes there would be quite a number and at other times very few, as I had work outside and I only ran that job to suit my own convenience.

1316. When you say “quite a number,” will you tell me how many that would be?—Five, some portion of the time.

1317. And at other portions of the time, how many?—Not more than one. I would go there once a day perhaps and see how they were getting along.

1318. You remember that the workmen would be from 1 to 5?—Yes.

1319. And they worked for about a month?—About that.

1320. Where was the lumber taken from to build her?—As far as the planking was concerned, I believe it came from Montreal. I was told that, but I found the planking in the yard.

1321. In the Government shipyard?—No; in Mr. Arnoldi's yard.

1322. Mr. Arnoldi told you it came from Montreal?—I was told it came from there. I do not know whether it was Mr. Arnoldi or somebody else told me.

1323. Was it ship planking?—No, inch boards.

1324. What kind of wood?—Pine.

1325. And Mr. Arnoldi told you this lumber came from Montreal?—I think it was Mr. Arnoldi, but I would not be positive.

1326. You found the lumber in Mr. Arnoldi's yard?—Yes.

1327. Where did you get the rest of the wood material?—The oak came from the shipyard.

1328. Who told you to take it from the shipyard?—The stuff I took from the shipyard, was the refuse of the stuff with which I had built the scows.

1329. Who told you to take it from there?—Mr. Arnoldi.

1330. Where did you get the hardware that was used in the construction of the boat?—Mr. Arnoldi gave me his order on Mr. Birkett for it.

1331. Do you remember how the order was signed?—It was signed by himself.

1332. To Birkett?—By himself—John R. Arnoldi.

1333. It was Birkett of this city?—Yes.

1334. That would be in the month of August, 1889?—Yes.

1335. What men worked on her under your supervision?—There was one of my sons who worked there. He was here yesterday.

1336. What is his name?—William.

1337. Who else?—There was one Charles Waters, but he is not here He is in the United States.

1338. He was your brother?—Yes. And there was one Charles Seymour.

1339. Where is he?—Over in Hull. And there was my grandson.

1340. What was his name?—Peter Joseph Waters.

1341. Who else?—Then there was my own son, Joseph Peter. They were about of an age and they were christened as near alike as possible.

1342. Where does he live?—In Montreal.

1343. Were those all?—No; there was another one, his name was Tremblay.

1344. What is his first name?—I do not know that I can translate it.

1345. Now, how much did Mr. Arnoldi give you for building the boat?—That job was included in a piece of work I done for him on his stable.

1346. What did you do on his stable?—I lined it all for him.

1347. What did you get for this job?—I got —

1348. $25?—More than that.

1349. $100?—Somewhere about that. The cheque will show.

1350. Do you think it was $100?—It was near that. It might be that or might be over. It is a good while ago, and I never expected that there was ever anything to be asked about it.

1351. It might be over?—Yes.

1352. You took that job with the lining of this stable, and it amounted to over $100. How long were you engaged in lining this stable?—About a week or so.

1353. How many men had you engaged on it?—I think there were three.

1354. Who furnished the material?—I did.

1355. And you supplied all the labour?—Yes.

1356. You were to build this yacht in addition to this work, which would take you a month?—Yes.

1357. At the time you built these scows, was there not an arrangement made with you to go on and build the yacht after you got through?—Yes, there was an arrangement made to build a yacht. He wanted me to build that yacht. It had been talked of for six months before that.

1358. At the time you made the contract to build the scows the matter had been talked of and you at that time agreed to build the yacht?—No.

1359. What did you say about it then?—He was talking to me about building this yacht. He said he wanted something to experiment on. We had different talks about the lines, and he told me he was going to build it.

1360. And immediately after getting through with the scows you went on and built this yacht?—Yes.

1361. How was it you were to do all this work on the stable and build the yacht for $100?—I cannot say how that was. I do not know how much time there was on both of them. I did not finish this job. I only framed the yacht and planked her up.

1362. The work for the month was with from one to five men. Would that be worth \$100?—Take the mean of that, and it would be like  $2\frac{1}{2}$  men for a month. I think that the \$100 would cover the wages easily enough.

1363. How much was the work on the stable worth?—I lost money on that job.

1364. What job?—In that job on the stable and yacht.

1365. How much was the stable worth?—The stable must have been worth somewhere in the neighbourhood of between $60 and $70 in labour and material.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE.

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 4th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. Wallace in the Chair.

Mr. WILLIAM WHITE, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Barron :

1. What is your present position, Mr. White?—I am Deputy Postmaster General.

2. How long have you occupied that position?—I have been in the public service since 1845; I have been three years Deputy Postmaster General.

3. Can you give me the different branches of the Department under your supervision?—Yes; there is the Accountant's, the Money Order Office, the Savings Bank, Printing and Supplies, Dead Letter, Mail Contracts and Stamp Branches.

4. Are they all located in the building known as the Langevin Block?—Yes; in the Langevin Block.

5. Who are the respective heads of the different branches?—Mr. Smithson is the Accountant, Mr. Matheson is Superintendent of the Savings Bank Branch, Mr. Everett of the Money Order Branch, Mr. Lesueur is the Secretary—I think I forgot to mention his branch, Mr. Sydney Smith is the Superintendent of the Printing and Supply Branch, Mr. Walsh is Superintendent of the Dead Letter Branch, Mr. Lindsay of the Mail Contract Branch, and the Stamp Branch although it is separate is not under a chief clerk, but is in charge of a first-class clerk.

6. Your own Department, over which you specially preside what is that—the Secretary's Department?—I do not interfere with any of the details of any of the branches. I am charged with general supervision of the whole Department. I have to keep an eye on the expenditure and revenue and general matters of that kind.

7. Who is in your room with you?—Mr. Stanton. He writes semi-official correspondence for me.

8. Is he the only one in your room?—He is the only one.

9. What room is Captain Pouliot in?—The Accountant's Branch.

10. And what room is Mr. Bunel in?—The Secretary's Branch.

11. Mr. Balderson—what room is he in?—He is private secretary to the Postmaster General. He has a room of his own.

12. His name is John H. Balderson?—I believe it is.

13. You have at the present time a good many extra clerks there?—Yes, we have.

14. More than ever before?—Probably. I am not quite sure about that, however. We have a great many, but I could not tell you the exact number. Between 40 and 50, at any rate.

15. When did Mr. Haggart become Postmaster General?—In August, 1888.

16. Since that time the number of extra clerks has been increased considerably?—The number is larger now than before, for the simple reason that the practice followed in previous years has not obtained. We are not making so many permanent appointments, although, of course, it is essential that the staff should be kept up. I may remind you that the revenue of the Department has just doubled during the last 10 years, and, therefore, we are obliged to increase the staff as the work increases.

17. In increasing your staff why do you not take from the Civil Service list?—We do in a great many cases—we do not always.

18. But you have not taken so many within the past three years from the Civil Service list?—I think so; I am not aware of any change in that respect.

19. When did Miss Craig join the Department?—I could not tell you speaking from memory. It was some time in August or September, 1888.

20. And Mr. Haggart became Postmaster General in August, 1888?—Yes.

21. Was Miss Craig a permanent or an extra clerk?—An extra clerk. In regard to the word “extra” as applied to clerks, perhaps it is just as well that I should make an explanation? Our temporary clerks are appointed by Order in Council for a term of six months with a view to permanent appointment. They are not paid by the day as in some of the other departments, but by the year at the minimum salary of a 3rd class clerk, viz., $400 a year. They are not in that sense “extra” clerks who may be taken on for a very short period, work for a few days and then go away.

22. Was Miss Craig appointed on your recommendation?—No, I never make recommendations.

23. What was the occasion of Miss Craig’s joining the staff?—Simply the requirements of the service.

24. Pressure of work?—Pressure of work.

25. The Statute says that, “when, from a temporary pressure of work or from any other cause the assistance of temporary clerks becomes necessary in any branch of the first or second division, the head of the Department may—if he is satisfied that such necessity exists.”—The head of the Department—that is the Minister.

26. “On the requisition of the deputy head of the Department, select from the list of qualified candidates, for whom no vacancies have, up to that time, been found, such number of temporary clerks as are required, or if the list does not furnish such a person, may employ any other person qualified for the service in question”—you say she had joined from temporary pressure of work?—Yes.

27. Did she join on your recommendation?—I presume I told the Postmaster General that we required more assistance and Miss Craig was appointed.

28. Did you select her?—It is not my business to make appointments.

29. It is the Minister who does that?—Yes, all patronage belongs to him.

30. As I understand it, all that you do, according to the Statute, is to make a requisition?—Yes, a requisition for assistance.

31. And you leave it to the Minister to make appointments?—Exactly.

32. Did he make the appointment of Miss Craig?—Yes.

33. Not you at all?—No.

34. Were there not several on the list of qualified candidates who might have been chosen, because the Statute says “select from the lists of qualified candidates for whom no vacancies have up to that time been found, such number of temporary clerks as are required, or, if the list does not furnish such a person, may employ any other person qualified for the service in question?"—That is hardly a question for me to decide; it is a question for the Minister to say who is qualified.

35. Was she qualified for the position within the meaning of the Civil Service Act?—Do you mean had she passed the Civil Service examination?

36. Yes?—I cannot remember that.

37. She was a temporary clerk?—She was a temporary clerk.

38. And you say the selection of Miss Craig was entirely on the responsibility of the Minister?—Yes.

39. But there were no doubt other persons on the Civil Service list who were qualified for the position?—There may, or may not have been. I could not undertake to say.

40. Have you any papers in regard to her appointment?—Not that I am aware of. There would be an Order in Council authorizing her employment.

41. Have you got that?—It will be on file in the Department.

42. You can get that, I suppose?—Yes, I can get that.

43. You think there was an Order in Council regarding her appointment?—Not regarding her particularly. Probably there would be half a dozen names in it.

44. What was her employment?—She was a clerk in the Dead Letter branch.

45. Who is the head at that branch?—Mr. Walsh.

46. Who else is in that particular office?—I could not tell you particularly. There are 37 or 38 of them. I can tell you the names of a number of them.

47. Can you tell me who was in the room which Miss Craig was in?—All the clerks except two or three. In the large room there are about 36, and the superintendent and two clerks are in another room where the safe is. She would be in the same room as were the clerks.

48. There is kept in the Department what is known as an attendance book—one for men, and a different one for ladies?—Yes; the attendance book for the ladies is kept in the secretary's room.

49. Is this the book (showing book to witness)?—That is the book.

50. Beginning when?—Beginning November, 1888, apparently.

51. In these attendance books employés of both sexes are, I understand, required to write their names in them; this is required by the regulations?—Yes.

52. When are they required to register their names?—As they enter the office before assuming their duties for the day.

53. Each morning?—Each morning they signed the attendance book. For the men it is in the corridor; the one for the ladies is in the secretary's room.

54. It is intended to account for their presence or absence?—Yes.

55. You are quite sure of that?—I am quite sure of that.

56. So that if any person is not there one day his or her absence is accounted for?—Yes. I would take account of the one for the men and the secretary would for that of the ladies.

57. Who is the secretary of the Department?—Mr. Lesueur.

58. Mr. Lesueur notes down the fact that anyone is absent when they are absent?—Anyone of the ladies.

59. Will you look at the attendance book under date 13th November, 1888, and tell me if Miss Craig was absent or present in the Department for that day?—She is marked as being “on leave.”

60. So that her absence is accounted for? Now turn to the 14th of November?—She is reported as being absent then attending the Civil Service examinations.

61. On leave?—“On leave,” exactly.

62. I mean is her absence accounted for?—Exactly.

63. Take the 17th December, is it again accounted for?—Yes.

64. On December the 31st, what does the book indicate?—Absent on leave.

65. Now January 2nd?—Yes, “on leave.”

66. 3rd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 15th?—Yes, all those dates she is absent on leave.

67. Now take February 2nd. What do you find there?—There is a query marked against her name. The secretary does not appear to have completed the answer. Miss Faulkner is marked as away ill, and then he has queried two or three, but he does not appear to have completed the answer.

68. Now turn to the 22nd of February and see what remark is made about Miss Craig?—She is marked as being absent from illness.

69. Now the 13th of March?—Yes; she is marked as being absent from illness.

70. The 16th of March?—Yes.

71. Now the 6th of April?—The same.

72. The 27th of April?—She is marked as being absent.

73. Now the 6th of May?—She is marked as being absent from illness and on the 27th too.

74. Now the 22nd of May?—She is marked as being absent from illness.

75. The 23rd of May?—On the 23rd there is no mark. I do not know, but I suppose it is either on leave or for illness.

76. The fact of the absence is there noted?—Yes.

77. On the 25th?—Yes, the same.

78. No cause assigned?—No.

79. But her absence noted?—Yes.

80. On the 28th?—She is marked being absent through illness.

81. Are you sure?—No; the dates have been misplaced; I see the page is misplaced, that is how I could not find it.

82. Then you say the 28th of May?—Absent.

83. No cause assigned?—The cause is not assigned.

84. But the fact of her absence noted?—Yes; the fact of her absence noted.

85. On the 29th May?—Absent, no cause assigned.

86. Then the 30th May?—I don't see it anywhere, I think it dropped out.

87. Does the 31st account for it?—She is ill.

88. She is marked absent on account of illness?—On account of illness.

89. On June 1st?—The same.

90. Now then, June 2nd?—That must be I think in the next book, this finishes with June 1st. I see on the 2nd of June in the next book the absentees do not appear to be marked at all.

91. Then her name ought to appear as having attended?—Yes.

92. Then look and see if it is there?—No.

93. Glance hurriedly down please the next day, and see?—No.

94. Now turn up the front page of that book and read the clause therein contained?—It is part of a copy of a report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, 1879.

95-6. What does it provide?—The clause is as follows:—“The Committee of Council have had before them an extract from the minutes of a meeting of the Honourable the Treasury Board held on the 15th March, 1879, stating that it had come under the notice of the Board that, notwithstanding the prohibition contained in the Orders in Council of the 23rd October, 1868, and 30th November, 1875, that certain employés of the public Departments, have continued to absent themselves from duty, for a greater or lesser time during office hours, whether for lunch or other purposes. That, apart from the fact this is done in violation of an Order in Council governing the hours of attendance, it has been found to interfere seriously with the prompt and efficient discharge of public business. Under these circumstances the Committee of Council recommend, that, with the exception of Deputy Heads who are responsible for the proper performance of the duties of their respective Departments, no employé be permitted on any pretense to absent himself from duty during office hours without the special permission in each case of the Deputy Head, and that it be the duty of the Deputy Heads promptly to report to the Minister any infraction of this rule.”

97. So it was your duty to report any infringement of the rule?—Yes.

98. Did you report to the Minister anything about the frequent absence of Miss Craig?—I don't remember that I did.

99. It was your duty?—Well, I don't remember that my particular attention was called to it. You must please remember I cannot be aware of the absence of any particular clerk if it is not reported to me.

100. You will not say whether you did or did not?—I have no recollection of it.

101. But if it had been reported to you you would have felt it your duty at once to report to the Minister?—I should have called his attention to it.

102. In accordance with that rule?—Yes.

103. Whose duty was it to call attention to the fact that she was absent so frequently?—The Secretary of the Department, if he thought there was anything unusual?

104. Mr. Lesueur?—Yes.

105. Do you not think the frequent absences of Miss Craig were an unusual thing?—I think it certainly points to the fact that her health was not very good at the time.

106. It appears she was only absent eleven times from illness, out of the frequent number of times we have mentioned?—The cause was not stated in the other cases.

107. What are those little slips?—Those are slips that would be given to the Secretary by the head of the branches, with regard to the cause of absence of any particular clerk.

108. Those slips indicate how careful you are?—Yes.
109. Will you turn back again to the 2nd June?—Yes.
110. You don't find Miss Craig's name at all after that?—I don't find it on that day.
111. Do you find it on any other day?—I have only looked over two; I don't see it on the 4th.
112. That was the time she left the Department, was it not?—June, 1889, I think it was.
113. Because her name as a matter of fact does not appear, I have examined that. What time was it she left? Was it in June, 1889?—She left in June, 1889.
114. Look again at the 2nd June, please?—Yes.
115. Her name does not appear as you have said?—Not on that day.
116. But it does appear that Miss A. Graham signed?—Yes.
117. What relation is she to Miss Craig?—I don't know.
118. Did you ever hear?—I never heard what relation.
119. You never heard there was any relation?—I cannot say, but I believe she is a niece or a cousin; I believe they are of the same family.
120. You have reason to believe they are related?—Yes.
121. Miss Graham took her place?—I don't know that she took her place, she seems to have come on duty at that time.
122. What salary was Miss Craig getting?—$400 a year.
123. What time of the month are these temporary clerks paid?—That depends on the length of service. If they have been over six months in the service they are paid at the same time as the permanent clerks; if less they are paid at the end of the month.
124. It has been suggested to me there may be some confusion and that I might mention the lady's name. You understand of course we have been speaking about Miss Craig?—Certainly.
125. Here is a cheque for the month of November?—Yes.
126. What year?—1888.
127. There is a stamp on the back of it?—Bank of Montreal.
128. When was it cashed?—It was issued on the 25th September and paid on the 26th apparently.
129. Look at the next cheque, please; that was endorsed by whom?—Jane Craig.
130. That was, of course, before she left the Department?—It is 1888; when she first came it must be.
131. Now the next cheque?—That is dated 24th November.
132. When was it cashed?—The same day I think; yes, the same day. That is for November, but she drew one for October.
133. Perhaps they were both paid in one?—I don't see the October cheque at all; it must have been misplaced.
134. She got both cheques in one, you see the amount is $67?—Yes, I see now that it is.
135. That was cashed immediately too?—Yes.
136. Who endorsed that, Miss Craig?—Yes.
137. When is it dated?—24th November.
138. You have what are called the pay-lists?—Yes, these (indicating them) are the pay-lists.

139. The person receiving the cheque, as I understand signs the receipt here?—Yes.

140. Now for that cheque, the name Jane Craig appears here as having received it?—Yes.

141. What is the rule in the Department?—The rule is the employé should sign the pay-list if present. Of course if not, some one else will, because the cheque being made to order it is not very material that the pay-list should be signed by the person for whom it is intended.

142. Every person signs it himself or herself, or the person who gets the cheque?—Or the person who gets the cheque.

143. Turn over the next cheque, please?—That is one of the 24th November.

144. That was cashed immediately?—That was cashed immediately.

145. And was receipted by Miss Craig, too?—Yes.

146. Turn to the next cheque, please?—That is the 15th December.

147. Was that cashed immediately?—The same day, 15th December.

148. And endorsed by Miss Craig?—Yes, endorsed, J. Craig.

149. Do you see her receipt any place for it?—Yes, here it is.

150. She has also receipted on the pay-list?—Yes, receipted on the pay-list.

151. Take the next cheque please?—That is February. It looks like the 6th, but must be the 16th. It is somewhat blotted, so that you can hardly tell whether it is the 6th or 16th.

152. It was cashed on the 16th anyway, and endorsed by Miss Craig?—Yes, and would be issued on the 15th most likely.

153. Cashed by the Bank of Montreal on the 16th? And the receipt appears here does it?—I was just looking for it. Here it is, under February.

154. Take the next cheque please?—That is dated 15th April.

155. When was it cashed?—April 16th.

156. And receipted for?—Yes, receipted for.

157. Endorsed by her?—Endorsed by her.

158. Take the next cheque?—This is 15th of June, and was not paid apparently until August.

159. What year would that be?—1889.

160. The 15th of June was after she left?—Yes. She was not in the office at the time.

161. The last trace we have in the attendance book is 2nd June, and this is issued on the 15th June?—15th June.

162. Who got that cheque?—It is marked as having been handed to me for the Postmaster General. The entry in the payroll reads: "Cheque handed to the Deputy Postmaster General for the Postmaster General."

163. For the Postmaster General?—Yes.

164. Then you handed it to the Postmaster General?—Well, that I would not like to say.

165. Well, what is that?—It is not my writing.

166. Whose is it?—The clerk who made out the pay-list. What probably took place was some one came for the cheque; it was given to me, and I handed it to whoever came.

167. It appears there for the Postmaster General?—It is so written.

168. So that, as far as you can judge by that, it came into the Postmaster General's hands?—I am not prepared to say that it went into the Postmaster General's hands. I will tell you why. It not infrequently happens that some one may come for a cheque; some one may have gone into his room for the cheque or the private secretary's—I cannot undertake to say whose room, but it should have been signed for.
169. She was not in the Department at the time?—No.
170. Well, that cheque is dated 15th June?—Yes.
171. Look when that cheque is cashed?—It was cashed on the 3rd August.
172. A considerable time afterwards?—A considerable time afterwards.
173. Of course it must have reached Miss Craig's hands?—Yes.
174. At this time not in attendance at the Department at all?—No; she was not.
175. What is the amount of that cheque for the 15th June?—$33.33.
176. Take the next cheque. What date is that?—28th June.
177. She had previously received on the 15th June?—This is not payable to her.
178. That is for Miss Graham. We will take that one of the 15th July. What is the amount of it?—$33.33.
179. Who received that cheque?—That I cannot tell.
180. It is endorsed by her?—Yes; it is endorsed by her.
181. And when was it cashed?—The 22nd of August. Sometimes she endorsed in one place sometimes in another. That is endorsed at the top; but it was cashed on the 22nd August.
182. So quite a period elapsed between the dating of it and the cashing?—Yes.
183. Will you please tell me who received that cheque?—It is marked here as having been handed to the Private Secretary.
184. Whose Private Secretary?—The Postmaster General's.
185. Who is he?—Mr. Balderson.
186. Please turn to the next cheque?—The next is dated the 15th August.
187. What is the amount?—$33.33.
188. When was that cashed?—August 22nd.
189. A considerable time after it was dated?—Only a week.
190. Tell me from the pay-list who got that cheque?—That is entered as having been signed for by the Private Secretary.
191. Whose Private Secretary?—The Postmaster General's.
192. The same one as received the cheque previously?—Yes.
193. It is endorsed by Miss Craig?—Yes, J. Craig.
194. Please take the next cheque?—That is dated—I really cannot tell. The mark of the bank goes right over the date. It would be about the 15th.
195. When was it cashed?—Cashed on the 12th October I think. It must be. The figure 1 is very imperfect. It is either the 2nd or the 12th.
196. What is the date of it?—15th of September I presume.
197. Who is it endorsed by?—Endorsed J. Craig.
198. Tell me please who received that cheque?—That is in October. It is apparently signed by Miss Craig.
199. Is that apparently the last cheque she received?—There is another one. There is one dated the 15th of October.

200. What is the amount of it please?—The same as the other.
201. When was it cashed?—24th October.
202. What month was that for?—For the month of October, 1889.
203. Turn please to another cheque. What is the date of that cheque?
—That is dated 2nd December.
204. Who is that endorsed by?—That seems to have been repaid, and is endorsed by the Receiver General.
205. The last money she seems to have received was in October, 1889?—Yes. I see there are two cheques. One issued on the 2nd December and the other on the 14th November.
206. Those two cheques apparently never reached Miss Craig's hands?—No.
207. They were credited by the Receiver General?—Yes. That means they were refunded.
208. The last cheque she received was apparently October, 1889; but from June to October she was not in attendance at the Department?—It appears not.
209. You say A. Graham took her place?—I say Miss A. Graham was appointed in June.
210. You understand that Miss A. Graham is some relation?—Yes.
211. A niece?—I cannot say that.
212. As she left, as far as the attendance book goes, Miss Graham came on?—She came on at the same time.
213. Is Miss Graham a permanent clerk or a temporary?—A temporary.
214. Is she on the Civil Service list as having past the examination?—She has passed the preliminary examination which entitles her under the Civil Service Act to be employed as a copyist indefinitely.
215. Had she passed at the time?—I cannot tell.
216. Don't you know Mr. White?—I do not pretend to know the particulars of 250 clerks, some of whom I never saw.
217. It is your duty to know about Miss A. Graham coming on the staff?—She would be appointed by the authority of the Postmaster General, and I would hand her over to the particular branch to which she was attached.
218. Miss A. Graham was appointed by the Postmaster General?—Yes.
219. Miss A. Graham has been in attendance ever since?—Yes.
220. At the time she was appointed were there not applicants or clerks on the Civil Service list capable of filling that position as well as Miss Graham?—I do not know that.
221. You did not know there were plenty of clerks on the Civil Service list?—I have no knowledge of that.
222. Turn to page 55 of this book. Do you find Miss Craig's name there?—Yes.
223. What letter do you find opposite her name?—The letter "A."
224. What does that refer to?—To a foot note.
225. What does that foot note read?—"It does not appear to the Postmaster General that the list of passed candidates furnishes a suitable person for the position."
226. Miss Craig did?—Yes.
227. There was no other person, in the opinion of the Postmaster General, who was suitable?—I have nothing to do with patronage, and that is a question of patronage. I have nothing in the world to do with that.

228. Of course, you have known for several days that this enquiry was going to be made?—I have. I was summoned last Friday.

229. And before that you knew?—Yes.

230. Have you had a conversation with any of the gentlemen in your Department in regard to this case coming on?—Nothing more than the fact that we were summoned—several of us were summoned.

231. Did you not talk of this case coming up?—I might have said we were summoned for examination on such-and-such a day.

232. Is that all?—That is all.

233. Whether there is any injustice or wrong in this particular case, it is said that you have been accustomed to speak of this case in the Department, and know of it?—I cannot say that I have not heard that these things were going to be enquired into.

234. But this particular case of Miss Craig?—I do not know that I have.

235. Whether there is any injustice or not in this case, so far as the public are concerned, you have been in the habit of discussing it in the Department?—I have not been discussing it with her. I do not suppose I ever saw her more than five or six times in the world, while going along the passage.

236. I mean the clerks in the Department.—I did not. I am not in the habit of discussing these matters with clerks.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville) :

237. Did you ever in any case report to the Postmaster General the absence of a particular official?—I do not think it my duty to do so, unless an enquiry intervened

238. You are quite sure that in this particular case you did not bring the matter officially to his notice?—I do not suppose I did. Probably when her services were dispensed with I may have remarked that she seemed to have been away for an unnecessarily long time, and that it might be desirable to strike her name off the list.

239. Do you remember that you did this in another case, and when his attention was drawn to it you ordered the pay to stop?—Yes.

239a. You would not at all suppose that the Postmaster General would know of any irregular payment to Miss Craig or any official?—I do not know how he could.

239b. It would be impossible for him, or any Minister, in fact, to have that knowledge of the detail work of the Department as would enable him to do so?—Certainly not. I could not undertake myself to do so.

239c. There are a large number of officials and clerks assigned to each Branch, and they must be trusted to a certain extent.—During the time of Parliament, my time is nearly always taken up with something else than departmental detail.

239d. How long have you been in the Department?—Forty-one years in the service altogether.

239e. Is it an unusual thing for employes who are absent, as this one was on sick leave, to have payments exceed the limits of the Civil Service regulation?—I am aware of a number of cases that have occurred in which we have given considerable latitude. Miss O'Connor was absent for some time, and Miss Grant, she died in the service; and there was also a Miss Falconer who was a temporary clerk for some time, she also died in the service.

239f. The practice, then, has been one of relaxation in the case of illness?—I have never made, since I have been in the Department, the slightest difference in the treatment of our temporary and permanent clerks. For this reason: Temporary clerks are not employed for a few days, but with a view to their permanent engagement, and the only difficulty has been to get the authority to increase the permanent staff of the Department. The revenue of the Department has doubled in ten years, and the work has therefore nearly doubled—that is to say, the work has increased nearly in the same proportion; but the Postmaster General has been reluctant to increase the staff without being certain that it was necessary. It was a convenient way of meeting the requirements of the service to increase the temporary staff.

239g. The increased revenue has demanded an increase of the departmental staff?—Certainly. The increase of revenue has involved an increase of work, and somebody has had to do it.

240. Is it not the custom, when employé's are absent, either from illness or other cause, that their cheques are handed to some other person, and, being payable to order, are endorsed over to the person receiving them, and that that person signs the receipt for them?—Exactly. I have myself done so in the case of several. I have received cheques of employé's, signed the pay list and sent the cheques to them.

241. That being the case, there is nothing at all surprising in the fact that Mr. Balderson has signed for the cheque?—I do not see anything surprising in it. Miss Craig was absent, and somebody must have signed.

242. I want to emphasize the fact that this was not an isolated case of signing the pay-roll for a third person and forwarding the cheque to him or her. Mr. Balderson did nothing unusual?—Certainly not. It is done regularly.

243. And the cheque being made payable to order, there can be no danger?—No. The cheques for the permanent employé's are issued by the Department, but for the temporary employé's they come from the Accountant of Contingencies. They all go back for the Auditor General, and are his vouchers. We have never had a question about them at all.

By Mr. Coatsworth:

244. Are all appointments made by the Postmaster General?—Yes.

245. So that there has not been any singling out in this case?—All appointments are made by the Postmaster General; I have never known any other.

By Mr. Mulock:

246. How do you explain the cheques of November and December being issued and afterwards cancelled?—I presume, as it was remarked just now, that in all probability the absence of Miss Craig had been mentioned to the Postmaster General, and the thing was stopped. It is most likely that instructions were given that she was to be no longer paid.

247. Have you no system in your Department by which you know when a clerk has ceased to become a clerk?—That would depend on circumstances. If a temporary clerk is absent from illness it depends altogether on the Postmaster General as to what latitude he will allow. If his attention is called to the fact of a clerk being absent for a long period he may say, we will stop payment.

248 Is there any official record of the termination of an engagement of an employé?—Certainly there is.

249. What is the practice in such a case?—In the case of a permanent employé—

250. Take a temporary one?—In the case of a temporary employé there is no necessity for any formal document, as the employment is simply temporary.

251. But it is not quite temporary?—It is temporary in this sense; it does not involve an Order in Council.

252. Will you explain how?—I was going on to say that in the case of a permanent employé we exact a resignation in writing and send it to the Privy Council, where it is accepted by a formal Order in Council, but in the case of a temporary employé the Postmaster General is sufficient; when the six months is at an end the original Order in Council, which is merely a formal covering authority, lapses, and the Postmaster General has power to dispense with the services of such clerk.

253. When the Postmaster General gives an order that a temporary clerk's service is dispensed with, what record is made of that?—He simply ceases to appear on the pay-list. We have a rough book, in which memoranda are made that he left on a certain day.

254. Will you turn up the memorandum in this particular case?—We have not got it here, but I will endeavour to get it. I may say, however, that at headquarters a great deal is done verbally.

255. I have asked you if it were on record, and you said "yes"?—My remarks apply more particularly to the Outside Service. In the Outside Service it was a different thing, because it involves a correspondence, and so forth. In the Inside Service I generally communicate verbally with the Secretary, and that ends it.

256. Do you mean to say that a person may cease to be in the service and yet cheques be made out to that person—is that the manner in which you conduct your business?—Supposing a temporary employé is absent from illness his cheques are made out for a reasonable time, until the Postmaster General's attention has been called to the fact that a particular employé has been away an unreasonable time, and then the cheques cease.

257. I am referring to this particular case, and am trying to see if there has been any laxity?—I do not think so.

258. This particular case suggests the question that for several months this person was away from your Department and cheques were made out to her—who made out the cheques?—The pay-list is sent from the Department to the Auditor General.

259. Do you sign the requisition each month to the Auditor General?—Yes; to make out the cheques.

260. Who makes out the cheques?—The Accountant of Contingencies.

261. Does your Department send a requisition every month for cheques?—Yes.

262. Who makes out that requisition?—It is made out by one of the clerks in the office and certified by me.

263. Did you furnish the pay-list for these two cheques in November and December?—Certainly.

264. Why did you require them to be made?—Because, as I said, the person in whose favour the cheques were made, it was presumed, was absent from illness.

265. Why did you issue cheques for a person not in the service?—The practice of the Department is to extend the same latitude to temporary employés as to permanent employés.

By the Chairman :

266. What latitude is that?—We have always applied the same rule to temporary clerks as to permanent clerks.

By Mr. Mulock :

267. Why did you put her on the pay-list when she was not in the Department?—We were simply following the practice which had obtained in the Department since I had been in it.

268. Did you get notice that her services were to be dispensed with?—Certainly ; we must have.

269. Did you ask for her to be paid in December?—Certainly ; we must have.

270. When did she cease to be in the service?—We were told that she ceased to be in the service from the 1st November.

271. It seems to me that, in regard to every person in the service, there ought to be a better way of preventing mistakes. We will say that she entered the service in August, 1888?—The first cheque was issued in September.

272. When did she enter upon actual service?—The cheque will show it.

273. Look at the attendance book, please?—I do not think that attendance book is here. This attendance book began in November.

274. From the books before you, commencing in November, 1888, will you tell me how many months this person actually worked during the period that she was paid. She was paid from that time down to the end of October?—Yes.

275. She was paid the year up?—She was paid the year up, and appears to have left on the 2nd of June, 1889.

276. Five months continuously absent, and in the preceding six months how much was she absent—how long?—I can only tell that by counting the days.

Mr. BARRON.—33 days.

Mr. MULOCK—She was absent for 6 months out of the 12? Is that correct?—That is correct.

By Mr. Barron :

277. You say it is the habit and practice for persons at times to receive cheques for people and send them to them?—Yes.

278. Do you know of any other instance where the Postmaster-General would get the cheques?—No ; I do not say the Postmaster-General got them. The entry states that the cheque was handed to me for the Postmaster-General.

279. Can you see any other entry of that kind in the pay-list?—No.

By Mr. Haggart :

280. Do you not know that I did not get the cheque and had no knowledge of it?—I could hardly say that, because I do not know what became of the cheque. My recollection is that it was sent for by somebody in the Private Secretary's room and handed to the person there.

281. Do you not remember whom you gave it to?—I do not.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville) :

282. You did not hand it the Postmaster General?—To the best of my knowledge and belief I did not.

By Mr. Barron :

283. You do not know whether you did or did not hand it to him?—Well if I did hand it to him I would probably have remembered it, because it would be a most unusual thing.

284. You spoke of a Miss O'Connor as having been absent in the same way as Miss Craig?—No; I simply gave that as an instance of a case of illness where absence had continued for some time.

285. Will you look at that pass-book, and tell me if Miss O'Connor's absence is accounted for every day?—That may be; I don't know; it is very likely.

286. Look at the book, please?—I don't think that Miss O'Connor was employed at that time.

287. Look at June 22nd to 3rd August, 1889?—She is on leave.

288. Now turn to 3rd August. All that time you see that Miss O'Connor is absent on leave, and so on?—She is marked absent on leave on the 3rd August—yes.

289. Now, hurriedly look through the book, and I think you will see she is accounted for, for all the time she is absent?—Yes; she seems to be.

290. What does it say at the page that you now are?—Simply marked "on leave."

291. Now turn to September 28th?—September 28th—yes.

292. What does it say?—"Miss O'Connor ill."

293. Then turn rapidly to November 2nd. What do you see all the time?—She is marked ill.

294. So that from June 22nd to 3rd August, 1889, and from September, 28th to 2nd November, 1889, Miss O'Connor's absence is accounted for through being ill?—Yes.

295. Her absence is accounted for?—She was on leave first.

296. But you will observe that in Miss Craig's case, from June 23rd, she is not accounted for at all in the attendance books. Do you observe that?—From June 2nd does not appear.

297. She is not accounted for at all, whereas in Miss O'Connor's case she was accounted for as being on the staff of the Department. What is marked there "Miss O'Connor, temporary clerk"?—I am not sure she was a temporary clerk; I think at the time she died she was a permanent clerk.

298. Now take Miss Falconer's case. Look at June the 18th?—Yes.

299. What do you find there?—"On leave."

300. Now, turn to the next page?—"On leave."

301. Now, go on to September 28th ; her absence there is accounted for ?
—It is.
302. Turn to December 18th ?—Yes ; she is marked as ill.
303. Go on again to 31st March, 1890 ?—Yes.
304. Now, Miss Falconer's absence is accounted for ?—Yes.
305. During all the time that Miss Falconer or Miss O'Connor were absent their absence is accounted for ?—Yes.
306. Not so Miss Craig's ?—No.
307. Have you not had any conversation with the Minister in regard to Miss Craig's case ?—No ; I cannot say I have had, except to tell him of Miss Craig's absence. Probably I was to blame in not having called his attention to it before.
308. You think he did not know anything about her absence ?—I certainly say I positively never reported to him.
309. And you have reason to believe he knew nothing about her absence ?
—Certainly, not officially.
310. Not officially ?—Certainly not.
311. Had you any conversation with him ?—None whatever.
312. Is there any statutory rule about leave of absence ?—Yes ; the Postmaster General may give leave for three weeks and the Governor General in Council can extend it to a year.
313. In what cases ?—In cases of illness or leave ; but with regard to that it is only right to remark, the Post Office Act, also gives the Postmaster General very extensive powers. Until the Act of 1883 the Postmaster General, I think, acted rather under the Post Office Act than the Civil Service Act.
314. The Deputy may grant leave of absence to parties—No, sir.
315. Three weeks is the extent of the leave of absence ?—That is understood to be leave of absence for the purpose of recreation.
316. In cases of illness, though any other reason seems to be sufficient, the Governor in Council may grant it ?—He may.

By the Chairman :

317. For what time ?—Not exceeding twelve months.

By Mr. Barron :

318. Were you, as head of the Department, satisfied that Miss Craig was absent though illness ?—I understood so.
319. Who from ?—From her friends.
320. What friends ?—I could not undertake to say now ; it is two years ago. I understood she was ill.
321. You cannot remember who told you she was ill ?—No ; I cannot. It was generally understood she was ill.
322. If she was absent from illness, why does her name not appear on the attendance book as absent from illness ?—That I cannot explain ; it should have been there, there is no doubt about that.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville) :

323. Is the cause always entered ?—I have made that a rule invariably, since I have been in charge, that the cause should be entered, but the cause was not entered formerly.

324. That is not the question. As a matter of fact, the rule was not always adhered to?—Not for very many years.

By Mr. Mulock:

325. What about the observance of the rule during the period in question?—I may as well tell you that until the time when I was appointed Deputy Postmaster-General there was no cause of absence placed in the attendance book, but simply that so many persons were absent. Since I have been Deputy I have thought it desirable the cause should be stated. It is stated until July and August, 1888.

By Mr. Barron:

326. The practice of putting the cause of absence began in July, 1888?—About that time.

327. You are sure about that?—Yes.

328. And you have strictly adhered to that ever since?—Yes.

329. That rule was adopted after Miss Craig came?—Yes.

330. And since she left?—Yes.

331. So that her absence should have been accounted for in that book?—It should, but it is only fair to say that the Secretary makes up that book, and as it was at the commencement of the time, I may not have impressed upon him the desirability that the cause of absence should be mentioned in every case.

332. But long before that her absence is accounted for?—I understand; I don't wish to blame the Secretary altogether.

333. The Secretary steadily following your instructions, you see, right up to June, because you have told us she was absent, and her absence was accounted for, for 33 days up to June. Then he ceased to follow your instructions, and on 2nd June you see her absence is not accounted for at all?—Exactly.

334. On account of illness or other cause?—Yes.

335. But you say the practice was, at all events, to account for the absence?—The practice is now.

336. And was then?—Since, July, 1888; I then commenced it.

337. Miss O'Conner's and Miss Falconer's absence are accounted for, but not Miss Craig's?—That is so.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville):

338. I want to draw your attention to a point on which, perhaps, your memory is a little at fault. Do you remember that when the attention of the Postmaster-General was first drawn to the particular individual?—No; I do not, but I presume it must have been late in the year; otherwise, those cheques would not have been issued.

339. Do you remember his giving orders that the payment should cease in this case?—Certainly; those cheques were then paid back to the Receiver-General.

340. Do you remember his expressing surprise and regret that the payments had continued without his knowledge?—Yes; I think it is very probable he did. I cannot say I remember it, but in all probability he did do so.

341. As a matter of fact, he did do so?—I don't know that he did.

342. As a matter of fact, that is so. Now, I want to ask you another question, because it is very material here. Does the Postmaster-General know anything about the absence of the officials?—Nothing whatever.

343. That being so, would you not be surprised to hear that he was surprised when he found this particular official had been absent so long?—No; as I said before, whether the fact was called to my attention or not I don't know, or undoubtedly the Secretary or myself would have been blamed for not calling attention to it before.

344. Does the Minister give leave of absence?—No; never, except on special occasions.

345. That being so, this might have occurred; it was quite natural it should occur without the knowledge of the Minister at all?—Not the slightest doubt of it. I don't think I ever reported it at all.

346. Turn to the receipt in the entry of July payments, where it is stated the cheque was handed over to the Postmaster General. Don't you remember handing that particular cheque to Mrs. Graham?—No; but I think it is exceedingly probable that I did; I don't remember. As I said before, the cheque in all probability was brought to me, and handed by me to somebody in waiting in the Private Secretary's room.

347. You are quite sure that it was handed to you by somebody in waiting for it?—I have no doubt about it.

348. That being the case, it would not be the Minister to whom it was handed?—No.

349. You have no doubt about that at all?—No; not the least doubt about it. If I handed it to the Minister I should have remembered it, because there would be nothing unusual about it; but there does not appear to be anything unusual at all. Supposing a person representing a sick employé comes into my room to know whether I would give him the check; I would send a messenger for the cheque and make a memorandum to that effect. If it had been in that way it should have been signed for.

350. You have a recollection of handing it to some person waiting for it—to some person waiting in the Private Secretary's room?—I have no doubt I did.

351. You have just as little doubt that it was not the Postmaster-General?—I have no doubt of it.

By Mr. Daly:

352. Whose duty is it to report to the Department the illness of an employé?—The head of the branch.

353. Do you receive a report from the party every day that they are still ill?—No. I should not ask the Secretary from day to day; I would trust to the head of the Branch in that case.

354. Do you receive a doctor's certificate from time to time?—We usually require a doctor's certificate from time to time.

355. Did you in this case?—No; I don't remember that we did.

356. Is it not strange that a prolonged illness, extending over several months, would not require a doctor's certificate?—I don't know. In Miss O'Connor's case and Miss Falconer's case, I think we accepted the statement of friends that they were ill.

357. Can you mention any cases that require a doctor's certificate?—I may mention that an Order in Council was passed some few months ago, and we have been very particular in requiring them to produce a medical certificate in every case now.

358. When was that Order passed?—I don't remember; some time last spring.

359. Do you remember the cause leading to the passing of that Order?—Yes; I remember perfectly well.

360. What was it?—It was in the case of a clerk in a Nova Scotia post office, whose sight failed him, and he went home ill. The Postmaster reported that he was ill, and we allowed him to remain off duty, on the strength of his illness, I think somewhere about a year. We then got a medical certificate from the doctor, saying there was no hope of his sight ever being restored sufficiently to enable him to resume his duties. We then applied for superannuation for him. When the case came before the Treasury Board they deducted from his leave of absence the year that he had been absent without the Governor General's authority, and immediately an Order in Council was passed calling attention to the irregularity.

361. Have you ever known where the Government was imposed upon by parties being reported sick, who were not sufficiently sick to remain away from office?—No; I think not.

362. No case at all?—No; I think sometimes perhaps we have had certificates from doctors in cases where the fault was on the part of the applicant himself, but we cannot go behind a medical certificate.

By Mr. Mulock:

363. Do you say you deducted the salary from an employé who was absent through illness?—No; I said that in computing the superannuation allowance the Treasury Board deducted a year from his services, on the grounds that he had been absent irregularly without an Order in Council.

364. They did not deduct money from the time he was ill?—No.

365. Did you in this case, either?—Oh, no.

366. When any person is ill in the service the pay goes on?—Always. I knew a case in the Imperial service where a man was sick for two years, and they never stopped his pay.

By Mr. Macdonald (Huron):

367. I understand the Department now requires a medical certificate?—We do now.

368. How frequently are those certificates sent in?—That would, I suppose, depend a great deal upon my own judgment; whenever we wanted them for any reasonable time.

369. Well, for a continuous certificate, medical certificates are generally sent in weekly or fortnightly?—There is no fixed period; it depends upon the nature of the case. If a man got his leg broken I would not ask for one for two or three months; it all depends upon the nature of the man's illness.

By Mr. Barron:

370. You have no personal knowledge of the illness of Miss O'Connor?—Nothing more than the statements of her friends.

371. And Miss Falconer the same way?—Yes.

372. None whatever?—None.

373. Certainly if you had known of a medical practitioner you should know of a practitioner authorized by the Governor in Council?—No.

374. Therefore nothing was deducted?—No.

375. You say that a clerk was waiting for this cheque which was given to you for the Postmaster General?—I did not say that. What I said was—because I was very particular—that was it, as far as I remember; it occurs constantly for some person to come for another's cheque.

376. Did you make the cheque?—Yes. I cannot remember what took place three years ago, and in a matter in which I had no interest.

377. There was some person waiting?—Yes; probably Mrs. Graham, or somebody.

378. Who is Mrs. Graham?—I know nothing of her, except that she is a friend of hers.

379. Whose friend?—Miss Craig's.

380. Mrs. Graham was not in the Department?—No.

381. Where did she wait?—I cannot possibly tell.

382. Mrs. Graham is the mother of Miss A. Graham, in the Department?—I do not know that.

383. But do you think possibly Mrs. Graham may have been waiting?—I think it is possible she may have come, or some other friend of hers.

384. If Mrs. Graham was waiting, why was not her name there, the same as the name of the Postmaster General?—Because she was waiting.

385. Why did you put there "Given to the Deputy Minister for Postmaster General"?—It was put there by the clerk to whom I sent for the cheque. In all probability I sent a messenger for the cheque, and the clerk to whom I sent him made that memorandum. I never saw it until the other day.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville):

386. Is the memorandum wrong?—It is wrong, because it was not given to me for the Postmaster General.

387. Your evidence is that that entry is wrong?—So far as it states that it was given to me to give to the Postmaster-General. But I have no recollection of it. You cannot expect me to remember things of two years ago.

388. My learned friend tries to make out a good deal about Mrs. Graham receiving that cheque. Do you not say that was quite usual?—Quite usual. Somebody sends for cheques every month.

389. There was nothing unusual?—Nothing whatever.

390. Was it not quite natural that she should be there?—Nothing more natural in the world.

By Mr. Daly:

391. What course would you pursue in the event of any person coming, as Mrs. Graham did in this case?—Send the messenger for the cheque.

392. Where to?—The Secretary's room, where that book is kept.

393. And it would be whoever received the memorandum who would make the entry there?—Yes; I never saw the memorandum except the other day when the payments were being looked up.

By Mr. Barron:

394. If Mrs. Graham got the cheque, is that a proper entry?—It is not a proper entry, as I understand it. The memorandum was made there, but it is wrong.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville):

395. It refers to you?—Yes.

396. And that you say is not true?—As far as my recollection goes; but I cannot undertake to recollect what took place two years ago.

By Mr. Daly:

397. Is it the practice to pay temporary clerks during absence for illness?—I do not remember a case in which it was not done under any Postmaster-General.

By Mr. Barron:

398. If there is nothing unusual, why is it she is not accounted for as absent?—That is the business of the person who was to keep up the attendance book.

EDMOND BUNEL called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Barron:

399. How long have you been in the Post Office Department?—About eight years.

400. What branch are you in now?—In the Secretary's Branch.

401. How long have you been in that branch?—Six years—two years attached to Mr. White in his own room, and six years with the Secretary.

402. Who is in your office with you now—what clerks or employés?—There are four now: Mr. Brown and two ladies, Miss Stewart and Miss Munro.

403. Was Miss Craig ever in your office?—Never; not in my room.

404. Never in your room?—No.

405. In what Department was Miss Craig?—The Post Office Department.

406. I mean what Branch?—The Secretary's Branch at that time, because the Dead Letter Branch was not formed then.

407. Were you the head of the Secretary's Branch?—No; only a clerk. Mr. LeSueur was the head.

408. Do you remember when Miss Craig came to the Post Office Department?—No.

409. Do you remember when she left?—No; except as I do from the book.

410. What book?—The book of record. I keep a record of the entry of all persons into the Department, and when they are dismissed or die I rule them out.

411. Have you brought that book with you?—No, sir.

412. Will you get that book?—It is in the office now.

413. What does this book contain?—All the temporary clerks in the Post Office Department Inside and Outside service.

414. All through the country?—For the city post offices and the Post Office Department for both the Inside and Outside service.

415. For the whole Dominion?—Yes; city post offices.

416. Does this book show the attendance day by day?—No; when appointed, or when resigned, or when they cease from death or any cause.

417. Have you any resignation from Miss Craig?—Well, I cannot say, except having the book. I have about two thousand names, and I do not remember.

418. You knew that we were going into this particular case to-day?—
Yes, sir.

419. From whom?—From Mr. White, who a few days before I received this subpoena from the Committee told me that you had sent him word that probably I would be summoned.

420. Knowing about this case, did you look at the book?—I then got it; but afterward I thought that to answer only by my memory would not be fair.

421. Without the book you cannot tell the reason of her absence?—No.

422. Did you at any time have any conversation with the Minister about Miss Craig?—Never.

J. H. BALDERSON called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Barron :

423. You are now in the Post Office Department?—Yes.

424. As Minister's Private Secretary?—Yes.

425. Do you remember getting these cheques that have been mentioned here? You have been in the room during the examination?—Yes.

426. Do you remember getting the cheques?—If you would allow me to look at the cheques.

427. They would not help your memory.—Yes; I think they would.

428. Is that one of them there?—That is my signature.

429. Please look at the pay-list of the 31st of August, and say if you see your signature there as receiving a cheque?—Yes.

430. Whose cheque was that?—Miss Craig's.

431. For what month?—For the month of August, 1889.

432. You identify the cheque?—Yes, sir—the 15th of August, 1889.

433. That is the cheque you got?—Yes.

434. And this was receipted in the pay-list book?—Yes.

435. Did you receipt another cheque for Miss Craig?—I think I did. I see two of them altogether. These two cheques were cashed together, both on August 22nd.

436. How did you come to get these cheques?—I went to Mr. Bunel's room.

437. Why?—Mrs. Graham came to me and said she believed there were a couple of cheques to get for Miss Craig, and she would like to get them.

438. Who is Mrs. Graham?—She is the wife of Mr. John Graham, who is one of the clerks in the Auditor General's office.

439. Is he any relation to Miss Craig?—I do not know. I am well acquainted, however, with Mr. Graham.

440. Did you hand the cheques to Mrs. Graham?—I did.

441. Have you had any conversation with the Postmaster General on the subject?—None. It was quite customary for me to send cheques to clerks—those with whom I am acquainted.

442. Had you power to send cheques to clerks?—Yes; I could turn to some here, if you like. For instance, I sent one quite recently to Mr. A. C. McDonald.

443. By post?—Yes.

444. Did you receipt for it?—Yes. "A. C. McDonald per J. H. B."

445. You say Mrs. Graham received these cheques?—I handed them to Mrs. Graham.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville):

446. Do you remember whether the Postmaster General had any knowledge of the payments to Miss Craig or knowledge of your signing?—None whatever. I did it, as I was well acquainted with Mr. Graham. I had been working for four or five years in the Auditor General's office, and Mr. Graham was one of my assistants there. Through him I was acquainted with Mrs. Graham.

447. That is how you came in a friendly way to sign the receipt here?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. McMullen:

448. Had the Postmaster General any knowledge of the payments to Miss Craig?—None whatever.

449. You had no conversation with him about them?—None whatever. In fact, the Postmaster General told me he had no knowledge whatever of my signing receipts, and that if he had known he would not have allowed me to sign for them.

450. That is in regard to signing the cheques?—Yes.

451. When did he see your signature?—Probably he may have seen it in my room. The book was there before it was sent up here.

452. The book was in your room, and you examined these entries?—I saw some of them; I noted some of them.

453. Who else examined them?—I did not see any person examine them.

454. Are you sure?—I am sure.

455. You said the Postmaster-General, when he saw them, said if he had known he would not have allowed you to sign. Did he not examine them?—I did not say so.

456. What did you say?—I say he saw them.

457. Did he complain to you?—He did not complain. He simply said if he had known he would not have allowed me to sign.

458. Therefore, you did wrong in signing for them?—I do not know that I did wrong.

459. You do not think so, but the Minister thinks so?—I do not say so.

460. Did Mrs. Graham tell you where Miss Craig was?—No.

461. What particular cheques do you refer to when you say the Postmaster General saw them on the pay-list?—The two payments that went to Miss Craig. Those were the only cheques that I receipted for.

462. And he would not have permitted you to acknowledge the receipt of those cheques if he had known it?—He would not have allowed me to acknowledge them if he had known it.

463. What do you mean by acknowledge them? That may be construed differently. What does the Minister mean by saying that?—I suppose he meant he would not have allowed me to sign my name for the receipt of those two cheques.

464. He did not want you to act in that capacity?—I suppose that is what he meant.

By Dr. Landerkin:

465. When did he say that?—A week or ten days ago.

466. Did he examine the pay-list?—No. He simply glanced at it.

By Mr. Barron :

467. Did not you examine the books?—Yes.

468. And did not the Minister examine them with you?—He simply glanced at it. I do not call that examining.

469. You see your initials there?—I see my initials.

470. And the Postmaster General said that if he had known he would not have allowed you to sign the receipts?—Yes.

471. You had done it for others before?—Yes, but he did not know of it.

472. What is there in reference to this case that made him object to your signing for the cheques?—I do not know.

473. Have you no idea at all?—I have no idea whatever.

474. Have you no suspicion?—None whatever.

By Mr. Daly :

475. Is there any difference in your signing these cheques than in signing any others?—I think not. I sent one last month to A. C. McDonald, an old school-mate of mine who is away now, and I have had mine sent to me when I was in the Auditor General's office and happened to be away.

476. Was the Postmaster-General's attention called by you to these two cheques?—No.

477. It was simply because you happened to say this that he made the remark?—Yes.

JOHN GRAHAM called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Barron :

478. You are in the Audit Office?—Yes.

479. How long have you been there?—Going on for four years.

480. What Department were you in before that?—I was formerly in the Post Office Department.

481. Then you were transferred to the Audit Office?—Yes.

482. Did you get an increase of salary when you went to the Audit Office?—No ; the same salary.

483. What salary are you now receiving?—$1,400.

484. And it was the same at that time?—Yes.

485. Do you remember the fact of Miss Craig entering the Civil Service?—I have a slight recollection of it.

486. You remember that fact?—I recollect her going into the service.

487. When was that?—I do not remember the date ; I cannot give you the date.

488. You are related to Miss Craig by marriage?—Yes.

489. You are her brother-in-law, I believe?—That is it.

490. Do you remember when Miss Craig entered the Post Office Department?—Something over a year ago.

491. Cannot you remember the month she left?—I do not remember the month.

492. Will you swear to that?—I swear positively to that.

493. Do you recollect the year?—I could not give you the year.

494. But it is over a year ago?—It is over a year.

495. Can you calculate?—Rather.
496. Well, if it was over a year, what year would that be?—I think it was 1889.
497. Do you not know that that was the year she left the Department?—I am not positive of it.
498. Used she to live at your house when in the city?—Yes.
499. Did she always live with you?—When she was in the city—yes.
500. Up to the time she left she was living with you?—Yes.
501. And you would remember when she left?—I do not recollect the date. My mind was so fully taken up with my work in the Audit Office that I do not remember these things.
502. Where did you live?—I lived on Wellington street.
503. At that time?—Yes.
504. Do you live there now?—No.
505. Up to the time Miss Craig left the city you were living on Wellington street?—Yes.
506. Do you remember the number?—No. 603.
507. Miss Craig was living with you?—Yes.
508. Did the Minister visit at your house?
- Mr. WOOD (Brockville) said he thought Mr. Barron was travelling out of the record. He called the attention of the Chairman to the question.
- Mr. BARRON.—Do you object to the question?
- Mr. WOOD.—I do not, and I want the reporters to take note of that fact. I ask the Chairman's ruling upon it.
- The CHAIRMAN.—The question is improper.
509. Can you tell me why your sister-in-law, Miss Craig, left the Department?—No.
510. You do not know?—No.
511. She was living with you up to the time she left?—Yes.
512. Sleeping there of course?—She was living in my house.
513. And was frequently there?—Yes.
514. If she was ill you would, necessarily, have known it, would you not?—Certainly I would have.
515. But she was not ill, so far as you know?—She was not a strong girl by any means.
516. Further than not being a strong girl she was not ill at all?—At times she was ill—yes.
517. But was that the reason she left your house—to go away on account of illness?—I think partly.
518. Was that the reason why she left the Department?—I think it was.
519. I think you said a moment ago you did not know?—Well, that is as near as I can recollect; I think it was on that account.
520. You now recollect that it was on that account?—I think it was. I know she had poor health at times.
521. A few moments ago you did not know?—No; but that is as near as I can recollect.
522. Was she unable to perform her departmental duties?—That I don't know.
523. Can you say whether she was as ill as that?—I don't know anything about that.

524. Have you had any conversation with the Minister in regard to her being away from the Department?—I have not.

525. None at all?—No; I have never spoken to the Minister.

526. Had you any conversation with the Minister in regard to Miss Graham taking her place?—No; I had not.

527. None at all?—None whatever; I never spoke to the Minister.

528. None whatever?—No.

Mr. WOOD (Brockville) asked for the ruling of the Chair in regard to the question, which he considered utterly irregular.

Mr. CHAIRMAN.—I think, Mr. Barron, knowing as he does the rules of evidence, should not ask irregular questions.

By Mr. Barron:

529. Do you know how Miss Graham came to get into the Department?—No.

530. You don't know anything about it.—No.

531. She is a daughter of yours?—Yes.

532. You know nothing about it?—Nothing about it.

Mr. EDMOND BUNEL re-called and further examined:—

By Mr. Barron:

533. Will you take the book produced, and see what memorandum is to be found there in regard to the absence of Miss Craig?—I find that Miss Jane Craig was appointed as temporary clerk, at $400, from the 30th August, 1888, and then there is a memorandum written in ink "left," and in pencil the word "when" followed by an interrogation point.

534. When was that made?—At that time, I suppose.

535. Does this entry of the 30th August, 1888, opposite Miss Craig's name, indicate when she joined the service?—When she reported for duty.

536. What do the letters "Q. C. S." mean?—That she has passed the Qualifying Civil Service examination.

537. When?—November, 1888.

538. In November, 1888, she passed the qualifying examination?—Yes, sir.

539. Now, you have opposite her name in red ink the word "left"?—Yes, sir.

540. When did she leave?—It was at that time. I refunded a cheque I had in hand for December, 1889, to her.

541. In December?—In November and December—two cheques.

542. There is no entry there showing the time that she left?—No, sir; but I considered the resignation from the date she was in the Department, because I did not receive any official resignation, and that is the reason why I placed in pencil the word "when" there.

543. You did not receive any official resignation, you say?—No, sir.

544-5. How did you know she had resigned?—Because Mr White, the Deputy Postmaster General, gave me an order to refund those two cheques I had in hand, and which were not delivered.

546. Mr. White gave you an order to refund the cheques for November and December?—Yes, sir.

---

547. But you mention the Postmaster General's name. What had he to do with it?—Well, I could not remember at all; I have not the slightest idea. I put that memorandum there, and as far as my recollection goes I handed the cheque to her personally.

548. Then, as a matter of fact, Miss Craig was not in attendance at the Department some months before that?—I could not tell you. I have no knowledge of that subject at all.

549. You don't know that?—No, sir.

550. Did you not know at that time?—Only from what has been said in the Committee now.

551. Then there was no resignation received at all?—No; so far as I am concerned.

552. And the only reason why you put the word "left" there was because in November or December you were instructed to pay her?—I was instructed by the Deputy Postmaster General to refund the cheques I had in hand. Every cheque is handed to the Chief of the division, and any official resignation would have been communicated to me.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 25th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

W. D. LESUEUR called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Barroñ :

553. You are the Secretary of the Post Office Department?—Yes, sir.

554. How long have you been in that position?—Since 1st July, 1888.

555. Mr. White, in his examination the other day, stated that he had made the rule very strict as to keeping the attendance book, accounting for the absence of the clerks. Are you aware of that?—I believe it to be the case, sir.

556. Have you charge of any particular attendance book?—Well, yes. I may explain that up to the fall of 1888 the ladies attached to the main body of the Department—at least, attached to the Secretary's division—were not required to sign the attendance book at all; that had been the case, in fact, ever since ladies began to be employed by the Department, and I could not say about what date exactly, but I think it was in the fall of 1888, I thought that, although it was not required departmentally, I had better require it, as the Head of the Branch, for the sake of ensuring punctuality, and on my own authority I caused an attendance book to be got for the ladies under my direction.

557. That was in the fall of 1888?—1888—yes.

558. And since that the attendance book, as far as you are aware, has been regularly kept?—I believe so.

559. Accounting for the absence of the lady clerks as well?—I believe so, sir.

560. This attendance book, since that system has been inaugurated, has been under your immediate charge?—That particular book; I took it under my charge the way I speak of.

561. Do you remember the circumstance of Miss Craig leaving the Department?—Yes; I do.

562. When was that?—Well, by the book I see it was 2nd June, 1889.

563. Now, she received her cheques regularly up to the following October, and the attendance book does not account for her absence at all. Can you explain that?—Yes; I can explain that. On the 2nd June, 1889, the Deputy Postmaster-General came to me and brought the young lady named Miss Graham. He introduced her to me, and told me she was going to replace Miss Craig, who was going to be absent for some indefinite time.

564. Then Miss Graham was going to take Miss Craig's place?—As I was informed.

565. The Deputy told you that?—The Deputy told me that.

566. And do the work she had done?—Of course, in a general way. She might have been put to any other work the next day.

567. The Deputy was Mr. White?—The Deputy was Colonel White.

568. So that, in point of fact, Miss Graham was substituted for Miss Craig in the Department?—So I understood at the time.

569. From Mr. White?—From Mr. White.
570. The Deputy-Postmaster General?—Yes.
571. Are you aware that notwithstanding that, Miss Craig received her cheques regularly up to the following October?—I am now aware of it. I was not aware of it until long after.
572. Do you know the relationship existing between Miss Craig and Miss Graham?—I understood at the time Miss Craig was Miss Graham's aunt, but I have no personal knowledge of it.
573. So that Mr. White, of course, when he told you Miss Craig was to be absent, knew the fact of her absence?—Oh, you can judge for yourself, sir.
574. Mr. White in his evidence says:—“Q. Did you report to the Minister anything about the frequent absence of Miss Craig?—A. I don't remember that I did. Q. It was your duty?—Well, I don't remember that my particular attention was called to it.” He says he does not remember his particular attention was called to it; it was not reported to him. Now, you say that he reported her intended absence to you?—That is my statement—yes.
575. Then I asked the question if he reported to the Minister. He says: “I have no recollection of it.” Then I asked: “But if it had been reported to you you would have felt it your duty at once to report to the Minister?—I should have called his attention to it.” Mr. White says he would have called the Minister's attention to Miss Craig's absence if his attention had been called to it. So you are aware, then, that he knew of Miss Craig's absence?—It does not appear from that—from what you have read.
576. Yes; that is the evidence, but it does appear from the facts, you know, that Mr. White knew of her absence?—He knew of it when he informed me she was to be absent.
577. And he informed you Miss Graham was to take her place?—He did.
578. In other words, if Miss Craig had not left, Miss Graham would not have been taken on?—So I understood.
579. Now, Miss Graham received her salary regularly after that?—Yes.
580. And so did Miss Craig?—So I now learn.
581. I then enquired of Mr. White: “Whose duty was it to call attention to the fact that she was absent (Miss Craig) so frequently?” He answers: “The Secretary of the Department, if he thought there was anything unusual.” Now had you, after that, any conversation with him with regard to Miss Craig's continued absence?—No, I had no conversation, that I can recollect, in any way with Colonel White upon the subject, until this investigation was ordered.
582. That took place before the examination?—The summer before the examination.
583. What took place?—We examined the records. We had both forgotten the dates, but we refreshed our memory by consulting the attendance books; but I cannot recollect anything special in the conversation with Col. White. I can recollect one remark, which I think he must have thought was a disclaimer of responsibility on my part, and he at once said: “Of course, you have no responsibility in the matter.” He said it was he who had certified to the pay-lists and I was not concerned in the matter.
584. Mr. White told you that he himself had certified to the pay-list?—Yes. Of course, the pay-list shows that.

585. In the face of the conversation he had with you?—How do you mean?

586. That Miss Craig was going away and Miss Graham was taking her place?—How do you mean in the face of it? I did not say in the face of it. I simply say that the pay-list which you have before you simply shows it.

587. After that conversation, which Mr. White had with you, when he brought Miss Graham to you, and said she was going to take Miss Craig's place, you had no conversation with Mr. White nor the Postmaster-General with regard to the absence of Miss Craig?—None that I can remember with Colonel White and certainly none with the Postmaster-General.

588. Did he say anything about the reason why Miss Craig was going away?—No; he did not.

589. None whatever?—No.

590. He did not account for her absence on the ground of ill-health?—He did not give that as a reason.

591. What reason did he give?—He did not give any reason, and I did not suppose any reason was required. We have had cases like that before of one person going away and another taking the place.

592. But the pay does not go on for both?—I am only giving an explanation of how my impression was created.

593. You have known several examples, you say, of some going away and others taking their places?—Yes; during their absence or altogether.

594. Can you give me any instances?—I think I can recollect two.

595. What were they?—We had Miss O'Connor in the Department at one time—

596. She was very ill for many months?—I do not remember. All I know is she left the Department and her sister—

597. She subsequently died?—No; not the one I am speaking of. There was a previous Miss O'Connor. I think she got married.

598. Did her pay continue when she left?—I have no reason to suppose so. I do not know.

599. You must know, as a matter of fact, that the pay did not continue to both?—I can only say, I do not believe it did; but I must disclaim all knowledge on that point.

600. What was the other case?—The case of a brother of my own. Many years ago I had a brother in the Department, and he got a business situation and left, and there was another brother, whom the Postmaster-General was kind enough to appoint in his place.

601. Did the one who left continue to draw pay?—No; of course not; it was a definite leaving of the Department.

602. Can you give any instance of a person leaving the Department and another taking their place, and both clerks continuing to draw their pay? Because, you know it is proved here beyond doubt that up to October, after five months' absence from the Department, Miss Craig received her pay regularly?—I cannot say that I remember any case of the kind; but I should remark that there is a distinction that should be drawn attention to. In Miss Craig's case it was not known when she would return. In cases I have spoken of it was an understood thing that the parties had definitely left. In Miss O'Connor's case, she got married; and in my brother's case, he went away ; but in this case, it was not understood that Miss Craig had left, and there was not the same reason for striking her name off the list.

603. It was not known that she had left the Department on the 2nd of June?—It was not known that her connection was entirely severed. I considered at the time she might return.

604. Then, why did you not account for her absence in the Attendance Book when you are so particular about accounting for the absence of others?—Because the whole thing was so indefinite, and there was no cause assigned for her absence ; and it was not certain she would return.

605. How do you know that ?—Because there was no statement made to me of any time that she would return, or of the particular cause of her absence.

606. So far as you were aware by anything told you, you did not know whether she would return or not?—I did not know whether she would return or not.

607. But you had reason to believe she was not going to return?—No ; I had no reason to believe she was not going to return.

608. Had you any reason to believe she was going to return?—I had no reason for believing one way or the other.

609. Is that the only explanation you can give?—That is my explanation. This lady was acting as a substitute, and her presence would be a continual reminder of the other lady's absence.

610. Did you mark any memorandum in the Attendance Book?—I marked opposite Miss Graham's name in the Attendance Book that she would be a substitute for Miss Craig. I thought that would account for the indefinite absence of Miss Craig.

611. Had you any idea how long Miss Graham was to take Miss Craig's place?—Until further orders.

612. Was it ever drawn to your attention that while Miss Craig was in the Department she was frequently absent?—She was not very frequently absent. I looked up the Attendance Book. She was absent odd days owing to ill-health ; and on those days the explanation was given in the margin with pretty fair regularity.

Col. WHITE re-called and further examined :—

By Mr. Barron :

613. Were you present this morning when Mr. LeSueur gave his evidence?—I was.

614. You, of course, heard him say that when Miss Graham came to the Department you took her into the Department and introduced her to him, and said she was to take Miss Craig's place?—I have no recollection of that whatever.

615. But this may be perfectly true?—It may be.

616. If it were true you must have known of Miss Craig's absence?—Undoubtedly ; I knew of it at the time she went away.

617. Did you know how long she was absent?—I think I told you before that I knew she was absent, and that the cause of her absence was illness, but that she stayed longer than I was aware of.

618. You also stated that if her absence had been reported to you, you would have reported the fact to the Postmaster-General?—Yes; her prolonged absence.

619. Mr. LeSueur said you drew up the pay-list for her?—Yes.

620. Did you make it up?—No; I never make up pay-lists.

621. You certified them?—Yes.

622. Did you certify in this case?—Yes.

623. Did you read it over before certifying?—Yes.

624. You must have seen her name on it?—I cannot say from memory; if I did I supposed it to be correct.

625. However, you won't deny what Mr. LeSueur says that you took Miss Graham to him, and that you introduced her and said she was to take Miss Craig's place?—I have no recollection of that. I have no doubt whatever that I took Miss Graham to Mr. LeSueur, that would be the usual way.

626. Of course, you won't say that Mr. LeSueur's recollection is not true?—His recollection may be better than mine.

627. You must have had a conversation with the Postmaster-General before that in regard to Miss Graham taking Miss Craig's place?—No; I do not think so.

628. I asked you here if Miss Graham was appointed by the Postmaster-General, and the answer was "yes," that he was the one that appointed her?—Yes.

629. Of course, you must have got your knowledge from the Postmaster-General?—I knew, certainly. The Postmaster-General, no doubt, told me he had appointed her.

630. So that you had a conversation with him in regard to Miss Graham taking Miss Craig's place before you went to Mr. LeSueur?—Yes. The probability is that in view of Miss Craig's continued absence I suggested to him that we should have somebody to take her place.

631. Do you remember what took place in your conversation with the Postmaster-General?—I do not remember at all. There is nothing more probable than that I would have said to him that Miss Craig was ill, and that we should want somebody to do her work during her absence.

632. If you told Mr. LeSueur that Miss Graham was to take Miss Craig's place, from whom did you get the information?—I do not recollect.

633. Have you any recollection that Miss Craig was likely to be absent for some time?—Certainly.

634. You say that you had no conversation with the Minister in regard to the matter?—Certainly not; none whatever. I had no reason to suppose that Miss Craig's illness would be of any long duration.

635. She went away because she was ill?—Yes; I was informed that she was ill.

636. You did not make out the pay-list, you say?—Certainly not.

637. But you certified it?—Yes.

638. In certifying the pay-list, was Miss Craig's name there?—It must have been there.

639. Did it not strike you as strange for her to be drawing pay while she was ill?—No; pay is often drawn during illness.

640. There is a law saying that not more than two weeks' absence can be given?—As I said before, there are two Acts in regard to the Postmaster-

General's Department. You will find that, notwithstanding the clause in the Civil Service Act, there is a clause in the Post Office Act governing these matters.

641. But you have not acted upon that in recent years in regard to the Post Office?—Yes; we act upon both.

642. Do you mean to say that you act under the Post Office Act and disregard the Civil Service Act in regard to the absence of servants?—No; we work them together.

643. I am confining my question to the absence of officials. In regard to the post office clerks the Civil Service Act has been the governing Act?—It should have been.

644. As a matter of fact, it was?—No. It should have been, as I understand a short time ago, when the matter was brought up in Council; practically we were censured for not regarding it.

645. Then you disregarded the Civil Service Act, which is the proper Act governing the officials?—No; I do not think so. There are two Acts; they run both concurrently. We act on the one as well as the other.

646. You have said, in connection with Miss Craig's absence, that if you had known of it you would have reported to the Minister. As a matter of fact, did the Minister not know of her absence?—I do not know.

647. You know you must have gone to him before you went to Mr. LeSueur?—Yes; the Minister knew of her absence, I have no doubt, at that time.

648. He knew that she was likely to be absent?—He must have known she was absent.

649. When you struck the pay-list and saw her name appearing on the Attendance Book at that time the Minister knew of her absence?—I have no particular recollection of that.

650. Have you thought considerably over this case?—No; I have not thought considerably over it.

651. You have talked it over with Mr. LeSueur?—No.

652. You talked over the Attendance Book?—That would simply be in the ordinary way the other day, when we went to see what evidence we had in regard to the case.

653. You would not have gone to Mr. LeSueur unless you had a conversation with the Postmaster-General?—Certainly. He knew that Miss Craig was absent.

654. And you got your information from somebody as to her absence?—Yes.

655. That information must have come from the Postmaster-General?—No; it may have come from Miss Craig's friends.

656. Did you know it as a fact?—I don't remember the circumstances of the case. I cannot undertake to swear a thing I don't remember.

657. But you have sworn here that it was the Postmaster General who appointed Miss Graham?—Exactly; no doubt about it.

658. Then, of course, her appointment was direct from the Postmaster-General?—Made by the Postmaster-General.

659. And at the time that you went to Mr. LeSueur with Miss Graham?—Immediately previous to that, of course.

---

660. And at that time you won't deny, as Mr. LeSueur says, you told him that Miss Craig was going to be absent?—I don't know that I told Mr. LeSueur she was going to be absent.

661. He says so?—But you will find that Mr. LeSueur says, when I took Miss Graham to him, I stated she was in the place of Miss Craig. I have no recollection of saying that she was going to be absent.

662. How came she to be in the place of Miss Craig?—Because Miss Craig was absent.

663. Absent on account of illness?—I say she was reported to me as absent, and therefore it was necessary to fill her place.

664. And when you went to Mr. LeSueur, you had previously been with the Postmaster-General?—Yes.

665. Talking the matter over with him?—I simply reported. I suppose, as a matter of fact, I stated that a certain clerk was absent from illness, and we wanted somebody to take her place.

666. But this is just supposition?—I have no particular recollection of what took place at the time.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE.

COMMITTEE ROOM, Tuesday, 21st July, 1891.

Committee met—MR. WALLACE in the Chair.

F. X. SAUCIER, of the Department of Public Works, called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Amyot:

1. You are employed in the Department of Public Works?—I am.
2. Since how long are you employed there?—Since the 3rd of September, 1879.
3. Before that you used to belong to Quebec?—Yes.
4. What was your occupation there?—I was Secretary Treasurer of the Municipal Corporation.
5. Being employed in the Department of Public Works, you have sometimes to act as witness to the signature of parties taking contracts with the Department?—I am in charge of the contract branch; I prepare all contracts.
6. You have signed as a witness the contract relating to the Kingston Dry Dock?—I did.
7. Do you remember the signature which you attested then as a witness?—I would know the signature if I saw the papers. I would certainly know my own, anyway.
8. Do you remember what occurred then?—Yes; perfectly. Mr. Gobeil, then Secretary of the Department, came to my office and asked me if the contract for the Kingston Dry Dock was ready? I said: "Yes." He said: "Here are the contractors." Three gentlemen came into my room, and they signed the contract in my presence.
9. You would recognize them?—I would recognize one of the Messrs. Connolly.
10. Was that in your office?—It was signed in our Department. The plans being so large, I took the contractors up to Mr. Taché's room, there being a large table there.
11. The parties present were the two Messrs. Connolly?—I could not swear. I was told by the Secretary that they were the contractors.
12. Who was the Secretary then?—Mr. Gobeil.
13. You had written out the blank?—I filled out everything.
14. You signed them all at the same time?—The three of them signed in my presence at the same time. It was about three o'clock in the afternoon.
15. Who were the other parties who were present besides the three contractors and Mr. Gobeil?—Mr. Gobeil was not present. He simply introduced the three gentlemen.
16. Did you sign the whole together, after they had signed, or did you sign as each signed?—After the three had signed I put my signature as witness.

17. To each of their signatures?—No; one for the three. That is the rule in Ontario.

18. You signed once for the three of them?—Yes.

19. Was Mr. Gobeil present when you signed?—No.

20. Was the Minister of Public Works present?—Will you allow me to see the papers.

21. I asked you first by remembrance?—I think so; but if you let me see the papers I can tell. From my memory, I think the Minister was present.

22. Looking at the papers now exhibited to you, do you see if that is the contract?—I saw that. I was present when the Minister signed, and Mr. Gobeil.

23. Were the five of them present when you signed?—The three of them were present first, and then the Minister signed afterward. Mr. Connolly and Mr. Bancroft were not present when the Minister signed.

24. Was it the same day?—No; it was not the same day. We always get the contractors in our Department to sign when they come, and we take the best chance to reach the Minister and get him to sign, or the Deputy Minister. Sometimes it takes two days, sometimes three, sometimes five. It was not signed the same day by the Minister.

25. These seals in red colour which are affixed to the contract—were they put on before the parties signed or afterward?—Before.

26. They were there when the parties came to sign?—Yes.

27. Could you recognize that Bancroft if you saw him?—I would not be ready to swear I could. Still, I think I might; but I am not sure.

28. Was he brown or fair?—He had dark complexion.

29. A tall man?—Pretty tall and stout. He was about four or five inches taller than I am, although I am of very small size.

30. When there are some marginal notes you sign only once?—Yes; as witness.

31. You are positive that Mr. Gobeil did introduce you to these three contractors?—He told me: “These are the contractors for the Dock, and they have come to sign their contract.”

32. Had you seen the Messrs. Connolly before?—I had seen one.

33. Which one?—I cannot tell whether it was Mr. Michael or Mr. N. K. Connolly.

34. Was it the younger or the elder?—He was here the other day; that is the one I know.

35. You knew it was the same Connollys who had contracted for the Esquimalt Dock?—I am not prepared to say that, because they did not sign the Esquimalt Dock contract in my presence. I was not in that branch of the service when the Esquimalt contract was signed.

36. These three sets of papers—the contract, the specification and the indenture in duplicate—were signed on the very same day and under the same circumstances?—Yes; by the three contractors, in my presence.

37. In the morning or afternoon?—About 4 o'clock in the afternoon. I remember the circumstance well, because one of the Messrs. Connolly wanted to go to Quebec, and he asked that we hurry up the contract in order that he might get away on the train at 4:30.

38. That was on the 23rd of April—the date that appears on the papers?—Yes.

39. You saw Mr. Gobeil signing, too?—Yes.

40. And Sir Hector, too?—Yes; Sir Hector signed in my presence.

By Mr. Barron :

41. You say you went to another room to have the contract signed?—Yes, sir.

42. And you were introduced to the contractors?—I was introduced to the contractors by Mr. Gobeil.

43. You and the contractors went into another room together?—Yes, sir.

44. You were there alone with them?—No; there were some other parties in the room.

45. But you were the only one that went into the room for that specific purpose?—Yes; because, as I explained, my table was too small in my office.

46. Did you hear Mr. Connolly speak to Mr. Bancroft?—Yes; because when it came his turn to sign I did not know which was Mr. Bancroft; I only knew one of the Connollys. I said, Mr. Bancroft is the first person to sign, and one of the Mr. Connollys said: “Bancroft, it is your turn.”

47. The other two were both Messrs. Connolly?—I knew one of them.

48. Did not one of them sign for both?—Oh, no; each signed individually.

49. Separately?—Separately.

50. Were the three of them present at the time of signing?—Three of them were present, and they signed separately.

By Mr. Chapleau :

51. You stated that you were the officer specially charged with the preparation of contracts for the Department?—Yes.

52. You are the special officer for that work?—Yes.

53. Was the method pursued the ordinary way you deal with contracts?—The usual way, since I have been in the Department.

54. A responsible officer of the Department is introduced to the contractors, who sign the contract, and the Minister signs if he is present?—Yes, sir.

55. There was nothing unusual in this case?—Nothing unusual. This has been done according to the usual rules of the Department.

56. You did not know this Mr. Bancroft otherwise than hearing his name mentioned there that day?—No.

57. In speaking to Bancroft, did the Connollys address him by his christian name, or, as Bancroft?—As Bancroft. “Bancroft it is your turn.” Those are the words that were used.

---

COMMITTEE ROOM, TUESDAY, 28th July, 1891.

Committee met—MR. WALLACE in the Chair.

A. GOBEIL called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Amyot :

58. You are actually the Deputy Minister of Public Works?—Yes sir.

59. Since?—The first of January this year.

60. Before that you were?—I was appointed Secretary of the Department on the 20th January, 1885.

61. You remember the contract given to Bancroft and Connolly for the construction of the Kingston Graving Dock?—Yes, sir.

62. Do you remember the signing of the same contract?—I do sir.

63. Do you remember who had prepared the contract?—The contract was prepared by a clerk named Saucier, who was preparing the contracts under my direction in the Department.

64. Do you remember the parties who came to sign the contract?—Of course, there are a large number of people coming to my office every day, but as far as my recollection goes three gentlemen came in connection with this contract, shortly after the Order in Council was passed awarding the contract. Two of these gentlemen I knew, but the other one I did not know. The two gentlemen whom I knew were the Messrs Connolly—Nicholas and Michael; the other gentleman I did not know.

65. You had never seen him before?—No.

66. Nor have ever seen him since?—No.

67. Who introduced him to you?—So far as my recollection goes, he was introduced by one of the Messrs. Connolly. My recollection is not very clear on the point, but as far as my memory serves, it was either of the two Messrs. Connolly.

68. You had got the contract prepared first?—As is usual, after the Order in Council is passed, or after the order is given awarding the contract to one or more persons. All the contracts are prepared in this way. This one was prepared the same as others.

69. You introduced the three gentlemen to Mr. Saucier?—I either called him to my office or went down to his office. I am speaking of my usual custom. In regard to this particular matter, I would not be clear on that, but I did take the contractors to him.

70. Had you told the Connollys, before, when the contract would be ready for signature?—I cannot recollect that. My recollection is not distinct as to what occurred before.

71. Do you remember when the tenders were received for that work?—Yes.

72. Was that on the 20th March?—The papers will show the date.

73. At all events, it is the date mentioned in the advertisement?—Yes.

74. The date fixed for the receiving of the tenders was the 20th. Let us assume that is so. On that date some tenders reached the Department?—Yes.

75. Do you remember the number?—I think there were 20, so far as I remember.

76. At what hour on the 20th did you ascertain that there were 20 tenders?—I did not find out on that day; the tenders were not opened until the next morning.

77. I am not speaking of the opening; I mean the receiving of the tenders?—My recollection of the number of tenders is based on the fact that I opened them and counted them.

78. Who receives the tenders when they come into the Department?—The Secretary of the Department. They are addressed to him.

79. And you were receiving the tenders for the Kingston work?—I was receiving them.

80. At what hour on the 20th March were all the tenders in?—By the afternoon mail of that day. The eastern mail would bring the last tenders.

81. What hour would that be?—Well, the train comes in at 1 or 1:30 p.m., I do not remember exactly.

82. And the tenders remained in your office, under your charge, until the next morning, when they were opened?—Until the time they were opened—yes.

83. Between that time, the arrival of the eastern mail that afternoon and the next morning, did any other tender for the Kingston Graving Dock reach the Department?—I believe one came; if I had the schedule of tenders I could readily tell you.

84. Was it one from Montreal?—Speaking from memory, I think the schedule of tenders will show that one tender was received too late.

85. What do you mean by too late?—It came after the last day that the tenders would be received.

86. That is not the Bancroft & Connolly tender?—Oh, no; that is another one altogether.

87. And you made a special note of that?—Yes; on the schedule of tenders. The schedule is here.

88. The point I want to find out is this: Besides the one mentioned in the schedule of tenders, did any other tender reach the Department after 1 or 1:30 p.m., the time of the arrival of the eastern mail?—No.

89. When you opened all the envelopes were they in the same condition as the day previous?—They were.

90. You opened every one of them?—I opened them, I think, with Mr. Baillaigé, but the schedule will show that. My recollection is that Mr. Baillaigé was with me.

91. Did every one contain an accepted cheque for $20,000?—Of course, the schedule will show that. So far as my recollection goes, they all contained a cheque.

92. Were the cheques in the ordinary form—printed cheques?—They were cheques made to the order of the Minister of Public Works.

93. On printed forms?—Yes.

94. And accepted?—Yes.

95. You do not remember one being not on the usual form of the ordinary bank cheque?—I do not.

96. If there had been one on an extraordinary form you would have remembered it?—I do not say I would remember it now, but I would have noticed it.

97. Do you remember the names of any of the other tenderers besides Bancroft & Connolly?—Well, there was Larkin, Connolly & Co.; then, I believe, Goodwin had a tender in; Randolph Macdonald had one in; but they are all mentioned in the schedule.

98. Do you remember that Larkin had a tender?—I cannot say exactly.

99. None of the cheques were by telegram?—No.

100. You are positive as to that?—We would not receive one by telegram.

101. And none were received by telegraph on that day?—Will you show me the schedule of tenders, please? That is my guide.

102. If it had been a cheque by telegram you would have noticed it?—Oh, yes.

103. So that if in your papers there are no marks to indicate that a cheque was sent by telegram it is conclusive evidence that the cheques were sent in the ordinary form?—I think so—yes.

104. If any cheque had been put in an envelope after you had received them in the Department you would surely have noticed it on the morning when you examined the tenders?—The envelopes were in the same state the next morning as when they were handed to me or came by post. They were not touched, except by Mr. Baillairgé and myself.

105. When you received them, did you place them in the vault?—In a little safe in my office.

106. Of which you keep the key until the next morning?—Of which I keep the key all the time.

107. So that it was a physical impossibility that a substitution of papers could take place?—I believe so.

108. You are positive of it?—Of course, in the ordinary run of things.

109. So that, if cheques accompanying tenders were otherwise than in the ordinary form you would have remembered it—you would have remarked it?—I suppose so.

110. And the cheque of the parties who furnished it on behalf of Bancroft & Connolly was sent to the Department of Finance?—Yes, sir.

111. The very same cheque?—Yes; that is the cheque attached to the tender which bore the name of A. C. Bancroft.

112. Since that time you have not seen that cheque, of course?—Oh, no.

COMMITTEE ROOM, THURSDAY, 6th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

MONTAGUE ANDERSON called, sworn and examined:—

By Mr. Amyot:

113. What is your position in the Union Bank?—Manager of the Ottawa Branch.

114. And you were such on the 28th of March, 1889?—Yes.

115. At that date you had received instruction from the Quebec Union Bank to keep a certain amount of money at the disposal of Mr. Connolly?—To place $20,000 at his disposal.

116. Do you remember the first name of the Mr. Connolly?—Mr. N. K. Connolly.

117. And you did so, of course?—Yes.

118. On that date you were presented with a cheque for that amount by Mr. Connolly?—Yes.

119. N. K. Connolly?—Yes.

120. Will you look at this cheque, and see if it was the cheque?—Yes; that is the cheque.

121. Have you any hesitation in leaving it for the Committee until this enquête is through?—I would sooner not. It is the voucher for the bank, and the rules of the bank are that we only hand over cheques to the drawer on receipt.

122. You will be satisfied with the receipt of the Government and country?—If the Committee insist I would not refuse; but I would prefer not to do it.

123. The bank accepted this cheque on the 28th March?—Yes.

124. It was then endorsed by Mr. Baillairgé, Deputy Minister of Public Works, to the order of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General who then endorsed it to the credit of the Montreal Bank?—Yes.

125. You paid the amount to the Bank of Montreal?—Yes; it came in in the usual morning exchange on their deposit. We gave them a certificate for it.

126. The entry in your ledger is in what?—It is in the current account ledger.

127. “March 28th, 1889, Bancroft Dr. $20,000.” That is a credit of $20,000?—Yes. I never had an account with Bancroft or Connolly either. This is a sundry account for isolated transactions. This is the only transaction I had in connection with that matter.

128. Have you ever seen Bancroft?—No.

129. Neither then, nor before nor after?—Never.

130. The only thing you know is, that Mr. N. K. Connolly came in with this cheque, and then you did what you have stated a moment ago?—Yes.

131. And the bank having paid the amount does not require the cheque any more?—Except as a voucher, until we get a certificate that the voucher is correct.

132. Do you not give back those cheques when you have paid them?—We give all customers back their cheques, but they invariably give us a receipt for the cheques, and a certificate that the payment is correct.

133. Will you kindly state whether you have yet returned that cheque?—Mr. Bancroft never asked for it.

134. The only thing you are waiting for now, to return the cheque, is the appearance of Mr. Bancroft?—That is all.

135. How could you identify him?—I should not return it unless he was identified.

136. But if he never appears you will keep the cheque?—We will hold on to the cheque until he does appear.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

137. I see this cheque is signed by Andrew C. Bancroft. How do you know that the signature was Andrew C. Bancroft?—I don't know, I never saw Bancroft.

138. How did you know?—The $20,000 was placed at Mr. Connolly's disposal by our head office, and Mr. Connolly requested me to place it at the credit of Andrew C. Bancroft, and place against it the cheque which he had in his possession. I took that as identification of the signature. As it was placed at his disposal, he might have drawn it himself, and I thought that this identification of his signature was sufficient.

139. Do you know Connolly's handwriting?—I am not familiar with it at all; he never kept an account with us.

COMMITTEE ROOM, FRIDAY, 7th August, 1891.

Committee met Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

MICHAEL CONNOLLY called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. Amyot :

140. Do you belong to the firm of Bancroft, Connolly & Connolly?—Yes.
141. Your brother swore before the Committee of Privileges and Elections that the firm consisted only of you and your brother. That is correct, I suppose?—Yes.
142. Bancroft does not exist as a member of the firm?—No.
143. Would you kindly tell me who wrote this cheque which has been produced by the Union Bank for $20,000, dated 28th March, 1889?—I did.
144. In that cheque, which reads as follows : “ Ottawa, March 28, 1889. Union Bank of Canada pay Hon. the Minister of Public Works or order $20,000—Andrew C. Bancroft.” The words written are in your handwriting?—Yes; every letter of them.
145. Would you kindly state at what hour you furnished or sent to the Department your own tender, because you and your brother were tenderers also for this work, and you prepared the Bancroft tender?—I did.
146. You and your brother?—I think I prepared it alone.
147. With his consent?—I think he knew something of it in Ottawa here, not before.
148. You told him all about it; you have been going on with the tender since.
149. Do you remember at what hour these two tenders were put into the Department?—About the same time. As regards hours, the Department will show what time they were received.
150. They were both sent, I suppose, on the same day?—Yes.
151. At what hour—was it in the afternoon?—In the afternoon, I think.
152. About what time?—Well, it was in the afternoon some time, that is close enough.
153. Do you remember whether it was left before 4 o'clock or after 4?—I remember it was before the office hours closed.
154. Mr. Gobeil says that the whole of the tenders were in by half-past one?—These came in within the regulation hours, I think.
155. You don't remember whether it was near 4 or near 1 o'clock?—No.
156. Then there was a letter which reached the Department on the 4th April, 1889?—Yes.
157. Was the letter which is now exhibited to you and forms part of the original reference before the House, in your handwriting?—Yes.
- Letter produced and read, as follows :—

“ OTTAWA, 4th April, 1889.

“ A. GOBEIL, Esq.,

“ Secretary Department Public Works,

“ Ottawa, Ont.

“ DEAR SIR—I beg to inform you that since tendering for the construction of the Graving Dock at Kingston, Ont., I have entered into an agreement with Messrs. N. K. & M. Connolly, of Quebec, to join with me, should my tender be accepted in the construction of the same.

“As the Messrs. Connolly are well known to the Department, and have all the necessary plant and implements for an immediate commencement of the work, I trust my tender will receive the favourable consideration of the Department.

“I have the honour to be,

“Your obedient servant,

“ANDREW C. BANCROFT.”

158 It forms part of the record?—Yes.

159. There is another little piece of paper in typewriting, signed N. K. & M. Connolly. Was that written to your order?—Yes; it was written under my supervision.

160. And signed by you?—Yes.

161. With your brother's consent?—I don't know that I can say that; it is the name of the firm.

By Mr. Daly :

162. You had authority to sign in the name of the firm?—Yes.

By Mr. Amyot :

163. Will you read this, please?

Letter produced, and read as follows :—

“OTTAWA, 4th April, 1889.

“A. GOBEIL, Esq.,

“Secretary, Department Public Works,
“Ottawa, Ont.

“DEAR SIR,—We desire to inform the Department of Public Works that, in the event of Mr. A. C. Bancroft's tender being accepted for the building of the Kingston Dry Dock, we have agreed to enter into contract with him, and will use our best endeavours to complete the work in as short time as possible.

“Very respectfully yours,

“N. K. & M. CONNOLLY.”

164. These are the two letters to which reference was made a moment ago?—Yes.

165. Will you kindly refer to the tender which is now exhibited to you, and say whether the part marked in blue pencil is in your handwriting?—Yes.

166. It is your handwriting?—Yes.

167. And so is the schedule of figures?—Yes.

168. That is, the part which is not printed?—Yes.

169. Is the paper annexed, as having been wrapped round it, written by you?—Yes; that is my handwriting.

170. This has not passed through the post office; it has been sent direct to the Department?—Yes.

171. It has been handed in?—Yes.

172. By whom?—It may be that I handed it in, or it may be Mr. Hughes, our engineer, handed it in.

173. Will you kindly refer to this document, marked in blue pencil, page 54, and go on from page 54 to page 64, inclusive, and say whether you signed this document where your name and the initials appear?—Yes; I signed those.

174. Will you kindly state the circumstances under which that was signed?—It was, if I understand rightly, in one of the rooms of the Department.

175. Who were the parties present?—I do not know; some of the clerks of the Department—the law clerks, I think, and some others.

176. Your brother was present?—Yes.

177. And you were present?—Yes.

178. There was a third party signed the name Bancroft. Who introduced him to the clerks of the Department?—He was introduced to Mr. Gobeil, who introduced him in turn to some of the clerks.

179. Who introduced him to Mr. Gobeil?—I forget whether it was my brother or myself?

180. What was the name of the person?—I don't care about giving his name. He was one of the foremen of the works. I do not care about giving his name, except the Committee insist upon it.

181. I think the Committee will insist in knowing who he was?—I have no desire to withhold his name. It was W. R. Hughes.

182. Do you know where your brother Nicholas is at the present time? Is he engaged at Kingston now?—I could not say whether he is at Kingston or Quebec.

183. But you are going on with the works at Kingston?—All the work was finished there in June, with the exception of the removal of the cofferdam. We have not been allowed to proceed with that, on account of the machinery not being placed in position. The machinery was not in our contract; it is separate and distinct.

184. And you say you cannot finish because the machinery has not been placed?—We cannot proceed with the removal of the cofferdam until the machinery is placed in position. If we did, possibly it might be flooded.

185. I suppose that will lead to a claim for damages from you?—It is a cause of damage.

186. Is it injurious to you?—To some extent. We tendered on the machinery and were not awarded the contract. We tendered on the caisson, and were not awarded the contract for that. We tendered on the engine house, and did not get that.

187. Did you take a post office box at Kingston in the name of "Bancroft"?—I did, sir.

188. You paid for it yourself?—I did.

189. Was it a separate box from your own?—I never had a post office box of my own there.

190. Was the box belonging to the firm of Larkin, Connolloy & Co.?—We never had a post office box there.

191. Had you a person at box?—No; our mail came to office by carrier.

192. The only post office box was for that contract, and it was put in the name of—?—You know all about it.

193. "Bancroft," I suppose. You gave instructions that letters addressed to Bancroft would be delivered to you?—Nothing of the kind. If any letters came to Bancroft I usually got them, or I sent to the office to get them.

194. You had the key?—I had the key.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE.

COMMITTEE ROOM, MONDAY, 20th July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. D. C. WOODMAN, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. McMullen :

1. I wish to draw your attention in the first place to an item on page B-192 of the Auditor General's Accounts, 1889-90, "J. A. Têtu, Assistant Agent, salary $1,000." You have been in the North-West?—Yes.

2. What time did you go there?—I went there first of all in 1880.

3. What were you when you went there first?—I went there first in 1879, and I was employed by Mr. Manning, the Canadian Pacific Railway contractor.

4. Afterwards you were employed by?—The Interior Department.

5. How long were you in the service of the Interior Department?—From 1880 to 1883.

6. At that date you went into the employ of the Immigration Department?—Yes.

7. Where were you stationed?—Emerson.

8. Were you agent there?—I was sub-agent there. Mr. Têtu was agent.

9. You were in charge at Emerson as sub-agent?—I considered so.

10. In looking over the Auditor General's accounts I notice that certain items in the account, for instance in 1885-86, show that Mr. Têtu was agent in Emerson during that time, and that Mr. Fournier was caretaker. Were you there at that time?—Yes.

11. Mr. Têtu was agent and Mr. Fournier was set down as caretaker?—Yes.

12. You were there then?—Certainly.

13. Was Mr. Fournier caretaker?—Not that I know of. There was nobody caretaker.

14. Did you know Mr. Fournier?—Yes.

15. He is set down as drawing a salary of $600 as caretaker under Mr. Têtu. Who was caretaker? Who was in the office?—I lived in the office. They built the office for me. I think I went in in 1882.

Mr. BOWELL objected to the enquiry being extended back beyond the fiscal year 1889-90, unless the sanction of Parliament was had.

By Mr. Bowell :

16. Are you in the employ of the Government now?—No, sir; the office was closed in 1889.

17. You have not been in the service of the Government since?—No.

18. What office do you refer to?—Gretna. The office at Emerson that they built for me was closed sometime in April, and I was ordered to go to Gretna office in 1886.

By Mr. Mulock :

19. Were you in Emerson during the year 1885-86?—I was in Emerson from 1881 to 1886.

20. To the end of 1886?—No; until May, 1886—about the middle of May, 1886.

21. You spoke for that portion of the year up to the middle of May, 1886?—Yes; I was then at Emerson.

22. In May you left Emerson?—I left Emerson and was sent to Gretna.

23. How far is that away?—Eighteen miles west.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, Friday, 24th July, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

The following letter was read :—

“ OTTAWA, 23rd July, 1891.

“ SIR,—I have to acknowledge your letter of yesterday's date left at my residence by a messenger, covering an Order of the House of Commons of the same date, for ‘all cheques, accounts and receipts for payments of every kind in connection with the Emerson, Deloraine and Gretna Immigration Stations in the North-West, for the financial years 1886, 1887, 1888 and 1889.’

“ In reply I have to inform you that on the 13th instant the Minister of Agriculture directed the Accountant of this Department to make a particular enquiry on the spot relative to certain allegations in relation to the immigration stations referred to.

“ The Accountant of the Department, in accordance with such ministerial direction, took with him to Manitoba the papers referred to. He has now, however, been absent for some days and his return is shortly expected.

“ So soon as the papers reach the Department they will be forwarded to the House of Commons in obedience to its orders.

“ I have the honour to be, Sir,

“ Your obedient servant,

“ J. LOWE,

“ JOHN G. BOURINOT, Esq.,

“ Clerk of the House of Commons.”

Mr. Lowe was next sent for in connection with this letter, and appeared before the Committee.

MR. JOHN LOWE, called, sworn and examined :—

By Mr. McMullen :

24. You have recently sent away an officer of your Department to the North West, have you not?—Mr. Lynch, the Accountant of the Department has been recently sent to the North-West and Manitoba.

25. Do you remember the date that he was sent?—The Order to send him was written on the 13th of July. I verified that by looking at the letter—and Mr. Lynch left in about two days after the date of the letter. He employed the intervening time in getting together the papers necessary for his enquiry.

26. He was sent about two days after the order was made?—Yes; he received the order to go on Monday the 13th.

27. Who ordered his departure?—The Minister, on my recommendation.

28. You brought the matter before him?—I brought it before him.

29. What was the origin of your bringing that before him?—That dated sometime back in the latter part of May, 1890. Mr. D. C. Woodman, who was formerly an employé of the Immigration service at the offices at Emerson and Gretna came to the Department to see me. His object was to make a claim, to debate the difference of salary which was stopped, or lowered by the Minister in 1887, between that time and the closing of the office in 1889.

30. You say that he called at your office for the purpose of making a claim?—Yes.

31. What happened there?—He made a series of statements and told me that unless his claim was allowed he would go for the Department. I told him that a threat of that kind had no terrors for the Department as the Department had nothing to conceal. He had in his hand two sheets of foolscap or more consisting of items from the Auditor General's Report. He had mis-read all those items under his name as having been charged to him, while the only charges to him were some very petty items for moving expenses amounting to some $17 or $18. I pointed that out to him. He then made a series of statements or charges against Mr. Têtu; that Mr. Têtu had drawn moneys in Mr. Fournier's name; that Mr. Fournier had been absent—and several other charges. Then some days after that Mr. Woodman called upon the Minister of Agriculture and made a similar statement to him. The Minister of Agriculture then—

32. You are here for the purpose of giving information about those papers being sent away?—These are the reasons which led up to that.

33. We simply want to know, in the meantime, the date?—I stated that the direction of the Minister, by departmental letter to Mr. Lynch, was dated on the 13th instant. I have just looked at that date.

34. And he went away on the 15th?—He went away as soon as he could get his papers together. I think it was about two days before we received the order for the papers. I am certain, and state positively that he went away two days before I heard anything about this matter before this Committee.

The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ROOM, Thursday, 6th August, 1891.

Committee met—Mr. WALLACE in the Chair.

Mr. D. C. Woodman recalled and further examined :—

By Mr. McMullen :

35. When did you first go up to the North-West?—In 1879.

36. In what capacity did you go up then?—I was sent up by Mr. Manning.

37. Who is Mr. Manning?—Mr. Alexander Manning, contractor, of Toronto.

38. You were first engaged in the Department of the Interior in the North-West, were you not?—Yes, sir, that was in 1880.

39. When did you first become connected with the Department of Agriculture in connection with immigration?—In 1883.

40. Where were you sent at first?—I was in Emerson.

41. Who was the agent there?—Mr. J. E. Têtu.

42. What duties devolved upon you?—I was sub-agent, and I attended the trains and looked after the immigrants.

43. You had an office in Emerson?—Yes, sir.

44. Who kept the office?—I did, I lived in the office.

45. And who performed the ordinary duties night and morning, cleaning out the place, putting in fires, &c.?—I did all myself, sir.

46. There was no person there to do anything of that kind but yourself?—No, sir, I never employed any body at all.

47. I see that at page 138, part 2, of the Auditor General's report for 1886, that Mr. J. E. Têtu is put down as agent, and Mr. Fournier as caretaker; was Mr. Fournier there as caretaker?—Not as I am aware of, sir.

48. He did nothing about the office?—Nothing at all about the office.

49. Then he did not discharge the duties of caretaker?—No, sir, I never knew he was caretaker.

50. Did you know such a person to be about there at all?—Oh yes, there was a person of that name living with Mr. Têtu at West Lynne.

51. What duty was he engaged in?—He used to look after Mr. Têtu's horses, and drove him around; he was a general servant.

52. He did nothing as assistant agent?—Not that I am aware of.

53. Nor as caretaker?—Nor as caretaker.

54. You have looked over the cheques paid for caretaker in 1886?—Yes, I looked over them.

55. How many cheques are there in the parcel now produced?—There are ten I think in the parcel.

56. Who are they payable to?—They are payable to Mr. A. Fournier, and they are signed "A. Fournier per J. E. Têtu."

57. What is the amount of each?—$50.

By Mr. Bowell :

58. Does that represent a month's pay?—A month's pay.

59. You say that Mr. Fournier did not discharge the duties of caretaker at all, during that year, in 1886; that all he did, that you know of, was to take care of Mr. Têtu's horses and drive him around?—Well, I don't think

Mr. Fournier was there at all at that time. I understood he left for St. Paul, in 1885, and I never saw him in 1886.

60. You did not see him in 1886?—I did not see him in 1886, and never heard of his being there since.

By Mr. Lister :

61. What year was it you saw him?—I think it was in 1883 and 1884 and part of 1885, but I am not certain.

By Mr. McMullen :

62. There is one thing certain, he did not do the work of caretaker in 1886?—No, he never did anything at the office.

63. You did all the work yourself?—Yes sir.

64. You lived in the house, and discharged all the duties connected with Mr. Têtu's office all the time you were there?—Yes.

65. And he did nothing?—Nothing at all, as I am aware of. I slept in the office myself, and was my own caretaker.

By Mr. Bowell :

66. You say he was there doing work for Mr. Têtu, in 1883 and 1884, and part of 1885. Did he leave to go to St. Paul in 1885?—I understood he went to St. Paul.

67. You don't know?—I do not.

68. Nor what became of him?—No.

69. He left Emerson?—He never lived at Emerson, he lived at West Lynne.

By Mr. McMullen :

70. I see in the Auditor General's Report for 1885 and 1886, at page 141, an item for office rent at the Gretna sub-agency. Do you know anything about that?—No, I do not know anything about that. I did not go to Gretna about until May, 1886.

71. At page 141 C, of the Auditor General's Report for 1887-88, I see you are put down as "D. C. Woodman, caretaker at Deloraine, $732"?—I was never there, sir.

72. You were never at Deloraine?—Never at Deloraine.

73. Never in your life?—No, sir.

74. Where were you during that year?—At Gretna.

75. You were paid a salary as sub-agent at Gretna?—At Gretna.

76. But you never were at Deloraine?—No, sir.

77. I find at page 147 C, of the Auditor General's Report this item: "Sub-agent, Gretna, rent of office for 11 months to 30th April, at $12—$132. Paid to J. C. Braun." Do you know anything about that in 1887-88?—No; there is no office but my own there as I am aware of.

78. You were agent there were you not?—I was sub-agent; yes.

79. Did you keep an office?—I kept an office.

80. Where was the office?—The office was near the school-house, at a place I bought.

81. But you lived in the house?—I lived in the house and kept the office.

82. And the office was in your house?—Yes.

83. There was no office rented from Mr. Braun you know of?—No.

84. Who was Braun?—He owned part of the Queen's Hotel.

85. You are quite satisfied there was no office rented from him?—Certainly, sir.

86. You kept the office in your own house and attended to it yourself?—Yes.

87. Did you get any rent for the office?—Yes; I got $8 a month allowed me for office rent.

88. Then this entry of $12 a month for 11 months, $132, paid to J. C. Braun for office, is incorrect?—Yes, sir; I believe it is incorrect; it must be, I think,—the Department must have known that. I have a letter that was written at the time.

89. You had better read it?—It was written when I left on Monday the 15th May, when the office was burned. The office was burned there at the time the custom house was burned, if you recollect.

By Mr. Bowell:

90. What office?—In Emerson.

91. I thought you said there was no office excepting the one you mentioned?—That was in Emerson before I left. Well, after I left I was ordered to take charge of the Gretna agency, and I wrote to Mr. Lowe saying that there was no office there at Gretna, and this is his reply.

“OTTAWA, 24th June, 1886.

“DEAR SIR,—Your letter of the 16th inst., has been brought under the consideration of the Minister of Agriculture, who thinks it advisable, that under the circumstances, you should rent a room suitable for your purpose.

“Believe me, &c,

“Yours, &c.,

“JOHN LOWE.

“D. C. WOODMAN, Esq.,
“Gretna, Manitoba.”

92. What is the date of that letter?—June 24th, 1886.

93. Then you had the office in Gretna in your own house and you received $8 a month for it, and there was no other office rented in Gretna as an immigration office?—Yes, sir.

94. Would it be possible that the room you are authorized to rent by this letter would be covered by the item to which Mr. McMullen has called attention. After the burning of the custom house and your office, this letter authorized you to rent a suitable room for your purpose?—Yes, but I could not find a room to rent.

95. Did you get paid for the room in your own house?—Yes, sir.

96. Then it is not covered by the item to which Mr. McMullen calls your attention?—No, sir.

By Mr. McMullen:

97. There is another item here on page 347 “D. C. Woodman, fares $5.30, living expenses $6.30, total $11.60,” did you ever get anything of that in 1887-88?—I know nothing about it. I never rendered an account except for fuel as I considered my salary included all expenses just the same as when I was in the Interior Department.

98. You got nothing of that account at all?—No, but I was asked several times to make out accounts.

99. Who asked you?—Mr. Têtu. He said he would certify to my accounts for incidental expenses, if I would make them out, but I told him that when I went to the Immigration Department, they took me just in the same way as when I was in the Interior Department.

100. How much did you receive?—I had $3.50 a day which was to include all expenses.

101. Do I understand you to say that Mr. Têtu asked you to make out accounts for incidental expenses and that he would certify to them?—He did so several times.

102. And you refused to do so?—I refused several times.

103. What would these incidental expenses be?—Travelling expenses.

By Mr. Bowell :

104. Did you ever travel for the Department?—Not very much ; only now and then perhaps for Winnipeg.

105. Mr. Têtu asked you to make out accounts for that?—Yes, he asked me to make out accounts of different kinds : travelling expenses, coal oil, brooms and what not. I see that he has charged me with coal oil at the Gretna office there.

By Mr. McMullen :

106. Here is another account for the year 1890, "D. C. Woodman, 365 days to June 10th, 1889, $2 per day—$730." That was your salary?—Yes, sir. In 1887, I received notice from Mr. Lowe here, that on account of a reduction of expenses in the Department, my salary would be reduced to $2 per day. But I find that in 1888, instead of reducing the expenditure they increased it by $1,000.

By Mr. Bowell :

107. What did you receive before that?—$3.50 a day.

108. Then you were reduced from $3.50 to $2 a day?—Yes.

109. Will you tell us how the expenses were increased as you say?—The Auditor General's Report would account for that.

110. You had no doubt about it?—No.

By Mr. McMullen :

111. I see another account here, "D. C. Woodman, fares and living expenses, two days, total $11.30." Do you know anything about that?—I know nothing about that. (Account filed as Exhibit No. 2.)

112. Here is another account, "March 30th, 1890. To one month rent of office at Gretna, $12." It is signed by J. C. Braun. Whose writing is that?—I do not know. It looks like Mr. Têtu's writing. I do not know who signed it. Perhaps Mr. Lowe can tell.

113. Do you know Mr. Braun's signature?—I do not, sir.

114. You know there was no office there at that time?—I know there was no office there.

115. Here is another account dated March 14th, 1889, "to three cords of oak wood, delivered at agency at Gretna, $19.50" and certified by Mr. Têtu. Do you know if that is correct?—I never received it at the office.

116. What did you burn there?—I burned coal. All the wood I ever bought was in 1886, I think. It was one load of wood, $4.50, and it was paid for in 1887 or 1888. I also bought from Mr. Stock a part of a cord of oak wood at $1.25. $5.75 is all I paid for wood at that office. All the rest was coal.

By Mr. Haggart :

117. How many years is that?—For 3 years.

By Mr. McMullen :

118. I have another account here, “December 4th, 1888, to  $3\frac{1}{2}$  cords of oak wood, \$6.50, delivered at Gretna agency, total \$22.75. Was that received by you?—It was never received there.

119. It could not have been delivered there without your knowledge?—No, sir.

120. Then on January 31st, 1889, “To one month’s rent of office at Gretna, $12” ?—That is signed by Mr. Braun.

121. Here is another one, June 25th, 1887, “To one month’s rent of office at Gretna, $12.” Certified to by Mr. Têtu as being correct. How is that?—I never received it.

122. You kept the office in your own house?—Yes.

123. Here is another, “J. C. Braun, September 12th, 1888, to one cord of mixed wood, supplied to Immigration office, $6, to 1 month’s rent $12, Gretna, total $18.” Is that correct?—No, sir.

124. It was never received by you?—No, sir.

125. Here is another account of July 31st, 1888, “three months office rent, May, June and July at $12 per month, $36, Gretna,” certified to as correct by Mr. Têtu and signed J. C. Braun?—I know nothing about it.

126. There was no such office?—No, sir.

127. Here is another account, “February 19th, 1889, to two cords of oak wood delivered at Gretna sub-agency, $6 a cord, total $12,” certified to by Mr. Têtu as being correct, approved etc., signed by Hypolite Rivard. Is that incorrect also?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Lister :

128. In a word all the accounts respecting the Gretna agency put in in Mr. Braun’s name for rent and wood are incorrect?—Yes.

129. You never got the money?—No.

By Mr. McMullen :

130. Here is one, “to 1 cord of oak wood, June 15th, $5, delivered at the Immigration office at Gretna and signed “Joseph Laporte, witness D. C. Woodman.” How is that. That must be correct?—That is not my signature at all. (Account filed as Exhibit No. 3.)

131. You never signed that?—No, sir

By Mr. Bowell :

132. Is this in your handwriting?—No, sir. It is nothing like it.

By Mr. McMullen :

133. Here is another, “1887, June 26th and 27th, to trip to Winnipeg to hunt up lost baggage, as ordered by head office ; 2 days’ living expenses, &c., the whole account amounting to $11.60," certified to as being correct by J. E. Têtu and signed "D. C. Woodman, sub-agent." Is that correct?—I know nothing about it. It is a forgery. (Account filed as Exhibit No. 4.)

By Mr. Chapleau:

134. I see there the name of Joseph Laporte?—There is a Joseph Laporte living at Niche, but I do not think he is the same man. Joseph Laporte has got a good education; he is in the Customs at Niche. When I left he was keeping a saloon in Niche. I know his signature, and he is a very good penman.

135. "Laporte" is in the same handwriting as your name?—It is done by the same party, I think.

By Mr. McMullen:

136. Here is another account: "Government Immigration Office, Gretna, 5th April, 1887. Received from Her Majesty's Government, by the hand of J. E. Têtu, the sum of eleven dollars for two cords of oak wood, at $5.50 per cord." It is witnessed by you?—It is like all the rest, I am sorry to say.

137. Here is a receipt for the money: (account filed as Exhibit No. 5.) You received that? You see your signature?—It is just the same; I never signed it.

138. That is a genuine signature of yours on the back of that cheque (Exhibit No. 6)?—Yes.

139. Here is another (Exhibit No. 7) for fifteen dollars for three cords of wood, signed by Thomas Beaudoin and witnessed by you; what about that?—Like the rest; I never received it, and know nothing about it.

140. That is not your signature?—It is not my signature.

141. Here is another for $10. (Exhibit No. 8) for two cords of wood, signed G. Parker, and witnessed by you. How is that?—I know nothing about it. That is not my signature.

142. You looked over the cheques of 1886, and you noticed that there were ten cheques for $50 a month, that were signed by Fournier per Têtu?—Yes.

143. Now we will take 1887. How many cheques are there?—Eleven cheques there.

144. For how much a piece?—$50; but I was not in Emerson in 1887.

145. You noticed that these are all signed by Têtu for Fournier?—Yes.

146. And you say that Fournier left for St. Paul when?—Sometime in the year 1885 I think. I would not be certain. I understand he left for St. Paul; but I never could find out.

By Mr. Bowell:

147. When did you examine these cheques?—Yesterday.

By Mr. McMullen:

148. Here are ten cheques more for 1888. You counted these over, did you?—Yes. They are the same; all signed Fournier per Têtu.

149. Here is 1887. How many are there in that parcel?—Eleven cheques.

150. For how much each?—$50.

151. All signed by whom?—Endorsed by Têtu.

By Mr. Barron :

152. When did you leave the North-West?—I left it, I think, on the 5th July, 1889.

153. Where did you go to?—When I left there I went to Toronto. From there to Peterborough and then to Lindsay. I saw you there.

154. Were you in Prince Edward Island?—Yes.

155. Is that where you discovered all these frauds and irregularities?—Yes.

156. What did you do, when you discovered them?—If you will allow me to explain, I will tell you how I discovered it. I was with my brother at Alberton, Prince Edward Island, and I was praising up Manitoba and the North-West. He said “it must be a very warm climate when it took between $400 and $500 to supply your office with wood and coal.” I said “That is nonsense.” He said “Figures won’t lie; there they are.” He showed me them.

157. Apparently, in the Auditor General’s Report there was a very large sum of money for fuel?—Yes.

158. That opened your eyes?—Yes—$478.

159. That was when?—That was in 1889.

160. When you found that out, what did you do?—When I returned back to Ottawa on the 30th of November, I went to see Mr. Carling.

161. Who is Mr. Carling?—The Minister of Agriculture.

162. What then?—He refused to listen to me at all.

163. Did you tell him then what you have told us to-day?—No. He did not give me time. He was too busy to listen to me.

164. Did you then see the late Mr. Hudspeth, the late member for South Victoria?—I saw our poor old friend Mr. Hudspeth, and Mr. George Guillet, of Cobourg. They, I believe, had an interview with Mr. Carling; so that they then said I could go and see Mr. Carling. I went to him and I told him how it was, and in talking over the matter he sent for Mr. Lowe and handed me over to Mr. Lowe.

165. When was it that the late Mr. Hudspeth and Mr. Guillet had an interview with Mr. Carling?—In the time of the last House. It was during the session. That would be in 1890.

166. It was in 1889 that you came to Ottawa to see about it?—Yes.

167. Was it during the session when you first came up here?—I came here in the fall.

168. You saw Mr. Lowe. Did you tell Mr. Lowe about Mr. Têtu?—Yes.

169. What did he say?—He said that I should be very careful, because it was a very serious matter indeed to lay a charge against Mr. Têtu.

170. Why?—Because he said he belonged to one of the best families in Quebec.

171. Mr. Lowe was under examination here a few days ago in regard to this, and said you went to his office and confronted him with these facts and threatened him with exposure unless you got an increase of salary?—No, sir.

172. That is not the case?—No, sir.

173. You have said here to-day that your salary was reduced in the year 1888-89 to $2 a day?—Yes.

174. Yet you saw from the Auditor General's report that you were charged with $1,000?—No; that they were raising the expenses $1,000 instead of curtailing them.

175. How did it appear in the Auditor General's Report?—It was said to me that I was reduced on account of curtailing the expenses, and in the Auditor General's Report, instead of being curtailed it was increased to $1,000. I considered that that money was taken from me through fraud. I may be wrong.

By Mr. Bowell:

176. What was taken from you?—$1.50 a day was taken from me to pay these erroneous accounts.

By Mr. Barron:

177. Was that why you spoke to Mr. Lowe?—Yes.

178. Then, you say you never charged for going to Winnipeg from time to time?—No; I paid my own expenses.

179. Did you go on public service?—Sometimes, and sometimes not.

180. Those times when you went on public service did you charge your expenses?—No, sir. I got my salary from the Government and paid for everything else with the exception of fuel.

181. You say you burned coal, not wood?—Yes.

182. You owned the house?—No; they paid the rent of the office.

183. You owned the house in which was your office?—Yes.

184. Had you one stove heating both the office and the house?—I had two stoves. One, a little box stove in the office, and the other was a coal stove. It was one of those stoves called "The New Jewel," I think, or something like that—self-feeder.

185. Did that heat the house?—It was not in the house at all. Both stoves were in the office.

186. You paid, yourself, out of your own pocket, for all the fuel you consumed?—Yes.

187. You never charged it to the country. Have you the receipts there for fuel?—The whole of my fuel bill was $102.85 for the three years. Here are the receipts which they have never paid.

188. This is a fuel account (Exhibit No. 9) made out to D. C. Woodman for three tons of coal $33.75; received payment, E. Winkler. You paid that out of your own pocket?—Yes, sir, certainly.

189. Here is another receipt (Exhibit No. 10) for a little more, $35.45, dated January 1st, 1888. That was paid out of your own pocket?—Yes, sir.

190. The fuel went to keep the office warm?—Yes, sir.

191. There is another (Exhibit No. 11) on the 2th January, 1887, $27.90; signed by E. Winkler. Was that fuel you consumed?—That is all in three years.

192. In your office?—Yes, sir.

193. And you paid for that yourself?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. Lister:

194. Did you render this account to the Department?—Yes, sir.

195. Have you ever been paid by the Department?—No.

196. So Têtu has been paid for all the wood?—He has been paid for wood instead of coal.

197. Several hundred dollars annually received by him, but you paid for your own coal and it has never been paid for by the Government?—No.

By Mr. Bowell :

198. When you made application for this, did they give any reason why it was not paid?—I spoke to Mr. Lowe about it, and I spoke to Mr. Têtu about it before I left. He said he did not know what was the matter, but he could not get his own account paid.

199. What reason did the Department here give for the refusal to pay this account?—Mr. Lowe gave no reason. They had told me that if I got the accounts they would be paid.

By Mr. Haggart :

200. Did you send them in regularly?—I gave them to Mr. Têtu regularly, according to his orders.

By Mr. Bowell :

201. You say that you sent these accounts to Mr. Têtu and he never gave you any reason. Did Mr. Lowe give you any reason?—He gave me no reason.

202. Did he intimate that they had been paying the account to Mr. Têtu for coal and wood?—No.

By Mr. Barron :

203. As far back as 1889 you drew the attention of the department to these frauds and irregularities?—Yes, sir; 1889 or 1890. I suppose it would be 1890.

204. You first went to the Minister, and after he had been seen by Mr. Hudspeth and Mr. Guillet you saw him again?—Yes.

205. You afterwards saw Mr. Lowe?—Yes.

By Mr. Haggart :

206. It must have been in 1889 if you went to Mr. Hudspeth?—No; I think it was 1890.

By Mr. Sproule :

207. Did the Minister assign any reason for not seeing you at the time?—No, sir.

208. Had you any other business with the department?—No.

209. Did he know what business you wanted to see him on?—Yes.

210. How did he know?—I told him.

211. I thought you said you did not have an interview?—The minister would not see me, but passed me over to Mr. Lowe.

212-3. Was the Minister aware what business you wanted to see him on?—I showed him about the wood that was being charged to me as I have here. It was put in my name, and it should be placed at Deloraine; but he did not listen to me. He said he had not time to attend to me then.

214. And it was then that he handed you over to Mr. Lowe, was it?—After I had seen Mr. Hudspeth and Mr. Guillet.

By Mr. Bowell :

215. Did you ask him why your salary was reduced; did you go to him and complain about your treatment in regard to your pay?—Not at all, sir.

By Mr. Landerkin :

216. When did you come from Prince Edward Island?—It was sometime in November.

217. Was it then you saw the Minister?—No ; it was after that, sir.

By the Chairman :

218. What year was it?—I think it was the 30th November, 1889, my ticket ran out, and I got from the Canadian Pacific Railway one of those excursion tickets.

By Mr. Landerkin :

219. Before the Session began you saw Mr. Hudspeth?—No, sir, after.

By Mr. Bowell :

220. You stated a moment ago that in 1889, you came from the North-West, and you went to Peterborough and among others saw Mr. Barron, and you went to Prince Edward Island and on your return you saw Mr. Carling and you stated that he would not listen to you?—I went to Mr. Carling, but he would not listen to me. I went again and he was too busy then.

221. Your reduction of $1.50 per day, you considered to be a fraud?—Yes, sir.

222. And that it was reduced in order to pay these illegal amounts?—Yes.

223. When did you come to that conclusion?—I came to that conclusion directly I saw the Auditor-General's Report, that the payments were increased.

224. If that was done, by whom would it be done? If the fraud was committed that implies it was committed by Mr. Lowe, or some one else in order to get money to pay these illegal accounts or that they knew these were illegal accounts. What authority have you for making a statement of that kind?—It is my own supposition that is all, it struck me so, at all events, at the time.

225. Do you mean to convey the idea to this Committee, that Mr. Carling knew these forgeries were being perpetrated?—I thought so at the time ; Mr. Lowe told me he did not think Mr. Carling knew about them. I told Mr. Lowe he did, because if he did not he would have seen me.

226. That was your only reason for supposing so?—Yes.

227. To whom did you apply for an increase of salary?—Not to any one.

228. Did you never complain to any one about the reduction of your salary?—Excepting to Mr. Lowe.

229. Exactly. You said just now that you did not complain to any one. What did you say to Mr. Lowe?—I told Mr. Lowe I thought Mr. Turgeon, Mr. Têtu's brother-in-law, was receiving something like thirteen or fourteen hundred ; that I thought I was entitled to, as sub-agent, as much as Mr. Turgeon.

230. Had you knowledge of that improper payment before you saw the Auditor General's Report?—No, sir, not until I saw the report.

231. What did you say to Mr. Lowe ? Did you not say to him that if you did not get what you considered your just dues, you would expose this whole thing?—No, sir.

232. You did not?—No, sir.

By Mr. Haggart :

233. It appears from the Public Accounts that there was a payment of $732, in 1887-88, when you were in Deloraine? You never were in Deloraine?—I was never there, sir, I was at Gretna.

234. Is there a similar payment of $732 to some person at Gretna?—I think there is.

By Mr. Somerville :

235. At what date did you tell Mr. Lowe about these frauds?—I could not tell you the dates.

236. What year?—It was in 1890, I think.

237. Cannot you remember at about what time of the year you were in Ottawa?—It was sometime before the House met in 1890.

238. That would be early in January?—Somewhere about that time.

239. You told Mr. Lowe in January, 1890, that these frauds were being perpetrated, or had been perpetrated, did you not?—I told him what I had found in the Auditor General's Report.

240. You gave Mr. Lowe to understand that you never received this money that was charged to you?—Certainly.

By Mr. Landerkin :

241. That was a year and a half ago?—About that time.

By Mr. Daly :

242. Did you tell Mr. Lowe that you had not received this money.—Yes.

243. When did you first see the voucher produced here to-day?—Last evening.

244. At the time you had the interview with Mr. Carling you were not aware these amounts had been forged in your name?—No, sir.

245. You were not aware until last evening?—No, sir.

246. So it is as much of a revelation to you as it is to the Committee?—Certainly.

247. And you were not in such a position to inform Mr. Carling when you went to see him as you are before this committee to-day.

248. Where were you stationed during the time you were sub-agent?—At Gretna.

249. And you were sub-agent under Mr. Tetu?—Yes.

250. And all your accounts had to be certified to by him?—Yes.

251. You sent them, and he forwarded them to the Department?—Yes, sir.

252. This is the first intimation you had of the forgeries being committed?—Yes, sir.

253. Did you charge rent for the office in your house?—Yes, sir.

254. Did you render accounts for that?—No, sir.

255. You have never been paid for it then?—Mr. Têtu's letter will show you.

256. But you got paid rent?—Yes, sir, I got paid. I received the first payment for rent on the 31st January, 1888, of $96 for twelve months; at the same time I cashed a cheque for Mr. Turgeon.

257. Were you paid in cash?—Paid in money, $96, and out of it I cashed Mr. Turgeon's cheque for $60, I think.

258. Were you satisfied with the arrangement?—Certainly, sir.

By the Chairman :

259. You got $96 for rent?—On 31st January, 1888, $96.

260. That was for a year's rent?—For a year's rent.

261. You pocketed that yourself?—Certainly, that belonged to me.

By Mr. Daly :

262. How long did you occupy your house as an office?—Three years.

263. And did you receive this rental for the three years?—All but about two or three months. It commenced, I think, on the 1st October.

By Mr. McMullen :

264. Did you get it in cash or in cheques?—I got this in cash, and when I came to Winnipeg in 1889, after the office was closed, I got Mr. Têtu to give me his cheque for $144, for eighteen months rent, on the Imperial Bank of Winnipeg.

By Mr. Daly :

265. And that settled up two years?—Yes, for two years.

By Mr. McMullen :

266. The cheque was signed by Têtu?—It was a private cheque.

267. Then all the time he has drawn rent for an office for Braun at $12 a month, he was paying you at the same time only $8 a month for the office in your house?—Yes, sir; his letter will show that.

By Mr. Somerville :

268. I understood you to say that you were not aware until you saw those papers that these forgeries had been committed?—No, sir, I was not.

269. You were aware before you saw these documents that fraud had been committed in the payment of money?—Oh yes, that I knew.

270. You were perfectly well aware of that?—Yes.

271. And you were aware of that when you had an interview with Mr. Lowe in January, 1890?—Yes, somewhere about 1890.

272. You were aware these frauds had been perpetrated then.—Yes.

By Mr. Haggart :

273. You were shown those receipts in May, 1890?—I was shown one in May, 1890. I think Mr. Lynch got the papers and showed them to me. I think there were one or two which I considered were forgeries.

274. Did you tell him they were forgeries then?—I told Mr. Lowe these were forgeries.

By Mr. Somerville :

275. You told him this in January, 1890?—Yes.

276. You remember that distinctly?—Yes.

277. What did Mr. Lowe say when you told him they were forgeries?—He said it looked bad.

By Mr. Daly :

278. You only saw two that were forgeries?—Yes.

279. Not these that have been produced to-day?—No.

By Mr. Somerville :

280. Did the Deputy Minister say he would investigate at all?—Yes, sir, I believe he did. I believe there was correspondence with Mr. Têtu, but there has been nothing done since. If the Minister of Agriculture had investigated it the matter would never have come up before this Committee. I told him if there had been any investigation by the Department, I should never have been obliged to bring it before this Committee.

By Mr. Denison :

281. Do you know the writing of these forgeries?—No, sir.

282. You have no idea at all?—No.

283. Do any of them resemble Mr. Têtu's writing?—The body of some them do.

284. Had you anybody in your office whose writing it resembles?—No, sir; I had no one in the office but myself.

By Mr. Haggart :

285. There is something I cannot understand here. You say there is a charge in the Auditor General's Report of $732 to pay your salary at Deloraine, and a similar amount at Gretna. How can that possibly be?—They had Mr. Turgeon at Gretna, and they placed me in Deloraine, a place I was never in.

286. It must be only a transposition then?—Yes.

By Mr. Wood (Brockville) :

287. Was Mr. Turgeon an employé of the Department?—Yes, sir.

288. Where was he stationed?—In Emerson; he was Mr. Têtu's assistant.

By Mr. Haggart :

289. Then what has been done in the report has been to change the Gretna man at Deloraine, and the Deloraine man at Gretna? It is a transposition?—Yes.

By Mr. Bowell :

290. And was Turgeon at Deloraine?—Not that I am aware of; I don't think there was an office there.

291. But you know Turgeon was in the employ of the Department?—Oh, yes.

By Mr. Barron :

292. As a matter of fact there was never an office at Deloraine?—Not that I was aware of; I never heard of such a one.

By Mr. Daly :

293. You stated a few moments ago that the first interview you had with Mr. Lowe in reference to this matter was in January, 1890?—Somewhere about that time; I don't know whether it was January or February, but it was some time before the House met.

294. You also stated a short time ago that you first went to see Mr. Carling and on account of press of business he could not see you?—I saw Mr. Lowe before Mr. Carling.

295. You went to see Mr. Lowe before Mr. Carling?—Yes.

296. I understood you to say then that you went to see Mr. Hudspeth and Mr. Guillet, and you came back to see Mr. Carling, and he handed you over to Mr. Lowe?—No; Mr. Carling refused to see me. I thought there was a screw loose somewhere and I went up to the Parliament Buildings, to the library, and I looked up the Auditor General's Reports from 1883 to 1889.

297. When did you see Mr. Lowe?—Again after that, I saw Mr. Lowe.

298. When did you see Mr. Guillet?—I think the House was in session.

299. After seeing them you went and saw Mr. Carling?—Afterwards I went and saw Mr. Carling.

300. That was during the time the House was in session in 1890?—Yes, sir.

301. Then you saw Mr. Carling and he handed you over to Mr. Lowe?—Yes.

302. Was that the first time you brought the matter before Mr. Lowe's attention?—No, sir.

303. You brought it before that, sometime in January, 1890?—I don't know, I would not be certain. I went to see him in regard to my fuel account for which I had not been paid. It was the day before I went to the Island, that would be sometime, perhaps, in August.

304. You went to the Minister first in regard to these irregularities?—No, to Mr. Lowe first.

305. And you drew his attention to certain irregularities, or was it about your reduced salary that you saw him?—No, it was not about the irregularities, but about my fuel bill; I did not know whether the fuel bill had been paid. I did not know anything about the irregularities at that time.

306. And what you went to see him about was getting paid for your coal?—That was all.

307. You did not draw Mr. Lowe's attention at the first interview to any of the irregularities?—No, Sir.

308. You did not know anything about them then?—I did not know anything about them then.

By the Chairman :

309. Did you ask them about the increase of salary?—No, sir; I thought the salary was all right.

By Mr. Taylor :

310. It was after your first interview with Mr. Hudspeth that you went to see Mr. Carling, and then to see Mr. Lowe, to draw attention to the irregularities—what time was that?—Sometime after when the House was in session.

311. When did the House meet in 1890?—I could not tell you positively, sometime in February, I think.

312. If it was February, your interview with Mr. Lowe could not have taken place when the House was in session?—I did not say it was February, positively; I said January or February.

313. Was it not as late as the month of May that you drew Mr. Lowe's attention to these irregularities?—No, sir.

314. Was it the first of March that you saw him about them?—I could not say. At any rate it was in 1890, when the House was in session sometime.

315. I want to get down to a date when you drew Mr. Lowe's attention to these irregularities?—I cannot give you that.

By Mr. Daly:

316. I understand Mr. Woodman's contention is that he came to see Mr. Lowe prior to going to Prince Edward Island; when did you go to Prince Edward Island?—In 1889.

317. Prior to going to Prince Edward Island you saw Mr. Lowe about the coal accounts?—I think I did.

318. Did you tell him at that time anything about these irregularities?—No, I did not.

319. You discovered the irregularities during the conversation in Prince Edward Island with your brother?—Yes.

320. Then you returned to Ottawa; when was that?—About the 30th November.

321. Did you see Mr. Lowe then?—I saw him afterwards, but could not say what time.

322. What did you see him in reference to then?—In reference to this wood, which is put as if charged to me under my name.

323. That is in reference to what you had seen in the Auditor General's report?—Yes.

324. At that time you knew nothing about these specific charges at all?—No, sir.

325. What did Mr. Lowe say to you then?—Mr. Lowe told me that the wood had nothing to do with me at all. That it was a general account. I think there was $11.50 for fares and two days living expenses, and he said that was the only thing that had been placed to my debit. Then there was some telegrams and newspapers or something. He explained that only $11.50 of that was for me.

326. This was in November, you say? When did you see Mr. Lowe again?—I think it was this spring some time.

327. Or the spring of 1890, which?—This spring.

328. When did you see Mr. Carling; after having seen Mr. Lowe on your return?—I could not say. I think it was about the time the House was meeting or just after it had met.

329. In 1890?—Yes.

330. What did you say to Mr. Carling?—I told Mr. Carling I thought this was adding insult to injury in having these things charged to me.

331. What things?—This wood, as I thought, was charged to me.

332. Did you draw Mr. Carling's attention to those figures in the Auditor General's Report?—Yes; I took a copy from the report and showed them to him.

333. You drew his attention to them; what did he say?—He said he had not time to attend to it.

334. Where did you go then?—I think he said he would see me the next day or the day after, at 3 o'clock.

335. Mr. Somerville asked you if you had spoken about these frauds. You knew nothing about these frauds at all?—No, sir.

336. What you were complaining about was the charges about the wood?—Yes.

337. After you had seen Mr. Carling you then went to see Mr. Hudspeth and Mr. Guillet?—Yes. After I left Mr. Carling I thought there was a screw loose somewhere, and I came up here to the Buildings. I went through the Auditor General's accounts from 1883, the time at which I was appointed on the immigration staff, until 1889, and I found all these different items.

338. Then you went to Messrs. Hudspeth and Guillet?—Yes.

339. And gave them the benefit of your researches into the Auditor General's Report?—Yes.

340. And they took you to Mr. Carling?—Yes.

341. What occurred with Mr. Carling on the second interview?—He rang the bell for Mr. Lowe.

342. And you went off with Mr. Lowe?—Yes.

343. Did you go into these matters with Mr. Lowe?—Yes. That is the time, I think, that Mr. Lynch was there. I think I saw, then, two of my signatures on some papers that were not mine.

344. So that as a matter of fact you never went into the matter with Mr. Carling at all?—Oh, no.

By the Chairman :

345. When you saw Mr. Hudspeth and Mr. Guillet you spoke to them about these irregularities?—Yes.

346. Did you speak about anything else?—No, sir.

347. Did you speak to them about getting an increase of salary?—No, sir.

348. You swear to that?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. McMullen :

449. When you went to Mr. Lowe, and you said in answer to a question, that then you knew nothing about the frauds, what did you refer to by "frauds"? Did you mean these forgeries?—Those and some different accounts.

350. You went to see Mr. Lowe about certain items that were charged in the Auditor General's Report as having been paid you, and which were incorrect?—Yes.

351. You knew that?—Yes.

352. And you told Mr. Lowe that?—Yes.

By Mr. Lister :

353. In the first place you knew from the Auditor General's Report, that there were charges credited to you of moneys that you had never received?—Yes.

354. And the conclusion which you drew, was that Mr. Tétu had got the money?—I did not know who got it. I wanted to find out.

355. You knew you had not drawn the money?—I did.

356. Then you only discovered that there were forgeries when you went into the office with Mr. Lowe and his clerk?—Yes.

357. That was the first time your attention was drawn to them?—Yes.

358. Did you tell them those signatures were forgeries?—Yes.

359. And you only knew of the other forgeries when you went into the matter yesterday?—Yes.

By Mr. Chapleau :

360. You have produced here three accounts for coal, 1887, 1888 and 1889 (Exhibits 9, 10 and 11). Had you similar accounts before these dates?—Yes, sir. Mr. Têtu asked me for my fuel accounts and I gave them to him regularly. I sent for these since I have been in Ottawa. I sent to Mr. Winckler for these. I think it was some time in January.

By the Chairman :

361. What was the value of your house?—It cost me about $600 ; something like that. I have it still.

362. And you were getting $8 a month from the Government?—Yes.

363. You occupied the remainder of the house yourself?—Yes. There was just two rooms.

By Mr. Bowell :

364. Did you own the house?—Yes.

By Mr. Chapleau :

365. You say you have sent for these accounts from Mr. Winckler, lately?—I can tell you in a minute. They were enclosed in a letter from Mr. Thos. Shannon of the Customs, on 31st January, 1890.

366. I do not want to hear anything about Mr. Shannon. When did you send for those accounts?—In January, 1890.

367. You received these three accounts in January, 1890?—I sent for them. Mr. Lowe said if I got the coal accounts they would be paid.

368. Did you send them or give them to Mr. Têtu before?—Similar ones, of course.

369. Were they for the amounts mentioned here, $35, $27 and $33?—Just the same.

370. You had given these accounts to Mr. Têtu for fuel burnt in the office?—Yes; Mr. Têtu asked me to get them in duplicate.

371. These three accounts then were not paid by him?—No, sir.

372. Had he paid for any fuel before?—No, sir; he never paid for any.

373. Did you get your coal from Mr. Winckler all the time?—Yes, sir; at Gretna.

374. You had always taken your coal from him?—Yes, sir.

375. You had bought no wood; only coal?—I bought only one cord of wood.

376. Since what year had you taken your coal from him?—About 1886, I think. All the coal in 1887-88 was obtained from him.

377. I see here the three years mentioned—1887-88-89?—That is the time.

378. You had no other coal from him, except this?—That is all.

379. And these three accounts you got from Mr. Winckler at the time, and gave them to Mr. Têtu to be paid?—Yes, sir.

380. And he did not pay them?—No, sir.

381. And you found out there was wood charged for, instead of coal?—Yes, sir.

By Mr. White (Cardwell) :

382. You say you saw these accounts for the first time last autumn?—
Yes, sir.

383. Did you look over them carefully?—I looked over them as far as we had time, up to half-past ten last night.

384. They appear to be regular vouchers?—Yes, sir.

385. Such vouchers as a person unfamiliar with your handwriting, would not think that there was anything wrong?—I suppose they would not.

386. And yet in view of your evidence this morning, it would appear as if a series of forgeries had been going on for years?—It would appear so.

387. With every account rendered by Mr. Têtu vouchers were sent?—I do not know.

388. It would appear so?—Yes, it would appear so.

389. And which professed to be genuine?—Yes.

390. Such would be apt to mislead the Department here?—Yes. I did not know anything of these irregularities until last fall.

By Mr. McMullen :

391. You mean the forgeries?—Yes.

By Mr. White (Cardwell) :

392. And upon these vouchers you paid all these accounts of the professed caretaker?—Yes, and the wood.

393. When did you become acquainted with Mr. Têtu first?—In 1880.

394. Was he then in the employ of the Immigration Department?—He was agent there when I was sent down from Winnipeg. I think it was sometime in May.

395. Do you know when he was appointed to his office?—No.

396. You do not know it was 1st April 1876, as a matter of fact?—No.

By Mr. Chapleau :

397. You knew he had been there some years before?—Yes; I understood so from him.

398. These three accounts of Mr. Winkler, did you pay them regularly?—Yes, as they were delivered.

399. You paid these large accounts—for they were comfortably large—and you did not complain to the Department that you had paid for your coal and were not paid by Mr. Têtu?—I never made a claim to the Department at all until I saw Mr. Lowe.

400. Three years after?—Yes.

By Mr. Daly :

401. Will you look at this account and identify the handwriting in the body of it (Exhibit No. 2)?—It looks like Mr. Têtu's handwriting; but I would not swear to it. It is a little peculiar.

402. Would you know the handwriting of Mr. Têtu if you received a communication from him?—Yes. I think it looks like his handwriting.

403. Look at the handwriting in which your signature is given?—I would not swear to any man's handwriting.

404. Look at your signature. Can you say whose handwriting that is?—No sir.

405. Is it similar to the body of the voucher?—It looks to me as if it were all written by the same person, excepting this “Witness, D. C. Woodman.”

406. Look at the next account (Exhibit No. 3). What do you say as to the handwriting in the body of that?—That seems the same.

407. No. 4, take that?—Yes, I think that is his writing too.

408. But you cannot be positive as to that?—I would not swear to any man’s writing positively.

409. There is no doubt about his signature?—No.

410. And the other, No. 5, is that the same?—Yes, the same.

411. Is No. 7 the same?—They appear all to be written by the same person.

412. No. 8, what about that?—They are all the same. I think that is Mr. Têtu’s handwriting. I would not swear positively; but I believe it is.

By Mr. Bowell :

413. When you made this complaint to Mr. Lowe of these irregularities, did he intimate to you that an investigation would take place?—He said he would write to Mr. Têtu and make him explain how things were, and I suppose the explanation was satisfactory, as I heard nothing more about it.

414. Why do you volunteer that? Why should you say that? You knew nothing about it.?—I supposed so.

By Mr. Somerville :

415. That was in January 1890?—Yes, when I first saw Mr. Lowe.

By Mr. Bowell :

416. What do you mean by saying it was January 1890? That it was then you informed Mr. Lowe of these irregularities?—Not of the irregularities. I informed him about my coal account.

JOHN LOWE re-called and further examined : —

By Mr. Bowell :

417. Do you remember Mr. Woodman’s visit to your office?—Yes.

418. Will you tell us what date it was?—The date was on the 7th and 8th of May, 1890.

419. Was that the time he gave you this information?—Yes, and that was the first time I heard anything about these charges against Mr. Têtu.

420. What did you do then?—I caused a precis of his statement to be taken down by a shorthand writer, which I submitted to the Minister. That statement was sent to Mr. Têtu for report.

421. What date?—Almost immediately afterward. This is the official memorandum which I communicated to the Minister containing the precis of facts and the action that was taken thereon. The memorandum is this :—

(EXHIBIT No. 12.)

“ MEMORANDUM.

“ In reference to the charges of Mr. D. C. Woodman against Mr. J. E. Têtu, the following is a precis of facts :—

“On 7th and 8th May, 1890, Mr. Woodman made a series of statements, which were taken down in shorthand in the Department.

“On 16th May, by direction of the Minister, a copy of these was officially communicated by letter to Mr. Têtu, with a request that he would furnish, as soon as possible, a written statement in reply.

“In answer to a request for delay, on 20th May, the Minister telegraphed to Mr. Royal, the Lieutenant Governor of the North-West Territories, that he (Mr. Têtu) had the charges against him communicated to him, and that ample time would be allowed.

“When I went to Manitoba, in August, I took the papers with me for the purpose of personal enquiry, but I found Mr. Têtu was utterly prostrated by illness and not able to come to the office. I went to see him at his lodgings and he seemed to me completely broken down. I reported this fact on my return to Ottawa.

“On 27th November, 1890, Mr. Têtu wrote to Mr. Small, the Secretary of the Department, to ask for leave to come down to Ottawa to answer personally the charges made against him by Mr. Woodman.

“On 1st December, 1890, Mr. Small replied, by direction of the Minister, that it was not considered necessary he should visit Ottawa for the purpose of making an explanation in reply to the charges of Mr. Woodman, but that the Minister desired him to reply by written statement as soon as possible.

“On 23rd December, Mr. Small, by direction of the Minister, wrote a further letter to Mr. Têtu, stating that the matter would not admit of any further delay, and that he must reply at once.

“In February, on the occasion of my again going to Manitoba, I took these papers with me in order to ask Mr. Têtu for explanations. He was not at the office. Mr. Bennett told me that he was apparently utterly broken down and had not often been at the office since the early part of 1890. I saw him, however, by special appointment, and told him the points on which answers were desired. He made a verbal explanation to me in the sense of the statement which he wrote under date of 24th February, which statement forms a part of these papers.

“Mr. Têtu's explanation, to my mind, leaves several important points in doubt, and my opinion is that a further particular enquiry should be made by Mr. Lynch, the Accountant of the Department.

“DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,

“OTTAWA, 15th May, 1891.”

By Mr. Daly :

422. Have you the memorandum taken down in shorthand? If so, please read it?—Yes; that memorandum reads as follows:—

(EXHIBIT No. 13.)

“OTTAWA, 16th May, 1890.

“SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Agriculture to transmit to you, enclosed herewith, a memo containing charges made by Mr. D. C. Woodman, recently employed at Emerson and Gretna, in connection with the Immigration service under you as Agent.

“ The Minister requests me to ask you to make a report on the charges contained in the memo and forward the same to this Department, with as little delay as possible.

“ I have the honour to be, Sir,
“ Your obedient servant,

(Sgd) “ H. B. SMALL,
“ Secy. Dept. Agriculture.”

“ J. E. Têtu, Esq.,
“ Winnipeg.

Memorandum.

Mr. D. C. Woodman, formerly employed in the Immigration service, under Mr. J. E. Têtu, came to the Department on the 7th and 8th inst., and made the following statements, which were taken in shorthand :—

1. That he had seen in the Auditor-General's Report for 1887-8 and 1888-9 two items each of $600 for salary to Mr. Fournier. He said that Mr. Fournier did not render any services and was not present at the agency. Mr. Têtu is required to give particulars of this charge for employment of Mr. Fournier.

2. That the accounts, as published, showed a charge of $12 per month for rent for the Gretna Agency, purporting to be paid to Mr. J. C. Braun, and that this item (page 147 C of the Auditor General's Report for 1887-88) amounts to $152

In relation to this, Mr. Woodman communicated an original letter signed by Mr. Thomas Shannon, of Gretna, dated January 31st, 1890, in which he states that “ John Braun ” never received $1 from Têtu for rent, and wonders how he could manufacture it. This was an answer to a written question by Mr. Woodman.

3. Mr. Woodman stated that the office in Gretna, for which rent was paid, was his property, and that Mr. Têtu paid him $8 a month for the rent. In support of this he (Mr. Woodman) handed an original letter from Mr. Têtu, undoubtedly authentic, dated October 7th, 1887, in which it is stated that “ 12 months' office rent for you will be mailed to-day from Ottawa, at $8 per month, say $96.” The letter further explains that the rent was from the 1st of October, 1886, to 1st October, 1887. The letter also promises him, Mr. Woodman, that he would be allowed for fuel, coal oil, etc. There is no charge for any rent to Mr. Woodman in any of Mr. Têtu's accounts to the Department. Further, Mr. Woodman now makes a claim for fuel, for which he says he has not been paid.

Mr. Woodman has also handed an original letter of Mr. Têtu, undoubtedly genuine, dated 28th October, 1887, in which he states : “ I have not yet received anything, but am confident that the whole of it will accompany our month's cheques, and I will then go and see you. As I told you in my previous note, get your fuel, oil, broom, &c. I will fetch blank forms with me to make the Bill as required by the Department.”

(4.) The question Mr. Têtu is required to answer is, how he came to charge rent at the rate of $12 per month for Mr. J. C. Braun, for the Gretna sub-agency, when he paid, as proved by his own letter, $8 per month to Mr. Woodman; and, further, how Mr. J. C. Braun's signature came to be attached to the vouchers forwarded by Mr. Têtu? There is only a charge for Mr. Braun for rent in Mr. Têtu's account for the Gretna sub-agency.

(5.) Mr. Woodman refers to the item in the Auditor General's Report (see page 147 C.) which amounted to $478.25 for wood, of which $187.25 is supposed to be for Greta, and the remainder, $291, for Emerson. Mr. Woodman states that, as respects Greta, the account must be fictitious as no such amount of wood was ever burnt. Mr. Woodman further states that he paid himself for the wood for the Greta office, as per item subjoined, for the three years for which he now claims payment, and he states explicitly that he was not paid by Mr. Têtu for this fuel.

Mr. Woodman furnished the following statement of fuel actually burnt by him at Greta sub-agency in three years, the average being about $30 a year against the amount of $187.25, charged by Mr. Têtu for one year. The statement referred to is subjoined :—

1886. Account of fuel supplied Immigration Office, Greta.

1st October—To paid half-breed 1½ cords soft wood	$ 4 50
12th November—To paid E. Winkler 2¼ tons coal	27 90
15th Dec., 1887—To paid E. Winkler 3¼ tons coal	35 45
9th Dec., 1888—To paid E. Winkler 3 tons coal	33 75
9th Dec., 1888—To paid A. W. Stock ¼ oak wood	1 25
Total.....	$102 85

Mr. Woodman claims that, as he is allowed to be charged in the accounts, as shown by the item in the Auditor's report of 1887-88 (see page 147 C) for the following items: Fares, $5.30; living expenses, $6; and telegram, 30 cents. And in the Auditor's report for 1888-89 (on page D33) he is charged with $11, namely: For fares, $5; and living expenses, 2 days, $6. Mr. Woodman denies having received any of these sums. He says they are entirely fictitious. Being shown the vouchers purporting to be signed by him for these payments, he declares the signatures to be forgeries, and stated that they did not even bear resemblance to his own signature.

The charge in 1887-88, as stated in the voucher, is for a "trip to Winnipeg to hunt up lost baggage, as ordered by Head Office." The charge in 1888-89 is for a "trip to Emerson, as ordered by agent." Mr. Woodman states that he never made any such trips, the accounts being entirely fictitious, and he reiterated his denial that he had ever received such payments.

Department of Agriculture,
Ottawa, 16th May, 1890.

By Mr. Bowell:

423. What are the remainder of the papers composed of?—They are official papers bearing on this matter, but there is one point in reference to the most grave of all these charges, which I think it well to explain, and that is in relation to Mr. Woodman's signature. In order to test Mr. Woodman's statements, Mr. Lynch, accountant of the Department, was requested to bring the several papers and show them one by one to Mr. Woodman. That gentleman denied the whole of the signatures that were shown to him, and not two only as he stated in evidence to-day. He denied several signatures, but with regard to an endorsement on a cheque, he came to me next day and said he withdrew the statement that it was not his signature and admitted that it might be his signature. I must say that raised some doubt in my mind as to the genuineness of the charges which Mr. Woodman preferred. I must say that I did not at all believe in them, and I told him so.

424. You did not believe in what?—In the charges which he had made, especially as they were accompanied by a claim that he should be paid the difference which had been stopped on his salary from 1887 to 1889, by order of the Minister of Agriculture. That is for a period of about two years. At any rate, however, his statements being specific were written down in the form of the memorandum produced, and communicated to the Minister. The action taken on them was exactly as I have stated.

425. Did you see these signatures of Woodman and compare them, and could you not tell whether they were his from your knowledge of Mr. Woodman's handwriting?—I found the denied signatures to be such as to make me doubtful, but there was a very considerable resemblance between the signature on one of the cheques which Mr. Woodman had first denied and afterwards admitted, and the others. There was quite enough in my opinion to call for an examination into the facts by the accountant of the Department. That was ordered and has been made.

426. Had you, as a matter of fact, any agency at Deloraine?—No regular agency was ever established at Deloraine, but operations were conducted at that point under the direction of Mr. Têtu.

427. How long?—I cannot remember the dates, it was sometime ago.

By Mr. McMullen :

428. Are you prepared to say as Deputy Minister that you are not aware of the fact as to whether there was or was not an immigration agency office at Deloraine? Are you really so ill informed of what was done in the North-West that you don't know whether there was or was not any agency?—If you use the word agency in a sense of a regular established agency, there was none. Mr. Têtu sent Mr. Turgeon or Mr. Fournier to Deloraine, and also to other points of the country, for the purpose of conducting immigration operations.

By Mr. Barron :

429. If there was no agency there could not have been any caretaker?—I don't think there was any caretaker, I think that is a mistake, if such is alleged, from the grouping in the Auditor General's report.

By Mr. McMullen :

430. On what date was Mr. Lynch sent to the North-West to investigate this matter?—I cannot tell you the day of the week he left, but I think, as I stated before, it was two or three days after the letter of instructions which was written to him on Monday, 13th July.

By Sir Richard Cartwright :

431. Of this year?—This year.

By Mr. Daly :

432. Where is Têtu's statement?—Mr. Têtu sent this reply, (Exhibit No. 14) which was not considered in all respects complete :

(EXHIBIT No. 14.)

“ WINNIPEG, 24th February, 1891.

“ SIR,—The reasons for my not having answered before this date to the communication of the charges preferred against me by Mr. D. C. Woodman and transmitted to me through the Department on the 16th of May, 1890, will be given as I proceed with my explanations.

“ (1) The caretaker, Fournier, was discharged at the very same time as was Woodman and Turgeon at the beginning of April, 1889, date of my instructions from Ottawa.

“ I had in my possession from July, 1890, to November of the same year, from A. Fournier himself, a statutory declaration, when I was deprived of it together with some valuable documents for me. Unfortunately two days before I received a negative answer as to my leave of absence to proceed to Ottawa, my pocket book containing all documents in reference to the Woodman matter and other was stolen from my overcoat hanging in the hall of a respectable hotel, close by the station, while I was at dinner, the regular train not being on time that day.

“ The statutory declaration of Mr. Turgeon, formerly on the staff at Emerson, touches the matter indirectly, and I might add to it so as to be more explicit.

“ I may add here that Mr. Woodman very seldom came to Emerson while located at Gretna, and, when he did come to Emerson or West Lynne without leave of absence, he always took great precaution to avoid being seen by any one of the agency, and therefore speaks of what he certainly knows very little of.

“ I understood one Mr. Shannon, Customs Landing Waiter at Gretna, used to replace Mr. Woodman in his absences that I invariably ignored.

“ In connection with this I cannot help saying that Mr. Woodman, who, in partnership with his late brother or nephew, I think, had rented a farm under cultivation near Winnipeg, and that he at one time absented himself to go and work to hay-making during some 8 or 10 days, leaving under his assumed authority the office in charge of the said Mr. Thomas Shannon. I hold these details from Mr. Woodman personally. When I politely remarked to him that should this be reported at Ottawa, I would evidently be blamed for it. He said there was no danger ; that he had enough influence to prevent from getting into a bad predicament for that.

“ (2) As stated in the statutory declaration of Mr. Turgeon and more explicitly in mine, John C. Braun was not and is not John Braun the Gretna hotel-keeper, with whom I never had any other dealings or business transactions than that of paying my hotel bill when at Gretna on business.

“ John Braun's brother inherited the Gretna Business, and for the information of Messrs Woodman and Shannon, inquiry might easily be made by them to see the shadow of my name appears in late John Braun's book otherwise than in his hotel register as a temporary guest.

“ I regret to remark here that in Emerson, Gretna and Ottawa, Mr. Woodman, by most unreliable and false statements, endeavoured to incriminate certain public officials. This is unjustifiable and dastardly ; please excuse the expression.

“ I know Mr. Woodman holds some private letters of mine which are in no way connected indirectly or directly with the Department, of not in the least of a compromising nature except when interpreted by him, but what I suspect is the strange way, to call it mild, he came in possession of them. The difference of $4 that exist between Mr. Woodman and me is due to the fact that he, Mr. Woodman, being allowed rent of office when I was going to speak to the then Secretary of the Department who was at Emerson on a tour of annual inspection, told me if I could get him $8, “ that would be all right.” This is a plain fact. The rent of office was made to John C. Braun for $12, the same as paid in Emerson. My reason for using John C. Braun was that I was under the impression that it was not becoming to look like a kind of contractor with the Department. The fact of the matter is that my horse hire accounts were always made in the name of the livery stable owner where my horse was kept when I had one. The Veterinary Surgeon D. H. McFadden, who was and is still called frequently to Gretna does the same and I see no harm in it. Such was the case as stated for using John C. Braun’s name instead of Mr. Woodman’s. I will further on explain the fuel question and this same one as well as explanations are on hand to prove that Mr. Woodman has no claim whatever against the Department, and if any claim exists from any member of the staff of the late Emerson Agency and Sub-Agency against the Department, I am sure I would certainly be the first claimant ; but so far I have not put in any, but the present case compels me to mention certain facts to corroborate my statements I think the third charge is dealt with in the 2nd. I will, therefore, proceed with your 5th one which is the third one for me.

“ (3) I positively state that here Mr. Woodman is right for he did not receive the fuel while at Gretna ; the accounts were not fictitious, but were not for Woodman. I will here state the reasons that prompted me to pursue that rather strange course.

“ The difference of the account for fuel between Gretna is due to the fact that I use it for office and very often to immigrants who left their families in some empty houses in Emerson for as much as three months at the time working out in the country for farmers preparing for winter. The sheds were of hardly any use but immigrants would occupy the first empty shanty like they would see and was supplied with fuel, the only help they received at the hands of Department through the Emerson agency. Now, as a matter of explanation, permit to state that, with the exception of one year or so, Mr. Woodman had always the privilege or advance to make a home of the office. In 1883 to 1885 inclusive, I think, Mr. Woodman took possession of the office, after it was well fixed by the Public Works Inspector of Winnipeg, Mr. D. Smith, with his nephew, one Mr. Gordon Woodman, then employed at the Merchants Bank branch at Emerson. As I was then a widower I closed my private residence in West Lynne, where I used to do most of my work and rented, for nearly two years, three rooms for an office and sleeping room. I made certain repairs, bought a stove, paid rent, &c , &c., out of my own pocket, supplying my fuel, &c., by a friend to whom I given a room. The Department never paid for any of these expenses, while Mr. Woodman was enjoying the comfort of comfortable office as a house. I can prove, if required, by Mr. Robert

Smith, who keeps the Manor House, one of the leading hotels of Winnipeg, who rented me the rooms, that the statement is in all sense correct. If I recollect well, in November 1884, the then acting Deputy Minister used my room as the Emerson hotels were overcrowded. I took this way of recouping me from Mr. Woodman; it may be wrong, but I thought it was fair and, without hesitation, tell the truth in connection with this and all other matters, as by nature I am too outspoken to disguise the truth to the extent of rendering it unknowable.

“(4) This is the most rascally charge, pardon the word, Sir, ever brought against me, and I take it at heart more than the other charges combined. I deny this charge in toto, and I state the following, viz. When I asked for Mr. Woodman's removal expenses from Emerson to Gretna, I was advised to make the bill in my current expenses, which I did; at what date exactly I do not know, but I ask to Mr. Woodman in the face of the Creator if he did not receive from me right in his office at Gretna his removal expenses, and if he did not sign me in blank two forms? I do not recollect the amount, but I recollect his exclamation of joy, when he said his friend Mr. Whitman had hauled his furniture for six or eight dollars. I wonder if he will dare depend on his short memory to deny this fact, for barring his salary vouchers these two receipted accounts were the only time his signature was used. The account was on a different heading as advice and that is the whole of it. I am aware Mr. Woodman, after being discharged, when waiting for his last month's cheque, June 1889, growled rather loud, and was echoed by his nephew in Winnipeg. He doubted that he signed the voucher, but after a while, said it took a long time but had finally received his money, which would lead one to believe that he got cash for the June salary but no cheque. This is, to call it mild, very stupid, for the cheque being made to Mr. Woodman could not possibly be cashed by anyone unless endorsed by Mr. Woodman himself, and then by the person who would have cashed it. This can be easily proved by looking over the cheque for Mr. Woodman for June 1889.

“I have been holding positions of trust very often, passed cheques, notes, drafts and so forth to many a bank, to which my humble name was attached, and I was never even suspected of signing any person's name without the proper legal authority; and this is the first instance such a grave charge is made against me. I am not of boodling disposition, neither disposed to take undue advantages as I gave your Department proofs of that in 1884, when the Abbott case, in which strong political influences were brought upon to bear. When entrusted to settle the matter, I reduced Mr. Abbott's bill from $1,080 to $680. I think, or $400 less than the claim, though I was plainly offered ‘to go half’ if I would support the original claim. The then acting Deputy Minister, Mr. Lowe, personally investigated the matter shortly after, and told me that I had done good work with no fuss about it for the public to grab on.
