New York Lawyers Make New Move-- Will Ask For Writ of Habeas Corpus, Said to Be Their Right.

SHERBROOKE, AUG. 30.—HARRY K. THAW WILL BE PRODUCED IN COURT HERE AGAIN ON TUESDAY MORNING NEXT ON A WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS OBTAINED TO-DAY IN BEHALF OF CHIEF OF POLICE BOURDEAU OF COATICOOK, WHO ARRESTED HIM AFTER HIS FLIGHT FROM MATTEAWAN.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 30.—Mr. Jerome would neither affirm or deny that Thaw was to figure in an other habeas corpus proceeding, nor would Mr. Jacobs discuss the matter. Thaw's lawyers, secure in the belief that their client would be safe in jail after their move of withdrawing their own habeas corpus writ, retired early, ignorant of the reported new move to get him into court to-day. Thaw himself in his cell in the Sherbrooke jail, half a mile from the court house knew nothing of it. E. Blake Robertson, assistant superintendent of immigration, was returning to Montreal with four inspectors when he saw Mr. Jacobs leap from the train at Magog. The train had started again before he learned why the lawyer had gone, and he had to finish the trip to Montreal. There he turned about immediately and reached here after one o'clock this morning. Mr. Jerome, while refusing to discuss what move, if any, New York state would make to-day, explained that it was the privilege of anyone to apply for a writ of habeas corpus in another's behalf and that such action in the Thaw matter would, in his opinion, be entirely legal. Should the writ be issued and sustained, the immigration authorities could at last get their hands on the Matteawan fugitive and he could be deported to Vermont, here would begin the fight for his extradition from Vermont to New York.

GEORGE SIMPSON MADE A CLEAN UP AT RYERSON SCHOOL

Onondaga Barley Best at the Big Toronto Exhibition. Mr. George Simpson, the well-known ex-Reeve of Onondaga Township and one of the most successful growers of Brant County, has just secured a second success at the big world exhibition. He won first prize for the finest sheaf of barley grown in the Province, and third prize for the best seed barley. This is the second time in recent years that Mr. Simpson has cleaned up, and his success is not only creditable to himself but to Onondaga Township.

FOUR WERE DROWNED IN A CANOE ACCIDENT

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Four persons were drowned in Adirondack lakes yesterday by the capsizing of canoes. Miss Hanna Griffith of New York, was drowned near Lawrence Point, Fourth Lake. With a Mrs. Jillson of Rochester, she was canoeing when the craft was upset by rough water. Mrs. Jillson clung to the canoe and was rescued by a motor boat. Miss Griffith's body was not recovered. On Blue Mountain Lake, Mildred Hale, Lillian Gates and Oscar Hannah, all young people, who lived on the shore of the lake were thrown into the water when their canoe capsized. Miss Gates was breathing when brought to the shore but died later. The other bodies were recovered.

Eleventh Hour Move Made By New York Lawyers to Get Hold of Harry Thaw

SHERBROOKE, Aug. 30.—Superior Judge Hutchinson granted the writ of habeas corpus for Harry Thaw, on the application of Samuel Jacobs, chief counsel for the New York State interests. It was an eleventh hour move taken to defeat Thaw's lawyers, who have succeeded in keeping him in jail, safe from the immigration authorities. Those of the Thaw lawyers who were in town, Messrs. D. White and Harry Frase, bitterly opposed the application, but Judge Hutchinson said he would thresh the matter out in open court at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Thaw was ignorant of to-day's developments. His lawyers even did not learn of it until a report of the contemplated move, sent out last night, was telegraphed back from Montreal. It was reported here that his chief lawyer, J. N. Greenshield, chartered a special train at Montreal in the hope of checking the proceedings. The writ had been issued however, Judge Hutchinson reached his chambers shortly after ten o'clock. PETERBORO INJURED ARE RECOVERING

Death Toll of Disaster Not Likely to Increase. PETERBORO, Aug. 30.—The first house service for the dead in the Turnbull store disaster was held last night at the late residence of Miss Dolly Sisson, when Rev. F. J. Sawers officiated. The house was crowded with friends of the dead girl and the service was most impressive. The body will be removed to Cavanville for interment. Several organizations have canceled programmes of entertainment and the 57th band did not give the weekly concert last night. All the injured will recover. Mrs. Finlay, of Norwood, is the most severely injured, but the physician stated that her back was not broken. Mr. E. J. Might, proprietor of Turnbull's store, is making arrangements to resume business in other premises, and it is stated that the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. will rebuild.

HYDRO CONTRACT LET --PRICE LESS THAN WAS ORIGINAL ESTIMATE

Important Meeting of The Fire and Light Committee Was Held Last Evening--Brantford Getting Ready For the Hydro Current.

A meeting of the fire and light committee was held last night in the Hydro Electric department's office, at which a number of tenders were opened and contracts awarded. The first equipment considered was the iron standards for the ornamental lighting system on the business streets. Two tenders were received, and after listening to arguments from representatives of both companies, the committee decided to award the contract to the Ornamental Lighting Pole Co., at a price of $30 per standard, f.o.b. cars, Brantford. The standards are made of cast iron and are of a very attractive design, besides being very durable and cheap to maintain. These standards will be made in Ontario. The number purchased is 152, and one half of the total quantity will be delivered by Oct. 1st, and the remainder by Oct. 15th, thus permitting their erection before the season of bad weather. Tenders were also opened for the ornamental magnetite lamps and the substitution equipment necessary to operate and control them. Special regulators and switchboard panels are required, each regulator having a nominal capacity of fifty lamps, so that the lamps will be connected in three groups of fifty. The contract was awarded to the Canadian General Electric Co. of Peterboro. The lamps were purchased f.o.b. cars Brantford, and will be installed by the Hydro Electric department. The substitution equipment, however, is to be installed complete and ready to operate by the manufacturers and the manufacturer's representative is to remain in Brantford without additional charge for two weeks after the equipment is placed in service in order to be certain that everything is in first class operating condition before it is accepted by the city. The cost of the ornamental lighting apparatus does not come out of the general estimate of course, the work being done on the local improvement plan. It is felt by the committee that the downtown lighting system is the very latest and most efficient on the market to-day, and it can be stated positively that the lighting of downtown Brantford will not be excelled in any city on the continent. The lamps are to be delivered in six weeks, and the substitution equipment in ten weeks, thus leaving a reasonable length of time for installation. The total contract price is $16,330, this being considerably less than was estimated. The last question disposed of was the main substitution equipment, consisting of transformers and a complete switching equipment. Tenders were received from five firms through the office of the Hydro Electric Power Commission at Toronto. After carefully going through the tenders, the committee decided to award the transformers to the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Co., of St. Catharines at a price of $5000, the price including installation ready for service. The switching equipment was awarded to the Canadian General Electric Co., at a price of $9,425, although this price will be reduced slightly by a few alterations in certain details of the apparatus. The price of the switching equipment includes installation by the manufacturers.

Westminster Hall Roof in Danger

Beams of Historic Structure Hollowed Out by Beetles and Building Is Closed. LONDON, Aug. 30.—Westminster hall, which now forms the vestibule to the houses of parliament, has just been closed to the public and is likely to remain so for several months as it was recently discovered that the beams of its roof had been so hollowed out by beetles that the superstructure was in constant danger of falling. Westminster hall was added to the palace of Westminster in 1290 by William Rufus and later repaired and raised to its present height by Richard II. The board of works department are calling for tenders for the refacing on the pavement on Brant Avenue.

Gleaming with stars, or clear in golden day,
Where vast clouds climb majestic into view,
And Fairy lands and columbed realms display,
A place of silences yet rich with sound,
The voice of nature thrilling through all things;
Where silver waters thread the sun-warmed ground,
And fire flies gleam with strange and fitful wings,
Where tree tops whisper close to sun and stars,
And Life's grand Truth is loved and understood,
And lovely, ever, by its sandy bars,

A wonder world, where old fantastic dreams
Of Fairyland seem possible and near,
We see their forms in twilight glooms and gleams—
And sweet elusive laughter seems to hear,
At times we wait, suspending breath and thought,
As if our fingers touched the magic gate,

LABOR DAY.

Canada on Monday will pay tribute to Labor by declaring a holiday throughout the Dominion.

Canada can well afford to pay tribute to labor because labor has paid tribute in full measure to the greatness of this Dominion and will continue to do so.

The day of play which Labor takes is fully earned, and it comes this year at a time when labor's strength was never more virile, to afford it.

Indeed Canada can well afford to close up shop and join in Labor's celebration.

CANADA'S NATIONAL.

Sister municipalities have no reason to be jealous of Canada's National Exhibition being held in the city of Toronto.

The exhibition is a reflex of the greatness of the industry of sister municipalities and the greatness of the agricultural industry of this broad Dominion. It is not only Toronto's glory to have the big National yearly; it is the glory of the entire country.

The faith, enterprise and perseverance of the big men behind Canada's National are only exceeded by the optimism of the millions who have in years past visited the great exhibition.

Toronto may well be congratulated on the wonderful success of a wonderful enterprise.

TRY AGAIN

All the world will admire the pluck and sympathize with the misfortune of Harry G. Hawker, who has come so near to success in his brilliant attempt to make a complete flight around the coast of Britain. Hawker came to within about five hundred miles of his journey's end when his hydro-aeroplane got out of control and plunged into the sea from a height of fifty feet. The air craft was wrecked, but Hawker was rescued little worse for his misadventure.

The ill-wind which blew this plucky man down almost within sight of the $25,000 prize which success would have gained was "just a piece of ghostly bad luck." Hawker has the indomitable will to try again. Good luck, which we are told, is the willing handmaid of proper perseverance, will perhaps go with him to his journey's end next time. Success is always sweeter when attained through struggles and defeats and after disappointments.

SUMMER RESORTS AND TYPHOID.

It is no new condition that associates typhoid with summer resorts. Montreal is threatened with an epidemic of typhoid, there being already sixty-two patients in the hospitals. Among the causes given for the manifestations of typhoid is the chief one, impure milk, caused from infection by bacteria in water from polluted wells, used to wash milk vessels on the farms. In many cases, the disease broke out among patients who, judged by the time of attack, in relation to the normal period of incubation, had contracted the disease at summer resorts, where polluted water and milk were used. In the popular mind a summer resort is synonymous with a health resort. But they are by no means the same. At a summer resort the same unsanitary conditions may obtain, in regard to purity or impurity of milk and water supply, as in the crowded city. Our summer resorts in this vicinity, in natural condition, are ideal as health resorts—pure air, open water and refreshing breezes. But disregard of sanitary disposal of the results of occupation, can easily, and do, too largely, create unwholesome conditions. Here is one feature about Port Dover which might be greatly improved if the port is to become the popular mecca for Brantfordites as it should. Not only in this respect, do holidays spent at summer resorts fail to be health bringers, but the mode of life, the social whirl, of the city, are very largely reproduced in the summer resorts, with relatively similar results. It is not a mere sarcasm to say that a person who returns from a holiday outing fagged out, "will be all right when he (or she) gets a rest." Holidays are good things; but, like everything else, to be beneficial, they must be taken rationally, temperately, not as to length of time, but as to mode. If one translates the winter dissipations of the city to the watering place; if one at such a place disregards the laws of health and is subjected to unsanitary conditions, the penalty of ill health or prostrating fatigue or disease will be exacted at the gay watering place as relentlessly as in the crowded city. It would be an interesting thing to know, if investigation and discovery were practicable, what percentage of those who take their holidays at summer resorts, are the better and not the worse, for their outing.

POLICE QUITE ACTIVE

Orders were recently issued by the police to fruit dealers and others to keep the sidewalks clear.

The order was good, inasmuch as it rested on a civic by-law passed a decade or so ago, when a city council had no street railway or pavement situation to make it bestir itself.

The order of removal was not good inasmuch as why, with the personnel of the police, force practically the same, had it not been enforced regularly, systematically, and impartially years back?

It looks as though there are times when constables are instructed to be officious and other protracted periods when they are instructed to be charitable.

It is just a question with many residents of this city, whether they are not over-policed, or whether they are not over-"by-lawed."

Most people, especially the ordinary merchant, will incline to the belief that Brantford is over by-lawed. Such being the case, there are by-laws more honored in the breach than in their observance. There are mouldy by-laws, rusty by-laws, sign by-laws, sidewalk and forgotten by-laws, and what not. One might cause laughter by mentioning the street railway by-law, which is, in this instance, beside the issue.

The enforcement of civic by-laws requires judgment. They are not passed to harass different interests, but apparently are frequently used for such a purpose.

A police force, with judgment, will not hound a busy merchant, and a heavy, ratepayer, over a couple of baskets or boxes temporarily occupying space on the sidewalk. A police force, without judgment, will hound the merchant, and the merchants in general will in turn hound the departmental heads of the police force. The situation is not unique, it is not without precedent, it is not even peculiar.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

There will be no issue of the Courier on Monday.

The small boys' nightmare this week is four walls surrounding a lot of desks.

No, dear reader, Brant Avenue isn't the rocky road to Dublin. It's just Westrumite.

Canadians laughed when Thaw jumped to Canada. They laughed too soon. The scene in the Sherbrooke court room this week has made real Canadians blush.

It isn't very often that a Brantford lawyer gets fired out of a police court room. Probably the unfortunate personage imagined he was in Sherbrooke Thaw theatre.

The new city hall agitation has not been dropped. It has only subsided. In order to keep up City Engineer Jones building record, we shall have to build a new school and a new city hall next year soon. Why not add a Mausoleum for those who will not be left at the Council in 1914.

The experience of Peterboro in having a building crash in while being remodelled should be a timely warning to every city in Ontario. Fortunately in Brantford there is an excellent building by-law, the work of City Engineer Jones, also an inspector under the by-law. It is only a case of following the by-law and conducting the inspection to avert such a calamity.

It is to be hoped that the Hydro-Electric commission of Ontario will successfully negotiate with the Lake Erie and Northern Railway Company for the rental of the latter's right of way into the city for their high tension wires. Both in a measure are enterprises in which Brantford as a city has invested. Brantford people don't want 16,000 volts or more over their heads on residential streets, and in the absence of practical reasons against, the Lake Erie and Northern Co., a well-bonused proposition from the beginning should assent to render a benefit to the public.

Reminiscences of Brant

By An "Old Timer" Chapter II.

The last instalment in connection with these memoirs closed with a record of the manner in which the city happened to secure its name.

In 1823, the nearest post offices to Brantford were located at Burford village on the one side, and Ancaster on the other. Later on this (then village) secured a post office of its own, and the inhabitants commenced to develop that pride which has never since come off.

John Stalta built one of the first, if not the first, house ever erected on the site of the present city. This was in the year 1805. The structure was located on the ground now occupied by the Prince Edward Hotel, near Lorne bridge—formerly the Bingham House, and of Mr Bingham, an original character, some more later on. About two years later, Mr. Enos Bunnell constructed a cabin near the ford and a little to the west of Stalta's place. Those two constituted the first building permits ever issued here; that is they would have had such been the present day procedure. In 1818 there were twelve people in this burgh, and in 1823 there were one hundred souls. There was then a blacksmith shop and three small stores, with Indians as the principal customers. In 1825, Marshall Lewis built a grist mill and in 1830 Mr. John A. Wilkes out up a distillery. Next year William Kerby built another distillery and in 1832 William Spencer put up a brewery on the property where Wickliffe Hall now stands. In 1840, the Grand River Navigation Company constructed the canal. This was the avenue, both in and out, which gave the place its first real start. At that period, railways were practically unknown, and light draft vessels were run between here and Buffalo, via the Grand River. The landing stage was situated near the present canal bridge at a point now occupied by the Woods Mill. As far as the writer is aware, Mr. George H. Wilkes is the only "Pantoflitz" now living, who used to be employed in connection with this company.

When a young man, he was pursued on one of the vessels, among those who took shares were the Six Nations Indians, who bought 1750 of them, and would now be more than glad to get the price back. For many years said canal was the only available avenue through which the produce, not alone of Brant County, but of other adjacent counties, could reach outside markets. Finally the railway was constructed, and the company's business difficulties. They approached the Town of Brantford for $200,000, and debentures were issued to that extent. Matters went from bad to worse, and finally the municipality foreclosed, ultimately one of great interest to both countries," came the comment. "As to the Thaw case, I am too good a lawyer to express an opinion on a case without having all the facts and papers before me, and especially when I do not know the law in the case. This affair is a formidable one. I think we might encounter much the same delays in England, but we would try the case on the facts." "Did you bring the Great Seal with you?" he was asked before the Canadian docked. "Ah, some marine monster was observed near the ship," replied Viscount Haldane. "Perhaps it was the Great Sea following." His first word, once off the pier, was: "Where is Broadway?" He was keen to see an electric locomotive drawing a limited train cope swiftly to the Grand Central station platform and stop; he wanted to see Delmonico's, and after that asked for the public library and Pennsylvania station. He had not been at the hotel a half hour before a star was made at further sightseeing. Lord Haldane was accompanied by his sister, Miss Elizabeth Haldane, and Sir Keith Muir-Mackenzie, Clerk of the Crown.

HALDANE SAYS "PEACE ERA IS LONG WAY OFF"

That suggested the contrast of English and American courts, and Lord Haldane said: "Of your courts and procedure I know something from study, but I had the pleasure of coming over with an old friend, Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, and he posted me a great deal on the law and courts of your country. "How is it in England? There are fewer technicalities of which advantage may be taken in our courts, I think. You offer more appeals. In appeals we are sparing. Your procedure is different to ours, especially in criminal cases."

Lord Haldane was accompanied by his sister, Miss Elizabeth Haldane, and Sir Keith Muir-Mackenzie, Clerk of the Crown.

CROQUET GAME 'IN POLICE COURT

Alex Hill Said to Have Hit Mrs. Parker With Mallet.

A dispute regarding whether or not a ball hit the other, during a game of croquet being played among a number of Indians near Victoria park, is alleged to have been the cause of an assault by Alex Hill upon Mrs. Mary Parker and as a result the accused appeared in police court this morning charged with using a croquet mallet for other purposes than to play croquet. Mrs. Parker testified that during a game of croquet, her ball hit the ball being used by Hill but the accused disputed the play. An argument followed and several names were called, after which Hill is alleged to have hit Mrs. Parker over the shoulder with the mallet. As a result the mallet was broken and Mrs. Parker claims to have been badly injured. Hill claimed that he did not hit the woman but her mallet. The accused claimed that Mrs. Parker struck him before he raised his mallet. His wife, Margaret Livingston expressed the opinion that an assault had been committed and imposed a fine of $2 and costs.

Powless Hill was charged with being drunk on the Indian list. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed. Five drunks were disposed of in short order.

Scout Notes

The Brantford Scouts will parade at the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday, Sept. 2nd, at 7.15 p. m. sharp, parading from there to Agricultural Park, where they will take part in the Tattoo.

Six entries have gone forward from this district for the marksmanship ambulance and swimming and life saving events in the Ontario competitions, and it is hoped that Brantford will carry off at least one of the trophies. Doctors E. C. Ashton, G. W. Barber, W. H. Nichol, M. N. Farris and J. W. Robinson will compose the local examining board in the ambulance section. The examinations will be conducted between the 1st and 30th of September.

Three presentations were made by the Brantford Scouts to Mr. H. H. Hamilton last night. The Scout Council, Headquarters Patrol and Scouts in general remembered Mr. Hamilton with suitable gifts. The following address was presented: H. H. Hamilton, Esq., District Scout Secy. Treas., Brantford, Ont. Dear Mr. Hamilton:

We, the member of the Brantford Headquarters Patrol of Scouts take this opportunity of expressing our sincere thanks for the splendid manner in which you have assisted us, united as Patrol, and individually as your Brother Scouts, since you have been in Brantford. We realize that your departure will leave an irreplaceable vacancy which can never be fully refilled, and while regretting the realization that "the best friends must part," we can only unite in extending to yourself and Mrs. Hamilton our warmest wishes for success and happiness in your new home. While your departure means the loss of a valued adviser and friend, by carrying out the spirit of unselfishness underlying our Scout Law, we are in some measure comforted, knowing that the Scouts and boys with whom you come in contact in the future will derive a similar benefit from your true Scout spirit of helpfulness and cheerfulness as that which we have already received. In presenting this "Thank" badge to you we do so, not for its intrinsic value but because it is the highest token of remembrance, esteem and thanks which can be bestowed by your brother Scouts of the Headquarters Patrol. Again wishing you happiness and prosperity, we remain,

 Your Brother Scouts.

Miss Nora Gaffney who has been visiting in the Queen City returned home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Whyte leave to-day on a trip to Montreal and the Province of Quebec.

Mrs. Poppelwell and Mr. and Mrs. David Wright, Brant Avenue, spent Thursday in Toronto, visiting the Exhibition.

Public Schools Re-Open In City on Tuesday Next

Congestion Reported and Re-arrangement of School Boundaries Has Been Found Necessary —Some Notes on Situation

The public schools will reopen after the summer holidays, on Tuesday next, the second of September at nine o'clock, and pupils will please return to the rooms occupied by them in June, from which they will be directed where to go by the teachers in charge.

This is the usual custom, but is doubly necessary on the present occasion, by reason of the change in the school boundaries, consequent upon the erection of the Dufferin school, in Holmlyale, and the arrangement with the trustees of Grandview, whereby a very considerable number of scholars from the city will in future attend the new school on Terrace Hill.

The map published in our issue of to-day, outlines these new divisions and the printed detail defines the new boundaries definitely.

Brantford citizens have for years had reason to be proud of their school buildings, and the latest addition at the corner of Chestnut Ave and Spring street, is possibly the best of the many good structures the city now own. There are ten rooms, large halls, teachers rooms, and every convenience, and an opportunity will be given the public in the near future to attend a formal opening.

Notwithstanding this recent addition to the public school facilities, the population is increasing so rapidly, that the board have thought it wise to purchase a very available site on Marlborough street, between Sheridan and Marlborough, and will ask the council to pass a by-law to authorize debentures sufficient to provide funds for the erection thereon of another ten room school. This should be built next year.

Nothing could illustrate the growth of the city more, than the consideration of the sum spent for some years past, in the annual upkeep of the public schools.

In 1900 the cost was $24,000, in 1905, $33,000; in 1908, $41,000, and in 1913, $62,500.00.

The total number of pupils enrolled is three thousand, two hundred, and the average daily attendance about twenty nine hundred, and there are about eighty teachers on the staff.

While criticism is frequently made of the growing volume of taxation, it is very seldom that any remarks are directed against expenditures for school purposes, as the citizens recognize that education is the first essential for a progressive people.

ROYALTY'S GUESTS DEEPLY OFFENDED AT COURT BALL

Old Rule is Revised and None Can Dance When Queen is on Floor.

SHE ANGERS DOZENS

LONDON, Aug. 30.—There are so many Americans in London now—some put the number of permanent transatlantic residents over here as high as 25,000 or 30,000—that they long have needed a directory all their own, and now they have got it—or at least an attempt at one. The Anglo-American Year Book, as it is called, which has just made its appearance, does not pretend to be anything like a complete roster of the citizens of the United States residents in this village, but it contains the names and addresses of a lot of them, including about 70 titled Americans, together with a list—and a long and imposing one it is—of the American business houses with branches in this country.

The list of titled Americans begins with the name of Lady Abinger, which is appropriate enough considering that she was the first of the long line of American peeresses, having married Lord Abinger, a distinguished Crimean officer, in 1863. The last name in the list, which one cannot read without reflecting how thoroughly the British peerage has been Americanized, is that of Lady Wolseley, who was Miss Anita Murphy, of New York, and married Sir Charles Michael Wolseley, the ninth baronet, in 1883.

The next name to Lady Wolseley's is that of Mrs. George Cornwallis West, but this will not be so in next year's issue of the year book; as the former Lady Randolph Churchill, who before that was Jennie Jerome, has decided to resume the name by which she is best known, having just obtained a divorce from her second husband.

Pitiant reading, indeed, is the residential directory of Americans in London, there being some amusing juxtapositions. For example, we have Viscountess Maidstone, cheek by jowl with Danny Maher, the jockey, while in direct rotation too, come the names of Cora, Countess of Stratford and Eugene Stratford, the "coon" impersonator, he loved for years of music hall audiences.

Poor Court Ball
As society would not do anything to make the last week of the season gay, the king and queen gave a court ball. But it could scarcely be called a success and has been much discussed ever since. It was intimated that when the queen danced no one else must take the floor, and as she danced neatly every dance, most of the guests stood gazing in amazement or loafing around, not knowing what to do. Some who did not comprehend the new etiquette, joined in the dancing, but were tipped with a golden wand by Major Crichton, one of the gentleman ushers, and requested to desist. These were quite furious, and had a lot to say afterwards, not by any means nice. But people could not be blamed for not understanding, for the very good reason that it is an old-fashioned rule revived. The present generation of dancers never remember what took place in the days of the late Queen Victoria or Queen Alexandra, who had long ceased to perform round dances when she came to the throne.

Now and again Queen Mary, who is a really fine waltzer, came back to the dais and then the general guests had their chance, poor things. It was on these occasions one could see how much the son and daughter of the ambassador were enjoying themselves dancing together. They appear to know very few in the room and suggested that the whole thing was very different from anything they had ever before seen, though the experience was amusing.

The Battenberg princess looked decidedly bored, as they had so few opportunities of asking any of the pretty girls in society on whom they are so keen, to be their partners, but Prince Arthur of Connaught had the time of his life dancing every other dance with his fiancée and her sister.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.
Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

BRANTFORD BUSINESS COLLEGE

BRANTFORD, ONTARIO, CANADA

You Are One of Our Family

If you think of our school as being a cold, hard business proposition which means so much work, study and cold cash given in exchange for knowledge and a position; if you think that is all there is to it, you are sure to be agreeably disappointed. Every person that has ever entered our school has experienced the same pleasurable surprise.

Here, you are really like one of a family where a cheerful atmosphere abounds, a feeling of sympathy, a co-operation on the part of teachers and students alike, friendly, helpful criticisms from everyone, intensely interesting tasks which impress their lessons almost automatically and without effort.

In fact, the whole atmosphere of business life in School carries with it such a feeling of profound pleasure that our boys and girls, when the time comes for them to go out to work, as come it must, always say they are sorry to leave the associations which have pleased them so much! They never fail to come back and report from time to time, recalling the good old B. B. C. days.

THESE BRITISHERS ARE RICHLY PAID FOR THEIR WORK

Asquith and Haldane Have Large Salaries and Fees.

NOT BADLY TREATED

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Up to date, no cabinet minister in this country has threatened to go on the lecture platform, on the ground that his official salary is inadequate to his needs, although David Lloyd George recently assured an investigation committee that he was a poor man on the $25,000 a year—or over twice as much as is paid to any member of the cabinet.

President Wilson's official family—which he receives as chancellor of the exchequer.

Ministers of the crown are in receipt of salaries and enjoy "perquisites" which must make the months of American ministers water if they know anything of them. One of them draws an actual stipend of $50,000, or as much as the presidency of the United States was worth until a few years ago while another gets $35,000 a year and fees in addition, which more often than not amount to more than his official pay. Three others live rent free at the expense of the public, and one of these latter, the first lord of the admiralty, has at his disposal, besides a private yacht which costs the British taxpayer something like $50,000 a year to keep up.

If William J. Bryan, for example, instead of being secretary of state for Uncle Sam, had Prime Minister Asquith's job, he would be drawing more than three times his present salary, and would also enjoy, rent free, an uncommonly comfortable as well as historic official residence.

The membership of England, it is true, is an unpaid job, the only real requisite in connection with it being its holder's privilege of occupying the famous mansion No. 10 Downing street—now the goal of suffragettes, and Scotch bailies—which often has been described, and perhaps justly, as "the most interesting house in the world." Whoever becomes premier when a new administration comes into being, however, seldom contents himself with that office, but takes into himself also the portfolio of some other minister of the crown, usually as in the case of Mr. Asquith or Mr. Balfour before him, that of first lord of the treasury, which carries with it the yearly emolument of $25,000.

Directly next to this No. 10 Downing street, situated by the river, is a historic but eminently comfortable house, where rent free again, lives the chancellor of the exchequer. It is rather a striking coincidence, by the way, that Lloyd George, who like W. J. Bryan, has come to be regarded as the tribune and advocate of the "plain people," should like his distinguished contemporary on the other side of the Atlantic, be the only member of the present cabinet to allege that his official salary is inadequate to his needs.

Of all the well rewarded members of the British cabinet, the first law officer of the crown, Sir Rufus Isaacs, has the best feathered nest. To begin with he draws a salary of $35,000 a year as compared with the $12,000 with which Attorney General McReynolds is rewarded yearly, this sum, moreover, being his emolument merely as legal adviser to the government. Unlike the American attorney general, he also appears in the courts on behalf of the crown, and gets whopping big fees for so doing. Sir Rufus Isaacs, the present attorney general, is one of the ablest of English barristers, and must have given up a law practice worth from $100,000 to $150,000 a year to accept the attorney generalship. Last year was a rich one for the attorney general, who pocketed in fees and "refreshers" between January 1 and December 31, the sum of $50,000, which makes his annual income work out at a rate less than $80,000.

The second law officer of the crown, officially known as the solicitor general, gets a salary of $30,000, and—like his distinguished chief—fees. Those pocketed by the present incumbent of the post, Sir John Simon, amounted last year to $32,275.

In the United States there is no exact counterpart of the lord chancellor who, besides acting as speaker of the upper house, is supreme head of the English judiciary, and who draws an annual salary of $50,000. When he retires, moreover, he immediately enters on a life annuity amounting to $25,000 a year. The present holder of this office is Lord Haldane, who was secretary of state for war before his elevation to the woolsack. Nobody ever has accused the lord chancellor of having a snap. Besides sitting 'told in wig and gown as speaker of the house of peers, he sits as a judge in that house, in the privy council, the court of appeal, and the chancery division of the high court of justice. He has the appointment of all justices of the peace throughout the kingdom, and all the judges of the superior courts, except the lord chief justice, who is nominated by the prime minister.

ENGLAND'S QUEEN SHOWS HER WRATH

Refuses to Meet Lady Mar and Kellie at a House Party.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—There was some surprise when Queen Mary instead of accompanying King George V. to Sudley royal, the Marquis of Ripon's place, for the grouse shooting, went direct to Balmoral with Princess Mary to join her other children.

It seems that, when the Marchioness of Ripon, as usual, submitted the list of her guests to the queen before the visit to Sudley royal, the name of Lady Mar and Kellie appeared on it.

Lady Mar and Kellie had greatly offended the queen during the recent royal visit to Lord and Lady Derby at Knowlesy.

Queen Mary desired to strike off her name from the Sudley list, but the king refused to allow this.

The upshot of the matter was that Queen Mary refused to join the house party.

Lillian Russell is Disgusted With the Exhibition in Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Lillian Russell frankly confesses that she has been scandalized by the new aids to beauty which she finds are being exploited in Paris. She says they will certainly never go to America. No purple, no yellow face powders, and no white hair for her.

"Nature is the thing," Miss Russell says. "It is all right to brighten one's color here and there and to outline the lips to increase beauty, but this sad for pallor and sickness and unnatural complexions is wrong, and nice women will not adopt them; at least nice American women will not."

WOMAN OPENLY INDORSES HAREMS

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Harems for England! Polygamy as the cure of many social evils and incidentally the settlement of the woman's question! These are the moral suggestions which Miss Grace Ellison, who edited "A Turkish Woman's European Impressions" has given society to talk about. Miss Ellison sees many good points in polygamy and regards the harem as by no means an unimproved evil.

Mary Stuart at the Apollo. The management of the Apollo is to be congratulated in bringing to this city such a well known historical drama, as the life of Mary Stuart, Queen of Scotland and France and pretender to the throne of England.

SECOND SECTION The News on T RED SOX CONTINUING LOSING STR Added Yesterday's Game Their String by 8-4 More to Play. St. Thomas 8, Brantford 3 is the sad tale which we have late in reference to the long one struggle which took place last night, yesterday afternoon. However, Brantfordites have used to taking their medicine dose will not be so disagreeable. It might have been worse. "same old tale of woe, a weak inability to hit, dumb fielding few costly errors mixed in the affair, the necessary touches, Richard Tashor was firing line, and the Saints around him and took kindly offerings and accumulated thus fattening up their batting averages. The lads from the Calamity where Jimbo was killed, went Tasker in the opening game never let up until they had had 5 hits for a total of 3 runs, not been for a double header and another on Monday, the ing crew might have been into action, but as he was to be slaughtered, the sacrifice made. Dick gave free transportation to two of the Saints in the fifth inning. Leatrice raged a little the Saints added one run in the top of the seventh, and then the more fortunate things in the bottom of the ninth, the ball over for a home run in the 8th. Brantford lost their third a run in their half of the 9th, as son doubled and Rowe did it. Both teams were blanked in, and another win was added to Saints' credit. HEART-BALM SUITS CAUSE OF ANXIETY

Settlement of Action for $250,000 Against Lord Northampton is Questioned

LONDON, August 30.—All the world and his wife are still talking of the record damages of $250,000 in the breach of promise case, in which Lord Northampton paid up without letting the case go to trial. The question which has an interestingly brought to the front have an interest for men and women alike, for all who are parents, for all who are lovers, for all grades of human society in fact.

They are not new questions by any means, for they have brought tragedy to innumerable lives at one time or another, and will continue to do so. However far the state may proceed in taking over the responsibilities of parenthood—and the eugenists would have it assume the right of forbidding marriage at all, in the case of the mentally or physically unfit—there will always be fathers, if not mothers, who believe themselves entitled to sanction or veto the matrimonial arrangements of their sons and daughters if they think it desirable to do so. Equally will there always be sons and daughters of sufficient independence of spirit to claim to do as they wish in so entirely personal and individual a matter as marriage.

Asked Who Make Best Peers. The question that many are asking is: Who make the best peers? And the topic of the Markham versus Northampton case has set everybody discussing with widely differing opinions, some going so far as to say that actions for breach of promise of marriage should be abolished altogether. Rev. F. D. Meyer, who is known in America as in England, for his strong views on the marriage and divorce question, was very outspoken in favor of the existing law.

"I think it is quite fair," he said.

"If a man makes an offer to a girl and does not keep it he must pay. Poor people manage these things much better than the middle classes and the rich. They walk out together without actually being engaged, and both parties have a chance of knowing each other. Better class people on the other hand, only meet each other at balls or parties or in the green room of the theater, and consequently know little of each other before engagement.

"In America now a young fellow can take a girl to a theater, a concert, or a picnic without being considered engaged.

Simple Proposition.

"Actions for breach of promise of marriage ought no more to be abolished than actions for the breach of any other contract," said Mr. Freke Palmer, a well-known solicitor. "If a man becomes engaged to a girl and then breaks off because he has become attached to another he must pay. It is a simple proposition. The girl has suffered damage because her chances of marriage have been lessened through sticking to one man for several years. Then she suffers in feelings. A jilted girl is jeered at by her friends, and generally she is made to feel small.

"It is all very well to say that it is a sort of thing to bring beautiful sentiment down to a commonplace monetary transaction. But women must have some recompense, and the only recompense is money. The only way to punish men who break contracts is through their pockets. Defendants who have no money, unfortunately cannot be punished at all."

"A woman should suffer in silence," said Mrs. Harold Gorst, the well-known writer and author of "The soul of Milly Green." "All actions for breach of promise should be abolished. But this is not the view of all women, many of whom argue that if a man breaks his promise he should pay because the woman has lost a chance of being supported. To one the idea is repulsive, and I cannot understand how any woman can cheapen her feelings by bringing such an action. It is a great confession of weakness. It is much better if a girl has been jilted that she should

English Queen, Always a Great Stickler for Royalty's Rights, Insists Daughter be First Bridesmaid at the Duchess of Fife's Wedding

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A rifle range is the latest acquisition of the militant suffragettes. Its location is kept a close secret, but an official of the Women's Social and Political Union had admitted its existence and stated that the range was in use every day by members of the organization, who are rapidly becoming expert shots.

This week's issue of the Suffragette, the official organ of the W.S.P.U., contains an advertisement offering to teach women to shoot straight. The official who gave the information in regard to the rifle range said that the next repulsive step for the government, which they fear will be the use of the recently enacted Mental Deficiency bill to confine the suffragette leaders in asylums where they will not be amenable to the usual court procedures. If any of the leaders are confined under the new act, the resolution not to endanger human life would be rescinded and the skill acquired at the butts would be brought into play.

English Queen, Always a Great Stickler for Royalty's Rights, Insists Daughter be First Bridesmaid at the Duchess of Fife's Wedding

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The greatest interest had been taken in the announcement that Princess Mary would make her public appearance as a bridesmaid at the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife, but it is now doubtful if she will do so.

Her mother, Queen Mary, who is a great stickler for all the rights and prerogatives of the royal family, of which, of course, the bride and bridegroom are members, declares that if Princess Mary acts as bridesmaid she must be the first bridesmaid and head the procession. The young Duchess of Fife desires her own younger sister, Princess Maud, to have that position, which under ordinary circumstances she is entitled as the bride's nearest relative. The young Duchess is supported in this by her mother, the princess royal, and by Queen Mother Alexandra, but Queen Mary has insisted that either her daughter must take precedence over the other bridesmaid, or she will not be allowed to go to that capacity at all.

These letters have been in charge of King George's bankers, King Edward's Letters to Be Destroyed. There are probably few memoirs which publishers would print more keenly just now than the private letters and diaries of the late King Edward. Some of the interesting matter may even now be in the process of being destroyed for during the visit of Queen Mother Alexandra to Balmoral a certain portion of King Edward's private correspondence is to be destroyed.

English Queen, Always a Great Stickler for Royalty's Rights, Insists Daughter be First Bridesmaid at the Duchess of Fife's Wedding

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The greatest interest had been taken in the announcement that Princess Mary would make her public appearance as a bridesmaid at the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife, but it is now doubtful if she will do so.

Her mother, Queen Mary, who is a great stickler for all the rights and prerogatives of the royal family, of which, of course, the bride and bridegroom are members, declares that if Princess Mary acts as bridesmaid she must be the first bridesmaid and head the procession. The young Duchess of Fife desires her own younger sister, Princess Maud, to have that position, which under ordinary circumstances she is entitled as the bride's nearest relative. The young Duchess is supported in this by her mother, the princess royal, and by Queen Mother Alexandra, but Queen Mary has insisted that either her daughter must take precedence over the other bridesmaid, or she will not be allowed to go to that capacity at all.

REV. LLEV INTEREST VAC

Modern social and industrial reformers would divide the 24 hours of each day into 8 hours of work, 8 hours of recreation, and 8 hours of rest. We will have to go before that ideal will be real no one can seriously question its advisability and even the need of a period of rest from the tasks of life. When God made him for both work and rest. He set aside 22 days a year for "rest from his labors."

Every man who is an honest worker is entitled to a vacation. He better work for it. The intense and taxing the strain daily toil then the greater duty for a vacation and prolonged one where possible.

It is night in camp. Dawn breaks ("Morning" from "Peer Gyn" suite by Grieg). The bugle blows the reveille. The organ gradually swells to its full power, suggesting the glory of the day.

These are only a few of the many attractions which awaited those who went this summer to Ocean Grove. The management had something interesting every day on the program. Great preachers were there such as Dr. Courtland Myers of the Tremont

There is a musical feature of Ocean Grove that attracts great attention and that is "The Storm" as played by Mr. Reynolds. It is not uncommon to see a 1,000 people waiting to get into the auditorium to hear this wonderful production.

The storm has been gradually drawing nearer, and soon it breaks in all of its fury. The rushing wind howls and moans, the rain comes down in torrents; the fearful thunder crashes and vivid lightning flashes combine to make a storm that will not soon be forgotten.

Helpful Hints for Those Who Are Willing to Learn

THE TEST OF FRIENDSHIP

By Martha Wickes

THEY lived next door to each other, and their houses were of the same style with the same number of rooms, the same size grass yard at the rear and the same number of square feet of front porch. To be sure they had not been neighbors very long. It was not more than two weeks since the L— had moved into that neighborhood, but that was long enough for Mrs. L— and Mrs. R— to discover that they were kindred souls and in spite of three weeks the two women were calling each other Helen and Laura and exchanging old confidences when ever they met, which was several times a day.

To them their friendship was the most wonderful thing since the creation. It was different from every other brand of friendship that had ever been tried. It was of such depth and loyalty that Helen declared it brought the tears to her eyes just to think of it. They held long, earnest sessions in each other's living rooms or on their porches and discussed their mutual preferences in detail. They read the same books, and saw the same plays and thought the same thoughts, until it was hard to tell where Helen's personality ended and Laura's began.

Helen declared that not even death could sever the bond between them. She believed in reincarnation, she said, and she was sure she had known Laura in some other life, because she felt those strange influences much more strongly than did most people and from the minute she had first set eyes on Laura she had been drawn to her. Laura thought this was wonderful, and said she only wished herself half as "deep" as Helen. Helen said she thought Laura had a profound and lucid mind and then both women pruned themselves like peacocks.

It was while this beautiful state of affairs was at its height that Helen's husband, who was a traveling salesman for a wholesale shoe house came home. Helen had impressed upon Laura's mind that Irving was the handsomest as well as the most fascinating man in the world. That when he was on the road the girls in the neighborhood made, were always attempting to get into his confidence. Helen spoke of these amorous ones with infinite pity. She said that at length on the depth, beauty, strength, thickness and inexhaustible generosity of Irving's love for her and Laura, who was a widow, the fascinating type, wagged her blonde head sympathetically and said such love was indeed hard to find. She confessed that she was "terribly" anxious to meet Irving, simply because he was dear Helen's husband and hoped that he would like her, as well as she knew she should like him.

When Irving arrived he had hardly had time to turn around before he was seized next door by Helen to meet Laura. That night Laura was invited to Helen's to play cards. The next night Helen took the two women to the theatre, and the following night Laura did an entertaining. Between times while Irving was at the office of his firm, the two women spent a great deal of time conversing. Helen with all the attraction of a friend, at first Irving was inclined to regard her with a high degree of disapproval. He grumbled a loud tone of voice about never seeing a minute alone with Helen, and declared that he didn't intend to have his bleached blonde butting in every time he spoke to his wife to go out with her. Helen was shocked and resented Irving's unsympathetic attitude. She smiled him with tears in her eyes.

never to let dear Laura see that he didn't like her. She explained that Laura was such a sweet, sensitive soul. Laura was so different from any other woman she had ever known that it would simply break her heart to know that the husband of her dearest friend had made such cruel, slighting remarks about her. Then Helen tried gently to explain to her grumbling spouse in just what way Laura was different from her other women friends. She dwelt lovingly on their unity of soul, and referred mysteriously to the invisible bond that linked their destinies together.

IRVING said that kind of talk was all bosh and that he didn't believe two women could be good friends if they tried. He said men's friendships were the only kind that lasted, because men didn't fall all over one another, but took things for granted without any show of flattery. Helen replied loftily that she and Laura would prove themselves exceptions and Irving skeptically retorted that they would have to show him before he'd believe it.

Helen determined that Laura should never know Irving's sentiments, but when she saw Laura the next day she could not refrain from telling her that Irving didn't seem to understand their friendship. Laura admitted that she had noticed Irving's lack of cordiality. She thought that all this would be change when he learned to know her better. She would try very hard to win his friendship. Helen reiterated that no matter what Irving's feelings were she would always be loyal, and the two women exchanged a great deal of "bosh" and parted in an exalted frame of mind.

The next time that Laura entered Helen's house she made a laudable effort to get into Irving's good graces. Irving thawed perceptibly and that afternoon when he had gone to the office, the inseparables fell into each other's arms with joy over the victory.

Helen predicted that if Laura kept on the way she had been, Irving was sure to like her. So Laura "kept on" and one day Irving remarked with enthusiasm that Laura certainly was a fine little woman and very different from the rest of them. Helen agreed with him, but a day later she asked him why he considered Laura so different, and if he really liked her. He declared that Laura had a lot of dash and cleverness, and that now that he had "learned to know her," he certainly thought she was "a winner." He understood, now, why she, Helen, had chosen Laura for her best friend. He thought it would be nice to ask Laura to go to the seashore with them when they went down next month. Helen answered in a colorless tone that it would be lovely, but she didn't think she wanted to go to the shore. She thought they had better go to visit her mother.

That afternoon she wrote a long letter to her mother, and that evening when Irving suggested that they invite Laura in for a game of cards Helen developed a frightful headache. For three days she declared herself too tired and weak for any kind of amusement. At the end of the week a letter came from Helen's mother with a pressing invitation to visit her. Helen said that the fresh country air was what she needed and they had better pack up and go at once. She was so busy during the next two days that she had very little time to talk to her erstwhile friend. Laura offered to go to the train to see them off, but Helen said it always made her too sad to say good-by to the station.

Helen and Irving stayed four weeks at the farm. Helen recovered rapidly but she said that she thought their house in the city was damp. Besides she didn't like the neighborhood. She preferred to live in the north side of the city. As soon as they returned to town she would go out house hunting.

When they did return Laura greeted Helen affectionately. She wondered why Helen hadn't written her. Helen said cordially that she was a very unsatisfactory correspondent. Irving said Laura was looking fine and invited her in to play cards that night, but Helen complained that she was tired and had hoped Laura would excuse her. Suddenly Laura saw a great light. It shed its beams over a number of things that had been obscure. Thus another death-defying friendship between two women received its quietus from its world-old enemy, a man.

A Few Facts About Sashes

Periodically sashes force themselves upon the attention of womanhood and at no season are they more cordially received than during the Summer. The new fad is to wear a white net sash with any white lingerie frock that is sufficiently elaborate for that sort of accessory. The net sash need not be more than three yards long, but it should be of generous width and it must be given an inch wide border of plain or fancy silk, satin or velvet ribbon. If anywhere about the white frock there is a touch of color, then the bordering of the sash must be of the same hue, but the all-around seviceable net sash is bordered with white satin or with black velvet ribbon. If one wears formal frocks frequently, a black net sash bordered with velvet or satin will be a convenience and it may be said, in passing, that this same black sash does duty often for a neck scarf. Colored sashes in mourning crepe.

Another form of the new head dress, made without the fancy and ending in a bow at the back.

of the figure and knotted low on the opposite hip. When getting on of these mourning crepe sashes it is advisable to buy enough more for a hat crown, as these are to be again fashionable during the first few weeks of the Autumn, at which time the Summer sash may be transformed into a neck scarf.

FAN AND POWDER PUFF SET Fan and powder puff sets have come suddenly in favor as a portion of the Summer girl's outfit. They are in the form of ribbon chateaines to be suspended from the sash or belt, or merely secured to the frock at the waist line with a fancy pin. The fan is a dainty hand-painted affair in white celluloid and the powder puff is concealed in a tiny round box of the same material. Often there is added a tiny mirror set in a square frame of celluloid and protected by a lid of the same composition. Altogether a cute little "trick" which is very convenient to have at hand and easily carried about. It makes a charming little favor for a girl's luncheon party.

THE FEATHER MEDICI RUFF Collect every scraggly feather end wherever it is possible to get them from and keep the store a dark secret until you have enough to make over into a medici ruff, of the sort that crosses the back of the collarless neck and terminates in two fluffy ends just in front of the shoulders. In a word, it is a length measuring about ten inches, but as thick and fluffy as the remnants of ostrich plumes are sufficient to make it. Light feathers are best as they can easily be dyed cerise, French green, old rose, pastel blue or deep orange, but, on the other hand, the black ruff, which can be made from dark shades is always useful.

HAIL THE SURCINGLE It's actually a surcingle, the belt of plain suede cut so wide that it measures fully ten inches across and of even width for its entire length. Tallorish, too, if it is for its edges are neatly stitched at both sides and snuggest ends, and it fastens with a buckle of self material that extends straight across one end and helps to

THE NECK CHATELAINE The neck chateaine has almost put the necktie out of fashion this Summer. Partly because it is inexpensive, but chiefly because it is a novelty that has a distinct use. On to the neck chateaine, which is merely a yard long strip of larch and a half wide black and white striped ribbon, is hung either a jeweled change purse or a jeweled vanity mirror. Both are of infinitesimal size, as small as ever was a necktie, but the one holds enough carfare for a trip downtown with a glass of soda water or a frappe d'orange in hand, at least in the case of the vanity mirror.

WREATHED FAN BAGS Even the inconspicuous little bag of plain toned satin which holds the tiny fan of satin and mother of pearl must now be decorated on at least one side of its exterior. Wreaths and garlands of fresh flowers, in dainty little bunches of blue, mauve, green and yellow are placed flatly against the folds of the bag and give it distinct character in contrast to the plainness of yesterday. And now that these kind decorations were insufficient, the ends of the ribbon hangers are joined under a tiny nosegay, so that when the bag is slung from the wrist the effect may be pretty.

NEW SKIRT LENGTHS The majority of skirts will be short, in fact, very short. Costliness for dressy occasions will have skirts as short as those for tailored suits, and such a thing as a street dress with a skirt that reaches the mid-thigh will be ridiculous. All skirts will be narrow, or at least narrow in effect, and most of them will have the upturned drapery at the front.

THE NEW COLLAR A feature note particularly in wreath, but also appearing in suits and dresses is the collar, which in its original form is nothing more than a wadded upright of a straight piece of towel, heavily embroidered with embroidery or heavily starched. It is made this new, ever designers have used of all kinds of collar base or crepe.

DUTCH ROMPERS SMART The last cry in rompers for children of between one and five years of age is the Dutch boy's play suit. Everybody who has ever seen a Dutch folk picture knows the model. The waist, which fastens in the back, is made in one straight piece, fits the figure exactly and has medium-sized arm eyes into which long sleeves are sewed. There is no fullness to the blouse about the waistline, where it buttons daily onto the broad band of the trousers, which are exceedingly full about the hips, and below the knees fit the legs and ankles closely. Instead of the pockets being slunk into the side seams of the trousers, they are put on in patch style at the front of the hips and are large enough to carry any reasonable amount of childish "junk." The model which made the hit with fond mothers has a waist of Turkey red cotton and trousers of dark blue cotton, but the rompers are also very cute-looking in tan and dark brown and in white with any dark shade. The beauty of these new rompers is that the little girl wearing them is best as they can easily be dyed cerise, French green, old rose, pastel blue or deep orange, but, on the other hand, the black ruff, which can be made from dark shades is always useful.

PANNIER PURSES Pannier purses are so called because they hang from the belt by a leather chateaine long enough to fall to the edge of the left hip. The bag, which precisely matches the chateaine, is made of the usual shopping size, but is oblong in shape and very substantially made with the fastening at the side instead of the usual wide mouth opening at the top. The idea of the pannier bag is to rid the hands of the encumbrance of change purse, vanity case and handkerchiefs. After all these necessary trifles have been accumulated, there still is space for cards, memoranda pad, etc.

This hat shows the newest thing in trimming. It is called "The Paradise Tree" and will be much worn this Autumn.

A Good Memory a Social Asset

By Mrs. Edward Brunson Clark

WHAT do you do," said a friend to me the other day. "When somebody greets you socially and you haven't the least idea of his name?" Why, I usually try to be as diplomatic as possible and discover who it is by a shrewd glance at the name tag. The best thing is to be frank and let the person frank for socially acceptable frankness degenerates sometimes to brutality. So I usually say something like this: "I can't quite recall your name although I know it should be very familiar to me," and then of course I get the desired information. I think we should train our minds to remember both faces and names and we are young," said my friend. It seems to me the woman who is always forgetting names and faces is in a way guilty of a breach of good manners. The faculty of remembering faces often makes all the difference between success and failure in making friends. I agree with you absolutely," said my friend. How often do we hear people say, "I never can remember faces. It's a curse for me to try to remember faces. I should have been cut off at birth by somebody by cutting him dead because my memory is so bad I didn't even know him from Adam." And yet these same women, when they meet a man, will hear talking in this way, do not seem to realize that this sort of memory, the lack of which they are deploring, can be and should be cultivated. I used to be a great offender in this respect once upon a time when all at once I began to realize that I was making myself unpopular by my heedlessness, so I took measures to correct it. "How did you go about it," I have often longed to cultivate a better social memory, but I didn't know quite what to do. "I decided that the chief reason that makes most of us forget people we have met is indifference. We do not pay sufficient attention to what we are seeing. Nowadays whenever I meet anybody, I study his features and in the course of my conversation with him I try, if I can do so without making him conspicuous or sounding in any way queer, to repeat his name several times and usually when I have done this both face and name will return to my memory the next time we meet. "One of the cleverest women that I know goes even farther than this and takes both name and face with some point of interest. And she makes herself liked everywhere she is by this convenient faculty. For instance, she will say to a woman whom perhaps, she has not seen for six months, "I'm so glad to see you Mrs. Blank. Did you enjoy the trip to Bermuda that you were thinking of taking the last time I saw you. "Now Mrs. Blank if she is at all like the average specimen of humanity is greatly flattered by this memory of her affairs and considers any friend an exception. popularity grows. This all sounds so easy when we discuss it. In this way and yet it is something that only those who are clever socially ever think of. "I once knew a woman—in my opinion she had only about a teaspoonful of brains, but many thoughtful people considered her clever—who believed it was smart not to remember anybody she did not think socially important. She wanted to impress one with the fact that she belonged to an extremely small, but exclusive circle, and she made a point of looking blank whenever she met anyone whom she knew but slightly. "Was she successful socially," said I. "I wish, I really don't think that she was," said my friend. "After she had pursued these tactics for several years she found that she was missing many desirable invitations and to make a long story short, that she had more enemies than friends. "One has only to read history," said I. "to find that the faculty of remembering names and faces has been an invaluable asset to many famous men and women. It is said of Napoleon that he could call all his old soldiers by name and that being recognized by the man of destiny was more valued than a decoration by all who served under him. "I remember reading somewhere," said my friend, "that John Cassin had cultivated the same gift and always greeted his legionaries by name. I suppose most beloved commanders of past times did the same thing. I wonder if they do it nowadays." "I should hardly not," said I. "In other days we depended more upon the personal equation than it does now. In those times of machine guns and aero-
