A FEARFUL EXPERIENCE IN THE WILDS OF BURMA.

Story of an English Engineer Who Was Captured by the Natives and Used For Bait In a Trap Set For a Man Eating Monster.

Burma was a most disturbed country Burma was a most disturbed country from 1852 till 1856. I had my share of rolugh work, for I was detailed to survey and explore the country with a view to opening it out by roads, writes Henry Stone in The Wide World Magazine. I was quite young and owed my posi-tion to my knowledge of surveying and civil engineering, which I had learned at civil engineering, when I had rearrow as school at Woolwich. I was surveying a line for a road between Prome and Ran-gun. I cannot give details, as I have not my diaries by me, but one day some vil-Dagers came to ask me to shoot some ele-phants that were destroying their dhan (paddy fields).

ringizeacers, who looked like twins, were killed the rest would go back quietly into the yomahs. I was not particularly busy that day, so lagreed to go out. I had a long trudge, and, sure enough, I came on, the two in-separables and accounted for them both. But the day was overcast. We strayed erratically. Finally night came on, and our men acknowledged that they did not know their way out of the forest. I ought to have mentioned that Moung Goung Gee, an independent warrior, half soldier and wholly a dacoit, was in arms at this time and appeared here and there from time to time. Wherever he met our troops he was defeated, of oourse, but as a rule he only attacked outlying towns, tor-turing the people and levying blackmail wherever possible. His whereisbuts, how-ever, had not been heard of for some time, and as there was no hope of our getting back to ny headquarters we lit fires and composed ourselves to sleep. I suppose it was between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. when we were savagely awakened, and before we knew for certain whether the wes scenped bound and taken off

As for those with me, he said they had been warned what' their fate would be if they assisted the kala logue. He ordered them off for instant torture and execution, but I cannot describe the horrid nightmare to this day. About 5 p. m. Strangely enough, I once had an im-pression that a cat's tendency was to travel north and to face the north as a magnet does, and that this tendency had some intimate association with the electric-al strength of its fur. In brief, I looked upon a cat as a lightning conductor on as-small scale, and that according to its temperament, negative or positive, did it face north or south, or just as the points of its fur were attracted by the negative or positive poles of the earth. I was led to this by some observations that I had made some years previously in a London suburb. Then I noticed that the cats of that par-ticular district had a tendency to walk in particular directions on the walls that faced the north rather than to walk on walls that ran east and west. As to the idea that cats are good weather gauges, I do not credit that. I believe that the reason a cat washes itself over its ears or not is bound up with the particular method by which the particu-lar animal cleane itself. Its main object in washing, to my mind, is just to complete an electrical circuit, for by so doing its generates heat and therefore a pleasing sendation in its fur. — Cassell's Magazine. It has been suggested that she unravaled her stockings and again that she plucked the golden hairs from her head, but why will folks be so dreadfully prectical? It is sufficient that the hand-made lace of Flanders is the most ex-quisite thing wrought by human fingers, and the fatal looms have almost de-stroyed its art with their new industry. It was the elegant Marie Antoinetto who, spiendid lace worn in profusion at the courts of Louis XIV and XV were re-placed by the gauzes and muslins of the queen, and, though the Empress Josephine brought back the fashion, it has never perduced perfect-too perfect-initations and cheapened the marvelous labor of years. Pleasures of Boarding Round. Many of the experiences of the student h doctor in "boarding around" a generation ago are amusing. I offered large bribes to my custodians to let me escape, but they only scoffed at me. How slowly did the hours, pass. The cold was bitter, but I must have dozed off all the same, for I remember being awak-ened by a clammy something crawling over me. My heart leaped into my mouth. It was only a rock snake, however, creep-ing through the bars and seeking an exit somewhere. Oh, the ghastly leathsome-ness of feeling that cold, creepy reptile gliding over my poor, palpitating body! I thanked God when the snake found an outlet somewhere and disappeared. There was a partition of bamboos between him and me, but I anticipated that he would soon domolish that and then tear me to pieces as I lay huddled up helplessly. It appeared afterward, however, that the Karen girl's brother had been forced to erect the trap and had made the parti-tion of male bamboos of great strength. In the darkness I could see the great, luminous, wistful eyes of the man cater. The fearful brute, finding he could not get in to me, began to inset his paws gently, but I crept up to the outer bars, and then he could barely reach me. HIGH SCHOOL CONCERT.

On Friday evening a large number of Athenians joined the high school students in attendance at a concert held under the auspices of the school, The literary numbers were contri-outed by Prof. Shepard of Albert College, Belleville, and, by special re-quest, they were nearly all in a light, humorous vein. It was intended, Principal, Mills explained, that the concert should serve to relieve the edium of the close, hard study that tedium of the close, hard study that was characterizing the term, and it very fully discharged this function. Prof. Shepard possesses a fine voice and his impersonations were excellent. Humorous passages from Dickens' works, admittedly difficult of interpre-tation were well presented by the tation, were well presented by the Professor and beartily enjoyed by the udience. not the sap which went up in the spring descending, but new sap, which is going up. No one ever speaks of the sap in a corn-stalk going down in the fall. It has fed the leaves and matured the corn, and its work ended there. So in the tree each year the sap has finished its work when the leaves have matured and a new crop of sap at once begins to take its place. Of course this sap cannot ascend when the wood is frozen, but whenever the wood is thaved it keeps ascending. Another error is that trees in growing carry their branches up with them as they grow, or, to make it plainer, that a limb which is five feet from the ground will in time be ten feet. The fact is that limbs grow as much lower on the lower, side as they do higher on the upper side and no "more. A limb which is an inch in di-ameter, if it grows to be three inches, will be an inch farther from the ground on the upper side and an inch nearer on the under side. The forks or crothes in trees often get to be considerably higher from the two branches which form it growing together as they increase in size. foundation. Be that as it may, the Pasteur institute has recently found that cider is a bacteri-cide. The Normans often make cider with dirty water, and even pretenti that pure water does not make good cider. The inwater does not make good cider. The in-stitute, investigating Norman cider in search of bacteria, has observed that the bacillus of typhold dies in elder in two to 18 hours, owing to acidity. The cider should contain at least 9 per cent of mailo acid to produce this effect, otherwise the bacillus will exist for three or four days, and if the liquor is neuter, for more than 30 days. Ordinary cider, however, possesses at least 9 per cent of malie acid, and consequently if it is not drunk for 18 or 20 hours there is no danger of typhold fever.—London Globe. the middle of the 17th century. at makers wax may be tested by any boy in a manner that will actorial his his playmates. First let it be said that the ether pene-trates all space. It is as rigid as steel and yet so flexible that it does not retard the passage of planets through space in the least. It is an invisible substance which travels in waves through all things. Now, to illustrate the nature of such a paradox-ical material Lord Kelvin searched every-mbers and at last concluded that shoe: and at last concluded that sho nakers' wax represented it best. nade tests and this is what he found: He

Lord Charles Beresford was on Satur-day night the guest of honor at a ban-quet given by the Commercial Club of Chicago. In the morning Lord Charles paid a visit to the Board of Trade. Busi-ness was susponded on the floor, and he was escorted by President Lyon to the visitors' gailery between two lines, of theering and shouting brokers. His speeches in response dealt with his ain to have a commercial understandin for an open door in China between the Britain, Japan, Germany and the United States. He melled some wax in a common glass tumbler. After it had hardened he tried to thrust a lead penell through it. It would not go. Then he placed a coin on the surface of the wax and left it there for everal days. When he again visited it, the coin had sunk to the bottom of the 1 glass. The wax had closed over it and by lifting up the glass and looking through the bottom he, could see the coin lying i there. Had the wax been as deep as a well the to would have gone on sinking un-til it reached the bottom. This proved that the wax would conform only to very slow movements. If he had tried to push it too fast, it would have resisted him. An idee struck the scientist. If the wax acted like this toward the coin, how would it toward an object which floated? He ac-cordingly placed a cork in a tumbler and poured hot shoemakers' wax upon it. The wax hardened with the cork at the bot-tom. Yet when Lord Kelvin looked at the bottom of the glass in a day or two he found the cork had disappeared. It was somewhere in the mass of wax and proba-bly rising very slowly, but surely, toward the top. Sure enough. After a given period of time the cork peeped above the surface of the hard wax and finally it rose to a point where it remained half imbedded in the wax, just as it would have done in a glass of water. It rose no higher than this, however, and a corkscrew probably would not have pulled it from the wax. Yet its own buoyancy had raised it ap from the bottom, through what seemed an impene-He melted some wax in a common glass umbler. After it had hardened he tried own buoyancy had raised it ap from the botton, through what seemed an impene-table mass of wax. This, in fact, is the peculiarity of shoe-makers' wax, that it resists all sudden or quick movements, but is highly susceptible to very slow and prolonged pressure. If you pressed a flation hard down on a lump of wax on a fable it is probable you would make no impression on it, but if you let that iron resting on the wax for a day or two, you would find the lump flat-tened out under the iron. So curious is this property of the wax that taning forks have been cash from pieces of it. These forks were capable of vibration, giving a musical note and being set going by vibra-tion for another tuning fork, yot when one of them was laid across the open mouth of a jar it slowly collapsed and fell into the jar in a shapeless, sticky mass. Any boy may perform these experiments, and the lesson in physics to be got therefrom is no less valuable than the amusement which the performance affords. — Cificinnati Commercial Tribune.
