Lake Windermere.

Less favored than many a lake in song,
Yet whispering tales of days gone by,
Encouraging and making strong
Imagination's restive cry,
With depths transparent, pure and clear,
Sleeps undisturbed fair Windermere,
The lake of lakes, fair Windermere.

Protected by encircling hills,
Whose cloud-swept peaks rise high o'er
head;
Sought out by myriad sparkling rills
Through shadow and through sunshine led,
Which fast and faster onward go,
And gaily leap to the sea's embrace,
And lose themselves in the lake below.

A peaceful night in early June,
One of those glorious eventides
With heaven and earth in perfect tune,
While rest on nature's bosom lies,
And summer's scented perfume rare
Floats upward on the silent air,
Borne heavenward by the silent air.

Close-hung with vines, an old church-
tower
Quite near, attracts my thoughtful mood,
Grey, quaint, and grim, a night-hawk's
sower,
And crumpling shelter for her brood.
Below, in quiet confusion cast,
Are tomb-stones, relics of the past,
Low crouching relics of the past.

Now suddenly the belfry's height
Is shaken, as a trembling chime
Sends forth its welcome to the night,
The faint hum of the evening breeze,
The summit gained I turn, and lo!
A wondrous scene spread out below,
Beneath the star-light, far below.

A tortoise, turf floored path just here
Winds upward 'neath low-arching trees,
Seeking a lonely hill-top near,
Where gently lies the evening breeze.
The summit gained I turn, and lo!
A wondrous scene spread out below,
Beneath the star-light, far below.

Long time I look on vale and hill,
On hill and higher peak beyond,
On dreaming lake, so cold and still,
Yet sparkling like a diamond.
Now, though the sun has gone to rest,
His glory lingers in the West,
Beyond the mountains, toward the West.

'Mid the deep silence, thro' my soul
Burge thoughts that I could not express,
Visions of greatness o'er me roll,
Some to inspire and some depress.
Beyond the hills my thought
To far-off homes, to much-loved friends;
True, home-like home; true friendly friends.

I think of you, from age to age,
This living, dying, changing world
Has plunged through space in cosmic rage,
In myriad revolutions whirled.
A mixture of things diverse,
A mate, a universe,
An un-kissed, storm-swept universe.

By battle, earth quake, famine cured,
By superstition's alms o'erspread,
In passion's bosom fondly nursed,
Through pleasure's dangerous path way led.
A God-cursed, God-neglected thing,
Bound which the shrouds of error cling,
Vice, darkness, dampness, errors cling!

Now turn the picture; there is still
A love-light pure, a glory rare,
For heaven-born love all ill doth kill,
All sin destroys, all ill doth clear.
A God blessed earth, by Him above
Made holy through the reign of love,
Peace, honor, justice, temperance, love.

I view again this lone retreat,
Far from the heavy tramp of trade,
Far from the world—dust, din, and heat,
In beauty's robes arrayed,
And wondering, wonder which it came,
And how it always has the same,
Through rolling centuries the same?

I doubt not, that at earliest dawn
You peeks from ocean depths emerged,
And warm and light from heaven were drawn.
While all around the sea still surged,
The richest verdure clothes these steep,
Though 'neath the waves all England sleeps
Save these high hills-top, England sleeps.

Surrounding waters; arching sky;
Which solemn, silent converse hold.
Naught else is seen—no busy throng,
Till now King Neptune's liquid mid
Fair Briton's tale no more concerns.
Her virgin beauty she reveals,
Queen of the waves, her strength reveals.

Now history opens wide her scroll,
Writes a new name in lines of light,
A name blessed by Dirce's control,
Shining with holy radiance bright.
Grandeur and mightier grows the State,
In wisdom, truth and love most great,
New year of nations, wondrous great.

Men, phantom-like, their sojourn here
Pursue, then vanish into naught.
Nations appear and disappear
From realm of fact to realm of thought.
Yet through it all fair Windermere
Sleeps calm and still, shines pure and clear,
In tranquil innocence, clear.

While Dane and cruel Northman fight,
Charmed by the echoing battle-cry,
While Norman skill and Norman might
For mastery, England vie,
This vale with Nature's gifts replete,
Lies calm and perfect and complete.
By mountain peaks shut in, shut out,
The lake looks upward to the stars,
And nature's love-song, pure, devout,
No human-toned human voice shares,
The centuries heard that sacred lay,
Summer and winter, night and day,
More holy grow with each new day.

And craft the lakelet's bosom touch,
She shudders at the unholiest touch.
The ancient oak, loud groaning, falls,
The grassy turf is out and torn,
Rough huts are seen and rude stone walls.
The sighing breeze softly mourns,
Near by an oak-tree sentry keeps,
Unchecked by morn, celestial praise.

Yet friends to nature, you are found
Amongst mankind's degenerate race,
About whose hearts the muse has wound
Life-giving thoughts none can efface.
And as their voices such tale and hill
Wakes from its morning death-like chill,
Warmed back to life, no longer chill.

These paths the musing Woodworth trod,
Gentle in spirit, great in mind,
Beloved of men, beloved of God,
His peer Winander ne'er may find.
Above his grave the west wind weeps,
Near by an oak-tree sentry keeps,
Mute, faithful guardian, sentry keeps.

Here Coleridge labored, loved, and died;
Here Shelley, the boy poet, came,
But, by hot restless passion tried,
Sought southern clime and wider fame.
Here Southey, too, the standard bore
Of poetry, immortal fame!
Few are their rivals; noble four!

Now all have gone, years since they went
To tune their lute in higher key
To this fair region, glory lent
Ere called to service, perfect, free.
Their spirits linger in the place,
Though they have sun their earthly race;
An earnest, worthy, well-tune race.

Great Britain's poets now no more
They seek not, as in days of yore,
In lowly peaceful paths to move,
For splendor, wealth, and fame they strive
And, smiling upon and pampered, thrive,
Battled eyes, grow and thrive.

Still sparkling lake looks calmly up,
Still twinkling stars look tranquil down
And round the whole horizon's scope
No trees of dusty, dirty town.
But there is life, too much, I ween,
Where art no human form was seen,
No work of human wisdom seen.

At night, when man has gone to rest,
And mills are silent, traffic hushed,
The hills and dales in beauty dressed,
And lake, by some lone campfire flushed,
Once more hold converse, holy, pure,
And while the world and time endure,

Interesting Story.

The Boys at Dr Murray's.

This was the usual routine of morning duties, and the Doctor was vastly proud of the strict order observed by even the best behaved of his pupils.

The boys had behaved unusually well this morning, and, filled with satisfaction and complacency, the Doctor went off to his private breakfast, and Harris started with the prisoner's broad and warm. He found him wearing the same undeviating, resolute expression of the previous night, and noticed, with some dismay, that the supper he had brought was untouched.

"Look here?" he said, "this is a pretty way to treat the food I bring you. You have the whitest of bread and the freshest of water, but treat it as though it wasn't fit to eat! You'll starve to death at this rate, sir!"

"Will uttered not a syllable. Harris went out, somewhat disturbed.
"I declare!" he said to himself, as about to descend the stairs, "I'm not so sure but the fellow has will enough to starve himself to death. He looks like it; I must speak to the Doctor about it right off! It would be a pretty—"

His soliloquy was cut short by the sound of ascending foot-steps. Grant, Westery came running up stairs.
"Harris!" he exclaimed, "you're just the person I want to see. Will you do me a favor?"
"A dozen, sir!" said Harris, bowing politely.

"O, but one is sufficient! I'll give you credit for the rest. Wait just a minute!" and Grant went on to his room.
He returned with a large sheet of paper. Harris stared, and Grant explained.

"You see," he said, "we're going to send in a petition to Dr Murray this afternoon, to beg him to release Will Howth. It's going to be sent on this paper, but as I haven't had time to copy the heading, I thought you wouldn't mind if you signed your name without seeing it. Just put it right down here—halfway from the top, if you please!"

Harris retreated a step or two in amazement.
"Good heavens!" he ejaculated, "do you suppose I'm going to put my head in the lion's mouth, like that!"

"Yes," said Grant, calmly,—"for the sake of doing a good action!"
Harris shook his head.
"Why, Westery, it'll be the same thing as saying we don't approve of the Doctor's course!"

"Well, do you?"
Harris was concerned.
"I declare," he said, starting once more to descend, "I don't know what I'm listening to this nonsense for!"
"Because, you are going to do me a favor," said Grant, blocking the way.

"Am I?" said Harris,—"I think I see myself!"
"So do I," said his blockader; "now seriously, Harris, how would you feel if you were in his place? 'Do as you would be done by,' is a golden rule! Even the Doctor has bidden us all to follow it."

Harris shrugged his shoulders.
"It might cost me my situation, if I interfered in this matter," he said.
"Then we'll get up a petition for you!" laughed Grant.

"Come, Westery," said the assistant, uneasily, "let me pass. I don't know of another thing in the whole world, but what I'd do for you, even if it broke over your head; but this is too much!"

"Suppose that the whole undertaking fails for the lack of your name," said Grant; "how will you feel then?"
Harris thought of the pale-faced prisoner, and the untasted food, and reflected, "I declare," said he, reluctantly, "I've had a good mind to sign it. You promised to petition for nothing else?"

"On my honor!" said Grant.
Harris wavered and grumbled, but at last put down his name.

"Now I've been and done it!" he exclaimed, as if repeating himself,—"out my own head off, probably. Westery, you're too bad!"
"You've done a good deed," said Grant; "I thank you from the bottom of my heart!"

"Now," said Harris, "stop that! I don't want to be thanked for turning my own fingers! If the Doctor has anything to say, I'll lay all the blame on you, see if I don't!" and off he went. Well pleased with his success, Grant returned to his room and copied the petition, writing it in such a manner that Harris's name came directly under the last line, and was thus first on the list. When he went down and found Harris; his name came next; then Grant; and sure of three petitioners at least, the two friends went in search of the remainder of the boys. They met Hawley North coming out of the dining-room. He was a boy of the same class, and readily wrote his name under Grant's. Then they separated—Hall going into the playroom after signature, Grant entering the schoolroom, where a few had congregated.

"What's coming now?" cried several as he made his appearance, paper in hand. He read it aloud to the group. There was a buzz of exclamations on all sides.

"Well," said Dick Weller, frankly, "I like you for what you are doing, Grant; but I don't think Howth has any right to expect mercy, as you call it. He ought to be thankful that he's no worse off! If he'd been a houseless city vagabond, with no one to pay the bill for him, he would have had a good term in jail, and everybody would cry, 'He deserves it!'"

"That's so," said a friend of Dick's; "I don't see why he isn't just as bad as any thief!"
"You know, Dick," said Grant mildly, "Will is a homeless fellow; and as for the vagabond part, it will be no fault of ours if that is lacking."

"Why so?" asked Dick, looking curious.
"Because, every taunt and sneer that he receives only hardens him so much the more. Did it ever do you any good to be pointed at, and jeered, and forsaken by all respectable boys, because you have yielded to temptation and sinned?"

"Of course not!"
"Well, do you suppose Will feels all these things any the less keenly? My plan is to get him released, and never mention his disgrace so long as he is among us; to treat him kindly and friendly, as if he had never sinned, and see if we cannot bring back some of the self-respect which he has lost. But if you choose to do the other way, and abandon him as worthless and lost, and deny him all good company, how long will it take to make him desperate and reckless? If he is shut out from all respectable society, there is plenty that is not respectable that will readily take him in. But for my part, I think he is worth saving! If there's any one here that's going to sign this, please say so, for I'm in a hurry."

"Of course there is!" said Fred Howitt; "we're all going to sign it—Dick and all."

Ten names were speedily added, Dick adding his last of all, without a word of remonstrance. Here the school-room door burst open, and Ned Hall came in with a crowd at his heels.

"There never was such a recruiting officer as I am!" he cried to Grant; "here I've brought you twenty or twenty-five,—I can't tell which,—and every one of them is 'ready and anxious!'"

Grant's pencil came into immediate requisition. Name after name went down upon the paper till the first page of the sheet was covered, and the next was brought into use. When all present had signed, the names were counted, and found to amount to but forty.

"Here's but half the school," said Grant; "I'm afraid the Doctor will think we're about equally divided."

"I can get you two more," said Dick; "I know two friends of mine that will sign it, and he went in search of them.

"Who'll do the same?" said Hall; "I've looked up every friend I've got in school—about twenty-five, in all! If every one of you will look up the same number, we'll have enough."

The boys laughed.
"Have you asked Ripley?" whispered Hawley North in Grant's ear.
"No," he replied, "where is he?"
"In the dining-room. Shall I ask him?"

"Yes."
Harry Ripley was the proudest boy in school. With an unlimited supply of pocket-money at his command, he had furnished his room with everything elegant that it could contain, had bestowed presents and gifts unnumbered upon his friends, of which, however, he had but few, and vainly boasted that he spent more money every term than all the rest of Dr Murray's boys put together. It was true, but all his lavish expenditures had gained him but few friends, and his haughty manners were often made the butt of ridicule for the whole school. No one loved him; a few allowed themselves to be flattered by his attentions, and foolishly sought to imitate his foppish manners. Hawley soon returned with him.

"What's wanting?" asked Ripley, advancing to the desk where Grant had taken his seat. For an answer Grant allowed him to read the petition. When he had finished, he turned away with one of his peculiarly unpleasant smiles, saying—

"When I put down my name to get that thief out of prison, you'll all know it!"

"Very well," said Grant, coolly.
"I should like to know," continued the rich man's son, "what you want him let loose among us for?—such a low, mean character!"

"I know of one that's a great deal meaner!" said Ned Hall, with blazing eyes.
"Who?" said Ripley, turning.
"You!"

Ripley's face flushed with anger, and he clenched his hand.
"Stop!" said Grant, leaving his desk, don't let's spoil all the influence of a good action by quarrelling. You shouldn't have said that, Hall," he said, addressing his friend.

"I know it," said Ned; "I apologise, Mr Ripley."
"Now, said Grant, "if Ripley does not choose to sign his name, very well, if there's any more to be put down, it must be done soon; for it's almost school hours."

"I'll put down my name to oblige you, Westery," said Ripley, condescendingly.
"No; thank you," said Grant, smiling; "every one that puts their name down here must do it of their own free will, and because they wish to aid Howth. I believe you do not."

Ripley went off whistling. Dick

Weller came back, but the number of his friends had grown from two to five. These all added their names. When the bell rang for recitations at nine, the signatures, including Harris's, numbered sixty. Although not quite the number he had wished for, Grant felt himself quite successful, and felt all most impatient for the "good intermission" when he was to carry the petition to the Doctor. Would he refuse, or grant the entreaty? he asked himself anxiously again and again.

CHAPTER V.
THE LL. D.'S MERCY.

Dr Murray, feeling somewhat indisposed that noon, had taken his dinner in the library. Hardly had he finished his repast, when there came a rap at the door. It was not Harris's knock, and wondering who should venture to intrude at that hour, he called: "Come in!"

"Good afternoon, Grant," said the Doctor, blandly, motioning his favorite pupil to a seat; "are you in trouble with those translations?"

"No, sir," said Grant, "I've come on business this time. Are you too busy to attend to it now?"

"Certainly not," said the Doctor, displaying some curiosity.
Feeling some repitiation, yet resolved to carry the project through, Grant produced the large envelope containing the petition, and laid it before the Principal. Wonderingly he took it up, and read the address:—

"A PETITION TO DR SIM-
EON MURRAY,
From Sixty of his Pupils."
"Shall I go, or stay?" asked Grant.
"You may go," said the astonished Doctor.

Grant went to his room. Taking the petition from its envelope, the Doctor slowly read:

Sore Eyes

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Berofolia, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

Berofolia, which produced a painful inflammation in my eyes, caused me much suffering for a number of years. By the advice of a physician I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

Cured
My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever.—
Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—
Mr. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

From childhood, and until within a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—
Mr. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three years formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and three bottles of this medicine, have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or other in my eye.—

Konald T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Berofolia Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing certified their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored, and she can now look steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—

ACADEMY BOARDING HOUSE.—The contract for the erection of the new Academy boarding-house has been awarded to Messrs Rhodes & Curry, of Amherst. Tenders for the work were made by Messrs Rhodes & Curry, of Amherst, (whose tender was the lowest.) Mr. D. A. Murray, of Wolfville; Messrs Haley & Co., of St. John; and Mr. G. A. Barron, of Kentville. The building is to be completed by August 10th and the work is to be begun at once. It is to be a three-story building, size 70x40 feet, and will accommodate not less than 50 boarders.

KING'S CO. TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE.—A meeting of the Kings County Temperance Alliance was held in Jackson's Hall, Colbrook, on Monday last, March 28th. Rev. I. D. Hart presided and in the absence of the secretary Mr. G. V. Rand was appointed to that office. The attendance was not very large but a lively interest appeared to be manifested. Several new members were initiated during the session. Considerable discussion took place over the matter of an Inspector of Licenses and a committee was appointed to confer with the other temperance bodies in the county and to select a proper person to nominate to the Municipal Council at their next meeting.

IMPORTANT TO EMIGRANTS.—C. H. Borden has just received a new stock of Trucks and Valises. He will give you a bargain.

DYKE MEETING.—The annual meeting of the proprietors of the Grand Pre dyke was held in Evangeline Hall, Lower Horton, on Saturday last, F. G. Curry presiding. After the adoption of the regular standing regulations the meeting proceeded to the appointment of committees which occasioned considerable discussion, a portion of the meeting taking the ground that such appointments should be made by a majority of interest of those voting, others that it required a majority of interest present; whilst others contended that a simple majority vote was proper. The chairman was unable to decide which of the three courses was in order as there was no copy of the statute law at hand to guide him; therefore some of the committeemen were appointed in one way and some in another. The following were appointed committees: men: R. L. Harvey, west end; James Allen, Long Island; John King, east end. Under the provision of the Acts of 1863 J. B. Davison, Esq., Geo. Harvey, Esq., and Dr. Fuller were appointed auditors to audit the books and accounts and report thereon.

ATTENTION.—Correspondents will oblige by sending us items of news as soon as possible after the events transpire and not to wait until the day of issue.

COAL.—The schr N. H. Upham and Baccowd arrived this week from Parrboro with coal. Fuel of all kinds has been pretty scarce for the past few weeks.

THE "ATWOOD."—The Atwood completed her cargo on Tuesday and sailed for Lynn, Mass. She carries 100M ft. of lumber and 1M laths, shipped by S. P. Benjamin, Esq.

NEW STATION.—We notice that the W. & A. R. are asking for tenders for the erection of a new station building at Kington. Tenders will be received up to April 5th. When are we to have a new station in Wolfville?

WRECKED.—The schr Flora B., Capt. Bentley, which sailed from Kingsport for Boston loaded with potatoes, a few days since, went ashore at Port George, on Saturday last and became a total wreck. With the utmost difficulty the crew were saved in a very exhausted condition. The vessel is only three years old, is mostly owned by the captain and is uninsured.

METHODIST SABBATH-SCHOOL.—Last Sabbath afternoon being review for the past quarter, the superintendent, J. W. Caldwell, Esq., after general review of catechism, presented a number of prizes to successful competitors, after which he presented a pledge against the use of intoxicating liquors, tobacco and profane language, which was signed by many of those present. We think it an example that might be profitably followed by other Sabbath-schools. A number of parents and friends were present and expressed themselves much pleased with the afternoon's exercises.

SAD DEATH.—On Friday last the news of a very sad accident at Canning reached us. It seems that about 3 o'clock on that morning fire was discovered in the dwelling of Mr. H. A. Borden, postmaster. With considerable difficulty the flames were extinguished and the house saved, and, on entering the room where the fire originated, the lifeless body of Mr. Borden was found in a corner with disfigured face and clothing on fire. It is supposed that the fire was caused by the accidental overturning of a lamp, and in attempting to extinguish the flames the unfortunate man stayed too long and became suffocated. The deceased was a highly respected member of the community. He has been post-master at Canning for a number of years, and published the first paper in the county, the King's County Gazette, over twenty years ago. He was buried on Tuesday with Masonic honors.

Grand Pre. Charles Annand, Esq., is at present the guest of his son, Fred W. C. Annand at "Annandale," Grand Pre.

The annual meeting of the proprietors of the Grand Pre dyke was held in Evangeline Hall on Saturday afternoon, Mar. 26th. The committee appointed for the ensuing year are J. King, B. L. Harvey and J. A. Allen. The auditors are Geo. Harvey, J. N. Fuller, M. D. and J. B. Davison.

There was no Division on Monday evening last on account of the disagreeable weather. There will be election and installation of officers next Monday night.

Pork is quoted very high in Grand Pre this week.

The Jubilee Singers from "Morning Star" Lodge, I. O. O. F., repeated their concert Tuesday night to a fair-sized audience.

We regret to learn that Mr Geo. Barron, who is about starting a furniture factory in this town, is quite ill. He took cold while moving his engine to the factory grounds.

It is reported that Mr J. B. Reed, of Bridgetown, is to open a furniture store in the store formerly occupied by Mr. G. F. Stone.

Several ladies of the W. C. T. U. came up from Hantsport on Wednesday to organize a branch of that society here. They held a meeting in the evening.

Mr. William Carter has a new sign hung from a tree in front of his shop which shows that he does general blacksmith work and horse-shoeing.

The driver of the mail between here and Chester got too much of "the ardent" about Tuesday night and made a noise on the street. He was promptly snappet up by Mr Policeman, who put him in the lock-up. Next morning he was brought up and fined $2 or two days. The fine was paid.

The Baptists of this place are considering the matter of building a parsonage.

The "Grand Easter Concert" on the 12th promises to be a big affair. It is expected that the band will be on hand. A special train will run to Wolfville after the concert. Full particulars next week.

A very pleasing event took place Wednesday evening on the return of Mr. H. M. Bailey. On his arrival he was met by a number of his friends and presented with a neat address on the occasion of a very handsome gold chain with the best wishes of his many friends. Mr Bailey was taken altogether by surprise, but replied in a suitable manner.

Choice Miscellany.

To-morrow.

'You'll come to-morrow, then,' light would light his eyes, and he bowed his head.

'You'll come to-morrow, then,' and the man on the errand went, with a tender prayer on heart and lip, and on his work intent.

The women a moment lingered, 'Would he turn for a parting look?' Then with half a smile and half a sigh her household burden took.

'You'll come to-morrow, then,' and when the morning broke, pale lips in the crowded city of the 'rail-way accident' spoke.

A strong man in a stranger's home, in death's dread quiet lay, and a woman sobbed a full heart out in a cottage a mile away.

So lightly our thoughts leap onward, so lightly we hope and plan, while fate waits grimly by and smiles to watch her plaything—man—

Discounting the dim, strange future, while his blind eyes cannot see, what a single flying hour brings, what the next step may be.

Female Soldiers.

An old army surgeon told a reporter of a number of instances where members of the weaker sex were carried away by their enthusiasm at the beginning of the war and put on the uniform to fight for their country. We copy the following:—

I knew a girl who at the beginning of the war was so filled with patriotism, and so weighed down by a sense of duty, so carried away by an adventurous impulse, that she followed the squad of boys who had enlisted in her neighborhood, and, dressing as a boy enlisted in the company that was forming in the county town. Her friends discovering the long hair she had cut from her head and the clothing she had thrown off in her father's barn, gave immediate pursuit. As they were driving into the city they saw walking along the sidewalk smoking a cigar a young fellow who had the same sort of a face as the girl they were in pursuit of.

They stopped and accosted the young fellow, and were treated to such a shower of epithets and such an exhibition of bravado that they admitted their mistake and apologized for it. An hour later one of the party found the same young fellow, looking as if he had been through a mill, and he called him by the girl's name and found that after all the young fellow, who had done such hard swearing was the girl they were looking for. She was taken home and afterward entered the service as hospital nurse. In the last year of the war I found her again in men's clothing, crying as only a heart-broken woman can cry, over a light-haired man shot dead in the charge at Resaca. She cared nothing then for exposure, and went home in a widow's dress.

Another girl, I remember, had a pleasant experience. I was the examining surgeon at one of the recruiting camps early in the war, and on one occasion as I passed down the lines of a company formed in order for muster and inspection, I noticed as the hands were held out one set that to my practised eye belonged to a woman. I said nothing at the time, but after consultation with the colonel had the recruit with the feminine hands brought to headquarters. The bright looking soldier in the new blue suit admitted in two minutes that she was a woman, and in two days she was at home.

A year after that I was at a ball in Washington. As I stood a little aside from the main party, wishing that I was in front with the army, a young lady came toward me, bowed with exaggerated stiffness, and as she straightened up went through the motions of obeying the order "Eyes right." She offered me her hand and thanked me for something that she supposed that I had done and walked away. She was pretty enough to be the belle of the occasion, and I saw she took considerable delight in my confusion of mind, all of which I understood later when I learned that she was my recruit with the ladylike hands. She afterwards told me that she owed me a debt of gratitude for stepping in at the right time to break down her romantic notions.—Chicago Ledger.

Unequal Marriages.

The genius of Milton never found a sweeter theme than the ideal marriage of our first parents in Eden, yet he who wrote so beautifully of the married state was himself the victim of an unhappy marriage. Indeed, men of genius have, perhaps been more unfortunate in this respect than ordinary mortals, because, living on a higher plane of thought, it was more difficult to find a helpmate equal to themselves. The same is true, although not to the same extent, of women of genius who have married men inferior to themselves in mind, because a woman's nature has not only more endurance but more adaptability in it than a man's. The man soon grows impatient of the conversation of a frivolous wife, especially if she disturbs his mental occupations, but the woman often feels a pleasure in the homage of a common, place husband, if only he be an honest and considerate fellow, and with her more than with man, "pity" skin to love." Hence it is that there are probably more clever and highly-gifted women who throw themselves away, as the phrase is, upon a good-natured simpleton, than of talented men who fall in love with women who are not in intellectual sympathy with them.

The world "marries and is given in marriage," and the wedding bells ring on from age to age unceasingly, and yet how few who witness the life contract of brides and bride-grooms stop to consider the tremendous importance of so brief a ceremony. Upon the mental, moral, and physical qualities of the man and of the woman may depend the actions and results of a succession of human beings in generations yet to come.

The ungodly and the ungodly descend from sire to son, and the scrupulousness and acquisitiveness, uncontrolled by other qualities, in the father or mother, may make the thief, the liar, or the miser, who, a few decades hence, will be the black sheep of the family fold. An ungodly temper may beget the murderer whom society is forced to hang for its own protection, but who may be as irresponsible before the tribunal of Supreme Justice as the lunatic is now held to be before our earthly courts. It has been said, coarsely perhaps, in the ears of modern refinement, but with perfect truth, that while we take every precaution to insure high qualities in the higher types of dogs and horses, we seem to think it a matter of no consequence to insure a noble nature to our own offspring.—Brooklyn Magazine.

Meaning of "Sublime Forte."

A phrase often seen in despatches from Constantinople is thus explained by M. Julliard in his article on "Life Beneath the Crescent" in March Comptoir:

The building of the ports, called sublime, is, or was, a kind of long, low barracks, without style and without beauty. As to the pompous epithet "sublime" coupled with this poor port, it is one of those Oriental speeches that the flattery of the weak has bestowed voluntarily upon the tyranny of the strong. The Turkish language abounds in these qualifications—highness, excellence, divine, celestial, sublime—which in our day and in the West offend the dignity of those that receive them, and of those that bestow them, but which one in the East can freely bestow upon high personages without laughing or making them blush.

The phrase "sublime forte" is applied to both the building and the administration, two things that are important, but neither the one nor the other is sublime. This word has, however, a very ancient origin. When the Turks, long before the conquest, were only hordes of Tartars and nomads, their chiefs or sultans were in the habit of dispensing justice at the door of their tent. There the edicts assembled and heard the complaint and then the defence. The sultan appeared upon the spot only at the conclusion of the trial to get the opinions of the judges and to render his decision. To go to the port was for the Turks the equivalent of seeking justice at the hands of the sultan and his counselors.

As to the pompous epithet "sublime" coupled with this poor port, it is one of those Oriental speeches that the flattery of the weak has bestowed voluntarily upon the tyranny of the strong. The Turkish language abounds in these qualifications—highness, excellence, divine, celestial, sublime—which in our day and in the West offend the dignity of those that receive them, and of those that bestow them, but which one in the East can freely bestow upon high personages without laughing or making them blush.

Who Will Vouch For It?

If one could believe one-hundredth part of what people say in praise of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, it would be an easy matter apparently to maintain good health to extreme old age. Now here are three certificates recently sent us. We don't vouch for them, but it seems probable that the statements made are true, as the parties could have no interest in publishing anything except to benefit fellow sufferers.

South Windham, Vt.

I have never sold any of your medicine, but have been using it in my family. We reserve the remainder for future use and send pay for all. We use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment for a nasal wash for catarrh, and we are delighted with it. We had tried almost everything recommended for catarrh, but find Johnson's Anodyne Liniment far superior to any yet used. I used it with a common douche, according to your directions.

J. E. WHIPPLE.

BROOKFIELD,

Island Shoals, Ga., Feb. 5, 1885. Gents:—Your Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best I have ever seen. I believe it saved my husband's life. Last year he was suffering intense agony with bronchitis, and I used it as you direct. It gave him relief in a few minutes. Yours, ELIZABETH SANDERS.

Fearn Springs, Miss.

Dr. I. S. Johnson:—Notwithstanding my prejudice against proprietary medicines, I am, in justice to you, compelled to acknowledge that Johnson's Anodyne Liniment excels anything that I ever tried, for the diseases it is recommended to cure. Experience has taught me the above lesson. WM. A. HAGGARD.

Worth Remembering.

That the tongue is not steel yet fits cuts. That cheerfulness is the weather of the heart.

That sleep is the best stimulant, a nerve-saver for all to take.

That it is better to hear to say "no" than to be able to read Latin.

That old air is not necessarily pure, nor warm air necessarily impure.

That a cheerful face is nearly as good for an invalid as healthy weather.

That there are men whose friends are more to be pitied than their enemies.

That advice is like oyster oil, easy enough to give but hard enough to take.

That wealth may bring luxuries, but that luxuries do not always bring happiness.

That grand temples are built of small stones and great lives made up of trifling events.

That nature is a rag merchant who works up every shred and art and end into new creations.

That an open hand, an open heart, and an open door would everywhere find an open door.

That it is not enough to keep the poor in mind; give them something to keep you in mind.

That men often preach from the house tops while the devil is crawling in at the basement below.

That life's real heroes and heroines are those who bear their own burdens bravely and give a helping hand to those around them.

That hasty words often rankle in the wound which injury gives, and that soft words assuage it; forgiving curs and forgetting take away the scar.

Clubbing Offer.

Having made special arrangements with the publishers of a number of the leading periodicals of Canada and the United States we are enabled to make a large discount to subscribers. We will send any of the publications named and the ACADIAN one year for the following "Clubbing Prices," which will be seen in an enclosed giving two papers for the price of one. Cash must accompany all orders.

Table with columns: Publication, Regular Price, Clubbing Price. Includes Farmer's Advocate, Toronto Weekly News, Toronto Daily News, Alden's Juvenile Gem, American Agriculturist, etc.

Editors' Work.

Some people estimate the ability of a periodical and the talent of its editor by the quantity of its original matter. It is comparatively an easy task for a frothy writer to string out a column of words that may flow in one week, waddy, everlasting flood, and the command of his language may enable him to string them together like bunches of onions, and yet his paper may be but a meagre and poor concern. Indeed the mere writing of editing a paper is but a small portion of the work. The care, the time employed in selecting, is far more important, and the fact of a good editor is better shown by his selections than anything else; and that we know, is half the battle. But, we have said, an editor ought to be estimated, his labor understood and appreciated, by the general conduct of his paper—its tone, its uniform, consistent course, aims, manliness its dignity and its propriety. To preserve these as they should be preserved is enough to occupy fully the time and attention of any man. If to this be added the general supervision of the details of publication, which most editors have to encounter, the wonder is how they find time to write at all.—Ez.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boche's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in the United States and Canada.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you distressed at night and waken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers; there is no mistake about it. STILL ANOTHER.

DIPHTHERIA CURED.—I hereby certify that Minard's Liniment cured my daughter of a severe and what appeared to be a fatal attack of Diphtheria, after all other remedies failed, and recommend it to all who may be afflicted with that dreadful disease. JOHN D. BOUTILLER, French Village, Halifax Co., Jan. 1885.

MESSR. C. C. RICHARDS & Co.: Gentlemen,—We consider Minard's Liniment the best value of any in the Market, and cheerfully recommend it to you.

R. J. HARRIS, Bellevue Hospital.

DR. F. U. ANDERSON, F. R. C. S., Edinburgh.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE. THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

Light Brahmas! THE LARGEST BREED RAISED, UNSURPASSED AS WINTER LAYERS, AND DELICIOUS TABLE FOWLS.

They are very hardy and d-e-l-e, laying large, rich, brown eggs; and are considered by many who are acquainted with their useful qualities the BEST all-purpose fowl there is.

My birds this year are noted for their LARGE SIZE and ENORMOUS EGG PRODUCTION. They are all raised from stock bred by the best breeders in Ontario and the United States, hence are of the very best blood and fowls raised from them are SURE to improve your stock. In order to place them within the easy reach of all, knowing that my stock wherever introduced will prove my best advertisement, I have determined this year to offer eggs for hatching at the following low prices:

1 Sitting, 13 eggs, $1.00; 3 Sittings $2.00

LEWIS J. DONALDSON, Port Williams, N. S.

P. S.—A fine lot of nice pullets for sale, also birds next fall at easy terms. Eggs from choice imported WYANDOTTES later in the season. Look out for advertisement. Cash must accompany all orders.

THE REMEDIAL COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE For all those Painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best Female Population.

The REMEDIAL COMPOUND consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, its ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a positive and permanent cure is effected as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits it is today recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of Falling of the Uterus, Leucorrhoea, Irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian troubles, and Displacements, Blisters, Hemorrhoids, and all Displacements, and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to Cancerous Humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact, it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, fatigues, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach.

It cures Bleeding, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Irritability. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will, at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It is impossible for a woman after a faithful course of treatment with this medicine, to continue to have weakness or nervous debility, or to be troubled with any of the ailments which women are so liable to. It dissolves calculi, corrects the chemistry of the urine, restores the normal functions of the kidneys, and prevents the organic degeneration which leads to Bright's Disease.

One trial will charm and excite your enthusiasm. Remedial Compound is prepared in Pill and Liquid form, $1 per bottle $7 per doz. This (sugar coated) by mail 50c per box. Address—REMEDIAL COMPOUND CO., Stanstead, P. Q., or Derby Line, Vt.

REMEDIAL LIVER PILLS (sugar coated) cure Torpidity of the Liver, Headache, Bilelessness, etc., they are quick, mild, no griping, and should be used in connection with the Remedial Compound. By mail 50c. Either of the above remedies sent on receipt of price, or had from Druggist generally.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

Do you want a splendid, handsomely bound story book? You can have one for nothing if you will subscribe for the "Buds and Blossoms" for one year. It is a beautiful collection of stories for young men and women, and is published by the "Buds and Blossoms" Association, 100 Broadway, New York.

BUDS & BLOSSOMS

A forty page, illustrated, monthly magazine, edited by J. F. AVERY, Halifax, N. S. Price 75 cents per year if prepaid. Its columns are devoted to Temperance, Missionary Intelligence, Household Hints, Short Stories and Illustrations, making 28 pages of reading, suitable and profitable for young and old, with an average of 12 illustrations in each number, this will give 40 pages monthly for 75 cents a year, and will, therefore, be one of the cheapest sold. Specimen copies sent for two stamps.

A $5 GOLD PIECE will be given if you get 20 subscribers. "Buds and Blossoms" is endorsed by Christians and ministers of all denominations. One writes: "The cover has been comfort and blessing to me. Every page is calculated to bring me nearer to the Lord." "We wish you ever increasing success as you deserve." "To see it is to want to read it." "It should be in every house." 4-9-85

A Great Victory.

Another Election is over and the Grigs are dependent and now need a good tonic; while the Boodlers are feasting and spending their (or somebody's) substance in riotous living, and need something to act upon their Liver and Kidneys to assist these organs in their work or they will break down and bring on sickness and death by poisoning the Blood, which should always be cleansed at this season of the year. And it has been decided by both parties BY A VERY LARGE MAJORITY that there is nothing in the market that is equal to DR. NORTON'S

DOCK

Blood Purifier

For all diseases of the Liver, Blood, Stomach and Kidneys; and that many valuable lives will be saved through the spring and summer by using this blood purifier.

Who care their vote:—

CITIZEN'S, Yarmouth Co., Jan. 7th '85. Dr. Norton,—I wish to inform you that I am cured of Dyspepsia. When I commenced to take your Dock Blood Purifier my stomach was so weak that I could not take the least article of food without distressing me. Before taking your medicine I took doctor's medicine which made me worse. I only used four bottles and can eat anything, and am really healthy. Yours gratefully, MRS. LEMUEL GARDNER.
