For Her Sake;
—OR—
The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XXX.

It was no longer the same Diana who stood there. The girl now had no happy tears in her eyes, no smiles, no prayer on her lips. She was transformed with anger and with hate. Her face had grown pale; her lovely eyes had lost their peace and serenity, and now wore a look of menace. The cruel, horrible words she had heard had imprinted her heart and shattered all her hopes of happiness. They hated her, they wished her away; even her father had learned to love her less. She was an arrant flirt, trying to make a conquest of Sir Leslie. How burning, how poisonous how intolerable was each word!

Diana stood erect, the evil words ranking in her heart. Then again she heard the sound of the two voices. The Duchess and her step-mother were returning; and this time it was Sir Leslie's name that was forced on her unwilling ears.

"He is a thousand times too good for her; but her money will be the making of him," Lady Cameron was saying. Then she continued, in a laughing voice: "I have always been a good match-maker, and I have two plans on the accomplishment of which I have set my heart. The first is, I wish to marry my daughter Evadne to Lord Glenormald. Her love for him is unbounded, and he seems to reciprocate her affection; but lately we have fancied that Diana is trying to lure him from her. It would be a splendid match for Evadne; there is nothing would give me such satisfaction."

"It would be an excellent thing," said the Duchess. "And your second plan—that is that, Hermione?"

"One I have much at heart," she replied. "I planned it from the beginning. I want Sir Leslie to marry Diana. She will be one of the richest heiresses in England, and, as the Scarsdale revenues have been greatly impoverished, the money she would bring would restore the family name to its former proud position. Since Sir Leslie's return to England I have had this

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I look Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me."

"I saw the Compound advertised in your paper, and tried it. It has restored me. I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALTERS, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Alters.

fainted before; she had always been well and happy.

"My heart is broken!" was the last clear idea that passed through her mind.

As the last sound she had heard was the drip of the falling water, so it was the first she heard as consciousness came back to her.

At first she could not remember why she was lying in the fernery, or what had happened—her mind seemed to be clouded. Then by degrees it all returned to her clearly, vividly. They hated her—even her father loved her less; but because Sir Leslie was a Scarsdale, and her money would be useful to him, they wanted him to marry her. Every cold and cruel word came back to her, every bitter word appealed to her for vengeance.

The tenderness and sweetness of her brief love-dream died out forever. Love for the time turned to hate. A desire for revenge surged through her brain like a raging fire; it ran through her veins like molten lava. All that was brightest and best died within her; while all that was worst was roused into sudden and vivid life—pride, jealousy, a longing for vengeance, hatred of those who persecuted her, a proud sense of injustice done to her, a feeling of outraged love, of hot indignation that what was so sacred to her should be a subject of jest for others. She writhed under the torture of it. The girl was no longer the lovely young Diana, sweetly imperious and charming, no longer the trustful Diana with cloudless face and laughing eyes. Standing amidst the ferns, with all the worst passions of her nature aroused, she was stung to madness and brooding vengeance. The soft brilliant color had died from her cheeks, and hatred deep and implacable was revealed in every feature of her proud face.

It was in that moment, when good and evil spirits seemed to fight for the mastery, that she was startled by the sound of laughter. Wild, mad, wicked laughter it sounded to her, as it re-echoed through the fernery and died above the falling water. It was mocking, horrible laughter, all bitterness and scorn. Listening, she found that it was her own—her own, and she had not recognized it!

At what was she laughing! She was thinking—Heaven help her!—of the happy girl who had run away from the music and the dancing to thank Heaven for her newly found love. Gay, laughing Diana, with all her sweet, imperious ways, was dead; the girl whose horrible laughter rung around was another and far different being.

Presently there came the sound of music and revelry, and it was then that Diana fully felt the force of the blow she had received. The tumult of passion had almost died out, and she stood up cold, proud, and defiant, the sworn avenger of the wrongs of "Diana of the sunshine and roses."

"When I see this place in the years to come," she said, aloud, "I shall remember that Diana Cameron died here; but I who now represent her shall have avenged her."

She gathered the draperies of dead-white silk in her hand, and, shuddering, hurried away. She hastened through the corridors and the brilliantly lighted halls, the sound of music and gayer parting her to her room. Over her lovely young face there had come a great change, such as a troubled life for ten years would not have

The Sample Alone Healed me after 10 years of Eczema

I had been a sufferer from facial eczema for about ten years. I was treated unavailingly by several doctors and remedies. About two years ago I saw D.D.D. advertised. I at once desired to give it a trial and sent for a sample bottle. The sample alone healed me and I have no return of the trouble since. D.D.D. has been a godsend to me as well as to many others. I give you full permission to use these few lines to help to tell other poor sufferers about D.D.D.

MRS. HENRY HARVEY, Black Lake, Que.

You write, too, to the D.D.D. Company of Toronto for a sample and get immediate relief. Or ask your druggist and he will tell you what D.D.D. has accomplished in your own neighborhood. Your money back unless the first bottle relieves you.

wrought. With quick, trembling hands she tore the diamonds from her neck and hair, and the rich, clinging lace from her arms; she discarded the draperies of dead-white silk. In her anger and passion she could have stamped upon them. Like a tragedy queen she stood there, wrapped in her dressing-gown, its white folds about her, and a streaming mass of fair hair mantling her shoulders.

But no tragedy queen had ever such hot anger in her breast. With impatient gesture Diana pushed away the diamonds and the fair white silk, and went to the window and opened it. The fire and fever of her passion almost suffocated her. The moon was shining and the stars were glittering, but neither moon nor stars touched her with their pale, pure beauty. Thinking over the recent past, as she sat there alone, the fury of her anger was rekindled, and a desire for revenge took possession of her soul. The night wind was surging with musical murmur through the trees, but it brought no music to her. Burning hate surged through her heart, even as the wind surged through the trees.

"I wish they both lay dead!" said Diana to herself.

A perfect storm of passion shook her. That her step-mother and the Duchess should so speak of her, that they should discuss her in such terms, that they should patronize her father, that they should speak of her with undisguised contempt—she who was loved and admired everywhere—that they should laugh and be amused at the idea of her becoming Lady Scarsdale! The bare thought frenzied her. She Lady Scarsdale—she bear that hated name? No, never! No pain, no torture that human ingenuity could invent, should ever humble her before her enemies or turn her from the sweet revenge that she cherished.

Good-bye to the brief love-dream—good-bye to the handsome knightly face, to the dark proud eyes—good-bye, good-bye! She would rather be the meanest thing that crawled than Lady Scarsdale!

"I used to think I was a good girl," she said to herself. "I did not know that I had such power of hate within me."

Then suddenly, as she looked at the moon and stars, her step-mother's words returned to her—that, if her plans failed, it would break her heart. Diana raised her fair head; she watched a light fleecy cloud pass over the face of the moon, and hide it; then it shone out again bright as day.

"I will break her heart," said Diana, aloud. "I can and I will!" The dark spirit of vengeance had entered her heart, and she had resolved in that moment upon the course that she would pursue to achieve her object.

Morine's Tour in Bonavista Bay.

(By FRANK KELLY.)

Tickle Cove,
Bonavista Bay,
October 25th, 1919.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Hon. A. B. Morine and his colleagues arrived here yesterday at two o'clock. As they entered the place they were greeted with volley after volley of musketry, while flags flew all over the harbor, with a few exceptions every flag pole was bedecked with bunting. The people turned out in numbers and met the candidates, who held a meeting in the school house. Mr. Morine introduced Dr. Forbes to the voters. Capt. Winsor spoke first, on rising he was greeted with hand clapping and cheering and during the course of his speech he had to pause several times until the cheering had subsided. Capt. Winsor made an excellent speech. The second speaker was Dr. Forbes, who was received with cheers and clapping. Dr. Forbes is a splendid speaker, and held the audience spell bound in the course of his address, cheers shook the building.

Mr. Morine closed the meeting. Upon rising he was greeted with cheers, hand clapping and stamping to such an extent that he had to stand for a long time before commencing his address. During his address he was cheered repeatedly, and at the close of his speech the walls rang. When the candidates left the building guns belched forth in volleys, and vast numbers of people accompanied them from the school. Mr. Morine and colleagues left Tickle Cove assured of a majority vote. Tickle Cove will go 51 out of 63 for Morine, Forbes and Winsor.

Last night a meeting was held in the school at Open Hall. The speakers received great applause during their speeches, especially Mr. Morine, who on rising and during his address received a great ovation. The school was packed to its utmost capacity. Several people from Red Cliff attended and a large number from Tickle Cove. The meetings at Tickle Cove and Open Hall will go on record as the best ever held at these places, and the most successful. The speeches were remarkably clean, and free from any abuse whatever. Mr. Morine and his colleagues proved themselves gentlemen. Capt. Winsor will make an ideal representative for this bay, knowing as he does the wants of all classes, more particularly that of the working man. It is, however, but a waste of time to go into details here as Capt. Winsor has been tried and has proven himself to be all that is required of a man. Dr. Forbes is a leading light and an excellent speaker, and as for Mr. Morine no words are necessary. Morine is the right man in the right place. He has been proven and found true. To-day they left for Plate Cove where they met with an excellent reception. Flags were flying and numerous volleys of guns rent the air. A meeting was held at night in the school, at which Mr. Morine and his colleagues received great applause. At Tickle Cove, Open Hall, and Plate Cove they certainly met with a great reception. At Plate Cove they were the guests of Mr. Moss, J.P., Mr. Morine, Dr. Forbes and Capt. Winsor went down the shore last night confident of victory.

Sectionalism Being Stirred up Against Sir Michael Cashin.
(Special to Evening Telegram.)
BROWNSDALE, via New Melbourne, Oct. 28.

People here and along the shore are showing great interest daily in politics, and the tide is running in favour of the Hon. J. Stone and Colleagues. A few individuals have been trying to stir up a sectarian feeling among the voters against Sir Michael Cashin, but have failed to obtain their desired effect. Coaker's supporters have no use for Targett, the man who had he would be glad if he heard of his defeat after polling day. Guppy hasn't shown himself on this side of the Bay, and the voters have no use for him. People are stirred as never before over Coaker's action in putting only one man in this bay to represent C. of E. Denomination, instead of two, as is their right. It is looked upon as a great insult and never known to happen since responsible Government, and will be remembered on polling day. South Side Trinity Bay will roll up big majority on polling day for Government candidates.

James Baird LIMITED

The Death of Sir Walter Raleigh.

Although James VI. of Scotland came to the throne of England with the universal approval of all orders of the State, the troublous times which were to be ushered in by his accession, were not long in becoming manifest. At the very beginning of his reign Sir Walter Raleigh was tried for taking part in a conspiracy, a charge that had been falsely brought against him, but his sentence of death was mitigated by the king, and he was confined in the Tower for several years, during which period he wrote many of his works. He constantly struggled for freedom, however, and perhaps it was with this desire that he spread the report of his having discovered a gold mine in Guinea which would not only enrich the adventurous who were bold enough to seize it, but would afford immense treasure to the nation. The king granted him the commission to explore, but warned him that if he went to any Spanish territory he would be beheaded without further trial, because he had already been condemned. Raleigh sailed, and on reaching America his failures began, a sharp fight ensuing with the Spaniards, owing to which the mine was never reached. Raleigh's first thought after this misfortune was to try to persuade the captains of his fleet to join him in attacking some Spanish ships in order to get gold or silver to appease the King's wrath at their failure. The captains thought that this would be piracy, and said they did not want to be hanged. So Raleigh was forced to return. He was seized and thrown into prison, but so great was the hatred of the English towards Spain that James dared not venture to allow him public audience for the purpose of his own defence. Almost every man in the country was ready to applaud a bold sailor who defied Spain, but the Spanish influence over James was too great. Thus it came about that on October 29 exactly three hundred years ago, Sir Walter Raleigh, scholar, courtier, soldier, sailor, and statesman, mounted the scaffold with a jest on his lips. The crowd was thick, and he saw one of his friends trying with difficulty to push his way through it. "I know not," Raleigh called out, "what shifts you will make, but I'm sure to have a place!" When he knelt down to lay his head on the block, he was told he ought to have faced the east. "What matter," he answered, "how the head lie, so that the heart is right?" The axe descended, and his voice was silenced for ever.

Obituary.

ANDREW RUTHERFORD, ESQ.
(H. F. Shortis.)

Yesterday morning Mr. W. A. Munn received a telegram from Harbor Grace announcing the death of Andrew Rutherford, Esq., the doyen amongst business men in Conception Bay, and probably in this country, at the patriarchal age of 93 years. Mr. Rutherford came to Newfoundland from Scotland, many years ago (before I was born), and after some time in St. John's, settled in Harbor Grace, where in partnership with his brother George, conducted a very extensive business on Water Street in that town. The business premises are there to-day, occupied by Mr. Arthur Thomson, where he conducts a large Tannery, etc., giving employment to quite a number of men. For many years few firms were in a more flourishing condition than was that of Rutherford Bros. Besides large wholesale and retail stores, fish stores, provision stores, extensive coal-shed, large warehouses and offices, etc., they carried on a most extensive business with Nova Scotia, Cape Breton and Prince Edward Island in the produce and cattle line, and I have often witnessed three cargoes of cattle discharging at their wharf at the same time. In early days they were noted for their famed Hamburg bread, but ter, etc. They also carried on the fisheries to a very large extent, at Labrador, Shore and Sealfishery, and had several splendid vessels out of the employ, notably, the brigantine Commissary, commanded by the famous seal-killer, Capt. Jonathan Noel of the South Side. In my early days, there were, at least, twenty-five clerks in the stores and shop, mostly Scotchmen. The failure of Ridley & Sons in 1870 struck a terrible blow at the house of Rutherford Bros., in fact, the business never recovered from the effect. After some time Mr. Andrew Rutherford opened up business on his own account in the Water Side premises, formerly occupied by the late H. W. Trapnell, Esq., and conducted a provision and grocery store there up to the time of his demise, with every success. He was also engaged in the coal trade, and such was the energy and enterprise of that gentleman that up to a few days ago, he might be seen every morning at nine o'clock, walking up the street to his business. In the forties of the past century Rutherford Bros. of Harbor Grace issued their own coin, (Ram, half-penny), much larger than our cent piece of the present day, a little larger than the coin issued by Rutherford Bros. of St. John's after the 9th of June fire, 1842. These coins passed current throughout the island, although they are somewhat rare now. Andrew Rutherford, Esq., merchant, was a man of the highest integrity. In business his insight was known, his energy indefatigable and his word inviolable. Many an object of his generosity will mourn his loss. His interest in Harbor Grace in particular, as well as the country in general, and the welfare of the people was unflinching. He was wise in counsel, and his advice was sought and his co-operation given in aid of innumerable movements for the betterment of the city which he had very much to heart. He possessed the stamp which cannot be forged of a gentleman. Gracious and easy in deportment, courteous and winning in manners, he found his way without any effort to every heart. He was stored full of historical facts and traditions of our country, and any person who had a conversation with him left him enlightened with interesting facts which, perhaps, no other man in the country could relate. The deceased gentleman has left two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Ward and Miss Mary Rutherford, some grandchildren and hosts of friends to mourn their sad loss. Evening Telegram offers its sincere sympathy to the family and friends in their bereavement.

Obituary.

There passed away at Aquathuna, on October 24th, after a lingering illness, Jack, the eldest son of Patrick and Mary Walsh, at the early age of 18 years. Jack, who was a messenger with the Telegraph offices for over 2 years, was a genial favorite with everyone and his many boy chums will be sorry to hear of his passing. The sympathy of the whole community will go out to his parents in their sad bereavement.

WHAT MADE HER SPLEENY.

RUTH CAMERON

"I think perhaps I've misjudged Grace," a friend said to me the other day. She is not one to suspect herself lightly of misjudgments, so I was much interested. "You know I never used to like her very well," she went on to explain readily. "When she went round with our crowd I always thought she was inclined to be spleeny and dreadfully wrapped up in herself and never ready to do anything with the rest of the girls. Well, she came on to visit my cousin last month and you never saw such a changed girl. She is just as bright and cheerful and jolly, and she never said a word about her health all the time. And my cousin says that she had an operation for appendicitis last year and that she's been getting steadily better ever since. Do you suppose that could have been the trouble all the time?"

I certainly supposed so. And more than that, I suppose that things of that sort are at the root of disagreeable characteristics far more often than we realize. Millions of People Would be Changed. I haven't a doubt that there are millions of people in the world who, if you could get at and do away with some such physical malady in them, would become absolutely different people. As I have said before, I believe that a great many times the whine in a child could be found to have its roots in defective adenoids or tonsils. I have known several cases where a child's whole manner and disposition seemed to change when he had had defective tonsils out. Again, I know of cases where the correction of defective eyesight has put the individual right with the world.

They Need No Encouragement. Whenever I write something along this line, I stop when I reach the end of it and sigh because I realize the danger. The thought I want to CONTENTED.

There's one who is contented—the bard who writes this poem—the men around have vented a rash language, flecked with foam; I like the work I'm doing, the errands I'm pursuing, the kind of rags I'm chewing, the wreath upon my domo. I like the pay I'm drawing—it keeps me out of debt—though other guys I'm dining; I have no cause for whining although my face is shining and damp with honest sweat. I like my little cottage, it's humble, but it's nice; I like my frugal pottage, composed of prunes and rice; I like the lyre I'm thrumming, I like the book I'm thumbing; I'll have no kick coming until I'm placed on ice. I like the Autumn weather, before the winter wakes; I like the kind of leather of which they make our steaks; this world is good to stay in, to put up wood and hay in, to work around and play in, and all complaints are fakes. Oh, evils are existing; I've known it all alone; I'm weeping and I'm wailing; that many things are wrong; but beeing will not cure them, or help me to endure them, and so I just abjure them, and sing my dippy song.

Household Notes.

When cooking an egg that is cracked put a little salt in the water. Canned tunny fish makes excellent salad. It should not be chopped. Use soda on a damp cloth to clean the nickel on the kitchen range. Blanch walnuts by dropping into a basin of boiling water for two minutes.

A strong borax water will clean fireproof dishes which have turned brown.

Tea jelly is made in the same way as coffee jelly, and is a pleasant change. Boned fowl is a good dish when you want something novel and easy to carve.

Canned succotash and tomatoes together are an agreeable dish for luncheon.

Fry a little bacon with the ham if you wish to increase the amount of gravy.

To keep milk from running over when it comes to a boil put a spoon in the saucepan. If flannels are wrung out slightly before hanging on line, they will not be so apt to shrink. To cut thin silk, lay it between two pieces of tissue paper and cut with very sharp scissors.

Interesting Items.

No doubt somebody has brought to the attention of the traveling Prince of Wales the humorous report which Artemus Ward made of his imaginary interview with the Prince's Grandfather. "I axed him," wrote Artemus, "how he liked kein Prince, an fur as he'd got. 'To speak plain, Mister Ward,' he sed, 'I don't much like it. I'm sick of all this bowin' & scrapin' & crawlin' & burraun over a boy like me. I would rather go through the country quietly & enjoy myself in my own way with the other boys, & not be made a show of to be garped at by everybody.'" Here again, perhaps, the old saying that many a true word is spoken in jest fitted the situation; nor is it impossible that the present royal visitor would agree that Artemus was a shrewd guesser of politely concealed thoughts.

That the whole world is in the same boat in the matter of the high cost of living is indicated by news from Buenos Aires of an effort to solve the problem that will be at any rate worth watching. Government and workmen's organizations are both concerned in the experiment, the initiative, one judges, coming from the workmen, and the government acting as a check on the possible temptation to change one form of profiteering for another. The workmen are establishing retail stores for the sale of provisions at a fair price. If they find a solution they will set an example that will be widely followed; meantime it is probably just as well to wait a bit and see how they come out.

THE GOLF BUG.
I spoke about the weather but he answered not a word. He looked across the distance like a man who hadn't heard. I thought the league of nations was a topic he'd discuss. But he wasn't interested in our latest verbal fuss. He was cold and strange and silent till I mentioned golf, and lo! His eyes began to twinkle and his words began to flow!

He talked about his struggles with the Royal Ancient game; He told of pros he'd been to and he called them all by name; He talked of shots he'd mastered and of holes he'd made in two; He praised the Vardon pivot and the Vardon follow through. He held me in a corner while he raved about his play, He was on his favorite topic and I couldn't get away.

He talked of drives and brassies and of irons from the rough. Of his troubles with the putter he could hardly say enough. He told of holes he'd taken by some shrewd and clever stroke— His speech came fast and furious, I thought the man would choke. Then I opened wide the window and I shouted: "Get 'a cop!" I've got this golf bug started and I cannot make him stop!"

Manufacturing Fears.

Some people can cry to order. It is a great advantage when film acting, for cinema audiences are very particular, and when tragedy is being expressed, demand real tears. But most of those who act before the screen cannot summon tears at a moment's notice, and various methods are resorted to produce them.

One is to manufacture glycerine tears. These are "painted" beneath the eye and on the cheek, and stick in their allotted places while the camera man does his work. But perhaps the strange method is that of actually reducing the actress to natural tears. This is not done by cruelty. Someone tells the actress a sad story, while a violinist plays sad music. And the tears which her audience imagine she is shedding because her heartless lover has flitted her, are caused by a tragic tale told to the strains of Chopin's "Funeral March."

Why Not in Broad Cove?

Mr. Squires struck an attitude on the platform at Brigus on Monday last and held up the audience a card which he said had been found tucked up on a telegraph pole at Kilbride, St. John's West, with the following words printed thereon: "What we have will hold. Therefore Cashin Wins." Of course everybody can see that Mr. Squires had but one object in view in making this appeal--and that one object was to be seen by the public view. Why are distributed throughout the distribution of vile literature throughout the Districts in which such trash would be calculated to do the most damage to the Government. Now he endeavors to make a sectarian matter of a harmless election card. Why didn't Mr. Squires refer to this matter in St. John's? Why didn't he refer to it in Broad Cove? And why didn't he also state that these cards were distributed throughout the entire District and could be found in Broad Cove and Petty Harbor as well as in Kilbride?

Where Was Jethro?

People who follow the trend of political happenings closely were remarking yesterday a very pronounced omission from the personnel of the Squires' "team" that visited Brigus last Monday night. It will be recalled that a few days after the Crosbie-Penney incident, Mr. Squires held a meeting at Broad Cove, and brought out there for exhibition purposes, Mr. Jethro Penney, who was held up to the crowd as the hero of St. John's. People were not told at the time whether Jethro revealed what he had said to Sir John Crosbie to provoke the remarks attributed to him in the Royal Stores, although the question as to "What Jethro said" has been acute ever since the incident occurred. Another question is now going the rounds of the city and it is this: "Where was Jethro on Monday night, and why didn't Mr. Squires bring him over to Brigus and act the role of showman as he did at Broad Cove a week or two previously? Perhaps Mr. Squires or his organs will explain. We presume it is useless to request an answer from Mr. Penney."

3,000 VOTERS

At Last Night's Meeting!

The greatest political meeting ever held in St. John's took place last night in the C.L.B. Armory, where over 3,000 city voters assembled to hear addresses from the Liberal-Progressive candidates of East and West. This vast body of voters, with a firm desire to kill Coakerism, faced a S. S. rally in order to hear the men of their choice address them and the few Guppy-Squires-Coaker supporters who attended were chafed to the marrow as each outburst of enthusiasm greeted the speakers. Had weather conditions been favorable, probably double the number would have been present, as at least 80 per cent. of the whole city are supporters of the Liberal-Progressive Party. Some three weeks ago a joint meeting of the East and West End Liberal-Progressive candidates was held in the Casino Theatre, which was packed to the doors, but two such buildings would not nearly find room for the gathering present at last night's meeting. It was a grand demonstration, and befitting to St. John's. This old city is not going to have her economic structure torn down by the Guppy-Squires-Coaker satellites. She is not prepared to have her industries ruined, and her factories closed, and 4,000 employees put out of work. Nor is she prepared to have her docks and piers lying idle, and grass growing on Water Street. The mean, contemptible tactics of Campbell, Mosfell, Squires, Brownrigg, et al, during the last month are now recalling on them. The honest people of St. John's whom they tried to cajole have torn off the veneer, and these hypocritical vultures now seen in all their hideousness, will be buried under such an avalanche of ballots on Monday next that they will never be heard of again in public life. The die is cast. St. John's has decided on six Cashin men, Bennett, Mullaly and Martin for the West and Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox for the East. Some of the Opposition press have been vilifying Messrs. J.J. Mullaly and J. T. Martin since the opening of the campaign, but the Editors should have been present last night to see these two champions of liberty being carried on the shoulders of voters up Long's Hill and into the Armory, while the thousands in the parade cheered wildly. To be brief, the whole proceeding was one spontaneous outburst of loyalty to the Liberal-Progressive candidates for St. John's East and West, and their leader, Sir Michael Cashin.

Sharply at 8 o'clock the meeting opened. Mr. Arthur Pittman being moved to the chair by Messrs. L. G. Chafe and A. Hiscock. Mr. Pittman, after briefly outlining the object of the meeting, called upon J. R. Bennett to make the opening address. When Mr. Bennett came forward there was a general outburst of cheering and applause. When it subsided he began a rattling address, which lasted about three-quarters of an hour. He referred to the filly and indecent campaign being waged against the Liberal-Progressive party by the Opposition press, and particularly to its vulgar tone as it referred to St. John's. Not in the history of Newfoundland, he said, was such an attempt made to stampede the voters. Their intelligence was never appealed to. Abuse of the vilest kind was the weapon always used. The regular footpad generally uses a bludgeon when he wants to frighten his victim, into handing over his holdings, and in the same way the political footpads now seeking election were trying to bludgeon the electors into handing them over control of their public affairs and the treasury. The Opposition press had not once touched upon the issues before the country. It could not touch on this point, because it knew that Coaker and Squires had no policy, and if they did have one they would never be able to carry it out. Up to a few weeks ago these gentlemen were levelling the vilest epithets at each other, Coaker going so far as to say that Squires got $5,000.00 from the Reids, and then tried to get Reid to sign a letter that he did not get it, and to the present Squires had made no effort to deny the charge. If by any unfortunate circumstance, said Mr. Bennett, these two worthless got control of the Government, they would be at each other's throats inside of two weeks. This would mean chaos, a disruption in the country's business, ruination of our credit abroad, and a new election. The intelligent people of the country would not listen to such catch cries as the grafters must go and other truck. The people were not to be fooled in this way. During the last month they had fully sized up the political wreckers of the Squires-Coaker combination, who were trying to break their way into the House of Assembly and get control of public monies to back private financial enterprises. The Squires-Coaker dual leadership spell no good for Newfoundland. Ruin and disaster was sure to follow in the wake of, through some unfortunate circumstance, they got control of the country's finances. On the other hand, the Liberal-Progressive Party had one leader, Sir Michael Cashin, a man of honesty of purpose with a clean record, and with experience that fitted him for the position of Premier. His native district had sent him to the House of Assembly for 27 years, and if such a representative constituency could trust him for this long period, surely Newfoundland could do no better than give him a chance. As Minister of finance he protected the Treasury well, and when a hold-up for $1,500,000 was made, he stood firm and saved the people's money. It was very questionable if some of those now seeking their way into the Assembly, would have done the same. The policy outlined by Sir Michael Cashin, said Mr. Bennett, is concise, clear-cut and can be carried out, and that he would be given a chance to carry it out he had not the slightest doubt. Mr. Bennett, concluded his address by asking East and West to join hands on Nov. 3rd and roll up a majority for Bennett, Mullaly and Martin in the West, and Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox in the East, that was never before recorded. When Mr. Bennett closed his address, there was another outburst of applause, which lasted several minutes.

Mr. N. J. Vinnicombe, of the St. John's East "Fighting Trio," was the next speaker, and when he rose from his seat, the cheering was simply deafening. In a sound, practical speech he dealt with the political situation. In 1913 he opposed Hon. Mr. Higgins, and supported Hon. J. M. Kent, the late J. Dwyer and Mr. C. W. Ryan. At that time he was a Liberal, and he held the same Liberal principles today. That was why he was a candidate on the Liberal-Progressive ticket. He was proud to be associated with Hon. Mr. Higgins, one of the best representatives St. John's East ever had. Mr. Higgins was accused of being Reid's lawyer six years ago, but this did not defeat him. Since then he has been lawyer for many others beside the Reids, and because of his marked success a few sore heads were trying to get their knife into him. The people of St. John's East were wise to these things and they were going to prove to the country that they had the utmost confidence in Mr. Higgins on Nov. 3rd. Some reference had been made that would be under control if elected. He was never under anyone's control and never would be. The interests of St. John's were his interests, and if honoured with a seat he was prepared to stand by the people and see that their wishes were carried out. Mr. Vinnicombe in conclusion, like the previous speaker, asked the East and West to join hands on election day and swamp the Coaker-Squires crew before they got half-way to the buoy. As "Nix" resumed his seat, cheer after cheer resounded through the Armory—a splendid testimonial of his popularity in St. John's East and West.

Mr. J. J. Mullaly, Hon. Mr. Bennett's colleague, on being introduced by the chairman, came forward amidst most enthusiastic cheering. Mr. Mullaly, who has so well represented the City at the Council Board (and who did not act the baby when the Prince of Wales was here), delivered a very practical address. He dealt with the dual leadership of Squires and Coaker, and the impossibility of the two to work in harmony. Nothing was too bad for one to say about the other, and though the hatchet had been buried, so to speak, each carried a jack knife down his boot, and at the very first difference of opinion they would begin a regular scalping match. Mr. Mullaly also referred to the personal abuse and vilification of the Opposition press and of certain references to himself. Some amateur had made reference to Mullaly's "barrel," (the Councillor is a cooper), but he would like to know how big the barrel was that Squires dipped his hands in to pluck out the five thousand "green backs" which Coaker said he got from the Reids. He wanted nothing out of the "barrel," but he could say without fear of contradiction that not half a dozen of the Coaker-Squires candidates were paying their own expenses, and the public would like to know where the money they were spending was coming from. Was it out of the "W. D. barrel." Mr. Mullaly scored his vilifiers time and again, which brought forth rounds of applause. Mr. Mullaly in closing asked for the straight ticket vote in both East and West Ends, and for a majority that would submerge forever the Coaker political robbers and jobbers, who are now trying to gull the electors of St. John's and the whole country. Cheer upon cheer followed the close of Mr. Mullaly's address.

Mr. C. J. Fox was the next of the "Fighting Trio" to address the gathering, and on stepping forward received a reception that any candidate might well be proud of. In opening he paid a glowing tribute to the Church Lads' Brigade, in whose Hall the present meeting was being held, and in which when the Great War was declared in 1914 the first call of Newfoundlanders to arms was sounded. He eulogized the work of the Brigade lads at the front, making particular references to the many who had made the supreme sacrifice. These he felt, were they with us to-day, would like the members of the brigade present, be supporters of the Liberal-Progressive Party, because it stood for the ideals, liberty and freedom for which they had fought. In scathing terms he denounced those who in the present political contest are attempting to resurrect the old time prejudices and passions which the fighting men had buried in the fields of Flanders and France, where none asked nor cared at what altar his brother-in-arms worshipped. The motto of the C.L.B., "Fight the Good Fight," was also the motto of the Liberal-Progressive Party, and he like all associated with that Party, was acting up to that motto. The appeal of himself and colleagues for support of the electorate, not to their baser passions, and eloquently he pointed out that the marking of a ballot on Nov. 3rd is a sacred thing and not lightly to be dealt with. It was a duty every man owes to his country and his children to vote according to his conscience and not on appeals to prejudice. Continuing, he pointed out that the Liberal-Progressive Party was worthy of support because it was a united body under the leadership of one man, Sir Michael Cashin, while opposing it was a conglomerate party, under a dual control, one partner of which was the man who drove Sir Robert Bond, the incorruptible commoner, out of political life. Again he showed that Sir Michael Cashin was in every way fitted to be leader of the Government, his lengthy experience, straight forwardness and ability as shown while Minister of Finance, qualifying him for the position. In closing he appealed to the electors to consider fully their duty on polling day and take no chances, but vote for the Liberal-Progressive Party, which stands for the progress and prosperity of Newfoundland.

Mr. Jas. T. Martin, of the West End team, was the next speaker and as he arose the gathering burst into cheers. Briefly he referred to the splendid meetings held by himself and colleagues in St. John's West and also the low down tactics of their opponents in conducting their campaign. In convincing manner he pointed out his reasons for association with the Liberal-Progressive Party, the principal one being that it stands for the people and progress, and is led by a man who has risen to his present position from the lowest rung of the ladder by his own industry and ability. He showed up clearly the evils the city would suffer from a Coaker-Squires-Guppy combine, who had no real policy, but sought to gain control of the country's affairs by catch cries and only for their own personal ends. Continuing, he paid a tribute to the leader of the team for St. John's West, Hon. J. R. Bennett, the lawful successor of Lord Morris in that district, and pointed out that all through the campaign he, Mr. Bennett, had shown that loyalty for

Unable to stampede the independent electors on the worn out cries of Reids and Confederation, the Guppyite editors are now harping on the financial affairs of the country. The argument they are advancing in this direction, however, will prove just as futile, for they are too silly and illogical to impress the minds of any man, no matter how illiterate. The Squires organ denounces the taxing of the profits of the big business man, in one column of the paper, and states this is a wrong proceeding as when you tax a man thus he gets it off the consumer by forcing up prices. In another column of his paper, the "Star" editor puts forth the plea that Squires is going to reduce taxation on the consumer by adjusting it so that the rich man will pay more taxes. Was there ever read such nonsense as this. He abuses the Government now for taxing the rich man, because he says the poor man must pay this tax in the end, and then follows up this argument in another far-off corner of his paper by declaring that if you put Squires in he will make the rich man pay much more than he is doing now, so that, as he says, the poor will need to pay less. If the rich man under this Government is collecting his taxation off the poor consumer upon the tariff now in force as Squires is preaching, it must certainly follow as a natural consequence that if Squires is going to collect more taxation from the rich man, the poor man will be bled to death entirely. Take a concrete case for instance. Under the present tariff a rich man pays say, $100 duty on certain articles. Squires says the poor man must pay this back to the rich one. Put Squires in power and he says "I am going to make that rich man pay $200 on these goods." Isn't it clear

Johnson's Goods.

The Frenzied Finance of Squires & Coaker.

Unable to stampe the independent electors on the worn out cries of Reids and Confederation, the Guppyite editors are now harping on the financial affairs of the country. The argument they are advancing in this direction, however, will prove just as futile, for they are too silly and illogical to impress the minds of any man, no matter how illiterate. The Squires organ denounces the taxing of the profits of the big business man, in one column of the paper, and states this is a wrong proceeding as when you tax a man thus he gets it off the consumer by forcing up prices. In another column of his paper, the "Star" editor puts forth the plea that Squires is going to reduce taxation on the consumer by adjusting it so that the rich man will pay more taxes. Was there ever read such nonsense as this. He abuses the Government now for taxing the rich man, because he says the poor man must pay this tax in the end, and then follows up this argument in another far-off corner of his paper by declaring that if you put Squires in he will make the rich man pay much more even than he is doing now, so that, as he says, the poor will need to pay less. If the rich man under this Government is collecting his taxation off the poor consumer upon the tariff now in force as Squires is preaching, it must certainly follow as a natural consequence that if Squires is going to collect more taxation from the rich man, the poor man will be bled to death entirely. Take a concrete case for instance. Under the present tariff a rich man pays say, $100 duty on certain articles. Squires says the poor man must pay this back to the rich one. Put Squires in power and he says "I am going to make that rich man pay $200 on these goods." Isn't it clear millions would play havoc amongst the fishermen themselves, and farmers, laborers, tradesmen and everybody else in city and outport would suffer a proportionate share. The people of St. John's have enough to do now to pay their share of city and public revenue without having extra taxation imposed upon them by the frenzied finance schemes of Coaker and Squires, and are not going to run any risk of having their property, homes, savings and earnings swamped by the Guppyites who want to get in power. With such an undesirable element in control of the Government no wealthy capitalist abroad would spend a dollar in this country for developing purposes fearing the Bolsheviki element amongst them would start a riot and swoop down upon it all for their own designs. The Colony would also see the last of obtaining any loans on our own behalf to meet maturing obligations, for Coakerism would put us in a hole that we should never get out of. In such a hole we would be at the mercy of the arch-Confederate W. D. Reid, who would buy us for a song and then get millions himself for selling us holus bolus to the Canadian Government. No such miserable, pitiable destiny will follow the return of the present Government to power, for there is a sound, solid, independent man at the helm just now who will not stand for any frenzied methods of finance such as Squires and Coaker plan. He is a man who commands the respect and confidence of the leading financiers abroad as witness his successful floating of the Colony's Victory Loan; he is a man of such outstanding high repute that, should conditions be disturbed to the extent that we would be obliged to seek further help from outside, wealthy investors would not hesitate to come to our assistance were he still at the helm. A man of sensible attainments and high rating, commercial and otherwise, such as Prime Minister Cashin, backed by a steady and stable Government, in any grave crisis that may arise, would be able to so help this Colony, because of the respect entertained for him and his Government abroad, that we need have no fear of the clutches of W. D. Reid or any other Confederation shark who is out to get us in his clutches. To sum up then, it is advisable for all voters to beware of Coaker and Squires with their frenzied finance and elect instead the Liberal Progressives.

No Strikes There!

Who is the highest-paid workman in the world? Probably the Cuban cigar-maker.

He is as skilled a workman as the blower of Venetian glass. He takes his trade very seriously, and his daily output represents at least a hundred cigars, identical in shape, size, and weight. His only implements are a block of maple and a small, curved knife. He smokes incessantly, and draws inspiration from a skilled electrician, whose business it is to read to the men while they are at work.

A traveller returning from Havana records the strange sight of hundreds of dusky Cubans hard at their task, while a reader, on a small, raised dais, entertains them with the weekly news or the latest novel. The reader's salary is drawn from the men themselves, but the Cuban's expensive tastes in the smoking line are the result of his employers' generosity. He smokes with the latter's sanction, and at their expense, and earns a good round sum per week into the bargain.

McDonald Gains Twenty Pounds Taking Tanlac

Also Gets Rid of Rheumatism After Tanlac Builds Him Up.

"If there was ever a time in my life when I felt better than I do since taking this Tanlac I can't remember it," said Rod G. McDonald, the blacksmith, living at 4, Cunard Street, Halifax, in telling of the remarkable results he has obtained from the medicine, recently.

"That spell of 'Flu' had last fall," explained Mr. McDonald, "left me with stomach trouble and rheumatism and so weak and run-down that I couldn't shoe three horses without being completely exhausted. I had no appetite and my stomach was so stiff it seemed to do me little or no good, as I fell off twenty-five pounds in weight. My nerves were so shattered that I would wake up at all hours of the night, never getting any sound sleep, and felt so bad in the mornings that it was all I could do to get off to the shop. And besides I was just bent all over with rheumatism. My legs, arms and shoulders seemed to ache clean to the bone. My joints would get so stiff I could hardly bend them and in damp weather, especially, I couldn't make a move without just suffering agony. There was a constant pain in the small of my back and my arms and shoulders were so stiff and painful that it was difficult for me to raise my hands up to my head. I was so stiff and achy in the mornings that I had trouble getting my clothes on and between the rheumatism and that tired, worn-out feeling I was just about all in."

"Just before I started on Tanlac I had made up my mind to stop trying to work and go to the country and see if that would help me, for I was getting worse all the time. In the meantime, I ran across a Tanlac testimonial that described my case so well that I concluded to see if the medicine would help me. Well, it has not only helped me, it almost made a new man of me. I have taken six bottles now and have gotten back twenty pounds of my lost weight already. My appetite is great and I am eating three hearty meals a day and my stomach never troubles me the least bit. And as to the rheumatism, I haven't had a touch of it since I finished my second bottle of Tanlac. I believe it has left me for good for I can work ten hours a day and never feel a sign of it. I can go to bed at eight o'clock at night and sleep till six in the morning. All that tired, weak feeling is gone and I can now shoe an average of twelve horses a day and still feel fine. I don't feel the effects of the Flu now any more than if I had never had it. In fact, I am just feeling fine and can recommend Tanlac as by far the best medicine I have ever used."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative—adv.

Should Women Play Games?

CERTAINLY—BUT ONLY IF THEY SELECT THEM WITH DISCRETION.

During the last few years women have taken such a great part in sport, and have proved themselves such adepts at all games, that one is beginning to wonder where it will all end.

So far as athletics are concerned, our girls will probably derive much benefit in some ways. Running, for instance, develops the lower limbs, raises the arches of the feet, and gives graceful carriage to the body; also the rapid movement stimulates the action of the heart, and, by oxygenating the blood, improves the complexion.

Tennis, rowing, and swimming also are games which a girl may take up safely, but the rougher sports, in which personal bodily contact and striving are involved, are not so suitable.

Sports to Avoid.

Such sports as football, tug-of-war, boxing, and wrestling are designed to strengthen a man's will and, in a measure, teach him how to bear pain. If adopted by the fair sex, the purpose will be lost, and an unpleasant hardness inculcated into the feminine temperament. There is a further consideration, too—that of permanent bodily injury, the risk of which is too great for women in men's games.

Another argument which may be urged against the participation of women in the more violent forms of sport is that her face becomes horribly contorted in her strenuous efforts to win, and although such contortions are but momentary, they are bound to leave their mark upon the features if too often indulged in.

As regards football, the women's teams, which came into existence when the munition works were still running, are still very much alive, and it may be that the day will come when we shall see thousands of people flocking to watch the manoeuvres of twenty-two women players.

From a spectator's point of view, football seems to be taking just as keen a hold of women as it has done of men. It seems a pity that the conditions of the game do not render it more suitable for them as players.

ENDORSES ALL THAT HAS BEEN SAID ABOUT SECTARIAN FIRE-BUGS.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Although I know your space is filled up daily with letters, telegrams, etc., from various sections of this Newfoundland of ours showing clearly that the sectarian firebugs—Squires and Coaker—are not so successful in their efforts to deceive the electorate as they would wish, still I beg of you to make room for a few remarks from this quarter to endorse in a simple way all that your paper and the other Government organs are saying and doing to arrest them in their dire plot to run our country by trickery and, in my opinion worse still, to set creed against creed and class against class. All denominations are now living harmoniously, and is not it a crying shame for the sake of self and dirty, filthy lucre, to even attempt to have them otherwise. But thank goodness the time for that sort of thing to injure the country is past and gone, and our people are too wide awake to be caught by such catch cry.

I am surprised at a man of Education as Dr. Barnes is claimed to be, to be a party to such. Is it not plain proof of that when the people of this town at a meeting took Mr. E. C. Russell in preference to this so-called "big gun." The peoples voice was not heard. Coaker and Squires wanted Barnes as he would probably be able to do things for them that E. C. Russell could not or would not do for them, so above the voice of the people they selected Barnes on their team. Mr. Russell at the request of his people then decided to run the election on the independent ticket.

This Mr. Barnes is certainly in good (?) company with Frank Archibald of Harbor Grace, who is another slacker. Both Barnes and Archibald should have been in France for the past four years, helping our boys who earned the name of "Better than the Best," to show what stuff our Newfoundlanders are composed of. But no, both these able-bodied, unmarried, young men, with no person depending on them, and whose services could be easily dispensed with in Newfoundland during the period of the war, both of them I say choose to stay at home and read the public messages, as one after another of our brave boys were reported as "Killed in Action," missing, wounded, or gone down in some warship or trawler. Yes, Mr. Editor, how they did appear to sympathize with the poor fellows. But still they failed to kindly a fire of patriotism in their hearts, and make an effort to go forward and do their bit to help the boys, even when they stood with their back to the wall, with the order from their commanding officers to retreat no more. Then the advance, then the bloodshed, then the heartrending messages to the friends of dead and wounded soldiers. Still no move in Barnes and Archibald. But the home battle is on. Men are seeking positions in the House of Assembly, and immediately the fire is kindled in the breasts of Barnes and Archibald, and they at once appeal to the electorate to put them in power, and save the country. What presumption, what gall, while we are mourning for our best manhood, who the bravest amongst us, who are buried on the battle fronts of France and Flanders. What a long letter could be written on this subject, but for the present I will content myself with appealing to every voter, especially those who had brothers, cousins, nephews, or even a friend among the fallen heroes, to walk and vote against these "slackers" who apparently stayed in their shells until the war was over and then came out to try and make the people believe they were worthy of their support. But are they? Can I not hear the cry now!—No! no! no! Squires cannot be trusted. Let us all reason this thing out in an unbiassed way and we will join with our brothers in other districts in voting for the Liberal Progressive party led by Hon. M. P. Cashin, Piccott, Parsons and Josiah Gosse (not George the Coaker man) are the choice of all right-thinking electors. They are no slackers. We know them. Let us vote and work for them.

Thanking you in anticipation for placing these few notes before the country,
I am,
Yours sincerely,
X. X. X.
Bay Roberts, Oct. 24, 1919.

Some of the finest suits are intended to be worn without any furs whatever. Bands, edges and patches of kid and patent leather are novelties in trimmings. Phantom Ships.

GHIM YARNS OF GHOSTLY VESSELS THAT HAUNT THE SEVEN SEAS.

(By ELLIOTT O'DONNELL.)

One night within the memory of certain of the fishermen who still live there, lights were seen flitting about the bay fronting a small but well-known fishing town in Cornwall. Fearing that some vessel was in distress, although the weather was very calm at the time, the local lifeboat put out and rowed towards the signals.

But whenever it reached the spot whence the lights seemed to proceed, the latter moved elsewhere, and in this manner a chase was conducted for some time, until the lifeboat at length came upon a ship with its sails and yards all caked with ice, looking as if it had encountered the very severest of weather.

No one was to be seen on board, however, and the lifeboat drawing near, one of her crew was preparing to board the strange vessel, when the ship vanished instantaneously. Within twenty-four hours the bay was visited by the most destructive storm it had experienced for over fifty years.

Foretelling Some Disaster. Phantom ships are invariably portendings of disaster.

I know a man who was formerly engaged in the repair of deep-sea cables. One day, when about six hundred miles from the Cape of Good Hope, his friend was called on deck by one of the crew, who pointed to a ship about a quarter of a mile away.

She was of a quaint, old-fashioned rig, high pooped, like a vessel belonging to the eighteenth century, and although the sea was perfectly calm at the time, she was tossing to and fro and rising and falling as if experiencing the very foulest of weather. All hands, saving the captain, who was asleep in his cabin at the time, came on deck to have a look at her, until she suddenly, and quite unexpectedly, disappeared.

The older members of the crew shook their heads, and said they were quite certain what they had seen was the phantom ship, and that dire disaster would assuredly overtake them.

The younger ones merely laughed. The former, in a sense, proved right, for within two or three days a violent storm arose, and the ship being caught in the swirl of it, was badly damaged. There was only one casualty, and that, oddly enough, the captain, who was struck on the head by a falling spar and killed, and it was a noticeable fact that he alone of the crew had not seen the ghost ship.

In the Grip of the Sargasso Sea. Of course, there are no end of tales told about the Sargasso Sea, that great, dank, silent stretch of seaweed covered water off the north coast of South America. Of the many strange happenings that are rumoured to have taken place there, the following seems to be about the best authenticated.

Some years ago, a sailing ship of the old wooden order, becoming becalmed in the Gulf of Mexico, eventually drifted until she came within close range of the great sinister banks of seaweed known as the Sargasso. As it seemed highly probable that the ship, sharing the fate of countless others, might be there forever, the crew petitioned the captain to abandon her, and on his refusing, all of them, saving three, took to the boats.

The day after they had gone, as the captain was sitting alone in his cabin, feeling very despondent, he heard the sound of oars, which gradually drew nearer and nearer until they seemed to halt close beside the vessel. There was then a brief pause, which was abruptly broken by three loud raps at the door.

The captain, feeling sure it must be some of his runaway crew returning, called out "Come in!" To his astonishment, the door opened and footsteps crossed the floor to his table, without his being able to see anyone.

His pen was then taken up, and the following message, in a very old-fashioned hand, written on a piece of paper: "Pray for my soul and for all those on board my ship, and all will go well with you."

Then the Wind Blew Again. The pen was then replaced, the steps retreated to the door, which opened and closed softly, and the sound of oars leaving the ship's side came very distinctly through the port-hole, though when the captain looked out nothing was visible. The captain narrated what had happened to his three loyal followers, and, at the advice of one of them, held a service on deck, praying very earnestly for the souls of the mysterious visitor and his equally mysterious crew.

Next day the weather suddenly changed, a breeze sprang up, and the ship, wrenching herself away from the weeds that had already begun to cling round her, moved slowly away, and, in the end, reached her destination.

Wedding Bells.

A very interesting wedding took place at the Oratory of the Sacred Heart, Mercy Convent, Military Road, on Thursday evening, October 16, when Miss Dora Keating, daughter of the late Thomas and Katherine Keating, and Mr. T. J. Ryall, ex-Sergeant of the Royal Newfoundland Forestry Company, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Dr. Greene. The bride, who looked very charming in a most becoming costume, was given away by her uncle, John S. Keating, Esq., Deputy Finance Minister. Misses Annie English and Mamie Keating acted as bridesmaids, whilst the groom was supported by Mr. Joseph English of the Central District Court. After the marriage ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of Mrs. English, the bride's former residence, where a dainty supper was partaken of. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Ryall many years of wedded happiness.

The day after they had gone, as the captain was sitting alone in his cabin, feeling very despondent, he heard the sound of oars, which gradually drew nearer and nearer until they seemed to halt close beside the vessel. There was then a brief pause, which was abruptly broken by three loud raps at the door. The captain, feeling sure it must be some of his runaway crew returning, called out "Come in!" To his astonishment, the door opened and footsteps crossed the floor to his table, without his being able to see anyone. His pen was then taken up, and the following message, in a very old-fashioned hand, written on a piece of paper: "Pray for my soul and for all those on board my ship, and all will go well with you."

Then the Wind Blew Again. The pen was then replaced, the steps retreated to the door, which opened and closed softly, and the sound of oars leaving the ship's side came very distinctly through the port-hole, though when the captain looked out nothing was visible. The captain narrated what had happened to his three loyal followers,

Navy's War Losses.

THE ROLL OF HONOUR OF THE SENIOR SERVICE.

Over a thousand vessels of the Royal warships and auxiliaries, were lost during the war in action, or by submarines and mines, and other causes. The exact number, according to a detailed return now issued by the Secretary to the Admiralty was 1,009, of which 254 were warships and 815 auxiliary vessels. Of the warships 13 were battleships, 3 battle cruisers, 11 cruisers, 12 light cruisers (including six sunk as block ships, at Zeebrugge and Ostend), 5 monitors, 3 flotilla leaders, 64 torpedo boat destroyers (including the Zulu and Nubian, which were damaged in action and afterwards made into one ship, named Nubian, and which are counted as a loss of one vessel), and 54 submarines (including 7 destroyed at Hel-singsfors to avoid capture).

Only 42 warships were lost in action, 62 falling victims to submarine attacks, and 44 to mines. Eleven were destroyed to avoid capture, 23 were lost in collisions, 22 were wrecked, 5 were lost by internal explosion, and seven by accident, while in 26 cases the cause of the loss was unknown. Among the 815 auxiliary vessels in the list, 246 were hired trawlers, 244 were colliers, and 130 were hired drifters. There were 13 minesweepers, 2 mine carriers, 2 hospital ships (the Rohilla, which was wrecked at Whitby in October, 1914, and the Rewa, which was sunk by a submarine at the beginning of last year), 44 tugs, 23 special service ships, 14 tugs, 13 yachts, 2 whalers, 18 Admiralty trawlers, 24 motor launches, 6 motor boats, 1 ammunition ship, and 9 Fleet messengers.

A large proportion of these boats were lost as the result of attacks by U-boats, the number being 289, while 225 were destroyed by mines, and 43 went down as the result of actions. To collisions the loss of 93 auxiliaries is ascribed, and 77 were wrecked, one was destroyed to avoid capture, and 18 were removed by fire, while in 31 cases the cause of the loss is unknown.

Household Notes.

Beets, parsnips and carrots should be covered with sand and stored in boxes for the winter. Put a pinch of soda in the water in which turnips or cabbage are cooked and this smell will be dulled. Salt fish should be freshened more by frying than for any form of cooking which includes milk. Minced peppers, cream cheese, chopped nuts and lettuce with mayonnaise dressing form a good salad.
