LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER IV.

He had a book which he thought Lady Rooden would like, or a choice flower, knowing that she was so fond of flowers—always a reasonable excuse; and the time soon came when her ladyship counted the hours between his visits, all unconscious that they were rapidly becoming the one thing needful to the happiness of her life.

But Lady Rooden was distressed that Angela did not like him. She never appeared to enjoy his society, and always seemed anxious to escape from the room. When he tried to draw her into conversation, she would make him only the very briefest of replies. Her mother could not understand this method of treating one whom she considered the most charming of men. Her wonder was that Angela was not delighted with him and eager for his society; but then she consoled herself by remembering that her daughter was not quite like other girls.

Thus matters went on for some time, Angela herself being the last to perceive what was about to happen. It was plain enough to the rest of the world that Vance Wynyard was doing his best to win the rich young widow; but Angela, who always thought of her mother as one with the father she had lost, never for one moment allowed such an idea to enter her head. No one saw or understood less than she to whom it was of such vital importance.

CHAPTER V.

One bright June morning Vance Wynyard made an early call at Rood House. There was to be a garden party at Richmond, and he wanted to drive the ladies down. He had spoken of his wish to Lady Rooden on the previous evening; and she, not unwilling to find an excuse for an extra visit had said she would think of it. He was with her before noon to ascertain her decision.

The garden-party was to be given by Lady Avon at her villa on the

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jamestown, N. Y.—"I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no solution. Part of the time I was not able to sit up as I suffered with pains in my back and with nervousness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, both the liquid and tablet forms, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for inflammation. Today I am real well and in a rooming house and do the work. I recognized your medicine to every woman who complains, and they are my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life and I hope the Vegetable Compound in the house, ready to take when I feel the need of it."—Mrs. ALICE D. DAVIS, 238 W. Second St., Jamestown, N. Y.

Often some slight derangement may cause a general upset condition of the entire system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, headache, back ache and general weakness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a successful medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

can he will praise you for having given "California Fig Syrup" as the laxative because it never fails, never cramps or overacts, and even sick children love its pleasant taste. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

banks of the Thames. The invitations were by no means general. Beauty, fashion and wit would be well represented. Her ladyship was far too wise to care to see an assembly of plain, commonplace, or unattractive people under the shade of the great trees on her lawn. The handsomest men, the best-dressed and most beautiful women in London, would be there. Lady Avon knew exactly how to draw the creme de la creme of society around her. She was most anxious to secure Lady Rooden and her lovely young daughter; for, bearing in mind the sensation they had made in the fashionable world, she guessed that if it were known they were to be present, invitations would be eagerly sought after.

It was the dearest hope in the heart of more than one rich and titled lady that he should drive the two fairest women in London to Richmond. The Duke of Templetown, who was said to have the most perfectly appointed equipage in London, was the first to ask; Lord St. Bury was the second; and then came Vance Wynyard. With a charming smile Lady Rooden declined the offers of the first two; of the third invitation she promised to think. The result was Captain Wynyard's early morning call.

Lady Rooden and her daughter were in the drawing-room when he was announced. Angela in ecstasies of delight over a small bouquet of pink moss-rose buds which had just arrived from the florist's.

The girl had just laid the bouquet on the table when Captain Wynyard entered, looking very handsome and in high spirits. He was most impressive in his greeting of Lady Rooden, who did not hide her delight at seeing him. Angela went away as soon as possible, for she did not like the ex-captain, and was always glad of some pretext to hurry away when he appeared. She was absent for some little time, and then bathought herself of a question she wished to ask her mother. She did not expect to find Captain Wynyard still in the drawing-room; but, to her surprise, he was still there, standing by her mother near one of the large windows. Something in the expression of Lady Rooden's face startled the girl—it was a something she had never seen there before. Her mother's face was slightly flushed—a delicate, dainty flush, that recalled the inner leaf of a rose—and her eyes drooped, and the lines of her beautiful mouth were slightly tremulous. Angela looked quickly from her mother's face to the captain's. His was flushed, handsome, and triumphant. To her consternation, she saw that he wore one of the pink moss-buds in his coat. Could it be possible that her mother had given it to him?

She could not tell why it was, but a sudden sensation of deadly pain came over her. Presently she felt as though she had intruded, as though she were not wanted, as though she had interrupted them and they were not well pleased at the interruption. Yet it must be a foolish fancy, a foolish idea on her part, for her mother had no secrets to talk over with Captain Wynyard. Dismissing the thought as unworthy, she went to the table and raised the pink moss-buds. Then the captain murmured some excuse for his long call bowed, and went away. But, even after he had gone, the dreamy half-tender smile still lingered on Lady Rooden's face. Angela went up to her.

"Mamma," she asked, gently, "did you give Captain Wynyard one of these lovely moss-buds—the one he has in his coat?"

The flush and the smile deepened on Lady Rooden's face.

"Yes, Angel, I gave it to him," she answered.

The girl's face clouded, and, when she spoke again, her voice was full of sorrow and reproach.

"Oh, mamma, I am so sorry!" she said. "I do not like him. I am sorry that he has one of my beautiful moss-rose buds. Do not give him flowers again, mamma."

Lady Rooden laughed lightly.

"I ought to like him the more because you do not like him enough, Angel. I really cannot understand your prejudice against him, for he is certainly the nicest man I have met in society."

"I am sorry you think so, mamma. To me he seems all that is false."

Then, and for the first time in her life, Lady Rooden spoke angrily to her daughter.

"You are too young to judge so harshly, Angel!" she exclaimed excitedly. "I do not like to hear you speak unkindly of any one—above all, of Captain Wynyard."

"I am sorry, mamma," returned Angela gently, "if I have displeased you. I thought you liked me to tell you what I thought."

Lady Rooden quickly recovered her good-humor.

"So I do, my dear; but I think you are very unjust toward Captain Wynyard; and I certainly have a great regard for him."

Angela went up to her mother, and put her arms round her neck.

"Mamma," she said, "I shall always remember to-day. It is the first time that you have ever spoken angrily to me."

"It will be the last, my darling!" cried Lady Rooden, struck by the sweet humility of her daughter. "And it was not you, but the sentiment you expressed, that annoyed me. Try to like Captain Wynyard, for he is really and truly a great friend of mine, and it would be much pleasanter if you too liked him."

"I will try, mamma," said Angela; but the tone of her voice expressed great doubt, and in her heart she felt a still greater doubt.

"All that day Lady Rooden was more than usually kind to her daughter, as though she wished to atone for something she had said or done.

That same evening mother and daughter went to a ball given by the Countess of Bellamy. Lady Rooden looked her best in pale amber velvet and fine white lace. Angela, lovely as a dream in white silk with blush roses. As usual, they were the belles of the ball. They attracted universal admiration, and the fact that they should be mother and daughter seemed barely creditable. As a matter of course, Captain Wynyard was the first to greet them.

Works Marvels.

These lovely moss-buds—the one he has in his coat!

The flush and the smile deepened on Lady Rooden's face.

"Yes, Angel, I gave it to him," she answered.

The girl's face clouded, and, when she spoke again, her voice was full of sorrow and reproach.

"Oh, mamma, I am so sorry!" she said. "I do not like him. I am sorry that he has one of my beautiful moss-rose buds. Do not give him flowers again, mamma."

Lady Rooden laughed lightly.

"I ought to like him the more because you do not like him enough, Angel. I really cannot understand your prejudice against him, for he is certainly the nicest man I have met in society."

"I am sorry you think so, mamma. To me he seems all that is false."

Then, and for the first time in her life, Lady Rooden spoke angrily to her daughter.

"You are too young to judge so harshly, Angel!" she exclaimed excitedly. "I do not like to hear you speak unkindly of any one—above all, of Captain Wynyard."

"I am sorry, mamma," returned Angela gently, "if I have displeased you. I thought you liked me to tell you what I thought."

Lady Rooden quickly recovered her good-humor.

"So I do, my dear; but I think you are very unjust toward Captain Wynyard; and I certainly have a great regard for him."

Angela went up to her mother, and put her arms round her neck.

"Mamma," she said, "I shall always remember to-day. It is the first time that you have ever spoken angrily to me."

THE SOCIAL CLIMBER.

It must be perfectly awful to be a social climber. I can't think of anything I'd hate worse. Can you? Friendship and neighborhood are two of the most heart warming realities in life. And the social climber has no room in her life (I have known masculine ones, but they were rare) and usually mere echoes of energetically climbing wives) for any natural, uncalculating enjoyment of friends and neighbors.

She Can't Afford Friends. Social relationships are her business and her happiness. She can't bother with anyone she can't use as a step up. And even if she doesn't so atrociously feel that she isn't capable of liking anyone, she can't afford to like anyone for long. For if she is a genuine climber she has to keep discarding acquaintances as fast as by their help she has climbed a little beyond. Then the social climber must always be putting her best foot forward. Never a chance to relax and to be herself. She must always be impressing someone. If she goes anywhere and meets new people she must drum up mutual acquaintances that will sound impressive. Never mind whether she really knows the people she talks about, she can talk as if she did. I heard one woman of this sort the other day. She was trying to impress some people who came from a suburb neighboring hers. "It is awfully gloomy in W. just now," she said. "You see we have been terribly hard hit by the flu. Mr. Cabot and Mrs. Ames died the very same week and then dear old Mr. Lowell had a stroke and we are afraid he will never be himself again. It has quite cast a pall over the community. You don't feel like giving parties when your friends are in such trouble."

Perhaps She Went to the Funeral. Afterwards I asked someone who knew her in her home town if the Cabots or the Ames or the Lowells were really her friends. "She lives in the same town with them," said this woman, "but I don't believe she ever met them except at some big crash."

Fancy being obliged by the social bug to use even death as part of your personal propaganda!

Of course the most disagreeable part of social climbing must be the invitations that don't come and the cold shoulders and snubs and even insults that you have to put up with. To be sure you are always upheld by the feeling that if you keep at it hard enough you may be able to insult these same people some day. And when you do attain that splendid goal there's surely must be a vivid satisfaction.

Aerial Statistics.

PARIS—(Can. Press).—Some idea of the progress of civil aviation may be gathered from recently published statistics which show that French aeroplanes during the months of August and September last carried 14,434 passengers from Le Bourget alone, compared with a total of 631 for the whole year of 1919. Distance flown is computed at 3,300,000 miles in 104,000 hours of flight.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops burning, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Germany's Short Memory.

British press comment on the French invasion of Germany is not all hostile to the former, and many of the principal newspapers contain very strong leaders, expressive of the righteousness of the French action. From the last papers received from the Old Country may be gathered the fact that France has the sympathy of the majority of the British people. Only the politicians are to be found ranged against that country, and not all of that class. Discussing the proclamation issued by President Ebert to the people of the Ruhr, which it describes as "singularly greasy and hypocritical," the Daily Mail makes caustic reference to the acts of the Germans in Northern France and Belgium during the course of the last war. The German President complains that a foreign power has violated the sacred right of the German people to its own land, to which the Mail puts the pertinent queries, What of Alsace and Lorraine? What of Louvain and Brussels and Antwerp, of Bruges and Ghent and Ostend? What of the attempt to extend the frontier of Germany beyond the Straits of Dover? President Ebert's proclamation asserts that the policy of force outrages treaties and treats the rights of men underfoot, to which the Mail retorts, What of the scrap of paper? What of the miseries endured by the people of the invaded territories of France and Belgium? And adds, "The action now taken (by France) is the consequence of the wanton attempt of the Germans to destroy the Peace Treaty and to make France bankrupt."

Germany showed no mercy to the conquered French at the end of the Franco-Prussian war in 1871. Bismarck and Von Moltke played with them as cats play with mice, and the former, it is said, when M. Thiers protested against the exorbitant demands, threatened out of sheer brutality to make him speak in German, a language which he very well knew Thiers did not understand, let alone converse in. The conditions imposed on France by the victors were severe in the extreme. France had to give Alsace-Lorraine to Germany, and in addition pay a war indemnity of two hundred millions pounds, in cash, and the first instalment of twenty million pounds—one tenth of the total—had to be paid 30 days after the re-establishment of the French Government in Paris. Did the French people sit down and whine, filling the air with piteous lamentations and seeking the sympathy of the world? Not so! Notwithstanding that the Government was in the throes of a life and death struggle with the Commune, and Paris lit up with the blaze of burning buildings, fired by the Communists, they devoted all their energies, first toward destroying the power of the enemy within the gates, in which they were successful, and secondly toward getting together the first payment. But with Paris a smoking mass of ruins, this was difficult, and for the only time—the French Government asked for an extension over the thirty days. With characteristic cruelty and cunning Bismarck refused, thinking doubtless that France would be compelled to default, as in such case the Germans intended to remain in occupation of one-third of the country and slowly bleed it to death. But by superhuman effort the sum of the first instalment was raised and paid punctually to the minute, and every one of the other instalments were met on time until the last franc had been handed over. The struggles and miseries of the French people during this trying period can be better imagined than described, yet after the extortion of the German had been satisfied and his last man withdrawn from French territory, the people set out toward restoration and reconstruction. How well they succeeded is told in history. But no thanks to the German, whose every endeavor was to grind France beneath his iron heel. Can the French forget this? Demi-gods could not either forget or forgive, and so to-day France is treating Germany to a dose of Bismarckian medicine, which German finds not at all to her liking. If there are any misgivings about the policy now being put in force by France, what answer can be made to the following question propounded by the Daily Mail: "What would Germany have done had she been victorious over France and Britain, and had subsequently seen her Peace Treaty openly flouted by the French and British?"

An Unique Situation in Nfld. Masonry.

An unique situation exists in Freemasonry in Newfoundland, both District Grand Masters of the Scottish Constitution was the late R.W. Bro. Charles R. Duder, whose untimely death last year created the vacancy in Scottish district. With the demise of R. W. Bro. J. Augustus Cliffe, District Grand Master English Constitution, this high office is also vacant. Probably this is the first time in the history of Masonry in this or any other Province, when there occurred a dual vacancy in the office of Grand Master, under different registries.

Trinity Correspondence.

We very much regret that to-day there will not be any column of these so interesting contributions from our esteemed Trinity Correspondent, who, however, has not ceased to weary of good works, but is now busily engaged in the preparation of a series which will be of great interest and value to all readers, but particularly so to those who keep scrap books. The first of the series will be published on Saturday next, February 17th. The two following in their proper course will be illustrated.

With Masonic Honours.

FUNERAL OF LATE GRAND MASTER CLIFF.

The funeral of the late J. A. Cliff, K.C., took place at 11 o'clock yesterday from his late residence, Military Road. The funeral arrangements were under the direction of Mr. A. Carnell, and the cortege was the largest seen for some time. The remains were enclosed in a beautiful mahogany casket and the hearse was banked with floral tributes. Service for the dead was held at St. Thomas's Church. Leaving the residence the order of the procession was:—

SOCIETY OF UNITED FISHERMEN

A.P. AND A.M. District Grand Tyler, two District Grand Stewards, two Stewards, St. John's Lodge, St. Andrew's Lodge, S.C., Trapper Lodge, S.C., Visiting and Transient Brethren, Whiteway Lodge, E.C., Avalon Lodge, St. John's Lodge, District Grand Lodge, S.C., District Grand Master Depute, S.C., District Grand Master, E.C., Guard of Honor on right side of hearse, Master and Wardens St. John's Lodge; on left side District Grand Warden Collier; Secretary Edgar; D. G. Registrar Robinson. Immediately after the hearse followed the relatives, then the Governor's suite, Judges of the Supreme Court, Law Society Pensioners Board of Commissioners G.W.A. Executive and citizens generally. The service at the church was taken by the Lord Bishop, assisted by Rev. Canon Bolt and the Rector, Rev. E. C. Earp. Two hymns, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," and "Jesus Lover of My Soul" were feelingly rendered during the service. The Dead March in Saul was played as the Societies and mourners recession through the church. By the West door, and proceeded to the Church of England Cemetery. At the graveside the burial service was conducted by Rev. E. C. Earp, who read the Committal. After the benediction Masonic Grand Honors were given the departed Grand Master, and each brother dropped into the grave the emblem of immortality, the mystic spring of which, on the return of the Masonic fraternity to the Temple another memorial service of sorrow will be held, at the close of which the Dead March in Saul will be played on the grand organ, the Brethren meanwhile standing reverently at attention.

Police Court.

A furrier who is also the proprietor of an hotel was fined $50 for buying beaver skins out of season. Mr. Hunt who defended pleaded that his client bought the furs from people who were otherwise destitute. In consequence the minimum fine was inflicted. Two cabmen who were before Court last week appeared again to-day and were each fined $5 for disorderly conduct. One of the two was also fined $2 for malicious damage to property. The fines were paid.

The T.A. & B.S. Ladies' Auxiliary will hold a Card Party and Dance on Feb. 12th. Pancakes will be served during the evening. Bennett's Orchestra will furnish the music.—Feb.10.21

Sagona Sails.

S.S. Sagona left here at 3 o'clock this morning for Fort aux Basques from where she will convey the Kyle's mail and passengers to Louisbourg. The Sagona will continue on the Kyle's route, coming direct to St. John's. The Kyle will leave Fort aux Basques for St. John's after the arrival of the Sagona at the former port.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Feb. 10. Petrolax is the latest brand of refined petroleum oil to be put on the market, but it is one of special purity and has the proper consistency for internal use. Petrolax is a laxative which is not absorbed but acts mechanically as a lubricant, without interfering in any way with any of the bodily functions. Two sizes price 60c. and $1.00 a bottle.

Train Notes.

A local express for Millertown Junction will leave here to-morrow. A train will leave Fort aux Basques for Humbermouth on the arrival of S. S. Sagona. The rotary plows are still clearing up the lines on the western end of the service. Of late the weather has been very stormy and the cuts are filled up nearly as fast as they are cleared.

Treasure Sought in Old Wreck.

LONDON.—Treasure seekers have located a wreck on the bottom of the sea just east of Cape Colony, which is believed still to shelter gold and jewels valued at $10,000,000, according to reports reaching here from South Africa. The East Indian, Grosvenor went down in 1782, and records show she carried great treasures in her strong boxes. One hundred and forty years exposure to the action of salt water has not destroyed them, it is argued, and a company has been formed to conduct salvaging operations. The wreck lies close to the land. A tunnel has been dug from the shore to the bulk of the Grosvenor and it is expected soon to have driven in the remains of the vessel searching for the long lost valuables.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

IRISH MINISTERS IN LONDON. LONDON, Feb. 10. President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State Government, accompanied by Patrick Hogan, Minister of Agriculture, and Hugh Kennedy, the Government's legal advisor, came to London yesterday to confer with the British Government details connected with the transfer of powers to the Free State, in accordance with the Anglo-Irish Treaty.

POLISH WORKMEN.

LONDON, Feb. 10. An Amsterdam despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says the French are importing Polish workmen into the Ruhr, and says that eight hundred workmen have started for there.

THEY CAN AFFORD TO.

LONDON, Feb. 10. The latest information from Constantinople, as well as from diplomatic quarters here, indicates that nothing important has developed in the situation at Smyrna, where foreign warships are said to remain in defiance of the order from Ankara.

PILOTTERS ARRESTED.

BELFAST, Feb. 10. Four arrests, made here last evening are regarded as very important as on two of the prisoners plans for the destruction of Belfast jail and other public buildings are said to have been found.

IRREGULARS ACTIVE.

DUBLIN, Feb. 10. A brisk interchange of shots occurred in Dublin last night when the City Hall guard was attacked. Machine guns dispersed the assailants, but later a lorry load of troops was fired upon. The body of a man riddled with bullets was found on the road, with a card bearing the words, "The first of fifty spies."

NO THOROUGHFARE.

German Cabinet Ministers, hereafter, will be barred from the Ruhr by Franco-Belgian forces. A note to this effect was drafted by Premier Poincaré and Foreign Minister, Jaspard of Belgium, and passed to the German Embassies at Paris and Brussels.

DEAD BEING REMOVED.

DAWSON, New Mexico, Feb. 10. Daybreak, to-day, saw thirty six bodies removed from mine number one, while 84 are thought to remain inside.

CAUSE NOT REVEALED.

CUMBERLAND, B.C., Feb. 10. The lives of thirty three men were lost in the explosion of number four mine Thursday evening, according to a statement given out this morning. 31 bodies have already been recovered, and 2 remain to be found.

Hard Winters of the Past

WHEN THE MERCURY ALMOST FROZE.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—As the severe weather obtaining for the past week or so, has occasioned much talk and discussion on the matter, I desire to forward a few records of the following weather in the long ago.

The winter (February, 1845) familiarly known as that of "The Three Sins"—a christy that aroused the fears and excited the minds of many of the inhabitants at the time—the glass consecutively registered, for some fifteen days, from 9 to 10 below zero.

In February, 1857, fourteen years later, much similar weather set in about the middle of the month, and continued uninterruptedly till the 27th. During this spell an incident worth recalling occurred in the burning of a considerable portion of the brig Margaret, owned by Capt. Peter Feehan, at the wharf of Messrs. McBride and Kerr. The vessel had been partly unfitted for the sealing voyage when the unfortunate happening occurred on the night of February 21st. However, as the time was getting short, the sailing being then on the 1st of March, an unusual rush was made to effect repairs. Shipwrights, joiners, riggers, etc., were hurriedly engaged to perform the work, during which intense frost prevailed, making it quite difficult in expediting the job. Finally, the good old firm of McBride & Kerr, who were agents for the Margaret, and anxious that the ship should be ready in time, thoughtfully, and with the desired results also, placed a hoghead of Jamaica rum on the wharf for distribution among the workmen. The "stingo" was given in charge of a trusted employee, who systematically dispensed four "welts" daily to each man, together with a "frog-bit" of "No. 1 Hamburg." Consequently, everything went swimmingly while the frost lasted, and till the vessel was ready to sail.

February, 1876, was an unusually frosty month, the thermometer registering for a considerable time on and about zero. On the 6th, however, the mercury dropped to 16 below in the city. The first week in February, 1874, a severe snap also struck the city and suburbs, the glass on one occasion, Feb. 7th, recording 10 below zero. On February 16, 1875, during a frosty spell, the glass at the Blockhouse, Signal Hill, registered 23 below; while a few days later, Feb. 20th, it recorded 20. February 25th, 1889, an intense cold wave swept over the city and the temperature on that day is recorded for 12 below.

On March 1st, 1897, during a cold spell, the thermometer showed 19 below in St. John's and vicinity. However, the lowest temperature on record, as generally asserted, was that of the 10th February, 1883—the night of the Wool Factory fire—forty years ago to-day.

Yours truly,
OLD ST. JOHN'S.
Feb. 10, 1923.

Don't forget to come to the T. A. Hall on Feb. 12th. T. A. Ladies' Auxiliary will hold a Card Party and Dance; also pancakes will be served by the ladies. Bennett's Orchestra will be in attendance.—Feb. 12

Bible Society.
ANNUAL MEETING TO-MORROW NIGHT.
Patrons and friends are asked to please note that the Annual Meeting of the Newfoundland Bible Society will be held in the Methodist College Hall, to-morrow (Sunday) evening, beginning (Sunday) evening, 7.15 o'clock. His Excellency the Governor will give an address, followed by the President, Rev. Canon Bolt and Rev. Hammond Johnson. A musical programme, and a collection in aid of the funds of the Society will be taken up.

Personal.
Mr. C. D. Sleator, Jeweller and Optician, leaves by Sable I. for New York, to-morrow, to take a special course in optical work.
Rev. Frances Cacciola, who has just completed a visitation of several of his missions on the eastern shore, will return to Barhaven this evening via North Hr. and Sound Island, in conditions favoring.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!
We beg to announce that we have reduced the price charged for gas from $3.00 to $2.75 per 1,000 feet as from January 1st, 1923. Reductions totaling 75 cents per 1,000 feet have now been made since October 31st, 1921, evidence of our earnest desire to reduce the cost in addition to increasing the efficiency and reliability of our GAS SERVICE.
INCREASED BUSINESS will enable us to make further reductions, and the co-operation of our Customers is invited.

ST. JOHN'S GAS LIGHT COMPANY.
January 4th, 1923.

Political and Financial Breakers Ahead.

An "S. O. S." Signal From The Look-Out.

(By AN EX-M.E.A.)

ARTICLE II.

They are slaves who fear to speak for the fallen and the weak; they are slaves who will not choose hatred, scolding, and abuse. Rather than in silence shrink from the truth they needs must think.

They are slaves who dare not be in the right with two or three.

SOME OF THE GREAT QUESTIONS CONFRONTING US.

The great questions of to-day, I maintain, are political and economic questions. It is absurd to say—as one of the local papers did a short time since—that "a sound moral consciousness is all that is needed for their proper solution." The Hon. Dr. Campbell would have too much good sense to say that a question in medicine could be decided by a laboring man as well as by any one else. Yet the learned Doctor, I think, will agree with me that medicine is not a more difficult science than political economy. The average man, in fact, is far more apt to know something about it than about the "dismal science." Everybody knows a little something about tuberculosis; but how few have the faintest conception of Gresham's law; though this is a law of nature which not even a little country like Newfoundland can infringe with impunity. The Prime Minister, whose almost superhuman effort to "raise the widge" and find work for the unemployed, we are all now watching with so much interest, would not say that an ability to distinguish between moral right and wrong capacitated a man for a successful knowledge of the money market and the mechanism of corporation finance. If it does, why do not men generally become "barons of finance"

I soon for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using them got instant relief. I bought more, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. G. S. Miller, Box 14, Marshall, Wash., Jan. 9, 1922.

and "captains of industry?" Yet knowledge of the money market and of the mechanism of corporation finance is indispensable to a clear consideration of the problems of municipal ownership and stable government.

ANOTHER PHASE OF THE SITUATION.

Possibly, if we took up almost any of the local political questions of the day, we should reach a similar conclusion. These questions are chiefly, if not entirely, economic; to all intents and purposes they signify lack of the moral element. They can, of course, be handled morally or immorally, according as they are discussed and settled ingeniously or disingenuously; but that is another phase of the situation, and one about which the Prime Minister and the Leader of the Opposition have nothing to say. It is, however, a phase on which a great deal of stress should be laid. Assuming, if you will, reader, that the laboring man is quite capable of judging correctly of important questions affecting the welfare of the colony, will he always do so? Is there any danger that he will let the expediency of the moment get the better of his moral sense? The warning comes to us like an "S.O.S." signal from the look-out!

A TEMPTATION TO WHICH ALL ARE OPEN.

Every one of us, no matter what his class, is open to the temptation just mentioned; and the laboring man is, perhaps open to it more than others. He is nearer to actual want than most others, and is consequently more in danger of having to take up with the doctrine that "necessity knows no law." Very few of us are any better than we ought to be; and when we fancy ourselves "down in the world," and deprived of our just right, we are not always squeamish over our methods. It is folly to sublimate mankind, as we sometimes do on the platform, in the pulpit and through the Press. It is futile to idealize "the people." They can see beneath the surface and easily discern our aim and object. It is the place of the best of us to bear always in mind that we are not gods, but weak-headed, short-sighted, peccable human beings; no better in some respects than the men we saw the other day shovelling snow along Water Street.

JUST A FEW PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

Then, again, take any one of us alone and he does not, on acquaintance, turn out a hero, either in church or state. And yet, collectively, we are supposed to be endowed with almost heavenly wisdom; has it not been said that the voice of the people is the voice of God? (Vox populi, vox Dei!) Why, then, have the people always stoned the prophets? The sooner we get this absurdity out of our heads, the better it will be for us. If the uninformed mind is sufficient of itself to meet and settle the intricate problems of human life and government, of what use is education, anyway? Why go to all this vast expense of time, energy, and money, if the same results can be accomplished without it? Is it no longer true that knowledge is power? Where is our sense? We all know that knowledge is still of priceless worth; it still raises a man above his fellows, and makes him a more efficient agent in the affairs of life. The laboring man who sees this is the man who rises from the lowest ranks to the highest, who begins life a fisherman or a stoker and ends it a "captain of industry."

THE POLITICAL LEADER AND HIS SOPHISTRY.

Possibly the political leader's sophistry will prevail in the future as it has prevailed in the past; but what sort of a colony shall we have when our politics and our industry are regulated by the lowest rather than by the highest intelligence? Traders of the sea and members of trade and labor unions, think on these things! The patriarch Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage; but he found no place for repentance, though he sought it with tears!

AN EXTREMELY CRITICAL JUNCTURE.

We have reached an extremely critical juncture in the history of our island home. Another serious mistake may prove fatal to our independence as a self-governing dominion. The people to-day are staggering under a burden of taxation so heavy and grievous that they can bear it no longer! To save the country from utter ruin, it will be necessary for the ablest and best men we have to allow themselves to be put in nomination as candidates for the House of Assembly at the coming general election. It will take every ounce of brains we possess to extricate us from our present difficulties. There can be no two opinions about that. We all fully realize it, and no less do we realize the fact that it is the individuality of man that is the source of his power; and the strength and power of the individual is the secret of the strength of society itself. A state of society which finds it necessary to repress the individual, to prevent his development, to curtail and

|                | $5,848,317 |

Just think of it! Nearly six millions of dollars! It is clearly a principle of political economy that when public money is spent upon "idle" functions, sinecures, or upon any kind of public work which is not to be either directly or indirectly useful, the labor which produced that money is lost, or has gone in vain. It is nothing in such cases to say that money has been circulated, that employment has been given, and so forth. Men do not absolutely need to be kept working in any particular way, and every idle consumer of other's goods than his own is a source of loss to the community. The success of a country's industrial operations depends very largely upon the goodness of the laws and the faithful execution of them by those in authority. If laws allow of dishonesty in the public service and elsewhere, all men would soon become thieves instead of honest producers; and, as thieves produce nothing, there would soon be nothing left to steal, and all would starve. And if the laws be not put into execution, there might as well be no laws, and the result would be the same. But governments themselves sometimes violate the rights of the people. This is the case when, by the mere will of the government, taxes are recklessly and unrighteously imposed and the cost of living becomes burdensome beyond endurance. When this is the case a people becomes at once disgraced and indolent. We are learning elementary economics at a tremendous cost!

absorb him, so that society is greater than its citizens, the state more important than the men that live in it, is at variance with the designs of God and the nature of man? And that society is the strongest, the most normal and healthy, which leaves its individual citizens their utmost liberty, their utmost growth, and their fullest strength. All governments conscious of our liberty must recognize in man the source of power and sacrifice. Man is greater than law, Man is the master of law. Governments and other institutions are the servants of man. One doctrine leads to tyranny, the other leads to liberty!

SOME STARTLING FACTS AND FIGURES.

Although our dominion is the most ancient dependency of the Crown, yet she has barely reached the spring-time of her commercial and economic existence. Her vast fishing, mining and lumbering resources are only in their initial stages of development. The time will come when the influx of capital and enterprise will make the colony a veritable hive of industry. But we must have men in power, large-hearted, patriotic men, who can measure up to the requirements of the occasion. The prosperity of a country can be maintained only so long as there exists in the country a sufficiently high standard of social, political and economic attainment to keep in order the basis on which that prosperity exists. It is a great thing to live in the spring-time of a country; it is a great thing to find oneself at the fountain-head of a stream of rejuvenated colonial existence that will swell with every age, gaining momentum as it rolls on with the flood of time. It is a great thing to lie at the fountain-head of that stream. It is said with truth:—

"The bubble on the streamlike brink Has changed the course of many a river: The dew-drop on the acorn-leaf May warp the giant oak forever."

I have already said that we shall have to reduce the present excessive rate of taxation before we can get back to anything like normal conditions. In all the neighboring Provinces the prime necessities of life can be obtained for one-third, and, in some cases, one-half less than we pay for them in Newfoundland; and here we have one of the strongest arguments that can be used in favor of Confederation. Take up any of the Canadian papers and you will find therein ample verification of this statement. Sugar, tea, butter and meats of every description are sold today as close to our doors as Sydney and Halifax, at almost pre-war prices, while here in St. John's commodities are compelled to pay 12 to 13 cts. a pound for sugar, 55 to 60 cts. a pound for butter, 35 to 40 cts. a lb. for fresh meat; and for other things, equally unfair and unjust charges are imposed. Why is this thus and so? For the cause of these outrageously high prices, I turn to the Blue Book and find the following startling figures under the caption of Customs Revenue:—

"The bubble on the streamlike brink Has changed the course of many a river: The dew-drop on the acorn-leaf May warp the giant oak forever."

"Facing The Music."

FINAL PERFORMANCE TO-NIGHT.

The final performance of the delightful comedy "Facing The Music," at the Casino Theatre, takes place tonight, when the public will have a last opportunity of showing its grateful appreciation of Mr. Trappell's gratuitous services in all causes during the past fifteen years. At last night's performance, the B.I.S. Executive and the members of the Literary and Amusement Committee attended in a body, to show the Society's appreciation of the talented producer's work, in responding to the many calls on behalf of education and charity. The house was well filled and the performance was perhaps the best of the series. So humorous were the situations that at times the audience were obliged to wait for a considerable length of time until the mirth had subsided before they could continue their lives. The "C.L.E. Band," under Capt. A. Morris, was again present and discoursed a delightful program for the overture and between the acts. Songs were also charmingly rendered by Messrs. Ruggles and Lawrence, with Mr. Gordon Christian as accompanist.

"The Love Special."

There are no sex problems, no matrimonial mix-ups, nor life lessons to be learned from Wallace Reid's latest Paramount picture, "The Love Special," which was shown at the Majestic Theatre last night. It is a fine, red-blooded, story with lots of mountain railroad atmosphere, a charming romance, and a few well-staged thrills to lend spice to the production. Mr. Reid is well supported by Agnes Ayres, and several other prominent players, including Theodore Roberts, Lloyd Whitlock, Sylvia Ashton, Alexander Gaden, Clarence Burton, Ernest Butterworth, and others.

The story revolves around Jim Glover, a construction engineer on a mountain railroad division, who gets "in dutch" with the daughter of the president of the road on first meeting her, and then falls in love with her and wins her despite the schemes of Harrison, a director of the road, who also loves the girl. Eugene B. Lawrie wrote the scenario, and the picture was directed by Frank Ursin, former assistant to Cecil B. DeMille, who has now become a full-fledged director.

THE TARIFF

Sir,—In my last I dealt with the tariff on local manufactures. I pointed out the principle of protection generally. It is proposed that we should have a 20% ad valorem tax on local manufactures. This is a duty of $2.50 per bushel on flour, and $1.00 per bushel on butter. The proposed duty on flour is 25% of the value of the flour, and on butter 20% of the value of the butter. Encourage Home Industry.

Article II. THE TARIFF. In my last letter I promised to deal with the Tariff as it affects local manufactures. The present Tariff contains here and there a principle of protection, but it is protection generally for our local industries. It is protection only for those who had sufficient "pull" to have their manufactures "protected". We have common bric-a-brac, tax-advantaged together with a duty of $2.50 per thousand, and Fire bricks pay only 10 per cent. The blockmakers, tin-makers and a few others are protected to get protection for their industries. Some of our industries are well protected; others are not protected at all. Local Tobacco and Butterine Factories pay an ad valorem duty on their product and a tax of two and a half per cent. on their gross receipts. Other manufacturers pay no excise duty, but pay a tax of three per cent. on their receipts. Local made cigarettes pay a duty and tax about a cent per cigarette. The imported cigarette pays about one and three-quarter cents per single cigarette. Cigarette manufacturers receive a protection of about one cent per cigarette. Butterine pays a duty of $7.50 per thousand. Plug tobacco pays an import duty of 12 cents per pound, or 12 per cent. The excise duty and duty on local made tobacco totals 12 cents per pound, or ten per cent. The protection is about 10 per cent. on two cents a pound. All the material for the manufacture of tobacco and cigarettes is duty free. Butterine pays a duty of 12 cents per pound and three-quarters per cent. on their local-manufactured. The imported articles pay six and a half cents per lb. However, the Butterine factories pay a duty of about four and three-quarter cents per pound on the butterine they use in manufacturing butterine. The amount of their protection cannot be calculated by giving 2 1/2% from 6 1/2%. Imported manufactures pay a duty amounting to about seventy per cent. The local made article pays three per cent on the gross price and an import duty of 10 per cent. of which they are made up to about 48 per cent. Imported shoes pay duty and freight about 63 per cent of the gross price. The leather of which they are made pays a duty of 10 per cent. Wire for the machine which drives sparrow-bills into the meshes in duty free, but the lining of the meshes is made of other materials. These are used in the manufacture of shoes and shoes pay from 35 to 50 per cent. duty. The candy factories pay a duty of five and a half cents per pound on their sugar. Most of the sugar which comes into the country is refined in this country. Young men who import chocolates pay a duty of 10 per cent. Children pay the duty on their sweets. Tin-ware pay nearly twenty per cent. on sheet tin and solder, while tin-ware and enamelware pay ten per cent. and seventy-five per cent. on the heavy freight. Tin-ware do not pay the three per cent. duty, but pay five per cent. on the invoice price of the article. I have included this in the above figures. The duty on jams is 50 per cent. and a duty which works out at 10 per cent. on the net weight. The duty on sugar manufactures is about five and a half cents per pound and the duty on imported goods is 20%. The duty on fruit varies between 10 and 25 per cent. of the net weight. On account of the tax on freight, the duty on heavy on fruit. Bakers pay 24 1/2 cents per barrel on flour but the sales tax which for flour varies between 18 and 25 per cent. on their gross wholesale price. They pay 5 1/2 cents on flour and 4 cents on all dried goods free of duty to everybody. Imported sweet biscuits pay 33 per cent. and the plain biscuit 33 per cent. Imported Laundry soap pays 10 cents per lb. in duty and tax. Imported oil-clothes pay about 10 per cent. on the materials of which they are made. Some of these articles are made in this country. The manufacturers of knitted goods pay no duty or sales tax to the manufacturer on the raw material. The manufacturer pays duty, and tax on the finished goods. The manufacturer pays about 14 per cent. on hats, mops, malt, etc. 33 per cent. on soap, and up to fifty per cent. on the imported article is about 10 per cent. Brown corn for the manufacture of brooms is duty free, but the wire used for making them pays about 23 per cent. The manufacturer pays about seventy per cent. on the labels about seventy per cent. on the alcohol. They pay a duty and a tax of two and a half per cent. on the present manufacture of

G. KNOWLING, Limited

Iron and Coke for the Foundry comes in duty free. The duty on stoves and other articles made of cast iron is about 55 per cent. Railway brake shoes pay nearly 50 per cent. Gas coal and oil for making illuminating gas are also free of duty. Materials for making lines and twines come in duty free, but imported lines and twines are duty free, and the sales tax about six per cent. As the Rope-walk pays three per cent. on the gross receipts from lines and twines, there is no protection there. Imported cordage pays about two and two-thirds cents per lb. Nets imported pay in duty and tax about 34 per cent. As most of the material for the manufacture of these two last named articles, like that for making lines and twines, is free of duty, there is some measure of protection for local factory-made nets and cordage.

From the figures above quoted it will be readily seen that some articles of local manufacture are well protected and some receive little or no protection at all. If the principle of protection is to be admitted at all it should be applied more fairly and equitably. The figures I have given are fairly approximate and are gained more from personal knowledge than from a study of the published figures of the Customs Blue Book. It is to be hoped that the Tariff Commission will arrange the new Tariff so that statistics may be kept that will be of greater value to trade and industry. This could be done without materially increasing the work of the Customs Staff. I shall next deal with the Capitalists.

Yours truly,
WARWICK SMITH.

THE PROCESSION.

Forty million cars go by, burning up the gasoline long. I watch them as they fly, silver, bus and limousine; day and night they sweep along, all their engines going strong, blowing horn or sounding gong, autos yellow, black and green. James Jumpson bought my pup, and the bill long since was due; now I see him hitting up fifty miles or fifty-two; he must know I need the cash, for my children cry for hush; but he drives as though he'd smashed; there goes Japhet Jingo Jones; seven months have gone their way since he borrowed fifteen bones, which he would return next day; fifteen bucks I sorely need; they would save my life, indeed; but this Jones is showing speed, with a jaunty hip-hooray. Here comes Peter Tinkle now, scorching 'neath the silver moon, and he owes me for the cow that he bought the 10th of June; little, little does he care that I have no shirts to wear, that my granny's feet are bare, as he chants his joyous tune. Down the vales and up the hills I can hear the motors clink; if the owners paid their bills, how the long parade, would shrink! Autos yellow, green and red would be standing, cold and dead, in some gloomy auction shed, quicker than the eye can wink.

An entire Russian village was especially constructed for the Siberia scenes in this picture. The village was built at tremendous cost and is an exact replica of a small town situated a few miles from Vladivostok. Hundreds of "extras" were used in these scenes and these people were transported to "Russia" and back every day.

One of the best comedians on the screen to-day is the well-known Dan Mason who appeared at the Nickel Theatre last night in "The Townsville Fire Brigade." The picture is one long continuous screen from start to finish. The current episode of "The Hope Diamond Mystery" was both interesting and entertaining. Watch for Mildred Harris Chaplin in her latest picture entitled "Blatit."

From Bonne Bay To Bellburns.

Random Jottings From a Straight Shore Settlement--Where Mail Men Work Hardest and Receive Least Pay.

By J. D. HENRY.

BELLBURNS.—(By Aerial Mail.)—I am thinking and speculating on the unrelieved miseries of the coast and penning these random jottings at Bellburns, a straight shore cove for summer fishing with a small cluster of winter houses hidden away in the woods. The bleak barrens of Bellburns, covered with rock rubbish, make a dreary waste of country, the hardest kind of travelling for man and beast. All along the coast to this settlement every place has its new-found grievances and miseries, everyone declaring that things were never worse. It is a winter of unusual severity and distress. There are no main roads and too few bridges, road monies are indiscriminately and unfairly distributed, official correspondence on these and other subjects is either foolish, evasive or altogether neglected, and there have been very few appointments which will stand the acid test of ordinary business sense and fair play for the fisherman. The story is everywhere the same—a record of overwhelming disaster for the men of many settlements accustomed to live upon the fishery alone followed by a serious shortage of food supplies due to the unexpected collapse of transport. There are some settlements where the conditions of life are positively heartbreaking and where, if the truth about the future must be told, there are hundreds of splendid fishermen who declare that they have been driven from the sea and must find employment ashore. These fishermen will one day strike back at those who are to blame for wrecking the fishery. The direct causes of these calamities on the coast are mostly political in character and may not be discussed in detail in these short travel articles dealing with the facts and realities of life on this coast. We have only this hope, that Hawkes Bay, thirty miles north of this place, will stave off a winter famine on the coast; it is the only place which is giving steady employment and has sufficient food supplies (1500 barrels of flour and large quantities of provisions) discharged by the Edmund Donahy for those who are ready to work in the woods. But this saving of a large section of the coast by the Hawke's Bay industry means only part salvation for the fishermen. I will tell how this has been done in a letter from that bay.

You cannot travel from Bonne Bay to Bellburns without discovering the chaotic conditions of business. Bonne Bay still bears the marks of the fire which wiped out most of the stores; with the buildings, collapsed its valuable coastal business ramifications and for this winter at least it counts for little in the way of credit and trade in the homes of the north-west. It has been beaten back by fire, a sickening business, and a serious decline of the Herring fishery, while not for fifty years has the bay so soon frozen over and caused such a disastrous shut down of trade. The upset is temporary and with an improvement in the general trading conditions in the country we will no doubt witness the rise of a greater Bonne Bay. Rocky Harbour, the deep water bay of the northern side of the mouth of Bonne Bay, is feeling the effects of the fishery depression. This is a place which is famous on the coast for a home-built fleet of splendid fishing skiffs, but even with these and the desire of the men to keep the sea it was found necessary to help the bay out of trouble with pit prop relief work. The props are still there, sold twice over, and ready for shipment this coming summer. No road on this coast is fit for winter transport. Between Rocky Harbour and Sally's Cove it is just a down-right bad road, but along the twelve miles between Sally's Cove and St. Paul's Bay there is only a cattle track and dog teams have to push their way through tangles of dense snow-laden scrub. Two miles north of Sally's Cove, at Martin's Point, the old coastal steamer, Bithis has been thrown almost bow-on to the cliffs. Her superstructure has been torn adrift by the fishermen, and the framework has been battered and bent by the many gales which have struck her since she was bravely and skillfully placed there by Capt. English and Purser Young in the December gale of 1919.

Six miles further north to Baker's Brook, crossed on the ice and calling for a bridge for summer use. Some seven years ago the old wooden bridge, built on a bad engineering plan, was lifted by the ice and swept out to sea, and appeals for its restoration on better lines have been frequently made but never listened to.

A new bridge is one of the greatest needs of the coast. Without a bridge or ferry, this section of road is merely a cul de sac, and it is foolish interruptions and obstacles of this kind which are responsible at the present time for the Hawke's Bay industry's failure to get hordes badly wanted in the woods along this road from Lomond. Sally's Cove is a straight shore settlement of splendid fishermen knocked clean out of the fishery by the common troubles of the coast, and the men there very justly complain that the Government has neglected them in the matter of road money and refused to listen to their appeals for telegraph or telephone communication with Bonne Bay. Few men will fish here next season and all who have been able to leave their homes have found employment at Hawke's Bay.

St. Paul's Bay is approached during the winter under constantly changing conditions; it has a wide and dangerous tinkle, and many a belated traveller owes his crossing to the assistance of good-hearted families living at the beach entrance to the bay. This bay has oil, drilled for and constantly coming to the surface, good indications of the existence of valuable metallic minerals and vast timber areas, which Mr. Ben Payne, the popular justice of the peace and merchant of Cow Head, has done his best to persuade the Government to exploit on ordinary relief lines.

Four miles north of this bay stands out the promontory of Cow Head, with a fairly good harbour for schooners and a well sheltered and deep-water back cove. This headland has a bold front, carrying a lighthouse and sloping in towards the mainland, and as a picturesque summer settlement it has few equals on the coast. The chief demand of this place is for a removal of the existing breakwater, completed by the present Government and destroyed by the first winter gale, and its substitution by harbour improvements on something like modern engineering lines. This is the only harbour of refuge between Bonne Bay and Port Saunders, and it is a satisfactory one in many ways, but it can be made safe under all conditions if experienced engineers are set to work with a grant of money, commensurate with the great value of the harbour for business purposes and as a place of refuge in stormy weather. Work is scarce at Cow Head; here it is the old story of cheap and scarce fuel and so little money-earning employment that many of the men have been compelled to seek work further north with no intention of returning for the fishery. It is along this particular stretch of coast—St. Paul's Bay to Parson's Pond—that many mining claims have recently been taken up. These are controlled by some six different groups. These facts (new claims and recent surveys) give the men hope that this will one day be a centre of mining and manufacture.

Parson's Pond fishermen have for many years drawn employment advantages from the oil industry. The settlement at the entrance to the bay badly needs a ferry and more road money, and the claim for similar treatment is made by the people of Portland Creek, where the river is more isolated and dangerous, and there is an unfinished bridge for which the timber has been cut at the high rate for relief work of $5 a day, a blunder on the part of someone which no one hereabout will care to condemn.

Daniel's Harbour, six miles on, is a place of call for trading skiffs and other small craft. It has the only woman nightman's keeper on the coast, and the modest beacon, a kero-

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Specially and cleanly prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Take a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of glycerol, sorbyl, the extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Seven miles north lies Bellburns, the most difficult and bleak section in the west for mail carriers, about whose good work I desire to say something here. No Government servant works harder for a living than the mail carriers of this coast. They are men who take risks in a constant battle with nature, fighting the climate on long stretches of a bleak coast which runs between the frozen sea and the white-sided and heavily rayed Long Range Mountains. A work for brave men, it often lasts well into the night, and no man can back mail and run a team through the long winter without risking his life. There are not many settlements between Bonne Bay and Port au Choix, but between that place and Flower's Cove, the old French shore, and even further north, they are larger and more numerous. This is real lean country without roads, but of all the stretches which blast and freeze the soul of the man, I know of none that equal the blasted barrens of Bellburns. It is on these that the pay for mail carrying is least and the work hardest, one of the inevitable anomalies of Government control without experience of local conditions.

The mail system has many evils. Sub-contracting is one. There are glaring anomalies in the rates of pay due to the fact that every man who carries a mail does not get his appointment direct from the Government. The system has been run so long without enquiry and revision that abuses have crept into it, and the only way to remedy the grave wages inequalities, favoritism in appointments, insufficiency of mail camps, and the difficulty of keeping dog teams in sheep country will be by the appointment of an independent committee to discuss existing conditions with everyone concerned. The hard work of mail-carrying is wonderful well done considering the fineness and ignorance of the post office control. We have reached a time when the Postal Department must evolve a practical scheme for operating and speeding up the country's mails by aeroplane in association with the effects dog practice of the past.

INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISE.

This coast is feeling the first touch of mining and industrial enterprise and capital. The future no longer lies exclusively with the fishermen. He appreciates this, and the call of the sea notwithstanding, he badly wants to see the advent of new industries. What he does not understand is the cruel neglect of northern St. Barbe, its absolutely rotten electoral division and representation. His non-participation in the huge money advances for relief work on main roads, and the entire lack of official interest in the fishery which has plunged him in debt and offers no prospect of a decent livelihood in the future. He admires the Deer Lake road with its few weeks of relief work, its substantial profits for contractors and a steady increase of business for the merchants, and now sees only too plainly that if part of this money had been spent on settlement improvement and new roads higher up the coast he would have had useful work near home and every community would have permanently benefited. These men of the west have not got cold feet and are not going to be driven across the Gulf into Canada; they are sticking tightly to their home coast, three or four generations, believing that everything will be well with them when they get fair play from those who rule and the country is properly opened up. Brought close to starvation, this coast has been badly hit, sometimes almost knocked sick by official neglect and injustice, but I believe it will ultimately win through and become the centre of a profitable investment of capital in many different industries and manufactures.

Household Notes.

Keep ready-made coffee on hand in fruit jars or cans. It is just as good as though freshly made, when heated. Keep green vegetables in a cool, dark place. Withered or stored vegetables should be soaked in cold water to crisp.

An attractive way to serve potatoes is to cut them into little balls with a vegetable cutter and then French fry.

An almost magic way to clean windows is to rub with a cloth dipped in ammonia. When dry, polish with clean dry cloth.

To make pimiento butter, drain one pimiento until thoroughly dry, and add one-third cup butter. Rub together, put through a fine sieve, and season with salt and a little cayenne.

Toasted sandwiches are more acceptable in winter than the ordinary sort. One especially good sandwich is made by placing a thick slice of tomato and hot sardines between toast-bread.

Manitoba Man Finds Secret of Health in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. P. R. Bolesino wants Everyone to Know what Benefit he Received from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

La. Epique, Man., Feb. 28.—(Special).—"Before taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I was not able to work or sleep and now I am completely relieved of my kidney trouble." These are the words of Mr. P. R. Bolesino, well-known and highly respected here.

"I have suffered for nine years and tried all kinds of remedies. It was Dodd's Kidney Pills that restored me to good health. I am now able to get about on the farm, have a good appetite and sleep well."

Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. With pure blood there is good health all over the body.

If you have not used Dodd's Kidney Pills for kidney trouble ask your neighbors about them.

WEEK-END NOTES.

Water-front and Shipping of St. John's as I Saw Them Fifty Years Ago.

(I. C. MORRIS.)
CHAPTER VI
CHAPTER VII

Every branch of trade and commerce with old time shipping; special commodores and out- personalities. To the public appeared to have great and to the small boy they be all powerful. Those of bride in their ships, and turned up to the rules of themselves, they enforced discipline on board their vessels. It is not possible, nor in such a series as this, deal with many of those the associations and re- some of them so abounding and adventure, as to be of note. Adventure and dar- hardship in old- and under the very the sailors pillow down a drowsy one. Amongst of ships known as brig- was one named the "Che- which was owned by a pro- in the person of Capt. Cole was the proprietor the electric department of the Cunard Company, and for forty years the centre of the Engineering Works; but the sixties and before, were "Cole's wharf." This name long dropped from our vocabulary, and not many were aware that such a premises wharf ever formed apart of our city water-front, or was ever numbered among our water-side busi- nesses. West of Cole's wharf was McLoughlin's and these premises though occupied by another firm, still retain this same name; thus while the name of Cole has passed out, that of McLoughlin is still with us.

A SAILING PASSENGER SHIP.

The brigantine of which we speak was sometimes used in the Boston trade, and she often brought to St. John's, from the former city, a cargo, then known as a load of "Yankee notions." But it is not her cargo which we wish to speak of particu- larly, it is of her passenger service; because, as already stated, some thou- sands of people left our city about that time, and went to Boston, and settled in the New England states, and helped to build up those places. Hence, it is that to-day a visit to those parts soon reveals the fact that amongst the New England pioneers, Newfoundlanders have played a big part. At that date there was not any steam communi- cation worth while, and the Allan Line was not established; and only the Cunard boats ran from Halifax to St. John's. The Cunard boats were very small the largest being the Delta, of about three hundred tons, and the Mer- lin, and Osprey were very much smaller. We knew these ships well, and called on them fifty-six years ago. The Chedabucto was an old-style ship, and I think was built at Prince Edward Island. She was painted a dark col- or; as most of the ships at that time were painted black. Her rigging was made of the old fashioned hemp, and a wheel. Her sails were all made of the old time hemp canvas, and were more noted for their "swelling bunts," than for their "flowing leech- es"; but of her class she was amongst the best of her day. Passenger traf- fic to Boston was not patronized very much in the winter time, hence, it was that in her latter years the Chedabu- cto lay moored for months at her own- er's wharf, and finally as steam en- croached upon sail, she was gradually put out of commission. Thus she be- came a back number; and soon pre- sented an appearance which told of abandonment, and neglect. And so her record closed, and, like her sis- ter ships of that date, she passed out of commission, and has long been numbered with the past fleets.

THE RECOGNIZED PACKET.

But this ship had a rival in the Boston passenger trade, and one that outlived her by some ten or fifteen years. It was the three masted top- sail schooner "Lady Mulgrave," to which I have referred, when speaking of the white ports. The Lady Mul- grave was probably one hundred and forty tons, register, and carried three yards on her foremast, and was con- sidered a much superior vessel to the one already mentioned. Of all the passenger ships that ran the Boston passenger trade, none carried as many passengers from our shores, as did the Lady Mulgrave. The ships Bell and Rival made an occasional trip to Boston, but the Lady Mulgrave was the recognized packet of the sixties. She was managed, if not owned, by the American Consul, the late T. M. Molloy, who had a premises in the vicinity of Campbell & McKay's wharf, and from which premises the ship sailed; and at which she anchored on arrival here. The accommodations on these old packet ships were none too comfortable—nor could they be, but of course the best possible was done under the circumstances. These con- ditions were accepted as the custom of the times; and scores and hundreds of other ships had carried on the col- onization of the new world in the same manner, and had thus built up the British Empire, and the American Re- public. Rough quarters were con- structed in the ship's hold, and berths were built according to the number of passengers on board. The Lady Mul- grave had one advantage in her favor:

wards purchased by the firm of P. & L. Tessier, and was used in the Labrador trade for some forty years; and was in charge of the late Captain Joseph Power. She met her doom at Labrador in one of those great storms which sometimes arise on that coast, and thus her log-books closed. But there is a relic of the old ship still in St. John's, and from my knowledge of it, I am the only person who is aware of its history; or at least who now thinks of it. Soon after the ship changed hands, and was put in the Labrador service, the owners decided to remove the house from her deck, so that there would be more room for skiffs and boats, and seines, which were taken to the Labrador by the various crews.

EXISTS TO-DAY.

The house was in a good state of preservation. Just at that time the firm of P. & L. Tessier had taken over the premises, formerly occupied by the late John Bond. In such cases, improvements are usually made, and among the latter, the Lady Mulgrave's house was set up in the centre of the breast work on Bond's premises, and was raised a couple of feet by an ad- dition at the base. For some twenty- five years after, the house was used as an office, at which the names of the workmen were taken down, and from which they received their weekly pay on Saturday nights. The office was afterwards shifted back to Tessier's premises proper, and there it still stands, though somewhat dilapidated, and it now used as a sort of watch- house. To look at it to-day, and to think that it was once considered suitable for lady passengers, or ten- der children, on a voyage to the States; and that to compare it with

Repairing Tree Wounds.

Wounds on the trunks of young or vigorously growing trees of any age, may be repaired without resorting to grafting. This is done by slitting or cutting the bark over the new growth which develops around wounds on trees. The greatest growth in such cases, occurs at the point of least resistance, and cutting the bark lowers the resistance at that particular place with the result that the new growth rolls out over the wound from both sides and finally covers it entirely. The operation is quickly and easily performed by simply drawing a sharp knife down through the bark around the wound.

This work should be done early in the season as soon as growth begins and may be repeated to advantage again the same season and should be repeated in successive years until the wound is covered. The application of this method should probably be limited to wounds which are not of great width, or in other words, do not cover a large proportion of the circumfer- ence of the tree.

MY GOALS.

A little braver when the skies are gray.
A little stronger when the road seems long.
A little more of patience through the day.
And not so quick to magnify a wrong.
A little kinder, both of thought and deed.
A little gentler with the old and weak.
Swiftly to sense another's pressing need.
And not so fast the hurtful phrase to speak.

These are my goals—not flung beyond my power.
Not dreams of glory, beautiful but vain.
Not the great heights where buds of genius flower.
But simple splendors which I ought to gain.

These I can do and be from day to day
Along the humble pathway where I plod,
So that at last when I am called away
I need not make apologies to God.
