All this time Mara was in con-stant risk of being struck off the board for not being able to pay Cox & Worts, if the latter saw fit to post him. Mara was glad to get out of it by giving his notes and they were taken by Cox & Worts, Mara saying that he would put Priestman through for it. And so he seemed satisfied. He entered an action against Priestman for all he had lost in margins and interest on Priestman's account. He also "posted" Priestman on the stock exchange as a client who did not pay up. It was the posting of Priestman over which the Globe blunderingly said H. S. Mara had been posted. But after indgment was given the other day in Car-negis against Federal bank things took a new turn. Mara thought he would have Cox & Worts, whom he thought better game. So he engaged a lawyer, and the first proceeding was to get Priestman to consent to a withdrawal of Mara's suit against him. Priestman was only too glad to accommodate him, though Priest-man had no love for him for posting him at the board. So yesterday, after Priestman had given consent to a withdrawal of the action of Mara, Mara's lawyef served Cox & Worts with the injunction regarding the notes, and later on with a writ in a suit for they will give too much of it. Wealthy Legislators.

The American press is now having much discussion over a recent article in the Chicago Tribune, in which it is affirmed that the federal senate is fast becoming a club of millionaires and a fortress of monopoly. It is affirmed that of the scventy-six senators no less than twenty are bonafide millionaires, while enough more are the representatives of millionaire corporations to bring up the number of those who may properly be styled millionaires to fully half of the whole. In other words, there are a sufficient number of senators who are millionaires actually or potentially to control the action of the body and make it as difficult to get from it a measure of reform as to obtain anything of the kind from the British house of lords Good occasion for drawing attention to this state of things is furnished by the recent election of Senator Payne to his seat, by the legislature of Ohio. That gentleman is supposed to represent the people of Ohio in the federal senate; but what he does really represent there is the Standard Oil company, which has still another representative in the same body-Senator ents of the national policy would lose what Camden of West Virginia. The Union Pacific railroad, says our contemporary, has several senators, the Northern Pacific has one, the Pennsylvania railroad has two, Central Pacific has two, the Georgia railroads have one, the lumber monopolists of Michigan and Wisconsin have two or three, the Chesapeake and Ohio has one, the millers' suggestion, and reduce the the Wilmington Match company has one, Behind every one of half of the portly and bushel, which would be sufficient for all well-dressed members of the senate can be practical purposes. Twenty or thirty years ago the senate was composed mainly of brainy poor men, and pany against the Budget. The Budget its leaders were Clay, Webster, Calhoun, sions by the glory of a seat in the Amer ican house of lords. Once great men went to the senate to work for their principles and ideas: now rich men go there to work for their interests or to air their purses. The room that once rang with the praises of Webster and Sumner, Clay and Calhoun, and Chase and Douglass is now stupefied by the predatory and platitudinous essays of the defenders of monopoly land grants. monopoly taxes, monopoly contracts, monopoly opposition to all reform and investigation. It results from the plutocratic character of the majority of the senators that the senate is becoming like the English house of lords, a merely obstructive branch of the government. The English house of lords is the bulwark Western Union. Vanderbilt is ahead of of one monopoly-that of the land-but him in this respect, having for some years the American senate has as many monopolies intrenched within its lines as it has members. At the present rate at which plutocrats are buying their way into the | Teronto Tenement Building Association. senate it will not be many years before the common people will have no representation in it whatever. The great republic will have a house of lords as much worse than the English house of Lords as the pride of purse is more ignoble and more despotic than the pride of blood and rank. Such, according to the Tribune, is the pass to which things are coming in "the land of the free and the home of the brave." Perhaps our Chicago contemporary has not taken note of the fact that precisely the same complaint is being made against the British house of commons. During the last thirty or forty years it has been becoming every year more difficult for any but very wealthy men to gain an entrance into the rather exclusive and strictly limited club. As in the American senate. time was when brains would help a man to make his way in, but now the successful position entails. Citizen, if he venture to assail this asso-ciation again, will kindly toll me why in his last letter he never ventures to refute one statement that I made in my former one. Why in the world, if this company is act-ing as a confiscating power, does he not expose them instead of bombasting it around in a bully's most approved manner. Why does he dare to call that confiscation which offers the sworn value of lead the more industrious fishermen than either English or Americans. But these fisheries, the wealthiest in the world, will some day be exhausted by the methods employed. But how can they be regulated ?

In one way, at least, viz : In one way, at least, viz : Fishery, whether by bultow or hook and line, cannot be pursued without bait; bait for the banks cannot be got except from shore, and from part of it under the sole control of Britain. They appeal at once to the intelli-gence of all who understand the principles and practice of Life Assurance. All policies, whether on Life or Endowment rates, are subject to no higher charge in Premium Rates in taking the "Tontine or Semi-Tontine Investment" form. The extra benefits of this class are conditioned only on the continuance of the policy for a certain specified term of Tontine period of 10, 15 or 20 years, selected by the insurer himself. Two things most desirable in Life Assurance are the CERTAINTY OF PROTECTION in case of early death, and PROFITS IN LONG LIFE. These are combined in the Tontine and Semi-Tontine Investment policies of the North American Life Assurance Company.

To the Editor of The World. SIR: I had hoped that Citizen was an opponent to the Toronto Tenement Building association through ignorance of its plan and beneficial effects. But I fear my hopes in this direction are groundless. In looking through Citizen's last letter I was more and more struck with the want of argument or reason. All was blind foolish writing, and what I consider far worse -unhappy misrepresentations. In it I by the strongest cords sex, kindred and am told that I stated the company would confine itself to expropriations on certain streets and would "be graciously pleased to skip Jarvis and King streets." Laughlin, s former well-known contractor and builder, but who for several years past has been living a retired life upon his country seat near Govanstown, Baltimore county, died Wednesday last from hydro-phobia. Mr. McLaughlin was caressing and fondling his pet dog of the Spit species, about twelve weeks ago, when the animal seized him by the fleshy part of the arm and inflicted a painful wound. It was with great difficulty Mr. McLaughlin acould extricate himself from the dog, as the animal continued to hold fast by the first grip he had taken. Being apprehen-sive of his injuries, Mr. McLaughlin sought medical advice. After treatment the arm rapidly healed, and it was though all danger had passed. ## Current Events and Opinions. Bystander in the Week. Lord Dufferin changed, and as his ad mirers think, improved the style. He it was that first talked about vice-royalty and opened the vice-regal era. No man of sense wants Sanscullotic nakedness. Let us have ceremony and costume too if you will, provided that they are symbolical and expressive of real feeling. Genuine stateliness exalts. Tinsel does the reverse but there are many people to whom it is an unspeakable delight, and therefore, like high heels and tight lacing, it will defy censorious cavil. From foot and dragoon guards Ottawa may advance to beefeaters, to equerries, to a gold stick. THE FAILURE OF THE SYNDICATE.

Among the paragraphs of the speech from the throne by far the most important was that which announced the failure of the Pacific Railway company, notwithstanding the guarantees to obtain, by the sale of its stock, money for the immediate prosecu tion of the work. The leader of the oppo sition, swerving from the main question, on which he must feel that his own posion which he must teel that his own posi-tion is far from strong, fixes at once upon the company and accuses it of having misapplied its re-sources to objects besides its contract. But the Pacific railway was to be a line But the Pacific railway was to be a line from sea to sea, and it could not have ful-filled the purpose of its construction if one end of it had been left in the air. A con-nection with the Atlantic seaboard and winter ports was indispensable, and if the purchases and extensions against which Mr. Blake's censure is pointed, have been really ancillary to the main line, they can-not be condemned as a whole; nor is it likely that, having been made by men of not be condemned as a whole; nor is it likely that, having been made by men of excellent judgment in these matters, they will be found open to much exception in detail. It is on a much more vital point that public attention ought to be fixed. The enterprise, in the conception of which the company had no part, while for its ex-ecution they seem to have done all that could possibly be done, is disclosing its real character, and showing, by the financial difficulties which it encoun-ters, that it is political, not commercial. eminent men from the bar. left for Quebec last night. Nobody would call the Intercolonial a commercial nercial line. With its annexations, it week. mercial line. With its annexations, it will have cost nearly forty millions; it barely pays it way; good authorities have pronounced that on the average of years it will be worked at a loss, but when the line through Megantic is opened, as in spite of all delays it must soon be, such traffic as there is will infallibly take the shorter route: But the commercial loss is faced for the sake of a political and military ad-vantage. Nobody expects to sell the stock night night by a passing vehicle. Vantage. Nobody expects to sell the stock of the Intercolonial, any more than we ex-pect to sell the stock of a fortress or of a park of artillery. It is the same, in a measure, with the Western continuation. The prairie section is commercial inasmuch as it traverses a very rich country; but in its direction it is political, and this is the justification for the so-called monopoly clauses, without which the company would have been in danger of being ruined by there with. the competition of strictly commercial lines. It is also political in the speed with which it has been hurried westward in advance of the necessities of immigration, which it has scattered, when, economically, concen-tration was to be preferred. But the moun-tain and Lake Superior sections are wholly political and military. Once more, by the failure of the company's means, which again is the inevitable consequence of the political necessity of speed, the country is summoned, virtually, to deliberate on the question whether these unremunerative sections shall be constructed, and tha no. sections shall be constructed, and the po-litical struggle against nature and dictates nercial interest shall be forced on. If the decision is in the affirmative, the and Bruce express going out was nearing tax-payer, and especially the tax-payer of Parkdale it had a narrow escape from Ontario, who bears the chief burden, must be prepared to contribute again to the prosecution of the great national enterprise. It is only by taxation that money can be raised for political and military under-takings. That the decision of Parliament will be in the affirmative is pretty takings. In the decision of Farmanene will be in the affirmative is pretty certain. If there are any in the House who see the interest of the people in this matter, there is no one who will venture Mr. Blakes speeches, though they are sure to be able, will be, as they always have been, ineffective, because he avoids the main issue, and speaks, with the acumen, but the narrowness, of a great chan-cery advocate, in minor points. His in-dictment of the company will be unsuccessful. If the thing was to be done at all, it is being done well; and that it ought not to have been done at all is a position which Mr. Blake's record will not permit him to maintain. After much wrangling, the company or rather the government, whose undertaking it is, will no doubt receive such further assistance as may be required. THINGS EDUCATIONAL. There is not at least within the circles of the Bystander's acquaintance one well-informed and independent friend of edu-cation who does not desire to see the union dissolved and education once more placed beyond the influence of the party war. Partly however it may be for the same dissolved and education once more placed beyond the influence of the party war. Partly however it may be for the same reasons the Government is evidently de-termined to keep the system as it is, and the government has now a sure majority of ten. Might we not have a council of pub-lic instruction with a parliamentary minis-ter of education? In England the parlia-mentary minister for India has a council of Indian experts outside the parlia-mentary minister for India has a council of Indian experts outside the parlia-mentary minister for India has a council of Indian experts outside the parlia-indian experts outside the parlia-ter of education? In England the parlia-indian experts outside the parlia-indian experts outside the parlia-indian experts outside the parlia-indian experts outside the parlia-ter of education experts outside the parliater Indian experts outside parliament with which he gets on very well. The minister would of course retain the current administers; istration and the control of the estimates; he would be chairman of the council; if it were deemed necessary he might have a veto; but on a legislative question of a professional kind he would be advised, and the correctness of his decision would be guaranteed by the council. On such a question as that of the text books a counestion as that of the text books a counserved. il is by far the best authority; indeed it is the only authority thoroughly exempt from any suspicion of influence and intrigue. It has been alleged in the course of the discussion that the council of instruction was a scene of discord and of wrangling. Inquiry, it is believed, will show that this is true with reference to the conduct of one of the members only. Dr. Ryerson did his best to wreck the council, and his behavior to some of his colleagues at last was such

His father wore it in the Seven Day's battle, and just as an officer was congratulating him upon an escape and he was saying, "There's no rebel bullet for me," a Minie ball struck the watch. The momentum of the bullet was such as to break three of Mr. McGunnigle's ribs. The Bystander is no stranger to the United States; he has always taken pains to inform himself, as well as he could, on this most vital point; and it is his convic-tion that in the northern and western states, at all events, there is generally no want of respect for the judges or of con-fidence in the administration of the law. EGYPT. To establish a national government in Egypt is impossible, for the simple reason that there is no such a thing as an Egyp tian nation. There is nothing but the rot-ten remnant of a conquering horde, with a mercenary and turbulent soldiery, exer-cising a dominion of plunder over an ab-ject and helpless peasantry. The Fella-heen, who till the soil, and who alone are not robbers or extortioners, are absolutely not robbers or extortioners, are absolutely lestitute of political spirit and of anythin like self-government; to frame a pol-ity out of such materials would be about as easy as it would be to frame it out of he mud of the Nile. HENRY GEORGI

HENEY GEORGE. The meteoric light of Mr. Henry George after flaming across the economic sky, seems now to be approaching extinction. The rupture between him and his friends the land leaguers, which destiny evidently had in store, has come. On the general principle of confiscation without compen-sation Mr. George and the land leaguers are agreed; but the land leaguer wants to confiscate the property of his landlord for his own benefit, while Mr. George wants to confiscate all landed property for the
