Mr. Vincent the financial adviser of the Khedive, reporting on the financial situation of Egypt, makes the proposition that the Khedive suspend payment of the tribute paid to the sultan of Turkey amounting to $3,600,000 annually. Northbrook vetoes the proposition and Nubar Pasha threatens to reign unless a nucleus of the army is left. Dongola is now garrisoned by 600 British and 1000 Egyptian soldiers.

IN HONOR OF IRELAND. DUBLIN, Oct. 7 .- At the city council Clancy, an ex-suspect and former secretary of the Irish national league, offered a resolution providing that the streets in Dublin which have distinctively English names be gradually renamed, and that the new designations selected should be such as would testify to the patriotism of the Irish people, and give a faithful instead of a lying chronicle of the times. Clancy was laughed at by the tories. Councilman McDonald, who keeps a well-known public Donald, who keeps a well-known public house in Dublin, seconded the resolution, and re-echoed the mover's sentiments.

The Decreasing Death List.

LONDON, Oct. 7 .- There is a dissension in the cabinet concerning the action to be taken in relation to matters at the cape of Good Hope. The majority of the ministry are opposed to inaugurating a campaign against the Boers. It is reported instructions will be sent to the governor at the cape to limit his action against the Boers to sending a local force to maintain the British protectorate in Bechuana Land.

wardness of the Organization-The

A few days ago an advertisement was published saying that on and after Oct. I wilk would be increased from six to seven cents a quart. The only signature to the announcement was, "By order of the executive." There have been two or three latters in The World dealing with the advance in the price of this important article of food, and a case has clearly been made out against the milkmen in raising the price. In the first place, farmers have not the making of the prices of milk, and they have not raised the wholesale price to 16 cents per gallon, as has been stated. The average price they receive for milk is 12; cents per gallon of four quarts, and there is surely margin enough when this is sold were stranded, three natives came on board and stated to Stewart that they were only a short distance from Meramee, which he could easily reach on foot and where he could obtain assistance to float the steamer. They offered to guide them there. Stewart and two companions started, and when out of sight of the steamer a number of men sprang from an ambush and nurdered the party. Afterward they attacked those remaining on the steamer, killing all except four.

men all have greater expense than milkmen, and have to doliver their goods in the same way as do the milkmen.

The only case known of a farmer getting 16 cents for his milk is one who in the winter undertook to peddle it from door to door. This alarmed the milk dealers, and they bought him off by giving him a high wholesale price for his milk. The milkmen have also spoken of competition, but as a matter of fact they all fall into line at the order of the executive and up goes the price of milk, and the ring is complete. Whenever a new dealer starts he is soon roped into the ring and thereby the price is kept up. A still further fact is this, that milk can be sold as cheap in winter as in summer months, even though the farmers somewhat raise their price, because one delivery in winter is sufficient, there is a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and a saving of $5 a week on ice, and by the same to pay of any account, and yet they are demanding a profit on their investment of over 100 per cent, while other tradesmen and dealers are content with 20 per cent, and have heavy expenses to pay out of that.

ing account of his visit and the progress of the temperance movement in that country. He pointed out that education in England has not promoted temperance because no attention whatever has been paid to this subject in schools intil very recently, and he is pleased to notice the change for the better. He then referred to the recent action of Cardinal Mauning with regard to temperance in schools. He took an interest while in England in the coffee houses that have been opened by the temperance people there. Those cutside of London he found well-conducted and paying handsome dividends, but those in the city were not so flourishing because not so well carried on. He was pleased to notice that at public dinners no intoxicating liquors were used, while at private parties over one-half of the guests were usually total abstainers. The majority of the railway men in England are abstainers—a happy state of affairs—the credit of which may be given to John Noble and T. Gilbert. The speaker notices with pleasure that the same good work is being carried on among the railway men of Canada. In conclusion he used the members of the society never to appear in public without wearing their blue ribbons.

Dr. Roy of Cobourg then gave some sound, practical advice as to the best methods of carrying on the work outside the lodge room. This is best accomplished by the circulation of temperance literature and teaching the young the evils of intemperance. Then temperance people should never lose an opportunity of reforming the drunkard, the most difficult part of the work. Every member should do his best to secure total prohibition all over the country.

Rev. Dyson Hague said the great question.

best to secure total prohibition all over the country.

Rev. Dyson Hague said the great question is, does the liquor traffic retard the advancement of Christ's kingdom? This should be considered apart from the isolated scripture texts. To overcome the evil the best method is to form juvenile temperance societies that the young may be saved, for in this, as in every other evil, prevention is better than cure.

At the close of the addresses an interesting discussion took place upon various

Many clergymen already pay taxes voluntarily, and those who do not certainly weaken their moral position very much. It is time for all men, lay land cleric, to render unto Casar the things that are Cæsar's. Christianity needs no bonus from the purse of the tax payer, particularly in a country in which the taxpayers are very much divided in christianity is. It is only fair and just that Let this long felt want be filled. each congregation should pay its own tax bill just as it pays its own gas bill.

It is somewhat significant that although J. D. Edgar was expected to attend the tually in the neighborhood, he failed to come to the point. It is surmised that he was scared off by the expressed intention of the advanced rouges to welcome him as a leader of the independence movement in Ontarie. These unsophisticated Gauls are not so familiar with the limberness of J. B's convictions as are people up this way, else would they have known that he recanted his avowed sympathy with the national idea for the sake of a grit nomination in West Ontario.

City.

A gipsy was the happy father of a flourishing progeny of twelve children, one of whom a hunter happened to shoot one day, mistaking it for his more lawful prey. To console the unhappy father the repentent hunter gave him a compensation in money, which he considered approaching adequacy from his own point of view, but which seemed so magnificent to the gipsy father that he ventured to suggest if his benefactor should think of hunting again he still had eleven children who might be turned to account by a similar advantageous mistake.

Thirty-two townships in the Parry Sound and Muskoka districts will vo with Simce on the Scott act to morrow, and not seven as has been heretofore stated. Most of these townships are sparsely settled, and some of them have few if any voters. It is expected that the northern tewnships will antagonise the act, and we may expect the usual complaints of foul play from the unorganized sections. The territory covered by the act, if it passes, will be extensive. It is two hundred miles from the Holland river on the south to French river on the north, by fifty miles wide. It will thus be seen that the result will be of great importance to the parties interested, and that if the liquor men lose they lose under more favorle conditions than they can expect to en

WHAT IS PRAYER?

The Authorship of the Familiar Befinitely Settled.

John Mague in the Chicago Curre "Who wrote What is Prayer?" is question that will be mentally answered at once by every reader who is familiar with this hymn-Montgomery, just as certainly as they would answer Milton if asked Who wrote Paradise Lost? There are and 700,000 private burners, and although already enough undecided problems of gas lighting was first introduced in that this kind to satisfy the most curious and the most incredulous. We do not need any more conundrums of this class. It appears that an American, a certain Andrew H. H. Dawson of New York, claims that his mother, Wilhelmina Creawell

I will now call an exceptionally wellinformed witness, a highly distinguished Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary suscess that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six montas, fully ninety per cent have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent, of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record's cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and eneloge stamp for their treatise on extarrh. —Montreal Star, 26

And, with the utmost unconcern, the farmer walked into the house and took his axe, preparatory to repairing a few lengths of fence which his oxen had torn down the

"I don't know but Haskin's cattle would git intew the pasture," he muttered, walking away toward the scene, "and come through intew the mowin. Then I could have made him fix up the whole thing. But now I'll hev to dew it myself."

But Lemuel Gardner was a church member—one who prayed fervently in the village prayer meetings, whose reputation for lage prayer meetings, whose reputation for honesty stood high, and who had just re-fused to save his eldest son from the state

The circumstances were these:
Stephen Gardener, his eldest son, on attaining his 21st year, had left home and entered a store in a neighboring village. For a year all had gone well, and though the young man had taken small sums of money occasionally from the drawers which money occasionally from the drawers which had not been discovered, he had generally borne a good name for honesty and been well liked.

But, in an evil hour, temptation to filch But, in an evil hour, temptation to filent to a greater extent occurred.

"A fortune-for-nothing" scheme was presented to him. The bait took, and a forged check procured him the money, from the investment of which he expected to reap a great harvest. One hundred dollars was the amount taken, and he never saw either that or the fortune after-

The forgery was soon discovered, its author detected, arrested and arraigned for trial. While in confinement, he sent sev-eral messages to his father, asking him for assistance, and most humbly promising never to repeat his offense. But his requests, as we have seen, were quite disregarded.

The young man bore his punishment well as long as hope remained, but when he saw the last shadow fading away, he gave himself up to utter grief and discouragement.

"Who cares for me?" he mused, as he "Clearly, no walked to the court room. "Clearly, no one. My own father, who is abundantly able to do so, will not interfere to save me from the dreadful disgrace. Well, my last hope is to stay out my time, if sent to prison, and then set to some place where hope is to stay out my time, if sent to prison, and then get to some place where nobody knows me. I may do that.

It was little wonder that the indifference, almost effrontery, maintained by Stephen Gardner through his trial, should have been prejudicial against him. There seemed no palliating circumstances. The lawyer for the prosecution dwelt feelingly upon the early christian irfluences which surrounded the young man, and the exemplary justice of his father, who had, in despair, given over his son to the influence despair, given over his son to the influence of the cold prison walls.

Ind to prison Stephen went, for the longest time allowed by law. There may have been faults elsewhere, but certainly the father's heart who could look unmoved upon the crushing of his son's life in this manner, must have been hard, indeed.

The young man passed near him, as he was led from the court-room to the cell.

"Father," was the prisoner's bitter question, "why did you not come and see me?"

"I knew it wouldn't do any good," the old man returned.

"Any good," the son fairly hissed. "It would have saved all these long years of my life, and given me a chance to be a man, I see now the folly of my wrongdoing, and would do better; but a prison cell is not the place for a man to carry out good resolutions. If I have committed a crime, you have done the same, for it was all your work, and now you could save me, but you won't do it. So I must take the full sentence of the law, with no hope of being a man afterward. But," he added, as his father turned away, "you will hear from me again, years hence," window," Alfred said, in a startled whisper.

"Here, let me take the pistol," the father said, starting up in bed and snatching the weapon from his son's hand.

The latter shrank close to the couch, as though in very fear, while the sick man, sitting belt upright in bed, cocked both barrels of the weapon and fixed his sharp gaze upon the open window.

The footsteps approached and presently stopped at the casement, while a dusky form appeared outside. Then a motion, as of some one preparing to enter at the window, ensued.

No note of warning was uttered, but the pistol spoke its loud report, followed by a groan and the sound of a fall without.

The sick man reeled in his bed, while a moaning tone, perfectly audible, said from beneath the window:

"Father, you have killed me!"

The report of the pistol and the alarm-cries of Alfred soon brought assistance to Stephen Gardner shet through the neck and dying, was found under the window, and conveyed to a comfortable bed inside.

"Tell father to come here," he said, painfully; only speaking by a great effort, "I want him to know that I came here for no wrong. I was going away to try and be a man, but I wanted to see him once before I went. I saw a light, and went to the window—he shot me."

Blood choked his utterance, and in a nature could mourn, the sad tragedy which had filled the house with death. But he did not think of the deable crime which had caused the double death. He did not remember the early lessons which had originally tended to make his brother heir of the cruel spirit which had refused the pleaded forgiveness and assistance when shame and disgrace had come upon him, bringing repentance. If the son had sinned the father had not been free from taint, and very literally had the wages of that sin been paid—in death.

" All Men Are Liars" —said David of old. He was probably prompted to make the above remark after trying some unreliable catairh remedy. A retired baseballist of some literary skill was asked to write an epitaph for a man who had just died after marrying his third wife. The ex-batter produced the following terse but expressive sentiment: "Out on third."

THE BABY SLEPT, and Its Father Watched It as His floor inside the altar rail of the Quee street methodist church last evening while its mother preached a practical sermon lasting for an hour. The baby stirred sev eral times, but the father, who sat in one of the crimsoned cushioned chairs below the pulpit, watched it closely. Rev. Mr. Bland sat also within the altar rail and watched the lady. Mrs. Irvine was converted by Rev. Mr. Booth (now General Booth), and previous to her marriage assisted in the work of his christian mission. She is quite matronly in appearance and has an open, pleasant face. She wore a plain black eashmere dress, with lace at the wrists and neck, a white straw bonnet trimmed with white lace and black strings. A white cashmere shawl covered her shoulders, but as she warmed up to her subject it slipped off and was laid aside. Her voice was sharp. Her style of delivering is conversational. The discourse was for the benefit of professing christians and was based on the words: "If we deny Him He will also deny us." Her remarks generally were to the point. of the crimsoned cushioned chairs below

Canada in England. From the Canadian Gazette, Sept, 25 It is announced that Prince Albert Vic tor of Wales, eldes, son of the Prince of Wales, will early next year go abroad for Greaves' boat house Saturday afternoon to an extensive tour, and that the countries witness several interesting dog swimming visited will most likely include Canada and starter and referee. The first race was for ing arrangements to deliver a series of lec tional interest and practical value. A morning contemporary recently published a despatch from Ottawa under the head of "Canadian immigration falling off," In which it was announced that the tion of the settlers going to the Canadian Northwest this season entered the territory at Emersor. Take for instance the months of May, June and July, a principal part of the emigration season. Only 63 out of 2015 Northwest immigrants then went by any other than the Owen Sound and Port Arthur route. Canadian immigration does undoubtedly show a decrease this season, but it will be at once apparent to those who it will be at once apparent to those who have studied recent official statistics that the decrease of Canadian immigration very much less than the decrease of immi-gration in general—that is. Canada is now on in general—that is, Canada is now been rusticating to the fullest extent of the term, is moved to remark philosophically that "the passion for illicit watermelon is something which age nor infirmity has power to cool." It is thus that vice has ever sought to justify itself, but it is painful to see it boldly flaunted in the face of the public.

—The reason way "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. Lowden & Co., Wholesale, Agents for Toronto.

THE GENUINE PIANO, MANUFACTURED BY RAINER & CO.,

Guelph, Ontario. The undersigned respectfully announce that in the 9th day of April, 1884, Joseph F. Rainer lissolved partnership with Frank Sweetnam the original cross-scale Pianos, of which the said Joseph F. Rainer is the sole inventor. These Pianos have now been before the public for 23 years, and have always ranked among the very best, and are celebrated for quality of tone, great power and duvability of action, prompt elastic touch, fine finish and eleganistyle of case, combined with every known improvement. The most complete and unbroken list on record, embracing a period of 30 years, and made up of 28 first prizes, medals and diploms received at the principal exhibitions in Canada—Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton and London. At the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, we secured a medal and diploma for our piano. The great favor with which the cross-scale planos have been received for so long a period, and the reputation they bear, has induced others to initate them. We therefore caution intending purchasers and dealers wishing to obtain the original cross-scale planot to see that the name
