I. C. R. BOOKLETS
Used as I. O. O. F. Souvenirs -- A Feature of Recent Convention at Indianapolis.

At the recent session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F., held at Indianapolis, Indiana, and attended by delegates representing practically every grand lodge of Odd Fellows in Canada and the United States, the representatives from the Maritime Provinces used as a souvenir gift to other visiting delegates, a set of the publications of the Intercolonial Railway.

The publications selected for distribution were the principal I. C. R. descriptive book, Forest, Stream and Seashore, and the three booklets, Storied Halifax, The City of the Loyalists, and The Garden of the Gulf. The first of these was enclosed in a specially prepared envelope, showing by whom presented, and bearing the names of the Maritime Province delegates. The three smaller booklets were enclosed in a smaller envelope, similarly inscribed. As a souvenir this proved to be a happy departure from the usual method of exchanging badges, buttons, etc., and proved most acceptable, especially to the delegates from the far west, and from the Southern States. The Maritime Province men were warmly congratulated upon the success of their plan to thus place a lot of valuable descriptive matter concerning their country before such a gathering and give the same wide distribution. For it means the books will be in the hands of a prominent member of this important fraternal organization in every state of the Union and from every Province in Canada.

La MARQUISE de FONTENOY
The History of the Clan Macdonald Recalled on Settlement of Feud—Flora Macdonald

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company.)

The announcement made in these letters the other day, that the three chiefs of the great clan of Macdonald had at length come to an agreement to settle their questions of precedence whenever they met, by the spinning of a coin, thus bringing to a close a bitter feud that had been in progress for more than 500 years, has brought me so many requests from readers for more information about the Macdonalds, that the following brief notes may be of interest.

The founder of the family was the celebrated Somerled, the first Lord of the Isles who, although married to the daughter of a Norwegian King, contributed more than anyone else to free Scotland from the rule of the Norwegians and of the Danes. He was a very shrewd man and, in fact, once on a small island with only a hundred followers, and finding himself besieged there by the entire Norwegian fleet, he adopted a singular stratagem to frighten them from landing. His Highlanders being clad in goat-skins, he ordered them to march around the island, with their colors flying and their bagpipes playing. This attracted attention and the moment the troops were out of sight, the men were ordered by him to turn their coats inside out and with this altered exterior, and with different tunes being played on the pipes, they marched past the Norwegian fleet again, having repeated a similar maneuver several times, the invaders became alarmed at the number of regiments apparently mustered to oppose them, and set sail without loss of drum.

At Somerled's death, his dominions were divided between his two sons, and from them came the Lords of the Isles and the Lords of Ross. The Lord of the Isles of the time of Robert Bruce was styled Lord of Inisgail, that is to say, Lord of the Islands of Gael or of the Hebrides. Sir Walter Scott calls him "Robland." This attracted attention and the moment the troops were out of sight, the men were ordered by him to turn their coats inside out and with this altered exterior, and with different tunes being played on the pipes, they marched past the Norwegian fleet again, having repeated a similar maneuver several times, the invaders became alarmed at the number of regiments apparently mustered to oppose them, and set sail without loss of drum.

The Lords of the Isles were independent until the time of Alexander who was defeated at the battle of Largs in 1286 and reduced to submission by James I. of Scotland. The last of these Macdonald Lords of the Isles was John, who was like-wise Earl of Ross. He was deprived of his honors for rebellion against James II. of Scotland. Some of them were restored to him on his reconciliation to the crown, but not the title of Lord of the Isles, which was retained by the king and which has since the union of the English and Scotch crowns been one of the most highly prized titles of the Prince of Wales.

The Baronets
Sir Donald Macdonald, who was chieftain of the clan in the days of Charles I., received a baronetcy which is second in point of seniority to the baronetcy of Ontario. Since last year this baronetcy, created in 1625, has been in the possession of Sir Alexander Boswell, who was knighted by a decree of the court of sessions of Scotland, dated June 4, 1910, issued after it had been surrendered as wrongfully by his kinsman Lord Macdonald.

The baronetcy and the chieftainship for life go together and are hereditary. Both Sir Alexander Boswell and his kinsman Lord Macdonald have royal blood in their veins. For they are both great-grandsons of the third Lord Macdonald of Greta Green.

Owing to her having been a minor at the time, there was a question in Lord Macdonald's mind as to whether the Greta Green ceremony had been valid. So some years later, after the birth of his eldest son, he went through another ceremony of marriage with her, according to the rites of the Church of England. When he was slightly more than a year of age, perage and the estates go to his younger brother, Godfrey, and being adopted by a very wealthy uncle, the third Lord Macdonald, Alexander Boswell, by name, inherited his large fortune and extensive estates, as well as his name of Boswell, and his armorial bearings.

Two years ago, the present owner of the title, Lord of the Isles, by the name of Alexander Boswell, became imbued with a desire to establish his rights to the chieftainship of the Macdonalds of Sleat, and also his right to the Baronetcy of Sleat. Legal proceedings ensued in the Scottish courts and they were eventually terminated last year by a compromise sanctioned by the court, which held that Alexander Boswell had submitted sufficient evidence to establish his rights to the Baronetcy of Macdonald of Sleat and to the chieftainship of the Sleat Macdonalds, but not to the Irish Baronetcy of Macdonald, that is to say, the court held that the Greta Green marriage to the third Lord Macdonald and Louisa Edir, and her subsequent life with him in Scotland, prior to the Anglican ceremony, legitimized him in English law, or to qualify him as heir to an English or Irish peerage. So much for the Macdonalds of Sleat.

The Macdonalds of Clanranald
With regard to the Macdonalds of Clanranald, they are descended from a son of John, Lord of the Isles, by his union with Amy de Innes, his son bearing the name of Ranald, whose Clanranald. There has always been doubt as to the legitimacy of this founder of the Clanranald branch of the Macdonalds. Whereas the right of its chief to the chieftainship of the entire Clan of the Macdonalds has always been contested by the Macdonalds of Sleat, there are many people in Scotland who have for hundreds of years favored the pretensions of Clanranald. The present chief is Col. Angus Macdonald, son of the late Admiral Sir Reginald Macdonald, and who, though retaining none of the lands of his ancestors, has still a number of relatives of those Stuart princes to whose cause his ancestors devoted themselves with so much chivalry.

Among these relatives is the claymore of the Young Pretender, which he wore when he held court at Edinburgh and which fell into the hands of the Duke of Cumberland

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"I HAVE been think today of the undercurrents. No, I do not mean the undercurrent at the seashore that endangers so many lives. But I do mean a dangerous undercurrent just the same. The undercurrent of thought is what I refer to. You are seated at your desk attending to some task. Theoretically, all your thoughts are upon your work. Actually, only your top thoughts are with your task. For all the time there is a steady undercurrent of thought of other matters going on in your mind.

Sometimes the undercurrent consists of a review of work done; sometimes it relates to the good time you are going to have tomorrow; often it is pondering upon your next season's wardrobe; again it is concerned with something that is going on outside the window. In my own case, I find it is most frequently a cogitation upon what I am going to do next.

If you think that only volatile and light-minded people thus divide their thoughts, please observe yourself the next time you sit down to some task. If you cannot discover any undercurrent in your mind, you may consider yourself quite above the class for which I write—Lincoln's friends—the average folk.

Now, perhaps, you want an explanation of my description of the undercurrent of thought as dangerous. Perhaps you are asking, "What harm can it do if I do have an undercurrent of thought? What objection is there to my thinking of two things at once if I can? What is there dangerous about it?"

The danger, my friend, is simply to your capacity to do the best work of which you are capable and to do it in the least possible time. That undercurrent carries something out to sea, just as surely as the ocean undercurrent does. And that something is your concentration. To be sure, there is no harm in your thinking of the work you have done or on your way you are going to do, or of tomorrow's pleasure, or your next season's wardrobe. They are innocuous, or even praiseworthy subjects for thought. But in this case, that is what they are, since they steal your thoughts from the subject to which they belong.

If the volume of thought which goes into that undercurrent could be combined with the volume of thought which is upon your work, don't you see how much more swiftly and correctly and thoroughly your work would be done? But I believe it can be done. I believe that if you could yourself severely every day, you would find that undercurrent growing powerful, and try with your whole might to bring all your thoughts to bear on what you are doing, you can at least diminish the power and volume of the thought undercurrent.

Here's wishing you good luck if you care to try. Please wish me the same.

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN
Shorn of Her Crown and Beauty, Loses in Love and Marriage

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could one array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness and success. Yet, right here in St. John, there are thousands of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined. Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use cutting irons over-hot, or to excess, which destroys the natural oil of the hair, causing it to split, break and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often. They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses color, falls out, and baldness ensues, as seen in time. Then, when the hair is gone, certain diseases break about the scalp, and hair conditions are so bad that almost any woman may rid herself of dandruff and greasy scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. I have that remedy, and will positively guarantee that it will cure your dandruff and baldness or it will cost you nothing.

This is a pretty bald statement, but I will back it and prove it with my own money. I will return your money if you fail to find that the "99" Hair Tonic is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promote hair growth and overcome scalp and hair troubles; that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished; the fact that it received a thoroughly hard, impartial, and practical test.

I want you to try Recall "99" Hair Tonic at my risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have every thing to gain. You had better think this over, and then come in and see me about this offer. You will be well repaid for your visit to my store. Remember you can get Recall Remedies in this community only at my store—The Recall Store, Chas. R. Wason, 100 King Street.

FOLEY THROUGH MANY SEA PERILS

Shipwrecked Four Times and Injured in Two Explosions, He Will Stay Ashore

New York, Oct. 20.—James Foley of Boston, survivor of four wrecks, who lost two fingers in an explosion on the battleship Alabama and who recently escaped from a blazing naphtha ship, is here on the liner Minnesota. He has decided to forsake the sea forever and settle down to a less venturesome life in Boston.

Foley's trip on the Minnesota was the result of two shipwrecks. He sailed from New York last December on the British liner Lyndhurst, with a cargo of 500,000 gallons of naphtha, consigned to East Africa.

After 110 days of battle against head winds, the Lyndhurst made the Cape of Good Hope. Later Foley was left at Mauritius suffering from fever. Recovering, he shipped on the British ship Rudant, bound for Durban, where he hoped to regain the Lyndhurst. Within a few miles of Durban a tropical storm drove the Rudant ashore, her masts fell and the crew was compelled to swim through a heavy surf to safety.

Rejoining the Lyndhurst, he sailed from that port on Aug. 10 and two days later fire was discovered in the hold. It was supposedly extinguished and the hatches again fastened down.

Early in the morning of August 17, with the port watch below a terrific explosion took place," said Foley, telling of his experiences. "I was thrown out of my bunk and with the rest of the watch ran on deck.

Flames and smoke were pouring from the forward hatch and the sails were being lowered. We all rushed aft for the boats. Many of us were burned and jumped overboard without waiting for the boats to be lowered. Capt. Parnell was the last to leave and lowered himself into a boat with a line over the stern. After all hands were picked up we pulled away from the burning wreck. Our position at that time was about 200 miles southeast of East Africa.

Flames and smoke were pouring from the forward hatch and the sails were being lowered. We all rushed aft for the boats. Many of us were burned and jumped overboard without waiting for the boats to be lowered. Capt. Parnell was the last to leave and lowered himself into a boat with a line over the stern. After all hands were picked up we pulled away from the burning wreck. Our position at that time was about 200 miles southeast of East Africa.

Scars on Foley's arms showed that he had not come unscathed from his adventures aboard the Lyndhurst. The men of the Lyndhurst were sent to London aboard a Union Castle liner, and the British cruiser Pandora went to sea to destroy the wreck of the old bark, which still floated despite the explosions and fire.

CANNIBALS IN AUSTRALIA Melbourne, Oct. 20.—A Swedish scientific expedition which for many months has been making a study of the aborigines in the back blocks of Australia has found that the inhabitants there are of a distinctly Sinitic cast of countenance and that they often kill and eat one another.

THE BOARD OF WORKS. Some curiosity was displayed at yesterday's meeting of the board of works investigating committee regarding the position of the engineer of the city dredge, who was said to be drawing pay as such, although the dredge had not been working this year. The explanation given was that the engineer had been kept employed as a machinist, etc., for the city and that his time had been charged up to the different departments for which he had been working. In addition to his work in the machine shop he had installed the steam heating outfit in the McLeod warehouse, built iron pipe railings and been kept busy at similar work. The committee will continue its work this afternoon, when it is hoped to have Ald. Smith on the stand.

ANNIVERSARY SURPRISE. An agreeable surprise was given Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stewart last evening, when about forty of their friends invaded their home in St. James street and presented to them a handsome mison wood table, and other useful articles in remembrance of their first wedding anniversary. An enjoyable social hour was spent in bridge and other amusements, refreshments were served, and the gathering dispersed a little after midnight, after extending hearty good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Stewart.

BOYS AND FIREARMS

To the Editor of the Times. Sir:—Recently I have been struck with the number of shooting accidents recorded in the columns of your valuable paper—this evening's edition containing two. The victims, in almost all of these cases, are children who have, in my opinion, no business with firearms.

One has only to visit the flats or marshes in the vicinity of the town to see the number of boys under the age of sixteen, armed chiefly with small 22 rifles and single barrel shotguns, and notice the exceedingly careless and ignorant manner in which these deadly weapons are handled to be convinced of the necessity of taking measures to prevent this sort of thing.

In Great Britain every one has to procure a license to carry a gun, and none are issued to boys under eighteen. Whilst conditions in Canada might not justify the licensing of gunners, still I think the second part of the act might be adopted here, viz.: To make it illegal for any boy under, say 17, to carry firearms of any description.

This would not be only in the interest of the boys themselves but of the general public. Yours faithfully, HUGH CANNELL, St. John, N. B., Oct. 19, 1911.

A WANDERER FROM THE WOODS

A partridge was captured in the doorway of a building off Church street, in the very business heart of the city, this morning. The bird was tired, probably from a succession of long flights in an effort to get out of town, and so an unfeathered biped, true to the instincts of the human race, easily cornered the partridge and lugged it off presumably to the family stew-pot.

As a matter of fact, this is no way to treat one of our wild feathered friends under such circumstances. Seek the partridge in his native woods, stalk him there in his own country, give him the start that the law of sportsmanship calls for, and shoot him as he flies, and the transaction, while it may be objectionable from some standpoints, is relieved of the sordid features which mark it when a human being engaged in a catch-as-catch-can struggle with one of these birds in the middle of man's brick and mortar agglomeration, and overcomes it by main strength and awkwardness. The man, in the school-yard phrase, ought "to take on somebody of his own size."

How came a partridge at the corner of Church and Canterbury streets? (Let us hasten to say that it was not on the Times-Telegram corner that the incident occurred.) The partridge is a bird of short flights. He walks and runs, but as a rule he does not fly a great deal, for though strong of wing and having a beautiful speed and the finest of wing control for short distances he is essentially a bird of the ground. Even an old cock which has survived the perils of many seasons, which has evaded the foxes and owls, and kept out of gun range, and which is notoriously a strong flier as partridges go, does not cover any great distance in one flight except under extraordinary circumstances, as for instance, when escaping a forest fire or when slightly wounded and greatly terrified.

So this partridge which came into town probably flew during the night into some street on the outskirts of the city, and then, confused, flew farther into the town, and again farther, instead of heading back toward the wooded country. When finally the bird found itself in Church street, about the time the banks were opening while it was still unwounded, it was so weary and heavy of wing that even for its life it could not fly far.

Being surprised under such circumstances in a city of professed Christians, most of whom have never seen a live partridge, the proper thing to do was to form a guard of honor and escort the stranger back to the forest, to allow it to retreat unhurt, as if the human community understood all the circumstances and would preserve the amenities of an honorable truce.

This ruffed grouse of ours is as fine a game bird as may be found in all the great north country. We have not studied it sufficiently, and we do not know why in a country still so well wooded as ours is the partridge does not increase more rapidly than it does. The New Brunswick birds of prey are not nearly so numerous as they were twenty years ago, but the partridge family has not increased as its enemies have decreased, and we are coming to a time when we ought to study the partridge and take measures looking to increasing the number of such birds in all our wooded counties.

Meantime, the arrival of this bird and the unfair treatment it received is provocative of thoughts that travel far from our streets and our constant struggle for money and preferment. There is much a man may learn by going into the big woods, if he will but think about what is there, and, being there, of what he has left behind.

WHAT ABOUT COAL?
 Ordinarily the people of New Brunswick would welcome the news, given in this morning's despatches, that President Plummer, and the directors of the Dominion Iron & Steel and Dominion Coal Companies, have decided soon to begin the operation of twenty new collieries in Nova Scotia. But does anyone suppose that, if these twenty new collieries are opened up, the price of soft coal to the New Brunswick consumer will be less? Or, does anyone believe that with, or without, the new collieries, the price of coal in New Brunswick is reasonable today, or is likely to be made reasonable in the near future?

It was proposed under reciprocity to reduce somewhat the duty on bituminous coal, but even that proposal was nothing but a weak sort of compromise; for everyone in Canada knew that the duty should have been taken off soft coal entirely, there is no excuse for it, except the desire of the coal mining interests in Nova Scotia and in British Columbia, and their allies in the financial world, to retain all the power that they have today to squeeze the consumer.

The price of coal for steam and domestic fuel purposes in New Brunswick is a notoriously unfair price, and that it is notoriously unfair would be established by any form of impartial and intelligent investigation which might be instituted on behalf of the people. Were it not possible to mislead the electors grossly at election time by raising disturbing issues foreign to the matters in hand, the coal operators could not continue for more than a year or two to treat the consumer as they do. This is one of the things the people of the Maritime Provinces should begin to think about seriously, with the idea of applying a common sense remedy. The very fact that most of the coal mines in Nova Scotia are public property means that competition should rule coal prices in the Maritime Provinces, and that such prices should not give more than a reasonable profit to the operator. The production of all the facts would prove beyond dispute that this is one of the many cases in which the consumer is "fooled to the top of his bent."

Mr. Justice McLeod sustains Judge Carleton's decision in the Carleton county election case. Mr. F. B. Carvell will keep his seat. He is a hard man to beat, says Mr. Carvell.

Speaking of the census if we take another the inquirers should be instructed to enumerate the pessimists and the "knockers." There may be too many. We ought to know the worst.

A citizen suggests to The Times that if the city desires to sell its lands, or to adopt some plan so that the lands will be of greater public utility, a price should be fixed on each lot from year to year, and the list advertised. Then a citizen, or an outsider desiring to buy a city lot, or several for business or residential use, would know what he was doing, and furthermore, the real value of the land would soon proclaim itself. The suggestion is good enough to think about. The present way is not good.

The New York Herald, in withdrawing its staff correspondent from Ottawa in disgust, because Canada voted down reciprocity has displayed rank bad taste in asserting, as falsely as insidiously, that if the United States desired to acquire Canada, neither Canada, "nor its overlord, England," could prevent it. Even so foolish a journal as the Herald must know enough history to realize how little there is to support such bragadoos. Bitter recollection should have prevented the Herald from talking such nonsense, even in a fit of ill-temper. Commodore Bennett ought to suspend himself for three weeks for inexcusable bad judgment and worse taste.

THE HOME PHYSICIAN

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cure Most of the Family's Ills.

Perhaps if the children, and the "grown-ups," always ate exact quantities of exactly the right things at just proper times, and in every other way obeyed the laws of health, there would be no sickness in the family, and no need of medicine.
 But they never have and probably never will, so in every family there are sure to be more or less frequent attacks of sick headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, and kidney and liver troubles, and occasionally some one is "sick in bed!"
 It is worth a good deal to the mother, then, to have on hand that perfectly safe and reliable remedy for these ills—
Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.
 They invigorate those organs which cleanse the body of waste and impurities, regulating the bowels, stimulating the kidneys and opening the pores of the skin.
 Thus Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure the common ailments and keep the family healthy. This they have been doing for over half a century in every part of the world.

THE FLESHPOTS

It was pleasant to flee from the fret and the heat of the countryside's fragrant retreat. To loaf and grow fat, and let everything slide. To shun all the sparkle, and glitter, and shine. For the twitter of birds and the bleat of the lamb. Yet, now we are back to the "revel and waste." The fleshpots of Egypt are good to the taste.

The first with Dame Nature by mountain and shore. Is jolly enough for a fortnight or more. And who wouldn't cheerfully hit for the Where you eat like a wolf, and you look like a tramp? You gain a new zest for the "world's bitter fight." You get a new tan and a new appetite. And when to the city your steps are retraced. The fleshpots of Egypt are good to the taste.

We leave 'em behind us, we swear we are sick. Their savor's too rich, and the sauce is too thick. The clangor, and hurry and bustle and din. We hate them, we say—as we ought to hate sin. And thus we depart for the summer, but soon The city pipes up its enticing old tune, And we dance as of old, and we come in our haste. For the fleshpots of Egypt are good to the taste.

—Berton Braley in Aimee's.

IN LIGHTER VEIN HE DESERVED IT.

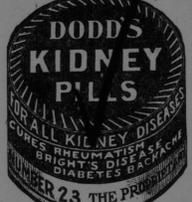

A certain candidate after tiring his audience with a long, dry speech, wound up as follows:—"I want housing reform. I want land reform. I want educational reform. I want—" "Yes," shouted a bored voice from the audience, "you want chloroform!"

THE SMALL BOY AGAIN
 An old Scottish farmer being elected a member of the local school board, visited the school and tested the intelligence of the class by his questions. His first inquiry was—"Now, boys, can any one of you tell me what 'naughting' is?" After a moment's silence a small boy in a back seat arose and replied, "It's what ye'd call me 't'other day for haudin' yer horse."

EASILY REPAIRED.

Soon after their honeymoon a young couple of Cleveland undertook housekeeping the bride being especially desirous to put into practice the lessons she had taken in cooking. Returning home one evening the husband found his wife in tears. He tried to console her, but she would not be comforted. "Dearest," she gulped, "it does feel so awful that the very first meal pie I ever baked for you should be eaten by the cat."

"That's all right, my love," said the husband, patting her on the shoulder, "I'll get you another cat right away."

GIANTS ARE EAGER FOR THE BATTLE

(By Christy Mathewson, the Giants' star pitcher. Canadian Copyright by J. W. Bolton. Copyright in United States by the New York Herald Company. All rights reserved.) Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—Although these two days of illness have helped the Giants materially in their fight for the championship of the world, still there is a man on the club who doesn't hope that tomorrow is a fine day. They realize their mistakes now and are leaping up to make the fight of their lives, and they want action, want a chance to do something.

NORTH SHORE BOY MISSING

Daniel Kane Not on Schooner as People Had Hoped—Seaman on Trial Tomorrow

(Special to Times)

Chatham, N. B., Oct. 20.—Daniel Kane, son of James Kane of Rosebank, disappeared last Thursday and there are fears for his safety as he is only about fifteen years of age but is known to have had a liking for the sea and it was thought he had shipped on a schooner from here but when the latter arrived at its destination, Shipagan, he was not on board. Now the police have been asked to join in the search as it is possible some accident has occurred. The trial of Oscar Arnesen and Harold Benton, arrested by Chief Coughlan on a charge of stealing a gold watch and chain and $10 in cash from the steamer Dagead, now loading at the Lyman mill will take place tomorrow. The goods were the property of Captain Hillbert Olsen, in charge of the steamer. Though nothing was found on the prisoners it is said one of them attempted to sell a watch. A further charge against them is that of leaving their ship without permission.

DENIED THE THEFT

Court Sends Louzier in on Remand for Sentence—Today's Police Court

Hearing in the case of George Louzier, alias Bird, charged by Mrs. M. Batty with stealing a coat from her room in a boarding house in Union street, was begun in the police court this morning. The evidence of Mrs. Batty, Miss Harriet Newell, Edward Curran and Policeman Gossline was taken, and the prisoner was remanded. Miss Newell said that she saw the prisoner coming out of the window in Mrs. Batty's room where the coat was. She told of summoning the police.

Current swore that he saw something falling to the ground from the direction of Mrs. Batty's window, and on going out into the yard found the coat. Both witnesses identified the coat. Policeman Gossline told of making the arrest. The prisoner took the stand and denied the theft. He swore that he never saw the coat, nor was he near Mrs. Batty's room. He pleaded that he had a wife and family in Richibucto and wanted to get back home. In summing up the evidence, the court said that the weight of evidence was against the prisoner, and that he would be remanded for sentence. When arrested he said his name was Bird, and he explained to the court this morning that his name was French, and was the same as Bird in English. Gordon Livingstone, a young lad who was arrested for throwing stones in the street, was brought into court and was severely reprimanded. He was also fined $8 or thirty days in jail. James Hunter was fined $4 or ten days on the charge of drunkenness, and Cornelius O'Leary and Thomas Moore $8 or thirty days in jail on a like charge. Andrew Irvine was given $8 or two months in jail for incitement, and Charles McKinnon a like amount for being drunk, disorderly and abusive to his father. William Shannon was remanded on the charge of being drunk and profane.

PARTRIDGE CAUGHT

IN A CITY STREET

When partridge can be captured right in the heart of the city, then it is time to think that they are quite plentiful. One citizen did not make to go far for his game this morning, for he captured one in the doorway of a Church street business-house. Probably flying into the city during last night, and being confused in its unusual surroundings, it was a very much disturbed bird when seen in Church street. A passer by shot a stone at it and it ran about seeking a place of safety. Finally it went into the doorway of the McGowan Printing Company's business place, and there its pursuer caught it. He took it away.

GEORGE QUIGLEY DEAD IN AMHERST

Stricken on His Way to Work in Rolling Mills—Was a Native of Coldbrook, Near This City

The following came by special despatch to the Times from Amherst this morning:

"George Quigley, superintendent of the rolling mills in connection with the Canadian Car & Foundry Company here died suddenly on his way to work about eight o'clock this morning of heart trouble. He had been employed in Amherst for some years and was very highly thought of. His wife and family reside in Westmount, Montreal. Mr. Quigley was a native of Coldbrook, St. John, N. B., and for years was one of the head men of the outdoor rolling mills and was associated in business with the late E. G. Scott."

Mr. Quigley was well known in Coldbrook, where he had spent his younger days, and where he had been foreman in the rolling mills for many years. He left there between ten and fifteen years ago. Mrs. Coblin of 6 Britain street, is a daughter, while two other daughters reside in Montreal with their mother. Two sons, George and James, are in the west. Mr. Quigley, like his father, also located in Montreal. The news of his death was received in Coldbrook and the surrounding country with keen regret.

MR. BERTON'S REPLY TO CENSUS CRITICISMS

Refers to Matter of Increase in Voters' Lists and to Other Phases of the Population Question

George K. Berton, census commissioner, challenges the suggestion that the increase of 1,350 names in the polls on the assessor's lists should indicate any substantial increase in the population generally. His argument is that this increase is secured by the addition of the young men who have come of age in the last ten years, but who, as children, were included in the last census. His explanation of the fact that the number of polls is so much greater in proportion to the total population than it was ten years ago is that the assessors are more careful now than they were then. When asked for his explanation of the increase in the number of names given in the city directory, Mr. Berton suggested that the increase may have occurred in those districts outside of the city limits which were included in the directory. He also thought that more of the younger people were included in the directory than formerly, and that this would account for part of the increase in size of the directory.

Mr. Berton said that it was possible that some of the names submitted to him after the census had been taken had been overlooked by the enumerators, but maintained that in most cases they already had the names on the list. He defended both the system used in taking the census and the men who did the work, saying that the system made it almost impossible to overlook any one and that the men employed as enumerators did their work carefully and conscientiously. He said the population of certain wards had been decreased by the encroachment of business houses, and asserted that in other parts of the city the population was not nearly as well crowded together as it was ten years ago. From his observation of the city's progress, Mr. Berton said he held little hope of any increase in the exodus of people as the explanation of why the census returns did not show a larger population.

THE FREIGHT HANDLERS

Statement of Men's Position Relative to the Winter Work

The Times' story with reference to the organization of the truckers or freight handlers and their demand for better pay and more frequent pay days, is confirmed by statement of officers of the Longshoremen's Association and the Freight Handlers' Organization with some changes in matters of detail. Both Secretary Allen F. C. Worden of the freight handlers and Business Agent Donovan of the longshoremen, say that the unions are separate. Secretary Worden also says that the demand is for an increase of twenty-five cents an hour from the seventeen cents of last year, not twenty. They ask that pay day be weekly with double time on Christmas, New Year's, Good Friday, and on Sundays. The freight handlers are members of the International Railway Freight Handlers' Association, and their local union is 174 with Thomas Larkin as president and Allen F. C. Worden as secretary. An official of the longshoremen's association said today that they were affiliated with the International Longshoremen's Association, and their local union was 273. He also said that they had two years yet to run on a five year agreement with the C. P. R. and Donalson line to load their stamers for thirty cents an hour in winter and thirty-five cents in summer. Under these conditions he said it would not be possible for them to act in concert with the freight handlers. It was presumed by this official that both unions, freight handlers and longshoremen, were affiliated with the International Transportation Federation, which controls the work of handling the cargo of steamers, though Great Britain and other countries.
