The leaders of the people at length suc-ceeded in infusing the batred of Jesus, into the hearts of the masses. His claims as the Meeslah have even been rejected by the majority; His teaching have never won their way into general favor ; His person has never been held in esteem, or loved by the world. On the contrary, those who have despised alike His person and His teachings have ever been the multitude-a few only have implicitly received His teachings, acknowledged the validity of His claims, cordially submitted to His authority, and felt to. ward Him anything like the love and gratitude which he deserves.

But what is still more extraordinary, is the fact that the proof which He gave of His Messiahship was the chief occasion of this releatless enmity. When on carth we find that the hatred of His emies was roused to fury whenever He gave e that He came i werable evi

"Unhappy Poland" begins again to attract the attention of the world, after having passed a period of silence of thirty years' duration. So profound, indeed, had been this silence, that it might well be compared to that of the tomb. But Poland was not dead ; she was only bleep ing. What is to be the issue of the present struggle, is known only to Gol. It is to be fear-ed that it will end in riveting more permanebly the fetters by which she has been so long bound hand and foot. It may, however, be far other. the fetters by which she has been so long bound hand and fost. It may, however, be far other wise. Something will depend on what England will say and do, and almost infinitely more on what Leuis Napoleon will say and do. It is not a south and eas, as well as the Poles on the west, it is nevertheless a fact, that the Poles were able, made, or Russia would not have had the co-casion and the power to place one hundred and for theoagend soldiers in stirie and towns to first of the Romanoffs, to mark to the first of the to the Romanoffs, to mark to

Whilst Prussia, that now has the poorest part, and the smallest share of the population of Poland, has governed her part the best of all ; so much so, that intelligent Poles that are Roman Catholics, have confessed to the writer that if Austria and Russia had goverped their portions of Poland as well as Prussia has done, the Polish nation would have little reason to regret the partition of their country. One of the most infamous things that Rome has ever been guilty of was the "bull" which the Pope issued secretly against the Polish revo.

But better days will come. A pure Christian-ity must take the place in Poland of the superstition and intolerance of the Roman Catholic Church, which has been the cause of the persecution and destruction of so many Protestant confessors in that land. The Fnglish and Gernan missionaries did much in Poland to impart the knowledge of the Gospel to the Jews, from 1818 to 1854. So long as He was content merely with exhibiting His characteristic amiability and benevolence, or with unfolding moral precepts, the hatred of his ecomes seemed to be dormani; but whenever He wrought miracles which proved that He was a teacher sent from God-whenever in His discourses He treated of the nature, character, and operations of the Deity, or whenever He presented conspicuously a spectacle of super-human virtue, then the rage of His enemies was roused to freezy, and they called Him a demonise, a madman, a blasphemer, or shouted "crucify Him, crucify Him."

So in aubsequent times—Jesus is "spoken against" whenever evidence of His Messiahship is brought home to the hearts and consciences of men. Their natural enmity is dormant, until men. Their natural enmity is dormant, until they are convinced that Jesus is more than a man. But when their reason is baffled by the evidence which He affords of a superhuman nature and mission—then the enmity becomes apparent. If He could only be regarded as a tracter whose doctrines were doubtfol at best, then those to whom they are distasteful could contrive to despise Him, and pity His votaries— the whose whose the unthority, and such a religious training. We notice also that feelings of positive dislike are excited as reason or conscience asknowledge the doc-trines to be true, and the character of the Teacher spotless. This dislike is often seen to be ed to the highest pitch in those seasons in which the truth is presented in demonstration of the spirit and in power, deepening its influence over the Learts of believers and constraining the Arnot's new work :---' The writer remembers the days when, as the dinner-hour was announced, and all glads ly threw their work aside, he satisfied a fresh appetite during the first five minutes, and stretched beneath the shade of a tree, occupied the remaining fifty-five reading the wars of Cæsar, and the songs of Virgil, in the language of ancient Rome. It made his afternoon's teil of ancient Rome. It made his afternoon's toil lighter. It made his neighbors respect him ; and what is more, young men, it made him respect himself. Government of the Church.

The Kingdom of Heaven is composed of al who have submitted to the rule of Christ, professed allegiance to him in the way which he has indicated, and are living in obedience to his commandments. The Church is an institution of the kingdom of Christ for the maintenance of his authority over his professed subjects, and for its extension throughout the world. Every society has laws and there is lodged somewhere within it authority to enforce obedience to those laws. The Church of Christ must necessarily have rules and regulations for its guidance, and it must be in pos ession of authority to maintain their observance. Ordinary Societies are organized for son end which its members deem to be desirable

The rules and regulations are framed by the members, and the authority which the Society exercises is conferred by the members. The Church, however, is organized for a great end indicated by Christ. From him, also, it derives

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN.

By the "Persia" and "Borussia" at New York, we have dates to the 27th October.

Sir James Graham, a prominent English politi tician and statesman, died at Netherby on the 25th of October. The Liverwool Post says that Captain M. B. The Liverwool Post says that Captain M. B. Semmes, of the privatar Sumpler, arrived at New York under the name of Captain Burnister, Royal Navy. Mr. Granuley F. Berkely writes very strongly in favor of the "Confederates" in the London Morning Herald, and broadly asserts that they are thus far the violors. The Manchester Guardian gives prominence to a communication, in which it is asserted that the South in withholding their cotton from mar-ket, are not actuarde by a desire to bring foreign Powers to their rescne, but desire simply to avoid the risks which would accure to cotton at the sea ports. the sea ports. The Paris Siecle has an editorial calling for the adoption of measures calculated to ensourage the production of cotton in Algeria.

The "Journal des Debates" has changed its tone with reference to the American War. It has consequently met with a great deal of ridi-cule from different quarters. Some of this the for the after and the state of t Herald's Paris Correspondent does not relish.

He says : The Constitutiona', under the auspices of its new editor, calls the attention of its readers this morning to the change which has come over the spirit of the Journal des Debats since the Comte de Paris and the Duc de Chartres have enrolled themeelveen a schuterer in the arrow of the "Look on this picture and look on that," it says, as it spreads out two columns— the one dated September 28, and the other Oc-tober 21—on American affairs. "A month ago the government of Washington was simply re-penting the blunder of George the 1 third. It is now, with a powerful arm and determined will, enforcing the indisputable rights of freedom and the sacred laws of popular government." Now why should the Constitutioned we have opinions on every subject have boxed the com-pass, who only recently, in the matter of the Anglo-French treaty, "jumped Jim Crow," to the great amusement of all its contemporaries— take this special opportunity of drilling the De-bate ? On Another's Sorrow. Can I see another's woe, And not be in sorrow too ? Can I see another's grief, And not seek for kind relief ?

Can I see a falling tear, And not feel my sorrow's share ? Can a father see his child Weep, nor be with sorrow filled ?

Can a mother sit and hear An infant groan, an infant fear ? No! no ? never can it be-Never, never can it be !

And can He who smiles on all. Hear the wren with sorrows small, Hear the small bird's grief and care, Hear the woes that infants bear-

And not sit beside the nest, Pouring pity in their breast ? And not sit the cradle near, Weeping tear on infant's tear ?

And not sit both night and day, Wiping all our tears away P O, no ! never can it be-Never, never can it be !

He doth give His joy to all ; He becomes an infant small, He becomes a man of woe, He doth feel the sorrow too

* Think not thou canst sigh a sigh, And thy Saviour is not nigh ; Think not thou canst weep a tear, And thy Saviour is not near.

O ! He gives to us His joy. That our griefs He may destroy. Till our grief is fled and gone He doth sit by us and moan. WIELIAM BLAKE.

For the Christian Watchman, RECOLLECTIONS OF ROME. NO. XVI.

ANTIQUITIES-A STROLL ON THE APPIAN WAY We leave our lodgings early in the daybreakfast at a cafe, and when the sun is well up in the sky, and the chill of a Jenuary morning departed, go forth to spend the remainder of the day in search of those an tiquities which still line the Appian Way. We pass again through the Campo Vacchino and review its treasures. As we pass the Arch of Titus and the stupendous Coliseum we pause to admire the exquisite beauty of the one and to feel the emotions of sublimity inspired by the vastness of the other. We pass under the Arch of Constantine, and then begin our search for those objects of interest which have attracted us forth.

On our way to the Porta S. Sebastiano we meet with some objects of great interest. After passing the site of the celebrated Circus Maimus of which only a few mounds and fragments remain, we approach the baths of Caracalla-a wall, still perfect throughout the greater portion of its extent, and about a mile in circumference, enclosed mass of ruins which in vastness almost rival the Coliseum. Here are broken vaults, roofless halls-and shattered mosaic pavement-all together realizing one's ideal of a vast rain. These baths seem to have suffered even more than the Coliseum from the hands of wilful depredators. The columns and statues with which it was formerly adorned, now enrich many a chapel or fore leaving we displayed a considerable amount of ingenuity in filching about nine square inches of the Mosaic pavement ; but as " all that's ever got by stealing etc. comes to sorrow, etc." so we derived little permanent advantage from our dishonesty. This precious relic of antiquity was subsequently destroyed by a friend who used it to crack a hickory nut.

In the immediate vicinity of the ruins of the baths of Caracalla, and on the opposite side of the road is one of the most interesting and inctive of the monuments which once adorned the Appian Way-the Columbarium of Cneius Pomponius Hylas, and of Pomponia Vitalina. It was discovered in 1830, and is in a state of complete preservation. During those centuries when Rome was visited by every form of devastation this little vault, covered over with the rubbish of more imposing structures, escaped the almost universal ruin. We descend into the Columbarium by marble steps some ten or twelve in num-ber, and enter what seems to be a little temple ne twelve feet square, and adorned with pilasters of graceful form. Two rows of niches run around the walls and each niche contains a little marble urn filled with the ashes of the dead. . In larger niches and opposite the entrance were two cophagi containing it is supposed the ashes of and proving faithless to their principles." the heads of the family. The urns probably contain the ashes of slaves or dependents. In one corner of the Columbarium were some bores which had not been burned.

In the vicinity of this interesting vault is a ment of considerable dimensions-simple in its proportions, and of venerable appearance. This is the tomb of Scipio. The chambers are now empty-"the Scipio's tomb contains Ro ashes now." The sarcophagus, which formerly contained the precious dust is now in the Vatican.

contained the precious dust is now in the Vatican. We now continue our search for the antiquities on the Appian Way. After leaving the city gate, we notice here and there, as we pass along, the ruins of tombs of various dimensions, and in various stages of decay. We pass the celebrated Church of Domine Guo Vadis, about a mile and a half be-yond the city gate. A short distance beyond, is the Basilice of St. Sebastian, under which is an entrance to the Cateomba.

I wrote to him and desired him to come to densely populated Chinese Empire. The town. When he arrived, I was surprised to another fact which shows that the Church is not find that he had an array of reasons against fully awake to the condition of the perishing aking the appointment. influence would go just the opposite way; for any man who discharges the duties of his office faithfully, will give great annoyance to Kepho and his people. "Then, again," he continued, "I should not like to take a situation with wages on account of my associate teachers and preachers, who would lock upon me as abandoning their ranks, and proving faithless to their principles." He had other reasons, but these were enough to make me abando.
