THE SURRENDER OF EVERY SHIP OF THE AUSTRIAN NAVAL ARM TO BE DEMANDED BY THE ALLIES

The Peace Terms to be Presented to Austria Are Rapidly Taking Concrete Form—Feeling is Running High in Germany Over What is Termed the Severity of the Peace Terms—"Rather Anarchy Than Slavery" is the Remark Heard on All Sides.

New York, May 9.—The Associated Press tonight issues the following: The peace terms to be presented to Austria are rapidly taking concrete form. It is announced from Paris that the drafting committee has begun work on the document as a whole. The naval terms, it is said, contemplate the wiping out of the entire Austrian navy, the surrender of every ship of the Austrian naval arm being demanded. The allied and associated governments will decide later just what disposition shall be made of the vessels. No hint has yet been given as to the other conditions.

Meanwhile, the German peace delegation at Versailles continues its formidable task of digesting the peace terms handed to it on Wednesday by Premier Clemenceau. According to reports, originating from a high British source in Paris, the delegates are divided in their views on the drastic conditions laid down.

Feeling, apparently, is running high in Germany over what is termed the severity of the peace terms, and a review of the opinion in Berlin says that the people are discussing the consequences of a possible refusal to sign the treaty. "Rather anarchy than slavery," is the remark heard on all sides, the review declares.

The people of Germany, though fairly stricken dumb by the peace terms, are now recovering sufficiently to declare that Germany cannot and will not sign the compact, no matter what comes.

Strikes are increasing and Bolshevism and the Spartacus uprising of the past two months have, if anything, made Germany immune to the possibility of a return to normalcy.

horrors which are to be anticipated if they are again plunged into war, according to the best opinion here.

There exists a small group of Germans, chiefly Conservatives, who prefer to see the Entente occupy the whole country than to have it Bolshievised, but they are in the dwindling minority.

One newspaper credits Herr Gieseler, a member of the German delegation at Versailles, as asserting that the only immediate solution is a peace with Russia and the employment of Bolshevik troops by Germany.

Unofficial advice from Paris declares that the controversy over Italy's claims to Fiume and Dalmatian coast is far from being settled. President Wilson, according to these advisers, is not in agreement with the compromise plan by which Italy would be given a mandate to administer Fiume until 1923, and then take possession of the city.

Viscount Milner, British secretary for the colonies, has been called to Paris to discuss the question of Belgium's protest against Great Britain acting as mandatory for German East Africa.

The Hungarian Communist government forces continue to suffer military reverses. Czech troops have obtained a foothold in Nagyszeceny, forty miles north of Budapest. Rumanian forces, according to latest reports, are eight miles east of the capital. Operations have begun against Afghan tribesmen, who crossed the border and took up positions on the Indian side. Russian government advisers say that an Afghan mission, seeking the establishment of relations with the imperial army, has arrived at Moscow.

ST. JOHN HAS THE GLAD HAND OUT TODAY FOR MEMBERS OF THE GALLANT 4TH AND 6TH

All Work Suspended for the Forenoon—The City En Fete to Greet the First Distinctive Maritime Unit—A Right Royal Reception Planned—Final Review by Brig-General Macdonnell—Addresses by Public Officials—Other Features of the Reception—Complete List of the Men Who Arrive This Morning.

If everybody cheers, and everybody shouts, not offering that silent appreciation for which St. John is noted, the reception to the Siege Battery and Artillery boys this morning should be one which will make a record in the city.

The final preparations for the grand welcome were completed last night, and it is expected that everything will move along without a hitch.

All along the route of the parade banners and streamers are flying to the breeze, and many ornate window displays have been evolved. A reviewing stand on King Square, south, has been erected and decorated, and, right opposite, the Imperial Theatre has perhaps the most display that is shown in the city: an exhibition of welcoming sentiments which should surely show the returning boys that the heart of the home town is in the right place.

The reception is not only for the men who return this morning, it is for every man who fought overseas and is now in the city, and as such it is expected that the entire city will participate in the welcome and show by cheers and an abundance of noise that their heart is in the welcome.

The Plans. At eight o'clock, daylight time, the special train bearing the artillery boys will arrive at the Union Depot, which, for a while, will be closed to permit the men to form up inside, without hindrance.

Here they will be officially welcomed by the Citizens' Reception Committee, which will be enlarged to include representatives of the Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army, V. A. D.'s and Red Cross. There will also be present members of the returning units who have previously returned to their homes here, who will welcome back their comrades-in-arms.

The reception committee have their gifts for the boys set up in neat packages, so that the work of distribution will be carried through speedily. Each package contains the many comforts which have been found so popular in the past.

Following the reception, the men will be mustered in proper ranks outside the Union Depot, where it is expected that they will be joined by members of the Great War Veterans' Association and the Boy Scouts.

Order of Parade. The order of the parade is proposed to be: Depot Battalion or Garrison Band. Public officials. Officers and men of the Fourth Siege Battery who have returned previous to today.

Officers and men of the newly arrived Fourth Siege Battery. City Cornet Band. Officers and men of the Sixth Battery who have returned previous to today.

Officers and men of the Sixth Battery who are now home for the first time. Temple Band. Officers and men from other Artillery units, belonging to New Brunswick, who have arrived on the S.S. Mauretania.

Great War Veterans, in uniform. Boy Scouts with Bugle Band and whistles.

FOCH'S SURPRISING SPEECH STIRRED UP HORNET'S NEST IN FRENCH POLITICAL AFFAIRS

German Delegates Will Present Counter Terms They Will Give Battle Over Questions of the Sarre Valley, Danzig, the Former Colonies and Military Occupation.

Paris, May 9.—(Havas)—The German delegates, in their answer to the peace terms, the newspapers say, will propose especially to assume the burden of making reparation only for damages caused in northern France and Belgium. The papers say it is not unlikely the Allies will refuse the proposition. The German delegates, it is added, also intend to give battle over the questions of the Sarre Valley, Danzig, the former German colonies and military occupation.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, in a long wireless exchange with Berlin, the newspapers declare, expressed a desire to confer with the German-Austrian delegates on their arrival at St. Germain.

In the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies, yesterday, the peace treaty was approved by the deputies, but some reservations were made concerning the financial clauses. Raoul Feraud, President of the Budget Commission, said that France, apparently, would have to bear all her war expenses, and it would probably be necessary to ask for ten billion francs in taxes from the French people in the next fiscal year. M. Feraud questioned if the people could pay such a sum.

SEAPLANES TAKE TO AIR AGAIN THIS MORNING Expect to Leave Halifax on Second Leg of the Trans-Atlantic Flight—N C 4 is Safe.

Halifax, N. S., May 9.—After a day spent on work on the propellers of the American seaplanes, and a general tuning up which they received, indications are that tomorrow morning N C-1 and N C-3 will start on the second leg of their trans-Atlantic flight. The two seaplanes had a test flight over Halifax and surrounding country tonight, and the machinery appeared to work with perfect smoothness. It had been the intention last night to leave today, but weather and the advisability of making some slight changes in the seaplanes, determined the commander to postpone the start for twenty-four hours.

The aviators were much relieved when they learned that the missing N C-4 was safe at Chatham, and they can start off with lighter hearts, knowing that their comrades are all right, and hoping that they will be able to catch them at Trepassey and start off together for the Azores. The American destroyers, which have been in port for several days, left today to take up positions on the line of flight to Newfoundland. At midnight it was stated that the conditions were not especially promising. The air was what is called "bumpy."

ONLY A SCRAP OF PAPER Afghans Take That View of Treaty With British and Now Seek Relations With Russia.

London, May 9.—A Russian government wireless message, received today, says that an Afghan mission has arrived at Moscow to establish relations between Afghanistan and Russia.

THIS IS IN VIOLATION OF THE TREATY BETWEEN AFGHANISTAN AND GREAT BRITAIN, UNDER WHICH AFGHANISTAN IS NOT ALLOWED TO ENTER INTO RELATIONS WITH ANY FOREIGN COUNTRY EXCEPT GREAT BRITAIN.

GEN. McNAUGHTON PRAISES WORK OF CANADIAN ARTILLERY

The Men Were the Most Efficient and Their Services Were Always Required When a Hard Job Was Scheduled.

Halifax, N. S., May 9.—In reviewing the work of the Canadian heavy artillery corps overseas, General Andrew McNaughton, of Montreal (D. S. O.), who arrived here today on the Mauretania with his brigade, highly complimented the work of his men. At the time of the signing of the armistice the corps was made up of two sixty-pound batteries, eight six-inch howitzer batteries, two eight-inch howitzer batteries, and two 9.2-inch howitzer batteries. Just previous to the signing of the armistice the authorities, recognizing the need of artillery, were the corps, which would have made it four brigades. In fact some of these batteries were being formed in England when the Germans signed the armistice.

The Canadian corps heavy artillery originated with the first heavy battery which went overseas in 1914, and the second heavy battery was added the following year. Then early in 1916 more batteries were added, and it was at the Somme that the work of the corps commenced, for it was there that artillery played its first important part in the war. Since then it has participated in every battle in which the Canadians took part, and for some time was loaned to the imperial army, so that it took part in every offensive on the western front. Among the rank and file of the corps are many decorated men.

Speaking of the improvement of artillery in 1914, and the work of the corps, General McNaughton said that during the war it had increased 50 per cent, and had the war continued another year there would be another 50 per cent. increase. He went overseas in command of the 11th brigade, third division artillery. In February he was appointed to the staff of G. O. C. R. A. Canadian corps, which position he held until September, last year, when he was promoted to brigadier-general in command of the C. C. H. A.

to get together with the employers to settle difficulties. There would have to be something done to meet the situation or the witness thought, beyond doubt, there would be serious trouble, perhaps revolution.

W. G. Baker, representative of the railway trainmen, declared that there were too many middlemen between the producer and the consumer, and the result was the high cost of living. The workers were alive to this fact, and were very dissatisfied. He also thought that there was a general feeling that there was an invisible government which was the boss of the government by the people. The workers, he had found, were also most anxious regarding unemployment, and sickness insurance which would protect them, would help the situation.

FORMER GERMAN CROWN PRINCE IN POTTERY BUSINESS ATTEMPT MADE TO INDUCE BRITISH TO JOIN MUTINY

Washington, May 9.—The former German Crown Prince has gone into the pottery business, according to an official dispatch received here from Holland. A new company just organized to use the catereous sands on the Island of Wieringen, in the North Sea, "has named Mr. Frederick William Hohenzollern as the director manager." It was said he was a large investor in the enterprise.

A specially ambitious piece, already put out by the new company, is a portrait of the director manager in a military uniform, and a background of church and fortifications. The dispatch said it was reported that the tile had been bought for forty thousand dollars for presentation to Premier Clemenceau, of France.

London, May 9.—A conspiracy to induce British sailors to mutiny and soldiers to demobilize themselves by marching out of their barracks has been discovered, according to the Daily Mail. The premises of various persons have been searched and documents seized.

The stations involved, the report says, include four in France and several in England, while the sailors in naval ports have been circularized with a view to inciting them to seize the ports and invite the soldiers and police to join them. The object of the plot is stated to be to compel the government to use force if the projected disorders should occur, the organizers believing that this would precipitate anarchy.

View Expressed That Military Party Plan to Seize Government and Place Foch at the Head. SPEECH UNAUTHORIZED BY CLEMENCEAU

Belief That Foch Has Become Desirous of More Than Military Honors and is Backed by Military Party for Leadership.

Paris, May 9.—(Havas)—The fact that Marshal Foch on Tuesday before the Secret Plenary Session of the Peace Conference, wherein the Marshal complained that the treaty as drawn did not sufficiently guarantee security for France, has started speculation here as to whether the French military party is preparing to gain a preeminent position in the French government and, in case of an eventuality, to establish a military dictatorship.

According to information from various sources Foch's speech was unauthorized and unexpected by Premier Clemenceau. After the conference meeting was ended, Foch is said to have asked Clemenceau his opinion of the speech and the observations thereon. Foch, it is said, received this for reply: "I am unable to say, until I have consulted other members of the government."

The fact that Marshal Foch was not a delegate to the conference and, therefore, not permitted to speak made his unauthorized statement all the more unusual. The opinion is also held that Foch's complaints were ill-judged in view of the favorable attitude of Lloyd George toward an alliance with France, and President Wilson's promise to place before the United States Senate a petition looking toward an alliance between France and America, guaranteeing to France security against aggression.

Foch's speech, following his long unauthorized interview in the London Daily Mail, and other incidents, give rise to the view that he has become desirous of more than military leadership, and is making a bid backed by the military party for support.

It is pointed out that Foch, in some such relationship, as that of Ludendorff to Hindenburg, is General Wiegand, Foch's chief of staff and adviser throughout the war. It is believed that whatever Foch might lack in personal political ambition, Wiegand might be ready to supply.

At the present time as the conclusion of the treaty is quite satisfactory to France in most particulars, there is little likelihood of Clemenceau's government going out of office. However, it is the general opinion among the French that Clemenceau won't be in office many weeks after the signing of the treaty, and that, if he does resign before the introduction of necessary taxation measures which will shock the country with their severity, he will fall on the taxation issue.

The situation, then, is likely to become confused with the possibility of a radical Socialist controlling for a period. But the French Socialists have so little intelligence and governing ability that they will, inevitably, make blunders, some of which may be bad enough to convince the French who are already skeptical, about the efficiency of their government, to support a coup d'etat by the military party.

The question is now being asked whether Foch is being groomed by Wiegand and others around him for the leadership of the nation should arise.

MANSON HOUSE IN POSSESSION OF MILITARY Lord Mayor of Dublin Active in Sinn Fein Leadership—Mansion House Has Been Used as Meeting Place.

Dublin, May 9.—The military authorities have taken possession of Mansion House, the official residence of the Lord Mayor.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin is Laurence O'Neil, who has been prominent in the leadership of the Sinn Fein movement. The Mansion House has been used as a meeting place for the Sinn Fein. There have been no recent reports of any unusual situation in Dublin affecting the Lord Mayor or his official residence.

SPRING MEDICINE

Hood's Sarsaparilla is Needed Now As Never Before— Because, although the war is over, its work, worry and excitement have undermined your reserve strength. Because the coughs, colds, grip and maybe severe illness, have broken down your power of resistance. Because Winter's work and close confinement have worn-out your stomach and exhausted your blood. Can you afford the good long rest the doctor advises? If not, take a course of the famous old medicine—the one that mother used to take—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It's the finest extract of Nature's purifying, vitalizing and strength-making roots, herbs, bark and berries, such as physicians prescribe, prepared by skilful pharmacists. In condensed and economical form. If you want the best Spring medicine you'll surely get Hood's Sarsaparilla. Hood's Pills help the liver.

E. R. Fenwick Gives Farewell Dinner

Wm. H. Thackeray Succeeds Mr. Fenwick as Local Manager of Dunlop Company Branch—H. J. Rogers Goes to Halifax.

In the Union Club, last evening, E. Roy Fenwick, who has recently been promoted to the Montreal branch, entertained at dinner the members of the staff of the local branch of The Dunlop Tire & Rubber Co., together with a number of members of the Halifax staff. This was a sort of farewell given by Mr. Fenwick to the working staff, and was a very enjoyable gathering. The guests took advantage of the occasion to present to Mr. Fenwick a magnificent set of furs as a token of the esteem in which they hold him and a remembrance of the very friendly relations which have existed between them. Mr. Fenwick will leave on Wednesday evening for Montreal, where he will make his home. The new manager of the St. John branch, which branch has supervision over the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, is William H. Thackeray, who comes here from Halifax. Mr. Thackeray at one time lived in St. John. He has been with the Dunlop Company for the past eight years, spending all of this time in Nova Scotia, and during the past four years acting as manager of the Halifax agency. Mr. Thackeray is a married man, and while his family is still in Halifax he intends bringing them over as soon as suitable accommodation can be secured. His position in Halifax has been assumed by H. J. Rogers, who has been in the office covering the North Shore and Prince Edward Island in the interests of his company and who is, perhaps, the oldest man in the employ of the St. John office. Mr. Rogers went to Halifax Monday night to take up his new duties, but returned yesterday morning for the purpose of attending last evening's farewell to Mr. Fenwick. Among the members of the staff there have been many expressions of regret in losing Mr. Fenwick, but the general feeling is that his successful work here has won for him this important promotion.

OBITUARY

James Jack. The death of James Jack occurred early last evening at his home in Paddock street. Mr. Jack, who was manager for R. G. Dunn & Co., had been ill for some weeks past and sank gradually until the end. He was 67 years of age. He was born in Scotland in 1851 and came to Canada in 1873 in the service of the Bank of British North America. Afterwards he became manager for Bradstreet in Halifax. In 1888 he moved to St. John, becoming manager for R. G. Dunn & Co., a position which he held until his death. He was a member of St. Andrew's Society and for many years a member of St. Paul's vestry. He is survived by his widow, two sisters and a brother in the city, and a daughter here, Andrew Jack; and his niece, Miss Regal, at 2 o'clock, the wife of W. G. Gale, 54 Waterloo street—a daughter.

KIRK BROWN AT THE OPERA HOUSE

Popular Actor Given Welcome Reception Last Evening by Old Friends—Other Numbers on Programme Proved Excellent.

Among the numbers on the bill at the Opera House last evening was a one-act sketch by Kirk Brown and company which made a decided hit. Mr. Brown's reception by the audience was a personal greeting from old friends, who have not had the pleasure of hearing him for some years, but were evidently glad to welcome him again. With him is Miss Marguerite Fields, equally well known here, who in the few years since her last appearance has lost none of her charm. The sketch was modelled somewhat after a part of The Third Degree and went very well indeed. Other numbers on the programme made a hit, and in fact the bill is one of the best that has been here for some time.

The Distinguished Visitor Welcomed

Sir Robert Baden Powell Arrived Here Yesterday—Inspected the Boy Scouts in City and Rothesay—Was Guest of Canadian Club.

St. John was honored yesterday by the visit of Major General Sir Robert S. Baden-Powell, who accompanied by Lady Powell, were royally welcomed during their brief visit in the city.

The distinguished personages arrived yesterday morning from Halifax about 6.30 o'clock, and left their apartments about an hour later, accompanied by J. B. Perrot, assistant organizing secretary of the Canadian General Council of Boy Scouts, and H. O. Eamans, maritime secretary.

After breakfast Sir Robert, accompanied by Lady Baden-Powell, and the district scout officers, visited Rothesay, calling on Lieutenant Governor Pugsley, after which the boy scouts of Rothesay were inspected. On their return to the city Lady Baden-Powell was the guest of the Women's Canadian Club where she delivered an address on Girls' Guide organizations.

Previous to dismissing the Commissioner Waring addressed the Sussex corps, on behalf of all local corps, bidding them a welcome to the city, and expressing the wish that they would return at a near date to participate in similar duties to those of yesterday.

Right time, in front of the Imperial Theatre, where they would be fitted out with horns, etc. and line up in formation for the civic welcome of the fourth and sixth Siege Batteries who march the Union Depot this morning at eight o'clock.

Chief Scout Sir Robert Baden-Powell and Lady Baden-Powell were then escorted to the Royal Hotel for light luncheon and shortly before six o'clock proceeded to their private car at the Union Depot, accompanied by Maritime Commissioner A. C. Skelton, Mrs. Skelton and a concourse of staff officers of the various scout corps.

At the arrival of Chief Scout Major General Sir Robert S. Baden-Powell, Lady Baden-Powell, Provincial Commissioner A. C. Skelton and Mrs. Skelton, the chief scout was met by District Commissioner B. C. Waring and his staff, Scoutmaster J. Sutherland, Assistant Scoutmaster Ralph Kee and Deputy Commissioner Gordon Holder, D. C. M., M. M. Shortly after Sir Robert's arrival he was followed by James A. Wilder, chief scout of the American boy scouts—the whistle sounded one long and two short blasts, and the four hundred scouts dropped into line in about three seconds, giving vent to their individual scout yells.

"For three years, I suffered great pain in the lower part of my body, with swelling or bloating. I saw a specialist, who carefully examined me and gave me several tonics to take, which did not help me. Then he told me I must undergo an operation. This, I refused to permit.

"I heard about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the wonderful results it was giving because this medicine is made from fruit juices, so decided to try it. 'The first box gave great relief; and I continued the treatment, taking six boxes more. Now, my health is excellent—I am free of pain and swelling—and I give 'Fruit-a-tives' my warmest thanks."

TO OUR MEN.

To the men of the 4th and 5th Siege Batteries, and to those other heroic New Brunswick soldiers who are today returning to their homes from overseas, our people extend their warmest greetings. We were proud of you when you enlisted, proud still when you sailed away for France, but our feelings on those never-to-be-forgotten occasions were as nothing to the pride which we have in you today returning from service and duty well and nobly performed. To those who come to St. John city our people will have opportunity of expressing their sentiments, while those others for different parts of the province will no doubt find in their own home districts receptions equally warm, though perhaps not so lavish in their display. But whether your home-coming is marked by flags and bands and cheering crowds, or whether it is merely a quiet greeting by your own family and familiar friends, the sentiment is in every case the same. You have done well—we know you have done well—we know it even better than you do yourselves, and for this reason as well as because of the fact that you are ours, we greet you as men worthy of the highest praise and honor your country can bestow.

PEACE TERMS.

The terms of the preliminary peace treaty do not indicate any weakening of the part of the Allied powers in their attitude respecting Germany's responsibility for the war and liability for damage resulting therefrom. Nor does this treaty contain anything which can be interpreted as evidence of any differences of opinion existing among the associated powers regarding the principal subject under consideration. In following the proceedings of the conference so much attention has been devoted to Germany at the other enemy nations have been to some extent overlooked. Yugoslavia remains to be dealt with and Turkey will be called to account. It is true that little remains of the old dual empire, but what does remain will be compelled to bear its share of the punishment imposed by the Allies, while the new states which have arisen through the dismemberment of Austria-Hungary, and which, in reality enemy states, will be expected to contribute that proportion of the indemnity represented by their territory and wealth, as well as to submit to such other restrictive conditions as the Allies see fit to impose. Newly formed states cannot expect to be exempted from the process of reparation, to avoid the liability imposed upon them through their former existence as a part of the defeated empire. Little has as yet been said with reference to Turkey, for the Allied men have been devoting their attention almost exclusively to the settlement of their principal enemy. Indeed there is little left of Turkey as both the Balkans and the Turk shall be driven out of Europe or not is now of trifling importance in view of the fact that the Turkish Empire already has been, or soon will be, stripped of all and left in the unenviable position of a disgraced state, depending for its continued existence on maintaining the good will of its neighbors. The indemnity demanded from Turkey is smaller than the total amount claimed for damages, it is felt that the amount so required, if Germany can reasonably be expected to pay within the time fixed, while the balance will be paid from Austria and Turkey as well as from Bulgaria, if that country happens to have anything worth anything as security. And it may well be believed that the conditions imposed upon Germany apart from this indemnity, are practically the same as must be accepted by the allies, with this difference that any, the principal offender and readiest power, should be liable for severe punishment than are the others. Many objects to the terms laid down by Germany of course would object to any terms. That is the German policy which has been pursued in preparation of the peace treaty and the policy outlined by states of these powers while the nations at war. There has been no relaxing of demands on a degrading and dishonorable foe. Nor is it all probable that any arguments Germany may put forward will in even slightest variation from conditions now laid down. Indeed the attitude of the German delegates, which may be taken as representing the sentiments entertained by people of that nation, is such as to preclude all possibility of any relaxation in the terms of the treaty. Demands are insulting and arrogant. Prussianism still rules in Germany despite the professed adoption of a new form of government, and that the military caste has lost none of its determination to maintain its own influence is made apparent by the spirit of defiance which characterizes the conduct of the German delegates towards the representatives of the Associated Powers. Germany has been brought low, but was must fall still lower, for those who brought her to destruction must be made to realize the helplessness of their own position. When that time comes, if it ever does come, there will be a real revolution in Germany and perhaps a reorganization of her whole social and economic system, but in the meantime, under the terms of the peace treaty Germany's military power is broken. She may not pay out only for her willful destruction of civilian property but for the crimes which her war-crazed leaders have committed.

B.P.

Important as has been the work of Sir Robert Baden-Powell during the past dozen years it should not be for a moment imagined that his entire time and attention has been devoted to the organization and upbuilding of the Boy Scouts. It is inconceivable that so capable a soldier as he has shown himself to be, successful in all work of a military nature entrusted to him, would be permitted by the British War Office to retire when still a comparatively young man and devote himself to peaceful pursuits, especially at a time when the British military organization was in need of such help as he could give. Hence it may be regarded as true, that Baden-Powell since the conclusion of the South African war, or very shortly thereafter, has found time to devote to other matters of national importance, and it may be taken for granted that to the ability and energy which he displayed in the performance of those duties has been in a very large measure the successful operation of the department to which he has contributed his services of late years. The Boy Scout movement, a development of great value in every country in which it has been introduced, has in reality been a side line, for which it has demanded time and attention, and while the time and attention so devoted has produced results, yet it has not deprived the Empire of the military service of one who was recognized as a genius along certain lines. And bearing in mind the importance of that other work which he has been called upon to perform, it is all the more creditable to his ability as an organizer and to his personal magnetism as a leader, that Baden-Powell has made the institution of Boy Scouts what it is today. It is by the example of men such as this that any movement prospers, and the one weakness of the Boy Scouts of the Maritime Provinces today is the scarcity of capable leaders. It is difficult at all times for the different corps to secure the class of men they want, and without leadership boys of the scout age very quickly lose interest. At that period of their lives they are inclined to model their conduct after the pattern of someone to whom they render respect, and because of this it is most desirable in the interests of the work that the scout masters appointed shall be men who understand the boy nature and whose disposition and manners are such as may be copied by the boys with advantage to themselves. Such men are always scarce. It is not that they are few in numbers, but that those best qualified are not always prepared to devote themselves to work of this nature.

The visit of Sir Robert Baden-Powell may create a deeper interest in the scout movement and, it is hoped, may lead to more active participation in that work than has been apparent of late among those who should be available as leaders.

ANOTHER APPOINTMENT.

In anticipation of the rapid development of the cadet movement in Canada the Department of Militia some time ago appointed acting inspectors of cadet corps in the various military districts. This development was interfered with to a marked extent by the war, but realizing the more favorable conditions now existing, the department has determined upon the appointment of permanent inspectors. In New Brunswick for instance, the acting inspector had been a returned officer with the rank of major, who found the cadet organization in this province in very poor shape, and who has succeeded in bringing about a marked improvement, although hampered by war conditions. That officer is a native of St. John with a good overseas record and he is in a position to continue in his present work indefinitely. A few days ago another officer of higher rank was ordered by Ottawa to proceed to St. John and relieve the acting officer of his duties, evidently a preliminary step to the permanent appointment of that outside officer to this district. The present Inspector in St. John is Major George Keefe, who returned wounded from service overseas. His place is evidently to be taken in this district by Lieut.-Colonel Snow, formerly of Western Canada, who is desirous of securing an appointment in Nova Scotia. Lieut.-Col. Snow is also a returned man, but the Nova Scotia Inspector is Major Willis, who has never been overseas. The Standard understands that according to present indications and despite the recommendation of local headquarters, Major Keefe is likely to be relieved, Lieut.-Col. Snow appointed to this district, and Major Willis to remain at Halifax, an arrangement which is not only against the interests of the cadet movement in this province, but unfair to those directly concerned. It is entirely contrary to the policy so frequently laid down by the present Minister of Militia and so heartily approved by our federal representatives, of appointing returned men to such positions whenever possible, and of giving the preference to local men in every case where this can be done. The responsible officer in Ottawa who views the situation down here through the wrong end of his telescope should look more carefully into the matter before he makes the change now contemplated.

WHAT THEY SAY

A Patriotic Duty.

London Free Press: It is a patriotic duty to prevent fires. It is part of our right of citizenship to see to it that those in whose homes, barns, factories or other places of business fires originate should be held responsible to the extent of proving that such fires are neither the result of gross carelessness, culpable neglect, or mischievous intent. Fewer fires will make the fire tax lighter and Canada richer to the extent of hundreds of lives and millions of dollars.

Human Nature.

Ottawa Journal: Strange human nature! The more we get the more we want. Before the war, the Italians would have gone into hysterics of joy to get out of the distance to Fiume, and the Jugos-Slavs would have turned somersaults of delight to be allowed to get together short of touching the Adriatic coast at all. But having each got a great deal, both want the last point of human flesh, and despite their recent joint horrible sufferings are ready to fight each other for it and upset the peace of the whole world.

Foot-Killer Due.

Philadelphia Record: The foot-killer might with propriety get busy occasionally among the scientists. Word comes from London that plans are under way for another expedition to the Antarctic; that an airplane will be taken along and a "light to the South Pole" is contemplated. That imaginary pole was discovered some time ago, and the search for it cost the life of Captain Scott. No good came to humanity by its discovery, and a mighty little may be expected from this new plan to determine whether it is still there. The money might be better spent in reconstructing the five poles in Mr. Paderewski's domain, or in helping other disheveled sections of the habitable globe.

Choosing a Leader.

London Advertiser: Not since Mr. Rowell was chosen leader has the provincial party held a convention, and it may be expected that the demand will be for a democratic method of securing the man. He should be chosen by the party as a whole, rather than by a few members or committees, from the floor of the House, rather than by cut-and-dried nomination. A delegate should be permitted to nominate any candidate for the honor and the vote of the assemblage should decide the leadership. This will be in keeping with Liberal principles.

Get the Good Roads.

Ottawa Journal: A general system of improved roads in this country would do far towards solving the problem in almost every home today of ways and means. Obviously, the establishment of rural motor express lines awaits the building of satisfactory roads. "First things first" in the Federal Government's reconstruction policy would brook no delay in making a start.

A BIT OF VERSE

The Man and the Mascot.
You talk about the heroes that have showed up in this war, About the V. C. men that won their medals spillin' gore And strewin' bones that once were men upon the Flanders Fields; But what I take my hat off to was done by Ole Ben Shields.
Now, Ben ain't got no V. C. tacked behind that name of his, Or nothin' else to tell the world the kind o' man he is; I've seen all kinds of heroes, but right now I want to say, Ben Shields, did yesterday.
The shells was poppin' round our ears as thick as grains o' sand; We was clean dry of 'ammunition' an' makin' our last stand; The tritizes, they was busy pumpin' us all full o' lead, An' half o' us was wounded and the other half was dead.
We sees a dog a movin' 'bout half way cross No Man's Land; He was most shifty o' pieces, but he had all kinds o' sand, Had a Tommy by the collar an' was goin' best he could; To drag him back to shelter, but it didn't do no good.
The dog, he was our mascot, an' we'd come from London that plane are under way for another expedition to the Antarctic; that an airplane will be taken along and a "light to the South Pole" is contemplated. That imaginary pole was discovered some time ago, and the search for it cost the life of Captain Scott. No good came to humanity by its discovery, and a mighty little may be expected from this new plan to determine whether it is still there. REDROSE
TEA "is good tea"

ASSAM is the original home of the tea. A section of Northern India, the plant finds suitable soil and most congenial climate. In the crack plantations of ASSAM are grown the richest and strongest teas in the world—and it is of these teas that Red Rose chiefly consists. That is why Red Rose has such an exquisite aroma, a rich, satisfying flavor and a strength that makes it economical.

Always sold in sealed packages.

Overland

Oh Boy!

The owner of an Overland owns all out of doors. In his Model 90 he goes in comfort and with an enjoyment possible only because of the high quality, fine appearance and unflinching performance of his car.

Last month in Oklahoma, U. S. A., a stock Model 90 Overland car broke the world's non-stop high gear record, 4,370 miles in 7 days and nights in high gear, over bad roads with a gas record of 20.66 miles per gallon.

This durability and economy is an every-day advantage for Model 90 owners—order yours now.

The Path to Health

For many thousands of women the Path to Health has certainly been through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When this great remedy was first introduced, and for many years after, skeptics frowned upon its curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by it has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands—doubt and skepticism have been swept away as by a mighty tidal wave, until today this purely vegetable medicine is recognized as the greatest remedy for woman's special ills in the world. This is because it is a wonderful tonic and reconstructor which acts directly and favorably upon the feminine organization and is a specific for that purpose.

Two Sessions Held Yesterday—Evidence Shows Col. McAvity Had Withdrawn $889.83 from Canteen Funds and Loaned Committee $7,000.

The court martial which is investigating alleged irregularities in the conduct of the Depot Battalion canteen met again yesterday in sessions which commenced at ten a. m., and concluded at 5.35 p. m.

Most of the morning session was occupied in the recording of the evidence of R. L. Curphey of the Bank of British North America branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, regarding certain cheques, deposit slips and pass books which he identified.

Capt. F. W. Campbell, secretary of the newly organized regimental fund board, was the next witness. His evidence concerned the condition of the canteen committee finances as he found them to be, from November last to the present time. From his evidence it was shown that though the accused (the O. C. of the Depot Battalion) had withdrawn only $889.83 from the canteen funds, he had made a personal loan of $7,000 to the canteen committee to meet the pressing claims of various local merchants, from whom goods had been purchased. The accused seemed to rely upon the other members of the canteen committee for the proper conduct of the canteen.

Andrew Forsythe, manager of the Sussex branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and William A. Clarke, accountant at the Prince William street branch of the same institution, also gave evidence respecting the identity of certain pass books, checks and deposit slips which enter into the case and are embodied in the official charges.

Court adjourned to meet this morning at ten o'clock.

LIGHT OPERA COMPANY CLOSES

Quartette of Entertainers Were Enjoyed by Good Audience in Y. M. C. I. Hall Last Evening.

The New York Light Opera Company, under direction of S. W. Dimock, scored a success in their final engagement in the Y. M. C. I. Hall last evening. The programme was of a lengthy nature, and comprised many catchy songs well rendered. Only four persons participated, the Misses Shaw, LaSheek and Schuelen, with Mr. Eugene Lockhart. The latter added much to the entertainment in the final number of the programme, when he delivered "A Sermonette" from Little Be-Pee, which created rounds of laughter. The engagement was under the auspices of the Catholic Girls' Guild. On the first evening of their performance few were in attendance on account of the outside attractions. However, last evening saw a well-filled house.

RETURNED SOLDIER WAS DROWNED

Anthony S. Profit, Formerly in Government Engineering Service Here, Lost His Life in Powell River, B. C.

The sad news has come to the city of the death by drowning, April 29th, in Powell River, British Columbia, of Anthony S. Profit, son of Isaac E. Profit, who was formerly in the government engineering service in this city. The deceased, who was only twenty-three years of age, went overseas with the 1st Reserve in this country and was later transferred to cover and was later transferred to the 72nd Highland Battalion. He was grandson of Anthony Profit, 61 St. David's street, a half-brother of Lawrence Dow, of the Sugar Refinery staff, and a nephew of Sergt. J. C. Profit, of the 85th Battalion band.

PERSONAL

E. T. Langille, Fredericton, is a visitor in the city on business, a guest at the Royal Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. McIntyre, of New York, with children and nurse, are at the Royal Hotel.

THE SOLDIER SETTLEMENT BOARD

The Qualification Committee of the Soldier Settlement Board will meet in the office on the top floor of the new Post Office Building, St. John, N. B., every Friday in May.

Applicants for loans should appear in person before this committee.

SOMETHING NEW IN C. P. R. SUB-URBAN SERVICE.

For years the Canadian Pacific have been operating a noon suburban train on Wednesday and Saturday between St. John and Westford. The train left the city at 1.15 p. m., and on the return reached the city at 4.00 p. m.

This same service will become effective this year on May 20th, and will continue until July 15th, after which date the train will run daily except Sunday, instead of Wednesday and Saturday only. This will continue until further notice.

The Wednesday-Saturday suburban train has been a very popular service in the past, and it is felt that suburbanites and others interested in country travel, especially Sunday school picnic parties, etc., will greatly appreciate the improved facilities now afforded by the railway company.

Houston, Texas, Sheriff Comes Out For Tanlac

"Money Could Not Buy the Good It Has Done Me," Says Prominent Official in His Statement.

"Money could not buy the good Tanlac has done for me, and I gladly recommend it for what it has done in my case," said Hon. Archie H. Anderson, of Houston, Texas, recently.

Mr. Anderson needs no introduction to the people of Texas, as he is unquestionably not only one of the best known, but one of the most popular men that ever held public office in "The Lone Star" state. After serving as deputy sheriff of Harris county for twelve years, Mr. Anderson was elected chief of police of the city of Houston. He had occupied this office only a short time when the sheriff of Harris county died. Mr. Anderson's friends then persuaded him to make the race for the unexpired term of sheriff, to which he was easily elected. He was honored with re-election seven different times, and served the people in this important office for fifteen consecutive years. Four years ago Mr. Anderson declined re-election and retired to private life. He cast his lot among the people of Houston and is a large property owner and foremost citizen of that interesting and prosperous city.

"I was in a rundown condition," continued Mr. Anderson, "and had no appetite at all. I could hardly sleep at night and never felt like getting up in the mornings. I was so tired, I had the worst form of indigestion, suffered at the time from gas on my stomach and was continually belching up undigested food. I had to take my coffee without sugar as when I drank it with sugar I would just belch for hours. I would bloat and swell up like I was poisoned and suffered with neuralgic pains of the worst sort, and nothing seemed to help me only in a temporary way. I just can't tell you how I did suffer for the past four years and up to the time I began taking Tanlac, a few weeks ago.

"When I read the testimonials of some who had been relieved of troubles like mine I felt like I couldn't make a mistake by taking Tanlac and it has done even more for me than I had expected. I began to feel better after taking my first bottle and have just now started on my third and I'm a different man already. I sleep like a log now and eat just any and everything I want without the slightest discomfort afterwards. I am glad to endorse Tanlac because it does the work, and I'm telling my friends just what I'm telling you. I never felt better in my life than I do since taking Tanlac. I am willing for you to publish my statement and let every suffering person who may wish to benefit by my experience with this great medicine."

Tanlac is sold in St. John by Ross Drug Co. and F. W. Munro, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.

THE BOUCHER PAPERS
MAY REVEAL FEW MYSTERIES

These Papers Were Stolen by the Germans in 1870 and There is Much Speculation as to the Nature of the Documents.
Paris, May 9.—The clause in the peace treaty calling upon Germany to return to France papers taken in 1870, belonging to Eugene Boucher, a prominent French statesman under the empire, has caused much speculation as to the nature of the documents. Boucher, who was minister of justice when the Franco-Prussian war broke out, had secured a great number of private and official documents in the chateau. These were seized and carried away by the Germans when they invaded France and were never restored.

The treaty does not say to what questions the official papers relate but it is recalled that Boucher was violently opposed to Thiers in 1867 on the questions of German unity and Italian unity as well as on the question of continuing the property of the Orleans family.
Boucher was a refugee in London during the Franco-Prussian war and was among the followers of former Empress Eugenie. He returned to France in 1871 but Thiers had him conducted to the frontier. Afterward he became a member of the chamber of deputies and was active in attempting to reorganize the Bonapartist party.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER
Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.
Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood causing illness, while the bowel pores do.
For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should seek only nourishment to sustain the body.
A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast, each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless little white granular substance, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.
A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs less than a box of soap, is not a habit, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing.

WANG FOO

By SIDNEY C. PARTRIDGE

"Captain," said the Inspector, as he rose from his office chair and, turning toward the long open window, gazed out over the blue waters of the harbor, "we might just as well give it up. It is the most puzzling case I have ever had since I came to the Far East, just seventeen years ago this month."

And Inspector Wallace of the Hong-Kong police, reaching up to a little Chinese ebony shelf upon the wall took from it a long Manila cheroot, and, slowly and thoughtfully lighting it, watched the Poinisular mail steamer maneuvering toward her anchorage amid the forest of shipping.

"Yes, it certainly is a deep one," answered Captain Brownlow, second in command, and, like his chief, a veteran of the Indian army. "We certainly have made a very thorough search. Every dive of stolen goods and every pawn-shop in the colony has been combed, but there isn't the faintest trace of it. And here," pointing to a file of letters upon the desk "are the confidential reports from the Vice-Consul at Canton and Macao. They say they have done their best, but they are just as much in the dark as we are. There's only one thing left left; we'll have to send for Wang Foo."

"You are right, Captain. It takes a Chinaman to catch a Chinaman, as the old saying goes. Look him up, and just now here in the night sharp. I am dining on the flag-ship and will excuse myself early."

While the foregoing conversation was taking place in the Police Inspector's private office, Lady Evington, wife of the Governor of the colony, was just bidding good-bye to the wife and the daughter of the Admiral at Government House.

"Yes, I have about made up my mind that I shall never see it again," she said. "The Inspector told the Governor this afternoon that he considered it practically a hopeless case."

"And you are quite positive that it wasn't stolen at the reception?" asked one of the ladies.

"Quite positive," answered Lady Evington. "I remember distinctly looking at it and admiring its rich green color just before I laid it away in the case on my dressing-table, after the last visitor had gone. And," she added, with a great deal of emphasis, "I know one of the servants could not possibly have taken it, for my door was securely locked and bolted."

"The article in question," that had so mysteriously disappeared from Lady Evington's dressing-table two weeks before, was nothing less than the famous jade-stone pendant that the Viceroy of Canton had presented to the Governor of Hong-Kong in recognition of his Excellency's services in conducting the campaign for the relief of the "hottentots" from the grip of the great Pearl River flood. It was a wonderful jewel, of almost priceless value, and had for no end of years been part of the official insignia of the Viceroy of Canton, hanging from the center of a necklace of coral, over the gold-embroidered phoenix on the ceremonial robes.

The gift had been elaborately described in the English papers of Hong-Kong, and the notices had been translated into all the native papers of the colony and of Shanghai, and it was generally recognized that no more striking token of appreciation had ever been presented to a Chinese high official by a foreign ruler.

His Excellency, Sir Arthur Wayne Evington, the Governor, had kept it securely locked in his office until the evening of the reception to the officers of the army and navy, when Lady Evington wore it for the first time in public. She had laid it on her dressing-table just before retiring and in the morning it had mysteriously vanished. That was all she knew, and that was all anyone knew, although the entire official staff of attendants and servants had been most rigorously examined and cross-questioned. And so "The Theft of the Vice-regal Jade-Stone," as the heading in the papers ran, became the subject of gossip and speculation all up and down the eastern coast from Singapore to Peking.

Captain Brownlow returned to his home after the interview, and summing his faithful servant, Ah Sing, said:

"You sawe Wang Foo, go catchee four pieces chair-coolie, my watchee go his house very croop-chop."

"You watchee him catchee thief-man?" asked the ever-inquisitive Ah Sing.

"Never you mind what my want," replied the Captain, passing from his pidgin English into the more regular tongue of his mother country. "Get the chair ready quick, and mind you don't tell anyone where we are going."

The light open-work sedan was not ready in a very few minutes and swinging on the shoulders of four stout wait-coolies, the Captain, followed by the faithful Ah Sing with a lantern, passed rapidly down Queen's Road until they reached the Avenue of Fragrant Waters, and thence to the left began the steep ascent of the Alley of the Red Cloud, stopping at last in front of a little doorway that bore the Chinese characters of "No. 45," the Chinese emblem of good luck.

The coolies quickly put down the chair and, pulling their bamboo pipes from their girdles, sat down to smoke around the lantern of Ah Sing, while the Captain knocked at the door and was immediately admitted.

"Good evening, grandmamma," he said, with a smile, to the venerable figure who drew back the double bars, for some missionary had told him that that was always a polite form of address to any Chinese dame who had reached the age of fifty. "Is Wang Foo at home?"

"The lord of our humble mansion is waiting to receive you," was the answer, as she ushered him into the little reception room and hastened to get ready the water-pipe and the inevitable bowl of smoking from tea. The officer took the proffered chair, and soon a footstep was heard descending the narrow stairs that led into the upper loft, where the humble citizens of Hong-Kong spend the sweet hours of night. Wang Foo, the man of mystery, stood before him.

Tall and slender and light of weight, clad in a long blue gown of delicate blue silk with an upper jacket of the lightest yellow, neatly braided, and with a tassel of white (indicating mourning for a parent), the host had all the dress and manner of the perfect Chinese gentleman. His face was the traditional oval, nose rather sharp, but than usual among his countrymen, while the high cheek bones would have located him in the northern rather than in the southern provinces. His skin was as smooth as a child's, except on the forehead, where it bore traces of an ugly wound received many years before in an accident. But the eyes—these were what attracted the Captain's attention, as they did that of everyone who ever talked with him. Narrow and slightly almond-shaped at the outer edge, they were as piercing as an eagle's and seemed almost chameleon-like—to change their color with every change of glance. No one could have told their exact color, even in the strongest sunlight. And the hands (he put out one of them to grasp the Captain's) were as long and slender as those of the fairy princess in the Chinese tales of childhood, with tapering nails of the most delicate coral pink. He would have been an interesting character study at any time or in any place; he was doubly so now.

"Good evening, Captain," he said, with a most gracious smile of welcome, before the English officer had had time to say a word. "I am highly honored to have you under my very humble roof. Please take a seat and let me know how I may have the pleasure of serving you. You surely have come to consult me about the robbery at Government House, have you?"

"That's just it," replied the Captain. "We may as well confess it, we're in a fix, and you seem to be the only one that can help us out."

"Did the Inspector himself send you for me?" inquired Wang.

"He did, sir, and he is anxious to see you about it. Of course, you know about the case?"

"I have read about it in the English papers," was the brief and characteristic answer from the Viceroy's private secretary.

At this point grandmamma suddenly appeared with the Chinese brass pipe, which she placed before them on the table, with two bowls of smoking Foo-Chow tea and a little tray containing some cigarettes for the use of the foreigner not accustomed to the native pipe. The host politely passed them to his guest, and after a few minutes' conversation on the weather and the ordinary topics of the day, the Captain arose to leave.

"At what hour Mr. Wang may I tell the Inspector to await you?"

"Say to him, with my very best compliments, that he may look for me at precisely nine o'clock tomorrow morning."

"At his office, I suppose?"

"Yes, at his office."

"Good-night, sir, and, as the Chinese say, may lucky stars guide you on your way!"

As the Captain rode along Queen's Road on his way home, he kept saying to himself:

"Wonderful man, that Wang. No doubt, he knows all about his countrymen and their tricky ways, but where did he get that smooth and polished English? Not a syllable of 'pidgin' the whole time I was there. Why, he speaks as correctly as an English school-marm."

He did not know that Wang had learned his first English from the Bishop's own daughter in the old mission on the Bund, and polished and refined it afterward by a two years' residence in Melbourne, Long and faithful study had made him a master of it, as he was of his own ancestral tongue and its complicated literature.

"Venerable Grand One," he said, addressing the old lady, who had bolted the door after the departure of the foreigner, "where is old Chang?"

"He is resting in the outer court."

"Call him at once, and tell him to go to the Temple of the Queen of Heaven and ask for the Abbot, and say that Wang Foo desires the honor of his presence without delay."

"It is done as the master says."

In scarcely twenty minutes' time the old Abbot arrived and after the tea and pipes they ascended the rickety stairs to the upper loft.

"Welcome, venerable father, to the humble shrine of Choo-Foo-Tse," said Wang Foo as they entered and took seats in the little study.

"I am honored beyond words in being admitted to the shrine that bears the name of the greatest scholar of the classics," replied the guest.

For two long hours they were closeted together, and the results of their consultations amounted to this: that it was not likely that any Chinese official, even of the rank of Viceroy, would knowingly give to a European a jewel of such value and such national pride as the famous jade-stone pendant of the dynasty of the T'sings. Therefore, on first thought, what the Governor received must have been a cheap duplicate or an imitation, trusting that stead the little white pigskin trunk—faithful companion of every Chinese traveler—and digging himself entirely by hand all his garments carefully in it. From the book-shelf he took a few ancient volumes—"The Annals of Omitatus," the "Doctrine of the Mean," the "Book of Hites and Ceremonies," and a little copy of "Heads and Carvings of the Ancient Empire"—and tucked them carefully away underneath the clothing. Then from a drawer in his desk he drew a bundle of long strips of red paper, visiting cards of assorted ranks and laid them with the books. To these he added his water-pipe of cloisonne, a package of native tobacco, and a few necessary articles for his daily toilet. Last of all he opened a little lacquer cabinet, and followed by a coolie with a pigskin trunk and a roll of bedding on either end of a bamboo, passed rapidly down the Avenue of Fragrant Waters and joined the long line of passengers ascending the gangway of the afternoon steamer for the City of Canton. He found a vacant spot on the upper deck, and was waiting patiently for the final whistle of departure when he saw the familiar form of old Chang passing hurriedly by and apparently looking anxiously for his master. He hailed him:

"How did you know I was here?"

"The bamboo carrier told me he had brought a gentleman from our ship, and I wanted you to receive the letter, which came just after you had left."

"It is well. Here is the wine money. Return at once, and let your words be few."

Was the great steamer (she was a Hudson River boat years ago that had weathered the Cape) pushed her way out through the deep waters of the harbor, the rice merchant tore open the envelope and revealed a tiny slip of red paper with these words:

"At Canton look out carefully for the Viceroy's second secretary. His real name is Fong, but he is known everywhere as the 'Black Fox.' He is dangerous to capture, but he may be valuable to you."

Underneath was the seal of the old Abbot. He read it over carefully again, and repeating the words "Black Fox," "Black Fox," he tore it into a hundred fragments and tossed them into the sea. He was rewarded for his pains, for the steamer was approaching the great toaming city, the rice merchant, traveling under the name of Woo, entered an upper room at the "Man of Hiveresse" Welcome, and proceeded to unroll the matting roll of bedding and to make himself at home. It was a very warm evening and he enjoyed sitting by the open window and breathing the cool air from the great Pearl River. The partition between him and the adjoining room was very thin and the boards cracked that any conversation could be overheard by him without any effort at eaves-dropping.

As he slipped his bow of fragrant tea and tasted the little slices of preserved ginger which the servant had placed upon his table, he became suddenly conscious of a hushed movement which was going on in the adjoining apartment. This was what he heard:

"I tell you, there isn't a greater villain in the entire Yamen, and he has His Excellency the Viceroy completely in his power. He even uses his seals and his private keys. I tell you, 'Black Fox' is the curse of Canton, and the city will never prosper till he is rid of him."

"Yes," said another voice, "I have ever heard that he is suspected of having stolen the jade-stone seal of the T'sings, and that the Viceroy was a clever imitation in its place."

The entrance of a servant with the evening mail ended the conversation abruptly here, but Woo, the rice merchant, had overheard enough to set him in a train of careful reflection, and he passed the night in thinking and planning.

Early the following morning he set out for the Street of the Seal Cutters, and, stammering leisurely along, he entered a shop where an engraver was hard at work at his little bench.

"Pray tell me," he said to the workman, "who is it that carries the seals for the officials of the Yamen?"

"Old Chow Foo, at the sign of the Jade-stone Temple," was the answer, "has had that monopoly for many years."

Woo thanked him and walked along the crowded street until his eye caught the sign of the official engraver. He entered and asked to see the master of the shop. An aged workman, with large crystal goggles enclosed in rims of horn, came forward to meet him.

"I wish to speak to you on a matter of important private business," he said.

The master took him into an inner chamber and carefully closed the door. They waited a moment until the servant that had brought the tea-bowls retired, and then Woo began:

"What did the Black Fox pay you for carrying that imitation seal of the T'sings?"

The master carver turned pale and stammered, "Black Fox—seal of the T'sings?—I do not understand you, sir!"

Woo leaned toward him over the tea-pot, and, seizing him by the wrist with a grasp of steel, held him like a vice while he said, piercing him through and through with eyes of fire:

"Do not attempt to deny it, or you head will roll on the ground when His Excellency hears of it. You know well the penalty for forging an imperial seal."

The seal-carver winced, and trembling for his life, confessed it all. The Black Fox had come to him in the dead secrecy of night and paid him two hundred taels for a moment, was lost with instant death if he ever divulged it.

"Woo relaxed his hold and the old seal-carver drew down into his seat. "That is all I wished to know," said the visitor as he rose to depart. "Omit your trembling. You are safe, on the one condition that you let no mortal man ever know that this interview has taken place between us."

"With that he unbolted the door of the inner room and in a moment was lost to sight in the crowded street."

The following morning Woo sat in the gate-keeper's lodge of the Vice-regal Yamen.

"Does the second secretary accompany His Excellency to the Imperial Custom today?" he asked of the old gate-keeper, as he slipped a Mexican into his palm. "I am a visitor to the city and am most anxious to see him."

"He passes out in an hour's time," was the reply. "Sit here and enjoy your pipe and you shall see him."

Woo slipped the proffered tea and waited patiently for the official procession to pass. Ever long was he waiting and the outlines of the Vicerogal sedan chair, he took a position of special vantage, and in the second sedan chair he saw the object of his search. There was no mistaking the Black Fox; he would know him anywhere on earth, and in almost any disguise. His excellency the Viceroy wore the coral necklace of his office, but without the usual pendant, for the original was concealed in the inner robes of the secretary, while the imitation had been, all unconscious of the deceit, presented by His Excellency to the Governor of Hong-Kong.

"The secretary is leaving on the morrow to visit his parents in the province of Four Rivers," volunteered the gate-keeper, as Woo rose to leave. "As the family is in deep mourning, he goes secretly, in a citizen's blue gown."

The down river steamer for Hong-Kong was loading at the Customs wharf, getting ready to depart at sun-down. All day long, from early dawn, a traveler with a pigskin trunk and a roll of bedding had sat at the side of the gang-way. He was apparently lost in the pages of a historical novel, in reality he was scanning intently every passenger who bought a ticket. Hour after hour he sat there, when at last his afternoon reward was paid, a chad gentleman purchased a ticket and was assigned to cabin No. 32. Instantly the watcher followed him and secured the other berth in the cabin.

"Woo waited until his companion was ready to retire, and then courteously offered him a pipeful of tobacco, which was readily accepted. "Show him in here, and then I'll play the river with him!" He knew only too well the swift and stern justice which Chinese passengers administered to those who were caught robbing them. He opened his cabin door just as they were dragging their victim by "Not into the river," he cried; "show him in here, and then I'll lock him up until the morning."

The crowd yielded for a moment, and he dragged the swooning wretch into the cabin. He bolted the door, and it was but the work of a few rapid moments to pull off the thief's ragged garments and substitute the blue gown of the secretary, and then to drag the drugged officer to the floor and clothe him in the cotton trousers of the river pirate. The crowd outside grew restless.

"Bring him out!" they screamed, "lick the river with him!"

"They started to break in the door. Woo opened it, and ere he could restrain them they had dragged the helpless form to the deck and with a loud cry of vengeance had thrown him into the swirling waters of the river.

It was the thirteenth day of the moon and the Feast Day of the Yellow Dragon, and Wang Foo and Inspector Wallace were ushered into the private office of Government House. His Excellency and Lady Evington greeted them most cordially.

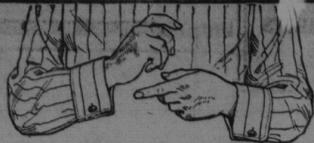

"Well, Mr. Wang," said the Governor, "we are waiting anxiously to hear the results of your labors. We hope you have good news for us."

"Your Excellency," said Wang Foo, as he rose and drew from his left sleeve a tiny packet. "I have the very great pleasure of now returning to you and to Her Ladyship the jade-stone pendant stolen from Government House."

"Wonderful!" cried Lady Evington. "Wonderful beyond words! How can we express our gratitude to you. And she took once more the jewel into her hands and admired it.

The Governor opened a secret drawer in his desk and drew out a roll of Which Cuff Looks The Neater?

YOU can't tell—neither can anyone else, because either side of the new W. G. & R. Double Wear Cuff is the right side.

Our picture shows one cuff turned in—the other turned out.

The old style cuff can be turned, of course, but—"you can tell they are turned"—that's the difference.

The Double Wear Cuff turns easily and quickly and lies smooth and flat whichever side is up.

As the cuff of the shirt always gets soiled first, the new Double Wear Cuff enables you to wear the shirt longer and save laundry bills.

SIR ROBERT BADEN POWELL ADDRESSED CANADIAN CLUB

Distinguished Visitor Was Banquetted Yesterday Afternoon—Spoke Interestingly on the Boy Scout Movement—Theory Exemplified in the Actual War—Scouts Become More Loyal and More Beneficial Citizens.

At one o'clock yesterday the members of the Canadian Club banquetted Major General Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell. Long before his arrival at Bond's the seating capacity of the dining room was taxed to its limit. On the arrival of the guest he was escorted to the centre table by Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen, president of the Canadian Club, all members rising to their feet as he passed along. Sir Robert occupied the foremost seat at the table, and seated at the same table were: Marketing Commissioner A. C. Skeelton, F. R. Porritt, assistant organizing secretary of the Canadian General Council, James A. Wilder, chief scout of America, and representatives of civic and religious bodies. After the excellent repast, Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen, president of the Canadian Club, introduced the speaker, alluding to his great work among the boy scouts—a movement which had since its inauguration, spread world-wide. Chief Justice Hazen stated the club was fortunate in entertaining a most distinguished visitor in the person of Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell, whose military career at Mafeking was recorded in memory as history was recorded. Aside from his great military genius he alluded to his literary talents, to his artistic talents, and to his promotion of the boy scout organization, which was of inestimable value to the rising generation, from the points of the training received in rigorous conduct, respect for elders, and loyalty to the spirit of non-selfishness.

The distinguished guest alluded to what he termed "duty" on the part of Chief Justice Hazen, who sang his virtues nobly. Personal allusion was ever foremost when visiting Canadian centres like St. John, where a cordial reception awaited such as he. At the beginning he referred to the boy scout movement in St. John, and of his former visit to the city. Relative to the scout organization on his former visit he noticed a vast comparison this time from the point of quality, yet lacking quantity, but he hoped that in the near future quality and quantity would go hand in hand. On his last visit he carried a theory, this time he returned with a theory, a theory exemplified in the actual war to great advantage, that of the boy scout movement.

THOUGHT IT WAS A BOIL Doctor Said Abscess.

Mr. Gleason R. Young, Kingscroft, N. B., under date of Feb. 9th, 1918, writes us as follows:—"About five months ago, a lump came on my jaw bone. I thought it was a boil, and after it had been there quite a while it began to get larger. I went to a doctor and he said it was an abscess, and lanced it. He gave me a wash for it, so I went by his directions until it calmed up, but it commenced coming again, and in about three weeks it broke itself. I thought it would get better, but it didn't. A neighbor advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, so I sent and got a bottle, and by the time it was all gone, the abscess had disappeared, and now it is all better."

Burdock Blood Bitters will heal and dry up sores, ulcers, and abscesses, no matter how large or how long standing. If you have never applied it to a cut, wound, sore or ulcer, just try it and see what soothing, healing, cleansing power it possesses. It takes out itching, stinging and burning, and promotes the growth of healthy flesh. So, too, when taken internally, it is power of eliminating all impurities from the blood and making that vital fluid rich, red and pure. It cuts off the origin and source of the foul matter that goes to make boils, pimples, sores, ulcers, abscesses and the like, and at the same time the purified and enriched blood creates healthy tissue where there was formerly, perhaps, a sore full of pus.

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for 40 years. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The training was within (not without), but implied from without by his actual contact with nature and the great out of doors. With the training was coupled health, bodily development, and the instillation of the patriotic principles, which made each believe that he was responsible for civic, as well as personal duties. This he believed could only be attained by such a movement as that of the boy scout organization surrounded the youth with environment, which advanced the good, which was latent within—so that in time he bettered himself, and became a loyal citizen with a character, in which was coupled the activity of a generous heart and an active brain.

The training was within (not without), but implied from without by his actual contact with nature and the great out of doors. With the training was coupled health, bodily development, and the instillation of the patriotic principles, which made each believe that he was responsible for civic, as well as personal duties. This he believed could only be attained by such a movement as that of the boy scout organization surrounded the youth with environment, which advanced the good, which was latent within—so that in time he bettered himself, and became a loyal citizen with a character, in which was coupled the activity of a generous heart and an active brain.

The next turned to the actual experience he had observed in the Scout movement. On the very first day of the war, thirty thousand sea scouts with full equipment, food, and stores, were encamped on the sea coasts of England. Soon after, nearly every scout had volunteered his services to his country, and were stationed along the coasts of England, Ireland and Scotland to do patrol duty, some on water as signallers, some as cooks, others in different lines of activity. The parents of these boys never asked for their release, but felt contented to allow them their freedom, and as men to man they volunteered and did a noble duty for the cause of the Empire and civilization. (Applause.)

Turning to Canada, Sir Robert felt that a brilliant future awaited the Dominion. The flower of Canadian youth fell in the cause of right; and what organization could more fittingly train the rising youth to fill the vacancies caused by the removal of their elders? He cautioned all that in the future Canada and the Motherland should be bound together inseparably; and this was to be accomplished by the "Wide-awake" and "Doing." Both classes must arise from lethargy, and hand in hand turn to the cry of the spirits in Flanders—that Canada might be a greater and a better country. Time for such a purpose was not to be squandered, and action must be quick, as dangerous rivals or competitors lurked all around us. The spirit of the Boy Scout movement for such grasping of opportunity was already taken up by Lord Jellicoe and Sir David Beatty; and in conclusion the gifted speaker resounded a warning for hearty co-operation of all, in fact, material aid, and money, to the Boy Scout organization of all Canada.

As the speaker resumed his seat, the assemblage applauded him long and loudly, and it was felt that Sir Robert's message in this city had reached attentive ears.

Chief Justice Hazen then called upon James A. Wilder, head sea scout officer of the American Boy Scouts. Mr. Wilder detained the assemblage but a short time, but reminded the assemblage that his mission east was to convey to Sir Robert Baden-Powell the kindest regards of all America—that land of sentimentality which was severed from Canada by an imaginary line over three thousand miles long—

"It's Either a 'Dunlop' or an Imitation!"

That phrase came into dealers' minds through the coming of other bicycle tires. As "Dunlop" were the basic tires, naturally other tires had to be more or less patterned after the original. But no man living can make a pattern of Quality. You can still get the "original" tire with its wealth of unmatched features. Why buy the imitation—the experimental tire?

GRUESOME FIND MAY SOLVE BIG MYSTERY

Calced Human Bones Are Said to Have Been Discovered by Police in the Villa at Gauthaux, Owned by Henri Landrau.

Paris, May 9.—Calced human bones are said to have been discovered by the police in the villa at Gauthaux, owned by Henri Landrau, who is under arrest on suspicion of having murdered several women who have disappeared in the recent past. According to the police, Landrau used a furnace heated by some method as yet unknown, to burn the trunks of his victims and destroyed their limbs in the fire places of his villa.

Strong Words of a Guelph Veteran

He Says Dadd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life.

James Black at the Age of Eighty-five is Shouting the Praises of the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dadd's Kidney Pills.

Guelph, Ont., May 9th.—(Special)—"I would have had to undergo an operation, or be dead only for Dadd's Kidney Pills." These are strong words. But Mr. James Black, an old gentleman who moved here recently from Maidstone, makes the statement without hesitation.

"I suffered from kidney trouble and pain in my back," Mr. Black goes on to relate, "and a friend told me to try Dadd's Kidney Pills. When I had used half a box I began to pass sand and gravel. I have had a pound or it in a bottle to show people."

"I also had cramps in my legs so that I could not sleep at night. I used 14 or 15 boxes of Dadd's Kidney Pills, and now I am cured of all these ailments."

Mr. Black, who is in his eighty-fifth year, is confident that he owes his life to Dadd's Kidney Pills and never tires of singing their praises. "They are worth twice their weight in gold," he says.

Dadd's Kidney Pills have long ago earned the name of "The Old Folks' Friend." For the kidneys are the first to feel the strain of advancing years. Acting directly on the kidneys, and strengthening those organs, they have made many an old person shout "I feel young again."

WILL GERMANY SIGN THE PEACE TREATY IS THE QUESTION

There is an Opinion it May Refuse to Sign and Go Down in a Blaze of Patriotic Glory.

Versailles, May 9.—(By The Associated Press)—The question whether Germany will sign the treaty or not is the pressing one of the hour. It is impossible as yet to gain an indication of the attitude of the German plenipotentiaries here, but information coming from German sources goes to show it is quite possible the Ebert-Scheidemann government is considering its fate if it should accept such a drastic treaty. It may choose to refuse to sign the treaty and go down in a blaze of patriotic glory.

According to this information the greatest shock to the Germans was given by the formula establishing the frontier of Poland, giving, as it does, a great part of West Prussia and a considerable seacoast to Poland, in addition to large coal fields in Upper Silesia. When the German delegates left home they expected to hear rather more moderate proposals regarding the Polish frontier and Danzig.

The delegates also question the possibility of Germany paying reparations to the extent laid down by the treaty, and they doubt whether they should sign clauses which they are said ostensibly to regard as impossible of fulfillment. They object to the surrender of their entire mercantile fleet also, arguing that this would force them to pay an additional indemnity to England in freight for every ton of raw material imported, manufactured and exported under the virtual British monopoly of ocean commerce, which they assume would soon follow the elimination of the German mercantile fleet.

CHARGED WITH HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Sydney, N. S., May 9.—Charged with highway robbery, William Bowers was arrested by county officers as he was leaving the court this morning. It is alleged that Bowers and a companion, a few nights ago, in the coke ovens district, held up a citizen at the point of a revolver and relieved him of $110. Bowers had appeared as a witness against a man named Jordan whom he had charged with having shot him in the leg at a negro dance last February.

WEDDINGS

Nichols-Hall.
Fredericton, May 8.—J. Alfred Nichols, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nichols, of Marysville, and Miss Gertrude Hall, daughter of Michael Hall, of Newcastle, were united in marriage at the home of the groom's parents, Wednesday evening. Rev. J. B. Dagg officiated and only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding supper was served. The bride and groom received many beautiful presents. They will make their home at Marysville.

Peterson-Gailey.
Fredericton, May 8.—A very quiet wedding took place at the Baptist parsonage at South Devon Tuesday evening last when Miss Sarah Agnes, only daughter of Mrs. Thomas Gailey, was united in marriage to Elmer W. Peterson, formerly of Boiestown, but now located at Marysville. The bride, who was unattended, was attired in a suit of navy blue with hat to match. After the ceremony they returned to Marysville where a sumptuous wedding supper was served. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, attesting to their popularity. They will make their future home in Marysville.

Murray-Holmes.
Fredericton, May 8.—Lieutenant Robert Blaine Murray, son of Hon. Robert Murray, provincial secretary, treasurer, and Hazel Macneil, daughter of James H. Holmes, of Dartmouth, were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride by Rev. A. J. MacNeill, minister of St. Thomas' Presbyterian church. The young pair left on a honeymoon trip through the Maritime Provinces.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles Dyer.
Florenceville, May 8.—On Sunday, May 4, Mrs. Charles Dyer passed away at her home in Bristol (N. B.), after a few weeks' illness of pneumonia. She was born at Sickeny Brook in March, 1841. Her maiden name was Amelia Stickney. She was twice married. Her first husband was George Lovely, of Upper Deal. About twelve years ago she married Charles Dyer of Bristol who survives her. By her first husband she leaves two sons, Adolphus E., of East Florenceville, and Rainerford, of Bristol, and three daughters, Mrs. Samuel Bishop, of River de Chute; Mrs. John Sinnott, of Stockton, California, and Mrs. Frank Spaulding, of St. John. Her step-sons, to whom she greatly endeared herself, are Thomas Dyer, of Fort Fairfield; Edward, of Bath; Robert of Beecroft; Harry of Fielding, and Frank, Bertram, Percy and Wallace, of Bristol. She is also survived by one brother, Randoit Stickney, of Red Deer, Alberta; two sisters, Mrs. Enoch Tompkins, of Sickeny, and Mrs. Eliza Clare, of Gordonville, and several grandchildren.

Mrs. Dyer was highly esteemed. The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Presbyterian church. Services were conducted by Rev. M. H. Mantel. Burial took place at Bristol.

Frederick P. Green.
At a sanatorium in Saskatchewan, Frederick P. Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green, New Mansfield, Carleton Co., died recently, aged 36 years. For some years he resided in Fredericton and went west about eight years ago, living for the most of the time at Calgary. He leaves his parents, his wife, formerly Miss Clark, of Fredericton, one child, two sisters and five brothers.

WITH FINGERS! CORNS LIFT OUT

Freezone is magic! Corns and calluses lift right off—Doesn't hurt a bit

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, itching corn or callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So easy! So simple. Why wait? No humbug!

Freezone to reside in Moncton. Mr. J. A. Murray and members of his family have almost always been identified as citizens of our town and will be missed. Our best wishes go with them to their new home.

HEART PALPITATED

Could Count Every Beat.

When the heart begins to palpitate, it will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over your whole system, accompanied by weak, fainting and dizzy spells.

When the heart gets into this condition, you become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief to all sufferers from any heart weakness or nerve derangement.

Mrs. Walter Greaves, Aspley, Ont., writes:—"I had been run down, and doctors told me I was anemic, but did not help me with their medicines. I could not sleep nights, my heart palpitated, so, and I could count every beat."

I used to have such dizzy spells I would have to go to bed. I was not able to do any work for eight months. A cousin of mine had taken Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and told me what they had done for her. I took eight boxes of them, and now I am able to help every day with the work. I am so thankful to tell others what they have done for me, so that they may try this great and wonderful remedy. I hope this may prove good to some one who is suffering the way I did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

SEPARATE COATS NECESSARY ITEM IN SPRING WARDROBE

Majority of Wraps Are of Medium Fullness and Many Attractive Materials Are Found in Rough Weave Group—Black and White Linings Are Smart—New Details in Children's Modes.

One of the most important items of the early spring wardrobe is the medium or lightweight separate coat or cape and the one-piece trotting frock of silk or wool.

Given a suit, a woman may make shift to get along without the frock, but she can hardly dispense with the coat for though it may be used with a serge or silk frock as a substitute for the street suit it is sure to be needed for wear over various frocks when heavy winter coats become burdensome.

A majority of these models are medium full. A majority of them button across the chest and are high-collared, but it is probable that warmer weather will see modifications of this ruling in coats intended not exclusively for minor and sports uses but for general wear.

There are some lovely new cape and other designs in tan, fawn and beige tones.

Blue Silk Duveltyne Wrap. An unusually smart new cape model recently noted was of a lovely shade of blue silk duveltyne with a black silk collar.

Many of the new street frocks are made with a cape. Sometimes the cape is seen only at the back and again it takes the form of deep capes over the shoulders, leaving the frock back and front free from the cape drapery.

Children's frocks are unusually interesting this season, and although the lines remain about the same, new materials and trimming details are continually appearing.

loosely woven rough models in Belgian blue and in a soft warm blue that succeeds in being clear and bright, yet soft and comparatively deep.

The army coats of various types have influenced top coats greatly, and while actual military details of strapping, braiding, etc., are not imitated, the most authoritative designers, some of the loosely belted models of many of the new coats are reminiscent of things military.

Black and White Linings. Linings are of many kinds, with black and white stripes and black and white checks well to the fore among the ready-to-wear models.

Street Frocks With Capes. Many of the new street frocks are made with a cape. Sometimes the cape is seen only at the back and again it takes the form of deep capes over the shoulders, leaving the frock back and front free from the cape drapery.

Children's frocks are unusually interesting this season, and although the lines remain about the same, new materials and trimming details are continually appearing.

One remarkably pretty frock, made of soft rose-colored silk, was severely plain save for an intricate and finely-plaited silk which extended down the long-waisted blouse front, under the wide material belt, and turning about six inches from the hem, encircled the sides and back of the skirt.

Another charming little frock, also of silk, was many ways a masterpiece of those frocks which are so much in vogue for the grown-ups.

GUEST OF THE CANADIAN CLUB Welcome Home

(By John Carlyle Davis.) Welcome home, oh, soldier boys— We are proud of you. In rain and sun you fought the Hun, And our hearts kept step with you.

Lady Baden Powell Entertained at Luncheon by Women's Canadian Club—Made an Interesting Address, Telling of Work of Girl Guides and Other Organizations.

Mrs. G. A. Kubring, president of the Women's Canadian Club, in introducing Lady Baden-Powell to the assembled guests at a luncheon yesterday, said that Lady Baden-Powell was welcomed, not alone because she was the wife of Sir Robert Baden-Powell, but as a fellow worker, one who had been deeply interested in war work and who came from the centre where such wonderful things had been done.

The luncheon yesterday was arranged by the Women's Canadian Club. Mrs. A. A. Kubring, president, and Mrs. R. T. Hayes, Mrs. A. Skelton, and Mrs. R. T. Hayes, were the guests of honor.

The speaker told of the splendid service performed by the Girl Guides throughout the war, many girls who were employed working at hospitals in their spare moments and proving themselves worthy to wear the little scarlet badge given for war service.

Like the Scouts, they never beg, but 40,000 of them earned by their own work a total of $2,000 for a Y. M. C. A. in France. It was hoped that some day they would be 10,000 Girl Guides in Canada.

Lady Baden-Powell ended by paying a tribute to the bravery and devotion of the women and soldiers who fought the war and who had been so kind to her in her visit to the organization there.

There are Girl Guides in France, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland and the United States. The speaker told of the splendid service performed by the Girl Guides throughout the war, many girls who were employed working at hospitals in their spare moments and proving themselves worthy to wear the little scarlet badge given for war service.

Have You This Sort of a Husband?

Have you a refrigerator-detachist in your home? They are the one thing that prevents many a marriage from being a glittering success says a New York woman writer, who committed matrimony a year ago.

For, she remarks a woman may have the best husband in the world. He may never complain at running little errands for you, or hanging a picture, or buttoning your frocks, or bringing in a pound of butter or a jar of mayonnaise on his way from the office.

In fact, he would be such a comfort—he weren't a refrigerator-detachist! In the stilly watches of the dreaming night, in the midst of the golden glow of a sunset Saturday afternoon—in the peaceful calm of a gentle Sabbath morning—

Who left the cover off this jar of cream? "What have you done with that cheese I brought in last Friday?" "How many eggs does Maggie use in a cake? There were a whole dozen here yesterday, and now there are only four!"

Who put this lettuce on the ice without wrapping it up? "Don't you know it ought to be washed and wrapped first?" "Who left this knife in the butter to get all rusty?"

"I accept no rewards, as you know," the detective replied. "My expenses are privately provided for, but if you have any position in your office for a young interpreter, I should like to recommend my nephew."

"I shall begin his duties in the morning," he said, and here he picked up the thief and how are we to punish him?"

"You cannot punish him, for he is not amenable to the punishment by any court of justice."

"What a strange personality!" "Sir, he has no personality. He is not a human being at all. Lady Evelyn's jewel was stolen by a magic spell that flew into her apartment at night, and seeing the shining object lying dead on the dressing-table, he picked it up in his hand and carried it off to the corner of the garden, where my trusty servant found it a few nights ago."

"By Jove!" said the Inspector, "strange, we never thought of the bird. I recall now a pearl robbery in Calcutta, years ago, where the gems were found in the garden, and a magpie was the guilty party."

"Before I leave, there is still greater pleasure in store for me." And drawing from his other sleeve a similar packet he exclaimed to the astonished listeners: "Permit me now to hand to Your Ladyship the priceless jewel of my country. Here is the real jade-stone seal of the Tatars. What you formerly had, and what His Excellency the Viceroy presented to you in good faith, was only an imitation. The original was stolen by an attaché in his Yamen and the duplicate substituted for it. It has now been recovered, and I ask you to accept it at my hands. But, and here he smiled, "please don't leave detached jewels lying around on your dressing-table at night, when the warm and the dawn are open. It might lead you to suspect a perfectly innocent servant. Men are not the only thieves in nature."

"Venerable Grand One," said the Prince of Chinese Detectives, "the bird has grown a little cock. Fill up the bowl again, and hand me the pipe of cloisonne."

Yes sir! I said Snowflake because I want FULL STRENGTH Ammonia

Face Peeling Habit Becoming Fashionable

Women of fashion and refinement seem to have been acquiring the novelized habit of peeling their faces generally. It does seem a lot sadder to just peel the wrinkles out when it loses its youthful color and appearance—now this can be done so easily, safely, painlessly and economically.

My Dearest Friends:— I had to smile when reading one of the many nice letters sent to me by a member of the Children's Corner. She pleased me by writing how much she liked my chat each week and always read every word and tried to follow all the good advice and then she said: "I wish I could be as good as you would like us to be."

Answers To Letters

FLORA FRAZER, Head of Millstream—Very pleased to hear from you again and to know that you see all the Spring Signs about you. I certainly do have quite a time with all the kiddies' letters, but it is worth a lot to know they are pleased with the Children's Corner.

MARY HOYT—That was a very pretty specimen you sent Mary, it was so nicely shaped and I regret that the first one had arrived fully a week before yours did, although it is only acknowledged today. You know the proverb about trying again.

LAWRENCE DICKSON—I am very sorry but your puzzle could not be produced in the paper, you would understand why of course, but pictures have to be made on metal plates before they can be printed. If we only had the cut it would make a fine puzzle.

GEORGE A. McFARLANE, Waasla, Sun, Co.—I am pleased to have you join us George, and would like you to send the date of your birthday so you can be properly enrolled. You might ask your brother to send his age and birthday too, I don't seem to have it either.

NELLIE WRIGHT—I always appreciate hearing from the members who are so very busy with their school lessons, you are wise to take time to read our page though, for lessons all the time become very monotonous and depressing. Most of your puzzles have been printed on our page before.

NORAH ACOTT—I did not think the honey suckle blossom could be out so early and you know we are not entering the buds now, but waiting for them to develop into blossoms to keep the bright eyes open. I should love to have seen your orchard robins. You will have to count up your nests and let me know how many you can see. We certainly do miss the lovely nature world by living in the city, that is why we need our friends in the country to let us know of all the changes and doings.

CLARA GOSLINE, Public Landings—Those little snow furries must come "fast and forgetful" but they never stay long. Indeed I am sorry if you cannot get our page for you have been so interested to read you are so far from the P. O. Have you no rural delivery where you live?

MABEL CARSON, Hampton—So pleased to hear from you again Mabel, your specimens were lovely and arrived in such good condition, but I am sorry to tell you that they had all been returned to you because they are not the only one unaccepted. I received great quantities of the same blossoms from all over the country. My welcome to your returned brood, but it is so good to have the boys back home again. Thanks for the riddles.

MARY HOYT, Hampton—The elder elm and raspberry had all been so long in the ground, so am glad you were successful with one, do not send anything but blossoms hereafter. You will, I hope not feel badly about being a little late with your flowers. I appreciate the great care you take and hope for better luck next time.

CHILDREN'S CORNER

The Pixie's Pet

Emmeline was a little girl who was always asking questions. There's nothing remarkable about this, very likely you are just that sort yourself. But Emmeline asked the sort of questions that nobody could possibly answer, and that makes people cross. All day long she plagued her nurse by asking things like this: "What is a violet?"

"What is a violet?" Emmeline asked. "What is a violet?" Emmeline asked. "What is a violet?" Emmeline asked. "What is a violet?" Emmeline asked.

"What is a violet?" Emmeline asked. "What is a violet?" Emmeline asked. "What is a violet?" Emmeline asked. "What is a violet?" Emmeline asked.

"Pixies dear," she said, "where do you keep your pets? I do so want to see them."

"Then there was a lot of laughing, but no answer. They tugged hard at Emmeline, and before she could say again she found herself tethered to a tree-trunk by two long gossamer strings, something like a dog to his collar. And all this time Pixies crowded in and out of the door, laughing and chattering all about, she shut up her mouth with a snap.

"But how did you know all this?" cried Emmeline. "Goodness!" exclaimed Emmeline, and her mouth and eyes went like three round 'O's.

"Dear me!" said Emmeline to herself, "I must find out about these fairy pets. I wonder what they feed them on, and all. Especially the little naughty boys and girls."

A Coming Marksmen. Straight shooting is evidently a gift. A boy who had only handled a gun on one previous occasion, fired some seventeen shots, and succeeded in hitting every mark at which he aimed.

The Brute—I think that women are much better looking than men. She—Naturally.

Bits. A cat has its claws at the end of its paws. A comma its pause at the end of a clause.

THE ANXIOUS FARMER. It was awful long ago. That I put those seeds around. And I guess I ought to know. When I stuck em in the ground. Cause I noted down the day.

But I'm certain anyhow. They've been planted most a week. And it must be time by now. For their little sprouts to peep.

And dirt looks all the same;— How can they know at all? The way they ought to aim? And so I'm waiting round. In case of any need; A farmer ought to do his best for every single seed!

Willie: "Mother, you're not much of a prophet, are you?" Mother: "What do you mean, Willie?" Willie: "You said if I ate that cake that was in the pantry it would make me ill, but it didn't."

Winnie Brock, Cumberland Sta. Annie Wheaton, Clarendon Bay.

THE ANXIOUS FARMER. It was awful long ago. That I put those seeds around. And I guess I ought to know. When I stuck em in the ground. Cause I noted down the day. In a little diary book. It's gotten losted somewhere and I don't know where to look.

But I'm certain anyhow. They've been planted most a week. And it must be time by now. For their little sprouts to peep. With a very special care. And once or twice I've dug 'em up to see if there were there.

I fixed the dirt in humps. Just the way they said I should; And I crumbled all the lumps. Just as finely as I could. And I found a handi-worm. A-poking up his head— He maybe feeds on seeds and such. And so I squashed him dead.

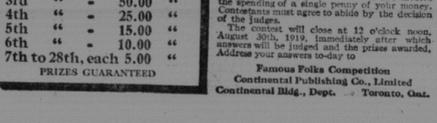

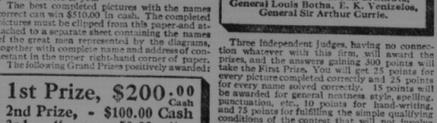

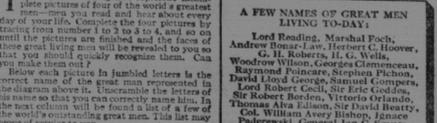

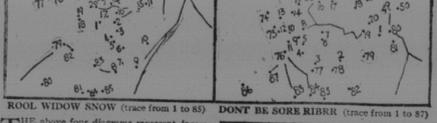

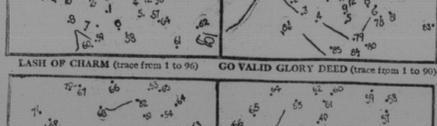

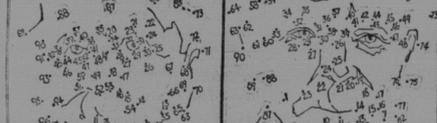

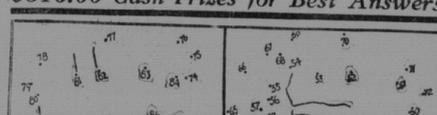

A seed's so very small. And dirt looks all the same;— How can they know at all? The way they ought to aim? And so I'm waiting round. In case of any need; A farmer ought to do his best for every single seed!

Willie: "Mother, you're not much of a prophet, are you?" Mother: "What do you mean, Willie?" Willie: "You said if I ate that cake that was in the pantry it would make me ill, but it didn't."

Afternoon Tea With the Sheik. Tea-making is a great ceremonial among the Arabs of northern Africa. Teapots made of copper or brass are used, and tiny cups for drinking. An entire sugar-loaf is brought in and placed with a hammer near the sheik. The sheik, fitted with water, and placed on the glowing coals. When the water boils, the tea is added, and the sheik breaks off great lumps of sugar with his hammer, and puts them into the teapot. Each sip is a little to see that it is just right. Then it is all poured back into the teapot again, and this process is repeated several times. Mint and other flavors are sometimes added. When it finally comes to the drinking, the more you make in sipping the tea, the more
