ment and Legislature of this Province for the opportunity they have afforded the people to deposit their ballots directly for or against the prohibition of the liquor traffic on Jan. 1 next.

Moved by Mr. John Cameron, seconded by Rev. Dr. Parker, "That the convention rejoice that the women of Ontario are to vote in the coming plebiscite, and trust the time is not far distant when they will no longer suffer disability in any election because of it."

Some dissent was shown when Mr. Orr's resolution was offered, but they were handed over to the committee on resolutions.

Rev. Dr. Sutherland protested. He said that he had very little faith in the Dominion Alliance, and that this meeting was not in any way a part of the alliance.

Mr. J. J. Maclean made an appeal on behalf of peace, and explained that the Dominion Alliance had funds and the machinery necessary to conduct the campaign, and that its constitution would very easily allow it to absorb the convention.

Rev. Dr. McKay, Rev. Dr. Dowart, and several others spoke on the question, and Dr. Sutherland withdrew his amendment.

The committee on resolutions reported 352 resolutions, and 838 delegates, of whom 571 had registered.

The committees were then called together, and the meeting adjourned to reassemble in the form of a mass meeting in the evening.

In the evening a great mass meeting was held. Rev. Dr. McKay, of Woodstock, spoke of the seriousness of the opportunity which was presented to make an expression of opinion on the prohibition question.

Mr. S. H. Blake said the question that had called this great convention together was whether they would accept prohibition. That was the whole matter. The prize was within grasp—to doubt was damnable.

That the executive committee be formed for the Province (the members of which shall reside in Toronto), to have general charge and management of the campaign, and that conventions be immediately called in each county and city not already organized to organize and arrange for the conduct of the campaign, and that the delegates present from the different counties and cities meet and report to-morrow morning the name of some person as convenor for their respective counties.

The committee on the conduct of the campaign reported that it had organized, with Rev. Principal Austin as chairman, Frederick Watkins, vice-chairman, and N. W. Kowell, secretary. It reported as follows:

That an executive committee be formed for the Province (the members of which shall reside in Toronto), to have general charge and management of the campaign, and that conventions be immediately called in each county and city not already organized to organize and arrange for the conduct of the campaign, and that the delegates present from the different counties and cities meet and report to-morrow morning the name of some person as convenor for their respective counties.

That the officers of the county and city organizations form an advisory council to the central executive for their respective localities.

That the executive be instructed to issue a circular to all organizations, giving hints and suggestions for the conduct of the campaign.

There was some discussion upon minor matters in the report, and it was then carried, after it had been decided that the committee, with the executive, should meet together to consider organization.

Rev. Mr. Ross said he was proud to know that the question of prohibition had reached its present prominence in Canadian politics. He was glad to see that both Sir John Thompson and Hon. Wilfrid Laurier were discussing it, because politicians did not discuss prohibited until they were obliged to.

Sir John Thompson had promised that if the prohibition commission's report were favorable, prohibition would be granted. He wanted to know if the people wanted prohibition, they would have it, which was a self-evident proposition.

Mr. Ross did not care whether a plebiscite was British or not; and whether it was a trial or not, he hoped they would join hands and roll up a magnificent majority.

When Mr. Ross had done a gray-haired delegate rose in a front bench, and corrected his version of what Sir John Thompson had been saying in his speech. Sir John had said that only if the report of the prohibition commission was favorable, and the reasons given were sufficient, the Government would announce its policy.

Rev. J. H. Collins, of Waterdown, and Rev. S. F. Huettis, of Halifax, followed.

Mrs. Forster, district president for Toronto of the W. C. T. U., in a short speech said her co-workers were prepared to work for the campaign.

Rev. Mr. Robson, British Columbia, brought greetings to the convention.

The joint committees then reported that the committee on campaign work be authorized to deal with the whole matter of organization for the plebiscite campaign. This report was adopted with the understanding that the committee on permanent organization should still exist.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED. Mr. Elgin School moved, seconded by Mr. W. H. Orr, "That this union temperance convention is of the opinion that the liquor traffic should be made the principal issue in the next general election in Ontario, as no other issue of importance stands in the way, and this convention is individually and collectively pledged itself to do all in its power towards that end. 2. That should be the result of the coming plebiscite be favorable to the prohibition cause, as we truly believe it will be, we consider and urge that it will be the duty of the Ontario Government to immediately enact a prohibitory liquor law so far as within its legislative power.

God's in his heaven, All's right with the world. -[BROWNING.]

If you trust in God and yourself you can surmount every obstacle. Do not yield to needless anxiety. One must not always be asking what may happen to one in life, but one must advance fearlessly and bravely. -[PRINCE BISMARCK.]

London, Thursday Oct. 5.

The "heckling" editor of the ADVERTISER is at it again. -[Windsor Record.] He rarely suspends operations.

There is a marked resemblance between John Most, the Anarchist, and Dr. Montague, and it lies in this: Each persists in talking when he ought to be at legitimate work.

It is announced that the Dominion Parliament will likely be called together for the dispatch of business on either January 18 or 25. There should be a regular time for the assembly of the legislators.

Mr. Foster heard there was to be a great convention in Ontario to promote the taking of a plebiscite, as advocated by him only the other day, and lo! in the twinkling of an eye he rushes off to Manitoba. Mr. Foster's "moments of weakness" now come with amazing rapidity.

The Toronto Telegram asserts that the new criminal code, compiled by Sir John Thompson, "seems to borrow than anything the country ever had before. Its purpose was to clarify the legal atmosphere, and its effect so far has been to thicken the mist in which judges and lawyers grope."

The Regina Leader complains that the children in the public schools are not taught to speak plainly. That may be so, but they generally make themselves understood much more easily than do some of the politicians with whom the Leader man is actively associated in Parliament.

Prof. Shaw, who is about leaving Wentworth for Minnesota, has issued a farewell address to his fellow agriculturists, in which he speaks highly of the great natural advantages of Canada, and especially of Ontario, and extends much praise to the Guelph Agricultural College, with which he has for some time been connected.

The address presented to Sir John Thompson by the Biddulph Township Council, chiefly composed of political sympathizers, acknowledged that the "N. P." has fostered the opinion, and pleaded that this opinion should be removed. It was also acknowledged that the reduction of the duty on binder twine had saved the farmers of the township $1,600 this year. These candid statements will be noted by tariff reformers everywhere. They but emphasize the necessity for throwing off every tax that is not needed for revenue, and that does not wholly go into the public treasury. "Of a good thing you can't have too much," as the old song says.

"The judgment of the ladies of public men is sounder, purer and better than that of any other class of the community."

This declaration was made by Sir John Thompson at Leam, or the Free Press report is incorrect. We copied it from that journal's report because it appeared to be verbatim, being given in the first person, whereas the ADVERTISER's report was an extended summary. Our contemporary cavils at the interpretation we put upon this reported declaration, and seems to prefer the ADVERTISER's summary to its own report, purporting to be the exact language. If in this reported alleged verbatim utterance Sir John Thompson is made to say what he did not mean, then is he the victim of his friends. To us it seemed plain that the language conveyed just what it states, that the judgment of ladies of public men is sounder, purer and better than that of any other class of the community. It gives us pleasure to hear that the "heart-before-the-horse" expression credited to Sir John was not the real language uttered by him, and that he meant his testimony to apply to women generally. Far be it from us to misrepresent the views of anyone.

TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION IN ONTARIO.

The London Press professes once more to be in the dark on the subject of temperance. It is, of course, opposed to ascertaining, by means of a popular vote, the opinion of the electors upon the question of whether or not a prohibitory liquor law should be enacted for the country, and it now asks the ADVERTISER to "tell the people where is the temperance measure passed by the present Ontario Legislature." We presume our contemporary wants to know all about the Ontario License Law, the enactment of which, in the interests of its liquor friends, it strenuously opposed. The act was placed upon the statute book by the Government of Sir Oliver Mowat in 1876. At that time the system of control of the licenses, for which the Free Press has always expressed admiration, was in force. There were then 5,818 places licensed to sell liquor in the Province, and the municipal councils in many localities were controlled by the liquor vendors. In London, with a population of less than 20,000, we had from 100 to 150 dram shops and other places for the sale of intoxicants. The large majority of them were used to forward the political interests of Mr. Carling. In 1877-8, under the provisions of this act, at which our contemporary sneers, the liquor licenses in the Province were reduced to 3,676, and now, despite the increase of population, there are not so many licensed places as in 1877-8 by 1,000. Locally we all know the progress that has been made.

But this act did more to promote temperance. It absolutely limited the number of licenses that may be granted in any one municipality; in accordance with the best sentiments of the country, it took the control of licenses from the log-rollers in the municipal councils and conferred the management on independent boards of commissioners appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. It authorized each municipal council by bylaw to still further limit the number of licenses to be granted. The same power was conferred on the commissioners. Each municipal council was authorized to prescribe conditions of obtaining a tavern license, in addition to those stipulated in the act. It authorized municipal councils to limit the number of shop licenses, to require the holder of a shop license "to confine the business of his shop exclusively to the keeping and selling of liquor," and to impose any other restrictions it saw fit, these regulations to be binding on the commissioners. An amendment was made to the law in 1884 limiting the number of saloon licenses. Other changes introduced the principle of local option, empowering the majority of electors to forbid the granting of a new license or the renewal of an old one in any sub-division. The amendments further provided for the compulsory separation of the liquor traffic from other traffic in licensed shops after 1888. Authority was given justices of the peace and police magistrates to forbid holders of licenses from selling liquor to any habitual drunkard, and relatives were given the power to issue a similar prohibition. Licenses were forbidden on ferry boats.

In 1890 the law was improved by compelling the applicant for a license to present a certificate signed by a majority of the voters in the sub-division before his application could be heard. The act further prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors on vessels navigating the lakes and rivers of the Province. It increases the age of minors from 16 to 18, thus subjecting to a penalty those who sell liquor to persons under 18 years of age. It provides a penalty when liquor is sold to any person under 21 years of age, in respect of whom notice has been given prohibiting the licensed victualler to sell or supply liquor to him. The act also gives greater authority to search unlicensed premises and "dives," to seize liquor and arrest persons found on said premises. The right to prohibit the sale of liquor by retail, possessed by municipal councils before Confederation, has also been removed by the Ontario Government. And to crown all, in response to public sentiment, the Mowat Government, at its last session, passed a law providing for a popular vote on the question of prohibition, to be held at next municipal elections, and also agreed to have settled by courts the disputed question of whether or not the Legislature of this Province can pass and enforce a prohibitory law. Upon the response made by the populace to the question submitted in this Province now, and by-and-by in the wider arena of the Dominion, will depend the action to be taken. We concede that a stringently enforced license law is better than a prohibitory law if the people are not willing to aid the officers of the law in its enforcement, but we cannot see any legitimate reason why on this great moral issue the people should not be consulted and asked to give a verdict free from all engaging questions, just as a similar problem was solved by the citizens of London.

After that vote our contemporary may be less in the dark than it now professes to be. We trust it will come to us frequently for enlightenment.

THE OLD BELL OF ST. PETER'S

Is Out of Tune and Marsh-A Faithful Servant Gone-A New Bell for the Cathedral.

For years the old bell of St. Peter's has summoned the faithful to worship. It has rung at noon and to vespers in the dewy eve. It has been the herald of the breaking day and the curfew of the setting sun. Joyously it pealed on saintly festivals and solemnly tolled the requiem for the dead. Many who have heard its sweet tones are in the grave, and those of the present have listened to its melody from childhood. Early in the sixties it was placed in the belfry of the old church on Richmond street, and blessed by Father O'Brien, who has since passed away. There for long years it peeped through the shutters of its dark watchtower and viewed, unscathed, the vicissitudes of changeable time beneath. Its life was a lonely one, its monotony relieved only by an occasional toll from the sexton and clank with its Protestant friends in neighboring spires on the Sabbath; companionship being out of the question with the sectarian bells of the week-day, which no higher mission had than to call people to eat and drink. But despite its drear surroundings the old bell never flinched from duty. Its tones were as cheerful in the wildest weather as in the sunniest sky. It was a hard-working bell, too, for it rang at the morning and often late at night; toiling six days in the week and knowing no rest on the Seventh. The church has been since razed to the ground, but the faithful servant in the belfry had still its mission to perform and was given a sentry box on the roof of the new cathedral to await better quarters when the steeples should be reared. Whether from change or exposure, certain it is that soon after, in 1885, the voice of the old bell became cracked and its notes discordant. It was taken from its loft and shipped back to the place of its birth to be cast into the fire of the melting furnace, purified of its dross and toned again to sweet harmony. When it emerged from the mould, shaped anew and cured of its infirmity, it was returned to its home on the cathedral tower, where for eight years its tongue has told the same tale day in and day out. But the affliction has come a second time and the old bell is hoarse again. It has been lowered from its lofty station and will be melted no more, but in its place a stranger will bid the worshippers assemble. On Sunday last it was announced from the pulpit of St. Peter's that the cathedral would be without a bell until a new one came, and the priest added that though the bell had ceased to ring mass would still go on.

The old bell was made in Troy, N. Y., and weighed 2,600 pounds. It still bears the name of Matthew O'Brien, the priest of the Dominican Order and choir-master, who blessed it. It will be shipped to the makers at Troy, from whom the new one, weighing somewhat more, has been ordered. It will be ready in a few weeks. Perhaps the sturrier more, but in a few weeks. Perhaps with that of the new, and that a faint echo of its former tones will still be heard.

KISSES. [Toronto News.] Commenting upon Mr. Laurier's gallant attentions to the young ladies who have been presenting him with bouquets, Le Monde asks, "What's in a kiss?" Possibly nothing, and perhaps a good deal. It was also Sir John Macdonald's policy to bestow kisses upon his young female admirers. Can it be that Mr. Laurier has discovered the secret of the late chief's success?

ACT FOR YOURSELF. [Grand President Malloy, of the Patrons of Industry.] I have a great respect for British institutions, and have yet to learn where Canadians or Americans have, by tinkering, improved upon them. Great Britain buys in the cheapest market, regardless of what tariff walls may be built up by others against her, and I cannot understand the kind of economy which leads men to desire to pay high prices for the necessities of life for the sake of splitting those who, by building tariff walls, prevent us from selling in their markets.

THERE are nine ministers in the Presbyterian Church in Canada who have seen over 50 years pass since they were ordained. Their names are Dr. McCulloch, Dr. Bennett, Dr. Chisholm, Dr. Jenkins, Dr. Reid, Dr. Smellie, Dr. W. Y. Cannon, James Cleland and Rev. Thomas Alexander.

WE, the Liberal party of Canada, in convention assembled declare: That the customs tariff of the Dominion should be based, not as it now is, upon the protective principle, but upon the requirements of the public service.

It has decreased the value of farm and other landed property. It has oppressed the masses to the enrichment of the few; It has checked immigration; It has caused great loss of population; It has impeded commerce.

That the highest interests of Canada demand a removal of this obstacle to our country's progress, in the adoption of a sound fiscal policy, which, while not doing injustice to any class, will promote domestic and foreign trade and hasten the return of prosperity to our people.

That to that end, the tariff should be so arranged as to promote free trade with the whole world, more particularly Great Britain and the United States.

That it should be so adjusted as to make free, or to be as lightly as possible upon the necessities of life and should be so arranged as to promote free trade with the whole world, more particularly Great Britain and the United States.

RELIGION AND RICHES.

The Accumulation, Possession and Distribution of Wealth.

Every Man May Have Only as Much as He Can Rightly Use.

At the recent Parliament of Religions at Chicago Rev. Washington Gladwin, D.D., presented a paper on "Religion and Wealth."

It is pretty clear that the world has not as yet discovered God's plan. The existing distribution is far from being ideal. While tens of thousands are rioting in selfishness, hundreds of thousands are suffering for the lack of the necessities of life; some are even starving.

What is religion? Essentially, it is the devout recognition of a supreme power. It is belief in a creator, a sovereign, a father of men, with some sense of dependence upon him and obligation to him.

At the time he learned that most of them were merely waiting for their respective feminine charges to descend with them, a splendid young fellow like that, who had counted the strokes and remembered how often he had been half-dressed from his first day in the room struck ten, and he had counted the strokes and remembered how often he had been half-dressed from his first day in the room struck ten.

Just as Good. Perhaps; but if just as good as Putnam's, is that not a very high recommendation for the original and best corn cure? Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Refuse to accept any of the dangerous sore-producing substitutes offered by greedy dealers who make larger profit and disregard the interests of consumers. Safe, painless, certain.

At Death's Door.—Dyspepsia Conquered.—A Great Medical Triumph. My medical adviser and I had hunted the avenue every afternoon, not daring to hope that the carriage would again be stopped in its course, but that as we were passing I should see her.

on this part of the question must be clear and unambiguous.

But there is another important inquiry. That wealth should exist is plainly in accordance with the will of God, but in whose hands? Religion justifies the production of wealth; that has religion to say about its distribution? The religious man must seek to be a co-worker with God, not only in the production, but also in the distribution of wealth.

Experience Tells.

Overheard in a street car—"The doctors can say what they please, but I know it's just flyin' in the face o' nature" to bring a baby up on a bottle. There's Mary Jane Riley's baby; she tried bringin' it up on milkman's milk and it just up and died of water on the brain.
