Between 4,000 and 5,000 People Were Present Yesterday.

As a Success the Show Was Unprecedented.

Slight Decrease of Entries Owing to Bad Fruit Crop-The Prize List-Horse Racing-Fair Notes.

The union fall show of the West Middlesex, Lobo and Adelaide Agricultural and Strathroy Horticultural Societies commenced on Monday, and will conclude today. Yesterday was probably the biggest day of the fair, and between 4,000 and 5,000 people were on the grounds. Reports had been circulated that addresses were to be delivered by Hon. George W. Ross and Dr. Montague, but the fair directors state that they were unaware of any such arrangement. The gentlemen interested were probably in the same position, as neither one of them was present. In point of attendance the show will probably be ahead of last year. In the matter of entries there were several hundred fewer than a year ago, but in point of excellence the show exceeded itself. The entry list comprised 2,300 different entries. The difference between this and last year would have been more than made up had the fruit crop been up to its usual standard. Another factor which militated against an increase in the entries was the existence of some dissatisfaction over the awarding of the prizes in the horticultural department last year. One director claimed that it kept out over 150 entries. The names of the exhibitors are not written on the entry cards, the number of the entry only being placed there. This makes it impossible for an observer to tell who is exhibiting an article, and from that point of view is not a satisfactory method. But the exhibitors interested say that it leads to much more impartiality in judging, and are perfectly

THE RACES. During the day three events were run off in the ring. The track was very dusty, and the breeze carried the yellow particles directly into the grand stand. The races were run on their merits, each event was hotly contested and heartily enjoyed. The results fol-

THE EXHIBITS.

The main building was the scene of the heaviest crush during the day. Its ample proportions also afforded a cooling shade to the large crowd which assembled on the sloping lawn in front, looking over the various catchpenny devices which were so plentiful in the grounds. The lower floor was devoted to the display of pianos, organs, sewing machines, etc., and breadstuffs, preserves, honey and dairy articles. The display of cakes, breadstuffs, etc., this year was larger and better than last. This competition arouses much local interest, and is also used by merchants as a means to advertise baking powders. A cheap jewelry sale, display of crayon work, and exhibit of small field seeds comprised the exhibits on the ground floor. The principal exhibitors in seeds are Wm. Dowding, Adelaide; James Mc-Kellar, Caradoc; T. A. Gregory, Cairngorm; P. G. Hausford & Sons, Adelaide; Charles J. Bolton, Strathroy; R. Morgan & Sons, Kerwood; Henry Wickerson, Lambeth; John Lewis & Sons, and J. H. O'Neil, Strathroy.

The upstairs portion was devoted almost entirely to ladies' work, and the display was most creditable. In quantity is is safe to say that it exceeded the late exhibit at the Western, while in quality it has doubtless never been excelled. The chief prize-winners in this department are Mrs. and the Misses Pinkham, Strathroy, who made such a creditable showing at the London fair. They captured over 60 prizes in their collections, and had a large number of entries at the Watford show as well. Miss McLarty, Strathroy, and Mrs. Stevenson, Glencoe, were also large prize-winners. One corner upstairs contained the art exhibit. It was rather meager, and did not comprise any noted canvases.

The flower house was not as well filled as in former years, owing, partly, it is said, to a number of exhibi-tors being dissatisfied with the judging last year. The quality of the flowers was first-class, the cut flowers being especially fine. The predominating varieties were gladiolas, dahlias, fuschias, asters, verbenas, phlox drummondi, marigolds, pansies, petunias and zinnias. The display of foliage plants was especially good. A. E. Lee, the Strathroy agent for Gammage & Sons, London, showed the only funeral design, and the only cut roses in the building. The blooms were Gammage's celebrated Bride, Testouts, American Beauty, Perle, Meteor and Sunset.

Immediately in rear of the flower shed is the building in which are displayed the vegetables, roots, fruits, The showing of fruits was very slim, indeed, and to this fact is partly attributable the falling off of entries this year. There were only about half a dozen bunches of rather inferior grapes displayed, a few pears, and still fewer peaches. The showing in apples was slightly better than in other fruits, but in this section, too, a large falling off was noticeable, owing to the blighting frost of the early summer. The exhibit of vegetables and roots would have done credit to any fair in the world. The soil about Strathroy appears to produce carrots as large as mangolds in others sections of the country, while the mangolds could easily be mistaken for stumps while in the field. West Middlesex will soon be able to grow pumpkins so large that Ye the door of the building will have to be enlarged to permit of their exhibition. Taken all in all the vegetable exhibit was ahead of any previous year in the history of the fair. There was not such a crush in the poultry department this year as last, for which poultry fanciers who are showing are extremely thankful. The principal exhibitors are James Boland, Duncrief; A. & D. Bogue, and James Bogue, Strathroy; Hugh Wyatt, Lon-don township; John Hord & Sons, Parkhill; A. E. Doan, Watford; D. Bishop and George Brothers, Strathroy.

Some of the best known horse breeders in the western district were represented at the fair. There was a very general complaint among the horse-men in regard to the condition of the stalls. In some cases they lacked mangers, and in a large number were very dirty. Horsemen claim that they are entitled to both stall and furniture and clean bedding when they rent the stalls. There were more horses shown than there were stalls for them. The predominant class of horses shown were those most useful to the farmers roadsters, carriage, agricultural and general purpose animals, with a smattering of draught horses. The principal exhibitors were: John McClurs, Falkirk; Ed. McClurg, Ivan; Bert Kennedy, Ilderton; D. D. Campbell, Komoka; John Stewart, Springbank; M. S. Campbell, Caradoc; Henry and William Hawken, Metcalf; George Buttery & Sons, Strathroy; John Sinclair, Lobo;

R. Morgan & Sons, Strathroy; Edward Trott, Mount Brydges; Richard Petit, Metcalf; John Crapp, Lobo. There were between 120 and 130 entries of cattle, a most creditable showing. The entries comprised Durhams, Jerseys, Ayrshires, Polled Angus and Holsteins. One exhibitor took offense at the judging and took his cattle out of the ring. The sheep were about evenly divided between long and short wools, and the display was in advance of last year. The swine exhibit was very good, John Hord, Parkhill, show-

Me Says Dr. McKay Is Ill-Informed and a Maligner of Public Men.

A Charge That the Doctor Had Dickered With Sir Oliver Mowat's Political Antagonist?

To the Editor of the "Advertiser":

It is only today that I have seen and read Dr. Mackay's last letter. I do not wish to tire the public by continuing a ecrrespondence when my opponent has nothing further to submit to the public judgment. Dr. Mackay repeats the statement that I have not said what I would do hereafter in respect to prohibition. It is not necessary that I should. That is not the subject in controversy between us. He misrepresented what I had already done. He maligned me, and he maligned others, and I do not intend that he shall escape from the charges which he made, and from the issue which he raised by discussing a wholly different ly expressed upon every public question falling within the jurisdiction of Parliament since I entered it, and it was not necessary for him to put me a question to have them made known. But Dr. Mackay had neither a constitutional nor a moral right to assume His question came too late. It must now be addressed to the candidates of his new combination, and not to whom he now dishonorably misrepresents, and whom at an earlier period he had resolved to treacherously be-

Let me once more remind your readers of the facts. Dr. Mackay attended a Patron prohibition convention in Woodstock, which for aught I know may have been called at his own instance, and he there declared war upon the Reform party. Not daring to assign the true reasons for his de-sertion, he manufactured others. He said there was no honesty in the Reform party upon the prohibition ques-No man in Parliament, not even Mr. Flint, was in earnest, and no one of them could be got to propose such a motion as the prohibitionists desired. He told of a meeting of the members who were professed friends of prohibition with a prohibition delegation, and he declared that they were all ready to sacrifice the cause of prohibition to their party interests, and he stated what was said at that meeting by Mr. Coatsworth, by Mr. Charl-ton and myself, though I was not presinsisted that Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Sutherland should be rejected because they had not spoken in favor of Mr. Flint's motion. Oxford had given a majority of 2,500 upon the subject of prohibition, and his heart was filled with sorrow, and his eyes with tears, to think that it had not been properly represented in Par-liament upon the prohibition question. I shall make it clear to your readers that Dr. Mackay did not suffer that mental distress because of the con-

duet of Sir Richard Cartwright Mr. Sutherland which he professe have endured. As to myself, he charged me with hypocritical cant, in the reason I assigned for voting against Mr. Flint's motion. He said my statement was false, and I knew it to be false. Finding his charge indefensible, he is anxious to discuss the future polley of the Liberal party upon the subject of prohibition. He shall not so escape. That is not the Issue between and he shall not be permitted to make it such. Dr. Mackay says that prohibition was the issue raised by his letter to the Globe, which I discussed. What I have been discussing are the charges he made at the Patron meeting at Woodstock. I referred to his letter to the Globe for but one purpose-to show how much more anxious he was to make war upon Reformers, whom he deserted, than upon their op-ponents, with whom he had endeavored to ally himself. I showed in my interview with the "Advertiser" reporter that Reformers must rely upon themselves, and upon the moderate and fair-minded men of the Conservative party, who were inclined to co-operate with them. I showed in that interview how representatives of the Alliance had treated us. How after we had carried the Canada Temperance Act. we had been ignored; how Sir Leonard Tilley had been waited upon and congratulated upon his return to active public life; how the temperance cause was congratulated upon his return, although as a public man he had neither before nor after that done any thing in respect to prohibition.

When there was a Reform Administration in power we were reminded that it was our duty to assume the responsibility of legislation. We admitted it; we discharged our duty. When the Canada Temperance Act came to be worked, experience showed that it required certain amendments. I proposed a resolution in Parliament affirming that it was the duty of the Government to assume the responsibility of amending the law and of making it more efficient. My resolution but affirmed the constitutional doctrine which had been pressed upon us, and upon which we had acted. Every prominent prohibitionist on the Ministeral side voted against my motion. The Alliance was then in session at Ottawa. What did it do? Did it support my motion? Did it stand by the doctrine which had been pressed upon us, and which we loyally accepted? Not at all. It excused the conduct of Minsers and of prohibitionists in the Mnisterial ranks. It impugned my motives. That proceeding disclosed the real situation. Some of the best with the Alliance withdrew, and every Reformer has but to remember that the Liberal party in undertaking legislation has always to consider what it cai accomplish by its own unaided efferts. If it relies on others it will cerainly be disappointed. I could refer to the action of other parties at a later period were it necessary to show that in this regard there has been no

D. Mackay says that he did not represent me as being present at the prolibition conference. My answer gist has none in stock, get his to prois, he was so reported, and parties who cure it for you were present at the meeting declare that report was correct. The form in which it stands, the place in which my name appears, and the corroborative testimony of those present, and his own conduct in this discussion, make it impossible for me to accept Dr. Mackay's denial. That he interrupted Mr. Sutherland with a charge of hypocritical cant and falsehood against me he does not deny. Upon what does he base these disgraceful charges? Upon this—that the jurisdiction of the Dominion was not in question, and that I knew it? Did Dr.Mackay believe this charge? believe this charge? If so, he was culpably ignorant. One who seeks to live by the business of educating the country upon the question, owed it to the public that he should have been better informed. The positiveness of some men is in proportion to their ignor-ance, and such an excuse might have been made for Dr. Mackay at the outset, but it has long since ceased to be available. Every reader of my letters knows that my statement made in the House was true. Dr. Mackay knows it. As a clergyman he owed it to his profession to have frankly admitted that he was in error, and that he had done me a wrong. Why has he not done so? It is because he knows the reason I assigned was a sufficient justification for my vote, and this he has not the candor nor the moral courage to admit, and so he persists in charging me with evasion and a hypocritical excuse, which he undertakes to establish by testimony as worthless, if not as dishonest, as his own. If he could show that I had misrepresented the judgments of the court, and the recent arguments employed before the Privy Council, that they did not contain the passages which I quoted, he would have made some progress towards making good his charges. As it is, he stands before the public as one bearing false testimony against those whom he seeks to betray.

The doctor thought to make a point against me as an advocate of expediency, but when driven into a corner from which he could not escape he admatter. My opinions have been frank- are expedient. What then becomes of mits that there are some things that his quotation from John Morley and the heroic politics which he endeavored to found upon it He says that which is immoral is never expedient. Why, then, has be borne false witness against a party he has deserted? He accuses me of garbling a sentence and of perverting its meaning. I have not done so. Here is the whole sentence: "There the functions of an inquisitor general, are statesmen in Parliament, but there and summon public men before him to say what they intend to do howest say what they intend to do hereafter. of life than expediency, and their chief characteristics are imbecility and immorality." I have not misrepresented the doctor in the meaning I put upon representatives of the Reform party, written, from his speech at the convention to his last letter, shows how they are to be understood. They require no construction; they interpret themselves. They are not altered in the least by the introductory words of the sentence, and every man in Parliament, on both sides, will understand the insult they are intended to convey, and the ruffianism from which they spring. Dr. Mackay has twice charged me with having said in Parliament "that prohibition would be a bad thing." Fortunately he has given the date. I need not say to your readers that the tient, charge is altogether untrue. The doctor's high moral toned organ, the Templar, thinks it no disgrace to publish the lie, and to withhold from its readers all opportunity to judge between us in this discussion. It is an organ conducted solely in the interest of our political opponents, and it has undertaken to subordinate the cause of prohibition to that end. What an organ of moral and social reform! Should Dr. Mackay venture to defend this falsehood I will refer the newspapers interested in the defense of truth and in the maintenance of what is fair and honest in public discus-

n to the Public Debates of 1891. nns 359 to 362 inclusive. I shall ask them to publish so much of it as may be necessary to show how little reliance can be put on anything that Dr. Mackay may say.

Permit me again to consider the conduct of this man who found it no longer possible or consistent with his sense of public duty to remain allied with the Liberal party, and so was compelled to declare war against them. Let me say at the outset that he has not yet found time to explain how it is that in this Province, with a majority of 82,000 in favor of prohibition, he has not insisted upon following the example of Prince Edward Island by putting in force the Canada Temperance Act?

Dr. Mackay wishes your readers to understand that he did not vote for Mr. McLeod and against Mr. Crawford. He says that he did not vote as I indicate. This is not a denial of my charge. Of course, Dr. Mackay alone knows how his vote was reford. corded. But a good many others know to whom he gave his support. It is possible his advice may have been upon the one side and his vote upon the other; but this does not improve his position. I decline both and the volume of lectures which Dr. Mackay offers to me for information which I am ready to give on better terms than he demands for those lectures which he claims to have given for "God and home and native land." He admits that he did seek appointment on the Royal Commission, which he also admits was intended to hinder and delay any legislative tion in favor of prohibition. He does not admit that he wrote letters to Conservatives seeking the appointment, asking for their influence and declaring that although he is supposed to be a Reformer he was not hostile at all to their political opponents; that his feelings had undergone a change. To be more specific, let me ask, Did Dr. Mackay seek the influence of Mr. Charles Wilson, formerly a Conservative candidate in opposition to Sir Oliver Mowat, and promise thereafter to bear in mind Mr. Wilson's services on his behalf should he get the appointment upon the commission, and should Mr. Wilson be again a candidate for Parliamentary honors? I hope this statement is specific enough to suit Dr. Mackay, and the public can judge which of us has acted from conviction of public duty and which from considerations of a less commendable kind. I have refuted the slanders directed against myself and against my political The doctor has repeated associates. them. A Practical Suggestion, Which, if Carried Out, Would Prove a Blessing to Thousands

The question often arises, "Why are women such sufferers from all sorts of Lnexplained and apparently indefinable lls?" It is easily explained. Find a woman whose bowels are regular, and who gives proper attention to herself in this particular, and you will find a perfectly well woman in nine cases out of ten. The careful woman in this respect always has a clear, healthy look, a bright eye and a good complexion, while the one who neglects these charges of Dame Nature is usually sallow looking, with a blotchy skin and sunken eyes. The bowels are the natural drains of the system, and when clogged lead to disease and general ill-health. The deductions of a famous doctor on this line led to the production of Karl's Clover Root Tea, which is nature's grandest remedy for constipation and all kindred ills.

This eminent practitioner concluded that to treat this trouble successfully a natural remedy would be most efficient, and this celebrated medicine was compounded directly from roots and herbs to meet his views. Its success has been marvelous.

Mrs. W. P. Warden, of Otin, Mass., says of Karl's Clover Root Tea: "I have tried many different kinds of medicine without receiving any benefit, and had given up all hopes of any cure or even relief. I was troubled with constipation for years, until I was a total wreck. Finally it ran into rheumatism and other trouble, and I have been confined to the house (was in bed for eight months) for two years. I have been using Karl's Clover Root Tea, and find that it has done me more good than anything I have ever tried. GIVE CUBA A CHANCE.

The tremendous outburst of the people of Cuba against the rule of Spain would not be possible if the island were managed with even a moderate regard for the aspirations and welfare residents. There are times when rebellions are fomented by mere adventurers, and are participated in by kindred spirits who have little to But when the best men among a subject people counsel revolution as the only avenue left for national unity, it is apparent that there has been the grossest of misgovernment. The fact is that Spain has never been able to govern her colonies in a fair spirit. She has never responded to their high aspirations for progressive self-government. She has modelled her colonial policy after that of George III., which caused the revolution in the United States and the deplorable schism in the Anglo-Saxon race. date is to get as much out of the colonies as possible, and to give nothing back. For years Cuba has pleaded for change, for the commonest rights of self-government, and she has been denied. Revolution was inevitable, if there was any spirit left in the people, and if they now have a fair chance, even with all the forces of Spain against them, the cause of freedom and of progress will triumph. The question has arisen, is it just for neutral nations to recognize the rights of the Cubans as belligerents? In view of the circumstances, it undoubtedly is right. The Cubans should be given a fair chance to secure their deliverance, and the United States should take the advice of the New York Sun, and recognize the revolutionists-the popular majority-as entitled to fair play and to at least as consideration as the nation whose misgovernment alone is responsible for the outbreak. Cuba is a lovely, a fertile land. Properly governed by patriotic men, it has before it immense possibilities, and the sooner it is left alone by those who have proved the enemies of its progress and prosperity, and is encouraged to take its position as a peace-loving, trading nation of the new world, the better.

We learn that Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, and the staff of the road have had under consideration the substitution of an electric motor for the huge locomotive which now does duty in hauling the cars through the St. Clair Tunnel. While other railways have been experimenting with the electric motor for similar service, the G. T. R. authorities have been quietly watching results, and they are believed to be now so favorable that in the near future electricity will be the moving power in the great international tunnel. The tests which have been most decisive are those in connection with the electric motor service of the B. and O. Railway, at the Baltimore tunnel. Since its start about a month ago, the locomotive has been in continuous service, and has handled all the heavy freight trains. Facilities for dealing with passenger traffic will be completed later. There have been no mishaps of any kind, and considering the many novel features involved, the freedom from trouble has been remark-The trainmen have only words of praise for the easy and gradual manner in which the locomotive, draws the trains. Instead of the shocks and jerks experienced with the steam engine, everything is smooth. The prodigious power of the locomotive can be regulated to a nicety. Trains weighing 1,400 tons have been taken up an 8 per cent grade with perfect ease. The overhead trolley system has been pe-

Here is another result of the movement in favor of smooth pavements: A large number of the retail shops in New York are now delivering their goods in tricycle carriages in place of the horse, and the prediction is made that the farmer will soon supplant the latter altogether, particularly in those sections of the city that can be reached over asphalt pavements, which are beau-ideal bicycle avenues.

> There has been a big increase of immigration into the United States this year, when compared with the trade of last year. Our neighbors offer no bonuses, and interpose many obstacles to the landing of undesirable immigrants, but still the new comers arrive. Canada must use every effort to improve the conditions of its farming class to and to keep its share of immi-The record of British emigration for the period up to the end of August, this year, is not encouraging to those who wish to see the prairies speedily settled. Up to the end of August 124,700 persons of British origin had left the kinglom, of whom 72,111 were English, 4,034 Irish, and 11,785 Scotch, or 27,853 more than in the corresponding period last year. The destination of these emigrants was: To the United States 89,831, an increase of 25,756; to Canada 12,304, a decrease of 830; to Australia 5,905, an increase of 15; to Cape of Good Hope and Natal 10,977, an increase of 2,613. Of emigrants to Canada 10,308 were of English, 1,156 of Scotch and 840 of Irish origin.

Anti-toxin, the new antidote for diphtheria, is proving more effective than any remedy that had previously been devised. Statistics of the results achieved by its use have been prepared in France, Germany and America. In the various hospitals in these countries, 10,312 cases of diphtheria were treated between Oct. 1, 1894, and April 1, 1895. Of these, 5,833 were treated with anti-toxin, and the mortally was a little less than 10 per cent, while 4,-449 were not treated with anti-toxin, and the mortality was nearly 15 per cent. With young children the per cent is still more decidedly in favor of the anti-toxin treatment, being as 4 per cent to 15. There is but little question that anti-toxin is a powerful remedy when brought to bear against one of the most dreadful diseases flesh is heir to, but it is an expensive product and the greatest care is necessary to its proper evolution.

There is a big oil craze in California and the far Western States, and speculation is rampant. Some will make fortunes, and many will put their all into ventures that will never yield them a cent. THE POWER OF RESISTANCE. In long periods of peace men are apt to forget the horrors of war; in long times of prosperity they cease to remember the anxieties and misery of business depression; during long intervals of quiet, orderly life in communities they become oblivious of the destructive passions which are a part of the human inheritance. It is only when war comes or hard times are upon us, and when the forces of disorder are let loose in a community, that we realize suddenly that all the old possibilities of suffering, misery and violence exist under the quiet exterior of modern civilization. The elements of life, modified as they are in their expression, and restrained as they certainly are in an increasing degree, are not exterminated, and the old qualities of endurance and resistance, which men needed pre-eminently in more troubled and disorderly times, are still essential to calm and cheerful living. The London Spectator, in a recent article on "The Increase of Suicide," reports the suicide of a brother and three sisters in a little community near Vienna, where thirteen suicides occurred within three days. The four people who destroyed themselves were in comfortable circumstances, were devoted to each other, and could hardly have been insane unless insanity be contagious. They are said to have been exceptionally happy and united; but they had suffered the loss of a fourth sister, and they decided to die because they felt that they could not face the possibility of the repetition of such a sorrow. The Spectator is of opinion that the striking increase of suicide of late years is not only to a diminished religious faith but to a diminished power of resistance. It thinks that men have less energy of hope and less ability to resist than they formerly possessed; and it is by no means impossible that the development of the feeling of humanity, which carries with it an added sensitiveness to all the finer feelings, has made men more sensitive to pain at the very mo-ment when the comforts and conveniences of modern life have increased their physical sensitiveness and diminished their physical hardihood. In any event, it is certainly true that real power depends on the possession of the old-time fundamental virtues of endurance, courage and faith. vance of civilization, no development of art, no increase of respect for law, can to soften the conditions of life that these old-time heroic qualities will ease to be needed. On the contrary, there is every reason to believe that, so often as men begin to lose them, they will be rudely shaken out of their dream of ease and content by those great crises which make us suddenly aware of the relative unimportance of ease and comfort and the transcendent importance of character, courage and faith. Better a world full of hardships and struggle and war than a world in long-continued peace brought universal enervation, with the which decay of those foundation qualities on which alone moral and intellectual greatness can be built. One of the modern problems is to preserve the old-time hardihood of body and soul amid all kinds of luxuries, and, while increasing the sensitiveness of the spirit, to develop also

The weather was clear and pleasant, and the track was in good condition for making fast time. All the events were well filled, and the sport was good. There were thirteen entries in the yearly trot, but only two horses started, and Dr. Carr's Lotus won the two heats, making the fastest time on record for a yearling on any Canadian track for a half mile. In the 2:22 trot Dick Mitchell was favorite throughout, and had it all his own way after the first heat, which was won by Senator. The little Hamilton mare, Gertie B., opened favorite in the 2:15 trot, but Proctor beat her out, and was favorite in the last two heats. Sum-

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Great Musical Festival tor London—Two Following Attractions.

LONDON'S MUSICAL FESTIVAL. English Grand Opera is to be presented on Saturday night at the Grand under the management of Chas. H. Pratt, by a company, which for completeness and absolute perfection has never been excelled. Excellent as were the performances given by Emma Abbott, Clara Louise Kellogg and Annie Louise Cary, they could not compare with the work of the Marie Tavary Grand Opera Company, which has begun its second tour under the most favorable auspices. The repertoire is large and the most eminent singers in the world have been engaged. Marie Tavary, the prima donna soprano assoluta, who won golden triumphs at Covent Garden, London, the Grand Opera House, Paris, and the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, heads the list. Of handsome appearance, and possessing not only a remarkable voice, but the genius of a real actress, her work is really play, in a way, but marvelous withal. Mme. Thea Dorre is the mezzo soprano and a woman of strong personality. A charming singer and excellent actress is Mile. Lichter, a young prima donna who has won great success in the metropolis in some of the heaviest operas. Her voice is a clear ringing soprano. Mme. Bella Tomlins, the leading contralto, has a great European reputation. Sofia Romani and Suzanne Ryan, are young artists of the company possessed of beautiful voices and great histrionic ability. Of the male artists of the company, the list is headed by that wonderful French tenor, Chevalier Albert L. Guille. His personality is magnetic to a remarkable degree. "THE FATAL CARD."

"The Fatal Card" to be given at the Grand on Monday and Tuesday by Mr. fering of the brightest and best; and Gustave Frohman's company, has a better literary tone than the average of somewhat similar pieces that obtain London popularity, while possessing their characteristics of easy comprehension by all sorts of people. It has a sensational scene, in which an infernal machine is set beside a man to blow him into smithereens, but he is rescued in the nick of time. Of course though there is a novelty in the fact that the rescuer is one and on behalf of the union presented of the play's villains. The cast gives names Mrs. Thornley with a handsome boubelonging to actors capable of strong quet of crimson roses, tied with a large characterization. Special and entirely new scenery are carried by the company.

KATE EMMETT. Geo, S. Sydney, business manager of Katie Emmett, is in the city. Miss Emmett has never appeared in London, and a treat is promised to those who go to the Opera House on the 3rd. Sho is the cleverest soubrette on the American stage in boy parts. Mr. Sydney well remembers London, coming to this city as far back as 1848 with theatrical companies. He inquired for Mr. Jas. Gillean, sen., who was connected with the "Advertiser" about that time.

MIDDLESEX NEWS.

Narrow Escape of Principal Shepherd of the Muncey Institute-County Happenings.

It is reported that there will soon be a swell wedding in Poplar Hill.

Mr. Quigley, of Lucan, died Monday evening at the age of 80 years. J. H. McKellar, of Komoka, is building a handsome residence for George Tuckey, of Poplar Hill, and the owner will shortly take possession.

Rev. W. W. Shepherd, principal of The Muncey Institute, had a narrow escape fom instant death Monday morning. While in the basement of the new building at that place, in company with the contractor, one of the carpenters dopped a fifteen-pound sledge from the third story. It glazed Mr. Shepherd's head, knocking him down, and when assistance first reached him it was feared that he had been fatally injured, but it proved only to be a bad scalp wound. Dr. Morrison, of Delaware, dressed the wound.

MANY DISAPPOINTED.

Toronto Fair Visitors Hoped to See the Manufacture of a Well-Known Product.

Toronto (Special), Sept. 23.-Many regrets were expressed by visitors to the Industrial Fair that the Dodd's Medicine Company of this city did not have a display of their well-known Dodd's Kidney Pills, the remedy which has by this time become so widely and favorably known for the absolute cure of all complaints of the kidneys even in the most acute stages. A rumor was current that a public exhibition of the manufacture of the remedy of the remedy would be given, but the re-stricted space this year prevented the possibility of such a scheme. Those who went away disappointed at not seeing the manufacture of their favorite remedy will have to wait till next

Hard Labor

For Stealing Farmer Blaikie's $65—Was Quite Indifferent-Narrowly Escaped Going to the Central -Mary Cake Wanted.

James Wilson, the young sharper who worked Farmer Blaikie, of Westminster out of $65 on the trick padlock, was alone in the Police Court cage this morning. He was up for sentence for his offense, and bore the same air of indifference which has marked his actions since his arrest.

Mr. H. Dignan appeared for the prisoner, and presented for the magistrate's consideration two receipts, showing that Mr. Blaikie's loss had been made good by Wilson's relatives. He drew the court's attention to the fact that Wilson was only 21 years of been continuously in one place, and this was his first trip away from home. His parents and himself have always borne excellent reputations. Wilson had been in jail twelve days, and Mr. Dignan thought this sufficient punishment and a great lesson, "I have considered everything in connection with the case," said the magistrate. "I have read the testimonials, and I am sure it is with the greatest difficulty that I refrain from sending him to the Central Prison. It was not the act of a person who through some temptation or impulse of the moment violated the law. It was committed with premeditation, and Wilson and his partner seemed to have been possessed with the idea that there was a good chance of escaping the law. I hope it is his first offense. The sentence and it is very lenientis that the prisoner be confined in the common jail at hard labor for one

Somerset Hall The following is communicated by the secretary of the W. C. T. U .: Somerset Hall, though plainly furnished, is always bright and cheery, but yesterday it was turned into a "bower of beauty"-flowers, flowers everywhere, for was it not "flower day" at the Union? It seemed as though every one had brought her ofthen, too, it was in honor or the home coming of our beloved president, Mrs. Thornley, and all felt interested and

This was a complete surprise to Mrs.

Thornley, as until that moment the portraits had been hidden with a veil of flowers. Mesdames D. H. Williams, J. W. Jones, T. Wright, Mills, Darch, Hop-kins and Heaman each spoke a word of welcome, after which Mrs. Thornley, with much feeling, expressed appreciation and gratitude for the tokens of love and good will that had been showered upon her. But the stern realities of life will encroach, even in the happiest hour, and business must necessarily receive attention.

The approaching county convention to be held in Somerset Hall on Oct. 8 and 9 demanded preparatory arrangements. It is expected that a debate of more than ordinary interest (woman suffrage) will be held on the evening of Oct. 8, to which the public are in-

An encouraging report was received from the committee on early closing of stores on Saturday night. W. C. T. U. women were urged to do all possible shopping before Saturday, and particularly not on Saturday evening.

A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered Messrs. Winnett, Sayers and Mills for the excellent aid given in the work at the W. C. T. U. dining hall during the Fair. A special meeting is called for Tuesday to complete business necessarily left over.

At the close of the meeting the floral decorations were sold in aid of the lumbermen's work, and a handsome sum was realized.

SHOT HIS MOTHER.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 25.—Chas. Cooper aged 10, shot and instantly killed his mother last night in their home at Harwood. The mother entered the room to put down a window. The boy thought she was a burglar and shot at her, killing her instantly. He walked to town and gave himself up. A RING OF ROMANCE.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 25 .- About thirteen years ago, Miss Ollie, daughter of Wm. H. Avery, chief engineer of the waterworks, dropped a gold ring into the river at the waterworks. Nothing was thought of the matter of the ring until Wednesday of this week, when Mr. Walker, who married Miss Avery, saw something bright in the water among the rubbish that had been thrown from the dock. He investigated, and found the identical ring in less than two feet of water, which was plentifully strewn with broken bricks and mortar from the old boiler house. How the ring should remain on the surface of the ground during this period is the question Mr. Avery asks.

> And Dies Almost Instantly Struck a Rail and Breke His Neck -Purely Accidental.

John H. Holt, a carpenter living on the west side of High street, near Grand avenue, South London, was instantly killed in the city yards of the Grand Trunk this morning. Holt, with a number of other carpenters, had been engaged for some weeks in constructing a large water tank a short distance west of the roundhouse, and immediately adjoining an old tank. The work has almost been completed, the roof being on and the final touches given This morning Holt started his work at the usual hour, and about 15 minutes to 12 o'clock he was sitting on a scaffold handing a piece of beading to a man on the roof. In an unknown manner he lost his balance, age. Since he was 13 years old he had and before his fellow-workmen were aware, had fallen to the ground, a distance of 40 feet.

Assistance was soon rendered, and Holt was removed to the roundhouse, and the company's medical attendant, Dr. Moore, summoned. It was found that the unfortunate man had struck his head on a rail, breaking his neck and causing instant death.

Coroner, Flock was also notified, and on learning the facts considered an inquest unnecessary. The body was subsequently removed to Ferguson's undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. Deceased was a man about 40 years of age, and leaves a wife and six chil-He was in the employ of the Grand Trunk for a number of years, and had only returned to work two weeks ago after a lay-off during a dull period.

London, Sept. 25.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon prints a leader on the subject of the Irish Nationalist Convention at Chicago. The Gazette expresses the opinion that the so-called new movement is very like the old one, which was temporarily crushed by the young ladies, unveiled the life-size portrait of Mrs. Thornley, and also of Mrs. der of Dr. Cronin at Chicago, and the objects of which it asserts was clearly proven to be boodle and not the in-dependence of Ireland. "We can afford to smile at Mr. Finerty's statement," says the Gazette, "but if the Irish will formulate their demands and agitate for redress in the manner adopted by Englishmen, they will find England ready to meet them half way. AN ANCIENT TRAVELER'S QUTFIT. A small "Traveler's Guide," dated 1780, has just come to hand. It contains a good deal of advice as to the lug-gage which should be taken. We take few paragraphs from this booklet, leaving our readers to draw their own conclusions as to whether a century of travel has improved us in this connection. "Take," says the Guide, "two suits of clothes, one coffee colored and one blue, a chest flannel, a pair of leather breeches, a sleeping suit, three pairs of stockings, two pairs of gloves, two wigs, one hair-bag (?), two caps, two hats, two pairs of shoes, one pair of slippers, six 'undershirts,' four 'over shirts,' six neckties, six collars, six handkerchiefs, four pairs of cuffs, three cravats, two pairs of cotton hose, two pairs of socks." But this is not all, as is shown by the following items: "Take a Bible, a book of sermons, a 'Traveler's Guide,' two albums, a diary, a quire of white paper, quills and ink, an almanac, a mirror, a silver watch, a silver snuffbox, a silver tie-pin, three silver studs, a gold s al ring; a knife and fork, with silver handles, a sewing case, an opera glass, a compass, a wax light and a tinder box, a tothbrush, a silver toothplck, a sword, a silver-mounted cane, a padlock with which to fasten your door at night inside, a clothes brush, box of medicines.' -Westminster Gazette.

British Grain Trade.

British Grain Trade.

London, Sept. 24.—The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: "English wheats during the past week have been firm; both old and new are held. Foreign wheat had a slight fally, California for shipment being quoted at 25s 6d, and Duluth at 21s 9d. Corn, feeding barley and Canadian peas have receded 6d. Beans and reas have been steady. Today English new wheats improved 6d. Foreign wheats were firmly held, and reds were 6d higher. There was a good trade in flour at 3d rise. Flat cern was 3d better, and round corn was unchanged. Malting barley was 6d cheaper.

American Grain and Provision Reports

CHICAGO.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 24.—Wheat was strong today. The decision of the warehouse commission yesterday, cancelling the licenses of a number of the elevators, was responsible for the firmness. Corn made a moderate gain today, but the strength of wheat was entitled to the credit for it. Oats—The trade in this grain has fallen into a rut, no business having been transacted for some time. Provisions nothing doing.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat, 85 cars; corn, 500 cars; oats, 300 cars; hogs, 27,000 head.

Freights—Vessel room was scarce and demand good, at 2½c for corn to Buffalo.

The leading futures closed as follows:

On 'Change.

Special to C. E. Turner, broker, Masonic Temple, from Walker & Co. Chicago, Sept. 25.—Wheat opened strong and higher with good outside buying, but was soon supplied by local crowd, Cudahy leading. Price sagged at about yesterday's prices, which has given bulls some courage. Market has been pounded so much lately that when the reaction comes it will be swift. Don't think that is far off now. Liverpool strong; clearances big.
Corn higher, but very dull. Think it will Fixing himself comfortably Mr. Whitting glued his wide-awake eyes upon the serene profile and waited. Yet through the slow hours of the night that sphinx never moved.

The cheerful voice of a distant chanticleer ushered in the grey dawn. Luna's sickly pallor mingled with it, dissolved into it, yielded itself up to annihilation, and it was day. For a brief half hour Mr. Whitting yielded to tired nature's demands and dozed. When he awoke the first soft rays of the rising sun were streaming in. The mysterious profile at the window was gone.

Mrs Florimel laughed cheerfully when he related his experience, and delared "it was the nuts and ale and things." They had disturbed her own digestion, she admitted, but had not carried her the length of seeing ghosts. Mr. Whitting was not convinced. It was the agent's business to protect his tenants against annoyance of this species. He decided against Florimel's discreet counsel, to complain to the agent, to protest, and otherwise vent

Miss Frances, will you tell your papa there is a gentleman here to speak to him, please?" here to speak to him, please?

The young woman had come languidly out upon the porch from an ad-joining apartment. She had carelessly taken up her station in front of th

Still as a statue the girl stood until the agent's voice aroused her from apparent lethargy. The likeness was complete! Whitting was so startled that he felt himself growing pale, for this, with a ghostly difference, was the very picture that had kept him awake all night.

He was in no mind to be trifled with now, and by Jove, if this pale-faced maid with the white hair and insipid face thought to play upon his superstition by prowling about her old home masquerading as a ghost to frighten the tenants off she would pay for her prank—he would tell her father—he would sue the agent—he would move He would-would-

"Please will you step into the other room? Papa is not feeling well this morning, and is lying down," said a timid voice at his elbow.

The agent had vanished. Whitting was alone, looking silly enough, doubt-less with the flush and frown of anger adding their unbecoming emphasis to the deep sunburn he had lately acquired, owing to Florimel's whim of making him tramp for miles in the air every morning after breakfast.

"Ah," he murmured, sarcastically, on the impulse of the moment, "this is the young lady, I presume, who has such a vast amount of fun at my expense by haunting my window at Hallowe'en. I trust you didn't get cold, and that you enjoyed it more than I

"I!" she faltered, making a little gesture with her hand—a gesture of scorn and hurt dignity "I haunt your window, man! I!"

The scorn expressed in that soft, contemptuous tone of slow disdain would have cut a less sensitive man to the quick, especially her way of saying

Ere he had time to rally from the attack a deep voice called from the other room: "Frances, my love!"

Coming, papa!" Miss Benton deigned to turn her flashing eyes—heaven knows there was no lack now of expression to the angry face she turned upon him-in his direction as she imperiously waved him into her father's presence. "Papa," she began at once, "this man-your manor tenant-comes here with a strange complaint. He sayshe dares to say-that I masqueraded before his window last night as a ghost or something." "My daughter, my daughter, do not be hasty. You forget the"—and the white-haired old rector drew his daugh-

To Whitting's amazement the expression of haughty anger and insulted pride instantly faded from the girl's face, giving place to one of pensive sadness, as when one recalls some tender memory inseparable from sor-

"There came up that night one of those sudden, violent thunderstorms so those sudden, violent thunderstorms so common here in the summer time. As she stood dreamily beside her little crashing branches and bending treesa fearful flash of vivid lightning suduttered one pieroing shriek and fell to the floor-dead."

"But why was the pane of glass never removed? that would be a very easy mode of getting rid of this annoyance to your future tenants, who may not know the story, but may even be frightened off by it if they be of a superstitious turn."

"Because my poor wife pleaded that the wonderful picture of our child painted upon the glass by the hand of God, as it were, might never be destroyed or removed. It would be almost sacrilege to touch it, she said. suffocation. 'eLt it always stay. Promise!'

A month later the manor-house received another family into its capacious recess—the old rector and his child came home to live. But Mr. Whitting did not move, for shortly thereafter the two families became one. And the beautiful face in the glass still looks out at twilight upon the pleasant hills, while its counterpart in the flesh smiles at Whitting across the cozy teatable in another room. (THE END.)

"Fully Realized."

The Investment policies maturing in the North American Life Assurance Company during the current year are giving the same unqualified satisfaction to the holders as the results realized on similar policies in past years. Mr. F. W. Holt, civil engineer, of St. George, N. B., in acknowledging the Company's check under his policy, writes:

"The cash results of my tontine Endowment Policy, No. 2,380, which I have had the good fortune to hold in your Company, have been highly satisfactory to me, and now that the policy has matured, it is very gratifying to find that all, if not more, of the cash results that were represented to me at the time I insured in the North American Life have been fully realized. This experience, together with the liberal treatment that I have always received from the North American, enables me to recommend the Company to others.

"F. W. HOLT." "Undoubtedly the North American Life Assurance Company has attained that degree latter, standing with profilt turned toward them, her hands clasped in front of her and her gaze fixed on the distant hills.

Assurance Company has attained that degree of solidity which can best be understood by comparison with any of the large companies. A lamentable instance of the tendency of drinking men to postpone this, the most important business they have ever been called upon to transact, was afforded last week. Once a wealthy and respected citizen, this gentleman had required years of experience at drinking liquor, before arriving at the conclusion that his habit in this respect and consequent incapacity, were the sole and only cause of the financial disasters which overtook him, left him dependent upon others and a physical wreck. A few weeks ago he concluded to take the famous treatment given at Lakehurst Institute, Oakville, so soon as he should attend to some "important business." A few days ago he dropped dead, his "important business" still unfinished. Does it ever occur to you that tomorrow, or next week, may mean sudden death to you also? It takes a bright woman to rebuke another woman's rudeness, a general statement well borne out by a story from the Atlanta Constitution.

A lady entered a railway train and took a seat in front of a newly-married couple. She was hardly seated before they began making remarks about her. Were Marie Louise living she would consider it necessary to warn us as well as tremes in dress. The coming season will be as gorgeous in attire as the court of Marie Antoinette, and we shall vie with one another in our efforts to secure the richest coloring. Iridiscent is the keynote of the season. Everything glimmers with a mixture of coloring, while paillettes trimming, made in large varieties, is at nand for our use. Gowns for Home Wear.

In the days when all well-regulated persons eschew the house and use it only as a dermitory, the question of house gowns seems of comparatively little importance. Boating freeks, tennis gowns, garden party dresses, if you will. But house gowns! What earthly interest has any woman with enough money to take an outing in house gowns from June until September? The first chilly evening puts a different complexion on the matter. The first cold day makes the house gown one of the most important features in the mental perspective of the summer girl. Wherewithal shall she be clothed now that fall is upon her and she is forced to spend more or less time in the seclusion of the house? The kindly disposed modiste answers the question for her.

"In the first place," says Madame, 'there is the morning gown. That is quite distinct from the negligee, you understand. No gentlewoman wears her negligee cutside her own boudoir. In her morning gown she may appear at the family breakfast table, in the library after breakfastanywhere, in fact, in the house. I make very few one-piece morning gowns. They are more apt to look slovenly than the two-piece ones. But I make the skirt to fasten on to the bodice so that there is no comfort lost. The bodice I make in the simple, old-fashioned surplice style, which forms a small, pretty V at the throat and is admirably adapted to the display of a big fichu such as are to be very much worn this year. The sleeves are loose puffs, ending just below the elbow in a ruffle. The skirt is plain and simple and buttons beneath a ribbon belt to a bodice. I use soft Henriettas, fine cashmeres, silk-warped woolens of all sorts and old-fashioned nun's veiling for these. As for color, red is very cheerful, and frequently a man is sent on his way from the breakfast table rejoicing because his wife has worn cheerful red instead of dingy browns. The old blues are pretty, too, and gray is always suitable if it is not a stone or slate gray. The wise woman never wears anything at breakfast which is suggestive of the blues or fits of bad temper.' "Then," said Madame, after a reflective pause, "there are the tea gowns. Never let any one persuade you that a real tea gown is meant to wear at afternoon tea, unless you are in your own room. I am making tea jackets by the score, but not a tea gown. The jackets, some of them, are made almost like blazer jackets, with a short ripple basque and a vest of chiffon or lace. Others are more in the Directoire style, close-fitting and longer, with a lace frill falling from the collar at the throat. The materials used are silk and satin, and later in the season velvet will come in for its share of tea jackets. Brocades are particularly well adapted to this style of garment. The brighter colors are used a great deal, and the jackets are worn over black silk, satin or crepon skirts. They are very effective and picturesque. By the way, the sleeve must either end at the elbow in a frili of lace or must come well over the wrist in one of these embroidered or lace-edged tabs so popular now. "As for the bona-fide tea gown," Madame went on, "it has become nothing more or less than a negligee, and it is not seen in good society outside of the boudoir. It is, therefore, considerably less elaborate than it was in the old days, when it was regarded as able to hold its own in society. The favorite model at present is the student's gown. There is no lining except an under yoke. On to this the silk is shirred about the neck and for a few inches below. Then it falls in voluminous folds to the hem. The sleeves are very big and loose and end just below the elbow. Lace is jaboted about the neck and all the way down the front of the hem. It is fastened by silk strings, which draw it together here and there down the front. The thin wash silks, either striped or flowered, are most in favor for this gown."

The Art of Pouring Tea. Few hostesses understand the art of pouring tea and coffee, simple as it appears. As a rule the guest of honor is offered the first oup, which is the weakest, and the children, if served at all are given the last and strongest. When it is desirable to have all the cups of uniform strength one should pour a little into each and then begin over again, reversing the order. In England this is so well understood that a pourer of tea or coffee does not begin to replenish the cups till all are before her.

OTHERS, Do You Know that Paregeric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed? Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle? Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher.

That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined? Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word

"Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense f Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless? Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest !

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.
