You Are Not a Pessimist

Election Issues Boil Down to Choice Between Those Who Say "Canada Has Done Well" and Those Who Say "Business Is Bad"—the Evidence of Prosperity.

This election, from a national point of view, is a choice between optimism and pessimism, between faith and doubt. If all the speeches which have been made, whether on tariff, or railways, or immigration, or trade, could be boiled down to their simplest form the result would be these two clear and opposing sentiments.

The basis of all the arguments of the prime minister and his followers has been: "Canada has done well; she has made progress; prosperity is here: the future is bright."

The basis of all the arguments of Mr. Meighen and his supporters has been: "Canada has done poorly; she has failed; business is bad; the outlook is dark."

This broad and national aspect of the election has a close and local application. The people of London in choosing between Mr. Little and Mr. White are actually deciding whether London is to be placed among Canada's optimist: or with Canada's pessimists.

THE ATTITUDE OF MR. WHITE.

London's cit- council may be having troubles of its own trying to get the street railway to live up to that famous bylaw 916, but London township council is having just as much trouble

Residents of Broughdale are not overly fond of the service on the Richmond line and furthermore they want the L. S. R. to move its tracks to the center of the road, so that the east side of Richmond street north may be paved.

The township has an agreement with the street railway for fares at the old rate of seven tickets for 25 cents, and this has never been rescinded. Broughdale would like to see the township council force the railway to either give seven tickets for 25 cents, or take up its rails, believing that a bus service would be to its best interests.

MR. WHITE ASKS LABOR SUPPORT

London Member Addresses Two Meetings at the McCormick Plant.

Frank White, M.P., for London, addressed two meetings at the McCormick Manufacturing Company today at noon, and after discussing the tariff and the Canadian National Railways, asked for the support of the workingman in his fight to retain London for the Conservatives and Arthur Meighen.

Mr. White's first meeting was held in the main dining hall and did not last long. His second speech was made to an audience of 75 in the basement of the factory.

Mr. White talked of the tariff and its relation to the Canadian workingmen. He accused the government of not following the trend of the times, stating that the United States government had increased their since 1922 and Canada had lowtariff since 1922 and Canada had low-ered her tariff. This had brought about increasing importations and had curtailed factory output here. Mr. White referred to the necessity

Mr. White referred to the necessity of increasing C. N. R. tonnage and the population of the country. The railway could not succeed if these objects were not attained.

Some Labor men had stated that the Conservative party had never done anything for Labor. He would like to point out that the workman's compensation board had been the result of legislation passed during the regime of the late Sir James P. Whitregime of the late Sir James P. Whit-

Mr. White declared that he had sympathy with the desires of the Labor people as shown in their platform, but those things all cost money and are a charge on industry.

Continuing, the speaker said that a fair tariff would improve manufactary and if industry was nonturing and if industry was non-existent it wouldn't be much help to In conclusion, Mr. White asked for the support of all present and Labor in general.

W. E. N. Sinclair Address Ilderton Electors On Behalf of Dr. Ross.

REVIEWS BENEFITS

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Reporter. Ilderton, Oct. 20. — The financial record of the King government during the past four years would alone entitle it to re-election by acclamation throughout Canada, declared W. E. N. Sinclair, opposition leader in the provincial legislature, in an address at Ilderton last night in the interests of Dr. C. C. Ross, East Middlesex Liberal candidate.

In forceful addresses, Mrs. Annie Hall of Brampton and Dr. Clifford Reason of London also spoke in the interests of the candidate.

With a keen survey of the condition of the dominion at the present time, in comparison to years of depression prior to 1921. Mr. Singlain pression prior to 1921, Mr. Sinclair reviewed the achievements of the King government, and ably told of its beneficial influence in the betterment of a nation.

Mr. Sinclair urged electors of East Middlesex to support Dr. Ross at the polls next week, pointing out that it was the duty of every true Canadian citizen to cast a vote for real parliamentary representation, and for sparty which offered and stood for the policies of Liberalism.

Tories Becloud Issues.

"The Conservatives, as in other campaigns I have had experience campaigns I have had experience with, are trying to becloud the issues and set up prejudices," 'said Mr. Sinclair. "They have two or three old stocks-in-trade, the chief one of which is the fiag. They forget, however that Liberals have as much loyalty as they, and that we, as well as Conservatives. served and fought as Conservatives, served and fought for king and country in battle. "Another question they have been presenting to the people in an un-fair light is that of emigration to the United States. When bringing the question up, why not tell the truth? They fail entirely, however, to tell us that the greatest period of emigration of citizens to the other side was in 1920—at a time when the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen was prime min-ister of Canada.

"The King government has been in power for four years, and the Con-servatives have been unable to definitely find fault with one Liberal policy, and at the election stage they have trumped up issues of their own."

Mr. Sinclair ridiculed Conservative optimism in their belief that they would sweep the country on election

"I cannot see any reason why the government of Mackenzie King will be defeated at the present time, and how the Conservatives will 'sweep the country' is far beyond my com-

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have best cough medicine you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plat of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep hou's without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchite and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded.

MRS. PEARL STEELE

A GREAT many women after childbirth get up too soon and, too weak to care for the child and perform their household duties, often bring on serious derangements.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid tonic to take at this time; it is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers. Thousands of mothers advise their daughters to take this grand old root and herb medicine for such conditions because of their own favorable experience with it.

Following We Publish an Interesting Letter from Mrs. Steele of Warrensburg Which Should Interest Every Mother in the Land:

Warrensburg, Mo.—"When my second child was born I got up too soon as my mother wasn't able to do for me. I could not stand on my feet without being dizzy and my back would ache so badly that I would have to lie down at times through the day. My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a bottle of it at the time, so she begged me to take it, which I did, and I cannot tell you how much better I felt after taking it. Then a year later my husband got back from overseas and we went to keeping house by ourselves and I got all run down again. I couldn't work long at a time but would have to sit down and rest. My husband kept begging me to take the Vegetable Compound again, so I have done so. I resommend it when I can as I know it is good for women's troubles and I thought you might like to know what it has done for me."—Mrs. Pearl M. Steele,

Ontario Woman's Interesting Case

Mount Forest, Ontario.—"I am proud today to think I have a fine big baby boy, as healthy as a trout, and I never felt better myself. Before I took your medicine I felt weak and miserable, and had pains all through me. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to get stronger and those pains all left me. I am glad I found out about this medicine. I think there is none other equal to it for women who have troubles of this kind. I cannot praise the Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. Whenever I know of a woman suffering I am glad to tell her of it."—Mrs Wm. Ridsdall, Canada Has a Tariff.

H. G. Fester, a Labor man from Hamilton, who has been working in London in the interests of the Conservative party, pays special attention to protection. In one address he said:

"As a man who has moved among the workers all my life I have always realized Labor wants protection. It finds that protection through the medium of its trades unions and the state, and it is only fair and reasonable that industry, which is called upon to bear the burden, should have a reasonable share of protection, and I am supporting the Conservative party in this campaign because that is the party which stands

Does Mr. Fester wish to infer that under the Liberal government in Canada there has been no protection, and that there is none today? He is working along the same lines as other something that has been denied Canadian in taken over. dustry. The United States is held up always as the model for Canadian tariff construction. A electors that he would, if elected, return the comparison of the tariffs of these two countries head offices of the Intercolonial Railway to the gives information that is interesting. During the fiscal year 1923 United States imported goods valued at $3,731,769,816. Of this total, goods to the value of $2,165,148,317 were imported free of duty, leaving $1,566,621,499 on been so marked that it brought a stinging rebuke which duty was collected. The duty collected amounted to $566,136,863. Calculated on the value of dutiable goods alone, the rate of duty paid was 36.14 per cent; on the value of all imports, free and dutiable combined, the average rate of duty was 15.17 per cent.

During the same year, 1923, Canada imported goods valued at $802.579,244. Of this, $265,320, 462 were duty free, or 33 per cent of the total Duties were paid on the remainder, $537,258,732 amounting to $133,803,370. Taking only the value of dutiable goods, the rate of duty paid, or in other words the tariff, amounted to 24.9 per cent; on the basis of total duties levied on total imports, it was 16.7 per cent.

This gives us the following comparison:

U. S. Canada. Duty on total imports ... Rate on dutiable imports 36.14 24.9 Another feature that must be considered is that in that year United States admitted $2,165,-148,317 worth of imports free of duty, or 58 per cent of the total, while Canada admitted $265, 320,462 duty free, or 33 per cent. The comparison in brief is:

Proportion of Duty Free Imports.

Canada33 per cent Canada has a tariff and, according to Premier King, must continue to have a tariff. What is needed in Canada today is stability, with changes in individual items only after a thorough inves tigation by a representative tariff commission. h as Mr. King proposes. A blanket increase granting more protection to all, would increase all living costs, would encourage exploitation, would dislocate many businesses and conceivably might involve Canada in a great disaster.

Mr. Fester and other Conservative speakers find that it suits their purposes better to ignore plain figures and indulge in a campaign that pictures Canada as stripped to the bone of tariff

The C.N.R. Could Not Stand It.

Mr. Meighen's Sudbury address makes it very clear that his contention that the tariff is the only issue in this election is something he does not believe himself, because in that meeting he already overcrowded profession. made the Canadian National Railways the topic of his plea. Mr. Meighen even went into such and finally successful efforts of Mackenzie King pipes. to have an injustice righted after it has stood againt the men for eleven years. Hon. Dr. Manion referred to the same matter at Brantford the auto accident figures, remarks that "more when he said:

"I do not dispute that he (King) got back their pensions-I do not know anything about that-but it was pretty near time; he had forgotten it fifteen years ago."

It would be much better had Dr. Manion not amount of perspiration for the mercury gives discussed a matter about which he himself made the plain admission that he knew nothing. The public do know the facts about this case, and King that is highly creditable.

Neither Mr. Meighen's reference to the incident at Sudbury nor Mr. Manion's admission of ignorance at Brantford can stand in the face of the plain facts. Mr. King, shortly after reentering parliament as leader of the opposition got her training on a telephone exchange and in 1919, moved an amendment to the act for the has been working at it ever since. acquisition of the Grand Trunk Railway as public property to compel the company to recognize the pension rights of employees which had controller and mayor. minister, who carried through to the last letter an arrangement that won for the Grand Trunk employees their denied pension rights, had them paid with interest to the men or to their estates.

Mr. Meighen's newest claim is that he is not in favor of railway amalgamation. He is merely repeating what Premier King said in his first speech of the campaign at Richmond Hill, "No monopoly on land or sea." Mr. Meighen's whole campaign, in which he and his followers have carried on a running fire against the manage ment of the C. N. R., and in which he has advocated political interference with affairs that come entirely within the scope of independent and businesslike administration of the railways, suggests that there would be not an amalgamation of the C. N. R. but an absorption because he would bring the road to the point where it could not avoid such a move. The whole trend of his public utterances since becoming leader of the opposition has been such as to discount the ability of its management He started this course soon after Sir Henry Thornton's appointment and he has given the lead to his followers to travel in the same direction. He has declared that if he is returned to power he will cut down capital expenditure on the Canadian National Railways to a point where "we can get every dollar out of the system." This is no mere plea for economy. It means, if put into effect, no new bridges; no replacing of old wooden structures with steel even though the former were condemned. It would mean no more rock ballast, no more engines or cars. Under that sort of treatment the Canadian Nationals, or any other business, would soon come to a point where it could not get out and compete for its share of business. It could Conservative speakers who claim protection is not even dictate terms on which it would be Speaking at Halifax Mr. Meighen told the maritimes. That is straight political interference and the first definite step toward putting the C. N. R. right into politics. His course in this anti-C. N. R. campaign has from the Ottawa Citizen, a strictly independent newspaper, which said:

"The same cheap brand of criticism is directed by Mr. Meighen against the administration of the Canadian National Rail-The Conservative leader is concerned only with making party capital, irrespective of whether it spreads the disruptive tendency toward sectionalism in Canada, or is calculated to destroy public confidence in the Canadian National Railways under public ownership."

The whole strength of his Quebec campaign lodged in the anti-public ownership group of Montreal, and to this faction he has entrusted the direction of his Quebec campaign, even to allowing them to name their own leader. Mr. Meighen's recent deliverances in railway matters indicate that the influence of this group is extending far beyond Quebec.

Mr. Hodgins May Explain.

At a Conservative rally in East London, according to the Free Press report, a lady rose to ask if Mr. Hodgins, Conservative candidate in East Middlesex, "was prepared to do his part in bringing a cheaper Canadian coal supply, to which the candidate replied to her satisfaction." Mr. Hodgins finds himself in a very peculiar osition, because his leader, Hon. Arthur Meighen, has already stated that he is going to put a tax on coal sufficiently high to make it necessary for us to turn to Alberta coal. A tax on coal coming into Canada means an lded charge that consumers here will have to pay. Every ton of coal placed in the cellar will ost more money.

Mr. Hodgins, by no method of explanation, can get away from that very evident truth.

Then and Now

When winter come long years gone past, I'd cheer the day it settled in, and though I love it yet today my cheers be lean and mighty thin.

When I was but a little guy I lived upon concession four, and often spent a busy hour to turn an odd and tidy chore. And I had notions of my own, I held them stubbornlike, somehow, and as I call them back today they seem peculiar to me now.

But since that time long years have come and spun their tale about my head, no doubt corpuscles in my blood are blue and gray instead of red. And oft I wrap a flannel rag and fold it ten times on my chest, and shiver in this armor too when wind pipes from the north and west.

Yet winter now's the same as then, the difference is no doubt that I don't look upon it just the same as when I was a little guy.

WISS CONSTANCE BOULTON RAISES SILVER-BLACK FOXES

London Visitor Runs Successful Little Farm in North Toronto.

Miss Constance Boulton of Toronto who came to London yesterday to iddress a Conservative campaign neeting last night, is a breeder of silver foxes and pedigreed chickens when she is not a politician.

On an attractive little acre of ground in North Toronto, she and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Boulton, run a most successful little poultry farm and raises silver black foxes for their beautiful pelts.

Miss Constance Boulton has a special interest in the foxes. She be-lieves the business of fox-breeding can be a much more profitable one than chicken-raising, and sees in it thew industry for women. Two tears ago she purchased a magnifi-tent pair of silver foxes, who have ecquired the pet names of Gypsy and r. Today she has twelve fine foxes, having sold three.

To the question "Are they hard to raise? Have you ost any?" she answers:

"Not a one." Some people say that they are quite difficult to raise. But have had no trouble. Of course they are like everything else, they want care and must be studied closewant care and must be studied close-by. I really find it easier to take care of foxes than of chickens. Chickens o me are far more trouble and less

Miss Boulton is very fond of her old pair of foxes, Gypsy and Rover, and has become quite attached to the younger foxes as well. Sometimes it is difficult to part with them, out that is "business," she says. And when she is breeding them for sale the must not let sentiment come into iny of her bargains.

Although the foxes are quite tame at Miss Boulton's farm, they still teep some of their wild instincts.
"And it's not unusual to get a good hip," she says. "However, when rou're breeding silver foxes you expect something of the sort. It is all

WHEN A NEW TRIBE IS

DISCOVERED. Occasionally a new tribe is discovared that has lived for ages uncouched by the diseases of civilized races, which destroy them as soon as they take on civilized habits. Why does an ancient race perish from aberculosis, cancer, kidney and other civilization? The answer is the white man's food, robbed of its growth and repair substances, destroys the "projective" elements of the blood, lespening resistance to disease.

Nominations Made Yesterday at Meeting in South Collegiate.

Elections to the "Lit" will be an important event at the South London collegiate today. Yesterday the first autumn meeting of the literary society was held, and nominations for the different offices made. John Franklin will contest the office of presidency, with William Smith, while Miss Marjorie Corless and Miss Margaret Thompson are opposed for the office of vice-president. Two nominations have been made for secretary, Miss Grace Cape and Miss Gladys Tunks, while Kenneth Perrin and Fraser Rowland are running for These candidates spoke at the first meeting of the "Lit" yesterday, and were received with enthusiasm by the gathering. A. R. Cairncross received an acclamation for honorary president, which C. B. Chapman and G. F. Copeland are honorary vice-presidents of the society.

Peter Rabbit Introduces Himself To Ruddy the Red-Backed Mouse

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Peter Rabbit was still wondering if Danny Meadow Mouse was laying up seeds. He had started to go over to the Green Meadows to find out. You remember he was over in the Green Forest. He had gone but a little way when he heard the rustle of little feet in the leaves. He turned quickly, but there was no one to be seen. He waited. All was still. Still Peter sat without moving. Peter has a great deal of patience at times. When he is curious enough he can be very. Very patient. He was curious now. Right in front of him lay a lot of reddish-brown leaves newly fallen from the trees. Presently one of these leaves moved, although at that moment there was no wind. Then Peter saw a familiar little form. At least it seemed familiar.

At least it seemed familiar.
"Why Danny Meadow Mouse, what under the sun are you doing way over here in the Green Forest?" cried Peter.

"Were you speaking to me?" in-were you speaking to me: inquired a squeaky little voice, which sounded much like Danny's voice.

"I certainly was," replied Peter.
"When did you come over here and when did you get that red coat? I never have seen you wear that coat

"That's funny," replied the squeaky little voice, "for it is the only coat I have ever worn."
"Eh? What's that?" cried Peter, looking very hard at the speaker. "I said," replied the speaker. "that it is the only coat I have ever worn. it is the only coat I have ever with.
What is more, I'll thank you not to call me Danny Meadow Mouse." Peter hopped a step nearer and stared with all his might. It was most impolite of him. Yes, siree, it was most impolite of him. "Why," most impolite of him. Yes it was most impolite of him. said he, talking more to himself than to the stranger, "you aren't Danny Meadow Mouse at all. Your ears are just a little bit bigger than Danny's/and your tail is just a little bit longer. "Of course," said the stranger. "I should hope so."

"Why should you hope so?" demanded Peter.
"Because I don't want to look like Danny Meadow Mouse," retorted the stranger.

"But you do look like Danny Meadow Mouse," said Peter. "only you have a red coat."

"Then I don't look like Danny Meadow Mouse," said the stranger.

"Anyway, you're a Mouse," declared Peter.

"Yes, Tm a Mouse and proud of it," replied the little stranger.

"You haven't told me your name et." said Peter. "You haven't asked me for it yet," replied the stranger. Peter grinned. Then he chuckled. "Excuse me," said he. "I guess I am most impolite. You sort of surprised the politeness all out of me.

My name is Peter Rabbit. May I

PLAN FOR SCHOOL

School Board Decides To Call For Separate Tenders For Plumbing Work.

More as an experiment than as a guide for the future, the building committee of the board of education yesterday afternoon decided to call for a separate tender for the installa-tion of the heating, plumbing and ventilating systems in the new collegiate planned for the east end. Hitherto these have always been in-cluded in the general contract. This action was taken on the suggestion of Trustee Murray. Architect Carrothers expressed himself as pposed to the proposal.

Specifications were presented to the members of the board for the first time yesterday. Trustee Cairncross asked why they had been available to the contractors before the board had seen them, and asked that in the future they be kept private till the members of the board had had an opportunity to study them and suggest changes,

The board then made certain minor ing fixtures to facilitate the use of changes in the specifications regard-Canadian-made goods. Changes were made in the specifi-cations for the roof. In the original draft a certain patent roofing was called for, but now any roofing ma-terial covered by a 20-year bond will answer the purpose. Copper flashings may also be used if covered by a 20-year bond. Trustee Cairneross thought the

"In the first place," said Mr. King, "Mr. Hayes never wrote any letter at all. There is no letter from Mr. Hayes to be found anywhere. The point is that agreement between the Grand Trunk and its employees was made at a meeting of the employees and the company. I was a witness to it. The agreement was a witness to it. The agreement was that the men other than those of violence were to be reinstated in their positions as soon as

"When the negotiations were going on these words as soon as possible created a good deal of discussion. The men said 'as soon as possible might mean a long time, a month, two months or a year. When that is done trade follows in good volume, but as soon as prices get beyond the reach of the consumer. hrough tariffs or anything else, he cuts down at once on his purchases. Mr. Wood informed The Advertiser in an interview that there had seen a definite and sustained improvement in trade. "Our business is argely dependent on the building trades, the manufacture of furniture and the automobile industry," said Mr. Wood. "The furnishing of glass for windows and store fronts as well as nterior fixtures has shown a marked improvement during the past few months. There is a steady demand, and although there have not been so many large buildings as in other years there has been a greater number of smaller ones. Our business will show an increase of at least twenty-five per cent over that of last year, and the improvement is more marked now than it was in the earlier part of the season "Another part of our industry is the manufacturing of mirrors for the furniture factories. This shows a distinct improvement, and the report we get from all the furniture makers is that they are doing good business and that their goods are moving out rapidly. There is also a demand for the better class of material." The Advertiser asked Mr. Wood as to the condition of collections, and are reply was: "Collections are all right, and not troubling us at all. We are doing a good volume of business here and are at the stage now where the factory is starting to work overtime some nights each week. That, to my way of thinking, is the best answer to your question as to how we find business."

work-out last night in the sleety ra and on a soggy field. A larger tur out was registered as a result of t coach's hint that Sarnia couldn't beaten by perusal of the rule-books.

There will be few changes in the team either in positions or additions. Undoubtedly Jerry Goodman will be used frequently Saturday, as he displayed good football when on the field played good rootea...

George Tuck will not play with Tigers this season. He was very anxious to get into the game, and announced last week that he would start practice, but, after an examination of the knee which gave him so much trouble in past after an examination of the knee which gave him so much trouble in past years, he was advised not to attempt to play. Dr. Mowbray, who is an honorary patron of the Tiger club, made a thorough examination, and informed Tuck that it might go back on him at any time. George accepted the advice, but deeply regrets the fact that he cannot play again. Coach Marriott is all smiles over the appearance of "Shiner" Woelke at last night's practice. Woelke is a Hamilton boy, and for some seasons past has been starring on various junior teams, but he showed in his first senior canter last evening that he is ready for the biz show.

If what the Argonaut players and supporters say about the attack made by Emmerson of the Ottawa Senators upon Georgie Thom, outside wing of the Argos, in Saturday's game at Ottawa is true, then the Interprovincial union should take action and suspend or expel Emmerson. The Argos allege that Emmerson deliberately and without reason struck Thom from behind and broke his nose. At any rate. Thom was out of the game and groggy for 40 minutes. After he was patched up he escaped from the dressing-room to the bench, and from there he injected himself into the game without leave or without really knowing what he was doing himself. Coach Mike Rodden says that Thom went on the last two minutes of the game without orders, and that the game was over before he could get him off.

Coach Rodden says that there was more deliberately rough stuff pulled off in the Ottawa-Argo game at Ottawa Saturday than he ever saw in one football game in his life. That is going some for Miguel. Nobody ever accused Mike of caressing any of his opponents with a powder-puff.

GUELPH TO HOLD ANNUAL ROAD RACES NOVEMBER 9

Big Progrem Is Set Up by Association for Thanksglving Day.

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, Oct. 20.—The Guelph crosscountry run and road race association will be again to the fore with a big program of road races to be held on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 9.

There will be four open races, 15-mile 5-mile, 10-mile cross-country and 10mile waik (handicap). Not less than six prizes will be awarded for each race. Over $1,000 worth of prizes will be offered, all of which will be donated by the citizens of Guelph. It is not a money-making venture, but simply an effort to stimulate road racing and to give a day of first-class sport.

Last year a large number of officials and others from out of the city were present and were high in their praise and commendation of the clean sport afforded, and of the management of

DEMPSEY-WILLS' FIGHT HAS NO LOCATION YET

Promotors of Battle Are Willing To Dispose of

Special to The Advertiser.

New York Oct. 20.—Who wants the Dempsey-Wills battle? As the writer predicted, the promoters of this big battle who signed Wills and the champion at Niles, Mich, are willing to dispose of their concession.

At least, reports to this effect come out of the west. Illinois boxing men advise the writer that, even if the boxing law is passed by popular vote in the state this year, a big spectacular mixed battle is the last thing wanted there while the game is in its infancy. At the same time, chambers of commerce, boosters and such organizations in other commonwealths learned a wholesome lesson from the experience of Shelby, Mont., and are quite content to seek less spectacular methods of obtaining publicity for their respective tecks of the woods.

Tex Rickard seems to think that the fight could be held in New York, but there seems to be a difference of opinion as to this. There are politician's here, it is known, who would oppose the project tooth and nail.

But, at that, the best chance of pulling off the battle profitably would be either in New York or New Jersey.

Private munificence having virtually assured the holding of the Olympic games in Amsterdam in 1928, plans have been drawn for the construction of a special stadium on the outskirts of the city.

Owing to the soggy nature of the ground along the Zuyder Zee, it will be necessary to drive 5,000 piles, each 50 feet in length, into the subsoil for a foundation. A million cubic metres of sand will be required to raise the level of the site. There will be 7,500 square metres of cemented surface.

The new stadium grounds will be about 35 acres in size.

Louisville, which is a hummer of a record, as the towns in the Dixie games are much smaller than the others.

The general results of post-season games show it is not population but interest in baseball that tends to make them profitable. The Fort Worth showing is a pattern for all minor league clubs. It may show better management in a way, and it may show progressive ownership but whatever else, it shows convincing proof of grit and persistence on the part of Jake Atz and his team. Six Texas league pennants fly over the roof of the grandstand at Fort Worth, and five Dixie championship flags are there, too The Fort Worth fans turned out 17,000 strong to see their team play in a Dixie series game. That's almost equal to Baltimore's record.

Mullen, Fort Worth third baseman, goes to Detroit. Keep an eye on him. He is the same Mullen who was with Brooklyn. He could field some in 1923, but not quite enough, and did not hat as hard as he should, but he perked up wonderfully when he got out to Texas last spring. He showed during the season that he was one of the niftiest minor league third basemen in the business. If he squares around and beats Warner out, Detroith should be pretty well fixed for 1926.

THE BRUTAL SPORTS.

Rough play killed lacrosse, yet rugby still flourishes, and it's still far from a mollycoddle's game. Probably in no game are there the chances, to commit deliberate foul play undetected, that there are in rugby, but as a rule the game is played in fairly clean fashion. They removed personal contact from basketball, and now it is charged that the fans are losing interest in the court game because it is getting too much of a pink tea affair, with a concert on the whistle thrown in. The whistle has never been recognized as a musical instrument any more than has the saxophone. And anyway, the fans like their basketball without musical accompaniment.

The trouble was in lacrosse that it was more gory than dangerous. A scrape from a lacrosse stick, wood or gut, would make of the victim a sorry-looking sight, but most of the wounds were heroic-looking, but superficial. They looked worse than they really were, and hence the word soon got around that lacrosse was a rough, dangerous game. Boxing presented the same gory aspects, and that was partly why it was branded as a rough, uncouth sport, and yet it's the blows that leave a little visible mark, and which don't draw blood, that are the most punishing in the fight game. The public's judgment of what constitutes roughness seems somewhat unstable and variable.

THE STRONG MAN.

Eugen Sandow's celebrity was such that his name became a synonym for superlative strength. To say of any man that he is "a perfect Sandow" is a useful short cut for a description of abounding Sandow is a discrete blowever by a man probably still stronger, Sigmund Breitbart, whose astonishing hipprodoming feats are fresh in the recollection of spectators. By a striking fatality these modern versions of Hercules have been cut off within a few days of each other. "Superhuman" strength does not make for longevity. Breitbart succumbed to blood-poisoning as the result of an apparently trifling scratch. Sandow was a victim of his own prowess, if his death is correctly attributed to the strain of lifting an automobile single-handed from a ditch.

If Sandow had flourished some fifteen hundred years ago, he would likely have been the leader of a Teuton tribe. Kings were selected after his physical pattern. He might have been in the forefront of the invasion of Hengist and Horsa. His English assimilation, however, was more peaceful. He became a naturalized Englishman, "professor of scientific and physical exercise to King George," and put recruits in shape to join the British army.

Sandow was at various times reported during the war as having been shot as a spy, at the Tower of London.

For instance, back in 1908 the Cubs were battling the Pirates and had a one-run lead in the eighth inning. Then the Cub pitcher went to pieces, passing two batters in a row after one man had been retired.

Ed. Ruelbach was called upon to perform in the rescue role, and promptly pitched four wild cnes, filling the bases. His first pitch to the next batter was called a ball. So was the second, whereupon Ruelbach seemed to be beside himself with rage, bawling out the umpire something scandalously.

When the umpire called a third ball on him. Ruelbach apparently lost all control of his emper. He turned upon the arbiter, shrieked something, and then three the ball toward the dugout. The Pittsburg runners naturally figured that Ruelbach had lost his head and, as some pitchers do at such times, had thrown the ball away. So they dashed wildly toward the plate, only to run into a double play. Ruelbach before he went into the box of the rick he would try to pull, had run up the first base line 20 feet toward the plate as he saw Ed whirl upon the umpire. REVOLT IN AFRICA

Appears That Italians Will Be Drawn Into Colonial War.

By JOHN GUNTHER

Special Cable to The Advertiser and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright. Rome, Oct. 20 .- It appears that Italy may be engaged in an African colonial war somewhat similar to the French and Spanish wars against Abd-el-Krim, according to communiques today from Mogadiscio in Italian Somiland. Three columns of Italian advanced from the coast and occupied several towns in Saltanato di Obbia, where restless tribes have been near revolt for several months. The vigor of the operations is shown by the simultaneous bombardment of coast towns by Italian battleships, four of which now are reported to be stationed off Hatun Ed Aluba. General Di Vecchio, the Italian governor, has been contemplating such a campaign for a long time to subdue rising tribes. Recently he made a 600-mile march throughout the district accompanied by troops A careful censorship veils the casualty report, the only statement

At the other end was a sliding door, its bottom beneath water. How far that door extended below the water level he could not remember.

For a man privileged to use his arms and legs and who could swim at all, escape would be easy in that direction. He could open the door or he could dive beneath it, round the corner of the building, and in a few strekes be within his depth.

He commenced to chew briskly and to move one foot. He could barely do this last, and so tightly were his ankle bones pressed together that the movement gave him considerable pain even through his heavy shoes.

But he kept on with those small movements. For a long time he made no progress and then the frayed strands of thread in his mouth commenced to give, one by one. He concentrated on that process until bring pressure enough to bear to gain much advantage so he commenced working his foot again.

He had been feverishly hot from his hand-to-hand combat; he had been chilled by apprehension and the dampness of his prison, but now he rommenced to sweat with the effort. Beads of moisture stood out on his face and trickled into his eyes. He tried to lift his legs and scrub them along the wall in the hope of finding a nall that would catch in the twine and tear it, but this availed him hothing—nothing directly; it did accomplish something, for when the strain of that posture became too great and he let his heels thud back to the planking he found that he tould move both feet.

I might have a chance to work, and ground his teeth, for even in the stress of the situation he found the tremendous problem into which the girl had plunged him surmounting everything else.

Her light hands touched his drenched clothing He heard her muttering in fright to herself.

"I can't get that wet twine—Here!" she cried, straightening, and from the pocket of her sweater drew a light silver penknife.

Then it was the work of a moment to sever the twine where it was tied and Goodheart was standing erect. moving his stiff and cramped arms wildly as he tore the net from him.

could move both feet. He worked as desperately at that small movement as a man could work with a shovel. His breath grew with a shovel. His breath grew short with it and his pulse speeded up, but every passing moment gave more liberty of action.

He stretched his toes upward as far as possible in vain attempts to eatch them in the mesh and tear it. He drew his knees up and put all the strain his leg muscles could bring to bear on the net. He groaned with bear on the interval of the street his street his street his and the street his stree

I got my legs loose and made that created the sound. But whatever it was he thought he heard a stealthy, muffled step outside. He istened. It did not come again, but he took no chances and rolling into the water, swam on his back for the seaward door.

Goodheart let his body float against it and groped with one foot for the bottom. It was, he judged, eight inches below the surface.

He hooked his toe beneath and pulled, expelling air from his lungs so he would sink more easily. A difficult feat, that. Slowly his body submerged, the meshes of the twine catching at irregularities in the bottom of the door. He worked his left leg outside and raised it, pressing the heel against the outer side of the door. His belly scrubbed through, his shoulders, and he rolled over, face down, forcing himself again to his back and up to the surface by a series of sharp, short kicks.

"Now!" he said, as he let the first

He could liberate himself now, he knew. He could simply rise, hobble to any one of the nearby net houses, find a protruding nail or end of a board and rip his bonds free. And yet at any moment those men who had tied him and laid him away in the old boat shelter might be back. He wanted a fair chance with them, sorter who had kept his gasoline launch there.

John had been in the place once, and after his eyes became accustomed to the darkness and a flood of tears caused by the irritation had washed the sand from the one, he twisted his head as far as he could and made certain of his location.

He had been left on the half floor of the shelter, close to the covered silp in which the small pleasure craft had once been moored. The door at the dock end was locked and built of heavy planking. Getting out that way would mean a deal of noise and would require time.

At the other end was a sliding he wanted to identify them, but he wanted to be free to take them on, singly or collectively. He wanted to be free to take them on, singly or collectively. He bit savagely on the gag in his mouth. He felt a strand of twine give as his teeth ground on it and that offset a measure of his rage. He could not roll back into the water without creating a disturbance. He did the only thing he could do: lay still and waited.

The one only thing he could not roll back into the water without creating a disturbance. He did the only thing he could do: lay still and waited.

And then, suddenly, one foot was free!

He drew it up and kicked out savagely, as savagely as he had kicked at his unidentified assallants. The stout twine gave with the force. Both legs were free from the knees down, but his thighs were etill locked together.

He paused a moment to regain breath and the thought came to him that his lonely struggle had taken lime, much time. Until he could free his arms he would be helpless should lhose men return, and the must not even be there when they came back.

He concentrated on the task of freeing his arms, and although they were crossed on his breast and he could bring great strength to bear by straining to extend his elbows, the net held him fast.

He sat up then, swining his feet that confounded net and—"But who did it?" she burst out, insistently, her face close to his, a pale oval in the gloom. "What had you been doing? You're soaked."

"I don't kn v much about it," he said quickly, or his caution was rising now, his reason functioning. He knew that he must send her away. The beach, this night, might prove to be no place for a girl like Janet, and besides—her presence, the touch of her hands, had set that small, wheedling voice within him talking.

He drove that entreating whisper to silence, though, and said: "Somebody's wanting to play a little joke on me, or else make a little trouble—a little more trouble for me. "Now!" he said as he let the first welcome breath of air into his lungs. "Now, come and find me!"

He swam on his back, forced to holey and rapid movement of his legs to make headway, and as soon as he had cleared the boathouse, swung himself toward shore.

The distance was not far; it would have been but a few moments' swim for a man under ordinary circumstances, but it took John Goodheart so long that he was all but exhausted when his heels struck bottom.

He rolled over, let his feet down and tried to rise to his knees but without the use of his hands he could not gain the required balance, so he turned on his back again and kicked himself along. When his shoulders touched he swung himself about, parallel with the beach line, and

TO THE RAILWAY WORKERS OF CANADA.

Dear Sirs:

I am credibly informed that a whispering campaign is being carried on in the endeavor to misrepresent my views, and the attitude of the Conservative Party, towards the Canadian National Railway System and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

In order that there may be no doubt in your mind as to where I stand on railway amalgamation, I give you my personal assurance that I have never given the slightest support to it, and I will oppose, either in office or in opposition, Parliament dealing with the question of amalgamation, unless as an issue to be placed squarely before the people at a future election for their decision.

Increased population and traffic, and not amalgamation, are needed to solve Canada's Railway problem. My railway policy is bound up with a reasonable and stable protective tariff, bringing with it prosperity and increased railway earnings, thus assuring regular full time employment for Canadian railroad workers, as against short time now prevailing in many branches of the railway service.

With my best wishes for a prosperous future,

I am,

IN MEMORIAM.

IN MEMORIAM.

CORBETT—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Sadie Corbett, who departed this life four years ago today, Oct. 21, 1921.

We are sad within our memory, Lonely are our hearts today, For the one we love so dearly Has forever been called away.

We think of her in silence, No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed When others are asleep.

—Alfred Corbett and son Harold.

Company Will Ask Consent of City To Take Two Cars Off North Normal.

BUS MEN LAY PLANS

The London Street Railway company will shortly seek permission from the city to change service on at least three routes. At the present time abandonment of the twocar Normal line and reduction in service on one or two other lines. There would, accordingly, be improvement in service on other lines. However, definite decision has not been reached by the street railway. The city has not been formally consulted on the matter.

Sanction of the city engineer and council must be secured before service can be changed on the street railway lines. Some weeks ago the company discussed service changes with council representatives, but no decision was reached.

The street railway company wants to cut off the service on the Normal line. Last May the Ontarlo railway board closed the Victoria bridge and the south Normal loop was abandoned. Since then a 10-minute service has been maintained on the northern Richmond-Central-Adelaide-Dundas loop. Service has been as good as possible, street railway officials contend, but the line is not paying. Alternative Plan.

The company would eliminate the Normal line altogether, and use the Normal cars to establish a two-way service on the North Belt line. The company has also considered reduc-ing service on the Dundas route and

HAIRBREADTH ESCAPE EXPERIENCED BY BOY

Fire Truck Brought To a Stop As Front Wheels Strike Lad.

Special to The Advertiser. St. Thomas, Oct. 20.-Leslie Law, Locust street, escaped death by a hairsbreadth at noon today when he fell from his wheel in the path of the big fire truck driven by Fireman Arthur Lavery. The lad was on an errand for the Talbot Shoe Company and was traveling east on Talpany and was traveling east on Taibot street, holding to the ear of a Ford truck which preceded the piece of fire apparatus. At the corner of Taibot and Elgins streets he skidded with his wheel and fell six feet in front of the truck. Mr. Lavery acted promptly and brought the truck to a standstill as the front wheels touched the boy.

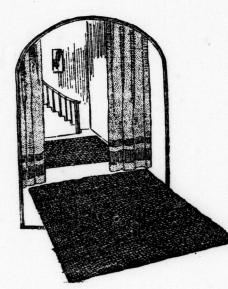

From the Orient Straight To You

From the east these rugs of beautiful colorings and designs have comefrom the smallest prayer rug to the largest room rugs they are of exquisite workmanship. Did you ever consider that these rugs you admire so much are all made by the knotting of threads together and that it is all done by hand? It takes a long while to make one and when a number are made they are loaded on the backs of camels and brought to the seaports and finally across the ocean to us.

Beautiful, heavy silky rugs that last a lifetime; they impart beauty to your home and make it the admiration of your friends and the pride and joy of yourself.

The amount of work entailed, the beauty, the durability, and the unrivaled workmanship make these rugs, selling at the prices they are, exceedingly reasonable.
