CANADA A TEMPERATE COUNTRY.

From recent figures published, Canada stands high as a temperate country. In England every inhabitant is credited with the consumption of a gallon of spirits, a barrel of beer, four-tenths of a gallon of cider, etc. This is computed to cost him $20.24. In Scotland he consumes twice as much spirits, only half as much beer and wine, and about quarter as much cider, etc. The cost is reduced to $16.13. In Ireland, the most temperate of the three, the consumption of spirits is one and a tenth gallon per inhabitant, half a barrel of beer, a third of a gallon of wine and the same amount of cider as in Scotland. The cost is $14.06. The Canadian consumption is seven-tenths of a gallon of spirits, four and a third gallons of beer, and a very small measure of wine, at a cost of $5.25. Speaking roughly, England spends for drink four times as much per head as Canada, and Scotland and Ireland in the neighborhood of three times as much.

WAKE UP, QUEBEC!

If the people of the old city of Quebec were to wake up and do something toward making their city the summer port for Canada, instead of catering to the prejudices of American tourists, it would be much better for Quebec and much better for Canada, says the Hamilton Spectator. But so long as the people of the old city are content to live on the bounty of sight-seers who go there to see a stagnant old world town set down in this new world, so long Montreal will be the summer port of Canada at the expense of the people of the country.

We beg to assure the sordid people of Quebec that there is much more money in making the city a live, progressive, twentieth century seaport than in exhibiting the place as a relic of the sixteenth century, and there's more money in receiving and shipping the goods of Canada than there is in boarding the whole caboodle of the late Gen. Montgomery's relatives all the year round.

Wake up, Quebec, and help yourself, and the people of the Dominion will help you to your natural position as the head of navigation on the St. Lawrence for ocean-going vessels.

Let the tips of the Montgomery family go, and get a trade gait on!

THE PATRIOTIC WITNESS.

The Montreal Witness is not governed by the Quebec idea that it is the proper thing to dedicate the ancient capital with monuments to the memory of dead American invaders, that live American tourists may be influenced to visit the monuments and drop a few American dollars incidentally. The Witness is quite hot over the cheeky Montgomery proposition, and says:

"The demand for a monument in Quebec for Gen. Montgomery appears to us to be ignominious all round. The Americans, who are asking for it, exhibit an effrontery almost unparalleled. If they value Montgomery as a national hero let them inscribe his name on Bunker Hill monument, or in some other public place in their own country. Their desire to place it in Quebec is simply a desire to triumph over a one-horse country that for the sake of tourists' dollars would glorify an invader. Why Quebec would permit such a monument—if she did so—would be obvious to all. It would be the same motive which makes many of our traders and hotelkeepers fly the American flag more prominently than their own, a motive which nobody will despise and misunderstand, as the Americans will who never see the stars and stripes floating in Canada, but they imagine that Canada is restive under the shadows of that colossal imaginary bugbear of their own school days, British tyranny. If a monument is to be raised to Montgomery, surely the name of Benedict Arnold should be also inscribed upon it, as Arnold was with Montgomery, and is a hero of equal virtue and equal fame. If Arnold was a traitor and sold secrets to the British, Montgomery was a traitor and sold secrets to the Americans, the only difference being that Arnold delivered the goods he sold, while Montgomery, though he offered his secret, turned out to have nothing of that sort to sell."

THE ANGLO-SAXON.

The picture of England going forth to war against nations less civilized than herself, with a Bible in one hand and a sword in the other, is one that has long been held up before the public gaze, says the Woodstock Express. "Perfidious Albion" cries the Frenchman, as he looks upon it, and hypocrisy seems to be her most noteworthy characteristic. Aline Gorren, in his clever and trenchant book, "Anglo-Saxons and Others," undertakes to prove that the Anglo-Saxon is the most thorough-going hypocrite that has ever been produced, but that he does not know he is a hypocrite, and the fact of his being a hypocrite and not knowing it is one of his

FOR A CHILD

who is "not doing well"—the condition occurs now and then with all children.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is a food that begins to build you up at once—of course, it don't show at once.

"Not doing well" means that the child is not getting the good of his food. Not today, or this week; it may have been going on for a month; before it begins to show in the child's condition.

You want him to get back to turning his usual food into strength.

You want the food that begins to build, up at once.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

greatest elements of strength. If he saw that in carrying the Christian religion to other nations, that possess merchandise he wants he is responding to his commercial instincts as well as to his missionary zeal, and if he realized that in every case it is two for himself and one for the other nation, he might vacillate sometimes. He might distrust and doubt himself sometimes, and weakness would be the result. But no such thought ever obtrudes itself upon the Anglo-Saxon. He is convinced that his country is the best in the world; that his form of government, his educational methods, his ideas and mode of life, surpass those of any other nation and that once this is recognized by other nations they will fall in with his ideas and be grateful ever after. It may be necessary to use the sword to clinch the argument—it usually is—but some nations, like some children, are so stubborn, and so dead to right feelings that the sword and the rod are the only kind of reasoning that they can understand.

The two ruling passions of the Anglo-Saxon are religion and commercialism. The belief in his own institutions is part of his religion, and the two are so closely connected that he cannot divide them, either in his actions or in his own mind. If it were pointed out to the practical-minded Anglo-Saxon that there was any incongruity in this he would not be able to see it. If he were told that carrying weigh-scales in one hand and the Gospel in the other was inconsistent, and that he should not try to obtain commercial benefits as a result of his conversions, he would ask "why not?" and it would be impossible to make him see that it was not compatible with the Gospel to seek his own benefit. The instinct of commercialism is so strong that it would be incomprehensible to him, why, when he was bestowing such inestimable benefits as his religion, and his civil, political and educational institutions, on the unwilling heathen, he should not receive some return! The Anglo-Saxon, whether he lives under the Union Jack or under the Stars and Stripes, is blissfully ignorant of the fact that the benefit to his own pockets is the real motive of his zeal for the welfare of others. He is unknowingly a hypocrite. And this, according to Mr. Gorren's book, is the secret of his success as a colonist and as the leader of the commercial nations of the world. "That trait of his which is called hypocrisy, but which is not hypocrisy, only a confusion of ideas and feelings, is the direct cause of one-half his impressiveness. The day on which he loses it will be a day of disaster, however much the loss may raise him in the estimation of philosophers. When he is a 'hypocrite' no longer he will have but half his present energy, but half his present audacity, but half his present here-I-stand-on-my-two-feet-planted."

It is this "hypocrisy" that makes him present the paradoxical appearance of an individual straightforwardness and uprightness beyond question, coupled with a national idea of honor and fair play that is some distance removed from his individual standard. His patriotism is warped and has perverted his judgment. His is a peculiar nation, set apart, and his God-given institutions must be upheld at any cost. It was meant that they should be and he is the peculiar instrument meant to carry them out. Hence the force, dogged determination and unswerving purpose that is the secret of his success; his overlooking of obstacles that would be unsurmountable to anyone less convinced of the right of his own cause, and the disinterestedness of his own motives.

Such is the picture of the modern Anglo-Saxon, drawn by a critic and not unfriendly hand. Is it a faithful likeness?

We see a lot of stuff in the papers these days about "shortstops" joining "teams," and "basemen" who have been "signing." What is it all about?

It's not the being under fire that Col. Rankin fears for his regiment. It's the being under fire-water.

If some Macaroni would rise up now and introduce wireless politics, what a revolution would be wrought in the science of government.

The Woodstock Express, Independent, pertinently remarks that the more the Cook charges are investigated the more the need of investigation is apparent.

Lieut. Hobson, of Merrimack fame, is engaged to be married to an Alabama girl. He can't get off that old bluff about her being the first girl he ever kissed.

Spencer Wilkinson, the military critic, has emerged from his solitude to announce that the British are hammering the stamens out of the Boers, says the Woodstock Express. It is hoped that Spencer is doing better guessing now than he did during the early stages of the war.

May a Methodist minister smoke tobacco? is the question with which the court of appeal of the church is struggling at Toronto. Godrich Signel.

So long as he smokes fairly good tobacco we can see no objection; but we think the line ought to be drawn at mullein leaves, tea, cigarettes, bar-room cigars and that kind of rubbish. But, of course, we are not the court of appeal.

Speaking of the war between the Liberal organs of Quebec and Ontario, Mr. Tarte's La Patrie and the Toronto Globe, the St. John Sun is mission, he might vacillate sometimes. He might distrust and doubt himself sometimes, and weakness would be the result. But no such thought ever obtrudes itself upon the Anglo-Saxon. He is convinced that his country is the best in the world; that his form of government, his educational methods, his ideas and mode of life, surpass those of any other nation and that once this is recognized by other nations they will fall in with his ideas and be grateful ever after. It may be necessary to use the sword to clinch the argument—it usually is—but some nations, like some children, are so stubborn, and so dead to right feelings that the sword and the rod are the only kind of reasoning that they can understand.

My watch—little watcher, good night!
You're as true as steel and as good as gold
and changeless alike in darkness or light.
So, wake, while the night grows gray and old.

My watch—little watcher, good morning!
You're the hands that never will shrink;
Three jewels there are your soul adorning.
I call them Constancy, Patience and Work.

My watch—little watcher, good night!
Tis a comfort to have you so very near.
For you seem to say: "All's right, all's right!"
As the best of your faithful heart I hear.

You're telling me now, 'Tis a precious day!
I spend it as I grow, give me warm

THE FORTUNE TELLER.

"Oh, hush, put! how can you?"
The old high balliff of Krohn pushed on away the pretty little hand that his eldest daughter sought to place over his mouth.

"No," he said, "I will not keep quiet.
I repeat that the whole custom of sending
New Year's cards is a bad one, and it is time to put an end to it. What are the results of such nonsense?"

"First, I get my mail bag an hour later than usual, and, secondly, it is cramped so full of the stupid stuff
that I can hardly get it open!"

At length the old gentleman's efforts were rewarded, the bag sprang open,
and he emptied its contents with impudence on the breakfast table.

"Just look what a lot there are for me," cried Katharine, filling the letters upon the table in front of her, and her face lighting up with pleasure.

"Are they all for you?"

"Yes, all. Now you can see what it is to be known as a beauty."

"And an heiress," added the father.
"Yes, and an heiress," she repeated,
thoughtfully.

"But is there nothing there for my little Lili?" asked the father.

Katharine shrugged her shapely shoulders impatiently.

"Why, of course not. If a girl expects to be shown much attention she must be a little more pushing and important."

"And an heiress, too?" was the father's laconic addition to the sentence.

"I really should be very grateful, father, if you would not allude so much to my money," was the rather curt protest.

"I can't help it, Katharine, when I see my little Lili here, as beautiful as the flower that gave her the name,
and—well, she is not an heiress, do you understand. That's the whole thing."

Katharine made no answer. She was busy studying the handwriting on the envelopes.

A young girl who had hitherto sat
opposite to her in silence left her seat, went up to the high balliff, and, putting her fair young arms around his neck, gave him a kiss.

A world of love shone in his eyes
as he looked at her with pleasure and stroked her soft cheeks.

"Never mind, Lili," he said, slowly.
"I am glad that you do not get such a pile of letters. I'm grateful, too, that you're not an heiress. Perhaps then we will take you away from me."

The high balliff of Krohn, the father of these two girls, had married twice.
His first wife, a lovely, proud,
vain woman, died soon after the birth of a little daughter and left her the whole of a large fortune. His second wife, the daughter of a country clergyman, brought him no wealth, but sweet and beautiful disposition. When she, too, died after two years of married life, he felt overwhelmed and had never sleep wholly recovered from the blow.

Katharine, the elder of the children, had just finished her twentieth year, and as she was as proud, pretty and just as vain as her mother, had already laughed at many proposals for her hand and money. No one had so far been able to take her fancy.

Lili was in almost every respect the opposite of her sister. Small in figure, quiet and retiring, it happened that she was often entirely overlooked. It was not right of a father to love one daughter more than another.

Still, he did so, and it was plain to everybody that it was the soft, sweet,
patient Lili who was his favorite.

It made Katharine feel annoyed to see her father so gentle and affectionate toward her sister, for she said,
with a sharp look at them both:

"What! Kissing again? I cannot understand how you find pleasure in always lying round each other's necks."

"You are out of sorts, Katharine,"
said her father. "One of the cards
you expected has not come, perhaps.
I would almost wager that among all letters there is none from Baron Horn!
Eh?"

Katharine grew a shade paler at these words.

"I certainly expected a card from Baron Horn," she replied, trying to conceal her annoyance. "He surely has sent me one! Are you sure you emptied the mail bag thoroughly?"

"Yes, I think so. But you had better look for yourself; it would not be the first time that a letter has remained stuck in one of the corners."

"Ah! I thought so," exclaimed Katharine, pulling a crumpled letter out of a deep corner of the bag.

She glanced quickly and sharply at the address, and then with an exclamation of vexation left the letter hurriedly drop.

"Not from Baron Horn, after all!"
asked her father, picking it up, "and yet that is his writing. Heavens! why it's for you, Lili! It's addressed to you!"

"Oh! impossible!" said Lili, quietly,
while a faint blush rose to her pretty cheeks. "It must be a mistake."

"By no means," returned her father, smiling. "Here, open it! Let us all see it. Oh, what a lovely card! Why, Katharine, where are you going?"

But the father received no answer.
Katharine hurriedly gathered up her letters and left the room in a whirlwind.

The above mentioned Baron Horn was a young nobleman who had just returned from Africa. It was well known that he took great pleasure in visiting the Van Krohn family, and under all manner of pretenses took every opportunity to be with them.

Of course everyone thought that the attraction was the rich and beautiful Katharine, and she herself took particular pains to spread this view of the matter.

Accustomed as she was to a large number of enthusiastic admirers, she had never for a moment imagined that the Baron could interest himself in her quiet little sister until she was reminded to-day in a rather unpleasant manner of the possibility of such a thing.

She read her letters through and became better humored.

"How stupid of me to get so cross,"
she said, as she smiled at her lovely face in the glass. "It is not possible that he favors Lili when he knows me."

There came a gentle knock at the door, and the servant girl came in and announced that the carriage was at the door.

Katharine at once remembered that Baron Horn had promised to go for a drive with her, and with the thought her face grew bright once again.

A charitable bazaar was to be opened in a neighboring town, and, as the father was not able to go, Baron Horn had offered his escort to the two young ladies.

The Baron was as punctual as most lovers—that is to say, he came half an hour before the time and found Katharine quite ready to his great astonishment, for, as a rule, she kept everybody waiting half an hour at least.

Her purpose of frustrating a tetea-tete between Lili and the Baron was completely successful, for she did not move from his side until all three were ready to get into the carriage.

The father stood with beaming face on the doorstep and waved a fond farewell after them.

"This Horn is a very sensible fellow," he thought to himself, "and I admire his choice. It will be very hard to lose Lili, but I would let him have her rather than anyone else."

Although the bazaar was crowded
the arrival of Baron Horn and his two lovely companions caused considerable excitement, and they were speedily surrounded by acquaintances.

Among these was a Capt. Linke, a tall, blonde fellow, and one of Katharine's most sincere and faithful admirers.

"How glad I am to see you here,"
he said.

"Really! Why?"

"May I show you why? Please come with me. At the other end of the hall
there is a fortune teller, and I want you to see what she will tell you."

"May we join you?" asked the Baron.

"Certainly. Come, we will go together."

The mysterious room that held the fortune teller proved to be a little figure in the middle of a disc.

Round the disc were figures and numbers and slips of paper arranged.
Any one who wanted to see into the future paid a mark, set the figure revolving, and took the slip of paper opposite which it stopped.

"Now, my genediges fraulein," said
the captain, taking out his purse,
"won't you try your luck?"

But Katharine refused positively to be a party to such nonsense, and, instead, she asked permission to inquire of the oracle herself.

She set the figure in motion and took the slip of paper opposite which it stopped.

"Seek her hand and buy the ring,"
the figure would then be full of joy," ran the words.

"Fritz Blitz!" cried the captain turning to Katharine, "that is famous;
you really must be persuaded to try it now. Or shall I do it for you?"

"You may do it for me," she replied,
in such sharp tones that every one looked at her.

The captain turned to the figure and read the words: "Hast thou not often heard it said?" He hesitated; then he took the paper up and threw it on the floor. The conclusion of the sentence seemed to suit the many prophecies that Katharine had received too well
for him to read it.

"What was the rest, captain?" asked the Baron in all innocence. But the captain looked so displeased that the question was not pressed.

"I wonder what it was?" Lili whispered to the Baron.

"We shall learn later, perhaps," he replied. "But did you get my New Year's card this morning?"

"Yes," she answered, softly, with a blush.

"And you remember what the fortune-teller told me just now? If I buy a ring will you wear it?"

She lowered her eyes and said: "I don't know. You must first speak to papa."—From the German in Chicago Times.

Late Supper.

The old tradition that to eat anything just before going to bed was sure to produce indigestion and render sleep impossible is now happily exploded. It is not good, as a matter of fact, to go to bed with the stomach
so loaded that the undigested food should render one restless, but something of a light, palatable nature is the stomach is one of the best aids to quietude and rest in bed. The process of digestion goes on in sleep with as much regularity as when one is taking violent exercise to aid it, and so something in the stomach is a very desirable condition for the night's rest. Some physicians have declared, indeed, that a good deal of the prevalent insomnia is the result of an unconscious craving of the stomach for food in persons who have been unduly frightened by the opinion that they must not eat before going to bed, or have, like many nervous women, been keeping themselves in a state of semi-starvation.

Nothing is more agreeable on a betting for the night than to take a bowl of hot broth, like oatmeal gruel or clam soup. It is positive aid to nervous people, and induces peaceful slumbers.
This is especially the case on cold winter nights, when the stomach craves warmth as much as any other part of the body. Even a glass of hot milk is grateful to the palate on such occasions, but a light, well-cooked gruel is better, and in our climate during the cold months of winter should be the retiring food of every woman who feels, as many do, the need of food at night.—New York Tribune.

Children

Have "eyes bigger than their stomachs," according to an old saying. They over-eat themselves, and are tempted by all sorts of injurious and indigestible edibles. As a consequence the foundation of serious stomach trouble is often laid in childhood.

For children with "weak" digestion or whose stomachs are diseased, Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery may be confidently recommended. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nourishment contained in food is perfectly assimilated and the puny child is built up by food into a condition of robust health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery
contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.
Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.
Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterville, Middlesex Co., Va., writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health. I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. Wherever she feels badly I give her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she is soon all right. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pellies,' and one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and she is well.
We thank God for your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of custom and mailing only.

All on Account of the Boots.

As a sergeant was bawling out his orders in a barracks in Dublin and watching the line of feet as the raw recruits endeavored to obey the word of command he found, to his astonishment, that one pair of feet, more noticeable on account of their extra large size, never turned.

Without taking his eyes off those feet
the sergeant bawled out a second order:

"About face!"

He could see that all the feet except those he watched turned in obedience.

Rushing up to the owner, a little fellow, he seized him by the shoulder,
shouting:

"Why don't you turn with the rest?"

"I did," replied the trembling recruit.

"You did, eh? Well, I watched your feet, and they never moved."

"It's the boots they gave me, sir,"
said the poor fellow. "They're so large that when I turn my feet turns inside
of them."—London Answers.

The Disadvantage of Delicacy.

The editor sent her little story back,
with a polite note praising its delicacy,
but saying it was unsuitable to his magazine. Again she sent it forth.
Once more it was returned with kind words for its delicate touches and regrets that it was unavailable. When a third time the little story had been praised for its delicacy, but rejected,
the authoress was in despair.

"It looks to me," she said, "as if my story was so delicate that it had gone into a decline."—New York Mail and Express.

They Raised Pears.

While Bishop Potter of the Episcopal church was travelling through Louisiana some years ago he addressed inquire to his fellow passengers with a view of obtaining knowledge regarding the orchards and fruit interests of the state.

"Do you raise pears in Louisiana?"
inquired the bishop.

"We do," responded the Louisianian,
"if we have three or better."

ADOFF THEIR BONNETS.
"I think the ladies should take off their hats in church," said R. S. Dunlop yesterday. "If they don't we will have to build our churches in the same style as the theatre. Ladies take off their hats in the houses of divine worship on the other side, and I would like to see them do likewise here."

RATS ANNIHILATED.
Deputy Humane Officer McGregor
has a horrible tale of butchery and slaughter and perhaps cruelty to animals. The worthy detective tells the tale, however, with some elation, and a certain degree of gratitude for the man who did the deed. The officer has a large kettle in which he cooks the food for his dogs. William Lecocq brings the dog feed down from the Hotel Garner. The other day, when Bill looked in the pot he saw a whole horde of rodents struggling at the bottom of the kettle. There was about four inches of grease at the bottom of the huge iron cauldron, and the rats had got in and couldn't get out. Bill got a spade and, having the animals at his mercy, reduced the rodent population of this city by 17.
Detective Jim buried the rats and was grateful to the man who did the killing.

ANOTHER TRIBUTE TO MINERAL WATER

Warm Ful'ogy Extended by Robt. Black,
Who Experienced Its Wonderful
Curative Powers.

Robert Black, a retired farmer, who who lives on Lorne avenue, is another gentleman who is glad of an opportunity to tell of the curative powers of the Chatham Mineral Water.

Mr. Black has been one of Chatham's leading citizens for a number of years and in an interview with The Planet
this morning, said:—

"I have been troubled for a long time with sciatic rheumatism from my knees to my hips and all last winter I could hardly get around with the use of a cane. I tried all kinds of patent medicines and other remedies which were mentioned to me, but to no avail. I have even rubbed myself with liniments until I have about rubbed the skin off, but all to no purpose.

"As soon as the mineral well was opened up I got some of the water and began using
it. I heated the water and bathed myself with it and also took some inwardly.

"In one month from time I commenced using it I was perfectly cured and have not been using it since."

This is certainly a high eulogy for the Maple City mineral water and should encourage the energetic promoters of the company.

ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT.

Last evening a good audience gathered in the Assembly Hall at the Collegiate Institute to hear Professor Clark of Trinity College, give a lecture on Tennyson, being the last of the series of entertainments given each year by the Collegiate Institute.
Professor Clark reviewed the work of Tennyson and read several choice extracts from his works, which were very much enjoyed by all.

Miss Pearl White and W. H. Brackin each sang solos, which were highly appreciated, and all left having thoroughly enjoyed the evening's entertainment.

THE KIDNEYS AND THE SKIN.

In the spring, the kidneys have much to do. If they are weak or torpid, they will not do it well, and the skin will be pimply or blotchy. That is telling the story in a few words.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, cures and prevents pimples, blotches and all cutaneous eruptions.
Don't fail to take it.

A powerful chapter from one of the most remarkable of recorded human experiences, appears in McClure's Magazine for May—

Devil's Isle. To this story is added a portion of the diary kept by Dreyfus on the island, for his wife, and referred to so often
and so mysteriously in the Rennes trial,
but never made public.

The growth of this institution during the last two years has been wonderful. The attendance has been doubled on account of the thorough course of training which we give. Within the last month two of our students have gone direct from the College to positions paying $500 a year. WE QUALIFY OUR STUDENTS TO FILL THE BEST POSITIONS.

Young people are foolish to spend the best part of their lives learning Latin, French and the dead languages, when a few months spent in our Commercial or Shorthand Department will fit them to earn salaries like the above. POOR BOY MUCH MOVED

Would Not Shock His "Mother" by Allowing Her to See Him in a Cell.

Latest Ever Run of Mr. Currie's Personator to Escape From the Tombs.

New York, April 26.—Stoddard, alias Hart, the man who swindled Mrs. Currie, of Toronto, by sending a message that her husband was in the Tombs under the name of Hart, is still keeping at it.

Stone walls do not a prison make for his genius.

An elderly woman from up the state called at the Tombs yesterday and said she wanted to see "her boy." It turned out that she had got a letter purporting to come from her son, saying that he was in a scrape and was at the Tombs under the name of Hart.

The letter asked for $100 to get him out. The mother decided to come in person with the money. She was told at the Tombs that Hart would see no visitors. "Tell him it is his mother," she said.

Hart sent back this message: "My mother must not see me in a cell. The shock would be too much for her. Tell her to do the best to leave me."

Then the woman engaged a lawyer to do what he could to save her boy. Before she and the lawyer had time to do much, Detective McConville heard of Hart's latest trick, and showed the woman a photograph of the prisoner. That put an end to that game.

Mr. J. A. Currie, of Toronto, came to this city yesterday, and after a talk with District Attorney Philbin decided to prosecute Hart. Mrs. Currie also will come on.

DEMISE OF MRS. HUFF.

Mary Ellen Van Horn was born in Kent County, Ontario, Canada, Dec. 4, 1860, and departed this life from her home Chippewa Lake, Meoseta Co., Michigan, April 20, 1901. She was converted in early childhood, developing while young a staunch Christian character.

April 8, 1885, she was united in marriage to Rev. Paul D. Huff. Thus for more than 16 years they walked together in companionship most blessed. Five children are left to mourn with the sorrowing husband, but he who comforts has said "Ye shall be comforted."

Quiet and retiring in nature those loved most who knew her best. She gave herself to the care and training of the priceless jewels God had given her, but now are to be left to the care of others.

We all mourn, but to this husband and these children is left the sorrow that feels most keenly how great the loss is. But they wish us are cheered by the thought of her gain.

Brother and Sister Huff came to Michigan in 1891, beginning the work of the itinerancy, laboring together faithfully but now she is called from labor to reward. Holy influence of a holy life! Who can measure it? Heaven richer, souls happier, eternity brighter.

Home to the place of her childhood days in Canada her body is to be borne, the the spotless soul is now with her Heavenly Father in that changes never come.

Besides a husband and five children, Sister Huff leaves a father, two brothers and two sisters, all living in Canada.

She was brought home on Monday, the 22nd of April, where a large number of sorrowing friends had collected to bid her a last farewell. The coffin was covered with beautiful flowers, loving tributes of sorrowing relatives and friends. After a short service by Rev. Mr. Locke she was carried to the family burying ground, on the Van Horn homestead and reverently laid to rest beside her mother and brother who had gone before, to await the Master's call, affectionately remembered by all who knew her. She was carried to the grave by six loving brothers, viz., Solomon, Sylvester, Warren and Tecumseh Huff and Daniel and J. W. Van Horn.

TRAVELLING GRAIN.

The raw material of the carload seems to have left Chatham on the 1st of April on a pleasure excursion. Whether and how far it went, I am not certain. But one may fancy its movements as follows:—Its first visit is to Niagara, where it gazes with rapture and admiration on the mighty cataract. Then it views with special interest the wealth, enterprise, energy and progressive Hamilton. Next, its astonishment is excited by the vastness and splendour of the new parliamentary buildings at Toronto. Exploration in Algoma, then occupies its attention for a couple of days.

Soon again, it is on the field where we fought the battle of the Thames, and gazes with proud and patriotic emotion on that scene of Canadian and British valor. Anon, it is again in Chatham and finds that its excursion has occupied only a few seconds.

Now, in the twinkling of an eye, the grain is transformed into flour, enclosed in barrels and bags, and starts half an hour after midnight on the morning of the 1st of April for its far-off destination.

After the lapse of nearly fifteen days, having travelled on the average, at the marvellous rate of about four miles per hour, it reaches this station. I suppose the proper name of this singular process is, "Grinding in Transit." Wishing you, gentlemen, much success, in your business, etc.

A NOVEL WILL.

It is Now Being Discussed in the Supreme Courts at St. Petersburg.

One of the wealthiest land proprietors near Smolensk, in Russia, died a few months ago, and after his funeral his heirs and attorneys began to look for his will. They fancied that this task would be merely perfunctory, and that the document would be found on a table in the family papers, but, among the other surprises, they were unable to find the slightest trace of it. The house was then carefully searched but the result was the same, and the only conclusion was either that no will had ever been made or that if one had been made it was destroyed before their kinsman's death.

The missing document, however, was found a few days ago and in the strangest place imaginable. A young man was rambling through the house, and, happening to see a graphophone on a table in the library, he examined it to see if it was in working order, and finding that it was he put a record in it, which he supposed was that of some popular Russian song. What was his amazement, however, when instead of a song he heard the dead man's voice slowly recite the words of the missing will!

The heirs were promptly notified of this discovery and they lost no time in carefully examining the record containing the will. It was found to be flawless, and the question then arose whether such a will would be deemed valid by the courts or not.

This question is now being discussed in the supreme court at St. Petersburg and the case is interesting all lawyers who have heard of it. Many think that the will will be pronounced entirely valid, and if so it may become a common practice for persons to use graphophones for the purpose of making their wills.

Man's Growing Unimportance.

There is one place where a man counts for very little, and where his influence is at a distressing minimum; and that is at a wedding. This has long been so, but now matters are growing rapidly worse, and the presence of men at a marriage ceremony is becoming less and less necessary. In fact, they are being almost entirely eliminated in quite recent weddings in ultra fashionable circles. At a marriage in New Haven a few days ago, the bridegroom, clergyman and best man were the only males present, while there was a most impressive array of maids of honor, bridesmaids, ribbon girls, flower maidens, and other feminine attendants.

That wedding was followed by another, in which a woman preacher officiated, showing that a male clergyman is not indispensable, and there has been suggested an innovation that is likely to put a "best woman" in place of the "best man." That will draw the sex line down to bridegroom—who never has been anything but an awkward figure at a wedding. Though there has as yet been no move to displace him, even that is not impossible, if we can credit the story of a negro "wedding" that comes from Virginia, as told by one of the lady guests.

"It was a lovely wedding. The elite was all there in such gorgeous dresses, the music was faintly the refreshments were just superb," she said.

"And the bride?"

"Oh! she was just too lovely for anything. You should have seen that dress and veil, and those orange blossoms."

"Don't ask about him. That miserable good-for-nothing, low down man never came near the wedding."

Great Man's Tender Heart.

Lord Lawrence, Viceroy of India, was a blunt man of action, impatient of conventionalities and thoroughly self-reliant. Yet, like many of the truly great, he had a heart as tender as a woman's. The night on which he started from London to govern India he gathered all his family in the drawing room and made each child repeat a favorite hymn to him. His youngest son, 10 years old nestled in his father's arms. Suddenly the strong man burst into tears: "I shall never," he cried "see Bertie a child again."

It was not of the hardships before him, or of his own death he thought, but of the fact that Bertie would not be a child to him on his return.

On board the steamer with the Governor General of India was a lady with her infant child. She neglected the baby, which she had brought with her, by crying all day and night. The passengers complained in language more forcible than polite.

"Steward, throw that baby overboard!" was petulantly shouted from sleepless berths.

At last Lord Lawrence, seeing that the child was left motherless by its own mother, took it to his knee. For hours he would hold it, showing it his watch, and anything that would amuse it. The child took to the great, strong man and was always quiet when he held it.

"Why do you, my lord," asked one of the relieved passengers, surprised to see the Governor General of India playing nurse to a crying baby, "why do you take such notice of that child?"

"Because, to tell you the truth," answered Lord Lawrence, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "that child is the only being in the ship who I can feel quite sure does not want to get anything out of me."

A dealer in natural history specimens, who has a little shop in the East End of London, has discovered that there is a market for spiders. The spiders are sold by the hundred, the price ranging from 2s. 6d. to 3s., and the buyers are small firms of wine merchants.

These merchants stock their cellars with new, freshly labelled wine, sprinkle dust upon the bins, and admit the spiders, who weave their webs from cork to cork.

The cobwebs naturally lead the customers to believe that the wine has been stored for years, and higher prices are therefore obtained from all parts, and some of the large ones of the garden variety are particularly prized, as they weave a particularly strong, thick web. When received, these spiders are placed in a large cage of very fine wire netting, and are fed daily on small insects.—Answers.

PIE GOING OUT OF FASHION.

At Least That Is the Experience of Chicago.

Pie is becoming extinct. In the better hotels and restaurants it occupies a less and less conspicuous place on the bill of fare, and very often is not even mentioned in any one of its infinite varieties. In private homes, too, the pie-eating habit is distinctly on the wane, and its place at dessert is taken by puddings, custards and ices.

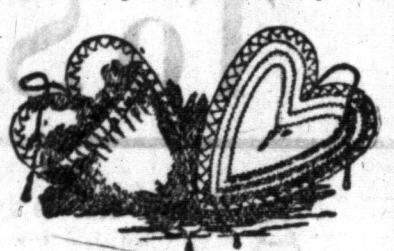

The lunch counter is really the only place in which pie holds its old-time position and forms the crowning bite of a hasty lunch. The millionaire and the callow office boy were always most given to the pie habit, and many of them are still faithful to the standard cuts but the great majority have given up allegiance to the dyspeptic dainty.

"Yes, pie is going out of date," an old restaurant man said regretfully. "Time was when six kinds of pie were not considered too much for one day's bill of fare, and now our pastry cooks make but two varieties per day. What causes this decline of the pie?"

"Well, that is a hard question to answer, but I think the great outcry against its unhealthfulness has had a good deal to do with it. For years the doctors and the papers have been telling Americans that they were becoming a race of dyspeptics because they loved pie, not wisely, but too well. The New Englanders and New Yorkers were wont to think no meal was complete without pie, and they used to tell a story of an old man, who, when he was dying, said that he felt proud to say that he had been married for fifty years, and had never sat down to a meal without pie."—Chicago Chronicle.

Heart-Shaped Needle Work.

The winter work bag or basket requires all sorts of handy contrivances, and the most indispensable is the needle-book, which will hold pins as well as assorted needles. A pretty heart-shaped design is made of bright-colored velvet and satin. A double piece of cardboard is cut heart-shaped for the foundation. The upper leaf is covered with velvet and lined with satin, and the edges are turned over and neatly joined with the close overcasting stitch. The pointed buttonhole pattern

around the edge is worked in pretty colored embroidery floss. Three heart-shaped leaves in graduating size, the edges cut in tiny points, are fastened at the top within the book. The under part just inside the edge is covered with satin ornamented with a vine-worked brier stitch, and the pointed buttonhole is used around the outer side.

A small, pointed pocket of contrasting silk slightly folded and drawn across with an elastic, made to hold a few papers of needles, is fastened within the lower half of the book. The two parts are joined at the point with a small cord or tassel, and a piece of cord or baby ribbon is attached to each at the upper points of the heart. This ties the two hearts together when the pocket is closed.

How to Roast a Turkey.

This is the way the New Englanders prepare and wash a turkey: Lay it on its side on a meat board and cut off the head. Next slip a slender, sharp knife between the skin and flesh of the neck, run it round carefully till the skin is loosened. Next slip the skin down over the neck and cut the neck off to within an inch of the body. Having removed the crop, turn the turkey on its back and cut off the legs at the first joint above the feet. Next singe the hairs from the turkey and pick out the pin feathers. Cut a gash above the vent and slip one hand in and draw the turkey, taking out everything in the wing careful not to break the gall bladder over the liver. Cut the gizzard, heart and liver from the entrails, clean them well and put them in a stew pan. Pour cold water over them and set it with the stuffing through the gash cut to draw it. Sew this gash up and truss the legs down; then stuff the hollow of the breast through the neck and sew this up, and truss the wings down. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper and put the turkey in a hot oven.

Do not put water in the pan. When the bird begins to brown and sizzle pull the pan forward and dash some of the water on it from the pan in which the giblets are. Let the turkey roast till it is a dark, delicious brown all over and the feet begins to cleave from the bones round the end of the drumsticks.

It is almost impossible to give just the time to roast a turkey. That depends on the degree of heat and on the turkey. But be sure to have it done. Baste it often while roasting.

To make the gravy: After the turkey is out of the dripping pan place the pan on the fire, melt the liver in the bottom of the pan, stir in a little flour and pour in the water from the giblets, and let it boil till quite thick. Then pour it into a gravy boat.

AN ADVOCATE OF MATRIMONY

Bachelors and Maidens are Urged to Wedlock by Rev. T. Hogan

Trenton, N. J., April 25.—Rev. Thaddeus Hogan, of St. John's Roman Catholic church, in this city, is anxious to have all members of his church married. Father Hogan announced to the congregation at the half-past seven o'clock mass Sunday morning that he desired all young single men to remain in their seats after the service. It was then that he laid down the rules of life to the men and insisted on their marrying early in life. He said that a man earning $10 a week and upward could support a wife. The priest also directed his remarks to the older members, and said there was no reason why they should remain single.

Father Hogan a few weeks ago preached sermons of a similar tenor to the single women and men of his parish. He urged both sexes to promote the cause of matrimony, and said that after a reasonable time had elapsed he would compel each single man and woman to rent a whole pew in his church as a license fee for single blessedness.

It is evident that Father Hogan's advice is meeting with a great deal of success, for since the last lecture before Sunday several engagements have been announced. Father Hogan's attention was first called to the rarity of the celebration of the sacrament of matrimony in his church some time ago, when he found men and maidens going outside the parish to be joined in wedlock. He found that his flock was going for this purpose to St. Mary's, in the upper portion of the city; to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in the extreme southeast, and to St. Joseph's, in the extreme east of the city, to be married to members from other parishes than his own.

This led the priest to inaugurate the home rule system and to express his desire that his parishioners marry at home and let the other churches take care of themselves.

MET THEIR DEATH ON THE TRAIL

Confirmation Received on the Reports of Many Persons Having Been Frozen to Death in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., April 25.—Partial confirmation of the rumors of death in Alaska by freezing has been received. The Nome Gold Digger of Jan. 30, says: Dr. Pellon, one of the best known and most esteemed young physicians of Alaska, was frozen to death on the night of Jan. 1, near Solomon. He came from Oakland, Cal., and was 33 years old. Don Anderson left Dexter for Nome about four weeks ago, and has not been heard of since. It is feared that he perished in the New Year's blizzard. W. F. Baum perished while carrying medical assistance to a sick miner. He was a native of Mobile, Ala., and saw service in the Cuban war. This afternoon United States Marshal McLean brought into town the remains of a man from Solomon. Later it was identified as that of Alexander New.

A story was told at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday night, of sixteen men and a woman huddled together in a cramped and mutilated condition from frost bite in a cabin on the Pilgrim river, unable to lie down because of the crush and with starvation facing them. Generous individuals and companies donated money and food. An appeal to the military was resolved upon, and within two hours an emergency supply of food was flying over the trail by moonlight, drawn by swift dogs. The next day a number of the victims arrived in town and told their story.

Some of them were badly frost-bitten, and had endured severe hardships.

Dr. Tam was frozen to death on Saturday, Jan. 19.

Two unknown men were found dead near Mary's Igloo.

ARDENT LOVE OF A WOMAN

It is Said to Have Lured Prof. Geo. D. Herron From Home.

New York, April 25.—Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, in a public statement explanatory of his refusal to meet Prof. G. D. Herron at the Get Together club Monday night, asserts that it is not based upon Herron's socialistic position, his criticism of the church, or his anti-imperialistic views. While opposing him in each of these he grants liberty of opinion to Herron. Dr. Hillis boldly charges Prof. Herron with being a coward or monster in character. He says: "Consider the conceded facts in the case. This man marries a young woman, and is the father of four children, almost babies; forms a friendship with a young unmarried woman from whom he accepts money to buy his clothes, hats, shoes, and travelling expenses; against his wife's protests goes abroad with this woman friend and her mother for a year; returns to tell his wife that he has ceased to love her, but loves another, and persistently urges his wife to obtain a divorce. When the wife is asked by the judge if there is any obstacle to their living together, she replies, 'No, except in my husband's mind.' "This man's spokesman and bosom friend in New Haven justifies the father's desertion of the four children by saying the woman friend gave him wife $100,000 to give her husband up to her. Mrs. Herron's friends assert that the amount paid was only $60,000.

"Now, some money was paid Mrs. Herron, or else it was not. Suppose no

STOMACHS THAT WON'T WORK

That Retain the Food and Refuse to Digest It. Make the Head Easy and the Nerve Weak. Need Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is a cure for dyspepsia. Sufferers who have tried and failed will probably be helped by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are tried. Whether the trouble is dyspepsia of long standing, or merely a simple case of indigestion, the relief is prompt and pronounced. The less the trouble the fewer the tablets need be taken.

Heaviness after eating, sour stomach, as indicated by belching, fatigue with slight exertion, or with no exertion at all, disturbed sleep, nervousness, constipation, depression, "bloat," these things, so commonly met, are set down as symptoms of dyspepsia. And dyspepsia is merely indigestion in an aggravated form.

By promoting perfect digestion, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets produces strong nerves, restful, refreshing sleep, pure blood and good sound healthy flesh. They make the skin clear, the eyes bright, the mind cheerful.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a medicine and more than a medicine. They digest the food and make it easy of assimilation, and they relieve the inflamed, diseased condition of the membrane linings and the glands of the stomach and bowels. They help the digestive organs over the hard places, and put them in a healthy, active condition. They effect a quick and permanent cure. You don't have to continue taking them forever, still it is well to have a box handy, and take one at the first return of the trouble.

Perfectly well people are made sick by eating too much, or unwholesome food, but not if they take a tablet after eating. Treatment with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets does not necessitate dieting or any change of habits. They digest the proper food and act upon the other kind in such a way as to make it pass off quickly and harmlessly. You may eat what you like, as much as you like if you take a tablet afterwards.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents for full size package. Send to F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., for little book on stomach diseases, mailed free.

Money was paid her. Why has he not denied the statement to save the honor of the mother of his children? If any sum of money was paid to this woman friend, then this man sold himself, and whether for Judas' 30 pieces of silver or $60,000, makes no difference.

"The first supposition leaves him a coward in not defending his babe's mother. The second leaves him a money grubber and his friends may take their choice."

The congregational association is unable to find the papers in the dispute against Prof. Geo. D. Herron, and this fact may hamper the proposed church trial. Mrs. Herron is said to have gone to South Dakota.

BEWARE.

If your wife frowns on slightly. Have a care, man, what you say. For, no doubt, she's cleaned three closets.

On this pleasant April day. A lazy liver may be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. A stick is all right for the back of a lazy man, but a stick is not a good thing for a stupid thing to beat a weary man or a starving man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging liver it is a great mistake to lash it with drastic drugs. In nice, nice cases out of a hundred a torpid or sluggish liver is but a symptom of an ill-nourished body, whose organs are much overworked and whose liver will become active and energetic. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

KITCHEN CHAFES

Some Delicious Recipes Which are New to Our Readers.

CHILDREN are always fond of ices. I once heard a very pal story on this point, which will bear repeating. The mother of two bright boys said to them one morning "We are going to have ice cream for dinner to-night, when the minister and his wife will be here. Now please don't act as though this were an unusual thing, but as though you had it every day." Accordingly, when the ice cream was served, the children, being especially anxious to please their mamma, shouted out at the top of their lungs, "We have it every day! we have it every day!"

At a luncheon not long ago, the dessert was frozen pudding, and it was served in cantaloupe, which was a new idea to some of the guests. Small nutmeg cantaloupes were used, one-half served to each guest, on a doily-covered plate, and the centre was filled with the frozen cream, making a delicious combination and very attractive one—easy to serve and easy to eat.

At this season of the year ices and cold desserts of all kinds appeal to the palate, hygienically speaking, they cannot be recommended for the final course of a dinner, as they reduce the temperature of the stomach and thus retard digestion; but how refreshing they are, and, when eaten slowly they are also nourishing. The different kinds of frozen dishes are called Water ices—which is fruit juice, sweetened, diluted with water and frozen. Sherbet, which is water ice to which is added some dissolved gelatine or the beaten whites of eggs. Frappe, which is water ice frozen to the consistency of mush. Punch, which is water ice to which has been added spirit and spice. Sorbet, which is, strictly speaking, frozen punch—the same usually given to a water ice used. Ice cream, of two kinds—the one which is this cream, sweetened, flavored and frozen, and the other which is a custard foundation, flavored and frozen. Mousse—which is heavy cream, beaten until stiff, sweetened, flavored, placed in a mould, packed in equal parts of salt and ice and allowed to stand for three hours. We have some delicious recipes which we hope will be new to at least some of our readers.

How a Sprain Does Hurt!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dread, just think of the loss of time, and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

TEACHERS IN CONVENTION

Annual Meeting of the East Kent Association Held at Blenheim.

Proceedings of the Sessions—An Evening Entertainment Tended the Visitors.

Special to The Planet.
Blenheim, April 25.—The East Kent Teachers' Association convention opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning with an attendance of 70 teachers from all parts of the inspectorate, the president, J. G. Cameron, of Thamesville, in the chair.

After routine business the president delivered his address, outlining the educational advancement that has taken place during the last quarter of a century and defining our relation to the ideals so far as realized. W. J. Robinson, Principal of Morpeth public school, read a paper upon the subject of unprepared lessons, cause and remedy, pointing out how lack of interest in their work, lack of formation of habit of study, unfavorable surroundings, and want of good judgment on the part of teachers were blameable for unprepared lessons, and indicating the safeguards which are within the teacher's reach to insure proper preparation of lessons. The subject was discussed by President Cameron, Inspector Colles, J. C. Black and others.

Two other excellent papers occupied the attention of the teachers during the remainder of the forenoon. "Good reading—What it is and how to obtain it," by Miss Maud Beattie, of Highgate, whose enthusiasm and fine bold style of reading her paper won her the full sympathy of the audience. And "Bad reading—its causes and how to correct it," by Miss F. Gessner, who fully sustained this counterpart of the former paper, the two making a most instructive feature, upon this most important subject.

AFTERNOON SESSION.
The convention was opened in the afternoon with a stirring address upon technical education by C. L. Von Gunten, warden of the County of Kent.

The Warden gave the teachers the views of the onlooker upon the educational system of the present day. He thought the education should have a more direct bearing upon the pupils' needs for the battle of life. The dead languages are not as valuable to nine out of ten persons as are practical instructions in the mechanical arts, and the ability to sway an audience by the power of eloquence is of more value than a knowledge of the rules of algebra. While the love of reading and the education necessary to read intelligently and well are of direct and immediate value, yet in rural schools pupils should learn something of the seasons that have a direct bearing upon agriculture. One agricultural college for the Province could not give the necessary instruction. There should be some efficient instruction in each country. The Warden's address was warmly applauded and was a most valuable feature of the convention.

The Warden was followed by J. J. Tilley, Government Director of Teachers' Institutes, upon the subject of Teaching Geography. Prof. Tilley is always good and his methods in this subject commended themselves to the teachers.

J. C. Black, teacher of S. S. No. 6, Harwich, read a good paper upon the distribution of the subject of Geography among the several public school classes. Mr. Black as a practical and experienced teacher showed that he knew his subject, and the younger teachers were busy making notes of his hints and outlines for their guidance.

The subject was discussed by Inspector Colles and Prof. Tilley. Miss S. E. Gossnell then read an excellent paper upon "Art in the School Room." Among the many excellent papers this was perhaps the best. Miss Gossnell's paper was full of decoration, and the fact that the removal of every trace of beauty from prison walls was a means of punishment for criminals should be avoided in schools if we desire our children to enjoy and profit by their surroundings.

The convention adjourned at 4:30 p. m.

EVENING ENTERTAINMENT.
In the evening the Blenheim teachers gave a free musical and literary entertainment of a high order to the East Kent teachers. Among many excellent numbers on the program, the singing of Master Glen Crook, whose good natural talents show considerable cultivation, was perhaps the best. J. Baird, with music lantern, showed the scenes in the Transvaal war, and many other fine features were given.

Mayor Greenwood occupied the chair.

SALE OF BOOK STOPPED.
The circulation of Mr. Hillegrass's book, "With the Boer Forces," has been prohibited in the Worcester district.

GREAT LIGHTING FEATURES.
PAN AMERICAN EXHIBITION.
People who expect to attend the Pan-American exposition should remember: First, that the number of lights and the quantity of light will exceed that of any other equal area ever artificially illuminated; and it will be evenly distributed; Second, that unusual spectacular effects will be produced by the many combinations of light and water, and these combinations are to be so graded as to climax in keeping with the decorative lights at the Electric Tower; Third, that the Electric Tower basin will be the stage of the display of a combination of 1,500,000 gallons of water per hour in fountains, with the light of 100 large sized search-lights—a scene which will certainly be impressive.

Realizing that this grand illumination will be leading feature of the Exposition, the Grand Trunk Railway System are arranging for a series of popular price excursions to Buffalo, twice a week, during May and June, by special trains, so timed that passengers will reach the exposition grounds about 10 a. m. of the day they leave home, and the special trains will leave Buffalo after the illumination is over the same night. This will afford an opportunity of viewing the principal attractions during the day as well as the wonderful night display at the minimum cost, and it is believed a great many persons residing within say 250 miles of Buffalo will prefer to make frequent visits to the Exposition in this manner, rather than incur expense of remaining over Buffalo several days in succession.

Oh, many a shaft, at random sent,
Finds mark the archer little meant!
Many a word, at random spoken,
May soothe or wound a heart that's broken.

The Evidence of the Daughter of the Wounded Woman Taken—Also Her Own Story.

"Mother was bleeding just as a hog when butchered."

Such was the startling language used by Emily Cable at the Police Court this morning when giving evidence in the case against Anthony Beck, charged with stabbing Mrs. R. Ellison.

"I saw mother ten minutes before she was stabbed," continued the witness. "She had just left my house when prisoner came in and asked me if my mother was going back to live with Bob, meaning my father. I told him I didn't know."

To George Gordon Martin, who is counsel for the prisoner—Prisoner and my mother were living together, but I don't know if they were living as man and wife or not. I cannot tell.

Emily Leart testified to seeing the prisoner stab Mrs. Ellison.

Dr. Tye gave evidence as to the nature of the wounds.

The court then adjourned to the residence of Mrs. Marble, Queen street, where the evidence of the injured woman was taken, she being still too weak to appear in court.

Beck, or Epperson, elected to be tried by jury and was committed to the June sessions of the High Court.
