THE BEET SUGAR SCHEME MAY KILL ELECTRIC BY-LAW

Is The Industrial Committee Neglecting City's Interests in Booming an Unpopular Measure?—Promoter Fowler is Very Busy With His By-law

Relative to the wave of adverse feeling which is being freely evidenced against the by-law to grant the Keystone Sugar Company $75,000 to remove the Weston plant to Chatham, a great fear is expressed that in its downfall on election day, the sugar by-law might carry the International Electrical Co. by-law with it to defeat. This might be a great mistake, but it is a circumstance where the intelligence of the electors must be relied upon, and it is likely that by that time they will have fully considered the merits of the two propositions, and decide that while the Keystone scheme is too indefinite and too risky a proposition to be entertained, the electric company's by-law is of a much more substantial nature, from the passing of which all-year benefits are promised Chatham.

Some ratepayers have been criticizing the seeming inactivity of the Industrial Committee, in letting the electric by-law fall in the back ground, in order to boost the unpopular scheme which was once turned down by the Chatham ratepayers, and which the Keystone Co. are once more trying to float on the electors, making the comparison to bear half of the expense of again submitting the by-law to a people who do not want it.

Every day the local press is being deluged with letters from the Industrial Committee, boasting and gloating over the defeat of the electric by-law, and giving alleged reasons why the people should not turn it down. Meanwhile not a word is being said to aid the electric by-law in passing, and the citizens are as yet in the dark as to its merits or demerits. The citizens should be enlightened on this point. The electric by-law has been given two readings in Council and that is the last the citizens have heard of it.

Despite the fact that their proposition was once turned down and thrown out by the electors, the Keystone promoters are again trying to fasten on the Chatham public, J. Fowler, the company's promoter, has been very busy, but this by-law has evidently not been meeting with the favor from the public that he would like it to. Indeed, to listen to some of the promoters' speeches, it is apparent that he thinks people should fall in line with his arguments no matter how silly or theoretical they may be. Mr. Fowler is the promoter of the by-law, and of course it is to his interests that the factory should get a location somewhere, and therefore he of course can be excused for preaching that the sugar by-law is a good thing for the electors to pass. At first when the Keystone people thought they had an easy thing in Chatham, they began to tell the people what magnificent offers they had from other towns and cities. Indeed, it was among the places that was supposed to have made them an offer. These promoters claimed that the company was not making offers to Chatham, but that Chatham was making offers to them. How different is the case now! Their by-law has been unanimously turned down by the ratepayers, who by their votes gave the Keystone Co. to understand that they were not wanted in Chatham. But the Keystone people are sticking to Chatham like the proverbial drowning man to a straw. Promoter Fowler is now making a bluff that London was after them, but it appears London did not even consider his offer at all.

The worst feature of the whole affair is that the electric proposition is a good thing, a thing as it appears to be, it would be a pity that it should be turned down in the wave of violent opposition which is being put up against Mr. Fowler's by-law.

All day Friday the old boys and old girls were coming from far and near to take part in the celebration. For some, this is the first visit since they started out to make their mark in the world when boys. The years have made marked changes in many of them and many come back bearing the tokens of success, having proved and made known their worth. And Dresden welcomes all. The different committees and the executive have spared neither pains nor expense to make this reunion a memorable one, in that they have been aided by every citizen.

DOMINION DAY

The attractions on Monday at the Chatham Driving Park will be commenced with a ball game between Chatham and Detroit, and will be called at 10 a.m., and the second game will start at 2.30. Owing to the postponement of the races in Windsor out of respect to the memory of the late Wm. Hendrie, a large number of foot races will take part in the races during the afternoon. The band will be in attendance during the morning and afternoon.

It isn't any wonder that boys and girls like to buy their shoes here. We have the swaggar shape that are so hard to find—the broad toes—the easy, comfortable, sturdy kind—that dress the youngster's feet fashionably and becomingly.

We have made a special study of children's feet—their needs and requirements, and in addition to having our children's shoes made on strictly orthopedic lasts and scientifically designed and constructed, we take great care in fitting. This is a most important point, and it has taken us years of hard study and experience to attain the perfection that now marks our fitting in the Children's Department. This know-how-apiveness is a most valuable asset, but it is yours if you will put your children's feet in our care.

Our stock of shapes, lasts, sizes and widths is always complete, insuring a perfect and exact fitting.

When the Liver is out of Order calomel, cascara, salts, strong liver pills and purging mineral waters won't do any permanent good.

When a person is bilious, the liver is not giving up enough bile to move the bowels regularly—and some of the bile is being absorbed by the blood. In other words, the liver is in a weakened, unhealthy condition.

Now, purgatives don't act on the liver at all. They merely irritate the bowels, and afford only temporary relief. But FRUIT-A-TIVES are the one true LIVER TONIC. They act directly on the liver—strengthen and invigorate this vital organ—and put it in a normal, healthy condition.

FRUIT-A-TIVES also stimulate the glands of the skin—and regulate the kidneys and sweeten the blood. When skin, liver and kidneys are normally healthy, there can be no biliousness, no constipation, no kidney trouble, no impure blood, no headaches.

No other medicine known to science is so reliable and so effective in curing Biliousness as these fruit liver tablets.

FRUIT-A-TIVES are fruit juices with tonics added—and are free from alcohol and dangerous drugs. A box of 6 for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price, if your druggist does not handle them.

LADIES' YOKE-WAIST.

Five Sizes, 32 to 40 inches bust measure.

Figured organdie, with a yoke of all-over lace was used for the waist (portrayed on this page, and green rayon silk, with a yoke of embroidered handkerchief linen. A lining is supplied with the pattern, but its use is a matter of choice. The fullness at the waist is gathered to the yoke and the closing is at the centre back. The full puff sleeves are finished with a band of all-over lace and a frill of lace edging. A high collar and full-length sleeve are provided in the pattern. White batiste with a lace yoke, and a band of lace about the sleeves with a frill of galated chiffon is a decidedly pretty suggestion. Suitable materials are preferable in making a waist of this kind, and those most favored are louisine, rayon silk, crepe de chine, batiste, law, veiling, and albatross.

The pattern cut in five sizes, from 32 to 40 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 3-1/4 yards of 32-inch goods and 3-1/4 yards of all-over for yoke and cuffs.

LADIES' WAIST.

Five sizes, 32 to 40 inches bust measure.

The separate blouse occupies an important place in every wardrobe, and the waist pictured here shows a pretty model in Alice blue louisine with a yoke of all-over lace, and frills of edging in the sleeves. A broad box plait gives a panel effect to the front of the waist, and shirrings at the shoulder regulate the fullness at the front and back, where the closing is arranged. A choice is given between a full-length, three-quarter or short sleeve, to be finished at the edge of the puff with a band of lace and frills of lace. A trimming band outlines the lace plastron, and a frill of lace edging gives a soft finish to the cuff of the short sleeve. Handkerchief linen, madras, rayon, peau de soie, cashmere, and albatross are recommended, and will combine effectively with French, egret, Danish and Hedebo embroideries, all-over-lace, or medallions. The pattern is cut in five sizes, from 32 to 40 inches bust measure. Size 28 requires 3-1/4 yards of 32-inch material.

A Polite War.

A little boy, with an interest in the meaning of unfamiliar words, said to his mother, "What is the meaning of 'civil'?" "Kind and polite," answered his mother. A puzzled look brooded for a second on the boy's face. Then he said, "Was it a kind and polite war that was in this country once?"

Yes, We Are Restless.
"We are a restless people," observes the Sedgwick (Kan.) Pantagraph. "Every thin woman longs to be fat. Every fat woman wants to grow thin. Every town man longs for the time when he can retire to the quiet of the country, and every farmer hopes to some day quit work and move to town, where he can take life easy. Country newspaper men would like to try their hand on a city daily. The fellows on the big dailies dream of a time when they can own a paper of their own. In youth we long for maturity. In age we yearn for the happy days of childhood. There is no excuse for it other than that we all seem to be built that way. The grass seems to be just a little bit greener and a thriffter most any direction from the place you occupy right now. Contentment is as near to happiness as you can get in this world."

A TORONTO MAN TRIES
Something New and is Delighted Feels Like a Boy.

Mr. M. N. DAFOE, Manager of The Dustless Brush Co., 29 Colb. B. 3rd St., Toronto, is telling his friends how he found health after years of illness and pain. He says: "I have been a great sufferer from Dyspepsia for many years. I have been treated about by 100 doctors. I have taken nearly all the advertised remedies, with only temporary relief, if any at all, but since using Anti-Pill I can eat anything I like as when a boy. I have been taking Anti-Pill at bedtime for the past three months, and find they regulate both stomach and bowels. My vigor has returned, so that I am buoyant and temperate. As a result of this unhopelless condition I am in duty bound to give all credit to this wonderful remedy, Anti-Pill."

Every druggist sells Dr. Leach's Anti-Pill, or a sample will be sent free by The Wilson-Fyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

The remedy that cured Mr. Dafeo so completely is surely worth a trial.

Old-fashioned Candlesticks and their Modern Copies

WITH the proper care, and an absence of dampness, metal articles and trimmings alike keep their polish for a long time, without in the least beginning to do what every housekeeper dreads—perhaps most of all in her work—to tarnish. But a single damp day, if it is one of the penetrating kind, is a signal for a perceptible dulling of bright surfaces everywhere. Brass beds, in either the antique or the antique finish, are usually made so that they don't tarnish—a coating of some sort of shellac successfully resisting attacks of dampness. But both of them are kept in better condition if they are given a daily dusting, and, every now and then, rubbed down vigorously with a dry flannel cloth. Beyond this, it is wiser to do nothing for you run the risk of wearing through that covering and exposing the sensitive metal skin to every change of weather.

Andirons and candlesticks, and the various "extra" brasses and metals are the hardest to keep in order, as there is nothing which takes the place of frequent polishing, and a wearisome amount of labor must be expended to get—and keep—satisfactory results.

Plenty of cleaning powders and fluids are on the market for just such purposes, but if you use one which you think may contain acid in some form (a "quick" cleaner usually does), give your brasses the benefit of the doubt by cleaning with soap and water, and then the cleaning by a thorough washing, but without soap, and rub briskly with every suspicion of moisture has been expelled. Or an even better way is to cover with finely powdered whiting, rubbing it down carefully and seeing that the whiting gets over every bit of the surface. Somehow it counteracts the evil effect of the acids, without in any way interfering with the process of cleaning.

Salt and vinegar is one of the simplest of the acid cleaners, but every bit of it must be washed off as soon as the cleaning is done, or those ugly streaks and a sort of green mould will begin to form.

For enamel, dust carefully and wash with soap and water, dampening a cloth and wringing it out either in soapy water or in plain water, following the wringing by rubbing it on a bit of pure soap over the enamel with a fresh water, and polish with a dry, soft flannel.

The metal trimmings—nickel for the most part—which are to be found in almost every bath room, are the easiest

WHEN METALS TARNISH

Andirons and Candlesticks Require Frequent Polishing.

to keep bright, of all the many metal things about a house. Inexpensive as they are, in the first place, they require nothing more strenuous than the usual dusting and rubbing with a dry flannel. With old bits, don't be too particular. That dulling by age can be removed, often is, by misguided individuals, but it is part of their charm, and only with a cloth wrung out of the hottest possible water, followed by a rub with dry flannels, should be given them. In polishers, almost every housewife has her favorite kind. Chamois is preferred by me, huckabuck—as serviceable as it is soft, if properly cured—by another, while a third disdains both and uses nothing but dry old flannel, the kind that is as near all-wool as possible and absolutely free from the tiny bits of something so often caught in with the twisting of woolen threads, and which scratches the surface; and felt is splendid for woodwork and for the polishing of antique finished pieces.

In the Laundry—Washing Flannels

Practical Hints to Housewives by Marion Harland

"MANY women of many minds" would be an appropriate legend to write above the section of this chapter which treats of the temperature of the water in which flannels are washed. Says one prime authority upon household economics: "Flannels and household hosiery should be washed in tepid, soft water—never hot and never cold."

No less than five veteran housewives have written to me within the last two months extolling the merits of cold water as a means of cleansing flannels and keeping them soft.

Having once tried this method of washing woolen goods, you will never be satisfied with any other," writes a grandmother who boasts that she is "not too old to learn."

In my own laundry, flannels have been washed in lukewarm water, squeezed, and not wrung out, shaken free of wet, dried quickly and ironed on the wrong side while damp. To be frank, I have not found this method invariably satisfactory. The phrase "lukewarm water" leaves much to the discretion of each laundress. What would be several degrees above tepid to the mistress, feels cold to the maid. "Why not to the temperature with the thermometer?" cries our college-bred women. There are many rules that look well in housewife manuals which lapse into a dead letter in the rush and routine of a work-a-day life.

WITH COLORED CLOTHES

Wring out the salt-and-water, rinse in clear, cold water, and wash at once in tepid suds, unless, indeed, you use soap bark or bran water. This last is excellent for colored cotton and linens, which require starch. Boil two quarts of wheat bran in six quarts of water for half an hour, let it get cool and strain through cheesecloth, pressing hard to get all the mucilaginous matter. Add cold water if too thick. After rinsing the brine out of your colored gingham, calicoes and lawns, wash them in this, using neither soap nor starch. Always dry colored clothes in the shade and wring side out. Neglect of this precaution brings many a dainty fabric to grief. When one recollects that to expose dampened cotton or woolen, silk or linen garments to the sun or air is a common bleaching process, one wonders to see delicate colors we would retain, if possible, subjected deliberately to these influences, for the want of a little common sense and ordinary care. Freezing fades no less than heat. Avoid both.

Lighten Kitchen Labors

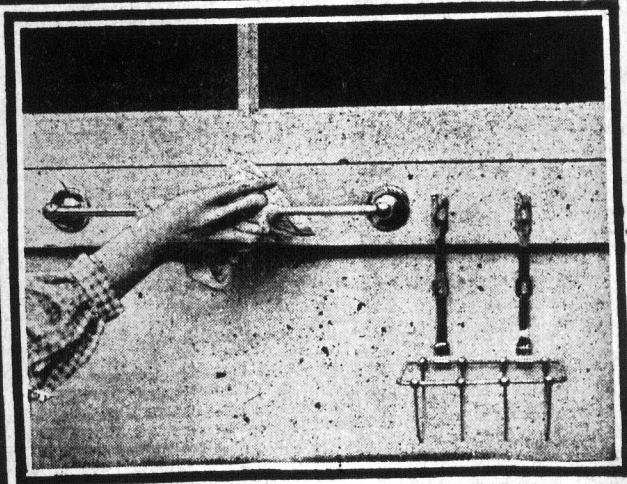

Be Good to Your Cook as You Should be to Yourself

By Mary E. Carter

Copyright, 1908, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

TO GAUGE a cook's judgment notice her bread-making. If invariably good, you may rest assured that she has judgment enough to be trustworthy as a cook. If her bread is sometimes delicious and at other times poor, you may be certain that she cooks by guesswork—trusts to luck, so-called, and lacks judgment. This applies to all who do any cooking.

Rules applying, and requirements and duties belonging, to a kitchen where there is a hired cook, apply with equal force when a housewife does her own cooking. But it is natural to suppose that where the mistress herself cooks she will be, in proportion to her education and general culture, more dainty in every way than any one who hires out as a cook could possibly be. Because of her good taste and cleanliness and her superior advantages in training, her kitchen will always be cleaner and more inviting than that of one of the class above mentioned. In life are also another restricted and who, for the same reason, is obliged to wait a long time to be expanded as a woman's situation. But the housewife who does her own cooking for a family is added, should be as good and considerate to herself as she would have to be to an exceedingly competent woman in her service as a paid cook—if she wished to retain her.

fold and varied duties and responsibilities cooking for a family is added, should be as good and considerate to herself as she would have to be to an exceedingly competent woman in her service as a paid cook—if she wished to retain her.

While thinking to do everything in the best manner, she should also seek every means to lighten her labors, and never permit herself to become a kitchen drudge, but, on the contrary, prove to herself and her family, by her dainty way of doing everything, that a kitchen may be made a pleasant place, and a source of pride to the mistress.

Charlotte P. Gilman, in her book, "Woman and Economics," truly says: "House service keeps the housewife on her feet from dawn till dark. Women work longer and harder than most men, and not solely in maternal duties."

This proves something radically wrong in our social conditions. Everybody in good health ought to work, but no one should be obliged to work laboriously week in and week out. The household work of any woman does this in a most harmonious relation to her nature, and she should be able to do it with ease and pleasure.

The Cost of the Table

THIS communication docketed for use to-day has been on file for several months. This fact will account for the appearance upon the menus of fresh vegetables non-procurable at this season by people of moderate means. The letter and the menu are offered in full as a test case in the matter now engaging the attention of our housewife correspondents all over the country—the practicability of providing a table for two adults with food convenient for their needs and agreeable to their palates at a cost not exceeding $1.50 per week. Housewives are invited to examine the long report herewith submitted, and to comment upon it candidly—and briefly! The subject is important and replete with interest to all caterers for private families.

Yours ask for a bill-of-fare for four people, not to exceed $1.50 per week. I send you a two weeks' menu for two persons each. He is a collector for a manufactory, is out of doors half the time and walks whenever it is possible. He is five feet nine inches in height and weighs 172 pounds. I am a bookkeeper, am 5'3", am five feet five inches in height and weigh 160 pounds. This is to show that we are large working men.

I make a large loaf of cake once a week and a batch of cookies the alternate. As our breakfasts consist always of fruit—apple, pear, or stewed potatoes in some form, either oatmeal and cream with toast or fruit or griddle cakes, cookies and coffee, I have omitted this meal in the bill-of-fare.

FACTS IN NATURE

Not Only Do We Get Inspiration From Nature, But Health As Well.

For people who are run-down and nervous, who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, or torpid liver, coated tongue with bitter taste in the morning and poor appetite, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will assist Nature and help them to get on their feet and put the body into its proper condition. It is becoming more and more apparent that Nature's most valuable health-giving agents are to be found in forest plants and rocks.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. R. V. Pierce, now consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y., discovered that by scientifically extracting and combining certain medicinal principles from native roots, taken from our American forests, he could produce a medicine which was marvellously efficient in curing cases of blood disorder and liver and stomach trouble as well as many other chronic or lingering ailments.

This concentrated extract of Nature's vitality he named "Golden Medical Discovery." It purifies the blood by putting the stomach and liver into healthy condition, thereby helping the digestion and assimilation of food which feeds the blood. Thence it cures weak stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, or biliousness, and kindred derangements.

It cures the blood, with bitter or bad taste in the morning, frequent headaches, feel weak, easily tired, listless or pain in side, back gives out easily and aches, belching of gas, constipation, or irregular bowels, feel flashes of heat all over the body, or feel nervous, or kindred symptoms, they point to derangement of your stomach, liver and kidneys, which the "Golden Medical Discovery" will correct more speedily and permanently than any other known agent. Contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed in plain English on wrapper.

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make a little more profit. He gains; you lose. Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One laxative; two or three are cathartics.

First Glimmer of a Star.

A little girl, the French critic Sarcey related, once presented herself at the Paris Conservatoire in order to pass the examination for admission. All she knew was the fable of "The Two Pigeons," but she had no sooner recited the opening lines when Auber stopped her, with a gesture.

"Enough," he said. "Come here, my child."

The little girl, who was pale and thin, but whose eyes gleamed with intelligence, approached him with an air of assurance.

"Your name is Sarah?" he said.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"You are a Jewess?"

"Yes, sir, by birth, but I have been baptized."

"She has been baptized," said Auber, turning to his colleagues. "She has said her fable of 'The Two Pigeons' very well. She must be admitted."

Thus Sarah Bernhardt, for it was she, entered the Conservatoire.

A Kitten and a Needle.

A short time ago a woman living in England was petting her kitten, when she suddenly felt something scratch her hand. On examining the spot whence the scratch proceeded, she felt the point of a needle sticking out of poor pussy's neck fur. The needle was pulled out by her husband, and another surprise was experienced when it was found that a length of thread was attached to the needle, both having passed down the kitten's throat and out again from the fur.

An Eye Opener.

"How does your father seem to regard my coming here?" anxiously asked Adolphus of little Bobby, while Miss Maud was upstairs getting ready to present herself.

"He don't care nothin' about it," replied Bobby carelessly.

"So he has no objections, eh? But what did he say, my little man?"

"He said if Maud had a mind to make a fool of herself, why let her."

The Result.

"My first husband," she sobbed, "was a kind, gentle man, always considerate of me. He always let me have my own way."

"Yes," growled the second, "and look at the result."

"Result? What result?"

"Why, he's dead!"

Got the Worst of the Bargain.

He (tauntingly)—Your father was in trade when I married you, wasn't he? She (bitterly)—I suppose so. He was sold in any event.

THE GENTLE KIDNEY CURE!

Hundreds of people, who have been cured of Kidney Trouble by Be-Ju, were first induced to try this wonderful remedy by friends who had themselves been cured. The sales of Be-Ju are daily increasing, because everyone who takes them is benefited—and these in turn, tell others. So the good news is spread.

Here is what a Picton man says about Be-Ju—

"I have used Be-Ju with great benefit to myself, and cheerfully recommend to all who I think are suffering from Kidney Troubles and Rheumatism.

"I think Be-Ju the best remedy made."

Ask Your Grocer About Red Rose Tea

MOST good Grocers sell Red Rose Tea. If a grocer recommends Red Rose Tea, it will be an honest opinion, because he makes less profit on Red Rose Tea than on most others. When a merchant recommends an article upon which his profit is less than upon other similar goods, it is because he wants to sell satisfactory goods and to please his customers. Your grocer knows he can recommend Red Rose Tea for its "rich fruity flavor" and its strength, and because

GIVER AND RECEIVER

Both Equally Guilty in Matter of Insurance Rebating.

All Parties to the System Should Be Punished, the Opinion of Mr. Richter of the London Life—How Policyholders May Benefit—He Admits Some Loans Made to Company's Own Directors.

London, June 29.—The Royal Commission on Insurance, opened here yesterday, J. G. Richter of the London Life was on the stand all day. The London Life was established in 1874, with capital of $1,000,000, of which $250,000 is subscribed and $50,000 paid up.

The late President Jeffrey controlled the majority of the stock, and both his sons are officers of the company. Loans to Directors. Mr. Richter admitted that the company had made loans to the vice-president, Dr. A. O. Jeffrey, and to a director, William B. Bowyer. He explained to the commission that, although in this case there had been no loss, still the lending of funds to directors was capable of abuse. Mr. Jeffrey produced the loan book, which showed that the Jeffrey loan was on stock of the Ontario Loan and Debenture Co.

Mr. Richter explained that the London did a large industrial business—about half the total—from which the company had reaped large profits after the third year. The minimum amount of insurance fixed by the province was $20 on infants lives up to $160 on a child of ten.

The settled form of insurance agreement, provided by the Officers' Association, was read by Mr. Tilley, and Mr. Richter elucidated the practice under it.

The agreement between the Metropolitan Life of New York and the London Life was read by Mr. Tilley. The first clause dealt with the limitation of agents. If an agent leaves either company he could not become a member of the agency staff of the other in the same locality for one year. Mr. Tilley thought this was not fair to the agent, but witness explained that in "industrial" insurance this was necessary. He said that the agent built up an asset which he might enter to either company.

"You destroy the asset?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"No! We think that it is our asset." "No! It is the agent's good will."

In reference to surrender values, Mr. Tilley asked, "Why should not full reserve be given to the policyholders. Witness said there were many reasons. It was the only way of getting back to the company the excess money spent to get the policy. That is the full surrender must be released to the company. Then, again, it was apt to be a selection against the company.

Division of Profits. Mr. Richter said that the division of profits were 95 per cent to the policyholders and 5 per cent to the shareholders.

The statement of dividends declared from 1874 to 1905 was read. In 1889 Mr. Tilley found that the dividend was not paid, but was applied to wipe out a debt of $2,000 in the expense account.

Agents' Commission. Agents of the company received from 10 to 75 per cent, commission on first year business, and 5 per cent, on renewals as long as the agent remained with the company. An average good agent would be able to save $1,500 to $1,800 out of an average total remuneration of $2,700. He could not say what of this was rebates.

Speaking of rebates Mr. Tilley asked Mr. Richter if he had any remedy for this evil.

"I thought I had solved the question years ago, but I have given it up long ago. It would be impossible to stop it without legislation, the kind of legislation that punishes 'chicken stealing.'"

"If it was entirely prohibited would it cut out some of the business?" asked Mr. Langmuir.

Witness did not think so. Policyholder May Benefit. Commissioner Kent thought it would have the tendency to lessen lapses and increase profits to the policyholders. Witness said that it might have that effect.

"If the Parliament of Canada are called upon to legislate to enable an agent to keep these rebates in his pocket, and the policyholders are not going to reap the benefit, I should like you to say so?" continued Commissioner Kent.

"I did not mean to leave that impression. It would certainly rebound in a great measure to the benefit of the policyholders."

The cost of first years business was about 2 1/4 times the expenses of procuring same. This was a remarkable showing, and the lowest disclosed in history of the commission.

Rebates Should Be Punished. Commissioner Kent asked for Mr. Richter's opinion on how to stop rebating. He wanted in full presented in writing.

"I can tell you now. All parties should be punished. The receiver is equally guilty with the giver."

Capt. Sharpe Nominated. Uxbridge, June 29.—The Liberal-Conservative Association of North Ontario met here yesterday, to nominate a candidate to contest the next Dominion election. Capt. Sam Sharpe of Uxbridge was the unanimous choice.

He is a successful lawyer, popular in social and athletic circles, and a political organizer of exceptional ability.

Night Guards at Penitentiary. Kingston, June 29.—On July 1, a new guard system will come into force at the penitentiary. Hereafter there will be a separate staff of night guards, who will do nothing but night duty. At present the system is a mixed one. The night guards will each receive $650 a year or $50 more than the day men. This is the outcome of the last escapes.

Doubled in LEA in three years

AND NOW OPERATE PRIVATE FREIGHT CARS.

The Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company, Limited, Stratford, Canada, is the fastest growing business in the Dominion Building operations now under way will double the size of the Mooney Bakeries and Candy Manufactories, and give a total floor space of from 150,000 to 200,000 square feet. The illustration in the upper left corner shows the enlarged works when the addition is completed.

True to their policy, of adopting latest methods, the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company, Limited, have had built and now operate, their own private freight cars. This company is the first in Canada to adopt this economical and rapid system of shipments.

Mooney's "Perfection Cream Sodas"

BITTER WATERS SWEET

WHEN DRUNK WITH KNOWLEDGE AND POWERFUL SELF-CONTROL.

BITTERNESS TRANSFORMED

Alchemist of Life is Man's Power to Control Himself in the Bitterest Trials and Sorrows of His Life—How the Christ is Transfigured in the Case of the Sorely Tried Individual Self.

Adapted according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the Year 1887, by Frederick H. H. H., Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 24.—In this sermon the preacher shows how even the bitterest trials and sorrows of our lives may be transformed into blessings. The text is Exodus xv, 25, "And the Lord showed him a tree, which when he had cast into the water, the waters were made sweet."

Human nature may be aptly compared to the earth's surface. It was valleys and hills, lowlands and heights, broad pastures and undulating prairies, rich Esdrasian plains and Bad Lands of the Dakotas. It has Himalayas of inspiration, where we see the face of Jesus Christ transfigured before our eyes, and valleys of despair, in which the sunshine of hope never enters, even as the daylight cannot penetrate the catacombs underneath ancient Rome.
Yet, strange to say, when we are standing upon the highest pinnacles of spiritual inspiration they are often in danger of tumbling over the steep-est precipices of sin. This despicable characteristic of the human heart is not only true of individuals as it was in the life of Peter when he denied Christ three times, but it is also true of the spiritual conditions of communities.

Some time ago I read a graphic account of an English tourist ascending the Swiss Alps. As this gentleman and his party were climbing, they passed through a beautiful village where life in all its rustic simplicity was smiling before their eyes. Hardly had they left this little village and gone a few miles beyond, when one of the guides cried out: "Look! Look! Look!
See the avalanche breaking loose!" The Englishman looked, and saw a great mass of snow about three miles in width tearing away from its anchorages. With deep intonations, which haunted the death knell not only of cattle and sheep and horses and goats, but of men, women and children, it came tumbling down. In its wild plunge it literally swept away all vestige of life, and pushed houses and barns and schoolhouses and churches and fences and fences and crops into the canyon below. Nothing was left in the pathway of that onrushing snow but the bare rocks. Like those avalanches, there are spiritual catastrophes which sweep whole communities of their feet when the members seem to be treading the highest mountain ranges of hope and are living near to God. The lotter the Matterhorn lifts its rugged brow toward the stars, the eagle is seen working for God and man as not as great as those of the old black man who used to work in Lyman Beecher's parsonage and who helped start Henry Ward Beecher out on his world-wide mission.

Then most people have no right to complain about their insignificant positions, because they are not yet through with life, and they do not know what positions of consciousness they may yet be called upon to fill. I was intensely interested the other day in reading about the supreme moment of Farragut's life. That moment was when in command of the Hartford he was leading his ships into Mobile Bay.
The monitor Tecumseh was at the head of the line. She struck a torpedo in the most dangerous part of the entrance to the bay and almost instantly disappeared. Soon the next boat in line, the Brooklyn, began to back water away from the disabled torpedoes
and was backing upon the admiral's flagship. All seemed lost. But suddenly Admiral Farragut lifted his trumpet and called, "Four bells, Captain Drayton, go ahead!" Instantly the flagship moved ahead, and all the other ships followed. As the ships passed into the harbor the men could hear the torpedoes bumping upon the hulls. But they were dumb torpedoes and exploded not. All America and the whole civilized world at once halluded Admiral Farragut as one of the boldest naval heroes. But Farragut when he entered Mobile Bay was an old man, as General Hancock was old when he led his troops on for the rescue of Little Bock. Nearly threescore years these men had to live in obscurity before their great opportunity came. As unknown men they worked and plodded. No one seemed to take notice of them. But when the greatest opportunities of life came
their old age at once they grasped them and leaped to the front. Young man, you have no right to complain about the humdrum work of an ordinary life if these heroes did not complain. You do not know what God has ahead for
you. Do your work well in obscurity, so that when the great opportunities of life come later you may be able to grasp them as did Farragut and Henry Hancock.

"It's true," you say, "that I have tasted the bitter waters of the wrecked ambitions of early childhood, but in one sense I have outlived them. It is surprising how time will blunt the keen edge of even the sharpest of griefs. Just as we can forget the pains of the sicknesses of childhood, we can forget about the miscarried hopes and the faded visions of our youth. Now, all I ask of the world is a fair, honest show. That the world seems unwilling to give me. No matter how much I try to do right, the fault finders, the misrepresenters, are always around.
Like Socrates, who was compelled to drink the deadly hemlock, I am constrained almost daily to drink of the poisonous springs of contention and slander. Truly, like the Psalmist, I can cry out, 'My tears have been my meat day and night, while they (meaning my enemies) say unto me, Where is thy God?' Yes, my enemies doubt whether God loves me, and I am myself almost ready to be skeptical about the divine protection and support."

But there are still other bitter Marah waters which many of us are compelled to drink one's financial inability to provide for the wants of our loved ones. You say: "Personally I could stand poverty. It does not affect me much. My personal wants are very few and easily satisfied. But it is so hard not to be able to give my dear ones the necessities and a few of the luxuries." Then you look up at me with a sad smile as you say: "You must not think that I have always lived as we are living now. Like many people of this city for whom the wheel of fortune has turned, I can say that I have seen better days." My brother, I know it. There was a day in your life when you did not have to consider whether it was best for you to ride in a street car because of the extravagance in spending a five-cent piece.
And that fact makes your condition doubly hard.

Then, from talking with a member of your family I have found out that your financial catastrophe came like a tornado out of a clear sky.
It came as quickly as the late San Francisco tragedy came to thousands of families and left them penniless by the Golden Gate. Only the night before that awful earthquake a young student of the Hopkins Art Institute was writing home. This letter left the city at 6 o'clock a. m., or just thirteen minutes before that great city was wrecked. This is what she said: "It is a beautiful night. The breeze from the ocean is so pure and fresh, and the air is heavy with perfume from the hosts of flowers which I have seen dropped to be nothing but a small crawling in the dirt. Bitter, bitter, are the waters which have been condensed from the mists of our early dreams photographed in the mirages of the nursery and the schoolroom."

Yes, my brother, it is certainly sad to see a Paul Potter exhausting his genius as a sign painter. Perhaps you have been to Europe and have stood before "The Jewel of The Hague." It is the picture of the farm lands. There under a tree are lying a cow, a goat, a mother sheep and a lamb. But above them all stands the magnificent proportions of the male offspring of that cow.
Strong, powerfully formed is he. From the looks of the animal he must be about a year and a half old. Instead of the mother protecting him, he now stands as the protector of the mother.
All the artistic world has sat before this picture as before a shrine. Yet Paul Potter painted "The Jewel of The Hague" for a tavern sign. For years it swayed backward and forward, beckoning the traveler to come and find rest and refreshment behind the open door. There are many men and women who have had beautiful and inspiring early dreams, but they have never been able to make those dreams materialize.
The vapors which photographed those dreams of early childhood have been changed into the common puddles of prosaic, ordinary life. Henry Ward Beecher once declared that one of the greatest gospel teachers he ever studied under was an old black man, who used to work for his living as a porter for the great hotel in New York and told to the tow-headed boy Henry the Bible stories which ever after were so precious to him. Do you mean to tell me that your opportunities for working for God and man are not as great as those of the old black man
who used to work in Lyman Beecher's parsonage and who helped start Henry Ward Beecher out on his world-wide
mission?

Then most people have no right to
complain about their insignificant positions, because they are not yet through
with life, and they do not know what
positions of consciousness they may yet be called upon to fill. I was intensely interested the other day in
reading about the supreme moment of Farragut's life. That moment was when in command of the Hartford he
was leading his ships into Mobile Bay.
The monitor Tecumseh was at the head of the line. She struck a torpedo
in the most dangerous part of the entrance to the bay and almost instantly disappeared. Soon the next boat in line, the Brooklyn, began to back water away from the disabled torpedoes
and was backing upon the admiral's flagship. All seemed lost. But suddenly Admiral Farragut lifted his
trumpet and called, "Four bells, Captain Drayton, go ahead!" Instantly
the flagship moved ahead, and all the other ships followed. As the ships passed into the harbor the men could
hear the torpedoes bumping upon the
hulls. But they were dumb torpedoes
and exploded not. All America and the whole civilized world at once halluded Admiral Farragut as one of the boldest naval heroes. But Farragut when he entered Mobile Bay was an old man, as General Hancock was
old when he led his troops on for the rescue of Little Bock. Nearly threescore years these men had to live
in obscurity before their great opportunity came. As unknown men they worked and plodded. No one seemed
greatest opportunities of life came
their old age at once they grasped them
and leaped to the front. Young man,
you have no right to complain about
the humdrum work of an ordinary life
if these heroes did not complain. You do not know what God has ahead for
you. Do your work well in obscurity,
so that when the great opportunities
of life come later you may be able to grasp them as did Farragut and Henry Hancock.

"It's true," you say, "that I have
tasted the bitter waters of the wrecked
ambitions of early childhood, but in one sense I have outlived them. It is surprising how time will blunt the
keen edge of even the sharpest of griefs. Just as we can forget the pains
of the sicknesses of childhood, we can
forget about the miscarried hopes and
the faded visions of our youth. Now,

ALD. ALLEN'S REPLY.

Editor The Planet:

In your comments on my statement re conditions in Berlin, you endeavor to depict the situation as expressed by Berlin citizens, by stating that nearly all were stockholders. In the best of my knowledge only four of all interviewed hold stock, and two of these to the extent of $100.

You also, by inference, charge them with making statements that are not their honest opinions.

I do not believe one of the gentlemen interviewed in his loyalty to his city would make a deliberate statement which he did not believe.

I went to these gentlemen without having them suggested to me by any one and they did not know my attitude on the question. In fact, in most cases I pointed out the objections raised here previously, in order to see how they would be met by them.

Another thing I notice that for a journal that professes to desire to give expression to all sides of public opinion, you take a peculiar way of doing it, by publishing interviews only of men whom you know are unfavorable to a single factory. Be honest and square and give both sides the same publicity.

You also, when you endeavor to depict the situation as expressed by Berlin citizens, you state that the situation is such that the law is not respected, which is a statement which you know, the by-law prohibiting the sale of beer in the streets of Berlin, is being enforced by a strict ordinance in the hands of the police, and the said ordinance is being enforced by the police.

Yours truly,

ALD. ALLEN.

In your comments on my statement re conditions in Berlin, you endeavor to depict the situation as expressed by Berlin citizens, by stating that nearly all were stockholders. In the best of my knowledge only four of all interviewed hold stock, and two of these to the extent of $100.

You also, by inference, charge them with making statements that are not their honest opinions.

I do not believe one of the gentlemen interviewed in his loyalty to his city would make a deliberate statement which he did not believe.

I went to these gentlemen without having them suggested to me by any one and they did not know my attitude on the question. In fact, in most cases I pointed out the objections raised here previously, in order to see how they would be met by them.

Another thing I notice that for a journal that professes to desire to give expression to all sides of public opinion, you take a peculiar way of doing it, by publishing interviews only of men whom you know are unfavorable to a single factory. Be honest and square and give both sides the same publicity.

You also, when you endeavor to depict the situation as expressed by Berlin citizens, you state that the situation is such that the law is not respected, which is a statement which you know, the by-law prohibiting the sale of beer in the streets of Berlin, is being enforced by a strict ordinance in the hands of the police, and the said ordinance is being enforced by the police.

Yours truly,
