Willing to Arbitrate All Differences

May be Left to a Committee of the Board of Trade—No Freight Moving.

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Vancouver, March 7.—Both the Canadian Pacific and the strikers have declared themselves willing to submit their differences to the arbitration of a board of trade committee.
The company is now accepting no freight either by land or water for forwarding.

WILL LEAVE FOR NOME

Two Young Men Will Make the Trip

Arrived Yesterday From Outside and Will Take Their Departure Soon.

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Hours, Frank A. Shaw and Ed-via Engelstad are two young men who arrived yesterday on the stage coach from San Francisco and will leave in a few days over the ice for Nome. Mr. Shaw is the representative of a well known syndicate which has been operating in the Nome country for the past three years and he is making the long journey of over 2000 miles over the ice in order to be present at the beginning of spring and take advantage of the first flow of water.

"We shall remain here for three or four days," said Mr. Shaw this morning, "before leaving on our long mush down the river, and on our way we expect to stop and take in the Tanana and also some of the Fortymile diggings. This is my first trip to Dawson though I have been down along the coast for the past three or four years and I am surprised to see a city of such consequence. I understand it is quiet here with you this winter the same as it is with us in Nome, but I do not believe it is so much so. With us we are entirely isolated after the last boat in the fall has gone, but you have stages out and in every week which is not true with our country. Most of our ground is shallow diggings and besides we have not the fuel to burn with if we had deep ground. Our output last year was quite equal to our anticipations and we had a very successful season generally speaking.
This year there are a larger number of enterprises of considerable magnitude that will be put in operation and we look for one of the best seasons the camp has yet known." In leaving for Nome Messrs. Shaw and Engelstad will travel by stage as far as possible, probably to Fort Yukon, where they will purchase dogs and continue their journey via the malamute route.

Crystal Laundry

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

HAVING acquired the interests of all parties heretofore connected with the crystal laundry, together with all book accounts and claims due the old management, as well as claims against it, the new management will collect and deliver to the public on discharge. I beg to announce to the public that in the future this business will be conducted under the most careful management and all work will be guaranteed to be first class.
The work will be under the direct supervision of Mr. J. A. Smith, an expert and laundry man, who will be delivered promptly.
I beg to be grateful to the public for their patronage. Telephone 16A.

DAWSON BOYS

Are Very Enthusiastic at Playing Hockey.

The small boys of Dawson are as enthusiastic supporters of the game of hockey as are the older people.
Several hockey teams have been organized among the boys and there is considerable rivalry as to which shall be able to hold first position.
The Palmer Bros. team have thus far been able to hold the championship having not yet sustained a single defeat. They have played two or three tie games but have come out victorious where a decision has been given.
A game was to have been played between this team and the Monarchs this morning but the latter team failed to appear at the appointed time and so the game was postponed. It will probably take place next Saturday morning.

TROOPS OF MORROCO

Meet With Reverses in Tangiers

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Fez, Morocco, March 7.—Moroccan troops under War Minister Elmeinebi had met serious reverses in Tangiers.
Assaulted fiercely by rebels 50 were killed and 100 wounded. Reinforcements have left Fez for their assistance.

PUGILIST BATES

Has Been Posing as an Amateur Glove Artist.

William Bates who contested in Dawson several times for pugilistic honors appears to have met some trouble in San Francisco. It seems that he has been passing as an amateur while having a record as a professional. A recent issue of the San Francisco Examiner deals with the matter as follows:
"With rather well authenticated rumors afloat regarding the professional standing of William Bates, the heavyweight boxer who won his class in the tournament at the Olympic Club on Friday evening last by defeating Andy Gallagher, there is apparently much inclination on the part of Pacific Athletic Association and Olympic Club officials to shift the blame for the occurrence. Geo.
James, as chairman of the registration committee of the P. A. A., yesterday notified Bates of his suspension from membership pending an investigation of his standing, set for next week, when Bates has been requested to appear. James stated yesterday that as Bates came to his association as a member of the Olympic Club and indorsed by that organization, he was registered without an investigation.
"In way of reply to this, Leader Jack Gleason of the Olympic Club says that the P. A. A. is alone to blame for failure to discover the identity of "ringer" Bates. "Bates came a member of the Olympic Club, and made known to us his desire to box, much as any other member of the club would do," said Gleason in speaking of the matter. "There was absolutely no reason for us to doubt his amateur standing, and that should have been ascertained by the P. A. A." However, we have cited Bates to appear at a joint investigation to be accorded him by the Olympic Club and the P. A. A. next week.
"George James, for the registration committee of the P. A. A., yesterday notified the Olympic Club to withhold the awarding of the championship and trophy to Bates pending the investigation."

SAWBONES JAWBONES

Supremacy to be Set- tled Tonight

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Tonight is the night of all nights when the skating rink will be covered knee deep in bright, red gore, the occasion being the return match of the doctors and lawyers at which one will demonstrate their superiority over the other at the great game of hockey. At their first match the score was a tie at the end of the second half and it is intended that this evening shall establish the su-premaccy beyond all doubt. The players will be the same as in the first game though their positions have been slightly altered. For the lawyers Alex Macfarlane will play point instead of on the forward line and the handicap that was imposed by Dave Murray, Curley Moore and a few other kindred spirits before the beginning of the game will upon this occasion be left in the keg. Alex has also shaved his kilties and will appear in a suit of foot ball armor.
The lawyers are expecting one of their men to be disabled as they have provided William Thornburn as spare man. The doctors wish the rumor to the effect that there is a job on foot to put Alex out of business indignantly denied. The following will be the line-up of the two aggregations:
Lawyers—Goal, A. G. Smith, point, Alexander Immaculate Macfarlane, forward, Pierre Leslie, forwards, J. K. Sparring, F. G. Crisp, H. E. A. Robertson and Arthur Davey.
Doctors—Goal, Dr. Barrett, point, Dr. Edwards, forward, Dr. Nor-quay, forwards, Dr. Thompson, Dr.
Sutherland, Dr. Richardson and Dr.
Lachapelle.
The game will follow the second heat of the three mile skating race which is scheduled for 8:15.

Fierce Conflict Billed for This Evening at Which Bright, Red Gore Will Flow.

"I think they will have 200 feet more. There pay is getting better and they are only half way across the creek. The creek is wide and they have got 5 feet of pay." A man came in today and told me he panned three pans last night and got 50, 30 and 40 cents in the gravel. There are a number of other claims that have pay in sight but there has been no prospecting done so far. But they are scattering out now; every one has been stampeding. The formation is mica schist and slate. The banner creeks are Pedro, Cleary, Quinn, Gilmore and Gold stream. I believe the other creeks across the divide will be just as good if not better. They have got as good surface prospects on them but there is not a hole to lead rock on them yet. Claims are away up. People are buying 2 and 3 hundred feet of claims. I believe by what is in sight so far there will be a good demand here for machinery next summer. There will be hardly any gold washed up this spring as there were no men to work; every one was rushing for interests. There are two townships, started, one down at the mouth of a Hough and another up 12 miles from the upper one.
It is about 10 miles from Capt. Bar-nett's store to Pedro creek, a good summer trail and winter trail also.
It is about 20 miles from Hendrick's store to the same point and a poor trail in summer, swampy and wet.
I believe the upper one will be ahead.
There is plenty of water for steam boats to come up. Grub is getting scarce. I think there won't be enough to last. There is a good trail across from Circle. If this camp keeps improving it will be up with Dawson and all the others.
There are 150 men on the trail from Rampart via Tanana river. We get word here by telegraph wire. They have no dog feed here now. If you want to see a map of this country, I understand there was one sent from here and is posted up in the N. C.
Co.'s store. I saw a copy of it here and it is a correct map. No more at present.

Miserable Survivors

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—The latest advices from Andjan, Russian Turkistan, which was partly destroyed by earthquakes, in December last; say the exodus from that city continues. Not a single lawyer, banker, druggist or shopkeeper remains in the city, and the few necessaries on which the miserable survivors of the population subsist are brought by hawkers from different towns. The suffering from cold is intense, and falling the speedy erection of suitable shelters, many more people must die as a result of the recent disasters.

TANANA LETTER

Tells About the New Discovery

Little prospecting as yet—Everyone Has Been Engaged in Stampeding

The letter which is published herewith was received by Hugh Doherty, a brother of J. E. Doherty, of the McDonald Iron Works Co., and is regarded as one of the most conservative that has yet reached the city regarding the strike in the Tanana. R.
B. Daigle, the writer, is well known here having been employed for some time by Doherty, Stiles & Doherty on their steam shovel plant on lower Dominion. The present is his second trip to the Tanana and he is probably as well posted on that country in general as anyone. His first trip there was about four years ago when he took in an outfit valued at $2900, remaining there prospecting and mining until his provisions gave out when he was forced to return again to the Klondike for a grub-stake. His first enterprise was unprofitable though he found in about the same locality where the present strike is located vast bodies of low grade dirt that would pay handsomely if worked on a large scale with a steam shovel or other similar appliances. Upon his return to Dawson and again taking employment with Doherty, Stiles & Doherty, he told them that his sole purpose in returning was to acquire another grubstake and that as soon as he had earned one he purposed returning to the Tanana. He was confident that there was better pay to be discovered there than it had been his good fortune to locate and true to his word as soon as he had earned the grubstake he desired he was off again to the new field. Both the Messrs. Doherty speak of Daigle as a good miner, thoroughly honest, reliable and conservative in his estimates of a new country. The letter in question which is dated Feb. 3rd, states that ground has been located which will pay to shovel in but which would give better returns if machinery were employed.
No. 2 on Pedro which has been spoken of in other letters is described as rich as is also No. 5 B on Gold stream, ten cents being found in pans taken from any place on the dumps of either.
The letter continues:
"I think they will have 200 feet
more. There pay is getting better
and they are only half way across the creek. The creek is wide and they have got 5 feet of pay." A man

MEDAL IS FINISHED

Five Entries for the Place This Evening

The McLennan medal which is to be skated for this evening at the rink, the winner of the three mile slating race to take the same, has been finished and is on exhibition in the reception room. It is quite a work of art and whose many breast it adorns may well feel proud of the trophy. For the race this evening, which will precede the hockey match between the Lawyers and the Doctors, there are now five entries.
Tom and Ernest Haddock, Paul and Albert Forrest and William Sherwin and it is thought that the contest will be much more keen than it was upon the occasion of the first heat.
Ernest Haddock is a swift and young Forrest, who took the first heat, has been getting himself into trim for the race of his life.

MACAULAY BROTHERS

Secure Judgment in an Important Case

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Victoria, March 7.—The Supreme Court at Victoria has entered judgment with costs in favor of Macaulay Bros. for the amount recovered in Dawson against the Yukon Trading Co. as damages for the non-performance of contract for the carriage of goods from Victoria to Dawson. Defendants contended that they were not duly incorporated and that the plaintiffs not having proved incorporation, judgment should be given for defendants. Justice Drake overruled objection as defendants entered a writ of summons without taking any objection. The amount involved in the suit is $4800.

TWO STAGES

Arrive With Passengers But no Mail

A White Pass stage, Feinde driver, arrived yesterday afternoon with the following passengers: L. Liverson, Jas. O'Connell, L. Ronnestad, J. Zagloth, Andrew Mac, Edwin Englestad, Frank A. Shaw and O. Dixon.
A stage arrived this morning with Haddock driving and the following passengers: Chris Taxie, Wm. Hal-ver, J. Johnson, A. Neilson, Jno.
Watson, and Farnom. No mail came in on either of the stages.

Body Not Recovered

Seattle, Feb. 20.—The body of Henry Kock, fireman on the steamer Dolphin, who was drowned at the Yesterdock early yesterday morning, has not yet been recovered.
James Tobin, who was held by the police until the drowning was investigated, was released by Chief Sullivan last night. Tobin was with Kock a few minutes before he fell into the bay. Both men had been drinking.
The police are convinced that the drowning was purely accidental. No one saw Kock fall into the water, but Night Watchman Daniels, at the wharf, heard the splash and found Kock's hat, where it had fallen on the deck of the steamer tied alongside of the wharf.

To Learn About Taxiffs

New York, Feb. 19.—Mr. K. Shoda, collector of customs at Hakodate, Japan, has visited the customs house for the purpose of gathering information regarding the American tariff and the methods adopted by the treasury department in collecting duties.
Mr. Shoda has visited all the important countries in Europe with the same end in view. Incidentally, he is studying the economic conditions of each country which he visits.

No Change Here

King Edward's first levee is described by those attending it as large, brilliant and stately. The king was more formal than was his custom when Prince of Wales. But notwithstanding the immense trade Dunham is having, he greets his customers with the same hearty welcome as always has, and is just as ready as the past they are sure of getting the very best quality of groceries in the Dawson market at the Family Grocery, corner Second and Albert streets. All eggs canned before delivered to customers.

Fumes of Coal Gas Do Deadly Work

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Denver, Col., March 7.—Mrs. Georgina Stanley was found unconscious in her house in Denver, where lay the dead body of Major Marshall Hurd Mrs. Stanley is a step-sister of Sir was killed by inhaling fumes of coal gas, which also came very near effecting the death of Mrs. Stanley.

CURLERS SURPRISED

Two Crack Rinks Are Defeated

Mr. Justice Carig Wins His First Game of the Season by Score of 23 to 5.

Mr. Justice Carig Wins His First Game of the Season by Score of 23 to 5.

The curling rink last night presented all kinds of surprises to the players, but to none was it more marked than to some of the rinks that heretofore have always ranked as among the topnotchers when they went down in defeat before those who have been near the foot of the list. And the troubling given, too, was of a nature so severe that it would have made angels weep. The rink of Mr. Justice Craig has played in particular hard luck all season not having heretofore won a single game since the play began early in the winter. On the other hand the rink skipped by Robert Moncrief has been among the most successful, many having played in the finals for the Morgan trophy with Cornell's rink, the champions. Judge, then, of the surprise of the curlers when it became known that the rink of his lordship had wiped up the ice with that of Moncrief and by a score of 23 to 5. The playing of the Craig rink was as near perfect as possible, the stones being so placed and so guarded that when it came to the shot of Moncrief there was simply no opening by which he could get in.
Equally as remarkable was the defeat of Richardson by Wilson, though the score was even greater than in the first named, Wilson's aggregation piling up 24 points to their opponents' 4. In telling the story the winners merely say they were in good form whereas the others were not.
They are modest, too, and not inclined to "rub it in" by crowing too loudly over their victory.
Yesterday afternoon another good game was played between Cuthbert and Bruce, the former winning by a score of 19 to 7. Bruce managed to score four on one end and three singles, which was the best he could do.
From the scores made in the last few days it has begun to look as though the Harlan trophies may be won by dark horses much to the amazement of the crack rinks who have well established reputations.

 The board of trade has instituted practical measures designed to accomplish a purpose which, if successful, will guarantee the Yukon territory a renewed lease of prosperity. As detailed in the Nugget of yesterday, it is proposed to circulate over the entire territory a petition calling upon the federal government to lend its aid in providing the mining districts of the territory with a good and sufficient water supply for all purposes.

No other public movement ever inaugurated in the territory has been of greater importance to the general community. If the plan as now being outlined by the board of trade commands favorable consideration from parliament the future of the district will be assured for an indefinite number of years.

As yet, the resources of the Yukon territory have scarcely been touched. It is true that gold to the value of nearly $100,000,000 has already been mined from the gravel beds of the district immediately tributary to Dawson, but there are still other hundreds of millions which will be taken out when adequate and economic facilities are provided.

By general agreement among those who are best qualified to pass an intelligent opinion upon the situation, the lack of water has proven the greatest hindrance to successful mining operations in the past. Each individual operator must undergo enormous expense every summer in the construction of dams, flumes, etc., and even then risk much, frequently be faced of a water shortage after a few weeks of sluicing. Such obstacles which invariably confront the owners of creek claims are intensified in effect when applied to operators on hill and bench properties. With respect to the latter, it is not infrequently occurs that the bulk of a season's yield is taken up by the expense of sluicing alone owing to the difficulty encountered in securing water.

It is obvious, therefore, that a cheap water supply, furnished continuously throughout the sluicing season and particularly if carried onto the hills and benches, will practically revolutionize the mining industry. Hundreds of acres of ground now lying idle and undeveloped would thus be rendered profitable and offer splendid inducements for practical mining men. The work of prospecting new districts as yet of unknown value would be vigorously prosecuted and the whole district in consequence would teem with activity.

TREADGOLD AGAIN.
 There appears to be no doubt of the fact that an effort will be made during the present session of parliament to secure confirmation of the modified grant given to the Treadgold concessionaires last April. At the time the delegation was sent from Dawson to Ottawa to protest against the Treadgold grant, certain amendments were made in the provisions of the concession which materially altered its most objectionable features.

These changes having been made it was generally believed that the concession would die a natural death. Certain it is that capital has fought shy of backing Treadgold and that there is practically no money behind the scheme at the present time. Notwithstanding these facts, it seems not unlikely that parliament will be asked to pass upon the matter in some form or other, the supposition being that money will be found much more easily to back the scheme should the sanction of parliament be secured.

Under these circumstances it is fortunate that the territory is represented at Ottawa by Mr. Ross whose avowed hostility to the Treadgold grant is as well known in the federal capital as it is in Dawson.

It is desirable, however, owing to the uncertain condition of Mr. Ross's health that such other means as are within reach of the community be also employed to the end that no possibility of overcoming the purposes of the Treadgold octopus may be overlooked.

The Yukon territory does not want a grant of any shape, form or complexion issued to Treadgold under any circumstances. That fact was firmly settled a year ago and we are of the opinion that the wishes of the community in a matter so greatly affecting its welfare will not be overridden.

It is well, however, to take all necessary precautionary measures, and to watch closely the trend of events in order that any attempt to rush the grant through parliament may be circumvented.

The telegram authorized to be forwarded by the board of trade will carry with it the unanimous endorsement of the community. The time has arrived when Treadgold's and every similar scheme must be wiped entirely out of existence. While we are of the opinion that there is little occasion to fear that the concession will be confirmed by parliament, it is certainly the part of wisdom to guard against the occurrence of any such contingency.

Write Fake Letters From the Tanana

Two Letters Containing Opposite Description of Diggings Read to a Crowd.

There are rumors of all kinds being spread broadcast regarding the Tanana district, a few of which may contain some grain of truth, but the majority are no doubt manufactured, largely out of wholecloth and by parties who have never been any closer to the district than Dawson.

An instance illustrative of this fact occurred the other day in a local cigar store where the Tanana was being discussed.

"I have here a letter just received from there," said one party, producing a letter from his pocket. The letter contained a most glowing detailed description of the country, giving the number of creeks on which pay had been located, the depth of the gravel deposit carrying gold, width of pay-streak, etc., and advising the party to whom the letter was addressed to abandon everything and start out immediately.

The letter had every appearance of being genuine and was read with great interest by every one present, and created quite a little flutter of excitement.

After this letter had been thoroughly digested another party, present also produced a communication purporting to be as direct as the other. This letter contained a diametrically opposite account of the district claiming that there was no foundation for any story that would warrant a stampede, that there was an attempt on the part of one or two parties who had large outfits in the district to create a stampede in order to sell their goods and that he must not under any conditions be persuaded to make a move in that direction.

This letter created as much discussion as the previous one and right in the midst of the most heated argument as to which report should be accepted as containing the truth it developed that both letters had been written by the same individual who was then present and who had read one, while giving the other to the second party, and had sprung them in that way as a practical joke just to witness the controversy that would occur.

TWO OUTFITS
Among Those Who Left for the Tanana This Morning

Chas. Welsh, a brother of Detective Welsh, accompanied by Wm. H. Smith of Little Blanche, and T. A. Anderson left this morning for the Tanana. Their outfit team consisted of about 2000 pounds of provisions and supplies.

Another party leaving this morning consisted of Sherman White and Gus Schuler, two well-known sourdoughs. They took a fine outfit with them and expect to reach the diggings in fifteen days. Mr. White is one of the old time mushers, making the trip to Cape Nome over the ice in 1901. He has also taken part in a majority of the stampedes since 1898 and is well equipped for his latest venture.

Reminder of Winter.
 Yesterday the good people of Dawson had a very forcible reminder of the fact that winter had not yet released its grasp on this region. For over a month the weather had been everything that could have been desired and the idea seemed prevalent that spring was really almost here. Night before last a rain in the temperature occurred, the mercury falling to 23 below, and last night it went even one degree lower with a maximum during the day of 14 below. At noon today, the police instruments marked 12 below.

Attend the sheet and pillow case dance Friday night.

ROSEBERY'S HEIR FETED ON HIS COMING OF AGE

Edinburgh, Jan. 15.—The coming of age of Lord Dalmeny, Lord Rosebery's eldest son, has been the occasion of a series of festivities which came to a conclusion only a few days ago. Not only were they uncommonly elaborate, but they brought forth a speech from the former Liberal leader which was one of the best of his career. The entire affair, moreover, exhibited an interesting phase of life among the upper classes of England which is absolutely unknown in countries where the law of primogeniture does not obtain.

The festival reached its height when Lord Rosebery entertained nearly 150 of his Scottish tenants at a dinner in the music hall and assembly room, which were decorated with a set of scenic paintings intended to give a midsummer out-of-door effect to the midwinter indoor gathering. It was here that messages of congratulation were received from the Epsom Liberal Club, the Midlothian Liberal Association, the Epsom Board of Guardians, the Board and inmates of Dalkeith and Linlithgow Poorhouses, the inmates of Epsom Workhouse, the executive of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Liberal League, the London Lothians' Association, the Epsom Urban Council, the Leighton Bazzard Urban Council and the General Committee of the National Liberal Club.

Prior to the dinner a representative company of the tenantry presented the young lord with a massive gold loving cup and at the dinner itself, at which Lord Rosebery presided, the company included Lord Dalmeny, the Duke of Buccleuch, Lord Breadalbane, Lord Linlithgow, Lord Carrington, Lord Rothschild, Lord Dalrymple and the Hon. Neil Primrose (Lord Rosebery's second son). The toast list was a short one. Lord Rosebery and Lord Breadalbane submitted the royal toasts, the Duke of Buccleuch proposed the health of Lord Dalmeny, who briefly replied, and the Rev. J. Maclean Cramond proposed that of Lady Sybil Primrose and other members of the family to which the Hon. Neil Primrose responded.

Lord Rosebery, replying to the toast of his health, proposed by Mr. William Crichton, one of his oldest tenants, said: "I can truly say that I am very sensible of the great friendliness of so many neighboring proprietors in coming here to celebrate what must be a joyful occasion to my family and to myself. I thank you one and all from the bottom of my heart for the kindness and friendship you have shown. I remember also my own coming of age. It was so long ago that it seems scarcely credible that I could do so. It presented a marked contrast to the present occasion. We celebrated it almost in the open air by the seaside, and I remember we bathed the night after the celebration. I hope that my son, in the spirit of imitation of his father that I trust may characterize him in some respects, will not imitate him in that respect. If so we may have to celebrate another family occasion of a more melancholy kind which would cast a gloom over the retrospect of our festival."

There is one historical aspect of the occasion tonight which has an interest for me. I found out from the family legal adviser that the entail which expires today by the coming of age of my son dates from 1673. That is a long bondage, a long chain of circumstances—bondage if you choose to look at it so, but a bondage which the Scottish seat of the Primrose family, which looks down upon the Forth some ten miles from Edinburgh was quite the appropriate place for the present celebration, if only because it gave the heir his courtesy title. Of the beautiful view to be obtained from its grounds Queen Victoria wrote when she paid her first visit to Scotland.

The following communication received by the board of the public library in reply to a letter from the Vancouver library at Vancouver has recently been completed. The communication is from the board of library trustees of Vancouver and some very valuable information is given regarding the maintenance of the library as follows:

Vancouver, Feb. 12, 1903.
 A. ALAYNE JONES, Esq., Dawson.

Dear Sir,—Mr. Townley's letter of Jan. 23rd regarding library matters, to me, which I do personally and I regret I am unable to copy of the city by law re-commissioners as it was well changed and has not published, but the gist of law is as follows:

(1) Two aldermen and five are appointed by the city council board, to act until they are appointed.

(2) To be elected annually election of council.

(3) The board to appoint officers and committees.

(4) The board to meet monthly, and as many more they deem fit. Notices also sent to members.

(5) If a member misses a meeting his seat is vacant and successor appointed.

(6) Board has power to demand any officials necessary library.

(7) Board has power to purchase papers, magazines, maps, etc., and to sell same.

(8) Full statistical report made to council every year.

(9) Vouchers signed by the board, secretary and committee to be cashed by city treasurer to extent of $100. (This is something of a board used to appoint and have separate bank at which city appropriation from time to time in $500 lots as required. I think simpler plan.)

(10) Board makes its regulations for governing regulation of reading rooming library to suit circumstances.

(11) Appropriation, not $1000.

This is all there is in the law. You will find $2500 a year small allowance to run a library $85 a month; necessary to the board. $100 and $25, janitor $15 for fuel and sweeping only.

VALUABLE INFORMATION

Relative to Carnegie Library Received From Member of Vancouver's Board in Reply to Letter Asking for Suggestion Sent by Board of Control.

The following communication was received by the board of control of the public library in reply to a letter asking for information regarding the Carnegie library at Vancouver which has recently been completed.

The communication is from a member of the board of library commissioners of Vancouver and contains some very valuable information and suggestions regarding the building and maintenance of the library and is as follows:

Vancouver, Feb. 12th, 1908.

A. Allaire Jones, Esq., Dawson.

Dear Sir,—Mr. Townley has handed your letter of Jan. 23rd re Carnegie library matters, to me, to answer which I do personally and unofficially.

I regret I am unable to send you a copy of the city bylaw re election of commissioners as it was only last week changed and has not yet been published, but the gist of the new by-law is as follows:

(1) Two aldermen and five persons are appointed by the city council to form board, to act until successors are appointed.

(2) To be elected annually after election of council.

(3) The board to appoint their own officers and committees.

(4) The board to meet once a month, and as many more times as they deem fit. Notices always to be sent to members.

(5) If a member misses two monthly meetings his seat is considered vacant and successor appointed by the council.

(6) Board has power to engage and dismiss any officials necessary to run library.

(7) Board has power to buy books, papers, magazines, maps, publications etc., and to sell same.

(8) Full statistical report to be made to council every year.

(9) Vouchers signed by chairman of the board, secretary and chairman of committee to be cashed on sight by city treasurer to extent of appropriation. (This is something new. The board used to appoint own treasurer and have separate bank account into which city appropriation was put from time to time in $500 to $1000 as required. I think this is the proper plan.)

(10) Board makes its own rules and regulations for government, and regulation of reading room and lending library to suit circumstances.

(11) Appropriation not to exceed $5000.

This is all there is in the bylaw. You will find $2500 a year a very small allowance to run on. We pay librarian $65 a month; he acts as secretary to the board. Two ladies $30 and $35, janitor $15 for lighting and sweeping only—staff keep the train had a passenger who was minus a ticket, for the huge djinn floated out of the lamp's neck and curled and waved behind the train as if it were trying to rival the smoke from the engine.

"What do you want?" said he crossly. "Hurry up, for this motion is making me ill."

The djinn was probably five or six thousand years old and yet he had never before ridden on a train.

Harry had a fellow feeling for him as he was apt to be train sick himself and so he wished his wish as quickly as possible.

"I want a splendid pair of horses and an A No. 1 carriage to meet me at Metuchen Corners. Oh, and have somebody to hold 'em, but I want to drive, you know. And I want 'em to be faster than any automobile."

"Enough," said the djinn, turning deathly pale throughout his whole dusky sinuous length. "It shall be as you desire, but call me no more on these moving houses, for the motion is intolerable."

So saying the djinn vanished, and Harry, taking his lamp, went back into the car.

The train now seemed to creep, so anxious was Harry to see his new possession. But at last the cars began to slacken their speed and the station came in sight and there stood two mettlesome chestnut horses champing their bits, tossing their heads, switching their beautiful long tails—for of course they had not been docked, that being a barbarity reserved for civilization—and pawing the ground in impatience to be off. An Arab sheik was standing at their heads, but there was no one in the carriage.

Harry hurried off the train in great excitement and almost ran into his Cousin Sam.

"Hello, Sam. I've come to spend Sunday. Did you drive down?"

"No," said Sam. "Father was using both horses for ploughing. I came down in Asaph's ox cart. Do you mind riding back in it?"

"Wouldn't mind most any day but this, but I know something a heap better than that."

He pointed, as he spoke, to the magnificent horses.

"I hadn't noticed 'em before. Aren't they beauts? They must belong to Senator Norton," said Sam.

"Well, I guess they belong to Harry Munn. Come along. I want to race some automobiles."

Of course Sam thought Harry was joking until he remembered the brass lamp and then his eyes snapped with joy.

"Jingoes, I'm glad I came down."

"Well, get up and let's start," said Harry.

The two boys jumped into the carriage and Harry took the reins and as he did so the sheik vanished.

The full blooded Arabians feeling themselves free and also feeling the touch of a boy on the reins, pranced forward joyfully and they were soon on the macadamized road and going at the rate of ten miles an hour.

"Isn't this great? Whoop!" yelled Sam at the top of his lungs as the noble animals took the bits in their teeth and plunged forward as if they were on their native sands.

"You bet it's great, but it'll be greater when we can race an automobile."

"Well, but a horse can't go as fast as an automobile," said Sam, grasping the dashboard as they swung around a sharp bend in the road.

"Not ordinary horses, but these the djinn gets can do anything he wants 'em to do and I told him they must go faster than autos."

The words were hardly out of his mouth before they passed a road horse at the door of which stood a red motor wagon of the French kind, those terrors to horses and pedestrians. Its owner and his chauffeur were just about starting for Philadelphia, having stopped at the road house for luncheon.

"Race yer," yelled Harry, drawing rein.

You should have seen the contemptuous smile on the face of the automobilist.

He was one of those fellows who never turned out for anyone. He had never been beaten in a road race and he never expected to be and he did not care a rap for anyone except T. Bailey-Chubb, which was his peculiar name.

Harry came to a full stop and told Mr. T. Bailey-Chubb that he would give him a start as he didn't want to be too hard on him. You know the way a saucy boy can talk to a man older than himself.

But T. Bailey-Chubb would not deign to speak to the boy. He did wonder what so young a fellow was doing with so fine a pair of horses, but he was not the man to bandy words with an ordinary boy. Why, his ancestors had been rich for nearly two generations.

Harry winked at Sam and held his horses in until T. Bailey-Chubb, working the machine himself, had gotten about a quarter of a mile start.

The boy wound the reins around his hands and, saying to Sam, "Just you watch 'em and hold fast, he touched the horses lightly with his whip. If he had been twenty-four instead of twelve, he might have hesitated about using the whip.

Well, both horses evidently felt insulted at getting such a strong hint that they were not satisfying their master, and their ears twitched angrily. Then they just flung out their legs and rushed through the landscape like a whirlwind. Not all at once, but very steadily they came upon the red automobile.

Mr. T. Bailey-Chubb had of course forgotten them. His eyes were straight ahead and he was looking for autos to overtake and beat, for he was going at a forty-mile-an-hour gait. But his man happened to look over his shoulder and—wonder of wonders! there was the span of horses overtaking them as if they were standing still. He told Mr. T. Bailey-Chubb—and that gentleman gave one glance over his shoulder and put on no more power.

But it was no use. Harry's horses were the fastest that ever trod the earth and in less than two minutes he passed the red motor-wagon like a streak, yelling as he did so in boy fashion.

"You ought to get a fast machine."

Mr. T. Bailey-Chubb forgot his riches and used unpardonable words and pushed his machine to the limit and for a brief moment he held his own with the horses, but Harry leaned over and spoke to them and they began to go as if they were trying to beat a comet.

Just then they came to a turn in the road and Harry swept out of sight of the other man. Seeing several vehicles ahead he slackened up and waited for his late opponent to come around the turn.

But he did not come.

"Guess he's had an accident," said Sam and the boys turned and went back.

They found Mr. T. Bailey-Chubb dropping out of a tree while his man was scrambling out of a pool of water. The machine was a heap of rubbish.

Harry expressed a good deal of sympathy for T. Bailey-Chubb because he was a sympathetic boy, as the auto-gentleman had been the cause of five runaways directly owing to his disobeying the rules of the road. I do not think he was entitled to much sympathy. Nor did he take it in the right spirit, but used language to the boy that Harry would not have used to any one.

"Come on, Sam," said he at last, a dull red burning in his cheeks.

They got in the carriage which they had left and turned their horses' steps toward Aunt Sarah's.

"Where's my lamp?" suddenly said Harry.

"You didn't have it when you got off the train," said Sam.

"I must have left it on the car," said Harry with a gone feeling at his heart.

"Well, let's drive to Princetonville and ask the conductor when the train comes in."

The suggestion taken, they again turned about and went at top speed for the station which lay some twenty miles away and they actually arrived there five minutes before the train did.

When the train came in Harry made his way to his seat, but there was no lamp. He asked the conductor and the brakeman if they had seen it, and the brakeman said, "Yes, I saw a battered lamp on the seat and I chucked it out of the window as we were coming into New Brunswick."

Back to New Brunswick drove the boys, and leaving the horses at a livery stable they searched along the railroad bank for the lamp, but they did not find it—then nor at any later time.

If any boy does find it and will send it to Harry Munn he will be suitably rewarded. But the trouble is that if any boy does find it and knows its magic properties he won't need any reward, so Harry's chances for receiving his lamp are slim.

But he still has the horses.

HELPS MANY MEN WHO LOSE RICHES

More than a century and a half ago Alexander Pope wrote of "Humble Allen," who "with conscious shame did good by stealth, and blushed to find it fame."

Modern heroes could not easily find inspiration in such a theme. "Humble Allens" are not many nowadays. Charity has become an institution, and like murder, it will out. Philanthropists are sorely distressed to avoid publicity for their benefactions and one cannot endow a refuge for orphans or indigent cats without a noisy flourish from the housetops.

It is curious and somewhat startling, then, to find that right here in Philadelphia has existed for nearly fifty years, without the knowledge of more than a few persons, an association of men devoted to a unique and unostentatious, well-doing. Public ignorance of their enterprise is all the more remarkable from the fact that among these men are some of the wealthiest, most influential and best known citizens of the community.

Included in the membership list are such names as Jay Cooke, N. Parker Shortridge, Lincoln Godfrey, Joel J. Baily, Justus C. Strawbridge, Isaac H. Clothier, John H. Converse, Richard Wood and others of equal standing.

But it is the unusual character of their beneficence that attracts interest. All these men are wealthy—some beyond the dreams of avarice—but their purpose has nothing to do with the amelioration of the condition of the pauper. On the contrary, theirs is a society for the rescue of the decayed millionaire.

They call it the Merchants' Fund Association and the forty-ninth annual meeting was held the other day in a little old room in South Fourth street, away from the clamors of the more pretentious virtues.

In a word, the plan of these kindly old gentlemen is to relieve once wealthy companions of their early days, who have since lost their fortunes or in other ways suffered the vicissitudes of time.

The act of incorporation, dated 1854, says that the object is "to furnish relief to indigent merchants of Philadelphia, and especially those who are aged and infirm," and there is a commentary on the ironic whims of circumstances in the fact that since that time $300,000 have been paid out in benefits.

In that first year seven merchants were aided at an expenditure of $1,500, while in the year just passed forty-three beneficiaries were on the roll and $10,200 were disbursed. Comparison of these figures might afford matter for interesting speculation by the merchant of today more reckless than he of a half century ago, or is it that the number of merchants has increased and, therefore, of course the number of unsuccessful merchants.

More than $400,000 are now in the invested fund of the organization, and it is almost constantly receiving accretions, so that there is plenty left over for the future, if the supply of unfortunate plutocrats holds out.

HARRY'S ROADSTERS TALE OF THE UGLY BRASS LAMP.

It was the first of the month, and as it happened to fall on a Saturday Harry Munn took his lamp with him and went to spend Sunday with his Aunt Sarah's at Metuchen Corners.

He had no clear idea as to what he should do with the djinn when he had summoned him. He was very much of a boy and generally wished on the spur of the moment, else he might have gone about the thing systematically and wished for a regular Rockefeller fortune at once. However, he continued to get more fun out of his wishes than most people do out of a fortune.

He had to go by train to the Corners and at one of the stations he saw a very handsome coach and pair, and it suddenly struck him that he would like to be met by just such an equipage—only he could get along without a driver who would simply be in the way. He preferred to do his own driving.

Now, in order to have the horses and carriage waiting for him when he arrived at his destination he must call the djinn then and there.

He took his precious brass lamp and went out on the rear platform of the last car. Then he took out his handkerchief and rubbed the lamp in the usual fashion and in a moment the train had a passenger who was minus a ticket, for the huge djinn floated out of the lamp's neck and curled and waved behind the train as if it were trying to rival the smoke from the engine.
