The Methodist choir met for a few minutes after service on Sunday even-ing in the basement of the church to minutes after service on Sunday evening in the basement of the church to say good-bye to the organist, Miss Bertha Lester, who has just completed a period of four years' association with the choir. The following address was read and a gold locket, suitably engraved, presented. Miss Lester, taken quite by surprise, replied, thanking the friends for their kindness. As the meeting was quite informal, the friends simply bid her bon voyage.

SACRED MEMORIES

When the white trost tints the alder And the wind of Autumn passes With a moan among the bushes And the slender growing grasses, When the golden sun is dipping Far behind the hills of haze,

It is then that memory leads me To the scenes of other days. Oh, how well do I remember When a lad I loved to roam In the gaudy-dressed November

'Mong the beeches near my home, When the first frost burst the burr pods And let fall their nuts so sweet, Which would hide beneath the carpet

Of the red leaves at my feet. Sitting all alone and thinking Bout the things I used to know Kind of sets my heart a thinking, And again I'd like to go Back there to the buds and blossoms, To the music of the rilis-

Oft I think that olden voices Call me from the silent hills, Hail to Autumn! memories bringing Of the things that once I knew.
Woods and fields and wild birds wing

Far away in skies of blue-From the glint of hill and headland, From the shades of red and gold, Olden visions seem to beckon Me to hallowed scenes of old.

Editor Reporter:

Sir,-Kindly allow me space for s few lines in regard to increase salary of teachers. First, as to an article written by Mr Robeson asking the Brockville Times to please explain where there is the least semblance of ousiness like ability manifest in the requirements of the act. Now, sir, I can readily understand Mr. Robeson is simply looking from a standpoint of money-saving, while it is too plainly seen by a not too close observer that the low salary heretofore has been the means of driving the best teachers, or at least a large proportion of them, to take up teaching and other positions in the West and other parts of our Dominion rather than teach for starvation wages. Now, sir, are the lawmakers of our country to let such things go on or remedy them, so as to keep some of the cream of talent in our own schools instead of compelling them, on account of small wages, to migrate where they can command deserved wages? Further in my ob-servance, I find many of our schools throughout the province with simply a pupil of the high school who has not even been able to get so far as a pre-paration for Model. Now, sir, such is the case, and very plain facts they are, and I personally know a great many 1st class teachers taking schools in the West at as large a salary as is paid many high school teachers in our fair Ontario. Why is it they pay such wages in the West? Simply as they pay in accordance for other services-value received—and they know a good thing out there when they get it and are willing to pay for it. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for so much space, I remain, yours truly

"About the worst way in the world + begin is to be harsh to the bird, starving or abusing it, although some little reward, such as a nut, a leaf of lettuce or a scrap of apple (according to the var-lety of the bird) may be given when the pet has proved specially apt and willing. First of all, gain the confidence of your bird, which of itself is a process requir-ing time and understanding of bird nature. When at all possible, the little creatures should be accustomed to leave the cage now and then, to fly around the the cage now and then, to my around the room, becoming in this way members of the family circle. This means splendid exercise, which your pet does not obtain in his cage, besides helping him to outgrow any feeling of fear he map happen to have in the presence of humans. often by some extremely simple means a pretty trick is evolved. "To gain a bird's confidence speak to it always in a quiet, reassuring voice. They are nervous beings and highly sensitive to the atmosphere of their surroundings. If you have occasion to handl them, let it be with a gentle, reassuring touch. These seem trifles, but they are of great importance in bird training. Teach a bird first not to be afraid of you. In approaching his cage call to him gently to let him know you are coming and that his breakfast is in sight. Many masters and mistresses fail in this simple precaution. They approach the cage suddenly, jerk the seed cup from its position, replace it in the same way, almost frightening the bird to death, and without a word to reassure him. Every morning accustom the bird to some little handling. First remove the and follow the bird with the other hand outside. Hold carefully, but very gently. Feathered pets will not stand squeezing or pressure of any kind. Let it rest with its feet comfortably arranged on ons of your fingers. Talk to it quietly and coaxingly. On returning it to the cage give it a treat in the way of lettuce,

"By placing a piece of lettuce on the palm of the hand and holding it just outside of the cage door, which has been opened, the bird can be taught to hop on to your hand.

Another time, pin a leaf of lettuce to the sleeve of your coat or gown, and by the sleeve of your coat or gown, and by this means tempt it by placing some-thing between the lips. In time the bird will learn to take the morsel from your mouth and to kiss you.

"A clever canary of my acquaintance was taught not to eat until after its master had been fed. Two or three hemp seeds were placed in the seed cup, after which the master would say, "Tiddlewinks, your master wants his breakfast." The bird would immediately take up one of the seeds and come to the cage up one of the seeds and come to the cage door with it. The owner would then open the cage, hold out a finger, on which the pet would perch. The bird invariably shelled the seed, by the way, before planing the kernel on the gentleman's hap, afterward flying back to the cage tor construct the state.

another tidbit. 'A popular trick in trained bird exhibi-tions is that of climbing a ladder. This pretty feat, given patience, and a bird who loves you, can be managed by any amateur. Begin by having the bird hop from one finger to another, lifting one above the other so as to give the suggestions of ascent. Now try it with a toy ladder, resting it on a chair or anything suitable Put the bird on the lowest suitable round and coax it to mount from one step to another higher up until the top is reached. Here there might be a tiny bell fastened with a ribbon, which the bell rastened with a riboon, which the bird will learn to ring This trick is of course not the work of a single lesson or of one day The pet must be led to it little by little, taking him only in his most favorable moods

"When there are two birds to be trained they can be taught to balance together on a ladder or to balance on a ball. With three birds one can be trained to draw a tiny cart in which the other two ride. I myself once owned a bird which would jump through a hoop like a circus clown, with apparently great enjoyment to the feat, and another that turned over on the swing like an acrobat in the circus. The favorite stunt of another little fel low was sliding down a rope or wire as it escaping from some burning building.

Birds are like human beings, differing tly in character, likes and dislikes, To train them successfully one study their dispositions. One feathered pet of my acquaintance refused to sleep pet of my acquaintance resused to the act night unless it had a cracker in its

THE WEE FREES.

Get Only a Small Amount of the Church Property.

In England they find ways of doing justice by law if they cannot get it by judicial process. Six years ago the United and Free Churches joined each other. But twenty-four ministers of the other. But twenty-four ministers of the latter Church refused to recognize the merger, and claimed to be the Free Church, all its other members having joined the United Church. In the Scotch Courts they were defeated, but they won in the House of Lords. The decision was a montrous injustice. It cave the twenty-four ministers, nickoften develop pretty little traits and tricks of his own devicing, which are less often noticed in the always caged pet. These individual traits can be utilized as a basis of his future training. What the little creatures like to do they will perform readily, and by adding to this was given. The property was created property actually diverted most of this money from the purposes for which it was given. The property was created after the Free Church was organized and the wishes of almost all the donors would have been promoted by the union. As soon as the decision was rendered Parliament created a commission to divide the property. The twenty-four "Wee Frees" are recognized as the Free Church and a small amount of the property is assigned to them. The great bulk of the property is assigned to the United Free Church in which are merged all the Free Churchmen except the twenty-four ministers, mostly in the Highlands, and their congregations.

Supplying the Idol Trade.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Several years ago a work of fiction by a prominent English author introduced as one of its leading English characters a hyprocritical person who had enriched himself by making idols for the heathen trade. Recently England was a good deal shocked by the story that a factory in Birmingham was turning out the the same kind of goods and supplying the same heathenish demand. The matter was at once investigated and after a careful canvas of the manufacturing interests of the big town a leading clergyman issued a circular denying the charge emphatically, but qualifying his denial by the statement that such a factory had existed at one time, but if lost its trade through American competition and was finally forced to close its doors. It is reported that the British public, which has a way of taking these things with a heavy sort of seriousness, isn't quite satisfied with this explanation. British made idols to which the Asiatic or African heathen bow the knee are shameful enough, but to lose the trade in them to the hustling yankee doesn't improve the disgraceful situation. Ancient Greece will always be remembered for the fine types of manhood sup-plied by the heroes of her battlefields and by the athletes of her arenas. Still plied by the heroes of her battlefields and by the athletes of her arenas. Still more will these heroes and athletes themselves be remembered for the custom they bequeathed to later ages of heading sore and injured places on their bodies by the external application of some secret balm or salve. The Greek charioteers did not emerge from their mad races without some severe bruise or gaping wound; and to anoint each injury carefully with their favorite balm was an indispensable part of the day's programme. If we go back in history—even to Bible times—we find that this external "rubbing" has prevailed all along the line, and the only explanation of its survival, amidst so many changes in science, seems to lie in the fact that the external use of salves and balms is dictated to us by Nature herself. Our own instincts tell us to rub a part that hurts, and in Zam-Buk the ideal substance to apply to an injured or diseased surface is universally believed to have been found at last.

Most of the ointments, embrocations dieved to have been found at last.

Most of the ointments, embrocations and salves that have had to suffice in the past are of a coarse consistency, and contain quantities of mineral poisons, rancid animal fats, and turpentine. What healing properties they may pos-sess are generally counterbalanced by the grave danger of inflaming and con-taminating the flesh.

Zam-Buk is absolutely free from any such danger. It is a preparation compounded purely from herbal juices, essences and extracts—a "skin-food," which regenerates old and diseased
tissues just as food rebuilds and reconstructs the body. Zam-Buk also gives naturally just that assistance which Nature is asking for when pain, swellings, eruptions or inflammation occur. Zam-Buk allays all forms of occur. Zann-Duk alays as tops sup-puration, expels disease, stops sup-puration, stops festering and virtually "feeds" the skin, toning it up in Nature's own way.

"GOOD FAIRY OF THE HOME." ESQUIMAU FEAST OF THE DEAD DISCOVERY

The Esquimaux of St. Michael lower Yukon River hold a festival of the dead every year at the beginning of November or the beginning of December as well as a greater festival at intervals of several years. At these seasons food, drink and clothes are provided for the returning ghosts in the kashim, or clubhouse, of the village, which is illumin ated with oil damps. Every man or woman who wishes to honor a dead friend sets up a lamp on a stand in front of the place which the deceased used to occupy in the club-house. These lamps, filled with seal oil, are kept burning day and night till the festival is over. They and night till the festival is over. They are believed to light the shades on their return to their old home and back again to the land of the dead. If anyone fails to put up a lamp in the club-house and to keep it burning the shade whom he or she desires to honor could not find its way to the place, and so would miss the feast. On the eve of the festival the meanest, male relative goes to the group. nearest male relative goes to the grave and summons the ghost by planting there a small model of a seal spear or of there a small model of a seal spear of or a wooden dish, according as the deceased was a man or a woman. The totems of the dead are marked on these imple-

When all is ready the ghosts gather in the fire pit under the club-house, and assending through the floor at the proper moment, take possession of the bodies of their namesakes, to whom the offerings of food, drink and clothing are made for the benefit of the dead. Thus each shade obtains the supplies he needs in the other world. The dead who have none to make offerings to them are believed to make offerings to them are believed to suffer great destitution. Hence the Esquimaux fear to die without leaving behind them someone who will sacrifice to their spirits, and childless people gen-erally adopt children lest their shades be forgotten at the festivals.

When a person has been much disliked his ghost is sometimes purposely ignored, and that is deemed the severest punishment that could be inflicted up After the songs of invitation to the dead have been sung the givers of the feast take a small portion of food from every dish and cast it down as an offering the shades; then each pours a little water on the floor so that it runs through the cracks. In this way they believe that the spiritual essence of all the food and water is conveyed to the

The remainder of the food is after ward distributed among the people pres-ent, who eat of it heartily. Then with songs and dances the feast comes to an end, and the ghosts are dismissed to who, and the gnosts are dismissed to their own place. Dances form a conspic-uous feature of the great festival of the dead, which is held every few years. The dancers dance not only in the clubouse, but also at the graves, and on he ice if the deceased met their death by drowning.—J. G. Frazer in the "Fort

While the monogram on shirts is metimes condemned, it continues to survive, and, undoubtedly, will be preerved as long as men like to accentuate ersonality in dress. To swerve from the conventional a monogram is often embroidered within a small circle, and each grouping of letters is given a dis-tinct character. Of course the monotinct character. Of course the monogram is always in colors to match the shirt itself.

Mexico's Handling of Trusts. The Mexican government fights trusts in a practical and direct sort of way. When the meat trust advanced the price of meat to a practical prohibitive figure, so far as the poor were concerned, the government went into the business and undersold the trust, at the same time giving better meats. The competition had its effect and the trust quickly reduced prices. The government has made arrangements whereby it can go into the meat business on a very large scale at any time the trust becomes too greedy.

Boat Smashed on the Rocks, but the People Saved.

Men Clinging to the Sorindo, Which Has Broken in Two.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., despatch: Within the past six days four vessels caught. the treacherous horns of the crescent northern coast of the island, carried out of their course by strong westerly currents and driven by furious northeast gales, have gone ashore to be come total wrecks amid the breakers.

On Friday it was the Turret Bell, stranded at Cable Head, and since condemned. On Saturday the schooner Or pheus went to pieces at Campbell's Cove. Yesterday morning the barque Olga met her fate at Blackbush Last night the barque Sorindo finished her career at Priest's Pond, all within a distance of twenty miles of the coast. So far six men are known to have perished,

The Olga, an iron ship of 1,081 tons, left Port Elizabeth, South Africa, September 1, bound for Campbellton, N. B., to load deals for Australia, and was in ballast when she struck. A tremendous sea was on, and it was not until 3 sea was on, and it was not until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, after many futils attempts, that communication with the shore was established. A heavy cable from the ship was made fast on the bank, and the crew lannehed the ship's boat with 12 men and one woman on board. The attempts was made to on board. The attempt was made to reach shore by the assistance of the cable, but cwing to the terrible seas the boat broke away, and after tossing in the breakers, was finally dashed upon the rocks. Willing hands were there to render assistance, and they succeeded in saving every one of the boat's occupants. The boat, however, was smashed to

In the fore-noon one of the crew came ashore on a life buoy, terribly mangled. He was un able to speak English, and no one under-stood him. Later a boat was launched from the ship, and it was capsized and three men were drowned. Nine men reached shore alive, there are two dead men among the wreckage, and at pre-sent six still cling to the wreck, one portion of which is three hundred yards and the other two hundred yards from the shore. They are in a perilous position, and will likely be swept to their death and will likely be swept to their death before morning, for the sea still rages furiously. All of the men who reached shore alive are injured, and it is feared a number will de. Doctors have gone from Sours, the nearest town, ight miles away, to care for them.

Richibucto, N. B., Nov. 7.—The storm is still raging in Northumberland Straits, and all efforts to get to the stranded Norwegian barque Adeona teday have failed, nor has it been possible to learn the fate of the remaining members of the crew. There is still the crew. ing members of the crew. There is still no sign of life aboard, and eleven men all told are now believed to have been swept to death by the huge breakers to leave the vessel on the longboat on Monday last. No more bodies have come ashore. One of these tossed up on the beach has been identified as Walter Halz, aged about 25. The other was the steward of the ill-fated barque. His name is unknown. Lighthousekeeper Richard says that on Monday he saw men from the barque taking to the longboat. How many he could not say, for the spray was blinding. He counted five, bue believes the others may also have got into the boat, and that instead of only part of the crew being lost with the longboat, all hands went down. The bodies of the two men which washed ashore will be buried to-morrow. An inquest has been he'd and a verdivt given in accordance with the facts. From Ot-tawa a cable has been sent to Arendal, Norway, and in response a request for the names of the men lost has been re-ceived by the Richibucto harbor master, but these cannot be obtained until the ship's papers can be seen, and further efforts to get to the barque will be made to-morrow. Unless the gale abates, however, nothing can be done. Halz was a German, but it is believed that all the others of the crew, like Capt. Johansen. were Norwegians.

TEN OF THE SOVINTO'S CREW WERE DROWNED.

Last Survivor Throws Himself Overboard With a Plank and is Saved-Terrible Hardships Endured- The Captain's Story.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., despatch: Ten men were drowned from the Finnish barque Sovinto, wrecked on Tuesday night off Priest Pond. Four bodies have been recovered. Last night only six men remained on board, four on the forward section and two on the r. The latter two were picked off a dory from the shore last night. of the four men, aged seventy, unable to endure the terrible exposure, leaped overboard and was drowned. The two were washed overboard, but the fourth held on all day. To-day he was observed from the shore walking back and forward, helding on to a line.

At nightfall he setsed a plank, leaped into the raging breakers, and by a miracle escaped destruction, being dashed on shore by a huge wave and rescued by willing hands uninjured, after sixty hours' exposure, and without food for that time.

IRISH COUNCIL.

THE DRAFT OF REORGANIZATION OF GOVERNMENT.

Central Board and Departments of Agriculture, Education and Land Transfer-Representation in Parliament as at Present.

Dublin, Nov. 12.-The Evening Herald declares that it has reliable information to the effect that at a recent conference of Irish leaders, Sir Anthony Patrick MacDonnell, Under-Secretary to the Earl of Aberdeen, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, read the draft of a plan for the land.

The draft provided for the establishment of a Central Castle Board, an Educational Department, a Department of Agriculture and for the transfer of land. It creates an Irish Council with between two-thirds and three-fourths of its members elected on the existing Par liamentary franchise and the remainder on a restricted franchise or nominated. Clergymen of all denominations are eligible for membership in the Counci Ireland is to retain her present repre-sentation in Parliament; the police are to remain under Imperial contral, but the force will be reduced numerically and the judiciary remains unaffected. The proposed measure is not yet com plete, but the essential features have been settled definitely, and the entire Cabinet is agreed thereon.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER.

Day by Day a Sewer Gives Up Fragments of the Body.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 12.-Piece by piece the big county sewer is giving up the remains of an unknown man, who, according to the verdict of the coroner's jury, came to his death by violent beans at the hands of parties unknown.

Eleven days ago the trunk of a body was found near the mouth of the sewer south of Bessemer. Later fragments of arms and legs were found. Tuesday a foot, encased in a newspaper, was fished from the sewer near Brighton, several miles from the sewer's mouth.

Yesterday a human skull was found in the sewer. The jaws were crushed in, evidently foul play. Another leg and loot were also discovered yesterday. Wire and rope were tied to the leg, and to the other end were attached pieces

All efforts to identify the dead man and to learn the manner and motive for the murder have failed.

DOYLE MURDER TRIAL.

Evidence Completed-Prisoner Claims Papers Have Been Stolen.

Morden, Man., Nov. 12.—The fate of Marti Doyle now rests with the jury. The last witness was heard in this most bitterly-con tested case to-day, and all that remains are he addresses by counsel and the charge his Lordship. The defence to the strong circumstantial case presented by the Crown consisted practically of three witnesses—the prisoner himself, his son, and Keating, formerly the keeper of a blind pig in a build-ing awned by Doyle, who swore yesterday he had seen Weiler in Estevan after the time he is alleged to have been murdered.

The most surprising of all allegations was made to-day, when the prisoner charged that three papers which were on his person when ne was arrested disappeared after passing into the possession of the authorities. These papers, the prisoner claimed, consisted of a letter from Weiler, written at Battleford after the date he was supposed to have been murdered; a letter from Wiseman, who, he claimed, left for the west with Weiler, and whose name appears on the Albion hotel reg ister in company with that of V. and a third paper a contract with a man named King for land.

when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for just such operations!

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief, this medicine is certain to help.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness, severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps, bearing-down pains, and an irritable disposition compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said that I had a serious fessort to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour is made from hard spring wheat—a wheat that is rich in nutriment, that grinds fine and white, and produces bread and pastry that are wholesome and nourishing as well as light and crisp—it's a flour that begins to be good in the wheat fields, not in the mills.

Star Rays.

What causes the rays or pencils of light that seem to be thrown out by every star when seen by the naked eye? A German scientist finds that all stars show precisely the same rays, but that in the case of the brighter stars the rays are plainer and some what longer. It is further remarked that the rays seen by the left and right eyes differ, and that if the head be turned the rays are rotated in a corresponding manner. It is thus cone that the source of the rays is not in the stars, but in the eye itself, the middle of the retina being not perfectly homogeneous in its sensitiveness.

How a Horse Sleeps. Horses always point one ear forward when they sleep. Exactly why it is lone no human being can tell, but the probability is that the practice is a relic of the time when they were wild and obliged to be on their guard even when asleep. Cattle, on the other hand, are apparently indifferent as to the position of their ears while sleeping, but no odds what position they are in both are always pointed alike Ask some observing horseman if it is not a fact that a horse always throws one ear forward when he sleeps.

Commerce and Literature "Do you think that a commercial career is to be compared to a literary career?" asked the high browed and melancholy youth.

"My boy," said Mr. Cumrox, "in business you can write your name on a piece of paper no bigger than a postal card and make it worth thousands of dollars. In literature you can write up reams of paper without making it worth 50 cents."

HOW FAME COMES.

on Who Became Great Through Accident or Char Accident has played an important part in the making of great men. If Cooper had never been challenged by his wife to write as good a story as an English novel he had been reading he might never have been one of the great novelists.

If Napoleon had persisted in his attempts to be a writer of essays after he left the military academy the world would not have known this great gen-

If Shakespeare had not failed as a wool merchant and turned actor and then, becoming disgusted with himself as an indifferent player, applied him-self to writing there would never have been this great dramatist, and no doubt the plays of today would have been inferior to what they are.

Cowley became a poet purely through chance. When only a boy he found in his mother's attic a copy of Spenser's "Faerie Queene" and, be-coming enchanted by the rhyme, determined to write poetry for himself.

Gibbon tells that it was while he was at Rome among the ruins of the capitol that he was first moved to write the history of the rise and fall of that great empire. Probably had he not taken a walk on that certain sunny day he would never have conceived the work that afterward made him fa-Corneille, the French poet, was in accident, and Moliere was turned to writing comedy, from the tanestry trade, by a reprimand from his father for leading a dissipated life.

Newton discovered the force of grav itation through a mere chance. When a student at Cambridge he went one day to the country. Being weary with his rambles, he sat down beneath an apple tree, and while he was musing there was rudely aroused by a severe from an apple which, falling from the branches, struck him on the He was surprised at the force of the blow from so small an object, and this led him to deduce the principle of gravity.

Flamsteed became an eminent asnomer through chance. Because of ill health he was taken from school. and, wishing to have some books te read while in confinement, he borrow ed a book on astronomy. He was se much interested in this volume that he procured others and at length adopted the study as a profession.

Pennant, the authority on natural history, received his propensity in that direction through a chance perusal of a book on birds which he found on a table in the house of a friend, and Sir Joshua Reynolds was first moved to his profession of painting portraits by casually reading Richardson's treatise.

Mistakes of Authors.
The author of "Don Quixote" makes the party at the Crescent tavern eat two suppers in one evening. Scott in one chapter of "Ivanhoe" gives the Christian name of Malvoisin as Richard, subsequently altering it to Philip. Pope makes a weasel eat corn. Kings-ley makes John Brumblecombe read the prayer for "All sorts and conditions of men," though in the time of Elizabeth the prayer book did not con tain it. Sir Archibald Allison speaks of "Sir Peregrine Pickle," when he means Sir Peregrine Maitland, and the same author translated "droit de timbre" as timber duty "a howler," which is only equaled by Victor Hugo's translation of "Firth of Forth, "premier de quatre."-London Acad-

Later in the night she woke up and saw her husband still kneeling in prayer. At daybreak his supplications had not ceased why don't you come to bed?' asked his wife. WILL MARRY A BARONESS.

Meantime an Actress Wants Damag for Breach of Promise.

London, Nov. 12.—The trial of the preach of promise suit by Marian Draughn, an actress, against Heinrich Thyssen, the son of a German multimillionaire, was begun this afternoon. The defendant, who is engaged to marry a Viennese baroness, denies the actress' charge. His father is the owner of large iron works at Dusseldorf, where he employs 9,000 men, and is regarded in Germany as sec-ond only to the Krupps, so far as wealth is concerned.

Miss Draughn's chunsel described the meeting of the pair in London, where Miss Draughn was appearing on the stage. He said Thyssen had on the stage. It is said Thysself had stipulated that the marriage must be secret, owing to the objections of his father. Thereafter the two had traveled to-gether, and had visited Paris, Nice and New York.

BRADSTREET'S TRADE REVIEW.

Montreal—Taking the general trade situation here, and induced in all parts of Canada, it may be gant conditions are unusually satisfactory for this time of the year. If there were any jarring not it would, perhaps, take the form of a warning in the direction of the speculative spirit which is evident in too many branches of trade. There is no doubt, also, that general conditions in Canada are so good that trade prospects have suffered very little if any. Collections fair to good. The brisk movement of wholesale stocks continues. There is a better tone to the retail drygoods trade in this city and heavy winter goods continue to move well. Domestic cottons continue to advance sharply. New fur prices show little change. There is a fair buginess in groceries. Refined sugars have declined loe per cwt. all round. There have been some arrivals of Scotch refined. Teas are very firm. In hardware the movement of shelf goods is brisk. Metals are generally active and firm, atthough lead and tin are easier. Wool is quiet and steady. The local demand for leather is duil, but the market holds firm.

Toronto-Never before has the movement of wholesale stocks in almost all lines been so heavy as it has this season. The holiday and the spring trade has been practically completed by the wholesalers in many lines and they report that orders have been larger and for better quality goods than ever before. There has been a particularly brisk time to the drygoods business. Sorting orders are good and trade for spring is heavy. Prices on most lines of cottons and linens have been withdrawn. Woolens and silks hold firm. The men's clothing trade is showing an exceedingly good tone. In most lines the manufacturers are unable to take further orders. The labor question is a serious problem. In all lines there has been an exceedingly satisfactory demand for helder goods A BRADSTREET'S TRADE REVIEW.

During the past week or so there has been a particularly large business in boots and shoes and in rubber footwear. Groceries are moving well and prices firm. Firmness in hardware is a trade feature and orders are large. Country trade is good and indications point to a heavy holiday trade being done.

Vancouver and Victoria—Buoyancy is the characteristic of trade conditions all along the Coast. All lines of wholesale goods are moving briskly. Hardware is particularly active owing to the great activity in building. The lumber mills have difficulty in keeping up with the demand and prices are very firm and expected to go higher. The trade in provisions is also active.

Quebec—Very little change is noted in general over that of the preceding week. Local industries are well employed and, while sole leather shows a tendency to advance, the prices at the moment are firm.

All last winter and well into spring I endured terrible agony until I found a cure in Bileans. Soon after eating I felt an uncomfortable fulness eating I felt an uncomfortable fulness in the stomach, a steady pain in the region of the heart, accompanied by retching and belching of gas. I was hardly ever free from this retching and belching night or day, and the result was that my sleep was much broken into. I tried first one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good and I grew very nervous and disgood and I grew very nervous and dis-couraged. My strength cobed away so that I could not work, and I have walk-ed the floor for hours at a time in pain. This was my state when I first tried Bileans. They proved most satisfactory from the first. I persevered with them until all the symptoms of indigestion had been entirely removed. My illness had caused me to be completely run down, but since taking Bileans I am like a different person. Williams' Pink Pills Cure Obstinate Indigestion After Other Medicines Fail.

"When I was first troubled with indigestion I did not bother with it. I thought it would pass away naturally. GREAT SUN DIAL IN DELHI.

Shadows Fail Upon Marble Arcs, Marking the Time to Minutes.

The natives know little or nothing of the meaning of these ruins and reports of English travelers of the eighteenth century hand as to the form and use of the mural instruments.

The peculiarity of this work, giving it a unique position among the astronomical monuments of the world, is that

It is one of the oldest which have been reserved (the oldest in Europe being the Leyden observatory, built in 1632), and here were determined the obliquity of the ecliptic, the length and breadth, de-clination and position of the equinoctial

Near it stand the ruins of an obliquely inclined astronomical construction whose purpose its unknown. tion whose purpose is unknown.

The observations seem to have been longer continued at Benares, the residence of the great Moguls. At least Dr. Riem was able, guided by information from English sources of the eighteenth century, to reconstruct some small instruments which were still known at

But the saying "ex oriente lux," applied to the science of astronomy, seems to have no great significance here, for in spite of the construction of this observatory no accurate results were obtained.

Press bulletin from the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Canada. By

Prof. C. J. S. Bethune. The time of year has now arrived when most of our insect foes have ceased their ctive work, and are withdrawn from obervation and consequently most people ome to the conclusion that the season's fight is over and that nothing need at present be done. But this is very far from being the case. There are many destructive insects that can be more easily dealt with now than at any other time of the year.

First and foremost the Pea-weevil. The losses from this insect have been very much lessened during the last two seasons in Ontario, but this does not mean that we have got rid of the trou-ble. The insect is still with us, but being in greatly reduced numbers can the more easily be dealt with. If there is the least suspicion of the presence of the tiny beetle in the newly-harvested peas, they, and in any case peas intended for seed should be at once treated with bisulphide of carbon which will kill every one that is exposed to its fumes. The method is familiar enough; put the peas in an air-tight cask or bin, and place in an open pan on top of them one ounce of the bisulphide to every 100 lbs. of peas (a bushel weighs about 60 lbs.), cover up tightly and leave for 48 hours. Then open up either out of doors or where there is a thorough draft of air; do not allow any fire of near it, as the vapor is very inflammable and explosive; every weevil or other insect among the peas will be dead and non-infested seed will be available tor next year. The same treatment should be used for the Bean-weevil, w serious pest in some parts of the prov-

In addition to this treatment of the peas themselves, the pea-straw and rub-bish should be cleared up and hurnt and all refuse where the threshing has been done should be similarly got rid of. This will destroy any weevils that have already come out and are hiding away for the winter. It will pay to do this whether the insect is known to be present or not.

This brings us to the next important matter, namely, clean farming and gar-dening. All sorts of insects find their winter quarters in refuse. Many that infest grain take refuge in the stubble, others are sheltered by loose rubbish, others are sheltered by loose rubbish others again hide in tufts of grass, am ong the weeds in fence corn bark, wherever in fact there is shelter of any kind. Now is the time to turn them out and expose them to the frost and wet. Clean up and burn weeds of every kind, this will destroy many seeds as well as insects. Leave no heaps of rubbish anywhere. Gather up and add to the manure pile the leaves and stalks of roots, potatoes, etc. Plough pastures that are infested with white grubs or the larvae of Rose beetles. Scrape the rough bark off the trunks and limbs of fruit-trees, but this may be done later on in the winter. By keeping the farm, the orchard, and the garden clean, myriads of insects will be prevented from finding on the premises the shelter they need during the winter the shelter they need during the winter and will either perish or go somewhere else for a hiding place, and thousands more that are in the egg or chrysalis stage will be destroyed. Many, no doubt, will think all this too much trouble, but if they faithfully try it, they will seen find that it nays. will soon find that it pays.

SEARCH FOR KRUGER'S GOLD.

Thousands of Pounds Already Spent in a South African Hunt.

Since the late Boer war a new phase of reasure hunting has been in seone started a rumor that ere his deprature from the Transvaal the late President had a quantity of bar gold, variously estimated at a value ranging from one to several millions, conveyed up country and buried. The story received so much credence that the British Government of Pretoria has provided special permits and police assistance to various persons who professed to be able to guide a search party to the hiding place.

The degree of gullibility that even intelligent and educated men can attain when excited by treasure mania was amusingly illustrated by a well-known instance. A young Boer from the disinstance. A young Boer from the district supposed to contain the treasure called upon a doctor near Johannesburg and told a strange story. He said that one night while riding to the farm of a relative he saw lights in a wooded kloof or gorge, and reconnoitering cautiously he saw a party of men removing boxes from a wagon and hurring them from a wagon and burying them

Carefully noting the spot he got away mobserved and returned next day, when be unearthed a box which on being broken open he found to contain bars of gold and quantities of Kruger sovereigns minted on one side only. In confirmation of the story he produced three diese of gold which appeared to have been struck on one side with an imperfect die.

fect die. His object in calling on the doctor was to borrow £50 in order to procure a wagon and oxen to remove the treasure. wagon and oxen to remove the treasure. He was asked why he did not bring away the portable coin and thus make himself independent of outside financial aid. His explanation was ingenious. He feared to bring more lest he might be found with them upon him!

It is estimated that more than £10,- 000 has been expended by the various search parties that have undertaken the search for the Kruger millions.-Chambers' Journal.
