FORESTS OF CANADA

Recent Additions to Dominion Forest Reserves.

The amended Dominion "Forest Re serves and Parks Act," which was finally assented to on June 6, 1913, added over ten thousand five hundred square miles the existing area of Dominion Forest Reserves, making a total of over thirty five thousand eight hundred square miles of reserved forest land in the Western Provinces under Dominion jurisdiction. Of this reserved area, three thousand seven hundred and eighty-two square miles are found in Alberta, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two square miles in Saskatchewan, and four thousand one hundred and eight equare miles in Manitoba. Over two-thirds of the total area is found in Alberta, ow ing to the fact that practically al! the eastern slope of the Rockies has been set apart as a forest reserve, not only to perpetuate the supply of timber, but to preserve and equalize the flow of the large prairie rivers which have their sources in this reserved area.

Mere figures are of little value except for purposes of comparison. In the lat-est report of the United States Chief Forester, the area of national forests under reservation is given as two hundred and fifty-seven thousand, eight hun dred and fifty-five square miles, an area over seven times as great as that of the Dominion Forest Reserves. And this, in spite of the fact that the area bearing merchantable timber in the United States is considerably larger than that in Canada, making less pressing the need of reservation. Moreover, the area fit only for bearing timber, technically known as the "absolute forest soil," is considerably greater in Canada than the United States, making justifiable a policy of reservation on an even more extensive scale than that followed in the United States. These western reserves are created by the Dominion Government as cited in the act, "for the maintenance, protection and reproduction of the timber growing thereon, or which man hereafter grow thereon, for the conservation of the minerals and the protection of the animals, birds and fish therein, and for the maintenance of conditions favorable to a continuous water supply." To accomplish these ends the reserves must first protected from fire, and under the direction of technical foresters and supervisors, tire-lines are being cut or plowed, trails are being cut, telephone lines and look-out stations installed, "caenes" of tools distributed in acces sible places enroughout the reserves, and efficient patrols established. Nor is the timber so protected allowed to die of old age. The foresters deter-mine at what diameter in each section the maximum production is attained are granted free, or for a nominal sum to homesteaders who apply to the forest officials for cutting permits. Care is taken not to allow over-cutting, for it is the forester's aim to crop the forest per petually and at the same time increase ts producing capacity by proper meth ods of management.

Thus, by this policy of forest reserva-tion, instead of denuded hillsides, drifting sand and barren rocks, and muskegs these areas will in time be covered with great tracks of forest owned by the peo ple and supplying their wants, not only now, but to all future time, when coun tries with less foresight will be in the throes of a timber famine. Department of the Interior, Forestry Branch.

of the principal arguments One of the principal arguments brought by the physicians in charge of animal experimentation with the scalpel is that they cannot control the young and callous medical students. If these are guilty of such cruelty they should not be allowed to pursue their studies. What moral right has a medical college to turn loose on the world as a practitioner will be constructed as this who would are such a creature as this who would cut animal to pieces and kick him into alley while still alive? A wealthy lawyer and a downtrod-den litigant were conversing to-gether. The lawyer had not always been wealthy; the client had not always been downtrodden. In the elevators of life they had passed each other, one going down, the other going up, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. And now they were quoting proverbs at each other

"A food and his money are soon parted!" sneered the attorney.
"Lawyers' houses are built with fools' money!" came back the client.
Which showed the man who heard this bit of repartee the truth of the statement that those who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones. A few more might be added, but this will do for the present.

CHINA'S FUTURE.

Not Yet Republican, Says "Century" Writer.

James Davenport Whelpley, author of the "Century" Trade of the World Papers," is not optimistic about the immediate success of a Chinese Republic. In the March "Century" he says: Some-Abroad it is called a republican revolu-tion, but the Chinese themselves know better. The form of absolute monarchy, ruling by almost prehistoric methods conventions, ha and conventions, has been overthroyn. Less than five per cent. of the population were really concerned in this over-throw. A handful of idealists hope against their own best judgment for an elective representative form of govern-ment to succeed at once; but it will not. This is really the only thing which cannot come about.

There may be a new emperor, a military dictator, a divided country, each part governed as its strong people may decide, or the present provincial Government may evolve into a more or less wise and disinterested oligarchy, com-pelled to give the people a fairly good regime by reason of the simple fact that, if it does not, its day will be brief. This latter form of government has prevailed generally throughout the mod-ern world when violent misfortunes have ome to long-established rulers, and us ually masquerades under the names of a republic, as in the case of many states of Central and South America, This is probably what will happen in China, but with many modifications, for the coun is vast and its problems are many the comm and the relations of north, south, east and west most com

An Easy Way to Can Fruit.

WHERE YANKEE POLICE SHINE.

WHERE YANKEE POLICE SHINE.

(New York Herald)

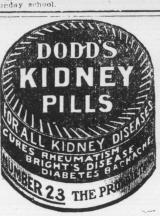

American police officers do not take kindly to the suggestion of the London constabulary that policemen use shields to ward off shots fired by criminals or madmen. They perfer generally, it seems, to trust a pistol and a club, backed by a stout heart and an alert mind.

"American policemen think quicker than do the English constables," is a suggestion advanced as to why the shield would be a superfluity here. That possibly is true. It is unquestionably true that the American police are "quicker on the trigger." Perhaps some device that would tend to restrain a policeman's fire would on occasion be honeficial.

EVERYDAY RELIGION NEEDED

(Woodsock Sentinel-Review.)

In a word there are many people who so associate their religious duties and experiences with church-going on Sunday and with public dothes and manners that they find it awkward when called upon to act a Christian part in a different environment. For this reason, and perhaps for other reasons, it might be well for the pastors to lay aside their pulpit dothers from time to this just for the sake of accustoming the people to religious without the familiar Sunday associations. Those who still insist that religious should be kept apart from politics, business and social affairs will comtinue to insist on the pulpit balicks; but those is a growing tendency to make religious and another of everyday life and to break away from the restrictions that would confine it to the church and the Sunday school. (Woodsock Sentinel-Review.)

FRUIT MARKS ACT

The Recent Amendments and New Regulations.

The Dairy and Cold Storage Commis sioner has just issued a circular giving the recent amendments to the Inspection and Sale Act, with the new regulations. The amendments chiefly concern import-

Hereafter the words "Packed by" must Hereafter the words "Packed by" must precede the name and address of the packer as marked on any close package of fruit intended for sale.

A new section is added empowering the Governor-in-Council to make regulations regarding the branding, marking and inspecting of imported fruit. Persons violating such regulations are liable to a fine of not more than fifty dolars and costs, or, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month. The packages of fruit not properly marked may be confiscated.

In virtue of the amendment new regulands have been passed, and were published in the Canada Gazette of June 38, 1912. According to these regulations every importer of fruit must have all grademarks found on closed packages containing imported fruit erased or obliterated when such marks are not in accordance with the Act or the new regulations. This must he done when the packages are being taken from the railway car, steamship, or other conveyance in which they have heen brought into Canada. The importer must place on the end of such packages the proper grade marks, the correct name of the variety of fruit, and his own name and address.

GERMAN DISCIPLINE.

Even the Boys Respect Law and Order.

One of the things which apparently escape the attention of most scribbling travellers in Germany is the dou ble line of fruit trees along the public roads. There are several thousand miles of these trees on either side of public roads in northern Germany Most of them are apple trees.

You know what would happen to those apple trees in any American State? Boys would pick the fruit green, too impatient to wait for it to ripen, and likely enough they would break down the trees getting the fruit. What happens in Germany? The public authorities sell the fruit crop to contractors at from $200 to $500 per mile and apply the proceeds of the sale to the upkeep of the roads. Boys do not steal the apples. Nor is it neces-sary to maintain a policeman every 100 feet to prevent such mischief. Why are the German boys so much more respectful of property rights than American boys? Is the difference racial? I hardly think so. It's a difference of training probably. I'm in-clined to believe the universal military training, with its constant strict in sistence upon obedience to law and or der and the strong element of moral training in the public school curri-ulum, added to the knowledge that offenses against public property will be promptly and severely punished accounts for the safety of the public or chards which line the roadways of Germany.

Respect for the law and for other people's rights seems to be ingrained in the German character.—Frank Putnam in National Magazine.

(New York Sun)

Whatever of real modesty inspires the arrests of women charged, in various parts of the country with devotion to the latest mode in ureas nobody knows. When mere man intrudes in such matters the knowing wonder who is striving for free advertisment. Fashion is not made or unmade through legal processes, and what the style decrees woman will wear regardless of police, courts, mayors and penal codes.

As for the gowns beslit and sheer, under which no longer are worn those garments once considered essential, their rule will be of short duration. Woman are not fools. They know as well as other philosophers that their charm lies in self-concealment, not in self-revelation. A glimpse of ankle is more provocative than a large area of calf, no matter how creditably moulded. A hint, a suggestion, a tantalizing suspicion; these are women's most affective wearpons. And she knows it; knows it in the unfathomed wisdom that men call intuition. She requires no school master of ma'am to teach her some things.

Therefore the disclosures of to-day may be confidently set down as a short lived whim, soon to pass. Almost before they are here they will be gone, restoring woman to that vantage ground of secrecy she has for a brief space so imprudently leged to say that we are shocked.

CAPT. GEO. ANTHONY. Whaler Who Rescued Fenian Pri-

George Anthony, who in 1876 rescued six Fenian prisoners from Fremantle, Western Australia was then a colony, and they had been banshed there by the British Government. Capt. Anthony carried off the prisoners on board the whaling vessel Catalpa, In 1875, John Denvoy, the whilom organizer of treason in the British appropriate a scheme. British army, conceived a scheme obtaining a vessel, and carrying off six Irish political prisoners, who had been transported to Western Australia in connection with the attempted revolution of 1866-7 by the Fenians. The barque Catalpa was purchased by the Clan-na-gael men, and sailed from New Bedford on April 29, 1875, under the command of Captain George Anthony, a native of Nantucket. In order to avert suspicion from the real designs of the vessel, the Catalpa cruised for nearly a year as a whaler and did not arrive at Bunbury until March, 1896. Five days later the Catalpa anchored near the Rockingham shore, and the following morning all arrangements for the escape hav-ing been planned, Wilson, Craston, Har-rington, Darragh, Hogan and Hassett, the six political prisoners, who had been engaged in the open on various works at Fremantle, left their employment and ere driven to Rockingham. The government steamer Georgette went out in pursuit, and a coastguard boat cruising in the vicinity of Rockingham tried to intercept the boat conveying the the fu-gitives from the shore to the ship. The Catalpa bore down upon her comrades, and so close was the race between her and the coast guard boat that the for mer, on reaching the fugitives, did not wait for them to swarm up the sides but, lowering the falls, grappled the boat fore and aft, and lifted it on board, with its human freight. The Catalpa immediately put out to sea, and at half-past 6 o'clock the following morning was over-hauled by the Georgette, who fired a shot across her bows. Capt. Anthony, in reply to the demand by the captain of the Georgette, declined to heave to, and the teorgette, declined to heave to, and answered that he had no prisoners on board. "You are amenable to British laws," spoke the Georgette. "Heave to or I'll blow your mast out." "I know no British laws," said Anthony. Securing their rifles, whale lances and harpoons Anthony and his crew prepared to re sist any attack. Giving the order ist any attack. Giving the order, Bout ship," the Catalpa again put out to sea, and the Georgette, after following for a short distance, swung round slowly, and returned to port. There is nothing in the Monroe doctrine trine that could properly stand in the way of co-operation of England, Germany and France with the United States in bringing about the restoration of peace in Mexico as was done in China after the Boxer rebellion. ### VANISHING WOODS

And the Timbers That Best Take Their Place.

Over 1,200 wood-using industries in Ontario contributed the data for a bulletin on this industry now being issued by the Forestry Branch, Ottawa. Thirty-four different kinds of wood are being used by these industries, and the detailed informa-tion regarding the various uses to which such woods are put should be of considerable value, not only to the manufac-turer by showing new means of waste disposa. but also to the householder by erable value, not only to the manufacturer by showing new means of waste disposa, but also to the householder by indicating what native woods are best fitted to replace the more expensive imported stock, for interior decoration, furniture and flooring.

The bulletin also shows incidentally the increasing poverty of Ontario with regard to the more valuable work-woods. Almost half of the thirty-four kinds of wood used are obtained principally from outside sources and three and one-half million dollars are annually sent out of the Province for imported wood stock. The imported oak alone costs one million six hundred thousand dollars annually for this tree has become commercially extinct in Ontario, while the hickory and chestnut groves of southern Ontario have also almost entirely disappeared. Even good, clear white pine is becoming hard to obtain, and its market value is steadily rising, for it represents twenty-one per cent. of he total wood consumption in Ontario for industrial purposes.

Of more interest to the small consumer of wood-products are the side lights the bulletin throws on the possibility of substituting cheap home grown woods for the expensive foreign species now used so extensively. Recent tests made of their physical properties have demonstrated the suitability for certain purposes of many native species, hitherto despised by the dealers. For hardwood flooring in place of the oak and maple now in general use, may be substituted by stained red gum requires an expert to distinguish it from the coatly Circassian walnut. The new, expensive white pine is being replaced, where durability is not a requisite by the cheaper spruce, basswood and elm. Poplar and balsamfir as retwo of the most common trees in Ontario, and that they have wider uses is evident from the fact that poplar is highly valued for hardwood flooring in Manitoba, while balsam fir is perhaps the most widely used native species in the Maritime Provinces.

The bulletin also indicates the existence of a market in Ontario for sumac, apple a

How British Lady's Wish Was Gratified.

There is an amusing story of a visit paid by a certain Countess of Londonderry to the Turkish Sultan, Mahmud II. Lady Londonderry was determined to see his majesty, and by some means had her desire made known to Reschid Pasha, the Turkish minister for foreign afairs. The wily Reschid, desiring to do his best for her ladyship, made known to the sultan that a person had arrived at Constantinople with a won-derful collection of most valuable jew-elry for sale, and ventured humbly to suggest that his imperial majesty might like to see the gems. The sultan was interested, and an interview was arranged; but Reschid merely told Lady Londonderry that she would be presented, and that the Sultan having heard the fame of her jew-elry, had particularly requested that she would put it all on when she came.

The gratified lady did so. On her arrival at the palace, Reschid Pasha conducted Lady Londonderry into the presence of the sultan. Her dress glittered with diamonds, pearls, turquoises and other precious stones. "Pekkei (good)" said the sultan, as

U. S. PRESIDENT FOR MEDIATION

Wilson Still Working on Some Such Plan.

MEXICANS OPPOSE

Both Federal and Rebel Leaders Dislike It.

Washington, July 28.—It is almost certain now that some effort will be made by the Wilson Administration to bring about mediation between the warring factions in Mexico. The chances of success seemed slighter to-day even than they were when the suggestion was first proposed, but the President and his advisers are inclined to put some such plan into operation if they receive the slightest encouragement from leaders in the southern republic.

It was acknowledged authoritatively to-day that the President has such proposal as was outlined this morn-ng under consideration, but the ara proposal as was outlined this mora-ing under consideration, but the ar-rangement of details has not pro-gressed beyond the point of discus-sion. Developments here to-day indicated that the leaders of the stitutional rebellion in Mexico will not consider for a minute the subject of a mediation at this time. Spokes-headed by Governors Carransa and Pasque Ira, showed no disposition to. day to listen seriously to such a pro-posal, and while the attitude of the Huerta Government is in doubt, impression is growing that it, too, will look with disfavor upon any plan of this character.

It was acknowledged to-day that the mediation plan to be at all successful will have to be accepted not only by the leaders now most prominent in Mexico-Huerta, Carransa and Pasque Ira—but by the dozen or more minor re-volutionists who have set themselves up in various parts of Mexico. COMMISSION SUGGESTED.

While the details of the Administration's scheme are still to be work favor at present is for the appointment of a commission by the President to go to Mexico and confer with the various factions with a view to effecting a common understanding and truce for the holding of a special election. This commission, according to the views of some persons who have conferred with the President, would be a man or mer where pages and observed. men whose names and character alone would carry great weight.

The mediation plan will be taken p with Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson here on Monday and a definite de-cision may be expected the first of next

In the meantime, no more arms and ammunitian will be shipped into Mexico, pending the determination and carrying out of the mediation programme. The President has not programme. The President has made any order as yet in regard to the Administration's policy toward the shipment of arms, but the pres-ent plan contemplates the putting of Huerta and Carransa and other revolutionists on an equal footing prohibiting the exportation of munitions of war into Mexico.

Much of Our Crop Goes That Way.

Ottawa. July 28.-The extent to which Canadian grain continues to find its way to the seaboard for export through United States routes is once more emphasized by statistics just published by the Department of Trade and Commerce. The figures are those showing the movement of grain for the year 1912.

In that crop year 87,579,696 bushels of Canadian wheat were shipped from Port Arthur and Fort William. Of that quantity 45,326,450 bushels were shipped to Canadian ports in Canadian vessels, and 42,252,246 bushels to American ports, nearly all in American vessels. The total shipped from Port Arthur and Fort William in the crop year 1911 was 61.666.379 bushels. of which 37.917,768 61.666.379 bushels, of which 37.917,768 bushels went to Canadian ports, and 23.748,609 bushels to United States ports. Of the latter quantity a million and a half bushels were carried in Canadian bottoms. Shipments by rail in 1912 totalled 15,103.479 bushels, making total for the year of nearly 103,000,000 bushels of wheat sent east from the head of lake navigation. Of grain of all kinds the shipments were 139,322,961 bushels in 1912, and 93,380,263 bushels in 1911.

construction of a line from Canton to Chungking-Fu, which it is believed the Government will recognize.

The project for a great scheme of Chinese railways was foremost in Dr. Sun Yat Sen's programme for the modernization of China. It commanded the support of the Pekin Government, and involved a great extension of the privileges of foreigners in the country and an immense increase in China's foreign trade. Dr. Sun was authorized in September, 1912, to establish a railway corporation to carry out a system of poration to carry out a system of national railways covering territory 70, 000 miles in extent.

Mixed Chinese and foreign companies were to be granted concessions through-out China for a period of about forty years, after which time the lines were to revert to China. ### Dundas Car Rammed String of Freights.

Several Injured, One Likely Fatally.

London, Ont., despatch: A dozen people were more or less seriously injured shortly after midnight when a Dundas car rammed a string of freight cars being shoved north over Dundas street in East London, between the Grand Trunk and the C. P. L. lines.

Motorman Swadley is now at, Victeria Hospital and is perhaps fatally hurt, while several of the passengers are being attended by half a dozen physicians, who were called to the scene The car was travelling at a rapid rate toward London Junction, and was carrying a large crowd of passengers. A string of seventeen cars was being pushed north from the Grand Trunk by a yard engine in charge of Engineer Lasenby and Conductor Eli Cake. Swadley, the street railway motorman, did not see the freight train in the darkness, and struck the third car from the locomotive. The vestibule was very badly smashed, and Swadley was crushed in the debris.

Conductor Hooper, of the street car, was badly shaken up also, but did not go to the hospital. Henry Nickles, of Ridout street, whose two young sons were drowned in the Thames a couple of drowned in the Thames a couple of weeks ago, was in the ear and was badly burt. A man named Nutkins was bruised about the head, while Archie Neeley, of London Asylum, and his brother, and his brother Wilfrid suffered in a similar manner. James Gale had his head cut, and Affred Fielding was injured on the face. Miss Dickenson, of Arkona, was reported to be one of those badly injured, while Miss Grosvenor and Hugh Hulbert were also shaken up to a considerable extent.

There are no derails or semaphores to protect the crossing, and there is no

London Boy's Father's Heroic Efforts Failed.

London, Ont., despatch: Alfred Wright. nine-year-old lad, son of Alexander Wright, of Madison avenue, Pine Lawn, East London, tumbled from a cable bridge over the Thames to the Parkinson farm near his home to-night and

A couple of firemen hurried to the cene with a boat and grappling irons, but at a late hour had not succeeded in locating the body. Engineer T. V. Buchanan, of the Hydro-Electric Department, was on hand with a pul-motor in the hope that the child might be resuscitated.

The boy was playing on the bridge with his two younger brothers, Eddie and Robert, when he fell off into five feet of water. They ran home, and Mr. Wright hurried to the scene, where he made desperate attempts to locate the body. He was finally compelled to desist, and was taken home in an ex-hausted condition.

SHUT OUT SCENERY; MEN QUIT.

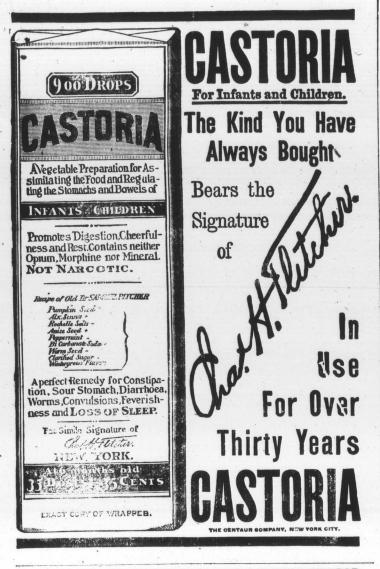

Rochland, Mass., July 28.—The most unusual reason for going out on strike was given when twenty-five men in the finishing room of the E. T. Wright Company Shoe factory quit work in the morning, because their view of the surrounding scenery had been shut off.

The firm recently put up screens of white cheesecloth on the windows of the finishing department. The men protested that it cut off their view of the landscape and made working conditions unpleasant

"Sherwin-Williams Paint, Prepared, is good paint—the best paint, in fact, that can be made. No care or detail is lacking in its manufacture. The materials employed are of the highest quality and are properly put together by experienced paint makers. The linseed oil—the vital part of paint—used in S.W.P. is made especially by The S-W. Co. in their own mill. The pigments are selected with greatest care and scrupulously tested. The tinting colors are products of the Company's own dry color works. And the mills used for grinding and mixing are designed and made in the machine shops of the Company. They embody the most advanced ideas in paint making. ### THE PARSON'S MISTAKE

It Changed His Mind About the Cuetoms of the Fine Folks.

A Scottish parson whose parish was remote from great cities was invited to a house party at a certain castle, and after much persuasion from his family and friends accepted. Mrs. Walford in "Memories of Victorian London" says that the elderly clergyman had never before been inside a large country house and was not as all familiar with the customs in vogue. He arrived about 5 o'clock and found the men just returned from shooting and the ladies from driving, all being at tea in the hall.

It seemed nice and sociable on a chilly November afternoon, and, delighted to find such simplicity prevailing where he had not looked for it, he partook heartily of cake, sandwiches

At a little before 7 o'clock some neighbors, who were merely calling, took themselves off, and the rest of the company broke up and went upstairs with bedroom candles in their hands.

"Well, this is better still," thought my humble friend, and he rehearsed to himself the phrases he would use to describe the situation afterward. He would emphatically repudiate the notion that the "aristocracy" kept late hours and were too much addicted to conviviality. He heard himself say-ing: "Late hours, indeed? I haven't been to bed so early since I was a

He judged that he had been asleep some time when the sound of a gong reverberating through the passages made him start up in bed. What was the meaning of it? What terrible thing had happened? Could the house be on fire? Finding the back stairs close by, down he rushed to the housekeeper's room and electrified the good woman by demanding breathlessly:

"What is it? What's the matter?" "Lor' sir, nothing ain't the matter." said she reprovingly, "except that you'll be late to dinner. The second gong sounded five minutes ago, and you're not half dressed!"

Such speed did he make, however, on being thus enlightened that he actually got into his evening clothes and was in the drawing room before half the other guests appeared. said he, "I never had the chance of delivering the speech L had so carefully prepared exculpating great folks from the charge of evil ways."

A THREE FOOT LEAP.

As Thrilling Behind the Scenes as For the Audience In Front.

The opera is "Tosca." You sit breathless in your seat in the last act waiting for the climax, when Tosca shall find Cavaradossi not shamming, but dead by the trickery of the slain Scarpia. and shall run and leap over the parapet to be dashed to pieces far below. The captain and his guards look over the edge, aghast at the sight. You rise from your seat thrilled.

Now go behind the scenes and watch Tosca leap. Nearly every one who can leave his post does go back stage, left, for this climax, which is as exciting in the reality as it is in the pretense for those who sit on the other side of the footlights. Before the curtain went up a stage hand had dragged across and thrown down just beneath the parapet a mattress some twelve inches thick and the size of an ordinary bed. The opera moves swiftly. The soldiers fire the volley, and Cavaradossi falls. Tosca, learning the truth, rushes to the parapet, looks backward toward the audience, stands magnificently defiant and leaps.

It is a good three feet in the vertical to the mattress. Do not think that the prima donna, however plump she may le, strives to save or catch herself That leap is too great an opportunity for histrionic realism to lose one little art of its effect. She lands plump at tall length, fairly taking the breath of her, while the back stage watchers get the real gasp. It is perhaps half a minute before she recovers herseli. Then she gathers herself together, all businesslike again, and hurries through the press of stage hands, chorus, supes, principals, down front stage to receive the curtain calls.-New York

Paper Money.

The earliest paper money issued in America was in Massachusetts in 1690 in order to satisfy the demands of clamorous soldiers. The first authorized by the Continental congress was in May, 1775. Six years later it ceased to circulate as money.

Benjamin Franklin and his partner, D. Hall, printed the bills of the colony of Delaware. On the face of the note in conspicuous letters was the warning, "To counterfeit is death."

An Endearing Act.

Wife (plendingly)-I'm afraid, Jack, you do not sove me any more-anyway, as well as you used to. Husband-Why? Wife-Because you always let me get up to light the fire now. Husband-Nonsense, my love! Your getting up to light the fire makes me love you all the more.-Lippincott's.

RAILROADS IN GERMANY.

No Danger of a Train Starting Until

A returned traveler who spent much of his time in Germany drifted into the observation of railroading in the He rode the most on local trains, though not having a set purpose, and proceeled only for short dis-

On one of these vagrant trips he had surrendered his ticket and had nothing on his mind but his destination when the conductor came and said:

"Extra fare, please." "Why?" demanded the experienced voyager. "Because," answered the conductor, "we have cut out five stops and the train is now an express."

The recollection of the writer runs back to the time when as a small boy he first beheld the start of a German railroad train. The impression is self evidently vivid to have lasted so long.

First there was a predigous pow-wow between the head baggageman and the porters, who argued excitedly over the disposal of trunks. Everything awaited the conclusion of their jabbering and the loading of the car. Nobody else seemed animated or even concerned. The conductor looked on stoically, and the engineer phlegmatically talked to a bystander on the platform.

The last trunk in, the baggage smashers retired, still arguing. The conductor went to the end of the train, and the guards stationed themselves alongside at intervals. All eyes were on the en gineer. He climbed into his cab, disposed himself on his seat in a leisurely way and protruded his head from the window.

"Fertig?" he inquired of the first guard, who turned to the second also to ask "fertig?" This was repeated along to the last car, where the signal system doubled on its trail. It having been ascertained that everything was "fertig," the information was relayed to the engineer, who nodded solemnly and turned to his seat. A bell tinkled, the crossing gates (numerously manned to prevent suicide) arose, and the train pulled out with the pomposity that characterizes everything official in Germany—the "verboten" land.

This extreme caution amuses the visitor, but it also makes him reflect. The government's paternalism may not be affectionate, but it is farreaching. There are no handy ways to die when danger can be forestalled. - Chicago

His Dose of Senna Tea, "When my landlady tells me that anything is good for me," said the boarder, "I always recall the halcyon days of my boyhood. There were occasions then when, after eating profusely of green apples or other unripe vegetables, my works became disororganized and caused me intense distress. At such times my mother step-ped into the imminent deadly breach with a remedy that was good for me. "She had a partiality for senna tea, a beverage which tastes like the interior of a Russian jail. I had to swallow this fluid until it was necessary to put hoops on me so I could hold it all, and for several days thereafter my mother continued to flood my insides with senna tea, always insisting that it was good for me. Now that I am an aged man I love peace better than anything else, but I'll climb the frame of any gentleman who mentions senna tea to me."-Walt Mason in Chicago News.

Bread That Intoxicates.

Throughout the eastern part of Siberia it is no extraordinary sight to see peasants in the hilarious stages of intoxication brought on by eating bread. the region between the sea and the river called Missouri the humidity of the climate as well as the soil is remarkable. In many parts the humidity is so intense that there grows upon ears of corn a species of fungus. As a result of this the bread made from the corn gives all the results of an over-dose of alcohol. Whole districts are sometimes inebriated by this strange kind of "alcoholic" bread. — Leslie's Weekly.

If Lion Pulls and Horse Pulls, If a hon and a strong horse were to pull in opposite directions the horse would pull the lion backward with comparative ease. But if the lion were hitched behind the horse and facing in the same direction and were allowed to exert his strength in backing he could easily pull the horse down upon his haunches or drag him across the ring, so much greater is his strength when exerted backward from the hind legs than in forward pulling.

"Do you think this new photograph of mother looks like her, father?" asked the daughter.
"No; I don't," replied the father.

"What do you suppose is the matter with it?" "Why, I suppose the man told your mother to look pleasant and she was trying to do it."-Yonkers Statesman. How Could She Tell? "Norah," said the mistress, "are these French sardines that you have given "Shure, O' don't know, ma'am," said the new workers. "They were pasht spakin' when we opened the box."— Ladies' Hor. Journal.

LESSON V .- August 3, 1913.

The Plagues of Egypt .- Psa. 105: 23

Commentary.—I. Israel in Egypt (vs. 3-25.) 23. Israel also came—Joseph's 23-25.) 23. Israel also came—Joseph's entrance into Egypt has just been men tioned and his promotion in the king-dom, and now the coming of Israel, or Jacob, is recorded. The merest outline of these important events are given by the psalmist. Sojourned—Dwelt as a temporary resident. Land of Ham — Egypt. 24. He increased his people greatly—God gave great prosperity to the descendants of Jacob, notwithstanding their later oppression (Exod. 1: 7, 12, 20.) Stronger than their enemies— The secret of Israel's increase in num-bers and power was God's good hand upon them. Seventy souls went down into Egypt, and their numbers had become about two million. 25. He turned their heart to bate his people—It was his goodness to Israel which called forth the ill will of the Egyptian court, and so far the Lord caused it; and, moreover, he made use of this feeling to lead on to the discomfort of his people, and to which they had evidently become greatly attached. Thus far and no further statement of the statemen ther did the Lord turn the hearts of the Egyptians.—Spurgeon. The Egyptians followed the bent of their own evil dispositions in hating the Hebrews. God does not move men to exercise their wicked propensities. Circumstances are permitted to come to them which excite them to evil, but the act is the result of their own volition. To deal subtilly—To deal descritfully and destructively. The Egyptians had attempted to destroy the Egyptians had attempted to destroy the male-children of the Hebrews, and to op-press the slaves so greatly with hard work, that their increase would be checked. The plans of the Egyptians failed, because God was on the side of the Hebrews.

II. Deliverers raised up (v. 26.) 26. He sent Moses ... and Aaron—The Lord had the men in readiness and all he had to do was to commission them and thrust them forward. They were two for mutual comfort and strength exen as the apostles and the seventy is our Lord't day were sent forth two and two. The men differed and so the one became the supplement of the other, and together they were able to accomplish more than if they had been exactly The main point was that they were both sent, and hence both clothed with divine might.—Spurgeon. Moses was now eighty years old and eighty-three (Exod. 7:7.) The former had received his training in the court of Pharaoh and in the desert of Midian, and the latter had been all his life associated with his people in Egypt. God has ever had his servants at hand to meet the great crises that have arisen work, and he has often called them from most unexpected Whom he had chosen—God has always chosen those whom he would commission to do special work for him. When Ananias had serious misgivings about obey-ing the vision which directed him to Saul n Damascus, the word came to him, "Go thy way: for he is a chosen vessel unto me to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Is-rael: for I will show him how great things he must suffer for my name's (Acts 9: 15, 16.) Further we read "Ae they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said. Soporate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them" (Acts 13: 2:) David was chosen and anointed King of Israel in a most critical time in that nation's history, and it was necessary for him to undergo bitter trials and se work assigned him. Moses and Aaron were chosen for a special work and the ecomplishment of that task called forth thre best qualities there were in them.

III. Divine judgments (vs. 27-30). 27. His signs His signs ... and wonders—God's marvellous tokens of power which were sent upon the Egyptians. The psalmist does not enumerate all the plagues, for the fifth and sixth are omitted; nor does he mention them in the order in which they are recorded in Exodus. The first three plagues were the waters turned into blood, the frogs and the lice, and included the land of Goshen, as well as the rest of Egypt. The plagues come through the use of Aaron's rod, and the magicians imitated the first two, but could go no further. Pharaoh was not moved by these plagues, which were loathsome rather than destructive or painful. The next three, in which no rod was used, caused loss and pain. They were flies, murrain and boils, and did not include the Hebrews. By this plague of the Pharaoh was slightly moved. The of flies Pharaoh was slightly moved. confessed his sin, and made a promise, only to break it. In these Moses' rod was used. The plague of hail, locusts and darkness afflicted the Egyptians, but not the Israelites. The toplague, the death of the first-born. Egyptians to thrust the Israelites out of the country. There is no means of knowing the exact length of time occupied by these signs and wonders but it was probably but a few months ending about April first. These plagues were all miraculous in their nature. While some of them were similar to visitations likely to come to that land brought about, they were emphatically with which they were forefold and brought about they were emphatically Darkness-The ninth plague is mentioned first, perhaps, because it was symbolical of the darkness that hung over Egypt. The darkness was so great that it could be felt, and no one moved from his place for three days, but the Israelites had light in Goshen. darkness can not be accounted for by referring it to natural agencies, al-though the attempt has been made. They rebelled not The Egyptians were ready, while the plague lasted, to let Israel go; but when it was over, they were again unwilling. 29. Waters into blood—This included the Nile and all other streams, as well as the pools and the water brought for domestic uses. The fish, upon which the Egyptians largely subsisted, were destroyed, 30. Frogs-Frogs were abundant in Egypt and were ob-Frogs jects of worship. This plague was especially loathsome, because the frogs came up and filled the couches and kneading troughs of the people, and their religion forbade them to kill them. The magi-cians attempted to imitate Moses and Aaron in the plagues of the blood and the frogs, and through their jugglery did so to some extent, but their quack art could go no further in producing these signs and wonders. 31. Flies—Various kinds of annoying insects came in great numbers. Lice—The Egyptians were a most cleanly people, bathing several times a day, and were especially averse to such vermin. The priests shave ed the entire body every second day to guard against such uncleanness, 32. Hail -It was not common in Egypt. Flaming fire—Fearful lightning. 33. Smote—The destruction wrought by the plague of hail was great. 34. Locusts—At the warning of the coming of this plague the Egyptians were alarmed, for they knew how destruction. knew how destructive locusts were They came in great numbers. They are They came in great numbers. They are said to cover the ground at times to a depth of two feet. No vegetable life could escape their ravages, 35. All the herbs —All that were left by the hail.

36. Smote also all the firstborn—Warning was given to Pharaoh (Exod. 11.

48), that the first-born of the Egyptians would be slain, and yet he would not let Israel go Chief of all their not let Israel go. Chief of all their strength—The first-born were considered the flower and strength of the nation yet they were all slain.

Questions.—By whom was the presen lesson written? What is meant by the land of Ham? Name the ten plague in the order given in Exodus. For wha purpose were the plagues cent? Describe the plague of waters turned int blood. Describe the two plagues not in-cluded in this lesson. Give an account cluded in this lesson, Give an of the plague of darkness. Who were the magicians and what did they attempt? State what effect each first nine plagues had upon Pharaoh. What indicates that these plagues were miracles? How was Pharaoh's heart affected?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.-A divine issue. I. Confronted the court of Egypt.

II. Reached by repeated judgments. I. Confronted the court of Egypt. All these miracles in Egypt were wrought against idolatry. Each plague was a blow at some favorite idol. They were an exhibition of Jehovah's conflict with the great, idolatrous world power. God did not begin that succession of God did not begin that succession of disasters without giving due and solemn warning. The superstition of Egypt was made its scourge. The very rever-ence with which their idols had been regarded deepened the chastisement Pharach's real ignorance of Jehovah's character and demands remained unchanged amid all his experiences of Je hovah's power. In the name of the Lord Moses asked Pharaoh to give Lord Moses asked Pharaoh to give Israel freedom. Though rejected by Pharaoh that demand could not be ban-Pharaoh that demand could not be ban-ished. Unless granted, the divine re-tribution would swallow up every com-fort and stay with Pharaoh might sum-mon to sustain him, though he relied upon his own power and that of his gods to meet whatever power might be brought against him. If Pharaoh would not bow to réason, persuasion or evidence, he must bow to power. Every allowance was made for real ignorance but none for wilful unbelief. Seeing the rod of Moses turned into a serpent to devour all the others was a menace to Pharaoh. It told him of a divine power opposed to his, which he would do we:l not to provoke. II. Reacher by repeated judgments. After the miracle which furnished sufficient evidence that Moses and Aaron were ambassadors from God, a series of judgments begth. There was something peculiarly appropriate in the first judgment felling ment the Nils River. ment falling upon the Nile River. It had been made the instrument of de-struction to the infants of Israel to subdue the strength of that nation. That judgment was a prophecy of the utter ruin of Egypt. It was a decided blow at Egyptian idolatry, since the people regarded its waters sacred, to have it become a mass of revolting putridity Yet Pharaoh "turned and went into bis solved not to face the of duty or heed the demand of Jehovah. As the changing of the waters of the Nile into blood showed that all the ele ments of nature were under God's con-trol, so the coming of frogs as a reconplague proved that the animal kingdom was under his control. Because of their animal worship the Egyptians dared not kill the frogs, though they destroyed al their comfort a second blow upon the absurdity of idolatry. Hatred for the Being who was thus coercing bim caused Pharaoh to maintain resistance. Rage and pride overpowered reason as well as conscience in Pharaoh's breach promise to Moses. The third plague of ice caused the magicians to give up th contest. The fourth plague of flies was not permitted to trouble Israel. This affected Pharaoh and led him to some compromise, though he required Israel to remain in Egypt to offer sacrifice, thing not to be considered either by Ierael or the Egyptians, since I-rael would thus fall short of God's command and the Egyptians would not permit the sacrifice of cattle. In the fifth plague came the loss of property. Thus, dis-comfort was followed by death, though is first bega upon the brute creation. Again Israel escaped the plague. In the sixth plague of boils, the magicians were brought to shame in the presence of those who trusted in them, thus leaving Pharaoh more and more alone in his resistence. The practice of scattering the ashes of human victims to avert evil from the land was rebuked when Mose took ashes from the brick kiln in which the Israelites toiled, and sprinkled them loward heaven in mute appeal for the uelties they had inflicted upon Israel id which descended upon Pharaoh and melties they had inflicted is people as a plague of deep physical betress. The seventh plague in the rain is half and fire brought death to man and beast, and fearful destruction upo nature. Pharaoh's confession was a to Moses and not to Jehovah. It repentance born only of terror. announcing the eighth locusts, Mose presence, indicating that negotiations were near an end. Pharaoh had engaged in a contest from which he could not retire without submission, but he would not grant Jehovah's demand for the re lease of Israel. The minth plague of great darkness came unannounced, and proved a complete stroke against sunworship. It was a fitting scourge to come upon a people whose minds were darkened to the perception of God.

NITROGEN AND THE SOIL.

Fields of unplowed land, permitted to run without cultivation. will gradually increase in nitrates, even to the extent of 25 to 30 per cent. This has been re cognized for years. But, finally, it was discovered that this was the work of becteria, that these bacteria secure free nitrogen from the air. which is turned into plain food in the soil. This process been termed "nitrogen fixation.

There is another process of fixation which takes place in the nodules on the roots of luguminous plants. Both of roots of luguminous plants. Both of these processes originate from bacteria, but theer is a difference i nthe organisms. Nitrogen in the soil is not fixed by the bacteria which operates in the nodules, and those that work in the nodules of legumes.

The bacteria which produces free nitrogen in the soil are capable of pertheir work rapidly. It has been proved that they are able to fix considerable amounts of nitrogen in a fortnight, provided all of the controlling factors which control their work have been determined, but some of the more important ones are known."

It has been demonstrated that line added to the soil is one of the most imadded to the soil is one of the most important factors, as it greatly assists these organisms in performing their work. These usually operate in that portion of the soil reached by the plow. but, as already mentioned, they may also work in soil that has never been cultivated. They work almost the en-tire year, storing up in the soil this most costly of plant food, without the of the farmer, and without any

In the present condition of farming, and the live stock industry on the farm. consideration is the procurement of a difficient amount of concentrated nitrogenous feeds to make a nation properly palanced for the feeding purpose that is in view, and, at the same time, economical enough to be afforded.

In the matter of coarse forage, clover, alfalfa and the like, afford in different localities valuable feed stuffs of a nitrogenous kind, but in concentrates the amount of nitrogenous foods grown is extremely limited. In order to make the plance that will be productive of the hest results in the feeding of growing stock, in dairy feeding, and even in the economical feeding of corn to fattening chimals, it is generally necessary to pur-chase by by-products resulting from the manufacture of grains and seeds of various kinds, into articles which extract the other elements and leave much the larger portion of the nitrogen as offal or These by-products, such as bran. shorts, middlings, gluten meals, oil meal, cottonseed neal and the like, serve the purpose well, but they cost more money than the feeder can well afford to pay, and they would cost still more if the practice of feeding them was as general as, for best results, it ought to be. The use of these products also violates ar important principle in successful farming, namely, the principle that the fields used on any farm should to the utmost extent possible be farm grown.

It is hardly necessary to point out the need for nitrogenous foods to be grown upon the farm and fed out there. It is unfortunate that the range of legumes that will furnish concentrates of this kind is very limited. Practically it comprises only field peas, soin beans and the cow pea. So there cannot be much choice. But, at the same time, the clovers, alfalfa and other legumes that are grown for forage should be furnished more abundantly, for they, toc, are im portant in compounding well-balanced ra tions. In addition they have the fur ther advantage of being soil-improvers and the farmer who cultivates them largely secures a twofold reward.

If it is true that the hog is one the most important sources of profit in raising of beef, it is also true that the hog is one of the most important sources of profit on the dairy farm. There are many waste producers on the dairy farm that can be utilized by the pigs. Among these products are akim-milk, roots and surplus feed of all kinds. Buttermilk that cannot be disposed of would have to be of all kinds. Buttermilk that cannot be disposed of would have to be thrown away were it not for the pigs. Whether the dairy be for the production of milk or of butter, the necessity for having the bogs is about the same, unless where the man has a contract with a city man to take all the milk

Rancid butter is caused by leaving buttermilk in the butter. Buttermilk cannot be worked out; it must be washed out while the butter is in the granular stage. Pour in about as much cold water as there was milk and turn the churn over a couple of times. Strain off this water and wash the butter a second time. Always have the wash water a few degrees colder than the butter, so as to keep the

The grain shrinks slightly, does not shatter badly, and the straw is relished by horses, cattle and sheep. Care should be taken to shock securely and protect the grain from the sun and the rain, and, as much as possible, from birds if they happen to be numerous. Oats make excellent feed for horses, and it is worth while to use care in harvest

The garden and the orchard are important, and it is not wise to neglect them for the field crops. The garden should not be considered a place to work when there is no other work need-ed, nor should the orchard work be deferred till the "ground in the field is too wet to plow." Make orcharding and gardening features of farm manage-

The best way to make the farm more profitable is to get god livestock and produce feed to sustain the animals. Those who persist in selling their crops are facing poverty that sooner or later will be reached.

Remember in using commercial fer-tilizers that nitrogen is the element best needed to stimulate the growth of foli-age, tender branches, etc. Phosphoric acid is needed for kernels of corn, grains of wheat, oats, rye, etc.; potash for rigid stalks, roots and stems; flavor, color and quality in fruits.

It is a well-known fact that the cow that makes the largest profit is given the best care and most comfortable shelter.

It is wrong to expect the cow to yield a large profit simply because she is well bred. She must have feed and care or the breeding will amount to nothing.

Many dairy farmers are working hard to feed, care for and milk 20 cows every day, when 12 or 15 out of the same herd would pay a decidedly better profit. The idea is to find the cowe that are doing the best work and sell the rest.

The Kansas Experiment Station has The Kansas Experiment Station has an experiment comparing the manufac-ture of milk from grain and silage ra-tion. It found that the grain ration when used cost $1.05 to produce the 100 pounds of milk, and when silage was substituted in the same ratio for he the grain it reduced the price to cents per 100 pounds, a difference of 37 cents. It also found that it cost 22 cents to produce one pound of butter fat in the case of where grain was used, and only 13 cents where silage was used to take the place of half that ration. difference of 9 cents again. The profit per cow per year where grain was used was $24.60, and where silage was used $58.50. You will notice that it increased the profits from each individual in that her $34 to cut the corn and put it in the silo

One of the chief causes of the num ous failures of the clover crop lies in the fact that most of the seed is sown broadcast and is not well covered. To make sure of a stand of clover, the seed must be in the ground instead of merely on the surface.

A cow must first satisfy the needs of her own body before milk is secreted and it has been calculated that 43 per cent, of the food used by an average dairy cow is required to maintain her body. It is reasonable, therefore, to conclude that the maximum profits will result only when the cow is fed all the appetizing food she can digest milate and remain in a healthy condition.

CHEQUES USELESS

And Cobalt Concern is in Serious Trouble.

A Cobalt despatch: As the result of esuing a batch of technically worthless cheques to the number of 65 the Orion Realty and Investment Co., Ltd., faces a serious predicament. The cheques were last month's pay cheques to their employes, and when presented for pay-ment it was found that there were no funds in the bank to meet them.

THE POULTRY WORLD

HUMID WEATHER HARD ON CHICKS The hot weather of summer is now on, and the average poultry raiser finds that many conditions have changed in poultry yard from that of earlier in the season. Late-hatched chicks require but little if any heat in the brooder. The chicks that are mothered by the hen must have roomy quarters for if during must have roomy quarters, for if during the hot nights they do not obtain plenty of fresh air it saps the vigor from them, and, while they may not die, they will not grow as they should, and when fall comes will be undersized specimens. Care must be exercised in the feeding. Many still adhere to the yest reash. still adhere to the wet mash, and, if used, care should be taken to see that it is cleaned up in ten or fifteen minutes when fed, and not allowed to stand and become sour. Do not allow foul places where the watering fountains are kept. In emptying the water scatter kept. In emptying the water scatter it. A light scattering of lime now and then in the poultry runs will be of benefit. The fight on lice should now be doubled, and the poultry house given extra cleaning.

doubled, and the poultry house given extra cleaning.

Poultry during the summer months feel the depressing effects of heat the same as the human family, and extra attention in this respect of keeping them as comfortable as possible will enable the poultry keeper to increase the egg yield, as well as obtain a steady and profitable growth in the growing stock. This means for the growing stock roomy, well-ventilated quarters, kept clean, and not crowded. Separate the cockerels from the growing pullets as soon as possible—the cockerels to be fattened and sold for market as soon as the broiler age is reached, the pullets to be broiler age is reached, the pullets to be kept for winter layers and kept stead-ily growing. Keeping too many in one flock means retarded maturity, and it is here that many poultry keepers are disappointed when the pullets do not lay at the proper time for the breed. It should be remembered that each and every time, by improper feeding, housing, lice or crowding the chicks are housing, lice or crowding the chicks are checked, it will take that much longer checked, it will take that much longer for them to reach the laying period. Poultry of different ages to do their best should be separated. In feeding, the older crowd or cow the younger chicks, and they do not obtain the food required. At night the younger fowls are crowded and do not get proper rest. These are small things, but they are essentials to follow out, if the best results are to be obtained. Again, the old fowls require different feed than the growing stock. Fresh water plays an important part and is one of the essentials that is most neglected, because of the extra labor involved. The grain can be fed in hoppers or scattered in the poultry yard or house twice a day. The mash is fed or house twice a day. The mash is fed in hoppers, if dry mash is used, or in troughs twice a day if wet mash is used, but to water—properly—one must carry it four or five times a day during the heated term, and it means extra labor. Yet it repays the poultry raiser many times, for water is one of the first essentials during the summer months. Shade should be provided in some form and green food never neglected.

Feed less corn and more oats and wheat in the grains, and in the dry mash a good mixture of 200 pounds of bran, 100 of middlings, 100 ground oats, 60 pounds of high-grade beef-scraps, will be found a good growing ration, as well as laying. Poultry will lay well during the summer until moulting time if given good care, but they cannot prove profitable if infested with lice, unclean quarters, poor feeding and tight houses that sap the vitality from them during the summer nights. POULTRY NOTES A pound of disinfectant is cheaper than a germ of disease.

A free use of insect powder is liberally repaid in eggs. Clear drinking water poured into dirty vessels is taking an unfair advantage of your poultry.

A lazy fowl lays little.

A busy chick grows fastest. Poor food means few eggs; ample food intelligently fed gives maximum results It is a good rule in calculating what the weight of the broiler will be when dressed to get the live weight and deduct from it 12 per cent. The result will be a very close guess of the weight when dressed. The guineas are now hiding their nests. ienerally they lay between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon. By the way, guineas are great bug and worm hunters, and as they do not scratch can safely be allow ed in the garden. In dressing poultry, especially ducks, it is profitable to save the feathers. It will require the feathers of about five chickens to weigh a pound, and those of ten ducks to gain the same weight. A pound of geese feathers will require four geese. The feathers from dry picked turkeys command a better price than do those from fowls that are scalded. They should be marketed late in the fall, during the winter, or early spring. The famous spring chicken must be hatched not later than this month, and hatched not later than this month, and placed on the market when from two to placed on the market when from two to three pounds in weight.

The turkey crop brought out this month should have good growth by No-vember, in the case of male birds reach-ing ten or twelve pounds.

Just about this time there is considerable complaint that the wing feathers of the chicks of the Leghorn variety in par-ticular grow so fast that they droop, causing great loss of vitality. Some poultrymen pull out the large wing feathers as soon as the chicks droop, but this is a risky operation as it is possible this is a risky operation, as it is possible to injure the socket where the feathers come. The safest thing to do is to clip the tips of the wing feathers when the chicks are ten days old. This sends the strength back to the body, just on the same principle that we trim the vines of trees in order to add strength to the parent body.

Then she put the thought from her with a wild, bitter, fieldish laugh.
"No, I will live for revenge," she cried, pushing back the great mass of purpleblack hair from her white face. "I will live to part them, no matter what means I take to accomplish it.

When she looked sufficiently calm she looked the problem squarely in the face.

It would be of little use to fly back the hotel and attemut to acquaint. Haven with the state of affairs, for in the first place, by this time he would be fairly under the influence of the nar-cotic which he was taking to secure a night's sleep, and the burning down of the roof over his head could not arouse him from his stupor.

And, secondly, even if he were apprised of it, after the first puff of anger was over he would forgive his daughter, he loved her so well, saving: "Well, I cannot blame the child, after all, for marrying the man of her choice, even though she was betrothed to another. Marriage, without love, to Rupert Downing, despite the fact that she owed her life to him, would be but a hateful bond, a chain of iron."

Clarence Neville, with Bab as his bride, would return on the next boat, and he would receive them with open arms and say: "I forgive you, my children; only love each other faithfully and truly through life and I shall be satisfied." How India Haven ever passed the hours that followed she never knew. She India?" breathed Bab, faintly. "Then you must wait there is patience till he does come to you," returned India, impatiently. Trembling with intense agitation which she could not control, Barbara allowed her cousin to lead and advise her. The excitement was so great, the two dark-robed figures had little difficulty in gaining access to the hotel unobserved, and as silently gained their rooms.

To Bab, all that had occurred since she had been standing within those walls but a few hours before seemed more like a dream than a reality.

She was only a thoughtless, impulsive girl then; now she was a bride

"How will we know whether Clarence is in the hotel or not if we do not send down to the office and in quire?" cried Bab, wringing her hands and commencing to grow frantic again quite as soson as the door was closed behind them.

"You must control your agitation and Bab looked into her cousin's eyes with impatience until to-morrow.' India, using a harder, sterner tone than Bab had ever known from her lips.

strange gleam lis up the French "If you will not go down to the office to make inquiries, 1 must," added Bab, hysterically. "You will do nothing of the kind," returned India Haven, turning the key quickly in the lock, withdrawing it, and transferring it to her pocket, and turning about coldly and facing the frightened girl.

With a bitter cry, Bab threw up her little with her li little white hands and fell at India's feet in a dead swoon.

With the quick motion of a tigress,

India spurned her from her with her foot, on the soft, faultless neck.
"You have won him from me. Barbara Haven," she muttered, "but I will part you if he still lives, as surely as night follows day! I swear it!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

For some moments India Haven stood gazing down upon the white, upturned face of Bab without making the least effort toward attempting to revive her. "His bride!" she cried; "she, with her pink and white baby face, has won the love which I, with all my beauty, failed to gain. Would to Heaven that he kay dead in the bottom of the sea! Rather that than return to her." Madly as she loved him, she would rather have slain him with her own white hand than have seen him happy with her lovely Cousin

And this was the end of her dreams; her hopes lay in ruins around her. She had believed, when Barbara Haven ac-cepted Rupert Downing, and the marriage day grew nearer and nearer, that she had effectually separated Bab and Clarence Neville forever.

She had said to herself that no one stood in the way now of her winning Clarence Neville; she gave herself up to er love dream, and it grew about her. With such ill-regulated natures as iers, love knew no moderation, no bounds, no medium. Her first thought in the morning, and her latest thought at night began and ended with him. It was not a good love. It was the restless torrent that destroys all ob-stacles, that brooks no opposition, that will not be stayed—that washes impet-ously on its way, reaching its limit— et the cost be what it might.

From the first moment she had look-d up into his face, she had fallen deep-in love with him; he was her ideal.

To a girl like India Haven there was nothing in life so crucl as love that is freely given and meets no return. She had centred her hearts ay, her very soul upon the benef that she would win him; she gave him the passionate love of her heart, a love that was like a devocring flame—a flame that consumed all that ted the blize and this was what had come of it—he had married another. So eigrossed was she with her own mad thoughts, she quite forgot the flight of time and how long Bab was lying there unconscious at her feet. Nor could she arouse Bab when she set

Mr. Haven looked extremely worried. I never knew little Bab to swoon be white hands. "I—cannot—understand what caused it."

Dr. Brandon, who was bending over the girl, looked exceedingly grave. Slowly, he turned to her father.

"This is no common case of fainting, Mr. Haven," he said. "Your daughter appears to have every indication of broin fever—brought about by some severe shock."

Mr. Haven sprang to his feet, intensely agitated, shaking his head.
"Your surmise is incorrect, doctor; my daughter had no such experience, as my niece can tell you."

The doctor muttered something, which Mr. Haven did not quite catch.

For many a long day after that poor Bab lay upon her little white cot in an isolated portion of the hotel, which was deserted now, its summer guests long since having flown, babbling empty nothings which no one save India had he key to. On the day after Bab had been stricken with the fever, Rupert Downing had reached Long Branch. His alarm over Bab's condition was intense. Quite as soon as India could do so without attracting observation, she slipped a little bit of folded paper in his hand.

Upon opening it, when he found him-self alone, Downing found that it con-tained but two lines, which read as fol-"Meet me on the beach at sundown. I have something of the greatest importance to communicate to you."

There was no signature; indeed, none was needed. Rupert Downing knew In-dia's writing quite too well for that formality to be of the slightest consequence to him. He wondererd vaguely, however, what India could have to reveal to him, and kept the appointment promptly.

When he heard the story slee had to tell, his amazement and consternation "Barbara—married!" he gasped, know no bounds. face growing livid to the lips.

You are saving this to fgrighten false! It is some trick of yours! India assured him upon her bonor that what she told him was absolutely true "Your-honor!" he speered, "I should want better security for my belief than that!' The dark, wrathful eyes of the French girl blazed up for an instant like livid coals. She bit her red lips savagely, but she dared not antagonize him.

"What do you propose to do?" she queried, at length.

She never forgot the look he turned upon her.
"First find out if he lives, or if the sea has taken him out of my path."

"And then?" ventured India.
"And then." repeated Robert Downing, "I shall know whether I shall have a duel on my hands or not. Of one thing rest assured—he shall not take Barbara Haven from me. He has had the first move on the checkerboard, and he has taken the first trick; the second, and crowning move, is mine. I shall sweep the board, or my name is not Ruper Downing."

Lot of Italian Royal Is Children.

Whatever the future may hold for orrow or joy for the royal children of Ifaly, the son and three small daughters of King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena will be able to look back apon an exceptionally happy childhood.

The Quirinal palace in Rome, where the children live, has its own shaded gardens, but lest these should not ourfice, the King has bought a villa close to the city to serve as an open playground for the youngsters. This villa is on the ancient Via Salaria. The children are often taken out to it in notor cars, and spend long afternoons at play with their penies and other pets, exactly as though they were in the real country.

When spring course the little prines.

as though they were in the real country. When spring comes the little prince, Umberto, aged 9, and his sisters, Johanda, Mafalda and Giovanna, respectively 12, 11 and 6 years old, go down to their father's hunting lodge of Castef Porziano, about fifteen miles from Rome; where a scented wood of pine trees borwhere a scented wood of pine trees bor-ders the Mediterranean, and where, dressed in simple and practical clothes, they live in the open air, bathing and climbing trees till they become as brown as berries and as hardy as the children of the peasants around them. Later on in the summer they go to the seashore at San Rossore, near Pisa, and later stall to the fine country Castle of Racconigi, in Piedmont, which has always been the summer residence of the Carignano branch of the house of Savoy.

It used to be the fashion for Italian children of the better class to dress. children of the better class to dress-elaborately, like miniature celitions of their parents, but Queen Helena, realis-ing how much happier is the life of boys and girls who have not to care for their clothes, has set the fashion for simplicity by always dressing her children in loose and comfortable "sailor suits." Thus arrayed the royal youngsters enjoy without restraint the luxuries of digging, gardening and paddling

The eldest of the family, Princess Yolanda, is a handsome girl and always looks well in her white serge suits with looks well in her white serge suits with broad collars, but she is rather precocious, as are many Italian girls, and already shows a truly feminine interest in matters of dress. It is a great joy to her to be allowed to assist in selecting her mother's millinery, and she chooses hats for the Queen on a most truth scale, never allowing herself to chooses hats for the Queen on a most lavish scale, never allowing herself to be trammeled by considerations of expense. Yolanda admires her beautiful mother intensely, and she was present on a public occasion recently when some one remarked to her that the Queen was looking particularly well. The little girl answered:

Work on the high school building is now advanced to a stage where the end in view can be appreciated, and it is evident that this district is to have a building that will fully meet all requirements. Wide halls, above and below, will run from front to rear, and the new addition will afford two rooms below and one large extra-well lighted assembly room above.

The Grand Trunk Railway System have received a communication from the Barnum and Bailey Circus in connection with the handling of their four trains over their lines in Canada which reads as follows :- "We have pleasure in stating that your service in handling our shows has been most, satisfactory; we also speak a word for your employees with whom we came in contact. They all seemed to do their utmost to make it pleasant for us, and I assure you it was greatly appreciated by eur people."

Domestic Model B

Easy to Operate

To the Ladies of Athens and vicinity: I have taken the exclusive sales agency for the Domestic Vaccuum Cleaner acknowledged in the United States as well as Canada to be the superior of all vaccuum cleaners.

The Domestic has ball-bearings throughout and runs so easy that a child can operate it.

It has three powerful bellows with more suction power than any other hand-cleaner made

Its many points of superiority can best be appreciated when seen, and you are invited to inspect it at our store, or, if interested, we will demonstrate in your home.

The Domestic is operated like the ordinary carpet sweeper and is made in three sizes. It can be supplied with brush attachment for taking up hairs, threads, lint and heavy surface dirt; also with a hose and nozzle attachment for cleaning upholstered furniture, mattresses, draperies, etc.

No home should be without a Domestic Vaccuum Cleaner.
