A MYSTERIOUS QUEST.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Surprises of An Hour. "I am sorry to trouble you," he now said, addressing the dying man, "but as a lawyer and a citizen, I feel it incumbent upon me to suggest that you should make a will, Mr. Delancy. If you do not, there will be more wrangling and litigation after your death than before it and this, I have no doubt, you wish to avoid."

"Yes, yes!" "Shall I listen to your wishes, then? Have you decided to what friend or friends you would like to leave this money?"

"I have decided," said the sick man. "I wish it all to go to one person."

"No matter how large the sum may be?"

"No matter how large the sum is; the larger the better. All to one person, I say. Ah! this is a delight after years of vain desire and want."

"The lawyer drew up a small table, placed upon it writing materials, and began to fill in the draft of a will which he had brought with him. While he was doing this, I talked with the doctor, and lent such assistance as was necessary to make the dying man comfortable and keep up his strength. When it came for him to name the person to whom he wished to leave his money, I withdrew as far from him as possible, but the room was too small for me to escape hearing the eager whisper that left Mr. Delancy's lips, even if the words had not been the familiar ones:

"Hamilton Degraw."

"You wish—" the lawyer stammered, as much taken back as I was myself.

"To leave all my property, real and personal, to this gentleman, whose name you say is Hamilton Degraw."

"But," I now cried, with an embarrassment easily to be understood, "I am a stranger to you; as much of a stranger as either of these gentlemen. I pray you to reconsider this matter. I do not need your wealth. Besides—"

"Don't waste the precious moments," he entreated, with a burst of his ominous cough. "You are a stranger, but you have a face like my brother Frank. He was the most loyal soul alive, and so I believe are you. And that is what I want; loyalty and truth in my heir. They will both be needed. I forewarn you. Write down the name," he now commanded the lawyer; "and be sure you make the will legal, or I will rise from my grave to reproach you."

"There was no use in trying further discussion. He was in full possession of his faculties, as even the doctor was ready to swear; but he was growing very weak, and opposition robbed him of even the slight remains of strength which were still left him. Mr. Cutting, who was pale as the paper on which he wrote; put down my name, as requested, and then, asking the doctor to call in his man from the buggy before the door, he put the pen in the dying man's fingers, and watched him breathlessly, as we all did—I no more than the rest—while he scrawled those few

"I will tell you exactly what she must be. She must be young, beautiful, charming and good. She must be a resident of New York, and she must have for her name the simple one of Jenny Rogers. That is all I ask. When you find such a girl, and have studied her character enough to know that she will do me credit as my heir, then I ask you to hand over to her, by deed of gift, all the fortune which for so many years has been without benefit to man or woman."

"I stood aghast. What sort of a proposition was this! Was not the man in sound mind, after all? Some girl, any girl who bore a certain name and fulfilled certain conditions, was to reap the benefit of three million dollars, and I was to be the man to choose this girl!"

"He saw my perplexity and shook his head in seeming trouble. "You shrink from the task!" he exclaimed. "You cannot understand why I impose upon you the burden of such a responsibility. But whom shall I ask to bear it, if not you? I have not a friend; I am dying, and my only hope of peace lies in the thought that this wealth, which has come so late, shall adorn the life and elicit the gratitude of some one bearing the name that is dear to me."

"It is the name, then, I cried, 'which is of importance. You do not care so much for her station in life, though, of course, this must be respectable.'"

"Only care that she shall be lovely to look at, pure of soul, and kindly of spirit. I had rather she were not otherwise favoured by fortune. I should like to have her raised suddenly into prosperity. If she is the girl I see in my mind's eye, she will not be spoiled by it."

"But 'Jennie Rogers'!" It is a common name; I shall run across a dozen or more in a great city like New York."

"You will know my heiress when you see her; real worth always shows in the face. Besides, you will have ample opportunity to choose amongst them. I give you a year, Mr. Degraw, and as this understanding between us is a secret, no one need ever know the reason of your interest in these girls till you see fit to make the deed I request. Oh, it is a dream of mine! May I hope to see it fulfilled?"

"I felt like saying 'No'! I felt tearing up the will he had just signed and so shirk a task that at this moment seemed too bizarre for any quiet man's performance. But the expression of his eyes stopped me. I could not refuse what was so dear to this dying man. Though trouble and annoyance must follow, I resolved to make the promise which would send him out of this world in peace."

"I will do what you ask," I declared. "I will visit New York, make the acquaintance of such girls as are known to bear this name, and when I have found one that in my judgment is worthy to become the possessor of three million, I will make your fortune over to her. Is that all you require?"

"Yes, yes, but three million!" "That is the amount, I am told." "A radiant delight overcame his pallid countenance. "I have a queen of the girl you choose. In my grave I shall feel her pleasure. Though I could not do this for thee, sweet lines which in one moment raised me from a gentleman of respectable means into a man of fortune.

"The sigh of relief which followed the completion of his signature came from his breast, not mine. I was in a daze, and realized little of the importance of the moment. I did not even fully comprehend the looks of pardonable astonishment and good-natured sympathy that passed between the two professionals present, or notice when or how the witnesses affixed their names to this most hurried and remarkable of wills. I was only conscious of a great oppression, as if a burden under which I felt unable to stagger had just fallen upon my shoulders, and was greatly relieved when the sick man called me by name and said:

"Now I am going to tell you what I wish you to do with this money, if these gentlemen will only leave us alone."

"The lawyer, who had just stepped forward to offer me his hand in congratulation, stopped, and looked as if he did not know whether to proffer this ceremony or not. But when he observed my relieved countenance, he grew quite cheerful, and, warmly wringing my hand, whispered:

"It is a matter of three million, Degraw; so be careful what you promise."

"I stared; I could not take in the figures at first; but when I did, I felt actually chilled as if a dash of cold water had been thrown upon me. Three million! I hardly dared to look the reckless giver of this fortune in the eye. Three million! And two hours before I had neither heard his name nor he mine. What mystery! thought I. I hope he will tell me what he wants me to do with all this money."

"The two gentlemen had by this time withdrawn into the hall, the doctor whispering as he passed me: "Raise your voice if you see him going. There is nothing more we can do for him now but close his eyes."

"A task which it seemed for the moment as if we should not be called upon to perform, for when I turned toward him he already lay like one in his last rest, save that his hands still moved among the blossoms I had given him. But when he felt me near, he raised his heavy eyelids and beamed upon me with an inexplicable smile that was at once sad and searching.

"Will it be a great disappointment to you to lose the use of the money I have just put into your hands?"

"My cheeks flushed; it was a little hard to the prospect of so much wealth dissolve into nothing, with a suddenness equal to its coming; but my tone, I am sure, showed no real regret as I answered:

"It is your wealth, and I have not the shadow of a claim upon it. Whatever you wish me to do with I will do; that you may rely upon."

"Even if it involves trouble and sacrifice?"

"Most decidedly!" "Ah, Providence is kind to send me just the man I need in my extremity. Receive my thanks, and forgive me that I seemed to give you personally what I only meant to give you in trust for another. Why I felt it necessary to do this, you will understand when I tell you that my real heir is as yet a person unknown—a person for whom I have not time to seek and for whom you yourself must look as soon as opportunity offers."

"But—"

"I will tell you exactly what she must be. She must be young, beautiful, charming and good. She must be a resident of New York, and she must have for her name the simple one of Jenny Rogers. That is all I ask. When you find such a girl, and have studied her character enough to know that she will do me credit as my heir, then I ask you to hand over to her, by deed of gift, all the fortune which for so many years has been without benefit to man or woman."

Jenny, he exclaimed, lifting one arm to heaven with an energy that surprised me, 'I can, as least, do it for one who shall mirror thy rare nature and bear thy beloved name!'

"This look and the accompanying gesture were a revelation. "It is, then, for the sake of a Jenny Rogers you once knew, that you desire this disposition made of your money? I ventured, anxious to learn if the cause which influenced him to this action was a natural one."

"Yes, yes," he cried. "Oh, if my strength would only last till I could tell you of her gentle beauty, her heavenly pity, the sweetness of her looks and the comfort of her words to me, in the days when I was such an invalid that I could not answer her back or even smile when she handed me in a flower at my broken window!"

"It was years ago, after I had a paralytic stroke and lay in a miserable basement, in a condition more helpless than that in which I am now. She saw me in passing, and moved by my pale face, I suppose, stopped, and gave me a little bundle of fruit which she was carrying home for her own meal. Poverty recognizes poverty, and I saw hers, but I could not say her nay nor refuse her gift, nor even thank her for what made my heart leap with joy; and when she passed again and yet again, each time with a smile that filled my dark room with the sunshine of heaven, I grew to live in the light of her coming and going; till there was no daylight for me if she did not pass, and no night shadows for me if she did. I was ignorant of her name. She never thought to tell me, and I had no power to ask. But I saw that her hands were rough with work, though her face was one of the loveliest I caught a glimpse of the heavy bundle which she always carried on the further side of her, as if she knew I would strive to see it so heavy and yet be unable to relieve her. To be continued.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Miss Mary Hanrahan returned from St. John's by last night's train. Quite a snow storm raged last night and this morning. Snow is piled high in many places and few people are about, except the snow shovelers.
Mr. T. P. Walters and bride arrived from Trinity by train on Sunday morning and are staying with Mr. Walters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walters.
A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Yetman on December 27th.
Miss Greta James, of St. John's, is in town visiting her many friends. She is the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Brunlees.
Miss Gladys Oke is visiting friends at Carbonar, where she is the guest of her friend, Miss Mollie Boyle.
The annual meeting of the Conception Bay British Society took place on Monday night last. The financial affairs of the Society were found to be in a good condition, and notwithstanding the big drain for sickness and death on its funds, it is pleasing to note that it still has over $3,000 in bank, and owns a large amount of valuable property besides. Mr. Willis Davis, principal of the firm of R. Rutherford & Co., presented each members with a pretty calendar for the year. It represents several yachts out in a fresh breeze, while the one to the fore has a pretty young girl holding the tiller firmly in her hands. A very thoughtful and useful present for which a hearty vote of thanks was passed. The election of officers then took place, resulting in Mr. Albert Rogers being again chosen President. This is ten years Mr. R. has held this office, and 20 years he has held office in the Society without a break. The other officers elected were: V. P., P. Higgins, re-elected; Treas., George Gordon, re-elected; Secretary, O. Davis, re-elected; Committee—Jordan Sheppard, R. Tetford, E. Rogers, Albert Heath, James Garland, C. D. Garland, Geo. French, John Webber, Robert Brazil, Grand Marshal, Edward Quinn, re-elected; Hall Keeper, John Downing, elected.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By MARY CAMERON

"There, I turned and there were two hundred and eighteen times," said the little bride-lady whom I was visiting.
She had been whipping cream for me, and made the above remark as she lifted the dripping egg beater from the mass of creamy smoothness.
"My gracious, you don't count everything you do, do you?" I questioned.
The little bride-lady laughed. "Yes, I do—that is lots of things. I find it helps quite a lot when I have anything perfectly stupid like that to do, to amuse myself by counting and seeing just how many motions I do have to make."
I suppose a great many people will snuff at the little bride-lady's device. But it seems to me that she has the right idea.
In housework—and indeed in many other lines of work—there are a great many tasks which are monotonous and wearisome on account of their mechanical and routine character. Some of these tasks require so little attention that one can concentrate the mind on other things without being in danger of neglecting them. Others require just enough attention to make it inadvisable to turn the mind entirely to other things. Now, I think that there are many little devices which can be used to make these tasks a trifle less monotonous, and I think the little bride-lady's trick of counting does not deserve to be snuffed at, if it helped

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.
The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a swollen cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds weak or tainted spots in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are of known composition and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

Household Notes.

The sediment from javelle water is excellent for scouring.
Any piece of woolen wrung out in gasoline makes a good duster.
French chalk will remove practically all grease spots from dress material.
Never use soap on window panes. Use either alcohol or ammonia to make them shine.
Coal soot is easily removed from articles of porcelain if they are first coated with kerosene.
Cream cheese, mixed with canned currants or jellied cranberries, makes a good sandwich filling.
The flavor of a cup of cocoa is often made more delicate if the least bit of vanilla is placed in it.
To keep insects away, wipe the floors of closets after they are scrubbed with gasoline or benzine.
To remove ink stains from the hands rub the juice of ripe tomatoes over them and rinse in warm water.
An eggshell or two or, better still, in an oyster shell, should be kept in every teakettle. Then no rust will appear.

Instead of sewing hangers to towels, make small buttonholes. They will last as long as the towel and can't wear off.
If six to ten drops of spirits of camphor are taken on a lump of sugar when sneezing starts a bad cold may be averted.
If you cannot get into the deep recesses of a refrigerator with a scrub brush, try using a small stiff paint brush.
If your corn does not pop well it may be that it is too old. Soak in cold water for 15 minutes, drain and try again.
A good cleanser for hardwood is to wash it with a clean flannel wet in turpentine, and rub lightly afterward with linseed oil.
To remove rust from kettles fill them with hay, packed tightly, fill in with boiling water and let boil for several hours.
The darkest stain on a mirror or window pane can generally be routed by rubbing with a flannel wet in spirits of camphor.
Figs and dates chopped with diced apples make a delicious combination for a salad with mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce.
When serving poached eggs instead of the usual slice of toast place the eggs on rounds of bread cut thin and sauted in butter.
The juice of stewed cranberries, with the addition of lemon and sugar, to taste makes a delicious drink, diluted with cold water.
Paint the inside woodwork of bedsteads with corrosive sublimate and turpentine five cents' worth of the former to a pint of the latter.
Brice-a-brac should be carefully dusted before being washed in hot borax water or soapuds in which a little ammonia has been dissolved.
Cover plaster of paris figures with a thick coating of starch and water; let it dry on the surface, and the dirt will brush off with the powder.
Most modern brassware is lacquered and needs only to be wiped off with a damp cloth. Work quickly and do not let the surface get wet.
Never darn knitted underwear with wool, as it will shrink and make a hole larger than the original one. Use loosely twisted knitting silk.

As a Cure for Whooping Cough

A medicine that will cure whooping cough can certainly be relied upon to overcome all ordinary coughs and colds. This is about the severest test, and one to which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has frequently been put with the most satisfactory results.
Mrs. John Chesney, Innerkip, Ont., writes:—"We have used a dozen bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my little girl of whooping cough when the doctor had given her up, and since then we always keep it in the house as a treatment for coughs and colds. It is the best medicine we ever used."
In spite of imitations and substitutes, the sales of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep right on increasing, and this, we believe, is the most substantial evidence that can be offered as to the reliability of this well-known medicine as a cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough and kindred ailments; 25 cents a bottle, at all Dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Prescription "A"

Cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia in all its Forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.
Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

Worst Storm for 20 Years.

Special to Evening Telegram.
 CAPE BROYLE, Jan. 8.
 The storm of Saturday was the worst experienced here for twenty years. All the roads are blocked and practically impassable. A lot of damage was done to water-side premises. Several wharfs and stages were completely washed away by the high tide and rough sea and also considerable damage done to fishing boats and gear.

Bonaventure's Rough Trip.

The s.s. Bonaventure, Capt. Cross, arrived here at 1 p.m. yesterday from Sydney coal laden to Morey & Co. She left Sydney at midnight Thursday and from the start had a gale of N. E. wind to encounter, with a regular blizzard raging and a towering sea running. She was for 24 hours hove to off Cape Pine and Capt. Cross says that the weather was the most stormy that he ever experienced. But that the ship is such a good sea boat she would have not come through unscathed as she did. She passed Cape Race at 6.30 a.m. yesterday and, considering the weather, made a good run to port. She leaves for Bell Island Wednesday to take an ore cargo to Sydney.

Praise for Capt. Blackmore.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir:—Now that the S. S. Dundee is taking her departure from this Bay, which closes the star service for 1911, a word of praise is due to Capt. Blackmore and his officers for the efficient manner in which the service has been conducted. Skipper Geo. Blackmore as he is familiarly called, owing to his very courteous manner was always popular, but since taking charge of the Dundee he has made himself exceedingly so. We hope to see his genial face again on the bridge of the Dundee in May.
 Yours truly,
 TRAVELLER.

Obituary.

It is with feelings of regret we chronicle the death of Mrs. Wm. Comerford, which happened yesterday at the residence of her son William, 109 Military Road. Mrs. Comerford had been ill about 3 weeks of a complication of diseases. The deceased lady was widely known and greatly respected and was remarkable for her kindly disposition and sentiments of philanthropy and charity. During the progress of the bazaars held here year ago for the benefit of the Christian Bros. schools, Mrs. Comerford worked with assiduity for their success. She was also connected with the St. Vincent de Paul and other charitable and religious organizations and her zealous aid unstintingly given will be greatly missed by these. Her husband, the late Wm. Comerford, predeceased her by 6 years. Two sons survive her. Mr. R. B. Comerford of the Anglo American Telegraph Co. of Heart's Content, and Mr. Wm. Comerford of Knowling's wholesale department. To these and other bereaved relatives, the Telegram extends its condolence.

A Daring Rescue

Miss Phoebe Bellows, of Curling, plunged into the icy waters of the Humber Arm on Saturday morning and rescued a boy from drowning. Little Walter St. John had been coasting over an embankment just east of Leggo's Point, when his sleigh ran out on the ice and broke through. The little fellow was thrown into the water, but got entangled in the cord of the sleigh and was thus saved from being swept in under the ice by the current. Miss Bellows, whose attention was attracted by the shouts of another child who had been playing with St. John, ran and plunged into the icy waters. She smashed the ice with her hands until she rescued the drowning child, who had been in the water about ten minutes, and brought him to shore. By this time Mr. B. Leggo had arrived at the scene and assisted in rendering First Aid. It was at first thought that the lad was dead, but after a while he was brought to life. Dr. Fisher was called and administered stimulants. The action of Miss Bellows in entering the waters of the Humber in mid-winter and at a time when the Arm was covered with a sheet of ice from one to six inches in thickness was one deserving of the highest recognition.—Western Star.

Marine News.

The Mildred arrived at Hr. Breton to-day all well.
 The Stephano hauled into Harvey & Coy. pier at daylight this morning and is now discharging there. She sails Wednesday for Halifax and New York. Miss Waters is booked to go by her.
 The Cornishian which lay in the stream since her arrival here, left for St. John's this afternoon. She sails for Halifax to-morrow and should leave Philadelphia on the 20th inst., for Glasgow via this port.

Hard Trip.

The schr. Lena, of Carbonear, arrived here Friday after a pretty rough experience on her way from Carbonear to Sydney for coal. She was out 16 days in continuously stormy weather, was hove to for days at a time, and at last to avoid a greater drubbing had to run for this port. She sustained little or no damage, but will await more moderate weather to continue her voyage.

MINAR'S LINIMENT CURES GAGGET IN COWS.

Mr. John O'Toole went on board the Gespe, which owing to the storm anchored in the stream, on Friday morning and it being so rough of course could not get ashore. His wife, when he did not return home Saturday evening, became very anxious about him and notified the police. She called at Mr. M. Power's house Saturday night and he reassured her, telling her that the man and vessel were perfectly safe and that he was quite comfortable on board. Mr. O'Toole returned to his home yesterday.

A Wedding in the Storm.

The wedding of Mr. W. J. Hickey, of Monroe's office, and Miss Norah Fogarty, of the West End, was solemnized at the R. C. Cathedral at 8.30 last Saturday night by Rev. Mons. Roche. The bride was attended by Miss Esther Hickey, sister of the groom, while Mr. James Walsh did the duties of best man. After the ceremony the party drove to their future residence at the Cross Roads where a supper was served. Mr. Leo C. Murphy toasted the health of the bride and groom, to which the latter responded. Mr. M. Shea also made a congratulatory speech and presented the happy couple with a handsome 8-day clock. The other presents were equally useful and their great number was a testimony of the popularity of the young couple. We join in wishing them a happy married life.

Coastal Boats.

BOWING SHIPS. The Portia passed Cape Race at 9.30 this morning and is due here at 5.30 p.m.
 The Prospero left Pilley's Island at 2 a.m. Saturday, but no further news has been heard of her, the wires being down.

NOTICE.—Owing to a break in the wire between Petty Harbor and the Sub-Station the "Chronicle" may not be issued this afternoon.

Southern Shore Boats O.K.

The three schooners of Skippers Nagle and Bonayne, of Witless Bay and Tor's Cove, which left St. John's last Thursday, are safe at Bay Bulls. Their friends were very anxious about them Saturday and yesterday and the news was received with joy this morning.

Blocked with Snow.

Parade Street is blocked with snow and no traffic of any kind whatever can get up or down. This street should be shoveled immediately, as in case of a fire it would be impossible to get the fire apparatus up that thoroughfare.

Home Arrived.

The S. S. Home, Capt. Jacob Kean, arrived here from the Straits this morning, having come home "south about." The service for the season in the Straits is finished, ice having prevented her making the last trip down.

The Fogota is Safe!

The s.s. Fogota arrived at Pool's Island, all well, at 9 o'clock last night. She left here Saturday morning about 3 o'clock. The storm set in with full force a few hours after Capt. Barbour managed to get out Bay de Verde in the afternoon and lay there till Sunday morning. At the telegraph wires were down a message could be sent. A report was freely circulated Saturday night and all day yesterday that the ship had been lost with all hands. Leaving Bay de Verde yesterday morning Captain Barbour reached Pool's Island O. K. at 9 at night. No doubt he had a hard time crossing the bay.

Schooner Sank.

A schooner moored at Goodridge's wharf, sank at her moorings last night. A hole was chopped in her side from the effects of continual pounding at the wharf in the storm of the past few days.

THE WRONG LOCATION.—In referring to the young man Bennett who attempted suicide at the lock up Saturday night, his residence was given as the South Side. This was an error. The man is a resident of the East End.

Capt. H. W. Winsor, who was at Labrador the past summer superintending work in connection with the Canadian Marconi stations, left for Cape Race Friday last to superintend some work in connection with the station there.

BROKE FROM WHARF.—In the storm and heavy undertow last night the Schr. W. S. Monroe, tied to Bishop & Sons wharf broke an inch and a half steel cable and drifted from her place. After much difficulty she was secured again and prevented from drifting out the harbor.

SCHOONER ADRIFF.—A schooner moored in the stream broke her chains last night and drifted over to Baird's south side premises where she ran foul of two schooners moored there and did them considerable damage. A crew of men shoved her off and guided her to Baird's upper wharf where they tied her on. Later in the night she parted the line and drove out into the harbor again.

Mr. John O'Toole went on board the Gespe, which owing to the storm anchored in the stream, on Friday morning and it being so rough of course could not get ashore. LONDON, Jan. 7.—Lord Lansdale in an interview today declared that he could not say whether Emperor William was coming to England shortly, but that he hoped to see him during the present year. With reference to Anglo-German relations, Lord Lansdale said that he believed it would take some years to live down the feeling recently created by the Moroccan situation. If the Emperor had not been resolved from the first not to have war, it would have been difficult for any cabinet to have resisted, but the Emperor, Lord Lansdale added, is above all a man of peace, and has a horror of war. He was, moreover, actuated by the friendliest feelings towards England.

Eat what your stomach craves without the slightest fear of indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, Belching, Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches from stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead, or other disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no indigestion or Sleepless nights or Headache or Stomach misery all the next day; and besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Pape's Diapepsin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of indigestion or Dyppepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odors from the Stomach or to cure a Stomach headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house.

THE GRAPHAPHONE.

The graphophone is a musical device with a shrill and emphatic form of speech. It is a recent invention and is becoming so common that a man can hardly step out on the front porch in the shank of the evening without being greeted by banjo solos and throaty tone emission from nine different directions. The graphophone with sliding scale and case-hardened throat is causing a great many people to cancel the lease of a six-room flat and file on a claim in North Dakota, where there is no music save the vocal efforts of the milk cow and the plaintive melody of the guinea pig. The graphophone is a very willing performer and never has to apologize for having a bad cold or leaving its music at home. No one ever heard a graphophone refuse to sing on account of hoarseness or a poor memory, either. This device is gradually packing the American home full of culture and variations on "The Mocking Bird," with the result that many of our most prominent society people are now able to distinguish the introduction to "Tannhauser" from the Hiawatha quickstep without looking at the label on the record. The graphophone is a great aid to the business man who is not on speaking terms with his stenographer, owing to a suspicious and narrow-minded wife, for he can dictate into it without being asked to spell out every word of more than two syllables. This device is a great educator. Everything nowadays is taught on the graphophone except plain cooking and the art of sewing on a suspender button. All of our grand opera singers breathe into the graphophone at $4 per breathe, most of the breathing being done in some foreign language that sounds like a canary in a violent rage.

Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

One day we see him painting houses or nailing shingles on the roof; next day he's seen dehoring cows or herding turkeys on the hoof. A handy man, we always hire him when trifling jobs are to be done; but people do not always hire him for work that costs a bunch of cash. He'll paint a fence or clean a furnace or shake the rugs and sweep the floors; he'll do his duty where the churn is, and tackle forty other chores. For willingness he is a dandy; he flies around on speed; feet. And yet he's always on his uppers, his toil's so lightly reimbursed; while neighbors eat their gorgeous suppers he has to feed on wienerswurst. To learn one trade and earn it fully, to master every small detail, that is the plan that makes life bully, and brings in fifty kinds of kale.

Clearing Track.
The snow storm of Saturday evening and night completely blocked the street car tracks and by an early hour Saturday night they were completely covered by several feet of snow. Early yesterday morning the street sweepers were put to work to clear the rails, but the snow was packed heavily on them and gangs of conductors, motormen and others had to go ahead with shovels and clear the way where the snow was thickest. By 10.30 a.m., so well did the men work, the trunk line was cleared of snow, the south side track only being available on Water Street, and pedestrians were glad to have the cars at their disposal to save them travelling through the deep drifts which filled the streets.

Snow Does $150 Damage.
The accumulation of snow on the building, and especially the weight of it on the glass dome over Mr. A. Toofon's studio, Saturday night caused it to collapse and the whole thing caved in with a crash, bringing a large quantity of broken glass and snow into the studio. As a result the walls, flooring, &c., and many photographs and pictures were broken or rendered useless. The owner values his loss at $150.

Sunk in Harbor.
Owing to the storm of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at least two schooners came to grief in the harbor. These vessels were laying up in the stream for the winter, and one in midstream, off Bowring's premises, filled and turned over, very little of the hull being over water. Another off Bishop & Sons also sank, and both will be dangerous to shipping especially at night if not removed.

BISHOP FIELD COLLEGE. - Re-opens on Tuesday, January 9th, at 9.15 p.m. - Jan 21

Working Under Difficulties.
Most of the houses on the higher levels are flat roofed, and in the storm of Saturday great quantities of snow lodged on them. Fearing the roofs would collapse under the weight, in many instances the owners mounted them and while the storm was at its height shovelled away the material. These people suffered much from cold and exposure and in some cases they were all the afternoon at the work.

Feast of the Epiphany.
Yesterday being Sunday within the Octave of the Feast of the Epiphany, High Mass was celebrated at 11 o'clock by His Grace the Archbishop. The music by the choir was of a high order. Pontifical Vespers were sung at 7 p.m., His Grace the Archbishop again officiating. During the Benediction the "Ven Creator Spiritus" was sung by the choir and sanctuary in alternate verses to invoke the blessings of the New Year.

The Treaty Powers have undertaken to take charge of the railway between Peking and the seas. The interruption of the traffic along the line has resulted in this decision being taken. Detachments of British, German, Japanese, and French troops have been stationed at intervals between Peking and Chin Wang Tao. According to plans decided on two months ago, the Japanese general is in command, as he is the ranking officer. Yuan Shi Kai is pleased at the action of the Powers, because he believes that this course will ensure the maintenance of communication with the outside world, which the Imperial troops might be unable to do. The Powers do not assume the administration of the district contiguous to the railways. He believes that the Imperialists will profit by the arrangement, the trains not being available for the rebels.

Special Evening Telegram.
BERLIN, To-day.
The interview with Earl Lonsdale concerning the German Emperor has been published here, and the news divides interest with the general elections. The German newspapers carry long dispatches, quoting Lonsdale, but the comment elicited so far is unfavorable with the recent Anglo-German difficulties fresh in mind. The Morning Post says Lonsdale's references to the Emperor's greatness as a general or genius, for flattery, were in the worst taste. The references of Lonsdale to His Majesty's anglophillism, says the Post, are insulting in view of the events of this summer.

The war staff will have no executive authority. Its responsibilities will end with tendering advice to the First Sea Lord.

Many people find that the best means of keeping clear of colds and chills, and counteracting the results of sudden changes of weather is by the use of a good tonic to build up the system and fortify it against extremes of temperature. Such a tonic is McMurdo's Quinine and Iron mixture which has a reputation all over the country for this purpose. Its constituents are well known medicines, and we have no hesitation in recommending it as a general tonic. It contains no alcohol and therefore produces no reaction after the patient has done using it. Altogether it is an ideal simple tonic. Price, 40c. a bottle.

Labrador Game.

The following paper appeared in Forest and Stream 26th December. Labrador once abounded in game. In Hesketh Prichard's last book he speaks of the woeful absence of animal life. The Canadian Government has been very successful in the creation of such game sanctuaries, and they may take up this idea.

Jan. 8, '12. D. W. P.

WILD LIFE REFUGES IN LABRADOR.

The constantly increasing public interest in the preservation of wild life is indicated by the fact that resolutions, addresses and discussions on this subject appear constantly in the public prints and form a part of the proceedings of the various conservation congresses which are being held so frequently at the present day. A notable example of this is found in an address delivered before the Commission of Conservation of Canada last January at Quebec and now issued in pamphlet form.

In this address Col. William Wood discourses at length on animal sanctuaries in Labrador, and, if he advances no very new arguments, he at least puts forth the old arguments in a new dress and in a very telling fashion. His paper in fact is an urgent appeal to everyone to spread the gospel of wild life preservation, on which there is substantially unanimity of opinion, but too little activity by its advocates extending in an interest in it among the public at large. Very fittingly, therefore, Colonel Wood prepares his paper with the request that each reader do what he can to influence his or her home circle, that the press give the subject full publicity, and that experts point out mistakes or make suggestions.

A sanctuary for wild life is a kind of wild zoological park on a gigantic scale and under ideal conditions. As such it appeals to everyone interested in animals, to zoologists and to tourists alike. There are plenty of examples on this continent of successful sanctuaries. Canada has more than the United States, among them the Algonquin, Yoho, Glacier, Jasper and Laurentides Park. In the United States there are the Yellowstone, the Glacier, the Yosemite, Grand Canon and a number of others. What such refuges do for those animals that are included within their boundaries and there protected is an old story. The abundance of elk in the Yellowstone Park, of sea lions in California, the revival of the ibex in Spain, the vast quantities of game in African preserves, have demonstrated all this. Why not set aside in unsettled Labrador a vast preserve for local and for migratory species?

Labrador—distant and unknown to the general public—has for many years been exploited for advertising purposes as an unexplored territory, although for hundreds of years the Hudson's Bay and other white people have been running over it in all directions. It has few inhabitants, for it is neither an agricultural nor a stock country. It is a rocky tableland, high above the sea level, its northern portion in the latitude of Greenland and its southern in that of Paris. It comprises 550,000 square miles and so is as large as eleven Englands. It is a country with a great fauna of fur-bearing animals and of migratory birds. It is well known for its seals and its whales, though most of these of course are small species. It is a great country for fur and was formerly the home of vast herds of two sorts of reindeer, both of which are swiftly growing fewer. All along the coast the destruction of all life is constantly going on, and if the minerals of the interior are a little safer, it is only because they are more inaccessible. It is worth while to quote some paragraphs to show what is going on at the present day.

"Take 'egging' as an example. The Indians, Eskimo and others beasts of prey merely preserve the balance of nature by the toll they used to take. No beasts of prey, not even a white man, will destroy his own stock supply of food, but with the 19th century came the white man market 'eggers', systematically taking or destroying every egg in every place they visited. Halifax, Quebec and other towns were centers of the trade. The 'eggers' increased in numbers and thoroughness till the eggs decreased in the more accessible spots below paying quantities. But other egging still goes on unchecked. The game laws of the Province of Quebec distinctly state 'it is forbidden to take nests or eggs of wild birds at any time.' But the swarm of fishermen who come up the north shore of the St. Lawrence egg wherever they go. If they are only to stay in the same spot for a day or two, they gather all the eggs they can, put them into water, and throw away everyone that floats. . . . Worse still, if the men are going to stay long enough, they will often go round the nests and make sure of smashing every single egg. Then they come back in a few days and gather every single egg, because they know it has been laid in the meantime and must be fresh. When we remember how many thousands of men visit the shore, and that the resident population eggs on its own account, at least as high up as the Pilgrims, only a hundred miles from Quebec, we need not be prophets to foresee the inevitable end of all bird life when subject to such a drain."

This is only on the St. Lawrence, where there are supposed to be laws and wardens, but the same thing goes on all along the coast where there are no laws, no wardens and a greater population to collect the eggs. It is as bad with the birds as with the eggs. "Not long ago the men from a vessel in Cross Harbor landed on an islet full of eiders and killed every single brooding mother. Such men have grown up to this, and there is that amount of excuse for them. Besides, they ate the birds, though they destroyed the broods. Yet, as they always say, 'we don't know no law here,' it may be suspected that they do know there really is one. These men do a partly excusable wrong. But what about those who ought to know better? In the summer of 1907 an American millionaire's yacht landed a party who shot as many brooding birds on St. Mary Island as they chose, and then left the bodies to rot and the broods to perish. That was, presumably, for sport. For the same kind of sport, motor boats cut circles around diving birds, drown them, and let the bodies float away. The North Shore people have drowned myriads of moulting scoters in August, but they used the meat. Bestial forms of sport are many and vile. 'C'est un plaisir superbe' was the description given by some voyageurs on exploring work who had spent the afternoon chasing young birds about the rocks and stamping them to death."

We have all of us fresh in our minds the important birds that have become extinct recently or within a generation or two. The passenger pigeon and the Eskimo curlew are doubtfully existent, but about the Labrador duck and the great auk there is no question. Large game animals and fur bearers are growing rapidly fewer in number. It seems not many years ago since it was common to see conductors and motor men wearing bear skin coats that cost them from $15 to $25 and lasted them many years. Such coats nowadays would cost from $125 to $150.

Colonel Wood urges the protection or partial protection of this great region, for the benefit of five great classes of people who are interested in the question from the points of view of food, business, the native population of Indians and Eskimo, sport, and the wild life lovers.

Certain areas should be set aside for efficient protection, which areas will become reservoirs with a constant outflow of their life into the surrounding regions. The country is vast and most sparsely inhabited, but Canada has shown what her Northwest mounted police could do in the old days of the wild West and those more recent days of the wild North. There should also be international agreements for the protection of all migratory animals, especially birds. The wild life refuges of Labrador should so far as possible be linked with the parks of Western Canada and with the refuges of the United States.

Labrador offers tremendous opportunities for the great subject so ably set forth by the author of this interesting paper, and his preaching should not fall on deaf ears. The Canadian Government has always been far more farseeing in matters of this kind than that of the United States. Witness the many parks and sanctuaries set aside under the Honorable Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, who also is responsible for the purchase and transportation to Canada of the Pablo herd of buffalo.

We should be glad to see Colonel Wood's address in the hands of every American sportsman and game protector in the land. He may be addressed at Quebec, Canada.

Concert on Shipboard.

A very entertaining concert was held in the saloon of the Corinthian on Saturday evening at which His Lordship Bishop Jones presided. Those who contributed numbers were Miss Phillipson, Mrs. Bass, a n d Messrs. A. A. Adams, H. H. Goodridge, E. C. Shankland, E. G. Sullivan, J. Sinn, E. Tenby, A. Harris, J. Denver and Master F. Bass. Mr. Denver presided at the piano, and over £2 sterling were collected for the Sailors' Orphans Society of Scotland.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Kentville, December 31.—The townspeople were saddened this morning to hear of the sudden death of Dr. John E. Mulleney, which took place last evening. He was a son of the late Daniel and Margaret Mulleney. He leaves a widow, and one daughter, Miss Laura, and two sons, Dr. Raymond Mulleney of Halifax, and Fred, at home, and four brothers, Charles of Portland, Me., Theophilus of Dakota, and Lambert and Raymond of New York.

Don't Wear Tight Collars

It is well known to veterinary surgeons that tight collars produce "staggers" in horses. Dogs suffer very severely from the same cause.

And now we have high medical authority for the statement that men and women are the greatest sufferers of all. A clergyman, who was ill for years with headaches, confusion of mind, flushed face, and a contented feeling, was advised by his doctor to get a larger size in collars.

He did so, and in a few days his health was completely restored. A doctor has found many similar cases, where the tight collars and comfortable worn by men, and the tight neckbands of women's dresses, have caused severe nervous troubles, such as dizziness, vertigo, vomiting, and a feeling of great congestion of the head.

They obstruct the blood currents, and the consequences are what we might expect.

S.S. Corinthian in Port.

The Allan Liner Corinthian, Capt. O. Rennie arrived here at 11 o'clock last night from Liverpool with 374 tons cargo and some mail matter; during the latter part of her run had it very stormy. She left Liverpool on Saturday week, the 30th ult., and had fine weather though very cold on the first part of the run though it rained occasionally. It was very stormy the past few days but the wind being abeam the ship made good progress; several seas, however, boarded her and one sweeping over the stern yesterday morning smashed the stowage but did no other damage of much importance. The ship's passengers were:—A. A. Adams, S. Backer, J. C. Chadwick, Miss Mabel G. Fisher, Herbert H. Goodridge, Lieut. John R. Jones, R.N.R., Mrs. Jones, Dr. Knight, Rt. Rev. Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, Wm. Robson, E. R. Watson, Mrs. Watson, two children and nurse, W. G. Burne, J. Dewar, wife, daughter and two sons, Miss J. Phillipson, E. C. Shankland, C. Smith, E. J. Tenby and eight in steerage.

Service on Board

On two occasions during the last voyage of the S. S. Corinthian from Liverpool, last week, His Lordship Bishop Jones conducted Divine Service yesterday and Sunday, the 31st December. All the crew and officers not on duty attended, as well as the passengers.
