Beautiful Cynthia;

Victory After Many Defeats.

CHAPTER X.
A FOOL.

"Very good indeed," assented Percy. "I always take a little soda water with mine. It's the fashion now." He pushed the siphon towards Sampson, whom he did not wish to get quite speechlessly drunk; and Sampson condescended to take some of the chastening soda.

"You are paying a visit to town for a little change, Mr. Burridge?" said Percy, in his silkiest and most ingratiating manner.

"Yes," said Sampson, with a knowing nod. "I'm up on a little spree, and I've earned it, too; for the governor keeps me pretty close. He doesn't believe in anything but work; likes to see a young fellow on the treadmill all the time. But all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, eh, mister?"

"I cannot imagine you dull at any time, Mr. Burridge," said Percy; and Sampson winked and nodded again. "You appear to be one of those men who are always capable of enjoying themselves."

"That's me," said Sampson, with immense self-satisfaction. "I'm on the spot all the time; everything comes easy to me—from dancing to cockfighting."

"I very much regret that your pleasure should have been temporarily spoiled to-night," said Percy sympathetically. "It was a most unpleasant incident, and but for your wonderful self-restraint and command of your temper, it might have ended seriously."

Sampson's face grew redder, and he pushed his lips out angrily.

"Yes, I'd have knocked his blessed head off if it hadn't been for ladies being present," he said. "Of course he did it on purpose. It was a distinct shove. And he knew me right enough. I saw it in his eye; but he pretended that he didn't."

Percy shook his head in reprehension of Darrel's conduct.

"Mr. Frayne behaved very badly, I must admit," he said; "and I am not surprised at your resentment. I think you behaved admirably, Mr. Burridge. Let me see, you and Mr. Frayne come

My Digestion Is Now Good

And I Feel Like a Young Man Since Using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Prof. A. T. Smith.

What a horrible condition the digestive system gets into when the liver becomes sluggish and the bowels constipated. The poisonous waste matter is thrown back into the blood stream and finds its way into all parts of the body, causing pains and aches and feelings of fatigue and misery.

It is wonderful how quickly Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills sweep the poisons from the digestive system and enable the organs of digestion to resume their natural functions.

Prof. A. T. Smith, 1 Mt. Charles street, Montreal, and formerly of Boston, Mass., writes: "I suffered for many years from bad digestion, constipation and horrible backaches. I have been treated by many doctors without any results. One day a friend in Boston advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. After using two boxes I noticed great improvement, and after the fourth box I was completely cured. My digestion is good. I never feel any pain in the back. My head is clear and I feel like a young man. I think Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are one of the best medicines on earth."

from the same place, Summerleigh?"

"Of course," assented Sampson thickly. "My governor manages the Court estate—but I thought you said you knew me?" he broke off, with a touch of suspicion.

"Quite so," said Percy smoothly. "And no doubt there is an old grievance between you and Mr. Frayne?"

Sampson jerked his head cavalierly. "Oh, we've never liked each other," he said; "we used to fight, as boys. He thinks a precious sight too much of himself; you might be dirt under his feet by the way he treats you. But I'll be even with him some day," he added threateningly.

"I am quite sure you will," said Percy, with an admiring smile. "I am quite sure you would prove a match for any one. I should not like to have you for an enemy, Mr. Burridge; no, indeed!"

Sampson, visibly swelling under his flattery, wagged his big head solemnly, as he peered under his heavy lids at the pale face, which was now beginning to float hazily in his vision. Percy saw that the man would soon be asleep, and he stealthily filled Sampson's glass with a very little champagne and a great deal of soda.

He must be quick, if he wanted to get anything definite out of the tips; cool.

"I am rather a judge of character, Mr. Burridge, and I should say, from my knowledge of you, that you could bide your time and wait until you could strike home."

"That's me," said Sampson, banging his fist on the table and starting the timid waiter, who was dozing behind the screen at the other end of the room. "I can wait until the psycho-psycho—what d'you call it?—moment, and then come down a crasher and that's what I'm going to do with his royal highness, Mr. Darrel Frayne."

"Yes," said Percy, lowering his voice impressively. "I understand that you have him in the hollow of your hand, Mr. Burridge?"

"I have," said Sampson, opening his huge fist and closing it slowly with an air of malignant satisfaction.

"You know something?" Percy insinuated confidentially.

Sampson nodded and leaned forward. "Look here," he said, in a thick whisper and breathing heavily. "If my father liked, he could smash up the Fraynes, swallow 'em body and bones. They're rotten, rotten to the core; have been for years, and the funny thing is, that that old fool Sir Anson, don't know it. You see my father is one of the leary ones and he can keep his mouth shut. And so can I." He winked with an assumption of acuteness and discretion which would have amused the cynic. Percy if he had not been so intent on his purpose.

"Your father holds all the mortgages?" he said, in a still lower voice.

"He does," replied Sampson significantly. "He could come down upon 'em at any moment. I know, because I'm in the office." He stopped suddenly, smitten by a half-consciousness of his foolish communicativeness to a comparative stranger, yawned, stretched his arms and rose unsteadily. "I'm confounded sleepy somehow," he said. "I shall be all right if I have a five minutes' snooze."

He attempted to fill his glass, missed his aim, and poured some of the wine on the table. With a foolish laugh, he sank back on the seat, his head fell forward, and in a little less than a moment he was fast asleep.

With a gesture of disgust and loathing, Percy rose, and, seating himself in an armchair at some distance from his unpleasant companion, leaned back with closed eyes, his legs crossed, his hands folded on his knee.

He looked as soundly asleep as Sampson, but his brain was hard at work.

Percy Standish was a clever young man and ambitious, and few clever and ambitious young men were so heavily handicapped. He was the son of a man with an evil reputation, a man who, but for his rank, would have been outlawed by society.

He and his father were hideously poor. They literally lived from hand to mouth, and they were always in debt. Lord Standish enjoyed quite a reputation among his boon companions for dodging writs and bailiffs.

Most young men in Percy's position received assistance from their fathers. Percy's was of no use to him; he must rely upon himself. In only one direction could he look for help, in the direction of Lady Westlake.

From early boyhood he had regarded himself as her heir, but Cynthia, the girl from Summerleigh, had come to Belgrave Square, and Percy knew that in all probability Lady Westlake would leave her large fortune to Cynthia, and that he might consider himself lucky if he were mentioned in her will.

If Cynthia were out of the way, if he could only oust her from Lady Westlake's favor, he would in all likelihood come in for the Griffin's money; for there was no one else to whom she could leave it. She was the last woman in the world to bequeath it to charities. He had at one time thought of marrying Cynthia himself. But he was astute enough to feel that his chances of doing so were small; for, with all her innocence and inexperience, Cynthia was quick-witted, and he knew, had instinctively taken his true measure. Besides, she was in love, or was going to be, with Darrel Frayne.

Percy had watched her that night, and had seen her eyes melt as she turned them on Darrel.

He had determined to prevent their marriage, by fair means or foul. The revelation of the parlous condition of the Fraynes' affairs, which this tipsy sol had made, rendering the breaking off of the proposed match quite easy. Percy had only to go to Lady Westlake and make her acquainted with all he had learned that night under the threatened engagement possible. He would go round to Belgrave Square to-morrow and put a spoke in Darrel Frayne's wheel.

He flung his cigarette in the grate, rose and took up his opera hat and overcoat; he had no intention of waking Mr. Sampson Burridge, had no sore need of him, and sincerely trusted that he would never have the misfortune to meet him again.

With scarcely a glance at the heaped-up form on the settee, he had reached the door, when suddenly there flashed across his mind one of those ideas which come so frequently to clever men like Percy Standish. It had sent the blood to his face, his pale eyes gleamed, his thin lips drew together tightly. He went back to his chair and pondered, turning over the idea this way and that, enlarging, developing it.

When his little scheme was rounded off and neatly completed, he rose, and approaching the snoring Sampson with a little shudder of disgust, clutched the huge shoulder and shook him roughly; then, as Sampson woke slowly with heavy writhings of his limbs, Percy slipped into the chair beside the table, as if he had not moved from it.

"Eh, what's the time?" yawned Sampson, stretching himself. "Oh, there you are, mister! I thought I was in bed. What were we talkin' about? Blessed if I didn't fall asleep!"

Percy saw that his snooze had partially sobered Sampson, and knew that he must be treated warily.

"It is getting late, Mr. Burridge," he said, not suavely now, but gravely. "I think we had better go to bed."

"Right you are!" said Sampson, with another yawn. He stretched out his hand toward the champagne bottle, but Percy drew it away from him.

"If I were you I wouldn't drink any more to-night, Mr. Burridge. If you will forgive me for saying so, you have an inconvenient and rather dangerous habit of talking too freely when you have taken too much wine."

"Eh, what?" demanded Sampson uncomfortably, as he noticed the change in the manner and tone of his companion. "What have I been sayin'?"

Percy shrugged his shoulders with an affectation of reluctance.

"Well, if you insist, Mr. Burridge—you have been talking rather openly of the affairs of Sir Anson Frayne."

Sampson's mottled face grew rather less red, he screwed up his eyes, pursed his thick lips, and peered suspiciously at Percy's now serious countenance.

He tried to remember what had happened, how it chanced that he should be hobnobbing in this familiar fashion with a stranger, and what he had said to him; but his slumber, short as it was, had acted as a sponge, and had wiped from his memory, at any rate, for the present, all but the faintest records of their conversation.

"You've forgotten, I see," said Percy, still gravely. "Mr. Frayne, who is a friend of mine, had an altercation with you outside the Savoy."

"I remember, curse him!" growled Sampson.

"Quite so. It might have ended seriously for you, for you were not quite yourself. Mr. Frayne is a friend of mine, and I got you away before the police came up. You asked me to come to your hotel here and insisted upon having some more wine. You had already had quite enough. And Mr. Burridge, wine, especially champagne, affects men in various ways. Some it renders secretive, it loosens the tongues of others. It loosened yours. Outside the Savoy you had said, or, rather, shouted several things relating to the private affairs of the Frayne family."

The Reason Some Marriages Fail

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Love makes the world go round, we are told. Well so does any other intoxicant. The strongest of these more dizzily the world revolves, and the sadder the sobering up process.

"It is the Chinese girl who doesn't know her husband until she is married to him," a returned missionary solemnly informed an American clubwoman. "Neither did I," answered the clubwoman. The increase of divorces is proof that what she said in jest, many are finding sober truth. Schopenhauer argued with profound pessimism that love was only the physical attraction of opposites. He would, were he alive, take grim pleasure in watching the procession of people who, grown distasteful to each other after a few years of married life, pass through our divorce courts, furnishing an argument not available in his day.

I wonder how largely the fault is with the hazy idea that most young folks have of marriage. The average girl gets her notion of it from reading how he bent and kissed her poor bruised hand. An author who might tell how, six months later, he laid abed while she, still suffering from a nervous headache of the night before, built the fire, holds no attraction for the average girl. The girl who is a bride learns two things, therefore, after marriage. One is the manner of man she has married, and the other marriage. And both these glamour. In the man, the little peculiarities and selfishnesses she glossed over when they were only engaged, loom large and irritate when they become daily routine. As for marriage—well, it's different. This is the critical time. She feels cheated. She does not know that hers is the common lot, for while she has been told that marriage is serious, she has not been told that it is likely to start with a period of reaction and readjustment. As a result she is rebellious. It is here that divorce becomes a menace because it suggests a way of escape. As a result she does not make the same effort to snatch happiness from the wreck of her illusions as did her mother and her grandmother, who never considered such escape.

In some states this is being taken into consideration, and courts of "reconciliation" are taking the place of courts of divorce. But why should they be necessary? The answer is that they should not, and wouldn't, if mothers would warn daughters, and for that matter sons, what marriage means in the way of mutual concession.

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has excelled Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure glyceric extract (without alcohol), of bloodroot, golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherry bark.

"My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and impure blood," writes Mrs. JAMES H. MARIN, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a sore on his face that would form a scab which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. He tried every remedy that any one would suggest but found no relief. He then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has stayed cured now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine for impurities of the blood."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

Household Notes.

Old felt hats make felt insoles for slippers and rubber boots.

When cooling newly baked bread, cover it lightly with a clean cloth.

Always screen all foods and do not unnecessarily expose your dishes.

When turnips are young, wash them carefully and boil without peeling.

Olive oil applied to the skin will soften it and build up impoverished tissue.

To take oil out of carpets put on buckwheat flour and brush it off carefully into a dishpan.

Softened brown sugar which has become lumpy by placing it in a pan over a boiling tea kettle.

A strawberry huller is an excellent thing for removing obstinate pin feathers from poultry.

When baking beans put in about a half teaspoonful of ginger. This will aid in digesting them.

Mirrors are best cleaned with a cloth dipped in alcohol then polished with a piece of tissue paper.

A very easy and excellent paste for cleaning silver can be made by mixing whiting and ammonia.

Insects do not like either salt or alum, and a small quantity sprinkled on the carpet will keep them away.

Vinegar or yeast should never be kept in stone crocks or jugs. The acid sets off the glazing, which is poisonous.

When your furniture becomes dull rub it with a flannel dipped in equal parts of turpentine and kerosene.

A very good way to reheat up a joint is to wrap it in thickly greased paper and keep it covered while in the oven.

Grease in the sink is a very prolific cause of disease. Washing soda is the best and simplest cleaning agent.

Parsley can be kept fresh by putting it into a glass jar and screwing the lid on tight, then placing it in a cool place.

Old pieces of garden hose fitted over the nozzles of the kitchen spigot will prevent the china from becoming badly chipped.

Dry bran is an excellent cleaner for dusty velvet flowers and woolen fabrics. Rub the soiled spots and then brush it off thoroughly.

For iron rust lay in kerosene oil and let it remain covered for some time. The oil will loosen the rust so that it will come off.

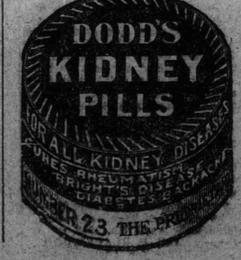

To remove soil from a rubber raincoat dissolve soap in warm water and apply with a soft cloth or sponge. Rinse carefully with clean water.

If you put brass pails into boiling water with a good bit of washing soda and let them boil for perhaps an hour you will find them almost clean.

Fine laces should never be starched; they will generally be stiff enough if ironed while very damp, the ironing being continued until they are dry.

To clean windows in freezing weather wipe them off with a dry cloth, then with a cloth saturated in kerosene. Polish with a clean dry cloth.

One cold chop will make a small dish of creamed or minced lamb. Cook the bone with it and simmer gently. Serve on toast and garnish with parsley.

Soper & Moore. On Giving The Family a Black Eye.

Moving time is almost here, and house cleaning time is here. So it is time to begin looking over a new house or fixing up the old one.

Now, too many people feel that the only thing necessary to having a home is to have possession of a key to the front door. If that were the case you might as well live in a cave and roll a stone in front of the entrance.

A real home must be harmonious. It must be inviting; it must be pleasing not only to you who live there but to those who come there.

This kind of home requires attention. If your rugs are worn and musty you've got to get new ones. If you've curtains look like war-time you've got to buy curtains. Furniture has got to be kept up and added to. You can't live forever with one pattern of wall paper, any more than with one suit of clothes.

It's all right for you women, year after year, to keep on taking the same things out and beating them, but now and then you ought to take your husband out instead.

Men are careless about their homes. They think that homes just sort of grow. A man who comes into a beautiful well kept home at night usually has an idea that it just happened to be that way. It seldom occurs to him that his wife had anything to do with it, and he never thinks of giving her any money to keep it beautiful.

Now a home is the reflection of the people who live in it. If you see a man's home you know what kind of a man he is. And if you see the man you know what kind of a home he has.

The suggestion is for you to look over your home to-day and see what it needs; to see if it really represents you properly; to see if your friends get the right idea about you when they visit that home.

Then the next thing to do is to look over the advertising in this paper to-day and see how many opportunities there are for making a better home.

These are the days when every home necessity and every home luxury are being advertised most because they are most in demand. And therefore you are being offered now, the greatest opportunities of the year.

Fix up your home. There are a lot of other things that can give a family a "black eye" besides a fist.

Notes and Comments.

The Daily News declares this morning that the last days of the session are at hand, and that on Wednesday the Legislature will be dissolved. People generally declare that the last days of the Morris Government are at hand, and that the electors next fall will take care there is no doubt about its dissolution.

The dissolution of the Legislature on Wednesday then, is but a foreshadowing of the dissolution of the Government, after the electorate have put the administration in a minority in the new Legislature.

If, however, the Legislature is closed on Wednesday but not dissolved, the Government will have to hurry up with it, or the laws will take it in its own hands, and the Legislature will die by force of the Statute, which provides that any General Assembly cannot last longer than four years from the time it first met. This General Assembly, of which the Fifth session is now being held, commenced its first session on May 31st, 1909.

It follows therefore, that if the Legislature is not dissolved by the Governor by the 31st of May next, it will expire by force of the Statute.

Whether this Parliament comes to an end on the 31st of next month or before that time, the outstanding fact of the situation is that there will be an unprecedented interval of time during which no House can be called together. No matter what may happen between the dissolution of Parliament and the General Elections, no Assembly can be called together to deal with it. This is a risk which the Morris Government have plunged the country into, because Sir Edward Morris and his men feared to face the electorate last fall. They tried to put off the evil day as long as possible, no matter what jeopardy the country had to face.

This recklessness is in keeping with the recklessness shown by the Morris Government in pledging the Colony to a branch railway contract without counting the cost, and in accord with the recklessness of the Budget policy of 1913, which is a leap into the dark without knowing where they are going to land the country.

Not only are the Morris Ministry reckless as to the danger they plunged the Colony into, but they are most arbitrary and overbearing in their ways. Fancy a body of men, sitting in Government benches in the Legislature, allowing the House of Assembly to be jockeyed out of the control as to the amount of money which should be spent in the General Elections. This is a matter which more than any other matter concerns the House itself, and it is customary and proper for a definite sum to be specifically appropriated. This time, however, no definite sum is specifically voted by the House, but the whole surplus in a lump is voted for a number of purposes, among which are the expenses of the General Election. It follows, therefore, that the Government can spend what it likes within $150,000 in the General Elections.

But the greatest show of arrogance has been in connection with the treatment accorded to members of the Opposition, who have asked questions. Returns and papers and information have been asked for and we are told there are to-day some 25 questions unanswered. We are now two days from the close of the session, and yet this information has not been given. If the information is not forthcoming to-day, some step should be taken to mark this outrage by an arbitrary administration on the rights of Parliament as representative of the people, who have put members there to ask for information.

This Date in History.
APRIL 14.
Days Past—103 To Come—261.
PRESIDENT LINCOLN assassinated 1865, aged 56. Sixteenth President of the U.S.A. and one of the greatest of Americans. In 1863-64 issued the proclamation freeing all slaves.

In Memoriam.
ABRAHAM LINCOLN, ASSASSINATED APRIL 14, 1865.
One of the world's greatest men, one of Nature's noblemen, cultured only in that rare and great school of adversity. Lincoln had no advantage of birth, wealth or environment in his start up fame's ladder. Born in a log cabin, 14 feet square, of parents poor, shiftless and ambitious, he lived till manhood amid the poorest and most depressing surroundings, away from schools and schoolmasters, enjoying only eight meagre months of school opportunity in his entire life. Just imagine this barefoot, backwoods boy at ten, trying to do a man's part in the woods with his axe, living in a forest but entirely open on one side; walking miles to borrow a book; making rails to fence the little farm of his father before leaving on the quest for the road leading to that figurative ladder on which he was destined to climb so high; see him as grocer's clerk walking three miles before breakfast to bring a customer a small amount of tea which the use of a wrong weight had deprived her of the evening before; step by step see him progress on the toilsome way, now storekeeper, now surveyor, soldier, politician, lawyer and President, but ever and always faithful, steady, good citizen and honest man.

As early as 1837 he protested against slavery in the Illinois Legislature, being joined by but one other member, and before he died he had set the slaves free. The shackles were struck from the limbs of four million slaves.

Abraham Lincoln was the very incarnation of the spirit of democracy, of the rule of the common people. His thoughts were their thoughts, their joys were his joys and their sorrows were his sorrows too. Even as the Man-God and all who live the selfless life, his sad, deep-furrowed face was so marked with melancholy that he seemed to bear all the burdens of his people. And this sadness made his smile a wonderful thing of sweetness and strength.

And as the years file slowly past, as we get further and further away from his time and see him in clearer and truer perspective, his splendid moral and intellectual proportions, his patience, his fidelity, his sense of justice, his foresight, his charity, his patriotism—in a word his greatness—become more and more apparent.

Lincoln belonged to no particular religious denomination. He sought for a church with but two conditions of membership. "Love the Lord thy God with all thy strength, and thy neighbor as thyself." To be a Christian is to live a Christian, and that Lincoln did this there is no doubt. The following expression is eminently characteristic of the man and his life: "Die when I may, I want it said of me by those who knew me best, that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower, where I thought a flower would grow."

The Pope's Condition Grave.

Special to Evening Telegram.
ROME, Today.
All indications point to the utmost gravity of the Pope's condition. At midnight fever and a cough were giving cause to great alarm. In two bulletins issued, one in the morning, one in the evening, the Pope's condition set forth as hopeful. After midnight there was an increase in the temperature of the patient. The fact that large quantities of discharges have been brought into the sick apartment is considered as an indication that bronchitis has developed into pneumonia. The Monk Vives y Tito, brother of the Cardinal, who has been for some time the confessor of the Pope entered his room and remained forty-five minutes. It is supposed that during that time he heard the Pontiff's confession. Extraordinary measures were taken late at night by the Vatican authorities. The entire Vatican Gendarmerie was on duty patrolling both within and outside the Apostolic Palace. At the same time the Italian Government organized a special police service around the Vatican.

Attempt to Kill King Alfonso

Special to Evening Telegram.
MADRID, To-day.
For a third time in his reign, King Alfonso narrowly escaped being the victim of an Anarchist attempt against his life. Three shots were fired at the King in the streets of the Capital by a native of Barcelona, Rafael Sanchez Allegra, who was immediately overpowered. King Alfonso owed his life to his courage, quickness and skilled horsemanship. Accompanied by his staff, he was riding along Calle de Alcala on his way back from the ceremony of swearing in recruits when a man sprang from the sidewalk and seized the bridle of the King's horse with one hand, presenting a revolver point blank with the other. King took in the situation at a glance and with alighting rapidly he dug the spurs into his horse which reared violently. His quickness saved his life, the bullet instead of burying itself in the King's breast struck the horse's neck, but so close was the King's left hand that his glove was blackened by the powder discharge. Before the assailant was able to pull the trigger again Secret Service men sprang upon him. Two men fell to the ground locked in each other's arms, struggling furiously. The assassin managed to free the revolver in his hand and fired two more shots in rapid succession, but the officer knocked his arm aside and the bullets flew harmlessly thro' the air. At the sound of the first shot, the King's staff forced his horse on the sidewalk and made a ring around the assassin who fought long and fiercely in the grip of four policemen, before he was overpowered and handcuffed.

Alfonso, as soon as he saw the man secured, raised himself in his stirrups, turned to the crowd, gave a military salute, and shouted in a ringing voice, "Long live Spain." He then dismounted and reassured his staff saying, "It is nothing, gentlemen." Then up rose a mighty roar from a wildly enthusiastic crowd which rolled along in great waves all the way as the King rode to the Palace, cool, collected and smiling. The crowds made a determined attempt to lynch Allegra who was hurriedly taken into a house, kept there until an auto ambulance escorted by mounted police transferred him to police quarters. King Alfonso was the first to tell what he rightly called the incident which caused the delay to Queen Victoria and the Dowager Queen at the Palace. The King smilingly allayed their fears. He had hardly been back ten minutes when an immense clamour arose in the two squares on which the Palace looks which were black with people, all classes being desirous of showing joy at the King's safety and their admiration for his display of bravery. The King went to the balcony and acknowledged the cheers, then sought the Queen and the two stood bowing to a throng for several minutes. The police investigations established that Allegra was recently expelled from France as an Anarchist, after which he went to Barcelona. He came to Madrid a month ago, obtained employment in a carpenter's shop. He worked there until Friday on which day he was paid off. It is said during the course of the first examination that Allegra declared that seeing the King pass he was seized with a sudden, evil impulse and having a revolver in his possession he drew it. Driven on by an irresistible force he sprang forward and fired. A woman said to be with Allegra was placed under arrest.

Earlshall Arrives

Job's barque Earlshall, Capt. Falke, arrived yesterday from Glasgow via Swansea, Queenstown and Liverpool, she came from the latter port in 24 days. The vessel originally left Glasgow in November last for St. John's and the passage occupied 150 days. The Earlshall met with very heavy weather at the outset of her voyage and was obliged to put into Swansea as Capt. McConey, who was then in charge of the vessel, had trouble with his stamen who were incompetent. After shipping good reliable men the Earlshall set sail again. A tempestuous time followed. A succession of hurricanes were encountered and the vessel lost all her sails and deck gear. The vessel drifted about the ocean for several days in a leaky and helpless condition. Eventually she put into Queenstown to the relief of all on board. Here the Earlshall underwent complete repairs and made a third attempt to cross the Atlantic but failed. She brought up at Liverpool where Capt. McConey was replaced by Capt. Falke, who was on the other side in the interest of Brob. Bros., superintending the construction of the auxiliary vessel Nettleton, which since has been sold. As already stated the Earlshall left Liverpool 24 days ago and continued the voyage without mishap.

DOING GOOD WORK.—Sanitary Inspector Baker has been about the past week or more on the higher levels and generally in the West End, looking after the waste water. He is doing excellent work in this connection and as a result of his visit to residences, the water pressure should be much improved.

BODY ARRIVES.—The remains of Mrs. Walter Duggan (nee Healey) arrived by Saturday's night's express and were removed by Undertaker N. J. Murphy to the residence of her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Coady where she was interred yesterday at 2.30 p.m. The deceased was interred with a course of people and interment was at Belvidere Cemetery. The deceased was the wife of Mr. John J. Healey, grocer, and was well and favourably known in the city.

Under the auspices of Cochrane St. Epworth League (in aid of Dr. Sheidan in China). A Lecture will be delivered by Rev. C. A. Whitemarsh, M. A., B.D., subject: "The English Bible: Its History and Origin," in Cochrane St. Sunday Schoolroom at 7.45 this Monday evening. Tickets: 10 cents, to be had from League members or at the door. apr14,tl

THEY KNOW WEICH IS BEST.

A little while ago we drew your attention to a clipping, showing that out of 13 Motor Cars in a Garage at Harrogate, 10 Cars were using

MICHELIN TYRES.

Would you infer from this that the owners of these ten cars are fools, or in other words that 77 per cent. of these motorists are devoid of sense while the other 23 per cent. are full of reason?

Of course you would not—such a verdict would be absurd.

It simply means that 77 per cent. know MICHELINS are the BEST TYRES. The others will soon get to know.

Shannahan, Tucker and Delaney

On the Coal Question, All Believe in Mr. Howley.

In days gone by the French Shore question occupied the attention of the brainy men of this country, and many of them crossed the ocean on delegations to settle the "vexed question" and took part in torchlight processions upon their return to old Terra Nova. Almost every delegate who went on the mission to "settle" the question got knighted, until it looked as if the knightly honour would become so common in the land that some of 'em would have to be put up at auction. But Tucker says that now that the French Shore question is settled, it seems as if we have lost a good old friend, and a feeling of loneliness pervades the "save your country" market. But Delaney says we are bound to have stirring times in this land we live in, and as soon as one great question becomes settled another rears its head and plays a heavy part in the Drama of Trouble. Writers who took a lively interest in the settling of the French Shore question have laid down their pens, corked their ink bottles and made their souls, but as in every other walk of life, others have come forward to take their place, and after searching for an interesting subject on which they expounded their harpiment, exhibit their ability and mesmerize the public, they have resurrected the ghost of our dormant Coal Areas. Now Tucker says that no more interesting subject could be trotted out than the providing of coal. It is the burning question in more ways than one with the common people, and no one will hail with delight the news that coal is being actually taken out of the bowels of the earth, than he who goes for his hogshead with his dollar and eighty-five in his hip pocket. But we are so accustomed to reading articles on coal finds, coal boring and chats on coal, that the ordinary every day man in town who runs up against an epistle dealing with our coal fields gives it as wide a berth as the story of how a certain man in a certain village in a certain part of the globe got cured after partaking of a certain amount of green pills.

Tucker, Delaney, the "Man from Carter's Hill," Mrs. Tucker and even the skeptical rooster known as the "Cute Man" believe in Mr. Howley, and when that expert says that we have coal in this country in workable quantities they feel that he knows exactly what he is talking about, and if he doesn't know, that the sooner we realize it the better. But as we said before we believe in him, and now the question to be solved is how are we going to get the coal right in here to town. We are approaching the warm season and for goodness sake don't fade a weary people with a controversy that is worn threadbare, a discussion as to whether our country has coal fields or not. Tucker has watched Mr. Howley for years and years, he has dreamt of coal boring and tumbled out of bed at night with a lump of coal. The work Howley and Coal goes in rhyme almost as flippantly as Perk and Duff, then why doubt Mr. Howley's word, and why launch out on a newspaper controversy, that threatens to knock in the shade the historic and exceedingly interesting argument on who killed cock robin. Wouldn't it be wiser to spend the time on devising a plan by which we can raise some spondulies and draft an army of bare armed labourers to the spot where Mr. Howley says the Black Diamonds lie? If, on the other hand, we can't do this then be merciful and bore us not, but rather allow us to plank down our dollar and eighty-five for our hogshead in peace. Stories of immense coal beds in the interior that are going to be worked next year have a maddening effect on the man who dives in his Sunday trousers for the price of a quarter of a ton.

MURPHY-LANE.

On Thursday evening a very pretty wedding took place at the R. C. Church, North River, when Mr. James Murphy and Miss Jennie Lane were united in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. Dr. Whelan, P.P., in the presence of a large circle of relatives and friends. The bride was attractively attired in a handsome wedding gown of peacock blue silk with hat to match and carried a bouquet of maple ferns and sweet peas was given away by her father, Mr. Robert Lane, whilst Mr. Harry Lane, brother of the bride, supported the groom. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Murphy who was becomingly attired in white silk and black picture hat. After the wedding ceremony the bridal party drove to their future residence at Briggs where supper was served. The presents received were numerous and costly which proves the esteem in which they are held. We wish them many years of wedded happiness.

Woman's Dead Body

FOUND IN O'DEA'S BOG, YESTERDAY.

Shortly after 12 noon yesterday, a boy passing in that way discovered a woman's bonnet floating in the waters of the gully in Freshwater, known as O'Dea's Bog. He told two men named Burrigge and Barnes, who were taking a walk countrywards and then went with all speed to the Central Fire Station where he reported to the police. The men found the body in the water and secured it, and Supt. Grimes with Sergt. Savage and an officer, repaired to the scene in an express and brought the body out to the morgue. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Rendell viewed the remains and pronounced death to be caused by drowning. The body was that of Mrs. Theresa Murphy, a resident of Tessler Place, aged about 60, who suffered from periodical attacks of mental trouble. The woman left home at 6.30 yesterday with the intention of going to 7 o'clock mass at the Cathedral, and when she did not return by noon, her friends became anxious about her. It is believed she became afflicted with mental trouble shortly after she left her home, and wandered in the country going into the bog and quickly drowning. Two daughters survive her and to them and the other relatives, the Telegram extends its sympathy.

The Postman.

I wonder if the postman knows how he distributes joys and wots with every trip he makes? He plods along from door to door, makes one heart glad, another sore, and ties of friendship breaks. He brings a grist of urgent duns to those distressed and sad-eyed ones whose tailors business mean; he trudges to the poet's home and brings him a rejected poem from haughty magazine. Oh, all there is of grief and wrath he scatters as he takes his path along the village street; and heartaches, troubles and despair, and things that change to white the hair, attend his tolling feet. And all there is of hope and bliss, the plighted word, the written kiss, he carries as he wends; the letter from a roaming boy, that fills a mother's heart with joy, the greeting from old friends, the rapture of the glowing bride, the requiem of those who died, he carries in his pack; the whole long tale of human things to every village door he brings as he pursues his track. I wonder if the postman dreams of all the futile hopes and schemes he carries as he walks? Of all the yearnings and the fears, of all the torture and the tears, the solaces and shocks?

OTTAWA, To-day.
 The Dominion Government has, it is understood, completed arrangements for an improved steamship service between Canada and the West Indies. The arrangement is a temporary one, the contract being for a year. The new service will call for a subsidy of $200,000. Pickford and Black will have other steamships and interests associated with them, and two first class modern passenger vessels will be placed on the route with ports of call same as under the old contract, providing service between Canada and all islands which are parties to the new trade agreement between the Dominion and the British West Indies.

VANCOUVER, To-day.
 The C. P. R. steamer Princess Sophia struck a rock on Sentinel Island this morning. A large hole was torn in the port side of the steamer's bow, but she was able to proceed on her way to Vancouver under her own steam. The steamer's double bottom kept her from sinking, she making little water, and is believed to be in no danger. The accident to the Princess Sophia occurred at a place where her sister liner, the Princess May, was wrecked on August 5th, 1910.

ROME, To-day.
 The Chamber of Deputies resumed session on April 22 when the Minister of Marine presented a project for the construction of three super-dreadnoughts, three battleships, four cruisers and a squadron of torpedo boats. The cost of the addition to navy is estimated at $50,000,000.

LONDON, To-day.
 The weekly attempt of suffragettes to hold a meeting in Hyde Park against the opposition of anti-suffragettes took place. A crowd howled down the speakers, hurled missiles at them, until the police was forced to interfere and escort the suffragettes from the Park. Wild scenes of disorder occurred at Wimbledon Common, where an enormous force of police was engaged protecting from violence the suffragettes, having open air meetings. The speeches were inaudible and the mob riotous beyond expression. The mounted police were obliged to charge many times before they were able to rescue the women. A suffragette meeting at Hampstead Heath was also broken up.

Expatriated Newfoundlander

Denounces Tory Grabbals.
 Writing from Toronto under date of the 7th inst., Mr. Wm. Freeman encloses a subscription for the Telegram, so that he might be kept informed as to matters appertaining to Terra Nova. Mr. Freeman was formerly one of the committee men who so staunchly rallied round the flag of the good old Liberal Party in the elections of 1908-9 and who valiantly defended the good cause in previous contests. Mr. Freeman says he left here after the "Grab Alls" were returned to power, and strongly hopes, like most of his expatriated fellow-countrymen, that the corrupt, practical crew will next fall be compelled to "walk the plank" by an outraged electorate. Mr. Freeman like so many others feels confident of the downfall by the Tories, and wishes particularly to be remembered to Messrs. Kent, Shea and Dryer. Mr. F.'s many friends will be glad to hear he is in good health and doing well in the Queen City.

T.A. Meeting

We congratulate Rev. Joseph Pippy on his appointment by His Grace Archbishop Howley, to the position of Spiritual Director of the T.A. & B.S. The Rev. gentleman's acceptance of this position at yesterday's monthly meeting, met with genuine approval by the large number present. He was introduced to the body by President Ellis who congratulated the Society in having secured the services of this talented young cleric, as its Spiritual Director. This announcement was hailed with genuine applause. The Rev. gentleman was one of the most popular priests in the diocese, and he therefore received an ovation on his entrance to the meeting. In an appropriate speech he thanked all interested in the grand reception received, and promised that he would do all in his power to advance the cause of Total Abstinence by word and example. His remarks were received with applause. Twelve applicants were admitted to the roll call after which the meeting adjourned, leaving some very important questions over for next meeting.

Patrol Ship Scotia in Port.

The s.s. Scotia, a Dundee whaler, which is chartered to do patrol work on the high seas, arrived in port at noon to-day for provisions and supplies, having been ordered in. The vessel is something like the "Hermion", being barque rigged, but carries steam as well with her smoke-stack amidships. She left Dundee on March 6th and proceeded to the vicinity of the Grand Banks where she operated for three weeks. The Scotia is equipped with wireless and her mission is to cruise about the ocean and apprise all ocean liners possible of any icebergs or other floating menaces that are about. During the last fortnight the Scotia was in communication with a dozen steamers or more, telling them where the ice was. After getting supplies the Scotia will resume operations on the Atlantic.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Patrick Walsh, a well known West End, and resident of Waterford Bridge Road, died suddenly last evening. Mr. Walsh had been in the best of health and spirits Saturday and for a while yesterday, but during the afternoon became suddenly ill, was stricken with paralysis of the brain and died during the early hours of the night. The deceased was a man of genial disposition and was teacher and general man under Mr. J. B. McGarrie, at the British American House. He leaves a wife and three children who have our sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Stole Cash Box and $18.00.

Saturday night Mrs. Lake, of Temperance Street, reported to the police that during the evening, about 7 o'clock some thief raised her room window in the lower flat of her house and extracted from a table in the room a cash box containing $18. Yesterday morning some of the members of the woman's family found the box in the hallway, and on examining it discovered $7 in the bills. It is thought the thief put the money back on finding the door open in the morning. The police have their own theory on the matter, and a party who is well known to Mrs. Lake may get into trouble.

Afternoon teas to suit the most fastidious will be served for 20 cents. Quite a lot of dainty and useful articles will be offered for sale, and it is safe to say that purchasers will be delighted with the beautiful things to be displayed. At 5 o'clock the concert will commence, admission 30 cents. A splendid programme has been provided. Ice-cream and Candies will be for sale. After the concert, tea and cake will be served to all those. All who go will certainly spend a most enjoyable evening, and will help along the good work which these ladies have undertaken.

Seven Dead; Fifteen Injured

Special to Evening Telegram.
MONTREAL, To-day.
 Seven are dead and fifteen injured as a result of derailment of an excursion train on Montreal Chamby Branch Central Vermont railway, four and a half miles outside St. Lambert. The train which was one carrying seven hundred passengers who had taken advantage of a free trip, given by the Cottrell Limited Real Estate Agents. Prospective purchasers of lots at Albani sub-division were returning to Montreal. Engineer and fireman were both thrown from cab. The fireman received injuries from which he died soon after, while the engineer escaped with bruises. The accident is supposed to have been caused by spreading rails.

Sealing Notes.

The s.s. Flaxton is still jammed. She was reported this morning off Twillingate in the ice trying to force southward.
 A wireless was received from Capt. Bishop of the s.s. Eagle yesterday as follows: "Weather very bad; lots of old seals, ice poor, very hard to get them."
 The Viking landed 5,000 seals up to noon to-day. The whitecoats are averaging 51 pounds.

Why Not Go?

The ladies of the Cathedral Women's Association are giving an afternoon tea and concert in the Synod Hall to-morrow afternoon and night, which promises to be a most enjoyable affair. The teas are in charge of Messrs. Dames Daye, Crowley and Valentine, and Mrs. R. B. Job has charge of the musical programme. The object—the providing of a Parish Nurse—is well worthy of support from all members of the Cathedral Parish. Encourage the ladies in their laudable efforts to provide the necessary funds for this long felt want.

HEAVIEST SNOW STORM.—Passengers who arrived here by Saturday's Bruce express say the heaviest snow storm for the season raged on the West Coast Thursday night and Friday morning. The storm was a regular blizzard and the wind blew with hurricane force. The train was held up on the siding at Kitty's Brook for 20 hours and over eight feet of snow fell. More snow was in the cuts than for any time during the past winter and they had to be cleared by push plows.

Another Nfldr. Making Good.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir,—It affords us much pleasure to learn that Mr. Reuben Butler is in receipt of a communication from Truro, N.S., informing him that his son H. A. Butler, who has been attending a course at the Agricultural College, there, has succeeded in winning the Silver Cup, which was offered for the best placing or judgment of Dairy Cattle. We heartily congratulate Mr. Butler on his success, which is all the more notable when we consider that he has been only nine months attending the College, and in these classes he had to compete with over two hundred second year students. Some of them hail from such great Agriculture countries as England and Scotland as well as the Land of the Maple Leaf. Such incidents as this truly exemplify what the average Newfoundlander is capable of doing when the opportunities are placed within his reach, and it is a regrettable fact that too few of the young men of this country choose as a life work the scientific side of Agriculture which must be regarded to-day as one of the greatest of professions.

We understand the Silver Cup referred to as being won by Mr. Butler, was presented to the class to be contested for by Mr. Percy Johnson, who is well known as one of our most enthusiastic and successful poultry men, and we feel sure there will be a sense of gratification for Mr. Johnson, to know that the trophy he offered the Truro College, was carried off by the one lone Newfoundlander in that great institution.

Wishing Mr. Butler continued success, I am,
 Very truly yours,
 —R. H. Kelligrews, April 12th, 1913.

Home Beauty Aids.

"Household Hints."

A persistently shiny nose or a dull, lifeless complexion drives many a woman to cosmetics and consequent despair. And all the time a simple remedy lies at hand in the home. If you have no clemite in the house you need only get about an ounce from your chemist and add just sufficient water to dissolve it. A little of this simple lotion is Nature's own beautifier. It is very good for the skin and instantly gives the complexion a soft, velvety, youthful bloom that any woman might envy. It lasts all day or evening, renders powdering entirely unnecessary, and absolutely defies detection.

To bring a natural red colour to the lips, rub them with a soft stick of productum.

Getting Rid of Female Moustaches.

To women who are annoyed by disfiguring, downy hair growths a method of permanently eradicating the same will come as a piece of good news. For this purpose pure powdered phenol may be used, applied directly to the superfluous hair. Almost any chemist should be able to supply an ounce of this drug. The recommended treatment is designed not only to remove the disfiguring growth instantly, leaving no trace, but to actually kill the hair roots without irritating the skin. * * * * * Object-ionable body odours resulting from perspiration and other causes may be instantly banished by simply applying a little powdered (white) percol to the affected surfaces occasionally. * * * Smart women are rapidly adopting the use of the natural allactate of orange blossoms when the complexion is inclined to be oily. It makes a capital greaseless cream and holds the powder perfectly.

The Magnetism of Beautiful Hair.

Beautiful hair adds immensely to the personal magnetism of both women and men. Actresses and smart women are ever on the lookout for any harmless thing that will increase the natural beauty of their hair. The latest method is to use pure stallax as a shampoo on account of the peculiarly glossy, fluffy and wavy effect which it leaves. As stallax has never been used much for this purpose it comes to the chemist only in 1/4 lb. sealed original packages, enough for fifteen or twenty shampoos. A teaspoonful of the fragrant stallax granules, dissolved in a cup of hot water, is more than sufficient for each shampoo. It is very beneficial and stimulating to the hair, apart from its beautifying effect.

For a natural hair-grower nothing equals pure boranium. It is quite harmless and sets the hair roots tingling with new life.

Brushing the Eyelashes.

Much can be done to train and beautify the eye-brows and lashes by gently stroking them with a soft camel-hair eyebrow brush. There is nothing which so enhances the beauty of the face as fine eyebrows and long, curling, dark lashes. Clipping the lashes to make them grow longer and stronger was long ago abandoned as worse than useless, and smart women of to-day will risk no such radical method. Instead, many of them use a perfectly harmless but very rare and delicate substance known to chemists as menaline. It greatly stimulates and also to darken the growth of the hairs in brow and lash. It may be applied at night with the finger tips close to the hair roots. * * * * * Rouge is always obvious, but powdered collandam defies detection, and is quite harmless.

Strychnine For Speed.

Stockholm, March 20.—Recent remarkable results attained in skating races at 5,000 and 1,000 metres, when the Russian Apollitov, broke the world's record of the champion Norwegian, Mathiesen, at Helsingfors, are accounted for by the Russian taking strychnine immediately before the race. The poison is said to affect the energy and will power to a high degree. The blood pressure of the Russian immediately after the race was 148 as against 108 of the Norwegian.

French Countess Says She Cannot Live Decently on Less.

Paris, March 25.—Two hundred and forty thousand dollars annually is the minimum on which a countess can live decently in this country, judging by the suit just brought against her two sons by the Countess de Perron, a member of one of the oldest families of the French aristocracy. The countess resides at the Chateau de la Roche-Zenay, and asserts that her diminished revenues are insufficient to allow her to keep up the traditions of her patrician lineage, especially in view of the increased cost of living. She is, therefore, suing her sons for the allowance of $240,000, asserting that as sole heirs of the late Michel Perron, director general of the Turkish lighthouses, they are well able to afford it.

Newfoundland With Saving Trip.

The S. S. Newfoundland, Capt. W. Kean, returned from the icefields at eight o'clock Saturday evening, having for 13,000 seals, 10,000 young and 3,000 old. The Newfoundland struck what was supposed to be the main body of seals on March 17th in company with the Stephano. Dense fog prevailed and Capt. 'Wes.' had to exercise great care in directing his men. Eight thousand were killed in the patch but only 5,000 secured, the rest being lost when the ice loosened and broke up, after that the Newfoundland got into a small patch with the Florizel and got 2,000 out of it; several other small patches were struck and 700 and 800 were taken out of them. The ship could scarcely move in the ice. Her stem was stove in by contact with heavy ice early in the spring and as a result she was leaking, the pumps having to be kept going constantly. She could not turn in ice at all and required careful nursing. The Newfoundland struck a patch of old hoods on April 3rd, three thousand were killed and stowed down; no seals were taken since then and on Friday Capt. Kean decided to bear up for home. The Newfoundland's seals are very heavy.

Action Taken.

The fishermen who were to the seal-fishery in the Sagona have taken action against Crombie & Co. for the recovery of $3,000 which the stokers claim to be due them, according to agreement, for bringing the ship to Pool's Island before the sealing voyage opened. Mr. W. J. Higgins has been retained by the plaintiffs.

Coban Arrives.

The S. S. Coban, Capt. McPhail, arrived here yesterday at 1 p.m., after a run of 48 hours from Louisburg, coal laden to the Reid Nfld. Co. The ship had fair weather on the run but had fog and rain Saturday night. She is discharging at the dry dock.

Considerably Damaged

The S. S. Earl of Devon which went into the dry dock, Saturday, with the Morwenna, is pretty badly damaged about the hull under the water line; several of the plates are indented and there is a hole under the engine room. The work of repairs will be rushed.

With The Cue.

The final billiard game in the B. I. S. tournament will take place tomorrow night when the skips for both sides will compete. On Saturday evening Mr. F. O'Leary (plain) defeated P. O'Mara (spot) by 49 points. Plains are ahead by 94 and an exciting finish is promised.

Love Letters.

BY H. L. RANN.

Love letters are a delicious display of temporary insanity which rise up to haunt a man a long time after he has regained his composure and lost his hair. They contain a great many expressions of endearment which a woman never forgets, and in some cases it is the first and last time she hears them.

When a man sits down to write a love letter for the first time, he is under such deep stress of emotion that he manages to misspell about every third or fourth word. If he writes on unruled paper, he will leave tracings on the page like the restless footprints of the setting hen. The woman who can receive a batch of these missives without flinching back the engagement ring collect deserves a better fate than having to support a bald widower with a relay of indisposed sons.

The feminine love letter is a hectic proposition which starts off in a cool and contained manner and winds up with Cupid sitting on the safety valve. A woman can write four love letters a day and never repeat the same endearing phrase twice. This is because, as a rule, she has had forty love letters to a man's one and is therefore liberally stocked up with caressing synonyms.

The most dangerous and harassing form of love letter is the kind which bobs up in a breach of promise suit and then appears in the evening paper, which is careful not to omit any of its honey terms. This is a revolting practice, and every man should guard against it by calling in his old love letters and cremating them in the furnace. Many a man has had to curtail his honeymoon and take back a new full dress suit because of a few thoughtless, cayenne pepper remarks on scented note paper, which were never intended to be read out loud to the jury. The only safe way to write a love letter is to begin with "Dear Madam" and end up with "Yours truly."

Women preserve their husbands' love letters with jealous care, after first destroying several bushels of bubbling blandishment from other suitors. Men seldom keep any but the last installment, and then tuck these away where nobody can find them but the children and the hired girl.

Stafford's Liniment!

RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA and all aches and pains can be cured by using STAFFORD'S LINIMENT.

STAFFORD'S LINIMENT was first placed on the market about two years ago, and on account of the large demand for it at the present time it has proven all that any Liniment could possibly do.

It is one of the strongest and most penetrating Liniments that was ever manufactured.

For a cough or cold, Mix equal parts of Stafford's Liniment and sweet oil in a saucer, warm slightly, and apply to chest rubbing it in thoroughly, cover with flannel allowing to remain for about 2 or 3 hours. Relief is obtained at once.

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia and all aches and pains, Bathe the parts affected in warm water for 5 or 10 minutes, dry well and apply Stafford's Liniment.

Stafford's Liniment can be used internally as well as externally. Dose from 10 to 20 drops in either syrup, milk or molasses.

Stafford's Liniment largely advertised and well established is now in good demand and bound to carry with it enquiries for their other 2 specialties, namely Stafford's Prescription "A" and Phenacetone Cough Mixture.

To-day there is not an outpost in Newfoundland where Stafford's Three Specialties are well known to everybody.

Cochrane St. Church Organ.

The past decade has been a momentous period in organ building. In England, as well as on the European Continent, and in America, the last ten years have been marked by great activity and advance, not only in the number of large and fine organs built, but also in tonal design and color. The instruments in the Cathedral at York, Norwich, Ely, Durham, Lichfield, Carlisle, Wells, Chester, Belfast, Manchester, Newcastle and Ripon have been either replaced or re-constructed. And now Wills is building for Liverpool Cathedral, an organ of 215 stops, costing $100,000, which will be the largest in the world. Last year, for St. Michael's, Hamburg, there was built an organ of 191 stops. In 1904, for the St. Louis Exhibition, the Los Angeles Organ Co. erected an instrument of 171 stops, which is now in Wanamaker's great store at Philadelphia. Throughout Canada, a number of noteworthy organs have been erected in the past 10 years. At the Cathedral, Halifax, an instrument costing $15,000, at the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, a re-build of the organ, which originally cost $60,000, at the Metropolitan Church, Victoria, B.C., costing $15,000, at the Methodist Church, St. John, costing $12,000, at the Presbyterian (American) Church, Montreal, costing $16,000, at the Brick Church, Charlottetown, costing $2,000. And there are others. Even in our own city we have felt the impulses, for we have had the re-build of the fine organ in the Roman Catholic Cathedral, the erection of the 4-manual organ in the C. E. Cathedral (now happily to be completed), the 3-manual organ at St. Thomas's Church, and the 3-manual organ at Cochrane St. Church. The latter instrument has now been added to by the generosity of the donor, and a Recital, on Tuesday evening, 15th April, at 8.30 will mark the event. Admission is free to all, so that everyone may attend, who so desires. The additions to the organ comprise 4 new stops, 3 stops increased in scale, 6 adjustable pistons for the management of the stops, two independent feeders to supply the wind, and two hydraulic engines. The new stops are Diapason Phonor, 8 feet, to Great Organ; Trombone, 16 feet, to Pedal Organ; Vox Humana to Swell Organ; and Flageolet to Choir Organ. The Principal Twelfth and Fifteenth, on the Great Organ, have been increased in scale to agree with the new Diapason Phonor. These additions add to the dignity of the instrument, increase its resources, and provide other new and beautiful tones. The complete specification follows:

Lost a Man.

Capt. Edward Barry, of the sloop Ramona, wired here Thursday that Edgar Cox had been drowned on the run from Gloucester to St. Pierre. The unfortunate man formed one of the crew of the Ramona, and was a son of Mr. George Cox, of Middle Arm, Bay of Islands, and had been away for some months. Particulars of the accident have not yet reached us. The Ramona made the run from Gloucester to St. Pierre in three days on a frozen squid trip for the Gorton Pew Fisheries Co. This is the second drowning fatality from Bay of Islands so far this year.—Western Star, April 9.

OBITUARY.

After an illness extending over two years, Annie, widow of the late Richard Selvier entered into rest on Sunday morning, April 13th, aged 73 years. She was a daughter of the late Geo. Williams, of Bay Roberts. Although an invalid for many years, she bore her sufferings with great patience. With the older generations she was a well-known figure and was ready to lend a helping hand in every way. One daughter, Mrs. R. F. Wills, of this city, and four grand children are left to mourn the loss of a loving mother and grandmother. Beside these she leaves four brothers, John, late of Bowring's, George of Gear & Co., Fred of H. Grace, and Robert of Western Canada, and two sisters Mrs. Capt. Honeywell, of this city, and one in America. To the sorrowing relatives we tender our sincere sympathy.

The official announcement yesterday in regard to Montenegro, had an excellent effect in Europe and strengthened hope that a settlement would result in two or three days, so far as Scutari is concerned. Nothing is known as to the effect of Russia's statement in Montenegro. The intention of Serbia to withdraw her troops from Montenegro has not been announced officially, but it is confirmed from many quarters.

LONDON, April 13.
Lady Scott arrived here yesterday, having travelled overland from Brindisi. Her little 3-year-old boy Peter, excitedly awaited her arrival. He knew his father could not come, for he was told a few days ago that he could not come this time, and believes his mother will go away again soon on a long journey to bring his daddy home. His meeting with his mother to-day was the greatest event in his short life. She reached her home at 3 o'clock, and was welcomed by the little boy on the doorstep.

WASHINGTON, April 13.
Immediate free sugar was rejected by the House Democratic caucus by an overwhelming vote, following an appeal by the Democratic leaders to stand by the President of the Ways and Means Committee. This leaves the sugar schedule unchanged from the compromise form in which it was presented to the caucus by Chairman Underwood and his colleagues on the Committee, following conferences between the White House and leaders of both Houses. Besides this action the caucus left open the exact date when sugar would go on the free list, as 1916.

CHARLEROI, April 13.
The bill boards all over the city were covered to-day with great red posters, on which were printed the Socialist call to workmen to strike for manhood suffrage by laying down their tools on Monday, when it is expected from three to four hundred thousand will quit work. The Christian Unions, as the Catholic Workmen's Associations are known, have decided not to join the strike. It is believed that half the workmen will refuse to quit. The bakers of Dampier have notified their customers that they will not deliver bread after Monday. Employers at Liege have posted notices saying that they will give their workmen, who strike for manhood suffrage, half pay for three days, April 14, 15 and 16, if they will return to work on the 17th.

LONDON, April 13.
A commentator in the Daily Telegraph, writing from St. Petersburg, claims to be able to vouch that the danger of a squabble between the Balkan States over the division of the spoils, threatens to become acute. In addition to the strain between Greece and Bulgaria over Saloniki, it seems that Serbia claims Mohastir, which Bulgaria has earmarked as her own. It is reported that Greece and Serbia have reached an understanding for mutual protection against Bulgaria. Many of these rumors may be disregarded, but the sharpness of the friction between the Allies is obvious from the speech of Dr. Deneff, President of the Bulgarian Chamber, at Sofia, to the effect that Bulgaria would hold Greece and Serbia strictly to their existing bargains. He added that among the dangers of the situation was that some of the Allies may allow themselves to be carried away to the point of provoking an odious and fatal conflict.

Hooray! I've Married a Flirt!

(By a very Happy Man.)

One of the ways of being happy though married, is to marry a flirt. I married a girl who flirted her way through life until she was twenty-five, and both she and I are supremely happy.

Until we became engaged she had had "affair" after "affair," three of them serious. The knowledge of this is, strange as it may sound, a great comfort to me, in fact, a great safeguard to our future happiness together.

It is a comfort to me because I realize that the novelty of flirting is done with and gone, where my wife is concerned. She has had her fling, sown her wild oats, such as they were, and the idea of flirting does not now present to her a vista of a new, delicious adventure. She knows all and she knows that it is a poor thing compared with marriage.

Flirting is like Measles.

That is where safety lies—her safety and my safety. Unlike many women who have married very young, or been very prim and sedate in their early youth, my wife has no illusions about flirtation; she does not surround it with a halo of romance, as some unknown, fascinating, daring act, as a less experienced woman easily may. Flirting is like measles; you've got to get over it, and the earlier in life you do so the milder and less dangerous is the attack.

The fact that my wife has been a flirt cuts both ways, too; knowing how harmless and necessary most flirtation in early life is, she can treat any little previous peccadilloes of mine which may come to her knowledge with more or less equanimity. From the store of her own experiences she can contrast and make allowances. Because she knows that I have pressed a hand, sat out at a dance, gone for a moonlight walk, said a lingering good-night here and there, she does not jump to the conclusion that I have been a mixture of Don Juan and Bluebeard.

She Won't Be Taken In.

Consequently she, like myself, is not constantly tortured by foolish jealousy. "Five years ago I was an entirely different person to what I am to-day—I can hardly recognize myself," she says, "and the same thing applies to you, of course."

Of course it does; there was no affront to the other in what either of us did five years before we were engaged, for the simple reason that we were unattached and quite unaware of each other's existence on the earth.

There is another strong reason why I am glad I have married a flirt. And this is that it would be a very clever and very cunning man indeed who could "take her in." She knows men and their ways and she can read the philanderer like an open book. The meshes of his net may be ever so fine and alluring, but she can spot them. She knows the net of old.

Broke Off Three Engagements.

That she married me is the greatest compliment I have ever been paid, and shall ever be paid. In her time she could have chosen a husband a score of times. She was engaged thrice and broke off each engagement, but it fell to me to lead her to the altar. If that fact is not a compliment and a pretty certain indication of the right sort of love, I should like to know what it is.

A great many people, many of them old enough to know very much better, are given to sneering at and even grossly stammering a girl who is a flirt.

There are, of course, limits to which flirtation may go, but so long as a girl does not overstep the line between innocently having a good time and throwing honour and reputation to the winds, only jealous rivals and narrow-minded bigots have any excuse for not minding their own business.

Why a woman should never be expected to have any wild oats to sow is one of those things I have never been able to understand. She is a human being, just as a man is; and surely it is better for her to sow her oats before she gets married than to risk doing so afterwards.

I consider MINARD'S LINIMENT the BEST Liniment in use.

I got my foot badly jammed lately. I bathed it well with MINARD'S LINIMENT, and it was as well as ever next day.

Yours very truly,
T. G. McMULLEN.

Unexpected Rewards.

KIND ACTS THAT HAVE BEEN REMEMBERED IN WILLS.

Many cases are on record Where Men and Women have received Legacies for Thoughtful Actions of which they have long since forgotten—Young Man who Rescued a Lady from Drowning.

A kind act done spontaneously has frequently rebounded to the credit of the doer. There are many instances on record of a kind thoughtful action being repaid perhaps years afterwards by a handsome legacy. Here are some instances.

Some time ago a very wealthy young lady was bathing from a machine at Brighton, England, when a huge wave caught her and carried her a considerable distance away from the shore rendering it almost impossible for her to regain her bathing machine.

There was a big crowd on the pier all eyes bent in the direction of the bather. But among the crowd there was a young fellow who at once took in the situation. He divested himself of coat and waistcoat and dived from the head of the pier and swam to the rescue of the drowning girl. In the meantime a boat was put off from the shore manned by a couple of boatmen. The would-be rescuer had reached the spot where the girl had disappeared. He also disappeared but was immediately seen to rise to the surface holding the girl. To the onlookers the rescuer appeared exhausted and the question was whether the boat would reach them in time. He made an attempt to meet the boat but the outgoing tide drove him further away with his burden. The boat however reached him in time and rescuer and rescued were brought to the beach where a large crowd had assembled. The lady was unconscious and while attention was directed to her, her preserver disappeared.

For some time advertisements were inserted in the English newspapers for the discovery of a young man stating that it would be to his advantage to reply; but nothing came and the rescuer was not located. Two years elapsed when another advertisement appeared stating that a big legacy had been left to the unknown man. The newspapers commented on the matter and by this means the young man was located.

He acknowledged that he was aware that he was advertised for but did not wish to be rewarded for his heroism. It appeared that the young lady failing to find her rescuer instructed her lawyers in her will to find the man and she devised to him twenty thousand pounds. He was a mechanic and in poor circumstances.

A cup of tea placed a needy artist far beyond the dreams of avarice. Having spent almost his last penny in instruction in the Students' Quarter in Paris our friend was crossing from Dieppe to Dover. The passage was rough. The carriage of the Dover-London express which he occupied was occupied by two chatty ladies.

The sleeves of nearly all suits are long and set in with an armhole seam.

Overhearing a remark from one who he immediately left his seat and hastened to the refreshment buffet and returned to the carriage with the cup of tea. The astonishment and the thanks of the ladies led to a very pleasant conversation, and the artist told his new-made friends his hopes and his aspirations. They parted with protestations of friendship. Shortly after the artist received a communication from a firm of solicitors to the effect that a large sum of money had been placed in their hands, which would be disbursed to him quarterly to enable him to follow his profession and make himself famous. He did both and is never tired of telling his story of "a cup of tea."

One thousand dollars' worth of furniture and five hundred dollars in the bank isn't bad pay for helping an old gentleman, who had slipped on some steps. Mr. B— on leaving his club one evening slipped on walking down the steps. A young man and his fiancée happened to be passing at the time. He at once rushed to the assistance of the old gentleman picked him up and with him on the steps till he had recovered and then volunteered to see him home. The old gentleman thanked the young man for his kindness and asked him to call a cab. Before entering the cab Mr. B— asked the man to call on him the next day to see how he was. The young man replied that he certainly would and did so. At that interview Mr. B— questioned his visitor and elicited that he and the young woman were engaged, and their marriage could not be celebrated for some time for want of funds. Mr. B— supplied the funds as stated above in acknowledgement of the ready assistance rendered him.

An expensive library and two thousand pounds was the value put upon a little kindness displayed by one man to another in a store. They were both purchasing at the store when a sudden faintness attacked the elder. The younger at once went to his assistance, and remained with him till he recovered, afterwards accompanying him to his home. On arriving there he asked his companion for his name and told him he would be glad if he would pay him a visit. This was done and the two men became fast friends. On the elder brother's death the other became possessed of his fine library of books and ten thousand dollars.

Five hundred dollars for a smile. This was the legacy left by a lady named Hodges to another lady simply because she was in the habit of kindly smiling at Miss Hodges as the two left church on Sunday mornings.

A servant girl gave some breakfast to a hungry tramp. Six years afterwards she was a bit astonished to learn that this self-same tramp had left her a farm worth around $20,000 which he had managed to acquire by thrift and industry.

The New Michelin Tyre!

This Tyre is as far in advance of last years as the leather thread was in advance of the old all rubber cover.

LAST YEAR

We offered you a cover with steel protection on 30 per cent. of the road surface or four rows of studs.

Did you ever have a flint cut the side of your cover outside these studs?

THIS YEAR

We offer you a cover with full steel protection on 100 per cent. of the road surface or 8 to 12 rows of steel studs.

No other manufacturer can offer this.

We want to sell the best tyre made for Newfoundland roads and we are now sure we have it. We know that 70 per cent. of the plain rubber tyres used in Newfoundland are cut up long before they are worn out. We therefore contend that the first thing we want to protect against is cutting, then CUTTING, and after that CUTTING.

BIBENDUM.

WE OFFER YOU

The only tyre manufactured specially for Newfoundland roads.

A protected tyre at the same price as our competitors want to sell you a Plain Rubber Cover.

We guarantee you satisfaction.

We keep a full stock.

PLAIN RUBBER COVERS.

We would much rather sell you a plain rubber instead of a protected cover, because we would sell you twice as many at least and on each would make more.

If you do insist on buying a plain, we have in Michelin Square Treads absolutely the best.

We don't gouge out pieces to save rubber and call it a Non-Skid. We give you all the tread and a cover 1-13 of an inch thicker on the tread than any other cover manufactured.

SPRING

Satisfied, But Not Content!

We don't worry about getting ahead of any competitor. Our chief aim is to get ahead of ourselves—to do better this year—in Style, Fit and Finish than we did last year; to tailor better clothes than we have ever done before.

We know the fate of the self-satisfied man, and with this knowledge we are not content to run a dead heat with our previous best.

OUR COMPLETE STOCK OF NEW SPRING GOODS will be ready for inspection Saturday, 15th inst.
