Firm a Surprise to Many.

At the invitation of the Superintendent, Mr. W. Bate, between 35 and 40 business men and other citizens of Watford em-braced the opportunity on Monday after-noon to visit the Andrews Wire Works plant. The visitors were conducted through the works by Mr. Bate and Manager W. L. Millar, who in a courteous and painstaking manner explained the mode of making some of the four hun-dred odd wire articles manufactured by the Company. For many of the visitors it was the first time they had seen this busy establishment, and the neat, clean; business-like appearance of the building and the variety of the machines in operation was a revelation to them, for operation was a revelation to them, for the building is fitted up with every con-venience tending to the comfort of the employees and expedition in manufacture. The information given as to the capacity of the plant and the business turnover was also a surprise to some. During the past year the firm paid out in wages alone $16,500.00, which amount will be increased by five or six thousand will be increased by five or six thousand dollars during 1918. Besides this over six thousand dollars were paid out in draying, payments to the Corporation, fuel, supplies, etc., making a total of over $22,000.00 that was circulated in Watford by the firm during the year. During 1917 the firm spent $5,500.00 for additions and improvements to the plant and for new machinery and equipment. At present 33 hands are employed at Watford and 17 at Strathroy. As an instance of how rapidly some of the articles are made we note that the

Killing Sheep Industry

Tilbury East and many of the townships of Western Ontario have recently been heavy losers from the depredations of dogs. Tilbury has had 75 sheep killed, cost ing the municipality $839-more than all the dogs in the township are worth. The dog tax for the township is $429, leaving $410 to come from the general fund for loss of sheep. Gosfield South was also a heavy loser, something like $108 being paid to one man for loss of his flock, and there are other claims to come in. As we have stated before in these columns, farmers each year for many years have been decreasing their flocks, principally because of the rayages of dogs. The present high price and the scarcity of wool should be strong incentives to go into the business of sheep raising extensively, but as long as anybody can keep a dog by paying $1 a year the sheep industry will be dormant. If the tax were raised to $5 on dogs, and the farmer paid full value for any sheep destroyed or damaged, as at present, there should be some encouragement for sheep growers. Sheep are the easiest kept and are the most valuable animals from several standpoints that a farmer can have, They will live and thrive where other animals will starve, and as a means of increasing land fertility they are unrivalled .- Kingsville Reporter.

 Loyalty Shown in Folksongs TOW that the question of Italy's unredeemed provinces has become acute, it is interesting to find out how the population of these provinces feels about the subject, whether the descendants ' of bona fide Italians who have been for several generations under Austrian rule really wish to be incorporated with the kingdom of Italy, or whether they would rather remain as they are.

. This is not an easy question to solve, as there is little indication of the true state of the people's feelings in the various regions. They have little means of self-expression. But one means of expression they surely have an outlet for their pent-up feelings, and that is in their folk-songs. These are the reflections of moments of strong collective or in-dividual emotion, and in them the very heart of the nation is laid bare. They have a stronger claim to credi-bility than the folk tale which they probable presented probably preceded, since poetry is less liable to change, and addition than prose, as its form is set by the first man who assembles the ideas into verse. No régions have been more productive of folksongs of a political significance than the so-called "un-redeemed" Provinces of Italy. Some of these are little more than dog-gerel, but in the soft Italian dialects they sound less crude than our abrupt Anglo-Saxon. My transla-tions are literal. Listen to the "Hymn to Italy," written by "Quri-co Filopanti," of Bagnarola di Budrio, some time after 1868. As a concession to Austria the second stanza was banned throughout Italy, but needless to say this had no effect.

Float upon the capitol And on the snowy Alps; O, divine tri-color, The banner of our love.

Trieste, the pearl of oceans, For thee thy sons are fighting; The valor of their fathers Is born again for thee.

Shades of all our martyrs, Your holy blood is waiting, Waiting for the vengeance We swear that you shall have.

Italy, our mother, Brighter days are coming; All thy sons are fighting To win thee liberty.

The people of the Dalmatian centres, originally Venetian colonies, of Trieste and the lower Tyrol, have never ceased regarding themselves as Italians, to look on Italy as their motherland. The words were sung as a marching song: From the hills of Trentino To the lakes of Salvore, Once more has the anguish Of the people's voice sounded.

It has spread from the mountains, It has traversed the rivers, From the coast of Dalmatia And from Trent has it echoed.

On off evenings I am arrayed (like the W. K. Horse Show (in what they call our "walking-out" uniform— everything, from Sam Browne belt to leather-faced, very tight riding-breeches of Bedford cord, supposed-ly, and a cocky little cap over one ear. I still insist that my style of beauty fits the fatigue uniform best, but there are others who are flatter-ing enough to induce me to go out on the streets in the thing. Here's somewhat the way I look, and, what's more, that's the way I feel I look.

We spend most of our time doing parade-which is a technical term meaning we are kept tab on every

What the officer says after that what the kind of thing you can set down cold in a letter, even if you dared. But, anyway, I know now that Gilbert and Sullivan got that line in "Pinafore" out of the official navy jest book.

It was our sergeant-major, a great old Scotsman, who hauled up a man for not being properly dressed on parade. " says he (I never knew what the blanks in Captain Bruce Bairnsfather's cap-tions meant till I met the British sergeant and heard him speak)," _________," says he, "ye wadna be properly drrrrrresed, mon, if ye on'y had to wear a fig leaf." Tänks vs. Pill-Boxes.

The distinguished head of a house at Oxford has sent me the following couplet, writes a correspondent of The London Times, which I think you may like to publish: Tanks v. Pill-boxes.

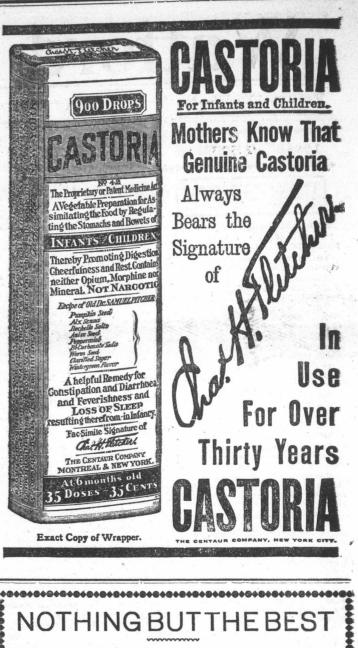

Victrix per campos Cisterna vagatur, et ecce! Viventes pilulas capsula capta vomit.

And this he has done into English as follows:

The Tank triumphant wanders o'er the fields And living pills the captured capsule

The French government has opened a school where women are given professional training with a view of placing them in positions vacated by the men who have been called away to war.

Miss Elizabeth L. Du Val Baltimors, who recently sailed on her first trip as junior operator, has the distinction of being the first woman wireless operator to assume duty on the seas.

Let the shackles be broken; Revenge, cry the people, Every heart is impatient Now the hour is approaching.

The song continues with quickened rhythm to mark the change in feeling:

They have flown with their great wings extended Over Trento and even Trieste, To announce the glad news to our brothers Who have waited in anguish so long.

From the Alps to the indigo waters, Where Lissa as sentinel stands; Let us surfeit our souls with that vengeance; All Italy waits to exult.

Strong words, for in spite of the song of the Italian poet Mameli, "Forget the anger of one who is dead," the "unredeemed" cherish their hate; it has crystallized into a song, and although it sometimes seems to have disappeared, fresh pro-vocation will revive the sentiment and the song.

In 1882 Guglielmo Oberdan, a stu-dent at Trieste, headed a revolt against Austrian tyranny. The boy against Austrian tyranny. The boy was hanged. All Trieste sang the "Hymn of Oberdan." Here are two Armed with bombs as was Orsino, The dagger clutched in the hand. Death to the Austrian sovereign, And our desire is liberty. Death to Franz. Hail Oberdan!

We would crush 'neath our feet and We would crush for the second second

At Goritz the struggle was chiefly against the invasion of the Slavs, who poured into the district. How the Italians hated and despised this mired bread with their "Zeet" mixed breed, with their "Zfiai." or uncouth, rustic dialect! In 1894 "Marameo" was first sung in derision by the carnival crowds in Goritz:

Plava is the noble source From which our Goritz sprung. Goritz (please believe me) Is Slavie at the heart. Slavi is Trieste.

The Pilgrim's Way

at the Front HE road is straitly lined with elms for seven miles, writes Captain Roger Pocock, the well known Canadian author and brother of the celebrated actress, Lena Ashwell. Westward it ends at a town. That is an old place, with three church towers, and a market square, which Chaucer mentioned, and Froissart filled with a fine clatter of gossip 600 years ago. Now, half the houses are burst with shell fire, and each day adds to the ruins. At the other end of the road is a city, once lovely and illustrious in her age, which three great battles have ruined and over-thrown. Here is a doom like that of Pompeli or St. Pierre, and though the ancient city had sinned like Sodom she could not have been left more desolate.

On either side of the road is a level country farmed with a skill and thrift not to be matched in Euand third hot to be matched in Ed rope yet covered on every patch of pasture and on many arable fields with the encampments of British armies. A few peasents live on the farms who are at intervals chased out by their officials, but come back at dusk having no place to go to or at dusk, having no place to go to, or any wish to live away from home. They sell coffee to the soldiers, silly cards embroidered in silk, veget-ables, eggs, and milk. They do a deal of washing for the troops. They deal of washing for the troops, they tend the farms, and when a barn is shelled, rebuild the walls. The chil-dren play their own games gravely among alien soldiers. This road, which leads through the encampment of great armies, is filled with the traffic of a pilgrimage such world has not seen. We as the world has not seen. We have read of the Canterbury Pil-grims, of the pilgrimage to Mecca, aye, of the six Crusades, but history aye, of the six Crusades, but history is nothing-more to us than a passing of shadows through a haze of rain, while this pageant of the road is live and urgent. The skirl of the Irish bagpipes, or the Scots, or fife and drum bands of the English come up above the horizon and pass behind it eastward. There is deafening clatter of caterollar tractors drawing heavy of caterpillar tractors drawing heavy guns, the rattle of grimly-humorous tanks, the endless procession of lorries with road metal, rations, or shells, the rapid buzz of staff cars. There is the returning procession of buses bringing weary, mud-incrusted battalions back to rest-camp, of motor ambulances by hundreds. Then there are labor companies going to work or returning, rest parties on the way to the baths, peasant families with carts drawn by dogs. Monstrous trench dredges, road engines, crippied aeroplanes dragged to camp for repair; all night, all day, by the month, the traffic from the armies of the Dominions, India, and Blighty, and the army of labor. Sometimes the roadside India, and Bighty, and the army of labor. Sometimes the roadside camps turn out to line the way while a procession goes by, scantily guard-ed, of German prisoners. This road is just as wide, long, and direct as Broadway in New York, but night and day more crowded. Its fourfold stream of from door not

NOTE AND COMMENT

Goderich Signal : All this litera ture on the necessity of increased hog production may be boiled down to the simple homely statement that "the pig-pen is mighier than the sword."

Thamesville Herald :-- One wonders when the powers that be in matters educational in this province are going to wake up to the fact that the curriculum of the Collegiates, High and Continuation schools is overcrowded. A real grounding in some of the essentials of education, would be of far more use to our boys and girls than the superficial knowledge of many things. But after all, does it really matter if a boy or girl can spell correctly, so long as they know the history of the frog, and can disect a cat ?

The New York Herald :--- If it is true, as reported from London, that men in the British textile trade have captured the secret recipes of German dyemakers, the props have been knocked from under an important branch of German industry which held the rest of the world largely at it mercy. With nobody buying Krupp munitions or German dyes With nobody buying it would take generations to restore the German people to that excellent "place in the sun" they had before they permitted themselves to be plunged into a war for world con-quest—even if they had not brought down upon themselves and their children and their children's children a heritage of hate.

The King's Speech

In the immediate re-assembling of the British Parliament there is the best evidence of the importance at-tached by the government and people of the country to impending events. The recent statement of the kaiser and of Count Czernin and Count von Hertling proved that they are still full of the militaristic and grasping ambitions which led them to start the war four years ago. Until this gall of iniquity is purged out of them there can be no peace, and it will be the business of the nation who oppose their autocratic aims to press the war to a democratic suc-This is the view taken by COSS. President Wilson in his speech of Monday, and this is the view taken of the situation in the King's speech Tuesday.

'The German Government has, however, ignored our just demands that it should make restitution for the wrongs it has committed, and firnished guarantee against their unprovoked repetition. Until a recognition is offered of the only principles on which an honorable peace can be concluded is it our duty to prosecute the war with all the vigor we possess. It might almost be supposed that President Wilson had an advance perusal of the speech, so closely do his own utterances harmonize with the speech from the throne. At any rate the entente allies and the United States, with the sole exception of demoralized and misguided Russia, ward. are at one in the great cause in which er, Pt. Frank. Second Vice-President-George Smith. they are leagued together.

The Union Special Services

The Union Special Services At last and with feelings of sincers repet on the part of not a few the union special services have come to a close. Last Sunday was the last day of the "great feast," and the congregations were large and especially so in the evening, when Rev. W. J. Ashton, B.D., preached from the text, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation," etc. The sermon was strong and the appeal to the hearts and intellects of men was most effective. In the morning Rev. Geo. W.'Conners of the Baptist church priached to a splendid congregation and his address was most instructive, especi-ally for the young Christians and for all who desire to grow in grace. — As we look back over the past four weths of meetings every night excepting Saturday and three times on Sunday and remember the intense cold and some-times the heavy roads we must express our surprise and at the same time our appreciation of the splendid attendance interst thus evidenced as convincing proof that the vork was for God and also of God. The singing, as previously reported, led by Mr. E. A. Baskerville, with Mrs. Tifin at the piano, prove to be very attractive and inspiring. The pana and Donnelley, were each strong and convincing in his own way. We could not ask for better service from those who assisted us. We, with them, reaging in the services were not in the ublicly professed conversion and vowed, faith in Jesus Christ as their souring in his own service from those who assisted us. We, with them, reaging that their services were not in the publicly professed conversion and vowed, faith in Jesus Christ as their souring of more than 140 persons. Some of these were fathers and mothers, a few the greatest number by far was composed of young men and young women of high gratifying to all concerned. It is earnet. of young men and young women of high school age and older. This is most gratifying to all concerned. It is earnest-ly hoped that all will continue steadfast and grow in grace and knowledge of Jesus Christ, their new-found Lord and Master.

Master. There was a bee of over 20 men on Monday forenoon for the dismantling of the Armory and by 12 o'clock everything was in place and the Armory in the same condition as when the committee took it in hand. The spirit of unanimity among all the co-operating churches and all the ministers was beautiful to behold and it ministers was beautiful to behold and it was maintained to the last, when the business committee finished their work on Tuesday evening in the Library and closed with the singing of "Blest be the tie that binds" and the benediction. These services will be remembered as "The Big Armory Revival of January, 1918." Many will look back to these meetings with much gratitude and lasting pleasure. There was much evidence of the providence of God in the arrange-ment and prosecution of these services. The variety of speakers appealed to the various types of mind and heart in the community, and yet each had a message for all and it was effectually delivered and in most cases sympathetically received.

The committee in charge is grateful to the Guide-Advocate for the amount of space so freely given and for the position of prominence afforded these meetings. THE COMMITTEE.

Notice to the Consumers of Electrical Energy in the Municipality of Watford

The following is a copy of an order from the Power Controller, bearing date of January 8th, 1918, and also ot the Hydro-Blectric Power Commission of Ontario, bearing date of February 4th, 1918, at Toronto:

Ine Late Wirk, James L. Kelly On Sunday, February 3rd, there passed away quite suddenly Frances Martha Kingston, wife of James L. Kelly, of Brooke. Mrs. Kelly had been suffering for about three weeks with heart trouble, but was apparently slowly recovering, when on Sunday afternoon after partak-ing of her dinner, complained of a slight weakness and soon passed away. The late Mrs. Kelly was born in Toronto 59 years ago, but some years later came with her parents to Brooke, where she was an efficient school teacher, for some years prior to her marriage to Mr. Kelly. The deceased leaves to mourn her death, her husband, three sons, Alex., James and William, and four daughters, Mrs. W. Watson, Mrs. E. H. Lucas, Misses Nora and Nina, also one brother, Mr. Paul Kingston, and several sisters. "Whereas, by the said order of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Outario, all municipalities, commissions, Outario, all municipalities, commission di Outario, all municipalities, commissions, companies or persons being supplied with electrical power and energy by the com-mission were, inter alia, on and after the 15th day of January, 1916, prohibited from using such energy for advertising purposes or ornamental lighting. "And whereas, a doubt has arisen as to whether such order applies to window lighting, it is therefore ordered and directed that the words, "advertising purposes or ornamental lighting" in-cludes the lighting of windows and other dtsplay lighting, and the said order shall be read accordingly and shall take-effect from and after the 5th day of February and remain in force until further notice. "Said order to be effective only during the hours such business, or place, is not sisters. Mrs. Kelly will be deeply missed in the home and the community, as she was exceedingly kind and of a genial dis-position, never thinking of self but of others, and always ready to help those in need. The sympathy of the whole neigh-borhood goes out to the sorrowing family in ther loss. The funeral took place on Tuesday.

bindod goes out to the sorrowing ramity in their loss. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon and in spite of the intense cold weather was very largely attended. The service was conducted by her rector, the Rev. S. P. Irwin, B.A., who spoke feel-ingly from I. Cor. 15 : 49,—'As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.'' Interment was made in the family plot at St. James' church cemetery. Many beautiful floral designs were placed on the coffin. The pall bearers were the three sons, Alex., James and William, and Clarence Coke, Paul Kingston, Jr., Fred Kingston, Wallace Watson, Ed. Lucas. "Said order to be effective only during the hours such business, or place, is not open for business, or after business hours. "Any Company generating or distribut-ing electrical energy neglecting or re-fusing to comply with or contravening any order, determination or regulation made by the said Controller hereunder shall be hable to a penalty not exceeding Five Thousand Dollars; and any manag-er or superintendent in charge of such Company, or distribution, and any other person violating or contravening any such order, determination or regulation shall be liable to a like penalty, or im-prisonment for any term not exceeding five years, or to both fine and imprison-ment, and such penalty may be recover-Lucas.

Future Citizens Become Valuable Asset of Country.

War work for babies which result-ed in lowering the infant death rate in Great Britain, France, Belgium, and Germany is described by Dr. Grace L. Meigs in a paper on infant wolfone work in war time which the welfare work in war time which the bureau has just made available for general distribution. The special features of the work have varied in the different countries. In England there has been a striking increase in the number of health visitors employed to help and to instruct mothers in the care of their babies and young children. An act providing for Government aid to local agencies had, as it happened, been passed in July, 1914. "The local Government board (the central supervising and administra-tive body) has taken the stand that in war time, in spite of the general need for economy, no economy should be exercised in this direction. There is evidence that in a good many communities, on account of the lack of money and private support, the authorities or voluntary agencies have been slow to increase their work difficulties the local government board has largely overcome. It has board has largely overcome. It has gone on with the greatest determina-tion towards its acknowledged goal —to have systematic supervision through the work of health visitors for all babies born who need care." The available information for Ger-many concerns only the first eigh-teen months of the war. Dr. Meigs refers to the emphasis placed on en-abling mothers to care for their own children. A special committee of the children. A special committee of the Red Cross, for example, was organ-ized in Berlin for the care of mothers and infants The committee had a fund for needy mothers which it used for those mothers who brought their babies regularly to an infant-welfare station and who took care of them in their own homes. The outstanding feature of the work in Paris seems to be the in-creased provision for maternity care; and in Belgium, the establishment of canteens for the feeding of mothers and of young children. Dr. Meigs speaks of the important part played by the military separa-tion allowances which are granted by foreign governments to the wives of enlisted men, either, as in Great Brit-ain and Canada, to the wives of all soldiers, or, as in France and Ger-many, to the wives who are in need because the family's wage-earner has been called to the colors.

Furthermore, in each of these countries except Belgium a matern-ity benefit from Government funds, provided before the war to certain mothers, has now been extended to include either the wives of all en-listed men or all women who are receiving the military separation allowance. The chief preventive measure for the insure their protecting babies is to insure their intelligent care and nursing by healthy mothers in their own homes. Nothing should be considered more important in war time than the strengthening and extending of preventive work already established for infant and maternal welfare.

When the Lusitania was torpedoed When the Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland, with the loss of 1,100 lives, she carried with her, among other rich freight, a consignment of diamonds in transit from New York to London, upon which the Union Insurance Company of Bangor, Me., carried a risk of $12,000 carried a risk of $13,000. The company promptly paid the claim, and entered the $13,000 in its loss account. But, it now appears, long after the great disaster, the in-surance company received a London draft for the full amount of its risk, with the information that the dia-monds had been recovered. An Irish fisherman, upon hauling his travits, found that he had hooked the most valuable fish in his career— a small package, which bore plainly enough the address of, a firm of Lon-don jewelers, and which upon exam-ination was found to contain dia-monds—the gems upon which the monds—the gems upon which the Bangor Insurance Company, among others, carried risks. The fisherman got his due amount of salvage, and the diamond merchants were glad to return the insurance money. The puzzle is: Having presumably been locked up in the purser's safe, how did the diamond packet get loose so that it came up on the fisherman's trawl?

GUIDE-ADVOCATE, WATFCRD, FEBRUARY 15, '1918

"Will you give me a week, ar. enry?" The young man was excited. Henry?" "I will," replied Mr. Henry, looking at him in bewilderment. "And take the deal out of the hands of the agents?" To this Mr. Henry was willing. "All right," answered the young man, "it's your lot."

"I don't know," "I do," declared Frank. "I'll start the ball rolling right away. Kindiy remember me to Florence, will you, Mr. Henry? Tell her I'll call just as soon as I bring about this deal, I'll have something important to tell her. Spring the lock as you go out, will you?" Frank bolted into his coat, grabbed his pat and, leaving Mr. Henry glued to one of the installment-plan chairs, darted down the street.

"Hello, Sam," called the young man, after he had traveled several blocks. "I was looking for you." A large ne-gro, carrying a basket of ashes toward an old horse and wagon, wiped his hand on an overall leg and greeted the young man.

"I'se powerful glad to see you." "How's Mrs. Smith and the babies?" inquired Frank.

"Fine, sir, fine. You jes ought to see my little boy, Mr. Frank. "And how's the band?" asked the young man.

"Say, Mr. Frank !" shouted the negro, kicking over the basket of ashes in his excitement, "you jes ought to hear that band now. I've been practicin' em regular ebery night, and they'se gettin' on fine. You ought to hear 'em play the 'Swance Riber.' Henry, it would make tears melt in your mouth. Ob course, I hab my troubles, y' understan', Mr. Frank," the negro continued. "Ebery bandmaster has his troubles, Mr. Frank. Now take that nigger trombone player. He's all right on volume, Mr. Frank. He's fine on volume. You could hear him four miles, I reckon. But the feller won't play in tune. When we're playing flats he's playing sharps, an' he's always a couple of notes ahead of the rest. An' the cornet, an' some of the others, ain't what they should be. but I'se practicin' 'em. We'll get together all right after a while."

The negro smiled hopefully. you will," agreed Frank. "Sure "Where do you practice, Sam?" he asked.

"We've been playin' in a barn back ob my house. It's a tolerable enough place when it don't rain. I's looking for a better place, but don't seem to find none. We can't afford to pay much rent."

"Sam," stated the young man, "I'm interested in music, and I'm interested in your band. How would you like American hall for your practices?" For an answer, Sam grinned like a man on a holiday. "I can't promise it to you any longer than a week." "Das all right, Mr. Frank," respond

Sam. "A week's better 'n nothin'." "Want to start to-night, Sam?" asked Sam.

In return for the deed, Frank re-ceived from Thomas Henry $15,000, as per agreement. Frank's ledger read: "Received fee, $1,000. Profit, $10,000." The band removed to its old quarters, but marched the following Sunday in new uniforms. Then the cash account in Frank's ledger was credited with $500, charged to personal account. With the $500 Frank purchased a solitaire for Florence.

Nothing is easier to say than "Don't. worry" and few things so difficult to carry out. But by "don't worry" the doctors mean do not waste valuable nervous strength and energy in fretting over things beyond your control. Make a point of putting all anxiety from you during meals and, above all, when you go to bed. Train yourself tothink of something cheerful as you try to go to sleep. Otherwise your sleep-will be harassed and fitful and will doyou very little good.

He was a wise man who made it as rule to think of nothing disagreeable after 10 o'clock at night. He at any rate could never have been a victim to neuralgia.

MADE MALTA A GARDEN.

The Island Was Once Merely a Rocks In the Mediterranean.

What Malta was like before the Maltese found it one cannot imagine, says the Manchester Guardian. Presumably there was some soil some-where, hidden among the little valleys: that scar the golden rock. But there was very little soil. Most of the island must have been just plain rock, with nothing in particular to recommend it. But somewhere in the dawn of history there came an industrious, in-genious race and proceeded to make the best of it. They have been doing: that all down the centuries, till now they have reduced it to a fine art, and the barren rock is a garden from end to end.

They realized, those clever Maltese, that, although they might not have earth enough to grow their food, there were plenty of people who had enough and to spare. So they sent their ships abroad, and the ships came back load-ed with just plain earth. This earth they took and spread on the ledges of their rocks and sowed their seed and reaped their harvests and prospered exceedingly, till now fruits and flowers might be a fitting name for the island.

Study the Words. Noah Webster started with 70,000 words. That was in 1828, when the first edition of his dictionary was published. In the next ed tion, that of 1864, the list had grown to 114,000. Noah had died in the meantime, but his beirs and assigns continued his work. In 1890 a total of 175.000 words were listed. Since then the number has more than doubled. It is now about 00.

barren of business as the first year's practice of a lawyer. But the young man had an office, with his name in gold leaf on the glass in the door. As he sat in his swivel chair before the empty roll top desk and eyed the sign, he became dissatisfied. The letters seemed to mock, to tantalize, to tease him. He determined to lock up the office and go see Florence. Just as he was about to put his idea into execution, a visitor crossed his threshold. It was Mr. Thomas Henry, father of Florence, and one of his father's most intimate friends. "Mr. Henry, I am glad to see you," stated the young man cordially, as he rose to greet the older man. "It was good of you to look in on me." "I was just passing," said the elder man, "and I thought I would drop in for a moment's rest. How's business,

Frank?" "Neither good nor bad," replied the young man cheerfully. "There isn't any.'

"Ugh! That's rather flerce." "Oh, don't take it seriously, Mr. Henry," remonstrated the young man, shunning pity. "It'll pick up some day.

"That's the way. Frank," approved Mr. Henry. "The glad to hear that you're proving—or rather promising to prove-worthy of your friends. One of them said to me today, 'He'll make good. I'll guarantee that he will.' That's what one person thought about your future in real estate." "Who said that?" asked Frank eagerly. "I didn't know any business man here in town held that opinion. They all said the field was overcrowded and that I was a fool for launching out in

It. Who was he?" It was rather awkward for Mr. Henry. He hesitated. "It wasn't exactly a business man, it was Florence." He looked keenly at the young man as he mentioned his daughter's name and smiled. The young man was not at all disconcerted. On the contrary, he seemed as much elated as if Thomas A. Edison had been his indorser. Of course, poor reader, you can't under-stand this, as you don't happen to know Florence.

"She's a mighty dear girl," the young man declared. "Do you know, Mr. Henry, she's all right, even if she is

"What's the deal, Mr. Henry?" asked the young man. "Give me a chance."

"You couldn't do anything," replied Mr. Henry rather sharply, "unless it would be to drug the old man. It's that Jackson block business, Frank. You know Mr. Jackson, a client of mine, has been wanting that half block for an office building site. He's bought every foot of land from Walnut street clear through to the alley, a solid half block, all except that little lot on which old man Boyd has his shack of an office. That little one-story shed is all that stands in the way of a new building. For my client, I've offered him fou times as much as the ground is worth or will ever be worth, but still he holds out. He's jealous of Jackson, that's all. I can't get him to give in. I've tried every way through all kinds of people."

Mr. Henry stopped and scowled. He glanced around the room, scowled at the empty wastepaper basket, at the book shelves, at the filing cabinet, and even out the window, where a ten-yearold girl, who was passing, a very good girl, probably, who no doubt helps wipe the dishes at home, and takes care of her little brother, was badly frightened, because she thought Mr. Henry was scowling at her.

"Boyd lives just the other side of the half block, doesn't he?" asked the young man. "Yes, he does," growled Mr. Henry.

"What has that to do with it?" "Everything, if it's worked right," declared Frank. "Do you want me to buy that twenty feet for you?" "You get a check for a thousand dollars if you do," promised his friend,

An' a drum-major hat for me to march in?" "Surest thing you know," answered Frank, grinning. "Only be sure to have the band play loud. You know I want all the neighborhood to be sure to hear the music." This Sam guaran-teed. "And see here," added the young man: "If you don't care, I'd. like to be known as the manager of your band. May I?"

"Ob course," magnanimously. "It'll be a big thing for the band; Mr. Frank Lucas, manager."

"And remember this, if anybody comes up and wants to cut out the music-some people like music, others don't-or threatens to kill the trombone specialist, you tell 'em I'm mana-. ger of the band, and send 'em to me, will you? Tell 'em I'm running the circus, will you?"

The police told Boyd, when he complained, that they had no right to interfere so long as the band was orderly. At last Mr. Boyd went to Frank. Whenever in your reading you come across a word the meaning of which is not entirely clear to you drop your book or newspaper, as the case may be, and consult the dictionary. Don't delay. If you do probably your will never look the word up. It is surprising how many words one may add to one's vocabulary by this simple method_New York Times.

An Egyptian Delicacy.

Every country has its own little delicacies, and Egypt is famous for itsy kabobs. The kabob is broiled meat, but it is broiled in so ridiculous a fashion as to be really funny. The peddler uses a little charcoal furnace something like that in use by our plumbers. In it he keeps up a small but hot fire. Attached to the side of the furnace are a lot of iron skewers. When a custom er approaches the hawker takes a small piece of meat, mutton or goat, the latter being the most popular, cuts it with a sharp knife into a long ribbon, winds it around the skewer and places in upon the charcoal fire. Some of the drippings are collected and, with a little salt and spice, make a pleasant sauce for the kabob when it is done.

The Pepper Vine.

The pepper vine grows best in a wooded valley where there is plenty of moisture and abundant foliage to protect it from the heat of the sun.. It is given a rude sort of cultivation. The growers plant it, keeping the grass from its roots, and when the tree near which it is planted has no lower branches strings or poles are placed in proper position to enable the vine to climb the tree. It needs no further attention.

A MESSAGE TO MOTHERS. General Mewburn Pays Tribute to Noble Women.

The following Christmas message to Canadian mothers from Major-General S. C. Mewburn, C.M.G., Minister of Militia and Defence, was Minister of Militia and Defence, was issued from Ottawa: "Mothers of Canadian Soldiers,— As the Christmas season, dedicated by the immemorial custom of our race to domestic joys and the hap-piness of children, approaches, the thoughts of your countrymen turn to you. Many family circles are in-complete, and at many firesides there is the sadness of irreparable loss. The sacrifices which our country has made upon the altar of freedom and of justice are in the largest measure your offering, sanclargest measure your offering, sanc-tified by your suffering, ennobled by your resignation, made precious by your tears. To you, then, I say that that sacrifice has not been in vain, for it has contributed to the sure and certain victory of right over sure and certain victory of right over might, of liberty over intolerable oppression, of things lovely and of good report over things abominable and unspeakably evil. "Is there not, therefore, cause for just and solemh pride that your sons were not found wanting when the testing time came, but were fore-most among men of valor and high spirit, eager to bear their part in the most momentous strugging in the high most momentous struggle in the history of the world? "These men who left the shores of Canada were your sons; bone of your bone, and flesh of your flesh. Their sacrifice is your sacrifice, their suffering has been your suffering, and their honor is your honor. To you the nation offers its homage, gratitude, and respect.

"The war is not yet over, though we have cause to be thankful for battles won, and for many signs that the enemy is weakening under our blows. The end is certain, but the only path to victory is that of fortitude and patience. To weaken new is to here all. The blocd of our fortitude and patience. To weaken now is to lose all. The blood of our brothers cries out to us from the ground, and the heroism of our gallant soldiers who hold our place in the battle line demands that we falter not, but that we do even as they, and endure until the end. "Canadian mothers, may this Christmas time bring happiness to your homes and peace to hearts that are sad; but may it also bring a high resolve that we will face every privation, and exert every effort in order that this our most righteous cause, the cause of all the free peoples of the world, in which our honor and our interest are equally engaged, may be brought to a glorious conclusion. "S. C. Mewburn."

Great Disasters of History. Outside the toll of life claimed on land and sea by the great war the catastrophe at Halifax was by far the greatest disaster in many years. rred in munitions plants of this continent and in Europe, the most disastrous of which on this side was at the Eddystone plant of the DuPont Powder Company, at Chester, Pa., in April last, in which 112 persons lost The Halifax disaster is the most tragic explosion, in the number of lives lost, in the last quarter cen-tury. Indeed, few catastrophies of any nature exceed it in the number of dead Among them are the Mesof dead. Among them are the Mes-sina earthquake, in 1908, when ap-proximately two hundred thousand lives were lost; the Mont Pelee volcanic eruption on the Island of Mar-tinique, in 1902, when forty thou-sand persons lost their lives, and an and persons lost the interior of Italy, in 1915, when thirty-five thousand dead was the toll. The Iroquois Theatre fire in Chi-cago, in 1902, claimed 575 lives, while the sinking of the excursion steamship General Slocum in the steamship General Slocum. the in East River, New York, in 1904, left a death list of about 1,400. In 1906 the earthquake and fire in San Francisco took the lives of approximate-ly 1,000 persons, while the loss of the steamship Titanic, in collision with an iceberg, in 1912, resulted in a toll of 1,503 dead. In 1914 the steamship Empress of Ireland went down in the St. Law-rence River, with the loss of 1,027 lives. Then followed the sinking of lives. Then followed the sinking of the Lusitania by a German torpedo, and the steamship Eastland, in the Chicago River, in 1915, with death lists respectively of 1,198 and 812. In October, 1917, it was reported that 4,000 persons had lost their lives in munitions explosion in Aus-

Some Items of Interest About Recent Contest.

Here are a few brevities of interest in the recent Dominion elections:

Sir Robert Borden carried his new constituency of King's, N. S., by about 900. Only two Cabinet Ministers were beaten—Sevigny and Blondin— and they ran in two constituences apiece. Hon. Hugh Guthrie defeated, his Socialist opponent by about 4,500, and the loser will forfeit his deposit. Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Speaker of the Commons, is defeated in Cumber-land, N.S.

Jand, N.S. Deputy Speaker Rainville was beaten in Cartier division, Montreal, by S. W. Jacobs, K.C., the first Jew to be returned to Parliament. The Cockshutt brothers won. W.

F., late M.P. in Brantford, and Harry, soldier candidate, in Brant, where he defeated Harold, the Liberal and recognized Union candidate.

Lieut.-Col. Sam Sharpe carried North Ontario by 1,200. In 1911 be defeated H. M. What is a soap bubble? Nothing but film of water molecules held together by the cohesive power of soap in solution. A soap bubble's size and strength depend upon the right composition of the mixture that furnishes its material. The colors in a soap bubble are due to what is known in physics as the interference of light, and depend upon the varying thickness of the film of water. It is a singular fact that the last color to appear on a soap bubble just before it breaks is a gray tint. The thickness of the film when this tint appears upon it is less than the one hundred and fifty-six-thousandth of an inch

Were a soap bubble to be magnified to the size of the earth and the molecules magnified in proportion, then the whole structure would be as coarse grained as a globe of small lead shot touching one another at their surfaces. In the blowing of a soap bubble there presented the spectacle of the stretching of a liquid to the extreme limit of its capacity. In this way we come nearer to a sight of the invisible molecules of matter than could be got in any other way no matter how elab-orate the experiment.—Exchange.

Passport to the North Pole.

A passport to the north pole was is sued some years ago by the governor of the province of Tobolsk, which stretches along the Russian shores of the Arctic ocean. The official was approached by two men who had been engaged to proceed to the north with an English expedition then fitting out. Their petition was for a passport to the pole itself, but the governor pointed out that the pole was as likely to be in their home province as in any other, that it was extremely unlikely they would reach it and that if thuy did there were no police there to examine their credentials. At last, however, to satisfy them he ordered the issue of a document allowing them to pass without let or hindrance to the north pole,

A Lucky Prospector.

A discovery of gold has been made in the township of Rickard, about ten miles east of Iroquois Falls, Northern Ontario. The discovery was made accidentally by a man who was prospecting for pulpwood in the district. Three veins were lo-cated, one of which is stated to be nearly twenty feet in width. The specimens brought in are said to be among the best samples of the precious metal ever shown in Northern Ontario.
