While we Canadians are only gallery gods, we are equally interested with the Americans in the balcony and orchestra seats, in the more or less annual spectacle staged in their country—maybe more so, for the gallery is apt to be a colder place than the lower floors.

The curtain rises, as usual, on the mine workers demanding higher wages, better working conditions and recognition of the "check-off." This is followed by the operators declining to grant the "check-off" and pro-posing the same wages or a decrease. And the war is on as the curtain falls.

Act II. opens with a verbal sparring match between both sides, with the spotlights thrown upon the leaders. A deadlock is sure to be reach ed, and what happens next depends. Either the conference breaks up, if not on one pretext, then on another: or galloping hoofs are heard offstage and a messenger rushes in with word that the pressure of public opinion is so great that there is nothing to it but continuing the status quo, and the play ends.

The curtain finally falls with the operators claiming the miners were wrong and the miners saying the operators were wrong, and both of them giving the horse-laugh to poor Nell. The only sure thing about the whole production is that Nell is always the goat; she is the butt of all the "dirty work at the crossroads." NEW INVENTION TO REVOLUTIONIZE ART OF PRINTING

Typesetting Will Become Obsolete if New Device Succeeds
London, Sept. Ist.—An invention which, it is claimed, will revolutionize printing and do away with compositors, has recently been patented after four years' ardent work by two men, August and Hunter. The invention is a new application to do away with metal type. It has been covered by seventy British and foreign patents, and engineers who have examined it say that the claims of the inventors are not exaggerated. Already they have a large amount of work on hand to do for supplements, books, magazines and illustrated periodicals. From Master-Film

The basis of the invention is a film on which letters, figures and all kinds of type have been photographed. By means of a keyboard, like that of a typewriter, characters from a masterfilm are projected in rapid sequence on to a sensitized base and photographed by frictional exposures. It is difficult to imagine women of It is difficult to imagine women of future generations, as types of beauty if the girls of the present day continue the abuse of their good looks, by smearing their faces with injurious cosmetics, plucking eyebrows (and arched eyebrows have always been considered one of women's chief charms), and shaving the backs of their necks, encouragthe backs of their necks, encouraging a crop of bristles. We can under stand the necessity of women of middle or advanced age resorting to a few artificial aids to enhance her looks, but for young girls with fresh youthful complexions, why should they have the need or the vanity cases so much in vogue at the present time. Only a few years ago, the use of lip sticks, rouge powder and paint were considered marked indications of women of an undesirable class who used these things to attract

For those who like their pastimes wild the Canadian National Exhibitwild the Canadian National Exhibition has an unusually attractive program arranged. In addition to other thrillers there will be three days of automobile racing by the champion dirt track champions of two continents. We Owe It To Ourselves and To Our Customers -to have banking relations only with people of good repute who are honest and prompt in their business obligations.

-to make a fair profit on the service we render to customers so that the bank can grow in strength and usefulness.

-to make loans with the utmost care and upon approved security to the end that the funds of the bank and its depositors will be safely and constructively employed.

It is to the interest of every depositor that we strictly observe these principles without which no bank can be strong and permanently helpful.

ALVINSTON UNITED CHURCH TO BE ENLARGED AND REMODELED

The congregation of the Alvinstor United church has decided that the present edifice is not large enough to accommodate the church-goers of that church, so have decided to enlarge it.

An architect from Toronto was in town one day last week and plans were made by him for the enlargement. On Saturday last the house and lot of Mrs. Oke, adjoining the church wood by a small margin. In the base both of Mrs. Oke, adjoining the church ball Walkers defeated Inwood. Alvinston came off victorious when a regation. While no definite plans have play-off took place between the winmake an addition to the south side of the church, this being made so that it can be opened or closed from the present church at will, doors folding back making it one auditorium.

This would make an exceedingly fine church, and the probabilities are that it will be stuccoed when com-pleted. A shed double the present capacity will also be erected, with a driveway circling the church.

Keep Children Well During Hot Weather

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry, colic and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. You can see how easily the trick is worked. A strange yacht puts into a harbor late in the day. She excites little attention, as she is probably only one of many. Previously, the burglary has been carefully planned to the smallest detail. It is carried out in the still hours of the night and by the time the world is awake the yacht has gone.

The pleasure yacht, too, is invaluable for the swindler who makes tradesmen and hotokeepers his dupes. He charters the vessel, paying part of her hire in advance, and then he begins a tour of seaside towns, swaggering ashore in immaculate yachting garb, and putting up at big hotels under a high-sounding, assumed name. He squanders money lavishly of first in order to disarm suspicion,

The Six Poor Travellers.

One of the most curious of English hostelries is that known as the Six Poor Travellers, at Rochester. The story of the inn is inscribed, for all see, on a wall tablet, which bears the notice:

"Richard Watts, Esquire, by his Will dated 22nd August, 1579, founded this Charity for Six Poor Travel lers, who, not being Rogues or Proctors, may receive, gratis, for one night, Lodging, Entertainment, and Fourpence each." Watts, who was a rich merchant, is buried in Rochester Cathedral. Certain portions of the inn have been restored since his day, but some of the rooms have remained unaltered for over three centuries, during which time hundreds of poor wayfarers have partaken of the founder's hospitality.

To benefit under this ancient be quest, a person must apply for admission before 6 p.m., and steps are taken to ensure that the same recipient does not receive the charity on two consecutive nights. Each way farer, on being admitted, sits down to a supper consisting of a pound of beef, a pound of bread, and a pint

KING AND THE CHAUFFEUR.

Edward VII. Like to Be Answered Back.

Even kings like to be answered back, if we are to judge by a story of the late King Edward. It is related by Sir Henry Robinson in his book, "Further Memories of Irish Life." Sir Henry tells of a motor trip King Edward was making in the of Ireland, when he was much both ered by the awful, unexpected ridges or culverts on the roads. was a heavy one, carrying eight people, and Sir Henry travelled beside the King, to inform him as to places they passed. The driver had no experience of Irish roads, and rushed a culvert on the Lough Ina road, giving the six of us in the covered Daimler a tre-mendous shock. The King tapped angrily at the window behind the driver, and called out, "Don't do that." But shortly there was another fearful bump, and the King, greatly exasperated, tapped again at the window and shouted, emphatically, "Do not do that." I knew that the worst culvert on the road was round the next turn, but I made sure the driver would see it in time, as it was over a little winding stream. But he never saw it, and took it at high speed just as the King was lighting a cigarette with his little silver flint box and fuse. The crash came, the King was shot up to the low roof of the car, his pot hat was bashed down over his ears, the cigarette was knocked flying out of his mouth, and the lighted fuse burnt his nose.

The King stopped the car and called the chauffeur. I didn't hear what passed between them, but an A.D.C. who did told me that after pitching into the chauffeur till language failed him, the King ended up by saying: "Well, why don't you say something? Eh? Why are you standing there like a fool with your hat off?

"Because your Majejsty is kind enough to speak to me," replied the trembling chauffeur.

Walking Undignified In India. The well-to-do, old-fashioned natives of India never walk, since, exercise is neither usual or dignified.

On state occasions they are driven in enormous, ramshackle landaus, drawn by ill-matched, badly groomed horses, whose silver—and even gold-mounted harness is repaired in a rough-and-ready manner with string.

A horde of rag, tag and hobtail retainers gallop alongside the vehicle.

On the other hand, the Indian of smaller means is centent to be carried in the palanquin of the country, a box-like affair which bears a strong resemblance to a sedan chair. A crimson velvet canopy, profusely em-broidered with tinsel, shields the ocbeasts of burden dant, armed with an ornamental office, heads the procession, and another servant walks by the side, holding up a gigantic umbrella or wieldhuge fly whisk

Popular, too, is the elephant, it especially if the cap and saith (which partly obscure the animal) are made richly o.

by means of gold embroidery emerald-green ultra-marine or vivid pink velvet background. Incidentally, the motion of the palanquin is exceedingly uncomfortable. But the wealthy native, bent on "cutting a dash" in the eyes of the populace, does not mind temporary uneasiness, provided the onlookers are impressed with a sense of his importance. Besides, the mode of locomotion is customary.

Gargoyles.

The name "gargoyle" or "gurgoyle" (derived from the French 'gargouille," which originally meant the gullet or throat) is given in architecture to a carved stone figure usually having a grotesque appear ance-at the end of the spout which conveys water away from a roof and throws it clear of the walls of a building. Although the term "gargoyle" is generally applied to the gar-goyles of the Middle Ages, which took the form of strange looking beasts or men (or simply heads), with their mouths open to expel the rain water, yet gargoyles were employed in Egypt (where the sacred vessels, apparently, were washed on the tem-ple roofs), in Greece and in Pompeii. Dean F. W. Farrar wrote concerning the gargoyles of Westminster Abbey: "The projection of the gargoyles is a characteristic of the early English style. The gargoyles themselves, in their grotesque and fantastic ugliness represent the demons who are excluded from the sacred precincts.'

A BACTERIAL BRIGHT OF APPLE. PEAR AND QUINCE TREES.

Appearance of Affected Trees-How the Disease Develops -- Destroy Blighted Twigs-Insects Carry the Disease—How to Control Trouble.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

"Fire Blight," a most destructive bacterial disease of apple, pear and quince trees, is prevalent in many parts of Ontario, particularly in apple trees.

Appearance of Affected Trees.

Trees affected with this disease frequently present the appearance of having been scorched by fire, hence the common name, Fire Blight, The leaves will become a reddish brown and die and mummify. In some trees a few twigs only may be affected, in other cases practically every twig will be killed off.

Trees that are affected in this way in the early part of the season are either hold-over cases of the blight from the previous season or have been freshly inoculated through the blossom with the bacteria that cause the disease, by bees or other blossom visiting insects that have previously become contaminated by visiting trees that are hold-over cases from the previous season.

How the Disease Develops.

When a contaminated bee or other insect visits a blossom for nectar or pollen, it leaves behind it some of the bacteria that cause the disease, and these multiply in the nectaries and pass on down the blossom pedi-cel into the bark of the fruit spur, where they produce a canker and kill the spur with other blossoms on it, then continue their progress within the bark of the twig causing canker and death as they go. The leaves on the twig then shrivel up, turn brown, and die giving the character-istic fire-blighted appearance to the tree.

If the blighted twigs are allowed to stay on the tree throughout the season the disease will continue to work on down the twigs, sometimes rapidly and sometimes slowly, until eventually it reaches the bark of the larger limbs, or the trunk of the tree, where it becomes apparent as a canker. In cases where the disease does not reach the bark of the thick-er branches or trunk before fall there is a tendency for the trouble to die out during the winter. But where gets established as blight canker But where it the bark of the branches and trunk cupant from the sun; several liverled the probability is that it will live minions—the number varying according to the bulk of the passenger—tion and begin to extend itself the nences. This in time brings commences. spear or with some other badge of about the death of the larger limbs and trunk as the blight canker spreads in the bark. We have known young trees to be killed out in one year with this disease, although older trees will sometimes live on for being considered that the atimal's years with the canker slowly develop-size and appearance add to the dig-ing until finally the tree either dies nity of those seated in the nowdah. or has to be removed for not giving paying crop.

Insects Carry the Disease.

During mid-season other insects as aphids, hoppers and borers are com-mon carriers of the disease from infected twigs to healthy twigs, either on the same or neighboring trees. In this way young suckers and watersprouts get infected, and, as in the case of the blossom-infected twig, the disease will pass on down the bark of the sucker or watersprout until it, reaches the trunk or large limb where a canker is produced leading to death of the affected part. Where the disease is active during the growing season there is frequent-ly a gummy brown exudate ozing-out from the cankers. This e udate contains the causal bacteria in immense numbers. During min storms this exudate may be splashed to other parts of the tree, thus leading to fresh infections. How to Control the Trouble

To control and stamp out this disease it is essential to cut out all affected portions of the tree. In doing this, care should be taken to cut well below the visibly affected portion four to six inches, if possible, as the bacteria are usually well advanced because the statement of th ed beyond the visibly cankered area in the bark. The saw, knife of shears used should be swabbed after each cut with a good disinfectant, e.g., corrosive sublimate 1-1000, for-malin, or five per cent. carbolic acid. If the canker is in the trunk or larger limbs the affected part should be removed by cutting well around the canker, two or three inches at least beyond the visible extent of the crn-ker. The wound should then be swabbed with the disinfectant and swabbed with the displectant and then painted over.

The best time to cut out the disease is the first lime it is seen, as each infection, so lone to it is allowed to stay, is a centre for continued spreading of the trouble. All material cut away should be carefully gathered and burned—Prot. D. Jones, O. A. C., Guet in the 17th verse of the 28th chapter of Genesis: "This is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven."

We do not want speed cops with arbitrary powers. In connection with this event, the following short history of the church has been prepared and will be found interesting:

1875 1925

The present edifice of the West Adelaide Presbyterian Church was erected in the year 1875. Previous erected in the year 1875. Previous to this time, services were held in the little red brick church, situated at what was then known as Wiley's Corners. This church, which was in the same field or charge as East Adelaide, was built in the year 1853. Owing to an increasing number of members from the north side of the township, it was decided to build a new church one mile north, as being more central for the congregation, and the site on which it now stands was chosen.

The building was erected by Cooper and Haldane, contractors, in 1875.

The congregations of West Adelaide and Arkona were linked up in 1878, the ministers at West Adelaide serving both congregations, and in 1894 a manse was purchased in Arkona kona.

For many years after the building of the church, the Psalms and paraphrases were used, the singing of these being under the leadership of persons chosen from time to time. In 1893 an organ was placed in the church for use in the Sabbath School, and two years later it was brought into service in the regular church services, and the Presbyterian Book of Praise also came into general use. A choir was also formed at this time under the leadership of Rev. A. E. Hannsken

Few are the rural churches in Western Ontario with such shed accommodation as that enjoyed by the West Adelaide Presbyterians. The steel structure pictured above is so large that the whole caravan of folks who attend this church can drive right in to comfortable shelter and find ample parking space for either horse-drawn vehicle or car. And think of the many other uses to which this commodious structure can be applied—especially for tea meetings, entertainments, and all large gatherings, when the little kirk on the corner is not suitable or could not hold 'em all.

operations were Messrs. D. D. Wiley, Jas. Marshall, John Wiley, William Watson, William Conkey, Robt. Kincade and Alex. Ray, with Hugh Wiley as chairman.

The church was opened on Sunday, Sept. 12, 1875, followed by a teameeting on Monday evening, at which Mr. John Morgan acted as chairman.

The principal speakers of the evening were Wm. Murdoch, of Napperton, and Rev. Hector Currie, of Thedford.

The morning service on Sunday was taken by the Rev. John Abraham, of Watford, who preached from Deut. 33rd chapter and 16th verse: "And for the good will of him that dwelt in the bush."

In the afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Scobie, of Strathcoy, conducted the service, preaching from Luke, chapter 2 and verse 7: "Because there was no room for them in the inn."
