

The Union

A WEEKLY JOURNAL.

Our Country, with its United Interests.

W. & J. ASHLOW.

Vol. XVIII.—No. 48.

Newcastle, N. B., Wednesday, September 16, 1885.

EDITORS & PROPRIETORS

WHOLE No. 914.

B. FAIREY'S '85. Fall Importations. '85.

RECEIVED DURING THE PAST FEW DAYS AND NOW READY FOR INSPECTION.

Costume Cloths at 20c. and 25c. all shades,
French Marvilloux 40c. all shades,
Black Cashmere from 35c.
Colored do. 35c.
Black and Colored Cashmere Coupé, the newest,
Dress Goods now showing, very pretty and cheap.
Also an assortment of FANCY DRESS GOODS from 10c. per yard.
Wineys from 5c. per yard to 16c. and for value cannot be equalled.

Black and Colored Mantle Cloths in great variety.

Wool and Cashmere Hosiery for Ladies and Children, a very large assortment,
Wool Clouds, Squares, Breakfast Shawls and Jackets,
BLACK AND COLORED VELVETEENS, all the new shades,
White and Colored Scotch Yarns,
Black and Grey Fur Trimmings,
White, Grey and Scarlet Flannels, all prices, extra value,
Black and Scarlet Flannels (for infants' wear),
Striped Hessians,
Wool, Velvet and Beaver Shawls, all prices,
Crib Blankets from 60c.,
White Blankets, all prices, Grey Blankets do.,
Homespun, Rock Maple Shirtings, Cotton Gingham do., Cotton Flannels, Colored do.,

BED COMFORTABLES.

Batting, Men's Shirts and Drawers, Outside Shirts.

GENT'S FURNISHINGS.

Ties and Scarfs, new patterns and Shapes, Linen Collars, White and Colored Shirts, Canadian & Scotch Lamb's Wool Hose, extra quality, Canadian & Scotch Lamb's Wool Shirts & Drawers, Silk Handkerchiefs, Linen do., Silk and Cashmere Mufflers, Braces.

SMALL WARES.—Pins, Knitting Pins, Hair Pins, Pearl Buttons, Star Braid, Cordon do., Tapes, Silk and Twist, Tubular Braids, etc., etc.

Parks's Cotton Warps, White Cottons, Grey Cottons,

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT.

Black Straw Hats and Bonnets, Black and Colored Felt do., Feathers, Flowers, Birds, Fancy Wings, Poupous, Trimmed Hats and Bonnets always on hand, Ladies' Dress Caps, &c., &c. Hats and Bonnets trimmed to order. Satisfaction guaranteed.

The above is a portion of my NEW FALL STOCK, and to which I solicit inspection. Goods cheerfully shown to every one. All new goods! No moth-eaten goods! Nor goods that have been in stock from 10 to 20 years!!! All clean and fresh, marked at a fair living profit, not at auction prices. Examine the goods and then you will be satisfied that you are getting good value for your money when you purchase.

B. FAIREY, Newcastle.

C. O.

The above means Cash Only, and Call Often.

Newcastle, Sept. 5, 1885.

William A. Park, BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, SOLICITOR, NOTARY PUBLIC, &c.

OFFICE—OVER THE STORE OF WILLIAM PARKER, 230, CASTLE STREET, NEWCASTLE. Newcastle, Oct. 24, 1885.

Law and Collection Office

M. ADAMS, Barrister & Attorney at Law, Solicitor in Bankruptcy, Conveyancer, Notary Public, &c.

Real Estate & Fire Insurance Agent.

CLAIMS collected in all parts of the Dominion.

Office: NEWCASTLE, N. B.

F. L. PEDOLIN, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, NEWCASTLE, N. B.

OFFICE in Power's Building, Public Square; OFFICE HOURS from 9 to 12 a.m., 1 to 6 p.m., 7 to 10 p.m.

Residence at Mr. S. Y. Mitchell's, Feb. 1885.

L. J. TWEEDIE, ATTORNEY & BARRISTER AT LAW, NOTARY PUBLIC, CONVEYANCER, &c.

Office—Old Bank Montreal.

Axes! Axes! NARROW AND BROAD.

Hand-made by the subscriber at short notice. JOHN HUCKLEY, Edge Tool Maker, Newcastle, Aug. 17, 1885.

JOHN MCALISTER, BARRISTER & ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, CONVEYANCER, &c.

CAMPBELLTON, N. B. May 5, 1871.

BECKWITH & THOMAS, Barristers & Solicitors, MAIN STREET.

MONCTON - N. B.

R. BECKWITH. G. T. THOMAS.

April 20, '85.

WILLIAM MURRAY, Barrister & Attorney-at-Law, NOTARY PUBLIC, CAMPBELLTON, N. B.

OFFICE—MURRAY'S BUILDING, WATER STREET.

May 1, 1885.

J. D. PHINNEY, Barrister & Attorney at Law, NOTARY PUBLIC, &c., RICHMOND, N. B.

OFFICE—COURT HOUSE SQUARE.

May 5, 1884.

DR. McDONALD, PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE, CORNER DUKE and St. John Street.

Opposite Canada House.

CHATHAM, N. B.

DR. T. W. POMROY, 285, TAYLOR STREET, NEW YORK CITY, U. S.

Persons wishing to consult the Dr., and unable to call on him personally, can do so by letter.

DR. M. F. BRUCE, Ophthalmic and Aural Surgeon to ST. JOHN'S GENERAL HOSPITAL.

Office: 40 OGDON ST., ST. JOHN, N. B. Dec. 17, 1871.

RAW FURS.

I am paying the highest prices in cash for the following Raw Furs—Mink, Beaver, Seal, Muskrat, Lynx, Fox, R. C. CAMPBELLTON, N. B. May 5, 1871.

CANADA HOUSE, 141, 143, 145, NEW BRUNSWICK.

WM. JOHNSTON, - Proprietor.

CONSIDERABLE OUTLET has been made on this house to make it a first class Hotel, and travelers will find it a desirable temporary residence with its reasonable and comfortable.

It is situated within two minutes walk of the station. The proprietor returns thanks to the public for the encouragement given him in the past, and will endeavor by every attention to merit the same in the future.

Good Stabling on the Premises.

May 12th, 1878.

HOTEL BRUNSWICK, MONCTON, NEW BRUNSWICK.

GEO. MCWEEVENY, GEO. D. FUCHS, Proprietors.

41 PRINCE and 143 GERRARD STS., ST. JOHN, N. B.

Clifton House, ST. JOHN, N. B.

A. N. PETERS, PROPRIETOR.

Heated by steam throughout. Prompt attention and moderate charges. Telephone communication with all parts of the city.

April 20, '85.

SKINNER'S CARPET WAREHOUSES, 58 KING ST., ST. JOHN, N. B.

A most complete stock now open.

TURKISH CARPETS; NOIL CARPETS; NORFOLK CARPETS; TAPES; CARPETS; MARRS CARPETS; COTTON CARPETS; BURL AND WATER LACE CARPETS.

With a full stock of POLLES, in brass, walnut, ebony, and ebony and gold.

May 18, 1885.

Wm. RAE, BLACKSTOCK BUILDING, Water Street, CHATHAM, N. B.

Keeps on hand an assortment of CEMENTARY Work, in straight.

Crave Stones, Tablets, etc. Prices from $12.00 upwards. Also Railings Posts of different patterns. Samples of Red Granite from St. George, N. B.

Chatham, June 14, '85.

ALSO CURES

Sciatica, Neuralgia, Headache, Rheumatism, Toothache, Cramps, Sprains, Stiff Joints, Coughs, Colds, Quinsy, Erysipelas, Colic, Cramp or Rattles, Gout, Rheumatism, Burns, Bruises, Swellings, Stings, the limbs, removing Dandruff and producing the growth of the Hair, and as a Hair Dresser is unequalled.

Wearily hands! with toil borne down, And grasping only leaves, With eager search in humble brown, Where stand the golden sheaves, White as ye lose, this golden gain, In Him, ye labor "not in vain."

O laboring feet! returning late, Though rougher grows the way, Climb upward, where through glory's gate Soft shines the smile of day, Its passage traced on hill and plain, In Him, ye labor, "not in vain."

Ah, "not in vain" the secret prayers, The silent company, Before His face some angel bears The rising incense sweet, And unseen choirs repeat the strain, In Him, ye labor, "not in vain."

THE LITTLE HEROINE.

Morning again! And the weary tired invalid lifted his head from the pillow and looked pitifully over the dim room.

"O! that the night had been longer. To the wretched, sleep is dear. My poor wife—my darling daughter—must they freeze and starve! O God! it is too much!"

And with tears gushing from his eyes, the pale man buried his head in the scanty coverings and groaned aloud.

What should she do?—he? She asked heart on that cold, dark December day. At best, he had a hard struggle to get food and clothes for his family, and for the past six months the struggle had been almost desperate, for his wife had been confined to the bed with a slow wasting disease.

His little daughter, Marie, a pretty child of twelve, kept the room tidy and herself, and two little brothers like wax. By the aid of her mother's whispered directions she cooked the scanty meals, and even managed to do up the weekly ironing and washing.

"My little sunbeam," the father fondly called her, while the mother would say in her sweet, low tones, "our angel."

One night the young housekeeper waited till it was pitch dark for her father to come home to his frugal supper, and then with fearful forebodings at her heart, undressed the little boys and put them to bed, and tied on her hood and cloak to go for him. A crowd met her at the very threshold. With a wild cry she rushed towards the innkeeper, who carried upon a board. It was her father, brought home to them with a broken leg.

A week had passed since this misfortune. By the sale of her few pieces of furniture, the wife had been kept from the door. But now, nothing remained save the coarse bed on which the distressed ones slept. No coats for the little girls; no tea for the feverish lips; no crusts for the famished children.

What was to be done? The father asked himself again and again, as he lay there watching the few pale sunbeams struggling through the windows. And she asked it often after she had arisen and dressed herself and brothers, and smoothed the two beds. Bread they must have that day. They were all faint even then, and the boys clamoring for their breakfast. "Bread!" she thought came to the little daughter. She remembered having seen in some coffee house, young girls no taller than she, waiting on customers. Perhaps they would try her. "If they only would," she murmured softly. "I am handy, quick and patient, and I would try to help." "What should she do?"—he? She asked herself the question with quivering lips. Never before had their poverty driven them to that, and it was hard even now, with the picture of her wretched home fresh in her mind to plead for charity. But she did it. Again and again she said to the passing by, "please sir, please, madam, give me a penny to buy bread for my sick parents." But the gentlemen had the overcoats buttoned to their chins, and the ladies were enveloped in furs, and it was too much trouble to find their pocket-books or purses just to supply a beggar's wants.

"Go to the soup-house," said one at last, more kindly than the rest. "The city provides for such as you."

It was a new idea to her, and as fast as feet could carry her, she went, entering in breathless haste, told her story to the attendant matron.

"I will report the case to the committee," she was answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

Selected Literature.

NOT IN VAIN.

"Your labor is not in vain in the Lord." O patient hearts that silent wait Through weary, fruitless years, For tardy recompense and late,— A rainbow in the mist of tears,— The best, old promise shall remain, In Him, ye labor "not in vain."

O weary hands! with toil borne down, And grasping only leaves, With eager search in humble brown, Where stand the golden sheaves, White as ye lose, this golden gain, In Him, ye labor "not in vain."

O laboring feet! returning late, Though rougher grows the way, Climb upward, where through glory's gate Soft shines the smile of day, Its passage traced on hill and plain, In Him, ye labor, "not in vain."

Ah, "not in vain" the secret prayers, The silent company, Before His face some angel bears The rising incense sweet, And unseen choirs repeat the strain, In Him, ye labor, "not in vain."

THE LITTLE HEROINE.

Morning again! And the weary tired invalid lifted his head from the pillow and looked pitifully over the dim room.

"O! that the night had been longer. To the wretched, sleep is dear. My poor wife—my darling daughter—must they freeze and starve! O God! it is too much!"

And with tears gushing from his eyes, the pale man buried his head in the scanty coverings and groaned aloud.

What should she do?—he? She asked heart on that cold, dark December day. At best, he had a hard struggle to get food and clothes for his family, and for the past six months the struggle had been almost desperate, for his wife had been confined to the bed with a slow wasting disease.

His little daughter, Marie, a pretty child of twelve, kept the room tidy and herself, and two little brothers like wax. By the aid of her mother's whispered directions she cooked the scanty meals, and even managed to do up the weekly ironing and washing.

"My little sunbeam," the father fondly called her, while the mother would say in her sweet, low tones, "our angel."

One night the young housekeeper waited till it was pitch dark for her father to come home to his frugal supper, and then with fearful forebodings at her heart, undressed the little boys and put them to bed, and tied on her hood and cloak to go for him. A crowd met her at the very threshold. With a wild cry she rushed towards the innkeeper, who carried upon a board. It was her father, brought home to them with a broken leg.

A week had passed since this misfortune. By the sale of her few pieces of furniture, the wife had been kept from the door. But now, nothing remained save the coarse bed on which the distressed ones slept. No coats for the little girls; no tea for the feverish lips; no crusts for the famished children.

What was to be done? The father asked himself again and again, as he lay there watching the few pale sunbeams struggling through the windows. And she asked it often after she had arisen and dressed herself and brothers, and smoothed the two beds. Bread they must have that day. They were all faint even then, and the boys clamoring for their breakfast. "Bread!" she thought came to the little daughter. She remembered having seen in some coffee house, young girls no taller than she, waiting on customers. Perhaps they would try her. "If they only would," she murmured softly. "I am handy, quick and patient, and I would try to help." "What should she do?"—he? She asked herself the question with quivering lips. Never before had their poverty driven them to that, and it was hard even now, with the picture of her wretched home fresh in her mind to plead for charity. But she did it. Again and again she said to the passing by, "please sir, please, madam, give me a penny to buy bread for my sick parents." But the gentlemen had the overcoats buttoned to their chins, and the ladies were enveloped in furs, and it was too much trouble to find their pocket-books or purses just to supply a beggar's wants.

"Go to the soup-house," said one at last, more kindly than the rest. "The city provides for such as you."

It was a new idea to her, and as fast as feet could carry her, she went, entering in breathless haste, told her story to the attendant matron.

"I will report the case to the committee," she was answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"No," she answered placidly; "but I will try to keep up for you."

"plenty, and I'll have some, too. They shall not starve. Men and women for a moment before each other's eyes, there is nothing left for me to do but steal."

Her face paled as she spoke it, and for a few moments there was a wild wriggle in her heart. Then she went on quietly, pausing an instant before each baker's window, and looking anxiously within. By and by, she found one that seemed empty. A whole pile of steaming loaves lay upon the counter. She rushed in, and seizing one, and hiding it under her cloak, fled madly up the street. But the baker had seen her from the little sitting-room door, and was after her crying lustily, "stop thief, stop thief!" A crowd followed her, and the poor child was soon run down.

A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

"A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

"A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

"A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

"A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

"A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

"A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

"A clear case," said the police officer, who took her in charge—"property found on her. She must go to the court room."

In vain she pleaded with them and told her story. "They must to their duty; she might have begged; she might have gone to the soup kitchen; there was no excuse for stealing at any rate."

in rear of the Railway Buildings, consisting of between six and seven acres, in a good state of cultivation.

The above properties are offered for sale on liberal terms. Apply to

WILLIAM MASSON,
Executor of the Estate

and Lines, Flies and Baits
of every description,
Paints and Oils, Brushes, Trunks & Satchels and every variety of goods usually found in a General Store.
Four Grades of FLOUR at lowest prices.
A. E. ALEXANDER.
Campanillon May 15. 1885.

April 27, '85.

$200,000 in presents given away. Send us 5 cents postage, and by mail you will get FREE a package of goods of large value, that will start you at work that will at once bring you in money fast.

The Independence Belge states that the Afghan question is settled. The Amee of Afghanistan it says retains the Zulficar Pass and Russia holds Maruchak.

and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blisters, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

Gun Fittings, all kinds;
Eloy's Cartridge Cases, Caps and Wads;
Hazard's Celebrated Powder;
Acadia Powder;
Chilled and Common Shot; Revolver[™]
Cartridges;
Colt's, Winchester, and Remington Rifles.

Transient advertising will be charged a rate of ten cents per nonpareil line for first insertion, each succeeding insertion a rate of 3 cents per line; or 75 cents per inch for first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuation.

Professional and Business Cards inserted by the year at the rate of $5.00 per inch.