Mr. Loggie on G. T. P. Loan.

Ottawa, May 4.—In the debate on the third reading of Hon. Mr. Fielding's bill to loan the G. T. P. Co. an additional $10,000,000 to enable them to go on with construction, R. L. Borden moved the following amendment:

"That the order for the third reading be discharged and that the said Bill be referred back to Committee of the Whole House with power to amend the same by adding effective provisions binding the Grand Trunk Railway Company as well as the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company to fulfil the conditions upon which aid has been granted to this enterprise, namely, the development of trade through Canadian channels and Canadian ocean ports and forbidding the diversion of Canadian traffic to foreign ports except when specifically routed thereto by the shipper."

Many members took part in the debate.

A. B. Crosby of Halifax, was followed by W. S. Loggie, who spoke as follows:

Mr. W. S. LOGGIE (Northumberland, New Brunswick). Mr. Speaker, the hon. gentleman who has just taken his seat (Mr. Crosby) seems to have wandered very far from the proposition before the House, carrying us through the political issues in the late contest in many of the counties of his province; but he has not placed before the House any good reason why the amendment moved by the hon. leader of the opposition should be adopted. I wish to make a few remarks on that motion. One of its propositions is that we should compel the Grand Trunk Railway Company to route traffic through Canadian channels and Canadian ocean ports, and forbid the diversion routed thereto by the shipper. He has not given us one fraction of evidence to show what power we have over the Grand Trunk Railway Company. We are not, as I understand the present proposition, lending one dollar to the Grand Trunk Railway Company and if the Grand Trunk Railway Company is not receiving anything from this parliament; why should we seek to bind it to do something for us? The hon. gentleman does, however, hold that we should bind the Grand Trunk Pacific Company to carry the traffic through Canadian channels. It is scarcely necessary to remind the hon. gentleman that the Grand Trunk Pacific is already bound by a signed and sealed contract to do so, and therefore it seems to me that placing this amendment before the House on this occasion is, as one hon. gentleman has already said, a catch-vote and a vote of want of confidence in the administration. As I understand it, if the principle of the contract, or the amended contract of 1904, had been applied to the prairie section as it was to the mountain section, the Grand Trunk Pacific would not be here to-day asking us for a loan. When this project was presented to us, it was expected that the company would bear 25 per cent. of the cost of construction; but unfortunately for them, they estimated the cost of the prairie section at about $19,000 per mile, and therefore asked for a maximum of $13,000 per mile. A good reason has been given why the cost has been more than was anticipated, but because of that limitation of $13,000 per mile instead of 75 per cent. of the actual cost, we have been told today by the hon. leader of the opposition that there is imminent danger of the wheat traffic arising in the western provinces being carried to the American seaports, suggesting that it will be diverted at Superior Junction and taken to Port Arthur, thence by water to Midland, and over the Grand Trunk Railway to American ports. To my mind that is the most effective answer to the hon. gentleman's original proposition, that we should aid in building a road to North Bay, and then hand the traffic over to the Grand Trunk Railway. If there is danger today of the traffic that goes to Midland being carried to Portland, would there not be danger of all the traffic that the Grand Trunk Pacific handled for all time to come being landed over at North Bay to the Grand Trunk Railway? Under such circumstances the Intercolonial Railway would become a commercial impossibility, for there would be good reason to fear that all the traffic would go to American seaports instead of to maritime province seaports. Was it not the part of wisdom for this government, when such a proposition was presented to it, to turn it down? My hon. friend is very much concerned about the traffic going temporarily to American seaports because of the unfortunate happening to the Quebec bridge or the non-completion of the road from Lake Superior to the seaboard. The hon. gentleman puts this question to us, but does he show us how that can be done except the Intercolonial Railway forsooth should haul the grain for nothing? He talks about its hauling wheat at two cents a bushel from Montreal to Halifax. But when we realize that two cents a bushel is about four cents per 100 pounds, or $16 for a 40,000 car, we can understand that we cannot successfully manage any great railway with such rates.

Mr. R. L. BORDEN. I was quoting from the answer given by the government. It is not my statement.

Mr. LOGGIE. The hon. gentleman was quoting from the answer given by the government, but he must realize that at such rates, we could not carry very much traffic and come out on the right side of the ledger. It is not practical. How could we haul grain 800 miles as against 150 miles? And that would have been exactly the result if the railway had originally gone to North Bay and then have the freight go over the Grand Trunk Railway and the Intercolonial Railway to our maritime seaports. The very dangers which my hon. friend speaks about is the best answer why the government were wise in not adopting the policy he advocates, and we ought to congratulate the right hon. gentleman and his colleagues on the fact that they were sufficiently astute politicians and business men not to consent to any such project as was proposed by the Grand Trunk Pacific, namely to build to North Bay.

Let me now give one or two reasons why it was wise to build the road through the northern portion of Ontario and Quebec, in order that the wheat from our western field should go to our maritime ports. Leaving Winnipeg, we have a railway practically level. A four-tenths grade, I understand, is such that an engine which can start a train on the level will haul it with the same power over a four-tenths grade. Therefore we have a road from Winnipeg to Quebec practically level. We can therefore have grain from the west hauled by rail at practically as low a cost to Superior Junction and thence to Port Arthur as you can have it hauled by water to Midland and thence by rail to Montreal. We can deliver it to Quebec by rail at practically as low a rate as we can haul it by the other route and deliver it in the port of Montreal. Again after we get the grain to Quebec, we can send it to our maritime ports. The distance, I admit, is greater than between Quebec and Portland, but what have we to offset that? And that is the pertinent point in having that wheat hauled over the elv from Winnipeg to Quebec. When you get it to Quebec, you have placed it very much nearer our maritime ports than if you brought it to Montreal and handed it over to the Canadian Pacific or the Intercolonial Railway. How do you offset the difference as compared with the route between Quebec and Portland. The distance between Quebec and Portland is very much less than between Quebec and our Atlantic sea-board. But we have this to compensate for that difference. Let me give you the words of Mr. Butler, who was at the time the chief engineer of the Transcontinental Commission. In the sessional papers of 1905, we find he tells us that you can haul ten fully loaded trains each way per day on the Transcontinental Railway 468 miles for $2,970,864.54. To do this same business on the Intercolonial Railway with the 1 per cent. grade costs how much? It will cost $5,128,509.06, a difference of $2,157,554 in the operating in one year of ten loaded trains each way per day, and then there will be the difference besides on the passenger freight. What does that mean? We have heard today unfavorable criticism on the cost of the division between Quebec and Moncton. I thought that the cost was $30,000,000 but the hon. member for North Toronto (Mr. Foster) says it will reach $35,000,000. Is not that a profitable investment for the Grand Trunk Pacific? If they have to pay interest at 3 per cent. on $35,000,000, that will amount to about $1,050,000, and they save in operating expenses over $2,000,000, so that they could, by building of the division between Quebec and Moncton, save $1,000,000 a year over what it would cost them to ship by the Intercolonial Railway, even if they got it for nothing. So that they will save the interest on the actual cost of the trains between Quebec and Moncton.

Hon. John Morrissy returned yesterday from Montreal where he consulted specialists for weakness of the eyes. The Chief Commissioner was assured that his sight was not in danger. He had overworked his eyes, and all would be well after a rest of a couple of months. This will be welcome news to the whole community, as it was feared that Mr. Morrissy would lose his sight.

The hon. member for North Toronto (Mr. Foster) said to day, had we not better go slow and not invest quite so much in the section between Quebec and Moncton? I say no, we should hurry along that section and also the section between Winnipeg and Quebec. My right hon. friend, the leader of the government, says it is our duty at present to hurry on the prairie section. So far as I can see, I say we ought to try and hurry on every mile of the whole line from Moncton west, and the sooner that is done the better for the transportation interests of this country. (Continued next week.)

Judge Hanington Passed Away
Last Week, Aged 75
Years

DORCHESTER, May 6.—The death of Hon. Justice Hanington occurred at the Hanington residence at seven o'clock this morning. The end was so unexpected that the event has been a great shock to the members of the family and friends generally. It was confidently believed that rapid and substantial progress was being made towards recovery.

Judge Hanington was the son of the late Hon. Daniel Hanington, M. L. C. He was born at Shediac, June 27, 1835. He was called to the bar in 1861 and soon acquired a large practice and became clerk of the circuits and county courts. He was created a Q. C., in 1881 and was subsequently elected a governor of Kings College, Windsor, where he was also professor of Procedure and Ecclesiastical Law, and received the honorary degree of L. L. D. from Mount Allison University.

He was one of the most active and honored of the laymen of the church of England.

In politics, he was a Liberal before 1867, became a Liberal-Conservative at Confederation sat in local legislature for Westmoreland from 1878 to 1892, being Premier several years until defeated by A. G. Blair in 1882. In 1892 he was appointed Puisne Judge of Supreme Court of N. B.

THE MAIL ROBBERY CASE.

DALHOUSIE, May 6.—The latest development in the mail robbery case is causing considerable talk among our citizens.

During the early part of this week Policeman Seely of Dalhousie received a letter from Detroit (dated two days after the robbery took place) from an ex-detective of the I. C. R. suggesting that a reward be offered for the capture of the party guilty of robbing the mail bags here and that if such reward were offered that he would furnish the name of the criminal.

Policeman Seely communicated at once by wire with the ex-detective, referring him to a certain agency in New York. Strange to say that the message could not be delivered.

Post Office Inspector Coffey has been sent a copy of the letter received from Detroit and the envelope containing the letter from the ex-detective carries the stamp of Detroit in very plain letters.

Has this been done to turn away the officers' attention from the parties belonging to the town who are suspected?

If the guilty party resides in town, it would not be surprising to hear of another robbery before long, in the same manner, as the mail bags are left in the same careless way as they were the night of the recent robbery.

They are brought to the baggage car between 11 and 12 o'clock at night and left there unprotected till a few minutes before the branch train leaves to connect with the Maritime coming from Halifax.

The Post Office Inspector has also been notified about this serious condition of affairs.

Dalhousie Harbor is now clear of ice and the steamer Canada is expected any hour.

TOO MANY WOMEN SUFFER IN SILENCE

When the Blood is Weak or Out of Order Disease is Inevitable

Many women go through life suffering in silence—weak, ailing and unhappy. The languor and bloodlessness of girls and young women, with headaches, dizziness and fainting spells; the nervous ailments, back pains and failure of strength of wives and mothers; the trials that come to all women at the turn of life, are caused usually by impoverished watery blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have helped more people to the joy of good health and robust strength than any other medicine in the world. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every part of the body, feeds the starved nerves, strengthens every organ, and makes weak girls and women bright and well. Mrs. A. Eagles, Dundas, Ont., says: "I am writing this letter out of gratitude to let you know the great benefit Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been to me. From the time I was a girl I suffered from weakness and fainting spells, was always doctored but it did not help me. As I grew older I seemed to grow worse. My blood seemed literally turned to water. Sometimes I would faint as often as twice in a day. I suffered from indigestion, I could not walk upstairs without stopping to rest on the way, and my heart would palpitate so violently as to produce a smothering sensation. I grew so weak that people thought I was in consumption. I was in this dreadful condition when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention and I began taking them. The first sign of benefit I noticed was an improvement in my appetite. Then I began to grow stronger; the color began to return to my face; the fainting spells disappeared and gradually I was brought to a condition of more perfect health than I had ever enjoyed before. This is what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me, and that they have been of lasting benefit is proved by the fact that it is several years since they restored my health, and I have remained strong and well ever since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a cure for all troubles due to impure or watery blood, such as anemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, headaches and backaches, indigestion, St. Vitus dance, paralysis, etc. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

I.C.R. RELIEF CLAIMS ASSOCIATION

There were but three deaths in the ranks of the I. C. R. Employees' Relief and Insurance Association for the month ending April 25th, according to the report of Secretary W. C. Paver. They were H. H. Haines, Damien Pellerin, both of Moncton, Magloire Levesque, of River du Loup. The latter met an accidental death. Each of these had $250 insurance. Thos. Wilson, of Halifax, drew the same amount for total disability. In addition to these W. T. Bulmer, a member of the Temporary Employees Accident Fund, died from the result of injuries received while on duty. Fees and levies for the month are: Class A, $1.30; class B, 90c; and C, 70 cents.

Hunting a Homemaker.

By LULU JOHNSON. Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

A mere toddler of a boy stood on the bank above the railroad track. In his hand was a stone. Aiming bravely, he tossed the stone upon the track, and it snuggled against the gleaming rail.

In less than forty-eight hours that stone, tossed by a baby hand, had thrown Wall Street and the money market of the country into a panic.

The single track of the little western road afforded rough traveling. Not many of the travelers aboard that particular train even noticed the somewhat harder jolt when the car wheel struck the stone.

But Gilbert Fairbain, smoking a "good night" cigar as he leaned alone against the railing of the observation car's platform, felt the jar—and then felt nothing more.

And it was two weeks before Wall Street learned that Fairbain, the one man who could have stopped the panic, had been found beside the tracks and removed to a farmhouse on the quarter section nearest the road.

For ten days he had been unconscious, and for two days or more he had been in no condition to be left alone. There was but one inmate of that farmhouse besides himself, and she had been too busy nursing him to make the trip to the nearest town to report that he had been found.

As soon as his whereabouts had been discovered the lonesome little town was overrun with people. Grave and learned physicians from the east were hurried westward on special trains and a regiment of nurses attended them, but Fairbain waved them all away.

"I don't need you," he said irritably. "Little Mrs. Bodington pulled me through without a lot of palaver of thousand dollar doctors to help her. Leave a couple of nurses to wait on her, and the rest of you go away."

"There is an excellent hospital not fifty miles from here," suggested the family physician. "I can look after you with better assurance of successful treatment."

"Sugden, you're an ass," declared Fairbain irritably. "This little woman nursed me single handed through an attack of brain fever. I guess she can attend to the convalescence."

"I will not undertake to be responsible for the consequences," said Sugden, with ponderous emphasis. "You don't have to be," was the acid response. "You are going to be packed out of here, the whole lot of you. I've spent most of my life with a doctor on one side of me and a lawyer on the other. I'm sick of it all, and I'm entitled to a rest."

He looked contentedly about the tiny room. The outlook from the narrow paneled windows was dreary, and the room itself was walled with rough plaster and decorated with cheap prints in homestead frames.

The bed on which he rested was a wooden affair with a cotton mattress and coarse cotton sheets, but the sheets were immaculately clean, and there was an air of hominess about the place that Fairbain had not known in years.

He closed his eyes contentedly and dozed off. Sugden, mindful of his fat fees, waited in deferential silence during the half hour the nap lasted. Fairbain's glance fell first on him as his eyes opened again.

"You still here?" he cried. "Sugden, if you don't take the first train back to New York I'll make you sue for whatever I owe you and I'll take it on appeal and appeal until you spend every cent you ever made off of me. Now get out of here."

Sugden took his departure, vowing that his patient was insane, but Fairbain only smiled contentedly and turned to the sweet faced woman who sat beside the bed.

"That's the way to talk to those sharks," he declared. "I have a headache, and Sugden gives me something to make it worse. Then he doctors me for the new 'disease' and sends in a bill a yard long. This is the time I fooled him."

"I am glad that you were not moved," said the woman softly. "I think that the excitement would have been bad for you."

"It is not the trip I was dreading," admitted Fairbain frankly. "I like it here, and I want to stay a little while. My secretary will stay over in town and bring my important mail every day, and the two nurses will relieve you of the watchful nights."

"If you want anything else, buy it or hire it or something. Wilson will give you what money I need. Wilson is a fine fellow," he added. "He came into my office this fall as a clerk, and I took a fancy to him and made him my confidential man. He took to the job as though he had known me and my affairs since he was born."

"It must be very nice to have some one to do your work the way you want it done," she said softly. "I am glad that you are so pleased with him."

"I'm pleased with him," said Fairbain meaningly, "so long as you are not too well pleased with him. You won't be pleased with him?" he pleaded.

"No more than I am now," she promised, and with that Fairbain was content. He was convinced that money was omnipotent and that even here on the prairie it could purchase the love of the little woman who had made him so comfortable.

Fairbain was in love with his newly found home comforts rather than with the woman herself, but this he did not know, although, when there was no longer any pretext for prolonging the stay, he spoke bravely enough.

"I need you very much," he said earnestly. "I have a house that covers half a square in the most expensive residential district in New York. I have three yachts, something like a dozen automobiles and all that sort of thing, but I have no home. Not since I was a boy have I realized what home was like. My wife was no homemaker, and when she died I never dared repeat the experiment with the women in the set I lived in. You are different. For years I have been hungry. Don't you think that you can come and make it for me?"

The little woman paused for a moment and scanned the face of the multimillionaire as earnestly as though she had not devoted weeks in that pursuit.

There was no ardent affection in tone or look. Fairbain discussed the matter with as much feeling as though he was discussing the making of some railroad deal with his fellow magnates. He was not the young lover, but the elderly widower in need of a homemaker.

The girl—she was little more than that—nodded her head in an affirmative.

"I'll make the home for you, but not as your wife. I am not a widow, you see?"

"I am married," continued the girl hurriedly. "I married when I was on the stage. I married a boy who never had a home, and I made one for him—out here where nothing matters. He was home hungry. I knew that I would spoil all his chances if I married him. I also knew that he would spoil his own chances if I didn't, so I married him."

"After our boy was born—that was the second year we were here—he went back east and took a name that was his father's name to show his father that he was able to work for the woman he loved. I am married to your son, Mr. Fairbain. I guess you've forgotten that Gregory married Martha Bodington. From what Gregory told me, you called me everything but my right name at that last interview."

"Perhaps I did," was the shamefaced reply. "I guess I did not know what I was saying, and I'm certain that I didn't know the sort of a girl I was talking about."

"We'll forget that now," offered Martha. "Let the past be forgotten for the sake of the boy."

"But Gregory?" asked Fairbain. "There," Martha pointed out over the prairie, where the secretary was to be seen riding across the section with the mail.

"And Wilson is Gregory? You mean to say I didn't know my own boy when I hired him?" asked Fairbain, with a chuckle. "To think that all the time he has been here I've been fretting because I feared that you might learn to love him. And all that time you were married to him. I'm rather glad, my dear, that I made my second marriage by proxy, so long as you will make a home for Greg and the boy and me."

"I was so afraid that you would recognize Greg," said Martha as she regarded the tall figure of the secretary with a look of frank admiration.

"He assumed an excellent disguise," reminded Fairbain. "I never thought to find my son a worker, my dear. That's another thing I have to thank you for," and Fairbain sighed with relief. He had found a home while retaining his domestic independence, and the son for whom his heart cried out was restored to him again.

Changes in Boston. In 1636 one of the suburbs of Boston was Newe Towne, which in 1638 was changed to Cambridge and as the seat of Harvard university has an international reputation today. Since the early lines were fixed Cambridge, obtained by annexation a part of Charlestown, but has ceded land to the towns of Waltham, Brighton, Watertown, Belmont and West Cambridge, the latter now known as Arlington.

The Boston of 1630, called Tri-Mountain, was very different from the Boston of today. Its area was not extensive, although it included the larger portion of Quincy, out of which the town of Braintree was made at a later period. The first annexations to Boston were Noddies Island (East Boston) and the territory now covered by Chelsea.

In 1640 Boston lost its rights in Quincy, which were acquired by the town of Braintree. Subsequent additions to Boston have been Roxbury, Dorchester, West Roxbury, Brighton, Charlestown and a part of Brookline.

As an independent municipality Charlestown, which was settled as early as Boston, gave birth to Somerville, Woburn, Malden, Stoneham and Mulford and furnished land to Cambridge.—Boston Post.

Value of the Architect. The members of a country club, the building and decoration of whose clubhouse had been placed entirely in the hands of the architect, even to the minutest furnishings, found themselves in need of new window shades and a few other small household necessities. Instead of buying the things themselves, they sent for the architect to come out and look things over and order appropriate fittings.

"That is not at all an unusual case," said the architect. "I can show you houses that I planned more than twenty-five years ago that have never been furnished with so much as a new chair without my being consulted first. Having deferred entirely to my judgment in the first place, those confiding patrons are now left to suffer, and they will probably come to ask my advice in every detail of decoration for some time to occupy the house."

"That is not at all an unusual case," said the architect. "I can show you houses that I planned more than twenty-five years ago that have never been furnished with so much as a new chair without my being consulted first. Having deferred entirely to my judgment in the first place, those confiding patrons are now left to suffer, and they will probably come to ask my advice in every detail of decoration for some time to occupy the house."

Not one of these women ever received compensation in any form for the use of their names in this advertisement—but are willing that we should refer to them because of the good they may do other suffering women to prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a reliable and honest medicine, and that the statements made in our advertisements regarding its merit are the truth and nothing but the truth.

SEVEN YEARS AN INVALID

"When She Took 'Fruit-a-tives' And Is Now Well."

Arnprior, Ont., Nov. 27, 1908.
I was an invalid for seven years. I had ailing womb, with constant pain in the back and front of my body and would down my legs. There was a heavy discharge and this made me weak, restless, nervous and miserable. Often I was obliged to be in bed for a month at a time. I was treated by several doctors, but their treatment did me no permanent good.

A few months ago, I was persuaded to try "Fruit-a-tives." I took several boxes, and from the outset of this treatment I was better, the Constipation was cured, and the discharge stopped. I took, for the purpose, seven bottles of the Fruit-a-tives as recommended in the "Fruit-a-tives" book, but I feel that it was "Fruit-a-tives" alone that cured me.

(Mrs.) Eliza Levesque.
Take Mrs. Levesque's advice. Take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure yourself. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50; trial box 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, 406-408 W. G.

THE PICTURESQUE PRAIRIE ROUTE OF THE G. T. P.

Graphic Description of the Great Western Country Opened up by the National Transcontinental Railway.

West of Winnipeg for the first forty miles the land lies almost level along the Grand Trunk Pacific, though much of it is fit for cultivation at the bare cost of breaking, and all of it will some day be ditched and drained and sold for one hundred dollars an acre. Here, at the forty-mile post, we enter the rich Portage Plains where seventy-five per cent. of the acreage is already under cultivation. Portage la Prairie, the first town of importance has four railroads and is an unusually prosperous place.

For the first fifty-four miles there is no grade and scarcely a curve. Leaving Portage la Prairie—still in the Portage Plains—the same rich, dark soil extends west to Pirdale, which is ninety-one miles west of Winnipeg.

Entrance to Prince Rupert Harbor

It is worth noting that here, on the Portage Plains, we find the first long tangent—thirty-two miles without a wriggle or a wave—near Pirdale we make a few slight curves, and then the line lies straight and level as the rail on a billiard table for ninety-eight miles. Rivers is the first divisional station on the Prairie section of the great Transcontinental road. This new-born, budding city sits on the high plain overlooking the little Saskatchewan wan River that winds away down a beautiful valley, though but six months old, has become a busy place. The railway, with its cars, and an eighteen-station. There is a distributing station at Rivers many shops and a capacity is just now being built.

Leaving Rivers the train traversed another stretch of splendid farming land. Here the land is rolling with hay sloughs between the rounded fields that seem to have been moulded and shaped just as one would have them. The heavy stubble and the

Prince Rupert Wharves

All the way from Qu'Appelle the country, though rich and productive, is high and rolling. Many deep valleys are crossed over long, high trestles, which during the lifetime of the timber, will be filled in by the use of the steam shovels and gravel trains. The bridge over the cut arm is over one hundred feet high.

Melville, Saskatchewan, is the second divisional point on the Prairie section, and those who contend that there is nothing in a name will be apt to alter their opinion when they have seen this wonder of the western wilds. Melville is always in action. When the ring of the hammer and the song of the saw ceases the silence that belongs to Night is bridged by the ringing bells the chug and choo-choo of the yard-engines sorting and switching the cars of grain and merchandise that must be ready for the trains that travel east and west from Melville in the morning.

Melville never sleeps. She simply changes crews and goes on. And up there where the lamps are shaded two men, one on either side of a despatcher's table, separated only by a fourteen-inch glass fence, sit in silence broken only by the restless tick of the telegraph, one working the line east to Winnipeg, the other west to Wainwright—87 miles. And these black steeds of steam that disturb the slumbers of the homesteader in the Saskatchewan valley, and whose wild cry echoes along the Assiniboine and comes back across the wide valley of the Qu'Appelle, like the cry of the Indian maiden who mistook the echo of her own voice for the answering cry of her lost lover, are joined by the morning hand of the silent men who burn midnight oil—up there where the lamps are low.

Immediately West of Melville, the soil is lighter, the land rolling and gravelly along the line but back from the railway, north and south, are good farms, as evidenced by the presence of an elevator at the first and two at the second siding. Like the shaft-houses that cut the sky line in Cobalt camp, these towering elevators are sure signs of "pay dirt." Another indication of the productivity of the soil is the presence of growing towns at any of the intermediate stations West of Melville. Killdeer, nestling in a popular forest on the border of a charming stretch of Lakeland through which our trains travel for nearly an hour. Many of the lakes have marshy meadow-lands along the shores, others are deep, wood-girt and crystal clear. We are now skirting Touchwood Hills north of the line and all in the heart of the great Touchwood cattle country. Pennicly is the name of the station

Good news print paper is now being manufactured by the Markland Company's paper mill at Hartville, Nova Scotia, and the monopoly of the Quebec and Ontario mills is broken, so far as the Maritime provinces are concerned.

AMENDMENTS TO CRIMINAL CODE.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth has embodied a number of very important clauses in his proposed amendment to the criminal code.

One provision makes a corporation, municipality or company liable to be proceeded against by summary process before a justice of the peace. Another increases the punishment upon anyone found guilty of carrying an offensive weapon, such as a dagger, knife or dirk, the offence being punishable by imprisonment instead of as at present by fine.

stretches its narrow length away south for a distance of miles.
The next place of importance is Watrous. This is the third divisional point on the Prairie section, a prosperous place, with a good well managed hotel. Every lot in the original survey has been sold, and many attractive residences are already built and occupied. This is sure to become an important point, not only because it is a divisional point, beautifully situated in a good country, but because there is here a most remarkable saline lake a mile wide and twelve miles long, upon whose buoyant waters one may be motionless and float with out so much as moving a finger. This is possible in no other water, save that of Salt Lake, on the American continent, and in only one other place in the world, the Dead Sea.

Indians for years have made pilgrimages to Little Mountain, as they call it, and bathed in its wonderful waters and healed there.
There is no other way of accounting for the cures made here, unless the wonder be worked simply by faith, for faith these Indians have in large lots.
But now that the white man has appeared, the Red man has retired to some extent. Young as the town is, during this first summer in the life of Watrous, hundreds of persons would walk out two miles to the lake, there being livery accommodations for not more than one-tenth of the people, and hundreds of bathers could be seen every Sunday along the beautiful beach. Little Mountain will become the Salt Lake of the North, and I expect to see a splendid sanitarium on the shore of this lake in the near future and Watrous a week end watering place for all the West.

West of Watrous the treeless plain follows away to the horizon, broken here and there by long rows of wheat stacks, wind-mills and farm houses. Presently the traveller feels that the train is travelling along a scarcely perceptible valley. The land, lifting gently to the north, shows many fine farms and broken fields.

We are now entering the great plain which has come by common consent to be called the Saskatchewan Valley, the "Granary of the World" also the "Breadbasket" of the British Empire.
As Allan, thirty miles West of Watrous, one man who shipped 25,000 bushels of wheat last year shipped 40,000 bushels this year.
Four hundred and sixty six miles west of Winnipeg, we come to Saskatoon, on the South Saskatchewan River, a remarkably thrifty young city. The railway and commercial centre of the great Saskatchewan Valley Queen of the Prairie Provinces, the Kansas City of Canada.

A GUARANTEE OF SAFETY

Most of the "soothing" syrups and powders advertised to cure the ills of babies and young children contain poisonous opiates, and an overdose may kill the child. Baby's Own Tablets are sold under the guarantee of a government analyst that they contain no opiate or harmful drug. They can be given with absolute safety to a new born child. They cure all those minor ailments originating in disordered stomach or bowels. Mrs. F. Young, River Herbert, N. S., says:— "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation and stomach trouble and when my baby was teething, and I have found them the best medicine I know for these troubles." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JAMES ANSLOW.
The friends of Mrs. James J. Anslow will regret to learn of her death in Windsor, N. S.
For several years Mrs. Anslow had been a sufferer from diabetes and in September last had a serious attack from which she rallied, and for a time seemed to be improving. A few days ago she contracted a severe cold and the insidious disease having so weakened her system she was unable to stand the strain, and on Thursday, May 6th, she succumbed to an attack of heart failure.
The deceased was the eldest daughter of the late James Sutherland, who for many years was well known in Halifax in connection with the post office there. She was for a number of years connected with the Teaching Staff of the Windsor Academy, which position she left early in June, 1882, to be married to J. J. Anslow, one of the founders of the UNION ADVOCATE. She resided in Newcastle until 1886, when she removed to Windsor with her husband in January of that year, a short time before Mr. Anslow became Proprietor of the Hants Journal.

Besides her sorrowing husband there are left to mourn an only son, Harold, and an aged aunt, Miss Barbara Sutherland, now in her eighty-fifth year. Three step-daughters also survive, Mrs. H. S. Smith, Miss Belle Anslow and Miss Florence Anslow.
The funeral was held on the 9th inst, the Rev. H. W. Langille officiating. The deceased was in her fifty fifth year.

JOHN F. DOROTHAY

The people of Harcourt and surrounding community, were greatly shocked on Sunday morning, 10th instant to learn of the demise of one of their most prominent and intelligent citizens, Mr. John F. Dorothay. Mr. Dorothay had been suffering from a slight cold for a few days; but was not confined to his bed until Friday, when pneumonia set in, and he passed away.
Deceased had lived alone and had no relatives in this province.
Mr. Dorothay was a resident of Harcourt for upwards of twenty years, during this time doing an extensive business there and throughout the surrounding country as a flour and feed merchant. In these years he won the thorough respect and esteem of his fellow townsmen; and his many kind friends rallied about him during his short illness and did all that could be done for his comfort in his final hours.
Mr. Dorothay was a native of Ontario, coming to this province when fourteen years of age. He attended the public school in Sackville and also the Mount Allison Academy. He was a graduate of the Provincial Normal school, and for a number of years a teacher in the public schools of our province.
He was a man of more than usual scholarship and of keen intellect. He was principal of the Bass River, Kent Co., Superior school for some six or eight years prior to his residence in Harcourt.

He was one of the leading Liberals of Kent County and took a keen interest in the politics of his country.
He was a prominent adherent of the Methodist church. His funeral took place from the Methodist church, Harcourt, yesterday afternoon, at two o'clock services conducted by Rev. Charles H. Manaton, pastor of that church.
Harcourt will feel his loss keenly and mourns for an honorable, intelligent and courteous citizen gone up higher.

Nothing as yet known of Mr. Dorothy's disposition of his property, and the address of his relatives is unknown. For years he had lived alone in his store, taking his store, taking his meals at Miss Campbell's boarding house.

WHY SUFFER?

Breathe Hyomei and Kill the Loathsome Catarrh Germs.

Just as long as you have catarrh your nose will itch, your breath will be foul, you will hawk and spit and you will do other disgusting things because you can't help yourself. The germs of catarrh have got you in their power; they are continually and persistently digging into and irritating the mucous membrane of your nose and throat. They are now making your life miserable; in time they will sap your entire system of its energy, its strength, its vigor and its vitality.

But there is one remedy that will kill the germs and cure catarrh, and that is Hyomei, the Australian dry air treatment.

Joseph Durak of Woodstock Street, Bywater, Ont., says: "Catarrh had given me all kinds of suffering for a long time. There was a swelling of the glands under the eyes and adjacent to my nose and the discharges would drop into my throat. I used several remedies, but never got the relief that I did from Booth's Hyomei. I have been so pleased with Hyomei results that I highly recommend its use to catarrh sufferers."

T. J. Durick, the druggist, will guarantee Hyomei to cure catarrh or money back. Don't delay this pleasant antiseptic treatment. Breathe in Hyomei and kill the germs.
T. J. Durick will sell you a complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler, for only $1.00. It is also guaranteed to cure bronchitis, asthma, coughs, colds, hay fever and croup.

are not students, and will not take up the study and work involved in these fifty-two written studies, so that there is no danger of overcrowding and those who are sufficiently diligent to take up these written studies have a splendid prospect to win one of the prizes, but should a student fail to win a prize, he will still gain the great prize of the knowledge acquired and the skill developed in answering in writing these very suggestive questions.

It is not too late for those who commence who have not yet done so, because you can answer the back questions at any time during the continuance of the contest. These back questions may be obtained upon application to this office.

A play that has stood the test of time and carried its appeal of heart interest for season after season must necessarily have elements that go to please a wide range of theatregoers. So it is that the announced plot of "The American Girl," with large Mr. Hall in the principal comedienne role, is always anticipated with pleasure.

The play is too well known to need comment. With the assistance of a good supporting cast—and it is said that Mr. Hall has never had a better one—theatre patrons are assured of an entertainment more than worthy the low scale of prices that have been established for this engagement.

Much interest always attaches to the two children who play exacting parts, and Gracie Brackman and Laura Hathaway are said to be decidedly clever as Prince Roy and The Little Lady.

That's about the best you could get for husband.

Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School

Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

May 9th 1909

Paul's First Missionary Journey—Antioch in Pisidia. Acts xiii:13-52.
Golden Text—The word of the Lord was published throughout all the region. Acts xiii:49.

Should preachers and teachers in addressing non-Christian audiences, assume that there may be some of the number who really "fear God," notwithstanding that they may never have heard of Jesus? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

May 16th 1909.

Paul's First Missionary Journey—Iconium and Lystra. Acts xiv:1-28.
Golden Text—All the gods of the nations are idols; but the Lord made the heavens.—Psalm 96:5.

Verses 1-2—Point out on the map in your Bible where Iconium is situated. Can two missionaries working together do more good than they could working separately?

Has the story of Jesus lost or gained in its charm upon the multitude, since that day? Was the unbelief of these Jews a matter of the intellect, through lack of evidence, or was it a matter of the heart; that is, a result of their rebellion against God?

Verses 3-7—How do you account for the fact, that the same evidence, and spiritual demonstration, which made one part of the multitude turn to God with gladness of heart, made the other part angry in heart, and murderous in their actions? (This question is to be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Would you judge from this story, that all the good people were on the side of the apostles, and all the bad and dishonest people on the other side? Will a wise and brave man, sometimes run away from such danger as threatened the apostles, or will he always stay and face it?

The city housewife was suspicious. I don't like the color of that milk, she remonstrated. It looks as though a current of water had passed through it.

You are doing me an injustice, mamma, replied the crafty milkman; it was a current of electricity. We have disposed of the milkmaid and our cows are now milked by the new electrical process.

Oh, yes, answered the unsuspecting other half of the combine mine is all right.

The apostles fled to Lystra and Derbe; where are these places situated?

Verses 8—Is there ever any blame to be attached to those who are born with either physical, or moral defects?

Are parents ever to be blamed for either physical or moral defects in their children?

Are pre-natal influences as powerful in shaping a child's destiny as post-natal?

In our present national conditions, should the state provide for and maintain all those who are born in an impotent condition?

Verses 9-10—Is faith, like this man had, possible for all, or is it a gift of God, the same as the resultant grace and healing?

Was this a miracle, and whether or not, does God intend to run this world by law or by miracle?

Verses 11-13—What was the idea that these people had of the Deity? How would it be likely that Barnabas resembled Jupiter, and Paul Mercury to these people?

Is it a trait in human nature to believe in some popular superstition, rather than the plain truth of God?

Verses 14-15—If a man of God is being regarded in some superstitious way, is it his duty to administer a rebuke?

Have the best of men got the same natural passions as the worst of men?

What comfort is there to us in the fact, that God made the heavens and the earth?

Verses 16-18—Does God pay the same attention to the crops of the sinner, as he does to the crops of a saint?

Verses 19-20—Was it the same people that stoned Paul, who before this wanted to do sacrifice to him?

Can there be any reliance placed upon the applause of the multitude?

Verses 21-25—What kind of a man is he who, laid out for dead through stoning, starts on his way the next day preaching his story of mercy and love?

Lesson for Sunday, May 23rd, 1909—The Council at Jerusalem. Acts xv: 1-35.

Brown—I want to thank you again for that cigar you gave me yesterday. I enjoyed it immensely.

Green—I'm glad you liked it. By the way, I have another of the same brand if you care to smoke.

Brown—No, thank you. I didn't smoke the other one. I have a grudge against Jones, so I gave it to him.

Well I'm glad of it, said Mrs. W. as I have a treat in store for you. Next week I am going to ask you for a new sealskin sack and I want you to laugh and feel jolly, just as you do when you read of such things.

In Fashion Cavalier.

By Barry Preston.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The knight of the golden helmet rode briskly down the lane. His sword made a pleasant clanking in the rusty scabbard which it was never intended to fit; his eyes sparkled; his plumes waved bravely in the breeze. Anon from sheer exuberance of spirits the knight of the golden helmet let out a wild and joyous whoop which startled the grazing cattle and set the mild eyed sheep huddling together in trembling wonder.

The general getup of the gentleman of the aureate headpiece was a trifle startling. Upon his head was a basket, the handle beneath his chin and its bottom (or, rather, top in its present position) decorated with the tail feathers of an incautious rooster. About his waist was a red sash stuck full of wooden dirks. From the left side of this sash half dangled, half dragged, the naval sword in the old cavalier scabbard.

A rake handle answered the purpose of a lance and bore as its pennon a fluttering three cornered piece of red flannel. Upon the knight's fat, chubby legs were fastened pieces of zinc, evidently intended for greaves. The steed he bestrode was a crooked piece of apple limb, with a bit of twine about one end of it for reins.

It is quite needless to state perhaps that the knight of the gold helmet had recently been filling his small head with certain romantic literature relating to the days of chivalry.

It is probably quite as needless to cite that, now the literature had been absorbed, he thirsted for deeds of valor.

Hence the ride down the lane, and hence the whoops. But very unfortun-

"I AM THE KNIGHT OF THE GOLDEN HELMET."

nately it seemed to be an off day for opportunities.

The cattle gazed upon him in melancholy doubt. The sheep bunched together and sent up discordant bleats. Aside from these, the landscape gave no evidences of life.

It was a sorry world. Whatever it was you wanted you never got it, the knightly gentleman reflected sadly. One couldn't perform deeds of valor with nothing at hand but sheep and cattle. People were necessary to his plans—live, red blooded, much troubled people—languishing ladies preferred.

The world was full of 'em. There must be some about somewhere. The only way to get 'em was to find 'em. With another full throated bellow the knight of the golden helmet spurred his good apple limb steed to a yet more furious pace and sped down the shaded lane in quest of adventure.

He had just splashed through the muddy pool where the cattle drank each evening and was cantering blithely past the birches beyond when he saw a young man approaching—a young man in flannels, very tall and straight, pleasant faced, too, although just now the forehead was wrinkled in a frown and the firm jaw was set in determination. The young man was puffing vigorously at the brier pipe between his teeth, sending out great blue clouds of smoke in his wake.

The knight of the golden helmet reined in his steed and accosted the man before him with a familiar: "Hey, Charlie!"

Then, suddenly remembering the dignity of his position, he squared his small shoulders and threw up his chin. "What, ho, Charles!" he corrected his first salutation. "Hold a bit. I wouldst have converse with thee."

The young man seemed aware for the first time of the other's presence. "Hello, Billy!" said he, abstractedly glancing at the queer figure before him. "What's up now?"

"I am the knight of the golden helmet," was the grave response. "You don't say! Where are you bound?"

"Where is thy lady?" the knight demanded. "My lady! You mean poor Aunt Margaret?"

The knight nodded. "Down the lane a bit, by the walnut trees. Know the place, don't you?" "Sure!" was the unknighly reply.

He drew a bit nearer. One hand rested upon the hilt of the sword. "Why are you here, varlet?" he demanded. "Why hast thou deserted thy lady?"

"Hub!" said the man in flannels. Then he burst into laughter. But there was a certain grating noise in it.

"Well, Billy—Mr. Golden Helmet, I mean—I'm here because she sent me. Couldn't seem to endure my society. Are you on? And I hardly think you're correct in calling her my lady. She's just told me mighty plainly that she wasn't."

"The young gentleman astride the stick pondered deeply, and to aid his cogitations he removed the basket from his head and swung it idly to and fro in one hand. Then he replaced it with a considerable show of firmness.

"Back you go, craven!" he declared flatly. "Hub? What?" said the man in the flannels.

"Back you go! I ride to the succor of ladies in distress.

"Bully for you, old chap," the other replied. "I think you'd better go alone, though."

"Never!" bawled the knight. "Turn around."

After several futile efforts he managed to yank the sword from the scabbard. He waved it threateningly above his head.

"See here," the young man began irritably as he took a step forward, but at that moment they both heard quick steps down the lane.

Around the bend came the lady under discussion. She started violently at the sight of them. Her face was flushed, and her eyes were suspiciously red.

"I've got him!" shouted the knight joyously. "He's in my power! He was deserting you, but I held him up! I'll see he begs your pardon if you say so!"

The young woman drew herself up. Her face was scarlet now. "Billy, what are you doing? What is the meaning of this foolishness?" she demanded.

"Come on, you! Apologize!" said the youth sulkily, prodding the immaculate white trousers with the point of his sword.

Neither the words nor the prod seemed to attract the man's attention. He stood staring at the girl—particularly at her red eyes. Then suddenly he sprang to her side and caught her hand in his.

"Margaret," he cried, "he's right! I should apologize, that's a fact. I'm a pigheaded duffer. The quarrel is my fault—all mine."

Then came a few low words, a little happy laugh from the girl, and then two of them strolled down the lane together, utterly oblivious of the ridiculous figure which stood silently watching them until they disappeared around the bend.

The knight of the golden helmet remained thus for some moments lost in thought. Then he turned about and went slowly up the lane.

"Gee!" he muttered. "Wouldn't that cook yer? This ain't the way they done it in the book."

He was still lost in his own musings as, whoopless, he passed again the grazing cattle and the huddled sheep.

Effect of Fear on Wounds. The fear of poison in a lacerated wound under certain circumstances is in itself quite sufficient to give a wounded man tetanus, or lockjaw, than which no more horrible complication exists. Thus for a long time it was thought that the natives of the Solomon and other neighboring islands used poisoned arrows, and many white men shot by them died in tetanic convulsions, including one very horrible case of a commander in the navy who had made a special study of tetanus.

At length the French governor of New Caledonia, noticing that the symptoms exhibited were not consistent with the use of any known poison, appointed a medical commission to inquire into the affair, when it was discovered that the arrows of the natives were not poisoned at all, although constructed in such a way that a small piece of the bone point almost always remained in the wound. The irritation produced by this prevented the wound from healing quickly, and the mental disturbance produced by fear and perhaps change of climate did the rest.

It was discovered at the same time that the natives of other islands who firmly believed in the poison theory seldom suffered much inconvenience from the arrow wounds, because they believed that the spells given them by their own sorcerers prevented the poison from taking effect.—Fall Mail Gazette.

His Vivid Imagination. It was in Sunday school in the infant department. The teacher had just told the children something about the Holy Land and had said: "Now, children, let's just play we're taking a trip over that very place. We step into this little boat tied here at the shore, and away we go. Now we are landing at the very place where—"

She was interrupted by the sobbing and gasping of a small boy in the second row, whose sister sought earnestly to quiet and comfort him.

"What is the matter with Eddie?" asked the teacher.

"Please, teacher, he's feeling bad," explained Eddie's sister. "It always makes him sick to ride in a boat."—Chicago News.

A Kind Audience. The tragedian had just returned from his tour and was greeted joyously by his friends at the club.

"Well, Ranter, my boy," said Tomlinson, "I'm glad to see you back. Have a good trip?"

"Pat," said Ranter. "Did you play my old town?"

"Yes," said Ranter. "What kind of an audience did you have?"

"I don't know," said Ranter. "I did not ask him for a reference as to his character, but he was a genial kind of cuss and lent me $2 to get out of town with."—Harris's Weekly.

JUST ARRIVED! MY PRIZE GENDRON

"The Gendron Driver"

I am the proudest Baby in Canada to-day. Of course you know I was a prize winner in the "Toronto World's" Baby Contest, and my special prize was this GENDRON car.

It has a beautiful limousine top to keep off the sun and rain, and it is upholstered so "comfy" inside.

My little GENDRON Driver tells me that the springs are of the finest tempered steel—that triple curve so evenly distributing the strain that breakage is impossible and the specially welded wheels cannot warp.

When I want a ride around the house I need not be afraid of scratching the furniture, for there is a little rubber cap over the nut of the axle.

I am so glad that my new car is a GENDRON. Mother says they are the finest, strongest and most stylish, and if I do have an unexpected accident, it can be easily remedied as every single part of the car is made in Canada at the Toronto factory.

You can always get home if you drive a GENDRON

THREE LITTLE TOTS SUFFOCATED.

Caught In a Burning House and Nobody Able to Save Them.

SACKVILLE, May 5.—One of the saddest tragedies in the history of this section of the province occurred last night when three little children died from suffocation as the result of a fire which badly gutted the house of their father, Charles Crossman.

The Crossman home is situated on a street leading off Foundry Street. Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Crossman went down town to visit friends and left in the house a boarder named Brownell and their four children, Joseph aged ten; George aged eight; Gertrude aged six and a little four year old girl named Gretchen.

About ten o'clock Brownell was awakened by the fire and found the house full of smoke. He picked up Joseph Crossman out of his bed and with great difficulty fought his way through the thick smoke to the head of the stairs, and managed to reach the street. As soon as Brownell could regain his breath he made a gallant attempt to get up the stairs, again to save the other three children, but was quickly driven back by the fire and smoke.

An alarm was sent in and the fire department quickly responded to the call. When they arrived the house was burning furiously, the fire having obtained great headway before it was discovered. When it was learned that there were three little tots on the upper floor there was great excitement, and the firemen tried time and again to reach the rooms but on each occasion were driven back by the dense smoke. Three of the firemen were overcome by smoke and had to be assisted to a place of safety. It was not until a couple of good streams of water had conquered the flames that the firemen were able to reach the sleeping rooms and there they saw a sad sight. In one room little Gretchen and her six year old brother Gerald were found in a bed dead from suffocation. One of the children had a burn on his arm. The bodies were tenderly carried from the building by the firemen.

In an adjoining room George, the eight year old boy was found on the bedroom floor dead. He had undoubtedly been awakened by the dense smoke and managed to get out of bed in an effort to escape, but had not time to even reach the room when he was overcome by the smoke. When Mr. and Mrs. Crossman heard of the fire they rushed to their once happy home only to find it destroyed and three of their children dead. The grief of the parents was most pitiable.

The firemen worked on the building for about an hour before the last sign of fire was extinguished. The house, which was a frame building, was badly gutted and little or no furniture was saved.

The sad occurrence has cast a gloom over the community and sincere sympathy is expressed for the bereaved parents.

Mi-o-na Tablets Cure Dyspepsia by Promptly Removing the Cause, Money Back.

There is just one way to cure dyspepsia and stomach disorders, trivial or serious, and that is to tone up or put energy into the stomach walls, so that they will be able to properly mix or churn the food.

Mi-o-na tablets quickly arouse the stomach from its inaction and in a short time it is able to do its work properly. Harry Dodd of Bridge Street, Hastings, Ont., says: "For seven years I had suffered and spent money doctoring, but all to no avail. I could eat but very little, as the food would ferment and sour, making gas, which caused serious heart oppression. I was in constant misery, sour gas would belch from my stomach. I was languid and weak and had no ambition. I did not feel like going anywhere or seeing anyone. There was a constant dull pain in the pit of the stomach. I was unable to sleep, was nervous, restless and would awake more tired than on going to bed. I tried Mi-o-na and soon found relief, and in less than six weeks Mi-o-na had completely cured me."

T. J. Durick, the druggist, sells Mi-o-na tablets at 50 cents a large box, under a rigid guarantee to do all that is claimed for them or money back.

A PHONOGRAPHIC LOCK.

According to a daily press report a safe lock has been invented which is provided with phonographic mechanism so that it can be opened only by the voice of the owner. A mouthpiece like that of a telephone takes the place of a knob on the door and this is provided with the usual style of needle which travels in a groove in the sound record of the phonograph cylinder. Before the safe can be unlocked the password must be spoken into the cylinder by the one who made the original record. The report does not state what would occur if the owner should come down to his office with a bad cold.—Scientific American.

She is survived by three sisters: Mrs. J. H. McShand Montreal; Mrs. Jas. Ritchie, Chippewa Falls and Mrs. Robt. Ritchie, Newcastle. She was predeceased by two sisters, Margaret and Jean and one brother David. She was a native of Neilson, Renfrewshire, Scotland and came to Canada at the age of twenty. Her father, the late Alan Ritchie, had come out the previous year and made his home at Rynnymede. She married eight years later Mr. John Wheeler, who died thirty nine years ago at the age of thirty six. Mrs. Wheeler possessed splendid health all her life. She had a beautiful Christian character. Her life was full of kindness and helpfulness. She will be greatly missed by all her many kindred and friends.

SALVATION ARMY QUARTERS.

It is already very well known that the Salvation Army is holding its Annual week of 8-11-12-13 from May 15th to 18th inclusive. The officers of the local corps have commenced operations in this connection. That the work of the Army deserves the support of the public is now fully admitted although it is not so very long ago since an entirely different view was taken of its methods. It is interesting to note that the work of this remarkable organization continues to make most successful progress, so trust that our readers will support the effort to the best of their ability.

The fact that General Booth has just celebrated his 86th birthday, having spent 68 years of his life in self-denial and labor for the good of suffering humanity, ought to appeal strongly to the public mind and heart. Donations may be sent to Capt. Moore and the officers in charge of the local corps.

We give below a few statistics: No. of corps and societies, 7,684. No. of officers, 15,978. No. of local officers and bandmen, 47,000. No. of countries and colonies, 73. No. of social institutions, 621. No. with accommodation for, 33,000. No. persons assisted daily, 21,000.

"ONE FOOT IN THE GRAVE." If the thousands of people who rush to so worthy a remedy as South American Nerveine as a last resort would get it as a first resort, how much misery and suffering would be spared. If you have any nerve disorder you needn't suffer a minute longer. A thousand testimonials to prove it. Sold by A. E. SHAW'S Pharmacy.—31

Some people take things as they go, and knock them as they go.

JOHN GRIFFITH.

The Quebec Chronicle says: John Griffith the well known Canadian actor, opened a week's engagement at Bennett's Auditorium last evening and was well received by the enthusiastic, if small audience present. The opening bill was "Faust" and the piece was very creditably produced, being staged and acted in a manner that left but little to be desired. The character of "Mephisto" is one in which Mr. Griffith has made a name for himself and his conception of the red rebel bears comparison with the best that have been seen here. The mocking laugh and sardonic rallery which marks the character was brought out with fine artistic effect by Mr. Griffith who proved himself at once an actor of rare power and stirring dramatic ability. Miss Edith Totten made a very welcome "Marguerite" she is evidently possessed of rare gifts as an emotional actress and she last evening invested the character with a charm which honestly shared honors with the star. The supporting company is a small but efficient one. John Arthur in the part of "Faust" gave a capital performance and a word of praise is also due to Mr. Olaf Skjavian as Valentin and Miss Laurene Santley as "Dame Martha".

The production of "Faust" given last night augurs well for highly satisfactory productions of "Macbeth" and "The Hells" which are to be given during the present engagement in all of which Mr. Griffith has won well earned success.

Shrubbs Beats Longboat at Fifteen Miles.

The young men of Newcastle are desirous of organizing an up-to-date Ball team, and with this end in view, they intend to circulate a paper asking the citizens to help them with the necessary funds to enable them to procure the things they need. Now is the time to help the boys out and show the people of New Brunswick that Newcastle is not to be left in the shade, but can put up as good a ball team as any of the large towns in the province. Citizens show your loyalty to your home town by donating what you can. Everybody help.

STOMACH DISTRESS

And all Misery From Indigestion Vanishes Five Minutes Later.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist for a 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take one triangle after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for all stomach misery is at your pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50 cent cases contain more than sufficient cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

Every mother knows that her own children are superior to any other children on the market.
