THE ESTIMATES.

Main Estimates for Year. An Increase of $6,000,000

OVER LAST YEAR.

Improvements for I. C. R. at Campbellton Amount to $37,000.

Ottawa, Jan 18.—The main estimates for 1904-5 as brought down to-day aggregate $68,665,397. Last year the main estimates were $62,935,538, or nearly six millions less. The supplementary estimates last year amounted to over twelve millions, so that if the same method is followed this year the total expenditure will amount to over eighty millions of dollars.

The principal increases are in the departments of railways and canals, $24,660 and the post offices, $125,068, and public works, $141,845. The increase for the militia is $18,395.

In the savings bank department there is an increase of $500 for the Halifax office and $150 for the St. office.

The Tracadie lazaretto gets $500 more. The following are among appropriations for the I. C. R., chargeable to capital. In every instance the sum named is largely a revite of appropriations made last session for the current year:

Dredging at deep water terminals $18,000; increased accommodation at St. John, $35,000; increased accommodation at Moncton, $110,000; increased accommodation at Halifax $200,000; increased accommodation at Memramcook, $4,000; increased accommodation at Charlottetown, $108,000. The only entirely new appropriations for the I. C. R. are: Improvements at Campbellton $25,500; improvements at Campbellton, $12,000.

The following appropriations for public buildings in New Brunswick are in every case revotes and extensions. Our old friend the drill hall vote is again to the front. The Campbellton Public Building, $16,000; St. John Dominion Building, improvements, repairs, etc., $3,000; St. John Drill Hall, $10,000; St. John immigrant detention building, $22,000; St. John quarantine station, Partridge Island, $22,000; Woodstock armory and gun shed, 35,000.

The only change in the steamship subsidies is a reduction by $24,660 of the subsidy for service between Canada and Australia and the granting of a $50,000 new subsidy for the Canada New-Zealand service

TRAIN WRECKED.

All Trains Delayed. Track and Cars Considerably Damaged.

NO CASUALTIES.

A special coming east yesterday morning in charge of Conductor Rogers with driver Thomas on the engine was wrecked 200 yards east of Indian Brook Bridge midway between Salmon Lake and Amqui, yesterday morning. The whole train was derailed and the cars were badly smashed but the freight in the cars was not damaged to any great extent. The wreck is supposed to have been caused by a broken rail.

The Maritime Express coming east was on the west side of the wreck and was delayed there. The accommodation from here went to the scene of the wreck and the passengers, baggage, mails, etc. were transferred from the Maritime to the accommodation which was run through as No. 34.

The Maritime Express going west was transferred to the train on the west side of the wreck.

Hog Reeves—Robt. J. Miller, Dan. Ferguson, James Poirier, Wm. Martin, Thos. Craig.

Inspectors of Grindstones—Fidelle LeBlanc, Peter S. Hamilton, Constables—Wm. A. McNair, Harry McKenzie, Michael Shannon, Fidelle LeBlanc, Robt. Pettigrew, Alex. McCornick, Jos. J. McIntyre.

It was moved that the office of Deputy Game Warden be dispensed with. Carried.

Coun. Miller in referring to the new Highway Act, said that if the Local Government would keep the roads in a better condition than they are at present he would be perfectly satisfied with the new Act.

Coun. Hayes thought that the Council should give the Highway Act a trial and that it was not customary for the County Council to discuss Acts passed by the Local Government. He did not see why Councilors who had been appointed superintendents under the new Act should not sit in the Council.

Coun. Mann was in favor of the Act.

Coun. Barberie said he was ashamed to hear Coun. Mann speak in that manner about the Act. He (Mann) must vote for it. It is our privilege to discuss the Act.

Coun. Mawhinney said he was heartily in accord with all that Coun. Barberie had said re Highway Act.

Coun. Dawson was also in accord with Coun. Barberie and if the opinion of the Council would have any weight with the Local Government he would vote against it.

Moved by Coun. Mawhinney, seconded by Coun. Adams, that the motion or mention placed on the minutes of yesterday relating to Highway Commissioners be and is hereby repealed and the following substituted in lieu thereof:—
"That all Highway Commissioners be and are hereby authorized to pay all amounts due by them to their respective parishes to the Sec'y-Treas. to be deposited by him in the Contingent fund to the credit of their parishes, and that all amounts due Highway Commissioners be paid by this Council chargeable to the different parishes"

Carried.

Adjourned until 2 p. m.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Council opened at 2 p. m. All present as in the morning.

Coun. Barberie again brought up the Highway Act and read resolution as follows:—

Moved by Coun. Barberie, seconded by Coun. Mawhinney, and it is hereby resolved that the County Council of the Municipality of Restigouche does not approve of the Highway Act of 1904 as it takes away from the County Council the right to expend the money collected by its officers and bring the Council under control of the Local Government to a certain extent.

Coun. Hayes moved as an amendment that the resolution be not entertained.

Coun. Adams said that he thought the amendment was out of order. Coun. Golden asked if the objection of the Council to this Act would have any weight with the Local Government.

Coun. Miller said that the Government was taking power out of the hands of the Council and that they should act cautiously.

Coun. Adams thought that the object of Coun. Barberie's motion was more to find out the opinion of the Council than to object to the Act itself.

Motion was carried. Year: Adams Barberie, Dawson, Golden, Jamieson, Mawhinney, Miller (7) Neas, Bernard, Culligan, Hayes, Mann (4)

Secretary read the report of committee appointed for the purpose of interviewing Mr. Cragg, Manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, Dalhousie, in regard to interest on daily balance to the credit of the County in that bank.

It was moved by Coun. Miller, and seconded by Coun. Mann that the report be received and adopted. Carried.

Coun. Adams explained to the Council the arrangement they had made with the bank and thought it would prove satisfactory to the Council.

Coun. Hayes—Will the bargain with the bank be any better to-day than it was twelve months ago?

Coun. Adams—As Mr. Cragg had promised to allow the Council the interest on the daily balance for the past year showed that he meant to do what was right.

Coun. Miller moved that the committee on accounts meet forthwith and look accounts held over.

Carried.

Committee appointed for the purpose of looking into the matter of interest of money on deposit in Royal Bank brought in the following resolution:—

Municipality of Restigouche, Gentlemen:—Your committee appointed to interview the manager of the Royal Bank of Canada regarding the rate of interest to be allowed by said bank on the funds of the Municipality deposited from time to time therein beg leave to report as follows:— We have met Mr. Cragg who has promised to give you 3½ p.c. interest on your daily balance for the year past, statement to be made, presented at your next July session, but refuses to allow 3½ p.c. on your daily balance of current account for the present year.

THE CARNIVAL

A Successful Affair. Many Good Costumes.

WELL PATRONIZED.

Original Features—The Port Arthur Restaurant And
The Hobo Band.

The carnival on Friday night of last week was a great success in every sense of the word. The costumes were many and varied and many of them showed that time and patience had been given in the make up and the event itself will be one long remembered by all who attended.

The ladies prize was awarded to Miss Maud O'Keefe and the gentlemen' to Geo Lemieux.

The prize for the most original costume was carried off by Dr. Sprout and S. W. Dimock. They had a small refreshment booth on the ice with a sign above it "Port Arthur Restaurant" on the sides of which were tacked placards giving the seige bill of fare, also an announcement "that provisions were getting very short as Gen. Stoessel had eaten the leather ends off his suspenders." The Dr. and Mr. Dimock were costumed as Chinamen and were busily engaged in making sausages. Rats, cats, etc. were on display in front of the booth.

Another good feature was the Hobo Band. The get-up was good and the music, although weird, relieved the monotony and was appreciated by all. We would suggest that the Hobo band continue practising and give us music in the rink one night a week.

The King of Terrors
Is Consumption.
And Consumption is caused by neglect to cure the dangerous Coughs and Colds.
The balsamic odor of the newly cut pine buds and invigorates the lungs, and even consumptives improve and revive amid the perfume of the pines. This fact has long been known to physicians, but the essential healing principle of the pine has never before been separated and refined as it is in
NORWAY PINE SYRUP.
It combines the life-giving lung-healing virtue of the Norway Pine with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing Herbs and Balsams. It cures Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, and all affections of the bronchial tubes and air passages. Mrs. M. B. Lisle, Eagle Head, N.S., writes: "I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for coughs and think it is a fine remedy, the best we have ever used." A number of people here have great faith in it as it cures every time.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY
The Best Made
"In my opinion Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best made for colds," says Mrs. Cora Walker, of Porterville, California. There is no doubt about its being the best. No other will cure a cold so quickly. No other is so pure a preventive of pneumonia. No other is so pleasant and safe to take. There are good reasons why it should be preferred to any other. The fact is that few people are satisfied with any other after having once used this remedy. For sale by all druggists.

opinion that the Council should pass a resolution showing that they opposed to it. He said that as there were two members present who had received appointments under the new Act the Council was not able to deal with the question. He did not think that these gentlemen were fit persons to sit in the County Council, for their mouths were closed because of appointments received. He would like to hear the opinion of every member of the Council on the subject. He referred to the asylum matter and did not think that the County should be taxed for strangers, and that those who had property should be compelled to pay; but in case they were not able to pay then it was the duty of the Council to pay for them.

AN INACTIVE LIVER
A CONSTIPATION HEADACHE
soon set right by
BEECHAM'S PILLS
TO SET YOUR LIVER WORKING RIGHT
is absolutely imperative if you are to get any comfort from life. A torpid liver can be a very dangerous condition and should not be neglected. Few medicines act so thoroughly, promptly and safely as Beecham's Pills. They are vigorous but mild, and cause no inconvenience or nausea.
TO BE RID OF CONSTIPATION
There is no remedy quite as good as Beecham's Pills, not only to loosen the bowels but in the after effects. There is no binding up afterward, as these Pills aid Nature in a natural way. Persons chronically constipated can become regular and be rid of the consequent discomforts formerly theirs by use of BEECHAM'S PILLS.

NEW CARLISLE

A special meeting of the municipal council of New Carlisle was held on Saturday evening the 14th. It being the first meeting since the election of councillors. W. L. Kempfer was unanimously chosen Mayor for 1905.
The chief business on hand was considering plans and specifications for rebuilding the Ray Bridge. Tenders will shortly be called for the above purpose.

Quite a number of weddings have taken place here during the past few weeks in spite of the cold weather and bad roads.

The funeral of Mrs. Andrew Starnes aged 86 years occurred on Tuesday the 10th inst.

We regret to hear of the illness of Miss Adams, aunt of Sheriff Sheppard and hope she may soon recover her advanced age.

Among us again we are pleased to notice the portly form of Mr. Amos Hall who has been for some years absent in the U. S.

cial men has now set in with its accomdiarrhoea. I suffered severely from this terrible disease for over three years

did me any good until I tried Cham-Remedy. Two small bottles of which entirely cured me and I have since had no return of the disease."

83 years of age, died on the 9th inst.
Mr. Birmingham was a native of Perce
He came to the place when a youth and was united in marriage to Miss M. Sutton who preceded him to that unknown land a few years ago.

His occupation was that of a farmer.
He was well and favorably known to all the vicinity. During the last 20 years of his life owing to his advanced age, he felt weak, his health was failing, a few weeks ago all strength completely left him, he sank lower and lower until he peacefully passed away being fully assured that he was exchanging the troubles of this life for the joys of the next in the home of God.

The funeral was held at the Roman Catholic church which had been beautifully decorated, the singing was splendid. Mr. J. B. Plourde was especially kind. Mr. Birmingham had been invited for the circumstance. The pall bearers were Mr. R. Sutton, G. Sutton, G. Sutton, J. W. Keays, E. Keays nephews of the deceased. The remains were laid at rest in the village cemetery.

sylvania. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional bled with." For sale by all druggists.

PERCE

We are glad to note from time to time in Events, some items of importance about the construction, etc. of the S. S. Lady Ellen who will be on the Bay des Chaleurs service, the coming season.

This boat which is built expressly to suit the passenger and freight service on the coast, should beyond doubt, be a great improvement on what we have had those late years. The management being, we understand, at Campbellton and in good hands all tends towards a first class service in future
this being done.

The interprovincial Navigation Co. will deserve the most hearty thanks of the whole Gaspe coast without forgetting the still more important point that it will merit due encouragement, in order that the capital put in the enterprise will turn out a fair profit.

Municipal elections are all over, the contest was fairly hot, polling lasted two days, though a comparatively small vote was polled owing to bad weather and roads at the time. Mayor O'Brien and Mr. John LaFlamme carried the election by large majorities over their opponents.

Mr. M. J. Furlong and Thomas
Simmons for the Irishtown division.
However as the Can. des Roches division did not hold, having a representation this year Mr. M. J. Furlong was allowed to come in third best and is also elected. He will have the seat which belongs by rights to a Cannes des Roches man.

Those most prominent who support ed Mr. Furlong and Mr. Simmons, were Mr. F. X. Caron, Wm. J.
Lavioie and Mr. Auguste Beaudry.

The gentlemen who promise our neighboring parishes that he would be Mayor this year, will have to apply for an extension of time to fulfill his promise and should get it on the ground that he did his best.

A meeting of the council will take place on Monday the 23rd inst for the election of Mayor.

Gaspe Peninsula

The cold wave still holds good in this section of the country.

On Sunday Jan 15th the mercury dropped to 45 below zero at Gaspe Basin and keeps near the 30 mark almost daily. Old settlers say the like has not been known within their memory.

The snow fall has been light up to date.

A party of five hunters returned recently from a trip on the York River having shot ten caribou. Two of the party came home sick, Stillman Paterson of Gaspe Bay South with inflammation of the lungs and Elias Tuzo with an attack of pleurisy. The services of Dr. McCartney who has been kept pretty busy of late had to be obtained. Both parties are now better.

The marriage of Mr. Godfrey Howell and Miss Annie LaCouture, both parties of Sandy Beach took place on Tuesday Jan 17th. The marriage ceremony being performed by Rev.
Father Gauthier in the R. C. Church
at Gaspe Basin.

Wilbert A. Miller of Peninsula has been confined to the house for some time with a severe attack of quinsy.
We are happy to say he is recovering and hope e'er long to see him out again.

The Miller Bros. are busily engaged hauling logs to their mill at which they intend making some improvements for the coming spring putting in an extra saw and other machinery.

Commercial travellers are arriving at Gaspe Basin daily taking orders for the usual supply of spring goods.

RUSSIA'S CRISIS.

Russia seems to be face to face with a national upheaval alongside of which the French reign of terror will perhaps pale into insignificance. It is to be hoped, however, that such may not prove to be the case and that no fire eater such as Mirabeau or Danton will be found to rend the nation asunder. It is plain, however, that the Czar has again harkened to ill advice and that if he does not speedily act independent of his autocratic advisers the nation will be in the throes of a terrible revolution. To-day it is not too late to act. To-morrow it may be.

AN UNUSUAL CASE.

A singular case has been decided in court here. Mrs. L. Brossard, widow, resides in a rented house at 401 Rivard street, and her landlord moved to have the lease cancelled on the ground that the woman used the house more as a menagerie than as a place of human habitation. It was set forth that about a hundred cats were kept by this lonely widow.

Singular indeed! Most tenants are the happy possessors of one cat only. This feline when not engaged in lapping up milk, hunts one or two of the innumerable animals kept on the premises by the landlord. The tenant may move but the landlord's pretty little brown pets stay on forever.

There were 259,190,000 letters mailed in Canada last year. Just think if you had written one letter less the total would have been only 259,189,000.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Moved by Coun Miller, seconded by Coun Barberie that the report be adopted. Carried.

Coun Barberie reported that the bills held over were correct and recommended payment. On motion bills passed.

Council adjourned until 10 a.m. Friday morning.

FRIDAY MORNING.

Council re-assembled at 10 a.m. on Friday, Warden Arsenau in the chair. Councillors all present. Minutes read and adopted.

Moved by Coun. Hayes, seconded by Coun. Miller that intermission be granted to give the assessment time to meet. Carried.

Coun. Adams moved that an order be drawn in favor of the Overseers of the Poor for the following parishes—Colbourne, $14.68; Dalhousie, $173.50; Addington, $61.55. This was the balance to the credit of the respective parishes. Carried.

The report brought in by the assessment showed that the assessment for this year was $1,100 less than last year.

Coun. Golden asked if it was right for Stewart Beckingham to pay poll tax in both Dalhousie and Colbourne parishes.

Coun. Mawhinney said that he thought that Beckingham should pay poll tax and income taxes in the parish of Colbourne as he earned his living there.

Coun. Adams—In refunding taxes we are establishing a wrong precedent and interfering with the assessors. The matter rested with the assessors.

Coun. Hayes—Beckingham should pay his poll tax in Colbourne and would move that the poll tax for Dalhousie be refunded. Coun. Adams said they weren't order a refund of taxes to Beckingham.

Coun. Hayes—We can do anything that is just and proper.

Secretary showed collectors book showing that Beckingham was assessed 75c for poll tax in the parish of Dalhousie.

Mr. Mott, the Council's legal adviser, said that it was not legal to tax a man in two parishes. Said he should pay poll tax where he was domiciled, but that it was his duty to pay all taxes levied on him and then made protest to Council.

Coun Dawson moved that the 65c poll tax levied in Colbourne be refunded to Beckingham and charged to the parish of Colbourne.

Coun Mawhinney moved as an amendment, seconded by Coun. Jamieson, that Beckingham be refunded 75c poll tax and charge it to the parish of Dalhousie.

Coun Barberie—This man is not properly before the Council and the Council has nothing at all to do with it. Would like to see the law on the subject.

Coun. Adams—How can a man who knows nothing at all about the question vote on it?

Coun. Mann—Our legal adviser has said that poll tax had to be refunded but Mr. Beckingham has not put the matter in a proper manner and he (Mann) would vote against it on that account.

Motion withdrawn.

Coun Hayes thought that the man should be repaid.

Coun Adams asked Coun Hayes how he would vote if the man was from Eldon.

Coun Mawhinney said the assessors had all the necessary power to order a refund of the tax that it should not come through the council at all.

Coun Barberie moved that the matter lie over until the July session. Carried.

Council adjourned until 2 o'clock.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Council met at 2 p.m. Warden in the chair; Councillors all present.

Secy read minutes of a.m. session which were adopted.

Coun Golden moved that the assessment list for the Parish of Dalhousie be reconsidered. Carried.

Coun Mawhinney brought up the lockup matter in connection with the town of Campbellton. He said they had several meetings and had come near to a settlement in the matter. They submitted their side of the contract to the Town Council whose committee had passed the matter through the Town Council. Coun Mawhinney read letter from Mr. Verge re lockup.

Coun Adams said that the legal advisor had made the matter clear.

Coun Mann—Can we deal with that question now? I thought that it was necessary to get special legislation.

Coun Hayes—Do we get any revenue from it?

Coun Mawhinney—We get $3.00 per month from the dwelling house, and we have two rooms which could be fixed up for offices or a dwelling house which would bring in considerable more.

Coun Barberie—Is the building insured?

Coun Mawhinney—Yes; for $1,600 in the County's name.

Coun Hayes was of the opinion that if it was a paying institution they should hang on to it.

Coun Mawhinney—As far as a paying business goes there is a little money in it, but there is considerable confusion in the accounts in connection with the building. One account was for fuel. Take it all in all there was not much money in it, but it would be much more pleasant for all if Campbellton would take over the building.

Coun Barberie—Did not the town of Campbellton advance money on that building?

Coun Adams—That has been settled.

Coun Adams explained that the matter could not be properly arranged by this council. He said Campbellton Town Council thought it fair that they should have control of the insurance so as to be able to replace it in case of fire.

Coun Miller—The Council should pass a simple resolution making the building a lockup.

Coun Mawhinney said that some money could be made out of the building but as it was at present it was hard to decide what proportion of the fuel account should be paid by the county.

Coun Miller—The Council has heard what the Campbellton said in reference to the lockup matter and they have carried out their part, having added the clause about insurance.

Coun Hayes thought that the matter should lie over till July.

Coun Dawson moved that the matter lie over till July. Seconded by Coun Mann.

Coun Mawhinney—The council is placing me in a very awkward position.

Coun Barberie thought the matter should be dealt with at once.

Coun Mawhinney moved as an amendment to Coun Dawson's motion that the matter be dealt with at present session. Amendment lost. Original motion carried.

Coun Mawhinney said that it was not fair that several accounts could not be paid and that the Public Lands and Building Committee's hands were tied.

Coun Hayes—As all accounts have been passed these accounts should lie over till July.

Coun Mawhinney thought it unfair to Mr. J. H. Taylor to leave his bill unpaid till July.

POINT LA NIM

The winter is moving by slow but sure, but the storms are coming swift and fast, which is our never failing friend about this time of the year.

A word about the fishing business of this place might not go amiss, although it can't be a favorable report for the fishermen's pockets as it proved a failure more Dr. than Cr. this year; but nevertheless we can have our little parties for sport. The last one happened at Mr and Mrs Jas McNeish's with only two or three hours notice gathered up a crowd of about two dozen. Lunch being served at Eleven o'clock kept the jovial crowd for three more hours when Alexander Ferguson sang a song for the good and welfare of the event and then with thanks to their host and hostess for the kindness shown them they all said adieu.

LADY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

From Being Killed by a Runaway Team on Main Street, Moncton

Mrs John Russell, while driving up Main Street about four o'clock yesterday afternoon had a most miraculous escape from fatal or serious injury, as the result of a bad runaway.

The runaway team belonged to Mr J A McAnn and were attached to a pair of bobsleds. They started near the city market and ran up the street.

When near Lute street they overtook Mrs Russell, who was driving leisurely up town. Some pedestrians, including Dr Steeves, Ald. McFarlane and Fryers, heard the runaway coming in time to shout to the lady and apprise her of her danger.

The team, however, was so close that Mrs Russell had not time to get out of the road. But when she saw that a collision was inevitable she had the presence of mind to stoop forward in the sleigh, an act that probably saved her life.

The affrighted horses dashed on top of the sleigh, one on each side, while the heavy pole struck the back of the sleigh gliding over it and pinning it hard and fast.

Those who witnessed the occurrence believed that the occupant of the sleigh must have been either killed or very seriously injured.

It was thought that the end of the pole had struck the lady, which, if such had been the case, must have been attended with fatal results.

Ald Fryers, Dr. Steeves, Messrs. William McDougall, John Thompson and others nearby rushed to the scene of the collision and, extricated the sleigh from the bad tangle and then it was discovered that the occupant had escaped without a scratch.

Witnesses of the runaway say that Mrs Russell's escape was simply miraculous and they cannot understand how she escaped injury. The horses had the sleigh wedged in between them and for a few moments there was considerable excitement. In order to extricate Mrs. Russell's team from its perilous position some of the harness on the runaways had to be cut and considerable lifting done to get the rig out.

It may readily be imagined that although Mrs Russell fortunately escaped injury, yet, the exciting experience was a great shock to her.

The body of the sleigh was badly smashed as the result of being struck by the runaways, but the horses sustained no injuries consequent.

PROGRESS OF THE WEST.

Hon. A. G. Blair, Chairman of Railway Commission, Greatly Surprised at Marked Advancement in Evidence.

Hon. A. G. Blair, Chairman of the Railway Commission, recently returned to the capital after an absence, in company with his colleague, Dr. Mills, of nearly two months in the Northwest and British Columbia. "I certainly was very greatly surprised," said Mr. Blair, "at the progress which has been made in the west during the last two years. I saw almost all the towns, with the exception of those off the main line, and all had grown in population and business. There were none that failed to show evidence of prosperity. It goes without saying that Winnipeg's progress has been phenomenal. Some of the officials there told me that no less than 700 new buildings were now in course of erection. On very notable blocks of them, five or six storied structures of brick or stone, are to be seen, and those previously located are adding to and extending their accommodation. In my opinion there is a great future in store for Winnipeg. It is the conduit through which the business originating in the vast area north of Winnipeg and westward as far as the Rockies must pass. The C. P. R. have acquired the necessary property and are now establishing yards which are claimed to be the largest of any railway in the world, consisting of 70 miles of tracks, and an enormous hotel. The sum of their expenditures in Winnipeg amounts to about $3,000,000.

"There has been very marked progress in Regina. The country north of it, which is tributary to the Regina, or Appleton & Long Lake Railway, is absorbing quite a number of settlers. Prince Albert is improving its excellent prospects of becoming a very fine town. Calgary has grown immensely, and has a very promising future before it. The C. P. R. have made substantial progress with irrigation works in the vicinity of Calgary, which are intended to serve a million and a half of acres. I saw a 55-foot cutting in connection with the main irrigation canal, and the soil was a fine rich loam. How much deeper that rich soil goes I cannot tell. There will be three secondary canals aggregating in distance 115 miles, in addition to the main channel. Then there will be distributing canals, comprising a total length of 900 miles. The area of land to be served by the irrigation works will support, it is computed, a farming population of 250,000 souls.

"Subsidiary to the area watered by the irrigation works are another million and a half of grazing lands of the best quality. I ran up from Calgary to Edmonton, and the latter is steadily growing in importance. All along the intervening distance are established towns and settlements that are rapidly growing in importance. There is a numerous settlement of Galicians extending eastward from Edmonton, and comprising perhaps about 15,000 souls. The other settlers speak very highly of them. They are hard working, thrifty, and have a well-to-do appearance. A number of roller mills have been sent into the country north of Edmonton, one of them for the Hudson's Bay Company. I took the trouble when in Winnipeg to inquire of Governor Chipman of the progress of the west during the last two years. I saw almost all the towns, with the exception of those off the main line, and all had grown in population and business. There were none that failed to show evidence of prosperity. It goes without saying that Winnipeg's progress has been phenomenal. Some of the officials there told me that no less than 700 new buildings were now in course of erection. On very notable blocks of them, five or six storied structures of brick or stone, are to be seen, and those previously located are adding to and extending their accommodation. In my opinion there is a great future in store for Winnipeg. It is the conduit through which the business originating in the vast area north of Winnipeg and westward as far as the Rockies must pass. The C. P. R. have acquired the necessary property and are now establishing yards which are claimed to be the largest of any railway in the world, consisting of 70 miles of tracks, and an enormous hotel. The sum of their expenditures in Winnipeg amounts to about $3,000,000.

"Subsidiary to the area watered by the irrigation works are another million and a half of grazing lands of the best quality. I ran up from Calgary to Edmonton, and the latter is steadily growing in importance. All along the intervening distance are established towns and settlements that are rapidly growing in importance. There is a numerous settlement of Galicians extending eastward from Edmonton, and comprising perhaps about 15,000 souls. The other settlers speak very highly of them. They are hard working, thrifty, and have a well-to-do appearance. A number of roller mills have been sent into the country north of Edmonton, one of them for the Hudson's Bay Company. I took the trouble when in Winnipeg to inquire of Governor Chipman of the

"There has been very marked progress in Regina. The country north of it, which is tributary to the Regina, or Appleton & Long Lake Railway, is absorbing quite a number of settlers. Prince Albert is improving its excellent prospects of becoming a very fine town. Calgary has grown immensely, and has a very promising future before it. The C. P. R. have made substantial progress with irrigation works in the vicinity of Calgary, which are intended to serve a million and a half of acres. I saw a 55-foot cutting in connection with the main irrigation canal, and the soil was a fine rich loam. How much deeper that rich soil goes I cannot tell. There will be three secondary canals aggregating in distance 115 miles, in addition to the main channel. Then there will be distributing canals, comprising a total length of 900 miles. The area of land to be served by the irrigation works will support, it is computed, a farming population of 250,000 souls.

Uncle Terry

CHARLES CLARK MUNN

Copyright, 1900, by LEE & SHEPARD

"I should be glad to have her come and visit me. I am sure I should love her."

"I wish she could," he answered, "but she is a schoolteacher, and that duty keeps her occupied most of the time. I shall bring her down here next summer." Then, feeling it unfair to conceal the fact that he knew her history any longer, he said: "I beg your pardon, Miss Terry, but I know what is at the bottom of your melancholy moods, and I knew it the second night I was here last summer. Your father told me your history then."

"He did? You knew my unfortunate history that night?"

"I did, every word of it," he answered, "tenderly, and I should have told you I did it if I had not been afraid it would hurt you to know I knew it then."

Her eyes fell, and a look of pain came into her face.

"Please banish this mood from now on and never let it return," he said hastily. "I have come to tell you that in the near future the mystery of your life may be solved and, what is better, that a legacy awaits your claiming. The matter has been in the hands of an unprincipled lawyer for some months, but now he is dead, and I have taken hold of it and shall not rest until you have your rights. We shall know what your heritage is and all about your ancestors in a few months." Then he added tenderly, "Would it pain you to hear more about it, or would you rather not?"

"Father has told me a little of it, but I know he has kept most of the trouble to himself. It's his way. Since he came back from Boston he has acted like his old self, and no words can tell how glad I am. As for the money, I must and shall go to him, every penny of it, and all the comfort I can give him as long as he lives as well."

"I thank you for what you have said," said Albert quickly. "For now I shall dare to tell you another story before I go back. Not tonight," he added, smiling, as she looked at him curiously, "but you shall hear it in due time—up at the cove, maybe, if tomorrow afternoon is pleasant. I, too, am superstitious in some ways."

Perhaps to keep Terry from guessing that his story was he talked upon every subject that might interest her, avoiding the one nearest his heart. It came with a surprise when the little clock chimed 11, and he at once arose and begged her pardon for the possible trespass upon conventional hours. "You will go up to the cove with me?" he asked as he paused a moment at the foot of the stairs.

"I shall enjoy it very much, and I have a favor I want to ask of you, which is to let me make a sketch of you just where you sat the time your boat drifted away."

When he retired it was long after he heard the clock downstairs strike the midnight hour, and in his dreams he saw Terry's face smiling in the firelight.

CHAPTER XXXV.

"I go in to give ye a taste o' mackerel fishin'," said Uncle Terry the next morning after breakfast. "We'll go over to the fish house, an' ye can put on some o'lers an' say ye got good clothes." On the way they met the well remembered old lady Albert had first noticed at the prayer meeting. She recognized him and, offering a rather solid hand, for she had been spreading fish on the racks, exclaimed: "In the Lord's name I thank ye, Mr. Page, fer rememberin' a poor old creature like me an' sendin' that dress. I make sure the Lord's tched yer ye be."

"I am glad my little remembrance pleased you," answered Albert pleasantly. "It was only a trifle, and you need not feel obligated for it." He kept on after Uncle Terry, not wishing to waste any time, but she followed to add more thanks, ending with, "God bless ye, sir, an' may be warm the heart o' one good girl, fer ye deserve it."

When he had donned a suit of olives and Uncle Terry was pulling out of the little cove Albert said: "That old lady is the most pious person I ever met. No one could doubt she means every word she says."

"Wait, it's about all the consolation she gets out o' life, an' 'twixt you an' me, she takes more'n all the rest o' the believers here," answered Uncle Terry, "an' at times I 'most envy her fer it. She's sorter cracked 'bout religion; jestwise that's no notion, an' mebbe it's lucky she is, see'n she's poor an' nothin' but that fer comfort. She's smart 'nuff other ways, though, an' there ain't nothin' goin' on here she don't know. She's kind hearted, too, an' if she had anything ter give she'd share her last cent with ye. If ennybody's sick she's allus ready to help. Ther's lots o' wofuls folk in the world than the Widder Leach." And then, as if that crowned the sum total of her virtues, he added, "Telly an' Lissy thinks lots o' her."

He paused for breath and, turning to see if they were heading right, resumed his strong and steady pulling. "Thar," observed Uncle Terry, pointing to a long and narrow ledge, "is whar Telly started fer shore all alone just nineteen years ago last March. And then he added while he watched Albert's averted face. "Twas an unlucky day fer the poor sailors an' a lucky one fer us, fer she's been a heap o' comfort ever since."

"Tell me, Uncle Terry, why it is she feels so sensitive regarding her history and what is the cause of the peculiar moods you spoke of last summer. I noticed it last evening, and it pained me very much."

"It's hard tellin'. She's a girl that's given ter broodin' a good deal, an' mebbe when she was told the facts she began ter suspect some o' her ancestors would be lookin' her up some day. She alius has been a good deal by herself since she got her schoolin', an' most likely doin' lots o' thinkin'. But Telly's all right, an' the most willin' an' tender hearted creature I ever seen or heard on. She'll make an amazin' good wife fer some man if she ever finds the right 'un."

When they reached the island Uncle Terry landed and, going to the top of a cliff, scanned the sea for signs of fish. "Mackerel's cur's fish," he observed to Albert, who had followed. "They're good deal like some wimmie-ye never know whar ter find 'em. Yesterday mornin' that cove jest inside o' the pint was 'live with 'em, an' today I can't see a sign o' one. We better sit here an' wait a spell till I sig-t a school."

To a dreamer like Albert Page the limitless ocean view he now enjoyed lifted him far above mackerel and their habits. His mind was also occupied a good deal by Telly, and while he desired to please the kindly old man, who imagined fishing would entertain him, his heart was not in it.

"It alius sets me thinkin', too, an' wonderin' whar we cum from an' whar we air borned, an' our story is so amazin' short besid's We air born, grow up, work a spell, git old an' die, an' that's the end. Why, it don't seem only last year when I cum to the Cape, an' it's goin' high on to thirty now, an' I'm 'most through my spell o' life. What puzzles me is whar's the good o' bein' born at all if ye've got ter die so soon? An' mebbe all that, if life's the Lord's blessed, as the widder Leach, whar are so many o' born to suffer or be crippled all their lives? An' whar are snakes an' all sorts o' vermin, to say nothin' o' cheatin' lawyers, like Frye, ever born at all?"

Albert smiled at the coupling of Frye with vermin. "There are a good many wiser heads than mine, Uncle Terry, that have never been able to answer your question," he replied, "and I doubt if they ever will. To my mind the origin of life is an enigma, the wide variations in matters of health and ability an injustice, and the end a blank wall that none who scales ever recovers with tidings of the beyond. As some one has expressed it: Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry."

"An' right thar," put in Uncle Terry earnestly, "is whar I alius envy the believers, as the widder calls 'em, fer they are satisfied with be' yond an' have it all pict'ed out in thar minds, even to what the streets are paved with an' the kind o' music they're goin' ter have. It's all guesswork, in my way o' thinkin', but they are sure o' it, an' that feelin' is lots o' comfort to 'em when they are drawin' near the end. I've been a sort o' scoffer all my life an' can't help bein' a doubter.

but there are times when I envy the Widder Leach an' the rest on 'em the delusion I b'lieve they're laborin' under."

"But do you believe death ends all consciousness?" asked Albert seriously. "Have you no hope, ever, of a life beyond this blank wall?"

"Sartin' I have hopes, same as all on us has, but I wish I was more sure my hopes was goin' ter be realized. Once in awhile I git the feelin' thar alius no use in hopin', an' then a little suthin keeps sayin' 'Mebbe-mebbe-mebbe-an' I feel more cheerful again."

Albert looked at the roughly clad and weathered old man who sat near, and in whose words lurked an undertone of sadness mingled with a faint hope, and in an instant came back a certain evening months before when the Widder Leach had uttered a prayer that had stirred his feelings as no such utterance ever had before. All the pathos of that simple petition, all its abiding faith in God's goodness and wisdom, all its utter self abnegation and absolute confidence in a life beyond the grave, came back, and all the consolation that feeling surely held for the old and poverty environed soul who uttered it impressed him in sharp contrast to the doubting "mebbe-mebbe" of Uncle Terry.

As Albert looked out to where the waves were breaking upon a ledge, and back again to this old man sitting with bowed head beside him, a sincere regret that it was not in his power to utter one word that would aid in dispelling the clouds of doubt came to him. "Since I lack in faith myself," he thought, "all I can say will only increase his doubt. I wish I had as much faith as the widder, but I have not, and possibly never shall have."

For a long time he sat in silence, living over the years during which skepticism had been slowly but surely growing upon him, and then Uncle Terry suddenly looked up at him. It is likely the old man's keen eyes read at a glance what was in Albert's mind, for he said: "It don't do no good ter brood over this matter o' believin', Mr. Page; I've wished I thought different many a time, an' more so now I'm gittin' near the end o' life, but I can't, an' so thar's no use in worryin'. Our 'pions' bout these matters are a good deal due to our bringin' up an' the experiences we've met with. Mine, connected with those as has perished religion, has, to say the least, been unfortunate, but, as I said afore, I wish I believed different."

He paused and then he added, "This hopin' ain't alius no use in worryin'."

"Telly, an' me sorter 'spected that Telly was the magnet."

best for some on us either, fer it's hopin' fer some one to cum year after year that's made Telly whar she is an' grieved Lissy an' me more'n she ever knew."

Albert looked curiously at the old man beside him, and a new feeling of trust and affection came to him. In some ways Uncle Terry seemed like his own father. Then, following that, came a sudden impulse to be frank with him.

"Uncle Terry," he said, "I have a little story to tell you, and, as it comes close to you, I believe it's right that you should know it. The first time I saw Telly I said to myself, 'That girl is a prize any man may feel proud to win.' I asked her if I might write to her, and what with her few letters and the little I have seen of her I feel that she is the one I want for a wife. I have not even hinted it to her yet, and before I do I would like to feel that you are satisfied with me. May I have your consent to win her if I can?"

Uncle Terry reached out and grasped Albert's hand, and shaking it cordially, answered, "Ye hev my best wishes in the matter, an' I wouldn't say that if I didn't think ye worthy o' her." Then he added with a droll smile, "Lissy an' me sorter 'spected that Telly was the magnet, an' I wouldn't say that if I didn't think ye worthy o' her."

"I thank you for your confidence and consent," replied Albert gratefully. "I am earning an income that is more than sufficient for two, and if Telly will say 'yes' I shall be the happiest man on earth. And now," he added, "let's go fishin', Uncle Terry."

"I guess it's 'bout time," was the answer, "fer thar's two schools workin' into the cove, an' we'll have some fun."

Three hours after, when they landed at the cove fairly saturated with pulling in the gany little mackerel and happy as two boys, Telly met them with a smile and the news that dinner was ready.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"We'll go in my boat," said Telly the next afternoon when she and Albert were ready to start on their trip to the cove, and, unfastening a small annex to Uncle Terry's boathouse, she showed him a dainty cedar craft, cushioned and carpeted. "You may help me launch the Sea Shell," she added smiling, "and then you may steer."

"No, that is the lady's privilege in all voyages," he answered, "and we must begin this one right."

It was a good four mile pull to the mouth of the inlet, and when he helped his fair passenger out he said: "Do you mean to say you rowed up here alone every day to work on that picture, Telly? You will let me call you Telly now, won't you?"

"Why not? All my friends do, and I feel you are my friend." Then she added: "Now I am going to have my revenge and make you pose while I sketch this time. It was the other way before."

"I am glad it is," he said, "for my arms are too tired to use for an hour. How do you want me, sat on the rock fast asleep, the way I was when my boat drifted away?"

"Oh, no, that would look as if you were dead, and as this is to be my reminder of you I want you very much alive." As for the pose she wanted Albert to assume, she could not determine which she liked the best.

"I want to sketch you in the position most natural to you here," she said finally, "and must ask you to choose that yourself."

"Let us trim the boat the way mine was that day, and I will sit beside it and smoke while you work."

The idea was adopted, and while Telly sketched he smoked, contented to watch the winsome face, so oblivious to his admiring glances.

"There," she observed, after a half hour of active penciling, "please lay your chair aside and look pleasant. I want to catch the expression of your face."

When the sketch was completed she asked if he had any suggestions to make.

"Only one. I would like you in the picture and sitting beside me."

"Would rather not be in it," she replied absently. "I only want to see you as you are here today. It may be a long time before you come to the Cape again."

"Would you like me to come often?" "Of course," she answered, turning away her face. "It is so lonesome here, and there is no one I care to talk with except father and mother and Aunt Leach and Mandy Oaks."

Albert's heart began to beat with unusual speed. Never in his life before had he felt the impulse to utter words of love to any woman. "Telly," he said, "I promised to tell you a little story here today, but it's all said in a few words. I love you, and I want you to share my life and all that I can do to make you happy. A trifle inconvenient, but expressive."

For a moment, while the tide of feeling surged through that queen of feeling and into her cheeks, even to the tips of her ears, she was silent, and then, as both her hands went to her face, she almost whispered: "Oh, no, no; I cannot! I can never leave father and mother alone here! It would break my heart!"

"But you do care a little for me, don't you, Telly?" he begged, trying to draw her hands away from her blushing face. "Just a little, Telly; only say a little to give me heart."

And then, as one of the hands he was trying to gain was yielded and as he softly stroked and then raised it to his lips, she was silent and then, as he turned her pleading eyes to him and said: "You won't be angry, will you? And you will come and see me once in awhile, won't you? And let me paint a picture to give you when you come?"

IN STATE OF SEIGE

Proclamation issued. Wholesale Arrests Made

GRAVE SITUATION

Strikers at Moscow in Thousands but Few Troops

St. Petersburg, Jan. 24.—St. Petersburg will be declared in a state of seige tomorrow. General Trepoff, until recently chief of police of Moscow, has been appointed governor-general of St. Petersburg, and has taken up his quarters in the Winter Palace. Strangely enough, the only precedent is found in the case of General Trepoff's father, during the reign of nihilistic terrorism under Alexander II., and it is also a strange coincidence that unsuccessful attempts were made on the lives of both.

The aspect of the Russian capital is decidedly more calm. Business, which has been at a complete standstill, has been resumed upon a limited scale. The employees in a few of the smaller factories went back to work today, and the crowds of strikers in the streets were diminished. The troops in evidence were not so numerous as on Monday, and a more confident feeling exists in official circles that the energetic measures which have been inaugurated will ensure the safety and quiet of the city.

Beneath the surface, however, the ferment continues, and the public nervousness and apprehension as to future developments is still unallayed. Secret meetings of different classes in opposition to the existing order of things, were held in various places during the afternoon and evening, but the divergent element which were suddenly brought together by the tragic events of last Sunday, are advancing on divergent plans and no common ground of action has yet been found. Meantime the police are actively searching out the leaders.

Three well known Russian authors and a prominent editor were arrested today, and the prisons are filled with agitators, revolutionists and student orators. Such measures may result in bomb-throwing and terrorism tomorrow, but the consensus of opinion is that the immediate future action of the agitators depend upon what occurs in Moscow and other large cities in Russia. More than 100,000 men are out in the old capital tonight. A telephone message from Moscow to the Associated Press at midnight reported that there had been no disorder there as yet. There will be a big demonstration there tomorrow, and it is feared it will be accompanied by bloodshed.

The situation confronting the military authorities at Moscow is much more serious than that in St. Petersburg. Out of more than 1,000,000 inhabitants of Moscow, more than two-thirds are workmen, including an exceedingly rough and turbulent element. The troops there are less and the city does not lend itself, like St. Petersburg, to natural barriers to prevent the congregation of men. The centre of the town has no bridges and canals, and hills make it difficult for troops to act. Only the gates piercing the walls of the old Chinese town which surrounds the Kremlin would afford the military natural places to bar demonstrators.

At Kovno and Vilna, where strikes also have been begun, the workmen are following the St. Petersburg plan of marching about the city and inducing or forcing other workmen to leave their employment.

The windows and doors of practically every shop and residence in St. Petersburg are boarded up, and at midnight the streets, as on Monday night, were completely deserted, except for troops.

During the day there was a great crop of sensational rumors, including stories of strikers marching to Kolpino to seize the small arms factory there, and of the assassination of General Fullon, the chief of police of St. Petersburg, all of which, on investigation, have turned out to be false. The inhabitants have again been warned to remain in doors.

It is not known definitely whether Father Gapon, the leader of the workmen, is in Moscow or in St. Petersburg. A proclamation said emanate from him has been distributed, indicating that he has gone over body and soul to the social Democrats.

The Man Who Tired Carlyle.

There is a story of Carlyle in his old age having taken the following farewell in his broadest Scotch of a young friend who had had him in charge for weeks and who, while almost always adapting himself to Carlyle's mood, had on a single occasion ventured to disagree with him: "I would have you to know, young man, that you have the capacity of being the greatest bore in Christendom." The boredom had consisted solely in the rather negative sin of not having been convinced of the truth of one of Carlyle's dogmas, a sin all the more heinous because, instead of standing boldly up to Carlyle and declaring his doctrine utterly perverse, the companion had betrayed his weakness by an apologetic tone.

Now, Carlyle liked disciples, and he respected antagonists, but he could not endure being merely thwarted without being thoroughly roused. He felt in that case that he had made no impression at all on his interlocutor; that he had neither won him nor excited him to resistance. And nothing bored him so much as that. Of course it is only exceptionally despotism minds that are bored in this way.—London Spectator.

Heine's Sense of Humor.

Heine's sense of humor did not leave him until the last. A few days before his death Hector Berlioz called on him just as a tiresome German professor was leaving after worrying him with his uninteresting conversation. "I am afraid you will find me very stupid, my dear fellow," he said. "The fact is I have just been exchanging thoughts with Dr. —."

On one occasion when the doctor was examining his chest he asked him, "Can you whistle?" He replied, "Alas, no; not even the pieces of M. Scribe."

Doctor's Advice.

"Is my husband's case serious, doctor?"
"It is very grave, madam. I have left an opiate."
"How often shall I give it to him?"
"He needs absolute rest and quiet. Don't give it to him. Take it yourself."—Collier's.

Jimmie Torrington's Insanity

By COLIN S. COLLINS

Copyright, 1904, By T. C. McClure

When Jimmie Torrington proposed amateur theatricals as a means of lifting the debt from the Kingston Golf club and possibly supplying a foundation for a building fund the golf club crowd decided that he must be crazy.

This belief was strengthened when Torrington placidly consented to act as property man and made no effort to prevent Herbert Ranson's becoming stage manager. It was well known that Kittle Clausen favored these two of her numerous train of admirers, and Carson voiced the general sentiment when he said:

"Jimmie is insane to permit Ranson to be the stage manager. Of course Ranson will cast himself for the hero and make Kittle the heroine, and Jimmie will be out in the cold."

If Torrington realized his error he gave no sign. On the contrary, he amiably insisted upon taking a greater part of the work upon his own shoulders. It was he who hired such costumes as were needed, secured the scenery and even induced a theatrical friend to promise to make up the players on the night of the performance.

Torrington was the type of man who most enjoyed doing things for others. He was not a handsome chap in spite of his bright eyes and clear complexion. He was rather short of stature (dumpy, Ranson called him), and his favor with Kittle Clausen had been gained by his qualities of mind and disposition. Ranson, on the other hand, was as striking in appearance as the hero of a cheap novel. He made an ideal hero for the play, and even at rehearsals he put a deal of feeling into the love scenes with Kittle.

Apparently Torrington was the only one who did not notice the fervor thrown into the rehearsal, and when it was brought to his attention he merely smiled complacently and remarked that he hoped the speaker might be able to play his part as well on the fateful night.

Gradually this indifference was accepted as a silent admission that Torrington had withdrawn from the contest in favor of his more attractive rival, and when he was not around the men began to speak of "poor" Torrington, while the women marveled at the completeness and suddenness of his surrender.

But Torrington was not worried. If he was aware of the compassion of the men and the scorn of the women he did not show it, and his moonlike face was always lighted by a gleam of wisdom as he sat by the prompter's table at rehearsals and watched the proceedings. He acted as useful man about the stage, reading the part of some one unable to attend rehearsal, holding the book as prompter or performing any slight service asked him.

Ranson, who possessed considerable ability as an actor, and who, with his cast of amateurs, but it is not easy to teach the art of acting, and when in the course of time the repetition of mistakes drove him frantic he gradually lost command over his temper and at the dress rehearsal he had to apologize to the entire company, including Kittle, at various times throughout the evening.

The others absolved him, but that evening Torrington walked home with Kittle, to the great surprise of all. Their astonishment would have been greater had they known that the invitation came from Miss Clausen herself.

But if Miss Clausen had transferred her favors to Jimmie in the hope of giving him a ready sympathizer she was in error. Torrington was sorry that her feelings had been hurt, but he was not prepared to admit that Ranson was to blame. Oddly enough, his defense of Ranson served to increase her sense of injury. When the night of the performance arrived she was scarcely civil to the stage manager and flounced into her dressing room with so curt a "good evening" that even Torrington gasped.

Ranson looked surprised, but there was no time then for explanations, and he went off to the dressing room where the professional actor had installed himself.

The shelf in front of the mirror was covered with sticks of paint of all colors, boxes of powder and the various implements of makeup art, all redolent of the cheap perfume added to conceal the rancidity of the grease used as a foundation.

Ranson, to whom the process of making up was not new, submitted to the heavy applications of paint and powder and hurried back to the stage to superintend the final preparations.

Presently Kittle emerged from her dressing room, and he went toward her. She shrank from him. While she knew that makeup was required, she was not accustomed to seeing men with paint on their faces, and there was something oddly repulsive to her appearance of this man with his heavily lined eyebrows, rouged cheeks and whitened temples. It seemed like a ghastly mask of the man she knew, like the badly painted portrait of an acquaintance.

She could scarcely listen to his expressions of penitence at the loss of his temper the night before and halted with positive relief her own call to the makeup room.

The darkening of her eyebrows and lashes, the reddening of lips and cheeks and a dash of powder were all that she required, and she escaped from the chair, glad that no more was needed.

During the first act the excitement of playing was too great to permit her to turn her attention to other thoughts. She could not permit her mind to be diverted for an instant from her next speech, the next move across the stage.

With the second act came greater confidence. It was here that the love scenes commenced, but they did not seem the same as at rehearsal. She could not endure the touch of this man, with his paint covered features, and the penetrating odor of bergamot, heavy almost to nausea, sickened her nostrils. The scene was like a nightmare. Even worse was the last act, with its powerful closing scene. The touch of his greasy lips upon her cheek, the unnatural look of the eyes made brilliant by the dark circles of crayon, startled her, and before the curtain rang down she felt that she should scream.

Leaving the stage after the last tableau, Ranson caught her hand. "Can't you forgive last night, Kittle, and make the 'yes' you have just spoken your answer to the question I have wanted to ask for so long?"

She tore her hand from his grasp. "Don't you dare to speak to me like that," she panted. "If you do not let me go, I shall call Mr. Torrington."

Ranson threw a black look at Torrington, who was placidly gathering up small stage furnishings, dropped her hand and turned away. Kittle turned back to the stage, and Jimmie's honest, unpainted face never seemed so cherubic.

"Jimmie," she asked softly, "do you want to take me home again tonight?"

"Do I?" repeated Torrington. "I'd like to take you to a home of our own, Kittle."

She smiled demurely. "I think you may," she said.

That night Jimmie Torrington addressed his shaggy terrier, "Wriggles," he said solemnly, "when you find in your canine walk of life a lady dog you love be wise. If she looks with favor on a sleeker coated puppy you just get that puppy to run a dog show. It's a sure cure."

And Wriggles blinked an approving eye.
