bring to trial such person or persons."

Mr. Pettypiece, who followed him, dealt almost wholly with railway matters. He made allusion to the wide dissatisfaction regarding freight rates, and strongly urged that the government not only build and control a line from North Bay to Lake Temiscaming, but should also take over the railway from this city to North Bay. Dr. Pyne and Mr. Crawford, opposition members, and Mr. Russell, for the Liberals, also took part in the de-bate, which win continue today. Dr. Pyne approved of the proposal to build a government railway giving connection with New Ontario, spoke in favor of university aid, and pressed the opinion that the govern-ment should embark in pulp and other industries. Mr. Marter did not occupy his desk in the house today, but looked on from the spectators' seat on the floor of the

The directors have pleasure in submitting to the shareholders of the company their annual report, including statements of assets and liabilities as at Dec. 31, 1900.

The net profits for the year, after paying all operating expenses and all charges of every kind at the head office and mines, amounted to $141,064 10. This amount has been derived from the various departments of the company's business, viz .: The sale of coal and coke, and from waterworks, house rentals, general store, etc., etc. As no dividend was paid for the year on the company's capital, the above sum has been carried forward to credit of profit and loss, making a total sum at credit of that account (including the amount already there from the earnings of 1899) of $188,874 52.

The coal produced during 1900 amounted to 220,458 tons. Of this tonnage 114,063 tons were sent to the company's coke ovens at Fernie, and produced 73,496 tons of coke, while the balance of 106,395 tons was disposed of as merchantable coal.

During the year the company paid out in cash the sum of $874,080 83, of which the pay rolls amounted to $419,037 09, the balance of $454,943 74 having been disbursed for new coke ovens, additions to plant and for development work at Fernie and Michel. One hundred and ten (110) new coke ovens were built in 1900, which makes with the 202 in operation at the end of 1899, a total of 312 ovens, with a capacity of over 450 tons of coke per day.

The number of men at present in the company's employ is about 800, and this number will, of course, steadily increase as our mines are devel-

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

In congratulating you upon the success of the last years' operations, it may be worth while to refer to the erroneous ideas that have gone abroad with regard to the management and control of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company. We are, in every respect, a Canadian enterprise, with a large majority of Canadian stockholders, under Canadian control and management, and are giving employment to a great force of labor on Canadian soil. We are developing Canada's natural resources in one of the most important economic minerals, and are building up an immense Canadian industry, which is bringing wealth to the Dominion, and which, we feel assured, will constitute a most important factor in the Canadian industrial development of the future, unless our operations are restricted by a limited market and inadequate railway fa-

It affords me great pleasure to announce that we are prepared to proceed at once with construction and development work involving an immediate expenditure of $835,000, and we already have this money in the treasury of the company for this purpose. This large sum does not include the railway project, to which I will refer later, but will be devoted exclusively to development work, the building of coke ovens, dwellings, offices and other works In connection with the coal and coke industry of the company. We intend to build at Fernie, Michel, and at another suitable point, 720 coke ovens, which will involve an expenditure of $540,000 under this head alone. We will then have 1,032 ovens, which will increase our capacity for coke production from over 450 tons per day, as at present, to more than 1.500 tons per day. Our expenditure will also include more than a quarter of a million dollars on mine improvements, offices and miners' dwellings. These expenditures and the extensive mining and coke-producing operations that are to follow will create and maintain two new towns in the coal district as large as Fernie, which now owes its existence to the works carried on by this company.

There is a prospective demand, provided we obtain access to the American market, as I shall hereafter mention, for 4,500 tons of coal per day within a year, and in three years we expect to increase our output to about 6,000 tons of coal per day, a large portion of which will be converted into coke in our ovens, and within five years we expect to have a pay roll of fully $10,000 per day, which will be sufficient to maintain three important industrial centers in

All business men will at once realize how important such a development will be to the country at large, as mining camps are invariably extensive consumer. of supplies. Not only will there be the direct employment for several thousand Canadian workingmen, but a new and most extensive demand will be created for the products of Canadian factories in the east, and the food supplies from the western farms and cattle ranches.

It is only fair to you, however, to state that the present demand of British Columbia for coal and coke would not just fy any such expenditures as we pro-This is self-evident when I state that the present demand of British Columbia does not exceed 1,000 tons of coal and coke per day, and we cannot expect this demand to increase in the near future, even under most favorable conditions, so as to justify such expenditures.

In order that we may proceed with this development, it will be absolutely necessary to secure access to the American markets by a route that will put us in a position to successfully compete with the coal and coke producers already in the field. If denied access to the American markets, except by roundabout routes, if delayed in our operations by legislative obstruction, if prevented in any way from cutting down the cost of production to the narrowest possible margin, our success in the field will be proportionately cramped, and it will be quite impossible to undertake the development now proposed.

Recognizing, therefore, the necessity of obtaining direct access to the adjacent markets of the United States, anapplication has been made to parliaent by five of your directors for a charter to build a railway from the coal fields to the boundary, where it is intended to connect with a spur line from Jennings on the Great Northern Railway.

This is simply an effort to secure an entrance, by the best possible route, to an almost unlimited market for coal and coke, where we must meet the keen est competition. And without this market any large development of these British Columbia coal fields will be practically impossible.

The fear has been expressed in some quarters that the establishment of railway connection between the Crow's Nest coal fields and the Great North-Railway System will deprive the Canadian mining and smelting industrie of a supply of coal and coke, and that the company may create a shortage in the Canadian supply to benefit American smelting interests. These fears are groundless. From geological reports, it appears that there are over 250,000 acres of coal lands in the Crow's Nest country, containing a supply of coal which is conceded by all authorities to be practically exhaustless, estimated that there are in this area 20,000,000,000 tons of coal. This would admit an output of 10,000 tons per day, allowing 300 working days per year for over 6,000 years. This is entirely independent of the immense coal areas in Ferta and in other parts of British Columbia.

e of present prepared to enter into time contracts with the smelters limbia to supply any quantities of coal or coke they may require, local suplyy is concerned, its safety can be best assured by f the Crow's Nest mines as will be made possible by the > n of the mines on a large scale would be impossible if mited to British Columbia, and it were subject to the flucred this last year.

se coal and coking industry in operation, turning out from ns of coal a day, the British Columbia smelters now in ge would not be felt. The smelters now in operation which side only require about 300 tons of coke per day. If we are to markets, there will be higher initial cost, risk of suspension through accidents, difficulty in securing labor, and in meeting any variation in the demand.

Although there is an immense area of coal in the Crow's Nest country that is of the best quality for coking, we should not harbor the delusion that this district has all the coking coal on the continent. There will be competition from the existing sources of supply—from Cokedale, on Puget Sound, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Utah and Colora lo. There are also immense coal deposits in Montana, Washington, and other places, which may prove, when tested, to be of good coking quality.

To enter and hold this market, which means from 5,000 to 6,000 tons of coal per day, the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company must have the best railway facilities available, and that is why it is absolutely necessary to build the proposed spur.

There is hardly any industry so universally beneficial to a country as coal mining and coke making for export trade. The coal and coke are both brought to the last stage of perfection before being shipped out. All labor is expended on them in the country, and there is nothing further to be done with them except to consume them. Not so with logs, not so with lumber, not so with pulp ,with wheat, with wool, and with many other products exported. Every dollar that comes into the country in return for coal or coke exports makes the country just that much richer. The farmer, the rancher the miller the the country just that much richer. The farmer, the rancher, the miller, the merchant, and the manufacturer will all profit. There will also be an enormous direct revenue to the British Columbia Government from the royalty. That government is now deriving a revenue of about $100 a day from our

In addition to the development of the coal and coke industry, the property of the coal and coke industry. posed railway will open up a prospect, and an assured prospect, of smelting development which will prove, from a public standpoint, of the very greatest

The success of the smelting industry depends upon the ability to assemble the various materials essential to profitable smelting at the lowest possible cost, and if the proposed line of railway is built, connecting the Crows' Nest fields with the American railway systems, the balance of advantages will be decidedly in favor of the Canadian side as the place for establishing a large and profitable smelting industry. The Canadian people have but to improve their opportunity, to stand out of the way and let the good fortune in.

In order to illustrate what I have said, permit me to point out how suitable a place Fernie, or some point adjacent thereto, would be for the establishment of a smelting industry. There we have the coke, without any charge for hauling, while to carry it to any smelting point south of the line would involve a hauling charge, as well as an American duty of 60 cents involve a hauling charge, as well as an American duty of 60 cents per ton. The limestone required is to be found at Fernie, with no expense ex-

The lead ores of Southern British Columbia are now seeking a market, The lead ores of Southern British Columbia are now seeking a market, which is almost impossible for them to find, and those adjacent to the coal fields could, at a trifling cost for transportation, be laid down at Fernie, or some other convenient point. The dry ores necessary to make workable and profitable mixtures and blends are not at present to be obtained in British Columbia, but are to be found through the adjacent mining states along the lines and connections of the Great Northern and Northern Beging Pailways; and and connections of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railways; and the ore cars taking the coal and coke from the mines at Fernie to supply the railways and established industries in these states, instead of coming back empty, would, at a low cost for transportation, bring back these dry ores to such a smelter. There is no point south of the boundary line where a smelting industry could so easily or so profitably be established.

If a smelting industry were established south of the line, there would be, as above mentioned, the cost of transportation of the coke to the site of the smelting industry; the duty on this coke entering the United States; the cost of transporting the lead ores from British Columbia to the site of the pro-posed smelter; and the American duty on the lead ores entering the United States, which, upon the quality of ore found in some of the best mines in British Columbia, would probably be about $9 per ton. Simply on the item of transportation, there would be the serious handicap of the ore cars bringing down the coke and ore from British Columbia to a smelter on the American side being compelled to return empty, and this would necessarily entail a proportionately higher freight rate.

Not the least important factor in the situation is the fear in the minds of American capitalists interested in the mining industry of the west that an export duty may be put upon ores by the Canadian Government, and this would cripple any smelting industry established on the American side dependent upon Canadian ores as its source of supply. That this is not simply theory, but the mature judgment of practical smelt-

That this is not simply theory, but the matter judgment of practical smerting men, is evidenced by the fact that we have the most positive assurances from a smelting man of large capital and experience that if we obtain the proposed railway connection he will at once commence the erection of a large smeiting plant in British Columbia adjacent to the coal fields; and we have assurances scarcely less definite from others of the establishment of three or four more smelting industries at other suitable points in Southern British Columbia, provided the proposed road is built. The prospect, therefore, for southern British Columbia would appear to be exceedingly bright. Once the charter for the railway is assured, the construction of the coke ovens, the building of the homes for the miners, and the virtual establishment of two new towns in southern British Columbia, will await only the opening of the season. Scarce more time will elapse, from the assurances we now have, before more than one large smelting industry will be put under way, and hundreds of thousands of dollars will be invested in develop-

With improved transportation facilities, as well as the improved smelting facilities, which would be secured, a smelter could secure freight charges and give rates for treatment that are now impossible.

It is hardly necessary to dwell at length on the resultant benefits to mining and other enterprises in British Columbia. These benefits are self-evident. In every lead mine there are masses of ore that will not pay at the present rate for treatment; in every camp there are propositions and mines just too lean to tempt operators or investors. Every dollar taken off the charge for treatment means thousands of tons more of ore available, and proportionately swells the pay rolls of every camp. Every dollar of reduction in smelter charges widens the pay streak of every mine, and brings new mines within the paying class.

It would be a great misfortune to British Columbia and to the Dominion at large if this opportunity should be lost, through the failure to secure adequate means of transportation. There are rival projects south of the boundary. Immense coal areas in the States of Washington and Montana are in process of development, and if the parties interested in these properties once secure possesion and control of the market in these States for coal and coke I fear the coal and coke of British Columbia will stand a very poor chance

The promoters of this railway ask no cash bonus or land grant of any kind: they simply desire the opportunity of expending their own money to construct a railway which will be of great public benefit.

We now have a prospect of building up a city as large as Butte in the Crows' Nest coal district; and I cannot think it possible that either the Parliament of Canada or the Legislature of British Columbia will place any barrier in the way of the industrial development of our country, or will adopt a course which may delay that development half a century. I, therefore, look forward with confidence to a charter being granted; and, this being done, the development which I have outlined will be at once proceeded with; but unless the charter is granted the development outlined cannot be undertaken.

The president moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Mr. Jaffray, the first vice-president of the company. Mr. Elias Rogers, managing director, gave an interesting address, detailing the past year's operations of the company. The usual formal resoultions were adopted and all the memers of the board were re-elected for the ensu-

Ross, premier of Ontario, when he stood up in the banqueting chamber of Wickliffe Hall tonight to address one of the best and most enthusiastic political meetings that has ever gathered in this city. At the tables were seated nearly 400 guests, while the gallery was crowded with spectators, who listened with interest as the premier explained what the future policy of the government would be in respect to the opening up of the new lands of Ontario and the development of the resources of the country. THE PREMIER REPLIES. The reception given the premier when he rose to respond to the toast of "Our Guest" was enthusiastic in warmth. The entire gathering stood up and gave three tumultuous cheers, and the applause was continued for several minutes. Hon. Mr. Ross was in good voice as he commenced his address, but towards the conclusion he developed a slight hoarseness. First the premier thanked the Liberals of South Brant warmly and sincerely for the reception they had tendered him. To have been given such a reception from a county that had been and was then so ably represented in both houses of parliament made him feel that he had done something out of the ordinary, and his appreciation was therefore the keener. Turning then to some of the political questions of the day, Mr. Ross referred to his own position as of the Liberal Government. He felt the was there, not so much of his own strength, but because of his associates and colleagues, all tried and true men, with wide experience, and with the honest purpose to serve the country they felt they could not fail, because the great heart of Ontario still pulsated with the Liberal sentiment. The great future of the political party, the premier continued, was its business aptitude, and its first duty was to be a good trustee. In these spects what had been the record of the Liberal party? How had they hus-banded in the first place and applied in the second place the funds that had come to them?

dom in the manner in which they had expended their revenue. Some of these expenditures Hon. M. Ross pointed out. To the opening up of the country for settlement the government had indirectly assisted in the construction of some 2,000 miles of railways, which, when they were completed by those who proposed them, meant an expenditure of $40,000,000 in cash, and in roads in Northern Ontario there was altogether thirteen and a half millions of dollars spent for transportation purposes, and was there a single man in the province who disagreed with that expenditure? The government held that every dollar had been wisely and usefully expended, and if the people would estimate that expenditure on the same basis that they would a business conern, then the government would stand investigation to the utermost farthing. From the inception of the government they had laid it down as a principle that they would apply the funds at their disposal for the relief of the burdens of the taxpayers. They had carried $19,000,-000 of burdens of education, and no man could say the money was misapplied. And referring to the subject of higher education, about which there was some controversy, the premier remarked that no single nation could be pointed to which had succeeded in aintaining its standing where higher education had been neglected. Hon. Mr. Ross went over other figures where the government had relieved the burdens of taxation, such as expending $11,000,000 in the administration of justice, $22,000,000 in the maintenance of asylums and hospitals, $4, 600.000 given to hospitals and charities, and $4,500,000 for the development of the agricultural interests of the prov-Two central lines of thought on the part of the Government were: First, to relieve the burden of taxation, and second, to educate the taxpayer so he would be better able to bear the burden of the state.

TO ENCOURAGE AGRICULTURE. that agriculture should not be dormant, and through the farmers' institutes, agricultural colleges and traveling dairies they had endeavored to educate the farmer, so that out of the millions of acres at his disposal he could achieve the best results. It would be the effort of the government to make Ontario one of the most intelligent and most wealthy communities, for if they would keep their sons at nome they must provide means for their obtaining a livelihood, and give them as good conditions as they could

CANADA'S STRONG POSITION. In the great development that was aking place all over the world, Hon. Mr. Ross went on to say, Canada stood in a strong position, with her re-sources comparatively speaking, undeveloped. Today they were not fighting over any constitutional question, and they had no special dispute in regard to civil or religious liberty. Those questions were settled long ago. But they had 140,000,000 acres of land, of which only 25,000,000 acres were settled and 16,000,000 cultivated, the time for the conquest of that land had come now. The government, too, proposed to give some attention to old Ontario, and would spend one million dollars on good roads, so the farmers might easily and often reach the market. So, too, they had inaugurated a system of cold storage on railway trains and some of the ocean had devised would serve the steamers, and they hoped to have propeople better than what the duce reach the markets of the old country in as perfect a condition as stock. It was necessary, however, to have industrial development side by side with agricultural. Iron and steel industries had received a great impetus. In Ontario they were commencing to open iron mines equal in quality to the best in the United States. The government, he considered, should expedite this development, as by means of a large mining population, that would be consumers, large industries employing hundreds of thousands of people would be established. They had done something towards this and proposed to do more. The pine and pulp lands also the government would conserve, and manage them so that for a hundred years to come they would be a source of revenue. tario was touched upon by the premier, who said the government would maintain control of Northern Ontario in the interests of the people of Ontario. He pointed out that at the present time there was discrimination of rates inimical to the best interests of some industries, and said that if driven to it the government would build a road from North Bay, connecting there with the Grand Trunk, and run it north into the new country, a distance of about a hundred miles They would then control rates in and out. APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE.

Adverting for a moment to party politics, Hon. Mr. Ross remarked that in the opinion of their opponents they had been in power long enough, but he defied the Conservatives to go before any intelligent audience in Ontario and show that anything they people better than what the government proposed. Concluding, the premier remarked that commercial compossible They would encourage also petition on a gigantic scale was now the raising of better quality of live carried on, and we must be prepared to meet it. They appealed to the consciences of the people because they felt they had done right, and to their loyalty, and never had they faltered in fighting for the honor of the province or in vindicating the honor of the empire. On resuming his seat, Hon. Ross was again greeted with loud and prolonged cheering.

TROUBLES IN SPAIN.

Madrid, March 6.-General Weyler innounces that he will raise the state of siege as soon as a government shall e constituted to restore the constitutional guarantees. Senor Sagasta, the Liberal leader, who yesterday accepted the task of forming a new cabinet, pro-posed the dissolution of the chambers, and that parliament shall meet in June. STORMS OFF IRISH COAST.

Cork, March 4.-Stormy weather is reported off the Irish coast. Beaver liner Wassau, which left Queenstown with mails and 500 passengers for Halifax, was compelled to put back to port, with her steering gear seriously disabled. The Ameriliner Kenilworth arrived at Queenstown yesterday in a damaged condition, the bridge having been swept away. MURDERER'S QUEER PLEA.

Paris. March 4.-A man named Briet, who last week murdered an unfortunate woman, was today confronted with the victim's body. The sight completely unnerved him, and, weeping, he threw himself on knees, protesting innocence. He told the judge that five years ago he had been bitten by a mad dog, and since then had been subject to spells of insanity.

TODAY IN THE COMMONS. London, March 6.—The excitement oc-casioned by last night's scenes in the House of Commons today was still very evident, and when the house met at noon, in view of possible disturbances, the whole police force on duty at West Stephens had been mobilized and reinforced by reserves. Mr. John Red mond speedily rose and raised a question of privilege arising from "the painful scenes of last night." He claimed that members had been suspended without proper steps being taken to identify them, and that their removal had been accompanied by undue violence. He was satisfied, he said, that members had been suspended who actually had gone to the lobby to participate in the division.

IRISH PRESS COMMENT. Dublin, March 6 .- Commenting upon last nights' scene in the House of Commins, the Freeman's Journal rejoice that "Ireland at last possesses a party that will teach Westminster that if the rights of Ireland are to be sacrificed, the character and privileges of parliament must accompany the sacrifice."
The Irish Times says: "Despairing of getting sufficient support and maintenance in London from their own countrymen, those pretending to represent Ireland are meditating a mendicant pilgrimage to The Land of the Dollar, and fondly imagine brutality will serve as a bold advertisement." LOVE TRAGEDY IN ROME. Rome, March 4.-The last night of the carnival was marked by tubes, curing asthma, croup, coughs, strange tragedy. Antonio Amato, the son of a confectioner, was in the midst of the street revelry with his beautiful betrothed, who, like himself, was masked. He resented the attention masked. GUILTY TO BE PUNISHED. Paris, March 5 .- At a cabinet council held at the Elysee Palace today, the foreign minister, M. Delcasse, announced that all mandarins guilty of crimes in China would be punished. Two decrees, provided for by the ninth article of the collective note, have been promulgated, enumerating the punishments pronounced, and ordering the suppression of examinations in the provinces where the anti-forign outrages have occurred.

WILL CONSIDER OBJECTIONS. Pekin, March 5.-The next general meeting of the ministers of the powers will consider the protests of the plenipotentiaries regarding the legation quarters now established in Chinese public buildings. The British and Russians have taken the board of works, board of revenue and board of ceremonials. The Italians have taken the emperor's temple of worship. Fire has destroyed the greater part of the temple of 1,000 years in the summer palace. Fortunately the effigy of Budda, weighing 600 tons, was not injured. The Japanse troops are preparing to leave in transport on their way to Taku. The river is now safely open, and there is no danger of another frost.

GERMAN TROOPS ENGAGED. Berlin, March 5.-The war office has received the following from Count Von Waldersee, dated Pekin, March 4: "A patrol of 25, under Lieut.-Col. Allmenich, located a strong force of Chinese troops west of Lung Hsuan Kuan, the Germans losing three killed and one wounded. Col. GENERAL TO BE COURT-MAR-TIALED.

Petersburg, March 4 .- Major-Gen. Nicholas Orloff, of the Military Academy, is to be court-martialed. When hostilities began in Manchuria he got permission to go to the front. Soon afterward the British press was filled with accounts of his efforts, and for a while one heard only of him, These exploits caused Orloff trouble. Gen. Grodekoff, the commander-inchief of the Russian forces in China, ordered Orloff to take a division and prepare provision depots along a certain road and at a certain town. Gen. Grodekoff followed with 80,000 men. Half way to the town Orloff sighted some Boxers, chased them across the country, attacked a Boxer camp and sent a dispatch about It to St. Peters-

Meanwhile Grodekoff found no provisions or water along his route, and had to retreat with great hardships to his former station. When Orloff returned to his old camp, Grodekoff told him as an act of mercy that he would not be shot, but sent him to St. Petersburg to report his conduct. THE EMPEROR'S RETURN. London, March 4.-A Pekin dispatch

A native of Kentucky, Clarke, with his mother and brother, was declared a slave at the death of his grandfather, by his relatives. He escaped through the kindness of a young lady to whom he had been assigned as a servant while yet a small boy. She sent him to Salmon P. Chase at Cincinnati, by whom he was educated

It was from facts given her by Clarke and his brother Louis—the George Harris of the story-that Mrs. Stowe wrote the book which had such an influence in creating anti-slavery sentiment. The brother is still living, at the age of 83, in Lexington, Ky. The only reward that either ever received was a copy of the work.

Binghamton, March 3 .- Miss Marie Waters, 18 years old, who formerly lived in Binghamton, has just married Albert O. Rood, of Alleghany, Pa., who was 100 years old on Jan. 4 last. The froom is very rich, and the story of his marriage is romantic.

In his youth Mr. Rood was engaged to Miss Waters' great-grandmother, but they had a misunderstanding and the engagement was broken off. Rood never married, but went into business and accumulated a fortune. Recently he visited some friends in the vicinity of Miss Waters' home and met the young girl. Her resemblance to his early sweetheart, her great-grandmother, is so great as to be startling, and old Mr. Rood fell in love with the girl for her far ancestor's sake, and he says that she is his old love come back to cheer him in his old age.

The chairman then intimated that he must report the mat-ter to the speaker. In the meantime the Irishmen had returned from the lobbies amid some uproar, 30 or 40 Irishmen remaining in their seats. The speaker having returned to the house, the chairman reported the matter to him, and the speaker asked if the Irish members still refused to obey the order, and there were cries of "Yes! Yes!" The speaker then named sixteen recalcitrants, and Mr. Balfour moved their suspension. This was agreed to without a division.

The speaker called upon the seargant-at-arms to remove them. They shouted defiance. sergeant-at-arms advanced and asked them to leave. Still they refused. At this a number of officers and police men entered to enforce removal. Mr. Eugene Cran, member for Southeast Cork, struggled desperately against removal, and there was quite a free fight on the floor, lasting for five min-utes, other Irishmen assisting him. Eventually he was carried out bodily by six policemen, amid yells and cheers. The police then returned and carried out the remaining recalci-trants in the same manner. Those who were removed included Messrs. John Cullinan, Patrick White, Patrick McHugh, William Lundon, William Abraham, Patrick Dugan, Anthony Donelan, James Gilhooly, QUEEN'S FUNERAL PROCESSION. Wm. B. Sherman is again coming to the front with first-class entertainments at popular prices, having secured the first set of moving pictures of the funeral procession of Queen Victoria, and also the only moving pictures of King Edward VII. Among the features are Mrs. Carrie Nation, depicting the different phases in sensational crusade, preaching to the masses, smashing saloon fixtures, etc., and her final arrest by the authorities in Kansas. There will also be shown the life of Joan of Arc, in twelve distinct scenes. This is said to be the finest set of moving pictures ever exhibited on canvas. There are also a number of comic pictures, such Bros., has accepted the position of as "Grandma and the Bad Boys," manager for the Slater Shoe Store. "The Photographer's Mishaps," and others. The public may be assured of witnessing a splendid show. In addition to the regular performance will seen "Ermani," the most bewildering electrical sensation ever exhibited in London; also Will E. Green, the popular baritone, in illustrated songs. For two nights, commencing Monday, March 11, with a matinee Tuesday.

He was unaware of any genuine case of discrimination having been proved. In regard to the Crow's Nest Railway, he said it was, after a careful examination of rates ilar country that the government had the rates on that road. His recollection was that in every case the government had fixed lower rates on the Crow's Nest. Their rates were not therefore higher than those of roads south of the line. Although there were strong reasons offered in favor of a railway commission, he could not see any reason for the appointment of a railway commission this session. But he would favor an inquiry by royal commission to see what the grievances were, and if they were such as could not be dealt with by the rail-way committee of the privy council. The right of appeal expired on Feb. 23, and up to that date no notice of appeal was served on the plaintiffs' solicitor, Mr. T. W. Scandrett. It was thought that the defense in the case might still appeal by mak-ing special application to the appeal court at or before its opening yesterday, but such was not done. the catch of fish of all kinds in Ontario during the year 1900 have just been compiled by the department of fisheries. They show a slight falling off in the total, there being 25,147,191 pounds, compared with pounds the year before. The falling off is not attributed to any depletion in the water, but rather to stormy weather, and to the drawing off fishermen to other pursuits in northern Ontario, where the lumbering and mining industries have been very active. The total value of caught last year was $1,333,293, and the value of the equipment in use by the fishermen was $994,269, while 2,499

All the public utilities of London will now go ahead. The people will own the water, gas light, and transportation, taking the plants out of the hands of private companies. As the national government already owns the telegraph and is installing telephones, all of the pub-lic utilities will soon be under public control. The election was principally fought over the water question. London water supply is now owned by several water companies, notably the New River Company, dating back to the time of Charles II. The profits are enormous, the shares showing the highest premium of any in the world. The progressive party, which declared for municipal ownership, has secured nearly the entire mebership of the London County Council. be an ultimate confiscation of their plants or the establishment of new municipal plants. The council already owns a number of street car lines, and numerous new ones in an endeavor to give London an adequate transportation. The council has also undertaker the construction of model tenements for housing the poor, which will greatly increase building operations. After years of municipal lethargy, London has suddenly awakened to the inauguration of a sweeping advance.

QUE SICK HEADACHE,

Syracuse, N. Y., March 5.—A special from Fulton, N. Y., says: Albert Dien, an employe of the Oswego Falls Pulp and Paper Company, was crushed to death last night between two rapidly revolving reels of paper. He was drawn in head first.

Those who have used Laxa-Liver Pills say they have no equal for relieving and curing Constipation, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Coated Tongue, Foul Breath, Heart Burn, Water Brash or any disease or disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels.

Mrs. George Williams, Fairfield Plains, Ont., writes as follows: "As there are so many other medicines offered for sale in substitution for Laxa-Liver Pills I am particular to get the genuine, as they far surpass anything else for regulating the bowels and correcting stomach disorders."

Laxa-Liver Pills are purely vegetable; neither gripe, weaken nor sicken, are easy to take and prompt to act.

CHAPTER XIV.

There was no concealment about Gladys Amory, reserved as her nature might be. It would have been impossible for her to hide any new knowledge from her father. Silence would only have widened the breach between them, which, she bitterly felt, the shock of disappointment had proceed.

"I met Mr. Lindesay in New York," she gaid quietly, the first time she saw her father after her return. "He told me what I had not known before, that he had written to us both on leaving Boston."

Mr. Lyman started and changed color. In spite of her own sense of injustice. Gladys was touched to the heart by the evident confusion in his usually calm, self-mossessed manner.

Gladys was touched to the heart by the evident confusion in his usually calm, self-possessed manner.

"I—I have the letter still," he faltered.
"but, Gladys, believe me, I thought I was acting for your best happiness in not giving it to you. Do you not remember when Charles Willoughby—"

"Dear papa," said his daughter, bending as she stood beside him, to kiss his forehead, "I did not ask the question to upbraid you. What you did was done for what you thought my happiness, no doubt. But oh! there is such danger in being too ready to assume the responsibility of a happiness of which we cannot judge. But by-gones are by-gones. I only speak of it because I cannot bear the separation that silence seems to make between us. Give me the letter and we will never mention it again."

He put it silently into her hand, feeling, even more bitterly than she, that the separation of which she spoke could not be wholly averted even by the most forgiving affection. Gladys did not open it will she was alone.

separation of which she spoke could not be wholly averted even by the most forgiving affection. Gladys did not open it till she was alone.

"I do not speak of the differences between us," Raymond had written. 'With some men they might act as a barrier; with some women, I myself, should feel them so. With you I do not, for I am sure you know that what I love in you is none of your outside advantages. I believe you teel with me, that love looks beyond all externals, and that, in giving you my heart, I give something that outweighs them all. I need not tell you, surely, that my whole heart is yours.

"I have explained all to your father. I do not ask for everything now—I am not so bold as that. Often, indeed, I am very faint-hearted. I ask only for the right to love you, and the hope that by and by you may find that you can love me. Is that, too much to ask?"

Yes, by-gones were by-gones, yet, as decirical cledys gould not keen back

Yes, by-gones were by-gones, yet, as she read, Gladys could not keep back the tears from her eyes, could not altogether restrain the wonder that a human hand should have had the power to change her fate so cruelly. To that extenuating plea of her father's in regard to Charles Willoughby, she had been unable to say a word. Perhaps she knew no more than he when or how had come the change in her from childhood to womanhood; but that feeling towards Raymond Lindesay, beginning in the girlish longing to draw him out of his Raymond Lindesay, beginning in the girlish longing to draw him out of his unhappiness, and first revealed to her unhappiness, and first revealed to her own shrinking consciousness by her aunt's words, had been the awakening. But how had come the change which had made her Morgan Amory's wife after that winter of secret pain and distillusion? She had not accepted him from plque; she had pretended to herself that he realized in her eyes the ideal of which her girlish fancy had dreamed. She had simply come to believe, after the galling pangs of self-reproachful mortification were past, that such an ideal love as hers had never existed, perhaps never could exist, except in the romantic love as hers had never existed, perhaps never could exist, except in the romantic brain of an inexperienced girl. She liked Mr. Amory extremely; he pleased her artistic sense, and there was no fiesh-and-blood rival for him to displace. If she could be all in all to him, as he told ber, if she could gratify. In marrying hip, the dearest wish of her father's heart, why should she hesitate? With fore experience of the world, more knowledge of her own heart, she might rave hesitated, since to give less than till one is capable of, is treason to the very idea of love; but she was very young, and her girlish pride had been sorely wounded.

And now did the revelation which had come to her so unexpectedly make her toler so unexpectedly make her toler so unexpectedly make her toler that she had committed a fatal pledge been redeemed must where is the line where disappointment begins to be acknowledged and recognized? Perhaps it never is so, consciously; perhaps it is only felt in its silent results, the slow damping down of hope, the cessation of expectation, the gradual surrender of endeavor.

There was nothing tangible in Morgan Amory to disappoint. He was always the same polished, cultured gentleman, tsually spoken of as a model of domestic virtues, and "so proud of his beautiful wife!" So he was, fond and proud of her as of all that belonged to him, his pictures, his library, his horses, his Ercenhouses. While the newness of possion lasted, there was somewhat more than this; but nothing was long they to Mr. Amory. All became a matter of course so very soon, like his daily lounge at the club, his afternoon drive, their appearance together in society during the season, his punctilious presence at the morning service on Sundays; all this was taken for granted—could anything more be asked?

It was somewhat like the way in which he had met his wife, when, after reading Raymond Lindesay's letter, she had gone up to him, clasped her hands round his arm in mute pledge of devotion, and looked up at him earnestly, with half tearful eyes.

ed up at him earnestly, with half tearful eyes.

"Has anything happened?" Morgan Amory asked in concern.

"Nothing to teil, I believe," she answered, "but I felt—I thought—"You felt nervous and unlike yourself? Yes, of course, very naturally! Come and drive with me, and the fresh air will do you you good. Don't think of anything agitating, my dear Gladys; it is so very unnecessary."

That charge was something which Mrs. Amory never seemed to need from her husband now. To all casual beholders she was as calm, almost as indifferent as he; and even her father secretly thought that Gladys was become more of the ordinary society woman than he had imagined possible in her girlhood.

There were few, indeed, who saw her in any other light; of these were the old doctor, towards whom she still kept the half playful, affectionate manner of her girlish days; her class of Sunday school pupils, young girls who adored her with the passionate devotion of lovers, and who poured out their hearts to her, sure of being met and understood; a little artist friend, Isabel Lindesay, whose talent she fostered in every way that money, personal help and suggestion and appreciative criticism could; and her children, whom she idolized with a passionate love rare even in mothers.

JURY'S QUEER VERDICT

Strong Alibi Disregarded and Man Charged With Murdering His Wife Is Convicted.

London, March 2 .- A murder case, which has been the most discussed topic of the week, was concluded tonight in the Old Bailey.

The body of a woman who had been dging in Yarmouth under the name of Hood was found on the beach on the morning of Sept. 23. She had been strangled to death with one of her boot laces. The police established her dentity as the wife of a man named Bennett, who was employed at the arsenal, and lived at Woolwich. After his arrival it was discovered that Bennett had separated from his wife some months before and had become engaged to a girl, to whom, on th ay after the murder, he presented rticles of dress and jewelry belonging to his wife. It was also stated that on the same day he arranged to marry the girl at Christmas.

Witnesses swore that they had seen Bennett and his wife together in Yar-mouth on the night of Sept. 22, the day before the murder, and the servants of the hotel identified him as the man who had slept there on that night. Furthermore, his wife's watch and chain were discovered in Bennett's lodgings.

Up to yesterday this and all other evidence was dead against Bennett. his counsel Yesterday, however, sprung a surprise on the prosecution. A respectable merchant came forward and identified Bennett as a man with whom he had an hour's conversation near Eltham on Sept. 22. They met accidentally, and afterwards had a social drink together at the inn in the town. This would make it impossible for Bennett to be in Yarmouth on the night of the murder. This merchant described accurately how Bennett was dressed, the name he gave, which was his own, and the story of his life as the prisoner had told it in the wit-

A second volunteer witness came forward who swore that a man whose hands and face were scratched and Sept. 24 and demanded a copy of a newspaper with an account of the murder. The man was so agitated that he was unable to find the story The man was so agitated in the paper until it was pointed out to him. This shopkeeper informed the police of these facts. The alibi put forward by the merchant seemed incontestable. He proved the date and the time of meeting with Bennett beyond any doubt. The jury however, disregarded all this evidence entirely and returned a verdict of

While I do not think that strong alcoholic drinks should be permitted, I am unable, after an experience of many years with the Canadian military forces, to advocate, or understand how well-intentioned people can advocate prohibiting the sale of lager beer and soft drinks. That men who have performed hard training in the heat of the day should be obliged to quench their thirst with lukewarm water con veyed to the grounds through halfexposed pipes, or in open-headed hogsheads, and thus exposed to impurities. seems to me to be most unreasonable. If men are unable to obtain soft drinks and lager beer, instead of being compelled to drink impure or nauseating water, it would have the effect of restraining them from seeking stronger drinks outside the camping grounds, and from bringing liquor into camp in bottles, and thus temperance might better be promoted."

Company for an extension of their lease, like-wise the terms of the present lease which has still 13 years to run. It was stated at the meeting that this company carried coal from Port Stanley to St. Thomas and London at 10 cents a ton for the other railway companies rather than lose the traffic altogether by the companies bringing it around by Buffalo themselves. This rate was thought very low. THE MAYOR'S VIEWS. Mayor Rumball, in addressing the meeting, commented on the offer of the L. E. and D. R. R. Company and on the terms of the present lease. City of London, and believed that the interests of the city could best be conserved by keeping the road out of the hands of the trunk lines. He firmly believed that it would be in the in-terests of the city to extend the lease as it was of great concern to the L. E. and D. R. R. Company to keep the road open to Port Stanley in order to bring freight from Montreal via Port Stanley. The Lake Eric Company are doing the fair thing with the city, he said, and if we do not meet them in their offers they will likely make other connections, and will not spend any more money on the Port Stanley road.

They have a new slipdock at Erieeau, and they also have their boats, so that this would be a comparatively easy matter. The city, the mayor thought, could not manage the road, and as the L. E. and D. R. R. Company had done much to develop it they should be permitted to continue that development. Personally, he had no interest in the road, his interests were with the city of London. But it would be a greater inducement for manufacturers to come to the city with their plants if shipping facilities were made secure for such a length of time as the extension of the lease would accomplish.

MR. JOHN McCLARY the next speaker. recommended that no action be taken in the matter until the expiration of the present lease, and at the end of thirteen years we could then see what was best to be done. He thought it a great mistake to grant the extension of the lease, as asked for by the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway Company, and hoped that the people would be wiser in the matter at the time of the expiration of the present lease than we had been. He maintained that the road should be run by the city. The mayor, in replying to Mr. Mc-

Clary, stated that the city was not in a position to run the Port Stanley road, as it would be of little value without boat connection.

MR. JOHN CAMPBELL. Mr. John Campbell, upon being asked for his views, stated that he did not believe in the city running the road, but thought something should be done to safeguard the London and Port Stanley road, as Port Stanley our seaboard. He did not think this could be accomplished by letting the road go into the hands of the trunk lines. There was a great deal, he thought, in Mr. McClary's letter to the press and also much in the remarks of the mayor. The Walkers had dealt fairly with the city, and the L. and P. S. R. had never been of so much value to the city as it had been under their management. "I am one of those who do not favor an idea of the city running the road itself. What we want to do is to safeguard the L. and P. S. R. at all hazards, owing to the fact that our water front is at Port Stanley." Mr. Campbell said he would not oppose extending the lease a few years longer, provided the road be safeguarded. MR. JOHN GARVEY. Mr. John Garvey advocated the city ed the extension of the lease. He said it would be worth a million dollars a year to the city of London in keeping down freight rates. Mr. John Cameron thought that the industrial outlook in Ontario was very bright, and in view of this fact an extension of lease prospective benefits to the L. E. and D. R., which might well be used as a lever in securing what after all was the point of most importance, namely, suitable safeguards for favorable freight rates. After some discussion, in which the Mr. C. B. Hunt and seconded by Mr.

COAL FIELD DEVELOPMENT.

The Annual Meeting of the Crows Nest Pass Company-A Great Deposit.

The report of the annual meeting of the Crow's Nest Pass Company, published today, shows that the past year has been marked by steady and satisfactory progress. The feature of greatest public interest is the address of Senator Geo. A. Cox, president of the Company, in which he deals with the immediate prospects of future development, and with the proposed railway from the coal fields to the American boundary. He declares that the company has in its treasury $830,000 to be immediately expended in enlarging the scope of its coal and coke producing operations. The bulk of this expendi-ture will be for the construction of coke ovens, but there will be more than a quarter of a million dollars devoted to development work and the erection of machinery, dwellings and offices. An interesting and satisfac tory feature is the geological estimate of 20,000,000,000 tons in the coal area of the Crow's Nest Pass district, a stock of coal that would furnish 10,000 tons of coal every working day 6,666 years. The president points out that the markets available at present will not justify the contemplated expenditure and development, and that it will be necessary to secure better access to the American markets by the construction of the proposed railway line to the boundary. The position of the company on this question is clearly set That there are immense possibilities for coal and coke production is now beyond doubt. The requisite capital is in the company's treasury, and rect means of access to the only available market. This part of the president's address is worthy of consideration. With the Canadian public it is not a question of the interests of this or that company or corporation, but using Grape-Nuts Food, and in one of the development of a railway policy. Canada requires the investment much of an advocate of the food that of capital in transportation projects people suspect me of being interested as well as in the production of wealth from her mines, forests and fields,

Come to a Deadlock Re Extension of the Lease.

The Matter of the Preposed Electric Road to Port Stanley To Be Looked Into.

A meeting of the Port Stanley Rallway Board was held last night to discuss and, if possible, dispose of the question of extending the lease of the railway to the L. E. and D. R. R. After considerable discussion a motion was submitted proposing the extension of the lease to 30 years, at a rental of running the road and strongly oppos- $17,500 per year for the unexpired term He of thirteen years, and $20,000 per year for the following seventeen years. To this an amendment was offered that the rental be $20,000 per year for the whole term of 30 years. A deadlock resuited, there being a tie vote on both proposals and the matter rests just in the same position as it has for months past. Another meeting will be called in a few days and an effort made to dispose of the matter. The members present at the meeting were President Rumball in the chair, Secretary Kings-

Mr. Mattinson seconded.

Ald. Jolly moved that $20,000 flat be asked for. Mr. Pritchard seconded. In reply to a question whether the company would increase their offer, Solicitor Coburn replied that the offer now before the board of $17,500 and $20,000 was final. The company would not go above that offer. In further conversation, Mr. Coburn said the lessees would be willing to arrange terms for the use by other ferries of their slip-dock at Port Stanley.
