THE WEST LONDON "DUMP" FEUD
CULMINATES IN PITCHED BATTLEThe Sullivans and the Leaches
Engage in a Lurid
Mix-Up.

War, which has long been smoldering in the West London dump, broke out in earnest last night, between the rival forces, headed by the Sullivans and the Leaches, and when the losses were counted after the pitched battle it was evident that the Leaches had the best of the melee.

The Leaches live in one of the Scarrow row of cottages on Dundas street, just over the West London bridge, while the Sullivans occupy a cottage at 18 Cavendish street.

Both residences are on the water-front—also on the dump. The break-water runs along the rear of both, and it furnishes a promenade for those who care to climb over mountains of waste paper, wooden boxes, and broken crockeryware.

There are no fences separating the different houses and yards, and the result is that numerous disputes arise over the possession of certain articles deemed of value for firewood or for decorative purposes which have been thrown in the dump by wasteful hands.

The trouble between the Leaches and the Sullivans dates back some time. The Leaches are English and the Sullivans are Irish. Both are built along independent lines, and brook no interference.

Lemon Starts a Row.

But it was not over international differences that the row of yesterday began. It was over a lemon.

In the morning the Leach family were, according to their story, attending to their own affairs, when Bert Sullivan, a lad of about 18, with a couple of companions, appeared on the dump back of the Leach property.

Ordered Bertie Off Dump.

Charles Leach, head of the family of Leaches, espied him, and as Sullivan and his friends were acting in a very improper manner, Mr. Leach ordered him off the dump. Sullivan by way of reply, handed him a lemon. That is, he pitched, with great accuracy and much speed, a partially-decayed specimen of the fruit from which summer drinks and circus lemonade is made, directly in Mr. Leach's direction. Sullivan also issued invitations to the Leaches to come on and put him off the dump, which, he declared, with the assurance of one skilled in international law, was public property, and from which nobody but the King could eject him.

After hurling divers portions of crocks, intermingled with hard-head rocks, and defunct tomato cans, Sullivan and his friends, it is alleged, departed, and the morning skirmish was finished.

The Dump Catches Fire.

About 8:30 last night the row was fanned into a fury again by the dump catching fire. The firemen were sent for and soon a large crowd was attracted to the scene.

Bert Sullivan, the hero of the lemon incident, accompanied by a companion named Fortner, who is about 17 years of age, was among those in the crowd. According to Sullivan's story, George Leach, son of Charles Leach, came up to him and accused him of starting the fire just to make trouble for the Leaches. George Leach denies this, however, and states that while he was peacefully observing the drenching of the dump by the fireman, young Sullivan and Fortner insulted him.

The Gage of Battle.

He says they offered him battle, and that he in turn declared his ability to whip any Sullivan still in the fighting game, evidently realizing that John L. is now a back number.

Biff! Bing! Bang!

At all events, a row between Leach and Sullivan was soon in full tilt, and the crowd danced around in high glee. Evidently then took a hand in the game, and matters became so warm that Leach was forced to seek shelter in his father's house.

Pa Sullivan Butts In.

Runners were at once sent out for reinforcements, and William Sullivan, father of Bert, was first to arrive. He manifested symptoms of battle, and was soon accommodated.

He walked to the door of the Leach residence and dared any Leach to come out and fight. The Leaches, true to the motto, "No surrender," refused.

BIG GEM ROBBERY

Burglars Make a $50,000 Haul From Rich American.

Paris, June 20.—During a dinner last night skillful burglars entered the sleeping apartments of Mr. Otto Steffens, an American, in the residence once occupied by the late Dr. Evans, the dentist, at 45 Avenue of the Bois de Boulogne, and succeeded in carrying off jewels valued at $50,000. There is no clue to the burglars.

NEW ARMY BARRACKS
TO BE BIG AND ROOMYTo Be Erected at Corner of Edward Street and Tecumseh Avenue.

Contractor George Roberts today took out a building permit for the new Salvation Army barracks, which is to be built on the corner of Edward street and Tecumseh avenue, at a cost of about $2,500.

The building will include an auditorium, as well as a junior hall at the rear, and office for the staff officer.

The work of the army has grown so rapidly in South London that the officers have deemed it absolutely necessary to provide a special barracks for South London.

It will accommodate about 250 people.

The officer who will take charge there has not as yet been named.

MARK TO MEET THE KING

Famous American Humorist To Be Given a Private Audience.

London, June 20.—Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens), has accepted an invitation to attend a garden party at Windsor Castle, June 22, when King Edward will entertain 8,000 guests as a wind-up to the Ascot races. His majesty has expressed a desire to meet the American humorist, and as his time is short at Windsor on account of the number to be received, it is possible that a private audience will be arranged.

School Picnic Is On Today
6,000 at SpringbankCrowd Carried by Railway Company Without a Mishap
of Any Kind.

The big school picnic is on at Springbank today, and the river park is filled with children, their teachers, and their elders. It is estimated that about 6,000 people were carried by the London Street Railway Company to the park this morning.

Special cars had been provided by the company, manned by the oldest and most-tried motormen and conductors, and at given periods they were sent to certain places in the city for the accommodation of each school.

The children, accompanied by their teachers, entered the cars systematically, and in a few minutes the trolleys, many of them decorated with banners, were proceeding to the park.

The shouts of glee and songs of the young filled the air as the cars traveled along, and many were the good wishes shouted to the little ones as they went on their way.

By noon they had all been taken to the park, and there the lawns were strewn with lunch baskets.

Everybody appeared to be having a glorious time.

There were sufficient grown-ups and teachers present to look after the welfare of the children.

This afternoon games are being carried out, and music is being furnished by the Seventh Regiment Band.

Nearly all the trustees went down this morning and afternoon, as did also a number of city fathers.

HAVE THEMSELVES
ALONE TO BLAMEIce-man Says South-Enders Responsible If Not Being Supplied.

"The people of the south end have only themselves to blame if they are not receiving ice," a dealer said to The Advertiser today.

"Some time ago I made it a point to call on all my old customers and ask for their patronage for 1907, and of the lot only two agreed to take ice from me."

"Some told me they could get ice from other dealers at a lower price than I asked. Others said it was too early in the season."

"The result is that I am supplying my old customers at $1.25 a month. Others will have to pay $1.50."

"It's nonsense to say the dealers will not supply any particular district. If they can get enough business to make it pay they will go to any part of the city."

FIRE DESTROYS FIRE HALL

Belleville Department Suffers Heavily
Through Youthful Incendiary.

Belleville, June 19.—No. 1 fire hall was destroyed by fire today, everything being lost save the horses. All the apparatus, including engine, hose cart and a large quantity of hose. The loss will be in the vicinity of $10,000. A boy named Donald Foote, it is said, has confessed to firing the hall.

GUROFSKY PARDONED.

Toronto, June 20.—Joseph Gurofsky, a Jew, who was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison by Police Magistrate Denison for shooting an Italian in an affray, has been pardoned by the Minister of Justice. He is a brother of Louis Gurofsky, the well-known political worker.

MADE AN ALMOST
FATAL MISTAKEMrs. George Norton Took Insect
Powder, in Place of Licorice,
But Will Recover.

Mrs. George Norton, of 115 Tecumseh avenue, had a close call from death by poisoning on Tuesday. She intended to take some licorice powder, and in mistake took a dose of insect powder.

The mistake was noticed at once, and Dr. Cowan, who was summoned, applied antidotes and saved her life.

Mrs. Norton's many friends will be glad to hear that she is recovering rapidly, and will suffer no serious effects from the mishap.

ENDS THE ALLIANCE

Redmond Says Commission on Convents Has Dissolved It.

London, June 19.—Despite an angry Irish protest the House of Commons, by a vote of 125 to 121, carried yesterday a motion permitting the introduction of a bill for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the need of inspection of monastic and conventual institutions.

Mr. Redmond, the Irish leader, declared that this action implied a gross offense and insult to Roman Catholics in Ireland and England. On learning the result of the division, Mr. Redmond declared:

"This puts an end to the Liberal alliance anyhow."

School Picnic Is On Today
6,000 at SpringbankSYNOD AGREES
TO AN INCREASEAdvances the Minimum Salaries
To Be Paid Clergy—Change
in Funds Management.

The important question of placing the funds of the Diocese of Huron in the hands of a trust company came up for consideration at the meeting of the synod this morning.

A proposed canon was submitted, recommending that the change be made, as recommended a year ago, but it met with some opposition, and will likely be the cause of a lively debate.

Mr. Matthew Wilson, K.C., of Chatham, was in favor of the change. Mr. Wilson is a member of the committee proposed canon he argued that to have the funds placed in the hands of a trust would be a good move.

Mr. Edwin Paul, who, like Mr. Wilson, is one of the leading laymen in the diocese, expressed opposition to the change, pointing out that during the synod no loss had been occasioned, and the money had always been invested in the best securities at the best rate of interest. Neither had the synod ever found it necessary to advertise its money for investment.

The debate on the question will be again taken up this afternoon.

Some time was taken up this morning with the balloting for delegates to the general synod, the result of which will be announced this afternoon.

The synod approved of the appointment by the bishop and executive committee of a diocesan commissioner, whose duty it shall be to assess the various parishes in reference to the stipends of the clergy, and to do such other work of a general character as shall from time to time be assigned him by the bishop or the committee.

The synod also agreed to a proposed canon to increase the stipends of many of the clergy of the diocese. The new canon provides that clergy who have been in the service less than ten years shall not receive less than $750 a year, and that the minimum salary for those who have spent more than ten years in the ministry shall be $850. This is in accordance with the recommendation made by the Bishop of Huron in his charge on Tuesday afternoon.

NO TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE

U. S. Commissioner Patches Up Peace
Between Company and Men.

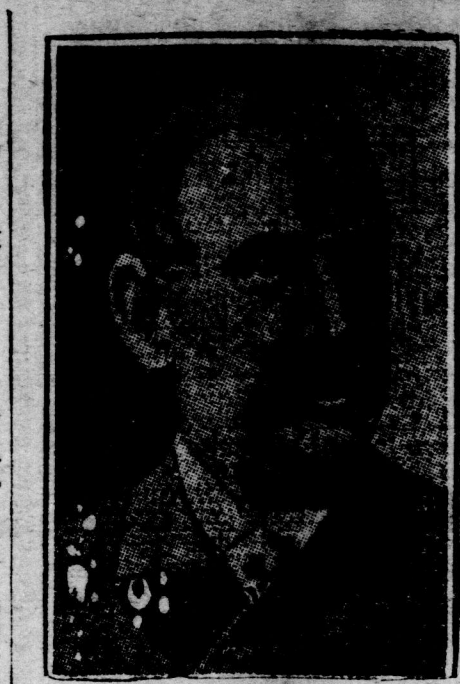

New York, June 20.—As the result of the visit of Mr. Neill, commissioner of labor, and following suggestions made by him, an adjustment of the difficulties between the Western Union Company and its operators has been reached, and there will be no strike. This morning Col. R. C. Clowry, president of the Western Union Company, addressed a letter to Mr. Neill, outlining the position of his company, and this is admittedly satisfactory to all parties concerned.

MARSHAL VON BIEBERSTEIN,
Leading Representative of the Kaiser
at The Hague Conference.PORTER GIVES HAGUE SURPRISEThe U. S. Reserves the Right to Present the Question of Disarmament.

The Hague, June 19.—The surprise of the second session of the peace conference this afternoon was the formal reservation by Gen. Horace Porter, on behalf of the United States, of the right to present the question of limitation of armament.

Together with this, he also reserved the right to introduce the subject of the collection of contractual debts by force.

While this reservation was made quite naturally, in accordance with a notice served on Russia during the preliminary negotiations last spring, and in order that silence now might not be construed as acquiescence in the restriction of the work of the conference to the limits of the Russian program, it is believed to indicate a firm resolve on the part of the Washington Government, after seeing the trend of the situation here, to raise the question later if it becomes apparent that the subject is going by default.

It can be stated positively, however, that no proposition has yet been formulated by the American delegates, but this action has renewed the hope that the United States would bring up the question of limitation, and has given great satisfaction to the Pacificists.

Sir Edward Fry also served notice that Great Britain reserved the right to introduce subjects outside the programme, but less significance is attached to his action.

Another interesting feature of the session was Baron Von Bieberstein's notification that Germany intended to offer the proposition of an international prize court to which appeals could be made at the time of a maritime war, and the decision of which should be final. Gen. Porter, on the other hand, on behalf of the United States, and Sir Edward Fry, declared that Great Britain proposed to advance a project on similar lines.

DROPS DEAD IN STREET

Mr. James Davidson, of St. Marys, Dies
Suddenly This Morning.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Stratford, Ont., June 20.—Death came very suddenly this morning to Mr. James Davidson, Wilber street north, St. Marys, who dropped dead upon the sidewalk on his way to work. Mr. Davidson was a carpenter and had left his home early this morning to work at Mr. Johnson's house, in the east end. When opposite the residence of Mr. Colquhoun, Queen street, east, near the overhead bridge, he fell on the sidewalk, stricken with heart disease, and died instantly.

Deceased was a well-known resident of the town, and had lived here for a wife and one daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) P. C. Coupland.

LIGHTNING HITS BARN.

Strathroy, June 19.—A barn belonging to Mr. Jas. A. Payne was destroyed by lightning during an electrical storm here today.

French Troops Clubbed
By Rebel Wine GrowersSerious Rioting Occurs at Narbonne and Also at Montpellier.

Narbonne, France, June 20.—A violent mob from the outlying villages gathered last night. They poured petroleum over the door of the sub-prefecture, which they set on fire, but were driven off after repeated charges by the troops. In the course of the fighting the manifestants fired revolvers, but no one was hit.

The disorder was augmented by the absence of lights, the mob having cut the electric cables. In other parts of the town barricades were erected. These were stormed by the troops and torn down, only to be set up again by the rioters.

Montpellier, France, June 20.—Serious rioting broke out here last night, lasting all evening. The mob attempted to burn down the door of the prison and rescue the prisoners. The troops were turned out but were received with volleys of stones and bottles. The rioters were pulled off their horses and clubbed. A prominent police official was seriously wounded by a broken bottle. Many soldiers were less seriously injured.

Volleyed Into Mob.

Paris, June 20.—The brief dispatches which reached Paris up to noon showed that the conflicts which have occurred between the troops and the mobs in the south were more sanguinary than at first suspected. At Narbonne three persons were killed, and a hundred soldiers and civilians, including a score of women, are said to have been wounded, a number of them fatally. The troops, who were ordered to fire in the air, shot straight at the mob besieging them in the courtyard of the superstructure.

A whole army corps has been put in motion to deal with the rebellious wine-growers.

A 20,000,000
Bushel Crop

Mr. Jack Hunt, of this city, who is at present in Calgary, writes home that the crops in Alberta are growing splendidly, and that the indications for a large yield are very bright.

In Southern Alberta alone, Mr. Hunt says, the inspectors claim there will be a crop of not less than 20,000,000 bushels of fall wheat.

COURT ADMITS
HAYWOOD ARTICLEJudge Decides Important Point Against Defendant in Boise Case.

Boise, June 20.—The jury in the Haywood case was not brought into court this morning until after Judge Wood had handed down his opinion as to the admissibility of certain articles from the Miners' Magazine, as showing the animus of the controlling officers of the Western Federation of Miners toward Governor Steunenberg, and others. "The evidence in the case on trial," said Judge Wood, in his ruling, "shows considerable difference to the case cited by the counsel of the defense, and generally known as the Anarchists' case. In that instance conviction lay upon a chain of circumstances, and many of the publications there were published by the defendants themselves and were presented for the specific purpose of showing the intention of the defendants to commit the crime charged, and their animus toward the police."

In the case on trial, the evidence of the state purports to come in part from one of the parties to the defense. That witness has stated that not only has he committed the crime here charged, but several others as well, and he is relied upon to show that the crimes were committed at the instance of this defendant and other defendants, said to be the managing officers of the Western Federation of Miners.

"The magazine offered in evidence appears to have been under the control of these officers. The court is convinced that after showing the attitude of the organization and the attitude of managing officers, their animus and feeling toward those against whom the crimes were committed or attempted, certain of the publications cited by the state are admissible. The court will admit the articles bearing on former Governor Steunenberg, Governor Peabody, Judge Gabbart and Judge Goddard, and several others. As to the articles following the commission of any crime, the court has some doubt, and will resolve that doubt in favor of the defendant."

The defense objected to this ruling.

Dominion Transport Company Has Big Strike on Its Hands.

Montreal, Que., June 20.—The Dominion Transportation Company, which does all the carting of freight in Montreal for the Canadian Pacific Railway, has a strike of teamsters on its hands. The number of men involved is 325, which involves practically all the company's hands. They have been getting $1.60 a day for 11½ hours' work, and they now demand $1.75 per day, and a time rearrangement. They also protest against deductions from their wages for damages to freight in transit on their teams. An agreement exists with the company which the men claim has been violated by the company.

TRAIN CUT IN TWO.

Louisville, Ky., June 20.—A passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern was cut in two by a falling rock in a tunnel near Mitchell, Indiana, today. Several persons are reported injured, but there was no loss of life.

CUT OUT REDUCED RATES.

Chicago, June 20.—The Trans-Continental Passenger Association yesterday withdrew from all eastern railroads, the right to sell reduced-rate tickets to California, except to railroad employees and members of dependent families, and clergymen and missionaries, but not their families.

GAMEY STRIKES IT RICH

Toronto, June 20.—A rich strike of silver and cobalt has been made on a property in James Township which was originally owned by Mr. R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., and which Mr. Gamey is now developing with nine associates. Mr. Gamey claims that the discovery is one of exceptional value.

Leader Graham Discusses the Provincial Surplus, School Policies and Licensing.

Milverton, June 19.—The annual meeting of the North Perth Liberal Association was held here this afternoon, when candidates were selected to represent the Liberals in the elections of the Dominion House and the Provincial Legislature, and a stirring address was given by Hon. George P. Graham, leader of the Ontario Liberal party.

Every municipality was represented when the president, Mr. George Bray, called the meeting to order at 11:30 a.m. The election of officers resulted in the following being chosen: President, George Bray, Listowel; secretary, David Grieve, Millbank; treasurer, John Brown, M. P. P., Stratford. A vice-president was also elected for each municipality. Resolutions were also passed endorsing the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Dominion and Hon. George P. Graham in the Province.

A Good Fight Assured.

The meeting was characteristic in its enthusiasm, evidencing a determined feeling on the part of the Liberal electors to make a stern fight in the north riding. Dr. J. P. Rankin, of Stratford, was nominated as the Liberal representative to the Dominion Parliament, while Mr. Wellington Hay, of Listowel, will be the standard-bearer in the campaign for the Local Legislature. A brief address was given by Mr. F. G. Inwood, general secretary for the Ontario Reform Association, who commented upon the condition of the Liberal party in regard to an election throughout the Province. He referred to the necessity of an early presentation of the candidates to the electors and urged a vigorous organization campaign.

ANALYSES OF THE KOMOKA SPRINGSProvincial Analyst Amyot Announces the Results of His Tests.

Water Commissioner Saunders has received from Dr. Amyot, the provincial analyst, the results of the analyses of samples of water taken from springs around Komoka, and which are included in the scheme fostered by the commissioners for the increasing of London's water supply.

The result of the analyses are very satisfactory.

Three samples were sent to Toronto by Mr. Saunders, with the consent of Dr. Hutchinson, the medical health officer.

One sample was taken from the roadside trough at Komoka, and the other two from James' springs, which flow into and form Crow Creek.

Dr. Amyot states that in none of the samples did he find any traces of chemical or bacteriological pollution. "In none of the samples did I find intestinal bacteria," Dr. Amyot concludes.

He gives the following results of the tests of the different samples.

Sample	Ammonia	Albumenoid Chlorine
No. 1	.005	.01
No. 2	.000	.02
No. 3	.005	.02

Mr. Saunders says that these results effectually silence the criticisms of the Komoka springs which have been declared by some people to be not fit for domestic purposes.

The commissioners will now go ahead he says, and submit the mail vote to the people.

Mr. Saunders returned from Toronto last night, where he attended the waterworks convention.

GAMEY STRIKES IT RICH

Some think water is pure because it is carbonated—charged with carbonic acid gas. That is wrong. C Carbonating water doesn't purify it. Carbonic acid gas doesn't cleanse water. C Plenty of carbonated waters are just ordinary city water, charged with gas. That gas is mostly made by the action of sulphuric acid on whiting (such as is used for calcimining), or from the fumes of burning coke. Pleasant, isn't it? C Even spring waters that are naturally fizzy, carbonated far within the earth, are not always safe to drink. Natural carbonation is likely to load water with more lime or magnesia than the system ought to get. So a natural fizzy water may be wholesome and it may not. C The safe way—doctors think the only safe way—for people who like carbonated water, either plain as a beverage, or as a diluent for spirits—is to get an ideally pure spring water, charged with purified carbonic acid gas, and C Carbonated and bottled under absolutely safe, cleanly, and scrupulously sanitary conditions. C Water like that is zestful, refreshing, wholesome, and enhances the flavor of whatever it dilutes—liquors especially. C The water that surely meets every requirement is sold in your neighborhood by merchants who care for the custom of particular people, and in your city by the right kind of hotels, bars and clubs. It is worth asking for; and it is labelled

It is reported that the invisible radium emanations affect germinating seeds even when these are covered with a layer of soil very much the same as a too powerful application of sunlight to the seed. In other words, the effect is similar to that produced by too much light resulting in an arresting of germination. The effect is influenced by the nature of the seed covering, its distance from the source of emanation and the quantity of moist soil intervening.

MARK REACHES "LUNNON TOWN"

The American Humorist Meets George Bernard Shaw and Talks.

London, June 19. — A newspaper representative, awaiting the arrival of Mark Twain, today, caught sight of George Bernard Shaw, and said, "You've come to meet Mark Twain?" "No," replied Mr. Shaw, with surprise. "I've come to meet Prof. Henderson, of the University of North Carolina. He is writing my biography and has come over here to find out something about me."

Mr. Shaw lost no opportunity of airing himself and gave his views at great length, until Mr. Clemens turned up, when Mr. Shaw introduced himself. They had a few pleasant words, then Mr. Shaw went off. Mark Twain was left at the mercy of the interviewer, who discovered that the humorist is most interested in the pages of his so popular here, and that he intends to go to the Oxford peasant.

Mark Twain spent the afternoon in paying calls on Lord Curzon, Ambassador of Russia, and in receiving a host of callers himself. He has postponed his return to the United States until July 7, owing to his numerous engagements, including, in addition to the reception at the Pilgrim Club and the lord mayor's dinner, also a dinner of the American Society, to be held on the 4th of July, and a dinner by the lord mayor of Liverpool.

Mr. Clemens said to a correspondent:

When Can He Sleep?

"With all these affairs, how am I to get my usual quota of sleep, which is about 22 hours daily, is something that is puzzling me. I usually spend most of the time in bed, rise about 12 o'clock, and very seldom have lunch, so I can go back to bed again by 2 o'clock. If I have no engagement on, why I can then remain abed until noon the next day."

"I am very glad that the stories are being circulated that I spend 26 hours daily on my autobiography. It is well to have such a reputation for work, but somehow I feel for one obliged to tell the truth, and admit that I spend hours a week at most constituting my period of labor."

"My trip over was delightful. The captain was most courteous, but firm, and I felt that he needed my assistance in running the ship. I was surprised to find the bridge in a nice, neighborly fashion, when he wasn't there, and tell the other officers what to do. This lasted just three days. At the end of that time Capt. Gates came to me and said very courteously:

"Twain, this is the third time I have found, while I was lunching, that you had gone to the bridge and altered the course of the ship, and haven't told me about it. As it's up to me to get mind quitting and allow me to earn my money, well?"

Captain Ran the Boat.

"Of course," continued Mark Twain, "after the man had shown a spirit like that it rather discouraged me giving him my invaluable assistance, so I let him manage the ship himself. And somehow the Minneapolis managed to arrive safely at Tilbury."

Mr. Clemens was delighted with the passengers he met on board the Minneapolis, and entered into the spirit of all the ship's games and played with the children. At the ship's concert he let the passengers into a few secrets of his autobiography, dealing principally with the expurgations of his early works by Mrs. Clemens, and her constant thwarting of his efforts to introduce "real human cuss words" into the stories.

At the end of the voyage the passengers overwhelmed him with attentions, their attitude well expressing the sentiments of one who said, "Mr. Clemens, we knew of you, but we didn't know you were just love you."

First Saw Wireless.

Twain also had his first experience with wireless telegraphy. One day messages were received from America and England. His astonishment did not diminish when he found they did not come direct, but had been passed on from ship to ship.

His meeting with Mr. Shaw gave him great pleasure. "I like his face," he said. "I want to see more of him." Someone suggested that it would be nice to have Mr. Shaw answer questions on Mark Twain's views and vices. Another, with more acquaintance with Mr. Shaw, said the latter would want to do both, whereupon Twain spoke up, saying: "That's a better still. It makes me more anxious to meet him again. It would save me a lot of trouble if someone would give me opinions for me."

Standing in line before the money-order window at the Dufferin post-office recently went two men. One of them was "next," but as his turn came he permitted a woman to step in ahead of him to get an order. When she was through the man let another woman in ahead of him. This made the other man mad. "Say," he said to the man ahead, "please don't be a gentleman at my expense. I'm in a hurry."

Poor, Pale, Anemic

There is no beauty in pallor, but plenty of weakness. Any exertion makes your heart flutter, your back aches, and altogether you feel the need of something to make you strong. Ferrozene will supply it. First of all, Ferrozene gives you appetite and improves digestion. Your appetite comes back to your cheeks. The thinness that makes you angular, and the tiredness that has taken the place of your old-time brightness, disappears.

Ferrozene quickly makes you feel alive—it makes you want to do things. Ferrozene can help you to do things without getting tired, because the new rich blood has nourished the nerves and strengthened the tired body. Use Ferrozene and you will be rosy, strong and happy. No tonic gives surer results. Sold everywhere in 50c boxes.

FORTUNE FORGER SURRENDERS SELF

Remarkable Story Told to the Montreal Police—Conscience Too Sensitive.

Montreal, June 18.—George Slage, a handsome young man, walked into detective headquarters today and told a remarkable story to Chief Detective Carpenter. Slage stated that he was 25 years of age and had been born in Egypt. His father was an extremely wealthy man, and had for a long time carried on a great business in Cairo as a jeweler. Slage was instructed by his father and allowed to do pretty much as he liked. Unfortunately, for himself, he had a special faculty for imitating handwriting and when 18 years of age he conceived the idea of putting this to use. The boy commenced by forging small cheques, and then one particular day he forged a cheque for a million francs ($200,000) and cleared out of the country.

"In all," said Slage, "I have by means of forgery robbed my father of 2,000,000 francs. Then I quit Egypt, and traveled to Paris. This was in 1904. For two years I remained in the French capital. I set up in business as a jeweler, but did not do well. Money Seemed Accursed.

"The money I had stolen seemed to be accursed. At any rate, as time progressed, my conscience, which had never been at rest, continued to trouble me more and more. Matters eventually grew desperate with me in Paris and I gave up business and sailed for New York in the hope that the novelties of the New World would have the effect of distracting my mind from the thoughts which continually haunted it. Alas! I only became worse. I had no friends in America, and memory made me long to be back again amid the happy scenes where I spent my boyhood."

"Life latterly became unupportable and I determined to end my existence. I had not the courage to write and ask for forgiveness. One night last week, while in New York, I purchased a quantity of laudanum and in my own room attempted to poison myself with it. I consumed a quantity but not sufficient to have fatal results. My moans attracted attention, and after receiving medical aid, I recovered. Then I was ashamed to stay there longer and decided to leave New York immediately. I did so, and during the past few days have wandered from place to place without any fixed purpose."

"I arrived in Montreal today and made up my mind to surrender myself to the police. That is all my story, and it is the truth."

TROUSERS COST PASTOR HIS JOB

Exclusive Philadelphians Cannot Stand For "Bagging" at the Knees.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 18.—Because he appeared in the pulpit wearing unpressed trousers and because the facial lines had impressed some members of his congregation as "harsh and forbidding," the Rev. Dr. James H. Ecob has been forced to resign from the fashionable First Unitarian Church, Twenty-first and Chestnut streets.

Sunday morning Dr. Ecob preached his valedictory sermon, bidding farewell to what he termed "a bridge whistle coterie—a pink tea party."

This and many other rhetorical shots apparently hit the bullseye, for from time to time some dignified member of the exclusive congregation would make a hurried exit, nose in the air. The church is one of the oldest and most aristocratic of its denomination in the country, and Dr. Ecob is one of the most democratic of speakers, talking with a delight in expressing his views freely on the equality of man.

Hurling defiance at Outset. Dr. Ecob took as the topic of his farewell sermon the subject, "The minister of today," and as his text, Matthew xi, 17, "We have piped unto you and ye have not danced. We have mourned unto you and ye have not lamented."

This was an unmistakably defiant note at the start, but the plain pastor's well-dressed hearers settled themselves comfortably, as if confident they could stand it.

"I propose to speak with perfect simplicity and plainness," began the pastor, without a touch of irony in his voice. "Every denominational conflict, every heresy trial, every parish scandal, every treacherous attack upon a pastor is invariably justified and sanctified by the worn-out plea, 'for the good of the church.' Is it not time that some voice be lifted up for the good of the ministry?"

Symptoms of uneasiness were discernible in some of the congregation. "Many ministers are deeply resenting the demand of the church for simplicity neutral, decorative ministry—holiness, punctilious, ministry that does not gently and graciously at 4 o'clock tell you that you are a sinner, and utterances have the quality of what is known by country people as 'fox fire'—a pale, phosphorescent glimmer, the product of decayed wood."

At the reference to 4 o'clock teas and bridge whistles, two of the nicely-gowned women in the congregation marched forwardly to the door, while others moved uneasily as if inclined to give similar expression to their disapprobation.

"I have observed that those called by the church to the ministry are often called by the church to the ministry."

Poor Should Avoid Pulpit.

"Another question respecting ministers is that of salary. The average man, without an independent income, has no business in a Protestant pulpit. The average wage of the minister is below that of a day laborer. Yet a laborer can live in a modest house as he pleases, wear such clothes as he pleases, and fix the scale of his household expenses. But for a minister all these things are determined by the church."

LONDON, THURSDAY, JUNE 20.

THE WATER SHORTAGE.

The people of London want spring
water for drinking purposes, but they waste a million gallons a day, or more than one-fourth of the whole yield of the Springbank supply in the driest
part of the year.The common-sense method is to check this waste before spending enormous sums in impounding new springs
in a territory where the spring water supply may not be sufficient to warrant the outlay. The water commissioners estimate that 500 new services will be added every year. At the present rate of consumption an additional supply of 3,000,000 gallons daily, which is the maximum guaranteed under the Komoka scheme, would last for fifteen years if spring water were to be used for all purposes. Some of the engineers throw suspicion on the quality of the water
to be got in the neighborhood of Ko-moka.The city will have to reduce the present extravagant waste if it hopes
to drink spring water for a long period,
unless sources of supply other than those reported upon are discovered.The spring water resources of this district are not limited to the territory between Springbank and Komoka. The Cronyn and White springs alone, on the north branch, yield 750,000 gallons
daily, and it is believed by many that there are springs innumerable north and east. Neither have the possibilities of artesian wells been adequately tested. Some of the leading industries in the city have secured excellent water by simply boring into the ground.The best and cheapest policy for the city will be to minimize the waste of spring water by installing meters, and
use river water for street watering,
lawns, factories, laundries, livery stables and railways. We should then have what we cannot have now—a clean city. Water could be used ad-lib for street watering, washing
permanent pavements, and flushing sewers. In addition, we should have the maximum of efficiency in fire protection. With a water pressure of 200 pounds to the square inch, the risk of a conflagration in the business district, entailing a loss of millions, and throwing thousands out of employment
for a season, would be substantially reduced. This is the only plan before the public which will cut down insurance rates appreciably, and lift an incubus from the commercial and industrial interests of the city. It is the cheapest plan, because a special levy
would be made on the merchants and manufacturers, and the property-
holders in the congested district, and
because it would cost less to save
water by means of meters than to collect more water and pump it.The meter system is no experiment.
It is in operation in Newark, N.J., Detroit, Cleveland, Richmond, Va., Syracuse, N. Y., Taunton, N. J., Springfield, Mass., Asbury Park, N. J., Atlanta,
Ga., Fall River, Mass., Harrisburg,
Pa., Rochester, N. Y., Hartford, Conn., Lawrence, Mass., Lowell, Mass., Madison, Wis., Milwaukee, Wis., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Providence, R. I., Tonkows, N. Y., and Wellesley, Mass., to mention only a few. "Of all the cities
where meters have been introduced,
not one has ever gone back to the former methods," says James H. Fuertes,
C. E., in his report to the committee on water supply of the Merchants' Association of New York, in June, 1905."In not one," he adds, "has there failed to be a healthy and steady increase in the percentage of water sold by meter. . . . The sale of water by measure has no tendency to restrict the use of water, but does notify the owner when the leakage from faucets
and other fixtures is serious enough to require attention."In his comprehensive report upon the London water supply, Engineer Chipman recommends the metering of half
the services in the city, including all the larger consumers. This would effect the saving of 600,000 gallons daily,
and another 500,000 gallons daily would
be saved by using river water for purposes other than drinking. The cost of meters would be $2 each per year,
which would include interest, depreciation, setting, reading, repairs and all charges, and this cost would be offset
by the saving in the cost of pumping,
and the sale of water saved by stopping the waste. "At first," says Mr.
Chipman, "all the large consumers
should be metered, then services to the small factories, hotels and livery stables. In the second season dwellings with lawns should be metered, office buildings, shops, stores, etc. By the end of the third year about 6,000
meters should be set. With 50 per cent of the services metered probably three-fourths of the controllable and preventable waste would be checked."
The city council could increase the number of meters as it saw fit; it could take in the Byron, Kilworth, Cronyn
and White springs, when more water was needed; and in the meantime the spring water resources of the district
could be thoroughly explored.

SENATOR COFFEY, L.L.D.

His fellow-citizens will unite in congratulating Senator Coffey upon the honor he has received from the University of Ottawa. The degree of Doctor of Laws, in honoris causa, conferred upon him by such an institution is no empty compliment. It has been shared by vice-royalty and by some of the leading public men of Canada.
Yesterday it was bestowed upon our fellow-citizen in excellent company,
his associate being the brilliant young Postmaster-General and Minister of Labor, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux.
Senator Coffey is a native of Ireland, was educated in Montreal, and from early manhood has lived in this city. He has been a credit to his race,
and one of the most useful members
of this community. By character, ability, and his own efforts, he has risen
to a position of power and influence.
He has built up the Catholic Record
into the most widely-circulated Catholic journal in the Dominion, and it is one which takes advanced ground on questions of moral and temperance reform. Personally, Senator Coffey is a genial, unassuming and broad-minded
gentleman, who has won the entire goodwill of his Protestant fellow-citizens. They were pleased when he was elevated to the senate, and considered
the honor well-deserved. The tribute to him from the University of Ottawa
is another merited recognition of his services as a journalist and a public man.

A TARIFF EMBROGLIO.

A delicate and difficult tariff question has arisen between Great Britain and the United States, as a result of negotiations between Washington and Berlin.Germany threatened over a year ago
to impose her maximum tariff on American imports unless the United States tariff on German products was relaxed. Commissioners were sent from Washington to Germany to ascertain the terms upon which the United States could get the benefit of Germany's minimum tariff. Upon their advice the United States executive has agreed to reduce the tariff on a limited
list of German imports, and to accept the valuations of German Chambers of Commerce.France and Great Britain have demanded the same privileges as Germany in the American market, under the "most favored nation" clause. It is said that Secretary Root has decided that France is entitled to the concessions because her chambers of commerce, like those of Germany, are under Government control, but that Great Britain cannot claim these advantages because her commercial chambers have no official status."This view may be entirely sound," says the Chicago Record-Herald, "but the British are certain to question and resent it. As they have no general tariff and admit our goods free of duty
they consider it preposterous that we should treat Germany and France and other protectionist countries better than we do them simply because the latter grant us certain reductions. Is England, they ask, to be penalized because she has 'nothing to trade with'
and opens her markets to all the nations?"The United States will rightly be reproached with injustice and selfishness
if she discriminates against the products of the one country that gives her
a free market. It would be a suicidal policy if it gave an impetus to the Chamberlain movement to close Great Britain's open door.Somebody ought to tell Dr. Sproule that Philip of Spain and the Duke of Alva died in the sixteenth century.Meters do not restrict the use of water or add to the price. They merely check the waste caused by leaky fixtures.Mr. E. B. Osler, M. P., confesses that the Conservative party deserved to be turned out of power in 1924. What have they done to deserve a return to power?The dispatches relating to Mr. Chamberlain's collapse state that he is 74 years of age. This is an error. He was born in 1836, and at 71 many British statesmen are in full vigor. Mr.
Chamberlain is probably paying the penalty of his life-long refusal to take physical exercise.The Liberals are getting their candidates into the field for the commons
and Legislature. There is no prospect of an election for either House within a year, but it is good tactics for the party to name its standard-bearers
early, so that they may cultivate the electorate.

HURON COUNTY LIBERALS.

[Stratford Beacon.]

Huron County Liberals take kindly to editors having now no less than three of them in nomination for parliamentary honors. Mr. M. Y. McLean, of the Stratford Examiner, is the latest nominee.
He is having been chosen for the House of Commons by South Huron Liberals on Fri-day. Mr. McLean represented that riding in the Legislature with credit for several years, and with a good party behind him
he should have a useful career in the House of Commons. The other editor-candidates are Mr. Holmes, of the Clinton Now Era, for the House of Commons for West
Huron, and Mr. W. E. Kent, of the Huron
Post, for the Legislature in East Huron. May each and all of them be successful, for they are not only good editors, but good men.

A SOLDIER OF MISFORTUNE.

[Hamilton Herald.]
Lord Dundonald appears to be a soldier
of misfortune.

COWS AT HAILEYSBURY.

[The Haileyburyian.]
We see that there is being framed a by-law restricting the movements of cows
upon the streets. It will take a learned cow to properly observe them, for there are only certain streets upon which her presence is not required, and the only way
that we see that is left to enforce the law
is to have the names of the streets written
up so that the cows can read them.

AFTER SAMPLES.

[Catholic Standard and Times.]
"Well," demanded the stern-visaged
woman at the back door, "what do you want?"
"Why," replied the tramp, "I seen you
advertise 'table board' in dis mornin's
paper."
"Well?"
"Well, I tought mebbe yer was givin'
out same samples."

A CHILD POET.

[New York Post.]
The "child poet," Lewis Lewis, who died
last February, in Kent, on the eve of his 11th birthday, is the subject of memorial verses in the Spectator, and some of his own verses, written at 7, are sent to the same periodical by a reader who fancies
"a gleam of precocious genius in the following very faulty but spontaneous lines:Far on the moorlands,
Where the lark sings freely,
There without danger, there without fear,
There is the sweet home,
There is the green home,
Of the wild red deer.
With his grand high antlers
Shedding in the spring,
Growing in the autumn,
For a fortifying thing. . . .There where the bank is yellow with buttercups,
Where the bluebells grow,
Jingling ever, jingling ever,
High and low, quick and slow,
Jingling ever as they grow;
And the birds be singing for music,
And the river for a cup,
And his dinner grows all round him,
And he can always sup.He called it "Twaddle on the Wild Deer."
Another fragment is the following, which,
strangely, he insisted on calling "The Day."
The phrase, "gaudy, gaudy stream,"
was criticised in the nursery, but he insisted. He had seen it so in his own Severn stream:
It is not yet the tulips' time,
Nor daffodils to bloom,
But acorn and snowdrops white,
All shining in the room.
And by the riverside we see
The birds and bees be singing,
And down the glassy, gauzy stream
The pike are sweetly sliding.
And water-babies hide among
The cracks in every rock,
With seaweed hankin' at their door,
And seaweed for their frock.This was composed within a day of two of his seventh birthday. Just four years afterward, on the night before his eleventh birthday last February, he died, far from home, at a preparatory school in Kent. His parents, hastily summoned to his deathbed, returned with the sad burden; and seeing no tulips or daffodils, but verily
the "acorn and snowdrops white, all shining in the room," it seemed to them
that they knew what would so mysteriously have those lines called "The Day."
though they had protested that the title
meant nothing at all.NOT STRANGE.
[Milwaukee Sentinel.]
"I can't understand Mabel."
"Why not?"
"She's always trying to get things to match her complexion."
"What of it?"
"Haven't you ever noticed her complexion?"A MAN'S IDEA.
[Philadelphia Press.]
Mrs. Hiram Offen—I wouldn't be surprised if the servant girl were listening at the keyhole.
Mr. Hiram Offen—Nor I; that's a woman's trick.
Mrs. Hiram Offen—Oh, indeed!
Mr. Hiram Offen—Of course. That's why
it's called "Eve's-dropping."SIGNS.
[Baltimore American.]
"It is a little odd why trunks are often
taken as evidence of the good financial standing of their owners.""Why so?"
"Because trunks themselves are so often strapped."WISE GIRLIE.
[Cleveland Plaindealer.]
Little Ethel—Mamma, don't people ever
get punished for telling the truth?
Mamma—No, dear. Why do you ask?
Little Ethel—Cause I just tolded the last three tarts in the partry, and I thought I'd better tell you.TRIAL MARRIAGE.
[Philadelphia Ledger.]
"I see that an Ohio couple, misled by sociological rubbish, solemnly entered upon
a 'trial marriage.'"
"Was it successful?"
"Well, as a marriage it had defects, but
the trial was all right, the jury giving them two years apiece."SIZE OF AN ATOM.
[Kansas City Star.]
"Raise a drop of water to the size of the earth, and raise an atom in the same proportion, and the atom will then be in some baseball." Thus said Lord Kelvin, in trying to explain to the inattentive world how little
are things atomic.A GOOD MEMORY.
[Washington Star.]
"Did he forget his old friends after he became rich?"
"I should say not. It was useless to try to borrow money. He could tell an old friend as far as he could see him."HER WALK IN LIFE.
[Dellator.]
A woman who once wore a pedometer to find out how much walking she did in the house, discovered that under the most favorable conditions she traveled 7.3 miles

J. H. CHAPMAN & CO.

A TRULY GREAT GAME OF BALL

muff was not a fluke, the elongated (?)
one allowed a rap by Clark to bury itself in the mud after traveling through his fins. Both batters scored a few seconds later.By long odds the eighth was the most eventful turn on the bill. There was something "doin'" every minute
during the victors' half.Craig, the lean one, beat a throw to first, and Rapsly connected for a sack.
Then the sedate "Dicky" Balfour
strode panward and smote the pill a mighty smite gardenward. There is some dispute as to what happened
when the swipec took place. Some declare that Thompson, who played, or at least occupied ground space in center field, was over at the pumphouse
getting a drink at the time the ball
sailed out toward his territory, while others are equally positive that he was enjoying a salubrious standing nap.
At all events the hit went for three stations and one score, and would be getting yet, no doubt, had not "Long-overtaken" it somewhere out along the river bank, and returned it in regular Fred Clarke fashion.Then, just to make things interesting, and incidentally to assist the ambitious McKellar in his training for the Dominion Day races, "Curly" Clark ripped into the sphere for a brace of stations, whereupon "Dicky"
Balfour hied himself homeward.
Balfour then purloined third, but died
at that point when "Bill" Rowlands

was nalled at first.

In summing up, it must be said
that both twisters dished up a wonderful assortment of bends, and had they received good support, and had not the opposition touched them up for innumerable bingles and bases on balls
no scores might have resulted."Stubby" Stewart and "Gummy" Tait, backstops on the president and vice-president teams, respectively,
caught two out of every three balls
pitched, while for one whole half inning "Bill" Rowlands did not make an error.Then, again, there were only eight men on a side and this retarded good fielding considerably."Strike-out" McMartin took the bun
for originality at the bat, reminding
one of a person about to cut hay with a butcher knife, while his face as the sphere was dealt up to him resembled
that of a green aeronaut about to make an ascension.In the last half of the ninth "Stub" Stewart surprised everybody by reaching first base. A hot bender from Clark's delivery struck him on the spot where chibblains generally locate, and with many a painful lmp he went down. Once there he purloined a sack, but died when the next two parties up fell victims to Clark's up-
shots.The heroes of the game were Mc-Kellar, Balfour and Craig. The former, by dint of much striving, corralled
a total of some 21 errors, while the second named scored four hits. Craig's double play was the feature of the contest and will go down in the annals of Hermitage baseball history as the greatest stunt ever witnessed in a club
game.Runs by rounds:

The Hound of
The Baskervilles

BY SIR A. CONAN DOYLE.

"It is a great day for me, sir—one of the red-letter days of my life," he cried, with many chuckles. "I have brought off a double event. I mean to teach them in these parts that law is law, and that there is a man here who does not fear to invoke it. I have established a right of way through the center of old Middleton's park, slap across it, sir, within a hundred yards of his own front door. What do you think of that? We'll teach these magnates that they cannot ride rough-shod over the rights of the commoners, confound them! And I've closed the wood where the Fernworthy people used to picnic. These infernal people seem to think that there are no rights of property, and that they can swarm where they like with their papers and their bottles. Both cases decided, Dr. Watson, and both in my favor. I haven't had such a day since I had Sir John Morland up for trespass because he shot in his own Warren."

"How on earth did you do that?"

"Read it in the books, sir. It will repay reading—Frankland vs. Morland, Court of Queen's Bench. It cost me £20, but I got my verdict."

"Did it do you any good?"

"None, sir, none. I am proud to say that I had no interest in the matter. I act entirely from a sense of public duty. I have no doubt, for example, that the Fernworthy people will burn me in effigy tonight. I told the police last time they did it that they should stop these disgraceful exhibitions. The County Constabulary is in a scandalous state, sir, but it has not afforded me the protection to which I am entitled. The case of Frankland vs. Regina will bring the matter before the attention of the public. I told them that they would have occasion to regret their treatment of me and already my words have come true."

"How so?" I asked.

"The old man put on a very knowing expression."

"Because I could tell them what they are dying to know; but nothing would induce me to help the rascals in any way."

"I had been casting round for some excuse by which I could get away from his gossip, but now I began to wish to hear more of it. I had seen enough of the contrary nature of the old sinister to understand that any strong sign of interest would be the surest way to stop his confidences."

"Some poaching case, no doubt?"

"I, with an indignant manner."

"Ha, ha, my boy, a very much more important matter than that! What about the convict on the moor?"

"I started. 'You don't mean that you know where he is?' said I."

"I may not know exactly where he is, but I am quite sure that I could help the police to lay their hands on him. Has it never struck you that the way to catch that man was to find out where he got his food and so trace it to him?"

"He certainly seemed to be getting uncomfortably near the truth. 'No doubt,' said I; 'but how do you know?'"

"To Keep the Skin In Health"

AVOID PORE-CLOGGING POWDERS, AND CURE ALL SKIN IRRITATIONS AND ERUPTIONS WITH DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

It is quite possible that, while you know of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, psoriasis and the most severe forms of itching skin diseases, you may have overlooked its value as a beautifier of the skin.

There are minor forms of skin trouble, such as rough, red skin, chafing, chapping, pimples, blackheads, blotches, irritation or poisoning from the clothing, etc., which disfigure and form a starting point for serious trouble.

A few applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment at such times not only remove these blemishes, but also restore the health and beauty of the skin, and positively prevent further development.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is delightfully pure and creamy, is pleasant to use, and is rapidly absorbed. It acts as a food for the skin, making it soft, smooth and velvety. By its soothing, antiseptic and healing properties it allays inflammation, relieves itching, and heals cuts, wounds and ulcers; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

that he is anywhere upon the moor?"

"I know it because I have seen with my own eyes the messenger who takes him his food."

My heart sank for Barrymore. It was a serious thing to be in the power of this spiteful old busybody. But his next remark took a weight from my mind.

"You'll be surprised to hear that his food is taken to him by a child. I see him every day through my telescope on the roof. He passes along the same path at the same hour, and to whom should he be going except to the convict?"

Here was luck indeed! And yet I suppressed all appearance of interest. A child! Barrymore had said that our unknown was supplied by a boy. It was on his track, and not upon the convict's, that Frankland had stumbled.

If I could get his knowledge it might save me a long and weary hunt. But incredulity and indifference were evidently my strongest cards.

"I should say that it was much more likely that it was the son of one of the Moorland shepherds taking out his father's dinner."

The least appearance of opposition struck fire out of the old autocrat. His eyes looked malignantly at me and his gray whiskers bristled like those of an angry cat.

"Indeed, sir!" said he, pointing out over the wide-stretching moor. "Do you see that Black Tor over yonder? Well, do you see the low hill beyond, with the thornbush upon it? It is the stout part of the whole moor. Is that a place where a shepherd would be likely to take his station? Your suggestion, sir, is a most absurd one."

I meekly answered that I had spoken without knowing all the facts. My submission pleased him and led him to further confidences.

"You may be sure, sir, that I have very good grounds before I come to an opinion. I have seen the boy again and again with his bundle. Every day, and sometimes twice a day, I have been able to wait a moment, Dr. Watson. Do my eyes deceive me, or is there at the present moment something moving upon that hillside?"

It was several miles off, but I could distinctly see a small dark spot against the dull green and gray.

"Come, sir, come!" cried Frankland, rushing upstairs. "You will see with your own eyes and judge for yourself."

The telescope, a formidable instrument, mounted upon a tripod, stood upon the flat leads of the house. Frankland clapped his eye to it and gave a cry of satisfaction.

"Quick, Dr. Watson, quick, before he passes over the hill!"

There he was, sure enough, a small archer with a little bundle upon his shoulder, toiling slowly up the hill. When he reached the crest I saw the ragged, uncouth figure outline for an instant against the cold blue sky. He looked round him, with a furtive and stealthy air, as one who dreads pursuit. Then he vanished over the hill.

"Well, am I right?"

"Certainly, there is a boy who seems to have some secret errand."

"And what the errand is even a county constable could guess. But not one word shall you have from me, and I bind you to secrecy also, Dr. Watson. Not a word! You understand?"

"Just as you wish."

"They have treated me shamefully—shamefully. When the facts come out in Frankland vs. Regina I venture to think that a thrill of indignation will run through the country. Nothing would induce me to help the police in any way. For all they cared it might have been me, instead of my effigy, which these rascals burned last week. Surely you are not going? You will help me to empty the decanter in honor of this great occasion."

But I resisted all his solicitations and succeeded in dissuading him from his announced intention of walking home with me. I kept the road as long as his eye was upon me, and then I struck off across the moor and made for the stony hill over which the boy had disappeared. Everything was working in my favor, and I swore that it should not be through lack of energy or perseverance that I should miss the chance which Fortune had thrown in my way.

The sun was already sinking when I reached the summit of the hill, and the long slopes beneath me were all golden green on one side and gray shadow on the other. A haze lay low upon the farthest sky-line, out of which jutted the fantastic shapes of Belliver and Vixen Tor. Over the wide expanse there was no sound and no movement. One great gray bird, a gull or curlew, soared aloft in the blue heaven. He and I seemed to be the only living things between the huge arch of the sky and the desert beneath it. The barren scene, the sense of loneliness, and the mystery and urgency of my task all struck a chill into my heart. The boy was nowhere to be seen. But down beneath me, in a cleft of the hills, there was a circle of the old stone huts, and in the middle of them there was one which retained sufficient roof to act as a screen against the weather. My heart leaped within me as I saw it. This must be the burrow where the stranger lurked. At last my foot was upon his hiding-place—his secret was within my grasp.

As I approached the hut, walking as warily as Stapleton would do when with poised net he drew near the startled butterfly, I satisfied myself that the place had indeed been used as a habitation. A vague pathway among the boulders led to the dilapidated opening which served as a door. It was silent within. The unknown might be lurking there, or he might be prowling on the moor. My nerves tingled with the sense of adventure. Throwing aside my cigarette, I closed my hand upon the butt of my revolver and, walking swiftly up to the door, I looked in. The place was empty.

There were ample signs that I had not come upon a false scent. This was certainly where the man lived. Some blankets rolled in a waterproof lay upon that very stone slab upon which neolithic man had once stumbled. The ashes of a fire were heaped in a rude grate. Beside it lay some cooking utensils and a bucket, half-full of water. A litter of empty tins showed that the place had been occupied for some time, and I saw, as my eyes became accustomed to the checkered light, a pannikin and a half-full bottle of spirits standing in the corner. In the middle of the hut a flat stone served the purpose of a table, and upon this stood a small cloth bundle—the same, no doubt, which I had seen through the telescope upon the shoulder of the boy. It contained a loaf of bread, a tin of tinned tongue, and two tins of preserved peaches.

As I set it down again, after having examined it, my heart leaped to see that beneath it there lay a sheet of paper with writing upon it. I raised it, and this was what I read, roughly scrawled in pencil:

"Dr. Watson has gone to Combe Tracey."

For a minute I stood there with the paper in my hands thinking out the meaning of this curt message. It was I, then, and not Sir Henry, who was being dogged by this secret man. He had not followed me, but he had set an agent—the boy, perhaps—upon my track, and this was his report. Possibly I had taken no step since I had been upon the moor which had not been observed and repeated. Always there was a feeling of an unseen force, a fine net drawn round us with infinite skill and delicacy, holding us so tightly that it was only at some supreme moment that one realized that one was indeed entangled in its meshes.

If there was one report there might be others, so I looked round the hut in search of them. There was no trace, however, of anything of the kind, nor could I discover any sign which might indicate the character or intentions of the man who lived in this singular place, save that he must be of Spartan habits and cared little for the comforts of life. When I thought of the heavy rains and looked at the gaping roof I understood how strong and immutable must be the purpose which had kept him in that inhospitable abode. Was he our malignant enemy, or was he by chance our guardian angel? I swore that I would not leave the hut until I knew.

Outside the sun was sinking low and the west was blazing with scarlet and gold. Its reflection was shot back in ruddy patches by the distant pools which lay amid the great Grimpen Mire. There were the two towers of Baskerville Hall, and there a distant blur of smoke which marked the village of Grimpen. Between the two, behind the hill, was the house of the Stapletons. All was sweet and mellow and peaceful in the golden evening light, and yet as I looked at the man's soul shared none of the peace of nature, but quivered at the vagueness and the terror of that interview which every instant was bringing nearer. With tingling nerves, but a fixed purpose, I sat in the dark recess of the hut and waited with somber patience for the coming of its tenant.

And then at last I heard him. Far away came the sharp clink of a boot striking upon a stone. Then another and yet another, coming nearer and nearer. I shrank back into the darkest corner and cocked my pistol in my pocket, determined not to discover myself until I had an opportunity of seeing something of the stranger. There was a long pause, which showed that he had stopped. Then once more the footsteps approached and a shadow fell across the opening of the hut.

"It is a lovely evening, my dear Watson," said a well-known voice. "I really think that you will be more comfortable outside than in."

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

A BOX-PLEATED DRESS FOR A CHILD—4188.

The little dress shown is one of the one-piece box pleated styles so universally becoming to children. A variation of the usual style is found in the tucks which stimulate a double box pleat in back, all of the pleats being attached to waist depth and allowed to fall free below. Such a dress is practical for all of the serviceable tub fulcrum as the laundering and making are comparatively easy. The neck is finished with a low-standing collar of the dress material which avoids the necessity of frequently changing a linen measure, 22, 24, 26, or whatever it may be. If a skirt, give waist and length measure. For the medium size 1½ yards of 44-inch material are needed.

4188—sizes, 1, 2, 3 years.
The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Marriage of Miss Kathleen Shipway and Mr. George Coulter.

A pretty wedding took place at high noon on Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shipway, No. 37 Chestnut street, St. Thomas, when their only daughter, Miss Kathleen, was united in marriage to George J. Coulter, M. C. R. brakeman, also of St. Thomas, Rev. J. W. Hoyt, of Center Street Baptist Church, officiating.

The bride, daintily gowned in white silk trimmed with all-over lace and white velvet ribbons, with bridal veil, and carrying a bouquet of bridal roses, entered the drawing-room, leaning on her father's arm, to the strains of Loehengrin's Wedding March, played by Mrs. W. J. Clarke, of Dutton, sister of the groom. The bridesmaid, Miss Lizzie Lea, of St. Thomas, was attired in forget-me-not blue crepe de chine, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations, forget-me-nots and lilies of the valley. The groom was supported by Harry K. Thomas, of Detroit, while little Ethel Cunningham, of Buffalo, made a charming flower-girl, dressed in white organdie, and carrying the ring in a basket of carnations, lilies of the valley and smilax.

The dinner was served on the lawn adjoining the house, and intimate friends acted as waiters and waitresses. The presents were numerous and beautiful, including a handsome Nordheimer piano from the bride's father. The groom presented to his bride a handsome diamond brooch; to the bridesmaid he gave a gold pin, set with pearls; to the pianist, a gold crescent scarfpin, set with pearls; to the groomsmen, gold cuff-links, and to the flower girl a gold bracelet.

Friends were present from Detroit, Dutton, Canadac, London, Bridgeburg, and Buffalo. The happy couple left on the 5 p.m. C. P. R. train for Toronto, and a trip down the St. Lawrence. The guests assembled at the M. C. R. depot to see the couple off, but arrangements had been made for the couple to board the train at the G. T. R. diamond, and they thereby missed a liberal shower of rice, etc.

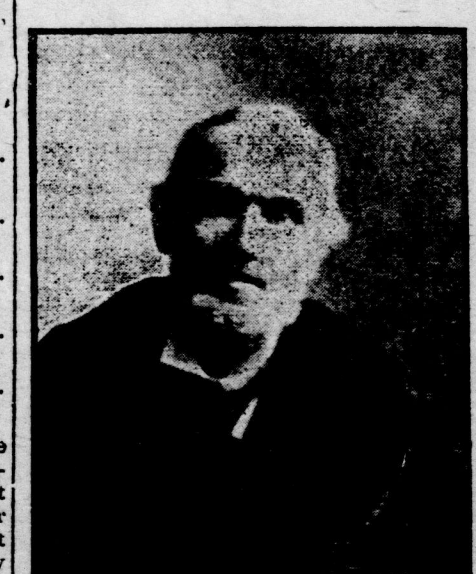

A notable feature of the occasion was the wedding-cake, made by Mrs. Morris Shipway, of Cayuga, grandmother of the bride, and was a beautiful work of art. Mr. and Mrs. Coulter will be at home to their friends at 37 Chestnut street after July 1.

An Invitation
To the Wedding

The importance of having a properly and fashionably prepared Wedding Invitation is greatly emphasized by the pleasing fact that in many cases it is preserved by the recipient as a memento of the auspicious occasion. It must therefore be prepared in the most approved style and be worthy of this honor. It is also regarded by many as a keynote to the good taste and social standing of the parties issuing it.

We study the most minute details of social requirements in our high-class engraving and copper plating for Wedding Stationery.

HAGUE CONFERENCE DOWN TO BUSINESS

The Credentials Presented—Four General Committees Appointed.

The Hague, June 19.—The second session of the peace conference, to complete the organization and create the four general committees, where the actual work will be done, began behind closed doors this afternoon. The programme was carefully arranged in advance, to avoid the possibility of surprises. The full committee organization was as follows:

1. Arbitration—President, M. Bourgeois, France; honorary presidents, Mery Von Kaposs-Mere, Austria; Sir Edward Fry, England; Ruy Barbosa, Brazil; vice-presidents, Dr. Krueger, Germany; Signor Pomplili, Italy; Senor Estova, Mexico.
2. Land War—Presidents, M. Beerlaert, Belgium, and Her Asser, Netherlands; honorary presidents, Baron Marschall Von Bieberstein, Germany; Gen. Horace Porter, United States; the Marquis de Soveral, Portugal; the presidents, Constantin Branc, Denmark; Dr. Beldiman, Roumania, and Dr. Carlin, Switzerland.
3. Maritime War—President, Count Tornelli, Italy; honorary presidents, Joseph H. Choate, United States; Tseng Liang, China; Turkish Bey, Turkey; vice-presidents, Herr Hammarshjold, Sweden; Dr. Drago, Argentina; Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, France.
4. Geneva Convention—President, Prof. Dr. Martens, honorary presidents, Senor Don Daria, Spain; M. Kurachi, Japan; vice-presidents, Sir Ernest M. Satow, England; Prof. Lammasch, Austria; Dr. Hagerup, Norway. M. Nelidoff, Russia, communicated to the conference dispatches from Emperor Nicholas and Queen Wilhelmina thanking the conference for its messages sent on the opening day, greeting the delegates and expressing the hope for a successful result of their deliberations.

All the plenipotentiaries later presented their credentials. The Chinese ambassador wrote that he would be unable to be present because of the state of his health, and he will be represented by Gen. John W. Foster. M. Nelidoff made a few remarks in commemoration of the late M. de Kietel, the former Russian ambassador in London, and then the rules of the conference, including publicity for the plenary sessions, were presented and unanimously carried.

To prevent friction at the outset the question of armaments was ignored temporarily, though there is a well-defined plan to bring it up at the first favorable opportunity in the form of a proposition to reiterate the resolution adopted by the last conference, recommending that the governments again study the subject and postpone its consideration until the next conference.

STIFLING COMPETITION

German Line Has Monopoly of U. S. Shipments for Europe.

Washington, June 19.—The interstate commerce commission today decided to institute an investigation into the affairs of the Hamburg-American Packet Company, which is charged by Peter Wright & Sons, general agents at Philadelphia of the Cosmopolitan Shipping Company, and the Cosmopolitan lines, with pooling and maintaining monopolies in restraint of trade. The inquiry is expected to be one of the most stupendous ever undertaken and of a character different from any that ever before has engaged the attention of the commission.

The inquiry will have to deal with an alleged combination between railroads in the United States and the German shipping concern, and therefore interests every American producer, manufacturer or shipper aspiring to introduce his goods to foreign consumers. According to the complaint on which action was taken by the commission, the Hamburg-American Packet Company has built up a complete monopoly of the eastbound traffic originating in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis, Duluth, Cleveland and other manufacturing centers of the United States, intended for interior ports or places on the coast of Europe. The complaint reviews what it claims to be unfair methods in the stifling of competition.

THE BREATH OF THE PINES.

That is what you breathe when you use Catarrhazone, Canada's marvelous remedy for colds, bronchitis, asthma, and catarrh. Nothing on earth so effective as Catarrhazone. Try it and be convinced.

If you think of making a trip to Manitoba or the great Northwest Provinces this summer, you should make a point of securing, from the nearest C. P. R. agent, a free copy of that railroad's booklet giving information about the popular Home-seekers' Excursions. These excursions are well-known money-savers, and this year are more attractive than ever.

Increased traffic has meant a larger number, nine of them this season, of which, at the time of writing, seven have still to run, leaving Toronto July 2, 16, 30, Aug. 13, 27, Sept. 10 and 24. Special trains are used, carrying colonists and tourist sleepers, berths in the latter at small additional charge. Tickets are issued from all Ontario stations at remarkably low rates, ranging from $32 round-trip to Winnipeg to $42.50 round-trip to Edmonton, and embracing all important points in the Northwest. They are good to return within 60 days, stopovers permitted. Ask nearest C. P. R. agent for particulars, W. Fulton, C. P. and T. A., 161 Dundas, corner Richmond, London, or apply direct to C. B. Foster, district passenger agent, Toronto.

HONEST DISCUSSION OF POWER QUESTION

Ex-Mayor Wood Replying to Critic Points Out Matter Is One for Serious Reflection and Should be Dealt With Free From Personalities.

On his return from the recent power conference in Toronto, Mr. D. B. Wood, ex-mayor of Brantford, and chairman of the electrical energy committee of the board of trade, was interviewed by the Brantford Expositor. Mr. Wood, who was a former colleague of Hon. Mr. Beck's on the municipal power committee, characterized Mr. Beck's scheme as misty and dreamy, and called upon the municipalities to urge for immediate action. Mr. Wood was criticised by the Stratford Herald in an editorial which appeared on June 3, and was as follows:

A Captious Critic.

The Toronto press are giving prominence beyond intrinsic value to the observations of ex-Mayor D. B. Wood, of Brantford, made in what purported to be an interview in the Brantford Expositor, on the subject of Niagara power in the lines of his remarks at the recent conference at Toronto, when his attitude was by no means approved by a big type by the Toronto daily, present. Mr. Wood is a gentleman to whom the sound of his voice and the appearance of his name in print is intensely gratifying, and his bosom must have swelled at the parading of his name in big type by the Toronto dailies, probably at the instance of the electric corporation interests of Toronto, who are appreciative to the extent of advertising rates for the insertion of material (unmarked for advertising) which they can use to discredit the hydro-electric commission's plans for the diffusion of Niagara power over the peninsula. Mr. Wood's weakness in the respects mentioned becomes capital to interests opposed to the transmission of Niagara power at cost. It does not necessarily follow that Mr. Wood purposely plays into the hands of the opponents of the people's scheme, but it works out that way, and there are those who have doubts of his loyalty to the cause in which he is supposed to have enlisted. Added to his evident love for a big position in the public eye is the political prejudice which mars his vision of anything done by a political opponent. Though there is no indication of concern for other than the highest public interest in the record of Hon. Adam Beck, there are those in the Liberal ranks (we are glad to say we know none such in Stratford) who cannot forbear prying at Mr. Beck's plans will somehow come to grief, and one of the most fervent in his devotion in this respect, at least, is not to be Mr. Wood. That gentleman now takes the stand that Mr. Beck and his associates are not moving fast enough, and the impetuous Mr. Beck's hungering for the advent of Niagara power drives him to desperate feelings towards Mr. Beck for keeping him and the Province in suspense. Somehow or other, Mr. Wood is not satisfied with the delay, and he is not alone in this. He is to be found against Mr. Beck, and Mr. Wood seems to be highly fertile along this line, besides intensely enjoying what notoriety he may gain by seeming to want to go Mr. Beck one better. In Brantford there is no doubt that Mr. Wood is understood, and even at this distance he looks to be a good deal of a counterfeit among the friends of Niagara power at cost. The problem which Mr. Beck and his associates are working out is of such magnitude that it would be little wonder if they are occasionally disappointed at progress being slower than they desire, but they may be all the surer for that. There are a score or so of municipalities to do with, besides with the problems of the power, and with all the difficulties of transmission, and the municipalities in turn have to deal with local users, and run the gauntlet of objectors and cavaliers like Mr. Wood. It is one of the greatest problems of modern times to work out, and it will be among the miracles of self-government if the scheme is carried to perfection. It will constitute another great achievement to the credit of Canadian statesmen and governments, for it will prove the greatest and beneficial example of public ownership on record. And the public had better be prepared for the funny spectacle of the self-satisfied Mr. Wood, when the fruition of Mr. Beck's great life plan has been reached, jumping up with the exclamation, "I did it."

The following is Mr. Wood's reply to the above, which he sent to the Stratford Herald, and it requires no comment:

Brantford, Ont., June 6, 1907.
The Editor of the Herald, Stratford, Ont.:

Sir—My attention has been directed to an editorial in your issue of the 19th inst., in which you say that because of my having said certain things at the recent electrical conference in Toronto, and also having expressed some of my views in an interview published in the Brantford Expositor, which interview by the way, only touches the fringe of this great problem.

You, sir, require to waken up. It will not satisfy the intelligent ratepayers of the municipalities interested who are face to face with the problem of mastering this question, and with installing plants and supplying millions of dollars to pay for it to have men of your narrow, vicious type discuss the question by heaping personal abuse upon me and others; and I invite you, sir, to drop personal matters, and discuss this question on its merits with a view to mastering it.

A careful study of your editorial reveals the fact that you do not see one word that throws any light whatever upon this complex question. You, sir, are one of the delegates who at the meeting in Toronto swallowed the misty, dreamy synopsis of the so-called contract or tender existing between the hydro-electric commission and the power company. You, sir, apparently held the view that this synopsis was all that was necessary. I then suggested that instead of shadow we should have the substance; instead of what was misty and dreamy and incomplete we should have clear, definite, complete documents; and in view of the fact that we, the municipalities, have to supply the votes and the millions of dollars to complete the enterprise, I still hold, and I now know that there are thousands of ratepayers throughout the municipalities that are astonished and disgusted with your attitude, and the attitude of others who supported your dreamy methods. But that injury, although then inflicted, is not insurmountable to this great problem. You purport to have your readers believe that I am opposed to this great scheme. I fling your vile, untrue insinuations back to the narrow, prejudicial source from which they come, and I desire to say that if, after five years of working on this matter, and many years that the hydro-electric commission, with their staff of engineers and financial experts, have labored, if they are now so thin-skinned and lacking in finish, man-ship and substantial material that when suggestions are made and questions are asked similar to those I supplied at Toronto, that their only answer is "Vote in support of this synopsis, dreamy as it may be, or we will go on strike." I desire to say, sir, without any feeling, that instead of statesmanship, it is more like the acts of a batch of foreign navvies.

However, regardless of your vicious, small, contemptible, personal attack, I, having put my hand to the plow, propose to see this matter to a finish. I propose that the problem shall be met and mastered. While doing this, I condemn the method in which the vote was taken last January, and did so at the time. I condemn the action taken at the recent conference in Toronto because it is meaningless, because the substantial parts of it are hidden away. True, the whole matter will sometime come to light, but why treat the representatives of the municipalities as if they were a lot of children instead of men?

Now, sir, I would invite you, who being an alderman of your city, as well as the editor of your paper, instead of making personal attacks upon myself or others, to devote some time and study to mastering the general situation, and especially your local situation. What, for example, do you propose doing to distribute the current through your city? Do you propose that it shall be done by the plans of the existing company's plants, or by the rectifying and distributing plant of your own; or do you propose that other misty, dreamy suggestion coming from the hydro-electric commission that you shall make a contract with the existing company for them to distribute it? It will cost your city many thousands of dollars by whichever method it is done, and when you do get it, as I trust you may, in Brantford and other places as well, would it not be prudent if you knew from the contents of this so-called contract or agreement what the voltage and the frequency are? If the situation is similar to that of Brantford, which is now fairly well supplied with 60-cycle frequency (and the commission propose to supply us with 50-cycle frequency), I would invite you to make some study and attempt to master some of these common enough problems. Someone has to meet and master them.

You will remember or perhaps I flatter you when I suggest that you remember anything—that the original act of Parliament provided that the hydro-electric commission should furnish to the municipalities plans and estimates for the distributing of the current. Perhaps if you read it you will discover that this has been removed from the act. Can you tell why? I hold that in view of the fact that the credit of the municipalities, meaning that each ratepayer in the municipality, should for thirty years pay taxes toward the payment of this scheme, you, sir, and those associated with you, ought to be very diligent in providing a scheme that will supply to everyone from the largest user to the smallest, the ratepayer, current at a low cost. You sit at your desk and at your place at the council board, and dream and talk of the great things done by the commission. Sir, allow me to tell you that men who occupy such positions ought to be diligent and meet and master these questions, or resign your position as an alderman and allow some person to occupy the position who will attend to the public needs. I have long held the view that a person who held the position of newspaper such as you are who is not big enough and broad and manly enough to discuss great public questions, there are many of them, without descending to personalities, is a greater evil to the community than a pestilence, and I invite you once more to look at this question and what merit it possesses, and instead of flinging out your personal abuse, that you do something that the community has the honor to represent.

One reason you and others gave for supporting the unsatisfactory synopsis was that we should have faith in the commission. I hold also that we should have faith in the commission, but when I find the commission going wrong I have the courage to say so. Can it be possible that we have to swallow everything that the commission says? Now, you have displayed in this matter, will you be good enough to tell your readers what your opinion is of Table 6, opposite page 16, in report of the hydro-electric power commission, issued April 1st last, in which they say that the right of way and estimate is for 100 feet in width, and is to be fenced. Take 528 fence posts at 15 cents each, $79.20; 640 rods of wire, at 40 cents per rod, $25.60; total, $104.80, leaving $133.20, with which to purchase 12% acres of land, or equal to $10.90 per acre. This is one of the estimates supplied and subscribed by the commission, and it is for land from Niagara to Hamilton. My object in supplying this is not to be captious or fault-finding, but simply to show that this error has been made of such a simple thing as the purchase and fencing of land; and, as a reason therefor, in the great and complex questions included in this matter, instead of you and others insisting that we should have the utmost confidence in the commission, it is reasonable to conclude that we had better look into things just a little for ourselves. Will you be good enough to tell your readers what you think of the estimate, what it means, and whether it is a correct one or not, and then tell us if we are justified when we are asked for our opinion of a contract involving millions of dollars in swallowing it without knowing what its complete terms are. This document is perhaps longer than I leave for our great west in a day or two, and will be absent for several weeks. I would not have noticed the contemptible attack you have made upon me, but I think it better that the public should be informed of some of the features of this great question, and I believe that it is quite in the public's interest that as this great question is developed those making suggestions pointing out in a friendly way where there are errors and where improvements can be made, should be treated in a tolerant, helpful and many ways by you and others.

With my best wishes for the success of the movement, I beg to remain, yours truly,

Queries Answered

CRUMBLIN—A contractor in presence of a witness takes a contract from B for a certain sum. Plans and conditions were not in writing, but were made known before A and his witness, and fully understood by all parties. B has completely changed his plan. Can B change his plan as spoken to A, and compel A to complete the contract for the sum named?

ANS.—No.
Can A charge B for all extras, at a reasonable wage?
ANS.—Yes.
Advise as to the best course to pursue.

ANS.—You had better consult a solicitor if you have done any work on the contract. If not call it off and notify B that a new contract must be made in writing if you are to do the work.

At a conference held at the ministry of commerce, St. Petersburg, it was decided that agricultural machinery required by peasant emigrants to Siberia and other portions of the Russian Empire would have to be ordered abroad this year, as the Russian factories would be unable to deliver in time. Next year an attempt will be made to introduce Russian machinery among the settlers.

SHOULD THE BIBLE BE TAUGHT IN ONTARIO PUBLIC SCHOOLS?

Synod Votes to Call Attention of Government to the Present Law.

Most of the time at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Synod of Huron was taken up with discussing the matter of using the Bible in public schools, and with the consideration of the reports of several committees.

The discussion was reopened by Mr. Cockshutt, M. P., of Brantford, who did not think that the Bible would be introduced into the schools under present conditions. He thought that any government which offered to do such a thing would wreck itself. The first thing to be done was for the churches to unite and agree on the important questions of doctrine and then unitedly approach the Government. "Until we can approach the Government with something like unity," he said, "I don't think it will be of any use. It is not right for the family, the Sunday school and the church to attempt to unload upon the Government their duty, regarding the teaching of the Bible. Let the family, the Sunday school and the church do their duty, and then we will have the desired results. Christian unity is, in my mind, the greatest question with which the church has to deal today. We are not all agreed on the great questions of doctrine, and until we can unite we had far better keep the Bible out of the schools. If all of us—and I think the Roman Catholics should be admitted—could go to the Government and say that we all agreed that we wanted the Bible to be taught in the schools, then we would be granted the request."

The Bible Read in the Schools.
Secretary McElheran, of the board of education, informed the synod that the Bible is read in all the public schools today. The teachers are compelled to teach the Bible by law. "What more do we want?" he asked. Rev. Charles G. Hume, of Clinton, said it was only necessary to have each of the clergymen become a member of a board, and they could then see that the present laws were enforced. Rev. R. S. W. Howard, of this city, told of the influence in which he found that great good had come in the line of a Biblical education through the systematic teaching of the Bible in the schools.

A. E. Welch thought that the people of Ontario were all agreed on this subject, and would be able to present a united front to the Government on this question. An Amendment.
At this juncture Mr. Edwin Paull, of this city, moved an amendment to the motion, making it read: "That the action of the proper authorities be called to the law regarding the reading of the Bible at the opening and closing of schools."

Judge Barron, of Stratford, thought that the friction between the members of various churches in the school boards was responsible for the law regarding the teaching of the Bible in the schools not being enforced. Mr. Charles Jenkins, of Petrolia, thought the Bible contained mysteries which the best of us could not solve, but that certain passages which bear upon the salvation of the human race should be chosen for reading in the schools.

Rev. Mr. Craig, of Petrolia, thought that the conference with the Government had been undenominational, and that in this light the whole Christian church had approached the Government united. Mr. Paull's amendment to the motion was carried by a large majority. A message of greeting was received from the Bishop of Ontario, and that synod.

Committee Reports.
The report of the committee on unused churches was then discussed. This report showed that only four churches were not being used.

The committee on Anglican Young People's Associations reported that the past year had been a successful one and continued expansion. From a financial standpoint this association had prospered. The amount received was $259.41, and the amount expended $258.19, leaving a balance on hand of $1.22.

The Diocesan Jubilee.
The committee on the diocesan jubilee reported that they have held frequent meetings in connection with the important subject committed to them. They reported that it is proposed to hold the jubilee service in St. Paul's Cathedral on Sept. 17, when the Lord Bishop of London, England, will preach the jubilee sermon. Arrangements are also being made for a banquet after the service.

The Bishop of Huron spoke of the proposed jubilee service on the 17th of September, and invited all the clergy and all the laymen to be present. He recommended that a committee be organized to look after the jubilee proceedings.

Increase of Stipends.
The report of the committee on the bishop's charge was then considered clause by clause. It endorsed the bishop's recommendation that the stipends of the missionary clergy be increased. The matter was referred to the executive committee with power to act.

Judge Barron, of Stratford, spoke of the great need of effort along the lines of treatment of tuberculosis, and made a strong appeal for work along this line.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

Last night's session of the Synod of Huron was an exceedingly interesting one, the business taken up being entirely missionary work. Three splendid speeches were given—by Rev. T. W. Powell, of Eggleton; another by Dr. Goggin, Toronto, formerly superintendent of education in the Northwest Territories; and a third by Rev. Dr. Patterson Smith, of Montreal, formerly of Dublin, Ireland. The Bishop of Huron presided.

Rev. Mr. Powell.
Rev. Mr. Powell, the first speaker, began by saying that some people think the General Synod of the church of little use, but even the founding of the M. S. C. C. would be enough to recommend it to the community if nothing else had ever been accomplished by this body. He made a complimentary reference to Rev. Dr. Tucker, whom he considered a wisely-chosen official, after which he dwelt upon

The Prospects and Opportunities.
Mr. Powell said the only thing which will ever make Canada a truly great nation is the spreading of the gospel. "Unless Christ permeates every activity, we cannot have an enduring power and lasting civilization," he said. The question which naturally comes before any person who considers the vast resources of Canada, and of what is necessary to assure its ultimate success, is, "How are we going to attain this end?" Good men must be secured, and good men originate out of good thoughts. "There is no power on the earth, there is no missionary organization," he said, "and no men who send more men and more money into the mission fields than the Church of England. The Church of England presents the catholic Christ—the true Christ—in a way which no other church does, and therefore it is the Church of England which should carry Christ to the western world."

The Life of the Church.
Another reason which he gave why the Church of England should engage in missionary work in the west was that her own safety, growth and life, must lie in missionary work. To illustrate this thought, he mentioned the parable of the talents. Another idea was that peoples' minds should be occupied by great thoughts, and that there could be no greater thought than that of missionary endeavor. The thought of the great power which lies behind the Church of England should incite toward more missionary effort. He complimented the different parishes on the splendid way in which they are working in the missionary cause. "Men of vision," he said, "men who see the power, were those who would do all for missionary work."

Vast Fields of Work.
The great field for work in New Ontario was commented upon, and then the great needs of the west were depicted by the speaker. He pictured the poor Indians dying in heathen darkness, and the miners and men of all walks of life, wasting away their lives in drunkenness and immorality, for want of the power of Christian influence, to surround and protect them, while a few devoted clergymen are striving and praying night and day for men and money to carry on the work. He then spoke of all the young men from Christian homes in Ontario going to the far west, where they would be away from the influence of Christianity in many cases, and pointed out the need of men to work in the mission fields.

In closing, he made a strong appeal to parents to have their sons educated for missionary work. To present a young man in the glory of all his strength of mind and body to the Lord, to go and preach the gospel, he took to be the greatest work a Christian parent could do.

Dr. Goggin.
Dr. Goggin was then called upon. He began by speaking of the western land as it was 30 years ago, when it was little known. He next spoke of it as it now exists, and pointed out that people in the east cannot comprehend the vastness of the west, or its rapid advancement. He then told in a very interesting way, touched throughout with humor, of his first trip to the west, long before the C. P. R. had been built about the head of Lake Superior. A graphic description of Winnipeg in its early years was then given, and in doing so he paid tribute to the noble efforts of the late Dr. Robert McCrae, who had so much to do with the early evangelization of the west. Some of the hardships which had to be met while at mission work in the early days were depicted in a very humorous manner by Dr. Goggin. His description of the vast extent of the plains of the far west was very graphic and full of humor, and was greatly enjoyed by the audience. He compared it with other provinces and states better known to the people of the east to show how much larger the west really is than we imagine.

The Indians and Doukhobors.
The Indians were then referred to. He spoke of some of the gifts which civilization brought to the Indians of this country, which included whisky to ruin themselves with, and then their means of living were entirely taken away from them. He pointed out that after taking their country from them, the Indians had been very poorly repaid, and spoke of the duty we owe to do something for them. The greatest thing which white people could do for the Indians, he said, would be to bring Christianity to them. Speaking of the Doukhobors, he said that they were the worst bargain that Canada ever made. On account of their determined adherence to their ideals of life, they make difficult citizens to handle. The thirteen foreign nationalities in the west were then spoken of and compared from the standpoint of citizenship.

The Inflow of Settlers.
Speaking of the number of young people who are all going west from Ontario and all Eastern Canada, he said that it was just as important that their parents should provide for their spiritual welfare as for their success in material life. Speaking of the inflow of settlers from the United States, he said that there is nothing in the Americanization of the west, for the Canadianizing of the Americans of the west is being very satisfactorily proceeded with. In closing he made a strong appeal for the support of the missionary cause.

Dr. Patterson Smith.
Dr. Patterson Smith, of Montreal, the next speaker, who recently came from Dublin, Ireland, said he had been perfectly astounded by the wonderful stimulus offered by the new country. He complimented the Church in Canada on several splendid things he had noticed in connection with it since coming to this country. The consideration of social problems by the synod he admired, and said that it showed a new and splendid spirit to exist in the church. The consideration of such matters as the "New Theology" he considered as timely, and complimented the bishop on the splendid way in which he had, in no uncertain manner, expressed his opinion on this innovation. He spoke of the way he had been caught up by the spirit of Canada, and of how he had been impressed with the great future in store for her. In closing his short address, which was characterized by original thought and humorous expression, but filled with sound reasoning and timely advice, Dr. Smith pointed out that after all, the Church must consider the misery and suffering among the unfortunate people at home as well as abroad.
