THE ARGONAUTS WIN.

The Nesbitt Challenge Cup Goes to the Oarsmen.

VARSITY, 1; ARGOS, 5.

Again, on Thanksgiving Day, Varsity met the Argonauts, and, after a des perate struggle, were forced to yield them the palm of victory, thereby los-ing their last chance of winning the Beattle Nesbitt Challenge Cup, which goes with the city championship. The day was very cold and the ground hard, and spectators were forced to do a little cake-walking and buck-dancing to keep the blood in their extremities. Before the game commenced the betting was in favor of Varsity, but little money was going on either side.

The Argonauts played with the wind in the first half, and when the Argonauts were only able to score five points with this advantage, things looked bright for the students. However, the Argonauts' superior strength and maturity stood them in good stead, and out of about 60 scrimmages in the second half the Argonauts got 51, holding the ball almost all the time, but being, however, unable to gain much.

Britton for the Argonauts played a splendid game, bucking the line steadily, and being well protected by the wings. Here was a weakness of the Varsity men, they being unable to hold the opposing wings, who broke through the line repeatedly upon Percy Biggs. The Varsity men played offside to gain possession, but Captain Kent elected to scrimmage instead of taking the kick, and kept the ball. Varsity's halves played a surer game than the Argonauts in catching and tackling.

The game began at 2.30. kicked off for Varsity and Hardisty returned. The play went to the Argos' 45-yard line. Ardagh returned a free kick, Baldwin caught it and made a great run of 30 yards before he was downed. The Argos got a penalty for a poor scrimmage, and kicked away down the field, when Biggs fumbled and Baldwin saved a try by falling on the ball. In a series of scrimmages Varsity gained 10 yards from their line, and got a free kick. Henderson returned it over the line, and Beatty was forced to rouge-1-0.

The play went back to center again, when, on a penalty, Darling kicked over to McCollum, who was forced over tne line for a safety touch—3-0.

The fourth point for the Argonauts was scored by Darling punting over the line to Biggs.

Britton returned the kick-out to Britton, who made a splendid run, and Var-sity soon had the ball at center again. Darling punted to Gibson, who ran 30 yards through the bunch. Brilliant playing followed on both sides, with varying success, the Argonauts apparently getting a little the better of it and finally kicking over for another St. Francis and St. Dominic, Bacon, point, making the score at half-time

Then came the Wars of the language of the day last. Score 5-1, and thus it remained to the end of the game. The ball was at midfield when time was called. During the game several players were slightly injured on account of the hardness of the ground.

The line-up was as follows:

Argonauts (5)-Back, Ardagh: halves. Hardisty, Darling, Henderson; quarter, Britton; scrimmage, Wright, Russel, P. Boyd; wings, Kent (captain). Wilson. Strange, Grant, Chadwick, Parmenter. Reiffenstein.

The Final Game For the City Championship.

SCORE ONE ALL-A ROUGH GAME

On Saturday afternoon the fina game in the series for the Association football city and Ontario championship was played betwen the Varsity first team and the Gore Vales. The day was damp, and the field was in a very shippery condition, rendering fast play very difficult. The crowd in attendance was only fair in size, the small boy who crawled over the fence predominating. The Varsity team were weakened by the loss of Britton, who is ill, while the Gore Vales played two of the Scots in the absence of two of their own men. The game was rather unsatisfactory as far as the result was concerned, as Varsity had all the best of the play in the first half, and made some beautiful rushes, their first goal being scored on rush the full length of the field. They should have scored again, but for some reason were unable to get the

The Relation of Literature to History.

ADDRESS BY PROFESSOR CLARK.

Owing to Thursday being Thanksgiving Day, the regular meeting of the Political Science Club for last week was held on Tuesday. The program con-sisted of an address by the Rev. Professor William Clark of Trinity University on "The Relation of Literature to History," and there was a large attendance, including many of the faculty. Everyone present was delighted with the address, which was extremely interesting and full of those touches pointed out that the importance of historical treatment is now recognized in every science, not even excepting theo logy. The relation between history and literature is even closer than that between history and the sciences. If all other records were destroyed, it would be possible to reconstruct much of a country's history from its literature. and on the other hand there is a good derstand through our knowledge of his-A nation's language is half of its literature, and it is in the study of its literature, and it is in the study of languages that historical treatment is particularly valuable. In the case of our own noble language, it is well worth while to study the process by which our Saxon dialect was singled out, pruned of its vulgarities, enriched with the best of other dialects, and finally developed into a language which, according to the German philogogist. cording to the German philologist Grimm, is superior even to ancient Greek. Latin influences, as well as Saxon, contributed to the work, and to these Latin elements no mean part of the strength of the English language is due.

Turning to Greece and Rome, Professor Clark showed briefly how close-ly their literature and history are interwoven. He then passed on to the thirteenth century, that wonderful period which produced Thomas Aouinas and Dante. first in their series, thus gaining the right to play off in the finals with the School of Science team. Although everyone confidently expected our boys to win out, still for all the game was anxiously awaited, and in spite of the raw, bleak wind blowing, and the general unpleasant weather conditions prevailing, a good ly body of supporters journeyed to the field to cheer the men on to victors and fame.

True to their usual experience, the School men were lucky in winning the oss, and chose to kick south, with the wind. In this half the play was very evenly divided, and the School made a number of unpleasant looking rushes which were stopped only by the splendid defence put up by our back divis ion; our forward line, too, worked hard and well, many times coming close to finding the vacancy, but when the nall-time whistle sounded neither side had scored.

When play began, however, in the second half, our boys, urged on by the splendid "rooting" done by their supporters on the touch-line, immediately started in to rush matters, and from that moment the result was never in doubt. In about five minutes' time, after a rush down the right wing, Peterson centered to Carveth, who by a very quick and fast shot scored first blood amidst great enthusiasm. #### "GYMNASIOLATRY" AND TORONTO UNIVERSITY.

Among the correspondence in the col umns of Varsity last week there appeared an article on "Gymnasiolatry. of which the greater part was a quo tation from the Mitre, the journal of Bishop's College, Quebec. We know nothing of the identity of the writer of the extract quoted, but should be in-clined to think from the tone of his letter that he was a man who took little interest in sports and never partici pated therein, as his criticism seems not to be so much from the standpoint of one who fears lest the true object of athletics should be perverted as of one who has felt his intellectual ability slighted to some extent, and consequently vents his feelings in an exaggerated picture of the position and in-fluence of the athlete as we find him to-day in our universities.

We believe that as long as a nation is strong and vigorous there will never come a time when its sports will not form a great feature of its national life and exercise an invigorating influence on its national spirit, and hence feel that in our universities the greatest encouragement and support should be given to all manly games and sports. However, if it is true, as the writer mentioned above states, that the importance of the athlete is unduly exaggerated and false aims set before students, then there is something which requires attention. It is no doubt a t that in some universities the true end of college sports is perverted by what approaches professional methods, viz., when good football players, for example, are approached and offered a free course through the university with the addition of several guaranteed scholarships, in this way making the aim of the player a mercenary one instead of the development of a good physique, courage, confidence, and un-selfishness. We should deplore exceedingly such a state of affairs at To ronto University, but we feel safe in saying that such methods will never be pursued here. The mere taint of professionalism is enough under our sporting rules to prevent a man playing our college teams.

The writer of the article on "Gymnasiolatry" has evidently little personal acquaintance with first-class athletes, judging from his belief that the hom-"the idle crowd frenzied with delight" is the great incentive to participation in sports. We have had op-portunities of becoming acquainted with men on the various teams of the University, and the result of our observations has been that the best and most famed players care very little for the plaudits of the rooters on the grand True, they are encouraged by rooting, and it spurs them on to greater efforts as music does the warriors in battle, and there is no man who does not like h's meed of praise after a hardfought field, but everyone knows that as soon as a man plays for applause or in other words becomes a "grand stand" player, his doom is sealed, as repeat the statement above, the real athlete does not bid for applause. He enters the contest because he enjoys it.

in their class. We think that, unless conditions change very greatly, there need be little fear of "Gymnasiolatry"

There is a proposal on foot to amalgamate the three college journals, viz. Varsity, the University of Toronto Monthly, and College Topics. The method of amalgamation or the plans regarding it have not yet been made public, and so we cannot very well discuss the matter yet. It is, however, a proposal that should attract the attention of everyone who takes any in-terest in college affairs, of which the journals form no small part. If we might be allowed to make a suggestion, t would be that there should be one weekly newspaper for the University of Toronto and one monthly, or parhaps fortnightly University magazine, the former being devoted almost entirely to local news and topics of the day written up in as bright and attractive a manner as possible, while the latter should be devoted to literature and the heavier articles, and should appeal to the alumni as well as to the under-graduates. The literary talent of our students is not enough encouraged, and we are lacking in this respect, as comparison of our journals with those of several American universities will show. They are much superior to us in the writing of short stories, and sketches, not because they necessarily have more talent than we, but because they pay more attention to these things A paper cannot be at once a weekly newspaper and a literary magazine. The newspaper is a necessity here; so is the literary magazine; and hence we submit our suggestion that there should

ODE TO A CO-ED.

The men of the University of Roches er evidently are not enamored of the idea of having women in their univer-sity, a change which has been only recently introduced. The poet bursts into song as follows in the Interpres:

A feminine footfall Within our college hall!
Oh, hark! did'st hear those accents soft and low; The rustle of a gown

Sweeping the hall adown, Precursor of the ancient grinder's woe

"They're come!" the freshies moan, They're come!" the sophomores

No more may we indulge in rushes sweet. No more the battle-cry

Will echo from the sky, Soft peace must now for ever hold her

Thou may'st well tremble, Grind! For thou art far behind, nless thou burn the midnight oil.

Ordinary time flies, but academic time transmits itself with the speediest of electrical velocity And yet, is it because one purposed better than he did that his very intention gives him the hope that he will make his exam, all right? One term has almost gone, but another lies ahead, and there is no telling how much los ground may be recovered if we not only resolve, but do. Study will be a considerable advantage, my fellow-nonstudent, in this dilemma.

"Fast bind, fast find," A proverb never stale in the "Residence" mind.

Yes, Smith, '01, had received his preliminary education all right enough. It was quite certain he shut the door after him when he went out. Then, who could have conjectured that on his return that same door should have taken to itself wings and flown high into the remotest corner of the attic? A flying locked door to most people is a contradiction in terms, an undemonstrable absurdity, a white-blackbird, or a round-square. But a college education gives one great scope for original research into these supernatural phenomena which seem to run so contrary to the established laws of nature. funny feature of the affair is not that the men should know how these things "effect themselves," but that there should be such inherent and wide-spread modesty in withholding their names from the publicity which such remarkable investigations and demonstrations deserve. As Tupman would put it, they are "as mum as a drum with a hole in it." But that is the way with freshmen, anyhow. #### TRINITY MEDS.

Annual Banquet on Thursday December 5th.

THIS ONE IS A DRY DINNER.

The annual banquet of Trinity Medical Coilege will be held in the Temple uilding on Thursday, December 5, at 3 o'clock. We are assured by the comclipse anything that students of Trin-ly have ever seen. We have not been furnished with a list of the guests ex-pected, as the replies are not all in yet, but we can assure the students that they may expect to meet that night many of Canada's most noted and to listen to the eloquence of our most talented. This is an opportunity we should not neglect for developing the social side of our nature, for there is not one of us but expects to be some-body some day not far off, when we shall occupy as high a social position as anybody else, and a little higher than most. When those days come we expect, as a matter of course, to be invited to all these functions that comalong; and, of course, we must be pre-pared to do the thing right. Then again, we must back up this committee of ours lest their efforts in our behalf fall through. As the Israelites did for Moses, so we must hold up the hands of our committee.

We understand that this is to be

"dry" dinner. That is an experimen that has not been tried before in Trinity for some time, but it is becoming fashionable, and seems to work fairly well in other colleges, and doubtless will be all right in our case. We hope it will deter no one from going. Those who prefer wine dinners should con-sider that they have had it their way quite a few times now, when the other fellows always went, and certainly every temperance and prohibition man and every man who ever objected to going to a banquet on the score of temperance should never want to be asked, but should walk up to the firs committee man he sees with a handful of tickets and demand one.

The annual reception of the Lady Meds, is to be held in the Norma! School, on December 9. Quite a number of the Trinity boys have been invited. We believe a somewhat careful selection was made. We must say we rather admire their choice—we got an invitation ourself.

An epidemic of some form of throat affection seems to have broken our among the occupants of the benches of the Primary room. It seems to be some form of infection, as the whole class seems to be affected, both freshmen and sophs, being equally troubled. It is becoming chronic apparently, as it has run an uninterrupted course since the day after the scrap. That fact alone might indicate that it might be due to traumatism, were it not so widespread. Whatever the reason, it is a fact that the Primary men have lost their voice. Few of them can speak above a conversational tone. Professors come and go, and lectures are delivered, yet they are as lambs before the shearers—they open not their mouths. It is said that the pro fessors are worried about it, and think the Primary men have a spite against them, recalling the days when their advent to the lecture room was welcomed by a "Good-morning" that made the bar rattle in its moorings. We would suggest that Dr. Wishart examine their throats and have the disease eradicated before they lose their voices alto-is our mournful duty to record another of those bereavements that frequently come to some of us. We refer to the death of Mr. Field's father We have not heard the full particulars but we understand that he died while undergoing an operation at the Western Hospital. We assure Mr. Field of our heartfelt sympathy in his bereavement, and we hope that it will not interfere with his continuing the course he has commenced with us.

like way in which they executed their commission of interviewing the photographers of the city. The excellent sample of Park's work in the final room of the class of 1900, and the fact that his price is as low as anyone else were the main reasons for the choice We hope that as soon as final arrangements are made the boys will not be dilatory about having their photos taken for the group, because there is nearly always some delay at the last, and we would like to see the picture in its place before we leave the city—for parts unknown. The committee request that anyone having any good suggestions to offer as to design, etc., will communicate the same to some one of the committee

On Nov. 25th the Medical Society concert was a distinct success. The lecturer and views were all that could be desired, and were very entertaining and instructive. In every case he speaker's language was peculiarly appropriate to the ever-changing panorama which he was describing, so that whether gazing down upon the mag-nificent high-walled fiords of Norway or in allowing each column and palace of Florence and Rome to turn over the pages of history and tradition, the would-be traveler neither thought nor labored on the weary miles that lay between. It was also interesting to note that the faculty was so well represented, and it is only a hint at the interest which they feel in all that concerns the student. Much as your correspondent loathes to speak of it, yet it becomes his painful duty to refer* to the rather poor attendance on the part of the medical students at the concert on the evening of the 25th. Had it been to some down town lecture where the leader's bell guides and attracts blind public opinon and sentiment, had it been to some 10th class theater that was reported to be excelling in its perverted specialty on a particular occasion there would the medical students flock in numbers, and it is a still more curius commentary on the spirit of medical students that some of the reputed prudery and sober judgment should so forsake their obvious duty as to be abent on this occasion, specially prepard as it was, for them, and at which they should have been both hosts and guests; that they should have been so vain as to think the gay world and its "fielde charms" lived only for them and in their presence alone "soft eyes could speak goo-goo to eyesthat spake goo-goo again," and in this way lull their consciences in the deception that they had done their duty by their alma mater. And it is only fair to anticipate that should another typewritten inviation with a bun smiling on its corner appear on the bulletin board bearing he date of December 2 a similar fate would befall that other medical func tion whose misfortune it is to occur on that date. For their failure to at tend this lecture, unfortunately, we have no excuse to offer why either a hundred freshmen, sophomores in equal umbers, and a complete "turnout"

PRIMARY MEDS.

A freshman asked a second year man he had dissected the liver yet. No troubles in the dissecting-room. Most of them have started to dissect, and do not seem to be very apt as yet with the scalpel. The second year men very wisely walk over and give them point ers, and tell them how to do this and that. The freshies are very good at cutting out things-so much so that on a couple of the subs. they have cut out nearly everything. A few nights ago three freshies were taking an exam. Prof. Primrose came around to them. looked over their dissection, and told them they hadn't it properly done, so handed them back their cards. The freshies, of course, didn't know what to make of this, and were talking it over among themselves, when Dr. Starr. walking by, heard the conversation, stopped and listened for a minute, and then asked them if they had been turned down. They answered: "No; he has just handed us back our cards."

Prof. McCollum says he hopes the second year men will not smoke any more bum cigarets before his lecture, as it is not strictly hygienical. He says the air in the room has to be breathed over and over again, five to six hundred times at least, and that the individual must necessarily suffer in consequence. We wonder what he would say about a good mild cigar?

It must have been some unsmoked cigarets the boys had in their pockets that intoxicated the professor; or perhaps one of the boys was smoking a smokeless cigaret. At any rate the boys say no one smoked any cigarets whatever in the room. Something

SCHOOL OF SCIENCE

A meeting of the Engineering Society was held on Weinesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in Dr. Fillis' lecture room. After the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved of, representatives to the Dental at home and the Varsity dinner were elected. The paper for the evening was one written by Mr Kinnard Thompson, a graduate of the School, and read by Mr. Rust of the fourth year. The subject was "The Underpinning of the Stokes Building," In New York, and was explained very fully by Mr. Rust, aided by Professor Wright's lantern slides. After the pa-per had been read Professor Wright told of a similar piece of work which the School had helped to carry out successfully a few years ago. It was the underpinning of the Confederation Life Building, corner of Yonge and Richmond streets, to allow part of the walls on the ground floor to be taken down and plate glass substituted, without in any way injuring the stability of the building. Although it was probably the most difficult piece of work of that kind attempted in Canada, it was carried out successfully, and the School is proud to have had a hand in it. The meeting closed by tendering a vote of thanks to Mr. Thompson.

On Tuesday afternoon last the final intermediate Association football match was played on Varsity field between the S.P.S. II. and the Dentals' II. Notwithstanding the hardness of the ground and the high wind, a good experience of the ground and the high wind, a good experience of the ground and the high wind, a good experience of the ground and the high wind, a good experience of the ground and the high wind, a good experience of the ground and the high wind, a good experience of the ground and the high wind, a good experience of the ground and the high winds are given by the ground and the ground are given by the ground are given by the ground and the ground are given by hibition of the game was played. From start to finish the match was keenly contested, and it was only after a hard struggle that the Dents, were able to score. The School team were: Goal, Worthington; backs, Whelihan and Mc Causlin; halves, Moore, Begg, and William; forwards, Thompson, Keefe, Za-hu (captain), Jackson, and Connor.

The Senior School are practising hard getting ready for their next match with the Junior Meds., on December 6. The match will be no cinch for the School, but we've got to get that cup. We need it in our business. So everybody must turn out and yell. Remember what happened to those who forgot to turn out to the senior-junior game on the 19th and beware! The game will be played on Friday afternoon at 2.30 Clock, on the Varsity Athletic Field.

The annual dinner will be held this year at McConkey's, in King street, on December 13. The committee are working hard to have everything in readiness, and all that is needed now to make it the most successful in the history of the school is that everyone should turn out and help it along. As next year the new Science building will to a great extent take the place of the old we might almost call it a farewell dinner to the old school, which has been the scene of so many doughty deeds, both in the lecture rooms and in the scrapping line. Anyway, you'll be kicking yourself if you don't come. You won't run up against a School dinner every day.

Mr. R. Cumming, who represents Colege Topics at the School, had to go to Guelph last week, in charge of a ousin, and was unable to return until after the holiday, and that's what's the matter with this week's news. We hope his cousin is not seriously, ill and that 'ommodore will soon be back to take ver this weighty matter again. Owing to the kindness of the faculty in closing the School on Friday and Saturday, a large number of the boys were able to visit their homes on the holiday. They say everyone at home were glad to see them, even the tur keys yelling "Toickey oike," in honor of the occasion.

On account of the illness of Mr. Burton, who lectures in Euclid and Alge bra to the first year, there have been no lectures in those subjects this week We hope to see Mr. Burton out again soon, ready to take up his duties again The school was very glad to see the Varsity defeated Galt Conan Doyle once met his match in the United States. Here is his own account of one of his adventures when on a lecturing tour.

Selections by the Knox College Glee Club. A full orchestra will discourse music for promenades. Tickets can be obtained from Mr. R. J. Wilson, room 15, Knox College, between the hours of 12 and 2 p.m. of each day. Rev. J. A. Turnbull of West Church,

Rev. Prof. McLaren, and Rev. A. Gan-dier were the latest guests of the House Committee. All gave us some helpful advice more or less interspersed with humorous illustrations. Mr. Turnbull, judging by his remarks, seems to have taken not only the regulation course outlined in the calendar, but also the wider and more impressive (to the initiated) course of Knox residence. As one who had experienced the benefits of this latter training, he strongly advised all students having the ministry in view to spend at least one year in Commencing on Monday, December 2, and continuing until Friday evening. the annual conference of the Knox College alumni will be held. Interesting papers will be read and discussed on the live theological and sociological problems of the day. All meetings are open. Morning sessions begin at 10 o'clock, and the afternoon meetings at 2.30 o'clock. The following are some of those who will take part: Professors Kirschmann, Murison, Fraser, McCurdy of University College, McLaughlin of Victoria, Sheraton of Wycliffe, and McFadyen, Caven, McLaren, and Ballantyne of Knox.

Knox lectures will be cancelled this week during the hours the conference

The Library and Theological Society met as usual Tuesday evening. Mr. Andrew gave notice of the following motion, which he will move at our next regular meeting, December 10: (a) That the name of our society be changed to that of the Theological and Literary Society of Knox College; (b) that theo logical subjects form the major part of our discussions, each subject to be opened up by two members, one of whom shall prepare an essay and the other a critique on the essay. Mr. Andrew, in supporting this motion, cited his experience in Glasgow as an instance of the beneficial results that would ensue from our making this change in the nature of our society's effort. His strong speech was followed by those of Messrs. Little, Abraham. Burch, McLaren, Justice, and Beckett. The difficulties which might be in the way of the change were referred to in the discussion. Firstly, would the dif-ference in the conditions of college life and of ministerial life in Canada make it advisable to adopt a method found suitable in Scottish and English uni-Secondly, would the students of Knox College be able or willing to devote the necessary time to the study of such subjects. Let every member of the society seriously consider Mr. Andrew's motion and come prepared to give an intelligent vote at our next meeting. It would be better to vote against the change if you do not see your way clear to devote the necessary time and application to the consideration of the theological problems which will be discussed semi-monthly if this otion is passed. Only hearty co-operation will ensure success in such a work as this motion involves.

Knox College athletes are upholding the honor of the college in connection with the autumn cross-country races. T. Graham and E. S. Carey have both gained first places in the Varsity Track Club's Saturday events. Mr. Carey's Ontario Athletic Association as one of the prize-winners in their Thanksgiv

An explanation of the groot as in the rind of a melon is that it may naturally be adapted for division for family purposes. #### VICTORIA COLLEGE

Our annual conversat, is to be held on Friday, December 6, in the College building, and arrangements are being made to ensure it being in every respect up to the high standard set by James, M.A., the Honorary President of the Society, occupied the chair during the literary session, opening the meeting by a neat chairman's address. The College Glee Club gave two numbers in their usual good form. Taylor's recital of "Bingen or Rhine" as executed by an old hero of the field, who supported several arti ficial appendages as a result of participating in the great victory, was very heartily applauded. Mr. Bishop sang a solo to the evident delight of all. Mr. Eckhardt's Dutch recitation from real life was a feature of the program. #### IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL.

Goldwin Smith Discusses Its Relation to Morality.

Prof. Goldwin Smith, writing to the New York Sun, says: The battle with Tammany did not suspend the discussion in your columns of the immortality of the soul and its relation to morality. Your correspondents are in the Nothing can be more intensely practical than this question. Since the subversion of religious belief, morality has been dragging its anchor, and its state of transitional perplexity is the real source of much of the practical disturbance of the world.

Mr. E. Sherman is brave enough to say that morality without immortality a sentimental humbug. As an agnostic or an atheist, he claims the right of making his own moral law. jectively, no doubt, he has that right Objectively, he will find the limit of the right in the club of the nearest police-Whatever turn may ultimately be taken by our convictions about hereafter, society will uphold by law or social influence rules necessary to its own security and convenience here It may even uphold them more rigorously, perhaps cruelly, if it is convinced that the present life is all. The natural affections, parental, conjugal, and social, will also retain their force.

So far, however, as conscience is oncerned I cannot help agreeing with Mr. Sherman. Immortality is an idea which my mind fails to grasp, as it fails to grasp the ideas of eternity, infinity, omnipotence, or first cause. But if this life ends all, I do not see how onscience can retain its authority. The is religious. The sanction of its awards appears to be something beyond and above temporal interest, utility, or the dictates of society and law. In the absence of such a sanction what there be to prevent a man from follow ing his own inclinations, good or bad. beneficent or murderous, so long as he keeps within the pale of law or manages to escape the police? One man is a lamb by nature, another is a tiger Why is not the tiger as well as the lamb to follow his nature so far as the law will let him or as he has power Eccelino, for instance, was by nature a devil incarnate, a sort of Satanic en-thusiast of evil. What had merely utilitarian utility to say against his gratification of his propensities as long as he had power on his side?

The age of Machiavel was something like ours. It was an age of religious eclipse attended by failure of the traditional foundation of morality; and Machiavelism, a domination of selfinterest without regard for moral restrictions, was the result.

I do not presume to put forward any hypothesis. I merely call attention to certain phenomena of humanity which the purely materialist view; our power tradicting our whole nature, cannot be sponsibility; our moral aspirations and endeavors; our conceptions of a high-er state of being and desire to press onward toward it; all the phenomena, in a word, of what has hitherto been alled our spiritual nature. By what process of physical evolution can we suppose these phenomena to have been

I heartily accept evolution, though I may doubt whether it has yet settled down into its final shape. But I am that physical development is the end. as well as to the assumption that nothing of which our bodily senses are not ognizant can be true. Perfection may be produced by the fiat of Omnipotence. This clearly is not the constitution of the universe, since the universe is full of imperfec-Physical progress may be made by evolution, which out of the worm has evolved the frame of man. But there is another mode of progress of which we are conscious in ourselves. and of which man's history, so far as it is progressive, is the outcome. This is intelligent effort. In fact, we can hardly understand any moral perfection or excellence of character except as the production of effort. A scraph s insipidity with unanatomic wings.

That which constitutes the special alue of the ancient masters of ethics Plato, Aristotle, Marcus Aurelius, and Epictetus, is that, while they looked at human nature with eyes as clear as ours, they were free from theological prepossessions. From the State polytheism they had broken away. In all of them you will find recognition of the character produced by moral effort and transcending mere utility. especially striking in Plato, who is so far from utilitarianism that he even looks on martyrdom as the natural meed of the righteous. It is less strik-ing in Aristotle, whose ideal is an animated Greek statue, but still it is there. In Plato there is a distinct connection of virtu. with a personal though unseen power of good. and Apictetus the power is not personal, but there is a power.

I have assumed that as agents we have liberty of choice. I eschew the term "free will," leaving it to the metaphysical angels in Milton's Hell. The necessarian hypothesis, seeing that the chain of causation stretches back indefinitely, must imply that all our actions were irrevocably settled in the very beginning of things. Not having seen the beginning of things I cannot say, and therefore I will not argue about free will; but unless my whole moral being is a delusion, I have liberty of choice. Frank acceptance of all proved truth, such as the general theory of evolution caution in allowing ourselves to be carried away by the last great discovery, recognition and examination of all phe nomena, not physical only, but of every kind, together form the compass to which we must look for guidance over

TEMPERANCE DAY.

Students' Day at Massey Hall Next Sunday.

ADDRESSES BY REPRESENTA-TIVES.

The students' day meeting, to be held in Massey Hall next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Canadian Temperance League, promises to be one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings of its kind. The question of "Total Abstinence" is one that is receiving greater attention from our students every year, and we dare say that these annual gatherings have done, and are doing, a great deal to keep this question before the minds of our college men.

Untiring efforts have been put forth by the League to make Sunday's meet ing not only an attractive but a helpful one. The following gentlemen, representing their respective colleges, will address the meeting:

A HORRIBLE EXAMPLE.

There never was in any part of Great Britain a body of men whose business t was, or whose duty it was, to watch over or to guard the growth of our notation. Hence we are driven to the conclusion that the English language never could spell itself. Hence, again, we have no right to wonder if very few true-born Englishmen know how to spell their own language correctly. very comic illustration of this fact is given in one of the blue-books. In dictation test given in one of the civil service examinations, a young gentle-man had the word usage to spell, and he contrived to make thirteen errors in this one word. How did he manage this feat? By the ingenious process of leaving out every one of the five letters that make up the word "usage," and by employing eight letters, not which is to be found in the right spell. ing. He spelt the word "yoozitch"; eight plus five equal thirteen.—Professor Meiklejohn in the London Outlook

IT'S UP TO YOU, BOYS.

There is a tradition that one of the upon entering one night the room which had been assigned to him, discovered a notice bearing these words, "Please turn out the light." Without reading any further he rushed with lightninglike speed to the button, turned out the and then sat shivering in the darkness until morning. Now to those who are studying ethics we should like to submit this question. Is this misguided youth to be blamed for his rashness in neglecting to read the whole of the notice, or is he to be commended for the zeal and self-sacrifice he displayed in his eagerness to obey the World's Champion Hurls the 56-Pound Weight 28 Feet 10% Inches.

New York, Dec. 1.—John Flanagan, older of probably more records at weight-throwing than all other men in same sports, added a new set of figures to the books last night by hurling the "56" a distance of 28 feet 10 3-4 inches, at the combined athletic meeting of the Pastime A.C. and Company G, 8th Regiment, in the latter's armory at Park avenue and Ninety-fourth street. The national and world's champion was at the post of honor in this event, and conceded liberal marks. was not long in making inroads on the handicaps of the best men, and on his fifth throw got the sphere out the remarkable distance above mentioned He threw, swinging both arms around his head, from a stand, with a half-circle described by the left foot.
