"Put Money In Thy Purse."

Nobody suffering from brain-fag, lack of energy, or that tired feeling ever puts money in his purse. Lassitude and listlessness come from impure, sluggish blood that simply oozes through the veins. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure and gives it life, vigor and vim.
Pimples—"My face was covered with pimples and blackheads but after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a short time, I was entirely cured, and my skin was smooth and clear."—May Ryan, North St., Chatham, Ont.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

THE RETURN OF THE COLONIALS.

Speaking of the return of the Colonial soldiers from South Africa the London Telegraph says: "These Canadian campaigners wore all sorts of these being decidedly the worse for battle-wear. Many among their number limped along, hobbling with leg wounds yet unhealed. Several carried an arm not yet satisfactorily mended and in a sling; and among their valiant faces there were to be seen only too many pallid from weakening wounds or the deadly enteric. Perhaps it was more moving to view them in this quiet unpretending condition than if they had gone along with full military state. Here were soldiers who have deserved, if any ever did, to hear such stirring words as Antony addressed to his legionaries in Egypt: "Through Alexandria make a jolly march; Bear our backed targets like the men that owe them!" There was no attempt here, however, at speech-making or oratorics, which was all the more fitting, we repeat, since the men were already, in one sense, 'at home,' and on their well-earned rest."

THE VICTORIA CROSS.

We announced in the last issue of THE HERALD that Arthur Lindsay of the Strathcona Horse had been awarded the Victoria Cross for rescuing a wounded trooper at Standerton on August 5th last in the face of a heavy Boer fire. The name, it appears, was not altogether correct, and the proper name of the Canadian who won it is Sergeant A. H. J. Richardson. The error of the Associated Press is traced to the fact that two of Richardson's names are Arthur and Lindsay, and as Arthur Lindsay was called, the mistake is explained. A few words concerning the Victoria Cross might not be out of place just now.

THE ORDER OF VALOR.

Thus saith the Queen! "For him who gave
His life as nothing in the fight,
So he from Russian wrong might save
My crown, my people and my right;
Let there be made a cross of bronze
And grave thereon my queenly crest,
Write 'Valor' on its haughty scroll,
And hang it on his breast."
Thus saith the Land! "He who shall bear
Victoria's cross upon his breast
In token that he did not fear
To die, if need be, for her rest;
For the dear sake of her who gives,
And the high deeds of him who wears,
Shall, high or low, all honor have
From all, through all his years."

Government Baking Powder Tests.

The Royal Baking Powder is an old candidate for favor with the housekeepers of the Dominion. Its patrons will be pleased to know that the recent Government report giving the analyses of baking powders sold in the Dominion show the Royal to be the purest of cream of tartar powders, the most healthful in character, and of greatest leavening strength.
It is shown that the art in baking powder making is to give a pure and healthful powder, of highest leavening power, which will keep indefinitely without losing its strength. These two qualifications—effective keeping and highest strength—it is impossible to combine in a powder except with the use of chemically pure ingredients. The report states that the only entirely cream of tartar powders which came up to this standard were the Royal and Cleveland's.

can at present like to meditate upon in forcing upon us this costly conflict. Out of the South African soil, so lavishly watered by generous blood has sprung up, before the eyes of all the world, the superb and sturdy tree of imperial unity, and thanks to the men of whom we saw here a small but worthy sample, the word 'Britain' is at this moment a greater word than ever it was before. In some charming lines touched with delicate railleury and full of a merry reverence for this small island realm, Oliver Wendell Holmes once talked about 'turning the spotted globe to find us.' But henceforward—all praise be for it to the stalwart troopers of Natal and the Cape, of Queensland and New Zealand, of Victoria, New South Wales, South Australia, Canada, and the rest—nobody can turn the spotted globe without finding us, nor ever again seek or speculate upon a quarrel with Britain without taking into account the willing and vigorous children who will come nowadays at any serious call of the Mother Country."

Absolutely Pure BAKING-POWDER

No inferior or impure ingredients are used in Royal for the purpose of cheapening its cost; only the most highly refined and healthful.
Royal Baking Powder imparts that peculiar sweetness, flavor and delicacy noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, rolls, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

Alum is used in making cheap baking powders. If you want to know the effect of alum upon the tender things of the stomach, touch a piece to your tongue. You can raise biscuit with alum baking powder, but at what a cost to health!

ever, the conditions are different, England is a crowded country and an old one, and has been slyly pressed for burial space. Yet even there it is now conclusively shown that cremation is not necessary if only people will cease their vain efforts to defeat the laws of nature by seeking to prevent the bodies of their friends from being resolved into the dust from which they were sprung. The London Quarterly in a recent issue, gives some hard knocks to the cremation idea. Among other things it shows scores of cases in which the guilt of murder has been brought home to the criminals by examining the bodies of the murdered. It quotes the opinions of able and experienced men that cremation would render the work of the poisoner easier—so easy, that the public safety would require a post mortem examination of every body offered for cremation. That poisoning is growing less common is due partly to the rigorous enforcement of the law and partly to the fact that in many cases the bodies of the victims have been taken from the earth to give their silent but convincing testimony. The Quarterly cites the case of Mary Ann Cotton who was proved by such evidence to have poisoned three husbands, fifteen children and a lodger. People are not all grown pious yet, and the terrors of the dead witness are still necessary for the prevention of crime. On the other hand, the Quarterly points out that the difficulty threatened by the crowded state of the grave-yards can be obviated by consigning the bodies of the dead to mother earth without any of the artificial trappings used now to retard the action of the forces of nature in reducing the human remains to dust. It quotes an interesting judgment of Lord Stowell, Admiralty and Ecclesiastical judge in the reign of Geo. III., which expresses the Quarterly's contention admirably. It is as follows:
"The domus aeterna is a mere farish of rhetoric; the process of nature will speedily resolve them into an intimate mixture with their kindred dust; and their dust will help to furnish a place of repose for other occupants in succession.....the common cemetery is not the property of one generation now departed, but is likewise the common property of the living, and of generations yet unborn.....any contrivance therefore that prolongs the time of dissolution beyond the time at which the local understanding and common usage have fixed it, is an act of injustice, since by such contrivances it is in course of time given to a comparatively small number of dead to shoulder out the living and their posterity.....Coffins are not recognized by any authority whatever; mention of them is nowhere made, but rather studiously avoided, in the Burial Service of the Church of England and generally their use can only be regarded as an encroachment on the rights of the living.
The Quarterly agrees with the old judge and advocates the burial of the dead without coffins, since coffins can only retard Nature's work long enough to embarrass the living. The object indicated above of getting when necessary proof of crime, would be well served by burial without coffins, as the bodies will last sufficiently long in that way. But where the best coffins and lead caskets are used, the bodies have been found in very old grave-

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

A recent traveler in South Africa tells of Benedictine nuns who have undertaken not only to build their house, but even to manufacture the material. These devoted women have already made over 100,000 bricks with their own hands.
When an epidemic was raging last summer among the horses and cattle in Jefferson parish, Louisiana, and carrying off hundreds of them, the Italians of Kenner made a vow to donate a statue of St. Rosalia to the parish church and to celebrate her feast every year with a solemn procession if God should hear her prayers and cause the plague to cease. In grateful remembrance they have now fulfilled their vow. A statue of the Holy Virgin of Palermo, five feet high was blessed on Sunday last. A grand procession of the whole Catholic population of Kenner turned out. Six Italians carried the statue of St. Rosalia through the streets.
It is reported that the Russian Government has renewed its persecutions in Lithuania with greater force. The iron hand of Russian despotism has weighed heavily upon the Lithuanians for many years, but their national spirit has not been crushed, although they have been oppressed in every possible manner—to such an extent, in fact, that it is difficult to imagine what new acts of repression can be devised by the Government. The Lithuanians, who number over three millions, are Catholics, but the free exercise of their religion is in many instances denied them. All religious processions are forbidden in the cities of Lithuania. The number of Catholic churches in the province is strictly limited. A special permission, very difficult to obtain, is required from the Governor General to build new churches. As a result of this state of affairs the existing Catholic churches in Lithuania are insufficient for the needs of the population.

THE HERALD

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 26th, 1900.

SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 A YEAR, PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY JAMES MCISAAC, Editor & Proprietor.

We are now sending out our subscription bills, and we trust our friends will be as prompt as possible in remitting their respective amounts. It is a little earlier than usual; but experience has taught us that when this matter is left till towards the close of the year the time is too short and many subscriptions are not paid at all. We trust, therefore, our subscribers will not leave this matter till the very last, this year; but will avail themselves of the earliest opportunity to remit. There is nothing we have less desire to discuss than the matter of urging the payment of subscriptions; but it is by these we live and we trust our subscribers will not forget their obligations in the matter.

We wish to call the attention of our readers to the fact that those charged with the management of the Provincial Exhibition have thought proper to ostracize THE HERALD in their distribution of patronage. Our complaint is not altogether on account of the money we would be entitled to for advertising the Exhibition, as that would not amount to very much; but because of the principle involved. The Exhibition association received $6,000 from the Provincial Government and $1,000 from the City Council for the purposes of this exhibition. This money was contributed by all classes of the people in the shape of taxes and was ostensibly to be spent in a public enterprise where all were supposed to be on an equal footing, regardless of conscientious convictions or political affiliations. In former Provincial exhibitions the principle of equal justice, so far at least as the press is concerned, was fairly well carried out. But the present management, as well as the present so-called Provincial Government seem to think it quite legitimate on all occasions to employ public funds to draw credit to the political side. Is the exhibition only an election dodge? We shall probably have more to say on this matter in our next issue. Any courtesies as the exhibition management extend to us shall in no way deter us from making such criticisms as the circumstances warrant.

Weighted and Found Wanting.

collected by the Government for the release of power, in consideration of what they have done during their past four years of office. What have they done to entitle them to a renewal of confidence on the part of the electors? What did they promise to do? How have they kept their promises? These are questions that must engage themselves to the electors, when they hear of Sir Wilfrid and his friends asking for political support. Before taking office the present Government promised to reduce expenditure and to reduce taxation. They have increased the expenditure by $11,000,000, and increased the taxes by $10,300,000, and increased the public debt by $5,000,000. Do these performances entitle them to a continuance of power? Before assuming office Sir Wilfrid and his friends promised us a better market in the United States, by means of a reciprocal trade arrangement which they assured the electors they would obtain. For six months they held high carnival at Quebec and at Washington; they spent $36,000 of the people's money, and accomplished absolutely and positively nothing in the shape of improved trade relations between Canada and the United States. Is there anything in this to entitle them to be continued in office? Sir Wilfrid Laurier specifically declared that as soon as he was entrusted with power he would endeavor to make a preferential arrangement with the Mother Country that would secure to Canadian exports an advantage over those of all foreign countries, in the markets of Great Britain and other parts of the Empire. When he secured power, he granted British goods a preference in our market, and not only did nothing to obtain for us an advantage in Great Britain; but did everything in his power to prevent any such advantageous trade arrangement. Does this betrayal of Canada's interests and of the trust reposed in him by the Canadian electorate entitle him to another term of office? During the four years the present Government have been in office, they have not procured a new market for a single article that Canada produces. The market of the United States is shut out from us as completely as ever it was; the duties of that country not being lowered on the least thing. Canada has to send there; consequently our sales to that country do not increase. Our sales to Great Britain may have increased somewhat; but the purchases of Great Britain from the United States have vastly increased during the last four years. As we have said, Great Britain gives over to the United States, still Great Britain's purchases from the United States have greatly increased. The products of this foreign country, which meets British goods with the high tariff of the McKinley Bill, go to Great Britain on the same terms of those of the British Colony that gives Great Britain a preference. Our trade with the West Indies is falling off and in the Newfoundland markets we are rapidly losing, as compared with the United States. These are some of the results of four years of Grit rule. Are they such as to entitle the present Government to the continued confidence of the people? Let us now turn to some more of the promises and performances of our Grit friends before they assumed power. They promised to reduce the price of kerosene oil. Sir Louis Davies sheds tears over the hardships the farmers were subjected to in the matter of kerosene oil. But Sir Louis and his friends have been in power for four years and kerosene oil is dearer now than when the Grits came into office. Binder twine and barbed wire and tobacco were all to be reduced in price to the farmers of this country in consequence of Grit rule; but they are all dearer now than they were before Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues got on to the treasury benches. Should the Government on that account, be continued in power? What did the Government do? They increased the taxes, the expenditure and the debt; they gave Great Britain a preference in the Canadian markets and asked for nothing in return; they gave the United States the privilege of sending into Canada free wire, free twine, free corn, and heavy metals at greatly reduced duty, and received nothing in exchange. If not particeps criminis in the scandalous election frauds by which sufficient ballots of Conservatives were stolen to give the seats to Grits, and the glaring emergency rations scandals, they at least threw the shield of their protection over the perpetrators of these crimes and exerted their authority to prevent the punishment of the guilty ones. The Yukon scandals, the McKenzie and Mann railway deal and the Drummond railway job are among the things they did or attempted to do. Are they entitled to continued confidence for any of these performances? Had the Government carried out any of the important undertakings which they promised, the people would have recognized in them some statesmanlike qualities, and would give them credit therefor. But it does not require much statesmanship to spend money; to increase the taxes and the debt, to make a one-sided bargain with Great Britain; to give the United States valuable concessions and obtain nothing in return; to spend a million dollars on a railway terminus that specially benefits a foreign company. Almost anyone could these entertain by the Conservative administration did not promise the same opportunity for plundering the public chest, which opened up when Tarte decided he wanted a newspaper like La Patrie and Blair an ally in the corporation which owns the Victoria Bridge. Not the soldiers of Canada, for in 1895 they had no emergency ration tins to hold their boat grease; nor the dog biscuit dealers for they then sold no provender to the Militia Department. Not the United States engravers, for they had not in that gloomy old time the privilege of engraving Canada's dollar bills in New York, or finding the work of making Canada's stamps "greater than has been." Not the locomotive and car manufacturers of the neighboring republic, for the taxes of the Canadian people were not then spent in United States workshops to furnish rolling stock for the Canadian People's Railway. Not the Standard Oil Company, for it could not then extort an extra price from the Canadian coal oil consumers. Truly was it an inspiring sight to witness the followers of Mr. Tarte marching on Sohier Park to acclaim Sir Wilfrid, bearing such a device, under such an inspiration; forming part of a machine made demonstration, the participants, in part, paid to demonstrate at so much per head. "Who would go back to 1895?" Who, indeed!—Montreal Star.

Siftonian Political Methods.

(Halifax Herald.) Sifton, whom Sir Charles Tupper some time since described as "the most corrupt man in Canadian public life," is giving evidence that he is at least as bad as ever. He started his campaign in Brandon by an attempt to purchase the support of the Brandon independence, a newspaper of some influence in the constituency, and which is now exposing him. The attempt failed, and the newspaper, as a whole affair. Next we hear of Mr. Sifton he is offering big bribes to prominent Conservatives to desert their party. A despatch to the Toronto Mail and Empire dated September 19th gives the following facts: "Saturday last it was rumored in this city that the Grits had actually started operations in this connection at Oak Lake, where two prominent conservative workers had been approached by the gang for the purpose of accomplishing this end. One of the gentlemen so approached was said to be W. J. Manthey, a solicitor practicing in Oak Lake, and township vice-president of the conservative association of Lunddowne, and who, being interviewed by a representative of The Mail and Empire, admitted the truth of the report and gave the name of the agent used by the Sifton campaign." "The provincial campaign had always been a conservative and a hard worker for the conservative party. Mr. Manthey states that this man approached him and requested him to desert High John Macdonald and the conservative party, and to support his weight with Sifton and the liberals, and offered him as consideration, $1,000 cash, and promised that Mr. Manthey would receive an appointment under the Dominion government. This offer was indignantly refused by Manthey, who is at the present time working night and day in order to secure the return of Macdonald. Those unacquainted with the locality of Oak Lake from a political standpoint might, at first glance, think the sum offered Manthey to be so high as to be almost incredible, and might doubt the truthfulness as to its amount, but when it is taken into consideration that south of Oak Lake there is a large French Catholic district, comprising 200 voters, and that Mr. Manthey, although an Englishman, is a Catholic, has lived a considerable time in Oak Lake, is acquainted with every voter in the settlement, is liked by the French people of that district, and is one of the leaders of the Catholics in the western portion of Manitoba, it is not at all to be wondered at that Sifton is willing to give $1,000 and the promise of office to get the support of a man so valuable as Mr. Manthey. Mr. Manthey made one mistake, he should have taken the money, and used it to defeat the man who gave it. For this money was not Sifton's own, we may be very sure, but was the money of foreign corporations and others of whom Sifton and his colleagues have sold the power to rob the people of Canada. Such money should always be taken when offered, but the receiver should only regard it as an additional reason for defeating the rascals who have collected such a boodle fund.

The Political Outlook

(Winnipeg Northwest Review, Sept. 12.) The sensation of the past week has undoubtedly been the acceptance of the Conservative nomination in the Brandon District by the Hon. High John Macdonald, and as politics are waxing warm and already practically monopolize public attention, this surprising development has been the general topic of conversation. We have heard it discussed in all sorts of places and by all sorts of people, and there really seems to be but one opinion as to the result of the contest, it being universally conceded that Macdonald's "Pocket Wellington" will administer a crushing defeat to "the young Napoleon of the West." The Conservatives, and especially those who come from the constituency, make the most extravagant predictions, few of them being willing to talk of less than several hundred majority, whilst, on the other hand, the liberals seem to be utterly disheartened and without hope. And anyone who knows anything of the course of political affairs in this Province can easily understand this feeling. The near approach of the elections finds the Liberal party in Manitoba split up into warring factions and with leaders who have lost not only the confidence of the people but even the respect of many who at one time were their devoted followers. The Conservative party in this respect presents a striking contrast to their opponents. Thoroughly organized, fresh from the victory of last December, and with a leader of whom they are all proud, they present a solid phalanx which in itself is a

Was the question asked of our hat man by a gentleman who stepped into our store yesterday. He had picked up one of our beautiful new Christy's and was examining it.

$2.00 SIR, Answered the clerk. Well, well, well, have you got one to fit me? Oh, yes sir, here it is as the clerk handed him a size 7.

It fits perfectly, Said the gentleman. Our hats always do, answered the hat man. We'll send it up and here's your $2.00. I just saved 50c. on that hat. We know it, answered the hat man—in fact all our customers do the same.

Now, a question. If the gentleman saved 50c. and we made 25c. how much profit does our competitor who sells the same hat at $2.50 make; you'll answer 75c. of course. Oh, but he doesn't, because we buy them cheaper than he does—See the point?

We sell swell Hats. We buy them cheaper than others can. PROWSE BROS. The Stylish Hatters.

THE IDEA TAKING HOLD.

(Moncton Times.) There are no two opinions in Canada as to the advantages that would follow the giving of a preference in the British market to Canadian products. The people of Great Britain buy every year over six hundred million dollars worth of the articles that the people of Canada produce most readily, but the supply of which so far is held chiefly by the United States and other foreign countries. That great statesman Mr. Fielding, Finance Minister in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government, disposes of the whole matter by saying that it is "arrant humbug" for Sir Charles Tupper to talk of such a thing, but the United States Consul at Liverpool, Mr. Boyle, in a report to his government, a copy of which is forwarded by the Washington correspondent of the Times, says: "Trade protection, or preferential tariff between Great Britain and the colonies promises to be in the not distant future, a burning question throughout the Empire. Consul Boyle further says: "Liverpool is vastly interested in this question. Liverpool receives more imports from the United States than does any other single port in the world; and it is also the headquarters of the Canadian trade, both for import and export. Beyond question, during recent years, there has been a great development of sentiment in favor of an imperial preferential tariff, and I do not hesitate to say that this sentiment has a firmer hold, not only among the mass of the people of Great Britain, but even among the politicians, than the party newspapers and party leaders concede. It is a very significant fact that for the last two years this question has been discussed more than any other subject by the members of commerce and trade organizations of Great Britain and her colonies. Canada is leading the way in the movement. The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce seems to view the proposition of an imperial preferential tariff with favor, as the other day it adopted a resolution memorializing the British Government to appoint a commission to investigate the subject." The Boards of Trade of the Maritime Provinces have declared by unanimous vote in favor of the policy advocated by Sir Charles Tupper and a few years hence, when it is an accomplished fact, the Liberals, if they should ever get in power again, will probably be claiming credit for it as they now for the good results flowing from the national policy.

In South Africa!

The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts. It is dated at Waterford, Sept. 23rd: "Pole-Carew reached Bloemfontein yesterday. Practically there was no road, and a way had to be cut through jungle intersected by ravines. He captured 38 cars of flour, one car of coffee and 19 damaged engines. "Yesterday evening Lieut. U. P. Clarke was shot, but not fatally, while making the rounds, by a sentry. He either did not hear the sentry's challenge or the sentry did not hear his reply." The Toronto Telegram's special cable from London says: "A despatch from Pretoria relates an incident concerning three Canadians of the mounted infantry. During the occupation of Pretoria the trio lost their way and wandered through the Boer lines unperceived by the enemy. They eventually arrived at Hebron, and felt considerable surprise when the inhabitants surrendered the town to them. The burghers thought the Canadians were forerunners of a Boer force, and thought it was better to give up their last. Not only was the town surrendered, but the rifles and ammunition, all of which the Canadians accepted and returned, again passing through the Boer lines." The military department at Ottawa has received a cablegram from Lt. Col. Biggar, formerly of Belleville, who is now deputy assistant adjutant general in South Africa. His message was dated Cape Town, Sept. 18th, and states that five hundred of the first contingent will return to Canada imminently, the remainder having elected to stay in South Africa till the end of the war. This means that about 350 of the Canadian infantry will be left behind. It is likely that they will be drafted into some English battalion for the remainder of their period of service. The artillery and mounted troops from Canada, which year is up, which will be in December or February, by which time it is expected that the country will have been pacified. Col. Otter will remain till the close of the war.

The meeting followed a lengthy session of the Treasury Board at which, it is understood, several retirements from the public service were passed and a number of appointments made. Dissolution has been agreed upon, but the date of nomination and holding of elections has not been fixed as it was thought desirable to wait a few days to see what progress will be made by the voters lists and requisite forms. The election will take place, it is said by good authority, either the last week of October or the first week of November. Twenty-eight days will suffice from the day of dissolution until the polling by adopting the device of notifying the returning officer by telegraph to get out their proclamations without waiting for the arrival of election writs.

PART I.

THE OLD BUCANEER.

BLACK DOG APPEARS AND DISAPPEARS.

Well, mother was upstairs with father, and I was laying the breakfast table against the captain's return, when the parlor door opened and a man stepped in on whom I had never set my eyes before.

He was a pale, lanky creature, wanting two fingers of the left hand; and though he wore a cutlass, he did not look much like a fighter.

"Come here, sonny," said he. "Come nearer here." I took a step nearer.

"Is this here table for my mate Bill?" he asked with a kind of leer. I told him I did not know his mate Bill, and this was for a person who stayed at our house, whom we called the captain.

"Well," said he, "my mate Bill would be called the captain, as like as not. He has a cut on one cheek, and a mighty pleasant way with him, particularly in drink, has my mate Bill. We'll put, for argument like, that our captain has a cut on one cheek—and we'll put it, if you like, that that cheek's the right one. Ah, well! I told you. Now, is my mate Bill in this here house?"

I told him he was out walking. "Which way, sonny? Which way is he gone?" And when I had pointed out the rock and told him how the captain was likely to return, and how soon "Ah," said he, "this'll be as good as a drink to my mate Bill."

slammed the door behind him, without looking to the right or left, and marched straight across the room to where his breakfast awaited him.

"Bill," said the stranger, in a voice that I thought he had tried to make bold and big.

The captain spun round on his heel and looked at me; all the brown had gone out of his face, and even his nose was blue; he had the look of a man who sees a ghost, or the Evil One, or something worse, if anything can be; and, upon my word, I felt sorry to see him, all in a moment turn so old and sick.

"Come, Bill, you know me; you know an old shipmate, Bill, surely," said the stranger.

The captain made a sort of gasp. "Black Dog!" said he.

"And who else?" returned the other, getting more at his ease. "Black Dog as ever was, come for to see his old shipmate, Bill, at the Admiral Benbow Inn. Ah, Bill, Bill, we have seen a sight of times, us two, since I lost them two talons," holding up his mutilated hand.

"Now, here," said the captain; "you've run me down; here I am; well, then, speak up; what is it?"

"That's you, Bill," returned Black Dog; "you're in the right of it, Billy, I'll have a glass of rum from the dear old beer, as I've took such a liking to; and we sit down, if you please, and talk square, like old shipmates."

When I returned with the rum they were already seated on either side of the captain's breakfast table, Black Dog next to the door, and sitting sideways, so to have one eye on his old shipmate, and one, as I thought, on his retreat.

He had me go and leave the door wide open. "None of your keyholes for me, sonny," he said, and I left them together and retired into the bar.

For a long time, though I certainly did my best to listen, I could hear nothing but a low gabbling; but at last the voices began to grow higher, and I could pick up a word or two, mostly those of the captain.

"No, no, no; and an end of it!" he cried on. And again, "If it comes to swinging, swing all, say I."

Then all of a sudden there was a tremendous explosion of oaths and other noises; the chair and table went over in a lump, a clash of steel followed, and then a cry of pain, and the next instant I saw Black Dog in full flight, and the captain hotly pursuing, both with drawn cutlasses, and the former streaming blood from the left shoulder. Just at the door the captain aimed the fugitive one last tremendous out, which would have split him to the chine had it not been intercepted by our big signboard of Admiral Benbow. You may see the notch on the lower side of the frame this day.

That blow was the last of the battle. Once out upon the road, Black Dog, in spite of his wound, showed a wonderful clean pair of heels, and disappeared over the edge of the hill in half a minute. The captain, for his part, stood staring at the signboard like a bewildered man. Then he passed his hand over his eyes several times, and at last turned back into the house.

the stranger. I got the rum, to be sure, and tried to put it down his throat, but his teeth were tightly shut, and his jaws as strong as iron.

"Ob, doctor," we cried, "what shall we do? Where is he wounded?"

"Wounded? A fiddle-stick's end!" said the doctor. No more wounded that you or I. The man has had a stroke, as I warned him. Now, Mrs. Hawkins, just you run upstairs to your husband and tell him, if possible, nothing about it. For my part, I must do my best to save this fellow's trebly worthless life; and Jim here will get me a basin."

When I got back with the basin the doctor had already ripped up the captain's sleeve and exposed his great sinewy arm. It was tattooed in several places. "Here's luck," a fair wind, and "Billy Bones, his fancy," were very neatly and clearly executed on the forearm; and up near the shoulder there was a sketch of a galloos and a man hanging from it—done, as I thought, with great spirit.

"Prophetic," said the doctor, touching this picture with his finger. "And now, Master Billy Bones, if that be your name, 'we'll have a look at the color of your blood.' "Jim," he said, "are you afraid of blood?"

"No, sir," said I. "Well, then," said he, "you hold the basin, and with that he took his lancet and opened a vein.

A great deal of blood was taken before the captain opened his eyes and looked mistily about him. First he recognized the doctor with unmistakable awe; then his glance fell upon me, and he looked relieved. But suddenly his color changed, and he tried to raise himself, crying:

"Where's Black Dog?" "There is no Black Dog here," said the doctor, "except what you have on your back. You have been drinking rum; you have had a stroke precisely as I told you; and I have just, very much against my own will, dragged you headfirst out of the grave. Now, Mr. Bones—"

"That's not my name," he interrupted. "Much I care," returning the doctor. "It's the name of a buccaneer of my acquaintance, and I call you by it for the sake of shortness, and what I have to say to you in this: One glass of rum won't kill you, but if you take one you'll take another and another, and I stake my wig if you don't break off short you'll die; do you understand that? and go to your own place, like the man in the Bible. Come, now, make an effort. I'll help you to your bed for once."

Between us, with much trouble, we managed to hoist him upstairs, and laid him on his bed, where his head fell back on the pillow, as if he were almost falling.

"Now, mind you," said the doctor, "I clear my conscience—the name of rum for you is death."

And with that he went off to see my father, taking me with him by the arm.

"This is nothing," he said, as soon as he had closed the door. "I have drawn blood enough to keep him quiet awhile; he should lie for a week where he is—that is the best thing for him and you, but another stroke would settle him."

"The doctor—" I began. "But he broke in cursing the doctor, in a feeble voice, but heartily. 'Doctors is always swabs,' he said; and that doctor there, why, what do he know about seafaring men? I been in places hot as pitch, and mates dropping round with yellow jack, and the blessed land a heaving like the sea with earthquakes—what do the doctors know of lands like that—and I lived on rum, I tell you. It's been meat and drink, and man and wife, to me; and if I am not to have my rum now I'm a poor old hulk on a lee shore. My blood'll be on you, Jim, and that doctor swab," and he ran on again for awhile with curses.

"Look, Jim, how my fingers ridge," he continued in the pleasing tone. "I can't keep 'em still, not I. I haven't had a drop this blessed day. 'That doctor's a fool. I tell you. If I don't have a drain of rum, Jim, I'll have the por. rot's; I seen some on 'em already. I seen old Flint in the corner there, behind you, as plain as print; I seen him, and if I get the horrors, I'm a man that has lived rough, and I'll raise Cain. Your doctor himself said one glass wouldn't hurt me. I'll give you a golden guinea for a noggie, Jim."

Blood. We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor. There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high, we are being refreshed, bone muscle and brain, in body and mind, with continual flow of rich blood.

When weak in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.
