CHAPTER VIII.

Lord Ashcroft was still musing upon the singular look of his betrothed when a light tap upon his door aroused him, and the Lady Lorean entered the room. She advanced to his side and sat down beside him, taking his hand in her own, fondling it as a mother might have fondled her child.

"Oh, Lionel!" she said, with a shudder, as he did not speak. "I wish we could go home in the morning. You had better forfeit any amount of money that your life. Shall we not go?"

Lord Ashcroft shook his head, and demanded: "How can I go in honor, Lorean? I came here as the sutor and betrothed husband of the Lady Alexina—"

"And you will leave this place as a corpse!" she interposed. "I feel that you will. You said that that assassin cried out, 'Better luck next time,' and that shows he has not given up his attempt to kill you. If you are so infatuated with Alexina, Lionel, why not invite the family to Ashcroft?"

"I do not intend to be driven away from Egremont," answered Lord Ashcroft, composedly. "I am not one to fly from danger."

"But the knife of an assassin is a danger that cannot be guarded against. It may strike you in a most unguarded moment. I fear you lack caution."

For a long time she remained with him urging him to unceasing vigilance and then withdrew, cautioning him to carefully lock his door.

"I will be careful, Lorean," he said, "very careful, so do not be troubled about me."

He bent over her and bestowed upon her a caress that was as much filial as fraternal, and then escorted her to the door of her chamber, returning to his own.

Forgetful of her injunction to lock his door, he stirred up his fire, supplied it anew with coals, and reumintruder's face; she seemed upon the point of replying, when she suddenly lifted her hand warningly and stood in a listening attitude.

Lord Ashcroft listened too, but he heard nothing except the roar and tumult of the wind and sea and the beating of rain against the window-glass.

A moment the strange being stood, her hand uplifted and the drapery fallen back to her elbow, revealing an arm with contour and coloring would have delighted a sculptor or a painter, and then she placed one long taper finger upon her lips as a warning to be silent—so Lord Ashcroft interpreted it—and then she seemed to melt away into the darkness.

His lordship believed that she disappeared through the door, and he sprang up and ran to it, looking out into the dimly lighted corridor, but she was not there.

There were passages branching off the main corridor, and he made a hasty examination of these, but the specter had disappeared without leaving a trace behind.

Disappointed and mystified, his lordship returned to his fireside.

CHAPTER IX.

As the inmates of Egremont assembled in the breakfast room, next morning, it was easily to be discerned that an unusual graveness had settled over each face. There was one exception—the Lady Alexina, whose smile was rosy, her eyes sparkling, as if the world had never been so bright.

By degrees the conversation turned to supernatural visitations, and Lady Egremont assured her guests that on that very morning her old nurse, Top-lift, had mysteriously informed her that on the previous night the ghost of the Lady Jasmine had walked—that, in fact, she, the old nurse, had seen it.

This disclosure led to a description of the Lady Jasmine, whom Lord Egremont described as a girl of sixteen at the time of her death.

When breakfast was over the hostess escorted Lord Ashcroft to the picture gallery to view the portraits of the preceding Lords of Egremont. Lyle Indor followed, with the ladies leaning on his arm, and after them came the Lord of Egremont and Lady Lorean.

Lord Ashcroft was interested in looking down the long line of portraits and noting the difference in character of the successive Lords of Egremont, and wondering which of her ancestors and Lady Alexina resembled in heart—for she was very like them all in her features.

Lady Egremont gave the history of the original of each portrait as they went along, but when they came to that of the Lady Jasmine, she simply announced the fact, without alluding to her fate.

Lord Ashcroft noticed it with a paling face and heart that beat tumultuously.

Mellowed as was the painting by age, the pictured face looked as fair and as fresh as if painted upon the previous day.

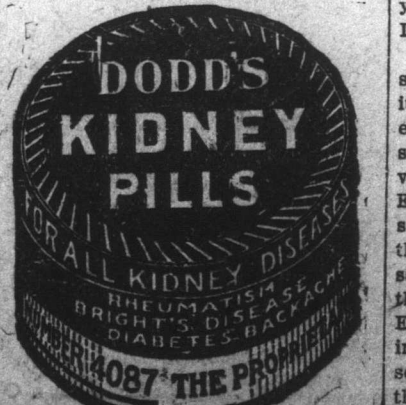

It was the face of his mysterious visitor!

There was the same sweetly serene brow, the same mysterious, lovely eyes, the same gentle mouth, the same child-like purity of expression, the same saintly look over all that he had observed in his strange visitant.

Yet there was something missing in the portrait, an ineffable, nameless charm, that had belonged to his visitor, but Lord Ashcroft fancied that the fault had been with the painter, or that the grace and charm he had noticed were too subtle to be caught and impressed upon canvas.

Forgetful that Lord Egremont was watching him, or that the remainder of the party were near at hand, Lord Ashcroft studied the portrait with intensity.

Founder of Kingston

Kingston, Ont., Nov. (Can. Press)—Few men are entitled to the credit of founding a city, but the late Capt. Michael Grass is conceded to be the founder of the historic old city of Kingston.

Capt. Grass was a British soldier during the wars between Great Britain and France on this continent. He was taken prisoner by the French and kept in captivity for two years in the old colony of Quebec. During this time he learnt of the fertile soil and other advantages of the district at the head of Lake Ontario, and the Junction of the four waters, Cataraque River, Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence. Capt. Grass suggested this to the British commander on his release, with the result that seven shiploads of United Empire Loyalists set sail from New York on Sept. 8, 1783. On their arrival Capt. Grass selected as his portion the land where Kingston now stands. The others went further west and settled on the shores surrounding the Bay of Quinte.

Mayor W. C. Mikel, of Belleville, who is preparing a United Empire Loyalist "Book of Remembrance," has obtained possession of a letter written by Capt. Grass to the Kingston Gazette, in 1811, in a reminiscent strain:

"Seven and twenty years, Mr. Printer, have rolled away since my eyes for the second time beheld the shores of Cataraque. In that space of time, how many changes have taken place, in the little circle in which fate had destined me to move. How many of the associates of my old associates are now vacant. How few of them, alas, to mourn with me the loss of the companions of our sufferings, or to rejoice with me at the prosperous conditions of this our land of refuge; yet I will not repine, they are gone I trust to a better land.

"Yes, seven and twenty years ago scarcely the vestige of a human habitation could be found in the whole extent of the Bay of Quinte, not a settler had dared to penetrate the vast forests that skirted the shores. Even on this spot now covered with stately edifices, were to be seen only the bark thicket, wigwam of the savage, or the newly erected tents of the hardy loyalist. Then when the ear heard me, it bled me, for being strong in my attachment to my sovereign and I was raised high in the confidence of my fellow subjects. I led the loyal band, I pointed out to them the site of their future metropolis and gained for persecuted principles a sanctuary, for myself and followers, a home."

A Rotating Garage

LONDON, Nov. 14—(C.P.)—One of the chief difficulties of putting a car in a crowded garage is getting it out again several hours later. There is soon to be in the West End a revolving garage, from which any of 400 cars can be withdrawn in two minutes. J. B. Mitchell of Knightsbridge, who designed the garage in connection with which a private company is now in formation, explains the system:

"The first new garage, the site of which has been acquired, will be a four-story building. Each of the five floors will be divided by three rings into three concentric circles. On the inner and outer circles will be the stalls for cars, and the central ring will be a track which will revolve.

"When a car is driven into the garage it will be put on one of the revolving sections (taken to the upper floors by lift, if necessary) and the revolving section will turn until the car comes opposite a vacant stationary stall, into which the car will be driven. The revolving floor, which will run on ball bearings, can be turned around completely by two men in 30 seconds. To get the car out the process is merely reversed."

Swans Pay a Surprise Visit

Kingville, Ont., Nov. (C.P.)—Jack Miner's bird sanctuary here was the calling place recently of a flock of about 200 wild native white swans on their way south for the winter. The manoeuvres of these birds on Lake Erie near the Miner farm, were witnessed by many interested bird lovers. White swans, which in their wild state were almost extinct in Canada a few years ago, regularly make the sanctuary a port of call on their way north in the spring, but seldom stop on their way down. It is thought that the unusually mild weather, combined with the well-known to them—table board at Jack Miner's place induced this detachment to drop in for a day or two on an autumnal surprise visit.

Investment vs. Speculation

"To draw a distinction between intelligent investment and speculation, it should be emphasized that successful investing involves far more attention to the meaning of fundamental trends and general economic conditions than does the ordinary speculation. The person who intentionally places his capital to work for income and genuine stability of principal should be more concerned with possible changes in general conditions and with the broad underlying currents of trade and finance than the man who frankly goes into a speculative proposition for the purpose of quickly increasing his capital. The speculator is almost invariably one who is looking for quick profits. Ordinarily he does not expect or intend to keep his capital in any given thing for any great period of time. Underlying influences affect his position, of course, but if his speculation is a wise one, its strength may be so great as to offset general adverse influences should such come along.

The investor, theoretically at least, is placing his capital to work more or less permanently. He does not expect to change his holdings of securities with every month or every year. Many a man is both an investor and speculator at the same time. Many are investors for a period and then become speculators for a period. In fact, every investor who does not give proper consideration is in danger of unknowingly becoming a speculator at any time. He may buy what he thinks is a high-grade investment, but the time may quickly come when to his surprise he finds himself the holder of a speculation.—John Moody, in Forbes Magazine (N.Y.)

Would Curb Liner to Prevent Flood

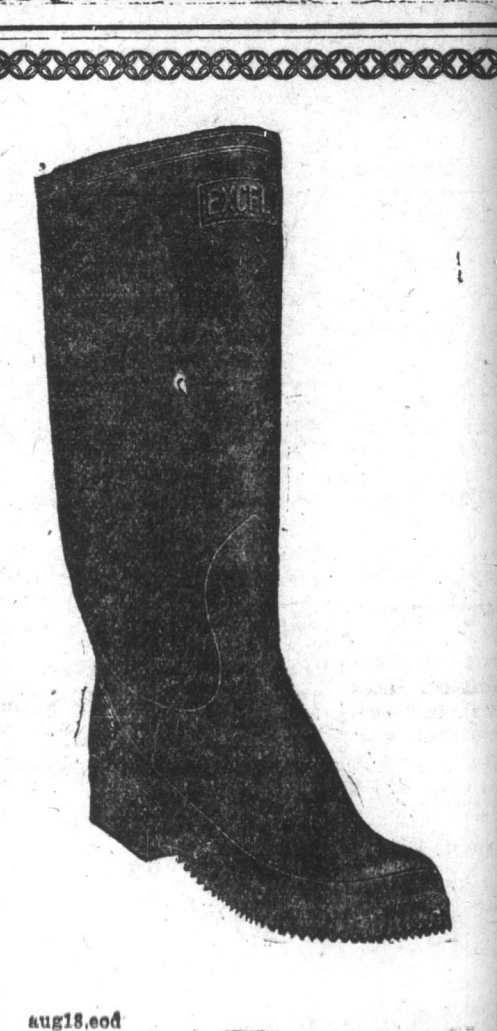

COWES Eng., Nov. 15—(Associated Press)—The Harbor Board has asked the Board of Trade to curb the speed of the liner Mauretania in passing through the Solent. The last passage of the trans-Atlantic flyer caused such a wash that streets and houses were flooded and shippings damaged. The Mauretania is the only liner which offends in this manner, the harbor board declares.

Ontario's Mental Defectives

TORONTO, Ont.—(Can. Press)—Last year there were 45 more men than women admitted to insane asylums in the Province, but there are more women than men at present confined to institutions, as the men either recover more easily and are discharged, or die from their illness more quickly than do women. These unfortunate included 14 women and 8 men who broke down under the mental worry of love affairs. 59 men and 69 women who went insane through the loss of business, money or friends, 88 men and 96 women to whom overwork and worry proved too much; 5 men and 16 women driven insane by religion, and 5 men and 7 women who fell victims of fright.

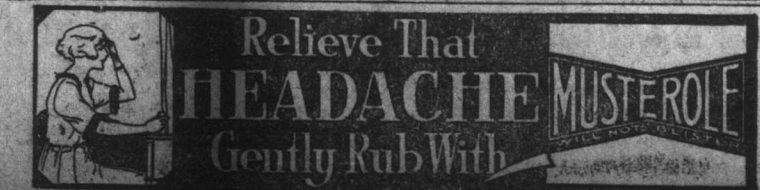

Those persons so saddened by unfortunate love affairs are indeed pathetic, but in most cases are not incurable. There is a young lady in Ontario who mumbles night and day because Thomas Meighan, the movie actor, does not come to marry her. Two others loathe the sight of men and scream in hatred if one approaches them.

Inmates of hospitals for the insane, suffering from grandiose opinions of themselves seldom, if ever, imagine themselves heroes or heroines of the opposite sex. For instance, in the asylum in Toronto is a lady of middle age who demands homage from all who approach her, for she is the "Queen of Toronto," and a right majestic figure she imagines herself to be.

The Late Sirdar Laid to Rest With Impressive Ceremony.

Egypt Objects to Certain Demands Made by Great Britain --- British Troops March Through Cairo --- France Will Stand by the Geneva Protocol.

EGYPT AGREES TO BRITISH DEMANDS.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 23. The Egyptian Government's reply to the British note in connection with the killing of Major Sir Lee Oliver Stack, Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian Army, agrees to Great Britain's demands for an apology, punishment of the assassins, and an indemnity of £500,000. It also promises to prevent any disturbances of the peace by demonstrations. The reply says the British demand regarding the Sudan breaks the status quo and is contrary to the constitution under which King Faud is Commander-in-Chief of the Egyptian Army. It considers the demand regarding the Gezira immigration project premature. The communication further says the position of foreign officials is regulated by diplomatic agreement and cannot be modified without the consent of Parliament. Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the British High Commissioner, promptly replied to the Egyptian note, which was signed by Zagloul Pasha, the Egyptian Premier. General Allenby said that in view of the refusal of the Egyptians of the British requirements numbers five and six, instructions were being sent to the Sudan Government to effect the withdrawal from the Sudan of Egyptian officers and units with the specified charges resulting from these measures, so that the Sudan Government was at liberty to increase the area of irrigation in the Gezira district to an unlimited extent. General Allenby's reply to Zagloul requests the payment of the indemnity of £500,000 by noon Monday, and adds: "Your Excellency will learn in due course what action is being taken in view of your refusal of requirement number seven, regarding the protection of foreign interests."

FRANCE STANDS BY PROTOCOL.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—(Can. Press)—Premier Herriot on Saturday received Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General to the League of Nations, according to the semi-official Havas Agency, and the Premier told the Secretary General that France would honor her signature to the Geneva Peace and Arbitration Protocol, and would not give up any of its essential provisions.

BRITISH TROOPS MARCH THROUGH CAIRO.

CAIRO, Nov. 23. Small anti-demonstrations were renewed in Cairo to-day by students. Afterwards British troops marched through the city. Two airplanes from Cairo flew over Tantah where some restlessness among the natives had been observed.

WAR STILL EXACTS ITS TOLL.

DUNKERQUE, France, Nov. 23. (Canadian Press Cable)—A mine that eluded the mine sweepers after the war, was brought up by fishing nets in the Dunkerque water to-day and exploded aboard a fishing boat, according to the semi-official Havas Agency. Nine fishermen were killed.

FESSEL RAMMED, CAPTAIN KILLED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. Capt. A. J. Wilson, of Fairhaven, Mass., master of the schooner Harry Letzer, was instantly killed at 2 a.m.

Saturday, when his vessel was rammed and literally cut in two by an unidentified steamer in a fog, thirty miles south of Cape Hatteras, according to information brought here by the United Fruit liner, Calamores, from Cuba.

KILLED GIRL BECAUSE SHE REJECTED HIS ATTENTIONS.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 23. Jealousy and unrequited love prompted Thomas Collinson, aged twenty-six of Sulbert, Matilda Township, to shoot and kill seventeen year old Beatrice Thorpe, at her home Saturday night. Collinson went to his home after the murder and left the revolver with which he committed the crime in his room, then proceeded to the house of his brother-in-law, Thomas Pawcett, a short distance from the scene of the tragedy, and there is said by the police to have confessed that he had killed the girl who had rejected his attentions. His arrest followed within a few hours of the shooting and he is now held in Cornwall Jail on a charge of murder.

SIRDAR LAID TO REST.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 22. The body of Major General Sir Lee Stack, Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian army, a victim of assassins, was laid to rest to-day amid scenes made impressive by military display and solemnity. Huge crowds lined the streets held by troops who guarded the route of the cortege which at All Saints Church, where the services were held, a distinguished gathering was present. In this company were Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, British High Commissioner in Egypt, and Lady Allenby, former Premier Asquith who is on tour of Egypt, Prime Minister Zagloul Pasha, of the Egyptian Government, members of the Egyptian cabinet and the entire diplomatic corps in full regalia as well as leading representatives of every foreign community in Cairo. Lady Stack and her daughter were attended by Captain P. K. Campbell, the late Sirdar's Aide, who was slightly wounded during the attack on his chief but recovered sufficiently to be present. The ceremony was brief and of the simplest character. A long procession followed the body to the grave.

BRITAIN'S NOTE TO EGYPT.

CAIRO, Nov. 22. A British note handed to Zagloul Pasha, Egyptian Premier to-day demands proper apology in connection with the killing of Major General Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar, and an indemnity of £500,000 pounds. The note furthermore holds in reserve the revision of conditions governing the retirement of British officials from Egypt, and insists upon the retention of British judicial and financial advisors. The note also demands the prohibition of political demonstrations and the withdrawal of Egyptian officers and units from the Sudan, the Sudanese troops to come under control of the Sudan Government proper.

Notes on Votes

There is a remarkable passage in one of Cromwell's letters, which states that: "Things obtained by force, though never so good in themselves, would be both less to their honour and less likely to last than concessions made to argument and reason." The vote is at last being granted to women all over the world, as a measure of justice, militant tactics are no more needed; and there is every indication that justice is at last to be granted to the women of Newfoundland. The women are getting busy. Small meetings are being held, and enthusiasm grows.

It is not true that a man's experience in his own business teaches him how to carry on the business of a city. Some years ago, a fashionable caterer was elected to the Massachusetts Legislature, and was appointed a member of the committee on filling up the South Boston flats. Another member said to him scornfully: "What do you know about filling up flats, anyway?" The caterer answered quietly: "That has been my business for twenty years."

The answer was good, as a joke; but, as a matter of fact, what had his experience of planning dinners taught him about the way to turn tide mud into solid ground? What does the butcher learn from his business about the way to pave a street, or the baker about the best way to build a sewer, or the candle-stick maker about the best way to lay out a park, or to choose school teachers, or policemen, or to run a city hospital? Does a minister learn from his profession how to keep the streets clean, or a lawyer how to conduct a public school, or a doctor how to put out a fire?

A man's business, at best, gives him special knowledge only in regard to one or two departments of city affairs. Women's business, as mothers and housekeepers, also gives them special knowledge in regard to some important department of public work, those relating to children, schools, playgrounds, the protection of the weak and young, morals, the care of the poor, etc.

For what lies outside the scope of their own experience, men and women alike must rely upon experts. All they need, as voters, is sense enough and conscience enough to elect honest and capable persons to have charge of these things.

The Secret of Getting on With Men

"Being able to get on well with men isn't a trick that somebody can teach you," says Harry H. Bassett, President of the Buick Motor Company, in Forbes Magazine (N.Y.). "Honestly, I believe that the spirit of humanness, or kindness, or whatever you want to call it, has to be born in a man. Some men simply have it. It so happens that I was born with a genuine feeling of—well, you might call it warmth towards my fellowmen. I like people. I like to help other fellows to get along. I get more fun out of my job than out of anything else. I know I am very fond of all the 'boys,' as you tell me, and you find that some of them think that I play fair and square with them. I am gratified to know it. "We get along all right together. The key men have been with the organization for years, all working together most harmoniously. "You know," he added, "the policy of the General Motors Corporation tends to make a man feel satisfied and secure for the future. No Corporation in America has a more generous plan for enabling its key men to attain a competency. "Managers' Securities Plan" feel that we are working in interest, not only of the Corporation, but of ourselves. Under the leadership of such men as Mr. Pierre duPont and President Sloan, we are all inspired to do our level best."

Overloading a Horse

Must an animal be worked until he breaks a blood vessel or drops dead, before the law takes cognizance? Cruelty begins very far short of taking the extreme strength of the animal. God has given to men and animals an excess of strength, to be husbanded carefully and used occasionally. But to tax that strength to its full limit unnecessarily is against nature, breaks down the man or the animal before his or its time, and is a cruelty against which men, having speech and reason, may protect themselves, but against which animals, having neither speech nor reason like men, must look to them for protection.

A Mighty Film at the Nickel To-Night

"THE SPAILERS" EXCELS ALL SCREEN EFFORTS.

Rex Beach's story of the Klondike gold rush, "The Spailers" has lost none of its glamor, none of its vividness and none of its charm in the years that have passed since it was written, and first put upon the screen by Colonel William Selig. The new version, produced by Jesse D. Hampton will be shown at the Nickel Theatre to-night. The new production is on a bigger and more spectacular scale than was the original and the great fight staged between the hero and villain far surpasses that of a decade ago. "The Spailers" is a true picture of life in the Klondike gold rush and the attempt of certain unprincipled adventurers to jump the claims of the early miners. The story deals with a great war party of courageous men and reckless headless bound for the gold fields of the Yukon. Therefore, movie fans, if you want to see an interesting, enjoyable, very exciting picture, full of screen celebrities, the Nickel Theatre is yours for the next three days. An additional feature will be in the form of a musical treat by the well known local singer, Eleanor Mews, L.T.C.M. who will appear in a Costume Act entitled "All on a Summer's Day." This is something that will surely appeal to your musical taste.

Swiss Canton Finds it Hard

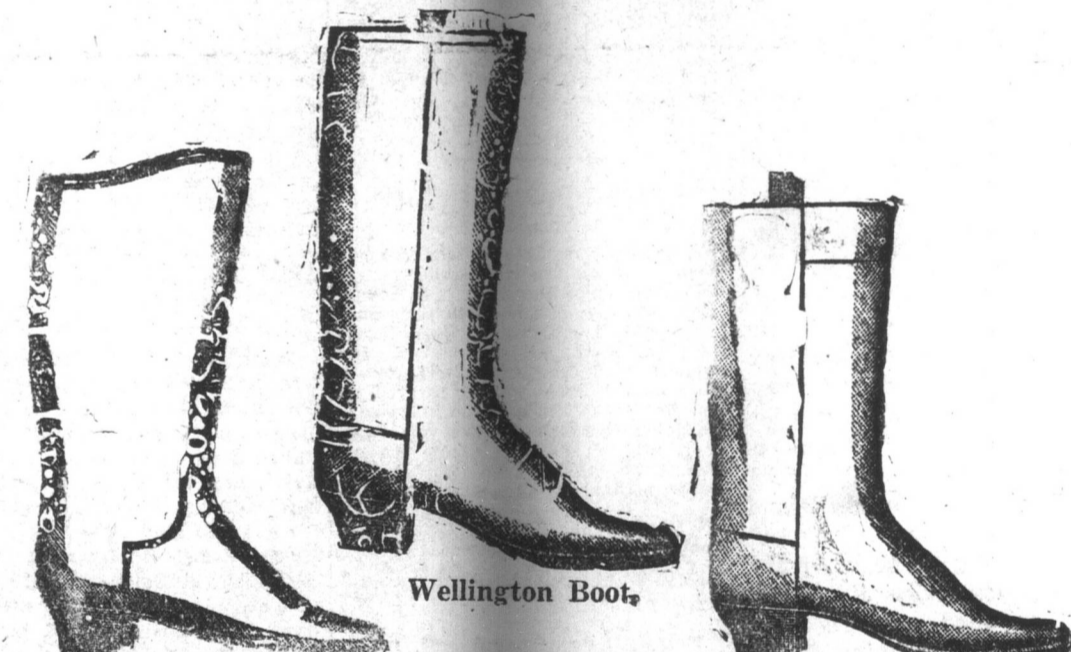

TO CARRY OUT FIRST EXECUTION SINCE 1861.

ALTDRE, Switzerland, Nov. 15.—After several weeks of search for a volunteer executioner for the murderer of a young girl, the district authorities of the Canton of Uri succeeded in securing the services of a mechanic, who agreed to do the beheading with the help of a gas worker.

This was the first execution in the Canton of Uri since 1861, so the guillotine had to be borrowed from the City of Lucerne, which still had one in stock from the olden times. The execution caused the authorities sleepless nights. First they found a railroad worker, the descendant of an old hangman's family, but the railroad union objected to a member of their profession becoming a headman. They threatened to expel the man from their ranks, and he, therefore, finally resigned from his new job.

In Switzerland, capital punishment was abolished in 1874. The wave of crime following the abolition brought about a general plebiscite on the subject, with the result that the individual cantons were given the right to re-introduce capital punishment for first degree murder, with the exception of political murder. Only ten cantons, representing twenty-five per cent. of the population, made use of this permission. However, the first execution, after the endorsement of the amendment, took place only in 1892. Altogether seven people have been beheaded since that time.

Train Derailed Near Manuel's Bridge

Engineer Tipple Killed Instantly -- Fireman and Conductor Escape With Their Lives.

A derailment which brought fatal results, occurred near Manuel's Bridge shortly after 4 o'clock this morning when Engineer Frederick Tipple, aged 38 years, single, was killed instantly, while Fireman Johnson and acting conductor Rowell, the only other occupants of the train were badly injured and suffered greatly from shock. The train, engine No. 11 with five box cars attached left town at 3:05 a.m., to proceed to Woodford's to join the steam shovel working on the section of the line. The train was making good headway, and upon approaching this side of Manuel's Bridge the engine suddenly left the rails, taking the tender and all cars down over a twenty-foot embankment to the river bed below.

A Very Good Suggestion

Dear Mr. Editor.—I do not know if the Postal Officials are kept informed with reference to sailings from Montreal, Halifax, New York, etc., to U. K. and Europe, West Indies, South America, etc., but it appears to me it would be a great boon to business people as well as private individuals, if sailings could be published regularly, showing connections. At present one does not know what sailings the Cross Country and other mails connect with. For instance a table on the following lines would meet the case.

Sunday 30th November.—To European Points via New York—Cunard. West Indies via Halifax—Royal Mail. Tuesday 2nd December.—To South America via New York—Lampson & Holt. Europe via New York—White Star. Thursday 4th December.—Europe via Montreal—C.P.R., connecting Southampton, Spain, Portugal, Madeira, South American—Port-Royal Mail. London P. & O. Eastern Points. Days on which there are no connections from various ports East or South, same could be stated. Then there are, of course, the direct Business Sailings with their connections. As all the important lines run pretty well to time, it would only be necessary for the Post Office to have sailing lists, and endeavour to keep in touch. There may be difficulties unknown to the layman, but surely the public could be kept better informed than at present. I am quite sure any efforts on the part of the Postal Officials would be greatly appreciated by the public.

Thanksgiving Day
at Gower St. Church

(I. C. M.)

Thanksgiving implies gratitude, rejoicing and praise; and so was it at Gower St. Church yesterday—it truly was a day of Thanksgiving. The weather favoured the occasion, and large congregations crowned the efforts of the Pastor. This is encouraging for Pastor and officials had made careful preparation for the day; and with the best results in view, they invited a clergyman from abroad to preach. The choice fell upon the Rev. H. B. Clarke, of Halifax, N.S., and we are pleased to be able to say that the rev. gentleman brought helpful and inspiring messages, and left impressions which cannot soon be forgotten.

The services were conducted by the good Pastor of the Church, the Rev.
Hammond Johnston. The musical sel-lections were appropriate, and all excellently rendered by the full choir.
The anthems were especially well rendered, and the quartette was a splendid finish to the entire songs of the day. Organist and choirmaster, and especially the soloist, Miss Withers, can justly feel proud of their work—it all became Thanksgiving; and if the collection measures up in the same degree, the day will be a record one;
one worthy Old Gower.

In the words of the first verse of the forty-second Psalm, "As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my Soul after Thee, O God," the preacher began his morning sermon; and it was at once evident that a treat was in store. The next was paraphrased into a topic which gave a clear interpretation of its meaning, the topic was "The Soul's Passion for God." Here in a sentence, was expressed the condition of modern life
—the soul crying out for that which the world cannot give. The author of the text was the Royal Psalmist. Like others he had met reverse circumstances. His son Absalom had usurped him. He had passed to the zenith of his popularity, and was finding the vanity of worldly things. In his extremity he sought the right source of help; his inner self cried out for something. What was it? Was it power? No! It was greater than power; it was the source of all power—it was
God. "Power belongeth unto God."
Psalm 62 and 11. Only God can satisfy the longings of the human soul. Men have tried the material things of time, but have failed, and have wandered further from the truth instead of nearer to it. In their soul's passion they have realized that they need some story to support them in the maze of life. They seek it in many ways. They interpret their needs or satisfy their soul's passion, in different ways; but until they experience it in the Divine light, they miss the mark.

Scientists, evolutionists, sceptics, critics and doubters, all bear testimony to this universal desire for something to satisfy. Their attitude reveals a desire for the greater—the abiding, the eternal. This is but natural; for man is at heart a religious being. His very doubts bespeak longing and "crying out." The intellectual knowledge of God does not fully satisfy men. There is closer union than knowledge; there is "the love of God shed abroad in the heart." Man is religious at heart; that is to say, he seeks for something beyond him. His soul "cries out for the living God."

At this stage of the sermon the preacher recited the poem composed by Professor Carruth; and as the poem is not very well known we deem it worth while to insert it. The poem evinces doubt; but it also expresses a most profound truth.

A fire-mist and a planet
A crystal and a cell
A jelly-dab and a saurian
And caves where cave men dwell
Then a sense of love and duty
And a face turned from the clod,
Some call it evolution,
And others call it God.

A haze on the far horizon,
An infinite tender sky,
A ripe rich tint of cornfields;
And wild geese sailing high;
And over upland and lowland
As charm of golden rods,
Some of us call it Autumn,
And others say it is God.

The echo of ancient chanting
The gleam of altar flames;
The stones of a hundred temples
Graven with sacred names,
Man's patient quest for the Secret,
In soul, in star, in sod;
Some deem it superstition,
And others believe it God.

A picket frozen on duty,
A mother starved for her brood,
Socrates drinking the hemlock,
And Jesus on the bloody road,
The millions who humble and nameless,
The straight hard path have trod;
Some call it Consecration,
And others feel it is God.

Like the tides on the crescent sea-
beach,
When the moon is new and thin,
Into our hearts deep yearnings Come welling and surging in—
They come from the mytic ocean
Whose rim no foot has trod—
Some of us call it longing,
But we know that it is God.

This poem is on a line with Mark-ham's "Man with the Hoe," and whether its sentiments be accepted or not, it cannot be denied that it embodies the great universal truth of "Search for the Infinite"—search for God.
This is what men are doing every day.
It may be that some do it impercep-tibly, and not knowing what they are after. Christendom, and society abound with spiritually blinded people, who but grope in the darkness, and who must continue so until they find the true source of true life, and like the Royal Psalmist, they "cry out for the living God."

In such a limited report as this most necessary be, it is not possible to convey the full text of the sermon.
We congratulate the Pastor and people upon the success of the day.

In the afternoon the Rev. Mr.
Clarke, attended the session of the Adult Bible Class and delivered a most instructive address based on a portion of the Lord's Prayer, "Give us this day our daily bread," emphasizing that God was interested in man's material life as well as his spiritual, and that growth and production were the result of God and man working in harmony.

At the night service the subject of his sermon was "A rendezvous with life," based on the words "Lay hold on Life," 1st Timothy, 6-19. Beginning with a reference to two remarkable poems inspired by the war, one "A Rendezvous with Life," and the other
"A Rendezvous with Death," and the wonderful spirit of service and sacrifice exhibited by the soldiers of the Empire in those tremendous days, he declared that there was no high virtue associated with the battlefield but may be emulated with the tasks of life. Life is the master passion of the soul; everywhere there is a clam-oring for life boundless and free.
How may we keep our rendezvous with life? We cannot unless we build on a foundation of spiritual life. The world can never be put right by the world. Civilization without religion is only veneer. The preacher emphasized in his discourse that we can only keep our rendezvous with life (1) as we realize ourselves spiritually; (2) by getting a spirit of self-consecration; (3) by exercising self-concentration. It was an inspiring discourse.

The anthems by the choir were splendidly rendered and added greatly to the inspiration of the service.

The Trail of
"No Man's Land"

(November 11th, 1924)
To-day the world remembers,
The deeds that they have done,
We tell in song and story
Of glories they have won,
The roll of honor bears the names,
We read their names with pride,
Of lads we knew and lads we loved,
Who went and fought and died.

To-day hearts beat in sorrow,
To-day the lark sing low,
While crimson memories waken
Where Godmen Poppies blow,
And to their far-off resting-place
Our tender thoughts will reach,
Borne on the wings of silence
More eloquent than speech.

To-day as twilight deepens
And dusky shadows fall,
We remember those who found the Trail—

The last great Trail of all,
And I think a few lost voices
From "No Man's Land" are blown
To tell us when we find that Trail
We will not go alone.

They, who have died for justice,
For Truth and Liberty,
Counting their lives not dear to them
That others might be free,
Will take our hands and lead us
By paths which they have trod,
Up to the Love eternal—
Into the Land of God.

Obituary

There passed to the Great Beyond on Saturday after a protracted illness, John T. Kelly, well known stone cutter of this city. Mr. Kelly received his education at St. Patrick's Hall Schools. After leaving school,
Mr. Kelly went to serve his time with the late Alex. Smith. Subsequently he joined the firm of C. F.
Muir and after a period there he proceeded to the United States to acquire some particular knowledge in his line. Twenty years ago Mr. Kelly was married to Minnie Murphy, eldest daughter of Mr. Edward Murphy, the well known shoemaker of Water Street West and his widow with their four children are left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband and father. Three brothers also survive,
Rev. Fr. Kelly, P.P., Manuels, C.B., Thomas, paymaster at the Board of Works Department and Charles, Accountant with Moore & Company. The funeral took place this afternoon from his late residence, 40 Gower Street.

WAMPOL'S EXTRACT COD LIVER OIL.

Now that the damp, cold, fall weather is commencing it is absolutely necessary to keep yourself warm, dry and healthy to avoid catching cold.
If you are not feeling very fit try a bottle of Wampole's Extract Cod Liver Oil. This will put you in the pink of condition. This preparation has had a wonderful sale, though never advertised, one drug firm alone selling over 4,000 bottles in Newfoundland last year. This speaks for itself and shows that Wampole's must do the work as the sales are always increasing. Weigh yourself, try a bottle, see the results and you will be convinced.
Price: $1.20 per Bottle.

With Recent Election Contributing Strong Influence. (Boston News Bureau, Nov. 18.) PITTSBURG.—Volume of steel buying has increased somewhat since the election and the general tone of the steel market has improved much more. Steel mills appear determined now to secure better prices, beginning with lines that have suffered most since April, 1923, when the steel market reached its top. Considering that more than a year and a half has now elapsed, the steel market seems due for a turn simply on psychological grounds, with the recent election contributing strong influence.

October report of steel ingot production was similar to that for September in that it disclosed a slightly higher mill operating rate than had been currently estimated. The daily rate of steel ingot production increased 6.4% from September to October, rate being 86.4% of assumed capacity. The average mill operation in the six years since the war has been 66%, as nearly as can be computed. As steel buyers have been very reserved for months, and were particularly so for several weeks before election, consumption must be quite good or the mills would not have been permitted to ship so much to market.

PEARS' SOAP has been used by people of refinement for 133 years. If it were not superior, it would not have outlasted a century. PEAR'S SOAP is preeminently the favourite Soap of Ladies and Gentlemen. The better class shops sell PEAR'S SOAP. A few years ago, Messrs. A. & F. Pears, the makers of PEAR'S SOAP, produced a series of toilet articles which they named the "Golden Series." The articles which comprise the Golden Series are as follows:— Pears' Shaving Powder | Pears' Shaving Sticks | Pears' Talcum Powder Pears' Nail Polishing | Pears' Baby Powder | Pears' Compact Complexion Powder Pears' Dental Paste | Pears' Lip Salve | Pears' Solid Brilliantine

These new productions of Messrs. Pears possessed such excellent qualities, that many Ladies and Gentlemen desired an entire toilet table equipment bearing the familiar and reliable name of PEAR'S, so Pears' Tooth Brushes and Shaving Brushes were added. The above mentioned Toilet articles will be on sale in St. John's next week. The names of shops where Pears' Golden Series may be purchased will be published in this paper.

Please bear in mind that PEAR'S GOLDEN SERIES represent 133 years' experience. Pears' Golden Series of Toilet articles have merited the approval of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

PIGEONHOLE PEOPLE.

Don't you love pigeonhole people? Doubtless you'd like to know what they are before you commit yourself.

Well, pigeon-hole people are the kind who keep little pigeonholes in their minds into which they tuck anything nice they hear about other folks for the purpose of having it ready to pass on when they meet those folks again.

The Pigeonhole Is Seldom Bare. When they write or meet you they dive into that pigeonhole, and it's a rare day when they can't find something to tuck into that letter or into that meeting to make it a brighter day for you.

A letter from such a person is a pleasant thing to see sticking out of the mail box among the heap of routine mail masquerading as bona fide letters, the bill from the department store and the political ad and the appeal for money from the Society for the Amelioration of Everyone's Poverty—except yours.

The sight of such a person coming up the front path is a welcome interruption to household monotony.

Funny, isn't it!

It is queer when we all want so much to be popular that so many people fail to cultivate this pigeonhole habit which is one of the surest roads to popularity that there are.

Star Movie To-Day

NORMA TALMADGE IN "ASHES OF VENGEANCE."

The crowning achievement of that gifted actress who sways the heart of men with the same grace and ease she moves her feathered fan.

Norma Talmadge as Yolande de Breux—fairest flower of France, now cold in pride, now rich in promises of love.

On a crippled child, her little invalid sister, her love was lavished. And her hate on Rupert de Vrease, noble of France, and her hereditary enemy, now bound to her as a common slave.

There is a romance—magnified, glorified and entrancing, set in a maelstrom of massacre and strife. Never a dull or uninteresting moment—situations teeming with emotional and dramatic action follow in rapid succession, every situation a thrill. Massive settings, gorgeous costumes, thousands of extras give a spectacular background to this delightful love story.

Conway Tearle as Rupert de Vrease, dashing and courageous scion of a despised house; Wallace Beery as the cowardly and despicable Duc de Tours; Courtenay Poole as de la Roche, brother of Yolande and enemy of Rupert; Jeanne Carpenter as the little invalid sister; Josephine Crowell as the cruel and ambitious Catherine de Madist; Andre de Beranger as the weak-willed Charles IX, king of France; and twenty other distinguished players in principal roles give memorable portrayals and help make this not only the greatest of all Norma Talmadge pictures but a production distinctly in a class to its own.

"Hands Off England!"

"It makes my blood boil," said Mr. Baldwin, the other day, "to read of the way in which Monsieur Zinovieff is speaking of the Prime Minister of Great Britain to-day. At one time there went up a cry of 'Hands Off Russia!' My word! I think it is time someone said to Russia, 'Hands Off England!'"

Wedding Bells

COOPER—CONSTANTINE.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at St. Patrick's Church on Nov. 17th, when Mr. Leo Constantine was united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony to Miss Bride Cooper, both of this city. The bride, who looked charming, wore a costume of duchess satin and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms.

MULLINS—PHILLIPS.

At Montreal, on Nov. 5th, 1924, at St. Patrick's Church, by Rev. Father Groves, Maud, daughter of John R. Mullins (bricklayer) and the late Mary Mullins of this city became the bride of Peter M., the only son of Geo. and the late Margaret Phillips of Quebec. The bride wore a dress of poudre blue Canton crepe and wrap trimmed with white fur with hat to match of pan velvet and Canton crepe, and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and ferns.

THE BUNK.

They told me, through the long campaign, that Jimson must be downed; the man was a running, might and main, for keeper of the pound, and ring-tailed anarchy would reign if victor he was crowned.

He stands for all that's fierce and base, so I was daily told; and in his present sinful race he's backed by Russian gold; he'll bring our village to disgrace unless we knock him cold.

He'd see our government upset, our bulwarks undermined; he'd seal our doom without regret, and knock our eagle blind; and chaos is the one best bet that he has underlined. And we, who always fall for tush, were shaken with afright, we thought that if we failed to squash this evil Jimson, wight, a wave of anarchy would wash our safeguards out of sight.

And Jimson won, election day, he fairly crushed the foe; and now the man who used to say his victory meant vote, applaud him as he goes his way, and bouquets at him throw. The talk of chaos and despair employs no human tongue, and no one seems to rend his hair when Jimson's name is sprung, and things are running everywhere as when the town was young. I worried over Jimson's race until my hair turned gray, and there are furrows on my face that do my fears betray— and all was bunk and piffle base, and I'm the easy jay!

Port au Port Notes

The stormy weather of the past two weeks has given the codfishery at Cape St. George a decided set back. Some of the fishermen have given up the voyage and have gone to seek employment at Corner Brook or elsewhere. Others, however, are standing by to take advantage of every opportunity that may offer of adding to their catch. Codfish are still plentiful there, but bait has struck off.

Some of the few trappers here who still annually revisit the "happy hunting grounds" of their youthful days, have returned home after some weeks operations over their old camping grounds, bringing with them few, but valuable specimens of their craft. Their reports of a marked decrease in the number of fur bearing animals to be seen on the local grounds are but a repetition of those received from like sources in recent years.

Road repairing—so called—in the late fall, particularly where the material used is of such a quality as may be washed away by the autumnal rains before it has a chance to set or harden, has been condemned in every mood and tense by every one interested in the proper maintenance of the public highways, but still the "bad" work goes on and like Tennyson's Brook it seems destined to "go on forever" unless some strong, united action be taken to put an end to this useless expenditure of public monies.

This applies with especial force to localities such as this where the upkeep of their only sure means of transportation, their railway connection road, is of such vital importance to its people that the useless expenditure of a dollar of the road monies is a criminal waste. This does not apply in any sense to the outlay of the necessary funds for securing dangerous places and similar work before winter sets in, but to the indiscriminate expenditure of large sums of money at a season when no permanent improvement in the condition of the road may be expected.

Men of all shades of opinion on the liquor question, prohibitionists, a bottle a day, a bottle a week men or what, do not seem agreed to adopt as a plank common to their respective platforms, the policy of eliminating from the body politic the moonshiner with all his works and "bumps"; but while the general principle of elimination may be agreed upon the process of carrying it into effect seems to vary considerably in different localities.

In some places the operation is swift, direct, and thorough. When sufficient evidence to convict has been obtained, the offender is taken before the proper tribunal as quickly as may be and dealt with forthwith. In others, procrastination seems to be the order followed. The first course has a wholesome and deterrent effect, the latter a contrary one and is not fair either to the public nor to those employed in unearthing such dives.

—A.S.D. Port au Port, Nov. 19th.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

PERSONALITY.

You may know just as much as the other man knows, You may be just as strong as the other man goes, You may be just as strong, just as clever, as true, Yet somehow or other he wins over you!

The difference is not in the things which you know, It is not in the skill or the force of your blow, It is not in the work you are able to do, It's in that personality labeled as "you!"

He is keen and alert, with a light in his eye, A smile and a word for all men who pass by, He wins their affection and values it, too, He makes his life stand out, and just so could you; But you scowl and you sigh And when strangers are nigh There's no warmth in your grip And no light in your eye.

It is not what you know which will carry you far, It's not what you can do, but it is what you are, Improve your mind? Yes, with the books on the shelf, But give time and thought to improving yourself; Make the effort and plan To be that sort of man Which the world loves to honor Whenever it can.

Light and Power Rates

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Your editorial a few days ago referring to the excessive rates charged for electric light expressed very clearly what every citizen thought on the matter. It has also made the ordinary John Citizen sit up and think is there no way out. Cannot anything be done to save householders and others from the prey of that monster Monopoly? What about the waters of the Mobile River? Here is a chance for our Municipal Council to make good and prove their business ability. I believe, sir, that if a company was formed to-morrow that citizens generally would subscribe the needed capital in a very short time to harness the waters of this splendid river and supply cheap light to the city. Light is and should be a public utility and should not be controlled by a corporation having a sole monopoly, and no private individual or corporation should be allowed any more concessions of water power for this purpose. Such controlling power enables these people to dictate and figuratively put a pistol to the head of every householder as to how and what he shall pay for his light. You, Mr. Editor, have the gratitude and the support of every citizen by your remarks on this important matter. In fact, sir, those two editorials which have appeared the last few days, the one on the sanitary employees' strike and the one I now refer to on the excessive rates for lights, have earned for you the thanks of the whole community, and shows that the Telegram is keeping aloft the standard of the People's Paper. Keep on, sir, in this good work, for thus

No Confederation for Newfoundland

Unlone With Canada Not Even Discussed To-day, Says H. D. Reid—Is Strongly Opposed—Head of Reid Newfoundland Co., Says Island Richly Endowed and Prospering—Inland Development.

(Montreal Gazette, Nov. 13, '24.) An optimistic view of Newfoundland's climate and possibilities, both agricultural, sporting and mining was given yesterday by H. D. Reid, of the Reid Mtd. Co., who is at Mount Royal Hotel, on a business trip. Mr. Reid, whose family during the past thirty years have built Newfoundland railways, coastal steamers and the dry dock and electric railway and lighting system at St. John's, Nfld., took a glance over the situation in the Ancient Colony, although emphasizing that he was not a politician, but a plain business man, with a business man's outlook on affairs.

"Last year we gave up all our transportation business in the island," said Mr. Reid. "We passed over the railways, the dry dock and the steamships to the Government. We now only own the 2,150,000 acres of land, or the interest pertaining to them, which we got for operating the railways, and which we are now developing."

Asked as to plans for developing this large area, Mr. Reid replied with emphasis: "At the outset I want to say that the prevailing idea that Newfoundland is misty barren land, with continual snow, fog and outcropping rocks is merely a myth. Newfoundland has the most beautiful climate during the summer months that can be found on the globe, while in winter it is less cold than neither Montreal or Quebec. Its scenery can only be described in one word, magnificent, with its wonderful fjords and islands all around the coast. As a sporting resort it is something beyond belief, its rivers teeming with salmon, trout and other fish, all free to the fishermen. Inland there are deer, caribou, partridge, black duck, wild geese and any amount of other attractions for the sportsman, and the visitor can get all the hunting and fishing privileges on payment of a very small fee, making it a country exceedingly attractive to lovers of the outdoor sports."

"Further than that," said Mr. Reid, "Newfoundland has a goodly supply of water powers and pulpwood, close together, while its mineral wealth is surprising. Among those best known are the Bell Island iron mines, which supplies ore for the British Empire Steel Corporation at Sydney, C.B., while copper mines at Notre Dame Bay have been worked profitably for nearly a century."

Rich Mineral Resources.

"Six years ago," said Mr. Reid, "their company had started a natural resource department, under the direction of scientific experts, to examine the country for minerals, water powers and the development of agricultural possibilities. These had so far been largely of a prospecting nature, but had resulted in promising discoveries of outcrops of hematite iron, chrome iron, coal, gypsum, mica, galena, asbestos and other minerals which gave promise for future development."

"Situated off the Gulf of St. Lawrence, practically midway between Canada and Great Britain," said Mr. Reid, "Newfoundland has many advantages, both in labor and shipping. It has an industrious population, many of whom are miners, while the great fishing industry whose workers are employed fishing in summer supply labor for the pulpwood forest work in winter."

"Of course our main source of wealth in Newfoundland is from the fisheries, which have been carried on for centuries, and are still as good as ever," said Mr. Reid. "At the same time I do not think it will be many years before most substantial and permanent wealth will be secured by the development and exploitation of the inland resources of the island."

"As to our Government," remarked Mr. Reid, "we have our times of excitement, like everybody else, but from the point of view of business and the investment of capital, I think our Government is as safe and sound as any in the world. British constitutional fair play with security for capital, the business man and the worker prevail."

Asked as to confederation with Canada, Mr. Reid replied: "There is absolutely no talk to-day of confederation with Canada, and personally I am strongly against it. We, in Newfoundland, are richly endowed, both on land and in the seas. The people are well off, and the financial position of the island is good. It is up to the politicians and the statesmen of the island to carry on independently, and I think they can and will."

Mr. Reid will remain in the city a few days.

Christian Brothers' Collection

The announcement was made in all the Roman Catholic Churches of the city yesterday that the annual Collection on behalf of the Christian Brothers will be taken up next Sunday. It is anticipated that on account of the improved conditions generally the total this year will exceed any previous one. No doubt the ex-pupils will again come forward in all their strength as of yore to express in a most practical manner their continued appreciation of all that the good Brothers have accomplished on their behalf. It is the only day of the year that the community of teachers at the Monastery of Mount St. Francis humbly request the wherewithal to sustain them for a whole twelve months whilst engaged in imparting the blessings of education to the numerous boys who attend their schools at St. Patrick's Hall and at Holy Cross Building. To give to such a cause generously is but a practical reward for the Christian Brothers' zeal on behalf of so many of our city boys, consequently let the good work be maintained by an offering next Sunday that will be most creditable to the donors and of no inconsiderable pleasure to the reverend recipients.

Tasker Celebration

The annual Tasker Celebration which took place Saturday afternoon at the Grenfell Hall, proved most enjoyable for the more than 800 children present. The party assembled at 8 o'clock. Games of all sorts were engaged in, the seniors entering wholeheartedly in the frolic. At 5 o'clock the ladies were prepared to receive the guests, and all sat down to a bountiful tea, which was partaken of in a manner that must have been a source of gratification to the caterers. After supper a lantern show was given, and the youngsters were delighted at the various pictures flashed on the screen. Throughout the afternoon the C.L.B. Band was in attendance and enlivened the proceedings with a special programme of music. At 8 o'clock the gathering dispersed, and the children went home sorry that the evening had been so short, but glad they had been present and spent such a pleasant afternoon. At night a dance was held for the adults, and a large number were present, and to the music supplied by the C.L.B. Band shared in the enjoyment that the children had in the afternoon.

Wednesday Night's Play

The special attraction for Wednesday night, Nov. 26th, is the play "Paddy Casey the Millionaire," which will be produced in St. Patrick's Parish Hall (entrance from Convent St. or Deaneary Avenue.) For some time past rehearsals for this comedy-drama has been in progress under the direction of Capt. J. J. O'Grady, and everything is now in readiness for a first class show. Reference to our advertising columns will reveal the cast of characters, and it will be seen that the personnel contains ladies and gentlemen whose reputation in the histrionic art is already established. The play is replete with good, wholesome comedy while it also contains some strong melo-drama. The scenery is being specially prepared, and those who attend are assured an enjoyable production.

London Letter

(BY PANTON HOUSE for Canadian Press.)

LONDON.—Canadian and other overseas visitors in London on Oct. 29 during polling hours (8 a.m. to 8 or 9 p.m.) were asking what had happened to the General Election which they had understood was in progress. The fact is that the London best known to the visitor—that is, the City and the West End—takes elections with great calm, even in these circumstances where a contest is being held; and this year the members for the City were returned unopposed. If one is looking for flags, posters, slogans, loud-speakers (the mechanical kind), or decorated motor cars, it is necessary to seek in the "boroughs" and suburbs.

From about 10 p.m. onwards, however, there was not much doubt as to what was going on. Practically all the big hotels and restaurants had made arrangements to let their visitors know the state of the poll, as results came in from the constituencies. Of the 615 seats, about 30 had been already filled without a contest, and about two hundred of the remaining districts knew their fate during the evening and early morning. One hotel had the outlines of the Houses of Parliament sketched on a canvas seat, and up the walls the figures of the three party leaders were seen to be climbing.

In Trafalgar Square, Oxford Street, and a number of other roomy streets and places, the results were announced by moving electric screens, by lantern screen, or by powerful megaphones, as they came in in batches of two or three. Huge crowds stood for hours with the usual British good humor, enlivening the proceedings with the music of whistles, rattles, concertinas and tin cans.

The British Broadcasting Company's election bulletin was relayed to all provincial stations, and heard in at least a million homes all over the country. Great numbers of people are said to have purchased wireless sets within the last few days, in order to share the pleasure of receiving their election news "hot" and comfortable.

Over one and a half million people have paid sixpence at Wembley to see the wonderful dolls' house presented to Queen Mary by the artists and craftsmen who decorated and furnished it. This means that Her Majesty will have $185,000 to distribute to her favorite charities.

The success of the Queen's Dolls' house in the cause of charity has inspired three public men interested in the hospitals (which, we may remind Canadians, are run on the voluntary system in this country) to have a model of the Houses of Parliament prepared for exhibition. The work has been given to a famous wood-carver, to be carried out in oak.

Although the model is to be only on a half-inch scale, it will be 40 ft. long, 31 ft. 6 ins. wide, and 15 feet in height. "Big Ben's" clock-face will be 12-1/2 inches across. The carver estimates that the work will take him five years and the cost will be somewhere about $225,000. Twenty-two men will be engaged upon it. The walls are to be made of blocks, 6 in. by 2-1/2 in., faced up to imitate the stone of the original stonework.

If Wembley is opened next year, the model will go there, and visitors will be able to watch its growth. When completed, it will be first shown in London, and will then make a round of the big provincial cities. The local hospitals will benefit by the entrance money wherever it is shown.

On Oct. 29, 1618, Sir Walter Raleigh was executed in Old Palace Yard, Westminster, now the wide open space which separates the west end of Westminster Abbey from the House of Lords. He was buried only a few yards away, in the chancel of St. Margaret's Church.

Canadian visitors who wish to see something of the London that Raleigh knew will go to the splendid old Hall of the Temple, hardly changed since his time. No trace is left of Durham House near the Strand, let alone the Queen Elizabeth until he fell into disgrace for marrying her maid of honor—an almost unforgivable crime in the eyes of the elderly sovereign. Raleigh's "swain" he was imprisoned for months in the Tower in 1602.

Early in the reign of James I (1603) he was convicted of taking a hand in the so-called "Main" and "Bye" plots, the object of which is still obscure, but is supposed to have been the substitution of Lady Arabella Stuart for the new King. He was sentenced to death, and in virtue of that verdict eventually executed 15 years later. Thirteen of those 15 years were spent in the Tower.

The first two years of his imprisonment were not too rigorous. He was allowed to receive visits from his wife and friends, to take exercise along the walk still known as "Raleigh's Walk," and to use an ex-ben house in the Lieutenant's Garden for writing and scientific experiments. Here he prepared a terrible concoction which he called his "Balsam of Gulana," which was a specific against all human ills, and contained, among its ingredients, ground pearls, musk, vine, mace, red roses and viper's

THOUGHTS ON "REMEMBRANCE DAY."
When warriors famous for their victories die,
With mighty monuments men cum-ber earth,
And then, as if all praise did with them lie,
In pompous lines bards mourn their vanished worth:
But this great work of stone before us here,
With justies throned aloft with radiant brow,
A grateful country to her sons did rear,
Whose glorious memory we honour now.
What need of bards to celebrate their fame,
To write their vallant deeds in mournful rhyme?
When this great monument, with art adame,
Shall herald forth their glory to all time.
Thus we who mourn--when we have passed away,
This stone to tell their praises still stay.
HAROLD BANCROFT.

Shipbuilding in Great Britain and Ireland

MOTOR SHIPS INCREASE.
The tonnage of new vessels commenced in Great Britain and Ireland during the quarter ended September shows a drop from 375,210 tons at the end of the previous quarter to 252,745 tons. Only 78 ships were started during the quarter as against 119 launched, meaning the creation of a corresponding number of empty building berths. According to figures published by Lloyd's Register of Shipping and reported to the Bankers Trust Company of New York by its English Information Service, the total vessel tonnage under construction in Great Britain and Ireland on September 30 was 1,483,408, comparing with 1,371,195 on September 30, 1923, but showing a falling off from 1,516,746 tons at the end of the June quarter. On September 30 ships having a gross tonnage of 1,112,604 tons were under construction in countries other than Great Britain. These included 43 oil tankers with a gross tonnage of 290,220. The tonnage of steamships commenced in Great Britain during the September quarter was 168,395, and of motor ships commenced throughout the world (261,444) exceeded that of steamships (257,660). The tonnage of motor ships under construction throughout the world is now equal to 58% of the steam tonnage. Of the combined tonnage building in Germany, Denmark and Sweden, nearly 78 % consists of motor ships.

Parthenogenesis in Fowls and Pigeons

It is quite easy to induce artificial parthenogenesis in frog's eggs; and the frog is the highest animal, so far as we know, in which this occurs. The frog's eggs, artificially stimulated in various ways, e.g. by a trace of butyric acid, or by being pricked with a glass needle and then washed in blood, develop readily and normally. Though they have no father, they develop into little frogs. A similar parthenogenetic development occurs in natural conditions in summer green-flies, in many small crustaceans, in most wheel-animalcules or Rotifers, and in the eggs that give rise to drone bees or male ants. In fowls it has been reported that the egg sometimes begins to develop without being fertilized, but only early stages of development have been observed. It is obviously necessary to be quite sure that the hens laying these parthenogenetic eggs have been isolated for a long time, away from any cock. But there is no reason to doubt that a fowl's egg may begin to develop parthenogenetically, as observed for instance, by Oellacher (1872) and by Lecallion (1910). The same is true for pigeon's eggs, and a very satisfactory account has recently been given by G. W. Bartelmez and Oscar Riddle. The cleavage of the egg proceeds to a stage approximately equal to that attained ten hours after fertilization in normal development. After this there is a setting in of degenerative changes, and nothing happens. Associated with the degeneration there is an unusual amount of water absorbed from the white of egg by the yolk. We see then that while a frog's egg artificially stimulated to parthenogenetic development may give rise to a normal frog, the "spontaneously" developing eggs of a pigeon gives rise to nothing.—English Review.

In connection with the cost of coal strikes, it is estimated that post-war strikes in the United States have incurred a loss of $12,000,000,000. Of this vast sum 85 per cent. of the loss has fallen on the public, 13 per cent. on the employees and 2 per cent. on the employers. Mr. Consumer again takes the booby prize.
