Getting Restless

His Majesty Wanted to Get Out to See Troops March By.

But Physicians Thought it too Early Yet to Risk Exposure.

Wound Is Healing Well and the Patient Feeling More Comfortable.

London, July 2.—King Edward has passed another good day.

The quiet routine of the royal sick room was varied today by the excitement of his- tian troops as they marched past the balcony.

King Edward demanded a full account of the review, and the formal report made by the Prince of Wales was supplemented by the personal narrative of the Queen.

His Majesty dictated a letter to the Duke of Connaught, commanding him to compliment the colonial troops upon their excellent appearance, and to thank them for their expressions of loyalty and sympathy, which he had heard with pleasure in his sick room.

King Edward was somewhat disappointed that he was not able to see the march past of the troops. He had hoped that this would be possible from an invalid couch in a window of the palace, but the King's doctors were unwilling that their patient should risk exposure and excitement, and His Majesty had to content himself with hearing the troops without seeing them.

Many of the doctors wore their academic robes, and the service in procession, the doctors joining at the altar.

At the conclusion of the service a large number of the doctors presented to Queen Alexandra a petition for recovery wishes for His Majesty's speedy recovery.

NANAIMO, B. C., July 2.—(Special.)—The blacksmith shop and residence of Thomas Craig, Esq., was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning.

The fire broke out at 9 o'clock Monday evening and drove to Nanaimo before it was contained.

The morning about 7 o'clock Mr. Craig heard that there had been a fire in Extension and fearing that his property might be lost he went to see.

He found nothing but heaps of ruins where shop and residence had stood the night before. All the contents of buildings had been completely destroyed.

Mr. Craig does not know how to account for the fire, but suspects that it might have been the work of an incendiary.

The shop stood on one side of the street, and the house on the other with sufficient distance between them to prevent the fire spreading from one to the other.

At the time of the fire there was not the slightest breeze blowing, and the buildings were burned together.

Other buildings and inflammable material close by did not catch fire. The loss is about $2,500, with $1,500 insurance on the property.

KING'S OAK IS DYING.

Planted in Central Park, N. Y., 40 Years Ago by King Edward VII., It Is Now Called to Rest.

The English oak which was planted in Central Park, New York, 40 years ago by King Edward VII., then Prince of Wales, is dying, and will probably have to be cut down in a short time as all efforts to preserve it have been unavailing. The tree has been doing for some time, but attention has now been called to its condition by the illness of him who planted it. The tree is on the western border of the Mall, near the Eagle statue, and near it is a magnificent American elm, which was planted by the Prince at the same time. The elm is in fine condition.

When the Prince of Wales visited the United States in 1890, Comptroller Andrew H. Green invited the youthful visitor to plant the tree on the Mall. The invitation was accepted, and an English oak and an American elm were planted on the Mall. The ceremony took place on October 12 in the presence of a large crowd. Mayor Fernando Wood and President Blatchford of the Park Board, who had been invited to the ceremony, were present.

LONG FELT WANT. After Many Years' Wait Victorians Will Have Ferry to the Gorge.

In all probability Wednesday will see the inauguration of the long looked for, and often desired, ferry service to the Gorge. Through the efforts of the Tourist association, an arrangement has been made with Mr. Lester, who has chartered a steam launch capable of carrying upwards of 30 passengers, and the trip will be run on a schedule of four trips each way per day, and the fare will be 25c. For the round trip, or 28 tickets may be purchased for $2.00.

It was intended to have started the service today, but the launch could not be completed in time, so she will not be in running order till tomorrow.

A very gratifying feature of the association's work, which may be here mentioned, is the cheerfulness with which subscribers are being returned in many instances so appreciative have merchants expressed themselves concerning the service that they have voluntarily doubled the amounts of their payments, and in some cases have offered to pay the off giving the association, and the committee now find ready assistance.
