Eric Champion was jubilant Wednesday night. He is our new First Vice-President. Eric's two friends seem to enjoy being with him. . . let's hope he can hold his own for the next 12 months.

Lawson Hunter, SRC President by acclamation was smiling too. Now he and vice-president Eric Champion are faced with the problem of setting up committees and preparing to reconstitute the SRC, as they proposed before the election.

UGEQ Loses At McGill

A late report from Montreal says that the students of McGill University have voted down their SRC-proposed entry into UGEQ. The organization is a French-Canadian student organization.

The proposal was defeated for the second time. In December a referendum was held but it was declared invalid because of irregularities at one of the polls.

Our McGill source said the turnout at the polls was uncertain but that 56% of the voters were anti-UGEQ. Discussion before the referendum was "unusually quiet", he said. This was in contrast to last term's debate.

In November the McGill Daily supported UGEQ to the extent that the anti-UGEQ faction at McGill published their own paper, Resistance.

This time there was only a short note in Tuesday's Daily, which mentioned the second referendum. "We really heard about it from the Resistance," our source said.

A.T. Balewa

by Peter C. Eilu

After a week of rumours and denials, General Aguiyu Aronsi's military government at last announced that the Premier of Nigeria was killed in the coup. He died with the Finance Minister and two other regional Premiers. The funeral for the Premier took place on January 23, and with it a chapter was ended in Nigerian history.

A man of admirable personality and dogged determination, Abubakar Tafawa Abalewa emerged from obscurity with the success of the Northern People's Congress at the first election in the colony, which was held in 1952.

Under the Colonial Rule, he held the portfolio of the Ministry of Works from 1952 to 1957, when Nigeria obtained self-government, and he became Prime Minister. Three years later, Nigeria became an independent member of the Commonwealth, and Sir Abubakar its first Prime Minister, after he won the independence election of 1959. Soon after this he led his country's delegates to the United Nations, where he made a moving speech that earned him his knighthood.

For the next five years, he had the unenviable task of carrying out an experiment in parliamentary democracy wherein people of different groups endeavoured to live together for a common purpose of peace and harmony.

This was no easy job, where 250 tribes make up the 55 million people of Nigeria! With an extremely complex constitution and a loose federation, Sir Abubakar guided his country into prosperity, progress, and a national consciousness. Last year he was re-elected, to continue the work he began five years earlier.

The pleasant-voiced Premier was often the target of criticism by vociferous leaders of other nations for his moderate views. On the question of Rhodesia, he stood firm on the view that Britain should have arrested Ian Smith, and sent troops to Zambia but disagreed with other members of the Organization for African Unity on the ultimatum giving Britain 12 days, on the ground that 12 days was too short.

While other members of the OAU went home to remain silent or break relations with Britain, Sir Abubakar took up the championship of the Rhodesian cause. On December 14, 1965, he flew to see Prime Minister Wilson, and put forward his views for the conference. The result: the unprecedented Commonwealth leaders conference in Lagos on January 10, to forge out a solution to the Rhodesian problem. It is irony that he did not live to see the outcome of his efforts!

At home he did his best with the constitution, which gives little power to the Prime Minister over the regional Premiers. He hardly interfered with the administration of any region, and this drew criticism from his opponents especially for his non-interference with Premier Atinkola of the Western Region. But he used tact and skill in handling tricky and difficult situations, as when he averted the crisis after the election last January.

The world mourns Sir Abubakar, and no matter what his shortcomings were, Nigeria has lost a true and a great son. In a message to the nation, the Queen described him as a true and honoured friend. To me he was a man of peace.

A Nigerian daily newspaper had this to say for him: "Once consulted by Alec Douglas-Home on Rhodesia; he was nominated for the Commonwealth Vietnam mission; grudgingly accepted by opponents as trustworthy; now working on unprecedented summit; a man of prestige, his name, Sir Alhaji Abubakar Tafawa Balewa." (Daily Times, December 16, 1965)

Arthur Miller Speaks On 'Salesman'

by Jim Embury

There have been tears and actual weeping all over the world wherever DEATH OF A SALESMAN has been performed. This same lachrymose effect is expected when the UNB Drama Society presents this celebrated Arthur Miller drama at the Fredericton Playhouse for three evening performances on January 29, 31, and February 1st.

The tremendous success of this play here and abroad prompted psychiatrist and author, Frederic Wertham to remark that DEATH OF A SALESMAN is no longer just a play but a phenomenon. Why, then, do people get so much pleasure out of a sad play?

"I think there are two reasons for that", Arthur Miller himself answered, when he was asked that same question in a recent interview. "The first is that the play deals with, at bottom, a kind of insecurity that everyone is aware of, but tries to put aside in his daily life. It is the insecurity, first of coming old age and possible uselessness, which is fundamental.

"But more important," Miller continued, "it is the fear that one has lied to oneself over a period of years in relation to one's true identity and what one should be doing in the world. What the play does is to make the individual ask himself whether his rationalizations about himself are not leading him to an ultimate rendezvous with a dreadful reckoning."

DEATH OF A SALESMAN is the story of an aging drummer named Willy Loman who has lived with a false dream, even succeeded with it for a time, but fails with it and dies with it. Willy has tried to make himself and everybody else believe that he was a big and important personality and then, after a series of mounting failures, is forced to realize that he is a nobody. Willy is man, "who never knew who he was".

"There are two sources of the false notion of himself that Willy Loman has," Miller told an interviewer. "One is the need that men have to project for themselves, an efficient, successful, praiseworthy personality. In the specific American culture, the desirability of being a social and financial success, is to be attained at all costs."

What does Miller believe the audience carries away from his play? The playwright confesses that he could not honestly say precisely.

"As a playwright I show the audience something which they have seen every day of their lives, but which they have never recognized. I believe that great art has always dealt not with exotic, the peculiar, the rarified, but really with the commonplace, with things and the emotions and the objects with which people must live in their daily lives. I believe that my role as an artist is to present the truth of life as close to its entirety as I am able to do. I don't want anybody walking out of the theatre and saying, "That's what he thinks."

For Future Leaders

Leadership is a challenge to the world. It is a challenge to every student at UNB. In Wednesday's elections we voted for those we thought qualified to assume control of our campus. If the past, however, is indicative of the future, then the prospects of improved leadership on our campus are dim.

Is there a solution? If, by solution, one means Magic Potion No. 52, which, with the whip of a wand, brings free running control, then the answer is a definite NO. There are no "before" and "after" cures for leadership and ability. The most effective medicine is understanding.

When one understands the people and the problems of his group; when he becomes sensitive to group and individual feelings; and when he can direct his group towards a definite goal, he can begin to call himself a leader.

It is quite difficult to find a situation whereby one can acquire this insight necessary to lead a group. In order to see into a group, one must actually take part in a "laboratory" of some sort, where he can experiment with both leadership and groups. Such a laboratory was held November 19-21 of last fall on this campus.

This was the first lab of this type to be held in the Maritimes. Following a T-group design, the delegates were able to pose problems of leadership, and actually study the dynamics of the group when such items as power-struggles and silent people arise. Few people actually realize the causes of group failures, and the reasons for its inability to function both effectively and efficiently. In such labs, attempts are made to understand these causes, whereby old behavior will be examined, new behavior experimented with, and group behavior studied in action.

Within a few days, a familiar sight on bulletin boards will be a red arrow surrounded by a mixture of polka dots on the upper left hand corner of a variety of posters. They will be advertising another leadership lab which will be held February 18-20. It is open to any students of UNB. The format will include lectures on group behavior, exercises in determining group effectiveness, and intensive small group discussion.

For those interested in this lab, blue application forms are available at the SRC office, the Business Administration office in Carleton Hall or the Library. For more information on this type of laboratory, reports on the last lab have been compiled and are available for the asking at the SRC office in the Student Centre. Any further questions may be posed to the list of delegates on the last page of the report.

The challenge proposes the question. Those who answer hold the fate of UNB campus leadership. Are you one?

And then there were none? Assassinations continue in Nigeria.

Nigeria (northwest of the Congo) is divided into four regions, each with a Premier. Nine days ago the army executed a swift military coup aimed at ending the provincial squabbling in the country. The original scheme was to kill the premiers of all four regions, and those in the Federal Cabinet who would oppose the coup. It has been successful. Monday Prime Minister Balewa was found dead in a palm grove; Finance Minister Okotie-Eboh was discovered in a ditch on the weekend; and two of the four premiers have met their end. Presently, Nigeria is continuing under a military government in conjunction with a few remaining federal ministers and top civil servants. Over the next few weeks we can watch for a sorting out of the national power struggle.

The Big Toy Drop

The Great Society Nation wished North Vietnam a Happy Lunar New Year last weekend and supported these warm felicitations with an immense bomb-barrage of gifts. Toys, sweaters, buttons and other notions carried the peace campaign to the people of the North — but only until Sunday when the ceasefire ended and the costly war was again resumed by both sides.

$113 Billion

L. Baines Johnson presented to the United States Congress a record-shattering budget on Monday. National Defence costs soared to consume $60 billions while increased expenditures for "international affairs", anti-poverty, wars on crime, and rapid transit communications took other large portions.

Favreau, Pearson Would Delay Constitution Changes

The Prime Minister told our House of Commons early this week, that he agreed with Privy Council President Guy Favreau, who said constitutional reform should be put off until after the next Federal election. They both consider it essential to find a way to amend the Constitution in Canada, rather than in Britain, but feel that to introduce legislation into a Commons "dominated by a sentimental colonialism that inspires the Tories' concept of national unity" would prove useless.

The Freedom Singers

After their concert attended by two hundred students a score of S.C.M. members met the five Negro Civil Rights workers and their New York guitarist. They are now on a tour of Canadian campuses to raise money for the education of Southern Negroes and to entertain and make Canadians aware of their situation.

The motives for social action of activists can be seen best by the life and aim of one member of the group. He comes from the emerging social class of Southern Negroes; his father was an Episcopalian minister and a principal in a segregated high school. From a low quality school he went on to university where he, his brother and his sister were the only Negroes. They studied music and math. In spite of his M.A. course he could get no other job than window washing. Having lived through Ku Klux Klan persecution and witnessing the beating of a white Civil Rights worker he began the work of encouraging terrified Negroes to register for voting, attempting to use segregated restaurants, and singing for freedom. His brother also saw the infinitesimal chance of success he had in operatic career and so began social work. They didn't join any organisation, for they believe in voluntary action. The situation of the Southern Negro is exemplified by the jailing of a Ugandan and a Rhodesian for no reason at all, except the colour of their skin. He was also interested in racial conflict and American economic imperialism:

"Man, those big cats (which I take to mean capitalists) control Liberia and 80% of Canada . . . You can change it not by education but attitude."

Then he explained about the difficulty of overcoming the hesitation of men who were oppressed as slaves for centuries and only nominally and not psychologically liberated to dare to exercise their constitutional rights. He rejected all extremism and political ideology and emphasized the need for solution in practice and not through idle theorisations. One of the group whose father was a sharecropper admitted that he had a basically violent nature, but all agreed to the efficacy of laboriously evolving a new attitude in both races.

Their part in actualising the constitutional liberties of the subjugated peoples and in realising the role of the Negroes in American society is played by singing UHURU into the ears of the hostile, the misinformed, and the complacent.

Two Exhibits

As the Catalogue to English painting in the twentieth century admits, the paintings are scarcely more than mediocre, and the painters do not stand in the forefront of the international scene. This frank admission of the superiority of New York and Paris over London as a centre of international art begs the question why our Art Gallery concentrates on a country whose style is derivative, where the revolutionary movements lag behind by a generation, and most important of all, whose medium offers little edification to Canadians nor explanation of present-day Canadian art. The collection of truly great works of the eighteenth century, the only period when British painting could compare with France, Italy, Germany or the Low Countries, is no mere nostalgia towards the Mother Country, but the limitations of the artistic sensibility of our great benefactor Lord Beaverbrook should not be all allowed to perpetuate the parochial, provincial self-termination of the Athens of the Maritimes.

I know of no major art gallery where the genius of alien cultures is persecuted and the mediocrity of local limitations tolerated. An art gallery may concentrate on one period of art or on the products of only one area where other comprehensive galleries abound as in New York, Paris, Rome, Leningrad or Mexico City, but where a gallery serves a whole region, its contents must be universal in scope and period, unless its aim is to narrow and not to widen minds. To exclude Egyptian, Byzantine, Roman, Greek cultures, to dismiss impressionism, expressionism, surrealism, to ignore Gothic, Arab, Persian, Chinese, Indian achievements or the manifestations of the twentieth century from Eastern Europe to Mexico is nothing short of artistic drought and intellectual suicide. Specialization is enlightening only in diversity, if exclusive, it produces ignorance and tyranny.

The failure of the exhibit is twofold: first of all it is not an exhibit for no one goes to see it, secondly, it fails to include the work of original artists in Britain who are again raising the standard of English art, such as Francis Bacon. One would think from the exhibit that there is no op or pop art in Britain. When scarcely anyone appreciates modern art in Fredericton, unknown names and mediocre or derivative paintings will convert no one, but there is a slight chance that a Picasso, a Matisse, or a Vasarely might. And anyway, even these are passé, what about pop, op-art, mobiles and abstract sculpture?

The expansion of artistic horizon seems to be limited to the Art Centre at U.N.B. How many not from the university community visit the Buddhist exhibit? The brochure explains the background of religious inspiration in Japanese painting. This exhibit is as informative as the one at the Art Gallery thought-provoking. See both.

Apology

The editors of the Brunswickian wish to apologize to Father Barry, who was mistakenly connected with an article in a recent issue of the Brunswickian.

We have been advised that it was not Father Barry who was involved in the incident concerning the St. Thomas Dances, and therefore regret any embarrassment it may have caused him. In this case the error is attributable to two faulty sources.

THE PLOWBOY PHILOSOPHY PART I

We have established in our previous installments that there has been a sexual revolution in North America . . . revolution being defined as a successful uprising . . . The weapon which wrought this revolution was the closed car, which resulted in momentous changes in the courting practices of the younger generation. In the good old days that we've all heard so much about, they used to write songs about "Hitching Ol' Dobbin to the Shay" and "Looking Sweet Upon the Seat(s) of a Bicycle Built For Two". Well, anyone who's ever tried to manage a horse and woo a girl simultaneously needs no further explanation of the effect of the closed automobile on romantic aspirations. The older generation brings back memories of things past when they drive by country lanes and apple orchards . . . the man of today (and recent yesterdays) becomes immersed in nostalgia when he passes an auto junkyard.

Ranking close to sex in conversational importance for the modern generation is humour . . . And here is our greatest failing. After all, a sense of humour must be cultivated, while our instinctual qualities will eventually lead us to sexual understanding, either voluntarily or otherwise. Thus having dispensed with sex, for present purposes at least, let us examine philosophically the position of humour in this community.

To put it succinctly, the college generation of today takes itself far too seriously. By dressing up in a camel-hair coat and a button-down collar, by carrying around an attaché case, and by parroting the voices of dissent on great causes and issues, the college man loses his ability to take part in the boisterous joyousness that should make university life a cheerful, happy thing. When he does engage in humour, it's only of the macabre variety . . . Polish jokes, watching Solo electrocute three men with his pen knife, chortling as Laurel gets hit in the face with a pie.

There is, on the college scene, no fun just for the sake of sheer, irresponsible fun . . . no practical jokes . . . no puns . . . no pranks. Nobody will realize that this is the only time in their life they can escape serious responsibilities . . . that they should relax and enjoy themselves, that there will be plenty of time for the rest later.

We believe that, if people don't have a good honest laugh, either with you or at you, several times a day, you are much too serious for your own good . . . and will soon lose the ability to laugh . . . especially at yourself. The inevitable result is that you will soon start thinking you are a helluva fella, one of the great serious thinkers of your time.

While lightly made, these are serious criticisms. We know of dogs who have better . . . and more healthy . . . senses of humour than some members of the modern generation . . . Which is reason for them to pause and consider. The situation is covered by an old Hebrew expression. "The next thing you lose after you lose your sense of humour is your mind".

Jess E. James,

CLASS OF '67?

A life-long student of transportation systems, James will be best remembered for his provocative major thesis "Iron Hosses I Have Broke In." Working towards his doctorate, he formed a research team with his brother and toured the West, taking copious quantities of notes as they went. Soon the whole country was talking about the James boys and they were in great demand as guests of honour at civic parties (neckties to be worn). Despite a reputation which grew by leaps and bounds (mainly on to passing trains) Jess E. James remained an elusive, retiring person who spurned formal gatherings no matter how pressing the invitation. A superb horseman, Mr. James had a way with colts. His untimely end came when he was engaged in breaking in a new one — a 45, to be exact.

The UNB Mermaids have placed sixth in the Canadian Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming Championships. McGill University won the meet with 38 points, followed by University of Alberta with 34, Simon Fraser with 32, University of Saskatchewan with 25, Western with 21, UNB with 18, UBC with 17 and Queens with 14. ## Carnival Car Rally Sunday Famous Balloonist To Enter Carnival Race

The first major event to be held in conjunction with the UNB-STU Winter Carnival is the UNB Sports Car Club's 10th Annual Winter Carnival Rally, scheduled for January 29th and 30th.

The Rally organizers are preparing to host what now appears to be the largest field of entries ever to compete in an Auto Rallye in Atlantic Canada. Twenty-five (25) cars and crews have already registered for the gruelling 350 mile test of man and machine over some of Canada's finest rallye roads. Entries from Halifax, Moncton, Saint John, Prince Edward Island and Maine together with crews from the UNB club will be competing for a variety of trophies and awards. The winning crew takes home the ALPINE CUP (donated by Moosehead Breweries Ltd.) while a new team Challenge Trophy is to be awarded for the first time to the top team entry in the Rallye.

The overall winners in last year's UNB Winter Carnival Rallye were R. Dingee and E.

Cunningham both of Fredericton who navigated a near perfect rallye losing only 38 points. This year, however, the competition stiffens with top drivers and navigators from Eastern Canada and the USA participating in the event.

The Rallye starts from the UNB campus gymnasium parking lot at 10:00 p.m. on Saturday, January 29th and ends on Sunday, January 30th at approximately 11:00 a.m. Late entries will be accepted up until 8:45 p.m. on January 29th in the Oak Room at the Student's Center at UNB and all motor sport enthusiasts are invited to enter the Rallye.

Famous Balloonist To Enter Carnival Race

A well-known German balloonist, presently instructing in Engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will enter the UNB-STU Winter Carnival Manned Balloon Race. Dr. Heinrich Karl von Kenerdich, a civil engineer, has submitted his application to the Winter Carnival Committee's Ticket Chairman.

Dr. von Kenerdich is a member of the international balloonists organization. The Balloon Orbiters and Observers of the Institute of Engineering Science. He will travel to UNB with the MIT parajump team, accompanied by his second, Mr. Friedrich Waarder, and two technicians.

Dr. von Kenerdich has held a number of world records, including one for a race across the North Sea which he set as student in 1936. He was awarded the medal of merit in the German army in 1944 after he attempted reconnaissance over Paris and was shot down by an underground sniper. Since then he has suffered two air accidents, one when his balloon sprang a leak and dropped him into the Charles River, the other in an unsuccessful attempt to cross the Atlantic, when his balloon exploded at an altitude of 1100 feet. Von Kenerdich plunged into the sea, opening his parachute at the last second. He was picked up by the US Coast Guard eleven days later.

Dr. von Kenerdich is well known in engineering circles for his paper, written in collaboration with Dr. Hans Uderblaus, entitled "Hot Air Production and Functionalization of Lateral Effects on Aero-Technology."

Mermaids Drown Acadia

The UNB Mermaids completed an extremely successful trip last weekend by trouncing the Acadia University Axettes 94-26 in an exhibition dual swimming meet. The victory came less than seventeen hours after the UNB squad's win over Mount Allison and Dalhousie in Halifax. Tired from travelling and a short night's sleep, the Mermaids performed extremely well in Acadia's narrow (it's smaller than LBR) and wavy pool. Results of last weekend's meets indicate that the Mermaids are top contenders for the Maritime Intercollegiate title they won last year.

Next action for the Mermaids is on Saturday, January 29th when, together with the Beavers they host the Dalhousie University teams. This will be your last opportunity to see your swim champions in action, so get out and support your team. Meet time is 10:30 a.m. in the LBR pool.

DEVILS EXTEND WINNING STREAK

Move Into First Place Tie

The Red Devils extended their winning streak to 4 games last weekend with wins over Acadia and Mt. A. The Devils drubbed the Axemen 6-2 at Acadia Friday night. Saturday night in Sackville UNB handed the Swampies a 7-4 beating.

The two wins moved the Devils' season mark to 5-1. UNB now shares first spot in the league with Mt A and St FX. Each team has 10 points.

In the Acadia game the Devils spotted the Axemen 2 goals before going on to win 6-2. It took the Devils 15 minutes of hockey to shake the effects of the long bus trip and get their skating legs under them.

But once UNB got started there was no stopping them. Winslow and Grant scored two quick goals to tie the score at 2-2.

The Devils attack really caught fire in the next two periods. UNB poured a rain of rubber on the Acadia cage as they outshot the Axemen 50-22. The Red Devils scored two unanswered goals in each of the second and third periods to walk away with the contest.

Ed Grant continued his scoring splurge netting two goals for UNB. Marty Winslow, Austin Duquette, Herb Madill and Carmen Hudson fired singletons.

Don Brown and G. McCharles were the marksmen for Acadia.

Summary

First Period: 1. Acadia, Brown (Neve) 1:45; 2. Acadia, McCharles (Trites); 3. UNB, Winslow (Duquette) 15:20; 4. UNB, Grant 19:45.

Second Period: UNB, Duquette (Grant, Winslow) 10:35; 6. UNB, Madill (MacMillan) 16:05.

Third Period: 7. UNB, Hudson (Winslow) 3:05; 8. UNB, Grant (Winslow, Duquette) 14:55.

In Saturday's contest the Devils got three goals from winger Ed Grant to help pace them to victory over the Swamp Rats. Jim Grant, Ed Russel, Martin Winslow and Al Andrews scored single goals for the Devils.

UNB started off fast and looked as if they might skate the Swampies out of Allison Gardens and out on to the marsh where they belong. The Devils peppered the Mt A net with 21 shots in the first period as they skated around and through the hapless Mounties. Despite the Devils determined attack the period ended in a 0-0 deadlock.

UNB's powerful attack started to mesh in the second period. Ed Grant notched two goals and Jim Grant and Ed Russel added singletons. Mills and MacLennan scored for Mt A. to make the second period score 4-3 Devils.

Andrews, Ed Grant and Winslow rounded out UNB's scoring in the third period with McKay making the lone reply for the Swampies. The Devils outshot the Mounties 45-35 in the contest.

Ed Grant's hat trick gave him 10 goals in the last 4 Devil games. This torrid pace makes Grant the hottest man on skates in the college league.

Winslow scores the second UNB goal in action against the Tommies Wednesday. The score was tied, 4-4

Red Raiders Upset X-Men

Cool heads and some hometown talent gained the Red Raiders the biggest upset of the year over St. FX Xaverians last Friday night at the Lady Beaverbrook Gym. Gary Crandlemire and Bob Bonnell led the UNB Varsity to a 68-64 overtime win.

The game started at a slow pace and UNB led 25-22 at the half. But in the second half 'X' got off to a quick start and outscored the Raiders 38-35. The game ended in a 60-60 deadlock.

With 4 of their starting 5 fouled out, St FX couldn't handle the spirited Raiders and were outscored 8-4 in the overtime period.

The turning point in the hard fought contest came late in the second half. Hec Roach went to the foul line and coolly sank 3 foul shots. This display of calm under fire deflated the X-Men and turned the tide in favour of the Raiders.

St FX — Schonart 5, MacDonald 2, Barry 7, Burke 10, Gorham 11, Bisson 13, Kelley 8, McGrattan 6, Thising 2.
UNB — Candlemire 16, Bonnell 11, Cotter 1, McAleenan 9, Piers 5, Nutbrown 9, Roach 4, Hill 8, Simms 1, Patterson 4.

Editor's Corner

UNB Varsity teams enjoyed one of their winningest weekends in a long while last weekend.

The hockey Red Devils on the road for the weekend scored impressive victories over Acadia and Mt. A. The two wins moved UNB another step closer to the Intercollegiate championship and the trip to Sudbury for the Canadian championships.

The Devils are improving with every game and displayed a well balanced skating, passing and shooting attack in both games.

Friday night in the Lady Beaverbrook Gym, the Red Raiders scored a 68-64 overtime win over the powerful St FX aggregation. The thrilling win for UNB in the closely played contest moved the Raiders' league mark to 3-2. The Raiders journey to Halifax next weekend to play Dal and St. Mary's in a couple of tough games. Two wins for UNB would virtually assure the Red Raiders of a third place finish in the tough Maritime Intercollegiate League.

The Red Bloomers, defending MIAU Women's Basketball Champions, picked up wins over Mt. St. Bernard and Mt. A over the weekend. The Bloomers now have 4 wins without a loss in league competition. The Red Bloomers should easily regain their championship and could very possibly go through the season without a defeat.

DEVIL DIGGINGS:

Unofficial word has it that Red Devils Martin, Winslow and Ed Grant are sitting atop the individual scoring standings in the Maritime Intercollegiate League. Winslow has 16 points and Grant 15.

Avid followers of the UNB - Mt A rivalry might take pleasure in the fact that by knocking off the Mounties Saturday night the Devils destroyed any illusions the Swamp Rats might still have had about capturing the MIAU title. The Mounties looked like world beaters before X-Mas and the mystery of their sudden decline to mediocrity remains as cloudy as the mists rising from their marshland campus.

The Devils have two tough games coming up with St. Thomas and St. FX. The Wednesday night game with St. Thomas should be one of the best of the year. Although, man for man, UNB has the superior personnel, the spirited close checking play of the Tommies should make the game a close one.

The perennially crowd pleasing UNB - St FX game will match the free skating UNB style of play with the staidier, hard checking 'X' brand of hockey. UNB's definite lack of steady checkers will put them at a disadvantage. But the whole Devil lineup will be up for this 'must' game. Taking this into account this corner is looking for UNB to 'beat X' by two goals.

Bloomers

Win Fourth

Straight

Last weekend the UNB Red Bloomers came up with their third and fourth wins of the Maritime Women's Intercollegiate Basketball Schedule.

On Friday night, in Antigonish, the UNB squad had little trouble in posting a 56-16 win over the Mt St Bernard coeds. Joan Carson was high scorer with 19 points. She was followed by Linda Lowe with 13.

The following night, in Sackville, the UNB girls got off to a slow start against a much improved Mt A team. The score at half time was only 11-9. But the Bloomers came out fighting in the second half and went on to win 38-21. Sandra Barr led in scoring with 11 points.

The Red Bloomers swing into action again this weekend with two home games. Friday night at 7:00 they play host to Mt St. Bernard. Saturday afternoon at 1:00 they tangle with Dalhousie in the Lady Beaverbrook Gym.

Mackay Welcomes Grant Increases

The full text of the President's statement follows.

"I am extremely pleased that the federal government, in providing increased per capita grants for the academic year 1966-1967, has also recognized the need to assist universities with a higher proportion of out-of-province students.

"The federal government has increased the per capita grant from $2 to $5. They have agreed to provide additional assistance for those universities with a higher proportion of out-of-province students. This will mean a total of approximately $4 million for the Province of New Brunswick than if the grant was made solely on a per capita basis.

"Of course I am disappointed that the revised pan of federal per capita grants does not follow the recommenda-

Dr. Colin B. Mackay, President of the University of New Brunswick, said Tuesday he was pleased that the federal government has recognized the need to assist universities with higher proportions of out-of-province students.

Dr. Mackay was commenting on Prime Minister Pearson's announcement of increased federal per capita grants for universities, and of additional assistance for institutions enrolling a higher proportion of out-of-province students.

Atlantic provinces universities have the highest such ratio. The revised operating grants together with the additional funds for out-of-province students will mean about $4 million for the province of New Brunswick in 1966-1967.

Dr. Mackay expressed disappointment about the revised plan for operating grants which had not followed the recommendations of the Association of Universities and Colleges in Canada. He said, too, that the Prime Minister's announcement contained no provision for capital costs nor of a special $3 million grant for Atlantic provinces universities, both of which were recommended by the AUCC.

He was hopeful, however, that the forthcoming federal-provincial conference on higher education would effect the implementation of these and other AUCC recommendations.

tions of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada. The Association had urged an increase of from $2 to $5 to be effective this academic year with an additional dollar per capita effective 1966-1967.

"In addition, the interim arrangement announced by the Prime Minister does not provide for capital costs, nor has the federal government seen fit to implement the recommendation of a special grant of $3 million to Atlantic provinces universities as suggested by the AUCC.

"I continue to be hopeful that these matters of special aid together with capital costs and the several recommendations of the AUCC will be implemented as a result of the forthcoming federal-provincial conference on higher education" Dr. Mackay said.

Students Stage Variety Show

The International Students Association at the University of New Brunswick Thursday staged a variety show of folk-songs and dances from Africa, the East, Great Britain and North America.

The International Students Association is a new organization at UNB, which attempts to bring together people of various cultures.

Formal rehearsals for the variety show have been held for several days. All the performers are students attending UNB. Students taking part are from such countries as India, China, Malaysia, Ireland, Nigeria, Kenya, Tanzania, Basutoland and, of course, Canada. A Scottish Country Dancing group also participated.
