Report that Chinese can Enter United States Through Hawaiian Islands

WAS DEMOCRATIC WAIL FOR EFFECT.

Anna Gould's Count Husband a "Jolly Good Spender."

CANADIAN TRANSPORT IS IN.

Boer War Again on Steyn's Defiant Attitude—DeWitt Still Fighting—Juneau's Public Spirit.

Washington, Nov. 5, via Skagway, Nov. 9.—The Democratic roorback all up and down the Pacific coast that Chinese may enter the United States by way of Hawaii has been permanently knocked out by a statement from Attorney General Griggs who says such a report is absolutely absurd; that there is no authority for the report and that under the existing laws there is not the slightest danger of any Chinese being permitted to enter by way of either Hawaii or any other of America's new possessions; that the laws as they exist are both necessary and acceptable.

The Democrats officially concede Ohio to McKinley.

New Boer Life.
London, Nov. 3, via Skagway, Nov. 9.—Negotiations with Gen. Botha for the surrender of the Boers have signally failed, and the latest news from South Africa is that it is impossible to treat for surrender as long as the burghers wish the war to continue. Steyn is even more unreconcilable than Botha.

and refused to receive the bearer of the flag of truce. Dewitt is still fighting.

A Good Spender.
Paris, Nov. 4, via Skagway, Nov. 9.—The court has appointed George Gould, of New York, trustee of his sister, the Countess Castellane. Her husband, the count, spent $25,000,000 in Paris in four years, whereas his wife's income is only $3,000,000 each year.

Transport Idaho Sighted.
Halifax, N. S., Nov. 2, via Skagway, Nov. 9.—The first transport, Idaho, bearing home Canadian soldiers from the South African war, has been sighted and will probably be inspected in time to land tomorrow.

Juneau Comes Up.
Skagway, Nov. 9.—Juneau has subscribed $1000 to assist in the construction of the Skagway-Juneau telegraph line.

Eagle for McKinley.
Eagle City, Nov. 9.—In an election held for president of the United States here on the evening of the 6th, 143 votes were cast, of which McKinley received 75 and Bryan 68; McKinley's majority being 7.

Look After Your Dogs.
There is nothing that will excite promiscuous dog poisoning and the party or parties engaged in the nefarious practice in Dawson will do well to keep the matter wholly and strictly to themselves.

On the other hand there are many dog owners in Dawson who are not deserving of a particle of pity when they lose their dogs either by poison or other means for the very good reason that they do not look after and care for their animals while they have them. The dog that gets no food at home is bound to go where there is a chance to beg or steal, and it is but little wonder that people tire of dogs owned by others continually hanging around their doors, dodging into their houses at every opportunity or robbing their caches of, in some instances, property to the value of half a dozen dogs. It is such annoyances as this that cause even tempered people to rise up in their wrath and swear vengeance against the entire canine family, and while they know that if they take a gun and kill the dogs outright, they will be punished almost as severely as though they would kill the dog owners, they prefer the more quiet, sneaking, but wholly as effective mode of poisoning the animals, which, by the way, is as mean a trick as a person can perpetrate, but when a person is "pestered" day and night by his neighbors' half-starved, ravenous, thieving dogs that are not fed or in any way cared for at home, what can he do unless blessed with the patience of Job and the forgiving spirit of the Savior of Mankind? A great many people wait until their dogs have been killed and then make a howl and say the "deceased" was worth $200; that $150 had been refused for him many times, and such other prevarications as no sensible people will believe. If people will care for and feed their dogs and thereby encourage them to stay at home, there will be fewer complaints of poisoned dogs, and general moral tone of the city will be greatly elevated.

Votes Still Coming.
Votes on the Nugget's presidential election still continue to straggle in. Yesterday nearly 23 votes were received through the postoffice from parties who, apparently did not understand when the election closed. It is a noticeable fact that the aftermath votes are largely for McKinley, which but goes to prove that a Democrat is always ready to vote on election day.

Not Hampered by Russia.
The opponents of Russia generally close the door of discussion by the statement, "Russia has already taken possession of Manchuria." Facts, however, do not support this charge. Manchuria is still under Manchu rule and the people pay taxes to China, not to Russia. There is even less interference in internal affairs than China complains of in other parts of China from other countries. Nothing has been done to frustrate the work of either Protestant or Catholic missionaries. The port of Newchang is still an open port, and it is yet to be proved that foreign trade in Manchuria has been hampered by Russia. — North American Review.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1900

A FALSE PROPHET.

Four years ago the present Democratic nominee for president ran for the same office upon a platform, the principal plank in which contained a demand for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. In fact the entire platform upon which Bryan sought to be elected to the chief executive office of the United States might well have been embodied in that single plank, for he practically ignored every other demand made in the platform and concentrated his efforts almost entirely upon the 16 to 1 plank.

National bankruptcy and widespread commercial ruin were prophesied as the inevitable result of the maintenance of the gold standard. All the woes from which the people suffered were to be cured by free silver, but the rejection of this panacea meant, according to Bryan, that the said woes would be increased tenfold. How false a prophet the silver apostle proved to be is best shown by the fact that in the campaign just closed in the States he has relegated the silver question unceremoniously to the rear and turned the full force of his batteries upon McKinley's policy for the control of the Philippine Islands.

Silver has been to all intents and purposes a dead issue during the entire campaign. The reason for this is not difficult to discover. Instead of disaster, which Bryan so freely predicted would follow the election of McKinley in 1896, the inauguration of the latter into office marked the commencement of the most notable era of material prosperity which the States have enjoyed since the civil war. Thousands upon thousands of mortgages which had been plastered over the farms of the west under Cleveland's Democratic rule have been paid off dollar for dollar since McKinley took office. The farmers of America were never so prosperous as they are today, nor have more men ever been employed or better wages paid in the manufacturing centers than during the past four years.

It is no wonder, therefore, that Candidate Bryan passed the word along, that silver is a dead issue and, the great danger to the republic now lies in "imperialism."

Mr. Bryan has overlooked the fact entirely that a natural disposition exists among most people to discredit a prophet whose past forecastings have proven false. What reason is there for belief that Bryan, whose attitude during the present campaign has been a practical admission that he was wrong in '96, is not again wrong in 1900.

We fancy that the question has already been answered by the voters in the States in a most unequivocal manner. We apprehend that the man who prophesied woe which never came has again been left at home while the man who promised prosperity and made his promises good, has been returned for another term of four years in the White-house.

Interest in the Dominion election has been rekindled by the arrival of the lists of nominations, which are published in another column of this paper.

From the fact that very few seats will be filled by acclamation, it is very evident that a hard fight has been made both by Liberals and Conservatives. While we are much in the dark as to the progress of the fight, both in the Dominion and the States there seems little reason to doubt that both the Laurier and McKinley administrations have been returned to power. However, it is the unexpected which is always occurring in politics, and there is the possibility of an unlooked for landslide, which must be taken into consideration. Altogether, the arrival of definite information will serve to relieve a great deal of nervous tension in Dawson as also to relieve a number of bad guessers of their spare dollars.

Ruthless Slaughter.

The creditable work of the Boers in freeing South Africa of the dreaded lions, which roamed in such numbers that life was rendered unsafe anywhere in the country, is offset by their ruthless destruction of the giraffe from Cape Colony to the Botletli river. If they killed 600 lions in the Transvaal before existence was made safe, they have killed 60,000 of the innocent, graceful giraffes. In the early days of South African history the giraffe was the most abundant game in the Transvaal, Matabeland and Orange Free State, but the creature has been killed off like our American buffalo, and the few remaining representatives of a noble race gradually driven north. For years past the giraffe has been a profitable quarry for the Boer hunters, and the animal was valued by them only because the hides were articles of commercial use. They were pot hunted, shot down in droves, and destroyed in the greatest number possible in every direction.

A good giraffe skin is worth from $10 to $20 in South Africa today, and much more in Europe. On their hunting trips 10 and 15 years ago it was a common matter for one hunter to kill 40 and 50 of these graceful animals in one day. The reason for this is that the giraffe is the most innocent of animals and is easily hunted. It is absolutely defenseless, and there is hardly a case on record where a wounded giraffe turned upon the hunter. It is true giraffe have great powers of speed, and they can dodge rapidly from tree to tree in the woods, but they offer such a fair mark that these tactics hardly ever save them.

The hide of the animal is its chief article of value. No wonder that the bullets often fail to penetrate this skin, for it is from three-quarters to an inch thick, and as tough as it is thick. The skin, when cured and tanned, makes excellent leather for certain purposes. The Boers make riding whips and sandals out of the skins they do not send to Europe. The bones of the giraffe have also a commercial value. The leg bones are solid instead of hollow, and in Europe they are in great demand for manufacturing buttons and other bone articles. The tendons of the giraffe are so strong that they will sustain an enormous dead weight, which gives to them pecuniary value.—Ex.

Cotton Production in Russia.

The total production of Russian cotton up to within a few years has hardly reached half of the total yield of the United States. The output of India does not exceed 3,000,000 bales and that of Japan is hardly 300,000 pounds. Within a few years however Russia has been striving to create an important cotton center in Turkestan and she expects to secure raw material from that quarter in sufficient quantity to supply the mills of the metropolis. It is difficult at first glance to explain the success here; the climate is severe, the extremes of temperature marked, rain is rare and the heat intense. But the extreme warmth of summer intensifies the power of vegetation, and irrigation takes the place of rain.—Consul J. C. Covert.

Pigeons Tire in Ocean Flights.

An old tar on a sailing vessel said recently that sailors on ships in the regular line between Europe and New York are always sure of pigeon pie the day after the carrier pigeon service leaves this port. He adds that pigeons flying at sea soon get tired, and settle on the first craft that comes in their way. A carrier pigeon was released from the French seamer 'Aquitaine' one day and was picked up by a schooner seven miles from Newport on the same day. The bird was handed to its owners in this city. The impression is gaining that pigeons are not so useful for long ocean flight as has been believed.—New York Sun.

"Basher Life, Old Boy."

There is an old saying: "Woman's work is never done," meaning that the housekeeper has to perform almost the same identical duties day after day and that it is impossible to escape from those duties. There is another class who find themselves in about the same boat, and that is the person who week after week lay before you the news of the world—the newspaper people. The same old path is trodden day after day, week after week, from one year's end to the other. The news is gathered, the type is set, the forms made up, the presses grind out the papers, then back into the cases go the type and the same monotonous grind that brought forth

Who Is Our President?

When this goes to press the result of the presidential election will be known to the Eighty Million People of the United States. We will know on Monday next at the latest.

the previous issue is kept up. It is a business that requires a never ceasing vigilance. While others rest from the maddening cares of life, they expect the newspaper man to be just as alert, just as keen scented and tireless in procuring for their benefit an account of every passing event. There can be no let up, no resting when weary. The stern law of necessity is forever driving relentlessly on and it is little wonder that men become prematurely aged and broken down.—Wayne Republican.

The Cost of War Dispatches.

London newspapers are "pointing with pride" to the enormous expense they were put to in the matter of telegrams from South Africa. For example, the Morning Post paid $1750 for one of Winston Churchill's telegrams not long since, and its friends chuckle accordingly. We have in mind one dispatch that cost the New York Herald $7000 during the war with Spain, and there were several others received by other journals that were not much cheaper.—New York Commercial.

STRONG HOMING INSTINCT

It Develops in Animals Very Early in Their Lives.

Horses, Pigs and Turkeys Return to Their Old Homes and Even The Cat Came Back.

The homing instinct develops in young animals almost as early as the desire for food. In the wild state it is necessary, since without it the young could never keep in touch with herd or pack. Even after centuries of domestication it is still acute.

Witness this tale of little pigs: They were under a month old when their owner decided to move. He wanted to fatten and kill their mother, so offered a lot of 40 at a bargain price. A neighbor five miles away bought the pigs, put them in a box, hoisted the box on a wagon and hauled it home. There the pigs were put in a close pen, fed on milk and mush for two weeks, then allowed to run in a small lot adjacent to the pen. Three mornings later every one was missing. A small hole carefully rooted under the gate was the sole explanation of their disappearance. Their buyer searched high and low for them, sending even to adjacent farms, but could not find them.

That afternoon the original owner sent word he had found 39 of the 40 straggling squealing at his gate when he came. The buyer going to reclaim the strays found the missing fortieth pig lying exhausted by the roadside, still struggling to follow the trail of mates.

On the same middle Tennessee plantation a 4-year-old mare was bought from an Ohio drover. The drover had brought down on stock cars to the entry town, seven miles away. The mare seemed perfectly content in her surroundings, so after a week or so she was allowed to pasture with her stock. For a day she was happy, eating and frolicking with the rest. At noon of the second day a watchman her suddenly flung up her head, as if one ear forward, one back, as though listening intently to a far-off sound, then start in a swinging gallop for pasture fence, clear it with one spring leap, cross a field of young corn, the boundary fence, a much stiffer one, and go away due north.

Nothing more was seen or heard of her for three months. Then by a simple chance she was discovered, impounded as an stray, more than half way across the state of Kentucky. She had swum a considerable river to get so far and had been taken up through breaking into a pasture to graze. She was going home straight as the crow flies, making no account whatever of the bends and turns in the route by which she had been fetched.

Among fowls, domestic turkeys are the most persistent homers. This same plantation's mistress found that out in a way at once odd and provoking. She raised a brood of 14, which turned out to contain 13 gobblers. They were fine, lusty, bronze brown fellows, although this was in the year when bronze turkeys, so called, were unknown. She gave away seven out of the 13 to many neighbors to put at the head of their breeding flocks. As a consequence almost every day for six weeks she had to go out and help to separate her own turkeys from some other flock. Each of the gift gobblers came back home, not once, but many times, with his harem at his heels.

Cats are proverbial homers. Southern negroes have many entertaining superstitions connected with their transfer. In moving they say it is the worst luck in the world to take along the cat. It is also very bad luck to give away a cat unless its feet are greased and allowed to make marks on the threshold as it goes over. They say, further, the homing propensity can be destroyed by putting butter on pussy's feet before they touch anything in her new home. Black walnuts, which it is nearly as bad luck to move as a cat, may be made to serve as ill luck antidotes by cracking them carefully and either tying a necklace of shells on the cat or putting them upon her feet for boots. It is lucky to have the gift of a cat and luckier still to have one come to you of its own motion. A gift cat ought to be taken home in a bag securely tied so none of the luck will escape.

Notwithstanding this was done in the case of a tortoise shell tabby, she came home over a distance of 15 miles. She took all summer to do it in. The road home led through pleasant woods and was never very far from a clear creek. At various times between June and November, when she reappeared at her old one, tabby was seen scurrying through the woods with a bird in her mouth or sunning herself luxuriously in some safe tree crotch. The first nipping frost brought her to the familiar door mewing and looking up at her old master as if she had never left it. —Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Mining Under the Sea.
The great zinc works at Arnao, Spain, obtain 50,000 tons of coal a year from a coal mine which extends under the Bay of Biscay. On the seaside of the shaft, working has to be carried on with the utmost precaution and very slowly, says the Philadelphia Record. The water tightness of the submarine portion of the mine is due not only to the slowness with which the working is carried on, but also to the existence of certain beds of shale which crack and fissure when pressure comes on to the roof, and then swell as the sea water filters through.

Unlike most of the Austrias coal which is friable, dull and iridescent, the Arnao coal, especially that from the portion of the mine below the sea, is hard, brilliant and whitish, like that from the Saar coal field, this whitish tint being due to scales of calcium sulphate and sometimes there is an appearance of concentric rings on the surface of the coal pieces.

The Eskimo's Liver.

Does every one know in what notable physical particulars the Eskimos who live in the far north differ from us temperate zone people? It will be remembered that half a dozen or more Eskimos came to New York from the arctic zone with one of Lieut. Peary's homing parties. Most of them died presently of pneumonia, to the distress and somewhat to the indignation of the public. Of several of them careful autopsies were made and, not a little to the excitement of our medical world, it was discovered that the Eskimo intestine was about four feet shorter than ours is, and that his liver was not shaped like what we have been used to call a human liver, but was more like that of a dog. The Eskimo, apparently, is so constructed that he can live and thrive under such conditions and on such a diet as he can command at home. —Harper's Weekly.

That Coal Scuttle.

In these days when so many excuses are used to obtain entrance to dwelling houses and burglars carry off everything possible it is as well to be careful. Therefore when a servant recently informed her mistress that a strange man had called and said that he had come to "measure for a coal scuttle," the mistress was naturally alarmed. The man came again, however, bringing with him three others, and then it appeared that he had come to put in an electric wire and box for messenger service. What he really meant to tell the servant in the first place was that he had come to measure for the "call box." He had apparently broadened it into "coal box," and the servant had repeated it as "coal scuttle." —New York Mail and Express.

Roasted Lawyers in His Will.

George F. Bloss, for 13 years butler in the family of James A. Strymer, in this city, died on April 12 last, leaving about $3000 in personality and a curious will drawn by himself. This document, which is filed in the surrogate's office, says in part: "This will is expected to be understood by people of ordinary intelligence and not by lawyers, idiots, imbeciles and others who may perhaps become insane in their desire to make money out of it by robbing my wife of what will through my wishes rightfully belong to her." —New York Letter.

Old Man Sorry for Bailey.

Strange to say, Bailey of Texas, who is such a hero with the sentimental women frequenters of the house galleries, is not a favorite with the men visitors. One day last winter his dramatic conclusion to a rather long-winded speech elicited from a gray-haired man in the second row of the members' gallery the ejaculation: "Too bad, too bad!" "What's too bad?" asked his companion. "It's too bad," replied the venerable auditor, "that the Lord Almighty when He made that roaring Texan should have used up so much material in fashioning his thorax that He had nothing left for his brains." —Washington Star.

A Little Nonsense.

"Dolly, if you keep on spending money this way we'll have to go to the poorhouse." "Well, if we do, Jack, we'll have a lot of nice things to take with us." —Chicago Record.

Dolly—So Molly isn't going to marry that real estate agent after all.

Polly—No; she says he comes under the heading "Undesirable Flats." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

"At last the wolf is at the door!" "Well, coax him in, and we'll eat him." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mrs. Newrich—That Mrs. Hyffliart is a stuck up thing. I know just as much about music as she does. She needn't get funny.

Mrs. Browne—Why, what has she done?

Mrs. Newrich—Oh, she tried to trip me up today; asked me if I'd ever heard somebody's "Songs Without Words." —Philadelphia Press.

"President Hadley of Yale talked to the senior class about 'The Mighty Power of Patience.'"

That would have sounded better if addressed to the medical class. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Pa I know that ma wants me to become a sleight of hand artist," remarked the light of the household, who was just about to shift for himself. "Infinite rot!" stammered the disgusted pater.

"Well," was the reply, "she tells me I should learn always to keep something up my sleeve."

An African King.

Khama is king of the Bamangwato tribe. His 40,000 subjects are called Bechanas because they live in Bechuanaland; but they resent this name themselves and do not acknowledge it as a tribal term.

Khama is an old man now—lean, hungry and as ugly as only an old negro can be; but he is a very good old man and in his way has probably done more real good to the cause of the natives in his part of the country than any other two dozen native chiefs.

He will not allow any intoxicating liquors whatever to be sold anywhere within his dominions. He and all his people are strict teetotalers and there is a heavy fine even for making tschuala or Kaffir beer a comparatively harmless decoction of fermented mealie meal. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Long Walk.

THEY ARE MASTERS OF CRAFT

J. L. Sale & Co. the Manufacturing Jewelers.

Many Gems of the Goldsmith's Art Produced by Them—Nugget Jewelry Makes Them Famous.

In all probabilities there is no mining camp in the world today in which is gathered the same high character of skilled artisans in all branches of the trades as here in Dawson. Surely in no other locality so far removed from the large centers of commercial life can be seen the product of the goldsmith's art more cleverly executed than here, and that without the aid of mechanical appliances.

This is evidenced in the recent production by J. L. Sale & Co., of the golden souvenir destined for William Jennings Bryan. Not only is this production a perfect specimen of mechanical genius, but it is a work of art in its conception and the highest form of art in its execution—a golden monument to skill.

This production could never have been executed without years of experience in the profession. Mr. Sale, who is still but a young man, spent 15 years as a manufacturing jeweler in San Francisco before he came to this country in the rush of '98. He landed in Dawson with but the tools of his trade and the practical knowledge of his profession and formed a partnership with Jeweler Pond, who in former years was an employe of Mr. Sale. The firm flourished, and in the summer of '99 Mr. Pond sold his interest to his partner, the business continuing under the name of J. L. Sale & Co.

In the same year a branch store was started at the Forks and a factory on Second avenue. The store at the Forks is still maintained, but upon the removal of the Dawson store to its present location near Second street, the factory was embraced in the premises. Last summer the firm imported a large and costly stock of watches, diamonds and silverware, the finest in this country, which are constantly admired by the many customers who throng the store.

Mr. Sale has made many nugget souvenirs, among which are the famous golden belts of early days, Cad Wilson's, May Lamore's and Rose Blumkin's. Other splendid designs were executed for Commissioner Fawcett and Lady Minto. There are six practical jewelers employed by Mr. Sale who work assiduously in their various departments to keep up with the demands of the flourishing business.

Last Night Colder.

The two or three nights previous to last night were quite warm, but last evening the contents of the instrument at Sergeant Major Tucker's office took a drop, and only stopped falling when 23 below zero was reached.

All Have Money.

Yesterday in one of the down town business offices six gentlemen were talking on various subjects, when someone remarked that more money was carried about by people in Dawson than anywhere else in the world. The conversation continued for a time, when the man who had first introduced the subject in order to demonstrate, proposed that the other five produce what money they had with them; this was done, with the result that between the six present, there was upwards of $22,000.

Chance for Speculation

The fact that when the river closed there was a large section of it in front of the north end of Dawson remained open and has not since closed is a matter concerning which there is considerable speculation, as many are of the opinion that it will remain open all winter while others say it will be closed as tightly as any other part of the river by Christmas. As it does not require much in Dawson to draw out wagers, a number have already been laid as to whether or not this now open space in the river will entirely close this winter.

In the event of its closing, the individual who locates, stakes and records sufficient space for a skating rink will have the world by the caudal appendage, so far as having the best ice court in the city is concerned, as when that place freezes up, if it does, it will doubtless be as smooth as glass and as level as nature can leave it.

If, by some unexplainable working of nature the river at that point should remain open all winter the city will, in all weather in which the atmosphere is colder than the unfrozen water, be enveloped in a cloud of fog which will arise from it, and which will make a difference in the temperature of the immediate vicinity of several degrees.

It is said that there is a point on the river immediately in front of Moosehide that has never yet been known to freeze over and it is on this account that the Indians located their town where it is, as that is said to be the warmest point on the river for many miles either up or down, the usual cold of the atmosphere being materially modified by the vapor which arises from the open water. Should this spot remain unclosed in front of the city, it will be the first time in the memory of the oldest white settler that there has ever been an open place in the Yukon in winter between the mouth of the Klondike and Moosehide.

"BEAU" BLAKE.

The Story a Texan Tells About the Irish Brigade Commander.

"I know 'Buck' Blake, or 'Beau' Blake, as some call him, who is now in command of the Irish brigade with the Boers," said a Texas man the other evening. "He had been a cowboy and at the time I made his acquaintance was interested with a Kentuckian named Harvey Watson in a horse ranch south of Brownsville. He was a big, good natured, powerful fellow, with humorous Irish blue eyes and a small, sandy mustache. Although he had no record as a 'bad man,' it was pretty well understood that he had plenty of sand and could take care of himself in an emergency. I saw that fully demonstrated one night at Fort Worth. He was in town on some business and, happening to walk into a big bar attached to a gambling house, encountered a cattleman named Ed Armstrong, with whom he had had some difficulty over a stock brand.

"Armstrong had the reputation of being a 'killer,' and as soon as he saw Blake he reopened the old quarrel. Blake replied to his remarks good humoredly, but he became more and more insulting and finally whipped out a six shooter and leveled it at the Irishman's head. 'Now, you hound,' he roared, 'I want you to tell the whole house that you're a liar!'

"The action was so sudden that Blake had no time to defend himself, but he never turned a hair. 'Aw, put that thing away,' he said laughingly. Then looking over Armstrong's shoulder, he added, as if speaking to somebody behind him, 'It's all right, Harvey; he's only kidding.'

"Thinking that Blake's partner, Watson, had entered the place and was then in his rear, the desperado instantly wheeled around. As he did so the big Irishman hit him a crushing blow under the ear and knocked him fully a dozen feet. His revolver flew out of his hand as he fell and exploded harmlessly in the air, and before he could recover his senses Blake was on his chest, with his hands on his throat.

"That ended the row and made an everlasting impression on my mind. By the way, Blake got his nickname of 'Beau' from a favorite expression of his while a cowboy. On Sundays he used to 'beau up,' as he called it, to visit some girls on an adjoining ranch. 'Beauing up' consisted of shaving and taking his trousers out of his boots."

POLICE COURT NEWS.

In Magistrate McDonnell's court this morning the first case heard was that of the Queen vs. C. L. Marsh who was up on the serious charge of stealing a team of horses, the prosecuting witness and original owner of the equines being A. Thomas. The grave charge, however, did not stand when the searchlight of investigation was thrown upon it, as it came out in evidence that Marsh had purchased the team in good faith and at a stipulated price, the money to be paid in a few days; that 40 days later the purchase price was tendered by Marsh's agent and refused by Thomas who wanted the horses back; that Marsh refused to give them up and was, in consequence, charged with theft. The decision of the court was that no theft had been committed, and the case was accordingly dismissed.

The case of Cowan vs. D. H. Delaney for wages alleged to be due for labor performed was continued, the defendant not being in court.

J. Labbie paid Robert Labbie $245.25 for 75 cords of wood represented to lie in the country back of Moosehide, and when Labbie went after it notices were posted showing that the wood was the property of Chris Sonnikson and partner. In fact, several parties claim certain amounts of wood in that locality, 100 cords or so more than is really there to say nothing of the 75 cords Labbie claims to have purchased from Riddle. The court deemed the evidence sufficient to warrant the holding of Riddle to answer to the territorial court.

Afternoon Fire.

At 2:45 this afternoon an alarm of fire called the department out, and a line of hose was laid out First to Seventh avenue, where the cabin of Mrs. Nellie Cummings was enveloped in flames.

The fire had made great headway when the alarm was rung in, and although the hose was laid from a coil in a wagon driven at a gallop, the cabin was practically a total loss before either the water or chemical engine could be brought to bear. The cabin which was a three-roomed one in which Mrs. Cummings and her two sons lived, will be a total loss, together with the entire contents as nothing whatever was saved.
