Death of Peter Kendrick

The angel of death passing over the village of Lyndhurst on Wednesday, April 25th, called home the spirit of Mr Peter Kendrick, aged 77.

By the death of Peter Kendrick, the village of Lyndburst loses one of its oldest and most highly respected citizens, and his loss will be sincerely mourned, not only by all residents of that pretty little village, but also by a wide circle of warm friends extending Eastern Ontario.

About two years later, he married Miss Mary Johnson of Lyndhurst, who predeceased him by about two years.

About five years ago, feeling the infirmities of age becoming gradually too heavy for the duties of farming, he disposed of the farm he had developed from the wilderness and removed to Lyndhurst, where he with his wife repared to enjoy the competence which they had gathered. Commentary.—I. The fierce demoniac (vs. 1-5). I. They—Jesus and the disciples. The other side—They crossed the Sea of Galilee from Capernaum to the castern shore. Gadarenes—This name in Matthew is Gergesenes, and in the Revised Version is Gerasenes. "Thompson found a village called Gersa about son found a village called Gersa, about the middle of the eastern shore, with ancient tombs in the adjacent mountain, and near the village found a steep place executy suiting the story of the swine."

2. The tombs—These tombs were either natural caves or recesses hewn out of the rock, with cells upon their sides for the reception of the dead. Such tombs can still be traced in more than one of the ravines on the easetrn side of the lake .- Cam. Bib. A man-Matthew mentions two men. Mark and Luke speak only of one, probaby the fiercer of the two, without denying that two were healed. Unclean spirit—"Called unclean because the spirit defiled both body and soul, the outward filth being a type of the inward defilement. The original the inward defilement. The original says, in an unclean spirit, in the power of under the influence and dominion of,

3. Could bind him—Attempts had been made to bind him because he was exceedingly fierce (Matt. viii. 28). Luke tells us that he was naked. 4. Fetters and chains-Fetters were for the feet; chains for any other part of the body.— Schaff. Tame him—It was impossible to bring his wild, savage nature under restraint. These feats of strength are often exhibited by mad men. 5. Night and day—He was deprived of sleep. Mountains....tombs—Here the demoniac had his home; for "all maniacs were outcasts as soon as they became violent, for that age had no provision for taking care of them. Institutions of pity for the unfortunate are among the gifts of Christ; antiquity knew nothing gates of Christ; antiquity knew nothing of them, or of the spirit that would produce them." Crying—Probably with hideous yells. Cutting himself—Here is an impressive picture of what all men would become under the absolute domin-

II. The demoniac goes to Christ and is delivered (vs. 6-13), 6 Ran and worshipped—As a man he is attracted toward Christ but when under the influence of the demons he desires to withdraw from the demons he desires to withdraw from Christ. 7. And cried, etc.—It is impossible to account for his strange consciousness of a wonderful power in Jesus, for the utterance of language which comes, as it were from a being the comes are the comes as it were from a being the comes as it were from a being the comes are the come which comes, as it were, from a being within the man, or for the language on the part of our Lord clearly recognizing the fact of possession, or for the dethe fact of possession, or for the de-parture of the devils out of the man in-to the swine by the express permission of Jesus, on any other hypothesis than the of beings superinduced upon edon. To do with thee-Literally. What is there between thee and me? What have we in common? Why The devils at once recognize their great enemy with divine power. Tortment Me Herein the true devilish spirit not—Herein the true devines spirit speaks out, which counts it a torment not to be speed to torment others, and an injury cone to itself when it is no more permitted to be injurious to others. 9. What is thy name— Christ asked the man (not the demon) his serve in order to get his attention.

name in order to get his attention and personality. Legion—The demon answered, speaking through the man. The Roman legion consisted of about six thousand men. The word has come to mean ought-The demon knew who was in authority over him. Out of the country—This is explained in Luke viii.

31. They did not wish to be sent "into the deep;" that is, into the abyss of hell, into the bottomless pit (Rev. xxo. 3.) Send us to anywhere, anywhere but to perdition. Send us to the most shattered man; send us to the lowest creature, into man or beast, bird or reptile; anywhere, but into hell!"—Parker, 11. Great herd—Though the Jews did not eat pork the Roman soldiers did and the swine may have been kept to supply their wants. 12. Into the swine—How could demons enter swine? We do not know. But we see many things quite as difficult to understand. The connection know. But we see many things quite as difficult to understand. The connection of mind and body in us is an equally great mystery. 13. Gave them leave—
"The devil cannot so much as trouble swine without leave from God."—Pool. Were choked—Cavilers have charged our Lord with wrong doing in "sending" the Lord with wrong doing in "sending" the demons into the swine and thus causing such a great loss to the owners, but it should be noted that what Jesus did was to drive them out of the man and then permit them to go where they wish-ed. He did not "send" them into the swine. "The owners, if Jews, drove an illegal trade; if heathen, they insulted the national religion; in either case the permission was just."—J., F. and B. 111. The effect of the cure (vs. 14-17). 14. Fled—Their occupation was gone. In the city—Gergesa, near the sea. Went out—The quickness with which intelliin the east, and the readiness with which people will turn out from a village to tramp away miles to satisfy their curiosity or bid a friend welcome or adieu, are things scarcely known here.—Hall. Matthew says, "Behold, the whole city came out to meet

15. See him . . . sitting-There is a marvelous contrast between the man's for-mer and his present condition. Instead of wandering among combs, in naked ness, and filling the people with terror by his wild, maniacal ravings, he is now sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind. Those who come to Christ and take Him as their Saviour always come into their right mind. Were afraid—They knew they were in the presence of one who had great power and perhaps they feared Jessu might send upon them the punishment they know they deserved on account of their sins. "When Christ comes into a place there is either deadly fear or great rehave been there when Jesus landed. Then, too, the disciples may have told the story, 17. To depart—They no doubt feared greater losse. They preferred swine to Christ. "They confidered the salvation of the man as a poor compensation for the loss of their pigs. A man extend who drives away devils must be himself days.

diven away. So do men hug the disease and hate the physician. Skeptics at the present day agree with the Gadarenes and repudiate Jesus, because the demons destroyed the swine."—Whedon.

IV. The saved man at work for Christ (vs. 18-20). 18. Be with Him—How different is this grateful man from what he was before he met the Saviour. He loved Jesus now and desired to join himself to Christ as one of His constant fol owers.

19. Go home...tell—We owe our first duty to our home and friends. "To be a witness for Christ in the country where he was so well known was far better for both the man and the people than to follow Jesus among strangers. Jesus thus showed His love for the people who had rejected Him by leaving a witness among them who might lead some of them to repentance." 20. Decapolis— From deka, ten, and polis, city, meaning ten cities. "When the Roman conquered Syria, B. C. 65, they rebuilt, partially colonized, and endowed with peculiar privileges 'ten cities,' the country which was called Decapolis. With one exception ,they all lay east of the Jordan, and east and southeast of the Sea of Galilee. The name was also employed to denote a large district extending both sides of the Jordan."

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

"Dwelling among the tombs" (v. 3). It is an unnatural thing for a human being to live among the tombs. A tomb indicates death. It is constructed for the dead and normal human life shuns it only as duty or affection calls in that direction. "Why seek ye the living am-ong the dead" (Luke 24, 5), The wretchong the dead" (Luke 24, 5), The dead demoniac was more contented among the dead than among the living. There was a sympathy, an affinity, between death and the demon-possessed man. They who are away from God are in a condition of death, "dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2: 1). They are dead in the sense of being without the life of God in the soul. Those who dwell among the tombs, spiritually, are dead to holy impulses, are dead to holy joy, are dead to divine love, are dead to a genuine hope of heaven, are dead to communion "with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ" (I John, 1, 3).

"Neither could any man tame him" (v. 4.) While this miracle does not furnish exact parallels of Christian experience, yet there are facts stated that run closely along the thought of personal sal-vation. Unregenerate human nature is appropriately spoken of as untamed. The carnal nature "is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be" (Rom. 8 himself and no one else could tame him

"Come out of the man" (v. 3). Jesus proceeded in this case on the supposition that there was something wrong with-in. The unclean spirit could control the man whom he inhabited, but he is now addressed by one who speaks with authority. It is Jesus who spoke to the wind and the lashing waves, "Be still," and there was a great calm; who spoke to the dead son of the widow of spoke to the dead son of the widow of Nain, "Arise," and he sat up; and who now says to the demon, "Come out of the man." It was not in the nature of an invitation, or of advice, or of exhortation, but of command, Satin would have enjoyed being coaxed and entreat-ed, but he cannot bear the direct com-mand of the Son of God, who came to destroy his forks.

"Thou Son of the most high God (v. 7). Satan recognizes the presence of his conqueror. He cannot endure His near approach. Many people will not acknowledge the district of the cannot endure the near approach. edge the divinity demon did in this case. Satan will contest the possession of a human heart: He will not leave until he is compelled to do so. He will argue and plead and threaten as long as he is given any op-portunity, and will even flatter and say it is a good thing to belong to a church but he has a master. Jesus is the glor-

Maker as the habitation of Satan. God had a nobler purpose in view. He breathed into man His own nature, His own life. When He re-creates man He bids the spirit of evil to come out and Man thus becomes the "habitation of God through the Spirit" (Eph. ii. 22). Satan and the Holy Spirit cannot dwell together. They are eternally opposed to each other. When at God's command the unclean spirit goes out of a human heart the Holy Spirit enters and the body becomes His temple. See I. Cor. vi. 19.

"Clothed and in his right mind" (v. 15). There was a transformation without and within. Missionaries, who labor among the tribes of Africa, tell us that when a native becomes converted he at once makes arrangements to wear clothes. It is not necessary for the missionary to urge him to do so, for he is inclined that way immediately. The terror of the Gadarene region was rendered quiet and civil, and was a marvel to those who saw him. He was 'in his right mind" Man unregenerated is not n his right mind. The Scriptures speak of him as foolish, as unwise, as erring, while he who has been saved through grace, is specen of as having a sound People come to their senses who

It was natural that the cured man should desire to go with us, and it was also a commendable but Jesus had a better field of We understand that l did not hesitate to obey the command of the Master, but went about the work at once. Testimony is a great part of Christian work. There should be a gladness to tell salvation's story. D. S. W.

THE TROUBLE WITH TURKEY.

GARRISON IN EGYPT STRENGTH ENED IN CASE OF NEED.

Secretary of State for Colonies Makes an Announcement in the British House of Commons-Safety of the Suzerainty Itself Said to be Endangered

London, April 30.-The official admision that the British garrison in Egypt s to be increased and the despatches rom that country to London make the situation arising from Turkey's action at Tabah look serious. Negotiations are now passing direct between Constantinople and London. According to a Cairo correspondent the relations between the disputants are already very strained. Both Sir Nicholas O'Connor, British Ambassador at Constantinople, Lord Cromer, British Agent in Egypt, have formally demanded that resolute steps be immediately taken. The Porte has been notified that if the British Agent in Egypt negotiations are further unnecessarily delayed or protracted, other action will be taken. This action it is believed, will take the form of a naval demonstration and the ocupation of some Turkish island in the Aegaen Sea. The employment of a land force in the neighborhood of Tabah is not will take the form of a naval It is rumored in Cairo that Turkey is concentrating a considerable force of troops southward of Damascus. of troops southward of Damascus.

The Tribune which accepts the official denial of its story that an army corps had been ordered to prepare to mobilize, says that people whose language is entitled to the very greatest weight say that not only are the incalculable British interests in Egypt endangered, but the safety of the endangered, but the safety of suzerainty itself, and, generally, land's great work of civilization in Egypt, stands in some peril. The crux of the situation seems to lie in the fact that Turkey's design is endangering the sym-pathy of a considerable portion of the native population.

It is believed that the movement of troops to Egypt will raise the garrison there from 2,000 to 5,000. Question in the House.

London, April 30.-In the House of Commons to-day George Peabo Gooch, Liberal, asked what increase was contemplated in the strength Peabody the garrison in Egypt, and whether it was to be permanent or only temporary.

Edward Gray, Secretary of Stat for the Colonies, replied that Lord Curzon considered that the existing unrest there, due to frontier troubles, necessitated reinforcements. It was impossible to say for how long it would be necessary for them to remain in Egypt.

JUSTICE FOR WOMEN.

WOMEN INTERFERE IN DEBATE UPON FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

Were Convulsed-Laughter Only Elicited More Strenuous Cries and Finally Police Cleared the Gal

London, April 30. -The House Commons late to-night witnessed one of the most remarkable of its many noteworthy scenes. James Kier Hardie, the Labor leader, has introduced a motion in favor of women's suffrage, and the debate was going or in a humdrum and listless manner for and against it, when suddenly while Mr. Samuel Evans was speaking against it, a shrill, derisive "Hear, was heard from the grille which screens the women's gallery. Stillness followed as Mr. Evans stop ped and the startled members eyed the gallery to see whence the sound came. The indignant faces of women peering through the grille soon reveal-ed the source of the interruption, and ed the source of the interruption, and the old officials of the House seemed ready to faint from amazement at the unprecedented female hardihood. Then heard in camera, the taking of evidence extending over the greater part of four days.

laughter, and this seemed to throw into a frenzy the suffragists, who resumed their shouting. One of themeried scornfully, "You liberty-loving Liberals!" Meanwhile the Speaker had ordered the gallery cleared.

A police inspector and ten constables smiling amusedly, went to carry out the order. The women, led by Miss Kenny, who lately caused a great scene outside the Prime Minister's residence, which ended in the arrest of herself and three companions, did not resist the inspeccompanions, did not resist the inspec-tor's polite request to quit, and outside they offered their names and addresses. In their hasty departure they forgot their banner, which is now among the trophies of the Parliamentary police.

The expulsion of the demonstrators was not without a protest. The tender heart of William Redmond bled for them, but his burning declaration that it was a breach of decency to turn them out did not melt the Speaker, to whom the traditions of the House are para-

The debate was adjourned. The debate was adjourned.

Earlier in the day the same agitators clashed with the police in the streets. Their taking positions in Ludgate Hill among the street hawkers to sell female suffrage pamphlets, caused such crowds to assemble that they blocked traffic. The police compelled the women to move on. All but one of the demonstrators abandoned their mission, but the last one held out until the police had dis-lodged her from fifteen different places.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON NO. VII.

A Fierce Demoniac Healed-Mark 5: 1-20.

Commentary.—I. The fierce demoniac vs. 1-5). I. They—Jesus and the disci-les. The other side—They crossed the of Galilee from Capernaum to the ern shore. Gadarenes—This name eastern shore. Gadarenes—This name in Matthew is Gergesenes, and in the Revised Version is Gerasenes. "Thomp-son found a village called Gersa, about the middle of the eastern shore, with ancient tombs in the adjacent mountain, and near the village found a steep place exactly suiting the story of the swine."

2. The tombs—These tombs were either natural caves or recesses hewn out of the rock, with cells upon their sides for the reception of the dead. Such tombs can still be traced in more than one of the ravines on the easetrn side of the lake.—Cam. Bib. A man—Matthew men-tions two men. Mark and Luke speak only of one, probaby the fiercer of the two, without denying that two were healed. Unclean spirit—"Called unclean because the spirit defiled both body and soul, the outward filth being a type of the inward defilement. The original mays, in an unclean spirit, in the power of under the influence and dominion of,

3. Could bind him-Attempts had been made to bind him because he was ceedingly fierce (Matt. viii. 28). L tells us that he was naked. 4. Fetters and chains-Fetters were for the feet; chains for any other part of the body.— Schaff. Tame him—It was impossible to bring his wild, savage nature under restraint. These feats of strength are often exhibited by mad men.

5. Night and day—He was deprived of Mountains.....tombs—Here the were outcasts as soon as they became violent, for that age had no provision for taking care of them. Institutions of pity for the unfortunate are among the gifts of Christ; antiquity knew nothing of them, or of the spirit that would produce them." Crying—Probably with hideous yells. Cutting himself—Here is an impressive picture of what all men ion of Satan.

II. The demoniac goes to Christ and is delivered (vs. 6-13). 6 Ran and worship-ped—As a man he is attracted toward Christ but when under the influence of the demons he desires to withdraw from Christ. 7. And cried, etc.—It is impos sible to account for his strange con-Becourses of a wonderful power in Jesus, for the utterance of language which comes, as it were, from a being within the man, or for the language on the part of our Lord clearly recognizing the fact of possession, or for the de-parture of the devils out of the man into the swine by the express permission of Jesus, on any other hypothesis than the existence of beings superinduced upon men. Whedon. To do with thee—Literally, What is there between thee and me? What have we in common? Why interferest thou with us?—Cam. Bib. The devils at once recognize their great enemy with divine power. Tortment Me not— Herein the true devilish spirit speaks out, which counts it a torment not to be sayed to torment others, and an injury one to itself when it is no more permitted to be injurious to others. 9. What is thy name— Christ asked the man (not the demon) his and in order to get his attention and bring him to a consciousness of his own pality Legion-The demon answered, speaking through the man. The Roman legion consisted of about six thou-

large number-a host. Besought-The domon knew who 10. Besought—Ine demon knew who was in authority over him. Out of the country—This is explained in Luke viii. 31. They did not wish to be sent "into the deep;" that is, into the abyss of hell, into the bottomless pit (Rev. xxo. anywhere but d us to anywhere to perdition. Send us to the most shattered man; send us to the lowest creature into man or beast, bird or reptile; anywhere, but into hell!"-Parker, 11. Great herd-Though the Jews did not Great herd—Though the Jews did not eat pork the Roman soldiers did and the swine may have been kept to supply their wants, 12. Into the swine—How could demons enter swine? We do not know. But we see many things quite as difficult to understand. The connection difficult to understand. The connection of mind and body in us is an equally great mystery. 13. Gave them leave—
"The devil cannot so much as trouble swine without leave from God."—Pool. Were choked—Cavilers have charged our Lord with wrong doing in "sending" the demons into the swine and thus causing such a great loss to the owners, but it should be noted that what desus did such a great loss to the owners, but it should be noted that what desus did when a native becomes converted he at was to drive them out of the man and then permit them to go where they wished. He did not "send" them into the color of the missionary to urge him to do so, for he is swine. "The owners, if Jews, drove an illegal trade; if heathen, they insulted mational religion; in either case the mission was just."—J., F. and B. H. The effect of the cure (vs. 14-17). 14. Fled—Their occupation was gone. In the city—Gergesa, near the sea. Went out—The quickness with which intelligence flies in the east, and the readifrom a village to tramp away miles to satisfy their curiosity or bid a friend

15. See him...sitting—There is a mar-velous contrast between the man's for mer and his present condition. Instead of wandering among combs, in naked-ness, and filling the people with terror by his wild, maniacal ravings, he is now sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind. Those who come to Christ and take Him as their Saviour always come into their right mind. Were afraid—They knew they were in ' the presence of one who had great power and perhaps they feared Jessu might send upon them the punishment they knew they deserved on account of their they have into a place. 16. They that saw it-Those who fed the swine and others who may have been there when Jesus landed. Then, too, the disciples may have told the story. 17. To depart-They no doubt feared greater losse. They preferred ewine to Christ. "They considered the salvation of the man as a poor compensation for the loss of their pigs. A man extending over the greater part of four was the imperative inscription, "Votes for women." The House continued its welcome or adieu, are things scarcely known here—Hall. Matthew says, "Be-hold, the whole city came out to meet diven away. So do men hug the disease and hate the physician. Skeptics at the present day agree with the Gadarenes and repudiate Jesus, because the demons destroyed the swine."—Whedon.

IV. The saved man at work for Christ (vs. 18-20). 18. Be with Him-How different is this grateful man from what he was before he met the Saviour. He loved Jesus now and desired to join him-self to Christ as one of His constant fol-

19. Go home tell-We owe our first witness for Christ in the country where he was so well known was far better for both the man and the people than to follow Jesus among strangers. Jesus thus showed His love for the people who thus showed His love for the people who had rejected Him by leaving a witness, among them who might lead some of them to repentance." 20. Decapolis—From deka, ten, and polis, city, meaning to misse "When the Branches and polis city and polis city and polis city." ten cities. "When the Roman conquered Syria, B. C. 65, they rebuilt, partially colonized, and endowed with peculiar privileges 'ten cities,' the country which was called Decapolis. With one exception ,they all lay east of the Jorda and east and southeast of the Sea of Gablee. The name was also employed to denote a large district extending both sides of the Jordan."

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

"Dwelling among the tombs" (v. 3). It is an unnatural thing for a human be-ing to live among the tombs. A tomb indicates death. It is constructed for the dead and normal human life shuns it only as duty or affection calls in that direction. "Why seek ye the living am-ong the dead" (Luke 24, 5), The wretched demoniac was more contented among the dead than among the living. There was a sympathy, an affinity, between death and the demon-possessed man They who are away from God are in a condition of death, "dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2: 1). They are dead in the sense of being without the life of God in the soul. Those who dwell among the tombs, spiritually, are dead to holy impulses, are dead to holy joy, are dead to divine love, are dead to a genuine hope of heaven, are dead to communion "with the Father, and with his Son Je-

"Neither could any man tame him" (v. 4.) While this miracle does not furnish exact parallels of Christian experi ence, yet there are facts stated that rur closely along the thought of personal sal vation. Unregenerate human nature is appropriately spoken of as untamed. The carnal nature "is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be" (Rom. 8, 7.) As the demoniac could not tame himself and no one else could tame him, so no man is able to subdue his own wild rebellious nature and make it Christ-like, but the Holy Spirit is able to sub-due and transform the wildest disposition. "Come out of the man" (v. 3). Jesus proceeded in this case on the supposition that there was something wrong with in. The unclean spirit could control the man whom he inhabited, but he is now addressed by one who speaks with authority. It is Jesus who spoke to the wind and the lashing waves, "Be still," and there was a great calm; who arole to the dead son of the widow of spoke to the dead son of the widow of Nain, "Arise," and he sat up; and who now says to the demon, "Come out of the man." It was not in the nature of an invitation, or of advice, or of ex-hortation, but of command. Satin would have enjoyed being coaxed and entreated, but he cannot bear the direct command of the Son of God, who came to destroy his forks.

"Thou Son of the most high God (v. Satan recognizes the presence of his conqueror. He cannot endure His near approach. Many people will not acknowledge the divinity of our Lord, but the demon did in this case. Satan will con-test the possession of a human heart He will not leave until he is compelled to do so. He will argue and plead and threaten as long as he is given any opportunity, and will even flatter and say it is a good thing to belong to a church, but he has a master. Jesus is the glorious conqueror.

"The unclean spirits went out" (v. 13). Man's nature was not designed by Maker as the habitation of Satan. God had a nobler purpose in view. He breathed into man His own nature, His own life When He re-creates man He bids the spirit of evil to come out and it is done. Man thus becomes the "habi-tation of God through the Spirit" (Eph. ii. 22). Satan and the Holy Spirit can-not dwell together. They are eternally opposed to each other. When at God's command the unclean spirit goes out of a human heart the Holy Spirit enters and the body becomes His temple. See

I. Cor. vi. 19.
"Clothed and in his right mind" (v 15). There was a transformation with ut and within. Missionaries, who labo mong the tribes of Africa, tell us that inclined that way immediately. The terror of the Gadarene region was ren-dered quiet and civil, and was a marvel to those who saw him. He was in his right mind." Man unregenerated is not in his right mind. The Scriptures speak of him as foolish, as unwise, as erring, while he who has been saved through grace, is speken of as having a sound mind." People come to their senses who find salvation. "How great things the Lord hath done for thee" (v. 19). It was natural that the cured man should desire to go with Jesus, and it was also a commendable purpose, but Jesus had a better field of labor for him. We understand that he did not hesitate to obey the command of the Master, but went about the work at once. Testimony is a great part of Christian work. There should be a glad-ness to tell salvation's story. D. S. W.

THE TROUBLE WITH TURKEY.

GARRISON IN EGYPT STRENGTH ENED IN CASE OF NEED.

ecretary of State for Colonies Makes an Announcement in the British House of Commons-Safety of the Suzerainty Itself Said to be Endan-London, April 30.-The official admis sion that the British garrison in Egypt is to be increased and the despatches from that country to London make the situation arising from Turkey's action at Tabah look serious. Negotiations are now passing direct between Constantinople and London. According to a Cairo correspondent the relations between the disputants are already very strained. endangered, but the safety of the suzerainty itself, and, generally. England's great work of civilization in Egypt, stands in some peril. The crux of the situation seems to lie in the fact that Turkey's design is endangering the sympathy of a considerable portion of the native population.

It is believed that the movement of troops to Egypt will raise the garrisor there from 2,000 to 5,000.

Question in the House.

London, April 30.—In the House of Commons to-day George Peabody Commons to-day George Peabody Gooch, Liberal, asked what increase was contemplated in the strength of the garrison in Egypt, and whether it was to be permanent or only temporary. Sir Edward Gray, Secretary of State for the Colonies, replied that Lord Curzon considered that the existing Curzon considered that the existing unrest there, due to frontier troubles, necessitated reinforcements. It was impossible to say for how long it would be necessary for them to remain

JUSTICE FOR WOMEN.

WOMEN INTERFERE IN DEBATE UPON FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

Members Were Convulsed-Laughte Only Elicited More Strenuous Cries and Finally Police Cleared the Gal-

London, April 30. -The House of Commons late to-night witnessed one of the most remarkable of its many noteworthy scenes. James Kie Hardie, the Labor leader, has intro duced a motion in favor of women's suffrage, and the debate was going on in a humdrum and listless manner for and against it, when suddenly while Mr. Samuel Evans was speaking against it, a shrill, derisive "Hear hear!" was heard from the grille which screens the women's gallery. Stillness followed as Mr. Evans stop ped and the startled members eyed the gallery to see whence the came. The indignant faces of came. The indignant faces of women peering through the grille soon revealed the source of the interruption, and the old officials of the House seemed ready to faint from amazement at the unprecedented female hardihood. Then the House simultaneously burst into a roar of laughter. This acted upon the its laughter, and this seemed to throw into a frenzy the suffragists, who resumed their shouting. One of them cried scornfully, "You liberty-loving Liberals!" Meanwhile the Speaker

Liberals!" Meanwhile the Speaker had ordered the gallery cleared.

A police inspector and ten constables smiling amusedly, went to carry out the order. The women, led by Miss Kenny, who lately caused a great scene outside the Prime Minister's residence, which ended in the arrest of herself and three companions, did not resist the inspector's polite request to quit, and outside they offered their names and addresses. In their hasty departure they forgot their banner, which is now among the trophies of the Parliamentary police.

their banner, which is now among the trophies of the Parliamentary police.

The expulsion of the demonstrators was not without a protest. The tender heart of William Redmond bled for them, but his burning declaration that it was a breach of decency to turn them out did not melt the Speaker, to whom the traditions of the House are paramount. The debate was adjourned.

Earlier in the day the same agitators clashed with the police in the streets. Their taking positions in Ludgate Hill among the street hawkers to sell female suffrage pamphlets, caused such crowds to assemble that they blocked traffic. The police compelled the women to move on. All but one of the demonstrators abundoned their mission but, the strators abandoned their mission, but the last one held out until the police had dis

"Does she still care for me?" the partners worked steadily through it

They had gleams of diversion, too, for Mme. Debrisay had friends and acquaint-ances of her own profession who often gave her tickets for concerts, and oriers for the theatre. These were am usements of which Mona had enjoyed but little during her residence with her grandmother, whose fixed principle it was never to pay for anything of the sort. They were a source of great enjoyment, for Mona was peculiarly alive to beauty and harmony, and had some-"We," said Mona, gravely, "consider it a splendid residence; pray walk in, as you will come."

"You are horribly inhospitable," said
Everard, laughing, and he followed her thing of the dramatic gift herself.
With the exaggeration of youth, she reproached herself for being so slight into the house.

On opening the door, Mme. Debrisay was discovered resting in an arm-chair, beside a table set for tea. Her bonnet lay on the floor beside her, and her thick and trivial as to forget too quickly the sorrows and disappointments of the by-gone year. Of all the trials which had been crowded into a few months, the oftenest was her breaking with Leslie one which came back to her oftenest was her breaking with Leslie Warand undeniably disordered black hair was uncovered.
"This is Bertie Everard." said Mona, ing. She always wished to hear of him, but he had passed away completely out of her life. "Very pleased to see him, I'm sure," said madame, rising bravely to face the

She fancied the visit was a free-will offering of friendship to Mona, and she was highly delighted with the visitor.
"Oh. indeed?" returned Everard. "I propre to know that she was not alto-gether self-deceived. But the impression gether self-deceived. But the improvement of St. John Lisle was fast fading. Now the nark, at the theatre, "And you find your sweet cousin looking well? Still she began to look at that future with less of fear than she did, and even ventured on a little castle building respecting a visit to Germany next year, for which she and Mme. Debrisay agreed to "save up," and not to dissipate any of their little store in a seaside trip this somewhat wet sea-"If you knew Mr. Everard better, dear Madame Debrisay, you would know that for a prolonged tour on the Continent, explained her non-appearance.

London is a great world. In no other place can any one be so successfully hidden; and though Mona moved about everywhere, with a freedom that was new and delightful to her, she never en-countered her aristocratic relatives but once, when she saw Lady Mary and her second daughter driving down Piccadilly. She was, however, lost in the humble pe-destrian crowd, and passed unnoticed. A very hot July had driven away all Mme. Debrisay's pupils, save two or three. The ranks of Mona's were also thinned, and both were planning a course of needle-work and reading during the approaching time of rest.

The dog days had compelled their fellow-lodger to muzzle the objectionable terrier—which made him unusually ramant when the torture was removed in

Mona had been out one morning to do some small housekeeping érrands, as Mme. Debrisay had a headache, and on re-entering the house with a latch-key, was surprised to hear a sound of snarland scuffling in their sitting room, door of which was open. Going in ckly, she beheld Mme. Debrisay, her cap slightly awry, endeavoring to drag a lace shawl from the fangs of Dandie who snarling and yelping, held on like grim death, stretching the shawl to its fullest length, and dancing backward, while she struck at him ineffectually

"Diable de bete!" she exclaimed. "Keep way from him, Mona. I believe he is away from him, Mona. I believe he is going mad."

"I believe he is only frightened and angry. Let it go, and probably he will too."

too."

Thus diverting Mme. Debrisay's attention, she relaxed her grasp. The dog gave a vigorous pull, and trotted triumphantly with the lace in his mouth—head and tail erect—into the hall, where he proceeded to tear it vehemently.

"Just look at that! The only decent thing I have to put on my shoulders when I go out. Get away with you, you cur!"—a thrust of the brush—"Call him off, Jane!"—another thrust—"Take that"—throwing the brush at him finally.

off, Jane!"—another thrust—"Take that"—throwing the brush at him finally.

This routed the foe. He jumped back, and Mona quickly snatched up the shawl.

"My beautiful Chantilly shawl," almost wept Mme. Debrisay. "I got it at a sale the last year you were with us in Paris. Thirty-five francs seventy, and it's worth two hundred! It was as good as new. I will not live in the house with such a brute! He will be tearing our eyes out next! I felt a little better after that cup of tea you brought me, so I did up my hair, and came in. Who should I see but my gentleman perched on the table where I had laid my shawl after folding it up, scratching himself—no less—in the middle of me beautiful lace. I made one dash at it, and tumbled the brute off. Instead of running away, he turned round with real bourgeois impudence—him him sets and the shawl after forched the turned round with real bourgeois impu-dence—like his master's—fastened his

"I am sure, ma'am," said the landlady, coming in, "I am that sorry—I don't know how to express it. I don't know what's in the dog. He is always trying to run up here, as if he knew it worried "I have no doubt he does," returned

Mme. Debrisay, examining her lace. "Look here! There's a tear for you! Here's another! It's just ruined."

The old common scold law had not been brought up for years, but the woman was such a nuisance that some of her nighbors, in casting about for a means of suppressing her, heard of the old law and had it enforced. The scold was imprisoned for ten days.

In a volume of the statutes of New In a volume of the statutes of New Jersey of 1833 many of these old laws can be found, and in a revision under an Act of April 4, 1871, a number of them were retained and are still on the statute books. Of these there is a law prohibiting "hunting on the Sabbath day with our or dog or in any way takprohibiting on the Sabbath ducking scolds would make it more effective. The indictment of Mrs. Charlotte P. Wood of 305 Webster avenue, Jersey City, as a comon scold has brought to the fore once again the State's old Blue Laws, which are still in force. Mrs. Wood has pleaded not guilty and is yet to be tried. If Henry Austin and others who caused her indictment succeed in proving her guilty, she will probably be put in jail for a short term or placed under bonds to be good.

The penalty for being a common scold used to be the ducking stool, but this feature of the law was repealed many years ago. Still the common scold law remains on New Jersey's statute books, as do many others of the old Blue Laws handed down by the early setlers.

In other States these old laws have all or nearly all been repealed, and a few of them have been wiped off the New Jersey statutes, but as a whole the old Blue Laws of New Jersey still exist and are at intervals enforced. A few years ago District Attorney Charles H. Winfield, of Hudson county, prosecuted and convicted a woman who lived on the Hill in Jersey City of being a common scold.

Another case remembered about the court house in Jersey City is that of Joseph Vannblarcomb, a farmer of Bergen county. He visited Jersey City frequently and was so profuse in his profanity that he gained the soubriquet of Swearing Joe.

Some years ago he was arrested, convicted—there were plenty of witnesses—and sent to jail for thirty days. But Joe promised to swear off swearing, and in some way got a mitigation of sentence after four days and went back to his farm. for that would, in many instances, bring about some very ridiculous situations. The majority of them have simply become obsolete, and are rarely enforced, and then it is only where some citizen happens to think that one of them will fit him grippens and give him reduces. fit his grievance and give him redress when everything else has failed.

JOVE AND THE PEASANT.

How to Fell a Tree Without Chop-ping It Down Yourself.

For a number of years a large dead tree had stood close to the cabin of the peasant, and a hundred times over he had vowed to cut it down and use it for firewood. He was, however, of a lazy disposition and kept shirking the and remarked the tree and added:

"It would take you a whole day to chop down that tree, and you would find the work very exhausting. Why don't you call on Jove to do it for you? One wallop from one of his thunder bolts would do the trick nicely." "By George, but I never thought of that!" exclaimed the peasant. "I will call on the old man for sure, and you "I shall be delighted to serve you." said Jove as he appeared in answer to a call. "Just give me room to swing one of these bolts and you'll see the splinters fly." The dead tree not only came down with a crash, but it fell directly upon the peasant's cabin and smashed it to

A HUNDRED BEST BOOKS

SELECTING THEM A PENCIL GAME ON A LEVEL WITH PINE PONG.

So Says the Brudtto Andrew Long in the Lendon Morning Post-Mr. James Payn's Opinion-Lord Avebury Has Revised Mis Century of Best Books-There Are No Hundred Best Books.

To select "The Best Mundred Books" is, in fact, to play at an "intellectual pencil game." The sport is on a level with ping pong, and at best may help elderly bookish people to pass a wet day in a country house. There are no Hundred Best Books. The question is relative, books good for whom, and for what purpose? Lord Avebury has revised his century (his purpose shall later be declared), and we look at the new list rather for amusement than for instruction.

Mr. James Payn, with unwonted tartness, remarked that the old list contained "admirable and varied ma-terials for the formation of a prig." terials for the formation of a prig."
The saying was unjust: prigs are born, not made, and may be the bast bookish of mankind. If, Mr. Payn meant that prigs would turn to the books in the list, not from natural interest, but because they were recommended by Lord Avebury, or Mr. Gladstone, or Lord Acton, then his saying can hardly be controverted. Mr. Payn was all for freedom of taste, and his own taste led him to spurn many of the classics. eswere any recommendation. It seems, as regards Aeschylus, to be open to choice whether we put "The Persac" or "The House of Atreus Trilogy" in our century. Yet there is a deal of difference between the literary merits of the two choices. One is much inclined to say boldly that no translation, except the English versions. even a Trilogy as it stands, if that were any recommendation. It seems, translation, except the English version of the Bible, can be one of the best books—for an English reader.
There are a hundred better books in

There are a hundred better books in English, by Britons, than any translation of the classics by an Englishman. Our guides have not even reached, the first step of deciding what "a book," why is not Aristophanes, why is not Aeschylus, why is not Someolee "a book," In the list Shakespeare is a book, but Aristophanes is day represented by one play. "The Enights"—and why "The Enights" those than any other comedy?—while Moliere speaks in as an essayist. Obviously the list as given in The Pall Hall Gasette is misprinted or misarranged. Certainly the enquirer will as easily procure the "Essays of Homer," unless a few introductions to plays Molece' as the 'Besays of Homer,' unless a few introductions to plays are intended. The inclusion of Molicre among the essayists must be a cross division of the press.

Indeed, cross divisions abound. The Koran, in Lord Avebury's epinion, is not one of the best books, it seems to him 'dry, uninteresting, and in many places repulsive.' Tet it is in the list, not because it is good, but because many persons, including millions of our fellow subjects, think it 'inspired.' Perhaps it is, the term is not easily defined, but the inspiration lacks literary merit. The 'Sheking' and 'The Analects' of Confucius do not win Lord Avebury's personal affection, but they appear pustus do not win Lord Avebury's personal affection, but they appear because the Chinese think well of them. The Yellow Peril threatens literature! If popularity be the test, why not insert the works of Hall Caine, or America's darling, "The Virginian?" To be sure, the authors are yet in our midst. The "Ramanary" and the "Mohabata" Lord are yet in our midst. The "Rama-yana" and the "Mahabharata" Lord Avebury does admire, and they are also "of great importance as words. also "of great importance as regards our great Oriental Empire." They may be, but they are of much less importance than the Rig Veda, which importance than the Rig Veda, which also includes better poetry. The same may be said for the "Kalewala" and "The Song of Roland," of which there is an excellent new American translation. Neither of these deserving epics is in the list, though one is much admired by the Finns, the other by the French, and both by every person of taste who has read them. While Moliere is "a book," Voltaire is not: he is merely represented by is not; he is merely represented by one tale. "Zadig," not even by "Candide." Why this exclusiveness? Plato's Dialogues are "a book," but "at any rate the Phaedo and Republic."

Plato is in danger of being scamped, like Voltaire, but Hesiod takes in all his opera, and in what sense these dismal poems are "the very best vine," while Theoritus has no look in at all, I cannot conjecture. Theoritus is a delightful poet; Hesiod is hardly a poet; he merely wrote verse because there was as yet no prose to write. He is useful to the mythologist, almost useless to the general reader, while Pindar, a great poet, is omitted. Tacitus is restrict-ed to the little "Germania," Tacitus the master of history and of states-men. The Annals are infinitely bet-ter than the "Sheking," but Tacitus does not count as "a book" any more than Aeschylus or Voltaire. Tennyson does count as a book, yet if ever there were case for selection that case is the late laureate's. The whole of Ruskin is recommended as whole of Ruskin is recommended as if, taken en masse, he was better than the whole of Tacitus except the "Germania," a clever but misleading tract. Sir Walter carries in his whole "fart.el of books," at least all his novels and all his poems, while Dickens and Thackeray are restricted to a brace of novels anions. while Dickens and Thackeray are restricted to a brace of novels apiece, and the Rev. Charles Kingsley stays in with "Westward Ho!" while Miss Austen is actually turned out, and what really seems incredible, Fielding, Smollett and Charlotte Bronte are not included. Conceive an English list of the Best Hundred Books. without the authors of "Tom Jones

"Hr. Bryce suggests" that Lewer "Ristory of Philosophy" should be struck out"—the marvel is that it ever got in. If "some history of philosophy" is really wanted who not losophy" is really wanted, why not take Schwegler's, which loses no graces in the process of translation, and is short enough for any burried pursuer of culture. Lucretius has been and is short enough for any hurried pursuer of culture: Lucretius has been turned out as "too difficult," while Hesiod keeps his pride of place, though too dull. For whom is a good book supposed to be "too difficulty". Lucretius is certainly one of the hundred foremost names in human literature; Kalidasa is not, nor is Mr. Smiles, nor Canon Kingsley. Livy appears en masse, and Tacitus has every reason to feel bitterly amonyed. The whole of Emerson is in, but nothing of Rabelais or of Hawthorne, a greater than Emerson.

but nothing of Rabelais or of Hawthorne, a greater than Emerson.
Nobody can say that, regarding the best as the best, Smiles should be elected, and Jane Austen, Coleridge, Keats, Fielding, Marlowe, Horace Walpole, Repys, Herrick, Lovelace, left behind Talboys Wheeler, his epitome of the Mahabharata. This century of books does not really pretend to represent the absolutely best century. Neither the Prophet of Islam, nor the Apostolic Fathers, nor the late Mr. Gren, nor Southey, nor Captain Cook, nor Soldiler in his "William Tell" were, or are believed by any sound critic to be among the hundred best of the world's authors.
Some of the enigmas are solved when best bookish of mankind. If, Mr.
Payn meant that prigs would turn to the books in the list, not from natural interest, but because they were recommended by Lord Avebury, or Mr. Gladstone, or Lord Acton, then his saying can hardly be controverted. Mr. Payn was all for freedom of taste, and his own taste led him to spurn many of the classics, especially the works of the Greek tragedians. At these, and at anything Greek in translations, Mr. Herbert Spencer alse snorted. I do not wonder at it. If you try the "Electra" of Sophocles, in Plumptre's translation, you wonder how Sophocles ever won a prize for dramatic excellence, and why Lord Avebury includes "The Oedipus Trilogy" in the Mundred Best Books. It is not even a Trilogy as it stands, if that is suited to the general reader, why is the terse and heroic Song of Ro-land unsuitable? If Medea is suitable,

Senator Wark Writes of Some Changes He

Has Seen. Hon. David Wark, the 100-year-old Senator, writes to The Montreal Witness asking that the commission recommended by the Congress of Chambers of Commerce held in Monchainers of Commerce held in Mon-treal last year be called at once to consider Canada's future.

"This," he says, "would be the strongest tie to bind the Empire to-gether. Every province and every part of the United Kingdom would no doubt send its ablest statesmen to the commission, which would adto the commission, which would advise on the great leading questions, and the commission could then be broken up into committees to settle details; and after closing their labors no time should be lost in calling the great new Parliament to enact intellaw a constitution and code for the law a constitution and code for the whole new Empire. I have thought of an Upper House, and hope to see it taken up and dealt with by some of our ablest statesmen as one of the most important questions to be set

"If the commission is called now our population will be found to con-sist largely of the descendants of the loyalists and emigrants from the British Isles and their descendants, who would all be opposed to separa-tion; but the number of new settlers tion; but the number of new settlers coming in yearly from foreign countries may soon, with those already in favor of separation, form a majority and in the near future prove very embarrassing, and those who wish to avoid this will see the necessity of prompt action. I am a firm believer that God exercises a wise providence over the affairs of this world, and in in India his widow was burned on the funeral pile, and when mothers cast their children into the Ganges. Now these acts have been put an end to. I can remember when British merchants sent their ships to Africa to bring home cargoes of men and women and sold them in the colonies to be reduced to slavery. Now an end has been put to the slave trade and slavery. I remember when a Bible could not be had almost at any price. Early in the nineteenth century a society was formed which has since been circulating Bibles in hundreds of languages. Scarcely a Christian missionary labored in any heathen land: now they are employed in thousands in many of the dark places of the earth, where they have converted savage cannibals into civilized peaceful Christians."

The Dog Has No Mechanics. In no well attested case has a dog shown any sense as to the nature of any mechanical contrivance. Dogs will learn which way a door opens, and rarely if ever do they undiscerningly close it when it is slightly ajar when they wish to pass through the opening, but I have never been able to observe or obtain evidence to show that they would pull down the latch in the way in which a cat readily learns to do Much as dogs have had to do with guns, they display no kind of interest in the arms except so far as they are tokens of sport to come. They con-nect the explosion with the capture of the game and will search for it in the direction in which the barrel was pointed. I have not, however, been able to find that they know, as they might readily do, when the weapon was loaded and when empty. They show no interest in it, such as monkeys readily display toward any mechanical contrivance to which their attention has been directed. All these negative features indicate that the mechanical side of the canine mind is en tirely undeveloped.-London Standard. FALL TERM SEPT. 5th.

Unsolicited Testimony.

Here is the unsolicited testimony of Mrs. C. A. Martin, of Granville, N.Y., concerning Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women. We have her consent to publish her letter. It reads as follows:

I feel that I should tell you what wonders Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets have done for me. I had been running down, getting thin in flesh, and losing appet le for the past year, and though docto's advice was sought and different remedies were been remedied by des were use there seemed to be no improvement. At length a friend who had received great benefit from Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets, advised me to try this remedy. I did so. In less than a week I began to see good effects. But appetite returned, my nerves began to get steady, my aches and mains began to get steady, my aches and pains began to leave me. I commenced to take on it the and I felt that I was being rapidly stored to health. At this moment I feel I am a new woman.

We want you to notice that the above letter proves our claims for Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets in two particulars. First, that they will restore health after other remedies and even physicians have failed. Mrs. Martin had tried both. Second, that improvement begins at Second, that improvement begins at once. Mrs. Martin saw good effects within a week.

If you are suffering from a run-down condition, or any weakness peculiar to your sex, you, too, can be made well and strong by these tablets.

Take them one week and note the improvement in your feelings and general health.

A Revelation in Tea.

The tea trade of the world has under gone a remarkable change in ahe past few years. Twenty years ago, practically all the tea of the world was emplied by China and Japan. About that time there appeared an insect in Ceylon which attacked the coffee tree, and in a very short time the entire coffee plantawas destroyed.

Some enterprising Scotch commenced the planting of tea, and the first shipment made to the London mar-ket brought the most extraordinary prices, they developing a quality in th cup far superior to anything ever known in tea previously. These Ceylon teas rapidly made a foothold in England, until to-day the exports to that country amount to one hundred and twenty-five pounds annually. "Salada" Tea Co. commenced their introduction in Canada and the United States, packing their teas in airtight sealed lead packets, and both their black and green teas have made wonderful progress: American tea drinkers finding this tea superior to anything they ever tasted, in either the black or green teas of China and Japan. utter absence of coloring matter in their green teas says much for their healthfulness and their delicious flavor speaks for itself.

ZAM-BUK AGAIN TRIUMPHANT.

A TORONTO MAN TELLS HOW THIS HERBAL BALM RID HIM OF SKIN DISEASE.

DROVE IT COMPLETELY FROM HIS SYSTEM.

Once again we have to report a case in which Zam-Buk, the great herbal balm which has recently come so much to the fore throughout Canala—has triumphed cover the control of the control o triumphed over skin disease. Mr. Geo. Rhinehart, of 210 Wilton avenue, To-ronto, is the grateful subject of this recent cure, and here is the story. He of doing so, it got worse. A patch of about four inches square became inflamed, then the skin broke and the he had fallen into the hands of sore mattered and discharged freely-Not only was it very unsightly, but it was very painful, too. In spite of my care it got worse, and to my great alarm, a second inflamed patch appeared on my left hand. This was followed by an outbreak on my arm, and on the calf of my leg. The pain from these patches was terrible. At times, when they got thoroughly warm they itched until I could hardly bear it. I used ointments and salves of all kinds, but got no benefit. One day I read a report in the newspaper of how a case of eczema of long standing had been cured by Zum-Buk. I had tried so many things in vain that I doubted whether Zum-Buk could cure me. My wife advised me to try it, andI did so The first few applications gave me re lief from the terrible itching, and also soothed the pain. I cleansed the wounds thoroughly once daily, and applied Zam-Buk as directed. Within a few days there was a marked improvement, and radually the wounds began to close. The discharging ceased and the skin began to grow again. Within a short time of commencing with the Zam-Buk treatment all the four wounds were not only closed up, but all the patches were covered with new, healthy skin. "I consider Zam-Buk a wonderful skin diseases as mine was, it must be a very speedy cure for cuts and slight injuries sustained in one's every day work. I shall always keep a box handy."

As Mr. Rhinehart says, Zam-Buk is good not only for eczema, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, discharging sores, barber's rash, serious skin diseases, generally, but it is a household balm. When applied to cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, sore breasts, boils, etc., it heals them in wonderfully short time. It differs from ordinary ointments in being made purely from vegetable essences, and contains no trace of the rancid fats or animal oils found in many ointments and embroca-tions. It does not contain, either, any mineral coloring matter.

Obtainable from all druggists at 50 cents a box, or post-paid from the Zam-Buk Co., Colborne street, Toronto, upon receipt of price.

The Little Admiral.

The then Captain Keppel, arriving at Spithead after four years service in the Far East, was looking forward to meetrar East, was looking forward to meeting his wife again at her father's house, only fourteen miles distant, when he received orders to go immediately to Sheerness. He was dining with the Admiral in a communication of the state Sheerness. He was dining with the Admiral in command at Portsmouth, and was to be taken on board his ship, the Dido, in the Admiral's tender. He found the master of the Dido—a man by good luck, of the same size and build—dressed him up in his cocked hat, epaulettes, and sword, taking the master's oilskin and peajacket; saw him on board the tender, duly touched his hat, and went his way. The master took the Dido 10 his way. The master took the Dido to Sheerness, and nobody was a penny the wiser or the worse. It was well said of him that "he was the bravest man who ever lived, who ought to have been turned out of the service years ago.'

in a theatre, but would shame the audience if it were seen anywhere else; or a prize fight, at an enormous price of admission, in which combatants are struggling for the gate money under a "previous understandine" and not for the promotion of "manly art;" or a football game in which the most important personage is the surgeon? Mankind is wonderfully distributed. Possibly the great majority are not for any of these spectacles, but we do not hear of them so much.

"The American Language." "The American Language."

Occasionally some foreign publications assert that there is such an unworthy thing as an "American language." Our slang phrases and our dialect stories worry them no little. So far as dialect is concerned, we have no advantage over our British brethren. They have novels written in a jargon which no one not initiated into the mysteries can understand. It is not denied that the United States have contributed many "Americanims" to the language of John Bull. We are a resourceful people, much provided in the control of the state of the control of the support of th that is not in the dictionary we do not hesi-tate to coin one. This may be a very bad taste, but we have a great country and are entitled to make occasional innovations.

Celonizing as a Business Proposition.

(Hatper's Weekly.)

In the last two years Generally's Southwest Africa has cost the German government $150,000,000 and some thousands of lives by massacres and in course of operations to subdue the natives. It seems a good deal to pay for imperfect pacification of a territory which contains no more than 5,000 European residents and of which the combined imports and exports amount to no more than $2,000,000 a year. If the nations of the world ever become sane enough to consider modern colonization as a business proposition there will be an international auction at which there will be bargains for buyers.

TORONTO MAN CURED OF BILIOUSNESS & INDIGESTION.

Bileans for Biliousness have one great distinguishing feature over ordinary medicines. They are so superior that when allments have defied other remedies Bileans are still able to effect a cure.

The following letter sent to the Company by a grateful Toronto man whom Bileans cured, will be interesting in this connection. The letter is from Mr. Frank O'Neill, of 722 Dufferin Street, Toronto, and To the Bilean Co.:

"Dear Sirs,—I wish to express my appreciation for what Bileans have done for me. I have been troubled since last June with biliousness, wind, feelings of fullness, and a dull, miserable feeling, I had headache and constipation, and was altogether run down and out of order. All the remedies I tried failed to do me any good. I tried your Bileans, and I am pleased to say they succeeded where other things had failed. They have made me well again. In gratitude for my cure I give you my full permissions the informations are not never think prometics. to use this information as you may think proper

"If anybody is desirous of really knowing how wonderfully these Bileans do act, let them write to me. I will be pleased to give them the benefit of my experience. Yours truly, Frank O'Neill.

taining mineral ingredients. The herbs of the field and the trees of the forest constitute nature's "medicine chest;" and the highest benefit which science can confer on man is the discovery of nature's medicinal balms and essences, and their preparation in form suitable for use by the people.

Bileans for Biliousness-the great Australian cure for indigestion, headache, debility, liver trouble, etc.—are purely vegetable. They are entirely different and superior to ordinary liver and stomach medicines. It is well known that liver medicines hitherto in use mostly contain bismuth, mercury, and other harmful mineral products, and rely upon these ingredients for their temporary effects. These mineral constituents are very injurious if taken for long, and produce such effects as that of loosening the teeth, causing the hair to fall out, etc.- Bileans are entirely superior. They are compounded from extracts and juices of the finest known medicinal plants. In taking them there is no fear whatever of any harmful secondary effects. They cure that which they are taken to cure, and do not leave behind them evils worse than the original ones. They do not merely purge and weaken, like the old-fashioned medicines, or do the work which the liver and stomach should do. They tone up and enable these organs to fulfil their proper functions, so that when a cure is effected and Bileans are left off, the organs remain strong and healthy. Users of Bileans need therefore never fear their use will lead to the contracting of the terrible "pill-taking" habit.
