Do you suffer from Indigestion

Indigestion is largely due to a debilitated condition of the stomach. In this condition the stomach is unable to digest food—this is, extract the nutriment from it. Therefore, the food lays in the stomach and ferments, causing pains, fullness and heartburn. You almost dread mealtimes because of those terrible indigestion pains afterwards.

But—try taking a winglassful of "Wingarnis"—a quarter of an hour before meals. You will find that "Wingarnis" will give a "tone" and a vigour to the stomach and enable it to perform its functions in a natural manner. Don't continue to suffer needlessly. Take "Wingarnis" to-day. Will you try just one bottle?

Begin to get well FREE.

"Wingarnis" is made in England, and you can obtain a liberal free trial bottle—no more tax, but enough to do you good by sending 5 cents stamps (no pay postage) to COLEMAN & CO., Ltd., Wingarnis Works, Norwich. Regular supplies can be obtained from all leading Grocers, Chemists, and Wine Merchants.

CHAPTER X.

He bit his lip and hesitated; he could not tell her that he had promised Tibby not to come; then a genuine excuse came to his aid.

"I'm sorry," he said; "but I have to attend a committee meeting at the place we have just left. I quite forgot it! I must hurry back. I will go with you as far as the corner."

"There is no need," she said, and now the brightness had gone out of her voice and face, and her eyes were downcast. But he walked beside her to the corner and there stopped and looked at her as he held her hand. The question that rose to his lips was: "When can I see you again?" but he could not put it.

"Good-night," he said; and she must have caught the wistfulness of his tone, for she raised her eyes and looked at him with an answering wistfulness.

"Good night—and thank you, once more," she whispered, and went on her way.

Though she did not glance back she knew that he was waiting and watching her, guarding her; but presently as she reached the entrance to the Rents she heard his retreating footsteps, and they echoed sadly in her heart.

She was entering the house when suddenly she became conscious of a feeling of loss, and awoke to the fact that her books were not under her arm. She stopped aghast, and remembered that she had put them on the window-ledge in the hall, near which she had been standing. Without her books she could not do her "preparation" for the next day's class. She thought for a moment in poignant distress, then she turned quickly and ran in the direction of the hall. She feared that the place would be closed, but she found one of the doors open, and entered.

The hall itself was in darkness, but a light came from the transom over the door leading out of it into a small room in which some persons were speaking, and, half-guided by this light and half-feeling her way, she reached the spot where she had been standing.

Her beloved books were still there, and clasping them with a sense of relief and thanksgiving, she turned to go; but at that moment the door opened and Clive came out. Behind him, within the room, she saw several men, among them the unwashed foreigner, Koshki. Clive was looking grave and rather angry, and as Koshki made way for him to pass the crowd, the Pole said sullenly:

"Zen that ish your last vord, my fren?"

"Absolutely my last word," said Clive sternly. "Not only will I have nothing to do with your proceedings, but if I hear any more of such a proposal as that you have made, Mr. Koshki, I shall feel it my duty to denounce the scoundrels who contemplate this villainy to the proper authorities."

"Ze! You threaten!" snarled Koshki, with a sneer.

"If you like to put it so, yes," returned Clive. "Good night."

Mina drew back trembling; and in the darkness he passed her quite closely and went out. She waited for a moment or two, then was stealing toward the door when she heard, above the angry murmuring in the other room, Koshi's guttural voice exclaiming angrily:

"Bah! You leave this vine aristocrat to me. I will take ze charge of him. He call me scoundrel! Me, Koshki, the patriot of Warsaw! Leave him to me, my bruzers. I will show him zat we are not vorns for him to tread on; and if we are, zat vorns will turn. Scoundrel! No man called Koshki scoundrel vizout paying for it. Hein! We shall see!"

With a throbbing heart, Mina listened, half-turned to fly, then she heard a movement in the room as if the men were coming out, and she fled.

CHAPTER XI.

Mina ran to the end of the street, but when she had got round the corner she stopped, and, breathing hard with her hand pressed to her bosom, looked about her anxiously. If she could only see Mr. Clive and warn him! But Clive was, of course, not in sight; and weighed down by apprehension she went homeward.

Her first impulse was to tell Elisha of all she had heard; but she reflected that, as he did not know Mr. Clive's address, he could not warn him, could not help him. She had read of the outrages perpetrated by the foreign anarchists, and, half-distracted by terror, she pictured her hero and benefactor maimed and bleeding, even done to death by the scoundrels who were plotting in that inner room.

She knew that he was not afraid, and that in his contempt of danger lay the peril which threatened him. And she was powerless to help, to save him. She thought of the police; but she was afraid that Mr. Clive would be angry with her if she went to them and told them all she had heard; and, besides, it would be easy for the scoundrels to evade them, to lay in wait for their victim and deal the deadly blow. They had but to throw a bomb, to stab or fell him as he passed through the streets.

"There is something the matter, I can see," he said gently. He looked round. "Come into this quiet street and tell me. How lucky it is you happened to see me. Were you coming to my rooms?"

"No," she said simply. "I didn't know where you lived; it was chance and my good luck."

"And mine," he said in the same gentle, protecting tone. "Now tell me, Mina," as they turned out of the noisy thoroughfare into the quiet street. "You are upset, frightened—yes, frightened. Has any one—"

His face grew stern, as it had done on the night he had struck out and saved her from the hooligans.

"No, no!" she said in a low voice that still trembled. "It is not that; but you—"

"Me?" he said, with surprise.

"Yes," she said, and, at first brokenly, falteringly, but presently, as she got into her recital and again realized his danger, anxiously and earnestly, she told him of all she had heard in the working man's hall.

Clive listened in silence; he had taken her hand in his own to soothe and encourage her; and he still kept it and patted it reassuringly when she paused with emotion or for want of breath, and it seemed to her, with her natural instincts quickened by her recent culture, that he was scarcely listening to her fears, that he was thinking of something else.

"And that is what has been troubling you, sent you in search of me, Mina?" he said. "My poor child! Yes, you must have been frightened by those bouncers, but there was no need for your alarm on my account."

"No need!" she echoed, opening her eyes on him. "Oh, you didn't hear them!"

"I shouldn't have been impressed if I had," he said. "No, Mina, I'm in no danger, I assure you. You'll believe me, will you not? The men you overheard are a miserable kind of scoundrels, and deal in threats of that sort as the grocer there deals in eggs and bacon. They are the sort of curs that are fond of barking; but they're afraid to bite, in case they should get kicked. They talk dynamite and outrage; but they don't care to run any risks. So I'm quite safe, quite."

She drew a long breath of relief; but there was still doubt in the eyes upturned to him.

"You are not saying so to—humor me?" she asked in a low voice.

He was walking quickly, with a preoccupied air, and she shrank into a doorway, too nervous and shy to attract his attention now that he had come upon her suddenly; and he passed her. She fought for calmness, self-possession, then walked after him; but Clive had gained the main thoroughfare and was looking for a bus before he heard her panting cry of: "Oh, stop!"

as he stood before her in all his strength, steadily and yet calmly, protectingly regarding her, the danger seemed to grow less, and she was half-ashamed of stopping him.

"No, no!" she said simply. "I didn't know where you lived; it was chance and my good luck."

"And mine," he said in the same gentle, protecting tone. "Now tell me, Mina," as they turned out of the noisy thoroughfare into the quiet street. "You are upset, frightened—yes, frightened. Has any one—"

He was walking quickly, with a preoccupied air, and she shrank into a doorway, too nervous and shy to attract his attention now that he had come upon her suddenly; and he passed her. She fought for calmness, self-possession, then walked after him; but Clive had gained the main thoroughfare and was looking for a bus before he heard her panting cry of: "Oh, stop!"

He met her eyes for a moment, and shook his head. He could not for a moment trust himself to speak with those innocent, anxious eyes on his.

"No, Mina, it's the simple truth. But—but you cared so much, you were so afraid on my account that you tried to find me, to warn me?"

"Yes," she said gravely, simply, without a blush, her gaze still fixed on his face. "I was so afraid. I am still afraid, a little; because you are so strong that you may not understand, may make light of it; you did not hear that man—that one they called Koshki—"

She stopped and shuddered.

"You cared so much!" he said rather to himself than to her. "You were searching the streets for me, and you were trembling with fear, anxiety; you are pale still."

"I won't be afraid any longer, if—if you will promise to be careful, to be on your guard," she said pleadingly.

He nodded. He was scarcely listening to her; as usual, it was her voice to which he listened rather than her words. He glanced at the slight, girlish figure at his side; what a child she still was, though the dawning loveliness of womanhood was in her face, glowing in her eyes.

"I promise," he said absently.

She stopped at once. "I will go now. Thank you for—for listening to me. I thought you might laugh, be angry—"

"Angry!" Something rose in his throat, and his eyes grew infinitely tender. "Sparely not angry, Mina! Wait—wait a moment."

She stopped obediently as she was turning away, and he stood battling with the overwhelming desire to detain her, to keep her with him for a few minutes longer. They had reached the Chelsea Embankment, and a little farther down loomed the Grecian facade of the Tate Gallery.

"You are tired, out of breath still, with hurrying," he said. "Let us go into the gallery and rest for a little while, shall we?"

She did not hesitate for a moment; but nodded, as a child might have done.

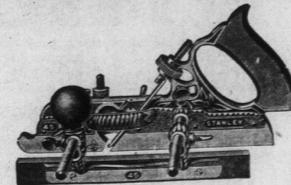

"What is it?" she asked as they passed in.

"A picture-gallery. Are you fond of pictures?"

"Oh, yes!" she responded promptly. "I've been to the National Gallery and to the one in the city. Oh, yes! But—quickly, apprehensively—"can you spare the time? Weren't you going somewhere? You seemed in a hurry, as if you were on business."

Relief is Almost Unfailing from Even the First Application.

RUB ON NERVILINE.

Cold has a vicious way of finding out aching muscles or weak joints. How often pain settles in the back, causing inflammation and excruciating soreness. Stiffness and aching all over follows.

An application of Nerviline at the start gives immediate relief and prevents worse trouble.

When the pain is very acute, Nerviline has a chance to show its wonderful penetrating and pain-subduing power. It strikes in deeply, and its strike-in-deep quality proves its superiority to feeble remedies. Then this goodness is magnified by its strength, easily five times greater than most liniments.

Surely so powerful and curative a liniment as Nerviline offers perfect security against pain.

Nerviline is the only guaranteed pain remedy sold in Canada. Forty years of success in many countries warrants its manufacturers saying: If it does not relieve, get your money back.

No curable pain, not even neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism can resist the magic power of Nerviline. Try it to-day. Rub it on your tired back, let it ease your sore muscles, let it take the swelling and stiffness out of your joints. It's a marvel—thousands say so that use Nerviline.

Scientific Cure For Eczema.

New Discovery—Thousands Find Relief.

No scientific discovery in recent years has attracted such wide-spread attention among physicians in this country and throughout Canada as the wonderful D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema.

After years of debate, medical authorities are now agreed that eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood but are caused by myriads of microscopic germs gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in-liquid form in order to penetrate properly. The true remedy has been discovered in D. D. D. Prescription. The instant you wash with this cleansing, soothing liquid, you will find the itch gone. Simple to use, absolutely harmless to the most sensitive skin. D. D. D. Prescription is the most scientific and efficient remedy known for Eczema in all its forms, Bad Leg, Pimples, Scalp Troubles, Open Sores and Itching Rashers, Salt Rheum, and Ring Worm; and all other skin troubles yield to D. D. D. The first bottle will prove it. Stop that itch now: get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold everywhere.

ABSENCE OF NEWS FROM BRITISH FRONT.

Importers Discuss Closing Hours.

A meeting of the Importers' Association was held at the Board of Trade Rooms yesterday afternoon, Hon. Geo. Knowling, presiding. It was decided that the stores will not open at night during the month of October, and that arrangements for next month be made at a meeting to be held on the 23rd inst. The question of closing the stores during meal hours was also introduced and after considerable discussion the matter was deferred for further consideration.

Another Operation Needed.

Mr. Geo. Day, of Marine and Fisheries Department, who underwent two operations at the General Hospital and had part of his leg amputated and who spent the past two months in Little Bay for the benefit of his health, returned to the city yesterday. Mr. Day expects to go back to hospital again to have another operation performed.

Good Words From Ottawa.

The report just published by the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, states that Dearborn's "Perfect" Baking Powder contained 13.7 per cent. of carbonic acid gas, which is a higher percentage than claimed for it. The report also states that "this is a good powder," pure and unadulterated. Don't pay fancy prices for baking powder when you can get the "Perfect" for 40c. per lb. Two teaspoons full will do the same work as three of other brands, and do it better. oct. 21

EXPRESSES ASTONISHMENT.

The Berlin official world expressed astonishment at the speech of Sir Edward Grey regarding the Balkans, says the Overseas News Agency to-day, because it is considered he employed clumsy means of influencing the Balkan States when he declared that Germany desired to subjugate them. Such a statement is regarded as all the more surprising since England is the ally of Russia, and apparently had already promised that Russia should have possession of the Dardanelles. As a matter of fact it is pointed out here, no great power has more interest than Germany in seeing the Balkan States maintain complete independence.

GERMAN INFLUENCE.

LONDON, Oct. 1. A despatch to Reuters' from Athens says: Latest advices from Sofia Bulgaria, point to German influence gaining ground daily. It is naturally concluded that chances of maintaining peace in the Balkans are remote.

Two Thousand Pounds For a Greyhound.

A very successful cat fancier bought his first Tom for a two-shilling piece, the American's "half-dollar." He has since won trophies innumerable and makes a handsome living by breeding show-cats. That 2s. has brought fabulous interest. Several of his kittens have fetched £50, and he has more than once refused £200 for a fine full-grown prize winner. Canaries are not to be despised as pets of value and as good investments if the purchaser knows what's what. Seventy pounds is probably the outside price for one of the queens—or rather, kings of song. Some time ago £20 was refused for a canary only four months old, and £5 is actually a minimum price for the real article.

A Nurse Should be Quite Independent.

A nurse should never have to rely upon help from the servants or from the mistress of the house, for her duties are always immediate and urgent, and much of her work must be done after the household as a whole has retired. If she is provided with modern gas appliances she will be independent of all outside help and can do her work efficiently without any undue labour.

A Gas Fire needs practically no attention, and saves all grate-cleaning, fire-laying, coal-carrying and replenishing.

A Gas Water Heater gives abundant hot water at the shortest notice at any hour of the day or night. An inverted incandescent Gas mantle gives a steady brilliant light that is most restful to the eyes of the patient.

A Gas Cooker needs no preparation, provides heat for several purposes at once, and can easily be installed in a room near the sick room.

In all long cases especially gas appliances are essential for good nursing.

Doctors recommend and use Gas Fires.

Census Returns.

This morning we received from the Colonial Secretary a volume, just issued, containing data about Church Buildings, Superior and Board Schools, Charitable and other Institutions and occupied land in Newfoundland and Labrador. Details of these matters are given in each Electoral District and on the Labrador. There is also a summary as regards the electoral districts of the Island of Newfoundland, and also a general recapitulation of the whole, including and excluding the Labrador.

As regards Newfoundland there are 663 church buildings valued at $3,151,223, with 142,363 seats, and on the Labrador 19 church buildings. During the decade the number of church buildings has increased by 153, for in 1901 they numbered 510. School buildings shows an increase of 215. In Newfoundland in 1911 there were there were 878 school buildings. These schools contain 1129 rooms and are valued at $872,046. They are attended by 55,714 pupils, who are taught by 365 male and 843 female teachers. On the Labrador there are 20 schools, attended by 725 pupils, taught by 13 teachers. In charitable institutions in Newfoundland there are 682 male inmates and 537 female. On the Labrador there are 9 inmates of each sex. No comparison is given with the number of such inmates ten years ago.

Turning now to dwelling houses in Newfoundland and Labrador we find 45,852 houses as against 39,401 ten years ago, and these are inhabited by about 6,000 more families. In 1911 the number of females is given as 49,178 as against 43,108 in 1901. In the decade under review, the number of barns, stables, etc., increased from 46,243 to 58,621; factory buildings from 262 to 466; business premises from 976 to 1,337; fishing rooms from 11,276 to 13,163, and cold storage buildings from 0 to 34. The agriculture products on the whole show little or no improvement in the decade.

Change in Program of Lectures.

Dr. Geisel begs to announce that, in consequence of damage sustained by material, which she required to illustrate her lecture "Conversation of the Child," advertised for to-night, she has been obliged to change her subject. However she hopes to have the damage repaired in a day or two, and will deliver the lecture at some future date. The subject which the Doctor has chosen for to-night is "Experiments performed personally at St. Petersburg, Russia, under Professor Pawlow." These experiments deal with the digestion, and because dyspepsia undermines the foundations of the body, the Doctor thinks it well worth while to give the lesson. Together with several other important experiments which the Doctor will thoroughly review to-night are, firstly an experiment dealing with the "Appetite Juices"—the "Appetite juices" simply meaning effective digestive juices; and secondly an important experiment with the "Mastication of Food."

W. C. T. U.

A very successful prohibition meeting was held in the school hall, Bay Bulls Road, on Thursday evening last. The women of St. Matthew's Church had tastefully decorated the hall with flowers and autumn leaves and the word "Welcome" greeted the eyes of the visitors as they entered the building. The meeting was presided over by Mr. I. C. Morris, and was addressed by Messrs. P. G. Butler and Chafe of Petty Harbour. The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Howland, who has delighted and inspired those who have had the privilege of hearing her speak on the great temperance question. The keynote of her remarks was the responsibility of the voter and urged all present to remember this on the 4th of November. Reference was made to a man who declared he had five strong arguments in favor of prohibition. These were his three sons and two daughters. A stirring address was afterwards given by Mr. Henry Cowan, of Brookfield. The absence of Rev. Mr. Uphill was regretted by all, but the deputations was nobly supported by the women of the place. The workers deeply appreciate the generosity of Mrs. Kenneth Pearce and Miss Ruby for providing refreshments after the meeting.

Borrowing $12,000.

At the City Council meeting last night the Chairman reported that he had arranged to borrow $12,000 from the Royal Bank to continue the work of water extension this Fall. The work of laying the pipes had been carried further than was expected this year and well within the estimated cost. The Engineer was instructed to complete and make effective as soon as possible the part that has been laid and to lay the pipe on Duckworth Street east if possible.

The Danish steamer Nordboen, which came here to have her deck load of lumber re-stowed, also resumes the voyage this evening. She is bound to London.

Dr. Geisel's Lectures.

Dr. Carolyn Geisel lectured to large audiences at the Casino yesterday afternoon and night. Rev. Canon White presided at the afternoon lecture, and the subject of the discourse was the "Study of Blood." Dr. Geisel treated her subject in a most interesting and instructive manner. She showed how the efficiency of the blood was lowered, and explained clearly the work of the white corpuscles that assist us in combating disease. She showed how the work of these corpuscles was hindered by improper ventilation and an insufficient supply of drinking water. Dr. Geisel emphasized the necessity of drinking plenty of pure water to help in flushing the intestines, and stated that four and a half pints of water should be drunk daily to keep the blood in proper condition. Iron salts which are necessary for the making of red corpuscles, which distribute the oxygen of the lung to every minute tissue of the body, will be found in fruits, vegetables and grains, particularly spinach and greens. Potatoes should be used largely as they contain potato salts needed by the body. At 8.30 p.m. Dr. Geisel lectured on "Race Betterment" to another crowded hall. In the absence of His Excellency the Governor, Sir W. H. Horwood, the Chief Justice, presided. The learned lecturer in an eloquent manner showed that according to statistics the race was deteriorating mentally and physically, and that the growing of crops, raising of live stock and financing had been improved and uplifted by man. Dr. Geisel pointed out that the betterment of the race devolved upon woman. Imbecility, degeneracy and criminality are to-day on the increase, principally because women has been spoiled by pleasure and has not given serious consideration to her God-ordained duty. The world to-day, said Dr. Geisel, has more need of old-time women than of those with the ballot in hand. Laws have been adopted for progress along material lines, and laws should also be instituted for the betterment of the home. Home making, as it applies to the raising of healthy and sturdy men and women, should be taught by law, if necessary. Vitality and knowledge of motherhood is essential to the building up of a hardy and sturdy race, and it is a deplorable fact how few mothers know the proper food to give their children. Mothers should be taught food values, and should be instructed in the use of nutritious, rather than appetizing and fancifully prepared foods, plenty of fresh air and exercise. In attempting Race Betterment, said Dr. Geisel, we must now remove all things likely to injure the next generation, and amongst the most malicious of these is alcohol. A vote of thanks, proposed by Rev. Mr. Barton was accorded the lecturer by acclamation. At 9 o'clock this afternoon Dr. Geisel will lecture to women only and at 8.30 to-night the subject will be "The Consecration of the Child." At 3 p.m. to-morrow the address will be for men only and His Lordship Bishop Jones will preside.

At the City Hall.

The Chairman, Messrs. Macnamara, Mradshaw, Mullaly, McGrath, Morris, Anderson and Withers were present at last night's meeting of the Civic Commission.

The Manager of the Royal Bank of Canada wrote informing the Board that the loan of $12,000 guaranteed by the Government for water extension had been negotiated at 6 per cent.
Morison & Hunt, on behalf of Mr. Falconer, who is building in Ordinance Street, wrote asking that the street had been given their attention. An arrangement is being made between the parties concerned.

J. M. Kent for the Commercial Cable Co. wrote re the rights of his clients as regards the opening of streets in which cables are laid when repairs are necessary. The Secretary will furnish the city regulations dealing with this matter.

J. P. Blackwood for his client complained of the condition of Pleasant Street, near his client's property. The matter was referred to the Sanitary Supervisor.

A resident of Pennywell Road asked that a light be placed at the junction of that street and Hook's Lane. It will be considered when the estimates are being made.

W. J. Horwood wrote informing the Board that he is prepared to pay part of the cost of laying water and sewerage in LeMarchant Road, McLoughlin's property.

T. McMurdo & Co. complained of street sweeping being piled in front of their store on Water Street. The happening could not be avoided, and steps will be taken to prevent its recurrence.

Plans of proposed dwelling for J. J. Tucker, Central Street, were approved, as were also plans for proposed dwelling for W. Ring, Pleasant Street, both subject to the direction of the Engineer.

Edward Whitten applied for permission to erect a poultry house on Hamilton Street.

Engineer Holden reported that an erection was being put up off Hamilton Avenue without permission. A letter and plan from the owner who pleaded ignorance of the law was received and the matter was referred to the Engineer.

With the adoption of reports from the various departments and the passing of pay rolls the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

On her last cruise the trawler picked up and brought to port a crew who had been on a raft 60 hours, after their ship had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. Bert says he enjoys the life of a British sailor, even though it is very dangerous. He is in the best of health and wishes to be remembered to his many friends, especially true printers amongst whom he was very popular.

GOOD WEATHER.
Just think of all the handsome weather we've had since weather was designed! We've often had ten days together of climate smooth as one could find. Nine-tenths of all our days are a re-bully, with sunshine scattered everywhere; then comes a day that's wild and woolly, and how we groan and paw the air! "This climate surely is the limit," thus are our vain repinings voiced; "the fog's so thick a man could skim it, the rain is always damp or moist. In winter, when we need hot weather, they send all kinds of snow and sleet; in summer, when we pray together for snow, they send us sizzling heat." The weather bureau couldn't hand us a climate that we'd all indorse; we'd say, "This sort of thing will land us out in 'the boneyard,' 'neath the gorse." On tropic isles no doubt the heathen complain of skies too blue and fair; they'd move up north and start to breathe in the fresh and crisp Alaska air. And 'mid the bleak Alaska mountains the natives say they'd give a dime, if they could go where sparkling fountains are squirting in a sunny clime.

Bert Gaulton on a Mine Sweeper.

Naval Reservist Bert Gaulton, who left here with the second contingent last year, is now attached to a trawler, engaged mine sweeping on the Irish Coast. Letters and post cards had been received from him a few days ago by his parents. He wrote from Lough Swilly, Ireland, where he was then staying while his trawler was undergoing slight repairs at Londonderry. He celebrated his 20th birthday at sea recently. On her last cruise the trawler picked up and brought to port a crew who had been on a raft 60 hours, after their ship had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. Bert says he enjoys the life of a British sailor, even though it is very dangerous. He is in the best of health and wishes to be remembered to his many friends, especially true printers amongst whom he was very popular.

424th Day of the War TO-DAY'S Messages.

11.00 A.M.

READY TO AID SERBIA AND GREECE AGAINST BULGARIA.

PARIS, To-day. The Temps announces that France and Britain have already taken military measures to defend Serbia and Greece against Bulgarian aggression. The Temps does not indicate that armed steps have been taken by the Allies, nor is anything official available, respecting their military dispositions. It is presumed in military circles here, however, that a formal expedition will land either at Kavala or Saloniki, or that it already may be landing. The indications are that Italy and Russia are co-operating with France and Britain in execution of this joint movement, although the actual military forces will probably be drawn from Britain and France and that the Italians will lend aid in the Mediterranean, and the Russians on the Black Sea front. The Allied movement is said here to be designed to insure an agreement said to have been effected between Bulgaria and the Teutonic allies under which Bulgaria will act against Serbia before October 15th. It is understood that Britain felt disposed to await the result of this eventuality, but French diplomacy favored an immediate initiative, for the purpose of overcoming any Bulgarian menace to Serbia, before it could be put into effect. The minister of one of the Balkan States said to-day that Bulgaria never replied to the joint note of the Triple Entente Allies, submitting Serbia's concessions to Bulgaria with regard to Macedonia. Instead of replying, this minister said, Bulgaria ordered the mobilization within a few days after she received the Allies' joint note. This mobilization, in the opinion of the minister, was itself an adverse reply and expressed the belief that Bulgaria did not intend to make any further answer. The Allies, the minister said, considered two courses open to the Allies: First, a peremptory ultimatum to Bulgaria to demobilize immediately; and second, a military expedition to safeguard Serbia, before Bulgaria's project could be carried into execution on October 15. There are indications in Paris that both these moves are under way or in contemplation, and the Temps' definite announcement appears to assure an early execution of the expeditionary move.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. The belief that Bulgaria has taken sides with the Central Powers and Turkey, and that the Anglo-French and Russian troops will assist the times as large, while in many cases there have been vast increases in American exports, compared with decreases of those from the United Kingdom. The Note which is a response to the British Ambassador's report in reference to an unfavorable impression created here by reports of increases of British trade with Northern European countries since the war began, and suggests also the statements concerning Britain's policy have been inspired by German agents.

ABANDONED HOPE OF AVERTING WAR WITH BULGARIA.

LONDON, To-day. The hope expressed yesterday that war in the Balkans might be averted has virtually been abandoned, according to the belief expressed in official quarters. The statement made by Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary, this afternoon, concerning rumors that Austro-German officers have arrived in Bulgaria, just as they did before Turkey threw in her lot with the Germanic allies, is taken by officials to mean that Bulgaria too has definitely decided to join them. Such a move by Bulgaria would result in the Entente allies being called upon to keep their promise to support with all the means in their power those Balkan States which remain friendly to them, who are menaced by the threatened Bulgarian aggression. Athens never had much confidence in Bulgaria and the assurance that Bulgaria's mobilization was quite recent is taken to mean that Bulgaria too has definitely decided to join them. There is nothing to indicate the attitude of Roumania, but it has been taken for granted that her friendship for Italy and France assured her continued support in the cause of the Entente Allies. The question now arises as to what assistance the Entente Allies could give Greece and Serbia. It is suggested an agreement be made with Greece that for every soldier sent by her to help Serbia, the Allies would land a soldier and equipment at Saloniki to protect Greek territory to the South when the time comes to march against Bulgaria. It is probable that this would be only one of the steps taken against Bulgaria, should her attitude continue the provocation which officials now consider it to be, despite the fact that a large majority of people in that country are believed to be still friendly to the Entente allies, and especially to Russia and England.

1.15 P.M.

TORRENTIAL RAINS INTERFERED WITH OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, To-day. British headquarters in France reports that torrential rains and cold biting winds on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were unfortunately both North to South. Italy is also showing signs of renewed activity and commenced an offensive along Isonzo River, particularly against the important Austrian position of Tolmino. Nothing has been heard of the much talked of Austro-German offensive against Serbia, one of the operations in the Gallipoli Peninsula.

DROPPED BOMBS ON SERBIAN HEADQUARTERS.

NISH, Serbia, To-day. Kragujevatz, where the Crown Prince Alexander and the Serbian army staff have headquarters, was bombed yesterday by Austro-German aeroplanes. The Crown Prince was uninjured. Kragujevatz which is 50 miles south east of Belgrade has an arsenal and manufactures for arms and ammunition.

TREATING PROHIBITED IN LONDON.

LONDON, To-day. A formal order, declaring London and surrounding districts, to be an area under the Defence of the Realm Act, in which the practice of treating is prohibited, and further dilution of spirits allowed, was issued to-night. No order is made, regarding the hours of opening and closing public houses. The measure becomes effective on October 11.

GREY DISPELLED FALSE ACCUSATION.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Britain's answer to the reports widely circulated in this country that she has been interfering with the legitimate trade of the United States with neutral European nations for the benefit of her own exports, was given in a Note, handed to Ambassador Page, in London, by Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Minister, and made public here last night by the State Department. The data and figures quoted at length prove that where British exports and re-exports have increased, the growth of a similar trade from the United States has been many PARIS, To-day. An officer attached to the British staff, who returned to Paris to-day, states that the Prince of Wales had a miraculous escape from death during the battle of Loos. While he was standing on the hill a big shell fell on the automobile, destroying the car and blowing the driver to pieces.

Amusements.

SEE THE CRESCENT ADVERTISEMENT.

See the regular advertisement in another part of this paper for particulars of the big picture show the Crescent Picture Palace has on to-day, this is no doubt one of the best programmes the Crescent has ever shown, every picture complete in itself and every one a feature. On Monday a great modern society drama, "The Bitter Lesson" will be the attraction, this drama is produced in two reels and attracted large audiences in the big theatres of America. Coming, Charles Reade's great story, "Peg Woffington."

WONDERFUL DRAMA IS "WHITE GODDESS."

The programme at the Nickel Theatre yesterday attracted large audiences during the afternoon and evening. The great attraction was of course the feature film in three acts entitled, "The White Goddess." It is a startling story and it was acted in a manner which impressed all. The acting of the well known stage artist, Alice Joyce was easily the best she has ever given. Those who were not able to see this picture last evening should see it to-day. Subjects of this class are not seen at the movies often, consequently all should go to-day. "The Hazards of Helen" was specially good last night also. This evening the full programme will be repeated.

ROSSLEY'S EAST END THEATRE.

At Rossley's East End Theatre on Monday will be produced the great photo-play "Madame Sans Gêne" with Madame Riane, the distinguished French actress in the leading part. In certain parts Madame Riane has no peer in the world and in Sans Gêne she has a character to delineate which suits her fervid temperament exactly. Mr. Ian MacKenzie an established favourite with St. John's audiences is received with great enthusiasm. Miss Rix Guerin in her songs displays great vocal ability and Mr. William Wallace has not been long in convincing his hearers that he is an accomplished violinist. The competition last night was an unequalled success and this evening will be enjoyed by an excellent house. Mr. Rossley has brought from New York Mr. Dan Roche, a gifted and versatile artist, he is a good singer, sketch artist and capable pianist.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The pinnacle of picture programmes was reached yesterday at the British Theatre when the great photo-play, "The Treason of Henry" was shown along with the other most excellent subjects among which may be mentioned a beautiful drama entitled, "The Heart Punch" in which Jess Willard the world's champion boxer is the principal. The much praised cannot be bestowed upon the "Treason of Henry" it is a picture among pictures, every detail was brought out and the picture was seen at its absolute best. This photo-play was delayed in transit and should have been here three weeks ago, however it only arrived yesterday hence the delay in advertising. The picture will be shown to-day at 3.15, 4.15, 8.10 and 8.45 thus giving every body a chance to see it. Patrons will be pleased to hear that the great local favorite Mr. John L. Slattery will sing to-night. On Monday a splendid bill will be offered including a big war feature.

Mrs. John Heater and her daughter Nellie are leaving next week for St. John's, where they will join Mr. Heater, who is employed at his trade, that of cooper.

Several of our townspeople are having their houses and business places painted up. Others are arranging to follow suit, and in time when we celebrate England's victory over the Germans this old town will look second to none, no not even St. John's.

Two young people who are working in the same business establishment here and who were sparking for a couple of years now pass by without speaking. But that is not all. A day or so ago when both their tempers were up to a pearly white, he presented her with a ring, the present to the shop and returned it to the young man. He seized it at once and flung it through the third story window, it breaking in fragments as it fell to the sidewalk. There will no doubt be many souvenirs of England's present war, but your correspondent holds that the most valuable of this dish as a souvenir of this love war.

The shop of Mr. E. E. Parsons has just been repaired by Messrs. Walsh and Carson, contractors. The shop has now a very pretty and attractive front, and is a standing advertisement as to the good workmanship of the contractors. Mr. Parsons has now one of the prettiest shops in town.

How We Hate To!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"What is the answer to problem 281?" is a typical example of the kind of question a school book publisher often receives.

Now this man publishes "Tens of arithmetics, algebras and geometries, and the question might refer to any one of them. Naturally it is impossible to answer the question until a stenographer has corresponded with the questioner and found out in what book her particular problem No. 281 is printed.

"I suppose they think their book is the only one the firm gets out," was the good-natured explanation of one commentator.

"Think! They don't ever do that. If they did, they would know better. That's just what the trouble is," was the less kindly comment of another.

Not because we don't know any better.

It is astonishing, isn't it, how often we say and do foolish things, not because we don't know any better, but because we don't think any better.

I was talking the other day with the postmaster of a summer resort at which a number of people considered themselves at least to be of rather more than average intelligence spend their summers. He held up a post card. It was stamped but not addressed. "Isn't a day passes," he said, "that I don't haul something like that out of the mail. Sometimes they're stamped and not addressed and sometimes they're addressed and not stamped, and sometimes they're neither. And then again, they're addressed to this post office instead of the place they're meant for. Beats all how people that look intelligent can do such foolish things."

The Poor Elevator Man.
The other day I stood in an elevator waiting for it to start. The elevator man was chanting in a loud clear voice, "Stops at all floors from first to fifth." A woman paused in the doorway. "Does this stop at the third floor?" she asked.

"Someone has said 'Thinking is just what nobody wishes to do,'" says Doru Melegaria. "These words hold the explanation of the insufficiency and mediocrity of human existence, for truly nobody wants to reflect. How many, even intelligent men and women, live without ever performing this function?"

With My Letter Friends
Question—Do cards of invitation to an At Home require an answer of acceptance? I have not been accustomed to that form of invitation and do not know the correct thing to do.—A Country Subscriber.

Answer—An At Home card in a wedding invitation requires no acknowledgment outside the reply to the invitation. A separate At Home card should be acknowledged either by appearing at the At Home or if you cannot go by sending your card on the day of the At Home. Send as many cards as there are hostesses. For instance, if one woman gives the function for another send two cards.

Allied Army Ready To Strike Bulgaria

London, Sept. 26.—Into the midst of the tangle of uncertainty, which has made up the Balkan situation since the news that Bulgaria is mobilizing her army perhaps to aid the central empires, comes a wireless despatch from Berlin, from the semi-official Overseas News Agency, announcing that a new army of 110,000 men had arrived at the Isle of Lemnos in the Mediterranean, the base of the Allied Expeditionary force at the Dardanelles.

The German despatch assumed that these troops were designed to second a new and desperate effort to forestall the expected German drive through the Balkans, by forcing the Dardanelles and seizing Constantinople before help could arrive.

In military circles here, however, considerably more varied possibilities are seen in the report in view of the fact that this new army is said to be held at Lemnos.

The island of Lemnos is situated practically at the strategic centre of the Aegean Sea. Its harbor at Mudros has been the base for the entire allied fleet for many months. It is forty-five miles from the Dardanelles, but it is only fifty miles from the chief Bulgarian port at Dedegatch, and only 100 miles from Saloniki, from which the railroad leads directly through Uskub and Nish to Belgrade.

An army of 110,000 men at Lemnos could speedily be thrown ashore at the Dardanelles, be landed near Ornos on the Bulgarian-Turk frontier, or, in the not improbable event of Greece declaring for the allies, be entrained at Saloniki for the Serbian front or to be sent to reinforce the Greeks in holding the Bulgars at bay. An army of 110,000 men equals nearly half the entire military strength of Bulgaria.

Not the slightest intimation is available as to the nationality of this army. It may be French and British, but it is considered more probable that this is the long delayed and long looked for Italian expeditionary force which has many times within the past week been reported to have taken ship at Taranto and Brindisi, and to have departed for an unknown destination, in the past.

Tit-Bits About Greece.

Will She Join the Allies This Month?
Greece is mainly an agricultural country. Currants are largely cultivated. About 160,000 tons are produced annually.

Greece gained its independence in 1830, when it was declared a kingdom under the protection of Great Britain, France, and Russia.

King Konstantinos of Greece is forty-seven years of age. His father, King George, who was assassinated in 1913, was Queen Alexandra's brother.

Military service is compulsory. It commences in the twentieth year, and lasts for the long period of 31 years. The war strength of the Greek army is between 280,000 and 300,000 men.

As a result of her wars with Turkey and Bulgaria in 1912 and 1913, Greece gained 16,919 square miles of new territory and added a couple of millions to her population, which now totals nearly 5,000,000.

Cheese is produced in large quantities—sliced cheese and head-cheese. The production of the former in 1912 amounted to 1,995,000 lb. and of the latter 2,280,000 lb. Most of the sliced cheese is consumed in Greece, chiefly in the cities of Athens and Piraeus.

Since 1911 a British naval mission has been superintending the training and organization of the Greek navy, which consists of two modern battle-ships, three monitors, one, fourteen destroyers and number of miscellaneous craft. One of their cruises the Aberdeen, was acquired through a deceased millionaire of that name leaving the bulk of his fortune for improving the navy.

A BIG SALE!

About two months ago a statement appeared in this paper that over "TEN THOUSAND" (10,000) bottles of STAFFORD'S LINIMENT had been sold since the beginning of the year 1915. Certain persons were heard to remark that they were not so sure about this statement. We will go farther now and offer $1,000 to the person or persons who can come in to our store on THEATRE HILL and ask us to show them orders amounting to over FOURTEEN THOUSAND (14,000) sold since the beginning of THIS year and by our not being able to produce them, will gladly forfeit the above sum mentioned.

All you have to do is to come in and ask us. The reason of the big demand for STAFFORD'S LINIMENT is that it is superior to any other LINIMENT on the market at the present time. It has a unique record for relieving RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA and all ACNES and PAINS, in fact no home should be without a bottle.

"STAFFORD'S LINIMENT" is sold everywhere, and always be sure that you obtain the bottle with the green wrapper on the outside and the RED LABEL inside.

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

FOODS.

Nowadays we learn more why we do certain things, and why things happen. Every schoolboy can tell you all about the sun, the moon and the earth, but not so very long ago men were content to know no more than at certain hours in the morning a ball of heat rose in the east and stayed with them many hours, and supplied them with light. And so it is in the matter of food. In the old days men did not find out the foods with the most calories in them, nor were they particular as to what foods they mixed as long as they agreed with them. Appetite taught them what they needed and they ate without further question.

These were the days of good, solid, plain food and no one ever knew that he had a stomach!

But now we have such an array of fancy dishes with all sorts of formidable names, that our digestive organs are hard pressed to find the time and opportunity to attend to them all, the result being weak, delicate stomachs and general internal disorder.

And doubtless these disorders are responsible for the Health Cultures and all the investigation into the component parts of foods, lectures on which have been given recently in the city. There are a lot of people to whom such lectures do not mean much. They find it difficult to obtain even the nourishing food that they like without going after strange foods that they know nothing of. It is useless to advise them to eat this, and not to eat that, for they cannot afford to get what they are advised to eat. And as the man-on-the-street said to me yesterday, "Let the city give us clean streets, and decent houses to live in, and we will be able to attend to the food question and Health Culture."

I am reminded of the story of a school where the teacher had been working hard to make the boys understand all about the carbohydrates, proteins, and fats in foods. She asked the class at length to name the three kinds of food that were necessary to keep them in good health. One youngster rose to the occasion and came out with: "Ter breakfast, yer dinner, and yer tea." Good boy! He knew what's what!

AT THE SAME TIME.

At the same time, it is undoubtedly good to know, in these days of so many varieties of foods, what value each is to us, and we ought to know and realize something of the same pleasure in having a "harmony of foods" as in a "harmony of sounds."

And though we may not live to eat, we can find a great pleasure in eating nice foods—especially when we can supply that sauce of sauces—Hunger.

It is unfortunate that in many of our outports fresh meat of any kind is often scarce, and in some places the supply of vegetables is only sufficient to last till March or April, after which the meals consist of a dull routine of fish, bread and tea till the

FLETCHERISM.

You all know about Fletcher, the man who advocates chewing (your food, I mean!). He is about sixty, yet he is a young man in spirit and agility and he claims that it is all due to his habits of thoroughly masticating every morsel of food. According to his theory, a mouthful of bread will take from one hundred to one hundred and fifty motions of the jaw to prepare it for swallowing. In fact, he states that you must chew and chew until it becomes so liquidified that it actually goes down your throat without swallowing. He claims a financial gain in that the average man will be thoroughly satisfied and properly nourished on one quarter to one half the usual amount of food he consumes if he follows this method of mastication. In this way, too, practically all the food a man eats is assimilated and used by the body, and there is a startling possibility that under some conditions and suitable foods, the lower bowel might become obsolete.

With regard to the whole food question I have read, and it seems reasonable enough, that no matter how wholesome a food may be, if it is taken beyond your requirements, it turns into rank poison in the stomach or intestines. It is really better to follow the ordinary civilized diet, with its meat, tea, coffee and pie than to select the most healthful foods furnished by Nature and eat these to excess.

PROHIBITION.

I think that the statement of Bishop Jones, in its characteristically eloquent simplicity, that he intends to vote for Prohibition, will give a great impetus to the cause. He has faced the question, as all should do, and has come to a decision, and if there are any who desire a lead, it cannot be taken from a better source, from a man whose simple dignity and life amongst us have drawn from us a veneration that comes from all creeds and classes.

COMPENSATION.

The question of compensation crops up once in a while. Some think that it is unfair that those in the liquor business should at one fell swoop be deprived of their living and should lose a business which they have built up and conducted (as far as such a business can be) in a decent manner.

The obvious answer to this is to refer to their licenses which they obtain every Fall, a license which is plainly given for one year only, and in taking this license, the holder of it has to accept the fact that he takes one year. He cannot make an arrangement to hold his license for a term of years, so that he is perfectly aware that his business may be brought to an end at any time. Knowing this, I think that he is entitled to no compensation, even as a gambler in stocks is entitled to no compensation when the market goes against him. That so far as the business side goes.

Morally (and the moral side is the only side to consider in any proposition), it looks as if the boot was on the other foot.

His business, whether by his own direct act or volition or not, has wrecked the happiness of more than one home.

His business keeps children from school, keeps them from having decent shoes to wear, and from proper food to eat.

His business keeps babies poorly nourished, makes mothers down-hearted, and homes without a smile.

His business steals men's minds, reduces men's earnings, loses men's jobs, and kills men's affections.

Is there any compensation for all this? Do we ask for compensation for these ills? Is there any effort by the saloons to give compensation in any way?

EVERYONE ALIKE.

There are some here and there who do not understand what Prohibition covers. They confuse it with Local Option. I would recommend that the Literary Committee draw up a circular, drawing attention in plain terms to the effect of Prohibition. Such a fact, for instance, as that no one will be allowed to import liquor, that every man, rich and poor alike, will be on the same footing in this.

TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES.

It is quite true that Temperance Societies will still be needed after Prohibition passes. There are many other inclinations of our nature which could be profitably curbed and temperance might be taught with regard to these as much as with drink. In fact drunkenness in itself is not so much a sin as many other hidden vices. A man drunk is not responsible for his actions, while other men commit other worse deeds in cold blood. There need be no anxiety in any Temperance Societies which in their organization have adopted any benefit scheme. These societies can easily resolve themselves into Benefit Societies similar to the many in our midst now.

It really seems too trivial almost to notice this, but I have been told that several old members of such a society is not looking favourably on Prohibition because of the fear of losing their benefits and the dues they have paid in.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"How shall I announce the birth of my baby?" asked Mrs. Youngmother, anxiously.

"The etiquette of birth announcements is definite," answered her mother. "The folded sheet of pale blue or pale pink bordered note paper contains the arrival, the date and the weight, and the names of the parents. It is sent out within twenty-four hours after the birth to every immediate relative and to all intimate friends. The sheet exactly fits into a two by two and a half inch envelope, also with a narrow colored border.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

There is much imagination in the life of every child, and this should be fostered and guided for use in later life. If it is possible to give up one room to the child, or, if not that than a part of the room, an alcove or a corner, so that it can be transformed into an attractive and educative spot for the child. It is not so much a question of size as it is of a distinctive place. If possible it should obtain a cabinet for toys. A box into which the child at the end of its play dumps all of its toys, fosters only a semblance of order.

Here are some "dons'ts" for children that should be heeded by all mothers: Don't allow the children to read in a dim light. Don't let them read with the sunlight glaring on the book. Don't allow them to read at night facing the light. Don't allow them to read while lying down. Don't allow them to read for too long a period at one time.

Girls! Have Wavy, Thick, Glossy Hair Free From Dandruff

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fashish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Jamaica Has Done Her Duty in War In Men and Money.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 25.—Reports from Jamaica and other West Indian possessions of the British Empire indicate that a sufficient number of men to form a complete regimental unit will be ready to sail for England soon, although no definite word has been given as to when the call for them will be made. Already hundreds of the pick of West Indian youths have volunteered, and at their own cost and charges have found their way to England to offer themselves as recruits for Kitchener's army. Even greater numbers have enlisted in the various Canadian contingents which have gone or are going to the front.

The colonies are not in a position to equip the men; they are merely furnishing the raw material, which will be trained and armed in England. In addition to providing for a complete regiment, the islands will undertake to fill the gaps caused by inevitable losses from time to time, to the extent of at least 50 per cent. of the original number.

All the British colonies in the West Indies have voluntarily subscribed money or supplies to meet the Empire's needs—for the purchase of aeroplanes, machine guns, for incidentals, such as smoking supplies for the men in the trenches. In the case of Jamaica, the Government voted a sum of $250,000, which was used to send a cargo of sugar to the mother country, while by public subscription funds have been collected to the sum of $200,000 for other objects. In a country where the average earning of 75 per cent. of the population is not more than $120 a year, and where citizens of opulence are scarce, it is declared that the islands' showing has been remarkably patriotic.

England at Her Best.

New York Herald.—It is an axiom that the Englishman always rises to the greatest heights when his country is in its worst straits. History shows that the kingdom has always had to go through the most severe trial before it found itself. What is happening now is, only on a larger scale, multiplied manifold, the repetition of history. Men may glibly talk about Great Britain not doing her full duty to her allies. But when one considers that her navy has given the Allies unlimited command of the sea when command of the sea for Germany would have lost the war to them long ago, and when one considers the stern resolve with which the British nation is facing this great burden of debt, the account must appear as standing very evenly balanced.

Letter From Egypt

DESCRIBING TRIP THERE.
Lafaran Barracks, Afoffia, Cairo, Egypt.

Dear Mother & Father.—We are landed safe in Egypt at last, but we thought we would be in the firing line by this time, for last Sunday we were quite near it and we left it and came here, as they had plenty of troops there for a while. I don't know, I'm sure, but I hope by the time you get this we will be there.

Well, I must tell you a little about the trip since we left Aldershot, as I know you would like to know all about it. Well, we left Aldershot, bound for the Dardanelles, on Thursday, August 19th, 1915, at 11.30 p.m. As we travelled in the dark we could not see any sights, so most of us fell asleep till 5.30 next morning, when we got to a big city called Exeter, where the Mayor had provided something to eat for us. She was there herself giving out the tea, etc. We travelled on till 8.30, when we arrived at Plymouth. We were shunting for a long while in the docks till we got right down to the wharf. About 10.30 we went aboard the steamer all you had to do was just get on the train and right into the steamer. At 6.30 p.m. Saturday we left the pier and at sunset we were passing through Plymouth Sound, with two destroyers escorting us out. They were with us all night, and the next morning they left us again. We were going along o.k. and everything was smooth and calm, and on Monday night we sighted a light on the African coast, then a little further on we sighted a light on Cape St. Vincent, and about 11 p.m. we passed through the Straits. We all thought we were going to stop there. We kept near the African coast all along till we got to Malta. We went in the harbor about noon on Thursday. It was there you could see great sights—navies coming out in small boats, etc., selling fruit, etc., hoisted up over the sides in baskets.

We left the following morning, Friday, at 7 o'clock. It was very smooth all along, and at 7 a.m. Sunday, 28th, we got to the island called Lemnos, which was first occupied by the Turks and the British took it from them. We were in the harbor all day; we went right up to the other end of it. I suppose we passed along by six hundred ships of all kinds—warships, torpedo boats and destroyers, submarines, troop ships, Red Cross boats and various other kinds. At 7 o'clock Sunday evening we left Lemnos, bound for Alexandria—because there were plenty of troops there at the time. They say they are filled up with them. My pen is after running short of ink and I must get some. I never had any in it since I left Stob's, so you see it is a different kind, this is Gypsy ink. Well, we had a good time

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of England School Chapel, Norris' Arm, on Wednesday, Sept. 29th, when Miss Mona E. Ludlow, of The Cove, was united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony to Mr. John T. Cheesman, of Burin. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Stead, of Bell Isle, a friend of the groom who went down for the occasion. The bride who was given away by her father looked charming in a dress of white silk with overdress of bridal lace with veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Cheesman, sister of the groom, was also prettily dressed in white embroidered voile. Miss Lucy Hynes, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl, and looked very dainty in dress of white net over pale blue, and carried a basket of pink and white flowers. The groom was supported by Mr. A. J. Ludlow, brother of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where quite a number of guests attended, and the health of the newly-married pair was duly honored, after which the bridal party left by motor boat for Bishop's Cove, returning to Norris' Arm where they connected with the east bound express en route to Burin, which is to be the future home of the happy pair. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents. The groom's present to the bride was a gold pendant set, with pearls.

FLEET-PARSONS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Cochrane Street Methodist Parsonage by the Rev. C. A. White-marsch, on Wednesday, September 29th, when Miss Blanche Fleet was united in the sacred bonds of matrimony to Mr. William Parsons. The bride was prettily dressed in a costume of saxe blue with hat to match, and was given away by her father and attended by her sister, Miss Elsie Fleet, and Miss Ethel Parsons, sister of the groom, who were neatly gowned in lawn costumes with black picture hats; while the groom was ably supported by Mr. George Summers. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to Topsail where supper was served. Return was made to Chapel Street where they will reside in future. Many and useful were the gifts received testifying to the esteem in which the young couple are held.

Denounces All Opponents of Munition Shipments

Roosevelt Fires Hot Shot at the "Pacifists" who Advocate Prohibition of Sale of Munitions to Allies.—They are "Serving the Devil"—Calls Proposal to Pay Germany for Belgium Immoral.

"Every man or woman who in the name of peace now advocates the refusal on the part of the United States to furnish arms and munitions of war to those nations who have had the manliness to fight for the redressing of Belgium's wrongs is serving the devil and not the Lord," declares former President Roosevelt in the Metropolitan Magazine for October.

"SINISTER AMERICANS."

"As for the persons who base their actions upon greed in such a crisis as this, little needs to be said. The beef baron or the representative of the cotton interests who wishes to ignore the butchery of our women and children, and the sinking of our ships, by German submarines, and to take sides against the allies so that he may make money by the sale of cotton and beef, is faithless to every consideration of honor and decency. It is entirely fitting that the sheer materialist should in such an issue stand shoulder to shoulder with the professional pacifist, the peace-at-any-price man, and with his sinister brother, the hyphenated American. These men by their actions seek to condone the murder of American men, women and children and the trampling of Belgium into bloody mire. They are false to the cause of humanity. They come perilously near being treasonable to this country. It is hard to decide which is the most abject quality; the greed to the mere materialists or the short-sighted cowardice of the professional pacifist. As for the hyphenated American, he endeavors to serve his foreign fatherland without exposing his own wretched carcass to the danger which would come to him if he served in the trenches beside his fellow-countrymen who have stayed at home—and who at least pretend to no divided allegiance.

"If no duty had been expressly imposed upon the United States in this matter (the German invasion of Belgium), we ought nevertheless to have acted in accordance with the generous instincts of humanity. But as a matter of fact such a duty was expressly imposed upon us by the Hague conventions.

German Methods.

"A representative of a great American arms manufactory informed me recently that they had been about to abandon their work prior to the beginning of this war, because the Germans systematically endeavored to undersell them in every country. It has been the settled policy of Germany to drive all other countries out of the business of manufacturing arms and supplies because, of course, if this were once substantially accomplished, the rest of the world would be completely helpless before Germany, and Germany has made it evident that she knows no such things as international morality and looks upon all other nations, including the United States, merely as possible prey.

"The Americans who are now striving to prevent the sale of munitions of war to the countries endeavoring to secure the redress of Belgium's wrongs, that is, the allied powers, are playing the game of a ruthlessly militaristic and anti-American Germany against their own country as well as against the interests of humanity at large. They are profoundly unpatriotic from the standpoint of the interests of the United States. They are committing the gravest possible offense against the cause of international right and of the interests of humanity.

"Germany Sold Arms."

"Germany has thriven enormously on the sale of arms to belligerents when she was a neutral; she insisted that such sale be sanctioned by the Hague conventions; she, so far as possible, desires to prevent other nations from manufacturing arms; and if she is successful in this effort she will have taken another stride to world dominion.

"The professional pacifist, hyphenated Americans, and beef and cotton Americans; in short, all the representatives of American mollycoddles, American greed, and downright treachery to America, in seeking to prevent shipments of munitions to the allied militaries against Belgium and against their own country.

"The foolish professional pacifists who advocate refusing to sell munitions of war to the Allies are proposing a course of action as wicked as it is base; and those making such a proposal or approving and advocating action in accordance therewith, should be listed on a roll of national dishonor. It has even been proposed that the United States should spend a billion dollars in paying Germany to give Belgium back to her own people.

The profound immorality of this proposition surpasses even its fatuity. If it could be adopted, it would of course merely be paying blackmail on a gigantic scale, and be a direct encouragement to nations to commit wrong in order to get money. If such a proposal were adopted by the United States, the fact would completely justify Germany or Japan in setting New York or San Francisco and refusing to leave until we had paid into the German or Japanese coffers a sum, say, twice as much as that which it has been thus proposed to pay into the German coffers in order to get them to surrender Belgium.

"Treachery's Full Flower."

"The full flower of treachery to the duties of the United States and to the rights of the nations of mankind is best observed when the professional pacifist and the hyphenated American strike hands on some public occasion. Recently a so-called labor peace conference was held at Washington for the purpose of intimidating public servants by political threats into refusing to allow the export of arms and munitions to the Allies. The newspapers reported that one of the officials of a German-American organization announced that 'the members of his body would not enlist in the event of war between the United States and Germany.' If this statement is correct, the gentleman in question and those for whom he spoke are traitors and in the event of war should be dealt with in summary fashion. The hyphenated American has been shown in actual practise to be loyal only to that part of his title which precedes the hyphen. He is thoroughly disloyal to the 'American' part of his hyphenated cognomen, and he must be thus disloyal, because of the necessities of the case. And in saying this I wish to emphasize my belief that the professional German-Americans are not a bit worse than all other professional hyphenated Americans. These professional German-Americans sin most bitterly against the real Americans of German blood.

Professional Pro-Germans.

"We have no better citizens than the Americans of German birth or descent who in good faith are fulfilling the duties of American citizenship and who are Americans and nothing else. I happen to know that these men, men who are entitled to the highest honor and the highest respect from all their fellow-Americans, feel a peculiar indignation at the professional German-Americans, the hyphenated Americans, who by their actions during the past year have dishonored their own stock and have done all the damage they could to the country which offered itself as a refuge to them or to their forefathers."

LONDON GOSSIP.

PRINCE LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM.

LONDON, Sept. 7th, 1915.

There is some expectation that Prince Leopold of Belgium, the heir to the Belgian throne, will soon become an Eton boy. If that turns out to be the decision of his parents, it will be quite in keeping with the good sense of both. Prince Leopold, with his younger brother and sister, came to this country during the progress of the German invasion of Belgium. The boy, who is only about 14, has been formally embodied in the Belgian Army, in accordance with his own ardent desires, but he is manifestly too young to undergo the rigors of military service. His readiness to fight for his country's liberties does him credit, but the destinies of Belgium may be far better served if for the present he continues his education.

A HERO OF THE AIR.

M. Pegoud's sad fate has a special interest to Londoners. Two years ago the intrepid French aviator was the hero of the hour here. He came across to England to give an exhibition of his great feat of looping the loop in the air. It was the first time that it had been accomplished in this country, and huge crowds went down to Brooklands to see him do it. I remember that I had a conversation with him after his descent. He had had a great ovation from the spectators, but he was cool, collected, and modest. His talk was of the technical side of aeronautics, and the conversation turned to the utility of such performances as looping the loop. "You have to be very well to do this sort of thing," M. Pegoud remarked. He was very emphatic on the danger that attended such attempts by any but the most skilled of airmen. The essentials to success were self-command and command of the machine. Given those he maintained that such feats as he had been accomplishing were to make up the education of the perfect aviator, the man with the cool brain, alert and quick to act in any emergency caused by the unforeseeable vicissitudes of the upper atmosphere. M. Pegoud had the great qualities of nerve and resource, and his previous training in the school of intrepidly enabled him to render signally valuable services to his country. In his case what we used to call "freak flying" was the prelude to the great feats which his admirers in this country as well as in France recall to-day, when he has found his death on duty in the altitudes to which he loved to mount. M. Pegoud impressed me as quiet, modest, imperturbable, while his slight curled moustache gave a touch of Gallic jauntiness to his appearance.

ROMANIA AND THE WAR.

The conviction is growing that Roumania's decision has been taken to enter the war on the side of the Allies, although active operations may possibly be delayed for some time yet. The diplomatic history of the last thirteen months will make interesting reading. When the war broke out the Central Powers had a treaty of alliance with Roumania which the late King Carol had signed, and the refusal of a Crown Council to approve King Carol's resolution to enter the war on the side of the Central Powers was a great blow to them. The Allies' efforts to convert a negative into a positive success were shaken by the resistance of the new King who is, of course, a Hohenzollern, by the scepticism of the Roumanian General Staff, and by some differences of opinion with Russia. The Roumanian Government wished to commit themselves to enter the war only when the Roumanian General Staff should think fit. This was not satisfactory to the Allies. Finally Roumania agreed to fix a date for her intervention, but not all the Allied Powers were prepared to sign this agreement. It is believed now that the Allies are unanimous, but the difficulty this time is the resistance of the King. Probably the Roumanian Parliament will have to be summoned before war is declared. The moment of intervention may still be uncertain, but the decision to intervene sooner or later seems beyond doubt, and the various reports of frontier movements and precautions suggest that it will be sooner rather than later. If Roumania does move it will mean that she has no fears from Bulgaria, so that the mobilization of the Balkans will be a long way nearer realization.

NO LIKELIHOOD OF CONSCRIPTION.

I have grounds for stating that, in spite of rumors and apparently inspired reports, there is no prospect of conscription either immediately or as far ahead as can be at present foreseen. The purely military case against conscription is overwhelming. It is simply this—that the War Office has, and will for months to come have, more men in hand, trained and ready, than it can supply and send to the front. Nearly every village in England is full of soldiers, nearly every lane in the land is tramped by their feet. It takes a vast army to spread out like that. If you ask these men how long they have been in training you will find that most of them have been at it for more than six months (to put it at the highest) which is necessary to train a modern soldier. Many soldiers in England and Scotland have been in training for a year. When the Government early this year asked for the third million of men it had the first two millions complete or virtually complete. We know, roughly, how many men have been sent to the various fronts. It is easy to calculate what an enormous surplus of men the War Office has in hand. It will need them all and more, but the stream of recruits flows steadily in (with spurts every time a Zeppelin drops a bomb on England). The voluntary system is adequately providing the men, providing them in the way that can be most conveniently and economically handled.

WAR AND INSANITY.

The forthcoming number of the "Lancet," Great Britain's foremost medical journal of which I have received an advance proof, gives a very interesting psychological analysis of

If Catarrh Keeps You Hawking Use 'Catarrhzone'—The Quickest Cure

NOTHING KNOWN SO SURE FOR THROAT WEAKNESS, BRONCHIAL TROUBLES, ETC.

No doctor attempts to-day to cure a genuine case of catarrh or bronchitis except by the inhalation method. Stomach dosing has been discarded because useless medicines so taken affect only the stomach—never reaches the seat of catarrh. The advanced physician recognizes that only air can be sent into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Fill this air with healing medicaments and you solve the problem. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhzone. It contains the richest pine-balsams and the greatest healers known.

One breath of Catarrhzone instantly circulates over the area that is afflicted with catarrh. Relief is instant—suffering stops at once—germs are destroyed—every taint of disease is removed. Think it over seriously. Here is a remedy that clears the throat, relieves hoarseness, coughing and bad breath. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, inflamed bronchial tubes are healed, throat and voice are strengthened. Catarrhzone is pleasant and certain. You breathe Catarrhzone—you don't take it. Large $1.50 size is guaranteed; smaller size 50c., and trial size 25c. at all dealers everywhere.

the effect of the war on the nation's nerves. The general expectation—perhaps the general assumption—is that there must be a great increase of insanity owing to the nervous strain of the war. So far as there is any evidence it is just the other way. The "Lancet" cites the case of a big asylum in Belfast where there has been a remarkable decrease in the number of admissions for the past year as compared with the twelve months before. The only reason that can be discovered for the decline in insanity is the war. The psychological explanation must be that the war, though it is dreadful and nerve-racking and to sensitive minds a horrible nightmare, does nevertheless take people out of themselves. Insanity is bred in preoccupation with self. Egotism and morbid absorption in self is the germ. The surrounding circumstances that foster the germ are monotony and boredom. "It is not the great tragedies of life that sap the forces of the brain," says the "Lancet," "but rather the monotony of narrow and circumscribed existence." To live out a great public tragedy, therefore, is not enfeebling to weak minds but strengthening.

THE CHANCE FOR WOMEN DOCTORS.

In connection with the shortage of doctors in general practice owing to the war and the rare opportunity presented to women medical students who are just beginning their training, I learn that the critical stage is likely to be reached about five years from now. There is no shortage in the Army Medical Service, but the demand for army doctors is, of course, increasing concurrently with the expansion of our military forces, and this is what has led to the further call for volunteers. One in three of all the doctors under forty now in the country, I am told, will probably be needed in the next half-year. Meanwhile the army authorities are taking a wise step in sending back from the colors medical students who when they enlisted were in the fifth (the last) year of their training. Two points should be brought home to the public—the need for encouraging the entrance of women into the medical profession and the desirability of relieving as much as possible the present and future pressure on doctors in general practice at home. This last can be done in many ways, but one particularly useful thing would be for a patient, when at all possible, to call upon the doctor rather than ask the doctor to call upon him.

PUBLIC DINING IN WAR TIME.

It seems that there will be no relaxation of the rule established a year ago regarding the abandonment of public dinners in civic circles here during the winter season. Some newly-elected Masters of the London Livery Companies have notified their members that the customary amenities of their office are suspended, though they append the expression of a hope that happier circumstances will later permit them to offer the usual hospitalities. The Guildhall Banquet will be given as usual, however, on November 9th, by the incoming Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London, but the social side of the Mansion House will continue to be very greatly restricted, and this example will affect commercial coteries, whose annual reunions are normally of much value for the consolidation of special interests.

WAR AND THE LIBRARY.

The Library Association, which began its annual convention in London on September 1st, will be busy during its discussions, like every other society in these times, with the great subject. Stanley Jast, who has just been appointed sub-librarian of Manchester, will lecture on what public libraries can do during and after the war, and later the literature of the war will be discussed by experts in some of its many aspects. How enormous the flow of war literature is can be roughly estimated from the interesting exhibition of war books on view in the hall. The impossibility of getting hold of German books robs the exhibition of anything like completeness, but there is an astonishing variety of books and pamphlets in English, French, Italian and Spanish. I believe that a special Government permit is necessary for importation of German books into this country, and this has been granted occasionally to English authors engaged on war books. The size of the library of this war is already staggering, and of course the output has only begun, and a century hence the authors will still be busy explaining it away, just as they are still busy with the Napoleonic wars. The writers of the future will have an incomparably larger volume of contemporary literature to work upon than the historians of to-day. There is, I believe, no complete bibliography in existence of contemporary Napoleonic literature, but we live in a more scientific age, and already our bibliographers have got to work. The list compiled by the librarian of the St. Bride's Institute contains the titles of 500 books and pamphlets, chiefly English and French,

Facts for Health Seekers to Ponder Over published in the first five months of the war. This bibliography is already in its third volume, and the number of publications in this country alone must be approaching two thousand. The mass of literature is growing more rapidly now that people have had time to think before writing, and the authors of the bibliography consider that the quality is improving. It is said that the German books on the war already number 6,500. A feature of the more recent output is the growing number of books on the religion and ethics of the war.

FURS IN WAR-TIME.

The West End of London fur departments are beginning their autumn and winter season. There has been much speculation as to the state of the fur trade, and it is now evident that those authorities who predicted that war economy would kill the popular demand for furs, and those who talked of a famine in peltry owing to supplies being held up, labor and transport difficulties, were both wrong. Inquiries made in wholesale circles during the last day or two brought the information that fox in all colors, black, white, blue, and natural; skunk, musquash, both in the natural color and the seal-dyed variety, and wolf, which latter will be one of the leading hard-wearing furs of the coming winter, are available in quantity and will be largely worn. Prices will be high and supplies short in the case of certain costly skins such as seal and sable, but prohibition of killing rather than immediate war causes are responsible. White fox will also be dearer, chiefly owing to this fur having been seized upon by ultra-fashionable Parisians and American women. Generally speaking, however, reasonable prices will prevail in the showrooms, and an exceptionally heavy demand is anticipated in the trade for what may be described as furs of average quality. This demand will come from the new fur-buying public created by the abnormally high wages prevailing in many of the skilled trades.

Elegant Bedsteads

In all Brass, bright and dull finish, or in Brass and White Enamel we are showing some very handsome model Bedsteads which are remarkable for their beauty of finish, their right-up-to-the-minute smartness, and their reasonable prices.

With these Bedsteads we also purchased a limited quantity of Dressing Tables and Bureaux in Mahogany and Golden Oak. Some are copies of fine French furniture, with oval mirrors and one single drawer, others with three and four drawers, and bevelled mirrors in various designs.

We have also a full stock of Children's Cots and Beds in Brass and Enamel.
