THE PANGS OF REMORSE — OR — A COMPLICATED TANGLE.

CHAPTER VII.

Sir Ralph stepped outside, sent for the doctor, returned, kissed her and deemed it best to assume a calm and gratified acquiescence.

"The little doctor, thinking her nothing less than dying, rushed in, but started back almost at the sight of my lady sitting calmly and complacently at the table, and then, having a ready wit, gasped out a congratulation:

"Delighted, my dear Miss Lily (What were the idiots about to let her get up?)—You look well again—(It will kill her!)—It's the very best thing you could have done! Ahem, ahem, Sir Ralph, I just dropped in to—in fact, as I was passing, I will take a cup of coffee, if you please."

And still staring in a curiously bewildered way at his late patient he sat down at the table.

Lillian smiled, a sad ghost of the old, joyous smile, and touched his arm.

"Well, doctor, you see I was right. You said I should die if I didn't take the draughts. I'm not dead, you see, and it is as certain that I have not taken one."

He gasped.

"What! Not taken the draughts? You will—"

"Soon be well," said Lillian, interrupting him, then as Sir Ralph, who had been growing pale with dismay, was about to speak, she stole round and, putting her thin arm round his neck, said with something like her old archness: "There, not a word!

I am clever than you all. I know what is the matter with me, and you, all of you, do not, even great Sir Thomas. My complaint doesn't take twenty-five syllables to spell it," she added, bitterly.

Sir Ralph groaned.

"There, papa, do not be frightened. I said I was getting well and I meant it. Doctor, you shall feel my pulse."

He took the tiny, white hand and placed his finger upon the wrist.

"It's certainly slower, more regular," he said, with undisguised surprise.

"You see," she said. "Now, doctor, let me give you another cup of coffee."

There was no resisting her, and Sir Ralph felt something of the old happiness come back at her calm, clear, unquivering voice.

But it fled whenever he caught her face off its guard, for he saw there that the disease with the short syllables was not eradicated but was eating its way within as surely as a little worm devours the heart of the rose.

All this while Mr. Benant kept clear of Rivershall, and wisely.

It seemed as if Lillian dreaded a visit from him, and was guarding against the possibility of his finding her alone.

She went nowhere, not even to the new winter-stricken rosery, without Miss Lucas. That young lady had proved her devotion to the mistress by refraining from showing animosity to Mrs. Williams. The housekeeper, despot in her character as nurse, had forbidden Miss Lucas the sick room, but Miss Lucas sensibly had shown no malice, and had helped the housekeeper in various ways outside; had even gone to the length of making a custard with her own hands and preparing a calf's-foot jelly.

So amiable did Miss Lucas' disposition seem that the cook and the maids actually were glad to see her in the kitchen, and Miss Lucas was always welcome whether the object of her visit was the preparation of some tempting invalid's delicacy for her young mistress of a little harmless gossip.

As cook said, Miss Lucas was always interested in any scrap of news and really seemed as fond of Miss Lillian as Sir Ralph himself.

The days rolled on.

The young girl, more beautiful than ever, with her pale face and soft, dreamy look, never uttered the discarded tutor's name, and scarcely mentioned any other.

Sir Ralph was at his wits' end.

He grew more stern, more exacting with his tenants, more sad in solitude at night. And Miss Lucas, unalterably frigid and emotionless, witnessed it all and smiled.

One day Sir Ralph, while walking over his estate, saw a tall gentleman with a mild, pleasant face, dark eyes, and long, thick hair standing, gazing at the sky with a meditative air.

As he was on the Rivershall land, Sir Ralph, easily angered now, walked up, and in his haughtiest manner asked him if he was aware of his trespass.

"A thousand pardons!" exclaimed the gentleman, starting from his reveries and lifting his hat. "I am a stranger and erred unwittingly."

Sir Ralph raised his hat in return, tried to mutter a gracious response, and the stranger walked away.

That evening Miss Lucas, who had just returned from London, which she had lately been visiting, remarked that she had heard it rumored that a celebrated doctor was coming into the neighborhood.

"Indeed," said Lillian, in her joyous way. "When did you hear that, Kate?"

"At my doctor's; I suffer from the headache, and have been seeking advice during my visit to town."

"Eh?" said Sir Ralph, awaking from a grim reverie. "A doctor here! What doctor?"

"A great physician, Dr. Bromwell. I have heard of him, but never seen him. He is leaving London, so my doctor says, for the benefit of his health, and has chosen Berkshires."

"Ah," said Sir Ralph, not at all interested, and relapsed into his old, moody silence.

"And you have headaches, dear Kate," said Lillian, gently. "How well you bear them! I have never heard you complain."

"No, my dear," said Miss Lucas, frigidly. "I do not shrink beneath the chastening rod."

The conversation dropped, but Lillian had it brought to her mind in a curious way, the next morning.

Since Clarence Clifford's dismissal she had taken to a regular, systematic visiting of her poor. Each day saw her at a fixed hour on her path of ministrations, her dainty little basket well filled with invalid's delicacies, her gentle heart so stored with kindness and pity.

A welcome awaited her wherever she went, a blessing followed her departing footsteps.

Lillian was another word for angel with the poor round Rivershall, and not a man or woman but would have gladly died to bring the old joyful, careless look upon her sweet young face.

As she entered one of her cottages to visit a bed-ridden girl, dying by inches of consumption, she hesitated and drew back.

A tall gentleman, the same that her father had seen the preceding day, was standing by the bedside, looking down at the invalid's face with a benevolent smile.

At Lillian's entrance the invalid looked up with a world of humble love in her eyes, and made an eager gesture for her not to go.

"Is it you, miss? Don't 'ee go. This gentleman is a doctor, dear Miss Lillian, come to see me out of the goodness of his heart."

Tourists' Millions

England's Many Visitors From Over the Seas.

Sixty years ago there was only one hotel in London that could boast a hundred bedrooms. To-day there are over one hundred in and around Central London which average three hundred rooms apiece.

During this summer practically every room will be occupied and—here is the interesting part—three-quarters of the rooms will be occupied by people coming from abroad.

The growth in the number of smaller hotels has been simply tremendous, and it is reckoned that London as a whole can now accommodate no fewer than 475,000 visitors at one time. In other words, she could absorb the whole populations of Halifax and Bristol, both housing and feeding them.

Towns such as Brighton, Bournemouth, Bath and Cheltenham have accommodation for tens of thousands of visitors, and in these places, as in London, you notice every year a constant increase in the number of American visitors and visitors from other parts of the Empire.

It was about twenty years ago that Americans began to discover Great Britain as a holiday resort. By 1907 we had over 100,000 American visitors. This year we reckon on 400,000 visitors from abroad but shall probably find by October that we have had well over half a million.

In 1923, it was estimated that Americans spent twelve million pounds in Britain. In 1924 this figure was greatly exceeded, and it is quite possible that the 1925 figure will set up a new record.

Say what you will about our climate, Britain is pleasanter to live in during summer than any other country, and she can boast a greater variety of scenery within a small space than any other part of the world.

Woman's Secret Charm

In perfect health lies the secret of woman's charm which makes her radiate cheer and happiness wherever she goes. No one enjoys listening to the aches, pains and woes of an ill, nervous, irritable woman, and her condition is plainly stamped upon every feature. The most effective remedy for woman's ailments ever discovered has proved to be Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women are soon restored to health by its use and acquire the charm that health alone can give.

Bills That Railways Pay

Wealth Lavished on Trains.

With Whitsuntide the railway excursion season opens in earnest, and it is probable that few travellers have much idea of the vast sums spent on the trains in which they travel to their favourite holiday resorts.

Twenty years ago it was possible to build a third-class railway carriage for £200 and a first-class composite for about £250 more. And that notwithstanding the fact that a first-class carriage requires sixteen coats of paint before it is ready for service. To-day rolling stock of all sorts costs at least twice as much to construct as before 1914.

High Cost of Comfort.

The North-Eastern Railway has lately constructed a new Flying Scotsman, which, with its new giant engine and eleven coaches, has meant an outlay of £42,800. The engine, a new one of the Pacific type, cost £7,500, and the carriages £35,000. The kitchen and restaurant carriages were the most costly, amounting to £11,000 of the total. The passenger coaches cost £2,850 to £3,000 each, and even for the cheapest vehicle, the brake van, the bill was £1,800.

While we do not build our carriages wholly of steel, as is the custom in America, it is usual to fireproof all the timber used in coach-building. All the wood used in building the London Underground trains has been fireproofed since 1905, and a disc affixed to each carriage testifies to this fact.

The amount of timber used in the construction of a coach is considerable, amounting to five or six hundred cubic feet. For a passenger coach of which is the best and most economical Soap?

Will invariably be answered thus, SUNLIGHT SOAP!

The note of admiration is inseparable from Sunlight Soap, it belongs.

the largest size, such as is used on Indian railways, nineteen doors have to be made and no fewer than ninety-two windows. One of these coaches, sixty-two feet in length, was built for the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in five days.

The Casualty List.

A Leeds firm had a contract recently to build forty luxurious sleeping cars for the Riviera train de luxe. These were among the most expensive carriages ever built, for the sum paid for the whole number was about half a million sterling.

The bill for keeping rolling stock in repair is a heavy item in the expenditure of any of our great companies. One of them pays over £500,000 a year in this way.

When a carriage is damaged a green ticket is affixed to it, which means that it must be detached and sent to hospital. An inspector then examines it, sees what has been done, and—above all—how long the repairs will take. The latter is an important point, for all trains on the main line system are kept as far as possible in the same "make-up" for at least six months.

The colour of the ticket indicates to the inspector the nature of the injury. If there is damage to a brake block the color is red, and in such a case the carriage must not be used on any account until properly repaired.

A £20,000 Coach.

One of the finest English trains ever constructed was made in the shops of the London and North-Western Railway. It was built for the King and cost £20,000. There are two royal saloons, each measuring sixty-nine feet in length, three saloons for the suite, and two brake vans. The whole train weighs 210 tons and is 385 feet long.

Another royal train, built in France for the late King of Greece, has a travelling saloon which is one of the finest ever constructed. It contains bedroom, toilet and bath rooms, with a library, a drawing room, and a dining-room. All are fitted with polished walnut and bronze, and lighted with hidden lamps. The bill for one vehicle was £20,000.

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ON SECURITY.

LONDON, June 24. Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in the course of the debate in the House of Commons to-night on the Security Pact, declared that Great Britain would join with the other great powers for the further limitation of naval armaments or for the reduction of land armaments. "The initiative regarding naval affairs, if they were to be treated separately," he said, "might better come from the power to which was due the summoning of the Washington Conference and the first international act of disarmament the world had seen. If we are thinking of land matters," he continued, "that security is a necessary preliminary and we are for that matter the United States, who have already reduced our land forces to a scale too large than is polite for the interests which we have to guard, are not, therefore, perhaps in the best position to summon a land conference." Mr. Chamberlain thought that if the powers with larger armies were once sure of their security, they would not be unlikely themselves to take the initiative in summoning an international conference, or inviting the League of Nations to do so, or coming before the conference or the League with spontaneous proposals for the reduction of armaments, which they had hitherto thought necessary for their safety.

LIBERAL WINS IN BRITISH BY-ELECTION.

LONDON, June 24. W. W. Wiggin, the Liberal candidate, defeated W. J. Tout, ex-M.P. Labour candidate, in the Oldham By-election to-day, polling 26,325 votes. Tout polled 21,702 votes.

MOUNTAIN CRASHES DOWN.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 24. A mountain of rocks, moving at an incredible speed, toppled into the Gros Ventre River, in the heart of the Teton Mountains, in Western Wyoming, yesterday, according to a message here to-night. A section of the Teton National Forest was smashed to splinters, several herds of cattle were swept away and many buildings lost, the advices said.

PORTUGUESE TROOPS FOR CHINA.

LISBON, June 24. A Portuguese warship will leave here Saturday for Shanghai, in view of the critical events in China. A cruiser next week will carry troops to Macao, the Portuguese dependency, at the entrance of the Canton River.

PARTICULARS OF DEFEAT OF LIBERAL GOVERNMENT.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 25. Premier E. H. Armstrong's Government went down to overwhelming defeat in the general elections held throughout Nova Scotia to-day. At an early hour this evening the indications were that the Conservatives under Hon. E. N. Rhodes would be returned with a majority ranging anywhere from thirty-five to forty in a House of forty-three members. The Premier personally suffered defeat in Shelburne, and at nine o'clock only two members of his administration were conceded a chance of election. The Attorney General, Hon. Walter J. O'Hearn, was buried beneath an avalanche of votes in Halifax, and Hons. J. J. Kinley and J. C. Tory, of Montreal, members of the Government without portfolio, were trailing under Conservative opponents. Two Liberals were elected in Antigonish. It was the first time in forty-three years that the Conservatives had secured a victory in the provincial elections. Labor with ten candidates in the field did not prove a factor in the contest. Hon. E. N. Rhodes, who will be called upon to form the new Government, won his seat with a safe margin in Hants.

HALIFAX, June 25. Hon. William Chisholm, Minister of Mines in the Armstrong Government, was victorious in Antigonish, winning a Laborite was returned in Cumberland County where he ran under Conservative endorsement. No other Labor candidates were near the winners. Premier Armstrong, who led the Government since early in 1919, was defeated in his own constituency of Shelburne. The only Liberal member of the last House to be returned was Hon. William Chisholm, Minister of Works and Mines, elected in Antigonish. Hon. E. N. Rhodes was elected with a good majority in Hants County. The result was a complete surprise to many, the popular belief having been that while the Government might be defeated it would be by a small majority. Victoria County, an old-time Liberal stronghold, returned one Liberal by a scant majority, while Antigonish returned two. The vote was fairly heavy and in every county carried by the Conservatives their majorities were bulky. Premier Armstrong would make no statement to-night, and Hon. Mr. Rhodes was still in his constituency of Hants and could not be reached by telephone. W. L. Hall, former leader of the Conservative Party in Nova Scotia, was elected in Queens, along with his colleague, Frank J. D. Barnham. Several constituencies were yet to be heard from, but it was not anticipated that they would change the general result. Col. A. Montgomery, Conservative head of Furness Withy Co. here, was elected in Halifax County with 7,000 majority.

N.S. LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL APPOINTMENTS.

HALIFAX, June 25. A. Macdonald, of Iona, Victoria County, Charles A. Campbell, Port William, King's County; Hon. J. Willie, Commesville, Digby County, member without portfolio in the present Government, and Joseph George Nombourquette, of Lower Landis, Richmond County, have been appointed members of the Legislative Council of the Province of Nova Scotia for a term of ten years from the date of appointment, according to an announcement appearing in this afternoon's issue of the Royal Gazette.

REVOLUTION IN GREECE.

FRENCH MAIL STRIKERS DRIVEN OUT.

PARIS, June 25. The mail carriers, striking for higher pay, who to-day barricaded themselves in one of the city's principal post offices, were driven out by police at 7 o'clock to-night.

CHINESE GOVERNOR BLAMES FOREIGNERS.

HONG KONG, June 25. The Chinese Civil Governor of Canton, in a note to the British Consul General regarding Tuesday's shooting in Canton, places the blame entirely on the foreigners. The killed and wounded, says the note, totalled over one hundred, and the brutal killing was premeditated and secretly planned. Replying to the note the British Consul General declared the defence forces of the British and French concessions had merely replied to an attack made upon them by Chinese troops or military students from the other side of the canal which separates Shamoen, the foreign settlement from Canton proper.

C. L. B. Cadets

This week Lieut. John Andrews is orderly Officer, whilst next for duty is Lieut. Ernest Chafe. Captain N. French, formerly of Bay Roberts, is now officially gazetted to A Company. The Battalion, with Bugle Band, Thursday evening parade on a route march countrywards. Their drums and bugles were heard to great advantage over hills and dales. Captain Len Stick, Adjutant, was in command. All ranks congratulate Captain Stick on the honours conferred on him Monday by Avalon Masonic Lodge, when he was installed as W. M. All ranks note with pleasure the recent marriage of Mr. Arthur Johnston, son of Perci Johnston, Esq., one of the Brigade's greatest supporters in its pioneer days. To the bridegroom and the happy bride, (nee Miss Marjorie Joffe), a graduate of Royal Victoria School of Nurses, Montreal, all ranks of the Brigade tender their congratulations and best wishes for a happy married life. Mr. Arthur Johnston has done yeoman service to the Battalion as an instructor of boxing, etc. Captain George House, of Field College Company, goes on a trip to Boston and American cities by S.S. Silvia leaving Saturday. All ranks wish him and his daughter, Miss Edith House, of Spencer College, a happy holiday.

WE congratulate the C.L.B. Athletic Association on the success of their annual Sports on St. John's day. All the programme was capably managed by the Executive in charge. The Colonel and staff express their appreciation of all the kind turns done by friends to make the day a success. The C.L.B. Ladies' Auxiliary Canteen was a big feature in catering to the requirements of those patronising the Sports and the financial results were most encouraging. The thanks of the Athletic Association are also tendered to those who donated the prizes.

The Blue Peter Boat Club are busy and have launched their practice boat "Red Cross." The C.L.B. footballers have applied for their new boat "Blue Peter" and will use her in the football race in August. We hear that the Blue Peter Club will give preference to all crews who rowed their boat "Red Cross" last year provided they apply for the new boat in time. Manager J. A. Hancock, of the football team, is very pleased with his lads to date. They are training well for the future. This team has now two members playing in the League games under seventeen years of age. This young team of footballers will be heard from in the future.

Lt-Col. Rendell, C.B.E., Officer Commanding, inspected Field College Company last week. The Company were fairly proficient. The lads were invited to attend all Church parades during the summer during the vacation. The Colonel presented sixteen lads with their marksmen's badges and one member with his five year good conduct service badge.

The Lieut-Col. and Finance Committee have decided to sell out their interests in the C.L.B. Boat Club. The deal was closed last week so that the Church Lads Brigade has now parted with the property, including boats, oars and accessories to the new owners, "The Blue Peter Boat Club" of which Mr. Ernest Chafe is President. The new owners are now in possession

Overwhelming Victory of the Conservative Party

Yesterday's General Election in Nova Scotia, the fourteenth since Confederation fifty-eight years ago, is the second occasion only when a Liberal majority has not been gained, and since 1882 that party has been continuously in power.

The last Conservative Government was in 1878, the leader of which was Hon. S. H. Holmes. In the last few months of the administration he was succeeded by Hon. J. S. D. Thompson, who later became Premier of Canada.

In the 1882 election Hon. W. T. Pipes led the Liberals to victory, and he was succeeded two years later by Hon. W. S. Fielding, who held the office until 1896, when he entered the arena of Federal politics.

The cabinet suffered further changes early this year when Hon. D. A. Cameron, Provincial Secretary, resigned his portfolio following an independent audit of the accounts of the Municipality of Cape Breton of which he is Treasurer. The reorganization was effected by Premier Armstrong passing over the portfolio of Works and Mines to Hon. Mr. Chisholm and himself taking the Provincial Secretaryship.

It was with this ministry that Premier Armstrong faced parliament at the opening of the last session, February 26 of this year, the forty-third year of Liberal rule in Nova Scotia. He had then 27 supporters and faced an opposition of 13 divided into Farmer-Progressives, Laborites, Conservatives and Independents, and there were two vacancies caused by death since the previous session.

Hon. E. A. Armstrong was called to form a government on Mr. Murray's resignation, which he did the same day, retaining for himself the portfolio of Works and Mines which he had held since 1911. The portfolio of Provincial Secretary vacated by Mr. Murray, was given to Hon. D. A. Cameron, a member of the Legislative Council, who shortly afterwards stood in a by-election in Victoria County formerly represented by Mr. Murray, and was elected by acclamation to the Assembly.

Three other acclamations occurred in January of that year. Walter J. O'Hearn was returned for Halifax County vacated by Hon. R. E. Finn, who had been elected to the Federal House. Mr. O'Hearn was at once given the portfolio of Attorney General, Hon. O. T. Daniels, former at-jorney General having resigned the portfolio but not his seat on the Executive Council. Hon. William Chisholm, representing Antigonish County, was given the portfolio of Public Highways vacated by the death of Hon. H. H. Wickwire, and James Sealy, Kentville, was elected by acclamation in Kings to fill the vacancy there created through the death of Mr. Wickwire.

The clean sweep of the forty-three years old administration, which includes not only the leader but all but one of his colleagues, must come as a surprise even to the most sanguine supporters of the conservatives. Generally speaking, "the desire for a change" has probably been one of the chief factors in causing the turnover of public sentiment, but there has been of late indications of dissatisfaction in the Maritime Provinces with their treatment by the Federal Government, and it cannot be doubted that the industrial unrest in Cape Breton and the unmistakable hostility to Besco have materially influenced the whole electorate.

The overwhelming victory of the Hon. S. N. Rhodes, the new Premier, is a mandate such as few leaders have been accorded. Among his colleagues are many able men, and while such a large following may not be altogether an unmitigated blessing it is certain that little time will be lost in tackling vigorously the outstanding problems.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

June 26th—Busy all this morning, being that I have neglected my work all this week and am now compelled to do a double amount in the time I have left to finish it. Among other things am greatly tempted to forego the writing of my journal for a season since there is now no news of any kind, and indeed, is the worst possible time of the year for the poor news writer. Coming home this day, am high knocked down a dozen times by motor coaches, and the half of them seem to be ignorant of the wide of the road they should drive on, which do make it all the more unuse for the poor pedestrian. By despatches out of Canada the most amazing news of the elections in Nova Scotia, being that the Liberals do elect but 3 members and the Conservatives 40 which methinks, is the largest majority ever known. The greatest hopes everywhere that the new government will make an early settlement of the strike at the Cape Breton mines.

WEEK-END SPECIALS.

Yesterday's Collision at Adelaide Street

In the motor accident to which reference was made yesterday as occurring on Wednesday at Adelaide and New Gower Street St. we are informed that the taxi owned by M. Chipman was considerably less damaged than the report showed. Seeing a collision inevitable, Chipman turned into Adelaide street, but owing to the closeness of the cars, was unable to clear the back mud guard of the other and the contact caused his motor to swerve into the building opposite.

Interesting Find

Courtenay, B.C., June. — George Smart, a butcher of Comox, made an interesting find last week while scraping a butcher block of Douglas fir. Embedded in the centre of the block was a hard substance which investigation showed to be an Indian arrow head, which some long dead dead native hunter must have fired into the tree at least one hundred years ago.

Outstanding Figures in N. S. Elections

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Leader of the Conservative party of Nova Scotia and returned for one of the seats in Hants County, was born in Amherst in 1877. A graduate of Acadia College and the Law School of Dalhousie University, he became a member of the law firm of Rhodes & Sterne in Amherst. In 1908 he was elected to the House of Commons to represent his native county, and held his seat until the general election of 1921. He was Speaker of the House of Commons from 1917 until his retirement. Mr. Rhodes came to Nova Scotia early in the present campaign and became a Conservative candidate for Hants County. On the resignation of W. L. Hall, K.C., leader of the Conservative Party, early in May, Hon. Mr. Rhodes was selected to take his place.

William Korrimer Hall, K.C., former leader of the Conservative party in Nova Scotia and from 1910 to 1920 a member of the Provincial Assembly for Queen's County, and returned with his colleague, Frank J. D. Barajum, was born in Melvern Square, Annapolis County, July 28, 1876. He graduated from Acadia and Dalhousie Universities and practiced law at Liverpool, later at Halifax. Early in the present campaign Mr. Hall resigned from the leadership but became a Conservative candidate in Queen's County.

Frank Stanfield, Vice-President of Stanfield's, Ltd., Truro, and director of numerous business operations in Canada, the victorious Conservative in Colchester County, was born in Truro April 24, 1872, where he commenced his business career as an office boy at the age of 14. He was elected to the Legislative Assembly to represent his county of Colchester in 1911 and again in 1916. He is President of the Liberal-Conservative Association in Nova Scotia.

Hon. Ernest Howard Armstrong, LL.D., Premier of Nova Scotia since 1923 when he attained office on the resignation of Hon. G. H. Murray, was born in North Kingston, King's County, July 27, 1864. He was educated at Acadia University and Dalhousie Law School. He practiced law at Weymouth, Digby County, and in Yarmouth, of which town he was for a time Mayor. He was elected to the Legislative Assembly from Yarmouth County in 1909 as a Liberal and has been in the House continuously since. He was defeated in the general elections of 1920 in Yarmouth County, but when a seat became vacant in Shelburne County, immediately after the election, he contested the bye-election and was returned. He became Minister of Public Works and Mines in 1911 and early this year, on the resignation of Hon. D. A. Cameron as Provincial Secretary, Mr. Armstrong took the portfolio, making Hon. William Chisholm Minister of Public Works and Mines. He has again met defeat in Shelburne County in the present campaign. He is a K.C., a high officer of the Grand Division Sons of Temperance and a Methodist. He has lived in Halifax several years.

New Steam Coach Arrives From England

One of the new steam coaches imported from England by the Railway Commission to be used for the summer traffic between St. John's and Kelligrews arrived by S. S. Newfoundland this morning. The coach was brought out in two sections on the main deck, one is the power unit and control part, which weighs six tons, and the other is the body of the coach, which weighs nine tons. The power unit and control has been supplied by the Sentinel Wagon Works, Ltd., London, and the car body and running gear by Cammell, Laird and Co., Nottingham. It is a steam operated, self-propelled car and the dimensions are as follows: Length of body, 66 ft., 6 ins.; length over fender, 57 ft., 5 ins.; height of rail to top of roof, 11 ft.; width over waist mouldings, 8 ft.; wheel base, engine truck, 7 ft.; wheel base trailing truck, 5 ft., 6 ins.; diameter of wheels, 2 ft., 6 ins. The power plant is a self-contained driving unit, mounted on a four-wheeled truck, consisting of a boiler, engine, water tank, coal bunkers, controls, etc., with chain drive to both axles of the truck. In order to permit the adjustment of the driving chains, the axles are arranged so that their position may be varied relative to the truck from and to each other. The engine, of Sentinel type, has two double acting high pressure cylinders, 6 1/2 in. in diameter and 9 in. stroke, with cylinders lubricated by a mechanical oil pump driven from the engine. The valves are specially designed for super-heated steam. The boiler is cylindrical, with short straight water tubes, and carries a working pressure of 275 lbs. to the square inch. The interior of the coach is similar to the first class car. The seats are arranged crossways and covered with cane, and have accommodation for 45 passengers, besides a small store for the carrying of baskets or hand grips. The Railway Commission are making arrangements to have the car ready for service early next week. A special time schedule will be drawn up, while books of tickets will be issued at reduced fare between St. John's and Kelligrews in order to convenience people settling along the railway line during the summer months. On arrival of the steamer this morning Mr. H. J. Russell, General Manager of the Railway, boarded the ship and made an inspection of the new coach. Arrangements had been made to have it delivered at the Dry Dock wharf, but owing to the place at present being very congested, it was decided to engage Mr. Lester's team to truck it to the Station, where it will be placed on the rails. The job is said to be a very difficult one, and in order to carry out the plans successfully Mr. Lester has been obliged to build a longer truck to accommodate it. This is being done today and it is quite possible the work of hauling it from the Furness wharf to the station will commence on Monday. The second coach ordered will be shipped from England by the Geraldine Mary, one of the A. N. D. Co. steamers, and will be landed at Botwood, to be used in the Corner Brook area.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

REVOLUTIONARY COUP DETAIL IN GREECE.

ATHENS, June 25. The Greek Government under the Premiership of Michalakopoulos has been deposed and a new Government under military control is installed at Athens. The revolutionary movement started at dawn simultaneously in Athens and Salonika when the anti-Government forces after a brief and harmless fusillade seized the telegraph offices and cut communications. The military movement had been foreseen for several days, but up to the last minute the Government had declared itself master of the situation and was absolutely convinced of the loyalty of the troops.

FRANCE PROTESTS MURDER OF SUBJECT.

PEKING, June 25. The French Minister to-day handed a note to the Chinese Foreign Office protesting against the murder of a French merchant, E. Pasquier, who was killed by Chinese rioters in Canton Tuesday. The note reserved the right to claim indemnity.

NORWEGIAN KING TO RECEIVE AMUNDSEN.

OSLO, June 25. King Haakon will receive Roald Amundsen, the explorer, and the members of his North Pole expedition immediately on their arrival here from Horton, where they will land on their return from Spitzbergen. A reception committee is planning festivities in honor of the explorers.

JAPAN PURCHASES SUGGESTIVE OF WAR PREPARATIONS.

LONDON, June 25. Despatches from Bombay to the Daily Mail and the Daily Telegraph assert that the belief prevails in Bombay that Japan is preparing for war with China. The belief is based mainly on the unusual dealings in the cotton market. Japanese exporters, it is asserted, are buying cotton very extensively and the stocks which were plentiful a month ago consequently are dwindling. The fact that Japan is reported also as making large purchases in the United States strengthens the belief of her warlike intentions, while a further statement that Japan is steadily buying manganese is held to show that she contemplates the manufacture of considerable munitions.

CHEAPER THAN BUTTER

Many people imagine that because CRISCO is so pure and such a choice article of food, it is expensive. That is not so, for CRISCO is really cheaper than cooking butter—and vastly superior. You use one fifth less Crisco than you would cooking butter and get better results. Try CRISCO instead of lard or cooking butter and notice how much more wholesome your foods will taste. At all grocers.

Caribou Lodge
No. 148 I. O. O. F.

RECEIVES BRO. J. A. CRAIG, P.G.M.,
P.G.P., P.G.E.

On Thursday last, the 18th June, there stepped from the express train a distinguished representative of the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows, in the person of Bro. J. A. Craig, of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. A deputation of the Brothers of Caribou Lodge were on the platform to meet him, and that first handshake with Bro. Craig carried in its grip the sentiments of the poet: "Come, give me your hand, we are Brethren all!" In the motor car, kindly placed at his disposal by Bro. Edgar Stanley, he was taken to the L.O.A. Hall, where our Lodge then went into session, and Bro. Craig was heartily given the honors of the Order. After this the Secretary read the address of welcome. Bro. J. A. Craig then presented Caribou Lodge with his photograph, and a set of Gavel, after which he addressed us on the advancement, ideals and principles of Oddfellowship, and the beneficial and other institutions, connected therewith. Bro. Craig is an earnest, and cautious, speaker. Every word is weighed carefully before expressed. He possesses a zeal, and enthusiasm, that is deep and restrained believing with Wordsworth, that:—

"God approves
The depth, but not the tumult of the soul—
A fervent, not ungovernable love."

On Saturday evening a banquet was held in honor of Bro. Craig, at the popular "Tuck Hotel," at Shoal Harbor. Mrs. Caleb Tuck, the hostess, prepared with artistic taste, and skill, tables laden with a variety of refreshments to which the party did justice without mercy. The following toast list was carried to completion:—

THE KING—Prop. Bro. Huntley Butler; Resp. "God Save The King."

THE ORDER—Prop. Bro. W. G. Tilley; Resp. P.G.M. Craig.

Charming little Dresses in White Voile and Muslin, daintily trimmed with fine lace insertion and ribbon.

OUR GUESTS—Prop. Bro. A. C. Pittman; Resp. P.G.M. Craig.

THE LADIES—Prop. Don. Tilley; Resp. Bro. William Pittman.

TRIO—Mrs. A. C. Pittman; Messrs. J. G. Tilley and A.C. Pittman.

OUR COUNTRY—Prop. Bro. Chesley Mills; Resp. Bro. W. G. Tilley.

THE CHAIRMAN—Prop. Bro. Geo. Gulliford; Resp. The Chairman.

The Chairman, Bro. Len. Mills, Noble Grand of Caribou Lodge to sing "Auld Lang Syne," thus bringing to a close one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent in this locality.

Past Grand Master J. A. Craig left Shoal Harbor by Sunday's express, for Grand Falls and Corner Brook. Many Oddfellows, with their wives and friends, were at the station to bid him au revoir, but not "Good-bye." Brother Craig has come and gone in the physical sense, but he has left an impression behind him. The cords of fraternal love are drawn tighter, the links are forged stronger.

A. C. PITTMAN,
Sec. Secretary.

Obituary

MRS. TERESA BURKE

After a long and painful illness, borne with a spirit of fortitude which had been her outstanding characteristic all through life. Mrs. Theresa Burke, wife of Thomas Burke, St. Jacques, passed to her reward on the morning of June 22nd, surrounded by several members of the family and fortified by the rites of the Church of which she had been an exemplary member. The late Mrs. Burke, whose maiden name was Farrel, was born at Bay du Nord, but since the time of her marriage had resided at St. Jacques, where until recently, on his retirement from business, her husband conducted an extensive mercantile in partnership with other members of his family. Her charity to the poor and afflicted was unbounded and her hearty and valued co-operation in local church activities was always extended to the different priests who have been in charge of the Parish. Her deep piety and sterling faith edified all who came into contact with her, yet all was done in such a way as to avoid the least show or ostentation.

Deep sorrow for the departure of such a valiant woman will be felt, not alone in St. Jacques, but by her many acquaintances and friends throughout the West Coast and elsewhere. The funeral took place from the parish church, St. Jacques, on June 25th, attended by a large concourse of people. Many messages of sympathy were received from points in Newfoundland, Canada and the United States, all testifying to the esteem in which the deceased lady was held by a large circle of friends.—R.L.P.

How the Romans Shaved

THE RAZOR IN ANCIENT TIMES.

Most men shave once a day; at least a tenth of the world's population with a razor every morning, yet the literature of shaving is non-existent. Recently, however, the readers of the Times went so far as to discuss the question of how the Romans shaved, and we are indebted to the "Hairdressers' Weekly Journal" for the following comments, interesting, amusing, and instructive, on that correspondence.

Lathered With Pumice-Stone.

One of the writers raised the question whether it was not probable that the Romans shaved with pumice-stone. Samuel Pepys undoubtedly practised this method, we are told, and found it "very easy, speedy, and clean."

This brought forth a reply to the effect that the Romans certainly used pumice-stone, but this correspondent suggests that the substance was used for what he describes as a "super-shave." He cites the younger Pliny in confirmation, as he describes a dandy of his day as being both shaved and pumice-stoned—rasus atque etiam pumicatus.

Although shaving did not become a part of the regular toilet for some centuries, it appears to have been the fashion in Rome from some time after 300 B.C. to the reign of Hadrian. The first person of note to practise shaving every day was the younger Scipio Africanus. Under the Empire beards came in again.

"Clipped, Shaved, or Pulled?"

No doubt even in those days the hairdresser's customers varied just as much as they do in the twentieth century. Martial, in one of his epigrams, draws a picture of one of the "glided youth" who had time enough on his hands to have his beard treated in all three possible ways—toned, clipped with scissors; rased, shaved; pulled.

But while the methods were freely discussed, very little information was forthcoming as to the material of which the razors were made.

One writer, however, is emphatic. He says the Romans used steel razors as we do. This correspondent also brings to our notice an interesting sidelight on the training of the Roman barber's apprentice. Apparently he received his early instruction by means of an implement which precluded him from making a sanguinary mess of the customer's face.

A Grecian Father.

In conclusion, Cicero's story of Dionysius, the hated tyrant of Syracuse, who flourished from 480 to 370 B.C., may be quoted, although it does not properly come under the heading of "How the Romans Shaved," for Dionysius was a Greek—
"Further, to avoid entrusting his neck to a barber, he (Dionysius) taught his own daughters to shave him. So the royal maidens, acting in the mean and servile occupation of barbers, shaved their father's beard and head. Nay, even then, as soon as they were grown up, he deprived of the iron (instrument) and ordered them to sing his head with heated walnut shells."

Even if we are wrong in concluding that here we have the earliest mention of women barbers and singeing, the references to the "mean and servile occupation" would seem to emphasize the fact that even over 2,000 years ago the slogan of the "elite" was "Only a barber!"

Spanning the Severn

The first iron bridge in the world was Ironbridge, in Shropshire, which spans the River Severn. The work was put in hand and the various parts cast in 1778 at the Coalbrookdale Ironworks, the proprietor of which, Mr. Abraham Darby, was the designer of the structure.

Approximately five hundred tons of iron were used in the construction of the bridge. A remarkable feature of the undertaking is that all the castings are toyed together, no welding or screws having been used. The roadway, which is twenty-four feet wide, has an iron foundation, upon which is laid a few inches of clay, which in its turn is covered by

Britain's Men in Blue

There is One Policeman to Every 665 of us.

In charge of every 665 of us in this country is exactly one policeman. It is as well to say "exactly," because if there were any decimal fraction of a policeman left over, the fact would most certainly be noted on the pages of figures got together by the State concerning its men in blue!

On one page we learn that last year's total cost of our constabulary ran into nineteen million pounds—a large enough sum, but not, by any means big when dealing with a force the usual road metalling forming the surface. The main arch has a span of 100 feet.

that in all, counting additional constables, women police, reserves and "specials," runs into well over 165,000.

London apart, this army of police is divided into 60 county and 123 borough forces, ranging from Lancashire with its 2,014 regular policemen to Little Tilverton with its 11 men in blue.

Liverpool, the largest borough force in England outside the metropolis, has an establishment of over 1,700 men.

The fact is that the town policemen in all outnumber the county policemen, for though the latter have more people to look after, their flocks are widely separated and can scarcely collect into the densely packed criminal areas which require close supervision.

Every country constable patrols on an average rather over 2,000 acres, but his brother of the town is responsible for but 43. Extreme cases are Hereford and Shropshire, where each county constable looks after 6,000 acres, as opposed to the City of London, which runs to "1 acre, 1 policeman."

London is, of course, in every way exceptional. As the capital city of the Empire, its two forces are directly under the control of the State, whereas the provincial bodies are locally run, the Government only insisting upon a certain standard of efficiency and discipline in return for its grant in aid of local police rates.

This accounts for the enormous comparative strength of the London forces, the Metropolitan Police, indeed, outnumbering the totals of all the other boroughs in England and Wales put together, while in the City of London there is actually one constable to every twelve of the resident population.

When we come to policewomen—there are 85 in all—we find that some places believe in them and some do not.

London has 20 ladies, Cambridge 2 and Bootle, 1. Rural Shropshire runs 2.

The figures of the regular police reserves are also odd, for while Birmingham can turn out 280 in case of emergency, the whole of the West Riding Force can only fall back on one man to help with a population of about a million and a half!

In emergencies, London can call on nearly 10,000 "specials."

Three hundred and seventy thousand pounds was taken by the authorities for hiring out police for exhibitions, football grounds and so on. You see, the management of any private place excepting great crowds has to pay for the police necessary to regulate its patrons.—J.G.

Contracts Valued at Several Millions—Cruisers and Submarines for Australia.

It is officially announced that contracts amounting to nearly £2,500,000 have been placed in Great Britain for new cruisers and submarines for the Australian Navy. The High Commissioner for Australia, explains that the construction of these cruisers and submarines is in accordance with the Naval developmental programme resolved upon by the Commonwealth Government last year. This programme will involve an expenditure of £1,000,000 per annum for five years, exclusive of the cost of the cruisers and submarines, and is additional to the ordinary maintenance and administrative costs of the Australian Navy, which for this year amounts to over £2,354,000. The contracts placed in Great Britain include 20,000 ton cruisers to be constructed by John Brown and Co., Clydebank. The cost of the hull and machinery for each ship will be over £1,000,000. The ships will be similar to the five "County" class of cruisers now under construction for the British Government. Vickers

(Limited) and Armstrong Whitworth & Co. (Limited) will each supply the main armament for one ship. The contracts for the gun mountings have been placed already at approximately £350,000 to each firm, and further orders will be placed shortly for the remainder of the armament. The armour contracts at a total cost for both ships of over £100,000 have been divided between William Beardmore and Co. (Limited), Glasgow, Laird and Co. (Limited), and David Colville and Sons (Limited), Vickers

(Limited) have secured the contract for two submarines at a cost of about £200,000 for the hull and machinery for each vessel.

BOWRING BROTHERS, LTD.

Loosely Coupled

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

In order to get any selectivity from your regenerative receiver the primary (antenna) circuit must be fairly loosely coupled to the secondary circuit. The term "loosely coupled" is quite familiar to the average fan, but the conditions which limit and govern the closeness or looseness of coupling are not generally known and the term is often misused. The looseness of coupling between the antenna and secondary circuits depends on three things, mainly. The first is the size of the antenna. If you are using an antenna a hundred feet high and a hundred and fifty feet long, you may still be using quite close coupling in your receiver if the antenna coil has only a few turns which are quite a distance from the secondary. On the other hand, if you are using a very small antenna the primary coil may have many more turns and the primary and secondary coils may be very close together and still the coupling will be too loose. If you are using a comparatively large antenna the primary coil (providing it is a fixed time primary—one having a fixed number of turns with no provision for tuning the coil to the incoming wave) should consist of not over fifteen turns at the most. Some mechanical arrangement should be provided whereby the distance (coupling) between the primary and secondary can be varied so that the optimum distance can be found. This "optimum" coupling will depend upon what wavelength the secondary is being tuned to, and in all cases possible the primary coil should be arranged so that its coupling to the secondary can be easily and quickly changed. If your antenna is the average broadcast listener's type—a hundred to a hundred and twenty feet high—the antenna coil should contain not less than 15 turns and possibly as high as 30. Again the coupling should be variable. If your antenna is very small the primary coil should contain not less than 30 turns coupled quite closely to the secondary, but still VARIABLY coupled so that you will not get in too many "dead spots" on the secondary tuning condenser due to the high absorption of power by the antenna from the receiving tube. Make the couple variable and, as an average, see that the primary coil has about 15 turns and you will be safe.

The Inca's Ring

Fame comes suddenly to a few men, but it came to Sir Rider Haggard in a single night. From the moment of the publication of "King Solomon's Mines," the name of this popular writer whose death recently came as a great shock to his countless admirers, was a household word all over Britain. Sir Rider wrote "King Solomon's Mines" as the result of a five shillings bet. His brother had just finished "Treasure Island," then a new book, and declared it was the finest thing he had ever read. Rider bet him five shillings he would write a book that would sell as well. His brother laughed, but Rider was in earnest. He started work at once, and presently finished his book. He spent much time in these days traveling between London and Norwich, and the story was written in the train. One of the big scenes in "King Solomon's Mines" was inspired by a memory of his school days. A private tutor, to whom he went when he was nine years old, always wore a ring, which he told Rider, had been taken from the finger of a Peruvian mummy. This mummy had been found in a mound sepulchre in the land of the Incas, and as the discoverer touched the ring the whole mummy crumbled into dust. Some time after "King Solomon's Mines" had been written, the novelist was able to secure this wonderful old ring, and presented it to the British Museum. Gold-dotted red Georgette made one of the prettiest ensembles of the season.

Subterranean Ponies

GIVEN A TASTE OF THE WIDE OUT DOORS.

NANAIMO, B.C., June 10.—A number of veteran pit ponies, mules and horses are now basking in the light of day and the green pasture of the surface after twelve years of continuous service underground in the workings of the Western Fuel Corporation here. The strike of the company's miners presented the opportunity for a "visit outside." While a great majority of the animals have served several years below the surface, it was the first vacation in the great out-of-doors for some of them since 1913 when the last strike occurred. When the mines closed down recently the animals were hoisted from their darkened underground stables and driven to a large pasture field. At first they appeared hypnotized with their good fortunes but this soon disappeared and with a whinny of delight and a flick of the hind legs they scampered over the broad green fields, rolled in the luxuriant grass, and then after the first exuberant outburst, grazed contentedly for the first time since their young days. They are willing to join the underground strikers in a lay-off of indefinite duration. To the animals of the mine only is a coal strike welcome.

Women Who Make Mischief

John Galsworthy, in a brilliant little study of the Housewife, tells how that paragon of virtue, whose reputation was unassailable before the world, came once or twice within range of the law of libel and slander.

Such women may not be called with justice "catty" women; but they do very often make an uncommon amount of mischief. Anything in Mrs. X that clashes with their idea of decorum, propriety, reticence calls forth their strictures. They are unable to curb their resentment, their disapproval.

At the back of the poisoned tongue there is generally a cause. Such women are nearly always devoid of loyalty and to prostitute each person as they come into contact with him or her.

There is only one way to handle such women—that is to strike them off one's visiting list so soon as their evil propensity becomes apparent for to have any sort of social dealings with them is to lay up a store of inevitable trouble.

Child's Tan calf, all Leather Laced Oxfords, sizes 5 to 8, only $2.00 pair at F. SMALLWOOD'S, June 25th again, "What a pity that Mrs. Y can't manage her children, they are nice kids, but utterly undisciplined, poor dear—she is a dear—she can't see how tired her husband is of her."

In this way the woman who makes mischief does her worst while appearing to be no more than merely hopelessly indiscreet. That, of course, is her whole art—to the malicious with the face and voice of an artless fool.

Sometimes this passion for inserting daggers in the backs of people takes even more dangerous forms. Lies about small matters calculated to breed unhappiness do not satisfy her.

When this propensity takes this form it may be definitely regarded as mental disease. When it reaches a further stage it develops into pathological lying, and sometimes to even worse—that strange, sinister kink which makes women write "poisoned letters."

At the back of the poisoned tongue there is generally a cause. Such women are nearly always devoid of loyalty and to prostitute each person as they come into contact with him or her.

Such women are terribly dangerous. They do not come out bluntly with the statement that: "Mrs. X's behaviour is a scandal, and so bring themselves within reach of the law. No, they are far more subtle. Their poisoned shafts are of a venom scarcely comprehended by men.

What the Waves Reveal

We came across so many references to the "blue waters of the sea" that we are rather disappointed when at the seaside the waves fail to live up to the phrase. We feel that the sea ought to be blue.

Really, however, the sea is a huge mirror, and reflects what falls on it. It is the blue skies over the Mediterranean that give it its beautiful blue colour. A grey or black sky would at once remove the "blueness."

The nature of the bottom, too, has a bearing both on the actual and on the apparent colour. In shallow seas the scouring of the bottom stirs up deposits that make the water a dirty grey. But if the bottom is clean and of hard sandstone, the sea seems to be a beautiful silver-grey, with purple shades in the wave troughs.

Majestic Features Please Patrons

"MY WIFE AND I" A NINE PART WARNER WILL BE SCREENED NEXT WEEK.

An unfillable role, James Cruze believed he was up against such a proposition when it became necessary to select the cast for his latest Paramount picture, "Ruggles of Red Gap," a picturization of a novel by Harry Leon Wilson, which is showing at the Majestic Theatre to-day and to-morrow afternoon and night.

All characters have been selected. Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson, Chas. Ogle and many others included. But what about the title role? Production executives at Paramount's West Coast studio finally decided upon Edward Horton, a newcomer on the screen and unknown to Paramount audiences, though a stage actor of repute and experience.

In a statement issued by Jesse L. Lasky he declared that he believed Mr. Horton to be the only man in the theatrical or picture world, at that time answering to the requirements of such a role. As a result, in "Ruggles of Red Gap" screen fans see something entirely different in the way of character acting, for between Ernest Torrence and Edward Horton audiences are kept on the verge of collapse from laughter throughout the action.

Those who saw it last night expressed very favourable comment for "Ruggles of Red Gap," and advise all who can to attend the Majestic to-night.

Monday the Majestic patrons will see the story that evoked considerable newspaper comment "My Wife and I" with the renowned Irene Rich the star.

Obituary

Death has cast a gloom over the home of Mr. Thomas Ford and family of Amherst Cove, Bonavista, when their eldest son, Nicholas, aged 36 years, of New York, was hit on May 23rd by a motor taxi whilst crossing the street to join his wife and child who were at a friend's house. He was taken to the hospital and everything possible was done for him, but was of no avail. He passed away four hours later.

He was a man of good character and also was noted for good workmanship, being a carpenter by trade. Deceased resided in the U.S.A. for 17 years, was a member of the L.O.A. and his many friends will regret to hear of his sudden passing.

ARRIVES WITH PRISONER.—A prisoner for the penitentiary arrived by yesterday's express from Bay of Islands, in charge of Const. Pittman. The man was convicted for a breach of the Alcoholic Liquors Act, and was sentenced to four months' imprisonment.

Little Jack Rabbit by David Cory

Pitter, patter on the pane Sings the gentle summer rain; Rustle, rustle go the leaves On the wind-blown maple trees. But inside the bungalow Hearts with sunshine are aglow.

Yes, sir, the little white house in the dear Old Bramble Patch is full of sunshine that is never hidden by a cloud. And the name of that sunshine is just plain every-day happiness in what we have and what we do and the Golden Rule for me and you. Yes, sir, again, Little Reader, Little Jack Rabbit was always happy no matter what kind of weather was without.

"Who is calling Little Me? You can't guess more times than three." "Don't have to?" answered a cherry voice. "It's your old Uncle Lucky. Raining over your way?" "Well, I should say so," replied the bunny boy. "There are so many rain drops falling I can't count them."

MONUMENT ERECTED.—A monument to the late Capt. Gerald Whitty, who was killed in a motor accident last fall, was erected at Belvedere during the week. The monument, a splendid example of the stone cutters' art, is of polished Aberdeen red granite and carries the Regimental Emblem. The work was performed by Muir's Marble Works and is a credit to that firm.

Solution of yesterday's puzzle.

Child Suffers Broken Arm. Mary, the five year old daughter of Mr. Patrick Brien, fell over a flight of stairs at her home yesterday and received a broken arm. She was conveyed to hospital, and upon an X-Ray examination, it showed that the arm had been broken in two places. The little girl was doing well last night.

The Roma

In 1622 a fine writing from the springs of oil occurred now Allegheny. Cou-dians when they a new used to be of the water of the buffalo and ticks ranged the southern. Now they with the Red remains. Such was the first in the New World, produces millions barrels of the valuable product. Excellent history well to come back to the production of the Western land. Oil has been known time immemorial. The cases of the Hittite was annually visited pilgrims. The Ten was for centuries red fire, and the was still visited by Marco Polo, he saw and described it and Persia has been the most times to the years the Persian proved to be the world. We find that the use of oil from Persia in the first century is the first recorded history of its use for After the refining process petroleum was tested, and it was had elapsed but it this purpose. Not a hundred years ago the sputtering fire of animal or vegetable march of civilization latest products of substance which of the parts of the world. In 1859 the first in America was discovered within a comparatively few miles of the market found by a writer in "John ly"). Propelling British The torch of soon carried into the of the world of rich, and for lamp found to way low light on earth. A common notion but what a reality it! Other and varied for the remaining oil, chief among the sion of motor-vehicle As kerosene it is dark places as in our cars fly along smoothly, and with it minimizes the electric motors, and factories, and as the warships of the sea.

The Romance of Oil
PRECIOUS MINERAL THAT WAS ONCE NEGLECTED.

In 1622 a Franciscan missionary, writing from America, spoke of "the springs of oil," occurring in what is now Alleghany County. The Red Indians when they suffered from sickness used to skim it from the surface of the water in the creeks and drink it as medicine.

This was in the days when herds of buffalo and flocks of wild turkeys ranged the continent from north to south. Now they are gone, together with the Red Indians, and only the oil remains.

Such was the first reference to oil in the New World, which now annually produces millions upon millions of barrels of this valuable and indispensable product. But for the real ancient history of oil we naturally have to come back to the Old World, though in production it lies far behind the Western lands.

Oil has been known at Baku since time immemorial. Baku was the Mecca of the Hindus fire worshippers, and was annually visited by thousands of pilgrims. The Temple of Surakhani was for centuries the Seat of the Sacred Fire, and as late as the 'eighties was still visited by priests from India. Marco Polo, the Venetian traveller, saw and described the burning springs, and Persia has been known since earliest times to contain oil. Of recent years the Persian fields have been proved to be some of the richest in the world.

We find that the Romans knew the use of oil from Persia and burned it in lamps in the Temple of Jupiter. This is the first recorded instance in history of its use for lighting purposes. After the decline of the Roman Empire petroleum was forgotten or neglected, and it was not until centuries had elapsed that it was again used for this purpose.

Not a hundred years ago our ancestors wrote their manuscripts by the flitting light of a candle, or by the sputtering flare of a lamp burning animal or vegetable oil. But the march of civilization discovered the latest properties in the thick viscous substance which oozed out from certain parts of the earth's crust.

In 1659 the first oil-well was sunk in America by a man named Drake, and within a comparatively short time other wells were sunk and a ready market found for the products (says a writer in "John O'London's Weekly").

Propelling Britain's Warships. The torch of enlightenment was soon carried into the uttermost corners of the world, and into the homes of rich, and poor alike the paraffin lamp found its way, diffusing its mellow light on countless family circles. A common enough article surely, but what a wealth of romance behind it!

Other and varied uses were found for the remaining fractions of crude oil, chief among which is the propulsion of motor vehicles.

As kerosene it lights our way in the dark places; as motor spirit it makes our cars fly along the road easily, smoothly, and swiftly; as a lubricant it minimizes the wear and tear of the gigantic machines in the world's great factories; and as fuel oil it propels the warships of Britain across every sea.

French Naturalization
During the year 1924, nineteen thousand three hundred and eighty-five foreigners, among which were seven hundred and ninety-eight Germans, assumed French citizenship through the various methods of naturalization, according to advice received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York, from its French Information Service.

The above numbers include five thousand four hundred and thirty-two minors, of which four thousand three hundred and eleven were assigned to citizenship by their parents, while one thousand one hundred and twenty-one retain their right to make a decision on the matter during the year following their majority. Taken as a whole, naturalization of all categories showed a decrease during 1924, of nine hundred and twenty-three, as compared with 1923.

Fads and Fashions

The prettiest summer flowers bloom at the borders of voile frocks.

Flesh-colored velvet slippers are gay with applied gold kid flowers. Semi-sports shoes are showing rounded toes.

The new silhouette is decidedly a fluttering one.

A new scarf ties in the back and hangs in loops.

Two shades of the same color are often combined.

There are many hints that the carrying will return.
