discovery struck him with something stronger than surprise. The idea of poverty seemed incongruous in connection with the reliance, the reserve, the personality of the man. With a certain embarrassed haste he stepped forward and touched his arm. "Look here," he said as the other turned quietly. "I have followed you Hon. Mr. ARMSTRONG, by command of His Honour the Lieutenant-Gov-ernor, laid on the table of the House the Annual Report of the Library Commissioners and Librarian for the to exchange cards. It can't injure either of us, and I—I wish to know my other self." He laughed nervously as he drew out his cardcase.

The stranger watched him in silence. There was the same faint contempt, but also there was a reluctant interest in his glance as it passed from the fingers fumbling with the case to the pale face with the square jaw, straight mouth and level eyebrows drawn low over the gray eyes. When at last the card was held out to him he took it without remark and slipped it into his pocket.
Chilcote looked at him eagerly. "Now

It is interesting to note in the case of each of the towns what percentage the bonded debt of each is of their respective assessments. The bonded debt of the municipalities about reaches three-quarters of a million dollars. "After all, if it amuses you"- he

The effort of opening them By one of those rare occurrences, those chances that seem too wild for real life and yet belong to no other sphere, the two faces so strangely hidden and strangely revealed were identical, feature for feature. It seemed to each man that he looked not at the face of another, but at his own face on a fresh day—the intimate certainty of what he would see on opening them —seemed to weight his lids. The heavy, half closed curtains, the blinds severely drawn, the great room with its spleddid furniture, its sober coloring is scent of damp London winter—above all, Allsopp, silent, respectful and respectable—were the things to dread.

A full minute passed while he still feigned sleep. He heard Allsopp stir discreetly, then the inevitable information broke the slience:

"Nine o'clock, sir!"

He opened his eyes, murmured something and closed them again.

The man moved to the window, quietly pulled back the curtains and half drew the blind. "Better night, sir, I hope?" he venured softly.
Chilcote had drawn the bedclothes over his face to screen himself from the daylight, murky though it was. "Yes," he responded, "Those beast-ly nightmares didn't trouble me for ly nightmares didn't frouble me for once." He shivered a little as at some recollection. "But don't talk—don't remind me of them. I hate a man who has no originality." He spoke sharply. At times he showed an almost childish irritation over trivial things.

Allsopp took the remark in silence. Crossing the wide room he began to Crossing the wide room, he began to lay out his master's clothes. The ac-tion affected Chilcote to fresh annoy-

"Confound it!" he said. "I'm sick of that routine! I can see you laying out my winding sheet the day of my burial. Leave those things. Come back in half an hour."

Allsopp allowed himself one gland at his master's figure huddled in the great bed; then, laying aside the coat he was holding, he moved to the door. With his fingers on the handle, he "Will you breakfast in your own oom, sir, or downstairs?" Chilcote drew the clothes more tight from under the pillow and wiped his forehead. Then he held his hand to the light and studied it. The hand looked sallow and unsteady. With a nervous gesture he thrust the salver back upon the table and slid out of bed. Moving hastily across the room, he stopped before one of the tall ward-robes and swung the door open; then, after a furtive glance around the room, he thrust his hand into the recesses of a shelf and fumbled there. The thing he sought was evidently not hard to find, for almost at once he withdrew his hand and moved from the wardrobe to a table beside the fire-place, carrying a small glass tube filled with tabloids.

On the table were a decanter, a siphon and a water jug. Mixing some whisky, he uncorked the tube. Again he glanced apprehensively toward the door, then with a very nervous hand dropped two tabloids into the glass.

White they dissolved be stood with his hand on the table and his eyes fixed on the floor, evidently restraining his impatience. Instantly they had disappeared he seized the glass and drained it at a draft, replaced the bottle in the wardrobe and, shivering slightly in the raw air, slipped back

When Allsopp returned he was situp, a cigarette between his lips, teacup standing empty on the salver. The nervous irritability had gone from his manner. He no longer moved jerkily; his eyes looked bright-er, his pale skin more healthy. "Ah, Allsopp," he said, "there are some moments in life, after all. It isn't all blank wall." "I ordered breakfast in the small terning room, sir," said Allsopp, without a change of expression. Chilcote breakfasted at 10. His ap etite, always fickle, was particularly incertain in the early hours. He helped himself to some fish, but sent away his plate untouched; then, having drunk two cups of tea, he pushed back his chair, lighted a fresh cigarette and shook out the morning's newspaper. Twice he shook it out and twice turn ed it, but the reluctance to fix his mind upon it made him dally. The effect of the morphia tabloids was still apparent in the greater steadiness of his hand and eye, the regained quiet of his susceptibilities, but the respite was temporary and lethargic. The early days-the days of six years ago, when these tabloids meant an even sweep of thought, lucidity of brain, a balance of judgment in thought and effort—were days of the past. With three-months it will be abusing in three months it will be abusing him again. The friends and allies of the Canadian Tories, the Unionists, have the same admiration for Mr. Churchill as heretofore. In the last number of the "National Review", a magazine very friendly to Mr. Borden and his proposals, there occurs a vigorous article giving the opinion which Mr. Borden's British allies hold of the strenuous occu-pant of the Admiralty office. It speaks of him as one "who may perhaps be des scribed without offence as the wild cat stock of the speculative politician. . . . His whole record, in other lines, would have disqualified him from any further employment in the service of the State." The writer goes on to blame him for every act since becoming First Lord, to Home Rule, for weakening the Mediterranean fleet, for dismissing Admirals, for the fact that there is a deficiency of 20,000 men in the navy, and for many other things. Says the article: "Mr. Churchill suffers under the delusion that he is Lord High Admiral of the Royal Navy. So protoud is his ignorance of his constitutional position, or so cynically regard.

Any plan which could not be constitutional position, or so cynically regard. him for taking part in favor o element at the Admiralty for political purposes." Now all this acrid eriticism of Mr. Charchill's course is frough Mr. Borden's friends and his party's allies in Sagiand. The British Unionsite declare that he has mismanaged and is bringing to a rainous state of inem' cleacy the British Navy, and the British Librals say that he went out of LOCAL REPRESENTATION. Dartmouth Town Council appointed a committee to take up the question with Municipality committee.

A special meeting of the Dartmoutl Town Council was held at 5 o'clock last evening for the purpose of dealing with a letter from the clerk of the Municipal Council' re legislative representation for the county. There were present, Mayor Williams, Councillors Mosher, Van Buswithout any interference from the cheaper sources.

In connection with the skilled labor market, it is learned that the Nova Scotia Construction Company have communicated with the Carpenters Union in this city asking them to supply thirty good men for the contracts which their company now have on hand in Halifax. This will, if arranged, relieve the local tension considerably, as there are at presentabout 300 carpenters gut of work in Sydney.

The Carpenters' Union also anticipate to relieve their economic citaation by pressing their demand for $2.00 per day of aine hours, to take effect May lat. The paluters and decorators local are also after a raise, and are asking $3 per day of nine hours after April 15th. So far, neither body have received any reply from the master builders and master painters.

MONTERAL, April 1.—There will probably be a survey made this year by the Federal Government for a new railway route from Amherst, N. to Truro as the result of a deputation sent to Ottawa by the Maritime Board of Trade. The purpose is to avoid the steep grade over the Folleigh Mountain. Mr. Matthew Lodge. Freedicato the Board returning from Ottawa to day, said he last the expital with the impression that the present. Minister of Railways will never consent to any more railway building in connection with the LO.R. that does not have for its object the lowering of grades. As for double tracking the I. C. R. between Monoton and Halifax, he did not think that the work would be attempted for the reason that there would have to be a 30-mile pusher over the very severe grade. Though the late Petar S. Archibald had claimed that an eight mile pusher would suffice, it appears that engineers who have lately taken the matter up claim that the 30 mile estimate would be nearer the mark, whereas the Parrsboro route, either for a single or double track, would be of a very easy grade. He maintained that if the C. P. R. had got into Halifax twenty-five years ago, it would have been the making of the city as well $2.00 to $2.25 TUTTLE'S 203 Barrington St. HALIFAX.

QUEBEC LOSE AGAIN.

At the laying of the foundation-stone of the King Edward Memorial Hall at Newmarket last month, Viscount Villors sanior steward of the Jockey Club, said:

Newmarket had exceptional opportunities of seeing King Edward as a sportsman, for whenever he could he came thither, although duty always took precedence over his pleasures. He came because he felt at home at Newmarket. Their sport was in every way better for the interest he exhibited in it. They always thought of him as a true sportsman, and rejoiced that King George was following him.

A Re-Appearance!

During the Autumn and early Winter it was practically impossible to get INVER-NESS IMPERIAL COAL from the Mines. The situation has changed now, and we are again able to get full supplies. Inverness has secured a firm place among Halifax Coal Consumers entirely on merit. Beginning in a small way some years ago, its sales have to-day reached proportions of a very satisfactory nature. These are the reasons:

INVERNESS burns with a bright, clear flame, practically without soot, in this respect resembling Hard Coal. It is Coal which does not coke or run together, consequently, it required no poking. In other words "no coke, no poke." The Coal leaves very little ash, creates no hirsute appendages on stove or range covers, and is a very satisfactory fuel for broiling and toasting. IMPERIAL in name, it is Imperial in its burning qualities. We have Inverness in stock to fill all orders.

15 and 20. WINNIPEG, Man., April 1 .- With a view WINNIPSO, Man., April 1.—With a view to ascertaining general conditions throughout the country and the probable date for the commencement of seeding, the Free Press gathered 200 reports, a summary of which shows that while snow is deep at a number of points varying from 13 inches to three feet on the whale, the land is clear, and that the seeding will be general between April 15 and 20.

While the contact of the seeding will be general between April 15 and 20.

will be general between April 15 and 20. While this is on an average of 12 days later than 1912, there may easily be a better record, as the early seeding of 1912 was followed by two weeks of very heavy frosts which damaged considerably the grain in the ground, which had to be reseeded. Snowfalls throughout the whole three provinces have been unusually heavy and there is abundance of moisture in some sections, so much that it will retard ploughing.

Many districts, especially in Manitoba, report plowing behind. On the other hand a large number report a larger percentage of cultivated land ready for seed this year than has been the case for the last five years.

MORGAN'S FORTUNE

Estimated from $75,000,000 to $300,000,000. Will likely to include large charltable bequests.

New York. April 1.—Estimates of the fortune left by J. P. Morgan, as made in the financial district to-day, range from $75,000,000 to $300,000,000, this sum including his art collections. It is understood that the financier's will is of comparatively recent_date, but no intimation has been made as to when it will be given to the public. Mr. Morgan's personal counsel declines to discuss the matter.

Those who shared Mr. Morgan's close friendship predict that there will be large charitable and public bequests, although it is conceded that the son, J. P. Morgan, will doubtless receive the bulk of the fortune.

Mr. Morgan's realty holdings were com naratively small, and by far the greate Mr. Morgan's realty holdings were comparatively small, and by far the greater part of the estate, it is understood, will be found to be made up of gill-edged securities. Judging by his former quiet philanthropy, those who speculated to-day as to possible bequests thought that the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Episcopal church and perhaps Yale and Harvard Universities would come in for handsome benefactions.

ROME, April 1.—The body of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, after it had been embalmed and dressed, was to day enclosed in a walnut coffin line i with white brocaket and finally in a third case of heavy walnut with gold and silver fittings. No definite arrangements have yet been made for the transport of the body to America, but it is understood that accommodation has been offered on beard the Koonig Albert, leaving Naples on April fourth.

FRUIT BRANCH'S WORK

WHAT THE DEPARTMENT DOES FOR THE ONTARIO FARMER.

Officials Are Striving Hard to Bring Out the Full Value of Canada's Fruit Lands - Certain Limited Areas Produce Certain Kinds of Apples and Other Districts Seem

Unable to Compete.

That orange you had for breakfast was grown in Ostifornia; the raisins in the piece of pie eath at lunch time came all the way from Spain; the currants that dot our puddings and cakes travel farther—from Greece; and the assortment of fruit offered as dinner dessert often represents many countries of the world—nearly always many countries except our own. Twould almost make you think. Canada had no fruit. And yet—fifteen and three quarter millions of dollars is the value of the average annual truit crop of the province of Ontario alone. Apples, pears, peaches, plums, cherries, currents, gooseberries, black-herries, currents, gooseberries, strawberries, are grown abundantly in suitable localities and under proper treatment.

tistics as compiled by experts on this subject, for the years 1901-1905, the average yearly crop in Ontario was then valued at about seven and a half millions. Now, from 1905 up to the present the acreage of fruit lands in the province shows an increase of only eleven and a quarter per cent only eleven and a quarter per cent. So that, making all due allowance for increase in prices, it is evident that much more fruit is being produced. increase in prices, it is evident that much more fruit is being produced.

As an aid to effective educational work in fruit growing, the Ontario fruit branch has been conducting for a number of years what is called "orchard survey work." A county, or portion of a county, is covered each season by scientifically trained fruit men who make a farm-to-farm canvass and record the location, acreage, kind of fruit, varieties, trees in bearing, trees non-bearing, nature of soil, tillage, fertilization, diseases, insect pests, marketing, income— in fact a detailed record of the orchard from every standpoint. This data is exceedingly valuable, as you may readily understand. This survey work so far has been carried on in the counties of Simcoe, Huron, Lambton, Elgin, Lincoln, Wentworth, Durham, Northumberland and Prince Edward.

An experimental farm at Jordan Northumberland and Prince Edward.

An experimental farm at Jordan Harbor is under the supervision of the director of the fruit branch, but it may be regarded as in the preliminary stages, as it has little or no fruit in bearing yet, being practically newly planted. During the past ten to fifteen years, a number of experimental stations have been conducted at different points throughout the province for the purpose of testing fruits and finding out what varieties are best suited to the respective localities. This experimental work is in effect completed, and that lists of the recommended varieties have been

Varying conditions id soil, climatic influences, moisture, and the like make it important for the grower to know just what varieties of any kind of fruit are adapted to his location, and it is through the survey work and experimental work survey work and experimental work of the fruit branch that he is able to

Much work is yet to be done in the Much work is yet to be done in the making of better fruit. The effectiveness of spraying has been demonstrated beyond question; the need of feeding the tree by cultivation and the use of fertilizers has been brought home to the growers, and now the fruit branch intends to make a strong campaign for the proper pruning of orchards, Some work has been done already in this respect, but, in addressing a meeting of fruit growers, o knows the orchards of the pro-ce thoroughly, stated that "there ere not six properly pruned orchards the whole of Ontario." It will be e business of the fruit branch to each correct methods of pruning, and prove its value as it has proved the value of spraying. This is being done by actual demonstrations in the orchards, where large numbers of fruit growers gather and watch the operations of experts at prunning. Since the orchard acreage is being considerably increased from year to year by extensive new plantings, it has become advisable to assure the grower of a fair start with his young trees by a system of nursery inspection.

grower of a fair start with his young trees by a system of nursery inspection which will enable the fruit branch to issue a certificate as to the healthy conditions of the stock from any particular nursery. A provincial entomologist has been attached to the staff of the branch so that expert, scientific knowledge of fruit pests and disgages will be the basis of all nursery certificates issued.

While the growing of good fruit in profitable quantities is the great problem for the fruit farmer, he has still an important matter to deal with in marketing his erop to the best advantage. The co-operative association, which has been fostered by the fruit branch, does much to solve the marketing problem. There are some forty of these associations in Ontario, and while they are not exactly under conof these associations in Ontario, and while they are not exactly under control of the fruit branch; they are connected with it by the fact that the director of the fault branch has been and is now secretary of the Fruit Growers' Association.

MEDALS AS HISTORIES.

Casting Varies Greatly With Casting Varies Greatly With the Progress of Science.

Both from an artistic and historical point of view, the study of medals is a fascinating one. For medals, being struck to commemorate some notable event or to perpetuate the name of a national hero, throw much light upon history, in addition to furnishing faithful records of the progress of art, from its rise, almost to its apogee, and through the various phases of deeline and renaissance to its modern state.

Medals are made in most of the precious metals, as well as in iron, copper, lead and alloys. Large medals are known as medallions, and the earliest examples proper are medallions of ancient Rome, which for the most part are of bronze, though some are of silver and of gold. These Romans medallions usually have a diameter of about one and a half inches, but in weight they vary very much. Medallions of earlier date than 117 A.D. are extremely rare and consequently very valuable. A well-known example, of great beauty, is the gold medallion of Caesar Augustins. The medallions which are generally admitted to be the finest and most perfectly executed that have ever been struck, belong to the best period of Greek art, 400-336 B.O. On their faces they bear an ideal head, magnificent Greek art, 400-336 B.O. On their faces they bear an ideal head, magnificent in its awinging sculpturesque lines, and upon the reverse the representation of a victorious quadrigae, portrayed with a vigor of action worthy of those old Greek masters.

Many of the finest medieval medals were act by a special process others. Many of the finest medieval medals were cast by a special process, others are in repousse work. The earliest days of the Renaissance brought about a revival in the medallic art, and, between 1430 and 1456, Vittore Pisano, the Veronese painter, produced some of the finest medals ever struck since Grecian times. Pisano's struck since Grecian times. Pisano's medallions, which usually bore the inscription Opus Pisani Pictoris, are notable for the fidelity and broadly effective technique of their portraiture. It was not until early in the sixteenth century that medals were struck from engraved dies in the maner of coins. In Germany Albert Durer was an early exponent of the art who won great fame; and the Dutch jettons, or sarly exponent of the art who won great fame; and the Dutch jettons, or medalets, which were issued in the sixteenth and the early years of the seventeenth centuries, afford a practically imperishable record of the stirring events, which during that time, centred the whole attention of Europe upon Holland. The English medallic art goes back no further than Henry VIII.; but onward from the reign of Edward VI. we find a continuous series of coronation medals.

To-day, of course, medals are issued principally as rewards for naval and military service. The first of such war medals struck in England was the "Ark in Flood" medal of Queen-Elizabeth, designed as a reward for naval vaior; while the first English military medal was designed by order of Charles I. in 1643. Probably, however, the earliest instance in England of a medal struck to commemorate a of a medal struck to commemorate a particular military action was the "Dunbar" medal issued by the Parliament. Later (from 1793) it became customary to distribute medals among the troops engaged in any successful action or campaign.

A Wasp That Uses Tools. Wasps are in one respect more civilized than any other insect or animal. John Burroughs tells us that, "though it has been thought that man is the it has been thought that man is the only tool using animal, yet there is one species of wasp, ammophila, that uses a little pebble to pound down the earth over her nest. She takes the pebble in her mandibles, as you or I would take a stone in our hand, and uses it as a hammer to pound down the soil above the cavity that holds her egg. That is a remarkable fact. So far as I know, there is no other animal on this continent that makes any mechanical use of an object or substance foreign to its own body in this way."

How the Earth Breathes. How the Earth Breathes.

That the earth breathes is a fact familiar to the weather wise. It is often to be verified by that peculiar earthy smell which arises immediately after a thunderstorm, the lowering of the barometric pressure causing the flow upward of the air, just as it is once more squeezed downward when the barometer rises. This phenomenon accounts for a natural barometer discovered at Ferney some years ago by Dr. Gerlier of Geneva. It is a deep cave or well, will a very small opening. When this opening is made small enough just to fit a whistle the differemt sounds as the earth inhales or exhales the air warn people in the neighborhood of the coming weather. Poria, the Sea Rover. Doris Palace, in Genoa, where Ver-

Doris Palace, in Genoa, where Vertil lived at one time, is little associated in these days with the sea rover who gave the palace his name. Andrea Doris, supposed to have been a native of Genoa, fought against his country in the service of Francis I. of France. Subsequently he deserted the French and went over to the Spanish-Austrian party, thereby checking the progress of French arms in Italy. He drove the French out of Genoa in 1528 and was made doge, or chief magistrate.

Chinese Sausages. Chinese Sausages.

In China sausages are made of meat from the hind thighs of hogs, which are chopped fine, mixed with four drams of sugar, rice wine and table salt, eight drams of soy and a pineh of pepper to every one and one-third pounds and dried in the sun until ready for tinning. Dried oysters and ducks' livers are added to some varieties.

weeks. He must grow accustomed to the title, wear the distinction naturally and with becoming modesty, and cultivate a feeling of ease and sangtreid. He must not disport himself like the average youth of the present day making his initial appearance in a silk hat or full dress suit. But that is not all. Sir Thomas, Sir Wiltiam, or Sir Robert—as the case may be is literally submerged with contratulatory letters and telegrams. Not blesse oblige—all these messages of felicitation must be answered, by the six and rather painful process of hand-written communications. It would be infra digitatem to call in an amanuensis and reply in a whole-sale or pro forms method, or to insert a card of thanks in the newspapers like a newly-elected alderman or school trustee.

Congratulations are formal, stiff, familiar, or drell, and come from all quarters of the Dominion and even beyond its borders, while not a few emanate from people whom the recipient has never known. The character of the messages frequently depends on the degree of intimacy that the sender has previously enjoyed with the titled one. It recalls the inpenns on the degree or inflames, that the sender has previously enjoyed with the titled one. It recalls the incident of Sir George Ross, leader of the Liberal party in the Senate, who was honored a few years ago. A warm personal friend of the former Premier personal friend of the former Premier of Ontario is T. C. Irving, manager of Bradstreet's, Toronto. On the occasion when "the list" was announced, Mr. Irving happened to be in the West. Everyone Knows that Sir George is sound in the Presbyterian faith and doctrine. Accordingly Mr. Irving, who possesses a keen sense of humor and is one of the best raconteurs of good stories, promptly despatched the following: "Sir George Ross, Toronto—Hearty congratulations on the recognition bestowed upon you by our Sovereign, but, remember, the Good Book says "There is no knight there'."

wonder, therefore, that the underwriters cheered when they heard the bell.

The bell now used at Lloyd's is of naval origin. It belonged to the Lutine, which was wreokel near the Zuyder Zee in October, 1799, while taking specie from English merchants to Hamburg.

England being then at war with the Netherlands, the Dutch Government claimed the wreck, and $400,000 worth of the bullion was recovered. It was not until 1857 that Lloyd's secured equal rights in the treasure with a private company to which the Dutch had grainted concessions. In 1858, with considerable quantities of specie, the frigate's bell was recovered. Since then it has stood in the library at Lloyd's, together with a chair and table made from the Lutine's rudder.
There is a room at Lloyd's known as the Chamber of Horrors, and here are posted telegrams received reporting castalties. Unimportant accidents are not entered in the loss book, but the most serious are not only entered there, but are cried aloud by an official who stands is gorgeous uniform beneath the sounding-board. When, after, a week's disappearance, it is feared a vessel has gone down, the owners make an application to the committee af Lloyd's to have the ship posted. This is done by affixing a notice in the Chamber of Horrors, which says that the authorities would be glad of information concerning the boat.

A week-elapses, and then a second A week elapses, and then a second A week elapses, and then a second notice is put up, saying that the boat has not since been heard of. When you read that a ship has been "posted" as missing, you may know this ship is upon the notice-board, and on that day the insurance money is payable, and all who were upon her are legally considered dead. Vhen a ship is posted the old Lutine bell is tolled once. In the very unusual event of a vessel arriving in port after being posted the bell is struck twice, and the caller makes his announcement from the rostrum amid a breathless silence. Livingstoniana in Canada.

At this time, when the centenary of Livingstone's birth has just been celebrated, in Canada as well as in other Christian countries, it is interesting to note that relatives of the famous explorer have been for many years residents of Canada. As long ago as 1840, in fact shortly after Dr. Livingstone left for Africa, his eldest brother, John, came to Canada, living practically the balance of his life until his death, ten years ago, in Listowel, Ont. He is survived by Mr. Neil Mackenzie Livingstone of Weston, Sont.; by Charles Livingstone of Seat-tle; Dr. Henry Livingstone of Seat-tle; Dr. Henry Livingstone and Mrs. W. J. Scott of Listowel. Neil Mackenzie Livingstone; his son, Dr. Hereward Livingstone; and his daughter, Mrs. Barber, are in possession of a number of interesting mementoes of the famous explorer including the Livingstoniana In Canada. Sir Richard Scott, who celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday a few days ago, and who has had a seat in the Senate for forty years, is from the point of view of physical activity, the "juvenile" of that august body, which, in the classic diction of E. A. Lancaster, M.P., who desires "its prompt abolition, "toils not, neither does it spin." They had a debate in the Red Chamber the other day regarding the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and for hours the question as to whether the Law Lords should have the right to sustain or throw out judgments of the Canadian courts was gravely discussed. Sir George Ross, the Opposition leader, had given his views; Senator Bostock and other leading lights had advanced a few theories, when up sprang Sir Richard, and from the weight of his eighty-eight years' experience, declared that Canadian interests were

Mr. Stack is 54 years old and weed his first wife when he was 21. She bore nine children. The second wife was wed something more than 20 years ago, and has just presented her spouse with the twentieth child.

Mr. Stack has come to the end of his resources as to names. He has used up all the names he is familiar with and is hunting for one more. He owns the largest perambulator in town, capable of accommodating three babies at once, and it has often been filled to capacity. his eighty-eight years' experience, de-clared that Canadian interests were jeopardized by reason of the fact that the 'Law Lords were invariably old men!"

And even Speaker Landry, sitting in state in the chair, smiled at the youthful enthusiasm of the "Juvenile" who sat in a Canadian Legislature years before Confederation.

What's the Use?

When R. C. Miller, the famous state prisoner, was being kept in the custody of Capt, Bowie, the deputy sergeant-at-arms, before his removal to Carleton County jail, the room in which he was confined became the object of much curiosity on the part of the youth'nl pages of the House. They gathered about the door and talked in solemn whispers to the Dominion policeman who acted as outer guard. One evening just before the six o'clock adjournment, a waiter came down from the Parliamentary restaurant with a tray laden with steaming and appertizing dishes for the "prisoner."

"Geg." remarked one of the little pages, "look at them ham and eggs."
"Say," said one of the older boys, "you don't think that there cop it going to let him eat them, do you! What's the Use?

Origin of the Sidesaddle.

The use of the sidesaddle for women riders is traced to the time of Anne of Bohemia, eldest daughter of the Emperor of Germany, who married Richard II. of England. Previous to this date all Englishwomen bestrode their horse man fashion, but on account of a deformity this German bride was forced to use a sidesaddle, and the custom became general. so closely resembles a pebble that it is invariably taken by the stranger to be a stone. Another species of the same plant growing on the hills round the Karoo produces two leaves about as large as ducks' eggs, having a surface resembling weathered stone of brownish gray color tinged with green. These plants look like stones, but for a short time they put forth bright yellow flowers.
