There is no reason why a fighter should not succeed outside the ring well as in it," said Erne to the reporter. "All that is necessary is to take advantage of opportunities and develop them when they arrive. I think that I can do well at anything I make that I can do well at anything I make the only thing a fighter is good for after he has outlived his usefulness in the roped arena is to branch out as a go. a job as a bouncer in a dive or some-thing on that order is all wrong. At least, that is my way of looking at it. There are hundreds of other vocations a fighter can go into without incon-venience and still make enough money to keep him going and in style.

"A little tact and intelligence of "A little tact and intelligence of course are required; and there are very few modern pugilists who do not possess these qualities. I guess I would have become a saloon keeper had not my dad cut me out for something else. Yet I am glad that I am hot a boniface, because from my brief experience in my present occupation I have learned more of the world and its commercial side than all the traveling and grueling I have engaged in. A fighter, especially if he is of any prominence, comes in contact with all corts and conditions of people. But he does not comes in contact with all sorts and conditions of people. But he does not cultivate the right kind, for most of the folks he meets are those who live in a world of their own, have peculiar and strange notions, and are altogether of a different class. In my new line
I am judged by merit and action alone.
It is business first and good fellowship afterward, while in pugitism it is good fellowship all the time.

Walford ran away from his home on the south coast of England twentynine years ago, when he was twelve years old. From that day he never saw his home again. He has just received a letter announcing the death of his father, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Sturges Walford, of the Fourth West Yorkshire regiment. The letter contained a copy of the soldier's will, which makes Walford heir to $100,000 in cash, to $75,000 which is invested and valuable real estate. He also is made executor of the estate. money and engaged in different lines of business. But he was best known as a window sash and blind expert business for the remainder of his days, or at least until he has acquired enough money to retire in comfort.

Erne is intelligent, and a thorough business man, who understands the value of a dollar and who knows how to earn money and keep it. He took up pugitism for what there was in it and has saved the bulk of his profits in the roped arena.

Ever since Erne can remember his father has been a dealer in fruit. It was the ambition of the elder Erne that his son should learn the business but Frank was too fond of athleties, especially the prize ring. Frank believed that he could make more money exchanging blows with rivals, and his calculations were not amiss.

But like every other fighter he has had his day and is now back to the calling which his father years ago had planned for him. Erne sent the major share of his earnings in the ring to his parents with the suggestion that the money be used to purchase a large farm at Lewiston, Canada, on which fruit could be raised. This was done and it is said that the farm is one of the best for fruit raising in that part of Canada.

Erne thought it would be better to get his experience in some large city first, and chose New Tork. So he took a place as salesman for a well-known fruit dealer on Broadway Erne, and chose New Tork. I knew something was up.: got an order from the Medford Salt Company to decorate the Connecticut Valley. Medford Salt was supposed to be Heaven's best gift to invalids suffering from ague, chills and fever, rheumatism, and the Lord only knows what else. It was my opinion then, and it's my firm conviction now, that it was nothing more nor less than a lake, pure and simple, only it was not pure and not simple. I diagnosed the stuff as consisting of sea salt, alum and terra alba in equal parts. But that was none of my business; I only had to illuminate the countryside with the consplcuous words, "TRY MEDFORD SALIT FOR AGUE: IT CURES"—or any other phrase I could cook up to fill the proper space. I was known to be space, and started out to attract atention to the supposed virtues of medford Salt. Besides this material I had a half dozen cases of the remedy to pay for space with where I couldn't the company possible words, "There didn't seem to be any possible to the form of the supposed to the freshet.

"See here," I said, "where's, Teddy gone in such a hurry? You've given him a tip about Sal, and you've got to play fair or I'll know the reason why. What's up?"

"I don't mind telling you," Lulu said, "for I don't eare much who gets Sal as long as the best man wins. I'm tired of this backing and filling, and it strikes me if either of you wants to marry Sal you'd better be up and doing. I had talked the business over with Sal, and she was terribly interested, thinking it was a romantic-sort of life for a man to be in. She got up the design for the barn herself, and it took me two days to pain it in lemon-yellow letters on a Prussian blue back—

It was decided that the league should be called the St. John Base Ball League. The league is now open to all players, irrespective of their standing as a mateurs or professionals.

The president was appointed to represent the league on the tercentenary committee, and was instructed to arrange, if possible, some games during the celebration week. Several matters were informally discussed, including the appointment of umpires and scorers, who will be paid officials. All these matters were referred to the executive committee, who will report to a meeting to be called by the president during next week. It is expected that a grand opening will be held on May 8th. The mayor will be asked to throw the first ball and a band will be in attendance.

The large space at the side of the tray is reserved for the odds and ends of feminine wear, and it is surprising how many items may find place there besides veil and glove case, photograph, mouchoir and card cases. The idea in arranging these articles here is that they may be reached more quickly, holding, as the compartment always does, articles for constant use, and for which every woman seeks as soon as her trunk is opened. Like the other compartments, everything is placed in layers, the top line being kept as even as possible. Hose, belts, collars, neckness are then put in. The top tray is now placed in the large space at the side of the troothpick.

Farks is dying in the hospital in Sing Sing prison. Dr. Robert T. Irvine, the prison physician, says his trouble is incurable, and for 30 days he has been incurable, and for 30 days he has been incurable.

R. Roberts, residing at Carrier Mills, and assistant postmaster at that place, will publish a book on the experience of his brother, U. A. Roberts, who apparently died in this city January 1, revived and lived five and a half days and conversed freely of his experiences in the other world, his talk with the Saviour and the beauties he beheld there.

The story of the death and subsequent coming to life created considerable comment in religious circles, as well as among unbelievers, and but for the fact hat it occurred within the knowledge of such men as the Rev. A. B. Maxey, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city; R. S. Mareh, J. H. Nyberg, the Rev. I Rose and the man's brother, W. R. Roberts, not much credence would be given to the story. But there are no oil cups of reservoirs of any sort in a watch. When it is cleaned, there is put on each bearing the most infinitesimal drop of oil and that suffices. The bearings, to be sure, are small, but some of the wheels of a watch make, in the course of a year, an enormous number of turns or movements and the watch should not be run indefinitely without attention. A watch should be cleaned as often as once in 18 months."

The attorney for the defense rose on the defense rose on his heels and asked in a loud voice:

"Will somebody please allow me to use a small flask of whisky for a month of the matternation of the magistrate.
