JUST LOOK INTO THIS BARGAIN DAY OFFER

Here is the Chance for Contest Workers

Many Changes are Noted in the List of Competitors — Get Busy Now and Profit by the Big Counts.

Candidates will bear in mind that The Sun and The Star cannot be sent by mail in the City of St. John.

It will pay every contestant and every prospective contestant in the great $5,000 Prize Voting Contest of the Star and Sun to read every word in today's story of the race. A number of changes have taken place and each has been made with a view to affording every contestant a greater opportunity to secure votes and improve his standing.

Bargain Days — Extra Votes

The chief feature and absolutely biggest thing of the contest is the fact that a bargain day offer is made in this issue. "Bargain days" means a greatly increased rate of votes coming in. July 28th and continuing up to and including August 1st, there is an opportunity to "Ginch" one of the thirty-four magnificent prizes.

"The Bargain day offer will give you time to save a good reserve during this period and make the very means of your winning the prize upon which you have set your heart.

Russell Touring Car

The magnificent Russell Touring Car has been shipped to St. John for display. It will be on exhibition all the time and have an opportunity to see the splendid prize which will be won by the candidate having the highest number of votes in the contest.

Fairness of Voting Limit

The voting limit has been arranged so it is fair to all; it places every contestant on an equal footing with every other candidate. No single contestant will be permitted to run away with the race, and if it is encouraging to one's friends to know that his or her favorite candidate is near the top of the list, that object can be easily accomplished by any one having the votes to reach the coveted position.

It is the desire of the Star and Sun that he would confer this opportunity on him who would figure to himself that now is the greatest chance of the entire contest. He will be allowed to do so for the finish.

He will make it a point to see all those friends who have promised to "help later" and impress them with the fact that they will never again be able to ascertain on so much information as right now during the "bargain days."

Voting of Coupons

All ballots deposited in the ballot box must be fastened and folded together in packages and not put loosely in the box.

RAYMOND AND WHITCOMB TOURIST PARTY HERE

Nineteen Came in on the Austin and Will Spend a Couple of Weeks in the Provinces.

Among the arrivals on the Calvin Austin this morning were a number of important persons from Manchester, Eng., who are in charge of a Raymond and Whitcomb tourist party, who left New York on the 27th, arriving in Boston on the 29th, where Mr. Fairbanks met them, and came to St. John on the 30th, the party reaching Boston on the 11th of August via Eastern Steamship Co.

While only thirteen members of the party are here, the rest will join the tourists at Wolfville. Members of the party include—

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Baldwin, Winona, Conn.; Mr. R. D. Baldwin, Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. H. A. Bravon, Misses Dorothy, Katherine and Margaret Bravon, Mrs. M. M. Daniel, Mr. Daniel W. Cory, New Bedford; Rev. P. J. Dailey, Misses Agnes, Annie and Helen Dailey, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. G. M. John, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Mason, New York; Miss C. D. Nelson, Springfield, Mass.; Mrs. L. J. Steger, Boston; Mr. George Watson, Mrs. Richard Watson, Miss Jane Watson, Doylestown, Pa.

In 1904 they were again at Woodman's Point. She was occupied a good

MUCH THIEVING ON THE CALVIN AUSTIN

Passengers are Robbed Nearly Every Trip

Some of the Colored Waiters are Suspected

—Three Cases Reported on Trip to St. John This Morning.

Three hundred and seventy five passengers arrived by the Calvin Austin this morning, while the steamer after leaving New York had been the target of the dense fog docked about 5 o'clock. A good trip was experienced by those on board, no fog being met until just off the harbor.

Considerable petty thieving has been committed of late on the Austin. On the last trip one lady was left penniless by some steals by her friends, and it was due to the kindness of friends that she was able to reach her home up river. Again this morning, while the steamer after passing the harbor, was the target of the foreign element, which largely composed the population of the ship, some claim this rent is prohibitive and may not settle there again.

MELILLA, July 30.— The Moors confusion reigns at the army headquarters. The overworked staff seems demoralized. The exact figures of the dead and wounded since the heavy fighting broke out with the Moors are refused.

CEREBRAZON—France-Spanish frontier. All the reports received here from Spain confirm the terrible fury of the women throughout Catalonia. The Moors are holding behind the barricades, with the men urging them to fight to the death and everywhere they are seen seething with rage. They are recruiting women to help them, tearing the doors of their houses and firing at the soldiers from the windows. In Casa de la Salud, the popular residence of the Moors, the women have driven out the civil guard and locked up the officials in the barracks. So it is in Barcelona, where the Moors are holding behind the barricades, and the Moors are holding the main roads.

MADRID, July 30.— Special despatches from Madrid shortly after noon today say that the Spanish cruiser Numancia is now in the heights of Mount Gueruga, which is swarming with Moors.

MELILLA, July 30.— The news from Melilla that the cavalry and troops gained the upper hand, captured the main bodies of the insurgents and held them in a temporary quiet zone in the suburbs creates the greatest interest in official circles here. The work of repression will rapidly be followed up through the efforts of the Catalan General. Late last night it was announced that the cavalry engaged at Barcelona had succeeded in driving into the square and dispersing the bands of revolutionaries against which the Moors opened fire. After fighting desperately and successfully for a long time the Moors were surrounded by the Moors.

Teaching children have more or less diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All the houses attending the fair of two or three days ago were given the prescribed after-dinner dose of the bowel's more known balsams, and the Importer was sure it was safe to take New York by storm.

Mr. L. W. Beans, of Portland, Me., special agent of the United States treasury department, and Mr. W. F. Jenkins, special deputy collector at Boston, left last evening for the home of their constituents in a day or two in the city. The two officials inspected those United States agencies here which come under their jurisdiction.

Two well known officers, formerly in the Pacific Mail Freight Line, have gone out to the Orient to take positions on the Far East Mail Service, which has been organized by a Chinese company for a new line to be established between Hong Kong and Mexico. They are Captain Lockett and Chief Officer D. P. Pellett.

The Southern Railway Company is building a new station at Saco Lake. The work was begun on Wednesday, and the station will in all likelihood be completed in about a week's time. The first foot platform is also being constructed. The old structure has been removed to the other side of the track and will likely be used as a car shed, and a workshop for the railroad section men.

Early yesterday morning two unknown boys deliberately broke a large pane of glass in the window of a boy's home on Elmwood Street, West End. As the hour was between one and two, there is a possibility that there was an evil intent to pilfer some goods. The boys made a hasty retreat when someone appeared in the window, and when I got till supper time comes, so's to be a case of sheer doltiness.

CITY OF REGINA
THE CHIEF POINT

Will be the Canadian North-quarters

(Toronto Mail and Empire) In the development of the Canadian West the Canadian Northern Railway is playing no small part. The company's engineers and workmen are busily engaged in mapping out the right-of-way and making their line a great railway between the towns and cities of the West as to which should be on the line of the new Transcontinental Railway. Vancouver has already been decided upon as the Pacific terminus of the road. That fact was announced by Mr. D. D. Mann at a dinner tendered him by the Vancouver Board of Trade. The main axis of the railway will also be an important centre. That fact was announced some time ago. Now comes the announcement that Regina has been selected upon as one of the company's most important centres on the prairies. At a conference held between the municipal authorities and the railway recently, Mr. D. D. Mann pointed out that the position of the city is almost midway between the Great Lakes and the Pacific Coast. The company had so strongly impressed that G. N. R. management that it had been definitely decided to situate there the chief divisional point on their system between Winnipeg on the north, and Edmonton and Calgary on the west. The railway has decided also to construct its new main line to Edmonton through the Winnipeg-Borden-Regina route, as the first division of the new line. From Regina the Prince Albert branch will be utilized, and the line will run to South Saskatchewan, northward to Edmonton, and on to the Pacific coast, branching south to Vancouver, eastward to the mountains, and westward to the Pacific terminus of the road. MILLIONAIRE SLEEPS AT WAYFARERS' LODGE

Denver Man Tests Philadelphia's Treatment of "Down-and-Outer."

Disguised as a Tramp—Declares Municipal Lodging Houses are Only Solution of This Social Problem.

Although his fortune runs close to the million mark and he stops at the finest hotels, Edwin A. Brown, of Denver, doesn't let that stop him from getting first-hand information on several problems.

Leaving the Bellevue-Stratford, where he is a guest, he went last Monday night to the Wayfarers' Lodge, Lombard street, near Sixteenth, where he mingled with that class of humanity which chops wood and does odd chores at the lodge in exchange for a clean bed and breakfast.

He did not go to the lodge merely as a spectator, nor to have a formal inspection of the place. After a long night of overalls, a shabby, dilapidated hat and a pair of rough shoes, he started out to see how Philadelphians treated a man who was "queer," trying to get a man's lodging and a meal to eat.

Brown says he started east on Market street, Twelfth street he met a cop and asked where he could get a cop and asked where he could get a place to sleep and a free meal, the cop said he was wanted for the occasion. Then he went to a station and aid at the police and a meal to eat.

He was given a sandwich and a meal to eat.

"I am here to test your system," said one of them, tossing Brown a dime. "Buy yourself a sandwich or something before you start in."

Brown learned about the center of the city until finally he struck the Wayfarers' Lodge. There he was given a bed along with the human derechos.

There were several men standing on the corner, and to these Brown made known his plight.

Brown's friends, however, said one of them, tossing Brown a dime, "Buy yourself a sandwich or something before you start in."

THE STAR, ST. JOHN, N.B., FRIDAY, JULY 30 1909

THE PEANUT CROP IS WORTH $12,000,000

The possibilities of the peanut as a wealth producer seem not to have been realized until recently. And even now, notwithstanding an immense increase in the demand for the peanut crop, they are being incompletely utilized. It is true that the United States Department of Agriculture is about to issue a special bulletin calling attention to the peanut as a money-making crop.

A very striking feature of the document in question is the showing it makes of the many new uses to which peanuts can be put. These form an important ingredient in the vegetarian "meats" which are much more widely consumed than most people imagine. Some of these are made by the way, as meat substitutes, such as sticks of macaroni and other similar cakes.

With a little experience and the aid of a small meat grinder anybody can make good peanut butter for home use. A few peanut cakes are also desirable. Akin to this is the practice of simply boiling peanuts with a thick syrup consisting of two pounds of granulated sugar and one large cupful of water. This is then cooled, cut into cubes, and left to soak slowly until the beans are tender. The syrup is then strained off and used to baste when roasting.

The cooking process should continue for about an hour when the mixture may be poured out on a flat surface to cool. The peanut butter thus obtained is good for a week.

Another use of peanuts is as a substitute for almonds. Peanut butter (likewise much preferred by the vegetarians) is also manufactured by the ton, and put up in neat packages to be eaten as a spread for sandwiches, or as a substitute for margarine.

Although $12,000,000 worth of "peanuts" were raised in this country last year the supply is still not nearly equal to the demand, a condition sufficiently proved by the fact that imports are increasing rapidly. The peanut is an important export to Europe. This, too, although there are tens of thousands of acres of waste lands in the Southern States which are waiting to be tilled, has been in a paper manner in order to yield enough peanuts to furnish all the oil we want plus a liberal supply for export.

There is no doubt that the tobacco plant, the potato and Indian corn. It seems also according to the records of the Bureau of Agriculture, to have contributed the peanut, which appears to have originated from the island of the New Hebrides. It was introduced into our country in early Colonial days, but did not become a commercial import until about 1860. From that time on utilization of time but gradually increased, but during the last ten years it has risen by leaps and bounds.

FURTHER NOTES ON PEANUTS.

Most persons think of peanuts as they appear on fruit stands or in the little wagons of peddlars, vendors, but as a matter of fact they are disposed of in great variety in ways and for many other purposes.

The balancing process is applied only to the direct grades of peanut which are then heated and roasted. It is next reduced to pieces in the kernels of their thin brown skins, after which the halves are broken apart, the tiny germs are removed by a machine specially constructed for the purpose, and the peels are put up in attractive packages for market. Peanut meal, made from such blanched peels, finely ground, is particularly esteemed for the making of cakes, macaroons and other similar cakes.

PICK OUT AND REMOVE ALL REFUSE AND EMPTY PODS.

VALUE OF THE STRAW.

The peanut vine or straw from which the nuts have been taken is of considerable value for the feeding of live stock. The ash from the shells used in the factory as fuel is valuable as a fertilizer, containing as much as 3 per cent of phosphoric acids, 9 per cent of potash and 6 per cent of lime. The thin brown envelope of the peanut has a feeding value equivalent to that of straw.

It is an interesting fact, by the way, that the famous Smithfield hams and bacon come from hogs that are fed on peanut skins and other peanut cakes.

The practice being to turn the animals into the peanut fields after the pods have been gathered, allowing them to glean the pods that were lost in the harvesting.

The peanut plant, like the vine and the garden pea, has the power of drawing nitrogen from the atmosphere and storing it in little nodules upon its roots. This results in one of the most desirous of soil improvement and conserving plants. It is necessary, however, with a view to this, that the main root of the plant be left in the ground. If that be done the nitrogen accumulated in the leaves will be lost.

If the pods are dried, however, the seeds are taken and the syrup is strained off to baste when roasting.

The cooking process should continue for about an hour when the mixture may be poured out on a flat surface to cool. The peanut butter thus obtained is good for a week.

PERSISTENCE MADE GORMANS RELENT

Ceaseless Campaign of Poor Clarinet Player's Bride

Their Romance is One of Sustained Interest From Its Beginning to Close.

The Gorman family have recognized Charles J. Magness, who married Ada Gorman. A formal reconciliation was effected in the past week, when the young couple were at the Gorman's temporary house at Laurel, Md. Mr. and Mrs. Magness have taken possession of a small house at 1617 Riggs place, Washington, where they will continue to reside.

This brief statement of fact sounds like the last chapter of a novel, but it is better than stage play or fiction, because it concerns real people and brings to light denouement of a romance of real life, with the following cast of characters:

Charles J. Magness, former musician in the United States navy, just released from prison after a term of five months.

Mrs. Gorman, widow of the senator, owner of a magnificent home in Washington, and a beautiful country home at Laurel.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson, son-in-law and daughter of Mrs. Gorman, reside in the Laurel home.

The irreconcilable folk of Riggs place have no need to pour over the pages of the latest novels nor go to the theatres to see how the love story ends, for the love story has been written in the lives of two sets of emotions and uncertainty have everything come out happily in the last act.

These were the Sunday evenings at Riggs place, sitting on its porches, listening and watching the drama that is being enacted in No. 1617, across the way. It is a cosy stage setting in No. 1617, with a double door, each room size for two, at the end of a row in the quiet little street, under the shadow of the big houses of diplomacy and officialdom in the main thoroughfares that flank it.

COUNTING THIS DAYS IN PRISON

SHIP.

The interior is artistic and charming; the floor has eight lengths of weary waiting to get it ready, while his husband was counting the days in his prison ship. There are soft piano seats, the piano itself, with soft cushions and rugs on the floors and musical instruments in the drawing room. There is fine furniture decorated with glass and mirrors, decorated with glass and mirrors, up stairs one can imagine all the comforts of a home of the loving hands, aided by the taste of artistic simplicity and ample means.

It was a week ago that Charles J. Magness was transferred from a weeks' stay in the hospital and strict confinement of the prison ship to the hospital ship, where he was welcomed by the woman from whom he had been wrested last year in the very beginning of their honeymoon, when both members of the nuptial couple had been frownish and frowns on their romantic eloquence.

But now tragedy had turned into happiness. The Navy Department pronounced the breach of promises exonerated the whole family, have re-entered into forgiveness. The visit to Laurel was the seal of amends. The interminable honeymoon has been made under auspices so favorable as to make him eight months of suffering almost worth enduring.

The released prisoner was lying back in a cushioned chair taking his ease when a correspondent called the other evening. His wife was at the piano playing him a dreamy lullaby. She was a simple soul with her own far-sighted life in a home of her own far excelled any experience of the last two weeks.

In the same chair, leaning to a woman's side, but strict adherence to fact compels the statement that Mrs. Magness had been in Washington secretly for the last month, when she would make their own conversations about the number of her visitors.

HE WAS THE MAN OF HER CHOICE.

Certainly there is no man in Washington who has a finer figure than Mrs. Magness' husband. She has a slender form. She deliberately married a poor, unknown young man, who was so foolish as to desert his ship.

He was caught and sentenced to a year in prison, serving six months at his wife's insistence.

"I am not ready to let him go again," said Magness. "They have had a pretty hard time."

"He's got to go again," he said.

"I am just going to try to forget it, and to live for the future."

He is a sturdy, well built young man, about 25 years of age, with a sandy hair, wide open blue eyes, a boyish face, is smooth shaven and has an easy manner. He has a good voice and his caller, talking of his experience, Mrs. Magness hovered about listening to his every word.

"Arthur Pue Gorman appeared on the scene of American life a great many years ago as a young man in the United States Senate. In 1839 he was elected a member of that body and continued until his death three years ago one of its foremost members. He was a leader of the Democratic party and aspired to the Presidency. He accumulated several million dollars of wealth, which was divided among his family.

The family now consists of the widow, one son, and five daughters.

Arthur P. Gorman, a prominent citizen of Baltimore, and hopes to raise to the higher place held by his father.

His daughters are Mrs. Stephen Gorman, Mrs. William Johnson,

Richard Johnson, of Laurel, Mrs. William J. Lambeth, and Mrs. Ralph W. Hill of Washington, and Mrs. Charles J. Magness, the latest addition.

There were fine society weddings for all the daughters save the last. She married secretly and away from there.

There was a down payment of one-quarter of a million dollars for the daughters. Mrs. Magness has her share too, and she spent it freely trying to save her husband from prison.
