COLLISION

On the St. Lawrence Sunday Morning.

FIVE LIVES LOST.

Steamer Canada And A Local Barge Go To The Bottom.

Montreal, June 12.—Six miles below Sorel, at 2.30 o'clock this morning, the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Co's. str., Canada, bound from Quebec, for Montreal, came into collision with the Dominion Oil Co's collier Cape Breton. Twenty minutes later the Canada went to the bottom. At the time of the collision there were 110 people on board and all were rescued except five. Those who perished were: Alfred Thibedault, ticket agent of the company at Quebec, and his two sons, aged twelve and fifteen; Pursuer Bonnette, of the Canada, a man named Brunet of Sorel is missing and it is supposed that he perished.

The Cape Breton lay at the entrance of the Lake St. Peter channel waiting for daylight so as to find her way through. She was just getting under way when the Canada, making for Sorel at full speed, came into view. Just how the collision occurred and who is responsible for it has not yet been determined, for the officers of the Canada decline to talk, but from the statement given out, it would appear that the Cape Breton had not got headway on enough to answer her rudder and that she swerved across the path of the passenger boat, her bow striking the Canada just forward of the paddle box on the starboard side and tearing its way half through. Then she swung clear and the two steamers came alongside one another. There was no necessity of arousing the sleeping passengers, for the shock of the collision had already done that. The Canada at once began to settle and as the Cape Breton did not appear to be seriously damaged the passengers were hurriedly transferred to that steamer. In the excitement some of the passengers jumped overboard and were picked up by the boats from the Canada and Cape Breton, but generally those on board were composed, while the discipline shown by the crew of the Canada was excellent. Twenty minutes later when the Canada went down alongside the Cape Breton, resting on her side in the mud, all the passengers had been transferred to the Cape Breton. Thibedault and his two sons occupied a stateroom just above where the Cape Breton's bow entered the Canada and it is supposed that they were killed in their berths.

Brunet was a second class passenger, and no one saw him after the collision, though it is just possible that he went ashore with the crew of one of the boats which was sent to secure help from Sorel.

This arrived a few minutes after four, the steam barge Prefontaine being in the harbor with steam up. She brought the passengers and crew to Sorel, and they were brought up to this city this afternoon on board the company's steamer Columbine. Many of the passengers who occupied staterooms on the upper deck were fortunate enough to save their baggage, but those on the main deck lost theirs.

Some of them had but little clothing, but these were supplied with the necessary garments on arrival at Sorel.

ON SUNDAY

Rev T. Albert Moore of Toronto

ADDRESSED

Larg: Audiences in Interest of Lord's Day Alliance

The Rev. T. Albert Moore of Toronto Assistant Secretary of the Dominion Lord's Day Alliance gave a series of addresses in the interest of that Association. In the morning he occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church, in the evening at 7 he preached in the Presbyterian Church and at 8.30 he addressed a mass meeting in the Baptist Church. There were large congregations at all the services.

Mr. Moore is a plain and forceful speaker and is fully enthused with his subject, presenting an array of facts which could not fail to impress his hearers with the danger that threatens the integrity of the Lord's Day throughout the Dominion. Amongst others he gave the astounding fact that 150,000 Canadians were compelled to work every Sunday in the year, and attempts were continually being made to increase the number which he was glad to say were not successful. Were it not for the efforts of the Lord's Day Alliance the number mentioned above would be considerably over 200,000.

A number of persons became members of the local branch of the Lord's Day Alliance and a goodly amount was subscribed.

MANY VISITORS

To Parker's Lake, Flat Lands, Matapedia and Other Places.

Each day sees the hotels of our town crowded with anglers, commercial men, etc.—the anglers preparing for fishing and the commercial men hustling to get through business and then if possible join the Waltons, who leave every day for Parker's Lake Flat Lands and Matapedia.

Wm Sprout, of the Royal, is kept busy accompanying parties to the favorite spots. Monday he took a party to Parker's Lake and had some excellent fishing. Tuesday he and a party went to Flat Lands and returned with a fine lot of trout. Mr. Sprout states that while they had very good luck with trout he himself was very unfortunate in losing a very large salmon—a record breaker. The big fish reeled off the full hundred yards of line and got away.

Restigouche Girls Graduate as Nurses.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN

Misses Sadie Moores, Mary McBeath and Nellie Dumville.

Wednesday, June 8 marked the graduation of the class of 1904 of the Elliot City Hospital Training School for Nurses, when a class of six, who have completed their studies received their diplomas from the board of trustees and were given a reception by the training school alumnae in the evening at the Edwin Joslin Home for Nurses.

The large parlor, reception room and lecture room on the first floor of the nurses' home were thrown open for the exercises, the reception room being trimmed with the class colors, red and white, and having chairs arranged for the graduates and others who were to participate. Handsome bouquets of flowers were also placed in the several rooms. The reception-room being really a part of the parlor and opening into the hallway and thence into the lecture room through large doors, there was room at hand for the accommodation of all. In the library adjoining the lecture room several members of Farr's orchestra provided music for the occasion.

The guests were received by the President of the alumnae, Mrs. Ben O. Aldrich, and the Vice President, Miss Martha Dumville, assisted by Dr. Maud E. Taft of the class of '95. Miss Ella McCobb, the matron of the hospital, and Mrs. A. J. Murkland of Lowell, formerly Miss Charlton, who was matron of the institution, also received their friends informally in the parlor.

Following the reception the presentation or diplomas and other exercises took place. Dr Herbert K. Taulkner of the hospital staff, addressed the graduates and at the conclusion of his remarks President Elliot formally presented to each of the graduates her diploma.

Among the graduates were Miss Sadie Alice Moores of Campbellton, Miss Mary N. McBeath of Tide Head and Miss Nellie Dumville of Escuminac.

The Keene Evening Sentinel of Thursday last says:—

The graduating class at the Elliot City Hospital were given a delicious luncheon Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at the home of Miss Elizabeth W. Twitchell, Roxbury Street, in accordance with her annual custom. The tables were decorated in the class colors and the luncheon was much enjoyed.

The lawn party held on Friday evening under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Methodist church was a decided success, financially and otherwise. The evening was fine and the large number who attended seemed to enjoy themselves notwithstanding the fact that there was no music to enliven the affair. Nearly everything offered for sale in the line of refreshments was quickly disposed of, the net proceeds amounting to about $100.00.

It seems strange to us that a good brass band cannot exist in Campbellton. Several attempts to get a band into good working shape have failed miserably. When first the idea is mooted the boys turn out to practice faithfully for about three months and then the interest wavers until the organization has to disband. There is a competent instructor in town who would gladly give his assistance if someone would undertake the management. Couldn't some one of the societies take this matter up.

A Visiting Banker.

Mr. D. R. Laird of the Bank of Nova Scotia, a Visitor to Greenwood.

R. D. Laird, Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Vancouver was a visitor to the city this week. Mr. Laird is a cousin of Mrs. H. C. Shaw of this city, and was a guest of Mr. Shaw's during his visit here. He is a son of Hon. David Laird, who was Minister of the Interior during the McKeuzie administration, governor of the Northwest and at present Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Winnipeg. The Bank of Nova Scotia is one of the big banking institutions of Canada. During recent years it has been giving more attention to business in the growing West. The bank has several branches in Ontario, Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. Mr. Laird is its pioneer in British Columbia. He has been in Vancouver for several months. His bank is showing that it came to this province to stay, by erecting a substantial bank building on Hastings Street. The building will be ready for occupancy in June.

In the meantime Mr. Laird is making himself familiar with business conditions in the province. He has already visited the Kootenay district and the Boundary and will take a run into the rich farming district of Okanagan before returning to his home in British Columbia. Like all Easterners he has been favorably impressed with the wonderful variety of natural resources which the province possesses and believes that conditions are becoming more settled. The province with its wealth of fish, lumber and mineral resources offers a good field for the investor and he feels confident that his bank will not forget coming to the most western province in the Dominion.—Boundary Creek Times Greenwood, B. C.

Too Great a Risk

In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by A. McG. McDonald.

EXCHANGING BANK PAPER.

Now It Is Done in the New Toronto Clearing House Which Was Recently Opened in That City.

The New Toronto Clearing House in the building of the Bank of British North America, corner of Yonge and Wellington streets, was opened for business on a recent morning in the last month of 1903. The clearing house is situated on the first floor above the ground floor, and is a handsome, spacious apartment 48 by 45 feet. The room is well lighted by large windows and the furnishings are all done in finely polished quarter-oak, the wall panelings being of oak and green and red plaster, and the floor of polished wood. In a semi-circle round the room are arranged the desks for the various banks, while near the centre is the desk for the manager, Mr. G. W. Yarker. Provision has been made for twenty-four banks, but at present only nineteen of these desks are in use, as there are only that number of banks in the city.

Four massive pillars, fifteen feet high, support the ceiling, and the carving of the woodwork above the entry, and of the panelings, is very artistic. Here is how the system is worked: Each bank is represented by two clerks—one, a messenger, who brings with him the cheques, drafts, etc., that his bank has received the day previous upon the other banks, which are called the "exchange," and are assorted for each bank and placed in envelopes. The messengers take their places in a line outside of the semicircle of desks, each opposite the desk assigned to his bank, while on the opposite side of the desk is a clerk of the bank represented by that desk.

The hour for making the exchange, or clearing, delivery is 10 a.m. Just previous to that time the manager takes his position at an elevated desk near the centre of the chamber and calls the house to order. At the stroke of ten each messenger moves forward to the desk next his own and delivers the envelopes containing the cheques, etc., for the bank represented by that desk to the clerk on the inside. The messenger immediately passes to the next desk, delivering the exchanges for the bank represented by that desk, and so on until he has made the circuit of the room, and reached his own desk, the starting point, having delivered to each bank the exchanges he had for it, and consequently delivering his entire exchange for all the banks. Every other messenger does the same, the whole moving on at the same time. In other words, each messenger has visited every bank and delivered to each everything his bank has received the day previous from it, consequently the entire exchanges are delivered, while each clerk on the inside has, of course, received from every other bank the amounts sent him against his bank.

Besides the time saved by the clearing house method over the old clearing, each bank is enabled to know the exact balance for or against it at once, as the clerks after receiving the envelopes containing the cheques, etc., make an entry of the aggregate amount from each bank, the difference between the total amount they have received, and the total amount brought by them being the balance either due to or from the clearing house to each bank.

Kitamaat.

Few men in the Province know north British Columbia better than Mr. James Findlay, and he only claims to have a surface knowledge so vast is the country. He inclines to the belief that Kitamaat would make the best terminus for the G. N. P. Railway. Owing to the readiness with which it can be approached, both by rail and water, it seems to him a better site than Fort Simpson; moreover, it is farther away from those now-famous United States islands in Portland Canal. At present the chief thing about Kitamaat is its Indian reserve.

Mr. Findlay has been told that a line could be put through from Kitamaat Arm to the rich Bulkley Valley, without heavy grades. The valley at a beautiful one, well timbered and easily adaptable for agricultural purposes. The Bulkley Valley B. says Mr. Findlay, well timbered in copper and gold. Intending settlers have pre-empted a good deal of land there within the past few years. From Belhale Coule a fine valley runs up into the famous gold country, comprehensively called Omineca, while farther on is the celebrated Chilcooten ranching country. For a railway the grades would be easy. The chief settlement has been by a colony of Norwegians, who were taken there during Col. Baker's incumbency of the Provincial Secretaryship. They have already broken considerable ground, and are raising cattle and grain.

Principal Story in Montreal.

Montreal many years ago had a tall, handsome young Scotchman as assistant minister of St. Andrew's Church. His name was Robert Story. To-day he is Principal Story, of Glasgow University, and the other day he was telling the young lady students of the commercial capital of Scotland that their mental culture will not expand over reading the novels of Annis Swan and Mrs. Henry Wood. He is equally famed in Scotland for his acid wit and fine presence. Tall, white bearded, with handsome flashing black eyes, the Principal carries himself with the mien of an old-time cardinal. In debate in the Established General Assembly he is feared for the keenness of his replies, couched in irony which no member can equal. An example of his withering retort may be given. An officer in the suite of the Lord High Commissioner had, in the lobby of the Assembly, accidentally tangled his spur in the Principal's robe and tore it. Profuse apologies followed, but the Principal was not to be placated. Staring at the incontinent with his haughtiest gaze, Principal Story letly remarked: "An officer of Volunteers, I presume?"

Newton's Blue.
It is well known that under the action of gravity the water composing such a thin shell as a soap bubble tends to run down on all sides, so that the walls of the bubble grow thin at the top and thicken toward the bottom. After a time the bubble becomes so thin at the top that further flow of water from this point can hardly take place, and finally the bubble bursts. But before this last stage is reached a degree of thinness in the walls of the bubble is attained which causes it to glow with brilliant iridescent colors. Newton noticed that on top of the thin bubble illuminated by white sky light a black spot is formed. With increase of thickness downward from this point on all sides, a red band next appears; then a blue one; then again red and blue, red and blue, and so on, the colors showing more extremes of red and purple in the higher orders. This blue band which first expands outward from the black spot at the top and descends slowly with the subsidence of the water Newton called the "blue of the first order," and, although somewhat dingy, he judged it to be of the same tint as the blue of the sky.—T. J. See in Atlantic.

Inquisitive Birds.
Of the birds undoubtedly the blue jays have the most inquisitiveness. And they are the most noisy in expressing it, although crows will hold a close second place, if not really the equal. How the jays screeched and whistled and called—a confusion of all the sounds of jaydom—near my home! More than a dozen darted into a small evergreen tree in the lawn. People came from several houses in the vicinity, all curious to know what was the matter with the birds. It seemed to be a "want to know" on both sides. The jays had discovered a cat walking meekly along by the fence in the low shrubbery near and under the spruce tree. There was no nest in the vicinity, and so far as could be ascertained, the cat had not attacked the jays. But what a pandemonium of jay jargon over one meek looking, quiet cat! The jays outdid themselves and called out nearly all the occupants of the many houses on that street.

To Restore Leather Bindings.
To restore the leather bindings of books wash them first very lightly and carefully with clean warm water in which a tiny piece of soda has been dissolved, in order to free the leather from grease; then wash with clear water to remove the soda, and dry. Dissolve a bit of gum arabic in the size of a small bean in a teaspoonful of water and beat it up with a teaspoonful of the white of an egg. With a bit of sponge go lightly over the leather with this glaze and let it dry.

Should the glaze froth up on the leather, as it is very likely to do if there is much dirt work on the book, dab it until it subsides with the palm of the hand or with the sponge squeezed as dry as possible.

Her Husband's Male Friends.
One of the most complicated duties of a wife is the shutting off of her husband's male friends, says the Ladies' Field. Fifty per cent can go at once, for half a man's bachelor associates are, according to his wife, not fit for polite society, either because they have no manners or because they wear the most intending bridgeworks give, though they never realize it at the time.

The Lion Didn't Roar.
It is related that Pinnow, the faithful servant and personal valet of Prince Bismarck, once trod on his master's gouty foot. Instead of swearing at him or even declaring he was a clumsy fool, Bismarck, noting that Pinnow himself was frightened, said: "Consider yourself honored. No other person, my dear Pinnow, not even the Kaiser himself, would have been suffered to tread on my corns."

Something Was.
Rivers was smoking a cheap cigar. "Seems to me," said Brooks, "I smell something like cloth burning." But Rivers was game.

He touched the lighted end of his cigar to his shirt sleeve. "No wonder," he said, exhibiting the burned spot.

A Strict Grammarian.
"You think a great deal of your husband, don't you?" said the visiting relative.

"You have the wrong proposition," answered Mr. Meekton's wife, with the cold tones of the superior woman. "I think for him."

More to the Point.
Hicks—I suppose you hear that our house was robbed?

Wicks—Yes. I understand the way the thieves ransacked the place simply beggared description.

Hicks—Not only that, but it very nearly beggared me.

As Wasps Do.
Jinks—Is he really?

Jinks—Oh, a regular wasp.

Winks—I see. He always carries his point.

Stopped Gambling.
Blunt—I hear Bruce has stopped gambling.

Front—That's true. I bet him $100 this morning that he couldn't stop, and he took me up.

WAR NEWS

Kuropatkin's Report of Japanese Assaults Show that 'Russian Losses Were Slight'

London, June 11.—The Daily Mail asserts "two internal machines were found on the night of June 7 concealed in tobacco boxes in the Tsarskoye Selo Palace, where the Russian Emperor is now residing. One of the machines was in the dining room, the other in the audience chamber. The mechanism in each was working when discovered. The strictest secrecy is observed, and this statement, although true in every detail, is sure to be categorically denied."

St Petersburg, June 10.—The Emperor has received from General Kuropatkin the following telegram dated June 9.

"The Japanese bombardment June 8 of the coast between Senuchen and Kaspian caused no loss of life nor material damage, although a considerable number of shells were fired. One man doing hospital duty was slightly wounded and two wagons were damaged. All was quiet on the coast this morning, but several Japanese ships were cruising in the offing."

"June 7 the Japanese continued slowly their march toward Sluyen by the Takushan and Feng Wang Cheng roads. Their advance guard did not approach nearer than five miles south and east of Sluyen. On the morning of June 8 a Japanese infantry brigade with two mountain batteries and five squads of cavalry, marched against Sluyen. About 11 o'clock the Japanese appeared before the town on the south side, but were checked by a very successful fire from our batteries."

Japanese infantry then began advancing against the town from the east by the Feng Wang Cheng road, and came in contact with the Cossacks holding the pass. After two hours' fighting the Japanese were obliged to retire, and our artillery opened fire a long the pass, not allowing the Japanese to establish themselves. At this moment a Japanese mountain battery arrived, and a position to the south, and after firing a few rounds was silenced by our battery. A second Japanese battery did not succeed in getting into action but was compelled to evacuate its position under the fire of our guns."

"In the affair June 7 at Vafangow we had one Russian wounded, but the Japanese sustained considerable losses. According to the testimony of residents they had forty killed or wounded."

Details of the affair at Saimatsze follow:

June 7, at 6 a.m. an outpost company on the Alyang road was attacked by the enemy. A detachment of Chasseurs was sent as a reinforcement. More Japanese then appeared, one battalion with a mounted battery positioned by a steep, severe fire. Reinforcements now joined the enemy, bringing up their strength to a brigade of infantry, two batteries of artillery, and three squadrons of cavalry. I thereupon the commander of our detachment ordered a retreat toward Fenchu in Pass. The detachment withdrew slowly and in good order, holding successive positions. Our wounded included Captain Makharoff and Lieut. Konjitski. Both officers, however, remained in the ranks. About two men were killed or wounded. The enemy suffered severely. Accoutrements taken from the Japanese dead, show they belonged to the twelfth division."

The commander of our detachment compliments the calm courage of our troops, and reports that the conduct of the Red Cross company was above all praise."

St Petersburg, June 10, 6 o'clock p.m.—General Kuropatkin's reinforcement are being pushed eastward. The first division, 20,000 men of the tenth army corps, has crossed the Ural mountains, and following them is a continuous stream of troop trains. The last even of the tenth and seventh corps are scheduled to reach Liao Yang August 27. The infantry will cross Lake Balkan in ferriesboats and the cavalry will ride around the circular track."

The mobilization of the first army corps is being hurried. Two regiments of the twenty-second division are at Novogorod and one of the 37th at Pskoff (172 miles southwest of St. Petersburg). While the reserve men will join. The two divisions expect to start for the front June 23.

London June 11.—The Daily Mail's correspondent of Chelsof says:—

"The Japanese council has discovered that a wireless telegraph apparatus is attached in the night time to the Russian consular flagstaff here and that the honsulate is in communication with Port Arthur."

THE DUNDONALD AFFAIR.

THE Dundonald incident has aroused a great deal of interest in military and political circles all over Canada. Many in military circles are of the opinion that Lord Dundonald's indignation was perfectly in order. At the Banquet at Montreal the G. O. C. said: "When a nation is in peril, the commanding officer has the supreme control of the military appointments, and he is responsible to his country for its efficiency in war. In time of peace, unhappily, through political intrigues, we are in their web and appointments are made without regard to military efficiency and in the great peril of the nation's safety. Officers in command of the forces in this country should not be selected because of their political politics, but unfortunately this is the case."

"A most flagrant instance of political interference has recently come before me in connection with the appointment of officers in the new Eastern Townships cavalry regiment, the Scottish Light Dragoons. The commanding officer of the corps had selected officers because of their apparent fitness from a military point of view. The names reached me and were sent to Council, and gentlemen, what do you think happened? The list having my approval was returned with name of one officer taken off, and initiated by the minister of agriculture."

"The gentleman whose name was stricken from the list was Dr. Pickett, the Mayor of Sweetsburg, and Warden of the County of Missisquoi, a man chosen of the people and well qualified to serve his king and country. His political color was not however, that of the minister of agriculture, and consequently he was not considered fit to serve his king in the military force of Canada."

"If," said Lord Dundonald, "the Hon Sydney Fisher had been as well versed in soldiering as in agriculture, he would have better understood the responsibilities of officers and this would not have happened."

After making a few more remarks, the general said: "It is intolerable that my recommendations made in the best interests of the force, should be so grossly interfered with by any minister not connected with the department."

A political-military prescription would not be very soothing to a war-sick nation.

Permanent Sidewalks.

The civic administrators are apparently in dead earnest on the subject of permanent sidewalks. They seem to be convinced of the advisability of replacing the old wooden walk with the modern granite pavement and it is doubtful if any one will dispute the soundness of their judgement. The civic rules are also cheerfully optimistic that the abutters will contribute half of the cost of the new pavement. But this optimism is perhaps inspired by the fact that a bye-law can be past compelling the abutter to contribute towards the work. Whether or not property holders will be pleased with this phase of the subject is by no means clear but it is unlikely that they will offer a strenuous objection. Sewerage systems and so forth can be installed almost as conveniently after the sidewalk is laid as before, by means of a tunnel. And it will be quite unnecessary to disturb the walk after it is once laid. With concrete sidewalks, electric lights and plate glass fronts our business streets will have quite a city aspect.

Conflagration on New York Excursion Steamer

500 LIVES LOST.

The General Slocum, Caught Fire and Passengers Meet Horrible Fate.

New York, June 15.—Information reached police headquarters that a large excursion steamer is on fire in East River, off 138th street. The General Slocum left to-day with an excursion from St. Mark's Church and while in Hell Gate the boat caught fire and it is reported 500 persons were burned or drowned. A telephone report to the police headquarters is that the whole upper part of the boat is on fire and the hurricane deck has caved in. Hundreds jumped overboard. The steamer was surrounded with tugs and was towed to North Brother Island where she was beached. An eye-witness who saw much of what happened to the boat, says: "The steamer's whistle was blowing for assistance as she came up river. I saw several persons jump into the water before she was headed for the northern shore of North Brother Island. Her position made it impossible for those aboard to reach land except by swimming. I saw perhaps fifty or a hundred persons, mostly women and children, jump overboard. Most of the throng was on the hurricane deck when we saw a portion collapse. Many must have been killed instantly. Supt. Ridgard, of Bellevue, sent orders to the officials of the institution on Wards Island to send all the doctors they could to the scene. The General Slocum had on board the German Sunday School excursion of the Lutheran Church which is located on 29th street. The steamer was bound for Locust Grove beyond Flushing L.I. and had over a thousand people on board, mostly children."

Latest report is at least 500 were burned. Many were rescued by tugs and other vessels which promptly came to their assistance when the flames broke out. The pastor of St. Mark's church, Rev. Geo. C. Eppas, was on board with all his family and were reported lost. The boat caught fire in Hell Gate and the flames had complete control before a move could be made to check them.

Frightful scenes followed. It was impossible to run the boat ashore because Hell Gate rocks are on either side and the captain brought her head for North Brother Island. Nothing could be done in the way of launching boats and as the flames advanced the passengers began to jump overboard.

They went into the river by hundreds. The disaster was witnessed by thousands of people from both shores of the river and as rapidly as possible hundreds of small boats and launches set off to render assistance. With the boat burning under his feet the Captain stuck to his post in the pilot house and the engineer remained at his post below deck, until the boat was beached at the lower end of North Brother Island off Fort Morris.

W. C. T. U.

Flower Mission Day was observed by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union on Tuesday, when the members met at the home of Mrs. S. H. Lingley, Superintendent of the Flower Fruit and Delicacy Mission. Flowers in abundance were supplied, and after being made up into dainty bouquets with scripture text card attached, the "Silent fragrant messengers" were carried by kindly hands to the sick and the sad, carrying messages of sympathy and love to God's weary ones.

From readings given at the meeting it was learned that this beautiful custom, originated by Miss Jennie Casady, a life-long sufferer of Louisville, Ky., soon became a branch of W. C. T. U. work, and now there is hardly a local union which has not taken up to a greater or less degree this beautiful mission.

From the name, one unacquainted with the work, might suppose that the only good done would be

Defective Semaphore Causes Accident.

NO CASUALTIES.

Five Cars Derailed at Barnaby River Thursday.

While Con. Leveque's special was shunting in the Matapedia yard last Friday morning, No. 41 west bound, coming around a curve into the cutting, collided with the special head-on. The engines were both badly wrecked. The drivers and firemen of both engines jumped when they saw that a collision was unavoidable and thus escaped injury.

A working train was immediately sent to clear and repair the track.

A defective semaphore is said to have been the cause of the accident for while it showed danger in the office the safety signal was displayed to the engineer of the west bound train.

As Conductor Sweeney's west bound special was nearing Barnaby River on Thursday night, five cars left the track doing considerable damage. Auxiliary crews were sent out from Newcastle and Moncton and the line was clear about 5 o'clock Friday morning. The accident was caused by a broken wheel.

The Montreal express was delayed for six hours at Rogersville on account of the accident.

through the bouquets. But many families are supplied with life's necessities. It may mean food for the hungry, clothes for the naked, help for the sick. There seems no limit to what can be accomplished under this department, with its suggestive motto, "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Dalhousie

There should be an early understanding between the merchants of Dalhousie about closing the stores on Dominion Day and notice should be given ahead. A great many country people come to town without knowing that the stores are closed and are disappointed.

There should be something more done on the first of July than the mere closing of our stores. The union of the Canadian Provinces was a great event and it is to be hoped that our people will show their patriotism by at least flying to the breeze all the bunting possible. Your correspondent noticed that on Victoria Day, flags were missing from the custom house and public school notwithstanding that each building is provided with a flag staff.

The calling for tenders for improvements to our harbour by an addition of 300 ft to the I. C. R. wharf has made our people jubilant. It will require at least 750 feet in all to provide space for two or three vessels to take cargo. The present arrangements with the dredging included will be very much appreciated by our shippers of deals and no doubt Mr. Reid M. P. will follow his hand and see that our magnificent harbor gets all the protection that its position demands.

The marriage of H. J. E. Martin son of H. J. Martin ex M. P. P. Bonaventure Co. and one of Dalhousie's popular merchants, to Miss Emilie Allain of Carleton P. Q. took place at Carleton on Tuesday. Miss Allain is one of Carleton's most popular and accomplished ladies and Carleton's loss will be Dalhousie's gain.

The happy couple were presented with a great many wedding presents. They will make their future home in the Disbrow Cottage.

Work will begin about the 22nd inst on the River Charlo bridge. The new steel structure will be placed and the people of that section who have had to endure some inconveniences since the old bridge was taken down will soon have a beautiful structure.

Notices are posted here advertising a bazaar at Jacquet River to be held on the 21st 22nd and 23rd inst, and several of our citizens intend visiting that beautiful spot of Restigouche Co. and take in the fair.

One side of the maritime express presented rather a dilapidated appearance on the arrival of the train at the I.C.R. station this morning. A window of the baggage car was smashed in, a large piece of wood-work torn off the side of the second class car, and a hand rail on the first class car was missing. The damages are attributed to a defective mail-holder on one of the side-cars north of Campbellton. The mail holder so called, is an iron post on which the mail bag is hung, the latter being picked up by the train in passing. The holder was probably caught out and thus the damages occurred. The train lost quite a quantity of paint in the collision.—Transcript 15th.

The Public examinations of the town schools will be held on Friday June 24th beginning at 9 o'clock. ## CHAPTER XIII.

It was more than an hour before Lady Dorrington felt sufficiently recovered from the excitement of her interview with her brother to present herself in the invalid's chamber.
Lord Dorrington, whom she had sought as the only possible recipient of her indignation, was out, and his whereabouts uncertain. She felt dreadfully uncertain how to act. She was afraid to break the news of his engagement to the deserted widow, lest it might produce a fatal effect, yet she felt it incumbent on her to enlighten Mrs. Ruthven as to the true state of affairs.

When, at last, Lady Dorrington entered the sitting-room into which Mrs. Ruthven had been moved for a few hours daily since her strength
could bear it, she found that Lady writing on a movable desk attached to the arm of her easy-chair. She was very white, and looked already worn; a lace cap, with pale pink ribbons, covered her hair, which had been cut short, and a white cashmere wrapper, trimmed with cream lace over pink, hung loosely on her attenuated figure.

"My dear," exclaimed Lady Dorrington, "you are not surely trying to write!"
"I really am," a smile parting her pale lips. "Only a few lines, for I am certainly stronger. Do not fear any imprudence; I am too anxious to get well, I should like to see Sir Harley Portman again; he will tell me when I can move. I begin to be very anxious to deliver you from the long-endured incubus of a sick guest."

"Believe me, we only care to see you well. There is not the slightest need to hurry away."

"I know you are all goodness, but there are matters to be attended to that no one can do for me. I have been scribbling a few lines to my lawyer. Will you write for me to Sir Harley?"

"Certainly. But you know when he was here last he said—"

"Yes, yes, that I could not move for three weeks. But one has passed, and if he sees what progress I have made I am sure he will let me go on Wednesday or Thursday next.
Wherever I go ultimately, I must take London on my way."

"All I beg, dear Mrs. Ruthven, is that you will not hasten your departure on our account. You know well that Christmas with Aunt Auntie, so there will be no party here! I am sure you are not equal to write, you look so weary."

"Mrs. Ruthven lay back in her chair, and let her maid unfasten and remove the desk. When they were alone she said, as she lay back, her eyes closed, her figure very still:
"I had a message from Mr. Marsden just now."

"Indeed!" cried Lady Dorrington,
feeling exceedingly uncomfortable.
"He had no business to disturb you."

"He did not disturb me. I would not be disturbed. He asked to see me. There was a silence of nearly two minutes, while Lady Dorrington sought in vain for some wise and cautious words with which to reply before she found them. Mrs.
Ruthven resumed very languidly, but opening her eyes and settling them
on her hostess: "I suppose he wished to announce his engagement to Miss L'Estrange, if it is true. Is it true,
Lady Dorrington?"

"What a question! What would she not have given to be able to deny the fact with scorn and indignation?
As it was, she could only say: "Is it true, or is it not?"

"Why, my dear Mrs. Ruthven, who in the world told you?"

"Some one mentioned it in one of the letters I have been reading."

"Shirley," thought Lady Dorrington.
"Viper!"

"But is it true?" persisted Mrs.
Ruthven.

"Oh! I don't know what to think!
I am afraid there is something in it.
Indeed, I have been infinitely annoyed."

Lady Dorrington paused abruptly, feeling inexpressibly awkward.

"You are not inclined for this marriage then?" said Mrs. Ruthven, a peculiar and not very amiable smile
passing over her face.

"Inclined for it? Why it is the bitterest disappointment to me! You must know that, my dear Mrs. Ruthven!"

"Ah! Miss L'Estrange has but a small fortune, and it will take more than an ordinary one to put your brother's affairs in order."

"Besides that," cried Mrs. Dorrington, "there are other considerations! Nora L'Estrange is quite unfit to be Clifford's wife. He will tire of her in six months.

"That is very probable. He is not wise."

"And he actually talks of letting Evelyn go on a lease for years, and sinking into a Continental dilet-tant Englishman."

Mrs. Ruthven compressed her lips, and her pale cheeks flushed as she answered in a low, clear tone:

"Your brother is changeable and impulsive. After all, it is quite probable the marriage may never take place."

"He appears to have committed himself fully," said Lady Dorrington,
who, now that the ice was broken,
found it relief to talk on this ven-erous subject. Mrs. Ruthven was silent, leaning her elbows on the arms of her chair, and pressing her finger tips together, while her face, which had grown deadly white again, expressed cold, implacable displeasure.

"I am no sensitive young girl,
and I think you will admit that your brother has deceived me, basely, treacherously. He no doubt found it convenient to lead his creditors to believe that he was on the point of marriage with a rich widow, and so gain time for the settlement of his affairs. For this, he did not hesitate to make me an object of remark
to all the company in his house
when I was his guest."

"I am not surprised at anything
you say," cried Lady Dorrington, greatly distressed and even alarmed
at the suppressed concentrated fury which she perceived under Mrs. Ruth-ven's carefully preserved self-control.

"I am infinitely ashamed of Clifford;
but, indeed, he is in every way incapable of making the most of his position with you. He is the merest slave of his whims and fancies. He was, I know, greatly taken with you; and then all that horrid
business of the robbery kept you apart; and he fell in with Nora—and
—"

"—ought it is beyond me to commend! It makes me perfectly ill when I think of Clifford's unutterable folly.
I had, indeed, hoped to call you my sister."

"I think you are honest, and alive
to the advantages that marriage with me offers. I shall always consider you my friend. As to your brother, I have made up my mind
how to act. He will find I am not to be trifled with, but I must gather
a little more strength before I can
deal with the matter."

"Surely, my dear Mrs. Ruthven, no legal redress could possibly atone
for the wrong done?" said Lady Dorrington, in uncertain accents, very different from her usual decided tone,
so appalled was she by the prospect of the commonplace vulgarity of an action.

"Are you afraid of a breach of promise trial?" was her guest's counter-question, accompanied by a mocking contemptuous laugh. "That would be a very weak and inefficient payment of the debt I owe Mr. Marsden —but I will not allow myself to be trifled with by you. I must gather
a little more strength before I can
deal with the matter."

I am most anxious no should marry
Mrs. Ruthven quite; yet they set themselves against me; and I have been so fond of Nora, and so kind-to her too."

Here her reflections became chaotic.
Thought of the strong-minded order of woman, Lady Dorrington had, both family pride and family affection in abundance. The idea of open scandal or disgrace attacking her brother was intolerable, and her anxiety to shield him was not one whit lessened by her indignation and wrath with his inconsiderate folly!

Clifford Marsden meantime sped Londonward, well content with the result of his visit. He had put matters in train; there was no room now for Lady Dorrington to say that he had kept her in the dark about so important a matter as his marriage, and she would no doubt impart the knowledge to Mrs. Ruthven. They would have ample opportunity to abuse him together, and by the time they all met again the worst would have blown over.

He arrived in town late, and resolved not to disturb Nora and Mrs.
L'Estrange at that hour. Next morning would do. He had a deep,
though unacknowledged, conviction
that he must be careful and cautious
in his conduct to Nora.

Yet in spite of his love, there were moments when a kind of lurid revelation flashed across him that, if he could succeed in winning her coldness into something akin to his own fire, the day might come when he would hate her with a deadly hatred, and revenge himself cruelly on her, if she persisted in her maddening indifference. He could scarcely endure the torture it gave him,
when she shrunk from the caresses
with which he would fain have loadened her, and his longing for the reciprocities of natural, unforced tenderness,
was painfully intense.

How, in the absence of all which more hopeful. He had not seen Nora for three days, and who could tell what change that interval might have wrought in the "incomprehensible heart of a young girl?"

The post brought him a large number of letters, most of which needed
notice, and before Marsden had devoted the briefest replies, he was informed that a gentleman wished to see him. This proved to be a clerk from the office of Messrs. Cookson & Dunn, his solicitors, who was the bearer of a letter announcing that a better terms, and it was desirable that the question should be discussed
without loss of time.

Finally, it was past midday before Marsden could present himself at 8—Street.

Nora was looking, he thought, well,
and very handsome. She had more color than he had seen for some time, and was less tranquilly composed. She seemed disturbed by his presence, and her welcoming smile was as sweet ever, and Marsden tasted some moments of intoxicating delight, fancying that the very indifference he so much dreaded was at last melting before the passionate ardor of his advances.

"I am glad to see you looking better, Nora," he said, taking his accustomed place beside her work-table,
a blessed occupation for eyes and hands.

"Yes," remarked Mrs. L'Estrange;
"I assure you I was quite nervous about her the night before last, she had a sore throat and looked ghastly; she is much brighter to-day."

"And Lady Dorrington?" asked Nora. "How is she?" And did you tell him how she was? Tell a man that Chamberlain's Cough, Chorea and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus; and he will most likely forget it before the end of the day.
Tell him how she was? Tell a disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by A. McG. McDonald.

"Was she very angry?" persisted Nora, eagerly. "I am sure she is displeased."

"She wishes you had more money,
that's all, I think."

"There is a good deal more, I imagine. Clifford is she is angry with me? I know what her plans were,
and it makes me uncomfortable to feel that I have been the cause of their defeat. I am really fond of Lady Dorrington."

BATHURST NEWS

On Sunday afternoon death removed from us Mr. Geo T Doucet of Bathurst Village, at the age of 26. Deceased was a tailor by trade and was a popular young man of good moral habits. Though ailing for some time death came a surprise to his friends. His funeral took place on Tuesday morning and a large concourse of people followed the remains to the Holy Family Church burying grounds.

Some few weeks ago a house in the Village was entered by some unknown person or persons and a sum of money, about $12 in all, were stolen out of a trunk in a bed room. The theft though mentioned of a good deal at the time seemed shrouded in mystery and the matter almost forgotten, when rumors of suspicion began to circulate with the result that a party who was making preparations to leave town Monday night, was arrested, on suspicion of being the offender. His examination commenced Tuesday afternoon before Justice O'Brien, which was continued on Wednesday, and will likely be concluded Thursday morning. Circumstantial evidence seems to be fastening the guilt on the prisoner so far.

The Electric Light and Power Co. are making considerable progress in their enterprise. The Legere Hotel, Legere Hall, A. N. Desbriay's Store, John Melanson's Store, Adams Burns & Co's Store and offices, have all been wired. We are glad to know that the Company is meeting with every encouragement so far, and that all the stores, as well as public buildings, besides a very large number of private residences are to have the new lights.

A number of men are employed getting out the lumber for the building of the dam, the construction of which will commence next week.

Posters are out announcing an entertainment in the Opera Hall, on Tuesday night, June 21st, by the children of the Town Grammar and Convent Schools. As the pupils of these departments have been before the public before, we have every assurance that a rare treat is in store for our theatre people, as far as a pleasing entertainment is concerned. For some time these pupils have been under careful training and they will appear to special advantage on the stage, Tuesday night. We trust the sale of tickets will be large.

Miss Alice Ellis of Boston is at her home to spend the summer months.

Mr. E. LeBlanc, of Moncton, is enjoying a few days fishing on our waters. He is the guest of Mr. Albert Melanson, Bathurst Village.

Adams Burns & Co. started their mill sawing by night this week.

The farmers who have experienced a very backward season are now getting through with seeding. The grass throughout the country is looking very promising at this time of year. The fruit trees are monstrously loaded down with blossoms, and also indicates a good outcome. Strawberries it is said will be very plentiful both the cultivated and wild.

Salmon are reported very scarce along our coast, the lobster fishing has been the most successful for some years.

The Portland Canning Co. did a large canning business at Bathurst this year. In fact your reporter was told that they stopped buying last week being overloaded.

Eggs which were a little scarce in the market last week are a little more plentiful and supplies are coming in freely. The consumption of eggs in town and Village is now said to be equal to the country's supply.

Messrs T. D. Adams and H. White were out of town for a few days last week.

Miss Wells of Salem, Mass., but formerly of Bathurst, is visiting relatives here, after an absence of many years.

Mr. Harry Curran returned to Halifax on Monday morning where he takes a position in the Peoples Bank of Halifax.

The repairs to the old Village bridge are moving along rapidly. The Inspector, Mr. Denis Lorden, who is a competent bridge builder, is very much satisfied with the contractor, Mr. Smythe, who is doing his work in a very satisfactory way. The feeling is prevalent here among the people that a very substantial structure will replace the old one, and are confident that no political bungling will interfere with the contract.

Potatoes are on the market again in large quantities and prices consequently have dropped off a little. Good selected stock now being offered for $1.50 per barrel.

As is usually the case here at this season of the year the market is overloaded with butter and at the small figure it commands it is hard to understand with a good cheese factory amidst our farmers why more milk is not converted into cheese. In comparison it would seem to bring more profit.

The engagement is announced here of Miss Katherine McLean, one of Bathurst's popular young ladies, now of Boston, to Mr. Wm. Cragg, Mgr. of the Royal Bank of Canada at Dalhousie. It is said wedding bells will peal for them this month. Both parties interested in the coming event have hosts of friends in this town who are waiting to shower congratulations upon them.

We have not heard it mentioned relative to salmon fishing along our coast that one day last week Messrs A. & R. Loggie netted 1000 salmon in ten stands of nets at Pokemouche.

The American Vitagraph Popular Concerts, the Acme of Realism in sensational moving pictures will be given in the opera hall, Friday and Saturday nights, June 24th and 25th, with Saturday matinee. ## TWO MURDERS

Committed in Nova Scotia

ON SUNDAY.

Tragedies Take Place at Halifax and Glace Bay

Halifax, June 12.—Herbert Parr was shot and killed early this morning by Albert Brady in a shack with a bad reputation, back of Rockingham, five miles from Halifax. Brady and another man left Halifax at midnight to spend Sunday fishing in Carney's Lake. They reached the shack at the foot of the lake and entered it. Soon four other men came along, one of this group being Parr. He also went into the shack, where he found Brady. A pistol was lying on the bench, Brady says that he did not know it was loaded. It went off in his hands, the bullet striking Parr in the forehead so that he fell dead. There are suspicious circumstances connected with the affair, however, and Brady is under arrest. His story is contradicted by Cody, who keeps the shack and who was very drunk when the police arrested Brady. The coroner's verdict was death from a revolver in the hands of Albert Brady.

AT GLACE BAY.

The second tragedy in Nova Scotia to-day and the third murder within 16 months in Glace Bay, C. B., took place this morning at that town when John McRae struck his father, killing him. He is now under arrest charged with murder. The deed occurred in a saloon kept by the son. A Richie McDermott, who was in the bar room when the tragedy occurred, gave your correspondent the following story of the affair:

"Jack's father came into the bar. He went to the bar and said 'Jack, you've got twenty dollars of my money here, I want it.'"

"Jack would not give him the money, and they got into a scuffle. I interfered and told Jack he shouldn't beat his father. After this Jack started at the old man again. He struck him on the jaw. I saw him fall, striking his head on the handle of a lifting machine. He then got up and they scuffled out towards the hallway in front of the bar. Jack came in and in a minute or so Field, the bartender went out and returning, said: 'Jack the old man is dead.'"

"Jack and some others went out and drew the old man in nearer the door and tried to bring him to. They send Field, the bartender, out after a doctor, but before the doctor got there the old man had died. The police came in and arrested all hands."

The immediate cause of death was the formation of a clot of blood at the base of the brain, due to a blow received on the jaw, which was broken. The murdered man belonged in South Port, P. E. I., and had a wife and six children dependent on him.

The Lumber Outlook

Some Operators May Hold Their Stock Till Next Season.

Newcastle, June 14.—"Shipments of lumber in New Brunswick are now being made simply on sales made previous to the British depression. This will probably take us through June and July, but after that shipments may cease altogether. Such are the statements of Hon. Allan Ritchie. Continuing, Mr. Ritchie said: "Yes, of course this will affect next winter's operations in the woods. Some of the lumbermen are now considering the advisability of storing their logs, and of course if they do this they will scarcely want any additional logs next winter. The present depression is due to an over-production. The boom prices in lumber during the past year, or two encouraged lumbermen to cut as much as they possibly could, and the result is they have a large supply on hand. The purchasers on the other side are aware of this condition since the decrease in prices. They are holding back, so to speak. Of course the depression in the iron and steel trade has contributed to a large extent to the depression in the lumber trade. The iron and steel industry is more or less the barometer of all other industries."

"What has been the decrease in prices?" was asked, and Mr. Ritchie answered:

"Well, an idea may be formed from the fact that bank logs on the St John which last year sold for $13 are selling this year for $7. Another contributor to the depression has been the attitude of the Baltic lumbermen. Last year they held off in the hope of still better prices, but now they are flooding the market with lumber at greatly reduced prices."
