SAYS PILOTS ARE MORE HARSHLY TREATED THAN LINER CAPTAINS

Letter Sent to Quebec Paper Asserts Wreck Commissioner Gives Former Raw End of Deals.

[Canadian Press.]

Quebec, July 30.—A letter emanating evidently from local pilots, is sent to Le Soleil here today complaining of the treatment of pilots at the hands of the wreck commissioner.

The letter relates a number of maritime accidents in which pilots were involved and the letter says the pilots were severely criticized, some of them even having their licenses revoked.

The instance of the loss of the Bavarian some years ago, is revived and the letter says the pilot who sent her ashore then was chastized by the wreck commissioner, who at the time said that a criminal who causes deaths is disgraced and that a pilot who endangers lives had also been disgraced, that is, deprived of his license. The letter continues, saying that the captains of the Empress of Ireland and the Storstad, whose ships collided, causing terrible loss of life, were not so roughly handled as were pilots who were implicated in previous mishaps.

The letter also relates a number of accidents that happened to ships while they were under the guidance of their own captains, and which wrecks were not so deeply probed, the letter claims, as were those that happened while the ships were in charge of pilots.

RINGS MAY IDENTIFY HER AS WIFE OF CHINESE

Charles Chew Will Go to Quebec to Look at Latest Body From Wreck.

After reading the statement in The Advertiser this morning to the effect that a woman's body, on the hands of which there were several rings, had been taken from the Empress wreck yesterday, Charles Chew, Chinese proprietor of the City Cafe, stated that he would go to Quebec in an effort to identify the body as that of his white wife.

Fled From Husband.

Mrs. Chew fled from her husband, after alleging cruel treatment, and booked on the Empress under the name of Amelia Mott. After leaving the city she went to Woodstock, and then without saying a word to friends, she left for Montreal. Her husband left the city for Quebec immediately after the disaster to search for her.

Believes It Is His Wife.

At the time of her departure she took several diamond rings, three other rings, and other jewelry with her. Mr. Chew stated today that she had two diamond rings, an opal ring, her wedding ring, a bracelet made of $250 gold pieces, and other pieces. He stated that after he had conferred with the C. P. R. he would in all probability go to Quebec. He believes the body is that of his wife, and is anxious to reclaim it, and the jewelry, which, he claims, is his.

"I do not want the jewelry," said Mr. Chew today. "I want to recover her body, because I loved her."

REID WRECKERS TO EXAMINE BIG HULLS

Will Endeavor to Identify Three Boats Found Off Erieau.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Erieau, July 3.—Work of identifying the wreck, supposed to be that of the lost Bessemer No. 2, the Pere Marquette coal ferry, lost in 1909 with 32 sailors, and the other two hulls discovered by Captain White, of the wrecking tug Bertie No. 2, has been transferred to the Reid Wrecking Company, of Sarnia.

The divers expected have not yet arrived, but now that the Reid Company has been retained by the underwriters it is expected that the work will go on.

Capt. White continues to search for wrecks.

Why the City Lost an Industry

London lost an industry and Wallaceburg gained one. The industry was located on Fullarton street for some time and made electric iron, and every effort was made by the industrial department to foster it. But when this industry sought business from the hydro sales department it was turned down, according to the information received at the city hall.

Was Not Encouraged.

The industry was started by Londoners, and there was every prospect that it would develop into a good-sized one, with proper encouragement. But it failed to receive encouragement from the very branch of the municipal service which had an opportunity of assisting it.

The result was that when a man from Wallaceburg came along and saw the possibilities of the industry, he invested his money in it and moved the industry to Wallaceburg.

Order From Toronto.

Word has been received here that the company has just received a large order from the Toronto Hydro Department for its electric irons.

If London had given the industry a share of the business that passes through the hydro sales department, the industry would have been retained.

While in the city the industry was located on Fullarton street.

"I remember when they came to me," said Mr. Claiborn today, "and I told them that I was bound by an agreement to buy supplies through the central commission, where all hydro cities place their orders. Our commission, however, is not adverse to patronizing local industries, and we do give some trade to London firms. My recollection of the Electrical Iron Company is that it was not strictly a London concern."

Another Alice Joyce "Lover."

A London man is in love with Alice Joyce.

Alice Joyce is one of the moving picture stars.

The London man has seen the fair Alice in several thousand feet of film and has lost his heart to her completely. He sits in the audience at a local theatre night after night through all the shows just to see Alice—that is when Alice is on the film. Sometimes Alice is not on the film and he is sad.

He has become so interested in the fair Alice and so fascinated by the two dimples which have made her famous in the film world that he has procured a handsome photograph of her. The man is employed in a local store, and it is understood that he proposes to visit the Kale studio on his holidays this summer to meet Miss Joyce.

LONDONER ON BOARD STRANDED STEAMER

George Dotteridge Is Member of Crew of Assiniboia, on Rocks in Huron.

George Dotteridge, a former employee of the London Printing and Lithograph Company, who serves as a wheelman on the great lakes in summer, is a member of the crew of the steamer Assiniboia, which went ashore on Bad Neighbor Shoal, near Cove Island, in Georgian Bay, early yesterday morning.

Mr. Dotteridge joined the Assiniboia after sailing on another lake vessel for several trips.

ROBBED HERE OF TICKETS FOR SELF AND CORPSE

J. G. Stewart Also Lost $45 as He Was Escorting Brother's Remains.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Windsor, July 3.—As J. G. Stewart, Windsor, boarded a train at London, Ont., where he was leaving with the body of his dead brother, George Stewart, former businessman of Paris, Ont., who died of heart disease, pickpockets removed the former's purse containing $45 in money and railway tickets for Mr. Stewart and the corpse.

The train was well under way before the loss was discovered by Mr. Stewart. His acquaintance with the conductor allowed him to continue his journey to Windsor.

NEW YORK POLICEMAN SAVES SIX FROM DEATH

Swings Them From Burning Building to Safety—Three Lives Lost.

"MADE-IN-LONDON" SHOW FOR REUNION

Industrial Bureau Plans Big Home Advertising Feature for Old Boys' Week.

SUGGEST WINDOW DISPLAY

Downtown Merchants Have Already Offered Show Window Use to Committee.

Under the auspices of the trade expansion committee of the industrial bureau, it is suggested to hold an exhibition of the products of London's factories during the London Old Boys' Reunion week.

The committee is considering two alternative plans, one being to hold the exhibition in the horticultural building, Queen's Park, and the other suggestion is, that with the co-operation of the retail dealers, a "Made-in-London" exhibition be held in the windows of the city stores. A large number of local manufacturers have agreed to exhibit and the horticultural building would, of course, be admirably suited for the purpose of such a show. On the other hand it is felt that if possible, attention should be centered in the city stores, and as a great many of the local manufacturers are suitable for exhibition in this way, it is believed that a splendid showing could be made.

Smallman & Ingram, Cairncross & Lawrence, Brick & Dundas, Ross, Limited, Graham Bros., J. H. Chapman & Co., Rowland Hill, London Electric Co., Belts & Co., F. B. Smith, Argyle Land Co., W. J. Wray & Co., and other owners of store windows on Richmond and Dundas have offered these for this purpose. It would be the aim of the committee if this plan finds general favor with the retailers, to endeavor to display goods in each window similar to those seen in the store of the merchant whose window is used.

Similar shows have been held with great success elsewhere. Last year Chicago had by far the most conspicuous and successful "Made-in-Chicago" exposition ever held there, in the windows of the city stores. One account of this display of home-made goods in the big western metropolis says: "It was the third annual 'Made-in-Chicago' week; the third undertaking to educate Chicago people to the wide range of products manufactured in that city and to stimulate local consumption of local wares. The magnitude of the enterprise is in part conveyed in the statement that thousands of manufacturers and merchants united in the mammoth display and that hundreds of thousands of residents availed themselves of the opportunity to view at close range the diversified output of foundry, factory, shoe and mill."

Many miles of windows were given over to the exposition.

GIRL KILLED AND OTHERS INJURED IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

North Bay Party Thrown Out When Tire Blew Out and Brake Jammed—Miss Morrisette the Victim.

[Canadian Press.]

North Bay, Ont., July 3.—One young girl lying dead, another seriously injured, and two young men in a critical condition, are the result of an automobile accident on Thursday evening, in which residents of North Bay figured. David Morland, a real estate agent, took a party out for a spin in his automobile in the early evening, his companions being his partner, J. A. Kinsella, Mrs. John Billington, of North Bay, and Misses Morrisette and Eva Wright, of Mattawa. The two girls had been visiting Mrs. Billington.

Tire Blew Out.

The party rode to Bonfield, and while returning a tire blew out and the machine slewed. In bringing it back, Morland threw the wheel too far over, and the brake jamming at the same time, the auto piled into a ditch. Miss Morrisette was so severely injured that she died two hours later. Mrs. Billington was taken to her home in North Bay on the night express, and is suffering from broken ribs and other injuries, but will recover.

Severely Injured.

Kinsella was brought to North Bay hospital, where his injuries were found to be so serious that he was taken this morning to Toronto, for treatment by a specialist. Morland is severely injured, and was brought to North Bay this morning. His injuries are internal; how severe is not known. Morland states that the car was not running more than twelve miles an hour when the accident happened, and that the falling of a loose board caused the brake to jam, which was the direct cause of the accident.

Miss Eva Wright was the only one in the car not seriously injured, suffering only slight abrasions.

Daisies Won't Tell Who "Spilled Beans"

Movement to Make Controller City Purchasing Agent Is Given Distinct Setback.

The announcement that one of the controllers was slated for the job of purchasing agent has set that plan back about three years, according to city hall reports.

The scheme was to have the purchasing agent commence his duties about the first of the year when his present term as controller expires. As a sort of prelude to his appointment he had started in to familiarize himself with the work of different city departments so he would be able to start in on the job without a hitch.

Went on Inspection.

He recently went away with one of the executive heads of the city to inspect some apparatus in the States. None of this apparatus is to be purchased by the city at this time, although it is said that the company paid the fare of both officials, believing they were making a bonafide inspection with a view of purchasing.

Stole the Thunder.

The announcement of the plan to appoint a purchasing agent had the effect of stealing the thunder from the movement that was to come as a surprise. Before a purchasing agent could be appointed it was necessary to create a demand for him and it was such a program that was being worked out for the ultimate naming of a controller for purchasing agent.

The "big ones" want to know who let the secret leak out, but "Daisies won't tell."

Parkhill Teacher's Picture Shows How Ontario Villages Lose Residents.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Parkhill, July 3.—It is well known that many of the towns and villages of Ontario, in common with the rural sections, are losing their young people in the drift cityward and to Western Canada. To what extent this is true is rather hard to determine. On Thursday, however, several old Parkhill boys who were in the town over the holiday, figured it out as far as that town is concerned.

A. B. Gilbert, a former principal of the public school here, has a group photo, taken about twenty-five years ago, of the pupils attending the Parkhill public school. In the picture there are about 275 children. The old boys were going over it to pick out any who had remained in town, and only five boys out of the entire 275 pupils could be counted who were still in Parkhill. They have drifted to almost every corner of the continent, many of them occupying responsible positions. They have made good on their own merits, as the parents of none of the boys were in anything better than very ordinary circumstances.

GODERICH BRIBERY CASES ADJOURNED

Hearing To Be on Thursday by Agreement Between Counsel—Crown Attorney Seager Is in Toronto.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Goderich, July 3.—The bribery case against Dr. Macklin and Joseph Elliott in connection with the election came before P. M. Kelly this morning. The case was again adjourned to Thursday, July 9th, at 2 o'clock. Mr. Cameron, who appeared for Joseph Elliott, asked for the adjournment as the result of an agreement with Crown Attorney Seager, who left for Toronto to attend a conference at Trinity College, where his son, Rev. A. Seager, was having the degree of doctor of divinity conferred. Mr. Macklin, of Stratford, who is defending Dr. Macklin, agreed to the adjournment.

RESIGNED FROM HOUSE RECENTLY

Broke With Gladstone On Home Rule For Ireland Policy.

BITTER OPPONENT

Sat for Birmingham, Although Unfit for Work, Without Defeat.

LANDMARKS IN HIS LIFE.
Pioneer of tariff reform.
Entered Parliament in 1876 as Liberal.
Member for Birmingham for 38 years.
Cabinet minister in 1880.
Broke with Gladstone in 1886.
Had paralytic stroke, 1905.
Resigned seat January 5, 1913.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 3.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain died last night.

The cause of Mr. Chamberlain's death was officially announced today to have been heart failure. Although he had been gradually sinking since Tuesday, the members of the family had preferred that his desperate condition should not become publicly known.

The death of Joseph Chamberlain, which removed one of the most striking figures from British politics in the past generation, came as an entire surprise, as the condition of his health was not publicly known to be any worse than at any time in the past two or three years.

Mrs. Chamberlain, who never left her husband's side since he was stricken with paralysis seven years ago, and his son, Austen Chamberlain, were with Mr. Chamberlain when death occurred at 10:30 last night at his London residence. The event cast a gloom today over the London season, which was at its height.

Mr. Chamberlain's last public appearance was at a garden party on the grounds of his Birmingham home, on May 6 last, when, with his wife and son he received several hundred guests. He appeared in a wheelchair on the lawn, and appeared very emaciated and feeble when he lifted his hat to friends and neighbors in acknowledgment of their salutes.

Chief of Tariff Reform.

Tariff reform, which was the chief policy for which Joseph Chamberlain was spokesman when elected to Parliament, occurred, has suffered an almost complete eclipse, his son, Austen, being the only British statesman who advocates it on all occasions.

The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain was the pioneer in Great Britain of tariff reform and the great advocate of Imperialism. For 35 years, with a brief interregnum, he represented Birmingham in Parliament. In 1906 his career of stormy activities was ended by a stroke of paralysis.

The blow fell when he was in the midst of a strenuous campaign for the establishment of a protective tariff with preference.

HELP TAKE KIDDIES TO COUNTRY VACATION

Advertiser Readers Commence Response to Appeal for "Fresh Air" Fund.

Great interest is being evidenced by both country and city readers of The Advertiser in the "Fresh Air" campaign for sending children from the more crowded sections of the city out to the country for a week or fortnight. Our country readers have been exceedingly generous in their offers, several letters having been received this morning in addition to those previously acknowledged. One lady writes that she will take two girls: "I have read your appeal to the farmers in behalf of the London poor children, and I think it is a good idea. I for one have been waiting for such a chance. We think we would rather you sent a couple of girls—girls who are able to look after themselves, say from eight to twelve years old. This is an excellent opportunity for us, and also new around here." If it be a success it may open the way for others.

The country people are more than generous in volunteering to do their share, and now it is the city readers' opportunity to help defray the railway expenses of these little folks. Already the following has been received:

HON. H. R. EMERSON IMPROVING.
DORCHESTER, N.B., July 2.—Hon. H. R. Emerson is still improving, though slowly.

CAREER OF "BRUMMAGEM JOE" ONE BRILLIANT PARADOX

His Parliamentary Life Marked by Strange Inconsistencies
by Which He Wrecked Two Parties—Closely Identified With Progress of Birmingham, Which He Made One of Foremost Cities of Empire.

A noted authority on things political has summed up Joseph Chamberlain as follows: "The power which has governed the life energies of Joseph Chamberlain was destructive, not formative in its operation." As it applies to his parliamentary career, this definition seems accurate.

Chamberlain's dominant selfhood sent him along many paths, but although he at first gave promise of achieving great things for the masses and for the empire, these generous impulses and high ideals eventually burned out without any lasting and beneficial results.

A Radical of Radicals.
The beginning of his public career found him a Radical of Radicals. He spoke out boldly and somewhat tactlessly in denunciation of the wealthy idler, urged the greater taxation of property of the rich, and accused the monarch of evading the income tax, the last assertion a rash one, causing some difficult conferences between Mr. Gladstone and Queen Victoria. At this time there was nothing of modernity and reserve about "Brummagem Joe," and he frequently and blithely rode roughshod over the dignity and authority of the British Government. At that time Chamberlain was the "enfant terrible" of the British cabinet.

Wrecked the Liberals.
At the elections of 1885 Chamberlain was more emphatic than Gladstone in his plea for the pacification of Ireland. In fact, his proposals were so extreme and put forward with such vehement passion that he is credited with causing the defeat and wrecking of the Liberal party.

Failing in his attempt to wrest the Liberal leadership from Gladstone, he formed the Unionists, only to split that party asunder with his fiscal proposals. It was the old story of not being able to dominate the rest of the cabinet, the outcome being an antagonism that wrecked the party.

The "New Diplomacy."
Chamberlain's egotism and self-esteem drew the empire into several serious situations when he took over the Colonial Office. He inaugurated the "new diplomacy," and as a result ran foul of half a dozen European Governments. One of his statements, that Britain had formed an alliance with the United States and Germany, was promptly repudiated by both Washington and Berlin. It was entirely mythical, but so Chamberlainlike. Once he read the French nation a lecture on their manners over an alleged insult to Queen Victoria, and at another time he made a derisive reference to the Czar of Russia. In Imperial affairs he appears to have been tactless, careless of consequences.

"Our Joe."
But if Chamberlain seems to have made a mess of his career, imperially, quite the reverse is the case when he is considered municipally. As somebody has remarked, "Birmingham is Chamberlain," which is a high compliment considering that that city is held the first in the Empire in progress.

There, for years, he has been affectionately known as "our Joe" and "Brummagem Joe." His loyalty to the great metropolis of the Midlands has been one of the finest things in British public life.

PORT DOVER SENSATION; FATHER STEALS CHILD

Had Never Seen Baby Which Lived With Great-Grandmother.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

PORT DOVER, July 2.—P. K. Brock, formerly of Port Dover, now thought to be a resident of St. Thomas, created a sensation here this afternoon, when he went to the home of Mrs. W. W. Wells, while she was absent, seized his sixteen-months-old daughter, whom he had never seen before, and rushed away with her.

The police here are investigating the case.

Mrs. Wells stated to the Advertiser tonight that her grandchild, Lena Gilbert, ran away with Brock about three years ago, at the age of seventeen, and was married by a bishop in Simcoe, who was at the minister's house while the latter was away for a holiday.

After the wedding, they returned to Port Dover, where they lived for a short time. Then the husband went to Detroit, and in a short while Mrs. Brock followed. They lived there until three weeks before the baby was born.

Brock, she claimed, then took all the money in the house, the marriage certificate and wedding ring, left, and never returned until a year ago, when he wanted to see the baby.

After being refused permission, Brock went away, and did not return until today, when he came to Port Dover and carried away the child.

The little one, it is said, had a very comfortable home with its great grandmother here. It is said that Mr. Brock is living in St. Thomas with a sister.

ALLEGED MURDERESS TO BE COMMITTED SATURDAY

Paris, July 3.—Mme. Caillaux, charged with the killing of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, will be formally interrogated by the president of the assize court on Saturday. In accordance with the French procedure she will also be served with the indictment and commitment to the assize. She has five days in which to appeal against the commitment.

THEATRICAL TROUPE THROWN FROM AUTO

Narrowly Escapes Death When Driver Loses Control of Machine.

ONE IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Mrs. Shon Hurler Over Fence and Sustains a Fractured Wrist—Others Shaken Up.

Four members of the Imperial Musical Comedy Company on their way to Springfield theatre about half-past seven o'clock last evening were thrown out and badly shaken up when the automobile of U. A. Buchner, which they were riding in, became unmanageable and ran into the fence on the brow of the hill on the Pipe Line road, just above the pump house. Mrs. George Shon, whose husband was driving at the time, was thrown over the fence, sustaining a fractured wrist, and rolled down the steep hill side for some distance. The automobile overturned but caught on the fence which prevented it from rolling down to the foot of the hill.

Mr. Buchner's son and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sexton were also in the car, but with the exception of Mrs. Shon, none received injuries, the other members of the theatrical company being able to take their parts at the theatre as usual.

Mrs. Shon returned to the city, and was attended by Dr. A. MacLaren.

IN POLICE COURT.

Foreigners had the floor in police court this morning.

On first appearance the mills of justice resembled the police dock of a metropolitan city. Fights, gambling and general disturbances in the foreign quarter are increasing of late. Barely a week goes by in which several cases are not in before the magistrate.

Samuel Mieschke, S. Chinche, Tony Popenko and Mike Belone were playing poker last Sunday night in a back shed on South street. Sergeant John Monaghan chanced along and gathered up the players. He also appropriated a pot of $1.25. To the magistrate he explained that the Russians were playing for five cents a corner.

"That must have been a jackpot," remarked the court in disposing of the case. They were fined $5 and costs and given the alternative of spending twenty-one days in the castle on the Thames. Maurice Zimbelg appeared charged with assaulting a young son of Vince Demitrook. He had only boxed the boy's ears, he stated with a great deal of vehemence gesturing. Three dollars and costs was handed down to him.

"James Payne, stand up!" James climbed wearily to his feet. He appeared to be tired.

"Were you drunk?" asked the court. "Well, I had a few drinks. You see it was this way. I was walking around all right and then someone—"

"Yes I know all about that," said the magistrate, thinking, no doubt, of the number of cases still awaiting his judgment.

"Where is your home?" "I live in Brantford," said James.

"Better get back there," advised the P. M.

"How long since you were here?" queried the court as Matthew Kew answered his name.

"Well, I was here yesterday," said Matthew.

"Yes, you were here yesterday and now you are here again charged with being drunk and disorderly. Ten dollars or twenty-one days."

Frank Brington, charged with being drunk and a vagrant, was also from Brantford. He said to in no uncertain terms to prove it, too. He explained that he was on the way to Sarnia. There was lots of work there he had heard. However, he stopped off at London to see the sights. While he was seeing them and incidentally borrowing a little here and there by the "give me something for my family," route, P. C. Edgar Fowler sauntered along. They sauntered together to the police station.

"Five dollars or 10 days," was the ultimatum handed down.

The cannon brothers, James and John, were up on the carpet. They were drunk.

"So you're both here again," said the magistrate.

They acknowledged that they were. Then they were handed out the penalty of $10 or 21 days.

Ted Gaffrey, who was up a week ago and who appeared again this morning, was put on the "stay without" list.

Thomas Louth, who was drunk and who lived in North Dorchester, was allowed to go with a warning. He was profuse in his thanks.

Donald Graham had imbibed too freely and had become inebriated to excess. He was charged with being disorderly on the street by Officer William McCullough. He was calling people names, the policeman explained. Three dollars and costs or 15 days.

Arthur McCauley and Fred Murray, were found sleeping in a C. P. R. box car. They stated that they had come to St. Thomas on the Wabash, that they had walked into London and that they had gone to sleep in the car where they were found. The usual fine to trespassers, namely $5 and costs or 10 days was handed down.

Judgment in the case of James McCrory and William Box, over alleged cruelty to a horse was reserved till Monday.

Worry over low bid caused his rash act.

Echo of Fred Harding's Death in Reletting of Storm Sewer Contracts.

That Fred Harding, the contractor who ended his life two weeks ago, bid too low on the Adelaide street storm sewer and worry over the fact, helped to drive him to that rash act, was a factor in the subsequent developments.

This morning the board of control relet the Adelaide street sewer contract to Chris. Leathorn for $28,264. Mr. Harding's price on this same job was $26,850. It was regarded as a low price when he submitted his tender.

Upon his death this tender was automatically made void and new tenders were advertised for.

The tenders were opened today and T. W. Nicholson, who bid on the Adelaide street job before, raised the price he submitted at that time by adding $8,000. Mr. Nicholson is building the storm sewer on Egerton street.

The tenders ran from $28,000 to $37,000, the other bidders being McKnight Bros. and the Agnew-Connolly Company.

Sanitary sewer contracts were let to William McCracken for work on Grosvenor street to cost $2,000 and on William street to cost $1,833.86; to W. J. Johnston for sewer on Chesapeake street, between Colborne and Maitland, to cost $1,819.75; and on Maitland street, to cost $1,772.71; and to the Fielder Construction Company for a sanitary sewer on Duchess avenue, to cost $2,002.85.

London Chinese Give Money for Sufferers

Send $200 for Relief of Sufferers in Flooded Canton District.

London Chinese, all of whom come from the province of Canton, have collected more than $200 for the relief of relatives who suffered in the great floods which caused the loss of more than 200,000 lives recently.

A great part of the province has been covered to a depth of 42 feet with flood water and the natives have been swept away by the thousands.

All of the London Chinese come from Canton and they have contributed generously to the fund for the relief of the province. The money will be forwarded to San Francisco.

Injured by Fall

Hamilton Road Man Suffers Brain Contusion When Head Strikes Gurb.

When Thomas Rodway, 273 Hamilton road, fainted at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets at eleven o'clock this morning and fell to the pavement, he struck his head so forcibly on the curb that he suffered a slight concussion of the brain. He was carried into E. L. Guillemont's drug store, and later, removed to Victoria Hospital. He was attended by Dr. W. M. Schoobotham.

Rodway was waiting for the car. Several people across the road heard the thud and ran to his help.

MOTHER SEARCHES IN VAIN FOR BOY SO OFTEN "LOST"

Lucan Lad Disappears From Home for More Than Tenth Time.

ALWAYS POSES AS ORPHAN

Excites Sympathy on His Wanderings by Telling Sad Story to Farmers.

Missing since May 29, from his mother's home in Lucan Village, George Denman, aged 10, is supposed to be playing the part of a homeless orphan on a McGillivray Township farm. The wanderlust has held George in its toils for more than two years now, and in spite of his prolonged absence, Mr. Denman, Mr. Charles Denman, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCann, are convinced that the little wanderer is hidden in a farm in some obscure corner of the township.

This is not the first time that the little chap has run away, nor the second, nor the third, nor even the tenth. During the past two years he has left home almost a score of times and on each occasion has sought work on farms in the township.

Poses As An Orphan.

Always he has told the same story, always he has posed as an orphan and always he has managed to worm his way into the heart of some kind-hearted farm folk, who have accepted his story of being an orphan and have taken him in.

"My father died on a homestead in the West and my mother came to London and died, I want work," has been his plaintive story and it has been "put across" by the little scoundrel though he is only ten, the boy looks much older and his story of being thirteen has been accepted. Generally he tells his own name.

His little excursions into the country have not been long ones. Generally he stays only a short time with a farmer and then treks on. On one of them he has returned to his home of his own accord. He has always been brought back by his grandfather.

Disappears Again.

For the past four years he has made his home with his grandparents in Lucan, his mother having been in the States. Shortly after her return this spring he was gripped by the wanderlust again, and on Friday, May 29, wandered away from home. Since then he has been "lost."

Although his wanderings have been traced for the first couple of weeks of his "seeing the world."

His mother has advertised for information as to the boy's whereabouts and has offered a reward, but so far this appeal has proved fruitless. She is convinced that he is in the township, but in view of his previous trips throughout the district is not worrying over his prolonged absence, as otherwise would be the case.

No Reason to Leave.

According to his mother there is no reason why the boy should leave home. Nor can she see any reason for his wanderings other than his desire to see new places and new surroundings. The fact that he has been missing for more than a month has been taken by her as proof that he has wandered farther afield than on his previous trips, but she assured the reporter that she believed the boy to be still in the township or, at the most, in some of the adjacent ones.

"He has always been delicate," she told the Advertiser, "and I do not know any reason why he should want to run away so often. He never seemed to want the company of other children and he always seemed perfectly satisfied to play alone. He has been wandering away since he was six or seven. At first he only used to remain away all night, simply staying wherever he was when night came on, but for the past two years and more he has been going out to the country and asking farmers for work."

Good Boy at School.

"It is not a desire to get away from school or anything like that, for he never objected to his lessons and always attended regularly when he was home. I don't know what it is that makes him go away so. It must be that he wants to see new places and new things."

He never was a lazy boy and he always asks for work when he goes to any of the farmers. Neither he nor the habit of telling stories, and his invention of a dead father and mother are the only lies I ever knew of him telling."

The description of the missing lad, as given in the ad, follows: Age, slender build; fair complexion and brown eyes. When he was last seen he was wearing brown knickerbockers and black and white striped shirt.

Ruthlessly Destroyed

100-Year-Old Trees

Bell Telephone Employees Cut Down Venerable Chelsea Green Maples.

Acting upon instructions from the board of control, City Clerk Baker today notified the Bell Telephone Company that it would have to appear before the board and show cause why its employees ruthlessly cut down two maple trees, each 100 years old and standing in a beautiful grove on Brookside street, near Chelsea Green.

The trees were the property of Joseph Steele. "These trees were in their natural state and over 100 years old," declared Controller Rose today, "and it is a shame the way they have been cut down. It seems it was done without reason."

Controller Moore said it was time the city took some action against the ruthless slaughter of trees by the telephone company, as property owners looked to the board of control to protect their interests.

BRITAIN IS FACING A NATIONAL LOCKOUT OF BUILDING EMPLOYEES

Employees Are Determined to Force Settlement of the London Dispute.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 3.—A London cable says:—Definite steps have been taken to declare a lockout of building employees throughout the whole country, in order to force a settlement of the London dispute, which has now lasted 22 weeks.

The following official statement was issued yesterday: "The National Federation of Building Trade Employees met in London today and completed all preliminary arrangements for a national lockout. Voting papers will be issued forthwith."

Five of the men's unions have already approached the employers' association with a view to sectional arrangements.

Action at Last on River Breakwater

Controllers Authorize Purchase of Machinery for Its Construction.

The board of control today authorized City Engineer Ashplant to advertise for bids for a municipal concrete mixer. The machine is to be purchased by the middle of the month, so work can start on the West London breakwater from Oxford street to Blackfriars.

The breakwater has been under contemplation for some time, and complaints have not ceased to come into the city engineers' department since the present administration took office.

Controller Cole brought the question of immediate action before the board, and the city engineers' plan was approved and asked if he could build the breakwater by October 30. He thought he could if he got enough help and the controllers were favorable to this proposition and told him to go ahead with the work.

It is possible that the breakwater may be extended to Dundas street from Blackfriars, as some members of the board believe the present plan is not sufficient to carry it out. This extension, however, will not be undertaken this year.

Hon. Jos. Chamberlain

ence for the British colonies, and just after his constituents had celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of his first election.

Loyal Birmingham.

Since that day the strong fighter had been an invalid, a pathetic onlooker at the political game, played always with his loyal wife, a daughter of W. C. Endicott, of Massachusetts, who was President Roosevelt's secretary of war.

On the eve of his death, Mr. Chamberlain wrote to his constituents, resigning his seat, and saying: "I cannot hope again to do any work in Parliament, and I feel that our city and constituency need the services of a younger man."

While his greatest claim to fame was his determined and brilliant advocacy for Great Britain, the citadel of free trade, he will also be remembered as the bitterest and most forceful opponent of Gladstone in that statesman's efforts for home rule for Ireland; as one of the founders of the Liberal-Unionist party, and as the man who led the party to power in 1902.

From the day he left University College, London, to enter his father's screw factory at Birmingham, Joseph Chamberlain devoted his life to the cause of public utility. He became a member of the public utility committee of Birmingham, and later serving as mayor for successive terms. He gave his whole time to the cause of municipal reform, and what he had previously done of the worst governed cities in England became a model for municipal government.

No Home Ruler.

In 1876 he entered Parliament, being elected without opposition as a Liberal from Birmingham. In his early years in the Commons he sat among home rule Liberals, with such ardent supporters as Mr. Chamberlain, but a few years later he emphatically disavowed his associates in the House of any notion they may have had of his belief in separate government for Ireland.

In less than four years he was a cabinet minister, entering Gladstone's Government in 1880 as president of the board of trade, and in less than a decade his hold on popular opinion was almost as great as Gladstone's.

Broke With Gladstone.

After the general election of 1885 he became president of the local government board, but by the spring of 1886 he and Gladstone's relations on the latter's side broke down so far as to strain that his place in the cabinet, and left the Liberal party, never to return to it. He, Lord Salisbury, and others, high in the Liberal party, saw in their former leader's home rule proposals and the Empire, formed a new party to resist them. They called themselves Liberal Unionists and anti-home rulers in the beginning, their main tenet Lord Hartington was the first leader, but when he was elevated to the peerage through the death of his father, Mr. Chamberlain, was chosen the party's chief.

Considered a Renegade.

During the campaign of 1892 Mr. Chamberlain worked with great effect, and subsequently in the Commons he was to the forefront in all the assaults on the Government bill and clashed frequently with Mr. Gladstone. The home rulers considered him a renegade, and this feeling was aggravated by his rousing and during debate on the bill "one night in July, 1893, Mr. Gladstone tartly

LONDON, FRIDAY, JULY 3.

OH, MR. DUFF.

O H. Mr. Duff, how do you do? Your constituency has shown a wonderful, quite a touching trust in you. That 1,000 majority has a fine, careless, confident tone about it. Being so honored in your own county, you really can't be much of a prophet, whatever your gifts as a minister of agriculture. But up where you live, the folks are in raptures over you. You can't be beaten in an election, that much is evident.

But by the way, are you going to do anything for agriculture in this province? You know, you and your conferees can't live for ever by the ideas of your predecessors in office. You are splendid fellows for going on in the path, blazed by Mowat and Ross, two of you quite energetically, the rest asleep on the wagon among the casks. But, haven't you a glimmer of a new idea now that a decade has run round and times are changed?

They are particularly changed in the rural parts of old Ontario, more so than anywhere else in eastern Canada. And not for the better! The census of 1911 told a staggering tale—ten thousand lost in the grand agricultural county of Huron, heavy losses in Bruce, Middlesex, etc. Since 1911 this rural decline is going on, if anything even faster. We are to have a member less at Ottawa from Middlesex. Have you nothing for it, Mr. Duff? You may remember that back in July 1913, the Mail and Empire said:

"It is true that the Agricultural Department has not kept pace with the advance in other branches of industry."

This is a knock from a friend, Mr. Duff. Perhaps, you might get somebody like Dr. Seath or Dr. Merchant to do everything for you. Would you like to be a megaphone like Dr. Pyne? Perhaps, after all, you will have to wait for Mr. Rowell's men to furnish you with some ideas, and then, gradually, push you into carrying them out. It took years of perseverance on the Opposition's part to drive the Government into workmen's compensation. Our Government sits on a sort of Olympus, divinely appointed to rule. If there is to be abolition of the bar, it alone must do the work, not the "Grits." For them to take such a work into their own hands, or workmen's compensation, or tax reform, or agricultural, or educational re-adjustment, would be sacrilege. Legislation is mine, saith the Ontario Tory. The only way, then, Mr. Duff, for an agricultural advance is to keep praying to you, telling you what is wanted, and by and by you will perhaps be so gracious as to answer our prayers.

Abolish the cold weather.

In London Sir Adam Beck had a large majority as usual; but the total vote cast for him was only 4,352, out of a total of 12,500, as against 5,032 in 1908, the last time in which there was a contest. The Minister of Power is growing weaker each year in his own home constituency. The city has been growing rapidly, but its member's political strength has been diminishing. With a good candidate, like Dr. Stevenson, earlier in the field, and with better organization on our part, Sir Adam's majority would have approached the vanishing point.

Against this excellent record we have to admit the diminished vote of the Liberals in Oxford and Perth. In both those ridings, we are informed that local considerations had much to do with the result; and especially the persistent and virulent attacks on Mr. Rowell. The cry was "Anything to beat Rowell." They did not succeed in defeating him, but they certainly injured him and his colleague in the county of Oxford.

We hoped for better results, and did what we could to secure them. And if we have not got all we wanted, we got enough to encourage us for the present, and to cheer us for the future.

FREE TRADE AND HUMAN NATURE.

EVERY once in a while respectable people are held up at the border and searched for smuggled articles. It is considered no great disgrace to bring into Canada whatever one can carry from "the other side." The only injustice is, that it is usually the retailer who is hit, and not to the same degree, at least, the protected manufacturer.

None think it a serious offence, because there is a free trade instinct in human nature. The average citizen simply won't be barred from buying in a neighboring country, if he can help it. He believes in his inherent right to buy where he chooses. Sooner or later the trade barrier between the United States and Canada will be ripped down.

Conan Doyle to the contrary, notwithstanding, this is an age of branch factories. Every big American concern has many of them scattered over the country. They would locate in Canada just as they do now, and many industries would be brought to Canada because conditions would suit some concerns.

The tariff in Canada isn't at all a consistent thing, anyway. For instance, why haven't Canadian newspapers just as much regret to demand that American papers be barred, as the Canadian shoe-maker has to keep out American shoes. The Advertiser has no desire to see American papers kept out, but it would be quite as fully justified in asking it, as in the case of any other manufacturing or commercial concern. For newspapers of Canada there is no protection; for the manufacturer all he asks.

While automobiles may be classed as a luxury, why should Canadians be forced to pay an added price for their luxuries? In this particular line of manufacture, the tariff has not done much for Canada. We buy most of our cars in the United States, and pay duty on them. The tariff wall may have brought a few assembling warehouses, and an odd branch factory, but such things are scattered profusely about the United States as well. When there is a sufficiently large production, we get a factory, but rather in spite of the tariff wall than because of it. The tariff burden on automobiles and many other articles keeps many Canadians from securing what they want, and what they would otherwise have.

Abolish the cold weather.

The Liberal party doesn't nurse a grouse for long, at any rate.

The good ship Principle, of the Life Line, was badly battered on Political Rock.

The Liberal campaign seems to have had the effect of keeping Mr. Hanna out of the premiership.

Probably the reason some people do not drink coffee for breakfast is that it keeps them awake all day.

The strawberry crop met an early death. But no one ever needs to waste his sympathy on rhubarb.

A Boston physician says that lots of ice cream will cure the drink habit. But what's the cure for the ice cream habit?

Whatever this mediation process may be it goes on rubber tires and eludes the reporters.

West Virginia has abolished the bars. But they are a poor, preacher-ridden class down there.

The cost of living at the jail has gone up, but that is no good reason for sampling the fine fare that the county keep boasts.

In London Sir Adam Beck had a of Mexico. Here's one instance where a trust would be welcome.

In the interests of the highest efficiency the U. S. Government has barred all intoxicants from the navy. Ontario will continue to miss the best until the bars are banished.

If the Dominion government provides for the payment of the wives of men who are in jail it will be doing a great humanitarian work. We would be greatly pleased, too, if the hideous green uniforms of the county jails were abolished.

The Detroit Journal says: "Is there no warning in the Ontario election returns? On a straight 'abolish-the-bar' issue the Liberal party has greatly increased its popular vote." The effect of Ontario's fight with the liquor traffic will be widespread and beneficial.

Londoners are glad to welcome R. A. Little, formerly vice-principal of the Collegiate, and now head of the New Westminster Collegiate. Mr. Little has hosts of former pupils in the city who remember him with affection. It would be fitting for them to recognize his return somewhat after the manner in which his old pupils honored the late Nicholas Wilson.

There will no doubt be a movement to secure Hon. Dr. Reame a seat, and the Liberals will do well to allow his acclamation. Dr. Reame has many admirers in Ontario on both sides of politics. He is known as a man of manifest fairness to those employed in the Department of Public Works, and although the vagaries of politics left him at home, he is a man who should continue to have a seat in the ministry.

[Montreal Star.]
Everybody hopes there will be no calling of either the Unionist or the Nationalist volunteers into action, but if there should be, let the latter have at least as much right to exist, as the former. The vital factor in the situation is not "American dollars," but the loyalty of a scattered race to its impoverished country.

Songs We Used to Whistle and Sing

This song was asked for some time ago, and sent by one of our readers.

THE MANSION OF ACHING HEARTS.

The last dance was over, the music had ceased,
 And the dancers were leaving the hall.
 A few men were saying their last good-byes
 To the beautiful belle of the ball.
 Alone by the window a youth sadly stands,
 His heart she has stolen away,
 And just as he gazes on her beautiful face
 He was startled to hear some one say:

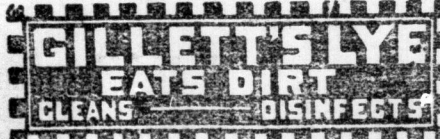

Chorus:
 She lives in a mansion of aching hearts,
 She's one of the restless young.
 The diamonds that glitter around her throat,
 They speak both of sorrow and song.
 The smile on her face is only a mask,
 And many the tears that start,
 For sadder it seems when of mother she dreams,
 In the mansion of aching hearts.

Alone by the fireside a man sadly looks
 At a picture that hangs on the wall,
 He has never forgotten the sad, sweet face
 Of the beautiful belle of the ball.
 He's reading her letter, "My picture I send,
 I have loved you but only in vain,
 Oh, try to forget that we ever have met,"
 Then he thinks with a heart full of pain.

Salad Dressings.

Cut clove of garlic, rub the bowl on all sides with each piece. Put one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of black pepper, a dash of paprika and a tablespoon of tomato catsup, blend all together. Add seven tablespoons of strong vinegar. Have all ingredients ice cold.

French dressing may be made in a glass vinegar cruet, and kept on the table. Use seven tablespoons of oil and three tablespoons of vinegar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of paprika. Put all in bottle, shake until it is well blended, put one red peppercorn and one small piece of garlic into cruet, add other ingredients, put in stopper and shake until all is blended.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

The Other Halifax.
 Dear Miss Grey—Please tell me, if you can, if there is another Halifax besides the one in Canada. I should greatly like to know. Please answer.
 RUBE.

Ans.—Yes, there is a thriving market town of Halifax in Yorkshire, England. It is of considerable manufacturing and commercial importance. There are several churches, there is interesting architecture, and one of the schools—the Heath Grammar School—was founded in 1585 with an annual endowment of £270 a year. The carpet works of this town are considered the largest in the world.

There—Rube, I've about exhausted my knowledge of Halifax across the sea.
 Lemon Layer Cake.
 Dear Miss Grey—Please give me a recipe for lemon layer cake, with filling also, and oblige.
 R. E. R.

Ans.—Here is one I am sure you will like: Two cups sugar, one-half cup butter, one cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder and three cups flour. This makes four layers. For filling take the juice and grated rind of two lemons, one egg, one cup sugar and one-half cup water, one teaspoon butter and two tablespoonsful of flour—mixed smooth with a little of the water. Boil this together until it thickens (watching carefully) then place between layers.

Washing Voile Dress
 Dear Miss Grey—Your corner in The Advertiser is always read and appreciated away up here on the north shore. Miss Grey, can you tell me of any way to wash voile dresses to prevent shrinking. I have two that need washing but am afraid to attempt them. Also, would it be too much of a favor to ask to have this answered through the paper, during the first or second week in July?
 With best wishes,
 PEGGY GRAY.

Ans.—I might have answered your letter sooner, but I understood that for some reason you wished your answer deferred until now. Anyway, here it is. I think that you would probably have best results if you used gasoline rather than water. Purchase a gallon—it may seem to be a lot, but you can use it two or three times. Have the gasoline in a small tub or pail; dip the gowns in and pat down into the liquid; let remain for an hour or two, then rub the soiled parts between the hands; squeeze out all the gasoline you can, and hang the dresses on the line, where the sun and air will soon remove the odor. Perhaps it will be best to do just one at a time. Be careful in using gasoline, never to be near fire or an open light.

Housework or Not?
 Dear Miss Grey—My friend and I have been readers of your column for some time, so as this is the first time we have troubled you, would you please answer these questions:
 1. I have had two offers, one to go into a confectionery store and another in a private house; which do you think would be the best, as I am experienced in housework?
 2. Have you got the song, "There's a Mother Old and Gray"?
 Hoping to see these in print soon and oblige.
 TWO CHUMS.

Ans.—1. If you are experienced in housework and have received a good offer, I should advise you to accept it rather than the other position. If only more of our girls would realize that housework is a dignity in doing housework, just as in any other calling of life, there would be fewer factory girls dragging out an existence in a half-bedroom and with too little to eat.
 2. Referred to readers of the column.

Road Oil on Rug.
 Dear Miss Grey—I have had the misfortune to have a new green rug marked with the oil they are using on the roads. Can you suggest anything to remove the spots? I will appreciate exceedingly your suggestions.

 WORRIED.
 Ans.—One lady I know used turpentine mixed with yolk of egg. She applied it to the spot, let it dry on and then after scratching away the paste sponged the spot thoroughly, first, with soapy water, then with clean water.
 Another method is to sprinkle the spot thickly with prepared chalk; let it remain on several hours, then sponge with turpentine or benzine. I do hope you may find one of these successful.

Girl's Ball Team.
 Dear Miss Grey—I read your correspondence every day, and I think your answers are so good that I am writing to you with a few questions.

1. We have organized a girls' baseball team. Could you give me a suitable name to call it?
 2. I am 31 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weigh 140 pounds. Do you think I weigh too heavy?
 3. I am a concert artist—a violinist—and I would like you to suggest something that would make a pretty evening dress. Do you think American beauty or emerald green would be pretty? I am very dark, brown eyes and brown hair.
 4. Am I too young to have a train on an evening gown?
 5. What do you think of my writing?
 6. Can any reader send me the words of the song entitled "A Fatal Wedding"?
 Wishing you every success in your work, Miss Grey, I am sincerely, EARLINE.

Ans.—1. I am not exactly overflowing with names for teams today, so have little to offer, I fear. "The Diamond Daisies" might answer, or why not take a leaf out of the men players' book and call yourselves the "White Stockings" or the "Blue Stockings," wearing hosiery colored according to the name chosen?
 2. Yes, a little.
 3. Those are scarcely the colors I would select for a girl of your complexion. A very dainty pale rose shade, or a creamy yellow would be more becoming for an evening concert gown.
 4. Yes, I think so. The skirt can be made fairly long though.
 5. Your request is referred.

WHEN YOU BUY LINOLEUM

Some General Hints Regarding the Best to Purchase.

The use of linoleum has increased greatly in the last ten years, as the material has improved in quality and design, and its excellence has become better known. There is now a wonderful variety in pattern and coloring. For the kitchen and bathroom there are imitation tiles, for halls and dining-rooms, wood-coloring to match the woodwork of the room, dainty floral designs for bedrooms, and even rich Oriental rug patterns for the living room.

For the country home linoleum can certainly be strongly recommended, says a writer for the Country Gentleman. In the first place, it is extremely warm, indeed, it supplants, as does perhaps nothing else, the drafty floors of the old-fashioned house. There is here none of the sifting through of dust, incidental to matting and carpet, and a mop used once a week replaces in the linoleum household the laborious broom. Last of all, in spite of a heavy initial expense, it represents a real economy, for a good linoleum at 50 cents a yard will last indefinitely.

Varying Quality.
 Let it not be imagined, however, that all linoleums are good. With the expansion of the industry have come some things against which the consumer must be warned. Only recently a woman applied the linoleum buyer in a large city shop and complained that her linoleum had cracked after a few months' wear. The buyer's questions elicited the fact that she had bought a low-priced linoleum, which was not a safe purchase. With the cheapening in the price there is nearly always a cheapening in the quality. Good linoleums are made with oxidized linseed oil and the shavings of cork. The latter gives the fabric warmth and lightness, and makes it practically impossible to crack. In the inferior grades, however, some manufacturers substitute a wood powder for the cork. There are two kinds of linoleum, the printed and the inlaid. The price of the former is up to about a dollar a yard, the latter costing from that price to $1.75 or more.

Inlaid the Best.
 In spite, however, of the greater cost of the inlaid kind, it is profitable to spend the difference whenever that is possible, for as against the merely applied colors of the printed—colors that are bound to surrender sooner or later to the wear of footprints and of mop—we find in the inlaid linoleum a design that is manufactured into a fabric, as is evident when you look at the edge of the material. As a result, these colors are not only softer and more beautiful, but they are absolutely fast. You will have the original design on your linoleum just as long as it stays on your floor.

Such a linoleum, inlaid with a design taken from the beautiful Oriental rug patterns, represents a comparatively large outlay of money, but you have in it an artistic and enduring floor covering for dining-room, library and halls. In ordering linoleum by sample, the room for which it is destined should always be mentioned, since, as has already been said, there are now designs appropriate for each part of the house.

For bedroom and living room use a rug laid here and there on the linoleum during the very cold months adds to comfort; and at all seasons this serviceable and tasteful fabric in plain colors, such as green and brown, makes an excellent floor covering for a hall or room where it is desired to use rugs or "runners," as the hall rugs are sometimes designated.

tragedy among the English suffragettes is indicated by the stars.
 Persons whose birthdate it is are warned against litigation and quarrels. Men will have a profitable year in professional or business activities. Those who are employed should be exceedingly careful.

Children born on this day may be quick-witted and clever. Boys should become successful in material things. The subjects of Cancer, who have the moon as their principal ruler, are likely to be abrupt in manner, but exceedingly brilliant. Many of them love the arts and sciences and most of them make money easily.

ROSE
 AND HAM

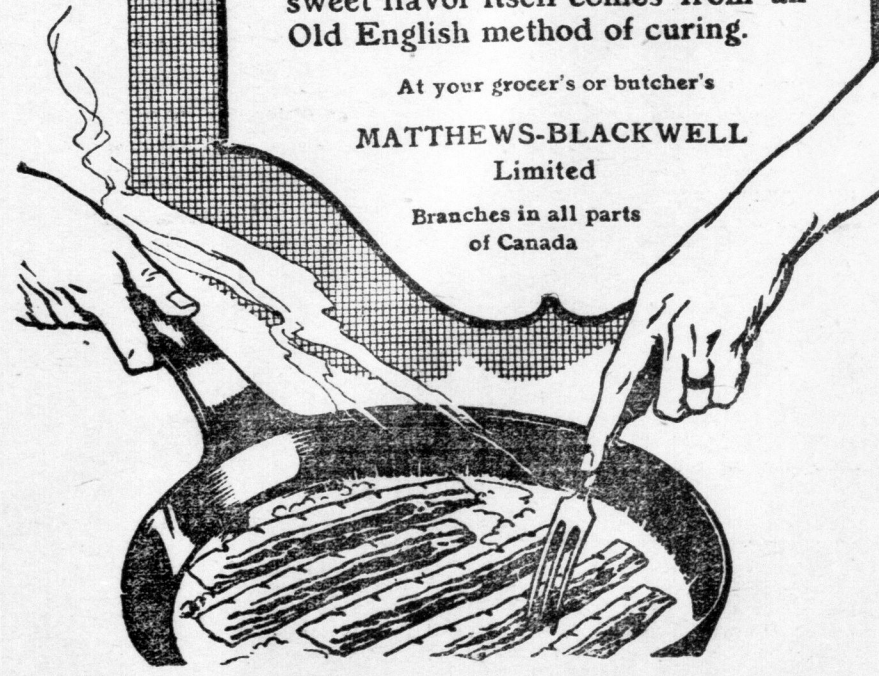

INSTEAD of the usual meat course to-morrow, try a nice light appetizing dish of Rose Bacon and eggs. Rose Bacon is so mild, so delicate in flavor, and fries so crisply and tenderly that you'll find everyone will welcome the change. The nice, clear, even streaks of fat and lean are due to our careful selection. The mild, sweet flavor itself comes from an Old English method of curing.

RUSSIANS IN FIERCE

FIGHT ON OTTAWA CAR

"No, Sir," One Responds When Asked If He Can Speak English.

For fighting on Ottawa car No. 62 last night, Peter Duckworth, Nahome Lazzone, and John Colensky, three Russians, appeared before Magistrate J. C. Judd in police court this morning, charged with being disorderly.

"Can you speak English?" asked the magistrate.

Duckworth undertook to answer for his comrades.

"No, sir," he said.

"A Russian in the courtroom, who was familiar with English, was called upon to act as interpreter. The three pleaded 'guilty.' The court imposed a fine of $3 and costs or 10 days on each.

The small riot occurred when the car had reached the corner of Horton and Clarence street. According to the story told by Duckworth, the other men had jumped on him.

Several women were in the car at the time, and their screams added to the general pandemonium which reigned. In the mix-up one of the men was pushed through a window. A call was sent in for the patrol, and they were taken to the police station.

They were warned not to appear again on a similar charge.

MALFAZ, July 2.—Joseph Stanley Purcell, the Halifax aviator and balloonist, tragically ended his career at 7:15 this evening by being drowned in the Avon River at Windsor, while making a descent from a balloon. The body has not yet been recovered.

Injured at Port Hope.

PORT HOPE, July 2.—The success of the celebration yesterday was marred by the serious accident to Aviator H. W. Bleekley, New York. About 2 o'clock, he made a successful flight in his eight cylinder bi-plane. Two hours later, he arose for another flight, and when a few hundred feet from the ground, the engine stopped, and he came tumbling to the earth in a partially circular fashion. The machine struck a fence, and the aviator was found a few yards away from the engine. He was seriously injured about the head and chest and internally. The bi-plane was demolished.

SERIOUS CHARGE MADE BY HIS WIFE AGAINST FORMER LONDON MAN

Mrs. Carl Beaumer, suing for Alimony, Says He Threatened to Murder Her.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

CINCINNATI, July 2.—In her suit for alimony from Carl Beaumer, London, Ont., a Canadian representative of Bennett & Witte, manufacturers of this city, Hattie Beaumer says that Beaumer neglected and ill-treated her, and that on May 30 last, while they were living in London, Ontario, Beaumer became angry when she wanted to go with him when he went out for a walk. He finally consented to take her along, she says, but she alleges he took her through a railroad yard there, and while in between freight cars, he attempted to grab her by the throat, at the same time exhibiting a large knife, and she charges, threatened to murder her. She broke away from him, and ran.

The wife states, three days later, Beaumer again quarrelled with her, and abused her, and she left him at the King street boarding house, where they were staying, and fled to this city.

She says that he earns a large salary as Canadian representative for Bennett and Witte, in a selling capacity, and that he recently received $3,000 from his father's estate, in Radbunhausen, Germany, so she asks for alimony, and tied up Beaumer's salary. They were married, July 31, 1904.

J. S. Herriman, attorney of this city, represented Mrs. Beaumer in the courts here.

MAJOR LEONARD GIVES HIS JOB BACK TO MINISTER COCHRANE

Relinquishes Task of Completing Transcontinental—Will Still Give Advice.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

OTTAWA, July 2.—Three years ago Hon. Frank Cochrane gave to Major Leonard the task of completing the Transcontinental Railway construction.

Today Major Leonard handed the job back to Mr. Cochrane. The Government has accepted the resignation of Major Leonard and made an order transferring the transcontinental work to the Ministry of Railways. It is understood that in tendering his resignation, Major Leonard has offered the minister the benefit of his advice regarding transactions during his term of office. In accepting the resignation, it is understood that Hon. Mr. Cochrane has left himself free to take the advice of Major Leonard should he want it.

Not To Be Degraded.

The work of construction in the two additional transcontinental railway lines with completion now in sight, and various other works of national importance, have necessitated the borrowing of large sums of money from the districts of the country in which this work is being carried out is looked for to warrant the capital expenditure made. When this takes place we may reasonably expect any further needed assistance of British and foreign capital, and with speculative real estate and other unsound trading discouraged, confidently look forward to a gradual return to normal conditions.

While our deposits for the past year show a reduction in actual figures—and we are not alone in this—I may say, that it is all accounted for by the expected withdrawal of some large temporary deposits in current account which were in our hands at the 31st May, 1912, the date of the last statement presented to you. On the other hand, the number of accounts on our books has largely increased, and the amount of deposits in the savings bank department show a satisfactory gain.

HOME BANK HAD SATISFACTORY YEAR

Normal Progress Maintained During the Past Twelve Months

TUESDAY'S ANNUAL MEETING

Director From West Calls Attention To Subject of National Importance

The Annual Meeting of the shareholders of the Home Bank of Canada was held at the head office, 8 King street West, Toronto, on Tuesday afternoon, June 30th. The features of the Annual Report as submitted for consideration showed net profits of $192,442.72, or 10 per cent upon the paid-up capital. The Rest Account has been brought up to one-third of the Capital. $65,000 has been written off premises and a pension system established with $10,000 as a nucleus fund. Two new branches have been opened during the year. An independent auditor was appointed for the ensuing year.

On motion the president of the bank, Colonel The Honourable James Mason, took the chair, and Mr. O. G. Smith, secretary of the bank, acted as secretary of the meeting. The report of the directors was then submitted as follows:

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

The directors have much pleasure in submitting to the shareholders the Annual Report of the bank, together with a statement of Profit and Loss Account, giving the result of the bank's business for the year ended 31st of May, 1914.

Quarterly dividends have been paid and provided for at the rate of seven per cent (7%) per annum. The $40,000 set aside from the profits of 1913 has been written off bank premises and furniture account, together with a further $25,000 appropriated from the profits of the year just closed, and $10,000 has been placed to Pension Fund. The sum of $14,656.66 has been added to Rest making that account $556,666.66, equal exactly to one-third of the subscribed capital of the bank.

Two new branches of the bank were opened during the year at the corner of Yonge street and Alcorn avenue, and at the corner of Yonge street and Eglinton avenue, both in the City of Toronto. The branch at Cartierville, in the Province of Quebec, was closed, the growth of that district being somewhat disappointing.

Under the Bank Act of 1913 you will, for the first time, be called upon to appoint an auditor for the bank and to fix his remuneration. No new stock having been allotted during the year, the number of shareholders remains approximately the same. The usual examination by the directors of the bank's books and securities made and branches carefully inspected during the year.

Address of the President.

The net profits for the year are $192,442.72, being about 10 per cent on the average paid-up capital, which may I consider, be deemed satisfactory. In view of the unsettled conditions which prevailed during the whole of the fiscal year. The $40,000 set aside, as intimated at the last annual meeting, to be written off bank premises and furniture account, has been applied, together with an additional $25,000 from this year's profits. Last year the shareholders were good enough to vote a contribution of $10,000 as a nucleus for a pension fund; this has now been appropriated and the fund inaugurated with the current year.

Before commenting on any changes in the balance sheet, I may say that the financial forecast made a year ago has more or less been justified. Conditions have altered so little that one prefers not to hazard any decided opinion as to when the expected improvement in the late war in the Balkans, political conditions in Great Britain and the unsettled state of Mexico has had a far-reaching effect.

The work of construction in the two additional transcontinental railway lines with completion now in sight, and various other works of national importance, have necessitated the borrowing of large sums of money from the districts of the country in which this work is being carried out is looked for to warrant the capital expenditure made. When this takes place we may reasonably expect any further needed assistance of British and foreign capital, and with speculative real estate and other unsound trading discouraged, confidently look forward to a gradual return to normal conditions.

While our deposits for the past year show a reduction in actual figures—and we are not alone in this—I may say, that it is all accounted for by the expected withdrawal of some large temporary deposits in current account which were in our hands at the 31st May, 1912, the date of the last statement presented to you. On the other hand, the number of accounts on our books has largely increased, and the amount of deposits in the savings bank department show a satisfactory gain.

Increased Savings Deposits.

In common with most of the other banks, our note circulation shows a reduction. This may be attributed to various causes, the most important of which was the early marketing of the grain crops in the Northwest. For some years past we have looked to our grain business in the West to utilize a large part of our circulation, and for the first time since this connection was formed we encountered conditions that may not again occur.

The weather last year was particularly favorable to the harvesting and marketing of the crop, so that a larger proportion was handled before the close of navigation than in any previous season of recent years. In addition, owing to the general financial conditions which prevailed during the latter part of 1913, considerable pressure was brought to bear by creditors upon farmers for the early payment of their obligations. This resulted in a larger percentage than formerly of grain going forward, with instructions to sell. As a result, circulation paid to farmers showed a decided falling off immediately after the close of navigation, and the figures for the succeeding months—December to March—record a continued redemption of bank notes without the usual opportunity for the issue from the marketing of grain through the winter months. The reduction from the high point in November, 1913, to the figures on the 31st March, 1914, amounted to over $900,000, while in former years the average reduction for the same period was approximately $200,000. The smaller volume of business transacted in Canada also had its effect on circulation. Merchants and manufacturers did not transact as much business as during the previous year. Railway earnings from the 1st of July, 1913, to May 31st, 1914, showed a decrease of over ten million dollars. The consequent shrinkage in circulation is mainly attributed to these principal causes, but I may say that we are making arrangements which should not in future leave us dependent upon any one source to maintain our circulation at a high level.

Branches in Toronto.

In accordance with the policy of the bank to purchase sites for branch offices in Toronto, a property was purchased at the southeast corner of Yonge street and Eglinton avenue, and also the vacant lot on the northwest corner of Yonge street and Woodlawn avenue, where we propose to erect a suitable building for the business at present conducted at the corner of Yonge street and Alcorn avenue, known as the "Yonge Street Subway Branch." The latter site is also the property of the bank, and when disposed of will go far to effect a reduction in bank premises account, corresponding to the increase shown this year.

A large crop is looked for in the Northwest Provinces. Owing to favorable weather last fall, much good land was prepared, perhaps better than ever before. Crop conditions existing now are particularly good in Manitoba, and, speaking generally, throughout Alberta and Saskatchewan, as in the latter provinces the dry weather experienced in certain sections was followed by excellent rains. Of course the crop is yet young, and much may happen between now and harvest time. Estimates vary as to the amount of acreage under cultivation. I think it will be found that the wheat area is more or less unchanged, the flax planted showing a decrease, and the oats and barley an increase. A most interesting change is now taking place in western farming conditions. Formerly districts that were practically dependent upon the wheat crop are now developing into mixed farming, one of the results of which is that the West, which in 1912 were importers of hogs, are now exporters, but the number of hogs which are being shipped east at the present is small compared to the figures that should be reached within a reasonable time.

The general business outlook may be regarded as somewhat more cheerful. The action of the Houses of Parliament in passing both the Canadian Northern Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Company bills, guaranteeing the bonds of these roads, which should permit them to carry to completion the construction of their lines, seem to have met with general approval, and has already led, I believe, to some large orders for steel rails being given, which will be followed by various orders for equipment.

Provincial and municipal taxation of banks in Canada has now reached such a stage as to have a deleterious effect on the opening of new branches. In Ontario, the province in which we have the greatest number established, taxes are almost three times as great as a year ago.

THE LATE PRESIDENT.

In addressing you a year ago today, it was my duty to announce the retirement of the then president, Mr. Eugene O'Keefe, owing to ill-health. Mr. O'Keefe was intimately connected with the institution from its inception. He passed away in October last, and before moving the adoption of the report I wish to express, on behalf of the Board of Directors, our feeling of sorrow at the loss of our colleague, in which I am sure all the shareholders join.

On motion, the thanks of the shareholders were extended to the president, vice-president and directors, also to the general manager and the other officers of the staff.

BIG SUPPLY OF HAY
AT VARYING PRICESFarmers Clearing Out Last Year's Stock—Potatoes
Very Dear.

More hay was on the market square this morning than there has been for several weeks. About thirty-two loads were on sale. Prices ranged all the way from $11 to $14.50 per ton, with the average price about $13 and $14.50, which is slightly cheaper than yesterday's prices. Farmers will soon be occupied with haying, and are giving much of their time now to clearing out the last of the old crop. Saturday's offering will probably be larger than usual.

Several loads of oats, which have been scarce for the last week or ten days, sold this morning at widely-varying prices. The price has been fluctuating according to the demand. Oats sold today for $1.25 to $1.30 per cwt.

Wheat continues to sell at unchanged prices. Potatoes will probably be dear Saturday. Farmers say that the new crop will be late, while the supply of old vegetables seems to have run out. Potatoes sold three days ago for $1.20 a bushel wholesale.

Cherries are expected to be on sale tomorrow in large quantities. No cherries or strawberries were on the market this morning.

PRODUCE.

Winnipeg, July 2.—Wheat prices opened strong this morning on unexpected higher Liverpool and reports from London of more bullish on wheat conditions there. Winnipeg opened 1/2c to 1c higher, and in the first thirty minutes stood at a gain of 1/2c over Tuesday's close of 1 1/2c to 1 1/2c. This advance, however, not being maintained, a noon hour decline followed. Final closing prices were, however, at the high points. The political situation in Europe was also said to have bearing on the higher wheat prices. Closing figures were 1 1/2c to 1 1/2c advanced.

Oats opened 1/2c higher and held steady, while flax made a sharp advance at the opening, being 1 1/2c higher for July and October, and made further fractional gains.

In cash circles there was a good demand for No. 1 and northern wheat. Other grains were in quiet demand. Exporters were buying freely in certain sections of the north. Contract cash grades of wheat closed 1 1/2c to 1 1/2c higher; oats closed unchanged to 1/2c lower; cash barley closed unchanged to 1/2c higher.

Flax on the other hand, advanced 1 1/2c on all grades.

The weather map shows generally hot and warm over the three wheat provinces, a light rain recorded at Edmonton, and the only point in Northern Saskatchewan, from Yorkton to Humboldt, there is a deficiency in moisture, and immediately this section is said to be the greatest oat growing district in Canada, and rain usually comes from the north in plenty. This year, however, the rains have been coming from the south, an excessive rainfall occurring in certain sections of the northwestern states and becoming exhausted before reaching the district mentioned.

Car inspections on Tuesday totalled 322, against 741 last year.

"Count Discount" is still cutting and slashing

"The Count" is a hero of many conflicts.

He will graphically show you how he cuts and slashes
in contest.

This is a reproduction of an advertisement that appeared in this paper on June 26th, 1914.

He will continue to do so until he has a clear field before him. That is until he has cleared this stock away to a minimum. And "Count Discount" is cutting still deeper this week. Further reductions is what we mean. Taking broken lines from better grades and putting them into the next lower priced lot. You see we never allow ourselves, if it can in any way be prevented, to advertise a single thing that we cannot deliver. In some of our lines the tremendous selling has driven out certain sizes from certain lines. Supposing you come in and ask for a size 36 from our $20 line, as advertised, and we didn't have it. That's bad business. We won't let it happen here. So what do we do? We are filling in from better goods at each price so as to make complete range of sizes in every line. That is giving you still greater values than ever in every line in the house; not only in suits and top coats but also in shirts, shoes, boys' wear and other things where lines have become broken—that is pretty much everything because the selling has been tremendous here this past week and the effect of "Count Discount's" onslaught on prices has been telling. Get these better values and greater savings before "Count Discount" is forced to retire for want of material to work on.

WOMEN'S STORIES WIDELY DIFFERENT

Murder Case in Which Matron Is Shot in Doctor's Office.

DETECTIVES SEEK A GUN

Doctor's Wife Denies Ever Having Seen Victim of Tragedy.

[Canadian Press.]

FREEPORT, N. Y., July 2.—While Mrs. Edwin Carman was in Hempstead this afternoon for the purpose of viewing the body of Mrs. Louise Bailey, the handsome Long Island matron, who was mysteriously shot to death through a window in Dr. Carman's office here Tuesday night, detectives were hard at work pumping out a cesspool and a well in the rear of the physician's residence, and a cesspool in the cellar, in search for a .38-calibre revolver, with the exploded shell in it. At a late hour tonight the hunt for the weapon was still in progress.

The body of the murdered woman was taken from her home in Hempstead to an undertaker's morgue in that town for the purpose of performing an autopsy, which had been ordered by the district attorney.

After viewing the body, Mrs. Carman said: "I have never seen that woman in my whole life."

Autopsy Shows Nothing.

Nothing bearing on the tragedy was revealed by the autopsy. Detectives today interviewed Miss Helen Combs, a lawyer's stenographer, who told them she was in the physician's house at the time of the shooting, having gone there for treatment. She said she was admitted to the house by Mrs. Carman, whom, she said, she knows very well. Dr. Carman was eating dinner at that time, and Miss Combs said she was told to wait.

"While I was there," Miss Combs is said to have told the detectives, "a woman, whom I now know was Mrs. Bailey, arrived. She did not knock or announce herself. She walked right in, and a few moments later went to the doctor's office. While she was there, Mrs. Carman passed through the room and went into the kitchen at the rear of the house. Later she went out on the porch, and while she was there I heard her tell one of the children not to play the piano, as the doctor had a patient in the office. That was about ten minutes before I heard a shot."

Mrs. Carman's Story.

In telling her story to the detectives and the district attorney yesterday, Mrs. Carman declared that she had returned from New York about 7 o'clock the night of the murder and had gone immediately to her room on the second floor of the house, where she had prepared to retire. She denied that she had come down to the ground floor, even when the shot was fired.

Miss Combs, the detectives also say, told them that it was a woman, and not Dr. Carman who folded Mrs. Bailey's hands across her breast after the body had been placed upon the office couch.

Joseph Golder, another patient who was waiting to consult Dr. Carman, also told the police it was a woman who did this. Dr. Carman told the police it was he who folded Mrs. Bailey's hands.

The inquest into the murder will be held here tomorrow afternoon. Representatives of the district attorney's office said this afternoon one or more arrests might be expected at any moment.

SCHOONER WRECKED OFF MAINE.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME., July 2.—The two-masted, coal-burner schooner, Mary Augusta, was wrecked on the rocks of Waller's Point today. Captain Tainter and the women of his crew, landed safely in the power boat before the vessel broke up. The vessel was built 47 years ago.

BAD STORM IN FRANCE BREAKS UP HEAT WAVE

Soldiers Killed and Buildings Burned by Lightning—Damage by Hail.

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, July 3.—Electrical storms last night broke the heat wave which has been continuing for several days. Lightning did much damage. At Bourges, de-

MARSHALL Ventilated Mattress

You cannot rest and refresh yourself thoroughly if your bed is lumpy, matted or saggy. The resilience of the MARSHALL is just as great after one year, or ten years' use as after the first night. This can be said of no mattress stuffed with hair or cotton felt.

The MARSHALL is composed of a thousand little steel springs, each working independently of the other, with a light covering of fine sterilized hair. The air circulates through every part of the interior, being admitted through ventilators at the ends of the mattress.

It is more comfortable, more sanitary, and the most durable mattress made.

CHAPTER I.

East is East.

It began somewhere in the middle of the world, between London which is the beginning and New York which is the end, where all things are east of the one and west of the other. To be precise, a forlorn landing on the west bank of the muddy turbulent Irrawaddy, remembered by man only so often as it was necessary for the flotilla boat to call for paddy, a visiting commissioner anxious to get away, or a family home-bound. Somewhere in the north-east was Mandalay, but lately known in romance, verse and song; somewhere in the southeast lay Prome, known only in guide-books and time-tables; further south, Rangoon, sister to Singapore, the half-way house of the delinquents of the world. On the east side of the river, over there, was a semblance of civilization. That is to say, men wore white linen, avoided murder, and frequently paid their gambling debts. But on this west side stood wilderness, not the kind one reads about as being eventually conquered by white men; no, the real thing, a desolation, where the ax cuts but leaves no blaze, where the pioneer disappears and few or none follow. The pioneer has always been a successful pugilist, but in this part of Burma fate, not more admiration for the pugny's gameness, decided to call the battle a draw. It was not the wilderness of the desert, of the jungle; rather the tragic, homeless state of a settlement that neither progressed, retarded, nor stood still.

Between the landing and the settlement itself there stretched a winding road, arid and treeless, perhaps a mile in length. It announced definitely that its end was utility. All this day long heavy bullock-carts had rumbled over it, rumbled toward the landing and rattled empty back to the settlement. The dust hung like a fog above the road, not only for this day, but for all days between the big rains. Each night, however, the cold heavy dew drew it down, cooling but never congealing. From under the first footfall of the next day it rose again. When the gods, or the elements, or Providence, arranged the world as a fit habitation for man, India and Burma were made the dust, with dust, earthly and human, the quick and the dead.

It was after five in the afternoon. The sun was sinking, hastily but swiftly; ribbons of scarlet, ribbons of rose, ribbons of violet, lay one upon the other. The sun possessed no definite circle; a great blinding radiance like metal pouring from the mouth of a volcano. Along the road, the bullock-carts, two men, phantom-like. One saw their heads dimly and still more dimly their bodies to the knees; of legs, there was nothing visible. Occasionally they stopped aside to permit some bullock-cart to pass. One of them swore, not with any evidence of temper, not viciously, but in a kind of mechanical protest, from the usage, had become a habit. He directed these epithets never at animate things, never at anything he could by mental or physical contest overcome. He swore at the dust, at the heat, at the wind, at the sun.

The other wayfarer, with the inherent patience of his blood, said nothing and waited, setting down the heavy kit-bag and the canvas valise. When the way was free again he would sling the kit-bag and the valise over his shoulder and step back into the road. His turban, once white, was brown with dust and sweat. His khaki uniform was rent under the armpits, several buttons were gone; his stockings were rusty black, mottled with patches of brown skin; and the ragged canvas shoes spurred like spirits of dust as he walked. The British-Indian government had indulgently permitted him to proceed about his duties as guide and carrier under the cognomen of James Hooghly, in honor of a father whose surname need not be written here, and in further honor of the river upon which, quite inconveniently one early morning, he had been born. For he was Eurasian; half European, half Indian, having his place twist heaven and hell, which is to say, nowhere. His father had died of a complication of bhag-drinking and opium-eating; and as a consequence James was full of humorless imagination, spells of moodiness and outbursts of hilarious politics. Every native who acquires a facility in English immediately sets out to rescue India from the clutches of the British raj, occasionally advancing so far as to send a bullet into some harmless individual in the civil service.

James was faithful, willing and strong; and as a carrier of burdens, took unmurmuringly his place beside the tireless bullock and the elephant. He was a Methodist; why, no one could find lucid answer, since he ate no beef, drank from no common cup, smoked through his flat when he enjoyed a pipe, and never assisted Warrington Sahib in his deadly pursuit of flies and mosquitoes. His manner of entering temples; in this, the European blood kept his knees unbent. By dint of inquiry his master had learned that James looked upon his baptism and conversion in Methodistism as a corporal would have looked upon the acquisition of a V. C. Twice, during fever and plague, he had saved his master's life. With the guilelessness of the Oriental he considered himself responsible for his master in all future times. Instead of paying off a debt he had acquired one. Treated as he was, kindly but always firmly, he would have surrendered his life cheerfully at the beck of the white man.

Warrington was an American. He was also one of those men who never held misfortune in contempt, whose outlook wherever it roamed was tolerant. He had patience for the weak, resolution for the strong, and a fearless amiability toward all. He was like the St. Bernard dog, very difficult to arouse. It is rather the way with all men who are strong mentally and physically. He was tall and broad and deep. Under the battered pith-helmet his face was as dark as the Eurasian's; but the eyes were blue, bright and small, pupils, as they are with men who live out-of-doors, who are compelled of necessity to note things moving in the distances. The nose was large and well-defined. All framed in a tangle of blond hair and mustache which, if anything, added to the general manliness of his appearance. He, too, wore khaki, but with the addition of tan riding-leggings, which had seen anything but rocking-horse service. The man was yellow from the top of his helmet to the soles of his shoes—outside. For the rest, he was a mystery, to James, to all who thought they knew him, and most of all to himself. A pariah, an outcast, a fugitive from the bloodless hand of the law; a gentleman born, once upon a time a clubman, col-

Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Advertiser: I see that you say in this morning's paper that the trades and labor council was to have a meeting to discuss why 3,000 labor men did not vote for Jacobs. Jacobs is the cause himself. A great many men did not like to vote for Jacobs and give Stevenson the go by, as Stevenson has always stood by them. If Jacobs was prompted by the Tories to stay in the field with the idea of helping Beck, then Jacobs should be put out of the union. Jacobs should know from the vote he got against Beattie that he could not poll any kind of a vote, as a great many Grits voted for him then. Jacobs, when he saw a Liberal in the field, should have dropped in behind, and tried to help the Liberal, as Studholme was opposed by the Tories, and Beck is a manufacturer who is opposed to labor in every form. A labor man serves no good object by acting in such a manner as Jacobs did. He dissatisfied labor men of both stripes and they return to their original political side. A great many labor men, when they saw the turn things had taken, ceased to work or take any interest in the election and they did not vote, as they knew what the outcome would be. The citizens are able now to take measure of the labor strength. Had labor sided with the Liberal candidate this time they would have given the Conservative candidate such a shock that it would have been an object lesson to all Canada, but they have left their chance go by. And Jacobs is responsible.

Yours,

UNIONIST.

LONDON CAMP TO LEAVE ON SATURDAY

Will Go To Lake Miller For Annual Fishing Trip.

The London Camp leaves on its annual fishing excursion Saturday to Lake Miller, a little inland lake about twenty miles north of Warton. Nine disciples of Isaac Walton will journey to the lake and will be in charge of John N. McLeod and John Richardson of the asylum staff.

Deputy Sheriff Benjamin F. Watterworth who leaves today for the scene of two weeks activities will take with him a large pennant with "London Camp" on it and will take to the mast so that all and sundry who appear on the horizon will know where the campers had from.

Fred Dewar, manager of the Bell Telephone Company, Windsor; John Wettsafer and L. Wigle, proprietor of the International Hotel, will represent the border city, while Eddie Dewar, J. E. Goble and William Kitchen will also be present when the black bass are being pulled in.

Mr. Burgess, who until recently has been employed by Smallman & Ingram, as cook, will go down to the camp today with Mr. Watterworth and have everything in shape for the boys when they arrive on Saturday.

Some good speckled trout fishing is to be had in the streams nearby, and everyone is looking forward to the best time the camp has had in years.

ROYAL CASKETS PLACED IN SMALL HOFBURG CHAPEL

Impressive Scene as Bodies of Archduke and Wife Are Borne Through Streets.

MILITIA FORMS ESCORT

Lighted Lanterns Lead Sombre
Procession From Station.

[Canadian Press.]
VIENNA, July 2.—The special court train from Trieste, conveying the bodies of the murdered Archduke Franz Ferdinand and the Duchess of Hohenberg, his wife, arrived at the southern railway station here at 10 o'clock tonight. Prince Montenuovo, the court chamberlain, and other high officials were in waiting.

Escorted by halberdiers and Life-guardsmen, the coffins were carried to the imperial waiting room, which had been converted into a temporary chapel. Here they were blessed by court chaplains, and then carried out and placed in two great black court hearses.

The funeral procession, which in the meantime had formed outside the station, started for the Hofburg.

Boy Choir Chants.
No troops were stationed along the route, but the procession made its way between lines of a moving military guard. At the Hofburg, the master of ceremonies and the palace clergy awaited the cortege at the foot of the ambassador's staircase, and preceded by the boy choir of the court chapel chanting "Miserere."

The procession then advanced to the chapel, with the Austrian and Hungarian Life-guardsmen and halberdiers walking beside the coffins, which were attended by four noble pages, dressed in sombre costumes and carrying huge lighted wax tapers.

Caskets on Elevated Catafalque.
The court chamberlain and other officials brought up the rear. The coffins were placed on an elevated catafalque, entirely covered with gold brocade, with swinging canopy.

After a short benediction, the chamberlain of the late archduke, handed the keys to the coffins to Prince Montenuovo; the chapel was locked, and all departed.

The Hofburg chapel is very small, accommodating not more than 200 persons, and will prove utterly inadequate for such a ceremony as that of tomorrow.

Chapel Covered With Black.
All the seats have been removed, and the walls and floor are covered with black cloth. On one of the walls hangs an escutcheon, consisting of the archduke's arms. It is surrounded by silver sconces holding lighted candles. The arms of the duchess similarly adorn the opposite wall.

Silver candlesticks, holding lighted wax tapers, surround the catafalque, at the foot of which are cushions bearing the duke's crown and the Austrian archducal two-pointed hat, his general's plumed hat and sword, and all his orders and decorations.

At the foot of the coffin of the duchess repose her orders, a pair of long white gloves and her fan in accordance with the Austrian custom.

Her Attends Ceremony.
The only other member of the imperial family who attended the ceremony tonight was Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, now heir to the throne, who at the last moment decided to go to the station to meet the bodies. Immense crowds gathered around the station and along the whole route to the Hofburg, standing bareheaded and in profound silence as the cortege passed.

Prince of Wales' Continental Tour Now Postponed

Believed To Be the Result of the Bosnian Assassination.

LONDON, July 3.—According to the Daily Chronicle the projected trip of the Prince of Wales to the continent has been postponed, possibly as the result of the Sarajevo outrage.

Prince Arthur Cancels Trip.
LONDON, July 3.—Prince Arthur of Connaught has cancelled his proposed visit to Vienna to represent the King at the funeral of the late archduke. It is understood that the sudden cancellation of the visit of the German Emperor and all foreign guests is due to the express wish of the Austrian Emperor that the ceremony should be as private as possible.

FOUR MORE BODIES FROM THE EMPRESS FOUND BY DIVERS

Jewels on Fingers of One Woman Only Means of Identification.

QUEBEC, July 2.—Diver Schinseng, of Mr. Wetherpoon's diving crew, recovered four more bodies from the Empress wreck today, these being the bodies of two men and two women. One of the women has jewels on her fingers. Otherwise, owing to the condition of the bodies, there would be but little chance of identification.

Butler Aspinall, who represented the C.P.R. in the inquiry, left today for England, on the Alsatian, but the American lawyers for the Storstad, and other interested parties are likely to be here in person to hear the judgment of the tribunal, which will probably be rendered late next week.

NATIONALISTS LAND GUNS AND AMMUNITION

Boat With Big Cargo Waited
Two Days Off the Coast.

DUBLIN, July 2.—In the absence of the police, the Irish National Volunteers succeeded tonight in landing here 400 cases of ammunition and 800 cases of rifles.
The arms and ammunition were taken from on board a boat which had been hovering about the coast off Dublin for two days.

TWO MEN SHOT BY LIQUOR-CRAZED FOOL

[Canadian Press.]
Quebec, Que., July 3.—Crazed by liquor, Joseph Moreau, of Villeroi, a parish of the Intercolonial Railway, ran amuck on Wednesday and started to shoot up the town. He fatally wounded Alfred Charland, a section man, and also shot
E. F. Roy, the station agent, who attempted to subdue him.

The desperado escaped capture, and yesterday started again his riot, waking the village at an early hour.
A posse of detectives from the provincial police is hunting the man.

GLANWORTH RECTOR DIED LAST NIGHT

Rev. S. E. G. Edelstein, Ordained in 1877, Passes Away After Long Illness.

Rev. S. E. G. Edelstein, rector of the Anglican Church at Glanworth, died Thursday night after a long illness. For some time past he had been subject to sudden spasms, and last night he passed away during one of these before his physician, Dr. Moorhouse, could be summoned.

Mr. Edelstein was ordained in 1877 by Bishop Hellmuth, of Huron Diocese, and served in a number of parishes until 1889, when he was appointed to Glanworth, where he has remained ever since. For several years he was professor of Hebrew at Huron College. Recently he asked to be superannuated and his request was granted by the synod, although some details had to be arranged before superannuation went into force.

A widow and four children, two sons and two daughters survive. The sons are Edward, of Regina, and Maurice, of Winnipeg, and the daughters are Mrs. W. H. Shore, Glanworth, and Miss Edith, of Denver, Colorado.

The funeral will take place at 2:30 Saturday afternoon to Christ Church, Glanworth, and thence to Glanworth Cemetery.

A TRIPLE-TRAGEDY

Three Bodies Found in Swamp Near Atlanta, Ga.

[Canadian Press.] Atlanta, Ga., July 3.—The bodies of S. C. Bennett and two unidentified women were found in a swamp at East Point, a suburb of Atlanta, early today. Wounds indicated that all three had been shot. The bodies of the women were covered with brush, while that of the man lay in the open a few yards away.

FRENCH AVIATOR KILLED AND COMRADE INJURED

Rheims, France, July 3.—Corporal Gabriel Godefroy, of the French army aviation corps, killed and Corporal Emile Mirat, a comrade, probably fatally injured today by a fall of 800 feet with a monoplane, of which they had lost control.

CLAR. THOMPSON IS STILL AT LARGE IN WOODS AT LOBO

Man Wanted as Incendiary Escapes County Police Scrub Net.

LATEST CLUE IS FUTILE

Posse, Closing in on Man in Scrub, Find Only Ordinary Hobo.

Clarence Thompson, wanted by the county police as a suspect connected with the burning of a barn belonging to David Robson, London Township, is still at large. Since his mysterious disappearance, constables have scoured the countryside, but although hot on his trail on several occasions, they have been unable to capture him. He is thought to be heavily armed, and the residents of the township are living in constant terror.

Another Clue. A clue that reached the ears of the police yesterday ended in another failure last night. Early in the day, the officers had learned that a man answering to the printed descriptions of Thompson had been seen lurking in a heavy growth of scrub timber on the farm of Joseph Hicks, con. 12, of Lobo. Later, made bold through the lack of food, he approached the house and demanded something to eat.

A posse of constables, including W. J. Heath and two sons, Ed and Leslie, surrounded the wood. With rifles loaded, and eyes on the alert for the desperado lurking in the scrub, they gradually narrowed the circle.

Springing without a moment's warning, a man sprang directly in front of Constable W. Heath. He gripped him, and shouting a warning to the remainder of the police, held his prisoner until the handcuffs were slipped on him.

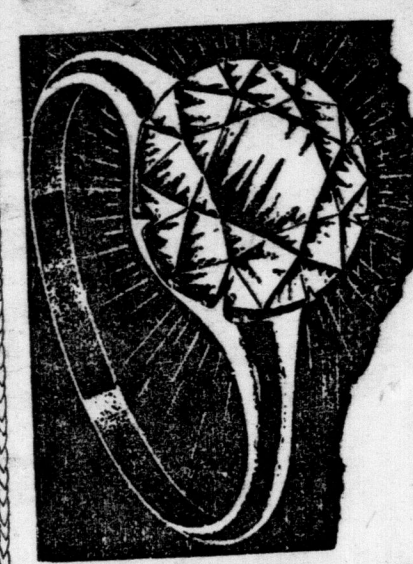

He was led back to the Hicks farmhouse. Here it was discovered that the officers had captured the wrong man. Their captive was apparently an average hobo. He was let go.

All last night the search continued, and every effort is being made to apprehend Thompson. Since High County Constable Gumb located the man in London and gave chase in the darkness, in which the suspect slipped away, he has not been seen inside the city. Local police officers have been given strict orders to keep a sharp lookout for the much-wanted man, but so far he has cunningly kept under cover.

May Be Starving. Lack of food will drive him out into the open sooner or later, constables state. That he will be desperate if such is the case is certain. Farmers in the danger belt are uneasy. Women are afraid to leave the house to go into the woods. Several farmers are reported to be going about their work with shotguns tucked under their arms. During the parts of the district show that the man is making every effort to get away. The country at that part is wooded with a dense, scrubby growth. Constables are confident that the man is in hiding in this belt.
