

FLOGGING IN THE GERMAN NAVY.

How the German Marines are Disciplined

In the month of August the German cruiser Magdeburg ran ashore in the Baltic and fell into the hands of the Russians. When her new owners searched her a singular discovery was made. It is thus described in a dispatch from Petrograd, dated Sept. 3, appearing in the London Morning Post:--

Considerable attention has been created here by discoveries made on board the German cruiser "Magdeburg" that was blown up after going ashore at the entrance of the Finnish Gulf. Among the articles lying about the decks on the after-part, where boats were lowered for the majority of the crew to escape on the accompanying destroyers, were several specimens of the old "cat of nine tails." When the Russian authorities went through the ship they found one of these instruments in every officer's cabin, an all-horn sign of long, and, in some cases, of hard usage.

A FISHERMAN'S HEROISM.

How an English Captain Rescued Passengers From a Steamer Sunk by Mine in the North Sea

A very fine act by the captain of a fishing steamer called the honor of one of the mine disasters caused by the German Navy's warfare against non-combatants and neutrals. The steamer Rina, belonging to the Wilson Line, was on a voyage from Hull to Archangel with some 230 passengers, chiefly Russians, though some were Americans. On the day the left part of the mine struck a mile and some less of the ship, three steam trawlers, the "Hilston," "Prince Victor" and "Straton," steamed up and rescued a large number of those who were struggling in the water of the strait.

Look out, skipper, two mines ahead," he called. "Can't help it," shouted the skipper back. "It's raining lives to save lives." And he hurried his ship to get alongside an escorting boat in which a dozen men and women were clinging. Even as they reached it a woman with an infant in her arms released her hold and fell back into the water. But the chief engineer, James Kennard, fully clad, dived overhead, caught the woman, and swimming on his back, supported her and the child until the crew could pass a line and pull them to safety. The work of rescue went on at a furious rate for more than two hundred people were saved before the Rina, which all along had been a human raft, stopped on her side and gave a lurch and disappeared.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT IN ARMOURIES

Excellent Program of Music by Band and Local Talent.

The Fifteenth Regimental Band last evening made the Armouries ring with patriotic airs and delighted an attentive audience of hundreds of Belleville's citizens. The marks of the military nature of the concert were seen in all the decorations, in the uniformed soldiers and officers present and in the program which was furnished by the band and local talent. A huge platform had been built in the centre of the hall and on it, were countless Canadian flags and Union Jacks, while a large flag occupied the background. Ferns were added for decorations' effect, and when the gallant bandmen in their scarlet tunics and silver instruments took their places on the platform, the scene can better be imagined than described. There was enough of the British color there to satisfy the most patriotic British subject.

Bellevillians had their first treat to the music of "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary," the British soldiers' marching song. As Col. Marsh explained, in all places and at all times there are peculiar tunes which enjoy a great popularity. There is always a battle song. The British soldiers at the front in trench, around the camp fire, and the soldiers at home on their way to the battle line sing "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

The soldiers' favorite song was received with the greatest enthusiasm. The band first played the music and the members sang the chorus with a lilt and a swing and then played the chorus. "Were the people satisfied? No, cheer broke upon cheer and the bandmen had to repeat the song three times, while a few impulsive soldiers had to get up and walk being unable to restrain themselves while these stirring strains were vibrating.

Col. Marsh explained the purpose of the concert, which was to enlarge the relief fund. Already $4,000 has been subscribed and $2,000 paid in, many giving a monthly contribution for the duration of the war. Between five and six hundred dollars has already been expended in relief. The patriotic committee is anxious that fathers, mothers and children dependent on soldiers serving the King and Empire, shall not suffer. The commanding officer also bore tribute to the services of the Fifteenth Band which has been organized but little over one year and is already doing noble service, playing on the concert platform as well as any of the great regimental bands of Canada. The members are loyal good fellows. They played for the volunteers as they took the trains for the front--the Forty-Ninth, the Thirty-Fourth and the Fifteenth. They have also given patriotic concerts.

Col. Marsh included in his praises the Highland Pipe Band under the direction of Pipe-Major Johnstone. The program of music furnished by the band was excellent and the rendition perfect. Applause was given the various numbers and many encores were called for. The programme included: "In Old Quebec"--Hughes Selection--"Albion"--Bactens Selection--"Remick's Hits"--Lampert--"It's a Long Way to Tipperary"--"Bridal Rose"--Lavallo--"Valse Lente"--Endors Me!--Deroz--"The Maple Leaf"--The audience joined in the song.

Local talent provided other numbers. Messrs. Moulk, Wrightman, Dolan, and Stallworthy sang a selection and were roundly encored. Mr. Walter Aseltine rendered a trombone solo. Mr. T. E. Bowie danced a sword dance and "The sailor's hornpipe." Mr. B. A. Cameron to the band accompanied sang "Soldiers of the King" and delighted his audience so that he responded to the demand for an encore with "Annie Laurie." Pipe Major Johnstone gave a delightful bagpipe number "Magnificent Cameron and Duntrane." "Bonnie Ann," "Cock O' the North," "Willie Roy" and the reel "Lady Ressey."

The National Anthem brought the concert to a close.

MISS ANDREY ARMOTT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Armott, left today for Kingston to attend Queen's University and attend upon the study of the classics for the arts' degree. Being possessed of a fine ear for music, a sweet tenor voice and a keen sense of humor, he studied the violin in early life under Toner, and many private and public gatherings have been highly entertained with his music and song and story, always pure and clean in character. GERMAN FINANCE AND THE WAR

Collapse of Germany's Credit Largely Responsible for the War

A recent issue of the Revue des deux Mondes, the great French review, contains a passage on the origin of the war which is worthy of attention. The future historian, it says, "will understand that the present war was a financial arrangement made on the eve of bankruptcy, an arrangement in which the malnomia or a crisis for fighting. Financial Germany was in great difficulties; its colonial operations had always been unprofitable; it had schemes too much, risked too much, made too large advances in goods and money to customers of doubtful credit both in Germany and throughout the world. It had accustomed its buyers to prices and transactions which did not allow the necessary profit to the manufacturer or to the German capitalist, and it was necessary to do something dramatic to bolster up the financial edifice, which was tottering to its foundations. And there was to give to Germany in debt the huge sums in the Bank of France and an indemnity, quite as much as to satisfy the threats and swaggers of the military party, the pan-Germans and the dreamers of a greater Germany, that William II, was driven to declare the present war."

The city council met in regular session last evening, those present being Mayor Willis, Aldermen Panter, St. Charles, Duckworth, Smith, Platt, Woodley, McFee and Wallbridge.

CHILDREN'S AID

Messrs. Thos. Ritchie, J. Elliott, E. R. McBride, A. M. Hubly and H. W. Wrightmeyer appeared before the council and urged that increased accommodation for the children was necessary and a better building was required.

Mr. Ritchie said more up to date and commodious quarters were desired. The present building has been condemned as unsanitary. Citizens have expressed their willingness to contribute towards a fund for a new shelter. He asked that a deed of the present property be given the Society so that it may dispose of it.

Rev. A. M. Hubly expressed the society's gratitude for past generosity and their hope for the future. Mr. John Elliott explained how with the control of the old building, the society might get along without a grant.

Mayor Willis congratulated the society on their efforts and on account of the use of the building for the C.A.S. might be imposed.

The matter would be taken up. It was resolved that the engineer look into all matters of the level of the sewer with Dr. Boyce's cellar on Victoria avenue, and report.

It was resolved that as a new floor is required in No. 2 fire hall that one be constructed of creosote wood and the tenders be asked for its construction.

It was resolved that the matter of putting in a sewer and the building of a retaining wall in front of the sewer with Dr. Boyce's street be taken in hand by the city engineer for a report.

The placing of the light at the Church and Bridge street corner was discussed. It was decided to put it at the south-east corner.

J. Weir ..... $118.50

Geddes street residents complained on an open ditch. The cellars have never had proper drainage.

Mr. McCreey spoke on this matter. The communication was referred to the engineer to get an estimate of the cost.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson wrote that the Canada Accident Co. had found the contract against the damages very unprofitable. Notice of the cancellation of the policy was given the premium from Oct. 1st would be $1,500 with extra charges on the payroll for extraordinary work on sewers and pavements. They offered to continue the risk for $78.25.

Mayor Willis said the contract had been unprofitable. He moved that the additional insurance premium be paid.

Reeve Rollins and Councillor Johnston visited Toronto on Tuesday to attend the meeting of the Railway Commission in the interests of the village. Their mission was to apply to the Commission for means of protection at Victoria street railway crossing and for the proper planing at this dangerous point. # Sir James Whitney's Funeral Attended by Crowds. Col. Sam Hughes' Message to Departing Soldiers. Latest News From the Seat of War by Telegraph.

MANY AT FUNERAL

Remains of Sir James Whitney interred at Morrisburg.

BIG SERVICE IN TORONTO

Representatives of All Branches of Government Attend Funeral Ceremonies at St. James' Cathedral Prior to Removal of Body to Late Premier's Home Town—Placed in Family Vault.

MORRISBURG, Ont., Sept. 30.—In a little old-fashioned cemetery on a hillside fronting a stretch of the St. Lawrence river, the body of the late Ontario statesman was buried late yesterday afternoon and a whole countryside turned out to do him reverence. A stiff rainstorm which had threatened all day gathered as the burial proceeded, and at the moment when the mourners assembled about the grave, broke in a smart patter of drops. For ten minutes the congregation stood with bowed heads as the last rites were read out. The body was then lowered into a vault in the Whitney family plot and the service was over.

There were not wanting instances during the day to show the regard which the province held for Sir James Whitney. At stations through which the special whirled on its way from Toronto to Morrisburg flags flew at half-mast, and at two or three of the larger towns small parties were permitted to view the remains. When the train reached Morrisburg the cortege proceeded at once to the little brownstone church erected within recent years by the Whitney family. Scores of people who had driven from the surrounding country formed long lines of approach and, marshalled by a detachment from the local militia, doffed hats and bowed heads as the procession approached. The service then proceeded in the interior of the church.

Then, with the assemblage kneeling, prayer was offered by Rural Dean Carson. Behind the bier as it was borne out through the portico and down the short road into the cemetery followed the immediate relatives of Sir James. Behind, walking two by two, came the Ontario Cabinet, and lengthening out in the rear, representatives of civil, legal and religious organizations, including a sprinkling of civil service officials who had come by train; Government representatives in the legislative assembly almost to a man; members coming from even the most northerly and westerly ridings to tender parting tokens of respect.

The Opposition in the House was represented by Mr. Rowell, Sam Clarke of Northumberland, the Ontario Conservative, and Hugh Munro of Glengarry.

The Federal Government sent the following Ministers: Hon. Messrs. W. T. White, Lester Coleridge, Martin Burrell, Robt. Rogers, Frank Cooke, Thomas Crothers, A. E. Kemp and Speaker Sproule.

Among the Ontario men in the Federal House were Messrs. Lanessier, Murphy, Barker, Northrup, Thornburn, Ball, Broder and Cockburn.

All the provincial commissions sent representatives.

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—The public funeral service over the body of the late Sir James Whitney in St. James' Cathedral here yesterday was strangely free of the formality and stiffness that often prevail on such occasions. It was more like a private service, more like a vast gathering of friends at a simple service.

At 9.30 o'clock the body of the dead Premier was borne up the aisle of the cathedral. Behind it walked Master P. H. Thompson, grandson of the dead knight, Garnet M. Whitney, E. C. Whitney, Edgar Whitney, Richard Wagner, members of the Ontario Cabinet; Sir Henry Pellatt, representing the Governor-General, Sir John Gibson and his son, and then members of the Provincial Legislature, the Dominion House and the Toronto City Council.

PRINCE ROBBED BARONESS.

German Heir Looted Chateau and Destroyed Portraits in Chapel.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Crown Prince Frederick William, during the first days of the battle of the Marne, had his headquarters at the chateau of the Baroness de Bays, near Champagne, famous for its collections of art objects. The Baroness de Bays writes, says The Paris Temps, thus:

"The crown prince plundered the chateau. He stole medals, old arms, rare and precious vases, tapestries, icons, cups and gold souvenirs most dear to my family. He caused to be packed choice pictures and pieces of furniture, but some of these cases were left in the hasty flight of the Germans."

The baroness affirms, according to The Temps, that the German crown prince stamped with his heel upon the portraits of the Russian Emperor and Empress in the chapel of the chateau.

ANTWERP ATTACKED.

Germans Take First Steps in Siege of Belgian City.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 30.—(Via London).—The Germans have commenced their attack on the first line of the defence of Antwerp, according to despatches received by the Amsterdam papers. Moll, which is an important railway junction near the Dutch border, was occupied by the Germans, Sunday and Monday the Germans, who again occupy Malines, began a bombardment of forts Waesche and St. Catharines. It is believed that heavy Austrian artillery is being used.

Lierre, according to a message to the Handelsblad, has been under shell fire since early morning. The people at first hid in the cellars, but subsequently fled to Antwerp, being joined by fugitives from the surrounding villages. It is reported that many houses have been destroyed and some of the inhabitants killed and wounded. One shell fell on a hospital, killing nine persons.

EYES ON SOUTH AFRICA.

Kaiser's Plans Would Make Boers' Hair Stand on End, Says Botha.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Co. from Cape Town says that in the course of a speech addressed to five German people at the town of Bank, in the Transvaal, Gen. Louis Botha, Premier of South Africa, emphasized the necessity of loyalty to the British Empire.

Declaring that the policy of neutrality was absolute nonsense, he pointed out that if a German warship came to Durban and imposed a levy of five million pounds sterling on them it would help the people very little to say that they were neutral.

He justified the exportation of South Africans to support the Imperial Government. He said he had information regarding German ambitions concerning South Africa which would make the hair of his hearers stand on end. The fact of the matter was that the German Emperor would go down to posterity as a second Napoleon. Incidentally he also wanted a place to send German's surplus population and South Africa appeared to him as a suitable place.

OFFERED GERMAN BONDS.

But Germans Refused to Accept Them as Equivalent to Cash.

OSTEND, Sept. 30.—Burgomaster Max of Brussels continues to withstand the force of German tyranny single-handed. After repeated attempts to collect at least a part of the levy made on the city, the German issued a final warning that it must be paid at a certain time. When the hour arrived Burgomaster Max appeared with a considerable number of German bonds, which he insisted represented cash. The militant authorities refused to accept the paper and he was thrown into prison, being released when the municipality finally gave up $6,000,000 to their heavy-handed conquerors.

PARTING MESSAGE

Minister of Militia Bids Farewell to Canadian Forces.

BRITAIN'S CAUSE IS JUST

Col. Hughes is Confident that Training at Valenciennes Had Produced High Efficiency in the Canadian Contingent and He is Sure the Men Will Give a Good Account of Themselves.

QUEBEC, Sept. 30.—The following is in part the farewell message issued in pamphlet form by Col. Sam Hughes to the Canadian contingent: "WHERE DUTY LEADS.

"Fellow Soldiers:—Six weeks ago, when the call came to arms, inspired by that love of freedom from tyranny dominant in the British race, actuated by the knowledge that, under British constitutional responsible government, you enjoyed the utmost of human liberty, you loyally and promptly responded in overwhelming numbers to that call.

"Twenty-two thousand men were accepted by the Motherland. To-day upwards of thirty-three thousand are en route to do duty on the historic field of France, Belgium and Germany for the preservation of the British Empire and the rights and liberties of humanity.

"Lust of power; the subjugation of inoffensive and law-abiding neighbors; an insidious aggressiveness, have caused this war. In its cause the allies are guiltless.

"Belgium and Holland have long excited Prussian ambition for ownership. Austria has desired extension towards the Balkan Peninsula. Since the last of conquest bringing ruin, rapine and misery in the train. It has been long predicted that when the Kiel Canal would be completed, Germany would begin the long-dreaded war. The Kiel Canal was completed early in July. War was begun before the end of that month. Germany was found absolutely ready and waiting. Great Britain, Belgium and France were unprepared. Three weeks elapsed before the regular armistice of the latter countries could take the field.

"Soldiers! The world regards you as a marvel. Within six weeks you were at your homes, peaceful Canadian citizens. You were called to arms and in a few days you were in the front lines of a campaign that has been secured; three and a half miles of rifle ranges—twice as long as any other in the world—were constructed; fences were removed; water of the purest quality was laid down in miles of pipes; drainage was perfected; electric light was installed; crops were harvested; roads and bridges were built; ordnance and army service corps buildings were erected; railway sidings were laid down; roads were cleared; sanitation was perfected; the army was practically known, and thirty-three thousand men were assembled from points, some of them upwards of 4,000 miles apart. You have been perfected in rifle shooting, and to-day you are as fine a body of soldiers and men as ever faced a foe.

"That you will render a splendid account of yourselves for King and country is certain. You come of the right breed—English, Scotch, Irish, French, Welsh, German and American—your courage and steadfastness are proverbial. In South Africa, your presence was a guarantee of success. So in this most righteous struggle on the part of Britain. When she stands alone, you stand for the Motherland stand the free men from the dominions beyond the seas; when Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans, Hindus, Newfoundlanders tread the soil of Europe then will the Prussian aggressor realize the gigantic power of liberty. And amid it all you will not forget that you are not on the innocent and lovely people of Germany. Your aim is the overthrow of tyranny and aggressiveness.

"Every man among you is a free will volunteer. No one has been invited. No more typical army of free men ever marched to meet an enemy. That you will bear yourselves, individually and collectively wherever duty may call you, as to win the respect of the foe in the field; the admiration and regard of the good citizens of all lands in which your lot may be cast; and the love and regard of those near and dear at home, is the conviction of all Canadians.

"May success ever attend you and when you return rest assured a crowning triumph will await you.

"Sam Hughes.

Chinese Destroy Bridge.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—What is feared may be the forerunner of trouble between China and Japan developed yesterday when Chinese troops blew up a railway bridge at Tsyuhoo, six miles from Weihai on the Shantung Peninsula, where the Japanese forces are operating. It is said the action was taken because of a plan by the Japanese to seize all railway stations west of Weihai.

Germany Cannot Have Coal.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The British Government is taking steps to put a stop to the supplying of coal to the few German cruisers which are at large. Dutch steamers are being examined, and in this way a check has been put on commodities being shipped to Germany through the Netherlands, and the big Dutch steamship lines announce that they will only accept cargoes from America consigned to the Netherlands Government, which, to avoid a breach of neutrality, must see to it that this cargo does not get into Germany.

TO SHIFT FOR HERSELF.

Hungary Unlikely to Get Any Help From Austrian Army.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—From the latest reports in Galicia and along the Carpathians the conclusion drawn is that the army has abandoned Hungary to its fate and has left the route to Budapest to be defended by the Hungarian national troops, says the Telegram correspondent. The Daily Telegraph. The despatch continues:

"The Austrians continue to retreat before the pursuing Russians and appear to have given up not only the defence of their country, in general, but also to have decided to obtain from further independent action. They are simply hurrying on to Cracow to join the right wing of the Germans and apparently intend to become a mere component part of the German army.

"Having passed the most difficult part of Uget Pass in the Carpathians, after dislodging the Hungarians from three positions, the Russian troops have only some ten or fifteen miles to descend before reaching the Hungarian plateau, where there is not a single fortress or fortified position except such as may be hastily improvised in the form of earthworks by the Hungarians."

"Christmas in Berlin."

ROME, Sept. 30.—(Via Paris).—"Cheer up; we'll spend Christmas in Berlin," is the encouragement which Gen. Rennenkampf has offered to his troops by a report received here from Russian headquarters. The general professed this word of cheer for the purpose of helping his officers and soldiers stand fast during the present discomforts and sufferings of war.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The farmers of Caradoc Township, Middlesex County, have decided to offer the Militia Department a gift of 20 horses suitable for war purposes. The locomotive works at Kingston have received a big order from the British War Office, through Ottawa, for the supply of shrapnel shells for large guns.

Sir Charles Johnston was yesterday elected Lord Mayor of London for the term of one year, beginning Nov. 9, 1914. He succeeds Sir Thomas V. Bowater.

Official denial of the sinking of a French warship by the Austrian forts at Cattaro was made yesterday by the French Admiralty through the embassy at Washington.

Queen's University opened to-day and registration will fall short of last year mainly because of the war. Many science students have enrolled with the Canadian army.

King Victor Emmanuel, accompanied by Gen. Grandi, Italian Minister of War, assisted in the military manoeuvres held yesterday between Bracciano and Uterbo, Italy.

A vote to abolish the Ontario Board of Control, which has been in existence less than a year, will be taken next January. The majority of the aldermen are among those opposed to the present system.

John Joseph, a constable in the county judge's criminal court at Brockville, where he elected a speedy trial, Joseph Johnston pleaded guilty to five charges of burglary committed at Brockville, and was sentenced to five years in prison.

Clemenceau's Paper Suspended.

TOULOUSE, France, Sept. 30.—(Via Bourdeaux).—Ex-Premier Georges Clemenceau's newspaper, Homme Libre, which was transferred to this city from Paris, has been suspended for eight days by Gen. Baillou.

The governor of Louisiana asked M. Clemenceau to take out several passages of an article in yesterday's issue which he considered too violently worded. M. Clemenceau flatly refused and the general concatenated the article and ordered the suspension of the newspaper.

More Cholera.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Rome to the Exchange Telegraph says that a message from Budapest asserts that the Minister of the Interior has announced that 15 new cases of cholera were discovered in the city's military hospital Monday morning.

Australian Troops Haven't Sailed.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—Several newspapers have asserted that the Australian and New Zealand contingents have already arrived in Great Britain and India's troops have reached the front. The most recent and reliable advices from Great Britain indicate that these contingents have not yet embarked. The statements made to the contrary, it is said, are absolutely unfounded.

All Motor Cars in Northern France Are Commandeered For Work of Chasing the Enemy, Says Report From Paris—Von Kluk Had Offered to Surrender—But Gen. Joffre Refused.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A Paris despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says: "It is stated here to-night (Tuesday) that the German right has been entirely broken and is now being pursued by the allies. All the automobiles in northern France have been requisitioned for the purpose of pursuit.

"Armored motor cars with mitrailleuses are also being used to pursue the retreating enemy. It is said that the official communication issued at three o'clock demonstrates unmistakably that the Germans have been surrounded in the Somme Department, the French front extending further east.

"It is officially stated that Peronne has been recaptured.

The foregoing message has been referred to the British official press bureau which, while not objecting to its publication, takes no responsibility for its correctness.

The report is current that Gen. von Kluk, commanding the German right, opened a peace parley on Sept. 25 with Gen. Joffre, offering to surrender if his men were allowed to retire to Germany and guarantee that they would not again take part in the war. According to the story, Gen. Joffre flatly refused to consider such terms and directed that the attack continue. It is said the army of von Kluk is slowly disintegrating under the terrific assaults of the last few days and that a general backward movement has already set in. Large quantities of ammunition and many guns are being abandoned, according to the rumor.

The tighter censorship is felt in the absence of news from the seat of war where the greatest events are taking place. Some estimates of German losses at 300,000 and those of the allies at 100,000.

An official statement made by the press bureau last night confirms previous statements that the German position on the Aisne was chosen and prepared long before the battle began.

Latest reports reaching Paris state that the German right wing is now retreating from its fortified positions between the Aisne and the Somme rivers.

It is also reported that the allied armies have succeeded in cutting the German line of communication, and that part of Gen. von Kluk's army is in grave danger.

CALL TO WELSHMEN.

Thirty-Four Thousand Out of Fifty Thousand Now With Colors.

CARDIFF, Wales, Sept. 30.—(Via London).—At a big meeting here yesterday, over which the Earl of Plymouth presided, David Lloyd George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, spoke of the Government's decision to raise a Welsh army of 50,000 men.

Lloyd George, who delivered a rousing speech, said that Glamorganshire already had recruited 24,000 and Monmouthshire 12,000 men. He frankly told his hearers that the recruits were not going out for a picnic, but for a stern enterprise, which would involve hardships, wounds and danger, but he added, a vast majority would return and would have glorious memories to the end of their lives—memories that they would not regret for all the gold in the Bank of England.

He pointed out that under conscription Wales would be compelled to contribute 250,000 men, but that a volunteer army of 50,000 men would be just as good as a forced army five times that number.

Canada Serves Final Notice of Dropping of Fisheries Treaty.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—Hon. J. D. Haseb, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has notified the United States Government that the proposed treaty between Canada and the United States regarding the taking of food fish in boundary waters is now definitely dropped and Canada assumes freedom of action to make such regulations of her own as she deems necessary. The treaty was drawn up four years ago by Dr. David Starr Jordan for the United States and Jordan for the United States and the Prime Minister for Canada. The Canadian Government agreed to it, but opposition was raised by certain interests in the United States and approval of the treaty by Congress was delayed from time to time. The present administration at Washington when it came to power seemed anxious to have the treaty adopted, but the opposition continued, and the time limit set by Canada having been exceeded, the Dominion Government has decided to wait no longer.

READY FOR BATTLE?

German Fleet in Kiel Canal Getting New Krupp Guns.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 30.—(Via London).—Travelers arriving here from the Kiel Canal say that the Germans are busy placing new ordnance, which the Krupp Works has been experimenting with for the past two years, on the armored cruisers and dreadnoughts.

The canal is described as being crowded with warships, including the largest battleships. The arsenal are busy day and night, and long trains arrive continuously with immense guns for the ships.

The Germans are reported as declaring that the whole fleet will soon be ready to fight.

Belgians Terrify German Sentries.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A traveler from Antwerp says that a remarkable guerrilla warfare is proceeding around Antwerp. Every night the Belgians make sorties and every morning brings its quota of casualties. The Belgians have terrorized the German outposts almost beyond endurance. There is scarcely a night when German sentries are not killed. German trains blown up, and havoc worked on their line of communication, as a result the Belgians have earned the name of "black rats" among their enemies.

Germans Chopped Both Hands Off.

QUELPH, Ont., Sept. 30.—James Pettit of York Road, Guelph, received a letter yesterday from an aunt in Stratford Terrace, Leeds, Eng. One paragraph of the letter states: "We have in our house to care for a little Belgian girl, aged eight, who had both her hands chopped off by German soldiers. Her brother, a little younger, was treated the same, so that he would never be able to handle a rifle."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Interior Lightning Rods.

I wish to warn the farmers of Ontario against interior lightning rods. In our investigations we have found that an iron-centered rod, that is, one composed of a strip of copper twisted around an iron or steel center, whether the center is a strip or wire or both, is a very short-lived rod.

These rods weigh less than half what the standard copper rods weigh. Any farmer who puts these iron-centered rods on his buildings is actually getting less present value for his money than if using an all-copper rod.

Under these circumstances I think it only fair to the farmers of the province to put them in possession of the facts. And it is no unfair to the companies for they were notified publicly through the bulletin and privately by letter, thus giving them ample time to provide a good rod.

These companies can just as well supply good rods, as specified and described in the bulletin.

Perhaps it may not be amiss before concluding to say that our investigations have shown that properly installed rods will prevent $999 of loss out of every $1000 that would occur if the same buildings were not rodged.

WHAT A SUBMARINE IS.

Interesting Description of These Effective Engines of Destruction. So much has been written concerning the submarine, by a flight of imagination, may achieve, writes the naval correspondent of the London Morning Post, that most people are somewhat uncertain as to what the submarine actually is and does.

THE CAPTAIN'S BUSINESS The process of submerging is a process in the brain of the captain. He has a mental picture of what each tank contains, and how much weight is driven out forward or aft at each order, and what will be the effect upon the vessel's position.

THE ATTACK The periscope, which is about the size of a saucer, remains about 18 inches above the surface, and is seen in a fitting pennant of white spray, as it cuts the waves, like a sea-bird's wing. In any lops it would be almost imperceptible at two or three hundred yards.

WHAT SHE DOES The submarine running wash fore and aft, with a heavy grinding noise, the water lifting and dripping from the gills which project on either side of her snout. The hull is filled with the crashing of engines, the rattle of the narrow tube of steel.

BRITISH AND GERMAN CRUISERS COMPARED

British Ships are Superior in Armament and Have Shown Themselves to be Better Fighting Machines.

Now that the Heligoland fight has been British and German cruisers exchanging broadsides, naval journalists are discussing the relative merits of the two national types. For years Germany has been building what the German Admiralty staff terms "small cruisers"; these vessels can be distinguished by their bearing the names of towns—Leipzig, Karlsruhe, Emden, Magdeburg, etc.—and are all of small or moderate size, great speed, and light armament.

Specific mention is made in the admiralty communiqué of the excellent work performed by the Arcturion's six-inch guns. With these weapons, the "seriously injured" one of the enemy's cruisers, with whom a running fight was in progress, was maintained at a range of about 3,000 yards.

Under these circumstances I think it only fair to the farmers of the province to put them in possession of the facts. And it is no unfair to the companies for they were notified publicly through the bulletin and privately by letter, thus giving them ample time to provide a good rod.

THE ROLL OF HONOR.

A great English newspaper, The Morning Post, made the publication of the first great casualty list, which showed a loss of some 5,000 men, the occasion of a noble and high spirited article "The Roll of Honor" which is here reproduced in part.

Today, said The Morning Post, we publish the first instalment of our soldiers who have died in defence of their country. And we desire to use the occasion which some may think melancholy but we regard as glorious, to enforce the appeal for more soldiers in the cause for which these men have died. There are many who speak hardy of war as a thing altogether evil, bearing fruits only of suffering and misery. They point to the rare handiwork of God destroyed in a moment, and to the labors of man brought to naught. Such critics of war dwell exclusively upon the loss to the individual, his personal suffering, the extinction in this life of the divine spark, and the agony and deprivation of those other individuals who depend upon the extinguished life. We agree that there is much to be said for this censure of war; but we hold nevertheless, that there are evils worse than the swift calamities of battle. A shameful peace, by which, for the sake of material comfort and security, a nation sold its honor and betrayed its friends, would be a calamity far worse than war. Fighting may arouse certain evil passions of cruelty, but such a peace would nourish evils more injurious to the soul of a nation—sloth, the desire for comfort, selfishness, cowardice, greed. These vices are worse for a nation than the manly animosities of war. As to death, it may be an evil, but it is an evil which comes to all soon or late. And we cannot think that death on the field of battle is a greater ill than death upon the sick bed by the more gradual processes of disease. For in war the mind is so set upon victory and the hearts so full of the ardor of conflict that the very pangs of dissolution lose their terrors. In the heat and fury of battle the terrors of death are little regarded. What in peace is dreaded above all things, in war is rather besought and courted. For in the height of such a crisis men feel that their lives are nothing and that victory is everything.

Perhaps after all, this view of death is not a fallacy. What matters is the life of the race; in the life of the race lies the immortality of the individual. The soldier dies that his country may live, and if this race survives in the spirit of the race, and in death partakes of its life. The soul of England is the soul of the sum of Englishmen living and dead. The slain in battle still live in the soul and character of the people. These great spiritual trials and exaltations which we call wars and battles mould and shape the mind and character of future generations of Englishmen. Individuals die that the nation may continue; if the sacrifice were refused the nation itself would become a thing diseased and corrupt. Therefore war is not altogether an evil; it cleanses and purifies; it invigorates the national sentiment and intensifies the national life. In this war every Englishman must feel a keener sense of the national spirit, a new feeling of friendliness and brotherhood towards the rest of the nation. It is a communion of the national spirit which draws us all together and makes us feel that we are not individuals merely, but parts of a great whole, whose destiny and interests are of infinitely higher importance than our own.

These feelings are felt by all, and, therefore, we are sanguine enough to think that our roll of dead will be our best aid to recruiting.

FIGHT IT THROUGH.

Recent "fealers" thrown out on behalf of the German government, with a view to the opening of peace negotiations, have met with the expected reception in England. Just how far these suggestions were authorized by the Kaiser or his advisors, of course, is not known, but it may well be that the German general staff realize that they are engaged in a hopeless struggle, and are shrewd enough to desire to conclude terms of peace before defeat becomes overwhelming, and the elaborate military despotism which they have built up has been swept away forever.

Peace at this time would leave the military caste still enthroned, with all arrogant and brutal power, which has made it such a deadly peril, not merely to the peace of Europe, but to humanity itself. Greatly as the British people abhor war, and great as are the sacrifices which they are making, peace proposals cannot and will not be tolerated for a moment. The determination of Great Britain to pursue the struggle to the end is indicated by the attitude of eminent peace advocates in the Old Country, who, until the moment the war was declared, worked strenuously for peace. For instance, Mr. H. W. Massingham, Editor of the Nation, who is one of the most brilliant British journalists, speaks with no uncertain voice as to Britain's resolution to fight the thing through.

"The most tremendous machinery of war ever fashioned by man's hand" he says, "has torn its way through two thickly peopled countries, leaving behind a trail of fire, ruin and indiscriminating pillage. It has violated the entire spirit and much of the letter of The Hague convention, mixing soldiers and civilians in its vengeance, tearing up some of the oldest and most beautiful landmarks of the earlier life of man. As Lloyd George said in his wonderful speech, it has left an ineffaceable mark of harshness, coldly cruel purpose, pivoting on a deliberate plan of terror on the national life of Europe. Human nature is not equal to making peace with so alert, so formidable a foe."

This is the determined and fixed purpose of the British people, and undoubtedly it reflects also the views of the Allied Nations who are fighting in the death struggle against barbarism and for freedom. The losses which the Allies are suffering in the field, the terrible toll of death which it taken from the best and bravest of their young manhood, and the great sacrifices which the people are called upon to make, at home, are staggering, but they are facing them with unflinching spirit and with supreme confidence born of the justice of their cause.

And, however, prolonged and costly the struggle may be, the fighting must go on to the end, until "the Prussian bully is torn from his seat," and the military hierarchy, which seeks to establish its cruel grip upon Europe, and ultimately, the world, is crushed and ended forever. Then, and only then, will it be time to discuss proposals of peace.

UNENDING CHANGE.

Except for the occasional comets which have come out of illimitable space and sped on into infinity the heavens upon which mankind gazes to-day have not altered since the cave man, ancestor of us all, watched the stars and groped in his slow-witted mind for their meaning.

The north star was, as it is now, a true guide to the wanderer. The mountains upon this planet are the mountains that were barriers to the first man's hunting and venturing. The rivers, a little lower in the beds, still keep to the same general course. The lakes are as they were then, and the seas beat at the same cliffs.

The cosmic forces work so slowly that to the eye of man, unaided by instruments, the universe and the spot in the universe we call the world were through, ages ago, with their changing.

But the instruments tell us a different story. The earth is constantly shifting and shuffling. Some regions are sinking. Others are rising. The streams are cutting at the hills and making canons in the plains. The rain and the frost are wearing away the summits of the mountains. Beds of ooze in the sea are slowly hardening into stone. Continents are in course of wearing down and continents are in course of manufacture. The earth is tumbling through space with the sun and the sister planets so that, ages hence, the stars that are fiery bright now will be dull and dim, so far will we have traveled from them. Only a few weeks ago, astronomers announced that something was going on in Jupiter that may mean the birth of a moon. The same forces that made the stars and moulded the earth are as actively at work to-day as they were when this globe was thrown from the bosom of the sun.

Unending change is the rule of the universe.

THE DEPARTING SOLDIER.

"Farewell, dear wife," the soldier said, "my country calls, and I must go, to wear a helmet on my head, and shoot at folks I do not know. And men whose names I've never heard will go for me with gun and sword; the whole blamed business is absurd, and I am sad, and slightly bored. I know not what the war's about, if wise or just I do not know; I only know I'm going out to make a target for the foe. But keep a cheerful heart I beg, for I'll return to home and farm; perhaps I will be shy a leg, and maybe I'll be short an arm, but I'll come back, in flesh, though battered sore, come back in flesh, or as a ghost; I may be brought upon a door, I may be shipped by parcels post; some way, some time, I shall return, my soul, as ever, fond and true, to watch you trying hard to earn a living for our famished crew. You'll have to till our barren fields, and reap the scanty crops you raise, while I am packing swords and shields, and shooting holes through unknown jays. You'll have to thrash the meagre grain, and yoke the oxen to the plow, while I'm pirooting o'er the plain, a large brass helmet on my brow. I hate to leave these humble walls; our lives, dear wife, are made a wreck, but I must go where honor calls, and get a bullet in my neck."

—Walt Mason.

GERMANY'S DESIGNS.

Professor Roland G. Usher, of the Washington University, St. Louis, author of a book on "Pan-Germanism," published last year, has been talking about the present war, which has not surprised him. He is quoted by the Boston News Bureau as saying, in part:

"If Germany is successful in the present war, its next move will be on South America and away will go the Monroe Doctrine and the Panama Canal, which Germany would certainly seize. The Germans have gone into this war with their eyes wide open and have counted all the costs. The popular notion seems to be that a blind Germany is rushing heedlessly after a mad Kaiser to certain suicide. On the contrary, the leaders of the country, with the full support of the nation, have carefully and deliberately planned and anticipated the present conflict for years, with full knowledge of the fearful losses and the enormous sacrifices that they must face, and with every confidence of final success. Germany figures that, much as she is hurt by war herself, she makes her opponents, especially England and France, suffer more. Germany knows that her factories must be closed and that there will be want and misery throughout the country. But she can find within her own borders enough food and clothing to supply the absolute necessities of life, so that her people and armies can live and produce all the necessary munitions of war."

The professor also declares that Germany even expects to be able to cripple England's sea power, even if she cannot defeat the British navy. "It does not necessarily require a navy to close the Suez Canal," he says. German hopes and designs, however, will not be realized. She may destroy a few British ships, by submarine or other raids, but in the end she will be brought to her knees.

WE SHOULD HELP BELGIUM.

The crimes committed by the Kaiser's soldiers in Belgium cannot be excused, much less defended, by the necessities of war. They were crimes against non-combatants, against innocent women and children, which will forever disgrace the nation guilty of them. They were crimes not alone against a people but against humanity, and on this account, if for no other, they must be expiated to the full.

There may be differences of opinion as to whether the non-combatant population provoked the invading army to excess, but, as a writer in the American press points out, there can be no denial that the defence of Belgium's neutrality and Belgium's national rights by her army has been followed by appalling disasters to one of the most peaceful, thrifty, self-reliant and industrious peoples of Europe, and that thousands of them, through no fault of their own, have been reduced to an utter poverty from which, for months to come, they will be unable to extricate themselves. For many of the bread-winners have been killed, and those who survive are without employment, or present hope of it.

"The ruin of Belgium," says his writer, "is more nearly complete than of any of the great nations now at war, for none of them is without many cities and vast expanses of territory which the war has not and will not directly affect. Belgium, on the contrary, is almost wholly dependent on help from the outside, and it is to the United States that the appeal in behalf of her widows and orphans, her ruined peasants, and her idle artisans is made with best hopes of immediate and generous response."

Belgium, in no measure, was responsible for the war which has brought such tragic consequences upon her and her people. As Dr. Charles Sarolea pointed out so impressively in an article recently published, in Belgium there has been created a whole nation of unemployed with the appalling evil of complete commercial and industrial paralysis, culminating in starvation.

Meanwhile the Russian steam roller is rolling steadily ahead. The Czar promised to march on to Berlin, if it took his last Moujik, and we believe he will be as good as his word.

"By one means or another," says the London Nation, "the system which compels Britons, Frenchmen and Belgians to fight the Germans on the Meuse, because the Austrians wanted to throw shells at the Servians across the Save, must be ended forever."

The battle of the Aisne still goes on. It has resolved itself into siege warfare, the outcome of which may not be decided for days. Meanwhile Sir John French makes a part of his official report, the words of a French general, "We have a feeling that we have been victorious." Pending definite information, this is satisfactory enough.

The French Canadians of Quebec have the laudable desire to be represented at the front by a regiment of their own, and through the efforts initiated by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, assisted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other leading French Canadians, their desire is likely to be realized. French Canadians fought with distinction in South Africa, and no doubt will make as brilliant a showing with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in Europe.

The Orange Sentinel, after outlining the course of procedure to be pursued, admits that Home Rule will become an accomplished fact in these words:—"Thus Ireland is to have a parliament of her own after an agitation lasting more than one hundred years."

The war has generated a new spirit of tolerance and charity on the part of both parties to this century-old controversy. The Sentinel's comments upon the passage of the Bill are dignified, moderate, and calculated to pave the way for the adoption of a true policy of conciliation.

Of all the estimates of Lord Kitchener that may be recalled at this time none is more remarkable than that of Mr. Winston Churchill in the "River War." "In every instance the General placed on the field of battle an overwhelming, well-fed, thoroughly equipped army, in a suitable position for encountering the enemy. On every occasion the enemy was practically destroyed. On no occasion was the result in doubt when the morning of action revealed the antagonists. The chances of battle were reduced to a negligible fraction. . . . In nearly three years of war nothing of any consequence went wrong. What prouder boast could a general make than this plain statement of fact?" With a man like that directing the British War Office it is not surprising that the British people have confidence in the outcome.

Partizan discussion, from which a few Conservative journals cannot abstain, seems to indicate that, if possible, a short session of parliament will be held presently and that at the close the government will go to the country on a war issue. To judge by the daily tattoo of the Toronto News and the Graham papers of Montreal, the issue will be, Who saw the emergency? We should think that it will be obvious to the electorate that nobody saw the emergency. Had it been seen either by the government party or the opposition, the struggle, if any, during the session of 1912 and 1913, would have been, not about naval contribution, but about providing a store of soldiers' shoes, trousers and great coats, and other equipment of an army to be hurled with the least possible delay at the Empire's foes.

—Weekly Sun, Independent.

A return recently published by the British Board of Trade shows that on December 31, 1913, the trade unions of the United Kingdom had 3,993,769 members. These figures form a record, not only for the United Kingdom, but for any country of the world. Since 1904 the membership of the trade unions of Great Britain and Ireland has increased by 109 per cent, that is to say it has more than doubled. The number of women trade unionists in the Old Country is now 356,763.

KAISER TREMENDOUS.

Son of a soldier humane, brave and true,
Whose honor to him was as brute force to you,
Are you mad, bloody tyrant, or fool all through?

With God's Holy name ever on your lips,
You value Him less than your bayonet tips!
Professing allegiance to Christ as your Lord,
His Gospel of Peace is mocked by your sword.

With impious tongue you called God your "Ally,"
Then hellishly doomed vast thousands to die—
Brave Belgians to die if they dared to defend Their country, their homes, children, women and friend.

While bidding your legions to trust in the Lord
You pinned your own faith to your slaughtering horde:

Afraid to fight France by honorable code,
You murder the Belgians to hew you a road.

Your country's signed contracts are naught in the scale,
Its honor is lost in your murderous hail.

When you came to the throne which Bismarck had built

With help of your grandsire, you forecast your guilt:

Slighting the People, the Army you first hailed,
Called yourself War Lord, flung out your fist malled.

Proclaiming yourself the appointed of God,
You blazed to the world your vicarious rod:
Your foul use of that rod in Europe to-day
Will make your name loath for ever and aye,
Whether mad, bloody tyrant, or fool all through;
Son of a soldier humane, brave and true.

William Tremendous!
Butcher stupendous!

ONE USED CHURCH CLOCK

By Manipulating the Hands a German Agent Signaled to His Friends—Others Hear Lights and Smoke From Chimneys Says British Official Report—Reinforcements Relieve the Strain.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Official Press Bureau issued last night a descriptive account of the operations of the British force in France and the French armies in immediate touch with it, communicated by an eye-witness present at the headquarters of Field Marshal Sir John French. This account supplements that issued Sept. 24 from General Headquarters:

"Sept. 25, 1914.—For four days there has been a comparative lull all along our front. This has been accompanied by a spell of fine weather, though the nights are now much colder. One cannot have everything, however, and one evil result of the sunshine has been the release of flies, which were torpid during the wet days.

"Advantage has been taken of the arrival of reinforcements to relieve by fresh troops the men who have been in the trenches for some time. Several units, therefore, have received their baptism of fire during the week.

"Since the last letter left General Headquarters evidence has been received which points to the fact that during counter-attacks on the night of Sunday, the 20th, the German infantry fired into each other as the result of an attempt to carry out the dangerous expedient of a converging advance in the dark.

"Opposite one portion of our position a considerable massing of hostile forces was observed before dark, and some hours later a furious fusillade was heard in front of our line, though no bullets came over our trenches.

"Espionage plays so large a part in the conduct of the war by the Germans that it is difficult to avoid further reference to the subject. They have evidently never forgotten the saying of Frederick the Great: 'When Marshal Soult goes to war he is followed by a hundred cooks; when I take the field I am preceded by a hundred spies.'

"Men in plain clothes signal to the German lines from points in the hands of the enemy by means of colored lights at night and puffs of smoke from chimneys by day. Pseudo-laborers work in the fields between the armies have been detected conveying information, and persons in plain clothes have acted as advanced scouts to the German cavalry when advancing.

"German officers and soldiers in plain clothes, or in French or British uniforms, have remained in localities evacuated by the Germans, in order to furnish them with intelligence.

"One spy of this kind was found by our troops hidden in a church tower. His presence was only discovered through the erratic movements of the hands of the church clock, which he was using to signal to his friends by means of an improvised semaphore code. Had this man not been seized, it is probable he would have signalled to the German artillery at the time of their arrival the exact location of the headquarters and staff. A high explosive shell would then have mysteriously dropped on the building.

"Women spies have also been caught; secret agents have been found at the railways observing arrangements and detachments. It is a simple matter for spies to mix with refugees moving about to their homes; difficult for our troops, who speak neither French nor German, to detect them."

TRUE UNTIL AFTER WAR.

Ulstermen Will Then Resist Home Rule, Says Carson.

BELFAST, Ireland, Sept. 29.—Sir Edward H. Carson, leader of the Irish Unionist party, outlined the Ulster program of the future in addressing the Unionist council yesterday.

"I propose," he said, "when the war is over to summon a provisional government, and I propose that their first act should be to repeal the Home Rule Bill so far as Ulster is concerned. I propose in the same act to enact that it is the duty of the volunteers to see that no act or no attempt at an act under that bill should ever have effect in Ulster."

"Meanwhile let us throw ourselves as we are throwing ourselves wholeheartedly into the patriotic action that the time demands in supporting the Empire."

In Spite of Himself.

In Denver they tell of a young Brit-laher who will some day inherit a title, and who not long ago married the daughter of a supposedly wealthy man of that town.

A month or so after the marriage the father-in-law took the husband aside. "I am ruined!" he exclaimed. "Practically every cent is gone!"

The Briton was a good loser, however, for he gave vent to a long low whistle and exclaimed with a little laugh:

"By George! Then I did marry for love, after all!"—Harper's Magazine.

TWEED BOY IN WAR ZONE
Ross Tuttle, Son of Dr. Tuttle, Gives Experiences at the Front.

Mr. R. Tuttle of Tweed who has been studying in Germany and has escaped from the theater of war, writes as follows of his experiences—

"It is not my intention to try to give an historical account of the great war up to the present time or to try to show that one side is right but rather to give if possible some side lights on the question, some points which are very apt to pass un- noticed but which, when known, may help to understand more fully the German point of view and there- fore the general part of the situa- tion more clearly.

"This object may perhaps best be served by giving a short account of what actually took place in Got- tingen, where I was living and which is the military center for that district. The first real excitement occurred on Saturday, July 25 about midnight when a bulletin appeared on the street and in the cafes an- nouncing Serbia's unsatisfactory answer to Austria's note. This was con- sidered as denoting war between those two countries and the streets and cafes were soon filled with people singing German patriotic songs and cheering for Austria and Germany.

"Then came rumors of Russian mo- bilization the following Wednesday. On Friday martial law was declared in Germany and the following day a general mobilization of the entire Ger- man army ordered while at the same time we heard that France had al- ready done the same. That is to say within one short week Austria, had officially declared war on Serbia and France, Russia and Germany were mobilizing, showing the great ten- sion amongst the European nations, and how prepared they always are for war.

"Sunday, Aug. 2nd, known later in Gottingen as Russian Sunday was one of our most exciting days. Autos com- manded by the military authorities were travelling in all directions carry- ing out the orders with respect to mobilization and it was known that our regiment the 82nd was to leave that night for the front but where- to the Russian, French or Bel- gian border. The next day it was learned that the 82nd took part in the storming of Liege. All this naturally aroused the people, who having nothing particular to do on Sunday were aimlessly wandering in the streets and were very excited. Consequently when the rumor came that two Russian spies had been caught trying to blow up a bridge, followed by the appearance of an au- to containing two soldiers and two supposed spies, the mob at once surrounded the car and were ready for almost anything. The soldiers pro- tected the two individuals with their guns and conducted them to the jail, not however before one of them had been hit over the head with a cane. The crowd then naturally thought of the Russian students living in Gottingen and the cry started "Get the Russians!" In order to pre- vent any violence all the Russian students were arrested by the police and lodged in the jail, the mob still following the police, shouting and yelling as each Russian was taken. A Russian with his family who lived in the same house as I was taken about noon. By evening the wildest rumors were afloat. In some of the Russian students' rooms plans of Ger- man fortifications and bridges had been found, dynamite concealed in the floor, in bread, etc. with the re- sult that seven of the Russians in- cluding the two original spies were reported court martialled and shot. The following week all such rumors were naturally found to be false but that is no the point. What I want to show is that such rumors and many more were circulated and at the time were considered true. When one considers the fact that the re- ported circumstances—the troops leav- ing for the front and the reported two-faced attitude of Russia in carry- out mobilization while telling Ger- many they were anxious for peace, then one can hardly blame the com- mon people for being extremely bit- ter towards the Russians.

"On Friday, August 4th, about midnight word was received of En- gland's declaration of war and before morning most of the British subjects had been arrested and put in jail. (The imprisoned included no En- glishmen as they had left the country before mobilization, but were composed of Canadians, South Afri- cans and Indians. I learned the news at breakfast in the morning when my landlady excitedly advised me to report at once to the police as she did not want an occurrence similar to that with the Russian of the pre- ceding week. However I decided to do nothing and to my surprise the police did not come that day nor the following and I continued to go down town as usual with the result I suppose that everyone thought I must be an American. How I was missed by the police upon England's declaring war, I cannot explain as everyone when living in Germany must supply the local police with his name, home address, nationality, age, etc. Further the other two Canadians had been arrested immediately. Evidently the police in looking over the list of residents on search of British subjects simply missed my name al- together.

"For four or five days the British were released from jail but had to report every three days to the police so that there was no possibility of their getting out of the country. At the same time a notice appeared in the papers saying that all foreigners including Americans must report to the police in order to secure special passes which would ensure their safety while in Germany. After wait- ing a couple of days I happened to see the general excitement against for- eigners had more or less died down, I concluded it was the most opportu- nity time to see the police and try to get some kind of a pass since as I would be naturally very anxious to get out of the country I thought I would do so to learn that I was a British subject when I would be com- pelled to report every three days and when a special opportunity of get- ting out of the country I would be in the same position as the other British subjects.

"Well, I went to the police, told them I was a student from Tweed, Canada, Germany and that I would like a pass to enable me to remain safely in Gottingen and upon his demand for papers I gave him my student's identification card and also my German pass unfolded. The German official to believe that I was an American he, from the U.S. "About two weeks later when it was possible for Americans to leave Germany I visited the police again and upon the strength of the pass which I showed him, he gave me a left my British pass at home this time) I secured another permitting me to go to America via Holland.

"Why the police official did not ex- amine my British pass in the first place, who of course would have learned my nationality, I cannot ex- plain. Again it seemed merely luck, I suppose, fully believing that all British subjects had been imprisoned fully a week previous he simply took it for granted that most of the American, never dreaming that I would throw a British pass down in front of him and then on the strength of that, dare to ask for a pass to go to America. I was de- ceived. Further his geography seemed somewhat deficient as he was con- tent to consider Canada as part of the U. S.

"There are two things which I think we in Canada are too apt to forget when forming our opinions of this war. One is the difference be- tween what one may term the Ger- man military party and the great mass of the common people. The former are the less numerous but are powerful and are responsible for the present unenviable position of the German nation today because of their desire to make of Germany the world power by means of the sword. On the hand the people like any other people do not and have never wan- led war, in fact, I think are less war- like than the average Anglo Saxon. Place the average German in a quiet town where he has an opportunity to earn his living by steady, industri- ous work, with freedom in the evening to meet and drink his beer with congenial friends at a cafe and he is as a rule quite contented.

"The second thing we are apt to forget is that the German people do not get the news we get but that their opinions are based on what they do get and what they consider to be the truth. When martial law was declared in Germany every thing in- cluding the control of the newspa- pers passed into the hands of the mil- itary, hence the government really publishes the news, which for the common people is represented by the Kaiser and to disbelieve the Kaiser would be on a par with disbeliev- ing God. Hence when the people, and remember I do not here include the military party, are told the following things they are apt to believe them- self to the utmost for peace, that Rus- sia while asking the Kaiser to try "and secure peace between Russia and Austria was secretly mobilizing against Germany, that England was content with joining forces with Rus- sia that land of barbarism and slav- ery, has further allied herself with Japan the champion of the yellow race; that Germany represents the highest attainment of culture, civi- lization and refinement and that therefore the war is a war for the maintenance and propagation of all that is best in the world, and that God is on their side and that they must conquer; and further when one remembers that instead of hearing any accounts of German reverses, German atrocities or acts of barba- rism such as the burning of Louvain, they are reading accounts of brutali- ty and horror just as numerous, terrible and apparently just as au- thentic but perpetrated by the Bel-

NORWOOD WINS APPEAL IN THE ROBINSON CASE
Costs Allowed if Asked For.

The appeal in the case of John Rob- inson vs. the village of Havelock, came up at the Appellate Division in Toron- to on Monday before Meredith C. J., O. Macdougall, J. A. Magee, J. A. and Hodgins, J. A. F. D. Kerr, D. Peter- bor for the defendants and D. O'Con- nel, of Peterboro for the plaintiff.

This case was an appeal by the vil- lage from the judgment of Judge Kelly of March 14th last, when he awarded Robinson $785 and costs, in his action to recover $5,000 damages for the death of three children, who were killed in the town grange pit by reason of overhanging earth falling upon them, alleged to be due to the negligence of the council in leaving the place unguarded and unexcised. The Appellate Division in allowing the appeal dismissing the action, also al- lowed costs if the village asks for them.

The verdict of the Appellate Divi- sion will meet with the utmost satis- faction on the part of those responsi- ble for the appeal, particularly so be- cause of the fact that their action in appealing was criticized severely by a large number of citizens who were of the opinion that the village was sure to lose.—Norwood Register.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT
Tragic Death of Russel Johnston of Belmont.

Russel Johnston, the fifteen year- old son of Mr. Jas. H. Johnston, who resides about a mile south of Havelock on the Trent river road, died on Friday afternoon from the results of a self inflicted shot in the forehead. How the tragic accident happened is mere conjecture. The boy went to the woods after the cows in the morn- ing and took a 22 calibre rifle with him. Afterwards his father heard a shot and upon the boy not returning he should have his mother went in search of him. She found the poor lad stretched flat on his back with a gaping wound in his forehead, and close by this fact, Governor Kindred, who was called in decided that the circumstances did not warrant an in- quest being held.—Norwood Register

The Campbellford, Lake Ontario & Western Railway Lose Their Appeal.

At Osgoode Hall on Wednesday the 23rd inst. in the Second Appellate Division before Justice Mulock, C. J., the appeal of the Railway against the award made by Judge Justice Mulock, J. A. Judge Morrison of Prince Edward, the majority of the arbitrators in the wa- riant of the expropriation proceedings in connection with James Gibson's property on the Dundas Road, (His Honor Judge Huxley of Peterborough having given the dissenting award), was heard. The majority of the arbi- trators awarded Mr. Gibson $3500.00 from which amount the appeal was taken.

The court dismissed the railway's appeal with all costs which confirms the award of the majority of arbitra- tors and leaves Mr. Gibson entitled to $3500.00 in cash, the land taken and the damages done him and the Railway, must pay all the costs.

LEADERSHIP AND LORDSHIP.
Striking Article From the New York Independent.

Under the heading "Leadership versus Lordship" the well-known New York weekly journal, The Independent, publishes a striking article, which may be quoted in part. It il- lustrates vividly the way in which Americans find themselves compelled to sympathize with the cause of the allies.

Descriptions of Berlin behavior on the day William II. drove in from Potsdam, made his balcony speech and declared war, are strange reading for Americans. It is difficult for us to get into the mental attitude of a popu- lace intelligent but powerless, wait- ing to be told by an owner whether "his people" were to be driven forth to slaughter, or permitted to go on with peaceful pursuits.

Self-conscious abjectness is for us unthinkable, while the scene in the House of Commons, where the freest of these free nations of a democracy, tense with an overwhelming sense of responsibility were calmly asking what national honor and moral ob- ligation demanded of them, holds us breathless with its reality. The pres- ence of a democracy, the freest of these free nations of a democracy, tense with an overwhelming sense of responsibility were calmly asking what national honor and moral ob- ligation demanded of them, holds us breathless with its reality.

Never before in the world's history has the distinction between lead-ship and lordship been so sharply drawn. Political thinking and, let us hope, thinking on all the problems of social democracy, has been clarified, for all time to come.

The apologists for privilege, for divine right, for ecclesiastical author- ity, strive unwearingly to bamboozle the popular mind upon the relations of the few and the many, the minority and the majority to efficiency and to truth. What do the many know, they say, about managing a business, operating a railroad, planning a mili- tary campaign? To such questions put in this question—begging way, the answer of course is "Nothing."

If democracy required that the masses of mankind should be scientific industrial and military experts, it would remain forever utopian, a dream. But it does not. Democracy is based upon a truth more compre- hensive, more profound, Democracy is possible because leadership, initia- tive, genius for guidance, are one thing, while ultimate responsibility, ultimate decision, sovereignty, are a wholly different thing. In democ- racy the few lead, inspire and guide; the many are sovereign, they make the final, the fateful decision, to them alone belongs ultimate responsibility.

In the absolutist empire, the few not only direct, they also decide. They are sovereign. For all practical purposes they own the many, whatever the empty phrases of formal law may say to the contrary. They are not merely leaders, they are lords.

The resistless, overwhelming mass- ing of intelligent sympathy through- out the western world upon the side of England, Belgium and France in this appalling struggle has come a- bout, as our German friends will one day understand, because the western world, instantly grasped the essential fact that democracy and leadership have been assumed by lordship. The attempt to raise a false issue by al- leging that Russia is more to be dreaded than Germany has deceived nobody in his senses. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. Whatever may happen in the future, Russia is to- day hurling her strength against the only enemy which as yet has aggressi- vely attempted to substitute in the western world the law of lese majeste for constitutional liberty, and mili- tarianism for the moral obligation of solemnly accepted treaties. The crimes of Russian imperialism have been many, and the day of retribution will come, but Russia does not yet stand before the world forsaken. The Ger- man Empire does.

So the issue is drawn, and Mr. Win- ston Churchill with appealing clear- ness has portrayed its practical as- pects. Leadership and lordship have closed in a life and death struggle. For the moment there is only one question: Which is stronger? Which can annihilate the other? For there will be no quarter this time, asked or given. It is the Darwinian fight for the survival of the fittest, at last.

By HAROLD BEGBIE, in The London Chronicle.

What sends our heart to zero, the England's calling, Come! The Balalaeva Hero in workhouse, doss, and slum! Hold head-below, you call us names, We're not afraid to die, We'll down our tools, we'll quit our games, We'll learn to shoot or fly, We'll march until our feet are sore, We'll stand until we're stunned; But will YOU find two million more To swell the women's fund?

We are rolling up in thousands and we're not afraid to die; We are ready with our bodies, and we're kissing our girls good-bye; Don't forget what we are giving, we who have to earn our living, Don't forget what risks we're taking, we who've naught but our own making; You have told us, pretty nasty, to stand up and face the smash; Well, we're standing up in thousands—are you putting down the cash!

We're giving up our so-and-so, Our fun and all the rest; Your little street-bred people go To fight their little best; Our youth, our strength, will put it thro' We'll do what England bids; But you're part of England, too— Now, what about the kids!

Before you call us hang-backs, face Thus simple price of Krupp— You've got to fill the crater's place, WHAT HAVE YOU GIVEN UP? Old sport, you mustn't scorn the ruck And sneer 'em out of bounds, Not till the FUND that shows YOUR pluck Is Fifty Million Pounds.

The young man gives his trashy all And gives it with his heart, The rich man of his lucky haul Gives but a tiny part. Moe's precious things we've quit, Altho' our homes are poor; Gents, while we're standing up to hit The wolf is at the door.

We are rolling up in thousands and we've checked our jobs behind, We have kissed our girls and mothers, and we've told them not to mind; Don't forget what we are losing, we who've done our bit of choosing, Don't forget the risks we're running we who've got our dose of cunning; You have told us, mighty bitter, to come out and save the crash; Well, we're coming out in thousands—are you holding back the cash!

What sends our heart to zero, the England's calling, Come! The Balalaeva Hero in workhouse, doss, and slum.

The Elgin County Patriotic Association has started a campaign to raise $100,000. We notice that the militia authorities in St. Thomas do not see any objection to the use of the word "patriotic" in giving the Association a name, even though the disbursement of the fund will be made by a local treasurer. The chairman of the association issues an appeal to those who are disposed to criticize, advising them that if they cannot help, they should not hinder. If as good advice and will be applic- able to many places. IF YOU CAN'T HELP DON'T HINDER. There are many people who are not trying to help. These people should not shores be invaded by the enemy, would be the first to demand protection, though they would be the last to help bear the expense of providing that protection.

The Trenton Patriotic Soldiers' Fund is growing rapidly and judging from today's news a Trenton company of the 49th Regiment will be recruited at once for the Second Contingent, which is announced to leave on November 1st; so it behooves every man, woman and child to do their utmost to assist in swelling the totals of the Fund. In the cause of hu- manity, let us each do our simple duty. If you cannot help, please don't put obstacles in the way of others who wish to do their part.

THE PASSING OF SIR JAMES WHITNEY, PROVINCIAL PREMIER

After Quiet Morning During Which He Seemed Better Than Previously Sir James Had Sudden Relapse—Funeral Will Be Held on Tuesday at Morrisburg, After Services in Toronto.

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario, died at his home, 113 St. George street, at noon yesterday, following a cerebral hemorrhage. His attack was sudden and unexpected both by his medical advisors and those who have been in close touch with him for the past few weeks. The news of his passing came to his associates in the midst of a council session, with the same shock as to the province at large. Ten minutes after the word of his dangerous turr had been given to the Cabinet about the council board, one of the Ministers was in the room with him, but he was several minutes too late. There was no rally from the attack and no time granted either to summon friends or medical assistance.

According to the statement of Hon. Dr. Pyne, who sped across the park in a car at the reception of the news, the shock to friends and relatives was accentuated by the promising condition of Sir James' health earlier in the day. He had been apparently well in the morning and had taken breakfast as usual. Although he had shown a little restlessness, his condition was taken to be improving, and the impression grew that he might be walking about in a few days. It was the opinion of Dr. Pyne that the exertion caused by moving about his room after rising from bed hastened the end. Lady Whitney and Miss Whitney were with him during the last moments.

The Cabinet met in the afternoon, and acting in conjunction with immediate friends of the family, made arrangements for the funeral. It was decided that in view of the intense interest of the province in Legislature for the first time. From that time onward he has represented his home constituency in the Legislature, a period of some twenty-six years. In April, 1896, Mr. Whitney, on the retirement of Mr. Marler, was chosen leader of the party, then in Opposition, and through the long years of his side's minority in the House, he fought with undiminished vigor and determination. In 1902 he was granted the degree of LL.D. by Toronto University, the degree of D.C.L. by Trinity University of Toronto, and of LL.D. from Queen's University, of Kingston, in 1903.

In 1886, at the age of 23, James Whitney volunteered for active service, and for a period of two months he took part in a campaign of resistance to the Fenian invasion. Throughout his subsequent career, he has been a consistent friend of the militia and an active member of the Dundas Reserve, of which division he ultimately became lieutenant-colonel. On the defeat of the Ross Government in 1905, the Conservative party came into power in Ontario and the leader of the Opposition since 1896 became Premier, with a majority which gave him confidence and power. The Government was sustained in 1908, 1911 and 1914 with very large majorities.

On the occasion of the tercentenary of the founding of Quebec City, which was held in 1908, the present King, then Prince of Wales, conferred upon the Ontario Premier the title of knighthood. In 1913 he received the additional honor of K.C.M.G. at the hands of the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General. Outside of his political career, Sir James was always active in the service of the Church of England, to which he belonged.

BLOOD ON THE STREET CORNER

(From Saturday's Daily.)

The sight of a dead horse lying on the roadway at the corner of Front and Bridge streets in a pool of blood drew hundreds of people who loitered around for more than an hour this afternoon.

The horse was one of a team with which Mr. Silks of the 4th of Sidney had driven to the city this morning. At one o'clock this afternoon the team was on the Front street pavement north of Victoria Ave. and in turning, the vehicle was cramped to such an extent that the wheel went under the vehicle which was upset. The horses broke loose and ran away down the main thoroughfare. Just above Bridge St. corner, one horse crowded the other against a rig with the result that the latter's right fore leg was broken. The horse habited around and police officer fired five shots from his revolver at it, but did not hit a vital spot. Some one then used a knife on the animal's neck. The creature lingered for fifteen or twenty minutes, the blood gouting from its throat and covering the sidewalk and spilling on the adjacent building wall slightly before it was tracked over the roadway.

Finally the pool of blood was washed away with water from the sprinkling cart and allowed to run down into the sewer drain. The animal's body was later removed. The mare was a valuable grey. The occupant of the vehicle was not injured when it upset.

HENDRIE MOVES UP

Hamilton Man's Ontario's N-w Lieutenant-Governor.

TO BE SWORN IN TO-DAY

Rodolphe Boudreau, Clerk of Privy Council, Has Arrived in Toronto to Attend to Installation of Sir John Gibson's Successor in Office—Appointment Was Confirmed on Saturday.

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—Lieut.-Col. the Hon. John S. Hendrie, of Hamilton, is the new Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Sir John Morrison Gibson, whose term of office has expired. Col. Hendrie's appointment was approved by the Governor-General at Valcartier on Saturday morning.

Rodolphe Boudreau, clerk of the Privy Council of Canada, arrived in Toronto yesterday in preparation for the swearing in of Col. Hendrie as Lieutenant-Governor. It is understood that the announcement of the new appointment came with considerable surprise to the members of the Ontario Cabinet. For some time it had been recognized that he was in line for the honor, but the appointment was not expected so early in view of the death of Sir James Whitney.

Hon. Dr. Pyne stated last evening that for the present, at least, Government affairs would be carried on as usual. He could not say whether a caucus of the legislative members was likely or not.

Col. Hendrie's elevation to the post of Lieutenant-Governor causes another vacancy in the Ontario Cabinet, and discussion is active regarding his probable successor.

Lt.-Col. Hon. John Strathearn Hendrie, C.V.O., was born at Hamilton, Aug. 15, 1867. He was educated in the Hamilton Public Schools and at Upper Canada College.

He was first returned to the Provincial Legislature at the general elections in 1902. He was re-elected in 1905, 1908, 1911 and 1914.

For two years (1901-2) Col. Hendrie was mayor of Hamilton. In February, 1905, he was appointed Minister without portfolio in the Whitney Administration.

He was created Commander of the Royal Victorian Order in September, 1907. He is a member of the National Battlefields Commission, Chairman of the Railway Committee of the Legislative Assembly; and member of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

CHOLERA STORY PROVEN.

Austrian Bacteriologists Prove Existence of Epidemic.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Rome says that a message received there from Vienna states that Government bacteriologists have definitely established the presence of Asiatic cholera, among the 70,000 wounded in the hospitals of Vienna.

It has been stated officially that an isolated case of cholera was discovered among Austrian soldiers who had returned wounded from Galicia, and unofficial advice received earlier from Vienna by way of Venice said that a total of nine cases of the disease had been discovered among the wounded soldiers. These cases, however, were reported from widely separated points.

Boer General to Help French.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 28.—The Boer general, Francois Joubert-Pleenaar, has arrived at Bordeaux to offer his sword to the allied armies.

"I fought against Gen. French in South Africa, now I am going to fight with him," said the general to the correspondent. "I commanded a Boer army opposed to him at Eldlandiaete where I received my baptism of fire in civilised warfare."

Gen. Pau Captures Train.

BASLE, Sept. 28.—A large train of ammunition and war material on its way to the German lines, where it is much needed by the Kaiser's troops, has been captured by Gen. Pau, operating in Alsace. The train has been sent to France.

It is said that the Germans are now endeavoring to renew their ammunition supplies from Austria.

German Casualties 115,000.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—(Via London.)—The total German casualties in dead, wounded and missing, as officially reported to date, are 104,589. The casualty list announced yesterday adds a total of 10,527 casualties to those previously announced, or a total of 115,116.

BLOOMFIELD LADY

girl and the' we got an expres train and got in the Hague about nine at night. We had also picked up a young German who had been in New York six years, but had no passport, and together we started for a hotel. We found a poor place and stayed there until morning when we went on to Rotterdam. The office of the company was closed until Monday at nine and again we appeared. There were thousands there with us. No one could get tickets. We gave them our money for third class but were told that we might not get transportation until October. It looked bad, but it was all we could do. Then we met the crowd from Frankfurt and I went to live with them and wait. We tried again on Tuesday and by giving the clerk a $5 tip, succeeded in getting a promise that he would let us go to the Rotterdam third class if we could. It was pretty vague. Then we went to the Embassy and they advised us to leave Holland for England as there were plenty of boats there. The next morning some one made me try again and I got a first class room for $125.00. I don't know how it happened, but I could not believe that I had it. Then I went to the third class man and he gave me the tickets for the others. We waited then three awful days, afraid every hour that the war would be declared, and that the vessel would not sail; but finally the time came and she started off. There are fifteen hundred first class passengers where they usually carry five hundred so you can see that we are a bit crowded. Way down the trunk or freight room and there they made us little rooms. I suppose about a thousand people are down there. They have a way of pumping air down there, but I never knew that one could have such a splitting headache. The good part is that it passes off in an hour after we get up. Then for three days we had a storm and every one was sick. But I got on deck and got on pretty well. Of course every one nearly got out of their skins. Mine never got out of Berlin, so I have just one shr. and a few warts. In the English Channel we were stopped repeatedly by English warships. They, of course, only protected us so that we would not run against mines, for the place is supposed to be full of them. They say the newspapers in America were very exciting but one must not believe all that they see. In Germany too they were wild. Even said that Canada and the United States were fighting. Of course this is a fearful war. Already there are hundreds of dead and wounded and there will be millions. I can't say whose fault it is, a great many say that Germany is forced to fight, but my English friends disagree. I can't feel that way and I hope she gets a good setback. Everything has stopped there. The stores are empty. The harvest, however, is unusually good, and the women and lame are bringing in, bringing it in. I don't think any other country has been so upset except Belgium, and there all is desolation.

FORMER POPULAR 57 YEARS

BELLEVILLE GIRL AFTER LUCKNOW MARRIED IN TORONTO.

A wedding of considerable local interest to many Bellevillians took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert O. Macfarland at 84 Murray Avenue, Toronto, on Wednesday evening, September 23rd at seven o'clock when their only daughter, Jessie Isabel, was united in marriage with Mr. Ernest W. Schmidt, second son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Schmidt, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Hardy Andrews, B.A., minister of Queen Street East Presbyterian church in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Mae Telford, of Toronto. She looked very pretty in a gown of white silk crepe, trimmed with accordion pleated overskirt and trimmings of silk shadow lace and she wore a Juliet cap of gold net trimmed with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The young couple were unattended.

The bride's mother received in a dainty creation of Copenhagen blue silk crepe with white tulle vest and wore a corsage bouquet of lilacs of the valley. Mrs. Schmidt, mother of the groom wore a handsome gown of black broadened silk trimmed with oriental lace with corsage of tea roses. Mrs. George Edwards, of Belleville, grandmother of the bride, wore a gown of black corded silk with baby Irish lace and bouquet of Killarney roses. Mrs. W. Moyce, of Buffalo, sister of the groom, looked charming in a grey crepe gown with apricot trimming and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. Miss Schmidt, of Toronto, sister of the groom, wore an apple green broadcloth basque dress with jet trimmings and yellow mums.

After the ceremony had been concluded and the usual congratulations extended the company repaired to the dining room which was prettily decorated in pink and white, where a dainty wedding supper was awaiting them. Later the evening's happy couple left for a brief honeymoon moon trip and on their return will take up their residence at 38 Bloomfield Avenue, Toronto. The bride's going away gown was of navy blue Russian cloth and black velvet hat with gold and royal blue plume.

Mr. George Carr of the second of Thurlow, who lives two miles below Herchiner avenue, brought in to Col. Ponton this morning two fine specimens of grape vines with clusters attached. The clusters were magnificent in their rich appearance and would not yield to any vines in France or Germany. The grapes are of the Niagara and Concord variety.

It is a unique fact that Mr. Carr is still gardening fifty-seven years after the Indian Mutiny, of which he is a veteran. He went through many of the battles as in Calcutta, seven months at Lucknow and received his discharge at Benares.

Mr. Carr is one of the few in this district to receive the Mutiny pension.

EVERY TOWN AND VILLAGE IN CANADA

Has Someone Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. E. Handke Tells How They Sent Him Back to Work and Saved Him much Money.

Vambrough, Ont. Sept. 28 (Special).—One more man has proved to his entire satisfaction that the one sure cure for sore back is Dodd's Kidney Pills. That man is Mr. E. Handke, a well-known resident of this place, and he is telling us in a letter that Dodd's Kidney Pills saved him much lost time, and suffering as well.

"I was laid up with sore back," Mr. Handke says. "At times I was not able to get up in the morning. But by the time I had taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I found that the pain was getting less, and by the time I had taken six boxes I was all right and able to go to work again."

"I want to say to any man who suffers from sore back that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy I would recommend. They saved me a large doctor's bill and much lost time."

"Sore back is one of the symptoms of 'Kidney Disease.' The natural way to cure it is to cure the sick kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys. If you haven't tried from yourself, ask your neighbors. Every neighborhood in Canada has some man or woman who has been cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

PAT, THE PATRIOTIC.

The results of war are not always bad. Since the commencement of hostilities in Europe we have witnessed the passing of the ominous cloud that had been hanging darkly for some months over unhappy Ireland. There was no British citizen, who had the true interests of the Empire at heart but viewed the situation in Ireland with the gravest concern. Now, however, a common peril has brought about a common sympathy and a united determination to maintain the liberty that is equally dear to both factions.

We have read with pleasure the statement by Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., in his address at the Patriotic Concert on Monday night. Commenting upon the united front presented by the Empire, Mr. Johnson thus referred to Ireland:—

It had been charged against Ireland that a portion of her sons could not be trusted at such a time as the present; the charge was a foul libel; in every war in which the Empire has been engaged Irishmen of every creed have borne their part with their brothers from England and Scotland, and they are in the thick of the fight to-day, the men of the south and the men of the north. No man now will dare to question Ireland's ALL IRELAND'S, loyalty and devotion to the Empire.

Mr. Johnson is himself a native of Ulster and this conciliatory expression comes from him with all the more grace. We have never supposed that Mr. Johnson held violently partisan opinions upon the question of Irish Home Rule, but had he given publicity to such sentiments as the foregoing in Belleville two months ago, he might have escaped with his life, but he could never have hoped for pardon. Now, however, the expression passes unnoticed as the proper thing to say.

It does not usually come our way to commend the editorial deliverances of our local contemporary, The Intelligencer, but on Saturday, in commenting upon the passage of the Home Rule bill, it had this message of good-will for a new and harmonious Ireland:—

This situation leaves the Irish people of North and South, to work together harmoniously in everything that relates to war, and it is safe to say that from their common trials, burdens and sacrifices, in the Empire's cause, there will spring a feeling of mutual sympathy and co-operation that will go far towards securing a happy settlement of the Irish question. The war has brought to the Empire much that can only be regarded with sorrow, but its effect upon the Irish situation is the silver lining to the cloud.

Such sentiments, published with the approval of one who had himself been a past Grand Master of the Orange Order in British North America, are highly significant of a new era of good-will and mutual sympathy that seems destined to take the place of distrust and dissension among the warring factions within and outside of Ireland.

As Mr. Johnson says, it is a foul libel to assert that any portion of the Irish race would be wanting in loyalty and devotion to the Empire in the hour of need.

Here are two or three instances that have come to our notice since the beginning of the present war in which the Patlanders have demonstrated that they are of the same race as those who fought and bled and heroically died in the Peninsula, at Waterloo, in the Indian Mutiny, in Egypt and in South Africa.

Grant Marshall, a correspondent of the London Daily Mail reports the following evidence of the personal loyalty of the Irish soldier that is almost pathetic in the eagerness shown to serve the king. The interview took place during the recent battle of Marne:—

We presently descried a lonely figure hobbling along the long white road. When we came up it was a corporal in an Irish regiment. He had been wounded in the foot and was using his rifle as a crutch. "Where are you going?" I said. "Sure, I'm going to the front," he replied. "How do you expect to get there? It's fifty miles away?" He replied: "Arrah now, if I can get to the next village maybe I'll be finding a wagon to give me a lift. If not, I'll go on tramping." I gave him a little money and left him to hobble along in cheery content.

The following instance is given in the London Standard from an account of the four days' fighting at Mons by a wounded Highlander:—

In another case, where the German lancers swooped down and killed the last man of one battery, the situation was saved by a couple of companies of an Irish Fusilier Battalion—the Munsters, I think—who rushed at the Germans with fixed bayonets and put them to flight while the enemy's artillery poured a merciless fire on them. Many of the Germans around that battery were killed, and, of course, the losses on our men were not light. The Fusiliers were furious when orders came that they were to abandon the guns as no horses were available. You could see them casting loving eyes on those guns all the rest of the day, and at night when the time came to fall back the poor devils were dragging the guns with them, having captured a few German horses and supplemented them by men who were willing to become beasts of burden for the time.

Another significant item we copy from the Daily Mirror, also a London publication:—

"We want to go to the front—not to any depots."

This it is stated, was shouted by the Irish Guardsmen at Chelsea barracks on Tuesday night. Late in the evening the intimation was made that the Guards were being transferred to a destination unnamed.

A rumor spread, however, that that destination was not French territory, and when finally it was announced as another depot the news was received with groans and shouts of "We want to go to the front!"

For some time it was difficult to appease the disappointment of the men, and as a precautionary measure a force of mounted police was called to the scene.

In time, however, discipline was restored, the Guardsmen being adjured to have patience.

At the risk of making this article unduly prolix we cannot forbear quoting the following letter published in the London Evening News. It is written by Private Patrick McGlade to his mother in Monaghan, under date of August 27th,

Some of our finest lads are now sleeping their last sleep in Belgium; but, mother dear, you can take your son's word for it that for every son of Ireland who will never come back there are at least three Germans who will never be heard of again.

When we got here we sang "Paddy's Evermore," and then we were off to chapel to pray for the souls of the lads that are gone. You will probably hear all sorts of strange stories at home, but you may be sure that we are in good heart and only eager to get at the Germans again.

Some of them don't understand why Irishmen should fight so hard for England, but that just shows how little they know about us.

How little, indeed, the Germans knew the Irish when they made predictions that in case of a great foreign war Nationalist Ireland would be found on the side of the enemy.

The history of Ireland, going back to the time of Cromwell's butcheries and beyond, is a recital that is gruesome and unspeakably sad. Let us hope that from the disastrous chaos of this world-shaking war, a new Ireland may arise, strong in all the attributes of a free, a united and a contented people.

WILL MAKE GOOD.

The Ontario desires to congratulate Mr. George Allen Kingston, K.C., upon his appointment as one of the three members composing the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario. The duties of the board will be to administer the recently passed Compensation Act—one of the most important pieces of legislation ever passed by our provincial legislature.

Mr. Kingston should make an admirable choice for the position. He has had the advantage of an experience and training that is quite unusual with gentlemen of the legal profession.

He is the son of the late Charles Kingston and was born in Rawdon township in 1869. His English education was acquired in the public school at West Huntingdon, and in the high schools at Campbellford, and Belleville.

He entered the law firm of Clute and Williams, Belleville, as a student and graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1892, and was called to the bar in the same year. He later became connected with the firm of Mulock and Lount, Toronto. He retired from this partnership to enter the insurance business and became a specialist in liability law. He was first with the Employers Liability Company, and resigned his position there to become assistant general manager of the Union Trust Company. This connection he has retained up to the present. He has published a compendium of liability law.

All this varied experience will prove invaluable to Mr. Kingston in his new position. He is in addition gifted by nature with a fine presence, a good speaking voice, and a very pleasing and agreeable manner. We should say also that he has about the proper compounding of horse-sense, diplomacy, and legal acumen, and knowledge of the world to make an ideal administrator of this far-reaching piece of legislation.

A PATRIOTIC IDEA.

From the Oakville Record we clip the following interesting method of cultivating and demonstrating patriotism in a very practical way in the public schools. Mr. Denyes, the inspector mentioned is well known in Belleville, having left this city two years ago to assume the inspectorate of Halton County public schools.

An idea crossed the mind of Halton's public school inspector a few days ago, and he hastened to have it put before the public as quickly as possible. Of course the great war was the cause of it. The idea, if carried out, would be far-reaching in its effect. Mr. Denyes offers the suggestion that school children prepare and care for plot of ground, to be known as a war plot, let it be onions, potatoes, flowers, or anything the pupils care for, the proceeds of which would go into a common fund to help the Empire in some way or other. In Halton county there are approximately 1200 rural school pupils and a like number in the urban schools. If 600 rural children and the same number of urban scholars would undertake such a patriotic piece of work the result would be astonishing. An average of a dollar each would be a large item to be placed to the credit of Halton children's war plots.

The financial aid to be rendered is not the greatest benefit that would be derived. There would be the knowledge gained of how to care for and manage a small tract of land, and there would be the satisfaction to the child of knowing that he or she was doing something for the good and welfare of the Empire. The war may be over, so far as the actual fighting is concerned, but the result will be so far-reaching that a great amount of money will be required for various purposes. The press of the county might help along this laudable idea by giving it a little prominence. Parents too might endeavor to instill a little patriotism in their children by offering them the necessary war plot in some corner of their possessions.

Believing that the names of battleships should reflect the spirit of a navy, the Montreal Herald suggests that the flagship of the German fleet be christened "The Aspen Leaf."

If the Allies did so well without the aid of the Russians in rolling back the German invader, what wouldn't they have done reinforced by the Czar's fighters in the western theatre of war?

Lord Kitchener's testimonial to Gen. Sir John French 14 years ago. The words were written from South Africa after French with his cavalry wings had cleared the way for the British main body to Pretoria. The Kaiser, we fancy, has another story to tell.

The statement that even the war should be stopped soon, at least three years would be required to restore French and German industries to their normal condition is probably true—not because the mills could not be restored in less time, but because thousands in the battle lines are skilled in the trades and will never return to them.

In the opinion of the New York World it does not make much difference on which side the balance of crimes and outrages in Belgium falls, since the thing to remember is that such things were not happening there until the country was invaded in spite of a treaty guaranteeing that it should not suffer in that fashion.

Mr. Lloyd George has two sons with the colors. Richard Lloyd George, the eldest son of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, has enlisted in the Port Madoc battalion of the Carnarvonshire Territorials. The young man volunteered at once for active service. His younger brother, Gwelyn Lloyd George, has been appointed a lieutenant in the same battalion.

General De Wet, the famous Boer commander, gave the British no little trouble in South Africa. If he now goes to Britain's aid with a corps of picked scouts, British generosity to the conquered Boers will be repaid in kind. It is splendid.

"Yes, England would go to war for a scrap of paper, and it is for that we are proud of England. That bond will be redeemed as the German Chancellor knows now, though he did not then. The Kaiser stands before the bar of nations to-day charged with having broken his bond, and he must be made to redeem that bond. This is the foundation of civilization. The German ambassador said a week ago that the war is ended. Whether or not the German Emperor is now ready for peace, Britain is not ready for peace and will not be until the bond is redeemed and Belgium granted her independence. She can never be recompensed for the loss of her sons and her cities. This war has been carried on with cruelty that carries us back to barbarism. Fifty years of Kaiserism and military rule has made Germany callous to human suffering. The nations of the Continent make their soldiers by law. Britain does not. If Kitchener wants more soldiers he has but to call for them. He has but to call on Canada and our men will go."

—Sir Wilfred Laurier at Toronto.

Let somebody propose a schoolhouse for every street corner with geography a speciality in one, arithmetic in another, history in a third, reading in a fourth, and so through the curriculum. The vote would be unanimous to send the proposer to an insane asylum.

The difference between the creed of Episcopallians and Evangelicals, Methodists, Baptists, Lutherians and Presbyterians is far less radical than the difference between history and penmanship, or arithmetic and geography.

If children do not become confused, but may readily acquire knowledge of all these things under one roof, why does each slight shade of religious belief require a costly individual plant for its dissemination?

Having a church at almost every corner is one way to create church debts, to make little congregations, to pile up huge operating expenses and generally divert the fire of religious endeavor.

Mr. F. A. McKenzie, the well-known correspondent, tells a remarkable proposal which comes to him from some Belgian leaders, who say: "We realize that our nation is seriously hampered by lack of one national language. It is impossible to make either Flemish or Walloon universal because of the rivalry of races. We do not desire to encourage further use of French, wishing to maintain our distinct individuality and cultivate British rather than French characteristics. Therefore we propose that Belgium should adopt English as the national language, making herself the England of the Continent and a sister nation of England of the Isle."

If we are annoyed at our inability to gauge the war by casualty lists we may reflect that nothing is so hard for the military historian to establish as exact battle losses, except exact battle numbers. The military historian of today who deals with battles fought one hundred years ago and delves deep into archives often has to content himself with publishing what seems to him the most plausible approximation of casualties and numbers. Three military experts differ as to the numbers and losses in the Battle of Leipzig, and yet they are each and all of good standing in their line of research. But we need not go so far back into history to find an illustration of the difficulties that confront the military historian who aims at accuracy.

Three different statements of the Union losses in the Wilderness campaign were made by as many high authorities. The adjutant-general put the losses; killed, wounded and missing, at 32,259; General Meade at 54,551, and Colonel MacParlin, Medical Director of the Army of the Potomac, at 45,595. Who shall agree when three experts, so qualified as these three, disagree? The total number of the victims of our Civil War cannot be stated, and may never be known. Confederate returns for the whole Confederate Army are missing. There are departments may be drawn, but nothing more. Dyer's mental returns extant, and from these deductions Compendium gives the Union losses as killed and mortally wounded, 110,070; died of disease 199,720; died as prisoners of war, 24,866; died from accidents, etc., 9,058; died from other causes, 15,814; total 359,528.—Boston Transcript.

ANNIE LAURIE.

"Annie Laurie," while in no sense a martial ballad, has become generally known as the "Soldier's Song." This idea may have arisen from its mention in "The Song of the Camp," a poem that has attained great popularity, and that appeared in these columns some days ago.

The song of "Annie Laurie," as sung to-day, is based on a Scotch song, two centuries old, written originally in honor of Annie Laurie, daughter of Sir Robert Laurie, Bart., of Maxwellton House, Glencairn, Dumfriesshire. A neighbouring gentleman, Douglas, of Fingland, who was desperately in love with her, wrote the song in its original form, but it does not appear that his suit was ever looked upon with favor, and she married, while young, Alexander Ferguson, of Craigharrook, a member of an ancient Scottish family. The present proprietor of Craigharrook is Capt. Robert Ferguson, of the fourth generation in direct descent from Annie Laurie, Lady Jane Scott, aunt by marriage of the present Duke of Buccleugh, wrote the beautiful air to which the words are sung, about sixty years ago, and is also thought to have modernized the song, and added the last stanza.

Maxwellton's braes are bonnie,
Where early fa's the dew,
And 'twas there that Annie Laurie
Gave me her promise true,
Gave me her promise true,
Which ne'er forgot will be,
And for bonnie Annie Laurie,
I'd lay me down and dee.

Her brow is like the snawdrift,
Her throat is like the swan;
Her face it is the fairest
That e'er the sun shone on,
That e'er the sun shone on,
And dark blue is her e'e,
And for bonnie Annie Laurie,
I'd lay me down and dee.

Like dew on th' gowan lying
Is th' fa' o' her fairy feet,
And like winds in summer sighing,
Her voice is low and sweet,
Her voice is low and sweet,
And she's a' the world to me,
And for bonnie Annie Laurie,
I'd lay me down and dee.

Lesson I.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 4, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xiv, 1-11. Memory Verses, 8; 9—Golden Text, Mark xiv, 8—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson consists of two parts, the anointing at Bethany and the agreement of Judas Iscariot with the chief priests to betray Him. The anointing is recorded by Matthew, Mark and Luke. According to Matt. xvi, 1, 2, it was after Jesus had finished the sayings of chapters xxiv and xxv and two days before the passover that He spoke of His approaching betrayal and crucifixion, and we would conclude from Matthew and Mark that the anointing and anointing took place at that time.

From the account in John xii it would seem that it was six days before the passover and preceding the so called triumphal entry that they had the supper and anointing. It seems impossible to arrange clearly sometimes the sequence of all the events in our Lord's life, but the gospels were written that we might know Himself rather than the order of events in His life.

It is to some confusing that, while Luke does not record this anointing, he does mention an anointing in chapter vii, 36-50, which was also in the house of a man called Simon. But that was an altogether different event, much earlier in His ministry and by a woman whose name is not given, whose sins He forgave. The event of our lesson was in the home of Martha and Mary in Bethany, whose brother, Lazarus, had been raised from the dead (John xi, 1-2). Matthew and Mark say that it was in the house of Simon the leper, but what relation he was to Martha and Mary we are not told and therefore do not need to know. If we think of it, and it seems wise to do so, we can ask them when we see them. John says that Lazarus sat at the table with Him. What a suggestive saying! The man who had been four days in the spirit world back on earth alive and well—a man whom the chief priests conspired to put to death because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away and believed in Jesus (John xii, 9-11).

At this supper Martha served, but there is no record of her being numbered as in Luke x, 40, so we may hope that she had grown spiritually since that incident.

In view of such words as Phil. iv, 6, 7; I Pet. v, 7, we should never be numbered as anxious. The words "They made Him a supper" make us think of His post ascension words in Rev. iii, 20, and of the blessed assurance that if any one will open the door He will come in and sup with them.

As He sat at meat Mary came with an alabaster box containing a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and she broke the box and poured it on His head and anointed His feet and wiped His feet with her hair (verse 8; Matt. xvi, 7; John xii, 8). Not only was the house filled with the odor of the ointment, but also the whole world, for He said in verse 9 that wherever in all the world the gospel should be preached, this that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her.

This was real worship on the part of Mary, heart adoration, and it was very costly on her part and very precious to His heart. We are reminded of a saying of David in II Sam. xiv, 24, "Neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." Some one has said that in Martha, Mary and Lazarus we have a sample of a well rounded Christian life—in Martha restful service, in Mary real worship and in Lazarus the power of a risen life.

There will always be some indignant ones when more than ordinary (which is ordinarily very little) is given to Him. He will be called a waste and by other names while all spent upon ourselves will seem all right. Judas Iscariot is called a thief in John xii, 6, but what about the thieves of Mal. iii, 8? If His love to us does not constrain us to spend more for Him than on ourselves then it is evident that we love ourselves most.

How comforting His word "Let her alone," she hath wrought a good work on me" (verse 9). Would that some other faultfinding meddlers might hear His "Let alone!" If we are sure that we are doing all "Unto Him" we may be confident of His approval whatever others may say. His other word, "She hath done what she could" (verse 8), we may not be so sure of, for of how few can it be said that they have done all that we could. He is the Judge and will surely give all possible credit that He can.

He said that she anointed His body beforehand for burying, and I believe that was her purpose, that she so intended it, for it was her custom, when she could sit at His feet and hear His word. She was not found with the other women who bought spices to anoint His dead body and never used them for that purpose. She seemed to understand about His cruel death at the hand of His enemies and that she could not minister to Him then, so having made her preparation, she watched for her opportunity, and He arranged it for her, for he read her heart. How awful the contrast between the heart of Judas Iscariot and this devoted heart that loved Him so!

HOME AND COUNTRY.

Patriotic Address by Rev. H. S. Osborne at Bridge Street Church.

In Bridge Street Methodist church yesterday the services were of a patriotic nature. In the morning the Rev. H. S. Osborne delivered an interesting and inspiring address on the origin of the flags and emblems of the various nations. The afternoon service was devoted to a successful rally of the school, while in the evening highly inspiring music was rendered by the choir under the leadership of Mr. D. A. Cameron and Mr. Osborne spoke on patriotism, paying glowing tribute to that sentiment which urged thousands of young Canadians to offer themselves in their country's cause.

Psalm 137, "By the rivers of Babylon" was the lesson. This is perhaps said the pastor the greatest record of a patriotic cry in the whole realm of literature.

The preacher based his sermon on the text "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, this is the expression of a heart longing for the land from which he had been estranged by a mightier power than his country could control. But although Babylon offered greater advantages than Jerusalem, yet the patriot's heart could not be satisfied at the pomp and splendor beside which Jerusalem was insignificant. In his breast there burned a fire for the land he called home and the place where stood the Temple on Zion's Hill, which had fostered his heart.

High patriotism was of the noblest because it was linked in the highest with loyalty to God. In those days patriotism and religion were one and the same, and the man disloyal to Israel was disloyal to God. Proud is the people that can climb to that belief that around it stands the will of Jehovah.

Home and its associations are among the greatest pleasures of life. Nothing can be a substitute for its communion. A lengthy absence only is needed to recall the fireside. Men may grow weary of its quietude, but after wanderings however extensive, back goes the heart to the place where another lived and he was born. So said the poet "I remember, I remember the place where I was born."

No normal man gets away from the binding strings that are born within him for home and anything that estranges him from the home and the home folk, causes pain. The loveliest pictures on the walls of the mind have been painted by home hands. The more we love and the more we are inspired the more impressive are the memories. The last thing that breaks and lets a man go, is the tie that binds him to home and mother. In a sense the home sentiment widens until it sweeps the whole extent of the land. Nations have their home altars, their peculiar glories, which become woven into the very warp and woof of life itself, so that wherever one goes, the heart hungers and yearns for the institutions of its native land in the midst of which he was born and trained and his life was given its start. So is the expression of one of the greatest patriots, R. L. Stevenson, in his song "Blow the wind to-day." No human voice will soon utter words of home and all it stands for to surpass the words of that lyric. This is love of home, this is love of country.

And for this love of country in every land, men and women have been willing to do everything in their power that it might prevail.

The preacher read a letter of Lincoln's to a Northern mother who had five sons, everyone of whom had died gloriously on the field of battle in the Civil War. The president declared that he could not refrain from tendering her the thanks of the republic for they died to save in her sons the altar of freedom.

Here ought to be a solemn pride in having made so costly a gift.

"I do not wonder that a few mothers and wives have stood for centuries in the line of battle. Some wrought upon by the anguish of separation did object, but what hundreds like the mother of the Civil War threw defiance at their own hearts.

"And I must not be unwilling. When my country calls for you, in this noble country, surrounded by privileges and prosperity and peace, husbands and fathers and sons are going to do their duty by their country."

After Gettysburg a dead soldier was found leaning against a tree, his glass eyes riveted on a photograph of his two children. Comrades dug his grave and inscribed on the tree above "Somebody's father, July 3rd 1863."

"Countless, countless, countless, the shadows that shall fall and the graves that must be dug in that far away continent of Europe, but so far as Britain and our Canadian boys are concerned, dug for the sake of freedom and the world.

"Again mothers upon mothers, and names upon names, may find a solemn pride that they laid one, two, or may be more upon the altars. Let us remember our duty that when the battle is over, whatever the cost, we may be worthy of the freedom which they have preserved.

"May God bless our own Canadian boys, and sons of this old city of Belleville and keep them and bring them back to the home fireside."

Mr. Dan A. Cameron sang "The Death of Nelson" in excellent form, Miss L. LaVole being the accompanist. Miss Anna Ponton sang "Hymn Before Action," opening with the line "The earth is full of anger."

The choir sang "Tily Word, O Lord, Endureth For Ever"; Mr. Staples rendered the vocal solo, "My Strength is in the Everlasting Arms"; the anthem "The Day is Past and Ended" was sung. During the offertory Miss LaVole played "O Canada." The hymns were appropriate "O God our Help in Ages Past," "Eternal Father, strong to save" (for the Canadian troops on the ocean) and the National Anthem.

Recognized as the leading specific for the destruction of worms, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator has proved a boon to suffering children everywhere. It seldom fails.

MISERY IN GERMANY.

Extracts from German newspapers just to hand tells stories of a distress which it is vain to try to conceal. August 16 the Vorwarts wrote that already half a million people were threatened with starvation. "In front of every newspaper advertising office row after row of men stand waiting, old and young, children and women, in the hope of finding work from the advertisements. Thousands of servant girls have lost their jobs and are homeless. Lodging-house keepers have empty rooms wherever one looks one sees want of employment and misery."

At a meeting of 600 women Socialists the Government was urged in a plea to come to the rescue of the unpayable distress prevailing among the working classes. "If something radical was not done, terrible conditions would prevail."

These reports show that within a month after the declaration of war, the industrial life of Germany has been paralyzed and that conditions of want and misery are general. The military powers never thought of Germany at home when they went to war. There can be no doubt that the non-combatants in Germany are suffering as much as the soldiers and more. The economic question will play its part soon, we may be sure, though not yet. When the depths of misery reach the point of desperation, we may yet see scenes in Germany which will astonish humanity, scenes in which the women will play a role unprecedented in history—when winter comes.

A Gentle German Governess.

An Englishman residing in Ottawa has received a letter dated Sept. 14, from relatives in England. In the course of it the following passage occurs—

"The M—'s of G— had a German governess for the children. The police called at G— castle a few days ago and asked to have her sent out for a walk, as they wished to search her room. This they did, and found a number of bombs, maps, etc., concealed in her trunks and about the room, and they say other German governesses round here had been found doing the same thing."

FINE EXHIBITION AT STIRLING VILLAGE ON FRIDAY LAST

Annual Fair Attended by a Large Crowd—Creditable Showing in all Departments—Splendid Exhibit of Thoroughbred Cattle—Attendance Over Two Thousand.

Stirling fair has successfully passed another milestone in its history. On Thursday and Friday this ancient society held its annual exhibition and admirably maintained its past reputation for holding one of the most meritorious fairs in the district.

On Thursday the weather was showery and unfavorable, but on Friday Prof. Hicks was in a better mood and sent a day with a suggestion of autumn chill, but bright and smiling overhead.

The attendance was very gratifying. It was feared that the financial depression and the stress of war would play havoc with gate receipts, but evidently the people of the Stirling district have determined to play the part of sensible patriots and maintain "business as usual."

GREAT SHOW OF THOROUGH-BRED CATTLE.

By far the finest and most extensive exhibit in thoroughbred cattle that we have anywhere seen this year was at Stirling. This was particularly true of the Holstein class, which was represented on the grounds by five splendid herds shown by well known breeders of the district. The Jerseys, the Ayrshires, the Short-horns and the Polled-Angus were all represented by high-class animals. Mr. Ben Hagerman of Minto was the largest individual exhibitor, with 19 registered holsteins in his herd. Mr. G. A. Kingston of West Hunt-ington showed five head from his record-breaking herd. Mr. T. W. Solmes of Minto had seven head and carried away his share of honors. Other exhibitors of high class Holsteins were Michael Shea and Thos. Montgomery, both from the vicinity of Stirling.

W. C. Ketcheson and Sons of Tharlow had their famous "Cloverdale" herd of Ayrshires on the grounds and were the only exhibitors in this class. They have been winning prizes wherever shown and their success at Stirling was not alone due to lack of opposition.

Mr. James Farney of Chatterton was much complimented upon the excellence of his herd of Short-horn calves.

E. W. Brooks and Son of Stirling had a remarkably fine herd of Polled-Angus on the grounds and also showed the only herd of registered Jerseys. Of the former they showed eleven head and in the latter class ten. The Messrs. Brooks also exhibited two hurdle horses.

AGRICULTURAL TYPE PREDOMINATED.

The exhibition of horses was not so extensive this year in the thoroughbred classes, but there was a great showing of the agricultural type. There were also several nifty sets of matched drivers. Among the exhibitors of horses we noticed, B. Foster, Orono, H. L. Ketcheson, of Belleville; T. Eastwood, Rawdon; L. Lock, Campbellford; G. D. Watson, Seymour; A. J. Watson, Campbellford; John Bush, Belleville; Alf. Grills, Campbellford; Harper Rollins, Sane; Michael Shea, Stirling; D. W. Farney, West Huntingdon; W. H. Hubbell, Marmora; Geo. Barron, of Campbellford; W. A. Martin, of Sons, Zion; C. U. Heath, Harold; Neal Sane, Harold; Sid Mason, Springbrook; Clayton Tucker, Frankford; Leonard Sherpe, Stirling, and a number of others.

SHEEP AND SWINE.

These two departments were not filled to overflowing, but the different pens contained some very meritorious individuals. Among those showing sheep and swine were C. H. Curtis, Warkworth; Elisha Maynes, Thomauburg; Thos. Montgomery, reeve of Rawdon; C. U. Heath, Harold, and W. A. Martin & Sons, Gilead.

POULTRY.

There was an splendid exhibit of poultry, and the judges often had a difficult matter to choose who should be awarded the honors. The three largest exhibitors were C. H. Curtis, Warkworth; W. A. Martin & Sons, Gilead; Neal Bissonnette, of Stirling.

A GREAT SHOW OF CHEESE.

Stirling Agricultural Society never before had such an extensive and uniformly excellent showing of cheese as was shown at this exhibition. The scores were all remarkably high. It is a fine tribute to Mr. Walter Barker, maker at the Shamrock factory, Stirling, that with all this keen competition he won first honors in all three classes for white cheese. The score was 98 points out of the possible 100. Mr. Wm. Linn of Marmora factory captured the red ticket in the colored cheese class, his score being 97.

VEGETABLES WERE LARGE.

There were many features worthy of note about the fine exhibits in grain roots, and farm produce. In field grains the display was very extensive and the high quality was a compliment to the skill of the farmers of the district.

If the size of the ensilage corn exhibition is any indication of the assurance of the crop throughout the district, there will certainly be no scarcity of this great stand-by of the modern stockman.

The potatoes were the biggest both in size and extent of exhibits that we have seen this year. It now appears as if one article of food at least will be sufficiently plentiful this year to be sold at something less than famine prices.

Mangels and other field roots, were large and well developed, promising also good returns to the growers, but these have ceased to become important crops hereabouts owing to the scarcity of labor.

WOMEN'S DEPARTMENT.

The lady patrons of Stirling fair certainly deserve great praise for the truly fine display of home-made bread, cakes, pies, canned fruits, jellies and pickles that filled a large section of the "Palace." The poor scribe was not permitted to do more than cast longing eyes in the direction of these tempting luxuries and delicacies, but the sight was such as to inspire a deep respect for those who have given their practical demonstration of their skill and ability to excel in these useful, productive home making arts.

There was also an abundance of home-made quilts, coverlets, tie-downs, sofa pillows, and an amazing array of fancy work for which the bewildered reporter would be puzzled to find a name.

FIELD CROP COMPETITIONS.

During the past season the Stirling Agricultural Society has conducted competitions in growing field crops in potatoes, silo corn and oats. For the two latter we have the awards which were as follows—

NOTES

Country Treasurer B. Mallory was judge on cattle.

The display of potted plants by the Stirling Horticultural Society was most creditable. Many rare varieties were shown.

An official called attention to the practice of many exhibitors in removing exhibits about as soon as the prizes are awarded, many too are late in arriving. These practices are quite general at fairs and have an injurious tendency.

A most attractive mercantile display of furs, women's coats, etc., was made by Mr. B. A. Elliott, the new manager and proprietor of Stirling Hall. Mr. Elliott deserves to be commended not only for the enterprise he has shown, but for his skill in making a most effective arrangement of the goods on exhibition.

McGie and Lagrow, hardware merchants, had a showing of stoves and ranges that was the center of interest for many interested spectators. The new "Supreme" range by the Supreme Heating Company of Welland is a marvel of heating efficiency and low fuel consumption. The issues are reported to be numerous.

Mr. Ben Hagerman is very proud of the two-year-old heifer from his herd of Holsteins that won the red card-board in her class. She is a merit for two-year-olds the past summer for three days in succession she averaged 88% of milk. She is a full sister to the Champion Cow of Canada, and may herself become a champion.

Mr. Frank Fralek, formerly of Sidney Town, Hall, but now of the United States, and Mr. John Ketcheson, of Leavenworth, Kansas, were interested spectators at the fair on Friday afternoon.

The school exhibits were not so extensive as at the fair last year. Although there were several entries, only one school actually produced the goods. This was No. 19 Sidney, or Rivey Valley School. They had a fine display of cut flowers, cakes, bread, weed collections, seed and leaf collections, insect collections, pickles and

There were no "trials of speed" as the horse-races at fairs are euphemistically termed. While very few will have any pang of regret owing to the departure of fourth-rate races, yet the necessity was felt for some form of amusement. Either amusement features or horse races seem to be necessary to attract large crowds.

They act directly on the liver and by setting up healthy processes have a beneficial effect upon the blood, so that impurities are eliminated.
