Round this busy blue water visit rocks blushed in sunshine, and covered with every imaginable device of fortification. To the right, St. Elmo, with flag and light-house; and opposite, the military hospital, looking like a nalace and all round, the houses of the city, for its size the handsomest and most stately in the world. Nor does it disappoint you on a closer inspection, as many a foreign town does. The streets are thronged with a lively comfortable-looking population; the poor neem to inhabit handsome atone palaces, with balconies and projecting windows of heavy carved stone. The lights and shadows, the cries and stenches, the fruit-shops and dah-stalls, the dresses and chatter of all nations—the soldiers in scarlet, and women in black mantillas—the beggars, boatmen, barrels of pickled herrings and maccaroni—the shovel-hatted priests and bearded capuchins—the tobacco, grapes, sonions, and su shine—the sign-boards, buttle-porter stores—the statues of saints and little chapels, which justle the stranger's eyes as he goes up the famous stairs from the water-gate, make a scene of such pleusant confusion and liveliness as I have never witnessed before. And the effect of the groups of multivalinous actors in this busy, cheerful draims, is heightened, as it were, by the decorations of the stage. The sky is delightfully brilliant; all the houses and ornaments are stately; castles and palaces are rising all around; and the flag, towers, and walls of St. Elmo look as fresh and magnificent as if they had been erected only yesterday.—Titmarsh's Journey from Corabill to Cairo.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER S. 1850.

SEE PIRST PAGE

In a late number of the Courier, we acknow ledged the receipt of a small pamphlet, being a to the Stockholders of the Commercial Bank, M.D. We also stated that we should again notice it.

We now do so, the rather, that our contem orary the Gazette treats his readers to a couple of columns on the subject, and takes, what we think, a most strange and unjust view of the whole affair. To enable our readers to judge for themselves, we will give a short account of the dispute.

Mr. Morris tells us, that during the last Ses Asis, attest that the servent played also a part more or less important in their religious mysteries; but time and the relutions which exist between these mations and Europeans have partly abolished these usages; and at this day it is only among ne gro tribes, and on the west coast of Africa, that the serpent figures among divinities of the first rank.—

Physiognomy of Serpents. tors, stating, in effect, that unless Mr. Morris could give a satisfactory explanation of his return of Mr. Harper's letter in a blank envelope, they bould expect his resignation. Mr. Morris imports the resignation. Mr. Morris imports the resignation. but the latter declined to face Mr. Morris, and the control of the market part is in the large place of the large place p Mr. Morris obtained £25,000 at a per cent, less than was paid by Mr. Ridest; if there is any thing wrong ir this, the blame, we should think, is to be attributed to the Government, who did not get as much for their exchange as they might have done. Mr. Morris was surely right in making the best burgain he could. Does not every man do it, if he can, every day of his life, without incurring the charge of being a rogue 1—for the Gaselle's accusation simply amounts to this. As to the Directors and Mr. Harper, their conduct, seems to us of the most incomprehensible character; and se we do not understand it, we shall say nothing about it. Neither can we comprehend why the Gaselle should have dragged the name of the Hon. W. Morris into the controversy, unless it was to make what is called a clashing inless it was to make what is called a slashing

We should not have noticed the affair, had no Mr. Morris, as it were, appealed to the public is

MAIL STEAMER.—The Royal Mail Steamshi en twelve days out. We may expect her new THEATEE-ROYAL .- We again paid a visit to this Establishment on Tuesday evening, and must allow that the Company fairly retrieved themselves from our former aspersions. Mr. Lyne, in the part of Mortimer, in the Play of "The Iron Chest," succeeded admirably; it is, in our opinion, without doubt his best charactes. At times he surpassed any whom we have seen in the part. There was none of the ranting of your would-b stars, but a soul-breathing pathos that well suited the moral and the tale. We advise Mr. Prestor to bring forward this beautiful Play again; and if he does, we advise all of our readers to attend,they will enjoy a treat. The characters of Adam Winterton and Milford were well, sustained. Miss Mowbray, in the dance that followed, evidently took the audience by surprise; it ought to be repeated. The after-piece of " The Daughter of the Regiment" was fairly played; but with the exception of Miss Mowbray, in the principal character, the performers were ridiculously and

HEAD QUARTERS.—We have, by request, visual dren at and inspected the above Establishment, in Bouccours Street, kept as a Restaurant and Lunching fellow for Bo to take their chance, claiming their right to shortcuts.

The dogs were somewhat late in coming to cover, but it was as well, since by that time the weather had become fine. Reynard, who was brought to the ground by his friends, was barely, as we thought, allowed a sufficient start, and at a little before 12, noon, the hounds were in full cry about half a mile south of Monklands.
The rais was short, (saly about two minutes,) but quite apirited, and the poor fox pulled up in a little quarry by the road side, apparently either to ace who was calling after him, or else, very coloniderately, to give carriages and all an oppartunity of being in at the death. There were, we believe, two spills. The trophy was soon secured, and then, as their game bag was (not filled, but) emptied, they started for the Mile End, to beat for straggless, whither we did not follow.—

Ontacle, Simese and Huron Railroad.

The subject of this road has been so frequently and so forcibly placed before the public, that the wonder is, it should, under any circumstances, "heat fire." Its value to this city is leconwhere fire." Its value to this city is inconceivable; its importance is under-rated; its results are unknown, and can only be estimated by those who take the trouble calmly to calculate the advantages of a railroad, by the comparison of our present position with that in which we shall stand when a railway communication will be opened between the two great waters of the Lakes, Huron and On'ario. In this estimate we shall find, that honeser sanguine we may feel, and however correctly we may think on the subject, we are nearly a centurry behind our younger neighbours in the States, in the proper and only correct estimation of the wast and untold prospects which can be utilized by "integrity, industry, and enterprise." We copy the following article from the Boston Transcript of Friday, the 28th utt., for the consideration of our fellow citizens: fellow citizens:—
ONTARIO AND HURON RAILROAD.—Mr. Capreol, the en-

ONTARIO AND HUMON RAILROAR.—Mr. Capreol, the enterprising manager of fills important undertaking, was at the Revers. House a day or two-since. During the few hours of his stay in the city, he held intercourse with some of our heading expitalists, engaged in railroad enterprises, to whom this project is now invested with peculiar interest, on account of the approaching completion of the Ogdénsburg and Vermont Central Rosda. The Outsirio and Huron Railroad, so our readers may be aware, is to unite these two lakes by a line of eighty mike of railroad from Toronto on Lake Outsirio to a point on Georgia Bay of Lake Hurou, thus superseding a circuit-ous-rouse or nearly aware attentions rouse or nearly aware in the lower part of the latter inke. This undertaking will not only be of immense importance to our fast settling will not only be of immense importance to our fast settling territories of Wiscousin and Minesota, but will be us in subspensable link to the great chain of steam communication westward, which will not stop short of the Pecific.

Si-ee writing the above, a deputatio- from the tion westward, which will not stop short of the Pacific.

Si-ee writing the above, a deputation from the County of Simcoe has arrived, with the view of concluding, if possible, the question of Railroad or no Railroad. The people of Simcoe have, from the first moment of the projection of this road, manifested a degree of public spirit which is an eximple to the people of Toronto; and as they have a large interest to promote, and, what is more, a great object to accomplish, by which the County must desive great advantages, their energies and the determination are highly ereditable to that County, and speak more loudly in favour of the measure than all the debates on the pro and con of a road, whether East, West, North or South.—Colomist.

Squealing at the Custom House—A new circular from the Secretary of the Tressary, dated October 21, and just received in this city, has caused no little squealing, as it is termed, among the importing merchants. It will be recoilected that by an Act of 1849, which repealed the payment of debenture on goods taken out of the custody of the collector, merchands sent to Canada and Chihuahua was made an exception. But the proviso making this exception was repealed by an Act of the 26th of September last, and goods now sent to Canada and Chihuahua are put upon the same footing with other goods experted to foreign countries. They are no longer entitled to drawback. But as a large amount of merchandize has been imported with an express view to expertation, the merchants argue that the repeal should not be construed so as to operate engoods brought in under the old law. Mr. Corwin, on the other hand, decides that the few went into effect the very day of its passage. In all cases of drawback, the duties must first have been prifel, and the exportation made directly out of the warrhouse. N. Y. Post. SQUEALING AT THE CUSTOM HOUSE -- A new.

A JENNY LINE INCIDENT:-During Jenny Lind's first visit in New York, a Swede called and Lind's first visit in New York, a Swede called and sent.up a note in his mative language, requesting to see her. She did not remember the name as she read it, but when the young man came in she at once remembered his countenance—an old play-fellow when they were children together at school. She inquired his circumstances. He is a cabinet maker, residing with his wife and children at Brooklyn. The next day Jenny Lind droye over and made the wife of her old school-fellow a long visit. Just before leaving the city for Boston, she wept again. The husband was not at home. She gave to the wife a note for him—he opened it on his return—it contained a sweetly would request that he would allow her to give to his children a memento of their fathet's achool friendship with Jenny Lind.
