L. BLACK & CO'S
Spheroidal Spectacles
AND
EYE GLASSES

ARE the best for the preservation of the sight, and took the medal at the Centennial Exhibition.

The lenses are made of the best material,
uniform in density, and of high refractive
power, their perfect polish and spheroidal shape adapt them to ease and improve the sight of the wearer.
The eye being the most delicate organ great care should be exercised in selecting spectacles; it is not enough that the glass be of the right focus, but the lenses must be perfectly centered and in many cases perfect relief is only given by having each eye fitted separately. To effect this the lenses are made interchangeable, and having an Optometer
to measure the sight, a perfect fit is guaranteed.
Call and examine before purchasing any other kind.

IVANHOE.

(BY SIR WALTER SCOTT, BART.)

CHAPTER XXVII.

They remonstrated also on the risk of damage to their horses by these forced marches. Finally there arose betwixt Isaac and his satellites a feud concerning the quantity of wine to be consumed at each meal.
And thus it happened that when the alarm of danger approached, he was deserted by the discontented mercenaries on whose protection he had relied.

In this deplorable condition, the Jew, with his daughter and her wounded patient, were found by Cedric, and soon afterwards fell into the power of De Bracy and his confederates. Little notice was at first taken of the horse-titter, and it might have remained behind but for the curiosity of De Bracy, who looked into it under the impression that it might contain the object of his enterprise, for Rowena had not unveiled herself. But De Bracy's astonishment was considerable to discover that the litter contained a wounded man, who, conceiving himself to have fallen into the power of Saxon outlaws, with whom his name might be a protection to himself and his friends, told them frankly that he was Wilfred of Ivanhoe.

The ideas of chivalrous honor,
which never utterly abandoned De Bracy, prohibited him from doing the knight any injury in his defenceless condition, and equally interdicted his betraying him to Front-de-Bœuf, who would have had no scruples to put to death,
under any circumstances, the rival claimant of the fief of Ivanhoe. On the other hand, to liberate a squire preferred by the Lady Rowena, as the events of the tournament, and indeed Wilfred's previous banishment from his father's house, had made matter of notoriety, was a pitch far above the flight of De Bracy's generosity. A middle course, betwixt good and evil, was all which he found himself capable of adopting, and he commanded two of his own squires to keep close by the litter, and to allow no one to approach it. If questioned, they were directed by their master to say, that the empty litter of the Lady Rowena was employed to transport one of their comrades who had been wounded in the scuffle. On arriving at Torquilstone, while the Knight Templar and the lord of the castle were each intent upon their own schemes, the one on the Jew's treasure, and the other on his daughter, De Bracy's squires conveyed Ivanhoe, still under the name of a wounded comrade, to a distant apartment. This explanation was returned by these men to Front-de-Bœuf, when he questioned them why they did not make for the battlements upon the alarm.

"A wounded companion!" he replied in great wrath and astonishment. "No wonder that churls and yeomen wax so presumptuous as even to lay leuguer before castles, and that clowns and swine herds
send defiance to nobles, since men at arms have turned sick men's nurses, and Free Companions are grown keepers of dying folks curtains, when the castle is about to be assailed. To the battlements, ye loitering villains!" he exclaimed, raising his stentorian voice till the arcades around rung again, "to the battlements, or I will splinter your bones with this truncheon!"

The men sulkily replied, "that they desired nothing better than to go to the battlements, providing Front-de-Bœuf would bear them out with their master, who had commanded them to tend the dying man."

"The dying man, knaves!" rejoined the Baron; "I promise thee we shall be all dying men as we stand not to it more stoutly. But I will relieve the guard upon this caitiff companion of yours. Here, Urried—hag—fiend of a Saxon wretch—hearst me not? tend me this bed-ridden fellow, since he must needs be tended, whilst these knaves use their weapon. Here be two arblasts, comrades, to the barbican with you, and see you drive each bolt through a Saxon brain."

The men, who, like most of their description, were fond of enterprise, and detested inaction, went joyfully to the scene of danger as they were commanded, and thus the charge of Ivanhoe was transferred to Urried, or Ulrica. But she, whose brain was burning with remembrance of injuries, and with hopes of vengeance, was readily induced to devolve upon Rebecca
the care of her patient.

FREDERICTON JULY 17, 1880.

THE INSTITUTE.

The Institute has blown over for this year. Next year it will meet again. The Institute the first year was a kind of dead and dumb institution, this year it showed "signs of its oats." The first year it was thought reasonable to do other than echo what was said from the platform.

The first victim to liberty of speech was the writer. He attended the first session, and so far forgot himself as to get up and speak. His ideas did not suit Dr. Rand, who sent over one of his body guard, Mr. Creed, to whisper him, "Dr. Rand would be delighted to hear you speak, but you are not properly a member of the order."

And thus in the midst of a noble sentiment, the voice of liberty was ignominiously hushed. The packed hall gaped, wondering much at the silence. The next minute Dr. Rand invited a stranger from Charlotte to "address the meeting" as there he felt would be no objection. This is what the writer calls Randism.

The next year there was no one to raise his voice. The Platform recited the doctrines and expounded the same. The Dummies showed no signs of improvement. Last year the fetters began to fall away, and some were so bold as to hint, in an unguarded moment, at what they thought. The third Parliament broke up and each one went away grumbling. Each one resolved to "give Dr. Rand a bit of his mind next time."

Next time came: it was last week. For the first time it dawned upon Dr. Rand that in creating the Institute, he was moulding the petard that would hoist himself. He found, and those who derive their inspiration from him, also found, that a new temper pervaded the Institute: that those who came there no longer felt they came to do just as Dr. Rand said or his Conveniences suggested, but to speak their experience and their judgment on the great work in which they had engaged. Four years ago God help the teacher who would dare stand up and say anything framed by Mr. Crocket and inspired by Dr. Rand should be set aside. This year they did, and the great Ruler finding himself nonplussed by the parliament he had created turned round, and like Richard headed the insurgents. The reports show this. We shall descend to particulars in next.

A VIKING'S SHIP.

There are few of us who have not read more or less of the dread and daring Viking. Their keels clave the waters long before iron ships were put afloat and they carried death and destruction to southern coasts long before England's navy ruled the seas. They were in the height of their barbaric glory centuries before Columbus sailed out upon the vast ocean of unknown waters, and their brilliant as well as their bloody doings are lost in the twilight and darkness of history. But the Viking is not a myth. At times he acted as peasant, and at times of novelty at times as pirate. He hauled up his long sharp boat, that clave the sea without foam or sound, in the vicks or inlets of the coast, while he tilled the land; but when a thirst for booty or adventure came upon him he sallied forth down to sunnier shores. One of these viking boats has recently been discovered in Sandeherrred, Norway, and it is of

it would speak.

The vessel was found, buried under a hillock, and no one doubts it belonged to those terrible high-waymen of the ocean, the Vikings. It measures 75 feet in length and is in a state of perfect preservation. It is armed and equipped as though it had been abandoned where found when on the point of sailing on some adventurous expedition. All the apparatus used by nautical Norsemen are met with in this ancient craft, the mast of which is still pretty well intact. There are fragments of sails and cordage remaining, as well as many specimens either perfect or incomplete, of utensils and instruments, which have been eagerly examined by antiquaries. Among other things are a number of pieces of oakwood, peculiarly shaped, wrought with a certain elegance, and hollowed out in the centre to admit of ropes being passed through them. Spades and shields, or bucklers, have also been found, or rather the iron portion of the bucklers, for the wooden part is entirely gone. A number of shields are fancifully arranged on the interior of the ship and are the same as one sees represented on the beautiful tapestry of Bayeux, in Normandy, which dates back to the eleventh century, and which claims to be the most ancient specimen of the sort extant. It is not yet completely dug out of its present prison near the seashore. When this has been accomplished the ship—which is thought to be still seaworthy—will be launched and brought to Christians to be deposited in the University Museum.

As our readers are aware before the preponderance of Carleton Branch stock passed into the hands of the enemies of the Grand Southern the Directors of the Branch gave a lease of "way" to the Grand Southern for 999 years. The lease was legally drawn up, and believed by every one of good sense to be a valid document.

But Mr. Kay, who is manager for the St. John & Maine Company, held the lease worthless, and refused to concede the terms to the Grand Southern granted by it. The latter Company therefore asked for an injunction, which was granted, the Court declaring the lease valid.

Justice Palmer gave judgment in a lengthy document, which is worthy of perusal. Not only is the validity of the lease declared, but the action of the Government in extending the terms of the charter to the Company under the Act is virtually endorsed on legal and constitutional grounds. The best thing for the St. John & Maine now is to close up, and pack Mr. Murray Kay off home, or to some quarter where he can do them less mischief than he has done them here.

ELOPEMENT.

A boy of 19 and a girl of 16 eloped from Ottawa a few days ago. They are now enjoying the honeymoon across the line. Let the proprietors of boys and girls about here look sharp.

With reference to the above couple, Annie Moreau was the name of the courageous maiden, and Frederick Lapointe that of the enterprising youth. They had been "courting" for the last ten years, but their parents objected to the match. Fleeing off to Gretina Green, happy as they looked into the great wide future full of sunshine and flowers, an uncle burst into the car and scowled upon the fledglings. Annie summoned all her courage—but a few tear drops fell—and she clung to her boy-lover, assuring her uncle she would not go back unless by force. The uncle began to consider over the matter and said, Well, if the young fools are bent on it, let them marry. Annie wept tears of joy, and was next day married, and going on the honeymoon without fear of interception.

SUPPERS, ETC.

If a man has lived say 40 years without ever having given a "supper," or a "dinner" to his friends, and suddenly strikes out and sends abroad invitations you may be sure there is something up. He feels the ground either beginning to quake under his feet or he reads his doom in the dark clouds he sees gathering. He simply tries to buy friends by a "mess of pottage." Dr. Rand last night gave a "supper" at the Barker. About him sat his bosom friends—his faithful Principal and his obedient Inspectors. Dr. Rand's motives were all the supper was the spontaneous product of his generosity. He does not feel the ground trembling under his feet; and sees no signs in the sky which presage him danger. His friends stick thick and fast about him, loving him for his liberality, and admiring his distaste for autocracy. He is popular before the country, and the darling of the teaching profession!

Tom Taylor, Punch's great wit, is dead.

GERMANY continues to fortify herself on her eastern frontier.

Not content with strategic railways and entrenched camps, she is building forts around the largest fortresses. For instance, in the present year around Konigsberg, in Prussia Proper, ten forts will be completed; and an eleventh at Neundorf will be begun. Three are already in working order, and thus the whole system of defence against an attack from Russia will be strengthened.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda will accomplish this result. This preparation is the result of two most valuable specifics, in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, and we make the unqualified statement that Scott's Emulsion is being used with better results and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of Children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

See What Physicians and the People Say About It.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE, 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September 2, 1876.

GENTLEMEN—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach, which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAMPSON, M. D., Baltimore. December 10th, 1878.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites

THIRTY YEARS' EXPERIENCE OF AN OLD NURSE.

Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup is the prescription of one of the best female Physicians and Nurses in the United States, and has been used for thirty years with never failing safety and success by millions of mothers and children, from the feeble infant of one week old to the adult. It corrects acidity of the stomach, relieves wind colic, regulates the stomach, and gives rest, health and comfort to mother and child. We believe it the very best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of dysentery and diarrhoea in children, whether it arises from teething or any other cause. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle.

Brown's Household Panacea.

Is the most effective Pain Destroyer in the world. Will most surely quicken the blood, whether taken internally or applied externally, and thereby more certainly RELIEVE PAIN, whether chronic or acute, than any other pain alleviator, and it is warranted to double the strength of any similar preparation. It cures pain in the Side, Back, Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, and ALL ACHES.

MUCH SICKNESS.

Undoubtedly with children, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by Worms. Brown's Vermifuge Comfits, or Worm Lozenges, although effective in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. This valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be absolutely sure in eradicating worms, so hateful to children. Twenty-five cents a box.

Close confinement in poorly ventilated work rooms, and want of proper exercise, are often unavoidable, but tend to produce indigestion, want of energy and loss of appetite. In such cases Hanington's Quinine Wine and Iron is the best medicine to use.

Farmers, lumbermen, and every one who keeps a horse, should always have a bottle of Hanington's Penetrating Liment at hand in case of accidents. It is always reliable. Price, 25 cents a bottle.

Diarrhoea in children is often attended with the most serious results. Hanington's Blackberry Cordial gives relief at once and cannot harm the youngest infant. Price, 25 cents.

Hanington's Standard Preparations are for sale by all druggists in town and country.

Local Matters.

Holidays This is the school holiday season all over the Province.

Antimony Thirty-seven boxes of Antimony in a raw state, weighing probably 250 lbs., came down from the New Brunswick Antimony Mines on Wednesday last, and were forwarded to Boston via the steamer "David Weston."

Obituary Mr John Gibson, the respected father of Mr Alexander Gibson, died at Marysville on Sunday last, at the ripe age of 85 years. His funeral took place on Tuesday, when a very large procession followed his remains to the grave.

Dangerous There is a very dangerous hole in the upper sidewalk of Westmorland Street, near Gunter & Albertson's stable. Indeed as we have already said, such sidewalks as we have here, are only fit for a town like Woodstock. There they might march triumphantly over open holes or potholes, so long as they come to them. But our sidewalks are disgraceful.

The Old Cemetery We are glad to say the city council have taken the old Protestant cemetery in hand. For a long time past it has been the rendezvous of disreputable characters of every color, and at all hours. Mr W. Davis has been appointed care-taker, and will not be alone, it is to be hoped, make the place decent, but keep disreputable characters from defiling the silent sanctuaries of the dead.

Dead From Too Much Bathing. About ten days ago a fine bright boy aged 9 years, a son of Mr Harvey Strickland took ill. His father had been bathing him every day, and he complained of his head. On Tuesday he died, the doctor says of erysipelas of the brain. The last day a great bath was given before he was taken ill, and he died several times. When he came out he was much chilled, and told his parents so when he went home. This was, no doubt, the cause of his death.

Dry Goods Mr P. McPeake, who goes out of the dry goods business to take charge of the Postoffice on the 1st August, has commenced his clearance sale. We understand he has put his prices down to about one-third the original figure, for the sake of getting the stock run out speedily. It is unnecessary to say that the best of bargains may be made at this store now, and that for the next few weeks his shop will be a perfect hive. We regret we have not room for his advertisement to-day.

Impudent Ignorance. At a late meeting of the city council, Alderman Wheeler brought in a resolution providing that no city property be loaned to any one without the authority of the council. But that inferior Alderman is himself the first to break the rule. He sent an article belonging to the city a few days ago to a person who only a few months ago said if he had to wait for trees till he condescended to ask the city council for them he would wait for ever. But then there is no use in rebuking some men; for they are like dogs—the more you kick them the better they are.

The Provincial Exhibition. No prizes were offered at the last Provincial Exhibition for Letter-press Printing, Book-binding, or the manufacture of Blank Books. Certainly those enterprises are the getting-up of the prize list for the forthcoming Exhibition in St. John should be only the above-mentioned trades from the Prize List. We do not expect the Government Printing Office, the "Royal Gazette" to compete; as the above-mentioned of this character is not to overlook the "art preservative," and the important Blank Book and Book-binding industries. Crochet work, pig pumpkins, shaggy roosters, Berkshire dogs, patent leather boots, water color dusters, etc., are very laudable objects to foster, but the printing and sister businesses ought not to be lost sight of even if only about $200,000 are invested in them in this Province.

Teachers' Parliament.

WEDNESDAY—CONTINUED.

Evening Session.

Mr. D. Morrison approved of the course of instruction, and thought its framers merited the thanks of the teaching faculty. Yet it might be improved somewhat. In grade 3 mental arithmetic might be introduced. Mr. Belyea thought the course for country districts was too indefinite. Pupils could not be expected to finish it in four years. [Dr. Rand said it was not laid down it should be finished in four years.]

Mr. Inch thought some more mathematics should be infused into grade 8. He thought the physics of grade 8 might be scattered more through grade 9. The text book on physics might be dispensed with.

Mr. Parice said the course required too much oral work of the teacher. He thought that the Latin in grade 8 might be overtaken on the completion of the work of that grade.

[Dr. Rand said he thought the Fables of Phaedrus might be omitted from the first Latin Book.]

Mr. Coyne thought the course an excellent ideal one, but it was too ambitious for the generality of schools to accomplish. He showed how difficult it was for a pupil to get an accurate knowledge in five per cent. of the school time of the events included in Canadian history from 1812 down to the present time.

Dr. Denton of Moncton criticized the grammar school curriculum quite freely.

Mr. D. P. Chisholm said, from the simplicity of the subjects in grade 8, thoroughness was next to impossible.

Mr. Wilbur said the last year's course was more advanced. He said there should have been more mathematics. Then there was too much required; we had to pass too rapidly from one subject to another.

Dr. Rand—But there is a grand unity in the whole.

Mr. Wilbur—Yes; it is that unity which troubles me.

Mr. Chisholm—I would like to ask the object of this discussion. There is no result hanging on it. What does it mean?

Dr. Rand—I wish to gather up the judgments of the Institute leading to the amendments of the course.

Mr. G. R. Parkin said the course was impracticable. There was danger of having the system choked by too much direction and final regulation, the lines were being drawn too tight, while much should be made in the discretion of the teacher. It was impossible, according to rule, to carry out the course in all parts of the Province.

[Mr. Parkin spoke warmly and well; and it was a harm had our teachers given a free rein to their convictions.—Ed.]

As it here appeared to be getting a little too hot for the founders of the Web of Instruction, a motion passed providing that this tangled subject be set aside for the evening, and the late Inspectoral Regulations be discussed instead.

Afternoon Session. Mr. John Marsh resumed and concluded the discussion on the Common School course.

The High School course was then resumed: Mr. Marsh disapproving of Greek for girls' High School.

Mr. Crockett said that such Greek was optional, and he was in favor of it.

Mr. Marsh thought a medium course between ancient and modern subjects should be adopted for girls. He pointed out that no provision for domestic economy was made in the girls' schools. This might be substituted for other branches not adapted to girls.

However, he thought a discussion of the course should be postponed till next week.

Mr. H. C. Creed, who had been previously primed by Dr. Rand ventured to take up the discussion. He thought the latter part of the Canadian History—the English period—might more profitably be studied first; and that a "great deal of uninteresting matter should be eliminated from the text book in use.

[Why, we thought the book was not full of uninteresting matter. Mr. Creed would not have to go to Tuttle to amplify Archer's statements.—Ed.]

St. John Notes.

SERVICES are held in the R. C. Church at St. Mary by the Very Rev. Mr. Connolly on Thursday of each week for the accommodation of the residents of that locality.

On Thursday of last week a pleasing event in connection with the mass was the singing of several hymns by a congregation of youthful choristers chosen from the Catholic school in the vicinity of Point. That young lady has caused considerable interest to be taken by her pupils in vocal and instrumental music, and will during the vacation train them for a concert which will take place in the school house in the course of a few weeks.

The Catholic ladies of the locality are busy preparing for a bazaar which will be held for the benefit of the new church in September. The church is finished with the exception of the putting in of the pews.

Since the saying "Who struck Murphy" has become obsolete, no quib has found such general favor by our sports and wags as "Did you see Flanagan?" Many people of late days have been cruelly deceived by the information that Mr. Flanagan wanted to see them. Flanagan was represented to be a young man on board of the Vandavia, who was originally from St. John, and was making enquiries in every direction about his friends, etc.

The Bay Shore is sought by hundreds on sultry Sunday summer afternoons. Yesterday they went thither on foot and in carriages and must have felt refreshed with the cool, sea breeze. The invigorating properties of salt water bathing could not but render signal service to those who indulged therein.

Douglstown News.

Our correspondent "R" writes from Douglstown:—

The Sisters of Charity of Newcastle, held a concert in the Masonic Hall, last night, which proved to be a great success. A large number attended and the music vocal and instrumental was excellent.

Last evening the ladies of the Methodist congregation of Derby, assisted by others held a Strawberry Festival at that place, and although an unusual high wind prevailed, the steamer "Andover" was fairly loaded with passengers from Chatham, Douglstown, Newcastle and Nelson, and under the skilful management of Capt. Beatty were landed in safety at Derby, where we found strawberries and cream with lots of other nice things. After our repast we repaired to the Hall and were entertained for a short time with music, readings, and a speech from Rev. Mr. Steel of Newcastle, returning about 12 o'clock.

The crops in this vicinity are suffering from drought on account of the sandy nature of the soil, but are generally very good. The potato bug is here but has done little damage as yet.

There are over a dozen ships in the river yet and all the mills are busy as possible.

WIPED OUT.

A THRILLING INCIDENT ON THE PRAIRIES

Who is that? Look closer and you will see it is a gaunt, grim wolf, creeping out of the little grove of cottonwoods toward a buffalo calf gamboling around its mother.

Raise your eyes a little more and you will see that the prairie beyond is alive with buffalo. Count them! You might as well try to count the leaves on a giant maple. They are moving foot by foot as they creep the July grass, and living waves rise and fall as the herd slowly sweep on. Afar out to the right and left—mere specks on the plain—are the flankers, brave old buffaloes, which lead the herd, and sniff the air and scan the horizon for intimation of danger. They are the sentinels of the herd, and right well can they be trusted.

The wolf creeps nearer! All the afternoon the great herd has fed in peace, and as it now slowly moves toward the distant river, it is all unconscious that danger is near. Look you well and watch the wolf, for you are going to see such a sight as not one man in ten thousand has ever beheld.

Creep—crawl—skulk—now behind a knoll—drawing himself over the grass—now raising his head above a tuftle to mark the locality of his victim. It is a lone, shambling, skulking wolf, lame and spiteful, and treacherous. Wounded or ailing, he has been left alone to get on the best he may; and his green eyes lightening up with fierce blaze as he draws nearer to his unconscious prey.

There! No, he is yet too far away. Creep—creep—creep. Now he is twenty feet away—now fifteen, now ten. He hugs the earth, gathers his feet under him, and he bounds through the air as if shot from a gun. He is rolling the calf over and over on the grass in three seconds after he springs.

Now watch. A cry of pain from the calf—a furious bellow from the mother as she wheels and charges the wolf—a startled movement from a dozen of the nearest animals and a rush begins. The one wolf is imagined into a hundred, the hundred into a thousand. Short, sharp bellow—notes of alarm—a rush, and in fifty seconds after the wolf had been flung under him, that living mass is in motion to get away from an unknown terror.

The waves rise higher and higher as the confusion spreads. One instant it is a solid wall of living creatures, the next they are moving bodily away—again waves rise and fall as the crowds behind rush upon those in front who wait to sniff the air and learn the danger. In one minute the alarm runs down the herd to the leaders, further than the eye can see, and the entire herd is going off at a mad gallop, heads down, eyes rolling, and no thought but that of escape.

If Lake Erie were to dash itself against a wall the shock would be no greater than the awful crash with which this mass of rattling hoofs, short horns and hairy bodies would meet it. The clatter of hoofs and rattle of horns would drown the noise of a brigade of cavalry galloping over a stone-paved road.

Ride out on their trail. Here where the stampede began the ground is torn and furrowed as if a thousand cannon had been fired. The ground is black and here and there calves which have been crushed or gored—here and there older animals with broken legs and disabling wounds. Here, where the herd was faintly visible, the wolf is to be seen, a lone, shambling, skulking wolf, lame and spiteful, and treacherous. Wounded or ailing, he has been left alone to get on the best he may; and his green eyes lightening up with fierce blaze as he draws nearer to his unconscious prey.

The waves rise higher and higher as the confusion spreads. One instant it is a solid wall of living creatures, the next they are moving bodily away—again waves rise and fall as the crowds behind rush upon those in front who wait to sniff the air and learn the danger. In one minute the alarm runs down the herd to the leaders, further than the eye can see, and the entire herd is going off at a mad gallop, heads down, eyes rolling, and no thought but that of escape.

If Lake Erie were to dash itself against a wall the shock would be no greater than the awful crash with which this mass of rattling hoofs, short horns and hairy bodies would meet it. The clatter of hoofs and rattle of horns would drown the noise of a brigade of cavalry galloping over a stone-paved road.

Ride out on their trail. Here where the stampede began the ground is torn and furrowed as if a thousand cannon had been fired. A Good Thing

To-day Mr. A. F. Gue, agent for the American standard brake, accompanied by a STAR Reporter went to Gibson to see the apparatus work. At the car shed they were joined by Mr. Logan, the master mechanic, and through his kindness were shown the apparatus. Said Mr. Logan: "This is just the thing we want. The only thing I am sorry for is that we did not have it on two years ago. If we had we might have saved considerable money. In about ten days we will have this brake on every car and engine on the road." He then went on to explain as follows: "There is no friction, no power needed. It is the easiest brake I have ever seen. Why," said he, "we went up the line twelve miles this morning at the rate of 30 miles an hour, and came down at say 15 miles per hour; and by applying this brake the train three cars would stop in about 150 feet before stopping." Mr. Logan prefers this brake particularly because it does not make any noise when applied.

"We have given it a thorough test," said he, "and found it to excel any brake we have had on the road so far."

The hot season, our people are fondly hoping, has passed. We have now cool breezy days, and delicious nights but the sun has not yet passed Cancer or neared Virgo.

Provincial News.

Mr. Turgeon of Gloucester has been getting himself into trouble. A complaint signed by four persons, Wm. Bailey, Jas. Thompson, John Irvine and Peter Hickey, against Customs Collector O'Brien was forwarded to Ottawa. On examining the complaint, it was found that the names of the above four were forged, they knowing nothing of it. The writing is said to be Turgeon's, and an action for forgery was taken against him. Mr. Anglin "rolls this as a sweet morsel into his tongue."

A sad accident happened on Monday night to a Miss Tupper, daughter of Hon. Jas. McDonald, Minister of Justice. While driving, her horse took fright and threw her violently to the ground. She is now lying between life and death. She had been married only a few months.

DANGEROUS.—A 3-year old bull attacked a son of Ellaha Peck on Monday, and but for his presence of mind in throwing his arms around the bull's neck would have been gored to death. The bull also attacked Mr. Peck who received a slight wound on his cheek from his horns; his son was also slightly injured.—Montreal.

SARKIS IN BEDFORD BASIN.—Warren Smith and Ham, while out practicing in the shed on the Basin, a day or two ago, were pelted by a large shark, and the race they rowed was nearly broken up. The shark had anyone been at hand with a watch, it would have seen the shark as he turned back to see one of the fish on the Basin in its jaws, but the delay thus caused enabled the rowers to get away. In one minute the shark was where the thirteenth pursuer could not get at them. Ham was out alone later in the day and was again chased by a shark, but got out of the water. This will be cheerful news to those who bathe in the Basin.

The Morning Post says it is credibly reported that the British Government has received from the smooth optimism that fancied that a supplementary conference could end the difficulties in Eastern Europe by a few unanimous resolutions.
