CHAPTER XIV.

Obediently mademoiselle took the proffered glass and drank the contents. Its good effect was apparent almost immediately. A faint tint of color came creeping back to her ashen lips and thin sallow cheeks, which suddenly seemed to have become doubly hollow and haggard, and in a few minutes she was able to sit up and apologize feebly for what she called her "foolishness"—an apology which madame received with the utmost graciousness.

"You have been doing too much, mademoiselle," she said. "You must have overfatigued yourself."

"Perhaps so," returned the governess, faintly.

"It must be so, unless you are really ill. You must keep quiet to-morrow, and give yourself complete rest. If you seem no better in the morning, we must send for Doctor Yorke."

"No, no!" Weak as she looked, she said, "I really do not understand it," she said. "I should have imagined mademoiselle the last person in the world to be subject to anything like hysteria. It is very odd. Did either of you notice that she seemed ill?"

"She was shivering frightfully just before she went to the window," I said, "and seemed vexed at our not being it. Didn't she, Nat?"

Nat nodded, with a half-pettish laugh.

"I declare I believe that the house is getting bewitched," she said. "To-day we have had excitement enough for a week. First there were Virtue and Valla making such gesses of themselves, and now mademoiselle, of all persons in the world, scares us half to death. I believe she was frightened, in spite of what she says. Didn't you hear her shriek, madame?"

"She might do that without being frightened, my dear. I hope she will be better to-morrow," madame reported, dismissing the subject; and when we three turned over the contents of the cases, commenting and admiring.

For they were splendid, these jewels of Nat's, and no mistake—some of them, at any rate. The things which took my fancy were of comparatively little value—a set of mixed stones in a fantastic dull-gold setting, looking as if to twist amid the black locks and round the dusky throat and arms of some Eastern princess. Then there was a beautiful pearl necklace, each pearl absolutely perfect in size, color, and shape, a fine set of mixed rubies and opals, a quantity of ornaments—pearl-looking, barbaric odds and ends—among them the cross which had meant to give to Alice Desprez, and some magnificent diamonds. Over these even madame waxed enthusiastic. When all the rest had been admired and restored to their cases, it was agreed that no new setting was required, and that when the Christmas week came Nat should have them in her own care in a safe in her room.

Madame still lingered before shutting up the diamonds, looking at them as they lay glittering in their dingy velvet beds.

"Used your mother to wear them, Natalie?" she asked.

"I suppose so, since they were hers; but I don't remember. You know I hardly recollect her at all."

"They are magnificent stones," said madame, musingly.

"Worth a lot, too, I should say," I put in. "How much should you say, mother?"

"My dear, I am not sufficiently a judge to value them. But I should tioned, with a curious expression which seemed to me to be a frown and a smile in one. "Why ask you that?"

"Well, you shrieked as though you were scared," answered Nat. "Didn't you think mademoiselle had seen something, Ned?"

"I thought she was awfully frightened!" I said, bluntly.

"Bah! What should frighten me? It was nothing—the faintness only." With a sudden sharp gleam in them, her dark eyes were turned toward my face. "And you, Monsieur Ned—thought you that I did see a ghost just now? Was it for the ghost that you did go out there to look?"

"No; I wasn't likely to look for a ghost. I thought there might be some one lurking about, for I certainly fancied that you were frightened, mademoiselle. I didn't know people screamed when they fainted."

It was not over polite, I know, but somehow that derisive little smile which was playing round her thin lips irritated me.

"And you saw nothing for all your pains—nothing?"

"I certainly saw no one, if that is what you mean."

"As you say you saw no one, I suppose there was no one there to see?"

I turned on my heel and went over to the table, where Nat and my mother were now opening and examining the cases of jewels. Moving feebly and slowly, but quite self-possessed, mademoiselle rose and followed me.

"Will madame excuse me now? I am best in my room."

"Certainly," said madame; and, declining alike her suggestion of some more brandy and Nat's offer to go with her to her room, the governess withdrew.

As she looked after her my mother's handsome face wore a look of uneasy perplexity.

"I really do not understand it," she said. "I should have imagined mademoiselle the last person in the world to be subject to anything like hysteria. It is very odd. Did either of you notice that she seemed ill?"

"She was shivering frightfully just before she went to the window," I said, "and seemed vexed at our not being it. Didn't she, Nat?"

Miss Gallop.

At about the age that most girls are working hardest at school studying for examinations there are important physiological changes taking place which are an additional strain on the nervous system.

Mrs. Gallop has had experience in the case of her daughter and granddaughter, and for this reason her letter is particularly interesting to parents.

Mrs. J. A. Gallop, 135 Victoria street, St. John, N.E., whose husband is a carpenter, states:—"We have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in our family for nervousness, headaches, dizziness and nervous dyspepsia, and have found them satisfactory in every particular. My daughter Bessie was going to school, and became quite run down in health. By the time she had used three boxes of this remedy her nerves were steady, her general health was excellent and she was entirely free from headaches and dizzy spells. We are more than pleased with the results of this treatment."

"More recently we used the Nerve Food for my granddaughter, who was out of school for nearly a year from nervous trouble, and noticed improvement in her condition at once."

think that they are even superior to the Chavasse diamonds."

"The Chavasse diamonds?" Nat repeated, curiously. "Do you mean the brooch and ear-rings you wear, madame?"

"No, my dear. You have never seen them; they are in the bank at Market Wexford, where I really think these ought to be. When Christmas is over, they had better be sent there."

"But why don't you wear them—the Chavasse diamonds, I mean?" Nat questioned again.

"An old woman has no need to trouble herself about jewels, child," my mother answered, lightly, shutting the case at last, and gathering up the others to leave the room. "They are in keeping until Ned brings home his wife, and turns his mother into the Dowager of Chavasse." Madame paused, glancing at us as we stood side by side, and smiled. "It is a pity you are not a few years older, Ned," she said to me, jestingly, as she was leaving the room. "Perhaps I should not have far to look then for the future Madame of the Mount."

"Not looked up at me with a laugh."

"Do you hear that, Ned?"

"Rather; you had better wait for me, I think, Miss Orme."

"No, thank you, my dear-boy. You must grow up first."

A BAKING SUCCESS WHICH YOU CAN DUPLICATE IN YOUR HOME

All this talk about Western wheat flours being

"pastry" flours, is just plain talk. Anyone, who knows anything about wheat, knows that Western wheat flour cannot and does not, make as good Pastry as "Beaver" Flour.

Western wheat has what the bakers call strength. It makes a big loaf of bread—but the bread is spongy and lacks flavor. Ontario wheat, blended with spring wheat, makes the ideal bread and pastry flour.

The bakers of Toronto and London—the experts at the agricultural colleges—and thousands of homes in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces—have proved that "Beaver" Flour is superior to any Western wheat flour, and is equally good for Bread and Pastry. Try it! DEALERS—Write us for prices on Feed, Coarse Grains and Cereals.

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 27. The Union, in an alarming editorial declares that war between Peru and Bolivia, is inevitable. This conclusion is drawn from Bolivia's recent warlike preparations, and an expression of General Ismael Montes, Bolivia's Ambassador, and other Bolivian officers in Paris. Bolivia's ambition is said to be a port on the Pacific.

LONDON, Jan. 28. England is on the brink of another campaign by suffragettes, in comparison with which former outbreaks will appear insignificant. To-night 2,000 policemen are engaged dispersing crowds from around the Parliament buildings. Shopkeepers are kept very busy barring up their show windows, and excited women are making incendiary speeches in several halls. The women believe the politicians played carefully a studied trick upon them, and the decision of the Government to drop the Bill will likely lead to serious consequences.

LONDON, Jan. 27. The Cabinet to-day decided to drop the Franchise Bill in deference to the Speaker's ruling that the form and substance of the measure would be so materially altered, if the amendment granting the vote to women were adopted, that it ought to be presented in the shape of a new Bill. The precincts of the Commons presented many curious features this afternoon. Mounted and foot police were to be seen everywhere in great strength. Two thousand patrol men and 300 mounted men were actually on duty, while large forces were in hiding in convenient courtyards near the Parliament building ready to prevent breaches of the peace. Leave to all other Metropolitan policemen had been stopped.

A GOOD BREAKFAST.

Some Persons Never Know What it Means.

A good breakfast, a good appetite and good digestion mean everything to the man, woman or child who has anything to do, and wants to get a good start toward doing it.

A Southern man tells of his wife's "good breakfast" and also supper, made out of Grape-Nuts and cream. He says:

"I should like to tell you how much good Grape-Nuts has done my wife. After being in poor health for the last 18 years, during part of the time scarcely anything would stay on her stomach long enough to nourish her, finally at the suggestion of a friend she tried Grape-Nuts.

"Now, after about four weeks on this delicious and nutritious food, she has picked up most wonderfully and seems as well as anyone can be.

"Every morning she makes a good breakfast on Grape-Nuts eaten just as it comes from the package with cream or milk added; and then again the same at supper, and the change in her is wonderful.

"We can't speak too highly of Grape-Nuts as a food after our remarkable experience." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.—Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WOMEN AND JUSTICE.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"What can I do for you, ma'am," said the clerk at the inquiry office to the efficient young woman in the trim, tailored suit.

"Pardon me, but I think those people were here before me," said the efficient young woman, indicating a man and a woman who had been waiting longer than she.

The clerk at the inquiry office attended to the wants of the two people indicated, after which he came back to the efficient young woman and answered two or three quick, efficient questions for her. As she walked briskly away, after a pleasant "thank you," he peered after her with an expression of great interest on his face. "Well," I heard him say, "that's the first time I ever saw a woman do that. I've seen 'em rush in here, squeeze in ahead of people who have been waiting ten minutes, and interrupt anyone who was trying to talk to me. But that's the first time I ever saw a woman insist on waiting until her turn. Yes, there really must be something in this new woman business after all, if she's a sample."

Don't you hope she is a sample of what women are going to be some day soon?

I do. For it seems to me that the quality which women lack the most conspicuously is just this same sense of justice, this habit of playing fair, which that woman displayed.

I don't think it is wholly their fault by any means. For centuries they have been given chivalry and deference and protection, as substitutes for justice; is it strange, then, that they should scarcely understand the meaning of that grand word?

Now not one thinks I am depreciating the value of courtesy and deference and write me a hot letter telling me that the world would be poor without them. I know that already. Only, I do not think that these things should be made a substitute for justice. They are splendid in addition to justice, but not in place of it. Just as a cake and ice cream are an excellent complement to solid food, but we do not want them in place of bread and meat.

It is such a queer notion that courtesy and justice are necessarily exclusive of each other. One of the weirdest arguments of the anti-suffragists is that men will no longer give women their seats in the cars when women vote. How absurd! On that basis men should not give up their seats to members of their own sex who are not able to stand by reason of old age or infirmity; but I notice they do.

To return to the main road.—if women are really going to succeed in the business and professional world, they will need a stronger sense of justice than they now have. They must learn to demand justice for themselves and to show it to others. They must learn not to crowd ahead of others in the waiting line, even if they get a good chance, and they must learn to appreciate the bigger principles of justice on which such little deceptions rest.

Ruth Cameron

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body * * * * *." He continues, "so we may be said to live (through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone," writes Miss G. M. MURKIN, of Corona, Calif. "I had suffered from it off and on for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally, I was told it was my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. Whenever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint—it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grow strong fast. Today I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

Miss Murkin.

Fashions and Fads.

Stoles of fur are very large, of shawl proportions; muffs vary in size.

The brocades showing metal threads in the weave and of gauzy texture have the preference.

Drapery should always be first pinned, then arranged and changed until the right line is obtained.

The newest shoes are of patent leather, with brocade or plain silk tops which match the costume.

Tiny wings of the valkyrie style are also used, being fastened over the brow to a band of black velvet.

Trimming should only be used to bring out the beauty of a fabric, never to attract attention to itself.

The tailless ermine mantle with collar and cuffs of a dark fur is especially popular in the high-priced models.

Sheerness in the top of the bodice is noticed in all the new dresses. This is particularly true of evening dresses.

Foulards with plain backgrounds and a decided design will be used for street frocks when coats are discarded.

Ornaments of feathers of all kinds of dics, brushes and "fantasies" are placed where a spot of color is needed.

The newest motoring cap is the courier-du-boys, made of white felt, shaped into a close-fitting brim that frames the face.

Agrettes can be placed anywhere. A small cluster can be adjusted in the front with a sweeping line toward the back.

The Russian blouse frock, with the upper part of velvet, and the skirt of broadcloth are particularly smart for young girls.

Very beautiful are the gowns made entirely of gold cloth with a woven design or tracery on the ground work of the tissue.

The debutantes are wearing colored skirts with double and triple flounces of lace with long pannier draperies of colored satin.

The paradise plumes are being used very much with the newest coiffure, being fastened to the hair with a gorgeous jewel or ornament.

The almost universal use of artificial flowers for evening gowns adds a touch of color to a white gown or a chic touch to a gown of color.

Sumptuous fur trimmed velvet suits are much worn. A striking combination is black and white striped velvet trimmed with tailless ermine.

Fashionable are the small derby-shaped hats of pressed beaver, trimmed with a narrow band of ostrich at the base of the crown and dotted at intervals with tiny pink roses.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Tell How She Keeps Her Health—Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sensitive Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children.

Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine."

—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for woman's ills known.

Weddings.

By H. L. RANX.

A wedding is a solemn, high-priced function which is pulled off at the expense of the bride's father, who is not consulted about anything except the bills. After a stern, rock-bound parent with several marriageable daughters has been led up to an itemized bill covering six voluptuous weddings, including hack hire and overhead expense, he will not have breath enough left to sing the long meter doxology.

As generally understood, weddings are supposed to be the climax to a courtship. At times, however, they prove to be an anti-climax, in which even the brides father has to ante again for the attorney fees. There is nothing nicer than a wedding which is so arranged that the contracting parties remain on speaking terms down to the last lap. If more people would pick out weddings of this kind the divorce docket would look like a subscription paper for the benefit of good roads.

There are two kinds of weddings—church and home. There is also the justice of the peace variety, which will sew a reluctant groom up as tight as any other, but at less expense. The church wedding is never used except by people who are either in society and trying to secure a better grip or by those who are candidates for the first degree. It is a painful scene, especially when the groom finds that he has left the ring in his other pants or the best man runs one foot through the bridesmaid's train, and is performed to pipe organ accompaniment at so much per running foot.

The home wedding can be enjoyed at slight toruble and expense, as all that is necessary is to put up the curtains in the front parlor and dust off the wax floral wreath. The guests at this kind of a wedding are able to get a good view of the groom at close range and note whether he has removed the price tags from his new suit. They can also tell whether the bride is trimmed in real lace or an imitation of shredded excelsior. The home wedding turns out a very durable knot and assays a small percentage of family jars, hence it has come to stay.

Notes and Comments.

Union is strength.
Morris is making good with the grabbers.

"An able and honest Colonial Statesman, sufficiently independent in point of wealth to be able to resist the inducements of rich capitalists." That is Sir Robert Bond.

Where are the Bait Depots that Sir Edward Morris was going to establish all round the coasts at places easily accessible to fishermen?

The Fishermen, the Farmers, the Mechanics, the Labourers, and all who work for a living, who were to find a rallying point under the banner of the People's Party are now lined up against the Morris Party in their tens of thousands. Thousands who voted for that Party last elections are now waiting for a chance to turn the Morris men out. Their rallying cry is the Grabbers must go.

What is the matter with the water-supply? How was it there was a delay on Sunday night in getting the water on to the fire in the East End. We were under the impression that under the new arrangements that when a fire occurred at either end of the city there would always be an ample supply of water at hand to cope with any ordinary conflagration without any delay. What is the trouble now? Should not the public be taken into the confidence of the authorities and the trouble ventilated and a remedy provided?

Again there is the trouble and expense thrown on householders who find their water service frozen up in consequence of water being turned off to concentrate the supply in the neighbourhood of a fire. These householders suffer for the public good. But surely the public generally who benefit should bear the cost of the proceedings, and the City Council should pay the plumbers' and other expenses entailed by the turning off of the water.

Like their fellows in Newfoundland the workers in the British Isles have the blessing of the ballot box, but they have not Manhood Suffrage as the workers have in Newfoundland. The Asquith Franchise Bill was introduced into Parliament to give them Manhood Suffrage. Owing to complications with Women Suffrage, the Government decided to withdraw it. But it cannot be delayed much longer.

When workers get Adult Suffrage then the problem of Poverty in the richest country in the world will be honestly tackled. Poverty of the workers is the blot which stains the escutcheon of England, and it is largely an inheritance from the past when wages and Unions were kept under by parliaments over which workers had no control.

tune and expresses the opinion that the Piccott dredge is a great waste of public money. He states that the dredge Le Moine had could do more work before breakfast than the Piccott dredge can do in a week. It only works three or four hours a day and about three days in a week. It will cost about $200 to have water brought to her at 50c. per puncheon. She takes 50 puncheons a day and three men and a horse are employed to water her. The people have no use for Morris. Morris Must Go!

Regret will be general that Mr. E. M. Jackman is constrained by the exigencies of his business to quit the political arena. Mr. Jackman is a formidable political gladiator, and the District of Placentia & St. Mary's will miss him. However, the hour brings the man, and another Liberal leader for that District will be found, who will be heartened on by the fights Mr. Jackman put up in the past.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found copies of the correspondence which passed between Sir Robert Bond and Mr. Jackman. A perusal of that correspondence will show that private and business reasons are solely the cause of the withdrawal of Mr. Jackman from politics for a few years.

We have been in close touch with Mr. Jackman up to the time of writing, and we know from his conversation and acts, that he is as full of sympathy with the Liberal Party as ever, and that it is with the greatest reluctance that he feels compelled to retire from active politics. Not only is Mr. Jackman in hearty sympathy with the Liberal Party, but he is a strong supporter of the Fishermen's Protective Union, and is and has always been most insistent on the Liberal Party and the F.P.U. working together in the closest unity for a common purpose. We regret that circumstances of a business character entirely unconnected with the policy of the Liberal Party and the policy of the F.P.U., have arisen, which constrain Mr. Jackman to arrive at the decision he set forth in the correspondence which we publish, and we cordially endorse the expression of opinion given by Sir Robert Bond of the loss the Legislature will sustain the next few years. Sir Robert Bond says: "I think you have decided wisely and in the best interests of your family." We think so too, and we know that Mr. Jackman has done it with the utmost reluctance and with the greatest regret. We may add that Mr. Jackman has fully and frankly discussed the situation as it affects himself and his business, with us, a number of times during the past few weeks. We wish him well, and hope that his honorable ambition will be attained, that the retirement will not be for long, and that the not distant future may hold out for him a chance to show himself an active Liberal gladiator once more.

EXPERIMENTS IN AGRICULTURE.
A few weeks ago attention was called to Oregon's 1912 crop of the beetroot, a combination of the beet and potatoe, said to be very prolific and of delicious flavour. Now comes news that the United States Government, Department of Agriculture, has imported from China a new variety of cabbage which has wonderful possibilities. The new cabbage is not sown until the first week in August, allowing the grower time to raise a crop of spinach or snap beans on the same soil, but it heads in November, the same as ordinary cabbage. It is not so solid as ordinary cabbage, but the very delicacy of its leaves makes it better for cold slaw and sauerkraut and it is entirely odorless while being cooked.
Within the same week in which the foregoing was published, appeared a news item from St. Paul stating that as a result of chemical soil analysis in the greenhouses of James J. Hill, it is believed that the production of wheat, oats and barley can be doubled. Other dispatches report that meal made from alfalfa has been found excellent for human food. Fogota Here.

The S. S. Fogota, Capt. B. Barbour, arrived here at 12.30 p.m. to-day from the Northward. She had a fine run down and at Musgrave Harbour met the heavy Arctic ice at noon on Saturday. The ocean was covered with ice to Fogota and the ship had to butt her way through to that port getting there at 10 o'clock on Saturday night.

She left again on Sunday morning at 4 and reached Seldom at 12 noon. She had slob ice all the way from Seldom to Wesleyville and made all ports of call except Change Islands, which she could not reach for ice. She brought a small freight and as passengers Dr. Smith, H. Davis, Mr. Murphy, S. Hodnot, Miss Peckford and 5 in stowage.

Besides Palma Soap combines the virtues of Palm and Olive Oils in the most advantageous manner and is delightful. Price 20c a cake.

Trust!

When the pale gray morning breaks, When the thrasher's song awakes, God, who quickened this warm earth And, with hearty, holy mirth, Wrought our being for His joy, Speaks to us. Our hearts employ Busy moments all the day For ourselves; now hear God say In that strong, reliant mood We may meet life's bad and good. What shall make our lives complete, Where to-day shall set our feet.

"Trust not wealth, or power or fame, Pride of birth or pride of name, For the joyance of the hour, For the future's promised dower: Trust not toil of other men, Wizardry beyond the ken, Or some merry, mad mischance Wrought by occult circumstance, For the blush upon the rose, For the life that richer grows; Trust not even me to give More than wills to let thee live.

"For thy fruitful, fair increase, For thy solace and thy peace, For thy guidance hour by hour, For all prescience and all power, Trust one only, and be strong—Yea, all other trust is wrong—Trust the Soul that in thee sings Songs of deep, unfathomed things!"

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

To-Day's News. Out on the War Path.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day.
The Suffragettes held heated meetings last night. Mrs. Pankhurst and other leaders denounced both the enemies and supporters of suffragettes for their treachery. They declared an end of the truce which the women had observed, while waiting Parliament's action on the Bill. "Deeds not Words," was the motto displayed above the platform where Mrs. Pankhurst spoke. She asserted women would consider how to do as much damage to property as possible. Some of her lieutenants failed to agree with her policy. Miss Keany, one of the most prominent of the militants, advocated smashing both property and heads. The executive council of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies adopted a resolution, rejecting Asquith's offer of facilities for private members for a Bill next session. Several speakers said women had proposed a plan of action which for the present was secret, but which would surprise the world. Several women were arrested. Some declined to give their names. One is believed to be Miss Pankhurst, who was captured in St. Stephen's Hall, leading to the Commons, where she was making a determined attack on a large painting. The police dispersed the crowd in Trafalgar Square, where a man and a woman was trying to make speeches. The famous militant Mrs. Despard, was taken to the police station with six others. Practically the whole police force was on duty all night. Strong guards were stationed at all public buildings. A special watch was kept on the Post Office and letter boxes. Mrs. Pankhurst's denunciation of the Government was fiery and bitter. The force of the Reform Bill is played out. She said "either those who framed the Bill were ignorant of parliamentary procedure, they were unfit to occupy positions of responsibility or they were scoundrels of the worst kind. It has been a mock battle all arranged. Harcourt and Lloyd George were seen going arm and arm into a music hall on Saturday. Can you imagine them saying 'well, now that we have dished the women, let us forget about it, and go and see the cinematograph.'" In the Commons the Premier repudiated the suggestion that the Government had been guilty of sharp practice in regard to the question of Women Suffrage. He declared members of the cabinet thought the proposed amendment audacious, "but they had honestly endeavored to carry out their pledges and challenge a decision from the House on Women Suffrage. The Government had now pledged itself to give to Women Suffrage a Bill introduced by a private member next session, the same facilities as it had given to controversial government measure, allowing members complete freedom to vote in accordance with individual predilections.

Where Is He?

HAN NOT SEEN FOR SIX WEEKS.

The friends of James McDonald, a man well known in the West End, has not been seen by his friends for over six weeks past and there is such conjecture as to where he can be. McDonald was a man who had a home of his own, but occasionally boarded with a resident of the Southside and often was without any shelter. He was in the habit of going on board schooners after they entered port and getting his meals from the crews. The people he met nor the places he usually frequented in the West End, have not seen him for a long while, and to some it has occurred that he might be the man whose head body was found about a month ago in the stoke hold of the Carthaginian, after she arrived in Glesgow from this port. We have been requested by persons interested in him to ask for information as regards the man and if he is in the city, no doubt it will be made known. McDonald was a man of about 60 years of age and was well known.

Special Evening Telegram. NEW YORK, To-day.

James Thorpe, Indian athlete and Olympic champion admitted the charges of professionalism, brought against him were true and formally retired from amateur athletics. U. at Celtic Park in September and stamped him as the most marvellous athlete of modern times in every branch of field track sports.

Trust in God and Persevere.

Brother is life's morning clouded,
Has the sunlight ceased to shine;
Is the earth in darkness shrouded,
Wouldst thou at thy lot repine?
Cheer up, brother, let thy vision
Look above, see! Light is near;
Soon will come the next transition;
"Trust in God and persevere!"

Brother, has life's hope receded,
Has thou sought its joys in vain;
Friends proved false when most needed,
Foes rejoicing at thy pain?
Cheer up, brother, there's a blessing,
Waiting for thee, never fear;
Foes forgiving, sins confessing;
"Trust in God and persevere!"

Brother all things round are calling
With united voice "be strong!"
Though the wrongs of earth be calling
They must lose their strength ere long.
Yea, my brother, though life's trouble,
Drive thee near to dark despair,
Soon 'twill vanish like a bubble;
"Trust in God and persevere!"

He, from His high throne in heaven,
Watches every step we take,
He will see each fetter riven,
Which our foes in anger make;
Cheer up, brother, He has power
To dry every bitter tear,
And though darkest tempests lower,
"Trust in God and persevere!"

Brother, there's a quiet slumber
Waiting for thee, in the grave;
Brother, there's a glorious number
Christ in mercy deigns to save;
Wait, then till life's quiet even
Closes round thee, calm and clear,
And till called from earth to heaven,
"Trust in God and persevere!"

Mr. E. M. Jackman Retires from Politics

FOR BUSINESS REASONS — CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN MR. JACKMAN AND SIR ROBERT BOND.

St. John's, Nfld.,
Jan. 23rd, 1913.

Dear Sir Robert,—
In the interview that I had with you at your home on the 13th inst., we freely discussed every aspect of my business affairs, as far as they had a bearing on my political future. I then intimated to you that I felt that for business reasons, mainly, I would have to decide at an early date as to whether I would go out of business or out of politics.

Since then I have given careful consideration to this question, especially in its bearing on my business and family affairs, and I have decided to abandon public life altogether for the present, and to devote myself closely to business.

Having arrived at that decision, I feel that you and my other political friends with whom I have been associated for the past fourteen years, should be advised at once of my decision, that I will not be a candidate at the General Election in November next, and that also with a view of devoting myself closely to business I have decided not to take any part in party politics for at least four or five years.

I think that in adopting this course at the present time, I am doing what is right in the interest of my business and my family; I may also add that I have been influenced in this decision, by the feeling that by giving attention to business, we shall make a great big success of the new firm of Jackman The Tailor, Ltd., and that I shall in time be able to fulfill a moral obligation by paying back One Hundred Cents in the Dollar to all the Cash Creditors and Guarantors who lost money in the liquidation of our former business.

As the Liberal supporters of Placentia & St. Mary's are expecting me to be a Candidate in the interest of the Liberal Party, at the next General Election, I feel that I should advise them at the earliest possible date of my decision.

Therefore I am sending a copy of this letter to the sitting members of the Liberal Party, my late colleagues Messrs. Sullivan and Davis, and also to the Press.

Thanking you for the confidence that you placed in me, during our many years of political association.

I remain with best wishes,

Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.) E. M. JACKMAN.
Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond,
P.C., K.C.M.G.,
The Grange, Whitbourne.

Whitbourne, Nfld.,
Jan. 24th, 1913

Dear Mr. Jackman,—
I am in receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, having reference to our recent discussion and announcing your decision to retire from party politics.

Let me say at once that I think you have decided wisely and in the best interests of your family. In taking this line of thought, when you invited an expression of opinion from me, I was not unmindful of the loss to the Legislature that its adoption would entail. During the period that we were associated together in political endeavor, you contributed to the political problems of that period incisive and valuable thought and more practical work than you could afford to spare from your private business. The country benefitted thereby, but your private business suffered very materially. As a friend I could only advise the course you have adopted.

I feel sure that by giving undivided attention to your business you will speedily attain the honorable ambition outlined in your letter under reference. Heartily reciprocating your good wishes.

I remain,
Sincerely yours,
R. BOND.

Southern Shore Notes.

Rev. P. O'Brien, P. P., Torr's Cove, will shortly have erected there a new Parish Hall. The present building is too small to meet the growing requirements of the place, and the projected structure will be one of the best of its kind on the shore.

As soon as weather conditions permit a new church will be erected at Caplin Bay and one that will be a credit to the place.

The people who made the appeal for the re-building of Mr. Thomas McCarthy's house at Renewes were very successful. Mr. McCarthy's residence was destroyed by fire some weeks ago and his family had a narrow escape.

Several concerts are projected for Easter. One will be given at Cape Broyle the proceeds of which will go for certain improvements intended to be made by Rev. Fr. Rawlins.

Rumour has it that Rev. Father Duneley is likely to succeed the late Rt. Rev. Monsignor Walsh at Renewes. Mr. Lawrence Lawlor, a respected resident of Renewes, was united in wedlock on Monday night to Miss B. Walsh, a popular young lady of Fermeuse. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Sheehan, and the wedding festivities were attended by a large number of the friends of the happy couple.

An Enjoyable Affair.

Notwithstanding the rain storm of last night there was a large gathering at the annual "At Home" of the Field-Spencer Association held in the British Hall. The ballroom was very tastefully decorated and brilliantly illuminated and the music was furnished by the excellent band of the C. L. B. Teas and refreshments were served by the ladies, and the affair was most enjoyable. The returns were up to the expectations of the promoters.

CHAPTER V.

The Tale of the Irish Emigrant.

While different countries and nationalities have each done their part in the colonization of Newfoundland, and have each given us representative men, and honourable and worthy women, we feel safe in saying that among the best of them all not a few come from Ireland, the land of the Shamrock; and so our story to-day is of the Emerald Isle, and of one who of his own choice left his country and who came not as an apprentice as did the English lad of our last story, but who came free and independent and helped to make the St. John's of the early days.

It is forty-two years since I heard him tell his story, and though I was a lad passing fourteen, I have always remembered the main points of his recital, and what struck me principally in it was the novel way in which he and others decided upon coming to Newfoundland. When I knew him he was then about seventy years of age, but having left Waterford about the age of seventeen, the story of his voyage would be about 1810.

In speaking of the means used by which men selected a country for migration I am reminded of a man whom I met thirty years ago, and who told me how his father and uncle came to Newfoundland about 1805, and of how they made their choice. First they determined to emigrate and then they made a plan of decision which was as follows: They were fairly well educated, and had a good knowledge of geography and had equal faith in the opportunities of the different parts of the world as they then knew it, but they had no particular country in view. They got a map of the world which had on it the different countries to which they wished to travel, and one of which they wished to select. They spread it on a table and took a rod, a short one about the length of a walking stick, and placing the base of the rod on Belfast, their own country, they held it erect in the air with the decision that on whatever country the point would fall to that country they would go. On the rod falling the point pitched on Newfoundland and the decision was made, and after procuring a passage they came out and made their homes in Carbonear.

But to our story proper. We cannot do better than tell it in the words of the speaker himself, or as near as we can go to it. His case, we may say in opening, is similar to others I have met, and who have told me the tale of their voyage to Newfoundland; and while this story will admit a little of the experiences of one or two others it is directly the story of the one man in particular to whom I have referred and whom I knew well.

"My home was in Waterford, and with my elder brother I received at that city whatever of education I possess. Having finished school-days we both began to look about us for something to do, some new country to go to. Times had been troublesome in Ireland and matters were very much upset, and the fever of emigration had settled upon thousands of people. Of course the chief place of attraction was America, while Australia seemed to be the next, and the colonies followed. To us in Ireland it was all new and all fascinating, because like every other question there were stories true and stories false, and a great deal of exaggeration. Most of those countries seemed to us as if they were lands of gold. Australia was looked upon as a country of gold diggings, while Newfoundland had some reputation as a country of silver, which proved to be the silver thaw. Having made up our minds to leave home we got the consent of our parents who gave us their permission and allowed us to make our own choice. The step was hard but it was the best that offered, and with others going we decided to swell the number.

We wished and hoped and intended, if possible, to travel together, but in this we were disappointed, not that we were bound to separate, but the plan we chose in selecting a country resulted in our separation. It was the plan of drawing lots. We therefore marked down the names of the countries to which people were emigrating, and decided to draw our own individual lot and in doing so we drew separate countries. My brother drew Australia and then threw the paper back into the box, and then I drew and my lot fell to Newfoundland. The die was cast and the first pang of sorrow came into our lives and we felt in our hearts that we were separated. It seemed to have been doom, but yet it was not so, we still had the choice to go where we wished, but having decided on following out the plan of drawing lots we would not alter our intentions. We were full of hope at the time, like all young lads, but the lumps came into our throats more than once when we found that our paths lay so far apart.

At first we expected to sail in the same ship, but of course we now had to seek two ships, and so in the course of time my brother found one bound for the land of gold, bound far off Australia. Thus in a few months the sad day came and we stood on the quay and wished each other good by never to meet again. His course lay down the Atlantic and around the Cape of Good Hope and out into the Indian Ocean to Australia; but mine was a shorter cut, for comparatively speaking, Newfoundland was very near to Ireland. My brother did well in Australia. He made good use of his bit of learning and aspired in the opportunities offering. He became interested in matters of State and Law and rose to one of the highest positions in the country, and when last I heard from him he was a Judge of the Superior Court of Australia (1860.)

NEW DISCOVERY QUICKLY CURES KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses Are Taken

If you are bothered with backache—or rheumatism, have disagreeable, annoying bladder or urinary disorders to contend with—or suffer with any other of the many miseries that comes from weak kidneys, here is a guaranteed remedy you can depend upon, no matter what else may have failed to cure you.

It is a positive fact that the new discovery, Croxone, promptly overcomes such diseases. It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for ridding the system of uric acid, removing the cause and curing the troubles. It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up kidneys and makes them waste matter from the blood. It neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder; and puts the kidneys and urinary organs in a clean, strong, healthy condition.

More than a few doses of Croxone are seldom required to relieve even the obstinate long standing cases, while it cures the most severe forms of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism in a surprisingly short time. You will find Croxone entirely different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

Baptism.

Sunday evening, the rite of Christian Baptism was administered to ten candidates at the Cookstown Road Church, by Elder Wm. C. Young. Every available place in the building was occupied, temporary seats having been improvised, yet the seating capacity, although enlarged, was taxed to its utmost to accommodate the crowd desirous of witnessing the burial by baptism. The speaker took for his text Eph. 4:5, coupled with it the commission given by Christ to His Disciples just before leaving this earth; arguing that whilst it is possible to be divided in opinion as to method and object of a Christian ordinance, so long as its teaching is confined to precept alone, yet when enforced by the example of so many of the Apostles, a unity of understanding is easy of accomplishment, and read the example of the Apostles Peter, Philip, James, John, Ananias and Paul, as demonstrating of both method and object. Judging by the numbers that regularly attend these Sunday evening lectures, they must be growing popular.—Com.

Feel Bully? Take Cascarets Tonight.

A 10 cent box will keep your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh for months.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels clean and regular for months.

Preparations on Military Basis

According to news from Londonderry, preparations on a military basis are going on all over Ulster with a view to resistance of any Dublin Parliament, by armed and disciplined forces. Such reports, however, must be taken side by side with the fact that the pending bye-election in Londonderry will be one of the closest in the borough. Friday next is polling day.

The Ravens.

A lot of old fossils with whiskers in tassels are always predicting the worst; we're in for a panic and evils titanic, and everything's going to burst. A lot of old grouches get up from their couches and beef till they toddle to bed; they're looking with horror on every to-morrow, and each has a boll in his head. This dirge they keep humming: "There's trouble a-coming, the storm clouds are thick in the sky! They're gathering faster, the clouds of disaster and there'll be a flood by and by!" Go to with your grunting! Go to with your hunting for omens of trouble and woe! The future's as pleasant and calm as the present, as smooth as the sweet long ago! A lot of old croakers in celluloid chokers sit round in the grocery store, and say we are humping away to the dumping, and sigh for the brave days of yore. But heed not the dirge!—the grocer's too civil or they'd be kicked into the street; the world is improving, the

Remarkable Escape from Starvation, off Cape Horn

Extract of letter from David James (Master), of the late barque, "Colorado," of Glasgow. "Having lost our ship on Staten Island, on the 25th of July, and having saved neither stores nor provisions, we were then compelled to travel over the island for ten days, subsisting on nothing but shell-fish and seaweed. On the 19th of July we came across another shipwrecked party of seventeen, the surviving part of the crew of the British ship "Dunskeig," of Glasgow, fourteen having perished through exposure. Now, the ship was lost on the 22nd of June, and a lot of the cargo, consisting of Epps's Cocoa, was washed ashore out of the wreck. There was nothing saved except the Cocoa, and we, numbering twenty-five men, were kept alive on it up to the 20th of August, when we were rescued by the steamer "Mercurio," of Buenos Aires.

"Too much praise cannot be given to this Cocoa. We had a good stock of it there; we used it in a liquid state for drink, we also baked it on the fire, which kept us alive and warm for 6 weeks on this barren island, situated in a region of perpetual ice and snow."

One of the largest fares of fresh fish ever landed here in mid-winter, was brought in to-day by 38 sail of boats, totalling for the day 768,000 pounds, or 354 tons of cod, haddock and halibut. Retail prices dropped materially during the day.

Special to Evening Telegram. BERLIN, Jan. 27.

Dr. Friedman wants $1,000,000 for American rights to his tuberculosis cure. German physicians strongly condemn what they call his non-ethical attitude. They go so far as to say that he is more concerned with the monetary than the humanitarian aspect of his discovery. Friedman has so far failed to carry out his promise to submit his culture to the Government. He has made various excuses for not doing so, but denies that there is any mercenary motive behind his action. He admits that he is waiting a reply from New York.

Special Evening Telegram. ROME, Jan. 27.

Pope Pius has contributed $60,000 for the foundation of a special school at Frascati, near Rome, for young men, who are desirous of becoming school teachers. The school will be under the management of the Salesian fathers. All orphans of the Messina earthquake, who are being brought up at the expense of the Pope, have been admitted to this school. They will be trained as teachers. It is hoped that the efforts of the anti-clericals against religious instruction in public schools, will thus be counteracted.

Special to The Evening Telegram. LONDON, Jan. 27.

An uncensored despatch from Constantinople confirms the previous accounts of the revolution and murder of Nazim Pasha. The state autopsist discloses the facts that the bodies of those killed bore dagger wounds, as well as bullet wounds, thus throwing doubt on the assertion that the murders were unpremeditated. According to the Daily Mail the Balkan ultimatum will give four days grace to enable the Powers to devise any possible means to bring pressure on the Porte. The Mail also says that Colonel Jostoff, Chief of the Staff of the Third Bulgarian Army, before Chat-alja, who is now acting as military adviser to the Peace mission, will leave London for the front to-morrow and that all the Powers, including Russia and Austria, have given assurance that hostilities will be limited to the Balkan States and Turkey.

Special Evening Telegram. London, Jan. 27.

The special commission appointed by the Balkan plenipotentiaries, drafted a note to-day, notifying the Turkish plenipotentiaries that they propose to break off peace negotiations. The note was not submitted by the Balkan delegations, which held no meeting to-day. Instead they gave a luncheon to celebrate the Saint Day of Saba, the patron of the Orthodox Church. Many from the delegations are leaving London to rejoin their armies, expecting the resumption of hostilities. The note drafted is brief. It reminds Turkey that since the 6th, the sittings of the Conference have been suspended without Turkey moving. Events occurring in Constantinople are proof that Turkey's answer to the demand of the Allies concerning Adrianople and the Aegean Islands, will be in the negative. On this account, or unless the Turkish delegation offers new proposals, negotiations will be definitely broken off. The Serbian Premier gives a luncheon to the other delegations to-morrow, after which the note will be examined, and thus another day will be gained before forcing the question of re-opening the war. Rechad Pasha, in an interview to-night, said he regretted the obstinacy of the Allies, which he declared was not only against Turkey's interests, but also against their own.

Shorthand Medal.

In connection with the recent semi-annual competitions of the Sloan-Duployan Shorthand Society, (Rams-gate, England), there is one Newfoundland success to chronicle. In the Class III Competitions, for the best shorthand note and transcript at 100 words per minute, the gold centre medal was won by Miss Lizzie Clark, of 25 Holdsworth Street, St. John's. A total of six medals in all were awarded, the remainder going to candidates in England, India, and the Malay States. Miss Clark is a pupil of Miss Nellie Vinnicombe, 42 Gower Street.

Plain Talk about Piles.

Don't you believe that experience is better than hearsay? If you suffer from piles, just try Zam-Buk. You can do so at our expense. So assured are we of the result that we will send you a free trial box if you send to our Toronto offices full name and address and a one cent stamp to pay return postage.

Scores of people daily acquaint us with the benefit they have derived from the use of Zam-Buk for piles. Mr. F. Astridge, of 3 St. Paul St., St. Catharines, Ont., says: "For five years I have suffered untold agony with protruding piles. The pain was so great at times I would almost scream.

"I lost weight and had no appetite. I tried everything I ever heard of for piles, as I was willing to take anything to get relief. It was useless, however, and I almost gave up in despair."

"One day a friend gave me a sample of Zam-Buk and told me of a friend of his who had been cured. I decided to try Zam-Buk, and the relief I got was encouraging. I used three boxes, and at the end of that time I was completely cured. I wish I could have got Zam-Buk years ago; it would have saved me a great deal of misery."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. See the registered name, "Zam-Buk," on every package.

This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough—stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, croup, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in gualacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully. A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to the Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

CRESCENTS DEFEAT FEILDIAINS.

Last night's hockey match between the Crescents and Feildians, resulted in a decided victory for the latter by ten goals to one. The attendance was the biggest for the season as it was thought before the game came off, that the Feildians would give last year's champions a task to beat them, and the game was fast throughout. This seemed to be the case for the first ten minutes of the exhibition. The champions evidently were reserving their strength and after that time elapsed they set a pace which was too strong for the Feildians and periodically beat the Feildian goal tender until they had ten goals registered whilst the Feildians were only rewarded with one goal for their efforts.

The Crescents displayed good combination and have some good individual play as well. The Feildians could be equally as good if they combined better as they have fast skaters. Last night's result shows that they should practice more. The line-up of the teams were:

Crescents	goal	Feildians
Thomas	point	Hunt
