CHAPTER XXIX.

"Brain fever!" said Lady Pauline, calm and on the alert by this time. "I don't understand."

He shook his head gravely.

"Severe brain fever," he said. Absolute candor was always required, demanded, by Lady Pauline, and he knew it. "There is no other trouble. Something was on her mind; something must have occurred between the interval of her first arrival and her return to this house."

Lady Pauline stared at him.

"What could have happened?" she said.

"That we have to discover," he said, quietly. "She must be kept quiet; but you know the treatment as well as I do, Lady Pauline."

Lady Pauline had for a time been a hospital nurse in her younger days. "I'll come back in an hour or two. Keep the ice bandages going; and if she should recover consciousness before I return, keep her as tranquil as possible."

Lady Pauline stood beside the bed with tightly compressed lips and aching heart. What had she done to this girl whom she loved with a mother's love?

The charwoman stole in presently, and Lady Pauline questioned her. She could not tell more than the doctor had already told. Lady Pauline sent for a wire for the servants to return, and returned her place beside the unconscious girl. The doctor came in again within this time.

"Something has happened to her—some shock," he said. "I can do nothing for her that you can not do, Lady Pauline. Absolute quiet, tranquillity, that is all."

"The hours dragged through. Later Lady Pauline saw the white eyelids quiver, and presently Decima looked up at her.

"Aunt Pauline!" she said in the thin, strained voice of fever.

"Yes; it is I, Decima, dear!"

The burning lips smiled wofully.

"I am glad you have come. Very glad, Aunt Pauline!"

"Yes, dear."

"Will you please tell Mr. Mershon that I can not marry him?"

Lady Pauline repressed a start. Was the poor child delirious? But Decima smiled again, as if she read the question, the doubt.

"No; I am quite sensible, dear," she said. "I promised Mr. Mershon. But, you see, I didn't know that, that I loved him."

"Him? Who?" asked Lady Pauline.

Decima stared at her as if surprised that the question should be necessary.

"Lord Gaunt," she said, quietly.

Lady Pauline could not repress the start now.

"Lord Gaunt?" she echoed.

Decima's hands clutched at the coverlet, with feverish violence, but her voice, thin and hollow though it was, was calm and free from delirium.

"Yes," she said. "Didn't you know? I love him, and—"

An exquisite smile lighted up her face, making its pale loveliness angelic by its intensity. "He loves me."

Lady Pauline permitted a groan to escape her.

"He loves me," continued Decima. "We shall never see each other again. Never! But I can not marry Mr. Mershon; not even to save father and Bobby. Poor Bobby! I am sorry; but I can not do it! I could have done it if—if I had not seen him—when was it? I forget. Was it long ago, years ago? But I know that he loves me, and I love him. I shall never see him again; but I can't marry Mr. Mershon or any one else. It is a pity, isn't it? But I can not! Will you write to him and tell him? He lives at The Firs, Leafmore."

Her mind wandered for a moment. "Leafmore! How beautiful it is. If he would only stay! The schools—the cottages—the church! How good he is!"

He does all we ask him! How good he is! And I love him—love him—love him! His wife! No, I can't be his wife! There is another woman—Oh, why did he make me love him so!"

She moved her head from side to side with feverish restlessness, then, as if with an effort, she came back to full consciousness.

"Write to—Mr. Mershon at once, Aunt Pauline. Tell him that I can not—can not. Ask him not to be angry. I know I am very wicked. Well, that is all, isn't it? I love him—love him! Promise, Aunt Pauline. I am slipping away—the light—the fire, all is growing dim; I can't see your face, though I know you are there. Promise!"

Lady Pauline bent over her.

"I promise. Be satisfied, dear!" she said; and Decima closed her eyes and drew a long sigh of relief.

CHAPTER XXX.

Gaunt found himself in the street outside the Mansions, very much in the condition in which Decima had been.

His brain was in a whirl. For him life had, so to speak, ended. He had lost Decima, the girl-love who had filled his heart, who had been the one star shining in his darkened life. He had lost her; and it was well. He shuddered as he thought of the risk she had run through his overwhelming temptation. If Laura, his wife—his wife!—had not appeared, what would have happened? Decima would have gone with him, and he would have wrecked the life of the sweetest, the purest of God's creatures!

He shuddered again, and an icy blast seemed to sweep over him. He felt cold, and remembered his fur coat at that moment, so absolutely physical was the sensation which assailed him. He could not go back for the coat. He buttoned the shooting jacket, and went on.

For a time he walked without any thought of the direction he was taking, but suddenly he looked round himself before Lady Pauline's house in the square. He gazed up at the windows; there was a light only in one. It must be her room; she was there. Scarcely knowing what he was doing, he stretched his arms out toward the light and groaned. He paced up and down for a moment or two, until, indeed, a policeman eyed him suspiciously and crossed over the road to inspect him more closely. Then Gaunt turned and strode on.

He had put up for the night at a quiet hotel in St. James's, one of those old-fashioned places which men of Gaunt's tastes prefer. It was small and not by any means gorgeous, but it was exclusive and more expensive than any of the modern palatial caravansaries. The butler—the head waiter was always called the butler—met him in the small hall, prepared to help him off with his coat, into which the man had assisted him, and was rather surprised at seeing Gaunt without it.

"I have left my coat at the—club, Wilkins," said Gaunt.

"Yes, my lord; I will send for it," said Wilkins, promptly.

But Gaunt shook his head.

"Never mind," he said, "I will pick it up as I drive to the station tomorrow."

As he spoke he handed his hat to the man, and Wilkins, taking it, saw the streak of blood on Gaunt's wrist.

"Have you cut your hand, my lord?" he asked. He had known Gaunt ever since he was a boy. Gaunt glanced at the stained wrist-band.

"Oh, ah, yes, I think I have, No, no; it is nothing. No, I won't have anything, thanks, Wilkins. I will go straight up; I am tired. You will have me called at half past six, please."

He went up to his room, not a large but an extremely comfortable one—for Morlet's Hotel was the perfection of comfort in all respects—and locking the door, flung himself into a chair beside the fire.

Yes, his life was ended. Remorse and love tore his heart like a couple of vultures. That he who loved her so dearly, so truly, should have tempted her to her ruin! His sweet, innocent girl-love, his pure white angel! And he should never see her again! The thought affected him as at that moment its parallel was affecting Decima. He could have borne the parting—the eternal parting—better if he had not known that she returned his love; but to know that she loved him—actually loved him—and to have to leave her forever, was a torture that nearly drove him mad.

Incredible as it may seem, he had not yet thought of his wife. There was only room for Decima in his mind and heart. As to what Laura would do, he was perfectly indifferent, when he did force himself to think of her, he would carry out her threat, claim her right as his wife, and drag his name in the mire, was quite possible, and more probable. But what did it matter? Nothing she could do could affect him. In a few hours he would have left England. It was very certain that he would never return. She might do just what she pleased. He would give her, surrender to her all she claimed—excepting himself. His rank, his wealth, the position due to her as his wife, she might have—but not himself.

Then his thought returned to Decima.

She must not marry Mershon. That, he felt, she would not do; but he would destroy Mershon's power; he would release the Deanes from the man's clutches. That, at any rate, he could do.

Her went to the writing-table, and wrote a letter to Belford & Lang, the lawyers. It was short and to the point.

"Ascertain," he said, "the amount in which Mr. Peter Deane is indebted to Mr. Mershon, and, any persons connected with the company started by him and Mr. Mershon, and discharge all his liabilities. I give you absolute carte blanche in the matter, and request that you will carry it through without a day's delay. It will have to be done with tact and discretion; and I leave the mode of doing it entirely to you, insisting only that it shall be done at once."

He drew a breath of relief as he addressed the envelope. At least, he could snatch his dearest from Mr. Mershon's clutches. But alas! alas! that was all he could do! He could not heal the heart which he had broken—for that he had broken it, the memory of her face, of her eyes as they rested on him at the moment of their parting, convinced him.

Yes, that was what his love for her had wrought! He had broken her heart. Perhaps, after all, it would have been better if that other woman had not come in, and he and Decima had gone away together—together! But he put the thought away from him. It was a desecration, a sacrilege. He had been mad with passion, with intoxication of her presence, her sweet voice, and more than all, her confession of love.

He paced up and down the room until dawn, then he packed the single bag he had with him—the rest of his luggage was already on board—and flinging himself on the bed, tried to sleep. But, like Macbeth, he had murdered sleep, and he was still awake when the maid knocked at the door.

The sight of his face in the glass startled him; he was shaking like a man suffering from the effects of a drinking bout. But the cold bath pulled him together somewhat, and he made a pretence of eating the admirably cooked breakfast.

Then he got into a cag and was driven to Charing Cross. Waterloo was his station for Southampton; but he had not intended taking Decima to Africa. He was known at Cape Town, was known to the officers of the vessel—the "Pevensey Castle"—in which he had booked his passage; so he had fixed on Egypt as their place of refuge.

The clock struck eight as he drove into the station-yard.

He told the cabman to wait, and then looked for her—though he knew that she would not come.

She had not come. With a sigh and a twitch of the set lips, he got into the cab again, and was driven to Waterloo. He was just in time to catch the train.

At Southampton one of the "Castle's" officials met him and conducted him to the vessel.

"Your baggage and cases are on board, my lord," he said. "Is this all you have? We start in less than an hour, or thereabouts."

UNEMPLOYED IN CANADA.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25. That unemployment throughout the Dominion and particularly in industrial centres was becoming a more serious problem every day was stated by C. G. Appeals were coming from all sections of Canada urging the Dominion Executive to immediately impress on the Dominion Government the necessity of inciting relief measures.

ON THE AFGHAN.

BIG DROP IN WHEAT PRICES.

MR. SQUIRES AT MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25. An agreement to refer the old dispute over the Labrador Boundary between Quebec and Newfoundland to the Privy Council has been reached, Hon. R. A. Squires, Premier of Newfoundland announced here to-day. Squires, who has just returned from London, states he signed the agreement with Hon. J. C. Doherty, Canadian Minister of Justice. When asked as to his present visit to Montreal Squires said it was in connection with the partial closing down by the N. S. Steel and Coal and the D. I. and S. Co. of their mining operations in Newfoundland. He said that during his absence, Roy Wolvin and others had visited Newfoundland and made arrangements with the Government concerning the royalty on ore. He did not know the particulars of this arrangement but presumed it was based upon the supposition that operations would be continued as before and even extended. As matter of fact they were being curtailed at least fifty per cent, the curtailment taking place shortly after the agreement was signed, and after at least fifteen hundred men had made arrangements for the winter months on the strength of the supposed continuation of the Company operations. The agreement, he said had not been ratified but he declined to express any opinion as to whether the action of the Company would or would not affect the matter when the contract would come before the legislature. Squires said he had not seen the agreement and did not know its contents. He refused to say whether it had his personal approval or not.

DISAPPROVE DISORDERS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. Several New York evening papers comment somewhat bitterly on yesterday's disorders after the MacSweeney Memorial Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral when a mob of five thousand Irish sympathizers seeing the British flag displayed in a window of the Union Club attacked the building and carried on a desperate battle until hordes of policemen drove them away.

Nfld. Club Dinner at Old McGill.

One may easily distinguish the Newfoundlanders of the University this morning, by the happy contented look which is apparent on their faces. It is the direct result of last night's dinner held in the Union Cafeteria. Practically one hundred per cent of the club was present, doing full justice to the splendid catering of Mr. Darvill.

Promptly at 8.15 the members took their seats, with the president, C. F. Davis, Arts '22, radiant at the head of the table. Amongst the invited guests were: Sir Thos. Roddick, M.D., LL.D., F.R.C.S., Col. G. E. Renouf, Col. Peters, D.S.O., M.D., Rev. W. T. Bradbury, B. A., B.D., and Mr. W. H. Hatcher, M.Sc. The first mentioned was unfortunately unable to attend.

After the festive board had been swept clean of its bountiful supply, the president headed the toast list by the toast of the king. Col. Peters then proposed that of McGill in a manner which portrayed the genuine affection which exists in all of McGill's graduates. He spoke of the importance of the University, the vast number of countries represented by its students, and of the importance of many conduct due from all connected with the College.

Mr. W. H. Hatcher, in responding, impressed upon those present the feeling of comradeship which existed between all graduates. He traced his experiences at McGill both as an undergraduate and as a lecturer. Mr. Hatcher is working at present for his Ph.D. and his success is earnestly wished by all.

Then there followed the election of officers for the coming year. The following were returned: President—C. F. Davis, Arts '22, re-elected. Vice-President—A. Jackman, Med. '23, re-elected. Secretary—G. Bishop, Arts '23, re-elected. Treasurer—A. Johnson, Com. '21, re-elected.

Reporter—H. Way, Law '23, elected. The final toast of the evening was proposed by Rev. W. J. Bradbury, in a brief manner. Col. Renouf in response gave his hearers a treat in the line of after-dinner speeches. With his usual wit and humor, aided by his great memory, he told of many episodes of his youthful days in Newfoundland and also dwelt for a space upon the enormity of the ignorance which the outside world has with respect to the youngest Dominion.

Altogether the evening was a most enjoyable one. Being the first function attempted by the club, its success was rather a matter of speculation, but now there is no doubt in the mind of every Newfoundland at McGill. The club will flourish and will continue to be a band to draw Newfoundlanders together at McGill. Also, as the constitution states, it will promote the interests of McGill University in Newfoundland.

Among the Newfoundlanders whom we welcome to McGill this year are: George Darby and Ches Blackler in medicine, Cyril Horwood in Commerce, David Miller in Arts, and Max Cram in Science. Every year brings an increase in the number of Newfoundlanders at the institution and this year the number is well over a hundred.—McGill Daily, Nov. 19.

Lifeboat Crew's Splendid Work.

The bursting of rockets as daylight was breaking on November 23, 1911, summoned the Montrose lifeboatmen to the Aberdeen steamer "Leelite," which, with its crew of ten, was in jeopardy. Thrilling scenes were witnessed in effecting the rescue of those on board. When opposite Scoury Ness Lighthouse and close to the dreaded Annat Bank, the "Leelite" was struck on the starboard bow by a particularly heavy sea. The engines were going full speed ahead, but the vessel, reeling before the impact of the mass of water, refused to answer her helm, and was driven broadside on to the sandbank, the hull syringing round until her bow pointed landwards. The smaller lifeboat, "Marianne Atherstone," admirably adapted for surf work, was soon on the scene, but daylight revealed a precarious situation for both the rescuers and those in distress. At last communication was established by a line, and ultimately a hawser. The life-saving brigade were on the beach ready for action in case the lifeboatmen found the task beyond them. But the boat, slowly and surely, drew near the "Leelite," whose crew assisted in their own rescue by pulling the hawser on a winch, and in that way helped the lifeboatmen to make progress in the teeth of the wind. Shortly after nine o'clock the crew mustered on the fore-castle, and from the shore the crowd, in breathless excitement, saw the men, one by one, make their jump for life. A running line was floated to the lifeboat by means of a buoy, and each mariner, with his life-belt round him, was tied to the line, plunged into the sea, and was then handed on board the lifeboat. Nine escaped the short but tempestuous passage through the surf, and eight were successfully secured. The ninth man, when he made his dive from the vessel, was swept from the lifeboat and the line snapped, but being a good swimmer he kept himself afloat in the boiling sea until he reached the "Atherstone." The captain remained on his vessel until one of the owners made a second journey to it in the afternoon. The next day the tug "Granite City," assisted by the "Leelite's" own steam, succeeded in drawing the vessel from the grip of the sands and taking her into dock for repairs.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Whitman, who have been for the past three months or so visiting their two daughters, Mrs. (Adj.) Trickey of Toronto, and Mrs. Arthur Webber of Halifax, as well as other friends, and places of interest in Canada, returned to town again by Monday night's train, having spent a most enjoyable time. Mrs. Webber, wife of the late Captain Valentine Webber of this town, left for Freshwater on Friday last to reside in future with her sister, Mrs. Matilda Parsons. This old lady has many friends here, who will be pleased to know she has gone to spend the remainder of her declining years where she will be well cared for.

Mr. Thomas Thistle, who has been for the past two months doing business at Hooping Harbor and Englee for Mr. E. Simmons, arrived at St. John's by the S.S. Prospero yesterday, and came on here by last night's train.

Dugald Munn, Esq., of St. John's has been in town for the past couple of days. His many friends were pleased to see him.

Mrs. J. B. Ash, caretaker at the old Custom House, on Water Street East, has been confined to her home for the past few weeks suffering from a heavy cold, but we are pleased to know she is much improved, and her many friends are hoping to see her out again shortly. It will be remembered by our readers that Mrs. Ash's only son, Francis, made the supreme sacrifice during the Great War while fighting with the Canadians, and today, like many more of our gallant boys, fills a hero's grave somewhere in France.

Miss Elsie Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy of this town, and Nurse at the Children's Hospital, St. John's, was a passenger by last night's train to spend a while with her parents and friends here.

Messrs. E. and L. Barnes of Bell Island, arrived here by motor boat on Thursday and leave again for the Island to-day.

Rev. F. S. Coffin leaves for the city by to-morrow morning's train, and will be away for a couple of days.

Mr. E. Simmons arrived from the city by last night's train, having spent a few days there doing business.

Schooner Portia came off dock this morning.

Schooners Glencoe and Ellen S. are in port awaiting dockage. The Bog Pond off Carbonear road is in fine trim for skating, so the young people tell us, and some of them have been indulging in this fine outdoor exercise at this place during the last few days. Before the rink on Harvey Street came into existence this pond was very frequently visited by the skaters in days gone by, and, no doubt, the mere mentioning of the name will bring back pleasant memories to a great number of our readers.

Souring Milk by Electricity.

Milk that is exposed, immediately sours during a thunderstorm, and this phenomenon is accounted for in a very simple and natural way. Milk, like most other substances, contains millions of bacteria. The milk bacteria that in a day or two, under natural conditions, would cause the fluid to sour, are peculiarly susceptible to electricity. Electricity insinuates and invigorates them, affecting them as alcohol, cocaine, or strong tea affects men. Under the current influence they fall to work with amazing energy, and instead of taking a couple of days to sour the milk they accomplish the task completely in a half-hour. With an electric battery it is easy, on the same principle, to sour the freshest milk.

To-Morrow's Collection.

Our day of annual tribute has come again. To-morrow, we, who are so much indebted to the Christian Brothers, will have an opportunity to give expression to our appreciation of the care and competency bestowed on us in the years gone by. How well were the foundation stones of our future laid. How fortunate were we to have had the advantage of passing through the Brother's hands. As the years roll on, do we not all the more truly realize that if we are enabled to competently fill our positions in different avenues in the world's work it is mainly due to the training given us at a period when we little realized its importance. And what was done for us is now being done daily at St. Patrick's and Holy Cross Schools for nearly a thousand boys, who have not yet started life's battle. It is our common duty to see that they and others after them may continue to get the chance that was given to us. To have this done the presence of Christian Brothers in increasing numbers is necessary. Our part is to help a little towards the maintenance of these great teachers, who neither require, nor under their vows can take, from us anything except enough for food and clothing. And as our offering is nothing more than a tribute to their work, let us see to it that to-morrow's collection will be worthy of these splendid men and creditable to ourselves. Let us give to the utmost of our means. OLD BOY.

Czar's Lesson in Charity. Ivan the terrible, who ruled in Russia from 1530 to 1584, often roamed through his country, in disguise. One night having arrived at a small village, near Moscow, he knocked at the door of every house without gaining admittance until he came upon a novel, which he was invited to enter and partake of their supper. As a storm raged without, the poor couple within invited their unknown visitor to sit by the fire where he remained all night. When he left in the morning, Ivan told his host that he would return that evening with some god-fathers for a new born infant in the home. At dusk he appeared, splendidly dressed and accompanied by many nobles and a regiment of soldiers. The astonished laborer was loaded down with valuable gifts, while the soldiers set about burning down every other place in the village, the czar shouting out exhortations to the fleeing inhabitants to be charitable thereafter.

Encourage Home Industries.

To Sister Unions: At the regular meeting of the Newfoundland Industrial Workers' Association held in their rooms, corner of Springdale and Water Street, on Friday night, Nov. 12th, the question of closing down of the Shoe Factories came up for consideration, and as we feel that all Union Men are brothers, the Association moved to have itself placed on record as being in sympathy with those who are out of employment through the action of said factories, and further, that a set of Resolutions be prepared by the Executive, calling on all Union men to patronize and buy local made shoes, so as to terminate this lay off as speedily as possible. The Resolutions follow: That Whereas the Shoe Factories are closed for an indefinite period in this city, causing a lot of Union men to be out of employment; And Whereas living expenses are enormously high, and a man wants every hour to be able to support his family; And Whereas it is a fact if Union men and their families would buy local made shoes instead of the imported article, this stopping of work would not have happened. Be it Resolved that the Union men of St. John's, with their families pledge themselves to buy nothing but local made shoes, provided they are as cheap as the imported article, so as to relieve the congestion as speedily as possible.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

"I SHALL WORRY!"

RUTH CAMERON

There is a certain class of tyrant whose rod of rule consists of a three-word sentence, "I shall worry."

She (it is more often a "she" so I will simplify matters by using that pronoun, although, as it happens, the very worst case of this kind of tyranny that I have ever known was exercised by a man) uses this rod to stop those whom love or custom has made her subjects, from doing things that she permits to trouble her peace of mind.

I remember a girl friend of mine who was never allowed to go boating with the rest of us, although she was a good swimmer and the boating was supervised by an adult, because her mother had once been in a boat accident and had conceived a horror of the water. "Mother says she would worry every minute while I was out," she would report after she had more made a plea to be allowed to go on some boat picnic, "so I can't."

ence. For instance, children do break their arms falling out of trees, but it is right to forbid a boy the great experience of tree climbing because of that element of danger? Aren't you running a greater danger of making a molly-coddle out of him?

Be Careful You Aren't Thinking of Yourself.

Secondly, one should be mighty sure that the reason one interferes is that one really feels that the danger run is great enough to make the experience cost too dearly, and not because one knows that oneself is going to have the misery of a troubled mind.

If one has not strength enough of mind to conquer the habit of worry, I think one should make oneself the sufferer and not try to make others bear the burden.

It is not always children who are the slave of this "I shall worry" tyranny. Husbands sometimes suffer from the rod, also.

Some years ago the postmaster of Boston made the trip from Boston to New York by aeroplane. Aeroplanes were looked on with even greater apprehension then than now, and it was a big adventure. His wife might well have opposed it, but she did not.

She Was a True Sport.

Later Postmaster Murray said to a friend, "She did not want me to go, but she knew I wanted to, and she never said one word in opposition. When I kissed her goodbye as I left the house, before I started for the airplane, I knew her heart was in her throat. But she didn't say one word in opposition to the trip. The moment the machine landed in New York I rushed to a long distance phone: 'Am in New York safe, sweetheart,' I said. Then she broke down and cried. I am through worrying that little woman! I have taken my last joy ride in an airplane."

This picture of the pride and honor that a woman who would try to control her fears, can arouse in her husband, is respectfully commended to the women who rule by the rod of "I shall worry."

Before plucking a fowl, dip bird into boiling water for a few minutes, then roll it up in a clean bag for ten minutes. In this way much labor is saved.

Bone Libraries.

"Lending libraries" in which bones play the same part as books do in the orthodox library, are not uncommon in connection with universities. Any bone in the collection may be borrowed and kept for a week on payment of 25 cents. These libraries are in some cases valued as highly as $25,000, a skeleton complete being worth from $30 to $100, according to its condition. A skull brings from $1.25 to $5; and a perfect specimen—a comparative rarity—as much as $50. Leg, arm and collar bones command a ready market at from 50 cents to $1.25 each, while a perfect string of spinal vertebrae is valued at $5.

Three Million Medals.

According to a British War Office statement three million war medals have now been distributed. This distribution includes: 350,000 "1914 Stars," 1,397,455 "1914-15 Stars," 998,421 British War medals and 959 Victory medals, 275,000 "1914-15 Stars," over 600,000 British War medals, and fifty Victory medals have gone to Overseas Dominions and Colonies.

NOVEMBER WINDS.

WAT MASON

November winds are harshly brawling about my shack, the long night thro' and in my bed I hear them squalling around the window and the flue. I hear them hammer at the sashes, I hear them spring the ancient wheeze: "Stoke up your fire, shake down the ashes, or all the hanging plants will freeze!" November's voice is wild and rancorous, the genial zest of life it kills, and all night long it seems to mock us with hints of coming plumbers' bills. By day we hear November shrieking, and bear up well beneath our cross, although we know that autumn's sneaking, and winter comes, a total loss. By day we have our toils and troubles to occupy our divers minds; we saw our wood and blow our bubbles, and give small heed to walling winds. But in the night, with darkness round us, and ghost steps creaking on the stair, the wild winds seem to hunt and hound us, and fill our bosoms with despair. There's nothing speaks more poignant sorrow than bleak November's voice at night; and so we lie and wish the morrow would come and bring its helpful light.

Turk Officials Cling to Tradition.

It is clear that even in these days of unrest the wily Turks "has not changed a bit from what they used to be." During the war they were tenacious fighters and courteous foes, but higher officials maintained one of their ancient customs, that of retaining public funds that happened to come into their custody. One of the great obstacles of getting anything done in Turkey in the way of public works or other government enterprises has always been the habit practiced by those in authority of stealing the funds intended for the pay of workmen or lesser officials. It is, indeed, one of the chief complaints of those who are agitating for the independence of Egypt that England, pursuing her instincts of "oppression," put an end to this national custom which had grown up in the land of the Nile under the old Turkish regime. If the Friends of Oppressed Peoples get their way, the ancient liberty to plunder the public purse will be restored to the disinherited peoples of Asia who have come under British rule.

We are reminded of the ancient art of free-booting so long practiced by the Turk, by certain litigation which has been going on in United States courts with regard to the bank accounts of the former Turkish Ambassador, the late Abdul Hak Hussein Bey. It appears that prior to the entry of the United States into the war, Turkey, as an ally of Germany, had a certain number of friends in the United States, and that in Detroit, Chicago and other large cities, bazaars and other entertainments were held to raise funds for the "Red Crescent," analogous to the Red Cross of Christian lands. In all, $114,364 was collected and handed to the Turkish Ambassador for transmission to Constantinople. Abdul Hak Hussein Bey's ideas of a fair division were on strictly traditional lines. He forwarded approximately $19,000 and kept the other $95,000 for himself, distributing it judiciously in various deposit accounts. Then death intervened to prevent his enjoyment of it. The present Turkish Government having learned of the Red Crescent funds, came to the conclusion that the Ambassador's idea of a proper commission were exaggerated, and is taking steps to recover. The legal questions involved are, however, so obscure that Hussein Bey's widow is likely to retain the funds for her own relief.—Saturday Night.

Drawing Divisional Lines.

If, as has been alleged—and without official denial it must be accepted as fact—that a Government guarantee against loss in the purchase of Labrador fish, has been given certain exporting firms, it means a radical departure from established methods, and one which may well be regarded with distrust and disfavor. To use the revenues of the dominion for the purpose of bolstering up commercial deals by private corporations is something hitherto unheard of and if such is actually the case a really dangerous precedent has been created, which may react with grave consequences upon all involved in the arrangement. It is neither fair, just nor equitable that a privilege of such far-reaching importance should be accorded a minority of the fish buyers in St. John's. It is a vicious scheme of protection for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many, and is without doubt a particular favor to a particular class, benefitting only a certain section of the Colony. If market conditions abroad are so favorable as have been reported and enlarged upon, and if the demand is greater than the supply—and the Government press has not failed to preach that it is—why should there be any need for a Government guarantee against loss in fish transactions? If the staple export of Newfoundland is commanding good prices in Europe and elsewhere, why the necessity of pledging the revenue to help out a corporal's guard of local shippers?

Such a preference shows rank discrimination, and is a slap in the face to export exporters who have been obliged to ship cargoes and take chances without any favored guarantee. Why should not they participate in the privilege granted St. John's competitors? Why was not a guarantee given in their favor? Is the reason far to seek? When cargoes on the South West Coast were refused clearance, and their owners faced with a substantial loss through deterioration and other causes, was there any hope held out that the Government would come to the rescue and make good any deficit? No, there was not. These exporters were penalised. They received no protection or guarantee whatever. All the losses incurred by enforced delay and damage had to be shouldered by themselves. They were discriminated against deliberately. Because the holding back of permits to sail was done in order that firms in St. John's might benefit through getting off all their old (1919) fish. The whole trade of the South West Coast was held up. The business of the mercantile body on that section was paralysed and disorganised, but there was no promise made to equalise the losses. To-day, when it is discovered that there is a prospect of loss involved in fish transactions for St. John's firms, the credit of the dominion is pledged in their behalf. Thus are divisional lines sharply drawn. The South and West can row their own boat, and do the best they can to minimise their losses, but the Government intervenes to save the fortunate few in the capital. If this is not class protection, what is it? The Western trade has suffered because of the Fishery Regulations, and the first-fruits of Coaker's policy in so far as it has affected the West Coast, are shown in the assignment of three of the largest firms doing business in the districts of Burin and Burgeo and LaPoile with—unfortunately—others to follow. Had these been protected by a Government guarantee this financial debacle may have been prevented, but the West has to suffer in order that the Capital shall be saved.

The "Star" and Mr. Penny.

The Star was evidently very hard up for space fillers yesterday. The poor, overworked editor had exhausted himself on Thursday by venting his spleen on the Telegram, spleen, by the way, which like Gray's rose, "was born to bluish unseen, and waste its sweetness (?) on the desert air." Even the Bard of Avon failed the Star last night, and every bit of the editorial space of that illustrious journal was given up to pleading that poor Mr. Penny be saved from his friends. We can all imagine Mr. Penny crying, "Save me from my friends!" unless he is becoming fed up with their abnormal generosity. Surely, friends who were kind enough to send him on a picnic to Norway and other countries, where, as he tells us himself, he was provided with the best of everything, are not friends that one would want to be saved from! The Star has a lot to say about what Mr. Penny could, or would have said at that very unsuccessful meeting of Coaker's. We, however, are not worrying about what he would or could have said. What is more to the point is what he did say, and that was certainly a splendid proof of the Government's generosity when dealing with its friends. But the Star evidently has inside information as to what was behind that picnic, and so has good reason to say, on behalf of Mr. Penny, "Save me from my friends!"

Get Salt Supply.

Now is the time to look out for the salt supply for next spring. An effort should be made to get it cheaper than it is to-day, viz: $4.50 per hhd. It is high prices like this that cause the fishermen in considering the outfit for next season. In the older days the merchants used to get the most of the salt for the coming season in the fall of the year in large steamers, which gave them a cheaper freight.

Previous to the war salt was bought here at low at 85 cents a hhd. At least it should be next year not more than $3.00 per hhd. In older days too, a stock was kept stored on the Labrador, but this practice has been gradually abandoned, and to-day there is none worth while remaining over, except at Battle Harbor at Baine Johnston's rooms.

We all remember the crisis that arose last May here for want of salt from Cadiz, and only that a steamer load was got from Liverpool, the fishery would not have been prosecuted by thousands of fishermen.

The same trouble is likely to occur next Spring unless provision is made against it in time. We notice that very few of the schooners are taking home salt this fall. In most cases they are not able to get it, as the merchants that supply them had none in stock. It is a matter for the Board of Trade to consider, and the sooner it is dealt with the better.—Trade Review.

Food Shortage North.

RESIDENTS OF WHITE BAY FACED WITH SERIOUS CONDITIONS.

We have received additional information this week of the serious condition of affairs in White Bay as regards the shortage of food from Cape John to Canada Bay. The residents of White Bay in particular are now living on allowance and, unless they get speedy relief before the Bay freezes over there will be starvation. They have no flour, no sugar, molasses, beef, pork, or kerosene oil.

They are living now on potatoes and fish, and that will not hold out in most settlements till Christmas. The dealers who supplied them in other years, are out of the business now for manifold reasons, and as there are no supplies going there it now devolves upon the Government to see that nobody dies of starvation in White Bay this coming winter. It soon will be too late to get food there as Sopp's Arm in the bottom of the Bay is already frozen over and the rest of the Bay outside soon will be.

We hope that Mr. Scammell, who represents the District of St. Barbe, will not fail to bring this case before the notice of the Government. We have no doubt that he has done so long ago, as he must surely be aware of what conditions are in White Bay. It is to be hoped then that a steamer before the Bay is frozen over and navigation is impossible to Jackson's Arm and the intervening harbors whence supplies could be distributed.—Trade Review.

Neglected War Trophies

Some months ago a number of war trophies, amongst which were a tank and several field guns, were sent out here by the Imperial Government and were hauled to Water Street opposite A. J. Harvey's bakery. Since then, they have stayed in that position, a prey to the small boy and the weather. Yesterday, however, a number of mechanics were employed in getting the tank in running order, preparatory to moving it to a more suitable position. It is hoped that after the land battleship has been moved the field pieces will be given attention, and if possible placed in some prominent position in the city where they will be recognised as something of value.

Song Service Revival.

In connection with the regular service at Cochrane Street Centennial Church on Sunday evening, there will be held a song service on the lines of those which were so much in favour prior to the burning of the old church. The subject on Sunday evening will be "Songs of the Sea," and a number of well-known hymns of this character will be sung by the entire congregation. The Pastor, Rev. Dr. Bond, will take "The Sea" as the subject for his sermon. The full order of service will be printed with words of the various hymns. Ushers will be in attendance, and all visiting friends will be welcomed. Service commences at 6.30 p.m.

No Relief Being Sent to White Bay.

PROSPERO TAKING VERY LITTLE FREIGHT FOR THAT SECTION.

The S. S. Prospero this trip is loading very little freight for White Bay. Despite the almost frantic appeals of residents of the district, who arrived from there last week, to have relief sent to the almost starving people, the Government has sent no aid. Representations have been sent to Port Union but help has not been forthcoming from that quarter. The conditions in White Bay and parts of the French Shore—as published in the Telegram do not half describe the sufferings and deprivation actually existing. It has been admitted by one of the Government members that the half is not known and if the details were published the result would be appalling. This gentleman admitted that the Government was powerless to cope with the situation, which he said was brought about by the Opposition tactics. Asked the reason why, the explanation was given that owing to spare headlines in some recent New York papers, parties who, under Government permission intended to cut pit props and pulpwood, withheld making contracts hoping that conditions would become worse, and then they would get their work done for little or nothing. This statement needs no comment. The whole trouble is that the country has been managed by children in business and, like in the Kindergarten, they cry, "You did it."

We learn, however, that the S. S. Clyde, sailing to-day, took a large shipment of flour for Port Union.

The Es-Gi Class will hold a Sale in the basement of Gower St. Church on Monday evening, Nov. 29th, at 7.45 o'clock. Tea, 20c. Fancy Work, Candy and Ice Cream will be on sale. Proceeds will be devoted to the Armenian Relief Fund. Admission free.—nov27,61

Four boys were charged with loose and disorderly conduct. It was proven that they had been making nuisances of themselves to several people and had used profane language before much younger boys. They were each fined $5 or 20 days.

Aunt Emmy Writes.

Dearest Priscilla:—
I am writing to you on a subject which I consider to be of the greatest importance, and that subject is Christmas Shopping. Do you remember what happened last year? I had at least twelve different lots of presents to buy, and I distinctly remember that I caused twelve distinct disappointments through buying these presents too late. Now, dear Priscilla, to be precise to-day is considered old-fashioned, but I am going to be very precise.

In the first place, I am determined this year not to fall into the same error as I fell last year. Last year I forgot several very important friends who in the past have been extraordinary good to me, and I don't intend to do the same this year.

My plan is this: I am going to begin my Christmas Shopping next week, and I am going to select all the things I want after careful consideration, of course—because to-day the question of Gift buying is very, very important.

By the end of the week I hope to have all my needs chosen, properly packed, labelled and ready to send off.

Again, dear Priscilla, I have come to the conclusion that useful presents should be the presents for to-day. After all, conditions are such that most of us, whatever we are, would much prefer presents that are useful to those that are merely charming and ornamental; except, of course, children, who must be amused; and one cannot amuse a child with a pair of socks.

I hope to arrive in St. John's on Monday morning, and start my shopping right away. Can you arrange to come with me to the Stores, as I should very much like to have the benefit of your common-sense way of dealing with practical matters? I feel sure, too, that you will bring your shopping list with you so that we can buy together.

I am particularly anxious this year to compare values, because one gets so interested in reading the various statements about "Prices." I am particularly glad to think that I am going to stay at your home as it is so conveniently close to The Royal Stores.

I am quite decided in my mind, dear Priscilla, so do please try and arrange your affairs so that we can finish this business together during the week.

Your affectionate,
AUNT EMMY.

Helpful Suggestions.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—As our friend the "Star" seems to be going a bit slow and has evidently run out of original ideas and knowing that in a few days it will have to make a show on account of the Prime Minister's long looked for return, it occurred to me it would be a kindly act to furnish some new material for them to incorporate in their columns. The following are a few suggestions.

- The Star will probably say:
(1) The Prime Minister on landing in Newfoundland appeared to be in rugged health and more affable than his wont.
(2) The Prime Minister expressed annoyance at having been called away from Europe just as the League of Nations was about to sit and the "Vacant Chair" reserved for the President of the U.S. might have been occupied by Mr. Squires, but affairs at home were in such a state that further delay in returning was out of the question.
(3) Prime Minister Squires smiled benignly when some of the party explained to him the condition of business in Newfoundland, and one could not help feeling satisfied that the Master Mind had arrived, and all would now be well.
(4) The Prime Minister expressed great annoyance that further advance had not been made in the agriculture of the country, and was astonished when he learned that the Minister of Agriculture had been away on a picnic all the summer and had purchased a collection of animal bric-a-brac including dog fighting sheep. He intimated that a Curio sale would soon take place.
(5) The Prime Minister was greatly pained when he learned of the lax administration of the law, particularly when the estimated quantity of smuggled rum on the South Coast was laid before him and the enormous growth of the Moonshine trade; judging from the manner in which his law was set it looks as if Newfoundland would be really "bone dry" when he again takes up the reins of Premiership.
(6) Dealing with the law regarding clog season for Beaver the Prime Minister got somewhat heated and expressed irritation at the long absence in London of the Minister of Justice whose job it was to enforce all laws. Confidentially the Prime Minister muttered something about stopping over for months in London to make dates with Canadian Ministers for future Labrador picnics.
(7) When asked about his statement in the press that all Prime Ministers should get a salary of at least $50,000.00 a year the Primer raised his eyebrows and said "well why not! you know the old adage "Go while the goings good!" and after all is said and done, my responsibilities and administrative work are about equal to the Mayor of a medium sized town but they are foolish enough to work for nothing. NOT ME!!!

smiled and closing one eye said "Wah and See"! Any or all of the above suggestions are respectfully submitted to the Star and they are welcome to use any of the ideas.
Yours truly,

Wedded at Ayr.

A very pretty wedding of more than usual interest took place on Wednesday afternoon, in St. Leonard's Parish Church, Ayr. Both bride and bridegroom have a very large circle of friends. The church was beautifully decorated with plants and flowers and was crowded with personal friends and interested spectators.

The bridegroom, Lieut.-Col. James H. G. Borland, O.B.E., served throughout the great war, and was badly wounded therein, from which he is now fully recovered. He is the elder son of ex-Provost Borland, J.P., and Mrs. Borland, of Burside, Irvine. The bride, Miss Eleanor Maud Scott, is the third and youngest daughter of Mr. S. Scott, retired Controller of Customs and Excise, and Mrs. Scott, of Fairholm, Castlehill Road, Ayr.

The marriage service was performed in a very impressive manner by the Rev. J. Ellis, B.D., minister of the parish, and the bride's father gave the bride away. The service was choral. Mr. Cresswell, organist of the church, presided at the organ, and played the "Wedding March" of Mendelssohn as the happy couple left the church. The bridegroom was attended by Captain Chas. L. Stuart, R.E., of Kirkcaldy, as groomsmen; and the bride by Miss Maimie Robertson, Clockanhill, Alloway, as bridesmaid.

The bride looked charming in white satin beaute, the frock made in classical style with wide silver lace draperies at the sides. Her court train was of ruffled pink Georgette, veiled with white silk tulle, with two large rings of orange blossoms sewed on each corner of the train. Her veil was white sewed tulle, held over the head with a wreath of silver leaves and long silver ribbons hanging to the foot of the veil. She carried a sheaf of arm lilies tied with silver ribbons. She was attended by her bridesmaids and two little pages.

The bridesmaid—Miss M. Robertson—was prettily attired in a shot peach and silver taffeta frock; she wore a cap of silver lace, and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums, tied with tulle ribbons.

Miss Betty Stewart (the bride's niece), made a very dainty little page. She wore a very pretty white frilled charmeuse frock, trimmed with silver and a wreath of silver leaves in her hair. Master Ian Lorimer, a smart, manly, little fellow, looked a perfect Scottish page, being handsomely dressed in the kilt.

A reception was afterwards held in the Station Hotel by Mr. and Mrs. Scott, the father and mother of the bride.

The happy couple left during the reception for their honeymoon. The bride travelled in a neat navy-blue gabardine with wide white stripes, and a chic navy-blue panne-velvet hat with black and white coque feathers, and long sealskin coat with skunk collar and cuffs.

The bridegroom's present to the bride was a magnificent diamond and platinum watch bracelet. To the bridesmaid he gave a silver and tortoise shell travelling clock, and the little pages received a platinum and pearl brooch and a diamond and platinum scarf-pin. The bride's present to the bridegroom was a set of silver toilet brushes.

The wedding presents, which were splendid and costly, amounted over 150.

The floral decorations in the church were executed by Messrs. Carnegie, of the Belmont Nurseries, Maybole Road, and also by the gardeners of Mr. Borland from Irvine. They were most tasteful and artistic and were much admired.—Ayrshire Post, Nov. 5.

(Note.—Miss Scott did a lot of entertaining while the Royal Newfoundland Regiment was stationed at Ayr, and the many soldier friends of the bride will join in hearty felicitations on the above happy event.)

First Doctors— Then a Skin Specialist— Then a Bottle of D.D.D.

I will consider it a favour if you will allow me to add my testimonial to the many hundreds you no doubt have in praise of the great results effected by the D.D.D. Prescription. I was a sufferer for two years with eczema on the legs and ankles. I tried three or four different doctors and none of them did me any good. I got tired of trying their remedies. I then went to a skin specialist but he was no better than they. I was reading the Sunday paper and happened to see your ad. I am very glad that I did.

I secured a trial bottle of D.D.D. and it did me so much good that I sent for a dollar bottle, also a cake of soap. That is all I used, and I am perfectly well. I have advised several others to use it and the results have been the same. You are at liberty to use my name for I consider D.D.D. the best remedy in use.

J. W. CORNERS, 33 Melbourne Ave., Toronto, Ont., Can.

Anyone suffering from skin trouble—mild or severe—should investigate at once the merits of D.D.D. Try it to-day. Your money back unless the first bottle relieves you. Ask your druggist.

Stomach O. K.

Indigestion, Acidity, Sourness and Gases ended with "Pape's Diapepsin"

Millions of people know that it is needless to be bothered with indigestion, dyspepsia or a disordered stomach. A few tablets of Pape's Diapepsin neutralize acidity and give relief at once.

When your meals don't fit and you feel uncomfortable, when you belch gases, acids or raise sour, undigested food. When you feel lumps of indigestion pain, heartburn or headache, from acidity, just eat a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the stomach distress is gone.

The cost is so little. The benefits so great. You, too, will be a Diapepsin enthusiast afterwards.

Awarded Certificate.

Messrs. Joseph Howse and Arthur Benson have been awarded a master and mate's certificate of competency. The former assumes command of the "Little Princess" and the latter the "Admiral Drake."

World's Longest Car Ferry.

The new railway ferry line, which is being planned to run between England and Sweden, will be the longest in the world. A tremendous ferry boat with engines furnishing about twelve thousand horse-power is to travel daily between the two countries, bearing upon its huge decks freight trains forty-eight cars in length. Besides this there will be provision for taking travellers from the first to the fourth class, together with dining-rooms, promenades and other agreeable features. The journey requires thirty-three hours. After arriving on land the freight train at once proceeds upon the English or Swedish tracks as the case may be. It is obvious that a tremendous saving both in time and in labor can be thus accomplished.

C.M.B.C.—The C.M.B.C. will meet in the Synod Building to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Studies in Christian Character will be continued, the subject for to-morrow being, "The Life of St. Paul." Men from the out-ports are cordially welcome.

Our Scholastic Institutions.

METHODIST COLLEGE AND HOME.

(By our special representative)

During the week our representative visited the Methodist College, and was shown over the Home by the Guardian, Rev. Mr. Darby, and the school proper by the Principal, Mr. S. T. Harrington, M.A. The first part of our visit was confined to an inspection of the Home. In all, there are about 63 boarders, boys and girls. On the first floor is the girls' common room, in which those girls who have not a private room, do their homework, etc. Also on this floor are the boys' "prep" room, and the common dining hall. In the latter there is a seating capacity of 64. The second floor contains the girls' apartments and the guardian's rooms. The former consist of one dormitory with room for eleven girls, and several private rooms, each of which has two beds and a table. Those who have these private rooms do their homework there. The dormitory has several wardrobes for the girls' convenience. This floor also contains a bath-room with two baths and four wash-basins. In all, there are 22 girls staying at the Home. On this floor too, are an infirmary and a music room.

The boys' apartments are on the top floor. Here, there are two dormitories, one containing six cubicles and the other has six beds also but no cubicles. Several private bedrooms are on this floor and there is also a bathroom fitted with two baths and four wash-basins. This completed our inspection of the Home. Rev. Mr. Darby informed us that the Board of Directors hope to start the erection of the proposed new home in the spring. At present, they are rather cramped for room.

We next went across to the school proper, over which we were conducted by Mr. Harrington. Although the building is very commodious, here again, there is a lack of room as the number of pupils is in the neighbourhood of 600. On the first floor are the kindergarten, two excellently fitted gymnasiums, and the rooms of the 1st and 2nd and 4th standard. All of these rooms are very large, well lighted and well heated. They are all filled to overflowing. In the 1st and 2nd standard room alone, there are 96 pupils. On the second floor are seven form rooms and the laboratory. In the primary and associate rooms, the boys and girls work together but for the preliminary and intermediate grades there are separate rooms for each sex.

We must confess that we inspected some of these rooms with feelings of trepidation, and the curious stares of the many young ladies up to the finishing touches to our embarrassment. Up to this time we had had rather a good opinion of our person but on entering the above mentioned rooms, we felt like Bunco the glass eater or some other equally amusing person, amusing that is, to the spectators. However, we managed to pull ourselves together and get through the ordeal without a total breakdown.

Practically the whole of the top floor is occupied by the magnificent hall which is very well known to everybody. On the whole, we were very pleased with everything we saw. This was the first institution we have visited during working hours, and we were delighted to note the interest which every pupil seemed to have in his or her work. The only pity is, that the work is somewhat handicapped by a lack of space which we hope will be remedied in the near future. Everything possible is done to interest the pupils in their work, and a great deal of attention is also paid to athletics both for the girls and the boys. The former have latterly taken up basket ball and are proving adepts at that game, which is a game that requires a great deal of skill to be able to play it well. We must express our congratulations to Mr. Harrington, and his capable associates on the very efficient manner in which the institution is kept up.

Bishop as Smuggler.

The Belvoir collection of tapestries, owned by the Manners Family for centuries, are advertised for sale. The history of this collection is full of picturesque incident. Reynolds advised the Duke of his day as to the merits and demerits of some of the pieces, protesting that a Vandey was "an immense picture very scantily filled, with more defects than beauties," or a Rubens "not worth the money asked for it." But most entertaining of all were the negotiations for the purchase of the great "Seven Sacraments" of Poussin, which had to be smuggled out of Rome and Italy. The Bishop of Killala is said to have acted as go-between for the Duke and the actual smuggler, and there is a letter at Belvoir Castle begging the Bishop to warn the Duke not to mention the agent's name, "which might be attended by the worst consequences to me here, where we live under a despotic Government more jealous than ever of things going out of Rome."

ARRANGING THE COLLECTION.
As a rule the beginner gives very little thought to the arrangement of his collection, merely putting the stamps in haphazardly. Even in a small album, some attempt at order should be made. The stamps of each issue should be put in together. On the other hand, if there is not much space at your disposal, do not leave blank spaces for stamps you haven't got. Of course, every collector has ideas of his own in connection with arranging his collection, and in any case, with a printed album there is not a great deal of choice. For those who are fortunate enough to have blank albums, I shall give a few tips on arrangement later.

THE GROWING COLLECTION.
After all your stamps have been mounted, when you look through your album, there generally appears to be quite a lot of vacant space which you are naturally anxious to fill. The first step in the filling up of your collection is to send for approval sheets. These consist of several stamps mounted on sheets and marked at a net price or at a price on which a discount is allowed. As practically every dealer sends out approval sheets of the medium to common stamps, you will be able to get very little cost, to add quite considerably to your collection. A very popular method of adding to one's collection at a fairly moderate cost—one by the way at present not available to Newfoundland collectors—is by means of club sheets. Each member of the exchange club sends a number of stamps enclosed in a printed cover to be secretary, who, when all the sheets are collected, places them in one large packet and sends them on a tour in which they visit every member of the club before they again reach the secretary. Each member on the postal list is allowed 24 hours in which to go through the packet and make his selections, and quite a number of bargains are secured in this way. I sincerely

Scotsburn Makes Port

AFTER VERY HARD STRUGGLE.
The safe arrival in port yesterday at noon of the little wooden coastal steamer Scotsburn, of whose safety much concern was felt last week, puts a crimp on much of the so-called hardships the men were supposed to have endured, and robs the story of considerable thrill.

To begin with, the Scotsburn, according to the story told the North Sydney Herald, immediately on arrival of the steamer at Farquhar's wharf yesterday by her commander, did not leave Bonaventure Bay until noon Tuesday, the 18th. (She was reported here as leaving on the 12th, a fact which does away with four days and nights of hardships.) She carried a full cargo of fish, even her deck being occupied by barrelled herring. After being two hours at Sea Captain Rafuse noticed the glass lowering, and in view of the threatened storm decided to make harbor, reaching Port au Port at 3 o'clock the same afternoon, remaining there till shortly after midnight.

By this time there was no indication of the threatened storm amounting to anything, and again the lines were cast off and the Scotsburn headed for North Sydney. When off Cape Ray Wednesday evening about 8:30 o'clock the little heavily-laden craft ran into one of the most violent storms it was ever the lot of her 70-year-old commander to experience, and the Scotsburn was knocked about in such a way as to cause those on board to believe they were on their last journey. To add to the troubles, the deckload began to roll about, but herculean efforts on the part of the crew were successful in securing the barrels. However, under skilful navigation and in the teeth of a living gale the Scotsburn, with scarcely a pound of coal in her bunkers, reached reached Sandy Point at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Through the kindness of a gentleman at the latter place, the steamer was furnished sufficient coal to carry her to North Sydney, and Friday noon the Scotsburn took her departure arriving here at noon yesterday. North Sydney Herald, Nov. 23.

Obituary.

On last Monday evening, the 15th inst., the little village of Topsail was startled by the very sad and sudden death of Miss Emma J. Allen, of "Emmie" as she was generally known among her numerous friends, was a most estimable young woman, being of a most kind and gentle disposition and always devoted to home and mother, being the only daughter. Deceased had been a sufferer for years, always complaining of a violent headache brought on by Typhoid fever, which she contracted about twenty-five years ago. But her's was the sympathetic heart for everyone in trouble. She also possessed very bright talents, being a splendid needle woman and was a writer of many poems, which she composed over her initials, E.J.A. She seemed brighter the past summer than she did for years. But the old trouble seemed to come in a more severe form in the last days of her life, ending in the sad death already mentioned. Besides a sorrowing mother there are left to mourn four brothers, one residing at Grand Falls, one at Bell Island, and two at home, to whom the sympathy of all is extended. The body was laid to rest in the quiet little Methodist Cemetery at Topsail, on the 18th inst., the funeral being largely attended.—Com. "Rest in thy gracious keeping. Leave we now our loved one sleeping." Topsail, Nov. 24, 1920.

Wealth in Old Stamps.

An old trunk, decayed and crumbling to pieces, discovered by workmen, in an attic in Philadelphia, containing nothing but bundles of letters, has been found to be worth a fortune in old stamps. "The man in the Street," would never recognize the worth of such a mass of apparent trash, but philatelists say the stamps on each old letter, crude, inartistic little stickers though they are, now are worth a king's ransom. Examination of a few of the letters reveals the fact that the entire collection of correspondence once occupied the files in the law office of one William Morris Meredith, a man of large acquaintance, who received letters from persons in all parts of the country and abroad.

Evolution of the Love Apple.

The tomato of the present day is the descendant of the love apple which at one time was grown only for decorative purposes. The present prize-winning form is due to Mr. Adam Duncan, who died recently. He first knew the tomato, it was a crinkled thing. By careful hybridization, however, he succeeded in producing the smooth-skinned almost seedless fruit of to-day. Mr. Duncan was the son of a Banffshire crofter, his only schooling being two periods of three months during winters too severe for him to herd cattle. The school was the village cobbler's shop. His first success as an horticulturist was in the early 'eighties, when he took up the chrysanthemum and became prominent among those pioneers whose patience and skill evolved from the comparatively little flower of that time the large and feathery bloom of to-day.

Bell Island County Council Election.

Island Citizens Hold Interesting Civic Contest. Twenty Candidates Enter. Six Elected.

The Bell Island County Council Election took place on Wednesday last at Bell Island. The election being conducted by Magistrate P. F. Power as Returning Officer with Mr. F. F. Jardine, J.P., as the Deputy and Sergeant Shepherd and Mr. Eugene Rees as assistants. Mr. Power presided over the Bell Island booth and Mr. Jardine over the Lance Cove and Freshwater booth. Herewith we append the list of the newly elected Council:—

Mr. Edward Bennett	166
Mr. Peter Kent	141
Mr. Ananias Rees	139
Mr. James L. Connors	119
Mr. John Cramm	114
Dr. H. A. Giovannetti	106
Mr. James Flynn	109

Messrs Peter Kent, Dr. Giovannetti and Mr. Ananias Rees being three of the old Council were re-elected. All of whom are experienced and energetic workers. Mr. Bennett re-entered the arena of Civic affairs after an absence of several years and headed the poll with a large majority showing the popularity he represents. Messrs. Cramm, James Connors and Flynn are all new to the Council Board but being young men of no mean ability much is expected of them. The advent of Mr. Connors to the Board brings back the past when his father, Mr. John Connors the popular Supt. of the Scotia pier was one of the most prominent Councillors at the Board. Dr. Giovannetti, J.P., was the presiding officer at the Wabana election and consequently took no part in the canvass. His vote is therefore to be judged as a tribute to his work in the past particularly in the rebuilding of the famous "Fancy Hill." Of Mr. Rees who just filled part term on the late Board much is expected. Mr. Rees served several years as President of the Board of Directors of the Bell Island Co-operative Co. Ltd., the largest commercial business on the Island; while his energy and activity is well known to all on the works. Mr. Peter Kent is a brother of Councillor R. T. Kent, Sec.-Treas. of the Mines Council. Mr. Kent occupies a most responsible position on the staff of the Scotia Co., being Chief Electrician; while Mr. John Cramm conducts a business at the mines. With such material comprising the new Board; many improvements should be forthcoming for Bell Island

Wabana County Council Election.

Chairman J. P. Burke Again Heads Poll, Vice-Chairman and Sec.-Treas. Also Re-elected.

The election of members to serve on the Wabana County Council for the next three years was held at the Court House on Wednesday past. Dr. H. A. Giovannetti, J.P., presiding assisted by Mr. Wm. John Martin. The vote was the heaviest ever polled at the Mining Centre; and keen interest was manifested in the result. Representatives of all spheres of life presented themselves to the electorate for endorsement including merchants, officials of the company, foreman, labor representatives and Mr. J. P. Burke of the Imperial Life Assurance Co. Mr. Burke who was Chairman of the retiring Council for the past three years easily led the poll and secured the largest majority ever given any candidate on Bell Island. The Vice-Chairman, Mr. Michael J. McNeil, was also re-elected and secured a very substantial vote; while Mr. Richard T. Kent who is the oldest Councillor on the Island having been elected on every Board since the inauguration of the local Council some ten years ago came back stronger than ever showing that his work in the past was appreciated and endorsed. The three newly elected Councillors Messrs. Stephen Blackmore, Edward Ryan and Richard Bugden bring with them to the Council Board both energy and ability. Mr. Blackmore is one of the leading mining officials on the Island having worked his way up from the bottom and his presence on this Council will bring to the Board another practical man who both knows how to get a good job done and how to do it. Mr. Edward Ryan is one of the rising young men of the mines and although being of a retiring disposition and conducting no aggressive campaign his vote shows the good will of his fellow-workers that he possesses. Mr. Richard Bugden who concludes the list of the new Board is a young man of wonderful energy. He is President and assistant manager of the newly formed Workman's Co-operative Store and will no doubt prove himself the workingman's friend on the Council.

The new Council has an extensive which the electors in no uncertain manner endorsed by the election of the above candidates being street lighting for the mines area. We feel sure that when this is brought to the attention of the Government and the members for the District that it will not be long before it becomes a reality. Chairman Burke has in no mistaken manner been endorsed in his position and there will be no doubt but that if he puts the same vim, energy and enthusiasm in his work as he put in his campaign, that many improvements are in store for Wabana.

Herewith we append the result of the poll, which opened at 9 a.m. and closed at 9 p.m. Checking and counting began immediately and the result was announced before midnight:—

Joseph P. Burke	257
Stephen Blackmore	227
Michael J. McNeil	224

Fleeing to Escape Income Tax.

One of the strangest ships that ever sailed from an English port will be the schooner Medora, which is scheduled to lift anchor at Southampton shortly for a destination "somewhere in the South Seas or Spanish Main." Stranger still will be its passengers, consisting of 40 Englishmen, many of them clubmen fleeing from oppression—"fiscal oppression," as they call it.

They are sailing to explore the South Seas in an effort to find an island which has never yet been afflicted with the curse of taxation or hounded by tax collectors. Seriously organizing and leading this quest for the taxless paradise on earth is Rhodes Disher, fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, explorer and wealthy clubman, who announced that he and his ship, the Medora, a 169-ton schooner, would be ready to sail in a few weeks, together with 40 other protestant adventurers.

The tyrannical oppression of the Chancellor of the Exchequer has been so much for Disher and his cohorts, and he conceived the bizarre idea of unloading on a cruise in search of a haven of refuge. Together with his followers, he purchased the Medora, which, perhaps, unlike any ship that ever sailed the Spanish Main, is rigged up in a most luxurious style, with all the comforts of a club in Piccadilly.

Disher is laughing over the efforts of the Government to frighten him from carrying out his project, and in spite of official warnings that his scheme is strongly disapproved, and that it will involve those participating in serious difficulties, Disher is going ahead enlisting more disgruntled taxpayers for his proposed colony and preparing for the voyage.

The Projected Voyage.

"When we get a good wind from the east," Disher said to a London correspondent, "we shall set sail right away, although unfavorable winds or bad weather may delay us. We have not quite decided yet exactly where we are going, but before setting anywhere we expect to call at the Canary Islands, Cape Verde Islands, West Indies and the Spanish Main. We shall then go through the Panama Canal to the Marquesa Islands, where in all probability, we may settle.

"I know some persons think us a pack of fools, but we are not all so silly as we might appear. The logic of my plan is being attested to by the thousands of applications from men everywhere anxious to accompany me."

However smoothly the plans of Mr. Disher may work, the Chancellor of the Exchequer has given assurances he will have some inspectors down at the pier before the junker sails to collect unpaid income taxes from the fleeing pilgrims.

TRINITY.
 One fine day last week, I wended my way to the top of Tack's Hill (or as it is referred to in an old deed—Tack's Hill) and sat me down on a ridge of rock, to view the present, and to recall the past. The consciousness of so many things having been removed from the immediate surroundings of me of a young man with whom I worked forty-five years ago when I worked for the South West Arm. He went up every Saturday evening to see her. During the early part of a week, however, she decided to move to the other side of the Arm, and within twenty-four hours, she was there with all her worldly goods.

On the following Saturday evening, the young man—not knowing that his mother had moved, went up, as usual, to see her; but to his surprise, he found the house empty. On Monday morning he told me all about it, and of the surprise he got when he went into the house. He said: "The first thing I seen, was the stove—he was gone." Well, as I sat there on the hill, to use my friend's phraseology—"The first thing I seen, was Johnnie Hodder's house—he was gone." This house, probably the highest one in Trinity at the time, was built by Talor Dooling, who, as the old people will remember, worked at his trade there for years, with "Poll" Stapleton as his housekeeper.

Then as the tailors of St. John's began to supply "Monkey Jackets" cheaper than Talor Dooling could make them, he and his faithful housekeeper disappeared from Trinity. Johnnie Hodder bought the house, and it was occupied by members of his family, till the family was reduced to one, and she left Trinity. After a few years the house was sold and taken away. I returned to the hearth-stone and the foundations of the old chimney, with my stick, but I found nothing that encouraged me to continue my excavations. Some day I may return to it again, with better tools, and a greater success.

On the level ground below, to the South West, is the building known as Slade's old cooper-shop. It is now used as a private residence, and is one of the oldest houses in Trinity. On the North side of a road that then led to the water's edge of the S. W. Arm, I could trace the outlines of old Captain Field's house, that was destroyed by fire fifty-eight years ago—the same year that "Slade broke." On the rising ground to the N.W., I could visualize the old house of Thomas Verge, and a flood of memories came trooping in, of one of his six sons, Eli, and the thousand and one funny sayings and doings that are associated with him, and that never can be forgotten by any one who remembers Eli Verge. May God be good to him.

Of Thomas Verge's other sons, and groceries; and with coal and other necessities as a side line.

During those years it was never greatly affected by the commercial tides, and went along without any great changes. The Bank Crash was its hardest blow; but it was then, as it has always been—in every respect independent, and prepared to pay a hundred cents to the dollar. Mr. Joseph Morris' two sons, Stephen and Orlando, were what may be called silent partners, with their money invested in the business, and their time and talents freely given to the best interests. Then Stephen withdrew, to qualify at McGill University for engineering work. This plan was upset by the war, and he fell at Ypres in July, 1916. Then Orlando was lost on his way to St. John's in September of the same year, and at a time when he could ill be spared, and when he was most deeply interested in the business.

This meant a terrible blow to the father, mother, and family, and a serious loss to the business; for Orlando, especially, was a man who could not easily be duplicated, either as a business man, or a citizen. At Orlando's death it fell to the youngest brother Fred, to succeed him in the business, which, owing to the increasing years of his father, meant a most difficult undertaking. How well Mr. Fred has succeeded, is known to us all; and the business today is one of our best commercial assets. The business site was bought some fifty years ago from the creditors of the late James Verge for about $2,500. To-day the stores and shop are well adapted and stocked for the business, and with an average of ten assistants, it is carried on as a necessary part of the town's business equipment, and we trust with increasing profit to the owner.

Next to the old pork store of Ryan Bros. the southern store of this property is said to be the oldest building in town, with a frame work of stout English oak, imported for the purpose. Mr. Joseph Morris is eighty years of age; and although he often sees, and hears, and knows more than others think he does, he leaves the daily responsibilities largely to Mr. Fred. Ad multos annos!

Mrs. Jenkins' many friends will be sorry to hear that she is not well.

Mr. A. C. Sellars, representing the British Clothing Co., was a guest at Garland Hotel this week.

Mr. George Gent is having some necessary repairs done to his shop frontage and foundations.

Mr. Samuel Grant has invested in a third Ford Car of good proportions, and they are all kept busy.

Several of the fraternity attended the F.P.U. meeting at Trouty on Monday night.

Rev. C. M. Stickings, and Rev. Hugh Blackledge, of Trinity East, exchanged duties on Sunday evening.

The Sale of Work and Tea by the Guild was unusually successful. The Bishop kindly patronized it, and gave a deeply interesting talk on his visit to Lambeth, for which we thank him.

Mr. Noah Hayter has moved from the South Side, and has taken up his abode, with his family, in the house belonging to the late Thomas Christian.

Mr. James Lavender, Mr. Samuel Grant, and Mr. George Bartlett were appointed at the F.P.U. meeting at Trouty, to represent the Trouty Branch at the annual meeting in Port Union.

Rev. Hugh Blackledge's infant son was baptized at Trinity East on Sunday last, and was given the name of Robert Cabot Rowsell. Mr. Rowsell, of Bonavista, father of Mrs. Blackledge, was a god-father, and then came to Trinity for the evening service. His friends at Trinity were glad to meet him.

Trinity was honored this week by a visit from her foremost son, the Bishop of Newfoundland. His Lordship had spent Sunday and Monday in the Parish of Bonavista. He came to us on Tuesday morning's express, and spent Tuesday and Wednesday with his sister at the rectory, and in informal meetings with the people of his native town, who, without exception, were as pleased to meet him as he was to meet them. He left on Thursday morning for St. John's, with our best wishes and our prayers.

Among the guests at Garland Hotel this week was Mr. S. J. Butt, of Western Bay. Mr. Butt was born in Springhill, Nova Scotia, and came to Western Bay when his parents returned to Newfoundland. He then went to Toronto, and became a commercial traveller. When the war broke out he enlisted in the 20th Battalion, and served in the trenches from 1915 till the end of the war. He was twice wounded, and had some deeply interesting experiences. He is now visiting friends in Newfoundland.

ELECTION DAY.
 I love the merry Christmas Day
 And hold its meaning dear,
 And I observe in fitting way
 The birth of every year.
 But still the greatest day of all
 In freedom's land, I say,
 Is this which we have grown to call
 Our own Election Day.

This is all free men's day of days,
 When there's no creed or class,
 The humblest now his voice may raise,
 And none may him surpass;
 The poor man and the millionaire,
 With conscience as their guide,
 In freedom's greatest duty share,
 As equals, side by side.

To-day the humble man is great
 Nor need he fear to speak,
 To him no other may dictate,
 To-day there are no weak;
 The timid need not backward lag,
 But boldly they may stand
 As true protectors of the flag
 And rulers of the land.

I sometimes think of all the days
 Which men have set apart
 To celebrate in fitting ways
 By service of the heart,
 The one which ought to mean the most
 Where freedom has full sway,
 Is this, observed from coast to coast—
 Our own Election Day.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about 50% money and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and save about 50%. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and breaks the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

NEWS SUMMARY. (British Wireless Service.)

HORSEA, Nov. 27. Captured Sinn Fein document reveals complete details of a diabolical scheme for wrecking the huge power plants in England and the gates of many docks in Liverpool. The memorandum points out that Manchester project would be carried out by over seventy men, provided with sledges para-fin oil and gun cotton. The Liverpool scheme involves the use of eight hundred pounds of gun cotton "with twenty three engineers, seventy rank and file, and about twenty others armed with revolvers. The plans provide for attack on twenty one points, and include the opening of dock gates and demobilization of pumps and power stations. In case the whole scheme is impracticable, a schedule is attached, giving plans of attack with the force required for each of the points separately. Documents are very lengthy and enter into full details. Referring to the proposed destruction in Liverpool, the memorandum states, "a scheme to be carried out as far as possible. Firstly, destruction of telephone communications; Secondly, holding of all dock board policemen; Thirdly, opening up of inner gates by means of pumps; Fourthly, demolition of these pumps, four in number; Fifthly, demolition of eight gates. There are four power station containing pumps for opening the gates. These pumps could be destroyed by the use of two hundred pounds of gun cotton, four engineers, twenty rank and file and twenty four revolvers." Dealing with Manchester the document states, "The best day for the operation would be Sunday, say about nine in the morning, as there is then only a minimum number of engineers working in the station. This place is undoubtedly of great importance, not only in connection with tramways, but also with coal mines in vicinity. Attached herewith is a sketch plan, showing layout of the place. The principal points to be attacked are ten turbines in engine-room, ten balancers on switchboards, and large marine type engines." The plan of operations is then outlined. Referring to another huge Manchester station, a Sinn Fein reporter states how he went to Clayton Vale and saw the pump there. "I made enquiries," he says "and found that this power station supplies current to more than half the factories of Manchester as well as coal mines and trams. It is capable of generating three hundred and fifty thousand horse power. Without this station Manchester would shut down, as all furnaces are worked by electric blast and there would be no coal without the supply from this station, not to mention the damage done to pumps."

In a discussion on Ireland in the House of Commons last night, Sir Hamar Greenwood said the Government were doing all they could to prevent reprisals and maintain discipline under inhuman conditions. "We are fighting a battle against assassins, not the Irish people," said the Chief Secretary. "There will be more bloodshed, more tragic murder of heroic servants of Parliament. It is the duty of the country to stand by its servants." He was able to provide ample evidence to show that the murder gang was composed of a few paid assassins. Plots were discovered he said, for the murder of Ministers in England, and papers had been received showing how three thousand five hundred pounds had been spent in buying arms and explosives in Glasgow, as well as seven thousand five hundred pounds by rebel headquarters in Ireland, where the rate of payment for murder is "one hundred pounds per head." The murder gang in short was carrying on its highly subsidized work against the British Empire. Nevertheless, Sir Hamar Greenwood boldly stated that he and the Government were winning, and he read several extracts from letters in which Sinn Fein writers bewailed the effects of the Government's counter attack. He added that the Sinn Fein court has disappeared, except in back rooms. Hunger striking is done—that trick of criminal to evade justice is done. We have had no hunger strikers for some months past. Arrangements are now complete for the imposing tribute, which London will pay to Sunday's massacre. The bodies will be borne with all military honors; seven to Westminster Abbey, and two to the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Westminster. The Premier is expected to be present at the service at the Abbey. Requiem High Mass at Westminster Cathedral may be taken to possess a special significance. Though directly offered for those whose bodies will rest on catafalque before the sanctuary, special steps have been taken to include in the prayers of the Crown who have been murdered while on duty in Ireland. For this reason Catholics throughout Ireland regard this service as definitely expressing their abhorrence and disassociation from countenancing of criminal methods of Sinn Fein. Miners and coal owners are working through the agency of a Joint Committee, in all districts, to devise methods of increasing production in accordance with terms of settlement of recent coal strike, and reports from coal fields show that men have quickly settled down. In other industries improvement in relationship between employers and employees is also noteworthy, and was commented upon by Dr. McNamara, Labour Minister. He attributed this to "Mutual good will, confidence and trust being displayed" and the application of the principle of Smillie's Whitley Councils, where employers and employees are represented, and which are entrusted with wide powers for governing conditions within their industries. Sixty-three of these Joint Industrial Councils, with district associated councils and committees, together with sixteen interim reconstruction committees, now exist, covering three and a half million work people. They are engaged in an effort to secure settlements by agreement, not merely on questions of wages and hours, but those affecting the comfort, safety and welfare of workers. These industrial councils aim towards clear progressive improvements in conditions of industry being secured, with minimum interruption, and with enduring results.

National nature of the tribute paid to officers was fully expressed at to-day's funeral services in Westminster Abbey and in Westminster Cathedral. In the Abbey the coffin was followed by Lloyd George, Sir Hamar Greenwood, Secretary for Ireland, Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of Imperial General Staff, General Lord Horne, representing the King, Winston Churchill, Secretary for War, and other Cabinet Ministers. At Requiem Mass in Westminster Cathedral, for one of Roman Catholic officers, the Government was represented by Bonar Law and Chamberlain, and the King's Deputy was General Lord Cavan.

Allied conference begins at Premier's residence to-day. Leygues and Berthelot, with French Ambassador in London, will be present, but Count Sforza, who will represent Italy in place of Giolitti, may not arrive until Sunday. Conference opens, it is stated, with consideration of the question whether Entente shall make any declaration now, which may affect the Greek plebiscite regarding the return of Ex-King Constantine to the throne. It is understood that questions of resumption of British trade with Russia and of German reparations will be exclusively considered, and decisions may be reached thereat. Proposed Russian trade agreement is still in the hands of experts of Board of Trade, but is expected to be completed within the next day or two. It will probably be presented to Krassin for transmission to Moscow, early next week. It is understood that in course of conversations with Leygues, Lloyd George will inform the French Premier of the terms of Russian trade agreement. Although France is not directly concerned, it is considered desirable that the agreement shall not be put into operation without France having cognizance of its terms.

Brigus Notes.

There has been no little commercial activity in this town during the last fortnight.

Schr. Frank J. Burke, owned by Goodridge's arrived from Labrador last week, also the schooner Blue Blossom, owned by the late Thomas Hayse, ex-R.N.R., who lost his life trying to moor his schooner at Denson's Cove, B.E. last week. A gloom was cast over the small neighboring settlement of Fourth Pond, when news reached us of the drowning of two of its young men in their prime, Thomas Hayse, who spent four years service in the Navy during the war, was married about twelve months ago; also Harold Lanthorne, son of Mr. James Lanthorne.

Capt. and Mrs. W. Bartlett paid a visit to St. John's during the past week.

Capt. P. Delaney was also a visitor to St. John's last week.

Miss S. Peroway spent the weekend at Clarke's Beach and returned by Mr. Harold Jerritt's "Overland." Mr. J. R. MacDonnell, M.H.A., St. George's, arrived by the same car on Monday morning last, and left the same morning for St. John's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hiscock, and Mrs. J. Smith left for St. John's on Monday morning.

It is rumored around town that our mining magnates want fifty men to work at Brigus, South Point, at the great iron deposits there.

Schr. Clarence B., owned by C. A. Jerritt, left for St. John's on Tuesday to bring over winter goods.

Mrs. J. P. Hearn received a message that her son, H. M. Hearn, who a few weeks ago had been transferred from Heart's Content Western Union Office to North Sydney, had been operated on on Tuesday, 13th, for appendicitis. Later messages say he is recovering.

Mr. J. P. Hearn is at present visiting his son H. M. Hearn, at North Sydney.

The Supreme Court on circuit arrived here last week, comprised of the following: Chief Justice Sir William Horwood, W. Carroll, Sheriff, Crier Butler, and Miss Rowe, stenographer. There was a clean docket in this town which goes to show what law-abiding citizens dwell in Brigus.

A boy named Frank Poole, of Marryvale, was sentenced by Magistrate Thompson last week to four months behind the bars for spiking the railway track.

The Operetta, entitled "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," was staged in St. Patrick's Hall on Monday and Tuesday nights by the pupils of the Convent School.

The Ladies' Church of England Guild held their annual Sale of Work Wednesday and Thursday, 24th and 25th.

We learn that a drowning accident occurred on-day Friday, the victim being young Lanthorne, son of Mr. James Lanthorne, and brother of Harold, who lost his life on the Blue Blossom last week. The sincerest sympathy of this community goes out to the bereaved parents. It is very sad that Mr. Lanthorne should lose his two fine young sons in the course of a fortnight, just as they were becoming a help to him.

Passing of the Drummer Boy.

The drums and drummer-boys, who for so many campaigns were the objects of much sentiment, are gone, and the bugle, with its more penetrating and commanding voice, now rules the battlefield.

As battles became larger and wider in their scope it was found that drums could not be heard above the roar of the battle to any distance, and consequently they were given up.

The little drummer-boy was the most touching figure in the wars in which he took part. Chosen for his diminutive stature, he frequently was of tender years, and always in the fiction of war he was pictured as a sweet-faced cherub, wounded terribly, but bearing the charge to the last. While this aspect of the appeal to sentiment became so common as to appear ridiculous, it originally sprang from a true premise. The little drummer-boys, almost without exception, were brave little fellows. Many a gallant youth did give his life and many a heroic deed was performed by the little sals-manders.

They were the favorites of the men and the pets of the regiment; nothing was too good for them, and on wet or cold nights they never suffered for warmth. If they sank to sleep un-bianketed some powerful trooper was sure to spread over them his own covering.

Heroism of the Boys.

The most thrilling tales of the little drummers come from Napoleon's campaigns.

On the retreat from Russia, when grown men died by the hundreds from the ravages of the cold and the Cos-sacks, a goodly band of drums were strung along back of the gruesome path of the fleeing Frenchmen. In the rear guard, which was commanded by the gallant Marshal Ney, was a chip-per drummer-boy of about 12 years. The constant fighting and burden of keeping the human wolves off the rear of the army was terrific, and only the inspired drumming of the boy and his childish "Long Live France!" saved them from succumbing time after time.

During a brave stand, or when Ney halted his men and turned back upon their tormentors, young France would sound the charge with such a shatter-ing roll of enthusiasm that the Grenadiers waded back through the snow and scattered the Cosacks like chaff. Turning to flee to the refuge of the main body, some stalwart would throw the boy astride of his shoulders and bear him off the field.

Beat the Retreat.

From this point of vantage the drummer would beat the retreat and shout back street gamine epithets at the Russians. When the came to a river he was not at a loss for crossing. Simply mounting his drum and paddling, he went across in comfort.

French archives are full of such heroism, and the drummer-boys became the most popular and feted members of the French army, barring, of course, the Marshals.

The civil war in the United States, too, saw the drummer-boy, but he was passing event then. Toward the last of the conflict he had begun to go out. The bugle did the business better, and so the boy heroes had to go.

Men who have marched and charged to the cheering music of brass bands and to the silver notes of the bugle say that nothing can touch for inspiration the old time drum. They say that when the rhythm, the volume and the thrill of the rattling drum once permeated the blood of the soldiers they were practically invincible and that with such martial incentive to inspire them they would walk straight into the mouths of guns.
