CHAPTER XLIII.

CYRIL AGAIN.

"Oh, that's all right too," he replied. "Sir Joseph fought tooth and nail over that, you may be sure; but Stripley held on like grim death, and Sir Joseph was forced to make over the estate to me, and forty thousand pounds."

"Bless my heart!" murmured Miss Deborah. "Why, you two young persons will be millionaires!"

Elliott laughed.

"Yes; we shan't know what to do with it, shall we? But that's the gross result; the nett does not work out quite so fine and large. There was good old Stripley; I know what your wishes would be in regard to him, and I've set him up in the City on his own account. Mark my word, Stripley will do well; perhaps he will become as great as Sir Joseph. I shouldn't be surprised; for Stripley's clever, has always wanted to run straight, and is honest at heart: he'll astonish them in the City, where, I fancy, he will prove a kind of rara avis."

"And—and the Grange, dearest?" inquired Nora in a low voice.

He pressed her hand and kissed it. "I have bought the Grange for you, Nora," he said. "You have never spoken of it, but I knew that you would wish it to be your future home."

She looked at him with a passionate love and gratitude, and the tears welled to her eyes.

"Yes," he went on; "I knew your heart would wander to the old place wherever you might go. We will have it thoroughly restored and put in order; so that when we come back from our honeymoon—" Her hand quivered in his, and her head drooped.

"And—and," she whispered gravely, after a pause, "have you heard, did you discover anything about—"

There was no need for her to speak the name; Elliott understood.

"No," he said in a low voice. "I caused a search to be made; Stripley himself helped me; but we can find no trace of her. She must have gone to London, and there she is hidden. Fear will keep her concealed and silent.

"We must find her," whispered Nora; "she was my father's wife—"

"I know, dearest, I know," he assented; "we must find her, if she can be found—and provide for her. Don't worry more than you can help, Nora."

Miss Deborah got up softly and left the room; then Elliott leant forward and took Nora in his arms.

"And our marriage, dearest?" he whispered. "You said it should be when I came back. I have come back."

Nora nestled to him and hid her face upon his shoulder.

"And you—you are willing to marry me without knowing all—where I was, what I was doing while I was away from you?" she murmured almost inaudibly.

"Quite ready, more than ready," he responded promptly. "Oh, don't think I'm not curious, Nora; it would be very unnatural if I were not. Of course, I'm mystified, more than mystified; for I can't forget that you took the name of Merton, that you posed—I don't like the word, dearest; but forgive it—as Cyril's relative. I'm anxious about that boy; I should like the mystery regarding him cleared up."

"You were very fond of him, Elliott," she whispered.

"Yes, and am still," replied Elliott. "I can't forget the days we spent together at Lonaway. He saved my life at the risk of his own. Is it any wonder that I want to hear what's become of him, what he's doing?"

"You want—to see him?" she murmured, and he felt her tremble in his arms.

"Of course I do!" he exclaimed, "and don't be jealous, Nora," he laughed, "but I've a kind of feeling that I shan't be quite happy until I know that he is all right, that I shall see him again."

"Oh, you say that—you mean it?" She clung a little tighter to him and drew a distressed sigh. "And I know that it is true. And I want you to be happy, quite, perfectly, completely happy. Oh, I wish—that you'd never known him—that wretched boy! But you have, and you are fond of him still, and you're hankering after him."

She sighed, and with reluctance she whispered, more to herself than to him, "There is no help for it!"

CHAPTER I.

"STUARTS" AND ITS MASTER. SHOWS HOW AN OLD BACHELOR MAY BECOME A NEW HUSBAND.

As a matter of course the old habits of a quarter of a century had early to be discarded. There could be no morning traversing of the High Street now with Jacob Cheese for Mr. Alwyn, when the mistress of his table had hardly put in an appearance for breakfast at the hour he had been wont to start out, and all his afternoon had to be devoted to the strange arts of giving and receiving calls. And the Wednesday evenings, which Mrs. Alwyn had smilingly declared "were never to be disturbed—oh, never!" made but a brief pretence of prolonging their existence. They were attempted, truly, but at the first the lady, less humble than of yore, desired a share in the performance and essayed an accompaniment on a fine "grand," purchased as soon as she came home, and the time under her guidance got into perplexities, and an "allegro finale" stranded them all in despairing confusion, and the next week Mrs. Alwyn had a headache and kept to her own room. A dinner-party postponed the third. Then the clerical second violin undertook some evening services for a friend, the "cello" began to fancy the night air bad for his bronchitis (an ailment newly developed), and the viola saw his once greatest delight melting away with something of relief. The sensitiveness of his lowly sphere had early discovered and winced under one quality of the bride which the whole town found out later on. The wife of the rich lawyer—his master—patronised her husband's clerks with a condescension that would have poisoned the greatest kindness upon earth. And so the quartet broke up, "to meet by special arrangement as often as we can, you know," said the leader, rather ruefully; but the meetings somehow never managed to arrange themselves the first winter, and by the second they were still more impracticable.

For by then Mrs. Alwyn, having with much cordiality inspected the society of Stillote-Upton, had come to the conclusion that it was not on the whole worth her maintaining—an amiable front to please. So she took no pains to prolong her short-lived popularity; began to have serious doubts as to whether the town suited her health, grew quite certain that the south end of it did not, and between pretty persuasions, which she still exercised over her elderly husband, and persistent complaints, at length induced Mr. Alwyn to leave Stuart's, the old home of three generations, and rent some three miles countryward a larger and far more pretentious dwelling, known as Guywick Hall.

Here the lady soared into high society, and devised entertainments that included but few towns-people. The closer country circle was her ambition, and into this, by dint of some ability and good looks, plus her husband's money and acknowledged standing, she contrived to effect an entrance.

Under his wife's rule, which he never combated, still it grew past his control, the lawyer had soon a marvellous by the establishment, with horses, servants, equipages such as he had never felt the want of before, though he was now given to understand they were the merest necessities of life. Each day a smart groom drove him to his office at the old deserted house (whose blank windows gazed at him so reproachfully, he knew no rest till he had settled a chief clerk in residence, much to Mrs. Alwyn's annoyance—"As if we could not afford to let it stand empty!" she said), and every afternoon his wife's brougham, with or without herself, would fetch him out. Of his four old servants all were soon gone, to be replaced by double the number of new faces. Of his old friends he scarcely got a glimpse, except as business brought them together. So, much change, much grandeur, much show of enjoyment, and assuredly much use of riches, were imported into his life. Whether they brought with them much comfort or much happiness was a point on which outsiders indulged in strong opinions than he permitted himself.

But one thing the second year of his married life brought him which was a joy unquestionable—something to be wondered at, admired, gloried in—other words, a little daughter.

A SONG IN EVERYTHING.

There is a song in everything. In every little care that comes. In babies as they suck their thumbs. The tunes the brave canaries sing. The mother's patient, gentle smile. The glory of the after-while.

There is no sadness but is sweet. With fragrance, and there is no day But spreads some beauty on life's way. The dusty and the weary feet! Upon their homeward journey bring Delights which loving hearts may sing.

The high chair and the cradle, too, Have ever set brave lips to songs. No grief has ever lived so long But turned to music as it grew. And every hour of strife and pain Leaves in the heart some sweet refrain.

Lord, teach me this, from day to day, To find beyond the hurt and care Thy mercy shining everywhere; Let me rejoice that children play, And know when bitter tempests sting There is a song in everything.

DERWILLO

The Famous Beautifier

Have you tried it yet? Thousands everywhere are using it. It is a wonderful tonic for the skin, defies hot summer sun and causes wrinkles, tan, freckles, sallow skin, blackheads, sun spots, roughness, ruddiness to quickly disappear. It brings roses to the cheeks and makes anyone look 10 years younger. Gives a youthful complexion and "A skin you love to touch." A single application proves it. See large announcement soon to appear in this paper. Ask your druggist about it.

Fads and Fashions.

A poke hat of black velvet is trimmed with very wide Roman stripe ribbon.

A frock of orange wool and silver colored silk is trimmed with deep silk fringe.

A coat dress of navy cloth has gray embroidery covering sides and sleeves.

A crepe hat has a shellaced band of pasted feathers ending in a drooping wing.

Attractive knitted capes are of drop-stitch alpaca with contrasting silk stripes.

A sleeveless golf slip-on of billiard green flannel is trimmed with white flannel.

Bias bands of red and white check are used on children's dresses of white lawn.

Steel beaded dresses are more popular than those embroidered with iridescent beads.

An attractive tea gown has a skirt made of alternating flounces of black and white lace.

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I went to work in a millinery shop and I went to work everyday but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so mother got me some. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about it and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments."—STELLA LINXWILLER, 6 Second St., Evansville, Ind.

Some girls lead lives of luxury, while others toil for their livelihood, but all are subject to the same physical laws and suffer in proportion to their violation. When such symptoms develop as irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down sensations and "the blues," girls should profit by Miss Linxwiler's experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Viscountess Astor and Viscount Northcliffe have now achieved a permanent place in the ranks of the famous. Life-like portrait models of them having been set up in Mme. Tussand's wax works here they are assured of this, according to the old saying that no one is really famous until he or she has been reproduced at Tussand's. The Princes of Wales and Princess Mary have been added to the collection. Lord Northcliffe's effigy holds a copy of the Daily Mail in its hands.

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The essential parts of Lux are whited into creamy bubbles by the action of the soap. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silk thread. It cleans rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Packets (two sizes) may be obtained everywhere.

Execution of Sir Thomas Moore.

On July 6, 1535, Sir Thomas Moore was beheaded on Tower Hill, a deed that was regretted by the whole nation, except the king, whom it covered with lasting infamy. Moore was born on Feb. 7, 1478, and as a boy resided in the house on Cardinal Morton. From there he went to Oxford and afterwards became a lawyer, a scholar and a wit. He lived in a beautiful house at the foot of Battersea Bridge where he was very happy with his family, who were learned, accomplished and charming. But Henry VIII, finding his knowledge and advice very useful, wanted him at Court, and compelled him to reside in the palace. When Wolsey fell Moore became Lord Chancellor and the greatest man in England. He fulfilled his office admirably, and was esteemed as the wisest and best judge who had ever occupied that exalted seat. He would have preferred to live in retirement with his family and their friends and visitors, among whom were Erasmus the scholar, and Holbein the painter, for he understood the character of the king, and had a presentiment of what would happen. Moore was a strong Catholic, and when Henry divorced his queen and married Anne Boleyn against the pope's will, Moore resigned his chancellorship. Henry resolved not to let him off so easily, and imprisoned him in the Tower, an oath being tendered to him requiring him to declare the king's marriage lawful. He would not agree, and so was condemned to death and executed. His body was interred first in the Tower and afterwards in Chelsea Church, his head being stuck on a pole on London Bridge, where it remained daughter Margaret, bribed or perjured for fourteen days. His favourite persuaded one of the keepers to throw it down, just as she passed below in a boat. She caught it in her lap and preserved it in a leaden box. Thus perished one of the wisest and best of men, because he opposed the will of a wicked king.

German Commander

SAYS REPORTS OF MASSACRES WERE NEVER EXAGGERATED.

In the trial at Berlin of the Armenian boy who shot Talaat Pasha it was brought out in the testimony of Marshal Liman von Sanders, who commanded the German forces in Turkey during the war, that the reports that sickened the world were not exaggerated; that the total number of unarmed Armenians slaughtered by official orders exceeded 1,000,000.

It was further brought out by the testimony of Prof. Lepsius, a German representative in Armenia at the time, that Talaat's commands were to kill everybody, even the children in the orphanages. Talaat was so eager to get the gruesome news that he had been obeyed that he telegraphed: "Wire me how many are dead and how many still alive." Tamerlane was no such butchering monster as this partner and agent of Germany.

What is to be done with Liman von Sanders and with those at Berlin who gave him his instructions? He knew and they knew what had been done and who did it. The German general is still unrepentant. At the trial he sought to excuse the massacre and was treated with great respect.

It is not enough to acquit the boy who killed Talaat. In the clearest manner, by proceedings in their own courts, the Germans are fully informed. If they continue to honor a criminal such as Marshal von Sanders confesses that he was and is they confess that the worst charges made against the German people are true.

ROYAL HONORS GIVEN DUTCH STEAMER.

Riga, June. (Canadian Press).—Honors such as are usually accorded to Royalty or to officials of high rank were given the Dutch steamer Alexander Polden when she arrived at Petrograd recently. The steamer brought the first large cargo of food that has entered the harbor for about three years, and as she passed Kronstadt she was saluted by the battleship Marat, while Russian sailors lined the decks and cheered. The Dutch captain dipped his colors while the ship's band played, and the vessel steamed direct to the dock and began to unload her cargo of herring. With years of starvation at the back of them, the workers at the dock, by day and night shifts, unloaded 5,350 barrels of the ship's cargo so swiftly that the next day twenty carloads of herrings were despatched to Moscow while the rest left for distribution in Petrograd. Only the day before she arrived the Economic Life wrote as follows about Petrograd: "The fate of the city is so tragic that no comparison can be found in the world's history. The immense mortality of Russia during the past few years may be regarded as far more tragic than the fall of Pompeii."

Since the Alexander Polden made port, two more steamers have arrived at Petrograd carrying 17,000 barrels of herrings, which were quickly unloaded.

conference "to adhere to the principle of the indissolubility of Christian marriage."

The Rev. Mr. Magee denounced Lord Buckmaster's bill in Parliament for divorce reform, saying it could adequately be described in two titles, "Divorce While You Wait" and "Marriage on Trial for Six Months." An amendment to the resolution that the conference should pledge itself to adhere to the teaching of Jesus Christ concerning marriage was lost.

CAUGHT NAPPING.

The Government of all the talents, particularly the golden one of silence, has again had it put all over them, this time by the U. S. Government in taxing fish and oils, two principal products of Newfoundland, on entry into the ports of the neighboring republic. There is not the scintilla of an excuse for our administration in not having attempted something to prevent such a discriminatory tariff against Newfoundland. They had ample time in which to present a case to the House Committee on Ways and Means which met at Washington during the early months of the year. But they did nothing. Fishery protectionists from the chief fishing centres of the Union were at the United States capital, representing their claims for an additional duty on fish from foreign countries. Our Government knew this, but failed to act. As far back as February 14th the Telegram directed the attention of all interested to the request of the fish dealers of the United States, through a deputation sent to Washington, that the tariff on fish be increased. On March 21 we again referred to this important matter, but no heed was apparently given. At least no vigorous steps were taken to combat the influences brought to bear on the Washington authorities, by the Liberal-Reform Premier in the interests of this country, and the inevitable consequence of such neglect has come upon us. Newfoundland fish must pay duty on entry into United States ports for home consumption. Newfoundland fish oils are taxed up to the limit also. It is nothing to us that other foreign fish is placed on the dutiable list. Had those responsible been carefully watching and noting the trend of events, it is within the bounds of reason to speculate that the prohibitive rate now placed on our fish and fish products, would not have been. It is open to suspicion if the new tariff rate is not in a measure retaliatory. When United States buyers, not many months ago, desired to purchase Newfoundland fish, they were prevented from doing so, by the Government. Vexatious restrictions were imposed upon them, which as independent buyers they would not accept. And so Newfoundland exporters and fishermen were deprived of their right to sell whither they chose because of certain formalities which were as mischievous as they were injurious. And perhaps from now on we shall have to pay dearly for the trade discourtesy of our wonderful Government.

We are in a position to-day to quote certain sections of the "Official Text of the Permanent Tariff of the United States" (Senate) and from Schedule 7, concerning the importation into United States of Agricultural Products and Provisions, the following is taken:

Paragraph 718—"All fish, fresh frozen, or packed in ice, not specially provided for, one cent per pound."

Paragraph 719—Salmon, pickled, salted, smoked, kippered or otherwise prepared or preserved, 25 per centum, ad val: Fish dried, salted or unsalted, 1 1/2 cents per pound: Fish skinned or boned including herring skinned, in bulk or in their immediate containers, weighing with their contents more than 30 pounds each, 2 1/2 cents per pound, including the weight of the immediate container."

Paragraph 720—"Herring and mackerel pickled or salted, whether or not boned when in bulk, or in immediate containers, weighing with their contents more than 30 pounds each, 1 1/2 cents per pound, including the weight of the immediate container and the brine, pickle, and salt."

Paragraph 721—"Fish, (except shellfish), by whatever name known, packed in oil, or in oil and other substances, 25 per centum, ad val: all other fish (except shellfish), pickled, salted, smoked, kippered or otherwise prepared or preserved, except in oil, or in oil and other substances, in immediate containers, weighing with their contents more than 30 pounds each, 1 1/2 cents per pound, including the weight of the immediate containers."

The items included in the above of chief interest to Newfoundland are, Fresh Fish of all kinds, Pickled Salmon, Canned Salmon, Herring in barrels and bulk; Dry Cod, Salt Bulk Cod and Pickled Cod. Though the shipments of fresh fish to United States, including Cod, Salmon, Halibut, Turbot and Smelts were not large, yet there was an ever growing trade with the West Coast for these, which, owing to the prohibitive duty of one dollar per hundred pounds, will now have to cease. The export of Pickled and Tinned Salmon to United States will also be killed by this tariff, while as for pickled and salted herring, either in bulk or Scotch cure, huge quantities of which were sold by Newfoundlanders to United States buyers, there is no immediate prospect of reviving trade under present rates of American duty. In another article Newfoundland's codfish and Fish oils' previous trade with United States will be considered.

Is It a Pretext?

It was alleged in the House of Assembly yesterday that the Prime Minister had telegraphed a message, containing one hundred and seventy-five words to Emanuel Pike, Channel, re his forcibly taking delivery of four per schr. Magno on June 29. It was further alleged that stay of proceedings was granted for fourteen days hoping that the House would be closed within that time, and that subsequently no action would be taken. The Opposition have cognizance of this, and it is to be devoted toward keeping the Legislature open, pending the decision of the Government whether or not to prosecute a most glaring and deliberate defiance of law. Small men have been punished for less striking breaches than this. Is it going to be handed down that there is "one law for the rich and another for the poor?" The Government is on the defensive. Let it act as the premises direct or otherwise go down into oblivion as the utter abnegation of all that it pretends, and professes. The man who brings in a bottle of wine from St. Pierre for his sick wife is either fined or imprisoned or both. Shall it be said that the law makes invidious distinctions, or is Squires afraid to prosecute Pike? There must be a reason.

Office Staffs Work Cargo

The L.S.P.U. held a lengthy meeting in the Union Hall last night when a communication from the Employers' Association was discussed. No action was taken, however, other than a decision to call out all the permanent employees in the various retail stores on the different premises who are Union men. The strike which began yesterday morning somewhat delayed the work of discharging the cargo of s.s. Manoa. Volunteer workers from the office staffs of Messrs. Bowring Bros., Harvey & Co., Furness Wilby Co., and A. J. Harvey's started at the work during the day, and up to 11 o'clock last night a large quantity of the freight had been removed.

A False Alarm.

At an early hour this morning, all residents of a street on the higher levels were called from their "downy nests" by an insistent puffing noise which sounded like an engine laboriously making its way down the street. The anxiety of those awakened was allayed, however, when it was discovered that the noise was made by a square oil can which was being blown down the street by the wind.

Personal.

Mrs. George Stewart, of Bell Island, arrived in town yesterday on a visit to her parents. She was accompanied by her son.

More of It.

Another sample of the manner in which our returned soldiers and their friends are treated by the present Government was witnessed here not long ago when a Surveyor of Lumber was sent here from St. John's by the Department of Agriculture and Mines to measure a couple of thousand cords of pulp wood at Port au Port, while there are three duly appointed Surveyors of Lumber in the section one of whom a returned soldier, it is said, applied for the job at an early stage of the proceedings. It is a well known fact that this returned man was one of the most active workers and supporters in the district of Squires candidate in the late election, and this is a sample of the reward he gets for his political services. As for military service, it does not seem to count at all with the present Government.

The returned men in this district, while not proclaiming from every housetop their influence in public matters, are just as powerful and united to-day and probably will be in 1923 as they were in 1919, when they united to a man to avenge a gross injustice done to one of their comrades.

"To Hades with our friends; let us conciliate our enemies," is not always a safe rule for a politician to follow.—Com.

Only Three Competitors.

Up to last night only three competitors entered for the 10 mile race, which event takes place to-day in connection with the Dominion Championship Sports. The runners competing are R. Maund, E. Robertson and J. Bell.

It is a real pity that this distance running, which has become so popular in other countries, has been neglected by those in Newfoundland. To all appearances it looks as though marathon running is injurious. Not so. With the young athlete who lives a clean manly life, there is no fear. For example take Dr. MacDonald who ran against Lorden of Boston, in a 25 mile race on St. Bon's Campus some few years ago. He did not think so; Alfred Shrubbs the great professional runner, at the age of 42 to-day, has not shown any ill effects; further, Shrubbs has been in the running game for thirty years or more and still going strong.

Our local runner Jack Bell, said last night that if he thought the running game was injurious he would have more respect for his family. Bell has been running for about ten years, and in that time has always kept himself in good condition. He said it depends largely upon the life which a man intends to live. Therefore, it is true that our young men of to-day are neglecting themselves in this respect? It looks very much like it.

Halifax, with a population of some 60,000 people, could prepare 130 competitors for the meet held there last fall. St. John's, with a population of 40,000, has only 3 competitors. There must be something radically wrong. Surely we have a large number of young men fit for this healthy branch of sport in Newfoundland to-day. Isn't the energy there. Is it that we are too lazy? Or is it that we have not the proper training facilities to carry it out? That may be so. A strong Amateur Athletic Association is required, and the quicker the better, it will certainly give an impetus to athletes.

The runners taking part to-day are to be congratulated and we hope that they will be given a rousing reception when they enter St. George's Field on the last lap of the 10 mile stretch.

Good time over the course to-day can be hardly expected as the rain the past few days has played havoc with the road, while parts of the course is being repaired or torn up by the tractor engine. The runners are in the best of condition and their only hope is that the air will be as light as possible.

Should a race of this kind be held in the future a good thing would be to make it a handicap race, then probably a greater interest would be created.—A.H.T.

Men Turned Back.

MINISTER OF EDUCATION GETS BUSY.

A message was received in the city yesterday saying that a number of men from Harbor Grace had taken possession of a train and were proceeding here in the hope of getting employment in the fishery. When the news became known somebody got busy, for Dr. Barnes, one of the members of the district was despatched by motor car to the scene, meanwhile Detective Sergeant O'Neill appeared and it is said informed the men that satisfactory arrangements would be made on the arrival of Dr. Barnes, if they desisted from coming to the city. The matter was brought up in the Assembly yesterday afternoon by Mr. Archibald and a report will be found in House proceedings in another column.

To-Day's Attraction.

All arrangements have been finalized for St. Joseph's Garden Party which will be held this afternoon on St. Bon's Campus. The energetic and zealous Rev. Fr. Pippy, who has worked tirelessly to make the affair the best of its kind yet held, has left nothing undone for the pleasure and enjoyment of intending patrons, so that all that is desired for a successful day is fine weather. Apart altogether from the Football Fives and other sporting attractions, a feature which alone promises to be sufficient assurance for a large attendance is the match talked of five mile race. During the afternoon and evening teas and refreshments will be served on the grounds at very moderate prices; also lovers of good, lively, up-to-date music will have an opportunity of hearing the C. C. C. Band in their latest selections.

By kind permission of the Officer Commanding, a squad from the C. L. B. Cadets will give a gymnastic exhibition.—adv, 11

CARPENTIER RESTING.
 MANHASSET, July 5. Georges Carpentier will spend several weeks just following doctors' orders, Francis Descamps, his manager, announced to-day. His hand, broken in his battle with Dempsey, will take six weeks to heal, his physician has estimated, and it was not believed the European champion could do any boxing before that time. This Descamps said, precluded the possibility of a bout between Carpentier and Tommy Gibbons in Jersey City on Labor Day, which Bickard announced last night he was trying to arrange.

St. Bon's Re-Union.

The "Old Boys" of St. Bon's are holding their annual reunion at the College on July 14th next. Owing to the addition to its ranks of many recent graduates the Society is stronger and more enthusiastic than ever. Last year was a most successful one with the Association—the unveiling of the bronze memorial tablet, brought great praise from all quarters. The presence of His Excellency the Governor, His Grace the Archbishop, His Lordship Bishop Renouf, Rt. Rev. Mr. McDermott, Sir M. P. Cashin, Judge Morris, O.B.E., and other dignitaries, lay and clerical, lent eclat to the gathering. In addition to the usual morning ceremonies, there will be a public band concert on the campus at 7.30 p.m. Energetic committees have completed all arrangements for a most successful reunion.

Trouble on Steamer.

A negro steward of s.s. Carplake, now in port, was charged in the Police Court this morning with the larceny of two hams and a side of bacon. He was defended by Mr. G. W. B. Ayre who stated that the accused had been put on board the ship at New Orleans to look after the interests of other negroes on the ship. He claimed that the negroes were not being properly treated by the officers. The case was not concluded up to press hour.

Chopping the Wrong Trees.

(Twillingate Sun.)
 George Washington once had a little hatchet, so the story goes. Unfortunately little George used his hatchet in the wrong place, and played the deuce—and all with his dad's favorite cherry tree.

We, too, have another little George, only his name is spelt Sir Richard Anderson Squires, Premier of Newfoundland by the grace of Mr. W. F. Coaker.

Our little George Washington has been out using his little retrenchment hatchet, too, and like his namesake, has hacked at the wrong tree.

The garden of Newfoundland contains a number of useless and parasitic creepers that are strangling its proper growth, taking the strength out of the country's finances. When Sir R. A. S. George Washington was presented with his little hatchet it was hoped he would proceed at once to the chopping down of these strangling creepers.

There was the creeper of the Department of Education which was entwined around the colony's neck, sapping its strength to the tune of some where about one hundred thousand dollars.

The branches of his creeper were Dr. Barnes, M.H.A., for Hr. Grace, who sits silent in the Assembly and draws his $5,000 salary for doing what a clerk in the Colonial Secretary's office previously did for a few hundred a year. Around the learned and silent Doctor of Dumbness is arrayed a staff of stenographers and clerks, all housed in a former rum shop—we don't know if the place is not highly suitable for such a "rum" outfit.

One branch of this Educational creeper is named Solomon Waitway who draws a salary of $4000 a year as Principal of a Normal Training School for teachers that is not yet built.

Many of us hoped that when our little Washington unseathed his nice little Retrenchment Axe that he would have a hack at this creeper; but somehow, having planted it himself since he took charge of the government garden, he thought it too pretty a plant to prune.

As our Sir R. A. S. George Washington wandered around the government garden with his little Retrenchment Axe he did take a hack here and there. Unfortunately he hacked, as did his namesake, a bit unwisely. There was one nice little cherry tree in one corner of the garden called Salmon Protection. Our George R. A. S. thought it looked a nice place to try out his axe, and he found the occupation so to his taste that he chopped the Salmon Protection tree clean down before he was done! It was a nice shady tree that protected a corner of the garden called the Salmon Fishery, and it is very doubtful if the 'plant' in this corner doesn't winter from George's ill-advised action.

And so little George R. A. S. went on hacking at the useful and leaving the parasitic creepers he and his fellow gardeners had planted, and the whole government garden is now getting over-run with a scarlet weed called sur-tax which threatens to strangle everything in it.

That a great many of the garments that we have received in the past month were from new customers who had those garments mislabeled by other dyers and were sent to us as last resort before a settlement was made with the owners. We were able to doctor up the majority of those crippled garments to the entire satisfaction of those owners. If you have any sick garments of this character sent them to us. If our customers don't accept the garments after we doctor them, don't pay us. We cure no pay. We have received a new shipment of dye, the best on the market. The Report of John M. Devine.

Newfoundland Trade Commissioner at New York--Mr. Coaker's Letter "Open Sesame" at Washington.

REPORT BY THE NEWFOUNDLAND TRADE COMMISSIONER RE VISIT TO WASHINGTON ON TARIFF QUESTION--JANUARY 1921 AND APRIL 1921.

Sir--I beg to submit for your greater information REPORT of my visits to Washington on Tariff Question.

On January 21st, 1921, I appeared at 10 a.m. before Committee of Ways and Means, House of Representatives, Hon. Joseph Fordney, Chairman, and the following Committee:

William R. Green, Iowa; Nicholas Longworth, Ohio; Willis C. Hawley, Oregon; Allen T. Treadway, Massachusetts; Ira C. Copley, Illinois; Luther W. Mott, New York; George M. Young, North Dakota; James A. Frear, Wisconsin; John Q. Tilson, Connecticut; Isaac Sacharach, New Jersey; Lindley H. Hadley, Washington; Charles B. Timberlake, Colorado; George M. Bowers, West Virginia; Henry W. Watson, Pennsylvania; Claude Kitchin, North Carolina; Henry T. Rainey, Illinois; Cordell Hull, Tennessee; John N. Garner, Texas; James W. Collier, Mississippi; Clement C. Dickenson, Missouri; William A. Oldfield, Arkansas; Charles R. Crisp, Georgia; John F. Carey, New York; Whitwell P. Martin, Louisiana; Ernest W. Camp, Clerk.

After arranging appointment with Committee in due time I was very graciously received and upon being called by the Chairman stated the following: That I was down to Washington before Ways and Means Committee in my official capacity as Trade Commissioner for Newfoundland, having heard that certain Tariff changes were being contemplated, which, if carried into effect would materially militate against Fish Exporters of our country and consequently against the best interests of Newfoundland, and in my opinion, taken all in all, would not be to the advantage of the United States. That with a view towards fostering closer trade relations with America, Newfoundland Government had appointed a Commissioner to this country, pointing out that it was the first time in our history that such an appointment had been made. That we had been selling a certain amount of our product here for many years and that we were desirous of selling more, that between 1915 and 1920, while our Exports had increased considerably to this country, purchases from the United States had grown from approximately $5,000,000 in 1915 to $10,500,000 in 1920, an increase of $5,500,000 in five years.

After a series of questions had been asked by the Committee, which are contained in Hearings on General Tariff Revision, Page 1635, (to which I now refer you), copy of same I instructed Secretary to have mailed to you and which I presume reached you, although to date receipt of same has not been acknowledged, I filed the following Brief:

"The Ways and Means Committee, House of Representatives, Gentlemen--As Trade Commissioner for Newfoundland and in view of certain tariff changes that are now being considered, I respectfully ask the committee to take into serious consideration the increased trade between the United States and Newfoundland in recent years.

In 1915 our purchases from the United States amounted to only $4,173,272, but it has been steadily growing latest available figures stating the total for 1920 was $10,500,000, an increase of $6,326,728 in five years. Newfoundland exported to the United States in 1915 products valued at $1,537,355, and in 1920, $6,523,657. Therefore, on behalf of Newfoundland, I sincerely hope that nothing in the nature of a tariff will be created by your Government, to the detriment of our common interest, and the retarding of that splendid expansion of business which has been so marked in recent years.

Furthermore, I must particularly emphasize the fact that we have no discriminatory tariff against this country, the same amount of duty being levied on United Kingdom and Canadian products as on imports from the United States.

JOHN M. DEVINE, Newfoundland Trade Commissioner.

N.B.--In the year 1910 we purchased eight times as much goods from the United States as we did from England.

That Newfoundland had no differential tariff seemed to be a point that favorably impressed the Committee. Hon. Joseph Fordney replying said, that Canada has a preferential duty and Newfoundland hadn't; that we (United States) would like to have Newfoundland moved up just a little closer. He also thanked me as follows: "Mr. Devine, we want to say to you that I believe you are the only witness so far that has appeared representing a foreign country and we thank you very much for your presence, Sir, and the statements that you have made." I saw Mr. Fordney later and tried to get a definite statement from him as to the nature of the tariff to be imposed, the amount, etc. He replied that he did not think it would be so excessive as to make Newfoundland fish prohibitive to this country and that it was not the intention to do anything that would inflict a hardship on Newfoundland Fish Exporters.

Many of the Congressmen that I conversed with seemed very sympathetic to Newfoundland's Commercial Interests and expressed great pleasure at the appointments of a Trade Commissioner down here. One of the most prominent taking occasion to state that "now that Newfoundland evidently meant business with this country, as evidenced by appointment of a Trade Representative, it was up to the United States to endeavor to establish reciprocal relations on a firmer basis than heretofore, and to show Newfoundland that her material prosperity of the future would be increasingly augmented by a better commercial understanding with America."

This is quite right and permit me to embody in this report a couple of paragraphs from my letter to you of recent date. "Now for my personal statement. It may be questioned by some of your opponents in Parliament the usefulness of a Trade Commissioner in the United States. My work, by unthinking minds may be sneered at and doubt may be expressed as to whether, since coming here in November, I have justified my existence, or rather the existence of this Department. Possibly, in your own party, there may be gentlemen who are not convinced of the necessity of a Trade Commissioner in this country. Individually and collectively, permit me to say to them that I wish this idea, if it is held by any, to be completely dispelled from their minds, and rather to be converted to the fact that the few dollars the Government has paid for my services here will eventually pay good dividends and is already bearing interest."

"My work on the Tariff Question must not be overlooked. That I have helped create a more friendly feeling between this country and Newfoundland, there is no doubt. That Newfoundland is looked upon in a different light than when I came here is evident on all sides. That the rapidly with which financiers and investors took up our Bonds, guaranteeing the successful flotation of the Loan, must in some measure be attributed to my efforts in judiciously advertising the Colony's resources. The time is opportune for a reciprocal trade arrangement between this country and Newfoundland. America is the natural market for our products. We are attached by the strongest bonds of blood and kinship to the mother country. We glory in the proud possession of the title of "England's oldest Colony." We are loyal to the throne of Great Britain and I trust will always remain so, and that at all times we are prepared to defend and jealously guard the good name and great work of British Institutions. But we must not forget the fact that in the world of economics, America is our natural market and everything should be done to foster closer and greater trade relations. The close proximity of Newfoundland to the United States always will give this market a decided advantage over those of the Old World. Therefore, I say let no silly sentimentalism prevent us from taking advantage of the hand that America holds out."

Acting under instructions from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, accompanied by Mr. Collahave, I visited Washington the second time on April 7th, with a view to learning definitely what action the Government contemplated in respect to our fish entering America. After arriving we first got in touch with the British Embassy and arranged appointment with Mr. Str Auckland Geddes which was accomplished very satisfactorily and after presenting our credentials--a letter of introduction from Mr. Coaker--he took a very lively interest in our visit and treated us with the utmost courtesy.

He thought that some time would pass before anything of a concrete nature would materialize in the matter of Tariff that would affect us, but advised keeping in touch with responsible persons at Washington as well as with the Embassy. Mr. Broderick of the Commercial Department also promised practical co-operation. Interviewed Secretary of Commerce Hoover, as well as Hon. Joseph Fordney, Chairman Ways and Means Committee, both seemed sympathetic. Owing to Congress being in session at the time, it was almost impossible to see any of the active members and it was with much difficulty that a meeting with Mr. Fordney was arranged.

Mr. Fordney stated that they had not come to the Fish Question as yet, as other Hearings were being considered. Queried as to the forecasted legislation and tariff on foreign fish, he replied by saying that he could give me nothing definite to report to the Newfoundland Government, only that everything submitted by me on January 22nd, before Ways and Means Committee would be carefully considered and that it was not the intention to impose such a duty as would make price of our sea products prohibitive to America. I stated our case before Mr. Hoover pointing out that the advantage was all in favor of the United States and asked him to take into consideration--the enormous disparity between our imports from our exports to the United States.

Stressed the possibility of American fish companies operating in Newfoundland in the immediate future and the consequent hardships with which such industry would be attended if a tariff were placed on our goods. Accentuated strongly the friendly trade relations existing between Newfoundland and the United States, the appointment of a Trade Commissioner down here, with a view to closer trade relations between the two countries, and trusted that nothing would be done that would militate against our interests with the possible loss of a $20,000,000 customer to America. I asked him to take up the entire question with the Newfoundland Government, pointing out that personally I believed it possible to arrive at an agreement advantageous to all concerned. He promised to give the matter his attention.

My deductions are that it is the intention of American Government to protect the fish interests here as well as the other interests of the country. That they will protect every other American interest and omit the New England, Alaska, and Pacific fish people does not seem logical. I believe further that nothing can be gained, in my humble opinion, by stern threats of retaliatory measures, such will only serve to aggravate the situation, as the Republican Party's policy has always been, as you are aware, in favor of protective tariff and if we should appear to be in a too dictatorial attitude our case would rather be injured than strengthened by such procedure.

But on the other hand, should all cordial negotiations fail to help us, through Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who is a practical business man, then I would say retaliate, with all the force at your disposal but make sure you have a more efficacious and powerful weapon than the simple imposition of a discriminatory tariff against American goods entering the Colony. I am further convinced that Canada can be of no practical help whatever to us in the present crisis, her tariff being preferential and ours the contrary, moreover as subsequent events have proven in the anti-dumping section in the Emergency Tariff Bill Canadian Products are very much taxed, which goes to show that if Canada could not prevent her own commodities from being taxed there is little hope of her influence being very beneficial as far as we are concerned. Further, since the days of the failure of the Laurier Reciprocity Bill, discriminatory tariff against Canada's products have been a pet theme of some of the influential interests of the Republican Party.

In conclusion, I can only say that I have exhausted every expedient at my disposal and have no stone unturned to present our case in a favorable manner before Washington and I am deeply convinced that the time is opportune for a reciprocal trade arrangement with this country. I therefore would advise negotiations be entered into immediately with Mr. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce. He is the business man of the Administration and I am sure is prepared to consider carefully any reasonable proposition.

Respectfully submitted, JOHN M. DEVINE, Sir R. A. Squires, Prime Minister, St. John's, N.F.

No Day, No Flag, No Flower.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir--Surely we ought to be a most unhappy country. We have trade depression, lack of employment and people hungry. The Governor prevents us celebrating our birthday and substitutes another day as a holiday for which we care nothing. We have no National Flower. Personally I should favour the dandelion, whose plant like our country cannot be downed, which, when belted is so delightful to eat and is so effective in the springtime, whose flower, like our people, is so pleasant to look at. Having no day, no flower, now comes along Mr. Arthur Meads, Deputy Colonial Secretary and tells us that we have no flag. He must be right because on June 24th no flag was flown from the House of Assembly, nor in Bannerman Park nor from the Court House. I do not know whether there was or was not one on the City Hall. Where there were flags flying on the 22nd and 23rd there were none on the 24th. The Roman Catholic Cathedral was bedecked with flags and the joy bells rang out. There was a flag flying from the English Cathedral flag pole. I thank goodness some people know their business. I was sold by a supposedly reputable Water Street firm, a flag which they said was the Flag of Newfoundland. It was the red ensign with the Arms of Newfoundland in a circle on the red part of the flag. I like the wording of those Arms. "Hæc tibi dona tero" "I bring gifts to thee." It is such a change from receiving something. This country ought to be sick of charity in any shape or form. It is better to give than to receive and so I like our motto. Why was there, that day, no flag on the House of Assembly. Is it not desirable to install in the people love of their country. Some editors prate about patriotism but with the exception of the Telegram no other editor wrote a line concerning Newfoundland's National Day. Why? Would it not be desirable that on that day The Flag of Newfoundland should be raised on every flag pole, that the schoolchildren be taught to revere their flag and their country like the children of Canada and America. Are we not wanted to develop a love of our country. Are there ulterior motives? I hope not. To thine own self be true. So, to thine own country. It may be that this country has no flag, but if we have no flag let us get one. Let us have a flower, let us have a day. Let us be proud that we are Newfoundlanders and that we were born in Newfoundland, the fairest spot on God's green earth.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. W.B. ATRE.

Imperial Conference Discusses Empire Defence

No Publicity Being Given Irish Matters.

EMPIRE DEFENCE.
LONDON, July 6.
Questions, relative to the naval defence of the British Empire, were discussed at today's session of the Imperial Conference, Premier Lloyd George and the Dominion Premiers resuming consideration of the subject where it was left at yesterday's meeting. Opposition to discussion of this subject by Premier Meighen of Canada and others seemed to have broken down, and the Admiralty laid before members of the Conference a confidential memorandum, which was understood to have been the basis of yesterday's debate.

MILITARY AND AIR DEFENCE.
LONDON, July 6.
Problems of military and air defence engaged the attention of the Dominion Prime Ministers to-day. Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson and Air Marshal Sir Hugh M. Trenchard, supported by a formidable array of experts and officials made lengthy statements outlining the Empire's position respecting both land and air. Questions were asked and answered and the committee, on which Canada was represented by the Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Militia and Defence, was empowered to further inquire into both subjects and report back to the conference later on.

THE GERMAN VERSION.
BERLIN, July 6.
The version of the trouble at Beuthen, Upper Silesia, given by the Allgemeine Zeitung to-day declares that the people of Beuthen began acclaiming the Allies upon the Polish withdrawal, but that when the inhabitants started singing patriotic songs, the French attacked them with rifle bullets. Some shots were fired, the account continues, Montaniers being killed and several Frenchmen being wounded. Whereupon the French lost control with the result that several women and children were killed. Prominent citizens of Beuthen were taken as hostages, the newspaper adds, and an inquiry was opened. Early accounts of the Beuthen incident given Monday in Oppeln advised to the London Daily Mail declared that the French battalion entered the town amid hostile demonstration by the German population and that later Major Montaniers was shot dead by a civilian who escaped.

The chairman so voted.

Legislative Council.
TUESDAY, July 5.
The Council met at 4 p.m.
His Excellency the Governor arrived at 4.30 and gave his assent to the following bills: "Amendment to Woman's 'Terra Nova Sulphite Co. Act.'"
"Amendment to Marine Courts of Enquiry."
"Amendment to the Law in relation to Lotteries."
"An Act respecting the Board of Pensions Commission."
"Amendment to Crown Lands Act."
"An Act respecting the High Commissioner in the United Kingdom."
"Amendment to Profiteering Act 1920."
"The cutting and Exportation of Timber for special purposes."
"Amendment to the Law Society Act."
"An Act further respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber."
"Act to amend the War Measures Act 1914."
"Act confirming an agreement with D'Arcy Exploration Co."
"An Act respecting the exportation of Salt Codfish."
"An Act respecting the prosecution of the Seal Fishery."
"An Act respecting certain diseases."
"An Act respecting a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's."
After the departure of His Excellency the Order Paper was taken up, and a bill entitled, "An Act to Amend the Act 11 Geo. V. Cap. 40 entitled: "An Act Respecting the Maintenance of Certain Public Roads," was sent to Committee of the Whole.

House of Assembly.
TUESDAY, July 5.
The House met at 3.15.
The greater part of the session of the House was taken up by Sir John Croble who discoursed on a diversity of subjects and was engaged in some hot cross firing with the Speaker and several Government members. Mr. F. Archibald, independent member for St. John's, also spoke on matters appertaining to his district. It is worthy of note that since the junior member for St. John's took an independent stand a great deal of attention has been given his district. In Mr. Archibald the people of St. John's have a representative of whom they need not have the slightest fear that he will neglect any of their interests.
Mr. Archibald rose to ask Dr. Barnes a question, but as the Minister of Education was not present he asked the Prime Minister if there were any truth in the rumour that a number of men from St. John's had boarded a train to come to the city.
The Prime Minister said he knew that 10 or 12 men had started to come to St. John's to arrange for going to Badger, but they had not reached here. He said that Dr. Barnes was in the district. Some amusement was caused by the Prime Minister's statement that Dr. Barnes had gone to the district. The last evening, as he had been in the House up to adjournment time last night.
Sir John Croble asked if he flew there.
Mr. Archibald asked if it were true these men were met on the way to town by Head Constable O'Neill and sent back.
Mr. Warren said O'Neill had been at Holyrood some time. He admitted that the detective had interviewed these men.
Mr. Archibald said he did not wish to encourage this practice of coming in by train.
Mr. Scammell—"Who is responsible for bringing them here?"
Mr. Archibald—"Would you like to know?"
Mr. Scammell—"It would be interesting to know."
Mr. Archibald—"Well, it is the Minister of Education who is encouraging it by giving money to the first lot that comes in."
A wordy battle then ensued between these two members in which the honours fell to the member for St. John's. The latter, continuing, made an emphatic protest against the idea of a detective being sent to send these men back. He wanted to know who was responsible for it.
Mr. Warren—"I will accept all responsibility for it."
Mr. Archibald wanted to know whose fault it was that the detective was sent to meet the men. He obtained a promise that the men would be fixed up. Mr. Scammell who was the new champion of the Government to challenge Mr. Archibald, had another try at this juncture and was soon put hors de combat.
The independent member for St. John's has manfully withstood all attempts yet made to unhorse him.
Mr. Archibald warned the Government that if they weren't careful they would have the whole country rising up against them.
Sir John Croble moved the adjournment of the House and the Speaker called upon ten honourable men to stand up in favour of the motion. Sir John Croble and the Speaker asked him if he had any regard for the rules of the House.
Sir John Croble—"No, I have not. When have they been properly carried out?"
The Speaker—"Whose fault is that?"
Sir John Croble—"Yours."
A stranger here interrupted and the Speaker ordered him to be put out.
Sir John Croble—"If anybody is going to be put out, it will have to be me."
Upon the Speaker again calling up on the "ten honourable men" the Opposition sprang to their feet in a body.
The Speaker—"You can now go on. You have complied with the rules."
Mr. Sullivan—"Mr. Speaker, if you can't enforce the rules why don't you leave the chair?"
Sir John Croble—"There is not enough manhood in the crowd in charge to enforce the laws of the country. Can the Attorney General tell me anything about Emanuel Pike?"
Mr. Warren—"Very little except the news contained in one telegram I received."
The telegram in question was sent for and handed to Sir John. The Hon. Grace men had been sent back by a detective said Sir John but Emanuel Pike could take four without paying his sales tax, and still we are asked for law and order. How could there be law and order when there was one law for the rich and one for the poor. He was the poor man's friend and if they couldn't find a leader he would take the job on. The case against Pike was postponed for 14 days in the hope that the House would then be closed. He asked the Prime Minister about a message of 175 words sent to Pike which the last named read to a crowd of men on the wharf at Port aux Basques. Pike would not be presented because the Government dared not do it. They were prepared to give Reid's grant of $1,500,000. There was an ulterior motive behind it all. When he dealt with the railway he would tell the story. There is intention was to sell the country to Canada.

REFUSE TO ACCEPT.
CHICAGO, July 6.
Responsibility for accepting wage reductions that went into effect on all railroads on July 1, cannot be accepted by the general chairman representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railroad Conductors, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Switch Men's Union of North America. The chairman so voted.

Legislative Council.
TUESDAY, July 5.
The Council met at 4 p.m.
His Excellency the Governor arrived at 4.30 and gave his assent to the following bills: "Amendment to Woman's 'Terra Nova Sulphite Co. Act.'"
"Amendment to Marine Courts of Enquiry."
"Amendment to the Law in relation to Lotteries."
"An Act respecting the Board of Pensions Commission."
"Amendment to Crown Lands Act."
"An Act respecting the High Commissioner in the United Kingdom."
"Amendment to Profiteering Act 1920."
"The cutting and Exportation of Timber for special purposes."
"Amendment to the Law Society Act."
"An Act further respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber."
"Act to amend the War Measures Act 1914."
"Act confirming an agreement with D'Arcy Exploration Co."
"An Act respecting the exportation of Salt Codfish."
"An Act respecting the prosecution of the Seal Fishery."
"An Act respecting certain diseases."
"An Act respecting a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's."
After the departure of His Excellency the Order Paper was taken up, and a bill entitled, "An Act to Amend the Act 11 Geo. V. Cap. 40 entitled: "An Act Respecting the Maintenance of Certain Public Roads," was sent to Committee of the Whole.

House of Assembly.
TUESDAY, July 5.
The House met at 3.15.
The greater part of the session of the House was taken up by Sir John Croble who discoursed on a diversity of subjects and was engaged in some hot cross firing with the Speaker and several Government members. Mr. F. Archibald, independent member for St. John's, also spoke on matters appertaining to his district. It is worthy of note that since the junior member for St. John's took an independent stand a great deal of attention has been given his district. In Mr. Archibald the people of St. John's have a representative of whom they need not have the slightest fear that he will neglect any of their interests.
Mr. Archibald rose to ask Dr. Barnes a question, but as the Minister of Education was not present he asked the Prime Minister if there were any truth in the rumour that a number of men from St. John's had boarded a train to come to the city.
The Prime Minister said he knew that 10 or 12 men had started to come to St. John's to arrange for going to Badger, but they had not reached here. He said that Dr. Barnes was in the district. Some amusement was caused by the Prime Minister's statement that Dr. Barnes had gone to the district. The last evening, as he had been in the House up to adjournment time last night.
Sir John Croble asked if he flew there.
Mr. Archibald asked if it were true these men were met on the way to town by Head Constable O'Neill and sent back.
Mr. Warren said O'Neill had been at Holyrood some time. He admitted that the detective had interviewed these men.
Mr. Archibald said he did not wish to encourage this practice of coming in by train.
Mr. Scammell—"Who is responsible for bringing them here?"
Mr. Archibald—"Would you like to know?"
Mr. Scammell—"It would be interesting to know."
Mr. Archibald—"Well, it is the Minister of Education who is encouraging it by giving money to the first lot that comes in."
A wordy battle then ensued between these two members in which the honours fell to the member for St. John's. The latter, continuing, made an emphatic protest against the idea of a detective being sent to send these men back. He wanted to know who was responsible for it.

Shipping Notes.
S.S. Sachem is expected to leave Halifax on Friday for this port.
Schooner Laberge has sailed for Halifax with 2500 quintals of codfish shipped by Larle Son & Co., Pogo.
Schooner Lena, 3 days from Sydney bound to Carbonara, arrived in port last evening. The vessel has coal cargo for J. Burke & Sons.
There was no report from the disabled steamer Chaitanoga, yesterday, the ship being no doubt detained by the prevailing foggy weather, but should arrive here during the day.

Five Mile Race.
Considerable interest is being evinced in the five mile race which will be run off on St. Bon's Campus this afternoon at St. Joseph's Garden Party. Some of our best known sprinters and long distance runners will face the starter, and if the time made by a few of the competitors in their try-outs within the past week is any criterion, there is every likelihood of a new record being established for this distance. The keenest rivalry exists among the different contestants and the public can rest assured of being treated to one of the finest exhibitions of running ever witnessed in this country.—adv.11

Fishery Supplies Bill and Salt.

The Government have asked the Board of Trade to approve the Fishery Supplies Bill, and with that object in view a meeting of the Supply Merchants was called to discuss this matter.
The principle of the Bill was the first point to consider, and it certainly cannot be compared favorably in a general manner with Fishery Supplying. When a merchant issues credit he does so on the character of the individual and his disposition for hard and intelligent work. It is giving a helping hand to a person he can trust, for their mutual benefit, and whom he believed intends to repay him in full.
The Government Bill for the regulation of supplies is in a very different spirit, and is drawn up more as a Bank Loan and mixes up fishery supplies, credit and bank loans in such an unworkable way that it cannot possibly be carried out satisfactorily.
For instance, the second clause states that creditors must rank in priority according to the order of time in which their respective supplies have been made. No practical person would suggest such a clause for nine out of every ten fishermen prosecuting the Labrador fishery looks for salt after arriving on the coast, and this bill states that this salt must be the last to be paid for.
There is no merchant issuing salt on the Labrador coast that will give out one hoghead on these terms therefore the fishermen will either have to pay cash down, send to the government for a supply or return home empty handed.
Then again when the merchant is buying fish next fall it will be necessary for him to get a sworn affidavit that all claims against the government are settled before he pays for the fish.
Altogether the Bill is such an interference with business in a regular way that it is very unpopular with the suppliers, no two of whom can agree on the same interpretation of it.—Trade Review.

Household Notes.

An attractive dish is made by placing poached eggs on top of molded squares of macaroni and garnishing with grated cheese and parsley.
It is a great convenience to have a small refrigerator in the pantry to hold small things that need to be kept cool while a meal is in preparation. Delicious cookies can be made from the trimmings of pie crust. Knead the pieces together, roll out again, sprinkle with sugar and bake.
Ink may be removed from linen by bathing freely with lemon juice, sprinkling thickly with fine salt and then placing for two hours in the sun.

THE EVENT OF THE SEASON—The Dominion Championship Sports.—JULY 11.

MEAD'S LIMEWATER RELIEVES COLIC, ETC.

Sir John read an extract which was reprinted in the Squires' Manifesto and which contained the metaphor "Imperial God." Sir John wanted to know who the "Imperial God" was. Before concluding his lengthy address he apologized to the Speaker for an earlier misunderstanding but warned him that he desired to be treated as every other member.

A great deal of good humoured banter occurred between Sir John and various Government members. Mr. Foots being especially unlucky in referring to the "barber's cut" as the member for Port de Grave, seized upon the phrase to make the honourable member for Burin absolutely ridiculous. After more cross firing with Mr. Foots Sir John offered to resign and he would go down and meet him in Burin. Mr. Foots was not "having any" however. A few minutes later Mr. Vincombe drew attention to the fact that there was no quorum present and in answer to the Speaker's bell three reluctant Northern members entered the House. Sir John continued his speech and declared that there must be equal rights for all but if this was denied the people it meant the end of the present Government. He drew the Speaker's attention to the fact that not an Executive Minister was present. Sir John said that the reason he was on his feet was because he wished to show the people the true state of the country and if they ever wanted a man to lead them he would be that man.
The Pulp and Paper Agreement Bill and the Warehouse receipt Bills were referred to select committee of ten which adjournment was taken until 3 p.m. to-day.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ARE CHILDREN FUNNY, OR ARE WE?

Some friends of mine have been having work done on their grounds by some foreign workmen who arrive daily at the house wearing worn shirts and overalls, and carrying their lunch pails. The daughter of the house is greatly amused at this unusual company and spends whatever time she is allowed to with them, watching them, chatting to them, asking them questions about their homes and their little girls. The daughter of the house, perhaps I should explain, is aged three. Her mother was telling me about Peggy's friends. "I don't mind," she said, "for it's plain to see they think the world of her. But aren't children funny. They certainly are no respecters of persons."

Why These Distinctions?
As I admitted they were not, I fell to musing on the subject. I thought of what Peggy's reactions to the same situation would be 10 or 15 years hence. I wondered just how the change would come, and just how it comes to all of us between the age when we are ready to be friends with anybody, and the age when we discover that some of us are made from totally different clay than others. Who tells us? Who told me? I can't remember. Who told you? I'll bet you have no idea.

Maybe you say that you haven't any such undemocratic, un-Christian idea anyway. I wonder?
If you haven't, really and truly, I think you ought to be put in a museum of written up in a Sunday paper.

Class Sense Universal.
There is nothing more universal in the world than this class sense. Some of us draw our class lines by different standards than others, but practically all of us draw them. Sometimes it's money, sometimes it's brains, but there's the queerest fact about the whole matter, it's practically never the one thing that we all as a Christian nation claim to consider the biggest thing in the world—goodness, character, Christianity, call it what you will.
Doubtless there are some who think they do make this their class criterion. Again, I wonder.

Suppose such a person were to be seen walking down the streets of his home town with Mr. L., the multi-millionaire. Would he have a thrill of pride at being in such company, would he have a hankering for his friends to see him, or not?
A Multi-Millionaire Where Thieves Do Not Break Through Nor Steal.
I shan't let him answer for I am not sure he can answer truly. But L. will let you answer for him. And answer me this while you are about it. Would he feel as much pride, as much hankering to be seen, if his companion were Jimmy L., who has devoted his life to his invalid mother, sacrificing all his own wishes and surrounding her with tenderness and a devotion as beautiful as it is unique? Everyone says of Jimmy, "he is a saint if there ever was one." There is an aristocrat of character. If there is such a thing as treasure in Heaven, he must be a multi-millionaire there. Why, then, don't we feel proud to be noticed by him?
Did you ever watch an ant hill? It is one of my favorite diversions. And when I do I sometimes think this—the ants look all absolutely alike to me. I wonder if they have classes and classes and if that ant hurrying away from the other ant, doesn't want to be seen crawling with him?
And then I go on and think the inevitable corollary:
"If the Higher Power looks down on us, I'll bet the difference we think so great are as infinitesimal to Him as those between the ant to us."

means prettier teeth—accept it

This is an offer which millions have accepted. And glistening teeth seen everywhere show the good effects.

Make this free test. Then judge the benefits by what you see and feel.

To fight film

Dental science, after diligent research, has found ways to fight film on teeth. Careful tests have proved them beyond question. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a scientific tooth paste—Pepsodent. So all may regularly apply them. To countless homes they have brought already a new era in tooth cleaning.

How film ruins

Film is that viscous, sticky stuff that clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The ordinary dentifrice does not effectively combat it. So, despite the tooth brush, it has caused tremendous damage.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It forms the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

It breeds millions of germs and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Pepsodent combats these film-caused troubles as nothing else has done.

FREE

This Ten-Day test costs you nothing. It will bring you results that will please. Send the coupon for it.

Combats acid

Pepsodent also multiplies the salivary flow. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause decay.

In these ways it acts as fruit acids do. With every use it multiplies Nature's tooth-protecting forces. Old methods had the opposite effect.

Watch it act

Send for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the spots disappear.

A book we send tells the reasons for each good effect. Judge what these results will mean to you and yours. Cut out the coupon now.

The New-Day Dentifrice

The scientific film combater, approved by modern authorities and now advised by leading dentists everywhere—to bring five desired effects. All druggists supply the large tubes.

Only one tube to a family.

Mounted about 1870, up an intricate mountain-top, formed of chunks of granite interspersed with minuted shrubs, a bronze caribou is to be placed on each of the five battlefields on which the Newfoundlanders fought their more important actions. At Beaumont Hamel, one of the commoners which has been adopted by Winchester, the Government of Newfoundland has purchased a large area of ground, consisting of about half the commune. This the Dominion proposes to convert into a park, and the caribou will form the dominant feature. On this spot during the Battle of Amere a Newfoundland Battalion went into action 200 strong, and suffered approximately 200 casualties within a few minutes. Capt. Gotto has been three times to France in connection with the selection of sites. Sir Roger Barrington, High Commissioner for Newfoundland, came to Twyford about a fortnight ago to see the model, and Capt. Gotto is expecting the Prime Minister of Newfoundland, the Hon.

Squires, down within the next few days.
Tablets have been erected in Aquinas Cathedral by the United States of America, and by practically all the British Dominions—Canada, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand—and Capt. Gotto has also been asked to design one for Newfoundland. He obtained the assistance of Mr. G. P. Kitchen for the architectural requirements, and the wording of the inscription was provided by Mr. Rudyard Kipling. The tablet is to be in white marble, supported by Swages enclosing a caribou's head, which is so well remembered in Winchester as the crest of the battalions that were long encamped on Hazelley Down. The tablet is surmounted by a red triangle, the badge of the Regiment. The tablet is to be placed on a column of Aquinas Cathedral, and will be unveiled in the course of the summer by Marshal Foch.

It may be added that Capt. Gotto's modelling of the caribou was in clay, and he had to obtain a workman from Belgium to cast it—it is almost impossible to find an English plaster caster. To-day all the plaster carving and the marble carving of the country is in the hands of foreigners, and both the employments might well be pursued by Englishmen. Capt. Gotto is constantly going about the country as Inspector of Art Schools—he has been to such places as Birmingham, Sheffield, Westminster, and Hammer Smith—and on every occasion when writing his report he has drawn attention to this matter, but so far apparently without result.—Stamphire Chronicle, June 4.

Railway Commission Report.

TRACK FROM NOWHERE TO NOWHERE.

The subject of establishing an information bureau where the public could obtain accurate information regarding the movements of trains and steamers, was taken up by your Commissioners, but it was considered that little could be accomplished in this direction until the new city telephone service was completely installed, when a local exchange intercommunicating with all departments could be provided and the young lady in charge could also act as information clerk. This has been a long felt want in connection with the Railway and Steamboat service.

Your Commissioners also considered the advisability of recovering the rails and fastenings used on the derelict Fortune Bay Branch for use in repairing the main line track and passed a minute in favor of this proposal subject to legal opinion. This Branch was railed for a distance of 4 1/4 miles out of a total length, when completed to Terrenceville (Fortune Bay), of 53 miles. This is a railway from nowhere to nowhere, without any traffic or apparent prospect of developing any currents, and to make it of any service to the peninsula of Burin it would require to be extended at least one hundred miles to tap Marytown, Burin, St. Lawrence, Lamaline, Fortune and Grand Bank, an extension that would at present-day prices involve an expenditure of nearly three million dollars, to say nothing of the cost of rehabilitating and completing the railway to Terrenceville. We are, therefore, of opinion—especially in view of having secured a safe and convenient sea terminal at Argentia from which to serve the Burin peninsula—that, subject to legal opinion as to the bearings of existing contracts on the matter, the Fortune Bay Branch should be abandoned and the rails, fastenings, etc., salvaged and disposed of as the Government may see fit. While on this subject it might be well to throw out a suggestion which may some day be acted upon, namely—that the Burin Peninsula could readily be given railway accommodation by running a train ferry from Argentia to the equally favorable and safe harbor of Marytown which could be connected by rail to Burin, St. Lawrence and Grand Bank. The money already spent on the Fortune Bay Branch without result would have more than sufficed to provide this service and the connection with St. John's would have been almost a straight line one (see map) instead of the extremely roundabout way via the Fortune Bay Branch route. At the far end of this route would be Grand Bank which could easily be made a new sea terminal for the South Coast after the Harbor Works now being executed are completed.

North Sydney the Canadian Terminus of our cross straits steamer service has been for a considerable time quite inadequate as regards its wharf and its railway and other equipment, and has been the subject of frequent representations by the Reid Newfoundland Company to the Intercolonial Railway Company who owned it prior to its absorption into the Canadian National Railway System. Other representations were made by the late Minister of Shipping, Sir John Crosbie, during the war period when traffic was congested on this route, and finally by your Commissioners. Mr. Hall was sent in November last to Toronto to confer with the Directorate of the Canadian National Railways, and after spending a few days with them and their technical staff a scheme for the widening of the wharf, the erection thereon of a large transit shed, a convenient station building and post office (to replace the shanty that now does service for these) and increased trackage was drawn up and certain conditions under which the Canadian National Railways would undertake this work were transmitted through Mr. Hall to the Commission. Some of these conditions are not entirely acceptable to the Commission and will be further discussed. The North Sydney Terminal is situated and worked by the Reid Newfoundland Company and the Commission, a course which is contrary to usual practice, the owning Company usually performing all land services and charging the Steamboat Company for the services rendered to it. However, the most friendly relations do not seem to have obtained for some years past between the Reid Newfoundland Company and the Intercolonial Railway, and our officials being of opinion that less friction is likely to arise through the present system of receiving through freight from the Canadian side on car in the wharf premises and handling it ourselves, your Commissioners have not taken any steps to upset the present unusual arrangement. We have tried to obtain more favorable through bookage of freight from Montreal and points west of it by this route, but Halifax still retains an advantage (by arrangement of about five cents per 100 lbs. as regards grain stuff) which is sought to be justified on the grounds of the Halifax route being a shorter train haul. We think that it would be a reasonable concession on the part of the Canadian National Railways that North Sydney should While dealing with Canadian railroads it might be well to state that the Canadian Government have for the past year reduced the mail subsidy by cross straits route from $70,000 to $35,000 per annum. Much correspondence has passed on this subject and several interviews have taken place, but the Canadian authorities justify their action on the grounds that they have taken a similar course with regard to all their subsidies, and that as these arrangements were embodied in an Act of Parliament they could only be altered by fresh legislation.

THE REDS.

They're living in a country here, where every man who toils and spins may have his share and his vine and dollar watches for the twins. They're living where the laws protect the honest worker and his pile, and they would see the whole works wrecked, and view the chaos with a smile. They hold to crowds abroad and vain, with bankings for blood and fire; they are opposed to all things sane, to all that righteous men admire. And more and more we lately find their teachings spreading everywhere; their propaganda is behind uprisings here and riots there.

And are we not the patient bunch? We see the Reds our laws defy, and idly grin, though we've a hunch that worse is coming by and by. They bore us with their brazen sound, they weary us with gall and bile; the nation needs a dumping ground for those who do not like its style.

Mystery of Tobacco. An early 18th century MS. of the House of Lords, which has just been published in volume form, contains an account of the way in which English tobacco manufacturers prevented their secrets getting known and used in Russia more than 200 years ago. It seems that Nath. Gould and others had made a contract with the Tsar of Moscow in 1698 to import quantities of tobacco into his dominions, and that over "Peter Marshall and his wife, versed in the cutting and rolling of tobacco, together with instruments and materials necessary thereunto." Other merchants of London had also entered into contracts with the Tsar's officers to supply large quantities of tobacco and to send "As many persons skilled in the spinning of tobacco as the Tsar should require by which means his subjects would become equally skilled in that mystery with any of her majesty's subjects, dealers in tobacco." The English tobacco manufacturers petitioned Queen Anne, and that redoubtable monarch nipped the scheme in the bud. It was ordered that "said persons were to be conveyed to Muscovy, and the engines to be broken immediately." And so "mystery" was not disclosed.

Professor Budlong Puts Tanlac To Test

PROF. C. J. BUDLONG, Manchester, N.H.

"It's an actual fact, I'm in good health for the first time in thirty years and I owe my present splendid condition to Tanlac and nothing else," was the emphatic statement of Prof. C. J. Budlong, well-known and highly respected citizen of Manchester, N.H., residing at 42 School street.

"Practically all my life I had had rheumatism, and when I say rheumatism I mean every word of it. It was all over my body and especially in my feet and legs and there were times when I couldn't get from my bed to my chair without help, and from the time I was a boy I couldn't sit down and eat a good meal without being in misery afterwards and I would have terrible pains around my heart and frequent attacks of palpitation and dizziness.

He was troubled awfully with blinding headaches and hardly knew what sleep was. My suffering had almost made a complete nervous wreck of me and I was so weak I wasn't worth a nickel as far as work was concerned. I thought my troubles had a life-long grip on me and was about as discouraged as a man ever gets.

"Well, before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I realized it was different from anything I ever tried. It suited my case exactly. And now for almost the first time since I can remember I can eat anything I want and digest it. I haven't an ache or a pain and have gained fifteen pounds in weight. I just feel good all over and am full of life and energy these days. Everywhere I go I talk Tanlac. It hasn't an equal."

Jack London in Prison.

The Story of the Great Writer's Terrible Experience.

Jack London, marching in lock-step, went out to hard labour in the yards. He tried to mail a letter. The guards laughed at him. He learned that short-timers were not allowed to write letters; that when long-timers wrote them the letters were read and destroyed or peep-hole in the office. He found that the prison was cut off entirely from the outside world, a hell enclosed in stone walls, ruled by brutality and horror and fear. He heard the screams of men hung up by the thumbs, gnawing their arms in agony, shrieking till unconsciousness called their torture. He saw half-starved men caught hiding bits of bread in their shirts and brutally punished for it. He heard, from the corners of mouths trained to speak without lip-movement, incredible and monstrous tales of things more hideous, and he saw that those tales were true. For the first time in his life fear entered his own soul.

He walked warily and shuddering through the horrors around him. Strength and courage would not avail him; he fell back upon craft. He considered men in his hall and selected a friend. "Pittsburg Jack" was a yegg, experienced in the ways of prisons. Having a pull with the head trusty, who had done time with him in Sing Sing years before, he had himself become a trusty, holding inestimable privileges of tobacco and matches and opportunities for graft as payment for ruling the hundred wretches in his tier of cells.

About forty, kindly, humorous, utterly unscrupulous, with a dry philosophy of his own, he responded to the advances made by young "Frisco Jack" London. He saw good qualities in the boy; courage, enterprise, honour. Frisco Jack was a square kid; he wouldn't go back on a pal in a pinch, no matter how bad the bulls beat him up. He was worth cultivating. Pittsburg Jack's time would be up in another month; he had several jobs in mind; he could use a reliable kid. He gave Jack a pinch of tobacco and a precious match, he talked with him through the barred door of the cell. In these days he took the boy from hard labour and made him also a trusty.

For the first time since he had entered the prison, Jack had enough to eat. It was the task of the trusties to make the rounds of the prison cells each morning and evening distributing food. Each prisoner received a small chunk of bread and a tin cup of soup or coffee. The coffee was hot water coloured with burnt bread crumbs. The soup was made by boiling a bit of beef in a cauldron and adding salt. This was the only meat they were given, although sometimes in the yard they were able to spare rats or birds, which they ate raw. Annually the State Legislature appropriated large sums to buy coffee and meat for the prisoners, but that was the graft of men higher up. The graft of the trusties came in handling the bread.

First they ate enough to satisfy their own hunger. Then, between kitchen and cells, they managed almost daily to abstract a store of bread. The hungry men in the cells would give anything they possessed for a piece of it. Thus a system of trade was maintained in the prison; matches, tobacco, even the precious pain-killing opium were eagerly offered for bread. This was the graft of the trusties.

Their business was to keep order among the five hundred men in the five tiers of cells. This was the work of the guards, delegated to the trusties. If they did not do it, if they allowed the guards to be disturbed, they would be sent back to hard labour, deprived of their access to food. They were thriftened to rule over half a thousand ferocious and famished prisoners who hated them. They ruled with clubs.

Empire Business College
Sydney, N.S.

R. H. Fawcett, Principal.

Morning and evening were the most dangerous times. Then the cells were unlocked, and the narrow iron stairways clanged under the feet of descending and ascending prisoners. They jammed the corridors below, and the thirteen trusties were unprotected among them. Then if a man showed a sign of insurrection, made a sudden unusual movement, a trusty could wait for no explanation. He struck. Other trusties came running. They leaped on the man and beat him into whimpering submission.

During the day, while the prisoners were at work, or locked up, the hall was quiet. Then Frisco Jack and Pittsburg Jack sat in the corridor, smoking and talking. Pittsburg Jack told many interesting stories of his life.

For all respectable people he had great contempt; they were hypocrites, and weak. He clasped them with pickpockets and as persons who were afraid to take a chance. He greatly admired courage and strength, he had an unbounded love of adventure and excitement, and all these things, it seemed to him, were found in perfection in the life of a yegg.

Jack London, listening, assented. On the road he had learned enough of the ways of criminals of the difference between yeggs and prowlers, guns and sure-thing men, the methods of fly-cops and dicks, to hold up his end of the talk. And his food depended on this man's favour.

George, a young mulatto of Jack's own age, who was serving sixty days for vagrancy, had in some manner obtained three dollars. How he had done it was a mystery, as he, in common with the other prisoners, had been robbed of all his possessions by the guards when he entered the place. However, he did obtain the money, and had been observed by a trusty counting it in his cell. The following day two of the trusties fell upon him, and took the three dollars.

The mulatto was a fine, upstanding young fellow, with a strong body and an unconquered spirit. He would not stand for such treatment, he said; the money was his, and he would have it. He demanded to see the warden. In that mire of misery and degradation, beaten, half-starved, he still dared to stand upright. He still believed in justice and demanded it. Five hundred convicts gazed at him in awe and half-contemptuous pity.

That night, when all the men were locked in their cells, one of the guards climbed the four steep flights of iron stairs to the fifth tier. He was followed by eight trusties. He unlocked the mulatto's cell, and walked away. The eight trusties went in.

Jack London was standing in the corridor four stores below. He heard the clang of the iron door, and looking up saw the eight men. He knew what they were about to do.

A moment later they again appeared on the balcony. In their midst, hidden by their bodies, was something that struggled. Slowly they passed down the long row of balconies, before the row of grated cell doors, and as they went, systematically and methodically they struck, kicked, smashed, broke the creature between them. At the end of the balcony they dropped him. A huddled mass of flesh and bloody rage, bumped down the four flights of narrow iron steps. It struck the stone floor beside Jack and struggled upright. It was not recognizable as the mulatto; the face was a bit of raw flesh battered out of all semblance to the human. The naked, mangled body swayed upright for a second, and as it fell forward it uttered one long scream of agony and terror and surrender.

Jack London had seen the soul of a man killed in a living body, and he never forgot it. That scream rang in his ears and awakened echoes of horror in him long years after the mulatto was walking cautiously about the corridors again, a cringing semblance of a man.—John O'London's Weekly.

Novelist Fined.

Mr. E. Phillips Oppenheim, the novelist, though not a poker player himself, was a defendant at Marlborough Street Police Court, London, recently in a poker prosecution following a police visit to the Cleveland Club. The complaint against Mr. Oppenheim was that as a director he had the care and management of a certain room which was being kept and used for the purpose of unlawful gaming.

The secretary of the club, Mr. William Eatherly, was summoned for "assisting in conducting the business" of the room. The defendants pleaded guilty. Mr. Oppenheim was fined £10 and five guineas costs, and Mr. Eatherly £10.

Picturesque Towns Invaded.

Rome, June. (Associated Press.)—Towns of Italy which dot the landscape from north to south and have been the subject of writers and painters for centuries are threatened with an invasion of modern mechanical contrivances which will rob them of their aged romance and unspoiled picturesqueness.

The hill towns are relics of the old feudal system. The lord of the manor built his castle upon a hill and the whole of his vassals clustered their habitations about him. The position on almost inaccessible heights was sought for safety from invading neighbors. These towns dotting the hills stand to-day almost untouched by the centuries. The walls of the houses are thick and strong. Food has been hauled up to the hills by hand labor and horses since they were built. Women carried on their heads the water and other household necessities.

The plan now is to build Alpine railways from the plains to the hills as labor saving devices. The perfect Alpine cable lines which the Italian army built over the Alps during the war are being sought for the work. Already a number of the towns have applied to the ministry for the discarded Alpine cables so that they can be erected for the towns.

PYORRHEA.

Pyorrhoea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, yet one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition.
 It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy.
